NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Navy commander whose squadron was involved in three accidents in the past year, including last week's F-14 crash into a house that left five people dead, has been relieved of his command.

Cmdr. Fred Kilian was notified of the decision by his superior, Capt. Dennis Gillespie, who cited "a loss of trust and confidence."

"It's a very difficult job to be the commanding officer of a squadron, and not everyone can do that job," Cmdr. Gregg Hartung, a Navy spokesman, said Sunday. "In this particular case the squadron safety record — which is not good — led to this action."

Last Monday, an F-14 crashed into a house shortly after taking off from Nashville International Airport. Killed were pilot Lt. Cmdr. John Stacy Bates, 33; crewman Lt. Graham Alden Higgins, 28; and three people in the house.

NEW YORK (AP) — America's waistband is expanding.

Seventy-four percent of Americans 25 and older report being overweight, up from 71 percent a year ago, 69 percent in 1994, 56 percent in 1992 and only 59 percent 10 years ago, according to a Harris Poll.

The poll released Sunday asked 1,005 randomly selected adults about their weight and compared the responses to recommended weight ranges for various heights and body sizes. The company has been doing this regularly since 1983, using Metropolitan Life insurance tables from that year.

The survey, conducted Jan. 18-22 by Louis Harris and Associates, indicates that 24 percent of adults are over their recommended weight range by 20 percent or more. That's generally agreed to be the definition of obesity.

BEIJING (AP) — Medics and soldiers rushed into scenic Lijiang in southwestern China on Sunday to help survivors of a powerful earthquake that killed at least 238 people and injured nearly 14,000.

The floors of two local hospitals were filled with injured people, the state-run Xinhua news agency said. Doctors also worked outdoors and in temporary clinics set up in tents.

Television reports showed medics attending to bloodied victims who lay on mattresses on a floor, covered with thick quilts to protect them from temperatures that hovered near freezing.

On Monday, tens of thousands of injured and homeless people sat huddled under quilts or dug through the rubble of their devastated mud and rock homes.

Clinton sends budget proposal to Congress

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton sent Congress today a $1.64 trillion budget for 1997 that outlined in minimal detail how he would balance the budget while still providing modest tax relief for the middle class.

In releasing the plan, Clinton renewed his push for a negotiated deal after months of talks. He called on Republican leaders to find common ground and end the uncertainty that has forced two government shutdowns and has left many agencies still operating under stopgap funding that expires March 15.

"I am very hopeful we can achieve a balanced budget this year," Clinton said in remarks to the National Governors' Association. "I hope we can set aside partisanship and divisions, as you often do in the NGA, and provide a balanced budget plan to the American people in the near future."

The 20-page outline released today was almost identical to the last offer that Clinton put on the table in early January in his now abandoned face-to-face budget talks with Republican congressional leaders.

"The plan I propose cuts hundreds of programs, continues our efforts to downsize the government, but it protects Medicare, Medicaid, education and the environment and cuts taxes for working families," the president said in touting the highlights of his program to the governors.

But today's budget provided no new details on how he would make the cuts to achieve savings.

Shortly after Clinton made his last offer on Jan. 9, GOP bargainers broke off the negotiations, saying they would resume only after Clinton made a more serious offer with more specifics. The Republicans objected that Clinton's plan did not make sizeable enough savings in Medicare and other fast-growing government benefit programs and contained tax cuts that were too small.

The administration issued the bare-bones outline to meet a legal requirement that a president provide Congress with a spending plan for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1 by the first Monday in February.

However, in contrast to the normal budget document that runs to more than 2,000 pages, this outline provided only a broad-brush look at how Clinton would allocate resources among government agencies.

For example, the document provides no detail on how much money would be provided to the Defense Department or any other federal agencies, and says almost nothing about where savings from those departments would be achieved during his envisioned seven-year budget balancing effort.

Clinton would spend $1.64 trillion in 1997, an increase of 4.1 percent from projected spending of $1.58 trillion in the current fiscal year. Even though the current budget year is one-third gone, many agencies are still operating under a stopgap funding measure because Congress and the president have still not agreed on their permanent budgets for this year.

Clinton's budget projects the 1997 deficit will be $160.6 billion, up slightly from this year's estimated $154.4 billion shortfall. But beginning in 1998, the president foresees steadily declining budget gaps until 2002 when he expects a $3.7 billion surplus. That would be the first time the government books were in balance since 1969.

These estimates are based on assumptions by the Congressional Budget Office, which Clinton agreed to use as a key condition demanded by Republicans before they would reopen the government after a 21-day shutdown last month.

DPS officials investigating high speed chase, death

McLEAN - Department of Public Safety officials are continuing to investigate a high speed chase and gunshot death on Interstate 40 which occurred just after midnight today.

Dewayne Allen Wood, 28, Oklahoma City, was found with a single gunshot wound to the right temple by DPS troopers and a Wheeler County deputy shortly after the 1989 Suburban he was driving was stopped by officers who laid stinger spikes across Interstate 40.

Wood had been chased at speeds approaching 110 miles per hour since officers picked up his trail east of Shamrock at the 163 mile marker. He was a suspect in an armed robbery at the Long Horn Texaco, four to five miles east of Shamrock, which occurred about 11:30 p.m. Sunday.

Four tires on the Suburban deflated about the 141 mile marker and Wood pulled to the west bound shoulder, according to Trooper L.B. Snider of Amarillo.

Snider said when Trooper Kevin King of Shamrock and Wheeler County Deputy Rick Walden approached the parked Suburban, Wood refused to get out. When officers got into the car, they discovered Wood with the apparently self inflicted wound, the trooper said.

Wood was pronounced dead at 1:07 a.m. by Justice of the Peace Mary Ann Carpenter, McLean. The body has been sent to the Lubbock County Medical Examiners Office for an autopsy, Snider said.

The gunshot has been tentatively ruled as self-inflicted, he said. The maroon Suburban was reported stolen by Oklahoma City Police Department on Sunday.

The chase and death are being investigated by Ranger Gary Henderson and Sgt. Don Cameron of Pampa. Snider said it is typical to investigate anytime a death occurs and DPS is involved.

Snider also said during the chase a Wheeler County deputy fired at the Suburban in an attempt to deflate the tires. No rounds apparently struck the Chevrolet and no injuries were reported, he said.

Proposed personnel manual raises questions for county

By CHERYL BERZANSKIS
News Editor

A personnel manual first touted as providing a road map for equal treatment of employees is posing more questions than answers as Gray County commissioners struggle with their authority to adopt it.

While commissioners struggled with several specific policies, they wrestled with whether they can force officeholders besides themselves to adhere to the manual.

"I just say we don't have the authority to take anything away from an elected official," said Commissioner Jim Greene. "They are an elected official and as long as they are not breaking the law, we shouldn't interfere with it."

County Clerk Wanda Carter reported she was told by Texas Association of County employees that a commissioners court has no authority to make personnel policies for other officeholders.

Treasurer Scott Hahn said he has been told by TAC the county needs a personnel manual.

"I think Gray County is the employer and Gray County is providing the money for salaries and I think Gray County can tell me how to treat my people," Hahn said.

If the county has to pay the bills for personnel problems caused by an officeholder, Hahn said, he thinks the county has a right to create something to help officeholders be better personnel managers.

"I think the way we've been running things is fine with very few lawsuits ... I think we're at the mercy of a bunch of darn lawyers," said Greene.

County Judge Richard Peet said it appears the court only has authority to develop policy for the people they hire, including the veterans' services officer and precinct employees.

While the commissioners court members questioned their authority to create a personnel manual, they acknowledged having created personnel policy for drug testing and vacation time.

The group abandoned at least one provision of the manual which would require a Gray County employee to resign or take a leave of absence without pay should they seek county office.

County commissioners Thursday tabled action on an expansion of the courthouse annex until the Feb. 15 meeting.

Lee McDonald, district conservationist with Natural Resource Conservation Service, and Matt Street, of Farm Service Agency, presented a tentative floor plan for the proposed annex remodeling. Federal agencies NRCS, FSA and Rural Economic and Community Development (now at 1224 N. Hobart) are mandated to co-locate in 1997. NRCS and FSA now rent space in the courthouse annex on US 60 east of Pampa.

McDonald was instructed by the commissioners court in mid January to meet with other tenants and federal agencies to develop a tentative remodeling scheme for the building. They voted then to pursue the expansion project.

