

Southwest cuts down Amarillo flights

From staff and wire reports
Members of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers union went on strike Sunday against Southwest Airlines, thus joining another union, the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union, which went on strike Tuesday against oil companies.
The IAM union seeks pay hikes and additional compensation and benefits.

OCAW wants additional health insurance benefits, an increase in pay and more vacation time.
Southwest Sunday cut back on flights in Amarillo to a level that is "comparable" to the December, 1978 flight schedule, Camille Keith, airline spokesman, said Monday.
Sunday flights out of Amarillo have been cut back to three daily, from a normal load of five; Friday flights will remain the same; and Monday through Thursday flights have been reduced from six flights to five.

Keith added that all Saturday flights throughout the Southwest system have been eliminated. Almost 800 flights will be cut, but 901 will stay in the air, she said.
"We started the reduction on Sunday but really began working into it Monday," she explained. "Our rates will stay the same."
She also said this is the first time any union has gone on strike against the airline.

Meanwhile, the local OCAW union gained full participation in its strike as the sixth group representing OCAW members locally walked out Thursday. Those groups include persons working for Phillips Petroleum Company, Getty Oil, ARCO Gas, and Cities Service.
In a called meeting last week, the Pampa local — 4235 — decided to change some of the pickets as well as equalize shift times, Gary McFall, union president locally, said. However, the shifts will continue to run with two men per shift.

McFall added that the union has received a "pretty good response" from those honoring picket lines.
At the center of the Southwest strike, meanwhile, picket lines surfaced at Dallas' Love Field Airport.

Rebels stiffen resistance

By The Associated Press
Moslem rebels were reported putting up stiff resistance to Soviet troops in the highlands of eastern Afghanistan as thousands of Afghans packed mosques in the capital city of Kabul to mourn political prisoners killed by the previous communist government.
Diplomats in Islamabad, Pakistan, said the Afghan rebels had stepped up fighting near the Pakistan border. Pakistani newspapers reported heavy fighting across the rugged countryside of the Central Asian nation, including the northern region bordering the Soviet Union.
The reports could not be confirmed.
In Kabul, thousands crowded mosques Sunday to mourn political prisoners slain during President Hafizullah Amin's regime. Unconfirmed reports have estimated 12,000 Afghans were killed by Amin and his predecessor, Nur Mohammed Taraki, who installed the first communist government in Kabul in an April 1978 coup.

The anti-communist rebels launched their guerrilla war after Taraki came to power. Amin, Taraki's prime minister, overthrew his chief in September 1979 and Taraki was killed. Amin in turn was ousted and executed in a Soviet-backed coup Dec. 27, two days after the Soviets began pouring an estimated 100,000 troops into Afghanistan to prop up a new president, Babrak Karmal, and fight the Moslem insurgents.

A senior U.S. official claimed Friday that the Russians were conducting a brutal campaign to "exterminate those who oppose them." The official, who declined to be identified, said Washington believes several hundred Afghans have been executed since the Soviets stepped in. However, one unconfirmed report from a Pakistani newspaper, the Morning News of Karachi, said the Soviets have killed 4,000 civilians and guerrillas.
The Kremlin says it intervened in Afghanistan at Amin's request because the United States, China, Pakistan and Egypt were arming and training the Afghan guerrillas.

Carter steps up reprisals against Reds

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is warning that normal trade with the Soviet Union will not resume soon "under even the best of circumstances," as his administration steps up a campaign of reprisals that could lead to a boycott of the Moscow Olympics.
Strongly defending his handling of the crises in Afghanistan and Iran, Carter declared Sunday night that "political considerations and economic profit" must be set aside in response to the threats.
Earlier, a White House official said Carter "cannot support U.S. participation in the Moscow Olympics if Soviet troops are still in Afghanistan."
The president Sunday dispatched Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher to Europe to consult with U.S. allies about a possible Olympic boycott and joint military and economic aid to Pakistan, which borders Afghanistan.
Carter tentatively has approved $400 million in U.S. aid to Pakistan beginning immediately, if Congress consents, the administration said. All the weapons would be "defensive" and warplanes would be excluded in deference to India's concern about strengthening Pakistan, its neighbor and long-time antagonist.

The administration's thrust Sunday also included a renewed threat to Iran. Defense Secretary Harold Brown indicated a naval blockade of Iran is being considered to counter its holding of 50 U.S. hostages.
"Specifically, we cannot rule out the option of cutting off Iranian imports by one means or another," he said about a possible blockade.
Such a blockade, however, is considered a long-range contingency.
Brown, who just completed talks with Chinese leaders in Peking, said he expects continued cooperation with the Chinese in response to the Soviets.
Carter, addressing the White House conference on small business, denounced the Soviet Union's "massive invasion of the small, nonaligned country of Afghanistan" and asked Americans to "stand with me."

"In reaching my decision to act, I had to face some tough choices," he said. "There are many risks. There are economic costs. We are sharing those costs, so the burden will not fall only on you or on American farmers or any other particular group."
His remarks were greeted with scattered applause.
Several of Carter's rivals for the presidency have sharply criticized his decision to embargo 17 million tons of grain to the Soviet Union, saying U.S. farmers will suffer more than the Russians.
However, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland predicted meat shortages in the Soviet Union as a result of the U.S. embargo.
The fate of the summer Olympics appeared uncertain Sunday as Christopher flew to Europe.
After a stop in London, he was heading for Rome, Paris and Bonn to meet with European leaders. Then he will go to Brussels for a session of the North Atlantic Council, where allied governments will consider possible retaliation against the Soviets.

Pampan dies following shooting here

A 31-year-old Pampa man was fatally wounded in a shooting which reportedly occurred early Sunday morning in his mobile home behind a local restaurant.
Dennis Lee Smith, owner of Steddum's Restaurant, was pronounced dead by Justice of the Peace Nat Lunsford at his residence at 504 S. Finley.
City police officers were dispatched to the scene of an "accidental shooting" at 12:10 a.m. Sunday, authorities say, after the department received a telephone call reporting the mishap.
After surveying the scene, a coroner was requested to be sent to the location, according to Lt. Charles Morris of the police department.
As acting coroner, Lunsford pronounced the man dead at the scene and requested an autopsy be performed, he added.

The body was sent to Amarillo pathologist, Jose Esquivel, Diaz for an autopsy. Morris said it will "probably" be three to four weeks before results will be returned.
Authorities speculate the shooting occurred at approximately 12:00 midnight.
The mishap is presently under investigation by the Criminal Investigation Department. Police Chief J. J. Ryzman said today.
"District Attorney Harold Comer has appraised the situation," he added, "and is working closely with the department in the matter."
Smith is survived by his wife, Cathy of the home; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hayden of Reynoldsburg, Ohio, one sister, Mrs. De Etta Nicholas, Reynoldsburg, Ohio, two brothers, Derrick Smith of Albuquerque, N.M., and Dexter Smith of Arizona, and his grandfather, Rev. Floyd Nelson of Springfield, Colo.

Services for Smith, born Nov. 7, 1948, will be held at 10 a.m. Wednesday in the Central Baptist Church with Rev. Alvin Hiltbrunner officiating.
Burial will be in the Fairview Cemetery under the direction of Carmichael-Whitley Funeral Directors.
A resident of Pampa for 14 years, Smith was a member of the Central Baptist Church. He served with the United States Army in Thailand during the Vietnam war.

Texas 'concerned' over taxes

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas cities are up in arms again, this time over the federal revenue sharing program.
The return of federal funds to the states from taxes collected in those states has been a boon to most Texas cities since it was enacted in 1972. They don't want to give up the money when the program comes before Congress later this year for renewal—or discontinuance.
Texas' state officials are interested also but not as much as local authorities because the funds received by the state are a very small part of the state budget.
President Carter is expected to send Congress in early February his plans to extend revenue sharing for another five years.
"It sounds as if it (the proposal) would continue without much change a program I have always regarded as illogical, unwise and potentially damaging to our federal system of government," Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, said recently. Brooks and others tried twice last year to get the program cut back.

General Revenue Sharing is currently fixed at $6.8 billion a year nationwide. Texas currently receives $335 million annually with $144 million channeled to city governments. Under the allocation formula, cities and counties receive funds on the basis of population, city governments," the magazine said. "The consensus of responses to the TML survey was that revenue sharing's demise would necessitate city employee layoffs, increased taxes and service charges, reduction in capital improvements and in many cities, drastic cutbacks in services."
The state's share of revenue sharing is $133 million a year.
"It is used for general purposes with a lot of it going to higher education for payment of increasing utility bills," said Tom Keel, director of the Legislative Budget Board.
"We take it but it's not all that important any more to state financing. When you compare that with a $10 billion budget it's not much. We could get by without it."
Gov. Bill Clements, a Republican, says he's all for extension of revenue sharing. "I have been in touch with our senators and congressmen, doing everything I can to continue our revenue sharing plan," he said. "If they are going to cut back anything, I want those categorical grants eliminated so the state will have maximum flexibility."

