Pampa, Texas

50¢ DAILY/SUNDAY $1

Low tonight in mid 30s, high tomorrow in mid 70s. See Page 2 for weather details.

PAMPA — County voters have just two days after today to register in person and be eligible to vote in the March 12 primary election.

County Clerk Wanda Carter said since the official deadline falls on a Sunday this year — Feb. 11 — county residents must register in person by Friday.

However, residents who mail in their applications can delay just slightly. Applications postmarked Feb. 12 will still be eligible, provided all the information is correct, Carter said.

The county-wide primary election takes place March 12. Early voting in person begins Feb. 21 and ends March 8.

McLEAN — The McLean City Council will meet in regular session Thursday at 7 p.m. in City Hall.

Items on the agenda include discussion of the following: tax abatement for sewer line to old Dairy Queen building, animal control, emergency generator, computer purchase, street signs, city holiday, computer lines and insurance bids.

Also on the agenda is the calling of the May 4 election and appointment of election judge.

Meetings are open to the public.

PAMPA — Pampa Learning Center and Bright Beginnings Child Care Center will host an open house Wednesday, Feb. 14, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

PLC, Pampa's alternative high school, is located at 212 W. Cook. Bright Beginnings, 1011 N. Frost, serves as the day care center for teen parents in the Pampa school district.

Student hosts and hostesses will conduct tours, answer questions and serve refreshments.

The staff and students of both facilities encourage the public to visit, enjoy refreshments and discover the many great accomplishments and achievements, PLC counselor Richard Steele said.

PAMPA — Building permit valuations are up 380 percent for the first third of the fiscal year, according to city building records.

During the first four months of the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, 1995, valuations total $2,996,997.75. For the first four months of the 1994-1995 year, valuations totaled $770,870.

A permit for a senior citizen apartment complex valued at $1,425,000 was issued Jan. 30. The complex with 26,087 square feet of space is located at 812 W. 25th and owned by Assisted Living Concepts, Fort Worth. It is to be built by K.L. Karnes Construction of Fort Worth.

Sen. Gramm misses crucial farm bill vote

By MICHELLE MITTELSTADT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas Republican Sen. Phil Gramm was on the presidential campaign trail in Iowa and Louisiana when Senate Republicans failed by one vote Tuesday to clear the way for action on a long-stalled farm bill.

The Louisiana caucus was Tuesday night. The Iowa caucus — pivotal to the Texan's presidential fortunes — is next Monday.

A week ago, Gramm cut short a campaign swing through Iowa to rush back to Washington for farm bill votes. "We are looking ... at a series of very close votes in which one vote may well make a difference," Gramm Senate spokesman Larry Neal said then, citing the bill's importance to Texas farmers.

But last week's votes didn't materialize after an early test made it clear the original GOP farm bill wouldn't pass. Republican leaders then promised to return this week with a bipartisan compromise.

When they did so Tuesday, seeking to put an end to Democratic foot-dragging over the bill, they failed by a 59-34 vote — one vote shy of the 60 needed.

Four other Republicans — including Senate Majority Whip Trent Lott of Mississippi — also missed the vote, as did two Democrats.

"I think it's pretty obvious had our absentees been here, we would have had cloture," said Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, who like Gramm is in the thick of the fight for the Republican nomination.

Gramm blamed Dole. "Setting the farm bill vote on the day that he knew I was committed to participate in the Louisiana caucus was a piece of political circus produced and directed by that skilled Washington impresario, Bob Dole," Gramm said in a statement.

"On the floor of the Senate today, Bob grinned when he lost, and we all know why," Gramm added. "The majority leader called this cloture vote today so he could lose, so he could point fingers and so he could get on with he does best: doing deals with Democrats."

Dole spokesman Clarkson Hine said all senators were informed "well in advance" that key votes would occur Tuesday. "Sen. Dole would like to be on the road too, but his first responsibility is to get the farm bill passed so America's farmers and ranchers can get on with their lives," Hine said. "Unfortunately, today's one-vote defeat will weaken our position in trying to get the strongest bill passed."

A fellow GOP hopeful, Senate Agriculture Committee Chairman Dick Lugar of Indiana, said: "My own view is that (Gramm) should have been here and voting on a very important piece of legislation to the country — certainly for Iowa, which is where I would be right now if I were not here managing the farm bill."

Senate Republicans and Democrats worked out an agreement late Tuesday to debate the bill and hold a final vote on it Wednesday.

The vote would be on the same farm program overhaul included in the budget-balancing bill vetoed by President Clinton. But the measure would be made more acceptable to Democrats because it would extend nutrition and conservation programs, changes proposed last week by Sen. Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt., top Democrat on the Agriculture Committee.

Direct crop subsidies would be replaced by guaranteed but declining payments over seven years. After that, Congress would have to decide on the future of farm programs.

U.S. trade deficit drops dramatically

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. trade deficit narrowed dramatically in November to $7.06 billion, the best showing in nearly two years, as the gap with Japan shrank to its smallest level since the spring of 1993.

The Commerce Department said today that the deficit in goods and services dropped a sharp 13.5 percent from a revised October figure of $8.16 billion. It was the smallest imbalance since a $6.5 billion deficit in March 1994.

The November improvement reflected a big jump in sales of aircraft and computer parts as exports of capital goods climbed to a record level of $20.8 billion. Sales of military goods, including Patriot missiles to Saudi Arabia and helicopters to Greece, also took a big jump.

The improvement in the American trade performance was coming none too soon for the Clinton administration, which has been facing a barrage of attacks about America's international performance on the campaign trail.

Republican opponents, most notably presidential candidate Patrick Buchanan, have made America's soaring trade deficits and the lost jobs they represent a key litany in their complaints about the Clinton presidency.

Even with the November improvement, the deficit for the year is headed for an all-time record with the imbalance in merchandise alone expected to come in around $162 billion, surpassing the old mark of $152.1 billion set in 1987.

Analysts cautioned against reading too much into the trade improvement, saying it reflected in large part the fact that a sluggish U.S. economy was cutting into demand for imports as well as domestically produced goods.

"This is not the same as getting a big surge in exports. It is just that foreign producers are sharing some of our pain," said Robert Dederick, chief economic consultant at Northern Trust Co. in Chicago.

The Clinton administration insisted that its aggressive efforts to tear down foreign barriers are beginning to show results. Officials pointed to a string of improvements this year with Japan.

For November, the deficit with Japan dropped to $4.13 billion, the lowest level since May 1993.

U.S. Trade Representative Mickey Kantor said the declining deficit reflected the success of the administration's trade strategy, especially its efforts over the past three years to boost American exports by targeting key Japanese trade barriers.

Bush says he can live with welfare proposals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas would fare far better under Medicaid and welfare compromises hammered out by the nation's governors Tuesday than under an existing system that hinders states from trying innovative reforms, Gov. George W. Bush said.

The National Governors Association unanimously recommended changes in welfare and Medicaid, the federal-state health program for the poor.

Governors and lawmakers alike expressed hope that the recommendations could help break the balanced-budget logjam between the White House and Congress. Medicaid and welfare are two of the major stumbling blocks to a deal.

"Hopefully this opinion will create some sense of momentum or give the president and negotiators a cover to say, 'Wow, this is a good idea, can't we all embrace what the governors think on that?'" Bush told reporters after a brief speech to the Texas Breakfast Club on Capitol Hill.

Appearing before the governors shortly after their Medicaid vote, President Clinton said: "This is a huge step in the right direction."

Clinton last year vetoed budget legislation that included a Republican Medicaid plan. Last December, he vetoed a Republican bill to reform welfare, saying it provided too little funding for child care.

The governors' reform blueprint doesn't free states from having to guarantee medical coverage to the poor. Congressional Republicans have been seeking to end the entitlement aspect of the program, worried that Medicaid's budget would balloon out of control without pruning.

Instead, they propose capped spending for states in the form of block grants. In exchange, states would be given significant freedom to design their own programs, including the ability to decide who is eligible for coverage.

Under the governors' plan, coverage would remain guaranteed at certain levels for the nation's neediest. But Bush and fellow Republican governors said they could swallow Medicaid as an entitlement — a word banned from the governors' lexicon and replaced with the word "guarantee" — because they would gain new leeway.

"We have always intended to take care of our impoverished pregnant women and ... our impoverished children," the governor said later at the NGA meeting. "So the idea of the federal government saying, 'You must do that,' is something that I believe we can live with."

Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, who was in the thick of the Medicaid funding fight last year, said the governors' Medicaid proposal is similar to one advanced by a bipartisan group of senators.

Gramm

Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., had originally vowed a filibuster because the bill would end the current farm payment system and the underlying permanent farm law that guarantees there will always be a program.

But Tuesday night, he won an agreement to keep permanent law and have a debate on a proposed Democratic alternative, or a one-year extension of current programs.

Daschle succeeded last week in blocking the bill, but the 59-34 vote Tuesday was much closer, with 11 Democrats on board.

They had been drawn to the measure by the Leahy amendments, which also included help for New England dairy farmers. Also, GOP opponents of the sugar program will get the chance to vote on amendments to kill it.

Appearing at a convention of Iowa growers Tuesday, Gramm said — in apparent criticism of Dole — that he didn't want to "cut a political deal to end up with a farm bill that won't work."

During last month's Iowa debate, Gramm accused Dole of cutting a secret budget deal with President Clinton. Dole retorted with a swift jab at Gramm's missed votes. "Next time you're in town, look me up," he responded.

Dole, who controls the Senate schedule, missed only two votes last year. Gramm missed 11 percent of the 611 roll call votes cast last year, according to Congressional Quarterly.

At the Iowa convention, farmers were surprised to hear that Gramm was headed to Louisiana instead of Washington after his morning speech.

SPS shareholders approve merger

AMARILLO — Shareholders of Southwestern Public Service Company have approved the proposed merger of the utility with Public Service Company of Colorado to create a holding company called New Century Energies, Inc.

Public Service Company of Colorado announced that its shareholders also approved the merger.

More than 74 percent of the outstanding shares of SPS common stock were voted for the merger at the company's annual meeting in Amarillo. More than 72 percent of the combined outstanding shares of PSCO's common and preferred stock were devoted for the merger at a special shareholders meeting in Denver, Colo.

At each company, an affirmative vote of two-thirds of the outstanding shares was required for approval.

"Our shareholders understand the changes under way within our industry," said SPS Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Bill D. Helton. "The vote signals their desire to see that our two firms join to create a strong and innovative company that can succeed in the more competitive utility industry that is quickly developing."

"There are significant benefits in this merger for our customers, as well," Helton said. "Customers will share in the efficiencies the merger will create, through continued quality service and future electric rates that will be lower than through continued quality service and future electric rates that will be lower than they would be otherwise. We are now focused on the state and federal regulatory approvals necessary as we work toward our targeted completion date of fall 1996."

New Century Energies will become the parent company of SPS and PSCO, which will maintain their separate identities and continue to serve customers in their respective service areas. New Century Energies will be headquartered in Denver, although significant operations of the holding company will be in Amarillo. Amarillo and Denver will remain the headquarters of SPS and PSCO, respectively.