Gray County must decide whether to commit to the remodeling project in an attempt to win the bid for the federal tenancy or let them seek other offices.

"I have difficulty with government downsizing and costing local government more," said Peet.

However, Commissioner Gerald Wright supports remodeling the annex. Whether the federal agencies rent the annex or not, utilities, janitorial services and maintenance will continue, Wright said.

"You have to look at whether the county is saving any money whether there are renters or not," Wright said.

There are two choices, he said. One, to house the county agents only and have no renters, or two, expand the building, Wright said.

In other court action, Nancy Rogers Newhouse, James E. Hallum, James D. Stone, Billy Wayne Gilreath and Jennifer Beatrice Sinches were named to the salary grievance committee. The panel, comprised of grand jurors, has not been used in 22 years, said Carter.

Greene was authorized to hire two precinct employees.

The court contracted with Potter County for mental commitment hearings for those over 65 years old.

Audrey Meadows, of 'Honeymooners' fame, dies at age 71 of lung cancer

By SCOTT LINDLAW
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — To millions of television viewers, she was Alice, the long-suffering wife on The Honeymooners, who stood up to her husband's "To the moon!" threats with a sarcastic calm.

Audrey Meadows, the veteran actress who made her mark in the classic 1950s series as the sparring partner to Jackie Gleason's blustery Ralph Kramden, has died of lung cancer. She was 71.

"I loved that character of Alice," she said in a 1994 interview, "because she was strong and she was tender. She was everything that I think is fine in a woman."

"Why did she stay with Ralph? Because she understood him — and he obviously was thin when she married him."

Meadows died at 8:50 p.m. Saturday at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center. She had kept her illness a secret, even from her sister Jayne Meadows, until newspapers learned of her hospitalization early this year.

"My fervent prayers are with my dear sister, Audrey, who has for months fought a brave and private battle with lung cancer," Jayne Meadows, who is married to entertainer Steve Allen, said in a prepared statement.

Although Audrey Meadows played other roles on television and Broadway, it was the role of Alice on The Honeymooners that made her a pop culture icon.

"To the moon, Alice!" was

Ralph Kramden's oft-heard cry, an unfulfilled threat to deliver a shot — "Pow!" — to the kisser. Alice was unfazed, and many shows ended with a kiss and Ralph's admission, "Baby, you're the greatest."

Meadows provided the perfect counterbalance to Gleason's blowhard bus driver character and Art Carney's goofy antics as neighbor Ed Norton.

When Ralph unveiled yet another of his harebrained schemes, Alice would stand quietly with raised eyebrows and a skeptical gaze.

Gleason publicly praised Meadows' ability to ad-lib and keep things rolling on the set.

Once when Ralph burned himself and screamed, "Isn't there any lard around here?" Meadows took a long look at Gleason and said, "About 300 pounds of it."

But Meadows almost never got the chance to play Alice. When she first showed up on the set, Gleason dismissed her as too young and pretty. Meadows went home, put on a frumpy house dress, washed off her makeup and had photos taken and sent to Gleason, who hired her on the spot.

"She was a wonderful lady, wonderfully talented," said Joyce Randolph, who played neighbor Trixie Norton. She first met Meadows in the summer of 1954 in Louisville, Ky., during a revival of No, No, Nanette.

"I thought, 'Oh, what a zippy lady,'" Randolph said. The two remained friends through the years.

Randolph said Carney was very upset by Meadows' death.

Meadows' birthplace is listed as Wu Chang, China, in Who's Who in America and her personal biography material. However, family members said she was born in New York, publicist Miriam Levin said Sunday.

Jayne Meadows persuaded Audrey to join in a Broadway bid when both were teenagers.

Audrey Meadows went on to a Carnegie Hall debut as a coloratura soprano, performed light opera and won a 1951 Broadway role in Top Banana with Phil Silvers.

She appeared as a singer and sketch comedian on TV shows, taking over the role of Alice in the "Honeymooners" sketches on CBS' The Jackie Gleason Show in 1952. She won an Emmy for the role in 1955.

Pert Kelton had originated Alice on a variety show Gleason did for the now-defunct DuMont network, but lost work as a victim of the McCarthy era blacklist. Sheila MacRae played Alice in a 1960s version.

Meadows stayed with Gleason until 1957, then played occasional guest roles on TV dramas and appeared on panel shows throughout the 1950s and '60s.

She virtually retired from acting after her marriage to Continental Airlines chairman Robert Six, turning her attention to business activities and her family.

Sierra Club fights proposed closing of fish hatchery

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Proposed changes at the federal fish hatchery in San Marcos have prompted the Sierra Club to threaten to file a lawsuit to keep the designated refuge for endangered species living in the Comal and San Marcos springs from closing.

Austin attorney Stuart N. Henry, who represents the Sierra Club, sent a letter last week to the National Biological Service warning them that any termination of employees, transfer of ownership or closure of the facility would violate the Endangered Species Act.

The National Biological Service announced in November that budget cutbacks would force it to close the San Marcos National Fish Hatchery and Technology Center on Jan. 31. But that was delayed until Feb. 13 because of the recent furloughs of federal employees.

The facility is the designated site where endangered species living in the springs are to be brought in time of severe drought to assure their survival.

Man confronts gang with bow and arrow, shot to death

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A man who confronted a group of armed gang members with a compound bow and arrows has been shot to death at a San Antonio housing project.

Officers said Wayne Baker, 48, was struck by several rounds from a shotgun and handguns early Sunday.

A 16-year-old youth was captured immediately after the shooting and was turned over to the Bexar County Juvenile Detention Center. Two other juveniles and an adult were being sought today, according to Police Sgt. Joe Mackay.

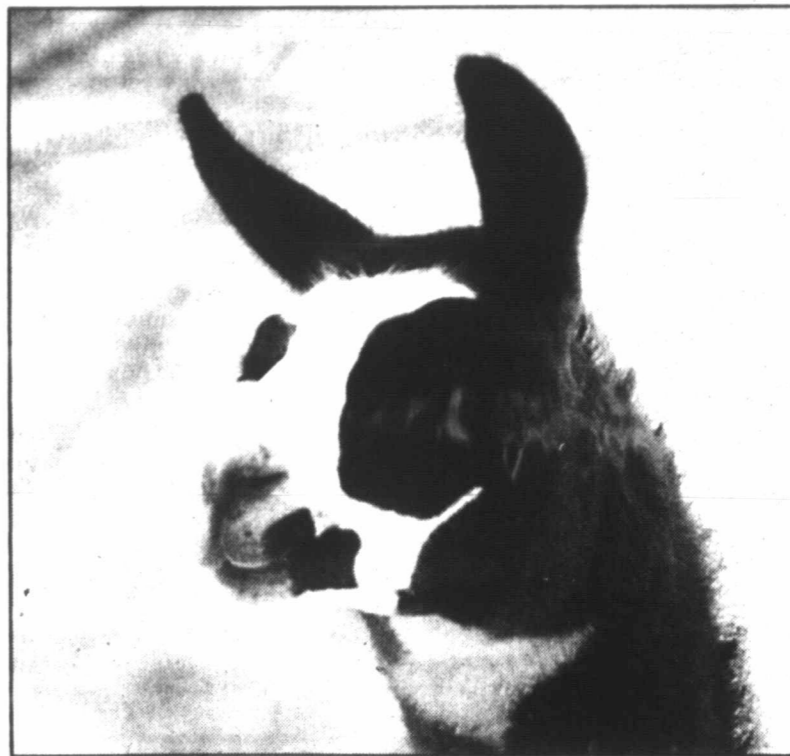

Mackay said Baker was awakened early Sunday by someone on the roof of his apartment firing a handgun. He went outside and managed to take the weapon away from the youth before running him off, Mackay said.

A short time later, the youth and some companions appeared in front of Baker's residence, firing into the apartment and demanding the gun back. One shot went through the front door and into the bathroom.

Baker's wife also was inside the apartment, but she was not injured.

Baker then got his compound bow and arrows and went outside to confront the men, whom police say were gang members, Mackay said.

Cool llama

This male llama, Desi Doolittle, seems unperturbed by the recent cold spell as it strolls around its yard on McCullough Street. The black male llama and its female companion, Amber Anastasia, are owned by Tom and Maureen Black. The males are used as pack animals and show, and the females are used for breeding. The Blacks currently have two male baby llamas, and hope another one due at the end of May will be a female. The llama babies average 15 to 16 pounds at birth and are weaned at age six months.