But the major efforts to extend the program will come from the cities.
At the national level, the U.S. Conference of Mayors is leading the drive. In Texas it will be the TML, plus individual efforts of mayors and other officials.
"The Texas Municipal League study reveals that the General Revenue Sharing program is doing exactly what it was intended to do," said the TML. "It is flexible, and allows local officials the ability to decide locally what their specific community needs are and how best to address those needs. The fact that 67 percent of Texas cities receive no other direct federal funding only underscores the importance of general revenue to those cities."

Women challenge Dartmouth frat

HANOVER, N.H. (AP) — Dartmouth College students say they need fraternities because there isn't much to do in this small community. Now a faculty committee battling sexism wants the fraternities closed — unless women are allowed to live in them.

Students — male and female — at this Ivy League school say the "forced integration of the sexes" will destroy the hallowed traditions of the fraternity system.

The committee report, issued last week, called fraternities "bastions of white male dominance" that control the social life of Dartmouth undergraduates. It demanded fraternities begin accepting women and sororities begin accepting men, and that fraternities beef up recruiting of minorities.

Dartmouth's faculty voted in 1978 in favor of abolishing fraternities and sororities because of "abuses... categorized as sexism, racism and anti-intellectualism."

College officials say the vote prompted the investigation by the faculty committee, which now goes to the board of trustees.

"What bothers the faculty is that the predominantly male fraternity system excludes and has a negative attitude to women," said committee member Charles McLane. "The sexism, the massive male dominance, is what is troublesome."

Hanover has two bars and two movie theaters, students note, so fraternities are the heart of Dartmouth's social life. Says the report: "Hanover is without the usual places for letting off steam that most college towns possess."

David Kollmorgan, president of the inter-fraternity council, says "there isn't a pure WASP frat on campus." He argues there are "certain aspects of all-male companionship that you can only get in a fraternity."

"I don't think I could be comfortable living in my (fraternity) house if I knew a woman was using the same bathroom," he said in a weekend interview. "It's an outrage to think we should change just because the faculty doesn't like it."

"There are certain needs which women have apart from men, and the women in this sorority covet the all-women environment that prevails," said Janet Jakobsen, president of Sigma Kappa. "We'll fight to keep men out of our sorority."

Members of the faculty committee concede the recommendations were made over the objections of students.

Florida crash claims four HOMESTEAD, Fla. (AP) — A station wagon packed with 13 people on their way to a dance overturned in a drainage canal, killing the driver and three children, authorities said.

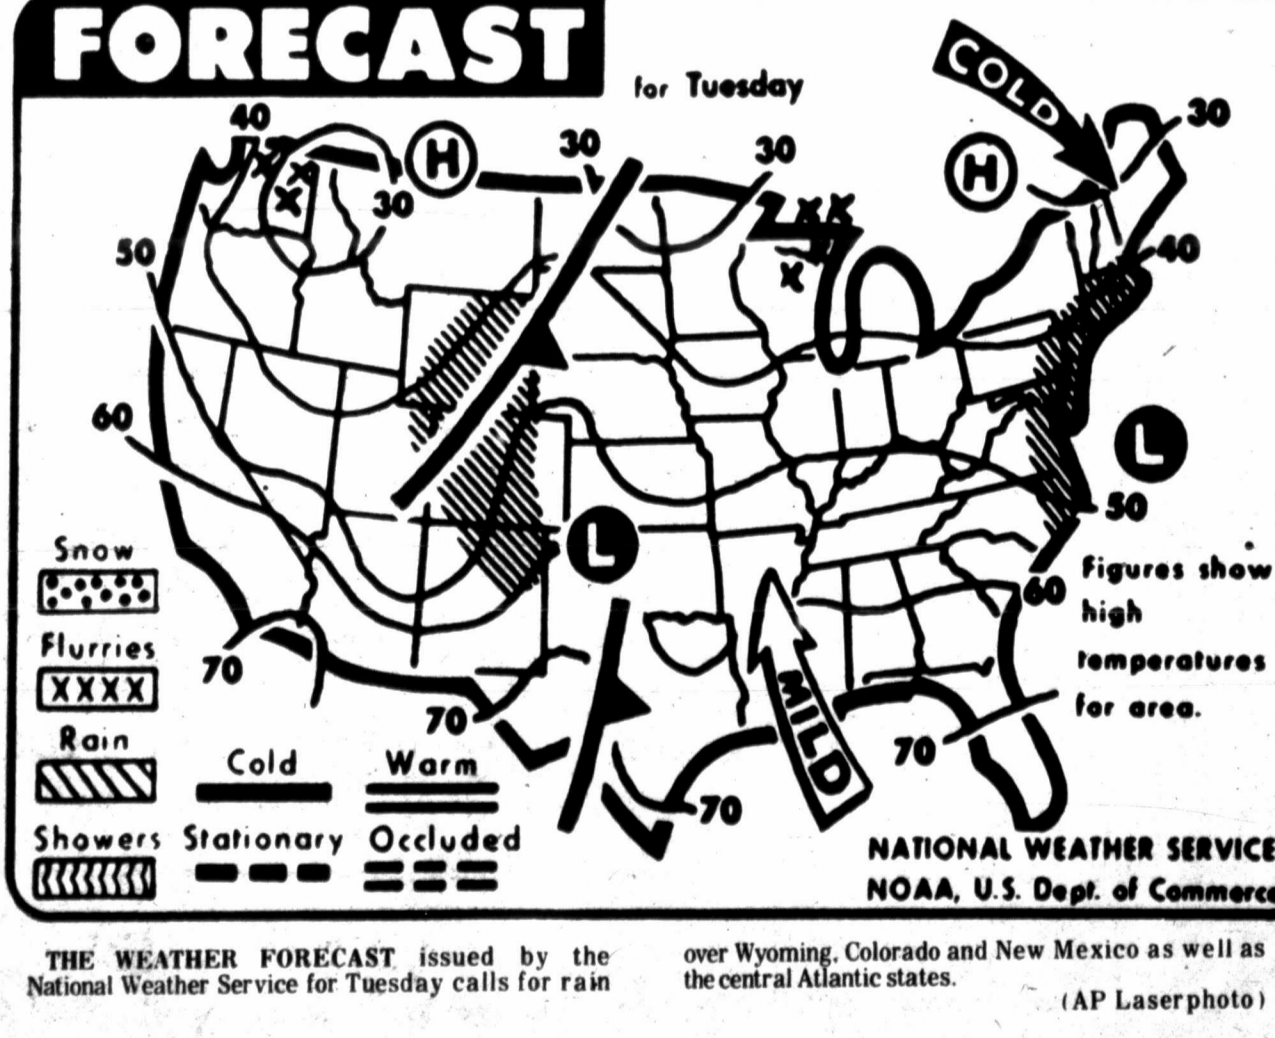

"We could hear people beating inside the car. We tried to console everyone inside and get them calmed down," Dade County Fire Lt. Jim Sharpe said Sunday night. "We were all trying to get inside the car but there was no way."

Witnesses said a woman passenger freed herself from the car, was wedged in a narrow, 3-foot-deep canal. It took rescuers about 20 minutes to free a second woman and seven youngsters from the vehicle using "Jaws of Life," a device that rips apart metal.

Police said the group had been on its way from the South Dade Labor Camp to a dance here Sunday night. Police said the car apparently was speeding and weaving through traffic when it sideswiped a guard rail, catapulted across the road and landed in a drainage ditch near this farming community south of Miami, said Dade police Lt. Dennis Shaw.

"They ran out of ambulances and had to get some from Homestead Air Force Base," said police Sgt. Walter Donovan.

The dead included a year-old baby, a toddler and a 14-year-old girl, Shaw said. He said officers on the scene believed they were drowned, along with the driver. Their names were being withheld until their families were notified.

Boat hijacker awaits arraignment in Houston

FREEPORT, Texas (AP) — A Brownsville man, accused of turning a gun on his shipmates and holding them on a shrimp boat over the weekend, was in a Houston jail today awaiting arraignment. The man, identified as Robin Alexander Stansbury, 21, was arrested Sunday morning by FBI agents, who boarded the boat in the Gulf of Mexico about 20 miles out from Freeport on the upper Texas coast. A spokesman for the FBI in Houston said charges of crime on the high seas-kidnapping were being prepared. A $100,000 bond was recommended in the case, the spokesman said. Crewmen aboard the 68-foot Easy Rider told authorities the drama began Saturday morning, while they were shrimp fishing off the coast of Intercoastal City, La., about 240 miles up the coast from Freeport.

"He (the suspect) told me he wanted to go home, that it was an emergency. We didn't have any indication that he was upset. He was real quiet," said Jack Waller Jr., captain of the boat and son of owner Jack Waller Sr. of Brownsville.

Waller said the suspect had been quiet and created no problems since he hired on. The three men had been fishing together off Morgan City, La., since Jan. 2, Waller said.

The man forced Waller and crewman Ronald Bushh, 24, into the ice hold, where the shrimp are kept, the captain said.

"The only part I hated was going into the hold, but if somebody's holding a gun on you and the safety is off, you do it," he said.

Cop 'hesitated'; shot six times

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston policeman shot six times during a chase with an armed burglary suspect said he hesitated before pulling the trigger because of the publicity surrounding recent police shootings.