Also at the SPS annual meeting, shareholders re-elected all four directors of the 12-member board who were standing for reelection this year: Chairman Bill D. Helton; Danny H. Conklin, petroleum geologist and partner in Philcon Development Co. of Amarillo; R.R. Hemminghaus, chairman, chief executive officer and president of Diamond Shamrock, Inc., of San Antonio; and Don Maddox, an attorney and director of the Maddox Law Firm, P.C., of Hobbs, N.M.

SPS shareholders approved an amendment to the Restated Articles of Incorporation of SPS to provide for a new class of 10 million shares of preferred stock, $1 par value, which may be issued in series with such terms and conditions as may be set by SPS's board. SPS currently has no outstanding preferred stock.

Southwestern Public Service Company provides electric service to a population of about one million people in a 52,000-square-mile area covering eastern and southeastern New Mexico, the South Plains and Panhandle of Texas, the Oklahoma Panhandle and southwestern Kansas.

Through its Utility Engineering Corporation and Quix Corporation subsidiaries, the company also provides engineering and construction management services to a variety of industries and invests in non-utility power generation projects. Corporate headquarters is in Amarillo, Texas.

Public Service Company of Colorado is an electric, natural gas and thermal energy utility, which serves a 32,000-square-mile area and population of approximately 2.8 million people in Colorado and the Cheyenne, Wyo., area.

Bridal show to benefit National MS Society

AMARILLO — The 13th annual bridal show to benefit the Panhandle chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society is set for 1 to 4 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 11, at the Grand Plaza of the Amarillo Civic Center.

"This is the perfect opportunity for couples to get ideas for their weddings as well as taking note of the services our local merchants offer," said Lucia Gray, executive director of the Panhandle chapter.

Bridal fashions will be modeled by the Trolley Car Boutique beginning at 2:45 p.m. Gingiss Formalwear will introduce its 1996 lines during the show, while displaying accessories for the groom.

"The National MS Society benefits from the door tickets and from a silent auction with items donated by participating merchants," says Gray.

Silent auction items include four $25 gift certificates from the Vienna Conspiracy Quartet, two $50 gift certificates from Grays Studio, a piece of Waterford crystal from Dillards, a 16-by-20 portrait and sitting from Blunck Studios, two black classic tuxedo rentals from Gingiss Formalwear, a $100 gift certificate for wedding invitations from the Wedding Chapel and a $100 gift certificate from Barnes Jewelry.

Other items include a $100 gift certificate from Rabern Rentals, a $100 gift certificate from the Little Brown House, $100 gift certificate from McFarlins Jewelry, a $100 gift certificate from the Trolley Car, one wedding dress preservation from Dutch Girl Cleaners, a $100 gift certificate from Advantage Tour and Travel, luggage from JC Penney and a $100 gift certificate from Independence Hall.

Also included in the silent auction are two hours limousine service from Bridal Carriage Limousine, a $150 gift certificate from Bride's, a unity candle package from Wicks-n-Sticks, a Pallas Royal duvet cover from Martha Smith's Fine Linens, a groom's cake from Windmill Bakery, a bride's book and bride bunny from Wedding Memories and a 16-by-20 portrait from Hampton House Photography.

The show is sponsored by Gingiss Formalwear, Amarillo Globe News and KFDD News Channel 10.

The National MS Society is dedicated to advancing the cure, prevention and treatment of multiple sclerosis and to improving the lives of those affected by the disease. The Panhandle chapter covers 31 counties of the Texas and Oklahoma panhandles and New Mexico, providing services for about 500 families.

Flood waters surge around Oregon communities

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Floodwaters forced nearly 150 people from their homes, swamped roads and bridges and continued to rise today as heavy rain soaked northwestern Oregon.

People piled sandbags outside their homes and businesses and about a dozen school districts canceled classes in western suburbs of Portland, the mid-Willamette Valley and Tillamook area.

Nearly 5 inches of rain fell in the past 24 hours in Eugene. On Tuesday, a record 3.26 inches of rain fell in Corvallis, 2.89 inches in Eugene and 2.16 inches in Portland, the wettest February day on record.

Jan Regnier said many of the areas near her house along Rock Creek in the western suburbs of Portland were flooding this morning, including the Rock Creek Country Club.

"A guy was out there wading and it was up to mid-chest. He was going after a car," Regnier said. "That was pretty incredible to see a guy wading along in the middle of the street."

More storms were expected to bring up to an additional 6 inches of rain by early Thursday, melting recent heavy snow in the mountains and swelling the Willamette River and its tributaries.

NASA: Authority shifts to Houston

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — New authority over NASA's space shuttle and space station operations means a new, national perspective for the Johnson Space Center, its director says.

"Really, in taking on this responsibility, we have to take on more of a national perspective, a perspective that is more programmatic and what's good for NASA and the country," George Abbey said Tuesday about the quiet shift of authority from Washington to Houston.

An internal memo from NASA headquarters late last week designated Johnson, which has shepherded all manned spaceflight operations since the 1960s, as the "lead" NASA center for the shuttle and planned station.

Appointed Jan. 23 as center director, Abbey will oversee both programs. That authority previously was held by the Office of Space Flight under the jurisdiction of a NASA associate administrator in Washington.

The Office of Space Flight will now focus on policy issues, Abbey said.

Shuttle program manager Tommy Holloway and station program manager Randy Brinkley, both of whom work at Johnson, will remain in their posts and report to Abbey. Both previously answered to Washington.

The shift by NASA Administrator Daniel Goldin is an attempt to give agency field centers a bigger say in how space operations are conducted.

Abbey added that the change is a move back toward the early days of NASA, when field centers in Florida and Houston oversaw program operations and agency headquarters focused on formulating policy.

"What Mr. Goldin is trying to do is go back to that mode of operation and really put the responsibility for the program implementation out to where the work is being done," Abbey said.

"This is really a new change for NASA, at least in the space shuttle program."

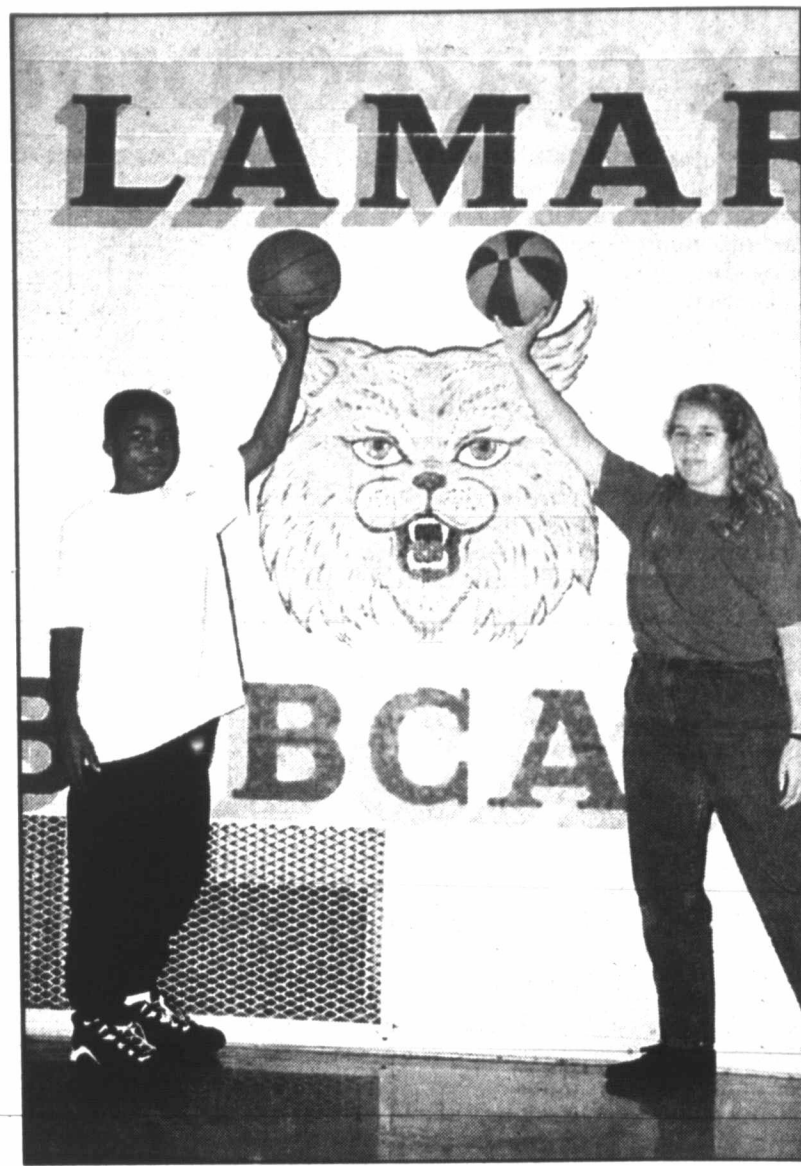

Johnson has held the lead-center designation for the shuttle and station programs intermittently since the 1970s, but administrative authority was shifted to Washington after the 1986 explosion of the shuttle Challenger. Management mistakes and poor communication later were blamed as factors in the disaster, which killed Challenger's seven crew members.

Laurie Boeder, a NASA spokeswoman in Goldin's office, said the current management approach is different to that used before the Challenger disaster.

While Johnson previously had been called a "lead" center, authority always stemmed from Washington and responsibilities for various shuttle components were spread around several centers, Ms. Boeder said.

"There were just too many layers of communication," she said, adding that the current line of authority for shuttle operations goes from Holloway to Abbey and directly to Goldin.

Super Shooter Shoot-Out

Earvin Parker and Nicole Sikes prepare for the Lamar Super Shooter Shoot-Out Saturday at Lamar Elementary School. Boys and girls in grades two through five will compete in four divisions, second and third grades and fourth and fifth grades for boys and girls. Trophies for the two first-place girls will be a basketball signed by members of the Lady Harvesters. The two first-place boys will get a basketball signed by members of the Harvesters basketball team. The cost of each entry is $3. Entries will be on a first come, first serve basis. Special arrangements will be made for students involved in Optimist basketball who have a scheduling conflict.

Harvester Band students gain solo/ensemble ratings

Pampa High School band students competed Saturday in U.I.L. District solo/ensemble contest in Canyon. Students were evaluated individually and in group performance by judges from throughout the state.

Students who scored first divisions on class 1 solos included Marsha Bailey, Amber Crosswhite, Heather Fernuik, Kerrey Ford, Shonie Garland, Shana Grusendorf, Heather Herndon, Jacy Padgett and Michael Plunk.

Students who scored first divisions on class 2 solos included Jordan Holmes, Tiffany Presson and Jennifer Thornhill.

Ensembles scoring first divisions on class 1 ensembles included:

Flute quartet — Marsha Bailey, Jacy Padgett, Tiffany Presson and Jennifer Thornhill.