Rare bacterial disease spreads through metroplex

FORT WORTH (AP) — Texas has seen a frightening rise in the number of meningococcal infection cases, with last month having been especially horrifying for the Fort Worth area.

The disease forced a 17-year-old Mansfield girl to have both legs amputated and a high school sophomore was forced onto a respirator within hours of the first signs of illness.

Less than a day after being healthy enough to play soccer, a 14-year-old Grapevine girl died when she contracted the disease. A 14-year-old boy from Arlington also died.

In all, 13 cases of the disease were reported in Northeast Texas during January. That's compares with two in the same month last year and 23 for all of last year.

Although health officials emphasize there's no reason to panic, the rise mirrors a recent national trend.

Across the country, meningococcal infections are up 11.5 percent since 1993. In Texas, there's a 44 percent increase, according to data from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in Atlanta.

Texas has one of the highest rates of meningococcal diseases per resident among the nation's 10 most populated states: 1.2 cases per 100,000 residents. Nationwide, an average of one in 100,000 people is infected.

In 1995, Texas reported 227 cases of the disease, compared with 157 cases in 1993.

The numbers include meningococemia, the blood-borne form of the disease, and meningococcal meningitis, which affects the lining of the brain.

Meningococemia, the variety found by several Dallas-Fort Worth area victims, is the more destructive variety.

Within hours, a patient's blood pressure can drop rapidly and blood clots can develop. Telltale purple splotches erupt on the skin as countless small blood vessels break.

As other vessels clot, circulation is blocked, which can lead to strokes. Gangrene can set in, forcing amputation of arms and legs, and patients may lose large areas of skin as their tissue dies.

Medical experts don't know why there have been so many cases in Northeast Texas.

Some tie the surge to an outbreak of flu or other viral infections, which can leave the body's immune system vulnerable.

Others say the Texas climate may play a role.

Two girls found shot dead in woods

CLEVELAND, Texas (AP) — Liberty County authorities are investigating a double homicide in which the bodies of two teenage girls were found in a wooded area off U.S. 59 south of Cleveland.

The La Porte girls, who had been missing since Thursday, both had been shot in the head. They were discovered Saturday by a woman who lives in the area.

Lynette Bibbs, 14, and Tamara Fisher, 15, apparently had been killed earlier in the day, Justice of the Peace Fred Dishongh Jr. said Sunday.

Miss Fisher, who had been shot in the forehead and below the left ear, wore only a cotton blouse and clear plastic sandals, Dishongh said. Miss Bibbs, who was shot in the back of the head, was fully clothed but missing one tennis shoe.

Dishongh said there were no signs that the girls had been sexually assaulted.

He said it was not clear whether the girls were shot in the woods or their bodies were dumped there.

Blood trailed from Miss Fisher's body to a nearby dirt road, but there was no blood leading away from Miss Bibbs' body. The two were about 150 yards apart, Dishongh said.

Family members said investigators told them Miss Bibbs was killed first, and Miss Fisher tried to run away before being caught, beaten and shot.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Lawmakers exit political scene

America's political world has been set on its ear by what some say is an unprecedented exodus of longtime lawmakers from Congress.

Some of Washington's biggest names have announced their political retirements in recent months. In the Senate, such notable figures as Bill Bradley of New Jersey, Alan Simpson of Wyoming, Nancy Kassebaum and Maine's William Cohen have chosen not to run for re-election.

In the House, Texas Rio Grande Valley's own political institution - Kika de la Garza - has announced his plans to leave Congress after three decades in office. In all, 34 House members have announced their retirement plans. In the Senate, 13 senators have chosen not to run for re-election.

The Great Congressional Pullout of 1996 has some political pundits stopping just short of predicting doom and gloom for our government. They contend that we need experienced legislators to get things done. New member-of-Congress, they say, spend their first few years learning the system and making key contacts.

But should we fret so much over fewer than 50 departures? Think about it. The Senate has 100 members; only 13 incumbents are leaving, and that's the highest number of vacancies in U.S. history.

Besides, our government is supposed to be a representative democracy. Members of Congress are presumed to be chosen from the population as simply a peer of those he or she represents. Therefore, service shouldn't change a person so much that we would presume that an incumbent would be significantly different from a new member.

That is the very argument term limit proponents make. Limiting the time of service, they say, would lessen the influence lobbyists have on long-term members. Changing 10 percent to 15 percent of a congressional body might not bring significant change. But it could give us a preview of the kind of effect term limits could bring.

Under restricted terms, up to a third of the membership could change in a given election year. This year's turnover, which is less than half that, could help concerned voters see that changing the body probably won't adversely change our government.

PRINCESS DI WAS SEEN WITH A NEW FRIEND...

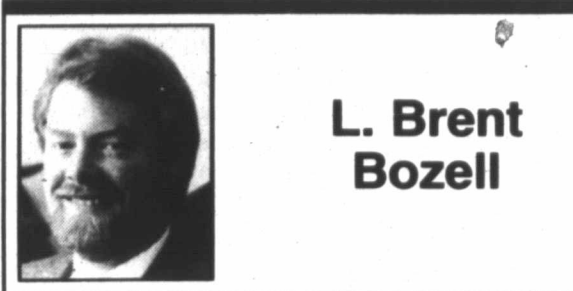

Hillary Rodham 'Stonewall' Clinton

The grand jury subpoena of Hillary Rodham Clinton does more than set a sad historic precedent. It signals that investigators are getting sick and tired of White House stonewalling on documents and electronic mail that would resolve the many questions surrounding the Clinton scandals.

The subpoena ruined Hillary Stonewall Clinton's usual strategy: Appear to be answering the questions until the story can be smothered to death. The round of interviews the first lady conducted with the networks may have been tougher than the embarrassing fawnings of the past, but left by themselves, they served once again to blunt the story's impact rather than heighten it.

Exhibit A: Maria Shriver, who embarrassed herself with the softest of all the national media interviews with the first lady on NBC's "Today" show Jan. 16. Shriver is not much of a reporter, but she is a good Kennedy. In the last few years, she's ponied up $2,000 for Uncle Ted's reelection to the Senate and $1,000 for cousin Patrick's election to the House. Her Democratic allegiance, as well as her fluffy Hollywood interview style, made her an ideal choice for Hillary Clinton's book tour.

Introducing and concluding the interview, Shriver touted Hillary's book as "really terrific." She began by asking: "What's this last week and a half been like for you personally?" Then she worried about Chelsea: "In the book, you write about preparing your daughter, Chelsea, for the negative things people might say to her about her father, but you don't say in the book about preparing her for the negative things people might say to her about her mom. What's this past week, two weeks been like for her? What have you said to her? What has she said to you about these attacks?" When Mrs. Clinton explained how they prepare Chelsea, Shriver protested: "But this is beyond the territory - I mean, this is tough. This is your mom that someone's talking about. Is she upset by this? What have you said to her?" If you think that was a softball, try this: "You also quote a letter in there that Nelson Mandela wrote to one of his daughters while he was in prison, and I'm paraphrasing a bit, but he wrote that there is no personal misfortune that one cannot turn into a personal triumph if one has the iron will and the necessary skills. You clearly have an iron will; you clearly are skilled. How are you going to turn this personal misfortune into a personal triumph?"

Mrs. Clinton had it slightly tougher with Barbara Waiters on "20/20" - if softly asking a question and then not following up when it is evaded constitutes "tough." The same held true for Harry Smith and Paula Zahn on "CBS This Morning" and CNN's Claire Shipman. All the interviewers let the first lady stress how concerned she was about financial mismanagement in the Travel Office. (No one asked, for example: "How can you get on a high horse about $50,000 in media funds sitting temporarily in Billy Dale's account when you represented an S&L that lost $50 million in taxpayers' money?") All of them let her describe just how much she wanted to cooperate with investigators on Whitewater and the Travel Office.

But reporters should have been more adversarial. We've known for a long time her real contempt for these matters. In her book On the Edge, Clinton biographer Elizabeth Drew noted: "She was angry that a report on the travel-office affair was being prepared at all and considered it too tough on various people's actions. One White House aide said, 'She felt it went way too far.' Members of her staff, who were presumed to be reflecting her opinion, expressed the view strongly that the travel office incident should be dismissed out of hand. Mrs. Clinton argued that there was no reason to apologize for the dismissal of the travel office people."