And in that moment's hesitation, Larry Tuttle was shot in the head, arms, legs and feet.

"Yeah, I hesitated before shooting," said Tuttle, 36, a 4-year veteran of the force. "I could see myself before a grand jury in the newspapers and in front of internal affairs."

A 17-year-old Houston man, Elroy Vasquez Martinez, was arrested minutes after the Saturday night shooting. He was charged with attempted capital murder Sunday and bond was set at $50,000.

"I knew he had a pistol," said Tuttle, who remained in fair condition Sunday. "I had seen it when he ran. I told him to drop it, but he started shooting."

The officer said the shooting occurred after he and his partner spotted the suspect near a building and the man fled. Tuttle said he chased the suspect about a block, and that the man opened fire after Tuttle found him hiding near a concrete porch.

He said he returned fire, emptying his service revolver after he had been hit. The suspect was not wounded.

Tuttle said recent grand jury investigations and trials of police officers connected with shooting incidents "have had an effect on us all" and made him hold his fire.

"Sure, I hesitated," he said, then added "I won't hesitate again — not as long as I'm riding the streets."

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Reagan must sell experience not age

The contrast in personalities and views among the candidates seeking the Republican nomination for president belies the notion that the party is an ossified relic of an old and discredited conservatism. A swing away from the assumptions of liberal doctrine has been detectable for several years in American politics, and with the troubles besetting the Carter presidency, it could be argued that 1980 will be a Republican year.

Ronald Reagan comes from the conservative side within his party, so his credentials in that area are taken for granted. Like other candidates in both parties he will be jockeying for that "mainstream" identification that would be presidents eagerly pursue. But political philosophy is only one thing that Reagan must sell. He must overcome the idea that a man of 68 is too old to elect as president, and sell the proposition that a man whose experience in government began and ended with a governorship can handle the U.S. presidency.

Experience and relative youth abound among his rivals. John Connally is a former Treasury secretary and diplomatic troubleshooter. George Bush has served in Congress, headed the CIA and been a minister to China and the United Nations. Howard Baker has been steeped in national affairs as a senator and minority party leader. Philip Crane, John Anderson and Robert Dole are seasoned congressional hands.

But selling strong points and defending weak points is what campaigns are all about. Reagan and the others can do no more than make the most of what they have to offer. The forthcoming season of caucuses, conventions and primaries will reveal how age, experience and different approaches to national and international problems stack up in the minds of the party faithful.

It is too early to predict what the overriding consideration will be when Democrats and Republicans pick their nominees for 1980. Right now, the dialogue is dwelling heavily on "leadership." That's a quality easier to talk about than to define and measure in one candidate or another.

With President Carter facing two challengers from within his own party, and with a field of 10 at the starting line on the Republican side, the issues for 1980 probably will be more sharply defined than a debate about "leadership" implies.

Problem students

Iranian students in the United States may be the current focus of attention, but they are far from alone.

Current foreign enrollment in American institutions, according to the reckoning of the Institute of International Education in New York, totals some 264,000. Iranians are by far the largest single national contingent, but still represent less than a fifth of the total. In second place is Taiwan, with 14,000 students on record.

The United States has been a particular favorite of Third World youth studying abroad because of its leading international position and because in recent years it has invited them.

With declining enrollments posing financial problems for many American schools, foreign students have become increasingly desirable — particularly those from Iran and other oil-rich countries. Not only have they been welcomed by admissions offices, but they have been actively recruited.

Iranians, alone, according to a Washington Post report, comprise almost a third of the student body of one California institution. The Immigration and Naturalization Service found others were sending signed but blank acceptances to recruiters abroad.

If these students have now become a problem, we would appear to have done more than a little in bringing it on ourselves.

UAW really not helping Chrysler

By Oscar Cooley

The United Auto Workers union claims its contract with Chrysler Corp. grants $403 million in concessions to help that company survive.

Checking into the nature of these "concessions," one finds that they actually are mere delays in the same wage increases that Ford and General Motors are to make.

According to Associated Press, the pay of assemblers at all three companies will rise step by step over the next three years from $8.67 an hour to $11.32 an hour but each raise at Chrysler, at least during the first two years, will take effect a few months later than at the other firms. At the end of the three-year period, assemblers at all three firms will be getting the same wage, $11.32 an hour.

How liberal. How positively magnanimous! And what if, by the end of the three-year period, Chrysler is in bankruptcy court?

The absurdity of a near bankrupt employer raising the wages of its employees at all seems not to have dawned on the raise-infatuated UAW. The only bona fide concession to such a firm has to be a wage reduction. Is it the theory of the UAW that Chrysler is failing because the present wage rates are too low?

Even while dickering with the union over wages, Chrysler was desperately seeking loan guarantees or other subsidies of $1.5 billion or so from the U.S. government.

One of the oft-repeated arguments for government support is that without it the company will be forced to close and that this will throw some 400,000 people out of work. If the Chrysler workers want to retain their jobs, wouldn't it be sensible for them to curb their desire for a wage increase?

If Chrysler is to survive, it obviously must change its income-output ratio to a plus. It must either increase its income, or decrease its outgo (of which wages are a major part), or both.

Here it is, agreeing to a labor contract which calls on it to pay out not less but more than it has been paying for each hour of labor. How can it expect to move from the loss to the profit column when it will be periodically jacking up its outgo?

It is hard to see how the UAW could have arranged matters so as to contribute more effectively to Chrysler's eventual demise. If workers are to avoid being laid off, they must cooperate with employers to make the business pay and so to preserve their jobs. To raise your prices when your sales are already far below the break-even point is economic foolishness.

Ford, too, is slipping. According to W.O. Bourke, Ford executive, it will lose a billion dollars on its operation in North America in 1979 and a similar amount in 1980. Will it, too, be calling on the taxpayers to help it pay the wage increases called for in the UAW contract?

The prospect for the entire auto industry, in fact, is not bright. People are buying fewer cars. To save gasoline, they are demanding smaller, more fuel-efficient cars. To design the new models and put them into production is costly to the manufacturers. It's time for the UAW to get the message.

From Cleveland comes news of a similar unwarranted wage hike. That city faces a 1979 deficit of some $35 million. But just before election day, then Mayor Dennis Kucinich signed a contract with the Municipal Foreman and Laborers union Local 1099, giving them a raise of 11 percent. Other employees of the city have contracts awarding them wage increases in line with those of Local 1099. So Cleveland's deficit in 1980 bids fair to exceed that of 1979.

A city cannot fail and quit operation, as a private firm can, and this fact makes it easier for unions of public, compared with private, workers to extort wage raises. To pay the raises, the city will just have to sell more bonds. Or, if no one will buy them, it will have to raise taxes, taking more private property. A strike of public workers is really a strike against taxpayers.

In signing the contract, Kucinich was politically motivated, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. It was a bid for re-election, but evidently the bid was not high enough, for he was not re-elected. The man who was, George Voinovich, will be stuck with the problem of paying the raise his opponent negotiated and keeping the city solvent.

Both the Chrysler and the Cleveland cases illustrate the cupidity of labor unions. Wages raises are their sole aim, and these in the short run. To get an immediate raise they are blind to its long-run effect on the employing firm and therefore on its employees.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Monday, Jan. 14, the 14th day of 1980. There are 352 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On Jan. 14, 1914, Henry Ford's first assembly line went into operation, slashing the time it took to produce cars.

On this date:
In 1784, the United States ratified its peace treaty with England, formally ending the Revolutionary War.

In 1809, England and Spain formed an alliance against Napoleon Bonaparte.

In 1875, Albert Schweitzer was born.
In 1907, 1,000 people died in an earthquake in Jamaica.

In 1942, allied forces under Gen. Douglas MacArthur resisted Japanese attacks on Bataan in the Philippines.