Clarinet choir — Matt Bailey, Breiann Betzold, Wayne Bryan, Britta Christensen, Patty Dinges, Regina Hopson, Amanda Jacobs, Brittany Jones, Tony Miller, David Radcliff, Amanda Sims, Jeremy Whitely and Dottie Youngblood.

Percussion ensemble — Erik Estrada, Michelle Gandy, Rae Lynne Gatlin, Jesse Glaesman, Shanna Jameson, Amanda Kludt and Kim McDonald.

Trumpet trio — Kevin

Henderson, Deepak Kamnani, and Jonathan Smith.

Saxophone quartet — Jordan Holmes, Johnny Murrell, Robert Underwood and Will Wright.

Woodwind trio — Talyia Lane, Kim McDonald and Stephanie Williams.

Students who scored second divisions on class 1 solos included James Carter, Andy Fernuik, Patty Dinges, Michelle Gandy, Shanna Jameson, Deepak Kamnani and Jeremiah Nolte.

Students who scored second divisions on class 2 solos included Vera King and Will Wright.

Ensembles who scored second divisions on class 1 ensembles included:

Clarinet trio — Veronica Arreola, Wayne Bryan and Annette Botello.

Brass quartet — James Carter, Shonie Garland, Eric Grusendorf and Brett Lehman.

Trombone trio — Eric Grusendorf, Justin Hampton and Brett Lehman.

French horn quartet — Nathan Jentzen, Jack Leland, Ashleigh McWilliams and Micah Nolte.

Randi DeLeon scored a third division on a class 2 solo. An ensemble consisting of Emily Henson, Lorrie Phillips and Vera King scored a fourth division on a class 1 ensemble.

As yet, no high-profile princess for Japan

TOKYO (AP) — When diplomat Masako Owada accepted Crown Prince Naruhito's proposal three years ago, many royal-watchers in Japan thought they saw a new era dawning.

Here was a worldly career woman, educated at Harvard and Oxford, bringing modern ways to a royal family steeped in ancient ritual. Having risen through the ranks at the male-dominated Foreign Ministry, she was going to teach the palace traditionalists a thing or two — or so the idea went.

Now it may be time for a royal reality check. The woman billed as the princess for the '90s has taken on a quiet role more characteristic of the 1950s.

Since she married the crown prince on June 9, 1993, Princess Masako has appeared in public by herself just once. She has made one brief public speech and held one news conference.

She frequently attends ceremonial events — a bridge opening, a sports competition, a memorial for earthquake survivors — but always walks a demure step behind her husband. When the occasion calls for a speech, he does the talking.

The Imperial Household

Agency refused a request for an interview with Masako's chief aide. An agency spokesman, Katsuyoshi Nakamura, said the royal couple generally appear together because almost no one has invited the princess by herself.

Car bomb kills five, wounds 22 in Algeria

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — A car bomb exploded near a hospital and a school, killing five people and injuring 22 others.

No one claimed responsibility for the attack in Ain Bessem, 45 miles east of Algiers, but suspicion fell on Islamic insurgents who have been fighting for four years to topple the government.

The explosion occurred Monday evening but was not reported by Algerian media until today; there was no explanation for the delay. The blast was heard within a radius of 10 miles and practically leveled the Ain Bessem hospital, officials said.

A school and other nearby buildings also were damaged by the bomb, which was concealed in a Renault Express minivan, the sources said.

Prosecutor uncertain about pursuing death penalty in 18-month-old's death

EL PASO (AP) — A district attorney says it is too early to decide whether he will seek the death penalty for a woman charged with capital murder in the death of her 18-month-old daughter.

El Paso County District Attorney Jaime Esparza has indicated, however, he has no intention of pursuing any lesser charge in the case of Heidi Consaul.

Ms. Consaul, 20, was arrested on the murder charge Jan. 26, two days after leading authorities to where she had dumped the body of her daughter, Carina. She is now being held in the county jail under a $250,000 bond.

Ms. Consaul had originally reported that the girl had disappeared Jan. 21 from their apartment in Horizon City, a small town just outside El Paso.

Since recanting her story about the alleged disappearance, she has told authorities that the child fell out of a portable crib and suffocated when she wrapped herself in a plastic grocery bag.

A preliminary autopsy report seemed to contradict her by indicating that Carina had apparently died of a swollen brain caused by blows to the head.

But Esparza said that officials now believe swelling found in the 18-month-old's brain during the autopsy was caused by suffocation.

"Suffocation causes the brain to swell," he said. "I don't know anything about the blows to the head."

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Opinion

UNappreciative American soldier

From a narrow military perspective, the military court that convicted and discharged Spc. Michael New from the U.S. Army for refusing to wear United Nations insignia almost had to come to that decision; it's a matter of discipline in the ranks. But Mr. New has raised important issues that deserve consideration, either in the federal courts or in the U.S. Congress.

Mr. New's refusal to wear the U.N. insignia on his uniform when his unit was assigned as part of a "preventive deployment" to Macedonia, south of Serbia, was not based on a refusal to perform the mission. He is a medic with a solid record, several commendations and no hint of discipline problems before this one, which he considers a matter of principle.

Mr. New and his lawyers maintain that when he was sworn into the army, he vowed to protect and defend the Constitution of the United States of America, not the United Nations or its charter. He maintains that it is unconstitutional to require him to wear the insignia of any power other than the United States.

The court-martial panel that found him guilty of disobeying orders might have had some sympathy with his position. The guilty verdict could have brought as much as six months in prison on top of a dishonorable discharge and loss of pay. But the panel imposed only a bad-conduct discharge.

From the military perspective, a guilty verdict makes sense. A military organization expects and requires a higher degree of discipline and obedience than most other organizations. At present, people are not conscripted into military service in the country. They enlist voluntarily, with their eyes reasonably open. Although most recruits don't know everything that's going to happen to them in the Army, they should understand that they will be expected to do a number of things they don't like or that make them uncomfortable.

On the other hand, members of the military are required to obey not all conceivable orders, but all lawful orders. A superior officer can't order soldiers to commit atrocities outlawed by U.S. or international law. A military judge ruled that the order to put on a U.N. armband was lawful, but the question cries out for further exploration, especially as we seem to be moving into an era in which an increasing number of overseas military activities will be undertaken under the auspices of various international or multi-national organizations.

Military people are often assigned to liaison work with military units from other countries, but they wear the uniform of their own country when they do so. Technically, the U.S. military units in Korea were a United Nations force, but they were not required to wear a U.N. uniform. The determination to have American forces wear U.N. insignia is relatively recent, and it should be controversial.

At a meeting with high-school students in Texas, Michael New's father recently contended that if his son "wore a U.N. patch on his right shoulder ... it would mean that the U.S. Army is a unit in the U.N. army." One student, asked what to call a country that is forced to serve another, promptly answered: "A satellite state."

We haven't had a national discussion about the extent to which - or whether - we want members of the American armed services to be placed at the beck and call of international organizations - not countries but assemblages of diplomats - whose legal status and sovereignty are somewhat fuzzy.

A bill to make it illegal to order an armed-services member to wear U.N. insignia has attracted 100 co-sponsors in Congress, including Senate Majority leader Bob Dole. And a federal court perhaps the U.S. Supreme Court might well determine that ordering somebody who has sworn to protect the U.S. Constitution to serve the interests of some other power is beyond the scope of the president's authority as commander-in-chief.

Michael New's case offers the opportunity to discuss these and other issues fully and openly. The rest of the country should be grateful that he was principled and stubborn enough to raise them and put himself on the line.

Viewpoints

Sex crazed prime-time episodes

The Jan. 18 episode of NBC's megabit sitcom Friends wasn't about Rachel and Ross' on-again, off-again relationship. Rather, it centered on a different kind of romance - specifically, the wedding of recurring characters Carole and Susan. Yes, the episode featured a lesbian marriage ceremony, which was all the more poignant inasmuch as Friends aired, as usual, at 8 p.m. - what once was the family hour.

Outright liberal advocacy on prime-time television is way down, as is violence. Sleazy daytime talk shows are on the run. It's fair to say that these trends have developed in part because the public held executives' and producers' feet to the fire. The market challenged them to improve, and they did.

Or did they? Entertainment television's treatment of sex, hetero and homo, marital, premarital, and extramarital, has become rampant in the past few years. The problem is exacerbated all the more by the shift this season of such sex-obsessed shows as Friends, Cybill and Melrose Place into the 8 p.m. to 9 p.m. slot, when impressionable youngsters are likelier to be tuned in.

No series exemplifies this loosening of standards better than Friends. Admittedly, it's cleverly written and well-acted. But if you deleted the sexual humor from the average episode, it would be 10 minutes long, as each Friend (they're all single) has been sexually active at one time or another, constantly in search of the next sexual rush. But, with the Carole and Susan characters showing up occasionally, it was only a matter of time before heterosexual promiscuity would take a back seat, if only for a week, to the promotion of homosexual "rights."

As if the wedding weren't enough of a hook, the ceremony's minister (performing "Holy Matrimony") was played by lesbian activist/Newt's half-sister Candace Gingrich, a fact that was heavily promoted. Her characters first line was, "Nothing makes God happier than when two people - any two people - come together in love." I don't know which denomination this minister was supposed to represent, but it must be one that disregards what the Bible says about homosexual acts. Evidently, her God isn't hung up on morality.

There were no overt gay-rights statements in the episode. A handful of characters manifested some uneasiness with the wedding, but they either became more tolerant or were rebuked in no uncertain terms. In general, the state of affairs was dealt with matter-of-factly - which apparently was the point.

That this was no big deal was the message of a lengthy CNN report the day before the episode aired. The story featured sound bites from Candace Gingrich and from Jane Sibbett, the actress who plays Carole; those who believe that a homosexual wedding on prime time may be a bad, perhaps even a damaging, idea were talked about, but none was invited on camera to articulate such views.

Interviewed on the CNN report, Candace Gingrich clearly relished the attention. She saluted the entertainment media for reflecting, finally, what she maintains the public has already accepted: The homosexual lifestyle is mainstream in today's society.

She may be right. In years past, attempts to promote far less blatant homosexual themes were met with a furious public denunciation and squashed. But this full-fledged lesbian wedding brought no complaints. The pro-family organizations were absent. The pundits' pens were empty. The talk-show community was silent.

Those offended by the message were either resigned to it or no longer care.

On the other hand, the Friends episode could be the death knell of homosexual promotion on television. This kind of material exists only because of its cause celebre nature; without a controversy, there's no point. When it isn't shocking anymore, those agitating for its inclusion lose their reasons for touting it like so many liberal causes before it - abortion, the environment, homelessness - it will disappear.

But, if gay rights is now in the mainstream, regardless of how long it stays there, we need to remind ourselves of what that means. Many of those taking part in the values debate are overlooking the most harmful poison in our culture. It's not trashy daytime talk or even desensitizing media violence. It's moral relativism in its many manifestations. In the case of Friends, it's the assertion of the moral equivalence of heterosexuality and homosexuality.