Two hundred pages later, Drew described Whitewater: "(White House aide George) Stephanopoulos laid out the reasons for asking for a special counsel. 'Hillary jumped down his throat,' a staff member said later. 'She yelled and fussed. What she was bothered by was the notion that they had to have a special counsel. She wanted a plan for handling it.'"

Simply put, the first lady is opposed to full disclosure - or even half-disclosure of politically damaging evidence. None of these ratings-sensitive (and bookings sensitive) network interviewers is willing to do what a grand jury or a Senate investigating committee can do: ask tough questions under oath and follow up on the minutest details. But that's no excuse for the press not to do its own job - to at least try to get some real answers.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today in History
Today is Monday, Feb. 5, the 36th day of 1996. There are 330 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

In 1937, President Roosevelt proposed enlarging the U.S. Supreme Court; critics charged Roosevelt was attempting to "pack" the court with justices who would rule in his favor.

On this date:
In 1631, the founder of Rhode Island, Roger Williams, and his wife arrived in Boston from England.

In 1783, Sweden recognized the independence of the United States.

In 1881, Phoenix, Ariz., was incorporated.

In 1887, Giuseppe Verdi's opera "Otello," based on the tragedy by William Shakespeare, premiered at La Scala.

In 1917, Congress passed, over President Woodrow Wilson's veto, an immigration act severely curtailing the influx of Asians.

In 1917, Mexico's constitution was adopted.

In 1940, Glenn Miller and his orchestra recorded "Tuxedo Junction" for RCA Victor's Bluebird label.

In 1958, Gamal Abdel Nasser was formally nominated to become the first president of the new United Arab Republic.

In 1962, French President Charles de Gaulle called for Algeria's independence.

In 1973, services were held at Arlington National Cemetery for Army Lt. Col. William B. Nolde, the last American soldier killed before the Vietnam cease-fire.

In 1983, former Nazi Gestapo official Klaus Barbie, expelled from Bolivia, was brought to Lyon, France, to stand trial. (He was convicted and sentenced to life in prison - he died in 1991.)

In 1987, the Dow Jones industrial average ended the day above the 2,200 level for the first time, closing at 2,201.49.

Ten years ago: President Reagan announced he'd directed Surgeon

General C. Everett Koop to prepare "a major report to the American people" on the deadly disease AIDS.

Five years ago: President Bush announced he was sending Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and Gen. Colin L. Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, to the Gulf War zone to assess how the U.S.-led offensive was progressing.

One year ago: The White House and congressional Republicans drew battle lines over President Clinton's $1.61 trillion budget, with Republicans accusing Clinton of "taking a walk" and the administration saying Clinton was cutting the deficit more than any president in history.

A most implausible political imbroglio

A young author is pitching his political novel to a major publisher. "Here's the story," he says. "There is this wife of the president. She's smart, she knows everything, and lets you know it. Back when her husband was governor, she was one of America's top 100 lawyers, she did a terrific job on education and she made a bundle in commodities. One of her clients was a very shady, ethically challenged bank, but she says she didn't know it."

"So what?" says the publisher. "Why should I publish it?"

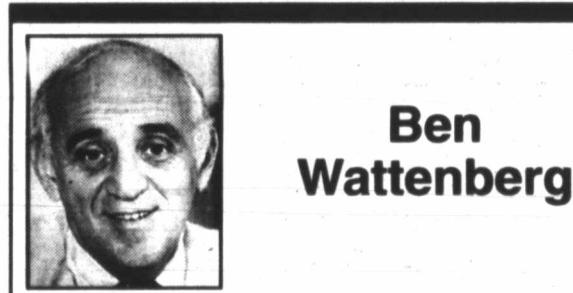

"Then she comes to Washington," the author says. "She tries to get cronies some business in the White House by firing old-timers. She says she never did it. Then a close friend from the old law firm, working at the White House, commits suicide. Some papers disappear. She says she had nothing to do with it. Then the Congress starts investigating some old land deals. She says she did nothing wrong. The Congress holds hearings, covered by big-time television. They do a whole hour about it on Brinkley."

"The Congress?" asks the publisher. "Television? Why?"

"That's the way they do things. They know people watch it. There was once a Republican president who said 'I am not a crook,' and the Democratic Congress tried to prove that he was. And get this: She worked on the Congress team, nailing the Republican president. The Democrats said that the president did very bad things, mostly that he covered-up and lied. The Republicans said it was all politics."

"So what else is new?" says the publisher.

"So the Congress set up new regulations about money, lobbying and ethics, and set up inspectors and independent counsels, and investigative sections for public integrity. That made it easier to expose evil. So there was more evil exposed, even tiny evils. The press loved it. They were the only good guys left, exposing evil. It sold papers and got good ratings. But then, later on, wouldn't you guess, there was a Democratic president and a Republican Congress, and this time the Republican Congress investigates. The Republicans say the first lady did very bad things, mostly that she covered up and lied."

"But it's still not such a great story," says the publisher.

"But it's also about the president and what he did and said about policy," says the author.

"What did he do?" asks the publisher.

"He's got a history, too. They say he dodged the draft and ran around with lots of babes. Then a young woman says that while he was governor, he got her in a hotel room and made, uh, like, inappropriate moves. This president is also very smart and lets you know it. He says it's a lie. His enemies say he's a big liar and she's a congenital liar."

"It sounds weird to me," says the publisher.

"Hey, it's fiction. There's also a really tragic part," says the author.

"A whole hour on Brinkley? It's already a tragedy," says the publisher. "The best friends are a tragedy. They came to Washington to help the president and the wife. One of them commits suicide, another, the associate attorney general, goes to jail, another is fired because he used the first helicopter to go shoot a round of golf. Other best friends are accused of perjury. The lawyers come. Soon legal fees bankrupt the first couple. The wife goes on a book tour to tell people how to raise children. She knows best. He knows best. They know best."

"Shakespearean, huh? But we don't publish Shakespeare," says the publisher.

"But there's more," says the author. "The Republicans think they can win an election on it because it proves that Democrats are sanctimonious, hypocritical, liberal twits. The president needs protectors so he smuggles up to the liberals. The liberals don't want him to sign a budget to open the government."

"The government is closed?" asks the publisher. "That sounds crazy."

"There's a reason. The Democrats say the Republicans want to starve old people and put them out on the street."

"Do they?"

"Nobody knows. But that's what the president says. And it's a very important election. For America and the world. It's about whether America can change course."

"It better. So how does it end?" asks the publisher.

"That's the point," says the author. "It never ends. Everybody is investigating everybody. It never ends."

"That's ridiculous," says the publisher. "Novels always end. I'm not going to publish it. I don't publish novels with sad endings."

How President Bill became a Republican

The following excerpt is from "Honest, I Do Feel Your Pain: The Presidential Memoirs of Bill Clinton," Vol. 1, p. 337:

"I am often asked: How did I decide to become a Republican? Didn't I feel bad about abandoning the Democratic Party toward the end of my second term?"

"Certainly, I felt bad about it. The Democratic Party had made me president. All my best friends were Democrats. In fact, the only friends I had were Democrats."

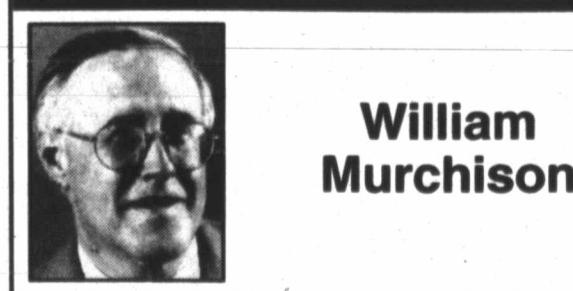

"But politics, as I've always said, is politics. By the time of my third State of the Union message, in January 1996, it had become clear that the Democrats couldn't pull their weight. They were nice people, but the votes weren't there."

"The country was turning Republican. All the good - that is, popular - ideas were Republican ideas: balance the budget, cut taxes, restore the family, turn power back to the states."

"All through my long political career, I have made a point of finding out what the people were for. That way, I could offer it to them. Some had always said I should lead the people. That never made sense. What if I looked back and no one was following? It would be embarrassing. Look what happened on health care."