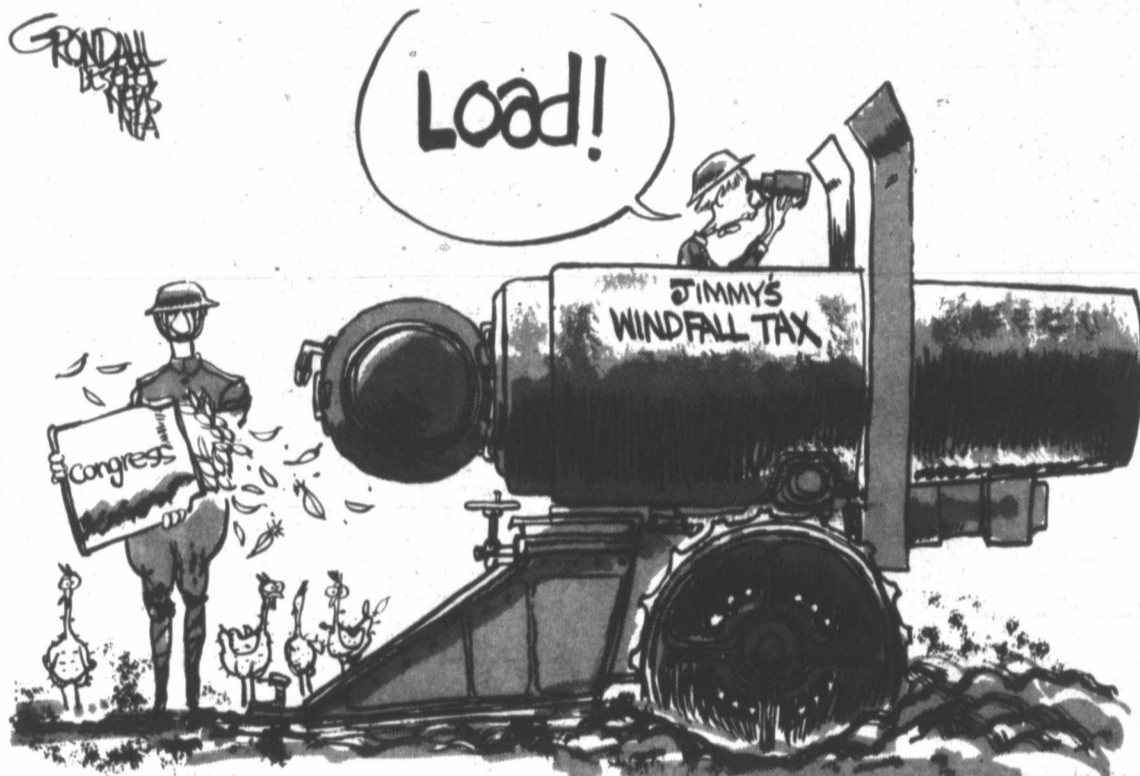

Ten years ago, the international effort to fly food and medicine to Biafra after its surrender to Nigeria's central government was stalled because of a lack of approval from Nigerian officials.

Five years ago, Saudi Arabia's King Faisal began a tour of Arab nations opposing Israel.

One year ago, President Carter began his campaign for Senate ratification of the still-incomplete SALT II treaty, saying a senate defeat would "deal a severe blow to the prospects for peace around the world."

Today's birthdays: Actress Faye Dunaway is 39. Author Thomas Tryon is 54. Photographer Cecil Beaton is 76. And choreographer Gerald Arpino is 52.

Thought for today: Music is the universal language of mankind — Henry Wadsworth Longfellow (1807-1882)

There he goes Mr. America

by ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON—No one in their wildest dreams ever thought that the first casualty of the 1980s would be Bert Parks, the master of ceremonies of the Miss America Pageant. For those of us who have been watching the show for the past 25 years, the news of his firing could not have come at a worse time.

Bert Parks was the only link we had to a nostalgic American past. Every year as he broke into song with, "Here she comes, Miss America," the country choked up with tears and we all went to bed that night knowing that no matter what disasters we would face in the coming months, Bert Parks would always see that this country had a beauty queen.

There was a time when we watched the Miss America pageant because of its prurient interest. But somewhere along the way many of us lost interest in the women parading up and down the runway. We tuned in just to watch Bert Parks sing and dance his way through Miss Alaska to Miss Mississippi, creating the excitement and the suspense that kept us all on the edge of our seats.

You can say what you want about Bert Parks, but he had teeth. He had more teeth than anyone who has ever appeared on television. When he opened his mouth he lit up every screen in America. As the cameras closed in on his teeth you had the feeling he was going to bite down on your bathrobe and drag you right onto the stage of the Atlantic City auditorium. It was of course an illusion, because Bert would never bite anybody—but no one could deny it was great show business.

Why was Bert Parks fired? The organizers of the Miss America pageant gave as their reasons that Bert was getting too old and "too powerful." Bert is 65 years old. He looks 40, and has the zest of a teen-ager. If Bert Parks was emcee in the Miss People's Republic of China beauty pageant, they would have said he was just reaching his prime.

The Miss America pageant needs a mature person to prevent it from turning into just another flesh market. Bert was the father figure that made it okay for the home audiences to still believe in the American dream, and we knew that with Bert on stage no harm could come to these young, innocent girls.

I'm not sure what the pageant organizers meant when they said he was getting too powerful. His reported salary for emceeing this important event was $18,000. That's less than an office boy gets at Playboy magazine. So we know it wasn't money that drove the pageant people to take such a desperate measure. If he was difficult to work with, he must have had his reasons. When you have the awesome responsibility of choosing the person who will represent the purity of America womanhood for an entire year, you can't be a paper tiger.

So, as we say farewell to the large automobile, 50-cents-a-gallon gasoline, the five-cent chocolate bar, and 79-cent mom's apple pie, we must now bid goodbye to Bert Parks.

We'll never forget you, Bert—your teeth will always be in our hearts.

The economic outlook

By Anthony Harrigan

Economist Irving Kristol, writing in The Wall Street Journal, says that the decade ahead "promises to be an absolutely ghastly period." Few objective observers would disagree with his gloomy prediction.

It was only ten years ago that oil sold for $2.40 a barrel. In recent weeks, it has been selling for $40 on the spot market. It won't take many OPEC price hikes to get a barrel of oil to $50 or $60 or more. The impact on our daily lives will be colossal.

The crisis in Iran may lead to enormous troubles for the U.S. throughout the Muslim world. Egypt after President Sadat will be a very different country. The conservative government of Saudi Arabia may be living on borrowed time. The presence of a huge non-Saudi Arab population in that country, employed in the oilfields and elsewhere, is a profoundly destabilizing force.

In the 1970s, the United States lost several important allies; therefore, it is very isolated today. If the world perceives the U.S. to be in rapid decline, the rats will abandon the sinking ship. The No. 1 need for the United States in the decade ahead is to restore the nation's defenses, which is the foundation of its security.

President Carter has announced various defense improvements, but they are completely inadequate. He envisions a fleet of 550 ships in the 1990s. This is only a little more than half the number of vessels in the U.S. Navy at the end of the Vietnam war.

Since he took office, Mr. Carter has whittled away the naval construction program. He fought against a new nuclear aircraft carrier until public opinion turned strongly against him and world events compelled him to agree to a new floating airfield. Where would we be today if we didn't have two carriers on station in the Arabian Sea?

For years, we have heard America described as an "affluent society" or a "post-industrial society." These notions were very destructive. They encouraged the American people to believe that they were so rich that they could pour billions into global welfare programs. They led Americans to believe that the U.S. could stay strong without heavy industry and modern factories. Suddenly, Americans are beginning to realize that the industrial base of their country is seriously deteriorated. They are beginning to understand that their standard of living is dependent on modern, efficient plants.

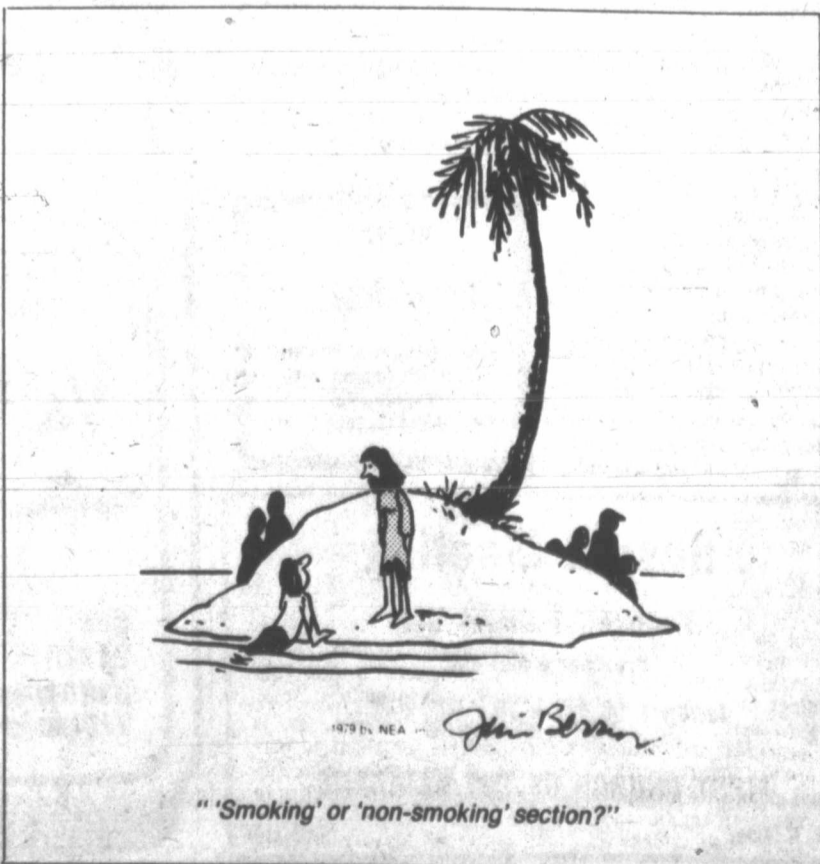

The country needs a new political leadership alert to the realities of the 1980s. This leadership must stress rebuilding of defense and industrial power. It must understand that we can't afford huge foreign aid programs. It must be realistic about the need for intervention in situations that affect our survival as a nation. It must deal firmly with friends and foes.

These issues and considerations should be the stuff of the 1980 election campaign. The time is past for the politics of domestic and foreign giveaways. Slogans and clichés are no substitute for a foreign policy, which includes economic policy.

The public has a right to know how the candidates plan to handle the crises which are bound to occur in the eighties.

