Take estimated at $2 million 'Mechanics' rob jetliner

ROME (AP) — Two daring thieves dressed in mechanics uniforms, carrying a two-way radio and driving a stolen airport truck today halted an outbound jetliner on the pretext of a fuel leak, opened its cargo area and stole two pouches containing nearly $2.2 million in cash, police reported.

The robbery was discovered after the Swissair DC-9, with 39 passengers aboard, arrived in Zurich, where an airline spokesman said police were questioning a courier hired to accompany the pouch from Rome.

The spokesman said he did not know why the man, a Swiss national, did not hand carry the pouch and instead had it stored in the cargo hold. Another question was whether the bandits had been tipped off on the contents of the pouch and how they could know location and mechanism of the cargo hold door, the airline spokesman said.

A Rome airport security officer, who asked not to be named, told reporters the robbers may have been helped by "someone inside." He did not elaborate.

Rome airport sources said the stolen money was part of regular cash consignments. They said it was not Italian lire. That was disputed by Swiss police who said it was all Italian lire.

Rome police said the robbers, driving a small Fiat truck marked "A. R." for the Airport of Rome, radioed the pilot from the truck to halt its takeoff for an urgent check of leaking fuel. They then sped to the plane, opened the cargo hold and stole the bags.

Apparently without realizing what had happened, the plane took off after receiving a go-ahead from the robbers, police added.

Police said the robbers drove their truck into the runway after breaking a lock in the service hangar and used the same route to escape.

They then abandoned the truck outside the airport and sped away in a waiting car, police said.

Heist well planned

In other crime related news, the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals today affirmed the five-year sentence assessed Margaret Medders, who ran up a bill of $14,000 at the Fairmont Hotel which the court said was never paid.

Mrs. Medders was charged with theft of service, the appeals court said, and the indictment singled out $352 in unpaid bills for eight nights lodging in 1976.

Mrs. Medders argued that the state proved nothing more than eight separate cases of theft of services, each for $44 — the base daily room rate.

"It appears to be appellant's basic contention that she was guilty only of eight separate misdemeanor theft offenses, one for each day of the period between May 25, 1976 through June 1, 1976."

The appeals court said, however, according to the Penal Code, Mrs. Medders was charged properly.

Mrs. Medders and her late husband, Ernest, an illiterate mechanic from Tennessee, caught the eye of Texas and the nation in the mid-1960s when they borrowed and spent $3 million. They hosted lavish parties at their palatial ranch in Muenster. They claimed they stood to inherit as much as $6 million as heirs to some East Texas oil fields but their bubble burst in 1967 when the first lawsuits for nonpayment of debts were filed.

Mrs. Medders wrote a book in 1973 entitled "Medders Story — How to Borrow $3 million with No Collateral. How to Survive Adulthood, Honor, Gossip, Condemnation, Riches, and Poverty."

Probe into shooting continues

No conclusions have been reached as to the manner in which a Pampa man was fatally wounded Sunday. District Attorney Harold Comer said this morning.

"All available evidence up to this date suggests an accidental shooting," Comer said. "But we have to wait for all the physical evidence to be analyzed and we have to interview all the witnesses before we can reach any final conclusions."

He explained that his plans now are that as soon as all available evidence is analyzed, his office will submit the case to the grand jury.

Comer added that Kirven Roper, special investigator for his office, flew to the Criminal Investigation Laboratory in Austin this morning with physical evidence, including the pistol and clothing, gathered at the scene of the death of Dennis L. Smith, 31, allegedly died after a shooting in his home at 504 S. Finley around midnight Sunday.

"We're waiting for the ballistics and fingerprints reports," Comer said. "We don't have the autopsy report yet either."

The body was sent early this week to Amarillo pathologist Dr. Jose Diaz-Esquivel for an autopsy, but an official report is not expected within several weeks. Comer added that a simple oral report would speed up his office's investigation.

Cathy Smith, the dead man's wife, has given a statement to the police department concerning the circumstances surrounding the shooting, Comer added.

City police officers were dispatched to the Smith home at 12:10 a.m. Sunday after receiving a call of an "accidental shooting." Acting coroner Nat Lunsford pronounced Smith dead at the scene and requested an autopsy.

Services for Smith were held at 10 a.m. today in the Central Baptist Church. He was buried in Fairview Cemetery. He had lived in Pampa for 14 years and was the owner of Stedum's Restaurant.

Survivors include his wife, Cathy; his parents; one sister; two brothers; and his grandfather.

Is Pakistan next?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top administration official says the Soviet Union probably faces "a protracted, difficult time" in Afghanistan and may have to send in more troops to suppress resistance.

This could have serious consequences, including the danger that Soviet troops would cross the border into Pakistan to fight insurgents, Marshall Shulman of the State Department said Tuesday.

In time, Shulman said, the Soviets might also take advantage of unrest in Iran and push southward from Afghanistan to their historic goal of warm-water ports on the Arabian Sea.

However, the specialist on Soviet affairs said, "This doesn't appear to be in the immediate situation. Before then, they face a long, difficult period of pacification in regard to Afghanistan."

Rebel resistance is reported to be persistent there, in the northeast and in the Jalalabad area. But Carter and Shulman said the Iranian oil fields did not appear to be an immediate target.

Nonetheless, presidential press secretary Jody Powell said the Soviet divisions were along "the traditional invasion route to Tehran." He added, "There is no way to assess why they are there."

Shulman, a specialist in Soviet affairs for more than three decades, called for a sustained policy of "firmness" by the United States and its allies.

Apart from Afghanistan, he said "there will be a continuing succession of local, turbulent events" in which the Soviets try to gain advantage.

There, Shulman told reporters, the Soviets may have made "just one hell of a botch" of the political change in local leaders from Hafizullah Amin to Babrak Karmal.

While the military thrust was carried out smoothly, he said, Amin was deposed "very clumsily."

Instead of bringing Karmal to Kabul from Eastern Europe quickly as "a legitimating agent," he said, Amin's palace was attacked and he was assassinated while the Soviets invented "the transparent fiction" that Amin was an agent of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Shulman said this "made it much harder for them to make the argument about the legitimacy of their presence there."

With resistance stiffening, he said the Soviets will have to send in more troops and fight the rebels themselves, instead of relying heavily on the Afghan army.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said, meanwhile, that two motorized divisions totaling about 25,000 men had been deployed to the western region near Herat, some 75 to 100 miles from the Iranian border.

million metric tons of American feedgrain shipments, appears to be on shaky ground in Argentina.

Meanwhile, in Iran today the Oil Minister Ali Akbar Moinefar said Iran would stop selling oil to any nation that took economic sanctions against it, and Kyodo, the Japanese news service, said he called in Japanese Ambassador Tsutomu Wada for a special warning. Kyodo said Moinefar also told the ambassador the Japanese should resume construction immediately of a $2.9 billion petrochemical complex on the Persian Gulf that they stopped building because of the hostage-taking.

Moinefar also denied a report from the Tehran correspondent of Platt's Oilgram News that Iranian oil exports have been cut from an estimated 2.3 million barrels daily in late December to between 900,000 and a million currently because of slow spot-market sales.

Following up its order expelling all American journalists, the Iranian government gave them until Friday midnight to leave the country but barred them from sending any news dispatches out after midnight Tuesday.

Citation issued in tax appraisal board controversy

By DEBORAH BRIDGES
Of The Pampa News

An amended petition by the City of Pampa and Pampa Independent School District was recently presented to the district court in connection with the formation of the controversial county tax appraisal board.

Sources say the smaller entities became concerned when a citation was received by George Collingsworth, president of the Grandview-Hopkins ISD board of trustees, informing him of the petition.

Don Lane, attorney for the city of Pampa explained the action, saying, "It was just a citation saying that the Pampa entities had amended pleadings in this case."

The intervention is similar to the earlier one filed by the city and school district, J. E. Thompson, attorney for the Pampa ISD, said. The amended plea, however, made all of the taxing entities in the county parties of the suit, he added, and citations were served to each of the new parties.

The petition had been amended from the earlier intervention petition the city and Pampa ISD had filed in the County Clerk vs. Grandview-Hopkins declaratory judgement suit filed in October, Lane said. The citation was intended, he added, to inform Collingsworth and the other parties that the city and school were seeking to continue the case.

Lane confirmed the action was part of the legal procedure already begun by the two larger entities before the eight county taxing bodies had decided to attempt a compromise on the number of members on the board and how they would each be represented.

"If the question (concerning the county tax appraisal board) is resolved," he commented, "then the case can easily be dismissed."

Darville Orr, president of the Pampa ISD board of trustees, said today that a discussion is to be held in Lefors Thursday at 7:00 p.m. with a representative from each entity attending.

Orr described the amended petition as a "legal formality to get every thing done as stated in our letter."

The letter he referred to is one recently sent by the two Pampa taxing bodies informing the smaller entities of their decision to continue in the case unless a compromise could be reached.

On Jan. 10, the smaller entities met to form the seven-man board set forth earlier by resolution using the three-quarters rule in Senate Bill 621.

After a lengthy discussion with County Judge Carl Kennedy in his chambers, members of the press were informed of the smaller tax bodies' decision to attempt a compromise.

The dispute between the eight taxing entities over the county tax appraisal board began in October when Grandview-Hopkins filed a declaratory judgement suit against County Clerk, Wanda Carter in which Pampa and the Pampa ISD intervened.