"So, I began to consider becoming a Republican. This made additional sense because the Republican presidential field was so dismal. Dole for president? Gramm? Wild Pat Buchanan? Not a chance."

"I began to envision a role for myself. With my salesmanship plus the Republicans' issues, I could be dynamite."

William Murchison

"In the State of the Union message, I tested the waters. I was for practically everything the Republicans were for - family values, military strength, you name it. 'Our first challenge,' I said, 'is to cherish our children and strengthen the American family.' Welfare reform, I knew, always plays well with the voters. True, I had vetoed the only welfare-reform bill there was - the Republicans' - but a political leader must rise above picky details. I announced near agreement between Congress and me over 'sweeping welfare reform.'"

"Still testing these unfamiliar waters, I announced that 'The era of big government is over.' Of course it was over! Did anyone imagine I was going to reintroduce Hillary's health-care plan? This renunciation permitted me then to urge that we 'go forward to the era of working together - as a community, as a team, as one America - to solve our problems.'"

"The reaction was more rapturous than I could have imagined. Bob Dole was primed to answer me, but I blew him out of the water. I was as Republican as he was - and a lot more charming in the bargain."

"What I had to do became plain. I had abandoned the Democratic Party rhetorically. The next step was to leave it physically. The Republican nomination was mine for the taking."

"I announced my conversion just before the Iowa caucuses. I said, in a nationally televised address, 'The American people have spoken. Seeking a new direction, they have elected a new Congress. I want to be a partner with that Congress. As the next Republican president of the United States, I would work with Congress to implement the objectives that you, the voters, have indicated.'"

"I triumphed in the caucuses, swept the New Hampshire primary and handily wrested the Republican nomination away from a badly demoralized Dole."

"The Democrats wanted Al Gore to lead their ticket, but I had persuaded him to come along with me. He promised to talk about something other than global warming. In the end, the Democrats nominated Leon Panetta and Hillary - we disposed of them handily in November."

"What was life like as a new Republican president? It was wonderful. No more digs from Rush Limbaugh - just praise. Better food - at better fundraisers. Best, of all, I had the sense that I was truly president of all the people. For that glorious moment."

"Not until 1998 did doubts and anxieties arise. With the budget balanced, many wanted to increase big government. I found myself forced to listen. Who could tell? Some of my best friends still were Democrats ..."

Therapists undisciplined by state, review shows

HOUSTON (AP) — If psychologists in Texas get in trouble with the state agency that regulates them, they are likely to keep their licenses, experience shows. There is even a chance they won't be disciplined at all.

A review of cases involving Texas therapists revealed complaints of pedophilia, other types of sexual misconduct and violence. The Houston Chronicle published its analysis in its Sunday editions.

The investigation concluded that the Texas Board of Examiners of Psychologists — the state agency charged with disciplining wayward therapists — is either unable or unwilling to clean up the mess.

Records show only a few of the more than 3,000 Texas psychologists have had their licenses revoked in the 1990s, despite the fact that the board receives more than 100 complaints a year.

"It appears you can almost commit murder and the board takes no action," said Laurie Pleasant, a Houston lawyer experienced in medical fraud cases. "They (psychologists) want to maintain the ability to police themselves, yet they don't do it."

Board officials blame the holdup on a shortage of investigators, a backlog of 152 pending complaints and legal delays. They say they instead reach agreements with psychologists to seek treatment themselves.

The agreements — known as "agreed orders" and similar to plea bargains in criminal cases — may require them to be supervised by colleagues or allow their patient sessions to be videotaped.

"We can recommend to revoke a person's license," said Susan Askane of Houston, one of three lay members on the nine-member psychology board. "The psychologists then can spend however long they feel is appropriate fighting it. During that whole time period they are, of course, allowed to practice their trade."

Board members are quick to point out that failure to meet the guidelines of a voluntary agreement can result in the suspension or revocation of a license.

But that rarely happens.

Records show action against only 12 psychologists in 1994 and eight in 1995. Most of those were placed on probation and continued to practice while they completed therapy themselves.

In one case, Temple psychologist Anthony Carona admittedly pointed a pistol to his head and threatened suicide, shot a gun inside his house, seduced a patient and even carved a pentagram in his arm with a knife.

Carona signed a statement saying it was true, yet he still can practice in Texas, so long as he is monitored by his colleagues.

Carona is on probation for eight years and must post a sign in his office saying so. A restriction that he refrain from counseling women expires at the end of this month.

His agreement also calls for five years of therapy, completion of an ethics course and 300 hours of community service in the mental health field.

Poverty, poor living conditions overshadow pope's visit to city

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — Standing near his humble cement home, down a tangle of dirt roads just blocks from Guatemala City's main garbage dump, Ceferino Vargas smiles and says he gets by as best he can.

Vargas is one of Guatemala's legions of poor, and, as Pope John Paul II will discover when he arrives today, poverty threatens to dwarf all other concerns in this country of 10.7 million people.

As the pontiff opens a week-long Latin American pastoral mission in Guatemala City, Vargas said many Roman Catholics are overjoyed, but he and others are too preoccupied with his daily struggle to pay much heed.

With the country in the 35th year of a civil war, peace will be another of the pope's major pleas. The message will be timely, coming a day after Guatemalan President President Alvaro Arzu escaped an assassination attempt.

On Sunday, Arzu's security guards shot and killed a man who tried repeatedly to ram his pickup truck into the president and his wife, Patricia, as they rode horses in Antigua, 15 miles west of the capital.

In Vargas' neighborhood, trash blows in the breeze, dogs scavenge and buzzards loop lazily in the sky while garbage trucks raise whirling clouds of dust.

Unable to walk because of a motorcycle accident a few years back, he uses a wheelchair to negotiate the unpaved lanes around the small cement and cinder block homes. On the weekend before the pope's arrival, Vargas was trying to increase the availability of running water in his neighborhood.

"We have some outdoor spigots but the people here are tired of carrying buckets all day," he said. "But we are working to change that."

Vargas is one of the leaders of a neighborhood block that has signed up families to pay up to $18 a month for six months to cover the cost of laying pipe and bringing water to the block. The fees are dear: Vargas and his neighbors make around $3.30 a day, less than the minimum wage of some $4.50 in cities.

GOP hopefuls' wives brave hardships in pursuit of campaign glory

NEWPORT, N.H. (AP) — Married to the mob of GOP presidential hopefuls, a full slate of first ladies-in-waiting is braving blizzards, bowling alleys and campaign casseroles in a parallel race for the White House.

Elizabeth Dole spreads the word of Bob wherever she can. At the Newport Opera House, she says her husband wants to clean up Hollywood, shrink the federal government, get America back on track. This after a 12-hour day traveling New Hampshire and wending her way through a buffet line for a bit of ham, cole slaw and something-or-other au gratin.

Texas Sen. Phil Gramm's wife, Wendy, promises a Tucson, Ariz., university crowd she wouldn't be an activist like Hillary Rodham Clinton.

"I've told Phil, don't get this job and expect me to do it. Been there, done that, and I don't want to do it again," she says, noting she once served President Reagan as chairwoman of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission.

Indiana Sen. Dick Lugar's wife, Char, holds rallies at New Hampshire bowling alleys, promising to "discuss her husband's candidacy with anyone brave enough to challenge her bowling skills."

Former Tennessee Gov. Lamar Alexander's wife, Honey, is featured in one of his recent ads: "I think that Lamar is very optimistic and I think that he brings that optimism to the campaign. He's so deeply rooted in the mountains of east Tennessee, you could never uproot him at all."

At the Louisiana GOP convention last weekend, commentator Pat Buchanan introduced his wife, Shelley, as his "nomination for first lady."

Not too long ago, Mrs. Dole, a honey-voiced Southerner, apologized to Iowa supporters for "accepting the pinch-hitter" because her husband, the Senate majority leader, was stuck in Washington on business.

No one minded. As Dole himself explained, "Somebody wrote me a note and said, 'Send her to Iowa and you stay home.'"

Investment In Forgiveness Will Pay Big Dividends

DEAR READERS: This week is International Forgiveness Week. In years past, I have cited a portion of the lovely poem by George Roemisch, which is appropriately titled "Forgiveness":

"Forgiveness is the fragrance of the violet which still clings fast to the heel that crushed it."
In response to many requests from readers to see the entire poem, here it is:

FORGIVENESS

Forgiveness is the wind-blown bud which blooms in placid beauty at Verdun.