Asked recently to name an acceptable program for his pre-adolescence children to watch, NBC entertainment boss Warren Littlefield cited Friends. I wonder if he let them watch on Jan. 18. I hope not. We're talking here about the pollution of minds and souls - those of Littlefield's children, of my children and of your children.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today in History
Today is Wednesday, Feb. 7, the 38th day of 1996. There are 328 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
In 1964, the Beatles began their first American tour as they arrived at New York's John F. Kennedy International Airport, where they were greeted by thousands of screaming fans.

On this date:
In 1812, author Charles Dickens was born in Portsmouth, England.
In 1904, a fire began in Baltimore that raged for about 30 hours and destroyed more than 1,500 buildings.
In 1931, aviator Amelia Earhart married publisher George P. Putnam in Noank, Conn.

In 1936, President Roosevelt authorized a flag for the office of the vice president.

In 1943, the government announced that shoe rationing would go into effect in two days, limiting consumers to buying three pairs per person for the remainder of the year.

Does the flat tax have a real chance?

Perhaps the best measure of how radically the 1994 elections have already changed this country are the things that are now up for serious discussion.

Prior to November 1994 there had only been one balanced budget since 1960 and the conventional wisdom was that another was out of the question. Politicians might pretend to want one, or even to deliver one, but in the long run it would turn out to be just another chimera.

Similarly, nobody believed that entitlements such as Medicare could be touched without instantly destroying the politician or party that touched them. Tim Russert on "Meet the Press" made a career out of daring politicians to propose doing so, and got very few takers.

As for a flat income tax, the concept of "progressivity" (i.e., taxing the rich disproportionately higher than anybody else) was seemingly enshrined among the nation's highest values.

What a difference a year has made! Not only have the Republicans put forth a plan that would balance the budget with real numbers in seven years, but President Clinton has matched it (even if 90 percent of his spending reductions would take place in the last two of the seven years, after the end of his second term). What's more, both parties propose reductions in the rate of spending on Medicare, with the Democrats calling for reductions only slightly smaller than the Republicans.

William Rusher

Most astonishing of all, proposals for a flat tax are being heard on all sides, and clearly have widespread public support. If the Republicans win both the presidency and the Congress this fall, it seems likely that some form of flat tax will become the law of the land.

Superficially the political problem with a flat tax is that it would appear to benefit the rich more than the middle class. A person who earns a million dollars this year will theoretically pay at least $400,000 of it to the IRS, while someone earning $100,000 will pay, not $40,000, but something much closer to $30,000. Under a flat tax, both would pay at the same rate: 17 percent, say, or $170,000 and $17,000 respectively. The first individual would save $230,000, the second not $23,000 but only $13,000. Because he was taxed at a lower rate to begin with, his saving is less when the rate is flattened.

The truth, of course, is that big earners take refuge in loopholes that sharply reduce their taxes - loopholes that the flat tax supporters vow to close. Two of the biggest loopholes, however, are the current deductions for home mortgage interest and charitable contributions - deductions dear to the hearts of many millions of middle-class voters. That is why some variants of the flat tax would continue these deductions. That, however, requires an increase in the flat tax rate, from the often discussed 17 percent to something markedly higher, to produce the necessary revenue.

There are all sorts of other variants of the flat tax idea, but almost all of them propose elimination of any tax on incomes below a certain level. In Steve Forbes' version, a family of four earning up to $36,000 a year would pay no tax at all. (The two adults would have personal exemptions of $13,000 each, and there would be another $5,000 exemption for each child.)

As London's Economist magazine notes, this would "focus efforts to redistribute income precisely where they belong: on the poor. A flat tax that allowed an exemption for a big slice of wage income and levied a single tax rate on everything else would force all of society to pay for whatever level of public charity it deems appropriate. Envy of the rich could no longer masquerade as love of the poor."

We are living in intellectually stimulating times.

Chic prejudice: Schools that get shafted

Each year in homes across America anxious parents and high school students undergo the familiar ritual of trying to decide which college or university to attend. In recent years, several widely respected national magazines have helped spawn a small cottage industry that rates the best of the nation's institutions of higher learning.

One of the most widely read of these surveys is the one compiled by U.S. News & World Report. Another is offered by Money Magazine. While U.S. News offers what I think is a rather objective analysis, the same cannot be said for Money Magazine's recently published ninth annual college survey.

I suppose I shouldn't be surprised to find explicit anti-religious bias in the Money survey. After all, the magazine is owned by Time Warner Inc., whose corporate leaders had a difficult time understanding why they shouldn't publish murderous song lyrics by hoodlum "artists." And the U.S. media in general have been under fire for years for religious bias they apparently consider permissible, even chic.

But I was outraged when I heard Money's response to a complaint from Thomas J. Savage, president of Jesuit-run Rockhurst College in Kansas City, Mo. Savage's school was excluded from the 1996 Money survey, after having been included in 1995. As Jillian Kasky, Money's associate editor for statistics, wrote back to Savage: "We exclude colleges whose primary purpose is to turn out members of the clergy, colleges that require an affirmation of faith from students, colleges where the curriculum or extracurricular activities significantly reflect the ideology of a specific faith, and colleges where religious study of any nature is a significant academic requirement."

On its face, this is a perplexing standard. Why should a college - any college - that seeks to produce people of high moral character and fortified personal religious beliefs be left out of such an important survey? How is it that other Catholic schools such as Georgetown University - also run by the Jesuits - and the University of Notre Dame made the survey while Rockhurst and other lesser-known schools did not?

This begins to look like prejudice of the worst kind: the kind that falsely bows and scrapes before the high and mighty while sticking it to the little guy.

Such prejudice is also ignorant, both of the place of religion in education and of its history in the United States. After all, all education used to be religious education - run by clergy, traditionally the most highly educated class in any Western society. Many of America's best-known colleges, Harvard University among them, began with the sole purpose of educating men for the clergy. None of this was seen as inconsistent with the highest intellectual standards. Why? Because it wasn't.

A fact unknown in the chic salons of Time Warner and the high and mighty media newsrooms is that today many scientists see a lot more room for belief in a Creator - as a result of 20th-century discoveries in quantum physics, astrophysics, molecular biology and many other disciplines - than did their 19th-century counterparts. As Henry Margenau, retired Yale professor of physics and natural philosophy and a colleague of Albert Einstein, told a friend of mine a few years ago, "High school science teachers, Carl Sagan, people like that - they still carry around the old bias against religion. But to the real scientists - the ones making the discoveries - religion no longer poses a problem for them."

There are still a few parents and students in this country who choose a college for reasons other than its proximity to pubs, beaches, malls or nightclubs. With the frightening decline in standards, values and civility ripping at America's moral and social fabric, colleges that offer students moral as well as practical instruction still rank high on many families' lists.

Too bad they don't show up on Money Magazine's list.

Interior Secretary: GOP targets national seashore
CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — The Republicans' budgetary review list includes Padre Island National Seashore, with the U.S. interior secretary warning that the barrier island park might not survive such scrutiny if such GOP measures pass.

But Republicans deny that a hit list exists for National Park Service units that do not carry park designation. They do, however, acknowledge seeking to establish a commission that would review national parks.

Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt, in Corpus Christi for a fishing trip, was scheduled to hold a news conference at the Boat Hole Fishing Marina at 9:15 a.m. today.

Babbitt told the Corpus Christi Caller-Times he would examine what he called Republican proposals "gutting the Clean Water Act and selling off units of the national park system."

Fugitive caught at Baton Rouge strip club indicted

TYLER (AP) — A man accused of kidnapping two Texarkana women and robbing a Tyler credit union after escaping from a Northeast Texas prison farm last month has been indicted on federal robbery and firearms charges.

A federal grand jury has indicted Clifton Brumley, 35, on single counts of bank robbery and firearms possession during a violent crime. If convicted on both counts, he could be sentenced to up to 30 years in prison and fined $500,000.

Brumley was arrested Jan. 24 in a Baton Rouge, La., strip club, ending a four-day odyssey. He remains in federal custody pending trial, Daryl Fields, spokesman for the U.S. Attorney's Office in Tyler, said Tuesday.

No court dates have been set.

Doctor asked to provide proof for keeping clinic open

HOUSTON (AP) — An embattled cancer doctor has a final chance to show why his clinic should remain open in light of a 75-count indictment accusing him of fraud.

On Tuesday, U.S. District Judge Simeon Lake gave lawyers for Dr. Stanislaw Burzynski until 4 p.m. CST today to produce additional evidence to support his case for keeping the clinic open to all of his patients until trial.

No trial date has been scheduled.

"He's giving us an opportunity to provide more information," said Richard Jaffe, Burzynski's attorney, who declined to say what additional evidence he plans to file.

After three unsuccessful attempts to indict the doctor, a federal grand jury last November returned 75 counts of fraud and illegal sale of the "antineoplastic" treatment.

Kids Are Cute winner

Madison Paige Brass, 9-month-old daughter of Sid and Valerie Brass of Pampa, recently won first place in the 6-9 months old category of the Kids Are Cute contest to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association. The contest was held Jan. 27 at the center court of Westgate Mall. Grandparents are Dan and Paula Molone and Steve and Patti Brass. Her great-grandmother is Gladys Stewart. Judging was based on appearance, personality and overall stage presence. As first place winner, the child received a trophy, a $25 gift certificate from JC Penney's and a complimentary package from Family Photo.

White House accused of withholding subpoenaed travel office documents

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is withholding 129 documents related to its travel office, including some concerning a Hollywood producer and friend of President Clinton and his wife, Hillary, a senior House Republican says.

Rep. William Clinger, R-Pa., chairman of the House Government Reform and Oversight Committee, asked the chief presidential lawyer Tuesday to turn over the documents.

"Many, if not most of these items, do not appear to have been provided to the committee even though they are clearly responsive to document requests from as early as June 14, 1995," Clinger wrote White House Counsel Jack Quinn. "We would appreciate production of these documents immediately."

White House spokesman Mark Fabiani had no immediate comment on Clinger's request.

The Clinton administration fired the travel office's seven longtime employees in May 1993, saying serious financial mismanagement warranted the action.

The House committee issued a subpoena last month for the White House documents. The panel has been investigating what role producer Harry Thomason may have played in the decision to fire the travel office employees and place a distant cousin of the president in charge of the operation.

A consulting firm in which Thomason was a partner had expressed interest in the travel office business, and Thomason was the first to allege mismanagement, according to evidence produced previously by the committee.

A list of documents that the panel said it was seeking, released Tuesday, included a "draft of preliminary thoughts on Travel Dept. Re: HT" written by former associate White House counsel Neil Eggleston and dated July 13, 1993. HT stands for Harry Thomason, according to congressional investigators.

The Justice Department subpoenaed the documents in September 1994 as part of its criminal investigation of the deposed travel office director, Billy Dale. A federal jury acquitted Dale of embezzlement charges late last year.

Ronald Reagan birthday celebration melancholy affair, Gipper not there WEST HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — With a 12-foot portrait of Ronald Reagan smiling over his 85th birthday party, his wife choked back tears and raised her glass to an audience packed with luminaries.

"I'd like to propose a toast to all of you for what you've done for Ronnie and me," Nancy Reagan said Tuesday night. "I'd like to propose a toast to my fella, my love."