The suit was intended to bring a court judgement concerning the validity of the resolutions passed by the smaller entities using the three-quarters rule as provided for in Senate Bill 621.

Grandview-Hopkins'

attorney, George Whittenburg, announced last week, however, of the decision by his clients to drop the suit.

However, the two Pampa taxing bodies decided to continue in the case unless a suitable compromise could be reached.

Officials order jail equipment

Hemphill County Commissioners, working on the jail standards, have ordered equipment for the old jail facility to comply with state standards. Plans for a new jail facility are being formulated.

Presentations from area construction companies were heard, and commissioners will decide on a firm for planning and construction of the new jail when all estimates and proposals are reviewed.

Renovation of the Hemphill County courthouse was completed by Mid-Continental Waterproofing Company. Payment to the company was discussed by the commissioners, who decided to inspect the work, before completing payment.

Airport management was a subject for the meeting, as the present manager will be leaving shortly. New personnel will be hired for the airport.

All county employees will receive back x-rays as part of the physical examination required for insurance. The commissioners felt having the x-rays on file would protect the county from future claims of back injuries from county employees. The x-rays will be mandatory.

Dr. Rush was reappointed as Hemphill County Health Officer. A motion was made to amend the Child Welfare Program. The amendment would have the state paying expenses incurred before the child is eligible for funds from Aid to Dependent Children. The county had previously paid these expenses.

Work on the Red Deer Watershed was again a subject for consideration. Work on the program is progressing in Hemphill County, with few easements still not received. Commissioners have contacted those land owners who have not given the easements.

Estimates for work to be done on the County Clinic were reviewed, a motion was passed to authorize the work.

District Court sentences two

Randy Lee Ledbetter, 18 of the Bowers City Camp, was placed on six years probation and fined $500 Tuesday after pleading guilty to one count of indecent exposure with a child in 223rd District Court.

Judge Don Cain stipulated that one condition of the probation was that Ledbetter must submit evidence monthly to the court that he was undergoing continuous psychiatric or psychological treatment until the court deemed such treatment no longer necessary.

Ledbetter was arrested Sept. 26, 1979 for the indecent exposure charge. Testimony was presented in court by a Dr. Hale in Borger, head of the Family Services Center there. Hale said Ledbetter had been under his treatment since the offense occurred and testified the man was "not a continuing threat."

District Attorney Harold Comer said the court also heard evidence that Ledbetter made no attempt to molest or to try any physical assault on the child involved.

In court action Monday, Joe Wayne Talley, 23, of 627 N. Christy, was sentenced to five years in the Texas Department of Corrections and was fined $1,000 on a charge of "rape by threat" in District 223rd Court by Judge Don Cain.

Talley was convicted for the abduction-rape of a Pampa woman Oct. 1, 1979. He was arrested Oct. 3.

Commissioners court sets agenda

Eighteen items, including discussion of distribution to Gray County schools of lease proceeds funds, are on the agenda for a regular meeting Friday at 9:30 a.m. of the Gray County commissioner's court.

County Judge Carl Kennedy said the items, which he predicted will be a long meeting, involve the court's having to "just take care of business — most of these are fairly routine."

The lease proceeds funds involve the receipt of money from the Gaines County oil leases. Kennedy said the county has received approximately $90,000 from those leases and the court will discuss how to divide the money among the schools.

The court will also discuss the establishment of a justice of the peace and a constable for Precinct 3 as well as consider four requests for indigent care.

Commissioners will review the purchase of a copy machine for the county extension office and the appointment of an assistant county extension agent for home economics to replace Marilyn Tate, who resigned last month.

The court will also view a film presentation of equipment by the Air Machinery Company, Inc. by Dan Richardson.

Soviets 'can't believe' U.S. stance

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — A Soviet Olympic official here for next month's International Olympic Committee session said he could "hardly believe" reports of a U.S. move to subsidize an alternate site to the Moscow Summer Olympics.

"As far as I know, until now the United States government has not had any authority over the IOC," said Yuri Kartsev, a New York-based representative of Moscow's Olympic Organizing Committee.

"The Games don't belong to any country," Kartsev said. "It's an international event." Calls for a change of summer venues and a boycott of Moscow's Games to protest the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan go against the meaning of the "unique international gathering," he told The Associated Press.

"The problems on which this idea of boycott is based are highly artificial, to my understanding — highly artificial," said Kartsev. "If you try to introduce the issue of Afghanistan to it, you will kill the Olympics as the only result."

Kartsev said he had been too busy to follow any of the United Nations debate that proceeded Monday's overwhelming vote against the Soviet invasion, but he defended his country's actions by citing its treaties with Afghanistan.

"The very same situation was in Vietnam," he said, referring to U.S. speeches at the U.N. defending this country's Southeast Asian policies.

Moscow is "95 to 97 percent" ready to stage the Summer Games and dly imagine that such plans exist people from the countries of the old be comparable to Los Angeles people," he said. special move to clear the town of pickpockets" bested out of Moscow mes in 1984," he maintained.

Roughly 35 members of the Moscow organizing committee are expected here next month to give progress reports to the IOC session, Kartsev said.

Lake Placid Olympic

Organizing Committee officials say they've been flooded with accreditation requests for the session ever since the boycott was proposed, and some officials are worried that lagging ticket sales for the February Olympics may worsen if Americans confuse the Summer and Winter Games.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Nader regulations cost substantially

Self-appointed consumer advocate Ralph Nader was taken to task, we are interested to note, at a recent Senate committee hearing on the then proposed Chrysler bailout.

Nader had the floor to criticize the auto company's claim that the cost of the ever-changing government safety regulations were a cause of their financial plight.

During the course of his talk, Nader said, "Some senator's personal tragedies might not have occurred" if safety standards had been more stringent. He was referring to committee member Sen. Jake Garn whose wife of 19 years was killed in a 1976 auto accident, leaving the senator with four children.

"That is one of the cruelest comments you have ever made. Yes, my wife died in an accident," responded Garn.

"She could have been saved," contended Nader.

That really made the senator mad. He shot back, "You always know everything about everything, don't you? Do you know the circumstances of the accident? How it happened? Do you?"

Nader said he did. "It happened in Utah," he began.

"No, it was in Nebraska," countered Garn. "Typical of your research."

Nader continued that it was a crash under 60 miles per hour and that it should have been survivable.

Garn corrected again: "It was not a crash. It involved another automobile."

Nader wouldn't quit, contending that it was a rollover and that it was the kind of accident the auto industry could have designed for.

Garn, now really angry, told Nader in no uncertain terms that his three children were in the car at the time of the accident and none was injured although they did not wear seatbelts. He pointed out that his wife was wearing her belt at the time of the accident.

Readers may remember it was Nader and his Raider-types who lobbied so heavily for mandatory seatbelts and buzzers in cars.

Garn concluded his blast at Nader saying, "If the American consumers knew what you've cost us in the name of consumerism, they'd run you out of the country."

We contend there is truth in the irate senator's remarks.

Consumerists play an important and legitimate role in our society when they test products, make comparisons and suggest improvements to manufacturers. Consumerists are also valuable as a source of product recommendations.

Where consumerists get out of line is when they begin trying to pressure the government to take certain products off the market or when they ask the government to force manufacturers to make changes they suggest.

It seems the political-activist consumerists believe it is proper to use government regulation to further their own personal beliefs about how products should be manufactured. We, on the other hand, believe consumers should have freedom to enter the marketplace without interference from government.

Cambodia: How to help

By William Steif

Americans ask: What can we do to help the starving Cambodians? A quick answer, offered by Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., in Bangkok one day, was: "Don't send cans of tuna fish."

She was being a trifle flip, but she was right.

The immediate reaction of charitable Americans to the Cambodian disaster, a kind of genocide on the scale of World War II's "holocaust," would be to dispatch food, clothing and other necessities of life to the unfortunate Cambodians.

That's not a good idea, for several reasons that the U.S. State Department has stressed repeatedly:

—Whether we like it or not, we have to cooperate with the United Nations agencies that are actually doing the work of providing for the needs of Cambodian (and Laotian and Vietnamese) refugees in Thailand.

The U.N. agencies are set up to do the job, and for the most part they are doing it. The main agencies are the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees, the U.N. World Food Program and the U.N. Children's Fund (UNICEF).

—A number of international, non-profit private agencies are working closely with the U.N. agencies to ease the Cambodians' plight. The private agencies are staffed by experts who use your donations in the most economical way, providing maximum benefits to the Cambodians.

Note that this says nothing about the region's tangled politics. If it were simply a question of aiding refugees who already have crossed into Thailand, the situation would be much easier. But it isn't. There are still several hundred thousand potential refugees in Cambodia crowded along the Thai border.

What can the average American do to help?