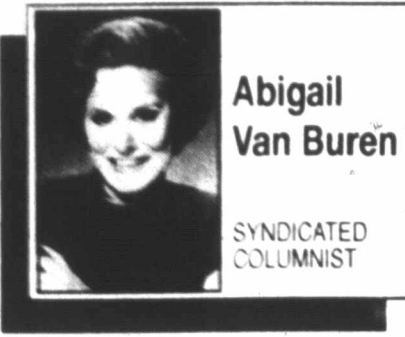

Forgiveness is the tiny slate-gray sparrow which has built its nest of twigs and string among the shards of glass upon the wall of shame.

Forgiveness is the child who laughs in merry ecstasy beneath the toothed fence that closes in Da Nang.

Forgiveness is the fragrance of the violet which still clings fast to the heel that crushed it.

Forgiveness is the broken dream which hides itself within the corner of the mind oft called forgetfulness so that it will not bring pain to the dreamer.

Forgiveness is the reed which stands up straight and green when nature's mighty rampage halts, full spent

Forgiveness is a God who will not leave us after all we've done.

GEORGE ROEMISCH

So, Dear Reader, a gentle reminder: If perchance you are the "heel" that crushed a violet — this is the week to seek forgiveness.

LOVE, ABBY

DEAR ABBY: Your readers' response to Rod Carew's letter concerning his daughter, Michelle, and her fight against leukemia was tremendous.

In his letter, Rod requested that readers contact the National Marrow Donor Program (NMDP) and become volunteer donors to help patients in need of transplants. More than 22,000 Dear Abby readers have called 1-800-MARROW-2

(1-800-627-7692) for information. Many have already had the blood test necessary to join the registry of potential donors. The response to this letter has been greater than any other single print exposure of the NMDP's telephone number. Calls related to Michelle Carew currently total more than 47,000.

The National Marrow Donor Program thanks everyone who called for information, especially those who have, or will soon have, their tissue types listed to benefit the thousands seeking donors.

Abby, as the number of volunteers increases, more patients will find donors able to provide lifesaving bone marrow. To date, NMDP donors have given more than 4,000 patients the chance to beat their diseases, but many others are still waiting.

Our heartfelt thanks to you and your generous readers for their assistance.

CRAIG W.S. HOWE, M.D., PH.D.,
CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER,
NATIONAL MARROW DONOR PROGRAM

DEAR DR. HOWE: Thank you for the update. Michelle Carew and the many others who await donor matches are in our thoughts and prayers.

HOCKEY

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Zigmund Palffy's tie-breaking goal, his 20th of the season, with 7:11 remaining lifted the New York Islanders over the Dallas Stars 5-3 Sunday night.

Palffy took a feed from Travis Green in the neutral zone, skated to the high right slot and fired a 30-foot slap shot that hit the crossbar and dropped behind Dallas goalie Alan Bester, giving the Islanders a 4-3 lead.

Mathieu Schneider clinched the Islanders' fifth straight victory at home against the Stars with an empty-net goal with 5.6 seconds left. Dallas' last win at Nassau Coliseum came on Oct. 17, 1989.

Rookie Niklas Andersson accounted for the rest of New York's scoring with his first career hat trick, as the Islanders bounced back from Saturday night's loss in Washington — a game where they blew a 5-2 third-period lead and lost 6-5 in overtime.

FOOTBALL

SEATTLE (AP) — Ken Behring says he's in Los Angeles to stay, but Seattle officials still aren't giving up hope of finding a local buyer for the Seahawks.

"The question remains whether he wants to sell," King County Executive Gary Locke said Sunday night, confirming talks were continuing between Behring's people and a prospective buyer.

"I think that when we succeed in court in forcing the team to stay here, he may have more incentive to sell the team," Locke said. The county filed suit last week.

While the mayor of Anaheim is set to announce plans Monday that would provide the Seahawks with a training site at Rams Park, a moving van showed up at team headquarters in suburban Kirkland and workers loaded it with exercise equipment.

Behring told The Los Angeles Times from his Danville, Calif., land development offices on Saturday, "I'm committed to Los Angeles." He said his team will be moving to Rams Park "very soon."

AUTO RACING

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Some winners in the Rolex 24 Hours sports car endurance race have had the time to stop, shine up their car and change into a fresh uniform for the post-race picture session.

Not this time.

The winning trio of South African Wayne Taylor and Americans Scott Sharp and Jim Pace had virtually no time to relax until the twice-around-the-clock event at Daytona International Speedway ended Sunday afternoon.

The three co-drove an Oldsmobile Mark III, the first totally American-made car to win this event, to the narrowest victory in the 34 years of America's premier endurance race, beating a Ferrari 333SP by just 1 minute, 5.518 seconds in a battle of World Sports Cars (WSC).

That broke the record of 1:26 set in 1989 by Frenchman Bob Wollek, Englishman Derek Bell and American John Andretti in a Porsche 932 Prototype.

"When I got out of the car after the opening stint, I told my wife, 'It's going to be pure hell,'" said Taylor, who now lives in nearby Altamonte Springs, Fla. 0

Max Papis, a Ferrari Formula One test driver in his first appearance at Daytona, gave a tremendous effort in the final two hours, making up a four-lap deficit and twice passing Taylor to get back on the lead lap.

However, the youngster was forced to pit for fuel and tires with about 15 minutes remaining, ending any chance of catching the debuting Riley & Scott Mark III chassis powered by an Aurora V-8 Oldsmobile engine.

Harvesters keep No. 3 ranking

PAMPA — The Pampa Harvesters kept their No. 3 ranking in the Texas Association of Basketball Coaches poll this week.

Pampa at 24-3 is ranked behind Dallas Highland Park (25-3) and Waxahachie (26-3) in the Class 4A poll.

Both the Pampa boys' and girls' teams are in District 1-4A action Tuesday night at Borger. Gametime is 6 for the girls and 7:30 for the boys.

The Harvesters pushed their district record to 9-0 after an 111-42 rout of Dumas last Friday night.

Senior guard Rayford Young scored 23 points as Pampa rolled past Borger, 87-47, in the first half of the district season.

Borger is 1-8 in district and 9-21 for the season.

Pampa girls are 1-9 in district and 12-15 for the season. The Lady Bulldogs are 3-7 in district and 14-18 for the season.

Palmer honored

Wendell Palmer (left) of Pampa received a Special Achievement Award during the Panhandle Sports Hall of Fame induction ceremony Sunday in Amarillo. Palmer, a senior track and field athlete, holds several age-group world records in weight events. In May, Palmer won the discus and placed third in the shot put at the National Senior Olympics in San Antonio. He placed second in the discus and third in the weight pentathlon at the World Senior Games in August in Buffalo, N.Y. The award was presented by Dick Bynum.

UMass escapes upset bid

By The Associated Press

Everything was in place for the biggest upset of the season in college basketball.

Xavier of Ohio, a team one game over .500, was leading top-ranked and unbeaten Massachusetts by five points late in the game. The sellout crowd at Cincinnati Gardens was beside itself getting ready to celebrate the triumph of the smaller, inexperienced home team.

Trouble was, Massachusetts had them right where they wanted them.

The Minutemen (21-0, 9-0 Atlantic 10) remained Division I's only unbeaten team with a 78-74 victory over Xavier on Sunday, their third overtime victory in the last nine games and their 10th straight overtime win, a streak that dates to late in the 1990-91 season.

"For us to be down the majority of the game and come back and win, that shows character," said Marcus Camby, who led the Minutemen with 26 points.

"Massachusetts made the plays down the stretch that they've made consistently throughout the year in games of this ilk," Xavier coach Skip Prosser said.

This time, the Minutemen were down 67-62 with 2:47 left. They sent the game into overtime when Edgar Padilla nailed a 3-pointer with 15 seconds left and the Musketeers (9-9, 5-3) then missed three shots on their final possession, the last rebound by T.J. Johnson.

"It was a pretty bad feeling," said Johnson, who scored 16 points and had 11 rebounds. "We knew we still had overtime to try to come out and win it. But you want those at the end."

Massachusetts never trailed in the overtime and the Minutemen kept alive their chance to join Indiana State and Alcorn State in 1979 and UNLV in 1991 as the only teams to go unbeaten in the regular season since Indiana was a perfect champion in 1976.