The toast was a poignant ending to a party marked more by melancholy than merriment. The nation's 40th president, who has Alzheimer's disease, spent the evening at home with Secret Service agents.

"It's his choice," explained daughter Maureen Reagan. "He doesn't choose to be in large crowds."

Among the 460 guests at Chasens restaurant — where Reagan proposed to his wife — were House Speaker Newt Gingrich, Gov. Pete Wilson, retired

Gen. Colin Powell and former President Ford, who each stood to toast the man once known as "The Great Communicator."

But sadness had already set in by the time Johnny Mathis, with Merv Griffin at the piano, began singing "Misty" and the Reagan favorite "As Time Goes By."

"It's a very bittersweet evening for her," Reagan spokeswoman Joanne Drake said of Mrs. Reagan, who hours earlier enjoyed a private dinner with her husband.

Earlier in the day, Reagan played golf with Bob Hope, took calls from well-wishers and received birthday greetings by fax from world leaders including Boris Yeltsin and Mikhail Gorbachev.

Reagan disclosed 15 months ago that he has Alzheimer's, an irreversible neurological disorder that destroys the brain's memory cells.

"This is something that God has handed him and he is taking it, and accepting it and giving in to that experience," daughter Patti Davis said. "I think that's all that any of us can hope for in ourselves."

Along the mahogany-paneled walls of the restaurant, the Reagan faithful paused to look at photographs of the former president: Reagan with Gorbachev, Reagan with Thatcher, Reagan on horseback, Ronnie with Nancy.

And he was remembered for his accomplishments and legacy.

"Ronald Reagan not only restored our pride in America, he gave hope to the whole world," Wilson said during a toast. "Let's vow to keep faith with Ronald Reagan's vision of America."

In addition to Washington dealmakers, there were Hollywood's movers and shakers: Lew Wasserman, Rupert Murdoch and Ray Stark. Celebrities included Bo Derek, Bob Hope, Red Skelton, Tim Conway, Bob Newhart, Charlton Heston and Jackie Collins.

City can't fire officer even though he's serving prison term

FORT WORTH (AP) — Brian Edward Franklin is serving a life sentence for raping a 13-year-old girl, but is still technically a Fort Worth police officer because of civil service rules.

Franklin is resisting efforts by city officials to remove him from the force.

Police Chief Thomas Windham says it's outrageous that the civil service system prevents him from firing Franklin, an officer with a long record of misconduct who isn't eligible for parole for 30 years. "I think it is absolutely ludicrous," Windham told The Fort Worth Star-Telegram. "He is occupying a position and I can't hire anyone to fill it."

Franklin, an 11-year department veteran, was convicted of aggravated sexual assault last year after a seventh-grade girl testified that he attacked her in front of her father's home in March 1994.

At the time he was arrested in the rape case, Franklin was on indefinite suspension without pay after being accused of pointing a .357-caliber pistol at his wife's head. After he was convicted, a second indefinite suspension was imposed in March 1995.

Republicans assail Clinton's budget as failing to address tough issues

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton's $1.64 trillion budget for 1997 may have been short on the normal nitty-gritty details, but that didn't stop Republicans from launching a full scale fusillade against it.

GOP leaders dismissed the document as "warmed-over status quo" that failed completely to address the tough issues needed to make a credible attempt to achieve a balanced budget in seven years.

While Clinton expressed hope in releasing his new budget Monday that it could serve as the starting point for a renewed effort to reach a budget compromise, the sharpness of the GOP attacks made that unlikely.

Indeed, it was unclear what the next act in the seemingly endless budget drama would be. Normally, the release of a president's new budget is the occasion for days of hearings by House and Senate committees to hear administration witnesses defend the spending plan.

But this year, those hearings have yet to be scheduled, reflecting the fact that while Clinton met the legal requirement to produce a new budget by the first Monday in February, the scant 20-page outline offers few details.

The 2,000 pages of specifics that make up the normal budget will not be ready until the week of March 18, delayed by the stalemate over the 1996 budget.

That battle, which already has triggered two partial government shutdowns, appeared no closer to being settled even though Clinton expressed the hope Monday that "we can set aside partisanship and divisions ... and provide a balanced budget plan to the American people in the near future."

Republicans, however, were not voicing the same optimism about the possibility of a deal. They blasted Clinton's 1997 budget as an unacceptable reshuffle of the last offer he made before face-to-face budget negotiations broke down in early January.

"The president's fiscal year 1997 budget is simply warmed-over status quo," said House Budget Committee Chairman John Kasich, R-Ohio. "It avoids real entitlement reform, backloads spending cuts and has virtually no details."

Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., said the president had missed an opportunity to restart the stalled budget negotiations by failing to come forward with a new offer.

"The budget outline offered by the White House is a disappointing document that is more rhetoric than real ... a spend now, save later budget which put off politically painful budget choices until after the year 2001," Domenici said.

Late April vote in the offing for health insurance bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill that would insure workers the right to buy their existing health insurance when they change jobs or become self-employed is nearing Senate action.

"I think it will be brought up prior to May 3, but not before April 15," Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., said Tuesday.

People covered by group health plans, even those with pre-existing health problems, would not experience any gap in coverage when they change employers as long as their premiums are paid.

Also, workers who leave an employer who provided health coverage to strike out on their own could not be denied the opportunity to purchase individual coverage.

More than 40 senators from both parties signed on as co-sponsors with Kassebaum and the measure's other author, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass. Similar legislation is pending in the House.

But the health insurance industry opposes the group-to-individual coverage part of the bill and several senators joined to delay debate.

Louisiana caucus winner, Buchanan triumphs over competitor Phil Gramm

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Winning the first delegates of the 1996 presidential contest, Pat Buchanan claimed his upset victory in Louisiana's caucuses proved he was the true conservative in the GOP field.

For Texas Sen. Phil Gramm, Tuesday's defeat was an ominous setback in a state he had counted on winning as nearly all the other GOP candidates refused to participate in deference to Iowa's caucuses next Monday.

Making the rounds of network talk shows this morning, Buchanan said his triumph over Gramm in Louisiana was "a victory for the new conservatism of the heart" among voters with traditional values.

Although he appeals mostly to the conservative and religious right, Buchanan pointed to a New Orleans newspaper headline that touted him as winning "the middle class" as proof that he has an array of support.

"We're putting together a broad coalition... that I think will do very well," Buchanan said on NBC's "Today" show. "I don't know who's going to win Iowa, but I think we've got a fighting chance to do well there..." he added, saying he also expects a strong showing in New Hampshire's Feb. 20 primary. "I think we're going to win this nomination."

Gramm predicted that he and other GOP candidates can't win the nomination unless they finish at least third in Iowa's important caucuses.

"I don't think anybody is going to win the Republican nomination unless they win first, second or third in Iowa," Gramm said on CBS's "This Morning."

Gramm refused to say he would drop out of the race if he didn't finish in the top three, saying, "I think we can still win in Iowa. I think the nomination's wide open."

Buchanan won the Louisiana caucuses by getting 13 delegates to Gramm's eight. "We are at the beginning of a coalition," Buchanan told supporters at a spirited rally Tuesday night after the final vote count.

It was an embarrassing blow to Gramm who was much better organized in the state and spent most of Tuesday predicting a "clear and convincing" win. Gramm himself had called the contest a "race to determine the true conservative in the field."

Buchanan claimed the conservative mantle after the surprise victory by his "coalition of conservatives and populists."

"We have emerged as the conservative champion in the primary campaign. ... This isn't a victory for a man, this is a victory for a cause," said Buchanan, whose America-first campaign hit hard against free trade, abortion rights and multiculturalism. "We can win this battle for the soul of our country. We can take our country back."

It is questionable just how accurate a barometer of voter opinion Tuesday's contest was. About 21,500 Louisianians participated, only 5 percent of the state's registered Republican voters.

Exit polls showed Louisianians who turned out for the GOP caucuses were overwhelmingly conservative. Half of voters described themselves as part of the religious right political movement, and Buchanan beat Gramm 2 to 1 among Christian conservatives, according to the poll conducted by Voter News Service, a cooperative of The Associated Press, ABC, CBS, CNN and NBC.

Jet crashes in ocean; 189 people aboard

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — A charter airplane carrying German tourists home from the Caribbean crashed into the ocean off the north coast of the Dominican Republic, the U.S. Coast Guard said today. There were 189 people, including four children, on board.

There were no reports of survivors from Alas Airlines Flight 301.

Bodies were spotted in the water, along with empty life rafts and an oil slick. Coast Guard boats and helicopters searched the seas, but divers were afraid to enter the shark-infested waters. At least eight bodies were recovered.

"The initial report that we've got is that there's debris in the water, several life rafts that have been seen and also reports of bodies in the water. There has been no report of survivors thus far," said Lt. Stephen Leslie of the U.S. Coast Guard in Miami.

David Gragengeter, an emergency rescue official with the Coast Guard in Puerto Rico, said rain was falling in the area and seas were reported to be rough, complicating rescue efforts.

Coast Guard Lt. Benedict Lincoln in San Juan said Coast Guard pilots had spotted sharks in the area of the crash site.

"The area is shark-infested," Lincoln said. "It obviously would hamper recovery of either survivors or bodies from the water."

The Boeing 757 took off from Puerto Plata International Airport about 11 p.m. Tuesday, the Coast Guard said.

The aircraft had been in the air only five minutes when a radar operator noted that it had turned around and was headed back to land, said Luis Flores Mota, a spokesman with the Dominican Republic's civil air agency.

There was no radio contact with the plane to indicate there was a problem, Mota said.

Navy aircraft and Coast Guard cutters and helicopters from Florida, the Bahamas, the Dominican Republic and Puerto Rico headed to the crash site, 13 miles north of Puerto Plata.

Puerto Plata is a popular coastal resort 100 miles northwest of the Dominican Republic's capital, Santo Domingo. The Dominican Republic and Haiti share the island of Hispaniola, west of Puerto Rico.

German officials said the flight was a German tourist charter heading for Berlin and Frankfurt. Oeger Tours in Hamburg chartered the plane and sold tickets through travel agencies.

Vural Oeger, head of Oeger Tours, said the airline switched planes from the planned Boeing 767 to a Boeing 757 shortly before takeoff because the 767 was not ready. Alas only has those two planes, he said.

'Black Sheep' opens in top spot, 'Juror' takes second at box office

By JOHN HORN
AP Entertainment Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The comedy Black Sheep debuted as the No. 1 film over the weekend, earning $10.6 million and beating out two new dramas.

The Juror opened in second place at North American theaters with $8.4 million and White Squall debuted in fifth, earning $3.91 million.

Mr. Holland's Opus was No. 3 with $8.1 million, while Bed of Roses earned $3.94 million for fourth place.

In limited release in 714 locations, Dead Man Walking performed very well, trailing only Black Sheep for the best per-screen average among the top 20.