Will the candidates renounce accommodation with the foes of the West? We must demand straight answers in this election year.

Cowboy boots: sense before fashion

By Ellie Grossman
NEW YORK (NEA) — Two things kept the cowboy in his saddle: his boots. They were designed to, from almost every angle. The pointed toes, for instance. They homed into the stirrups on their own. And once in, the heel that was pitched forward so that it sloped towards that toe, acted like a brake when the cowboy roped and rode and tackled bulls. And if the bulls unseated him, that same heel slid out again with ease. Then there was the decorative stitching up and down the leg, which is called the shaft. Only the stitching wasn't meant to be decorative at first: it was meant to strengthen the leader so it wouldn't sag. And some say even the stitching on the toes was there to prevent that part of the boot from wrinkling. Finally, the boot was high and fit tight so when the cowboy rode through the brush, it and the gravel his horse kicked up didn't irritate his legs or find their way into the boots to irritate his feet. These days, of course, women are wearing cowboy boots — or a taller or shorter, sequined or two-toned version of them, in rounded or pointed toe, high or low heels, in all leather, man-made fiber, or a combination of the two. And they're spending anywhere from $50 up for them, which is what the cowboy spent for his when he only earned $60 a month. Only the cowboy was more comfortable because he didn't believe boots are supposed to hurt until you get used to them. Neither do two western boot manufacturers. "They should be the most comfortable shoe you can wear," says Robert Turrentine, president of Acme Boot Company, which makes 24 styles of ladies' western boots ($50-$55). "The boot should fit snugly in the heel, at the arch and at the instep of the foot so it won't slip in back," but it shouldn't pinch or protest. The size should be your normal shoe size, down to the width. And, says Dick O'Connell, vice president of volume sales for Wrangler Boots, which makes 45 styles of ladies' western boots ($50-$70), "the only trouble you should have is getting into the boot. It should not be slid into. Your foot almost has to pop into the boot, which is why you need the bootstraps at the top of the boot." To pull on, of course.

DEAR ABBY

Readers debate babysitting responsibilities

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I was disappointed in your non-answer to the grandmother who refused to babysit for free except in cases of emergency. She asked how YOU handled the babysitting problem, and you said, "I have no sitting problems because my grandchildren live 2,000 miles away. But if they lived in the same town, I'd have to draw straws with the other grandmother because she loves to sit. Bless her." That's easy for you to say, Abby. Living 2,000 miles away, you're not likely to be called upon to babysit. Instead of making her feel guilty, you should have told NO SITTER that she had every right to refuse to be an unpaid sitter.

LET DOWN IN DENVER
DEAR LET DOWN: I plead not guilty to laying a guilt trip on NO SITTER, but judging from the haste with which you weren't the only one who misunderstood the lead on:

DEAR ABBY: Nuts to you with your answer to the grandmother who told her daughter-in-law not to count on her to sit for free while Mom and Dad went off gallivanting. I raised my children, and I expect them to raise theirs. Oh, I'd help out in an emergency, but they know they can't just ring me up to come over and mind the kids, or dump them on me anytime they have a notion to.

When my children were little, my husband and I went only to places we could take the kids or we stayed home. My children were MY responsibility to raise — not my mother's. JUNE IN STRONGSVILLE, OHIO

DEAR ABBY: Who are you trying to kid? You say you would love to babysit with your grandchildren but they live 2,000 miles away. Boy, are you ever safe! Somehow you just don't strike me as a babysitting kind of grandmother. With all the work you have to do writing your column and running around the country making speeches, when would you have time?

CYNICAL IN SENECA, OHIO
DEAR ABBY: I'm the mother of four children under 10, and here's the way I feel about asking my mother to babysit. I think she owes it to me. Yes, that's what I said. I was the oldest of seven kids, and I missed out on plenty of fun because my mother made me stay home and take care of my little brothers and sisters. (She used to tell everybody she had a "free, built-in babysitter.")

My mother was hardly ever home when I was in my teens. She didn't have to be gone, she was mostly just out having a good time. Mom has arthritis now and can't dance anymore. It's hard for her to get around, so she's available for sitting when I need her, which makes it nice for me. I really don't feel one bit guilty asking Mom to stay with my kids. I sure stayed with hers enough.

MY TURN IN MEMPHIS
DEAR ABBY: I raised my five children without any sitters because we couldn't afford them. Now that they have children of their own and can afford to hire sitters, that's what they do.

I don't want a babysitting job, with or without pay. I've tended enough babies for a lifetime and I've earned a rest. I sympathize with NO SITTER for refusing to be dumped on.

TIRED OF KIDS IN SEATTLE

DEAR ABBY: I have nine grandchildren and two great grandchildren, and if any of their parents ever offered me money to stay with them I'd be insulted. I consider it an honor and a privilege to look after the little ones. I feel complimented that their parents trust me with their most precious possessions!

HONORED IN OXNARD

DEAR ABBY: The grandmothers of today did not have it so easy when they were raising their children. I say, leave the grandmothers alone — hire a babysitter. And if they can't pay a babysitter, stay home like THEIR grandmothers did.

Meal-sized salads are for winter, too

Meal-sized salads aren't strictly summer fare. In fact, a sampling of salad dishes can brighten the dreariest winter evening. And salad savings include a night off for the oven and the use of a variety of leftovers. Experts recommend preparing several salads: one using leftover chicken with grapes and walnuts, another of shredded cabbage, a third with leftover vegetables marinated in Italian dressing.

Arrange the salads on a "bar" along with a selection of dressings and serve with rolls heated in the toaster oven.

THE PEOPLE'S PHARMACY

By Joe Graedon

Flu season is upon us. The all too familiar symptoms of chills, fever, aches, pains, sore throat and cough are not a pleasant prospect. However, an amazing anti-viral drug called Symmetrel (amantadine) should make that misery a thing of the past.

Traditionally, the only way to avoid the flu was to get a vaccination. Shots were usually reserved for high risk patients and older people. Ever since the swine flu fiasco some folks have been a mite reluctant to take even that precaution.

Used to be, if you were unlucky enough to get zapped by the influenza bug, regular treatment didn't provide much in the way of relief. Rest, plenty of fluids and aspirin were about all anyone could offer.

But now there is Symmetrel and it opens up a brand new chapter in the prevention and treatment of type-A influenza (the most common form of flu). What makes this anti-viral drug so special is that it possesses the unusual ability to prevent the flu from attacking when it is taken prophylactically. And if the flu does strike, the drug can help relieve symptoms and get you back on your feet within 24 to 48 hours.

If Symmetrel is such a super medication why haven't we heard more about it and why don't doctors prescribe it more often? (During the 1978-79 flu season only 80,000 prescriptions were filled — a drop in the bucket.)

We asked ourselves the same question and called the drug company. Endo

Laboratories, a subsidiary of the Dupont Company, to get their perspective. A company representative said that they have been waiting for a consensus from the medical community on the drug's role and it has only been within the last few months that that has been forthcoming.

He pointed out that the value of Symmetrel in fighting type-A influenza has been controversial. Although it has been recognized as an effective anti-viral agent since 1964 and received FDA approval for type-A influenza in 1976, it hasn't caught on with physicians. Vaccination was (and still is) the first line approach. It's easier to give a shot than to ask people to take a drug for five or six weeks.

When it was discovered that Symmetrel helped patients with Parkinsonism it was this use that captured doctors' attention. Dr. Jay Sanford, chairman of a panel of experts convened by the National Institutes of Health, claims that this dual use contributed to the confusion.

Many doctors still believe that the best (and only worthwhile) approach to the flu is to get a vaccination. Dr. Arnold Chanin, a family practitioner in Los Angeles and avid proponent of Symmetrel, tests that "to those who have made vaccine development their life's work, chemotherapy and chemoprophylaxis of influenza presents a radical and threatening concept." Others feel that the flu is such a minor ailment that you'd be better off toughing it out with juice and aspirin.

Being naturally conservative with all drug use we would certainly agree that it would be ridiculous to reach for Symmetrel every time you sneeze. However, during an epidemic it makes sense for anyone who is debilitated or especially susceptible to the flu to receive a prophylactic course of treatment.

Elderly patients, people with heart disease, metabolic disorders, lung conditions or an impaired immune system, and essential community personnel like firemen, policemen, doctors and nurses can all benefit from this drug. And if it is given within 24 hours after the onset of flu symptoms it can cure the illness and get them back on their feet in quick order.

The drug should not be used by pregnant women or people with kidney disease. And about seven percent of those who receive it may experience transient side effects, including insomnia, nervousness, light-headedness and difficulty in concentrating. Fortunately, most of these problems disappear after continued use.

Hopefully this will be a mild winter and there won't be much of a flu epidemic. But if the flu does return, at least it's comforting to know that we have an effective anti-viral weapon waiting in the wings.

TWEEN 12 AND 20

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I am a 19-year-old girl and have a small baby. Since I am unmarried, I am looked upon by most people as everything from an idiot to a pervert.

Please allow me to say a few things in my defense. I love my baby and I love her father and hope soon to marry him. I give my baby more love and attention than most married couples give theirs.