"We're the toughest team on everybody's schedule right now," Camby said.

"Certainly it was a splendid opportunity to do something that's not been done by anybody in the country or perhaps by no Xavier team ever," Prosser said. "We made big plays, but they made one or two bigger plays."

In other games involving ranked teams Sunday, it was: No. 3 Kansas 72, Kansas State 62; No. 5 Cincinnati 79, South Florida 60; No. 18 Syracuse 81, Alabama 68; and Mississippi State 78, No. 22 Auburn 75.

On Saturday, it was: No. 2 Kentucky 77, Florida 63; No. 4 Connecticut 77, St. John's 63; No. 6 Villanova 88, Pittsburgh 55; No. 7 Utah 74, New Mexico 58; North Carolina State 78, No. 8 North Carolina 75; and No. 9 Georgetown 70, Notre Dame 53.

Also, Louisville 74, No. 11 Memphis 56; No. 13 Virginia Tech 72, Rhode Island 66; No. 14 Arizona 96, Washington State 78; No. 15 Texas Tech 79, Rice 57; No. 17 Purdue 56, Michigan State 51; No. 19 UCLA 69, Oregon State 60; No. 20 Michigan 77, Ohio State 58; No. 21 Boston College 84, West Virginia 63; No. 23 Eastern Michigan 62, Akron 53; Duke 83, No. 24 Clemson 53; and Maryland 88, No. 25 Georgia Tech 74.

Saturday's game between Saint Louis and No. 12 Wake Forest was canceled when the Billikens were unable to get to Winston-Salem, N.C., because of travel problems caused by the latest winter storm.

Sunday's Games
No. 3 Kansas 72, Kansas St. 62

At Lawrence, Kan., Raef LaFrentz had 24 points to lead the Jayhawks (18-1, 6-0 Big Eight), who started the second half with a 13-3, run to wipe out a 34-30 halftime deficit. Elliot Hatcher had 30 points for the Wildcats (14-6, 5-3), who fell behind 63-50 with five minutes remaining.

No. 5 Cincinnati 79, South Florida 60

At Cincinnati, Danny Fortson had 20 points to lead the Bearcats (17-1, 6-1 Conference USA) in the win that gave Bob Huggins a 155-59 record and made him the school's winningest coach. James Harper had a career-high 21 points for the Bulls (8-10, 0-7), who trailed 56-54 with 8:20 to play.

No. 18 Syracuse 81, Alabama 68

At Syracuse, N.Y., Otis Hill and Todd Burgan each had 17 points for the Orangemen (16-6), who lost all but three points of a 16-point halftime lead before retaking control midway through the second half. Marco Whitfield had 23 points for the Crimson Tide (11-7), who have lost four of six.

Mississippi St. 78, No. 22 Auburn 75, OT

At Auburn, Ala., Darryl Wilson scored 11 of his 14 points in overtime for the Bulldogs (14-5, 6-4 Southeastern Conference) and Erick Dampier added 20 points, including the hook shot with 14 seconds left that forced the extra session. Wes Flanigan led the Tigers (15-6, 3-5) with 19 points.

Saturday's Games
No. 2 Kentucky 77, Florida 63

At Lexington, Ky., Tony Delk scored 15 points and Antoine Walker added 14 as the Wildcats (18-1, 8-0 SEC) won their 17th straight. Dametri Hill had a career-high 29 points and 10 rebounds for the Gators (9-10, 4-5).

No. 4 Connecticut 77, St. John's 63

At New York, Ray Allen scored 29 points and the Huskies (21-1, 11-0 Big East) extended their winning streak to 20 games.

Fort Elliott gains split with Allison

ALLISON — Fort Elliott rolled past Allison, 72-54, in a District 4-1A game Friday night.

David Helton poured in 28 points to lead the Cougars in scoring, followed by Collin McCurley with 10.

Monte Dukes had 16 points and Toby Keyes 13 for Allison.

Fort Elliott leads the district standings with a 4-0 record while overall the Cougars are 16-8.

Allison is 1-3 in district and 8-15 overall.

Allison defeated Fort Elliott in the girls' game, 61-46.

Yowell had 23 points and Grayson 14 for Allison.

Susie Luttrell and Amanda Shields led Fort Elliott in scoring with 12 points each.

Allison is 2-2 in district and 15-8 overall. Fort Elliott is 0-4 in district and 10-12 overall.

Fort Elliott hosts Follett at 6:30 Tuesday night.

NFC claims Pro Bowl victory

By GORDON SAKAMOTO
Associated Press Writer

HONOLULU (AP) — For Brett Favre, being surrounded by a group of "West Coasters" proved advantageous. For Jim Harbaugh, another opportunity to add to his "Captain Comeback" heroics fell short — not once, but twice.

It was only a simple one-yard out pattern, but Favre, the NFL's player of the year from Green Bay, made the most of it by drilling a pass to San Francisco's Jerry Rice that gave the NFC a lead it never relinquished in Sunday's 20-13 victory over the AFC in the Pro Bowl.

"I was in synch with Jerry (Rice)," said Favre, even though they worked together for only a week. "There were times when a play was called; I just knew where he'd be as I've done with Robert (Brooks of the Packers) during the season. Even though he wasn't the primary guy, I hit him with several balls.

"The touchdown was just a simple out by Jerry, a one-on-one with man coverage, and he beat his guy so good I just had to hit him. It was easy."

Rice, voted the game's most valuable player, seconded Favre's rationale.

"I think Favre knew that I would be there," the wide receiver said. "When I looked back, I didn't see him; I just saw the ball. We run a similar kind of offense at San Francisco, so I didn't have to do too much thinking today."

That Favre-Rice combination stemmed from the "West Coast offense," which Green Bay coach Mike Holmgren helped develop while an assistant with the 49ers.

It was different for Harbaugh, who pulled off several game-ending victories for Indianapolis during the regular season.

Given two opportunities to at least tie the score with two minutes left in the game, Harbaugh couldn't pull it off. First, he threw an interception from the NFC 8 and then misfired on three passes from the 14, including missing a wide open Tim Brown of Oakland in the end zone as time ran out.

Harbaugh was more upset about the interception than the incompleteness.

"He was covered," the quarterback said of his receiver. "I tried to throw it high, giving him a chance to catch it. It got tipped right up and intercepted."

Tim McDonald of the 49ers picked it off in the end zone to stop that threat, but the AFC defense held on downs to force an NFC punt and give Harbaugh another shot at a score.

A 36-yard pass to New England's Ben Coates put the ball on the 14 with 47 seconds left, but, after spiking the ball to stop the clock, Harbaugh threw consecutive incompleteness, including the game-ending overthrow to Brown.

Had the AFC scored, coach Ted Marchibroda of the Colts said he would have settled for a tie and not gone for a two-point conversion.

Harbaugh's miscues earlier in the game resulted in 10 points for the NFC.

Ken Harvey of Washington picked off a pass and returned it 36 yards for a touchdown late in the second quarter.

"I saw him there and I thought I could get it by him," Harbaugh said. "He made a good play and he was gone. I saw him standing right there and I thought I could slip it by him and I couldn't."

Another interception of a Harbaugh pass, by Darren Woodson of Dallas, set up a 24-yard field goal by Morten Andersen of Atlanta with two seconds left in the half that made it 20-7.

The NFC appeared to have a safe lead, but the AFC went on a time-consuming 8:01, 87-yard drive that was capped by a 17-yard pass from Harbaugh to Curtis Martin of New England to make it a 7-point lead with one quarter left.

The NFC's only threat in the second half was Andersen's 53-yard field goal attempt, which hit the upright. That kick preceded the first AFC drive that ended with McDonald's interception.

The AFC got off to a record-breaking start on its first possession with a 93-yard touchdown pass from Cincinnati's Jeff Blake to Yancey Thigpen of Pittsburgh.

The Blake-Thigpen hookup bettered the game record of 64 yards set by the Houston combination of Dan Pastorini and Ken Burroughs in 1976.

Basketball class of 1996 will be known today

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — The list of nominees for the Basketball Hall of Fame has been known for months. The inductees will be known today.

Five coaches, 14 players and one contributor were considered by the 24-member Honors Committee. Election requires 14 votes.

Nominated as coaches were Don Haskins of Texas-El Paso; Guy Lewis of Houston; Jerry Tarkanian of Long Beach State, UNLV and Fresno State; Tex Winter, who coached in both the pro leagues and college; and Antonio Dias-Miguel, who guided Spain's national team for 27 years.