The top 20 movies at U.S. and Canadian theaters Friday through Sunday, followed by studio, gross, number of theater locations, receipts per location, total gross and number of weeks in release, as compiled by Exhibitor Relations on Monday:

Administration won't commit to defending Taiwan against Chinese show of force

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Clinton administration isn't saying whether an attack by China on Taiwan would provoke a U.S. military response.

In an apparent reference to reports that China plans a major military exercise in the strait that separates Taiwan from the mainland, Defense Secretary William Perry said Tuesday he was concerned but not alarmed that China was using "military maneuvering" to try to influence Taiwan's democratic presidential election March 23.

Perry said he did not see an imminent military threat from China.

Asked what the United States would do if China did threaten Taiwan, Perry said he could not be more specific than the commitment spelled out in the Taiwan Relations Act. That document, the basis of the unofficial U.S. relations with Taiwan, says belligerent actions meant to determine the future of the island would be "of grave concern" to the United States.

Perry said Chinese officials asked Joseph Nye, then the assistant secretary of defense for international security affairs, during a visit to Beijing last November how Washington would respond if Taiwan were threatened.

Perry said Nye answered, "We don't know what we would do, because it's going to depend on the circumstances, and you don't know what we would do."

"At this point at least, with the present level of concern but no imminent danger, I don't believe we will make a statement more definite than that," Perry said.

Taiwan is the seat of the Nationalist government that fled China's mainland in 1949 after losing a civil war to communist forces. Beijing regards Taiwan as a renegade province and refuses to rule out the use of force to retake it.

In a speech on the Senate floor Tuesday, Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., said U.S. air power should be used to defend Taiwan if China attacked.

"If China is permitted to go and grab Taiwan, I think it will be only a matter of time before China goes and takes Mongolia and other areas," Simon said.

"I think the best way of maintaining stability in that area of the world is to be firm. China should not think that for a moment that she can invade Taiwan without having serious problems."

Perry's remarks were in response to questions from the audience at a speech at the Washington Institute for Near East Policy. Asked his assessment of the prospect for conflict between China and Taiwan, Perry said he expects no armed confrontation.

"I am concerned about the military maneuvering the Chinese are doing to — in not so subtle ways — threaten Taiwan, to try to influence their election," Perry said.

Network given permission to record jury deliberations

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — CBS has received permission to place cameras inside a jury room, the first time a court has granted such access to a commercial TV network.

The 5-2 decision Tuesday by the Maine Supreme Judicial Court will allow the network to place up to five cameras in the courtroom and two cameras in the jury room during a civil case. The case has not yet been selected.

Jurors, plaintiffs, defendants and lawyers would have to agree before CBS could tape the case. Cameras in the jury room would be hidden to put jurors at ease.

It's the first time a commercial network has received access to a jury room, according to several judges involved. CBS asked last month for access to deliberations in a criminal case in Arizona. The Arizona Supreme Court has not yet ruled on the request.

Public television was the first to record jury deliberations. In 1986, PBS' "Frontline" taped jurors in Wisconsin deliberating the case of a defendant accused of illegal possession of a gun. The defendant was acquitted.

Highway employee finds missing diamond

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A diamond really was this girl's best friend.

Robin Esslinger's two-carat diamond and gold wedding band slipped off her finger and out her car window as she sped down a highway. A day later, the gem was back.

A highway worker found the $20,000 ring Monday while checking for potholes. The ring appeared to have been run over but only the band was damaged.

Esslinger said she was driving along Sunday, dangling her left hand from an open window, when the ring fell off. She searched in vain along Interstate 40 for four hours and later told police and the state Highway Department.

Esslinger offered the worker, Farrel McKay, a cash reward, which he refused, saying state law forbids it. She gave him a King James Bible instead.

Man crashes car to escape carjacker

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The way Robert Phillips saw it, the armed carjacker who ordered him to drive were going to kill him anyway, so he had to try something.

He crashed his sports car into a parked truck, allowing him a chance to escape and leaving one of his teenage abductors dead.

"I honestly feel very strange about that," said Phillips, who was saved by the car's only air bag. "But I have a hard time hurting for him."

Authorities said Phillips will not be charged.

Two teenagers on Saturday took Phillips' wallet at gunpoint outside a restaurant, ordered him into his car and told him to drive to his bank.

Phillips said they planned to use his bank card to make a withdrawal, and he feared, "They were intent on removing me from the equation."

In what he called a "knee-jerk" decision, Phillips swerved the car into a parked semi-truck. His airbag inflated and he fled unharmed. The teens were pinned inside and had to be cut out by rescuers.

House Speaker appears on 'Murphy Brown'

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — The show that inspired some of Dan Quayle's most controversial remarks has a new politician to kick around: Newt Gingrich.

The House Speaker plays Candice Bergen's whipping boy in an upcoming episode of "Murphy Brown." Gingrich delivered his lines flawlessly Tuesday during the taping of a two-minute appearance on the CBS show, which will air the first week in May.

"It was fun," Gingrich said afterward.

"He's a natural talent," Bergen added.

In-Laws' Public Reserve Is Wife's Private Frustration

DEAR ABBY: This concerns all those letters in response to "Hurt Mother-in-Law," whose daughter-in-law couldn't call her "Mom."

In my case, I wanted with all my heart to call my mother-in-law "Mom." She didn't ask me to, so I came right out and asked my in-laws if I could call them "Mom" and "Dad."

They said it was OK with them, but every time I did, they looked uncomfortable, so I quit calling them Mom and Dad and started calling them by their first names. Well, I could see they weren't pleased with that either, so I just gave up and avoided calling them anything.

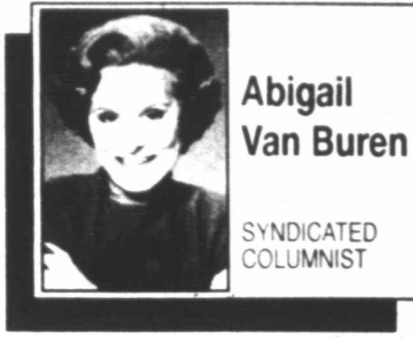

They are very undemonstrative and never hug or kiss each other in public. They kiss above their grandchildren's heads when they greet them. This is foreign to me because I grew up in a very affectionate family. However, my husband didn't, although he shows me lots of affection in private.

Abby, is there a solution to this problem? Or must I learn to live with it?

FRUSTRATED DAUGHTER-IN-LAW

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Don't try to "teach" your in-laws to be more demonstrative or affectionate; just be grateful that your husband shows you "lots of affection" in private.

Continue to be affectionate

to your children. However, never order them to kiss Grandpa, Grandpa or anyone else. In sincere kisses give children the wrong message.

The way to teach children to be affectionate is to show them affection.

DEAR ABBY: My mother is 59. My father was 74 when he died last year. They had been married for 40 years. When they met, my mother was 19, and Father was a 34-year-old widower with a 4-year-old son I'll call Max.

When Dad died, Mom went to a grief counselor who told her to "go for it." Nine months later, Mom moved Max into her bedroom! Max is my half-brother, but technically he is not a blood relative to my mother.

I thought it showed terrible judgment on her part when she had him move in with her, and most of my relatives agreed. After all, Max had been my mother's stepson for 40 years.

Abby, is our society so morally bankrupt that this is considered OK? Max is 44 and has been married five times.

MORTIFIED

DEAR MORTIFIED: Let me put it this way: In at least 15 states, marriage between "step" relatives is prohibited by law. And in the other 35, I'm willing to bet that the behavior exhibited by your mother would raise eyebrows. However, both are adults, and neither one has solicited my advice.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please stop referring to any repetition as "a broken record?"

You'll never hear anything from a broken record because it is broken! You will succeed only in ruining the needle.

Please say "well-worn" or "scratchy" record instead. Sign this: A Retired Public School Music Teacher.

On second thought, you may go ahead and use my name.

DOROTHY R. BEMBRIDGE, LONG BEACH, CALIF.

DEAR DOROTHY: Thank you for your suggestion. I'll try to change my tune.

Horoscope

Thursday, Feb. 8, 1996

Improved developments could be in store for you in the year ahead. However, in order to take advantage of these new opportunities, you must cancel unproductive activities.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Someone may abuse your generosity today and you will be partly responsible. Do not make commitments to people who don't warrant special attention. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker c/o this newspaper, P.O. PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It might prove wise today not to risk losing a good thing by gambling for something better. Your best probabilities reside in your present situation.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Try to be realistic in regard to how you hope to achieve your objectives today. Luck will not serve as a substitute for hard work and dedication.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Try to be tactful when dealing with co-workers today. If they think that you think your ideas are superior to theirs, they may hold back constructive suggestions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Think twice before becoming financially involved in a blind arrangement today. If you step out of familiar territory, you might lose your bearings.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Before making a major decision today, listen to the input of friends who are genuinely concerned about your welfare. They may see obstacles you don't.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Instead of doing what is expected of you today, you might look for surrogates to handle your responsibilities. Unfortunately, you may make poor choices.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Poor management of resources today could create problems further down the line. This can be avoided if you try to be more prudent and cautious than usual.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Try not to be too opinionated today when socializing with friends. Injecting strong views into lighthearted conversations could make others feel uneasy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Try to be optimistic regarding the outcome of events today, but also make sure your expectations are based on realistic assumptions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you've established a budget for yourself, make a genuine effort to stick to it today. Do not waste cash on things that aren't absolutely essential.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In regard to your career, today do not postpone attending to matters that require your immediate attention. If you fall behind, catching up will not be easy.

SOCCER

AMARILLO — Amarillo High beat Pampa in a District 3 soccer doubleheader Tuesday.

Pampa scored first on a goal by Trey McCavit, but AHS bounced back to claim a 3-1 win in the boys' match.

"We were dominating for the first 10 or 15 minutes and then they came back on us," said Pampa head coach Warren Cottle. "It was one of those heartbreakers, but it was a good match."

AHS blanked Pampa in the girls' match, 5-0.

It was the district opener for the Pampa teams.

Pampa hosts Palo Duro at 4:15 p.m. Thursday at Harvester Stadium.

BASKETBALL

GROOM — Groom divided a District 3-1A basketball twinbill with Shamrock Tuesday night.

Kay Case poured in 31 points to lead Groom to a 60-41 win in the girls' game. Sandie Conrad added 14 points.

The Tigerettes are 5-0 district play and 21-4 for the season.

Shamrock won the boys' game, 79-57.

Preston Wilson's 27 points led Shamrock. Nick Ashford had 11 points and Justin Ritter 10 for Groom.

FOOTBALL

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — John Blake, hired as Oklahoma's head coach in large part because of his recruiting skills, finds out today what kind of effect he has had in his short time in charge.

Blake was hired on New Year's Eve to replace Howard Schnellenberger, who reportedly was having a tough time getting in-state kids to consider the Sooners.

During his month-plus on the job, Blake was able to secure non-binding oral commitments from some of those players, including Brandon Daniels of Ada and Sedic Jones of Altus. They and all other football recruits can begin signing binding letters of intent today; the signing period ends April 1.

Oklahoma didn't plan to release its list of signings until late afternoon.