I attend church every Sunday and I'm deeply religious and smoking, drinking and drug taking are not for me.

Thanks for allowing me to get these things off my chest. I'm just tired of the stereotype! — C.C., Dixon, Ill.

C.C.: I totally agree that unwed mothers should not be stereotyped. Yet the innocent child is penalized because of the irresponsible acts of the "parents."

Every child deserves a loving mother and father who are married. Recent figures show that over 80 percent of unwed mothers keep their children instead of offering the baby to adoptive parents. In the vast majority of cases, society must pay the bills starting with mothers' hospital expenses through an 18th birthday.

Yes, C.C., unwed mothers should not be stereotyped but also they should not be glorified.

Dr. Wallace: I was inspired by the letter Darcey Davenport wrote to you saying that her life was turned around when she found God.

Last school year, my life was really messed up. I was failing in school, wasn't getting along with my parents, had no friends and I was into "pot" and alcohol.

By the end of school, I had gotten to the point where I didn't really care what happened. I just went to school, and sort of sat around, doing nothing. When I got home, I just walked the streets.

Then, one day, someone contacted me, and said that the local Friends Church was forming a youth group. I went to the first meeting, just for something to do. I liked it, and kept going back and with the help of these people, I have found God, and have become a Christian. Since this group started, we have grown from 10, to about 30 members, and we're still growing.

I have seen God do a lot of great things, and change a lot of lives.

The other evening I was feeling kind of down. Then I read Darcey's letter. Seeing what God had done for her just made my day. I was so happy about this, that I had to let you and your readers know! — Frank Barrett, Youngstown, Ohio

Frank: Your inspiration will be a blessing to others — thanks for sharing.

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DR. LAMB

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am disturbed by your stand on taking a drink of alcohol. Mankind, since the beginning of our present civilization, has been drinking wine, beer, etc., for good reasons. Religion, good fellowship, relaxation and just a good feeling and we will continue to do so after you are gone.

You sound like an old WCTU worker. Do you know the meaning of temperance? Would you attempt to ban the legal sale of alcohol beverages again? Were you or your father alcoholics? I think you've done a lot of damage to the U.S. by your constant harping on alcoholism. Your narrow-minded, unadulterated nonsense and prejudicial warblings have caused many wives to leave their homes and husbands and children. Why are you so mixed up? What about wife alcoholics? You never mention them. What about nagging quarrels, family arguments which you've caused by your stand on alcohol? My understanding is that there are about as many wives who are addicted to alcohol as men. What about them?

DEAR READER — As I read your letter, only part of which I've included here, it occurred to me that you might be the one who was "worked up."

There are many people who do have an occasional cocktail and suffer no ill effects from it. Unfortunately, there are many more who drink more than an occasional drink of alcohol and do suffer ill effects from it. The truth is the excessive use of alcohol is a major national health problem. It is frequently a factor in causing obesity. It is responsible for about 60 percent of the deaths from cirrhosis of the liver, which is in the top 10 causes of death in the United States for both men and women. No, I am not an alcoholic nor was my father an alcoholic and I have many good friends who enjoy an occasional drink.

PHOTOGRAPHER AFZAL KHAN, made the photo above available to the Associated Press on Saturday. The photographer reported the Afghan rebels pictured brought down a Soviet-built Mig with rifle fire during an August 1979 bombing raid over their village of Ali Khel near the Pakistan border. The rebels are reported to have said the Mig was flown by an Afghan pilot who was later shot to death. Pieces of the downed plane are exhibited by the rebel group. (AP LAaserphoto)

Church, state begin battle over thermostat settings

HOUSTON (AP) — The framers of the U.S. Constitution, aware of the need to keep church and state separate, probably never dreamed those two entities would cross swords over a thermostat.

But that's precisely what has happened, as some religious leaders and city officials are going to the mat over the "Houston Plan," the city's answer to federal regulations requiring certain thermostat settings in public and private buildings.

"I want to emphasize that we have no problem and are in total agreement with the idea of energy conservation," says the Rev. J.K. Minton, pastor of Lazybrook Baptist Church.

Wilson Brumley, metropolitan mission coordinator of the Union Baptist Association, echoes Minton's sentiments.

"We have the feeling that as churches we should take the lead in saving what God put on this Earth," Brumley says, adding that what worries him is the "erosion of the separation of church and state privilege."

Brumley's concerns center on a provision of the plan that requires each building that complies with the plan's thermostat regulations to post a certificate of compliance in the lobby of the building.

Further, city officials are charging a half a cent a square foot for inspecting the buildings to make sure thermostats are at the correct settings.

"The municipality is assuming the role of licensing a church," Brumley says. "If a church builds a building, it has to get a permit. But the builder or plumber has to get it."

"To that extent," adds Brumley, "every church is licensed. This is a matter of semantics, I'm sure."

Phil Baker, head of the city's newly created Office of Energy Conservation, agrees. "Maybe the thing to do," he says, "is to change it (the terminology) from license to receipt."

"This isn't a violation of the Constitution with regard to the regulation of churches," says Larry Schenk, assistant city attorney. Baker adds "they (churches) have gotten the idea it's a license for operation, that we're going to regulate the use of their building."

"We're not. We're going to regulate their use of energy."

As far as the licensing fee is concerned, Baker maintains churches should help pay for the inspections, along with everyone else. If the churches don't pay, he says, "it will put all the costs on businesses. The churches will get a free ride."

Baker says the fee charged is an inspection fee, not a tax or a licensing fee. "It will go into a fund," he says, "it's not a general revenue kind of fee."

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

January 15, 1980
This coming year you are likely to be luckier with progressive projects than you will be with old-fashioned types. Keep your eyes peeled for ventures that have futuristic twists.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Do nothing today predicated upon hearsay information or gossip. Act on the facts only and be sure to lay all of your cards on the table as well. Travel, resources, romance, luck, possible pitfalls and career for the months ahead are all discussed in your new Astro-Graph Letter which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
Problems could arise with pals today if they feel you are too inconsistent. Once you make a deal with another, stick to the terms.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
Much can be accomplished today, but it is not likely you'll do it unaided. Give ample credit to anyone who assists you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Conjuring excuses for not doing things could be your worst enemy today. Success will not elude you if you set specific goals and go all out.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
You may not accomplish all you hope today if you divide your time unwisely. It's imperative to get your priorities in order first.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
It takes two to make a bargain, so be prepared to yield a bit today if you're negotiating an important matter, provided the other party is willing to do so.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
In order to get cooperation today, you must set a good example. Coworkers will emulate your actions, whether they're right or wrong.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
Subdue temptations to take financial or material risks today. If you are going to gamble, take chances only on things derived from the sweat of your brow.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
Don't take yourself or others too seriously today. Play everything light and loose. Getting uptight will prove counterproductive.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
You are always able to recognize alternatives, but today you may see more negatives than positives in your involvements. Emphasize the hopeful, not the doubtful.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
Be careful today that you don't permit high-pressure salespersons to talk you into buying something you don't really want or need. You know how to say "no."

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
What you hope to achieve today may not come with your initial effort. However, if you're willing to try again your chances for success are excellent.

Ali named AP's athlete of decade

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP sports writer

"I hope in the next 10 years I can do something equal in another field," says Muhammad Ali. Whatever field Ali pursues, it is doubtful he will have impact on it that he had on the world of sports in the 1970s.

Such was that impact that Ali has been named Athlete of the Decade by a panel of AP Sports Writers. "The athlete of the decade... better than anybody?" asked the retired heavyweight champion when informed of the award. "I'm so honored."

It was a decade of superstars such as golfer Jack Nicklaus, hitters Pete Rose and Rod Carew, pitchers Jim Palmer and Tom Seaver, ball carriers O.J. Simpson and Tony Dorsett, passers Roger Staubach and Terry Bradshaw, basketballers Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Julius Erving and Bill Walton and tennis players Chris Evert Lloyd, Bjorn Borg and Jimmy Connors.

But Ali, whose renown transcended boxing, was a major personality in every one of those 10 years and figured in a major story in almost every one of them.

Ali began the decade under a cloud, he had been stripped of the heavyweight championship because of his refusal to accept military draft and was under a conviction for draft evasion and facing a five-year prison term.

At decade's end, Ali was retired after having regained the title twice, having earned more than $45.5 million in the ring and having engaged in some legendary fights — his loss to then-champion Joe Frazier, his title-regaining knockout of George Foreman in Zaire, his 14-round stoppage of Frazier in the Thrilla in Manila and his decision over Leon Spinks to become the only man ever to hold the heavyweight championship three times.

With his conviction, he will be at the Superdome in New Orleans since knocking out Zora Folley March 22, 1967, when he stopped Jerry Quarry in three rounds Oct. 26, 1970, at Atlanta.

On March 7, 1971, he was knocked down in the 15th round and outpointed by Frazier in a bid to regain the championship. His career was in jeopardy.

Palmer not leaving

Danny Palmer, head football coach of the Pampa Harvesters, has denied reports he has accepted a similar position at Wichita Falls High School.

Palmer said he was in Wichita Falls visiting relatives during the weekend, but said he wasn't for sure just how the rumor got started.