The best thing is to donate money to a private agency listed by the State Department as participating in the effort to provide relief for Cambodia (or Kampuchea, as it's now known officially). It doesn't have to be much. Any amount will help, and if you donate to one of the following organizations you can be sure you're aiding hungry people:

UNICEF, U.S. Committee for Kampuchean Relief, 331 East 38th St., New York, NY 10017; American Friends Service Committee, 1501 Cherry St., Philadelphia, Pa. 19102; American National Red Cross Kampuchean Relief, 2025 E St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006; Catholic Relief Services, 1011 First Ave., New York, NY 10022; Church World Service, 475 Riverside Dr., New York, NY 10027; CARE, 660 First Ave., New York, NY 10016; International Rescue Committee, 386 Park Ave., South, New York, NY 10010; Oxfam American, 302 Columbus Ave., Boston, Mass. 02116; Refugees International, 1800 K St., N.W., Suite 401, Washington, D.C. 20006; Seventh Day Adventist World Service, 6840 Eastern Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20012; World Relief Commission, P.O. Fighting the war of dirty words

By Oscar Cooley

Just about everybody considers the use of obscene language vulgar and repulsive. To hear it from young people, just forming habits of speech, especially disturbs us. And to read four-letter obscenities in print is shocking. Should obscenity and pornography be outlawed by the state?

This is in the realm of personal behavior and consumption. In somewhat the same class is the imbibing of harmful substances such as alcohol, tobacco, marijuana and hard drugs.

Injurious to the user's health, these substances also contribute to accidents, sometimes to crime. It is not strictly true to say that their use concerns only the user.

A generation ago, Americans had a fling at state regulation of personal consumption. They amended the Constitution to prohibit the sale and consumption of alcoholic liquor. It did not work. Many flouting the law, went right on selling and using liquor. After a long and painful trial, the amendment was repealed.

But evidently we have not learned, for our chief method today of combatting the sale and use of marijuana, another intoxicant of a sort, is to pass laws. It is not clear that we are making more progress in stamping out pot by law than we did whiskey. Individualistic America seems to resent being told what it shall drink or smoke.

As to the words he utters, those, too, he figures—are his own to choose. Traditionally, the American male has been an outdoorsman, hunting and playing, laboring on the land, on the deck of a ship, in the timber, laying rails and running trains over them, hammer in hand on a scaffold, operating a machine. None of these surroundings were especially conducive to refinement. Rough language became habitual.

The youngster going out to find his first job heard the salty words in which the older, experienced men expressed themselves and naturally parroted them. Profanity, spiced with obscenity, became his brand of eloquence. Often it became a lifelong habit.

What effect, if any, the American worker's language had on his character is hard to say. Plausibly it reinforced his sense of freedom and power and his determination to retain that freedom. He wanted no laws telling him he must not drink, get high, talk tough. Those acts, he thought, were none of the lawmaker's business. But the states, having established public schools, felt their responsibility to bring up the youth in moral decency, and to that end many laws have been passed and much legal machinery set up to smooth off people's rough edges and fit them into conventional society.

And one must admit the recent appearance of four-letter obscenities in books and magazines published by supposedly respectable publishers is a disturbingly rough edge. Something should be done, the reader instinctively feels. But it still does not follow that the state should attempt it. The problem may be too difficult for the law.

Today's flood of obscenity and pornography in print and on screen appears to be a symptom of today's permissiveness. Anything goes, nowadays, it seems. Shed the old inhibitions; modern times are here.

The permissive spirit pervades homes as well as schools. Children still tender are assumed to be near-adults. Youth comes of age at 18 instead of 21.

In many families, parental discipline is almost at the vanishing point. Parents who frowned on tobacco now try to justify pot.

Naively they hold that "our boy will never take enough of that stuff to hurt him any." And how many parents have bothered to see an X-rated movie?

To us old fogies, the change in what personal behavior is considered right, what wrong, seems profound. We recall that when Mother or Father warned us that we must not swear just because the hired man did—that this was taking the name of the Lord in vain—we concluded this was wrong and we should not do it. Their word was sufficient.

Parents in those days, as now, were not perfect. But parents always have the advantage of age and experience. They're the normal guides for youth. Where are the parents of "students" of Tehran, or are these all orphans?

The problem of personal behavior will never be solved by merely enacting laws. It's one for parents and teachers, not legislators.

About Khomeini's fanatical religion the article is if anything more reassuring.

One of Washington's problems in formulating a position toward Khomeini's movement may be its relative ignorance of the ayatollah's philosophy and of Shi'ite Moslem doctrine generally. It is entirely different from the harsher Sunni variety that currently prevails in Saudi Arabia, Libya and Pakistan, among other Moslem nations.

The entourage around Khomeini, in fact, has had considerable involvement in human rights activities and is committed to a struggle against all forms of oppression. The constitution he proposes has been drafted by political moderates with a strong belief in minority rights. Contrary to the superficial reports in the American press about his attitude toward Jews, women and others, Khomeini's Islamic republic can be expected to have a doctrine of social justice at its core. From all indications it will be flexible in interpreting the Koran, keeping the 'book of research' open to amendment and adaptation based on contemporary needs and aspirations.

That interpretation of Khomeini's attitudes and beliefs is contradicted by everything Khomeini had said or published, and he had written at great length about his peculiarly inflexible version of Islam. His attitude toward Jews, women and minorities is clear and savage. Is Falk kidding?

One final howler, on the professor's speciality, international affairs: "A non-Communist Islamic republic, whose government is supported by the clear majority of the Iranian people, will probably be a stabilizing element geopolitically, both in the region and in the Third World generally."

Is it too much to hope that the Milbank professor of international law will, at least, for a little while, shut up?

Have a miserable day

by ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON—The people who speculate on the price of gold are a weird lot. They're actually betting on disaster. Any bad news which drives up the price of gold is good news to them, and whether they want to or not, they have to root for wars, pestilence, droughts and revolution.

It's a miserable way of life to keep hoping things will get worse before they get better, but you get used to anything.

When news of the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan first broke, I had a call from Doodles. "I told you that you should have bought gold months ago," he shouted over the phone. "With Afghanistan and Iran in turmoil, the price could now go through the roof."

"I guess you made a killing," I said.

"I'm not complaining. I made 300 percent on my investment and it's just the beginning. If anything happens to Middle East oil, I'll be in clover."

"You may be in clover," I said, "but you won't be able to drive through it. Has it ever occurred to you, Doodles, that the more disasters there are in the world, the harder life is going to be for all of us?"

"Not if you've invested in gold. Everyone knows gold is disaster-proof."

"What are you going to do with the gold if the bottom drops out of everything?"

"I'll take a flyer in silver."

"But wouldn't you rather have a strong dollar and a healthy economy?"

"Are you crazy? You don't know anything about people who invest in precious metals. We never say to anyone, 'Have a nice day.' We want them to have a miserable day. That's the only way you can drive up the price of gold. Evertime someone predicts there is going to be a recession I feel great. But when the recession doesn't come, I get sick. You must understand that gold bugs have to march to a different drummer."

"I do understand it, and I envy you. Your fortune depends on chaos. The more catastrophes there are in the world, the more secure you feel. But isn't there some point when things could get so out of hand that even gold won't save you?"

"When you're into bullion, you can't think that way. You have to be an optimist. You have to believe that no matter how bad the situation gets, there will always be a market for gold. I didn't plan the invasion of Afghanistan, and I had nothing to do with oil prices going out of sight. But as long as it happened, somebody had to profit from it."

"Let me ask you something. Don't you feel the slightest twinge of guilt about making money from everybody else's misery? Isn't it difficult to wake up in the morning and say, 'I hope the rice crops failed in India?'"

"I never say that. What I say is, 'I wonder how many dollars the Japanese are going to sell today?' If the answer is 'a lot,' I call my broker and tell him to buy more gold. The worst thing a gold speculator can do is get emotional about his investment. If I worried about all the people who get hurt when gold goes up, I'd be in nothing but pork bellies."

You can't talk to a person when he has gold fever, so I decided to end the conversation. "Goodbye, Doodles—and, peace."

He yelled, "That's a lousy thing for you to say."

The clash of world religions

By Michael Novak

Suddenly in our day the struggles which once looked like ancient history—the Crusades, the battles of Lepanto and Tours—have become understandable. A few years ago, few of us would have believed religious wars are possible in the modern era. Now in Iran, Islamabad and Libya, we see how great the chasms are that separate one culture from another.

We also see that among the world religions, Judaism and Christianity are uniquely able to take a full, self-conscious role in science, technology and cultural change. More than most religions, Christianity long has been an urban religion. (The very word "pagan" meant rural.) Christianity's strength mostly has been in the cosmopolitan, changing, tumultuous life of the cities. Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan pointed out in an address at Fordham University in New York how important it was in Christian history a) to build universities in b) urban centers with c) a strong emphasis on the cosmopolitan and pluralistic spirit.

In the West, we often tend to think of Judaism and Christianity as conservative forces, as though modernity was brought into being against them and despite them. Compared to other world religions, however, both Judaism and Christianity have nourished the wellsprings of modernity; both thrive under modernity.

Because our culture is pluralistic, few of us ever voice in public all our private ideals and inspirations. In public, we try to confine ourselves to generalities so basic that almost everyone can agree with them. Students of our society—including Americans—often are misled by this tactic. Since in public we are silent about our deepest values, some tend to think we are a "value-free" society, or even a materialistic or atheistic society.

This is what the Ayatollah Khomeini accuses us of. We do not pray in public as often or as visibly as Moslems do; our pluralism, for one thing, prevents it. Pluralism leads us to be rather more private about our religion than we might like; but, on the whole, we have grown to see some virtue in that privacy. Our enemies see only our public advertisements for ourselves.