Daniels, who led Ada to three straight Class 4A state titles, is considered among the top two or three prospects in the state. Jones is a bruising player who starred as a wishbone fullback for Altus.

Other in-state players who gave oral commitments to Blake were Moore tight end-defensive end Matt Anderson, Enid lineman Ryan Allen, Wagoner lineman Scott Kempenich and Del City defensive back Mike Woods.

Blake is charged with injecting life into a program that went 5-5-1 in Schnellenberger's only season and 6-6 two seasons ago.

Oklahoma State coach Bob Simmons, after his first full year with the Cowboys, signed a fair share of highly regarded in-state players. Among them were linebacker Kevin Brown of McAlester, tailback Justin Matthews of John Marshall and fullback Eric Stevenson of Crescent. The Cowboys also had a verbal commitment from linebacker Kenyatta Wright of Vian.

The Cowboys also signed two quarterbacks, Tony Lindsay of Jefferson High School in Denver and Joe Phears from Pasadena Community College in California.

Simmons signed four players from junior colleges and players from schools in Texas, Louisiana, Detroit, Missouri and Washington, D.C.

Tulsa coach Dave Rader always seems to get players from Pennsylvania, and this year figured to be no different. Four players from that state had given the Hurricane oral commitments.

Neal McConnell, an offensive lineman from Butler, Pa., was among the first five to sign with the Golden Hurricane today.

Cowboys are hitting the streets again

DALLAS (AP) — Silver and blue floats and confetti were ready for the third Dallas Cowboys' Super Bowl victory parade in four years, with hundreds of police and truancy officers gearing up for any trouble.

About 150,000 people were expected to line the downtown route today from near Reunion Arena to behind City Hall for the parade, which was scheduled to kick off at 2:30 p.m. under sunny skies with temperatures in the 60s.

The Cowboys hoped that quarterback Troy Aikman, who underwent successful arthroscopic surgery to his right elbow Tuesday, can be in the parade.

Players will ride atop more than a half-dozen floats built especially for the event.

The Cowboys agreed to the celebration after their 27-17 Super Bowl victory in Tempe, Ariz., over the Pittsburgh Steelers gave the club a third NFL title this decade.

Street sweeping crews are on overtime, cleaning up sand left on downtown streets during last week's snow and ice.

To prevent violence that marred a previous Cowboys Super Bowl victory parade, plans call for 795 police officers in the streets.

Police and administrators for the Dallas Independent School District said students who go downtown during school hours will be considered truant and may be detained for as long as six hours.

City crews installed a fence around bovine sculptures at Pioneer Plaza near City Hall to protect them from crowds. Some city buses will be rerouted.

Don Hicks, a member of the City Council which approved parade plans, predicted that the celebration would succeed.

"I've been through this three times, and I just have the feeling this is the best time ever," said Hicks.

Members of the parade planning committee met one final time for 40 minutes Tuesday morning to review details and the projected $349,500 budget.

Atop one of the floats in the 60-vehicle parade will be the Sun City Poms, a group of retirees from Arizona whose average age is 74.

The Cowboys' civic affairs director, Susan Skaggs, said the team was looking forward to the parade.

"We've got nice weather and it looks like it will be a great party," she said.

Big 12 boss tells about salary, funding

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Big 12 Commissioner Steve Hatchell will make $200,000 in 1995-96, according to a copyright story in today's editions of the Omaha World-Herald.

Hatchell also told the newspaper that each of the conference's universities will pay $40,000 to fund a temporary, two-person office in Dallas. Hatchell estimated the Big 12 office's budget will increase to between $2.7 million and $3 million in 1996-97.

The Big 12 — formed by the addition of Texas, Texas A&M, Texas Tech and Baylor to Big Eight members Kansas, Kansas State, Iowa State, Nebraska, Colorado, Oklahoma, Oklahoma State and Missouri — officially begins operations in July, although it will hold a women's softball tournament in May.

Chief executive officers of the member schools voted 7-5 last week to place the Big 12's permanent office in Dallas. The Big Eight headquarters had been located in Kansas City, Mo., since the league's inception.

Twenty to 23 people eventually will be employed in the conference office, Hatchell said in Tuesday's interview. They will oversee rule compliance and interpretation, tournament activities, the operation of specific sports, public relations and other duties.

Income will cover office expenses in 1996-97, he said, so no fees will have to be assessed to the universities.

Hatchell, who moved into the temporary Big 12 office in June, said he would not expect to receive a significant salary increase in 1996-97.

He was commissioner of the Southwest Conference from 1993 until mid-1995.

Hatchell said the amount and details of the Big 12's budget are not a matter of public record. He disclosed the information to the World-Herald after he was instructed to by Martin Jischke, Iowa State University's president and head of the Big 12 chief executive officers.

Texas, Baylor appear ahead of the pack in signing recruits

By JAIME ARON
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Eager to show off their impressive recruiting classes, Baylor and Texas were the first to release their list of signees today.

By 9 a.m., Baylor already had received faxes affirming the verbal pledges from eight top high school seniors. The Bears were ready and zipped out a news release bragging about their haul.

There's a lot for the Bears to cheer about with signees including Aldine MacArthur quarterback Odell James, running backs Darrell Bush of Jersey Village and Elijah Burkins of Port Arthur Jefferson and Aldine linebacker Eddrick Brooks.

But it remains to be seen how many of those guys enroll this fall. All four are skating on thin academic ice and Baylor can take only one non-qualifier.

Other players also signing today with Baylor are Jersey Village linebacker Kris Micheaux, all-state wide receiver Quincy Morgan of South Garland, defensive back Robert Neal of Garland Lakeview and Arlington Walker's Joe Walker, an all-around talent listed at the position of "athlete."

Texas signed fewer academic question marks and nearly as many quality players.

The first faxes to hit Austin included five from offensive linemen. UT also heard from three linebackers, all-state defensive back Levar Jenkins of Class 3A Cuero and Brownsville Pace running back Tony Ellis, who led 5A in rushing this season.

It was no surprise to hear first from the Longhorns and Bears because they had the best group of verbal pledges, a credit to their ability to use their membership in the new Big 12 to lure recruits.

The third to report was Texas A&M, which had 10 players inked by 9 a.m.

The biggest name on the list is offensive lineman Chris Valletta of Plano, who stands 6-foot-4 and weighs 305 pounds. He could one day line up alongside Andy Vincent, a 6-4, 295-pound signee from Sulphur, La.

The Aggies also dipped into Louisiana for another recruit, linebacker Ronnie Alexander of Shreveport Evangel Christian.

A more familiar name signed by A&M to play linebacker is Sean Coryatt of Sugar Land Clements, the younger brother of former Aggie standout and current Indianapolis Colt Quentin

Harvesters clinch playoff spot

PAMPA — For the second game in a row, the Pampa Harvesters hit the 100-point mark, rolling past Berger, 100-63, Tuesday night in District 1-4A action.

More importantly, the win clinched a tie for the second-place playoff spot for the Harvesters, who are 10-0 in district play and 25-3 for the season. Friday night, the Harvesters can clinch their eighth consecutive district title with a win over Amarillo Caprock in McNeely Fieldhouse.

The Harvesters, who routed Dumas, 111-42, last Friday night, took control early against Berger in racing to a 30-10 first-quarter advantage.

"Berger scored more points than we wanted them to, but that's a Pampa-Berger game," said Pampa head coach Robert Hale. "You make shots you don't normally make and that's not taking anything away from Berger. They gave a great effort, but so did we."

Rayford Young paced the Harvesters in scoring with 25 points, followed by Jason Weatherbee with 16.

Dumas, which falls to 0-10 in district and 4-19 overall, was led by Ronnie Kemp's 12 points.

Pampa 100, Berger 63

Pampa — Rayford Young 25, Jason Weatherbee 16, Coy Laury 15, J.J. Mathis 14, August Larson 11, Devin Lemons 8, Lynn Brown 6, Chris Miller 3, Gabe Wilbon 2; Three-point goals: Weatherbee 1, Larson 1, Laury 1.

Berger — Ronnie Kemp 12, Wes Mitchell 10, Steven Bridges 8, Colby Yeary 6, Travis Williams 6, Derek Dickson 5, Powell 4, Jason Gage 4, Aaron Perry 3, Bryan Davis 2, Nick Dean 2, Matt Ege 2; Three-point goals: Kemp 2, Bridges 1,

Berger holds off Pampa girls, 51-43

BORGER — Berger jumped out to an early lead and then held off a Pampa rally for a 51-43 win Tuesday night in a District 1-4A girls' game.

Christie Powell led Berger in scoring with 19 points, followed by Candace Osteen with 11 points.

Jennifer Jones scored 23 points to lead the Lady Harvesters. Jami Wells and Jane Brown added 6 points each.

Berger jumped out to a 12-2 first-quarter lead on the Lady Harvesters and were ahead by eight (24-16) at halftime. Pampa chipped away at the lead and narrowed the margin to one point on a pair of Jones' free throws with 4:15 remaining in the fourth quarter. Berger, however, scored nine of the next 10 points.

Kristi Carpenter and Candice

Nachtigall added 4 points each for the Lady Harvesters.

Pampa did finish with a 24-20 rebound edge on Berger. Jones had 8 rebounds and Carpenter 7 for Pampa.

Pampa is 1-10 in district and 12-16 for the season. Berger is 4-7, 5-18.

The Lady Harvesters host Caprock at 6 Friday night to end the season.

Rockets having trouble with SuperSonics

SEATTLE (AP) — Hakeem Olajuwon has led the Houston Rockets to back-to-back NBA championships. Still, Olajuwon and the Rockets can't figure out a way to beat the Seattle SuperSonics, who have flopped the past two seasons.

Seattle's defense takes away Olajuwon's inside game. "They change the flow of the game so I have to go outside to try to be effective," Olajuwon said.

The SuperSonics Tuesday night made it seven consecutive victories over the Rockets, holding Olajuwon to only three points in the final quarter in a 99-94 victory.

Shawn Kemp outplayed Olajuwon, last season's playoff MVP and 1994 NBA MVP, as a double- and triple-teaming defense stymied the Rockets' center in the last three quarters.

After scoring a dozen points in the first quarter, all from the outside, Olajuwon was held to nine points over the remainder of the game. Kemp had 22 points, 13 rebounds and two blocked shots to Olajuwon's 21 points, eight rebounds and one block.

"This was a playoff-type game, but we've showed the playoffs are a different ball game," Olajuwon said. "We keep looking forward to playing them in the playoffs, but they just don't make it."

The last time the Rockets and the Sonics met in the playoffs was in 1993, when Seattle beat Houston 4-3 in the Western Conference semifinals.

"We do well against Houston because they bring out a lot about our defense," Seattle's Detlef Schrempf said. "The way we have to rotate and work hard to double team Olajuwon. A lot of other teams don't challenge us as much."

In the final quarter, the Sonics made 13 of 20 free throws in beating Houston for the second time in four nights. Olajuwon had 36 points in a 104-103 Seattle overtime victory in Houston Saturday night.