A story in Sunday's Amarillo Globe-News said Palmer was expected to be named head coach at Wichita Falls at the school board meeting Monday night.

"My first loyalty is to Pampa," Palmer said. "If I decide to leave I'll let the newspaper and radio here know about it first."

Tickets on sale today

Tickets are on sale now at the high school business office for the 3-AAA basketball games.

The tickets sell at the regular price of $1.75 and are for the reserved seats in the upstairs section of the fieldhouse.

Pampa swim teams set personal marks at Red Raider meet

LUBBOCK-Pampa high swim teams placed last weekend in the Red Raider Invitational with the girls finishing sixth and the boys 11th.

"We had some good times and some impressive wins," Pampa coach Mike Eckhart said. "I thought all the Harvester swimmers did a good job. The competition was very good as expected."

Pampa's Cindy Raymond took first in the 100 breaststroke in 1:15.09, a new school record. Other Harvesters turned in personal highs, like Richard Steger, who took fourth in the 200 freestyle (1:57.52) and Don Braswell, 11th, 200 freestyle, 2:06.23. Steger knocked three seconds off his previous best time. The girls 200 medley relay (Julie Turner, Cindy Raymond, Lisa Raymond, and Lynly Cambern) also registered their top time of 2:11.81 with an eighth-place finish. Turner topped her best time in the 100 backstroke with a 1:13.99 for ninth place and she also placed seventh in 200 individual medley in 2:39.48. Lisa Raymond took sixth in the 100 fly in 1:06.21 and third, 500 freestyle, 5:57.27. Cindy Raymond also took second in the 100 freestyle with a time of 58.49.

Finishing ahead of Pampa in the girls division were El Paso Coronado, first; Amarillo Tascosa, second; Amarillo High, third; Monahans, fourth; El Paso Irvin, fifth.

In the boys division, Amarillo High captured first while San Angelo took second.

Steger also claimed fifth in the 100 freestyle with a 54.16 clocking. Braswell was ninth in 500 freestyle, 5:40.20, and Cody Moore, ninth, 100 backstroke, 1:07.81.

Pampa's 200 medley relay of Braswell, Steger, Scott Grayson, and Darrell Kyle placed 10th with a 1:57.70 while the 400 freestyle relay (Kyle, Moore, Jerry Bond, and Grayson) was 12th in 4:00.8.

Pampa swimmers go back to Lubbock Saturday for a triangular with Lubbock Coronado and Lubbock Monterey.

Consistency pays off for Bryant

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Last summer, Cullen Bryant wasn't expected to be a starter for the Los Angeles Rams. But the muscular fullback became a regular and played a key role in his team's getting to Super Bowl XIV.

Bryant isn't surprised by his accomplishments this season, and now he thinks he can be an important factor in a Los Angeles victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers in nearby Pasadena next Sunday.

"I know what I can do," said Bryant after a practice session the other day. "And people who know the game know what I can do."

"Consistency is the most important thing, to play good ball every Sunday. I want the team to know that I'm the kind of player who can get the job done every week."

Bryant has been more than consistent for the Rams; he's done all they've asked of him and more. While Wendell Tyler has received more notice, Bryant has blocked like a truck and quietly rushed for 792 yards this season, including 173 in his team's two playoff games. Also, he's fumbled just once in 212 carries.

Bryant, a seven-year pro, had started just one game before last season, when he started nine times because of an injury to Lawrence McCutcheon. He led the 1978 Rams in rushing with 658 yards on 178 carries.

McCutcheon, who was replaced by Tyler in the fifth game this season, and John Cappelletti figured as the regular running backs for Los Angeles in 1979. However, Cappelletti missed the entire season because of a groin injury, opening the door for Bryant.

"I tried to do what I could to help the team before becoming a starter," said Bryant, a 6-foot-1, 234-pounder. "I've always had the confidence I could do the job. Given the opportunity, I've been able to develop to the point where I've had a hell of a playoff series."

"Coming into camp, I knew it would be tough for whoever was there to beat me out. I felt confident I could come in and start at either (running back) position considering who I was competing against."

The 28-year-old Bryant takes obvious pride in his ability to hang on to the ball.

"I've just been blessed with great hands," he said. "Even as a kick-returner early in my career, I didn't fumble. I'm only conscious of fumbling late in a game when we're trying to protect a lead. Otherwise, I'm just trying to gain yardage."

Bryant came into the NFL out of Colorado as a defensive back, much lighter than he is now. He was converted to offense prior to his second season and has been on an extensive weight program ever since.

"I just decided that the extra size, strength and weight would help," he said.

Bryant expressed confidence as far as next Sunday is concerned.

Conference race appears to be between Aggies, Arkansas

Unless it's as fleeting an image as a desert mirage, the preseason favorite Texas Aggies and the defending champion Arkansas Razorbacks appear to be the cream of the 1979-1980 Southwest Conference basketball class.

Of course, it could all change in another round of family feudin' Tuesday night as the Aggies travel to Dallas in a "must" game for Southern Methodist.

Arkansas, which has a 3-0 ledger like the Aggies, will be a prohibitive favorite to whip Baylor in Fayetteville.

In other games, Texas Tech (3-1) entertains Rice while Texas Christian is at Texas.

Texas A&M's 6-foot-11 center Rudy Woods has suddenly taken charge of the Aggie offense while the Razorbacks combine balance, poise, and discipline with considerable talent.

Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton said he figures the eventual conference regular season champion will have "three or four losses."

But only Texas Tech has shown the same consistency as the Aggies and Razorbacks.

"I still think Arkansas is going to be first in the conference," said Texas Coach Abe Lemons. "Arkansas is a good club, better than us, no doubt about it."

Arkansas and the Aggies don't meet until Jan. 22 when the Razorbacks travel to College Station.

The Aggies could just see a newfound Arkansas zone defense. The Hogs used the defense to baffle the Longhorns 55-50 Saturday.

"It's the most zone we've played since I've been here," said senior Alan Zahn.

"I thought we played with as much poise as we have all year," said Sutton. "We played more zone than we have maybe in four years. But don't worry about Texas. They are one fine club. They can play."

Both Texas and Houston have two losses with as many victories.

Texas Tech beat Texas Christian 84-65. Houston tripped Southern Methodist 96-81, and Baylor downed Rice 73-63 in other games Saturday.

Search for Rein suspended

CAPE CHARLES, Va. (AP) — Unless more debris is sighted and recovered, the plane crash which apparently killed Louisiana State football Coach Robert "Bo" Rein may remain unexplained.

The Coast Guard said Sunday it has suspended its search for wreckage of the plane carrying Rein, 34, and pilot Louis Benscotter, both presumed dead after their twin-engine Cessna crashed Friday nearly 1,000 miles off course. The plane took off from Baton Rouge, La., headed for Shreveport, La., but crashed into the Atlantic, off the coast of Virginia.

A memorial service for Rein, who had gone to LSU just two months ago after serving as head coach at North Carolina State, was held Sunday at Cary, N.C. In an emergency meeting Saturday, LSU named Jerry Stovall to succeed Rein as football coach there.

Stovall said he would proceed with preparations for spring drills, though he said the work would not be easy, especially for the assistants Rein hired.

"Most of these men not only knew him as their boss, they knew him as their friend," Stovall said.

Coast Guard officials believe an aluminum wheel sighted Friday night by a Norwegian ship 100 miles east of Cape Henry "definitely belonged to the aircraft, after talking to the owner," Coast Guard Lt. Gene Brooks said.

When the plane was seen headed in a northeasterly direction Thursday night, Air National Guard and Air Force planes were sent up in effort to intercept it. Air Force pilots said the plane was flying at 40,000 to 41,500 feet — more than 7,000 feet above its maximum altitude rating — and appeared to be on automatic pilot.

Aviation specialists have speculated the men might have died long before the plane crashed either because of a lack of oxygen from the high altitude or a leakage of carbon monoxide into the cabin from one of the engines.

Atlanta tops Spurs

When the Atlanta Hawks are around, the San Antonio Spurs barely jingle, jangle, jingle.

After trouncing the Spurs 120-101 in Atlanta Saturday night, the Hawks began a grueling Western trip with a 107-104 triumph in San Antonio Sunday night, their sixth over the Texans in seven meetings.

"It was just a great win for us, a sensational way to start the trip," said Coach Hubie Brown.

Elsewhere in the National Basketball Association, the Los Angeles Lakers nipped the Boston Celtics 100-98, the Seattle SuperSonics beat the Golden State Warriors 109-101, the Houston Rockets shaded the Milwaukee Bucks 121-117, the Philadelphia 76ers trimmed the New York Knicks 126-112, the Kansas City Kings trounced the New Jersey Nets 120-101, the Phoenix Suns edged the Utah Jazz 106-103, the Washington Bullets crushed the Portland Trail Blazers 127-95 and the Detroit Pistons downed the Chicago Bulls 107-102.

Dan Roundfield had 31 points and Eddie Johnson added 27 in Atlanta's victory over San Antonio that gave the Hawks a five-game lead over the Spurs and Houston in the Central Division. The Hawks visit San Diego, Phoenix, Los Angeles and Kansas City in the next nine days.