Many scholars have concluded ours is a "secular" society. In its public roles, they say, private beliefs and convictions are permitted little scope. The scholars may be right about the public presentation of ourselves. Who, reading our newspapers, watching our television, seeing the neon lights and the public displays of every sort of sinfulness, could not see among us unbridled license, materialism, atheism and decadence?

A free society wears its evil tendencies in public. Indeed, many good and decent people steel themselves not to see much of the "garbage" that presses in on them from every side, not least through the colored images on the television sets in their living rooms.

Yet a recent Gallup poll suggests how wrong we are about ourselves. The Gallup organization found only 4 percent of American adults—about 6.4 million persons—are atheists and 94 percent—about 150 million—believe in God or a "universal spirit." Fifty million have had a life-changing religious experience centering on Jesus Christ. More than 100 million adults belong to a church or synagogue. Forty million go to church weekly—far more than go to a sports event weekly, and almost as many as those who watch at least one sports event each week on television. Seventeen million Americans go to church more than once a week.

About 31 million adult Americans describe themselves as "evangelicals," and of these one-fourth are college-educated and one-tenth are business or professional people. Evangelicals are evenly divided in all income brackets (high, middle, low). Only 5 percent are separated or divorced. Almost four million of the 31 million adult evangelicals are Catholic.

Such figures suggest that, in private, American society is rather different from its public image. In private our society is far less atheistic, far less secular, than it appears in its public presentation.

As the 1980s begin, America is obtaining a more realistic view both of the world around it and of itself. In both, religion is a dynamic force we had better watch more closely.

Let me ask you something. Don't you feel the slightest twinge of guilt about making money from everybody else's misery? Isn't it difficult to wake up in the morning and say, 'I hope the rice crops failed in India?'"

"I never say that. What I say is, 'I wonder how many dollars the Japanese are going to sell today?'" If the answer is 'a lot,' I call my broker and tell him to buy more gold. The worst thing a gold speculator can do is get emotional about his investment. If I worried about all the people who get hurt when gold goes up, I'd be in nothing but pork bellies."

The arc of instability

By OTTO DOELLING
Associated Press Writer

Soviet expansion into Afghanistan has triggered a geopolitical showdown between the world's superpowers along Southwest Asia's so-called "arc of instability."

The ultimate stakes in what is expected to be a drawn-out global drama are extremely high since Afghanistan forms the backdoor to the fabulous oil wealth of Iran and the Arabian peninsula and to the Indian subcontinent.

Even if the Soviet Union, as it avows, is pursuing only short-range goals in the bloody suppression of Islamic insurgents in Afghanistan, the long-range effect is that the Russians will be more strategically placed to destabilize the autocratic Moslem regimes in Iran, Pakistan and Saudi Arabia, whenever the Kremlin's interests dictate.

"Geopolitics" — the interrelationship of politics and geography — is the game being played now. Here is a geopolitical overview of the interests of each of the Big Three in the "arc of instability" as viewed by diplomatic and other analysts in the East and West.

SOVIET UNION
From the Moscow perspective, analysts view the current crisis as part of a Soviet maneuver to finally carve out concrete spheres of influence in the region following years of superpower jockeying that brought few clear results.

Then, too, there was the half-century-old Soviet sensitivity about encirclement by unfriendly states. By effectively annexing Afghanistan, the Russians have come close to severing the first chain of anti-Marxist or anti-Soviet states surrounding them. Key links in this chain are Japan, South Korea, China, Pakistan, Iran, Turkey and Western Europe.

A military thrust of less than 300 miles from Afghanistan through western Pakistan or southeastern Iran would cut the chain and bring the Soviet Union to the Arabian Sea, near the entrance to the oil-rich Persian Gulf.

U.S. observers believe Russia's old thirst for warm waters may have been aroused anew by the prospect that the Soviet Union may face an energy shortage of its own beginning in the mid or late 1980s.

THE UNITED STATES
The Soviets may have their eye on the last half of this decade, but Arabian oil is immediately important to the United States and its Western allies.

About 20 percent of 8-million-plus barrels of oil the United States imports each day comes from wells on the Arab side of the Persian Gulf — 1.2 million alone from Saudi Arabia.

Saudi Arabia, a leading purchaser of U.S. weaponry, sits atop the world's largest proven reservoir of crude oil — 28 percent of the world total.

FRB director sees lower prices ahead

HOUSTON (AP)—Paul A. Volcker, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, believes the prospects "are bright for lower consumer prices this year, but don't expect any miracles right now."

In the early months of 1980, Volcker said, inflation probably would continue and consumer prices increase, but then things should get better and the housewife will get more for her dollar.

At a Wednesday news conference, the board chairman there is a possibility of a recession soon but, "I can't say this is a certainty. Understand, consumer spending is stronger than was expected and savings are lower. This has delayed a recession."

He said no special effort will be made "to tighten up on consumer credit. I see no need for a selective effort in this area."

He said American consumers were expecting inflation and higher prices and thus were buying items now on credit rather than waiting.

Asked about possible tax reductions, he answered, "a very strong case can be made for tax reform, including certain tax reductions. There is no doubt this would stimulate the economy."

"I am all in favor of tax reductions, but that time hasn't arrived. We must consider our federal budgetary conditions."

Union accuses firms of bargain blackout

DENVER (AP) — The 60,000 members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union began the second week of a nationwide strike with one union official saying it appeared the walkout will be a long one.

Meanwhile, Robert Goss, president of the union, on Tuesday charged a bargaining "blackout" by company officials. There was no immediate response from the companies.

Scattered violence, with gunfire and rock-throwing, has been reported at Texas refineries since OCAW members walked off their jobs at 100 oil companies Jan. 8. More than 25,000 of the OCAW strikers are at refineries along the Texas-Louisiana coast.

The strike began when workers failed to reach an agreement on a wage-benefit package for the second year of a two-year contract. The pact allowed renegotiation of benefits only during the second year.

The union has said it will not budge from its demand for full medical-dental coverage for all OCAW members, whose health-insurance plans now vary widely. It also wants what Goss calls a "substantial" pay raise, but he hasn't said how much will be enough. He said that will be discussed when the insurance issue is settled.

Each of the 411 contracts affecting the strikers are negotiated locally, but must be approved by the OCAW's national bargaining policy committee. The committee went home from Denver last week after talks between the union, Gulf Oil Corp. and federal mediators recessed.

Gold prices shoot upward

LONDON (AP) — The price of gold rocketed up more than $50 an ounce on European bullion markets today and nearly $80 in Hong Kong to reach new all-time peaks well above $700 an ounce.

The metal hit a high of $744.52 an ounce in Hong Kong after surging past $700 for the first time to reach $715 Tuesday in New York. It closed in Hong Kong today at $733.36 but opened in London at a median price of $740, up $56.50 from Tuesday's closing price of $683.50.

The opening quote in Zurich, Europe's biggest bullion market, was $735, up $50.50 from Tuesday's late rate of $684.50.

The spectacular leap was attributed to U.S. Treasury Secretary G. William Miller's comment that further U.S. gold auctions were not appropriate at the moment because of the unsettled bullion market. Traders interpreted this as a squeeze on already tight supplies of gold.

The underlying reasons for the New Year gold boom are the crisis building up over Soviet intervention in Afghanistan, the continued holding of the American hostages in Iran, the illness of Yugoslav President Josip Broz Tito, higher oil prices and the threat of curtailed exports and the generally shaky state of the world economy.

Since Dec. 31, gold has soared $215.50 an ounce in London. A year ago it closed at $197.95 in London.

"It's a very nervous market," said a dealer at Sharps Pixley Ltd., one of London's five big gold trading houses. "The price reflects the higher level reached in Hong Kong but so far it's rather quiet. When you get to a new area like this, people are nervous about buying but no one wants to go short either."

Silver, which has more than doubled in price in the past month, was trading at a record $46.50 an ounce, from $44 at the close Tuesday.

The U.S. dollar gained slightly against all major European currencies except the British pound. Mid-morning rates in Europe were: Frankfurt — 1.7293 marks, up from 1.7288 at the close of trading Tuesday.

SPICY BEEF brisket and lemon-buttered cabbage make a tasty low-sodium meal.

Recipes that cut salt intake

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

The old salt shaker is taking a back seat to other seasonings in many homes.

The reason? Many doctors are advising their patients to cut down on the excessive use of salt (sodium) as a preventive measure against high blood pressure and heart disease.

Most foods — except the majority of common fruits — contain sodium naturally. But as a people we tend to salt first and taste afterward when dining.

An aid to reducing total daily sodium intake is to avoid adding salt when preparing food at home.

This does not mean you must cut out all your favorite foods. If you are on a low-sodium diet, however, follow your doctor's instructions faithfully.

Those who are not on a severely restricted sodium diet may enjoy such treats as spicy beef brisket and lemon-buttered cabbage, both prepared without added salt. Fresh lemon juice, herbs and spices are used as flavor enhancers.

Incidentally, most herbs and spices do have traces of sodium. And garlic salt and onion salt should not be used when preparing low-sodium dishes.

Once you learn to substitute other seasonings for salt when cooking, you may find you are tasting the true flavors of meats, poultry and vegetables for the first time.