The players proposed were Dick Barnett, Roger Brown, George Gervin, David Thompson, Jo Jo White, Dennis Johnson, Larry Costello, Artis Gilmore, Gail Goodrich, Jamaal Wilkes, Arnie Risen, George Yardley, Nancy Lieberman-Cline and the late Kresimir Cosic.

Carol Eckman, who started the first women's national collegiate tournament in 1969, was nominated as a contributor.

Tarkanian, the winningest coach in college basketball history by percentage, is the most known of the coaching names, and that comes from off-court problems as well. His run-ins with the NCAA reached all the way to the Supreme Court and were as connected with his name as the national championship he won at UNLV in 1990.

Haskins had been nominated three previous times and many who had played under him and coached against him in his 35 years at Texas-El Paso have maintained the honor is long overdue.

"I went up to the Hall of Fame and looked at some of the coaches who've gotten in and I said, 'Man, none of these guys touch him,'" Arkansas coach Nolan Richardson, who played for Haskins, once said.

Don't look to Haskins to echo such sentiments.

"I don't think I deserve it," Haskins said last year. "I haven't done enough."

Bulls' win streak comes to an end

DENVER (AP) — The script called for Michael Jordan to lead the Chicago Bulls on a miraculous comeback. Somebody forgot to tell the Denver Nuggets.
"We never gave up and held our composure at the end. That's the best we can play," said Mahmoud Abdul-Rauf, who scored 32 points to lead Denver to a 105-99 victory that snapped the Bulls' 18-game winning streak.
The Nuggets, who have 22 fewer wins than the 41-4 Bulls, built a 31-point first-half lead only to see the Bulls come storming back behind Jordan — who else? — in the third and fourth quarters.

Jordan scored 22 of his 39 points in the third quarter, and by the time Scottie Pippen completed a three-point play to open the fourth quarter, the Bulls were on top, 85-84, for the first time since Bill Wennington made the game's first basket.
But the Nuggets stayed calm down the stretch to hand the Bulls their first loss since a Dec. 26 defeat at Indiana. It also brought back memories of Denver's stunning Game 5 victory over the Seattle SuperSonics in the opening round of the 1993-94 playoffs.

"This win ranks with Seattle because of what Chicago is doing this year," Abdul-Rauf said. "They've only lost four games this year, and we were one of them."

Deep freeze makes life anything but normal

By NED KILKELLY
Associated Press Writer

It was so cold... Firefighters in Atlanta set an ice-covered hydrant ablaze so they could fight a house fire. High school bands were dropped from a parade in St. Paul, Minn., so lips wouldn't freeze to brass instruments. And in Pittsburgh, condensation from factory smokestacks combined with temperatures of 6 below zero to produce man-made flurries in some parts of the city. Meteorologists said the snow even showed up in satellite pictures. "It's so cold we can't even give out the right change because our hands are frozen - I hate it," said gas station attendant Louis Carvalho in Newark, N.J. "It's like sitting in the freezer without any clothes on for an hour," said Steve Parkansky, 25, a bartender in Rhinelander, Wis., which saw temperatures plunge Sunday to 43 below zero. The lethal Arctic cold that plunged temperatures to record lows in 13 states racked up a fresh round of temperature records Sunday.

It got down to 5 in Newark, N.J., Sunday, leading the chairwoman of a Polar Bear Club in nearby Glen Rock, N.J., to call off an ocean swim. It was too cold in Embarrass, Minn. - 56 below - to show your face. And the minus 11 reading in a little town in Michigan said it all. "Hell's frozen over," said Tom Davis, who owns a ranch in Hell, about an hour west of Detroit. More record lows were set early today. Meridian, Miss., had 8 degrees, Jackson, Miss., 10, Baton Rouge, La., 15, and Lynchburg, Va., minus 7. Wisconsin saw low readings Sunday it hasn't seen in a century. In Green Bay, the day's low was 24 below zero, breaking the record of minus 21 set in 1893. And Milwaukee's low was minus 19, beating the old record of minus 17 in 1895. Other cities to record low temperatures Sunday included Ely, Minn., at minus 46, Nashville, Tenn., at minus 3, Oklahoma City at minus 3, Cleveland at minus 10, Indianapolis at minus 12, Atlanta at 7, Dallas at 8, Wichita, Kan., at minus 7, and Springfield, Mo. at minus 8.

Forecasters said the record cold was to linger today along the East Coast, and from the Ohio Valley north to the Great Lakes. And a hard freeze was in the forecast for the Gulf Coast and Florida, where orange growers are scrambling to protect oranges and other winter crops. "If it's not covered, it's dead," said Trish Hunsader of her family's 400,000 tomato plants in Myakka City. "This could not have come at a worse time, not that any time is a good time," said strawberry grower Fred Futch of Plant City. "The plants are in bloom." The snow, ice and record cold that began last week have been blamed for at least 61 deaths across the Lower 48 states, many occurring in traffic accidents on icy roads. In Eau Claire, Wis., an 80-year-old woman was found dead in her garage, where she had accidentally locked herself in after going to get the mail. And in Green Bay, Wis., man was found frozen outside his home a few hours after being dropped off from his 54th birthday celebration.

Price-fixing trial of Mrs. Baird's former president to begin today

DALLAS (AP) - Mrs Baird's Bakeries Inc., the largest family-owned bakery in the nation, and a grandson of the company's founder are defending allegations that they conspired to fix bread prices in Texas for more than 15 years. The charges against Mrs Baird's and former president Floyd Carroll Baird stem from a Justice Department investigation into alleged price-fixing and bid-rigging in the wholesale bread and bread products industry. The trial, scheduled to begin today, will be heard before U.S. District Judge Jerry Buchmeyer. The government alleges the company was involved in a conspiracy to "raise, fix and maintain" bread prices in East Texas from at least 1977 until March 1993. From 1984 to June 1992 or longer, the government claims, a price-fixing and bid-rigging conspiracy existed for contracts to supply bread to government entities in West Texas. If convicted of both counts, Mrs Baird's could be fined at least $20 million. Carroll Baird could face six years in prison and a fine of $700,000 or more. "It is important to note that bread prices in the Southwest are among the lowest in the country and were throughout the time the government claims prices were being fixed," said Allen Baird, chairman of the board of Mrs Baird's Bakeries. "We are confident that when a jury hears all the evidence they will conclude the government's allegations are without foundation," he said.

Prosecutors want to try teen suspect as an adult
MOSES LAKE, Wash. (AP) - Angered by the school shooting that left his daughter wounded and three people dead, Phillip Hintz said he would like to see the 14-year-old suspect tried as an adult. Ninth-grader Barry Loukaitas was to appear in juvenile court today as prosecutors sought to transfer his case to adult court. Prosecutor John Knodell said Sunday he intended to charge Loukaitas with three counts of first-degree murder and one count of attempted murder. If convicted as an adult, Loukaitas could face life in prison.

Corp., GM's finance company. Saturn's Internet site will allow shoppers to electronically browse the used-car inventory at local dealerships. The major automakers and other businesses have flocked to the Internet in the past year, betting that the worldwide computer network will be a main conduit for communications between seller and buyers.

No. 1 automaker cruising the Internet

DETROIT (AP) - The world's largest automaker is entering the passing lane on the information superhighway. General Motors Corp. is opening a World Wide Web site today with the goal of becoming the No. 1 car seller on line. GM's Web site will allow Buick customers to configure and price a new car, Cadillac buyers to link up with local dealers, and customers interested in Chevrolet to calculate loan and lease payments with General Motors Acceptance

Milli Vanilli rocker arrested for terrorist threats

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Rob Pilatus, half of the defunct pop duo Milli Vanilli, was held for investigation of making terrorist threats after allegedly trying to break into a car and a house, police said. A witness saw the 31-year-old Pilatus trying to break into a car in Hollywood on Sunday and alerted the owner, who approached Pilatus, said Officer Eduardo Funes. Pilatus ran to a nearby house and attempted to force his way in, Funes said. He made several "obscene and boisterous" threats, Funes said, and threatened to kill residents of the house. A struggle ensued, during which one of the residents hit Pilatus in the head with a bat. Pilatus was treated at a hospital and released. He was being held on $150,000 bail.