Survey results: women smokers beware

WASHINGTON (AP) — Women took up widespread use of cigarettes about 25 years after men, but the surgeon general says projected lung-cancer death rates indicate they are fast catching up. Female deaths from lung cancer will surpass those from breast cancer within three years, the surgeon general reports, suggesting an epidemic of smoking-related disease among women.

The death rate from breast cancer for women is higher than that of any other type of cancer.

Data that formerly supported the belief that women smokers faced lower risk rates than men amounts to "an illusion reflecting the fact that women lagged one-quarter century behind men in their widespread use of cigarettes." Surgeon General Julius B. Richmond says in a study on women and smoking submitted to Congress today. Smoking patterns for men and women once differed markedly — in terms of when they began smoking, how much they smoked and the tar and nicotine content of each cigarette.

But those patterns are becoming more uniform. As a result, female smokers no longer face lower death rates than men from lung disease, heart disease and lung cancer, Richmond says.

Cigarette-smoking already contributes to one-fifth of newly diagnosed cases of cancer and one-fourth of all cancer deaths among women — higher rates than for any other agent, Richmond says.

Last November, the American Cancer Society reported that lung cancer ranked eighth among cancer killers of women in 1961, had become second only to breast cancer.

In 1980, an estimated 32,000 of the expected 117,000 lung-cancer deaths will occur in women, Richmond's study says. About 36,000 breast-cancer deaths are expected this year.

Women accounted for one in 12 lung-cancer deaths in 1950 and one in six in 1960. The projected rate for 1980 is one in four.

Female smokers have between 2.5 and five times greater a chance of contracting lung cancer than women who don't smoke.

Richmond's report also notes: —Smoking is termed "a major threat to the outcome of pregnancy and well-being of the newborn baby." Babies of women who smoke during pregnancy are an average of 200 grams lighter at birth.

Embargo may affect planting decision

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — The new year is getting off to a rough start for some Texas farmers due to uncertainties in the grain market resulting from President Carter's embargo of grain to the Soviet Union. The embargo will not only affect marketing decisions with 1979 crop grain but may also affect planting decisions as the spring season approaches, says Dr. Daniel C. Pfanzstel of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Aside from pondering an uncertain grain market, producers are getting land in shape for spring planting, and livestock care remains a major activity, the extension director said in his weekly crop report.

Livestock are holding up well in most sections of Texas as winter weather so far has been generally mild. Feeding of hay and protein supplements is widespread due to lack of forage although some green grazing is available on wheat and oats pastures in the eastern half of the state, and on irrigated wheat in the plains.

Virtually all of the state's cotton crop has been harvested although much of it remains to be ginned, Pfanzstel said. A lot of this year's crop in West Texas and the plains has been field-stored in modules to enable rapid harvesting, and ginning will continue for some time.

Citrus continues to move to market in the Rio Grande Valley, where the sugar cane harvest also remains active. Some winter vegetables are also being harvested in the Valley, and cantaloupes are being planted.

As the new year gets under way, soil moisture conditions vary over the state from generally adequate over the eastern half to short in southern and western areas, Pfanzstel said.

Reports from district Extension agents showed the following conditions:

PANHANDLE — Cotton harvesting is winding down, with yields generally above average. Most wheat is dormant due to cold, dry conditions so there is little grazing for livestock. Most cattle are in good shape, with supplemental feeding widespread. Farmers are busy with land preparation.

Physician: 'overweight' definition misleading

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Countless Americans are being needlessly frightened by the perils of being a bit fat when much of the problem may be nothing more than a faulty definition of overweight, contends a Maryland researcher.

Dr. Reubin Andres of The Johns Hopkins University said Sunday a growing stack of research is refuting the conventional wisdom that being a little bit overweight will take years off your life.

He said that when the standard measure of desirable body weight is used, "one does not see any effect of obesity on total mortality until you reach a level of some 20 percent over the desirable weight — and much higher in some studies."

At the American Medical Association's winter scientific meeting, he urged doctors to take "a more relaxed attitude." He said they should tell their patients, "there isn't much evidence that being 10 or 20 pounds over your desirable weight is doing you any long-term harm."

"You may not like it because you don't look good, but it's unlikely you are shortening your life."

The exceptions to that advice, Andres said, are patients who are at risk for other problems, such as heart disease, high blood pressure or diabetes.

that are undeniably aggravated by obesity.

He based his conclusion that "obesity is not as clearcut an evil as we have thought" on a review of recent studies and his own research.

"The problem," he said in a subsequent interview, "is that we really are not certain how to define overweight. We really don't know enough about it at all."

He said the belief that obesity is a leading health problem and has a direct impact on death rates "is so ingrained that it has become scripture for us."

That scripture can be traced to 1959, when insurance companies studied nearly 5 million insured Americans, he said.

The study, published by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., also produced a table of "desirable body weights" based on height and body build — small, medium and large. The table has won nearly universal acceptance.

Andres outlined study after study that refuted the insurance company finding that death rates increased with even moderate obesity.

He said one fact that's often forgotten is that the 1959 research measured obesity not against the table of desirable weights but against the average weight of Americans. The average American, he said, is 15 to 20 percent heavier than the desirable weight.

Anti-nuclear demonstrators protest dropping of charges

GLEN ROSE, Texas (AP) — Anti-nuclear demonstrators, arrested on trespassing charges twice at the Comanche Peak power plant, say if authorities do not press charges, they will lose valuable publicity for their cause.

Somervell County Sheriff Frank Laramore, citing expense to the taxpayers, has said he will not file charges against 103 protesters arrested in November during a demonstration at the North Central Texas power plant near here.

"We like having the trials because we like the subpoena power and the publicity. When you get publicity, you educate more people," said Dallas attorney Tom Mills, who has defended several protesters.

"Obviously we're curious, but I can't really say what our strategy will be," Mills said.

Members of the Comanche Peak Life Force were escorted onto buses Nov. 25 after scaling the plant's outer fence with homemade ladders. They were arrested on Class C misdemeanor criminal trespass charges, punishable by a maximum fine of $200.

Mills said the trials of two protesters arrested in June have been delayed twice, and no trials have been scheduled for others.

Of the two cases that have been tried, one defendant is in jail for refusing to pay a fine and another is pending appeal.

"We just don't know what they're going to do. We don't know how that's going to affect future protests, if they are not even going to prosecute them," Mills said.

But Texas Utilities Generating Co., operator of the plant, and the Somervell County attorney still could press charges.

The sheriff said he did not consult Somervell County Attorney Charles Jordan before making his decision. Jordan could not be reached for comment, but a secretary in his office said "at the moment, there are no plans" to file charges.

Ray Ward, spokesman for Dallas Power & Light, one of three owners of the power plant, refused comment on the charges.

Cigar factory explosion warns Cuban exile group

MIAMI (AP) — Jose Orlando Padron, whose cigar factory has been bombed twice, says he's willing to die, if he must, for his work to win the release of Cuban political prisoners.

But Padron says he's afraid someone else will be hurt or killed one day in an explosion at Padron Hand Made Cigars and Pilato Cigars Inc. So he's offering a reward for the capture and conviction of the bombers.

An explosion at the factory in Miami's Little Havana section early Sunday left the first floor of the building charred and full of rubble. A passing car caught fire as the homemade bomb went off, and windows of nearby buildings were shattered, firefighters said. There were no injuries.

A man who said he was a member of the anti-Castro terrorist group Omega 7 called The Associated Press to claim responsibility for the bombing. The group claimed responsibility for bombings last year at the Cuban mission in New York, and on Sunday, Omega 7 was one of two groups to claim responsibility for a bomb at the New York office of the Soviet airline Aeroflot.

Padron, who left Cuba for Miami in 1961, said he's given up on help from the police. He offered a $10,000 reward for information leading to an arrest and conviction in the bombing — the second at the factory.

Gold prices jumped

LONDON (AP) — Gold prices jumped $25 an ounce to new record levels in Europe this morning, following sharp rises over the weekend in the Far East. The dollar was mixed.

At mid-morning gold was trading at a record $648.50 an ounce in London and Zurich. The previous European trading high was $645 in Zurich on Jan. 3.

Last Friday, gold closed at $622.50 in London and $621.50 in Zurich.

The new surge to record heights followed hectic weekend trading in the Far East. Gold hit an all-time peak of $674.54 in Hong Kong on Saturday, topping its previous high of $673.16 touched a week ago in the British colony.

Silver also rose today to $39 an ounce in London, $1 off its previous record high of $40 reached on Jan. 2 in a worldwide scramble for precious metals in the wake of the Soviet move into Afghanistan. Silver closed at $37.25 Friday.

Morning dollar rates in Europe, compared with late Friday: Frankfurt—1.7170 West German marks, down from 1.7185. Zurich—1.5807 Swiss francs, up from 1.5785. Paris—4.0275 French francs, down from 4.0305. Amsterdam—1.8970 Dutch guilders, unchanged. Milan—803.05 Italian lire, down from 803.75.

In London, the British pound rose to $2.2675 from $2.2575 late Friday, despite a national steel strike.

In Tokyo earlier in the day, the dollar closed at 236.65 yen, up slightly from 235.825 at the end of last week.