SPICY BEEF BRISKET
(Low sodium)

- 3 pounds boneless fresh beef brisket, all fat removed
- 2 carrots, quartered
- 2 onions, quartered
- 3 large cloves garlic, halved
- 1 tablespoon instant beef bouillon (no salt added)

- 15 whole cloves
- 15 whole peppercorns
- 2 bay leaves
- strip of fresh lemon peel (4- to 6-inch)
- juice of 2 fresh lemons
- boiling water
- fresh grated lemon peel and chopped parsley for garnish

Place beef in large saucepot. Add carrots, onions, garlic, bouillon, cloves, peppercorns, bay leaves, strip of lemon peel and lemon juice.

Add enough boiling water just to cover beef. Bring to boil. Reduce heat. Simmer 2½ to 3 hours until beef is tender.

Remove beef to serving platter. Slice thinly. Sprinkle with grated peel and parsley.

This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 to 8 servings. Each 4-ounce serving of cooked beef contains 71 mg. sodium and 232 calories. Each 3-ounce serving contains 53 mg. sodium and 174 calories.

LEMON-BUTTERED CABBAGE

- ¼ cup unsalted butter or margarine
- ½ teaspoon caraway or celery seed
- 1 medium head cabbage (about 1½ pounds), coarsely chopped
- grated peel and juice of ½ fresh lemon pepper

In large skillet, melt butter with caraway seed. Add cabbage. Cook over high heat for 3 to 4 minutes, stirring constantly.

Reduce heat. Cover. Simmer 2 to 3 minutes until just tender.

Stir in lemon peel and juice. Add pepper to taste.

This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 servings. Each ½-cup serving contains 16 mg. sodium and 90 calories.

Low-sodium bread

By Cecily Brownstone
Associated Press Food Editor

One of the cooks in my test kitchen is on a low-sodium diet. Recently, in her own home, she tried baking a loaf of white bread from a recipe in a "no salt" cookbook. She was greatly disappointed because the loaf was too sweet and its texture too coarse. When toasted, the bread became hard rather than crisp.

At her request, I worked out the following recipe for a low-sodium loaf, and we baked it in my test kitchen. It's delicious still faintly warm from the oven, and it's evenly crisp when toasted. Because readers of this column have asked me to include — on occasion — recipes for special diets, I am happy to give this one.

LOW-SODIUM BREAD

- 1 envelope dry yeast
- ½ tablespoon sugar
- 1 cup warm (105 to 115 degrees) water
- 2½ cups unbleached flour
- ¼ cup non-fat dry milk powder
- Corn oil

In a pint measure dissolve yeast and sugar in the water. In a food processor, using the steel blade, process together 2 cups of the flour and the dry milk just until blended — a few seconds. Add ½ cup of the yeast mixture and 1 tablespoon oil; in rapid succession, turn machine on and off 4 times.

Add remaining yeast mixture and ¼ cup of the flour; in rapid succession, turn machine on and off 4 times. Add remaining ¼ cup flour and process again until the dough forms a ball. Process about 1 minute more to knead.

Remove dough to an oiled bowl; turn dough to oil top; cover with plastic wrap; let rise in a draft-free 80-degree place until doubled — 1 hour. Turn out on a lightly floured surface and shape into a loaf to fit into an 8 by 4½ by 2½-inch pan; place in the oiled pan; cover and let rise as before until doubled — 1 hour. Brush with corn oil. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until browned and a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — 30 minutes. Turn out on a wire rack and cool completely.

Food Editor's Note: Adjust this recipe, if necessary, to fit your particular make of food processor by consulting the manufacturer's directions for bread-making. — C.B.

TWEEN 12 AND 20

By Robert Wallace

Help for acne sufferers

Dr. Wallace: I am 13 and have a serious problem — pimples. My mom said every teen gets them and that there is nothing I can do to get rid of them.

Dr. Wallace: I'm miserable. Isn't there anything that can help me? — Sonja, Santa Rosa, Calif.

Sonja: There is a lot you can do. Wash your face at least three times a day with a mild soap. Eat sensibly, get the proper amount of sleep, exercise and sunshine.

Then, most importantly, have Mother take you to a dermatologist. Many new advances have occurred in helping teens with pimples and acne.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 16 and my parents won't allow me to date this certain boy because he is of a different religion. The boy now attends my church but my parents still say no.

Also, they open my mail and they listen to all my telephone conversations. Never do I have any privacy.

They tell me that what they are doing is for my own good, but I'm going crazy. Are my parents really helping me? — T.R. Sidney, Ohio

T.R.: A teen needs privacy. Opening teens' mail and snooping on the telephone by parents shows a lack of trust between parent and teen. There are times when parents must know what the teen is doing but only when the teen demonstrates that he is going astray. In this situation, snooping is acceptable. In all other situations, it is not.

I think your parents are making a mistake.

Write to Dr. Robert Wallace, TWEEN 12 and 20, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DEAR ABBY

A will for the living

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I want to thank you for the most wonderful present I have ever received. Because of an item in your column last year, I sent for "The Living Will." Now I have peace of mind, knowing that if my husband or I should ever become terminally ill, our loved ones will never have to watch us die slow and agonizing deaths as some we have witnessed.

I saw my handsome, 6-foot, 200-pound father waste away to an 88-pound skeleton after fighting a two-year battle with cancer. The doctors told us it was hopeless, yet kept that poor dear man alive month after month with transfusions, tubes, needles and drugs, while he prayed to God to take him.

Abby, you would do millions of readers a priceless service by acquainting them with "The Living Will" as you did me. GRATEFUL IN JOLIET, ILL.

DEAR GRATEFUL: Thank you for giving me this opportunity to publicize "The Living Will" again. It reads as follows:

TO MY FAMILY, MY PHYSICIAN, MY LAWYER AND ALL OTHERS WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

Death is as much a reality as birth, growth, maturity and old age — it is the one certainty of life. If the time comes when I can no longer take part in decisions for my own future, let this statement stand as an expression of my wishes and directions, while I am still of sound mind.

If at such a time the situation should arise in which there is no reasonable expectation of my recovery from extreme physical or mental disability, I direct that I be allowed to die and not be kept alive by medications, artificial means or "heroic measures." I do, however, ask that medication be mercifully administered to me to alleviate suffering even though this may shorten my remaining life.

This statement is made after careful consideration and is in accordance with my strong convictions and beliefs. I want the wishes and directions here expressed carried out to the extent permitted by law. Insofar as they are not legally enforceable, I hope that those to whom this Will is addressed will regard themselves as morally bound by these provisions.

Apartment living -- utilizing available space

By Barbara Mayer AP Newsfeatures

Making do with a cramped and unattractive apartment was once acceptable. Many apartment dwellers could look forward to moving to their own homes someday, and they channeled extra funds into saving for this purpose.

But today, fewer individuals are able to own a home. According to a recent study, only 20 percent of American families can afford the costs associated with ownership of a median-priced, new home, and only 36 percent can afford ownership of a median-priced, existing home.

And, aside from growing costs, single-family homes are inappropriate and undesirable choices for a large number of small families and single adults living alone.

These economic and sociological facts of life have combined to make the subject of refurbishing and decorating apartments one of great interest to many consumers.

According to Carol Helms and Joanna Krotz—editors with others of "The Apartment Book"—apartment dwellers, and city dwellers in general, have a different set of requirements than do families living in more traditional spaces.

The biggest problem of young, city-dwelling professionals, at whom the book is aimed, is the need for more space.

"Making the most of space, adding storage room and finding a place to work at home or to pursue a hobby, are the issues concerning these people," noted Carol Helms.

The solution to the problem is to forget about the traditional ways of doing things. Analyzing the need and coming up with the best solution, no matter how unorthodox, is the method. And a satisfying result is the only justification required.

For example, if a gourmet cook lives in an apartment with a tiny kitchen, the only answer is to forget about the unacceptable boundary of the kitchen wall. There's no law that says you have to prepare food in the kitchen. Put together a loaf of bread in the living room, if necessary. And bake it in a portable oven set up wherever there is room for it.

If a conversation with these young authors is peppered with words such as "multiple," "dual function," and "individual," it isn't surprising. These words express the solutions they advocate for conquering the difficulties of living in an apartment.

"Furnishing for smaller spaces is different. It's not just a question of buying less furniture or smaller pieces," explained Joanna Krotz.

Instead, look at every piece you are considering from the point of view of "What will it do for me?" she said.

"Will a table extend or fold; will a sofa open into a bed; is the material going to hold up to hard use? Compare pieces and buy the one that gives you the most value. Buy by the piece, not by the suite.

Ten Altrusans receive awards

Ten membership growth awards were presented Monday during a luncheon meeting of Altrusa Club of Pampa.

Mary McDaniel, president, gave "Rise to Human Need" charms to Mary Wilson, Glyndene Shelton, Jean Smith, Jean Scott, Chleo Worley, Gertrude Barber, Marilyn McClure, Leona Willis and Atha Wilks. Each was honored for sponsoring a new member.

Jane Gattis received a "Golden A" for sponsoring two members.

The program, given by Irene Smith and Lora Dunn, was on recent changes in Altrusa bylaws.

Leona Willis' Altrusa Accent was on election procedures and duties of the nominating committee. Members of the committee, named by the board of directors, are Marian Stroup, chairman, Mary Wilson and Marian Jameson.

Renabelle Anderson introduced Girls of the Month, Pam Homer for December and Ann Jeffrey for January.

Committee reports were given by Marjorie Penn, Ruby Royse and Elaine Houston. Georgia Johnson discussed plans for the third grade toothbrush project during Texas Dental Week in February. Marian Stroup reported on new developments in the RIF program, an inexpensive book distribution project implemented for area fourth grade students.

PEWS has calligraphy program

Petroleum Engineers' Wives Society met last week in Borger for its January meeting and a program on calligraphy.

J.W. Dillard gave the demonstration, which included pen and ink, pencil drawings and water colors.

Two new members were welcomed: Betty Milam of Borger and Peggy Paronto of Pampa. Twenty-five members and three guests attended the meeting. Those from Pampa who attended were Marilyn Butler, Maxine Chase, Helen Hogan, Susan Jorgensen, Pat Leach and Francis Louvier.

Hostesses for the luncheon were Barbara McKay, Virginia Anderson and Liz Pischel, who provided table decorations from the Middle East.

A short business session, conducted by Marian Nash, president, followed the luncheon.

The next meeting will be a salad luncheon Feb. 12 at the home of Pat Leach in Pampa. Susan Jorgensen will be co-hostess.

Olive oil treatment for static in hair

Heat two to four tablespoons olive oil until warm, not hot, and pour into a dish. Using a small pastry brush or a piece of cotton, dab the oil on hair in sections. Massage in gently, then comb through. Wrap your head in plastic or foil and leave on 15 minutes. Then shampoo three times to remove every trace of oil.

DR. LAMB

DEAR DR. LAMB — I lost 15 to 20 pounds simply by pushing myself away from the table. I cut out breakfast and had an occasional salad for lunch and a small dinner consisting of solid yogurt or cottage cheese. Of course, I did this at school while I was away from home and I had good results.

Since I've been home I've started to gain weight. I still have one meal with low-calorie fruits for the day. My dinners have been changed and include chicken salad in larger quantities. I'm fairly active and run three to five miles every day which should burn up those nasty calories. I'm discouraged and unhappy whenever the scales point upwards. What can I do to avoid this? Could it be the result of a metabolism problem?

DEAR READER — It's unlikely that it's a metabolism problem other than getting more calories than your body is using, which is pretty normal metabolism. You've already proved that you can lose weight if you restrict your calories.

I'm not sure that I like the kind of diet that you've described for yourself and for that reason I'm sending you The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet.

A lot of people who are moderately overweight think they have a metabolic problem. This is so prevalent that

I've come around to advising patients and doctors to have an old-fashioned basal metabolism (B.M.R.) test done. This is not to find out whether you have a normal thyroid or not, you can find that out with a simple blood test, but rather to establish how many calories a person's body needs on a daily basis.

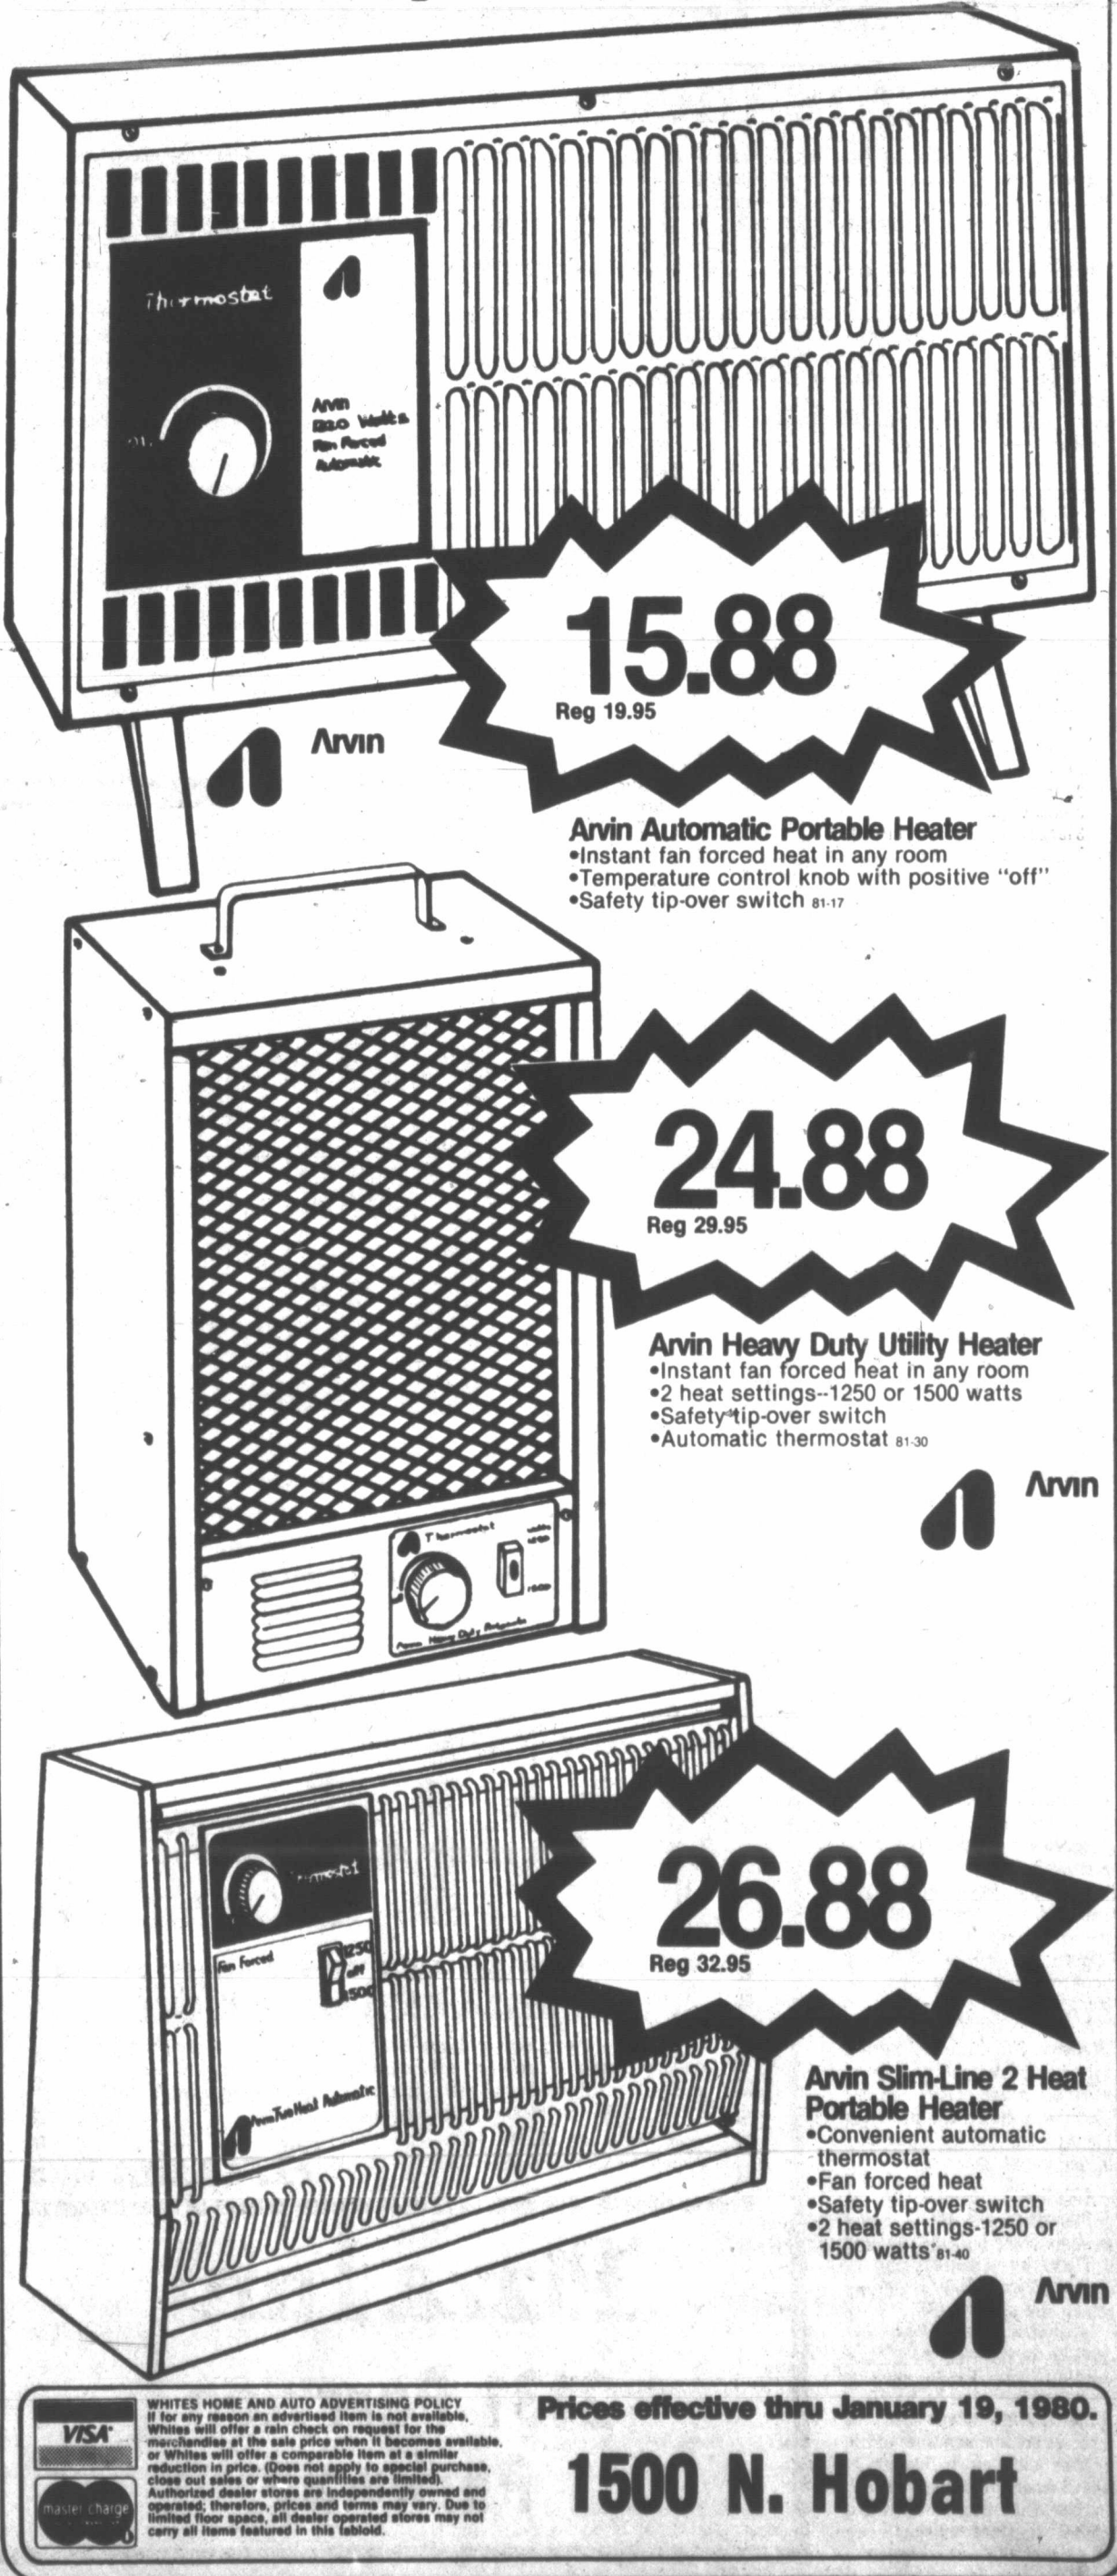

All that needs to be done is to take the old B.M.R. test and find out how much oxygen your body uses at rest for an hour. If the amount of oxygen used is multiplied by 4.825, that will tell you how many calories your own body uses every hour at rest. This can then be multiplied by 24 to find out how many calories your body should use in a day's time if you rested in bed all day.

Clearly, the diet will not need to be restricted below that number of calories for a person to lose weight.

SECRETARY OF EDUCATION Shirley L. Hufstедler introduces her son, Steven, to President Carter at the White House. Steven is a third year medical student at the University of California. School testing a low grade level indicated Steven needed remedial teaching. Hufstедler disagreed with the school testing and obtained further testing privately. Steven proved to be an 'above average' student. (AP Laser photo)

Secretary believes school testing is inconclusive

WASHINGTON (AP) — The school sent home the first danger signals when the child was in third grade: he had not scored well on standardized tests and might be steered down a remedial track.

His mother refused to believe what she heard. "I thought something was haywire. This was a kid who had designed whole games and could work three-dimensional puzzles as a preschooler," she recalled.

"I took him to a specialist in educational psychology, who said he was a very, very bright, very creative kid, and then I went back to the school and said, 'O.K., what's going on?'"

The public school in Los Angeles' Eagle Rock section backed off, and Steven Hufstедler was kept on the fast track. Today, at age 26, he is a third-year medical student at the University of California at Irvine.

His mother, Shirley Mount Hufstедler, stayed on the fast track.

Last month, after 18 years as a local, state and federal judge, she became the nation's first secretary of education.

This small, forceful woman, daughter of a school teacher and a building contractor, brought from the bench a deep concern about how people and institutions treat children.

She told senators at her confirmation hearing that one of her top priorities in the new $14 billion Department of Education would be to weigh every federal policy for its impact on individual children.

"We have not been a child-caring society, really. We pay a lot of lip service to being child-caring, but to my mind we have not conspicuously demonstrated a commitment to children," the 54-year-old Cabinet officer said in an interview last week.

After her son's experience, one of the things she discovered "going on" was a lot of tracking — putting youngsters into slots by their early test scores.

"Kids ended up with labels that were in many respects almost as destructive as tattooing numbers on prisoners," said Mrs. Hufstедler, who was active in both local school affairs and on state education committees. "Kids become prisoners of labels and people no longer think about them to find out what they really can do."

She calls it "a personal bias. I have never had much use for true-false tests, nor for multiple-choice tests."

"I recognize they are easy ways mechanically to grade large numbers of papers. In many respects, they test the ability of people to take true-false tests. But for the imaginative person, these tests are very difficult to take, unless one is simply asking for rote information."

"If you really want to know whether the person knows the date of the battle of Hastings, you can say, '1066 — True or False?' and people can pass or fail," she said. "Whether having that little germ of information is going to be of any use to you is another question."

She said she did not mean to criticize the schools "nor to say tests don't have their use. They do. But they also have been seriously misused in a number of circumstances. They do not test all kinds of subjective matters — judgment, intuition, creativity, imagination."

A few days after this interview, Ralph Nader used almost the same words in releasing a massive report attacking the Educational Testing Service's college and graduate admission tests.

A federal judge recently banned use of I.Q. tests to track children in California because he said the practice was unfair to minorities.

Mrs. Hufstедler said, "Whether it's the SATs (Scholastic Aptitude Test) or LSATs (Law School Admission Test) or any of the rest of them — this sounds very silly, but tests measure things that test measure."

Inflation rampant; recession feared

HOUSTON (AP)—Paul A. Volcker, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, believes the prospects "are bright for lower consumer prices this year, but don't expect any miracles right now."

In the early months of 1980, Volcker said, inflation probably would continue and consumer prices increase, but then things should get better and the housewife will get more for her dollar.

At a Wednesday news conference, the board chairman there is a possibility of a recession soon but, "I can't say this is a certainty. Understand, consumer spending is stronger than was expected and savings are lower. This has delayed a recession."

He said no special effort will be made "to tighten up on consumer credit. I see no need for a selective effort in this area."

He said American consumers were expecting inflation and higher prices and thus were buying items now on credit rather than waiting.

Asked about possible tax reductions, he answered, "a very strong case can be made for tax reform, including certain tax reductions. There is no doubt this would stimulate the economy."

"I am all in favor of tax reductions, but that time hasn't arrived. We must consider our federal budgetary conditions."

Volcker said he is "not happy to see what is going on in the gold market, but that won't lead to any major damage to the international monetary system."

As to the strength of the American dollar, he said, "It has been reasonably stable in recent months. The dollar can take care of itself."

White Deer School ups drivers fee

Superintendent Stander announced the resignation of Los Hughes, secretary of the superintendent's office. According to Stander "the position will be hard to fill, as Mrs. Hughes has been with the school for 26 years." Board members will be looking for applicants certified in heavy bookkeeping. Applications are being accepted at the school.

A price increase for the Drivers Education program will be made this summer. Inflation in gas prices and car rental was the reason given for the increase. Students pay only 50 percent of the cost.

Resident students will be paying $30 for the course, while students from outside districts will pay an amount equal to their own school's driver education course.

A trustee election for the openings in position No. 3, No. 4 and No. 5 will be held in April.

The trustee terms are for three years, the deadline to file for the election is March 5. School Board members agreed that the White Deer, Skellytown School district is fortunate because of the local economy.

Civil rights study gloomy for minorities

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Blacks, Mexican-Americans and women in Texas, still underrepresented and confined to low-paying, low-ranking jobs, have made no acceptable progress in the past 10 years.

according to a government civil rights report. The Texas Advisory Commission to the United States Commission on Civil Rights prepared the report from a study that examined the state's political participation, education, the administration of justice and public employment at the city, county, state and federal levels.

"Texas, at all governmental levels, consistently underemploys, underrepresents, underutilizes and underestimates minorities and women," said the report. "The pervasiveness of this pattern over a period of 10 years belies any argument that acceptable progress is being made in the direction of equal opportunity for all Texans. On the contrary, in case after case, the improvement since 1968 has been only minimal." During the 10 years in Texas politics, Anglo males have dominated 90-100 percent of elected positions at all levels, the report said.

"Blacks have been virtually excluded from elected positions, and while there are somewhat more Mexican-Americans elected, these are almost all found in the South Texas counties where they make up overwhelming majorities of the population," the report said.

"Females are also excluded, but tend to far marginally better than minority males. Minority females are the most underrepresented group among elected officials," according to the report.

FRIENDLY SUPPORT is offered Dr. George Nichopoulos, center as he is surrounded by well-wishers at the close of the second day of his medical malpractice hearing Tuesday. Nichopoulos,

52, is charged with overprescribing drugs to Elvis Presley and 15 other patients. He would lose his license to practice medicine in Tennessee if found guilty by the state Board of Medical Examiners. (AP Laser photo)

Presley's doctor confirms star was addicted to drugs

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Elvis Presley underwent drug detoxification on two occasions before his death, and harmless placebos often were given to keep the entertainer's drug problems under control, his physician says.

Dr. George Nichopoulos, testifying Tuesday during a malpractice hearing that could result in loss of his medical license, also told the Tennessee Board of Medical Examiners that he packed three suitcases full of drugs and medical equipment whenever Presley went on a concert tour.

Nichopoulos is accused of illegally dispensing some 10,000 pills — painkillers, sedatives, amphetamines and barbiturates — to Presley between Jan. 1, 1976, and the singer's death on Aug. 16, 1977.

Presley's death was attributed to a heart attack, but some news reports have said it may have been drug related.

Neither the cause of death nor the reason Presley sought painkillers was raised during Tuesday's testimony.

The white-haired doctor admitted writing the prescriptions, but he said many of the pills obtained through those written in Presley's name were actually dispensed to members of his touring group.

During most of Tuesday, Nichopoulos reviewed the medical records of more than a dozen of his patients, including entertainer Jerry Lee Lewis, explaining why he prescribed certain drugs.

He admitted over-prescribing drugs such as the sedative Quaalude for some patients, but he blamed the error on problems in record keeping.

Nichopoulos revealed that Presley was hospitalized in 1973 after the entertainer returned from California where he had consulted an acupuncturist for a back problem.

"But the acupuncturist wasn't a real acupuncturist," Nichopoulos said. He said the acupuncturist had used syringes filled with demerol, a painkiller, and steroids.

Citizen pushes taxation

OLMITO (AP) — Rancho Viejo Resort seems the perfect alternative to urban living — two golf courses, a lush tropical setting and no taxes.

So why does Nick Ollinger and at least 100 others want to incorporate and possible be forced to tax themselves.

"To give the residents a chance to have a voice in the long-range development of the area," says the 67-year-old. The first corporate owner declared bankruptcy. A Pittsburgh bank owned it a short time before selling to current owner Trapp, a semi-retired contractor from Kansas City, Mo.

Ollinger claims he has no bone to pick with Trapp. He says he is concerned about the stability of the area.

"This place is a beautiful spot in the Valley and we like it the way it is. We just want to be sure that's the way it will continue," he said.

Trapp provides road maintenance, garbage pickup and security for a monthly fee. Country club membership goes with home ownership.

If the resort becomes a town, Ollinger says Trapp would like any other business establishment. Ellis doesn't see it that way.

Abortion funds ordered

NEW YORK (AP) — Attempts by Congress to deny Medicaid payments for "medically necessary" abortions are unconstitutional, a federal judge ruled in a major test case, and funds must be provided for abortions if doctors determine they are needed.

The government said it would appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court the decision Tuesday by U.S. District Judge John Dooling. Dooling delayed for 30 days the effective date of his order, which would apply around the nation if upheld.

Dooling deliberated for 13 months before handing down the 642-page order holding the Hyde Amendment unconstitutional and ordering the government to provide matching funds for abortions.

The amendment sponsored by Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., has been attached to government money bills since 1976. It bars federal Medicaid funding for abortions except in cases where a woman's life is endangered or where pregnancy resulted from rape or incest.

"A woman's conscientious decision, in consultation with her physician, to terminate her pregnancy because that is medically necessary to her health is an exercise of the most fundamental of rights, nearly allied to her right to be," Dooling ruled.

The Supreme Court now has before it an appeal of an Illinois federal court decision that the Medicaid ban is unconstitutional. That judge did not specifically order the government, as Dooling did, to stop implementing the ban.

Southwest tournament returns next year

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The Southwest Conference post-season basketball tournament, scheduled here this year for the first time, will return in 1981 because of the support it has already drawn in San Antonio, according to a SWC official. Dr. Kenneth Herrick, faculty representative for Texas Christian and chairman of the SWC basketball committee, told the San Antonio Express that the SWC Executive Committee had unanimously approved his committee's recommendation last week. "We felt the people of San Antonio had done such a great job of getting this organized that we should show them some confidence and go ahead and award them the tournament for 1981," Herrick told the newspaper. "They have guaranteed us sellouts for this year and 1981."

Miami splits

MIAMI-Ron Francis poured in 35 points to guide Miami to a lopsided 73-37 win over Follett last night in a 2-B district contest. The Warriors, now 10-8 overall and 1-0 in district, never trailed in the game. Also scoring for Miami were Brad Billingsley, 12; Kevin Jenkins, 8; Steve Bright, 6; Robbie Graham, 5; Keith Gray, David Haws, Jason Klasek, 2 points each, and Darryl Dodson, 1. Brad Thiessen led the losers with 10 points. In the girls clash, Follett jumped off to an early lead and held on for a 54-46 win despite a furious fourth quarter rally by the Warriorettes. Tracy Klasek topped Miami in scoring with 11 points, followed by Susan Bean with 8. Sherrie McCullough, 6; Brenda McCullough, 5; Debbie Bass, Carla Daugherty, and Lisa Hinton, 4 apiece; Karla Stone and LaTonne Tribble, 2 apiece.

Skellytown wins two of three games

SKELLYTOWN-Skellytown junior high cagers emerged victorious in two of three games against Miami Monday night.

In boys action, the Panther seventh-eighth graders downed Miami, 42-31, behind the 30-point performance of Will Brown.

Skellytown had to stage a comeback to win after trailing most of three quarters. The Panthers trailed 10-5 after the first quarter, 18-11 at halftime and 26-21 going into the fourth quarter.

Also scoring for the Panthers were Glen

Wise, 5 points; Ken Tice, 3; Tim Lane and Randy Wise, 2 points each. Wise scored 3 of his points from the foul line and Lane added 2 on free shots. An unusual technical, seldom called these days, was issued to Lane for failing to raise his hand after committing a foul in the fourth quarter.

However, Skellytown dropped the seventh-eighth grade girls game, 48-14. Randi Matson paced led the Pantherettes in scoring with 9 points while Kathy Hassler and Lori Marlar had 3 and 2 points respectively.

Halftime score was 29-7.

In eighth-grade boys play, Skellytown topped Miami, 32-20. Arnie Adkinson was high scorer for the winners with 13 points. Tracy O'Dell and Brent Barbour added 7 points apiece, Richard Wells had 2 and Chris Harper, 1.

The Panthers rolled up an 8-2 bulge in the first quarter and expanded the lead to 11, 15-4, at intermission.

At the end of the third quarter it was even more lopsided with Skellytown owning a 28-6 advantage.

Rams quarterback an unknown quantity

LOS ANGELES (AP) — But for one toss of the ball, they might be facing Roger Staubach. Instead, they're preparing for Vince Ferragamo — almost an unknown quantity. And sometimes that kind of player can be the most dangerous.

"Preparing for him definitely is a handicap for us because we don't really know him," Dennis Winston, the Pittsburgh Steelers' left linebacker, said Tuesday as the Steelers and the Los Angeles Rams began practicing for Sunday's Super Bowl game.

"You can't know all you need to know about someone just from watching game films. You can't get a really good idea about who he is and what he can do," Winston said. "It's an advantage for us on the defense when we play against people like the Houston Oilers or Cleveland Browns. In games like that we have very few surprises."

Joe Greene, the Steelers' defensive tackle on the left side, agreed that films don't necessarily tell the whole story.

"You may see a team's tendencies and you may get an idea of their plan, of their strengths and weaknesses, but there's a lot more to it than that," Greene said.

"A lot of times the players have little idiosyncrasies that can be a telling factor, and sometimes the only way you can pick those up is face to face."

In that respect, the Steelers have seen precious little of the 25-year-old Ferragamo, who took over for injured Pat Haden midway in the 1979 season and guided the Rams to the National Conference West title and into the Super Bowl with playoff victories over Dallas and Tampa Bay.

In fact, they've seen him in person for only one play, an 8-yard pass as a momentary replacement for banged-up Haden in Los Angeles' 10-7 victory during the 1978 season.

"They've only seen me in eight games on film — not that much — and they don't really know me from past experiences, so in that regard maybe they do have some question as to what I can and can't do or will or won't do in a game," Ferragamo said. "So, sure, that could be a benefit to me and our ballclub."

Area basketball roundup

SAM NORWOOD-WHEELER girls went on a second-half scoring spree to defeat Sam Norwood, 47-34, Tuesday night in a 4-B district game.

Wheeler led by only 4, 21-17, at halftime, but then racked up 15 points in the third quarter to extend the margin to 12, 36-24.

"Our kids played very aggressive the second half," Wheeler coach Charles Carter said.

"Everything we put up seemed to fall in for us." Missy Wiggins led Wheeler scoring with 13 points while Mona Jennings and Beth Brown tossed in 9 apiece. Elise Christian added 7, Tanya Rarden, 5; Lynette Gaines and Candy Llewellyn, 2 apiece.

Norma Alfaro was high scorer for the losers with 13.

The Mustangettes, now 12-11 and 2-0 in district, host Mobette at 5:30 p.m. Friday night.

CANADIAN-Canadian girls rallied in the fourth quarter to trim Perryton, 38-37, Tuesday night.

Canadian trailed by 31-22 after three quarters, but stormed back the final eight minutes to pick up the win.

Teresa Morehead scored 10 points for Canadian while teammate Melanie Baggett chipped in 8.

Perryton was led by Julie Hargrove's 11 points.

The Wildcats weren't as fortunate as they dropped a 66-44 decision to a strong Perryton squad.