The Rockets were upset about the officiating. Olajuwon didn't have anything nice to say about the crew of Paul Mihalak, Ken Mauer and Woody Mayfield.

"It's hard when you're playing against eight people on the floor," he said.

The Sonics finished with a 34-12 record at the All-Star break, the best in the Western Conference. They're 20-2 in the Key Arena, including 12-0 against West teams at home.

"We're doing all right," said Gary Payton, who also scored 22 points for Seattle. "We're 34-12 and that's a good record to me."

"That was playoff basketball in the middle of the season," Seattle coach George Karl said. "It makes both teams better."

"Seattle's the best in the league at breaking you of all the things you want to do on offense," Houston coach Rudy Tomjanovich said. "If you're not in the right frame of mind, their defense will turn you inside out."

Sam Cassell also scored 21 points for the Rockets, who got 13 rebounds from Drexler.

In San Antonio on Sunday, Olajuwon is going to his 11th All-Star game, Drexler his ninth, Kemp his fourth and Payton his third. And Karl will be coaching the West for the second time in three years, because Seattle has the best record in the West.

tive 1A titles.

The WAC's Texas-El Paso has received tentative verbal commitments from 14 athletes — 13 schoolboys and one junior college transfer. If they hold, UTEP will have recruited at least two linebackers, a defensive lineman and a safety for a porous defense that gave up an average of 486 yards per game last season.

North Texas is joining the Big West Conference this year, but that doesn't have recruits whipping out their ballpoint pens and asking to sign on the dotted line.

But at least the Eagles found that more players were at least interested in hearing their pitch, even if they were spurned by guys with size and/or speed, the two qualities they most lack.

As for those non-Texan pillagers, look to the usual suspects.

Sulphur Springs' outstanding defensive tandem of Damione Lewis and Kwaesi Palmer are fleeing, as is Lake Highland quarterback Marcus Stiggers.

Lewis, a lineman, has chosen Miami; Palmer, a linebacker, picked Florida State; and Stiggers, who likely will be converted wide receiver, is expected to go to Colorado.

Browns' name, logo will stay in Cleveland

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

Art Modell is likely to get permission this week to move his football team from Cleveland to Baltimore.

The name "Browns" and those brown uniforms and orange helmets are likely, however, to remain in Cleveland.

The 30 NFL owners will meet Thursday and Friday in Chicago to face the perplexing question of fitting 30 teams into 32 cities. The only feasible answer may be a new round of expansion, a solution cited this week by several team and league sources.

But the major business when the owners meet in Chicago on Thursday and Friday is likely to be approval of Cleveland's move to Baltimore — with the condition the Browns' name and colors remain in Cleveland. Vinny Testaverde, the team's quarterback, said Monday he had been told he would play for "Baltimore Mustangs."

The meeting comes a week after the Seattle Seahawks became the fifth team in the last year to move or announce its intention to move. In the Seahawks' case it's the market opened up in southern California by the moves last year of the Raiders and the Rams.

That turbulence has raised eyebrows — not only among the fans, but among the owners themselves.

"I really don't know what's going on in this league," Buffalo Bills owner Ralph Wilson said Tuesday. "I'm really sad to see what's happened to it. We don't have any rules and regulations anymore."

But Wilson appears to be only one of four potential votes against the move by the Browns. Eight are needed to block it.

Commissioner Paul Tagliabue would not disclose his recommendation on Tuesday, saying he'd make a final decision after a meeting Wednesday night in Chicago with the stadium and finance committees.

But sources say Tagliabue and Cleveland Mayor Michael R. White appear ready to accede to Art Modell's move of his team to Baltimore if Cleveland is guaranteed another team when Cleveland Stadium is renovated or a new stadium is built, and that the team is "the Browns."

That still leaves the NFL with 32 cities and 30 franchises; Tagliabue has said he's committed to teams in both Cleveland and Baltimore, and in Los Angeles. If Seattle moves, that would fill a hole in southern California, but open one in the Pacific Northwest.

Tagliabue, in Washington on Tuesday again seeking antitrust protection that would allow the NFL to block team moves, has said he doesn't expect expansion until after the turn of the century.

But some sources suggest he may moderate that position to fill the 32 markets in which he wants teams and stop what could be a chain reaction.

The Tampa Bay Buccaneers could move if they don't get a new stadium, perhaps into the Cleveland void, maybe to Orlando or even to Hartford. And the Cardinals, who moved from St. Louis to Arizona eight years ago, could be on the march again if Bill Bidwill doesn't get a domed stadium in the desert.

White Deer downs Sunray

SUNRAY — A well-balanced scoring attack led White Deer past Sunray, 71-46, Tuesday night in a District 2-1A boys' game.

The Bucks are now 3-1 in district play and 8-14 for the season. Sunray drops to 1-3 and 4-14.

Stephen Sugar led White Deer in scoring with 17 points, followed by Justin Brown and Torey Craig, 13 each.

Ty Robertson had 12 points and Cipriano Cadena 10 to lead Sunray.

Sunray defeated White Deer, 57-42, in the girls' game.

Kim Baker scored 17 points to lead Sunray while Haley Crowe added 10. Susan Day had 13 points and Krissy Cone 12 for the Does.

White Deer is 2-2 in district and 9-17 for the season. Sunray 1-3 in district and 6-17 for the season.

White Deer closes out the regular season Friday night at home against Claude.

Border baseball academy hopes to attract top prospects

By MIKE WAGNER
Laredo Morning Times

DEL CARMEN, Mexico — Joe Almaraz thinks the restful, mountain resort-like new Mexican Baseball Academy will be anything but restful when he takes over fulltime as director next month.

Almaraz is teaching health education at San Antonio Burbank High School as he waits to begin preliminary work as director this month. Almaraz will visit similar baseball academies in the Dominican Republic after seeing the Dodgers' training facility in Vero Beach, Fla.

The Mexican academy is located north of Monterrey near the small town of Del Carmen but closer to the javalinas, deer and wildcats which roam northern Mexico. Mountains surround the academy on three sides hidden behind acres of mesquite and cactus situated more than a mile from the nearest highway.

The site near Monterrey was chosen over others because it has more level land for playing surfaces. Also, it is 20 minutes from the Mexican League's Estadio Monterrey and from the Monterrey Airport.

The new academy replaces Pesteje of the Mexico City area which was used in a similar player-preparatory role for 10 years until 1990 when it was partially destroyed by fire.

Almaraz will begin organizational work at the academy on Feb. 15 before visiting the Dodgers and the Dominican Republic. He is scheduled to begin working with players at the academy on March 20.

The academy building resembles an exclusive resort hotel, set against the backdrop of the Eastern Sierra Madre Mountains.

"It is out in the middle of nowhere but it (working) will be day and night," Almaraz said.

Players will work out in the morning, attend various classes in the afternoon and work on individual skills in the weight room or on the field in the evening, Almaraz said. English is part of the academic curriculum, which will be designed toward the whole culture of baseball.

"It will be identical to the academies in the Dominican Republic. The same format," Almaraz said. "It all goes back to what the Royals did first in Bradenton, Florida, in the late 60s or early 70s. Kansas City was looking for guys who could throw and run and they would teach them the rest."

Teams in the 16-team Mexican League will send top prospects to the academy. Academy players will play among themselves and participate in Monterrey area municipal leagues.

Academy players must be at least 16 years old and Mexican League officials are not shutting the door on players from other countries. The 1.1 million dollar facility will be able to house up to about 150 players.

Rooms will also be kept for doctors, trainers and coaches. Almaraz could have up to 20 coaches working for him.

Teams can send players to the academy for a short period of rehabilitation or to sharpen special skills. The league has tentative plans to hold clinics for children, umpires and youth coaches.

Pedro Treto Cisneros, league president, says the academy is designed to raise the skill level of baseball in Mexico and the league as a whole.

"This is a dream I have had. A center of development," Treto told a group of Los Dos Laredos reporters that toured the facility recently.

Monterrey architect Jaime Martinez is the academy's chief designer. Martinez said design on the 4,200-square-foot building was influenced by schools in the United States.

Cyclone fences will eventually surround the fields and a running track will circle one of them. One field will be made with an artificial surface.

The "Academia Mexicana de Beisbol Alejo Peralta" is named for league icon and Mexico City-based businessman Alejo Peralta. Peralta was a longtime owner of the Mexico City Tigres, a league commissioner and owns a business in Laredo, Texas.

The academy logo features an eagle descending upon a baseball game sided by the mountains and Peralta's face.

Monterrey artist Omar Gonzalez De Leon has one logo on canvas and is painting another larger one on the side of the building which visitors will see first.

Almaraz will also be doing much of his work by hand with the help of computers in a spacious office. Plans also call for an extensive video taping of players in games and practices.

"I'll need a bed by the side of my desk," Almaraz said. "I've got to get a coaching staff together, get uniforms, their sizes, shoes. There is a lot of work to do."

Almaraz credits Mel Didier, Dodgers special assignments scout/vice president with helping him get the job. Almaraz's brother Johnny scouts for the Cincinnati Reds.

Almaraz, 42, spent 19 years in the coaching profession before taking the academy job. Almaraz coached at South San Antonio, Clemons, Southwest and Roosevelt high schools in San Antonio before moving onto the colleges at Howard County, Northeast Texas Community College and Southwestern Louisiana.

He graduated from San Antonio Kennedy when the Rockets played in a district against Martin and Nixon. He played infield at Bee County, Lamar University and at Tampico of the Mexican League in 1975.

Almaraz was in spring training with the Nuevo Laredo Tecolotes in 1976.

Commerce secretary's son under investigation

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a series of contacts under investigation by a special prosecutor, an Oklahoma gas company paid $160,000 to Commerce Secretary Ron Brown's son and provided travel for a top Commerce Department aide, documents show.

Dynamic Energy Resources of Tulsa, Okla., also lured away from the Commerce Department the head of minority business development at a time the company was considering pursuing federal contracts, the records obtained by The Associated Press state.

Dynamic's former president and his wife, the company's second largest shareholder, have alleged in court testimony that the payments to Michael Brown, 30, were designed by key company officers to curry favor with his father.

"He absolutely is there for them (Dynamic) to gain influence with the Department of Commerce, and that's it," Oklahoma oil man Stuart Price testified last summer in a state court lawsuit filed by his wife that alleged the company was being mismanaged.

The company's chairwoman is Nora Lum, a prominent Democratic donor and friend of the Brown family.

Exhibits from that lawsuit, obtained by AP through legal action, show that just three months after Michael Brown was placed on Dynamic's board, he was paid two checks totaling $160,000.

Ron Brown's lawyer said the secretary has "never been involved in any way with any decision by Dynamic to compensate Michael Brown." But he declined to answer whether the elder Brown got any money from his son about the time of the April 1994 payment.

"The occasions upon which Secretary Brown, like other parents, may have provided loans or gifts to his children to help them get started as young adults, and occasions upon which they may have sought to repay their father's support and good will, are private family matters," attorney Reid Weingarten wrote in a letter to the AP.

Michael Brown's lawyer, William Taylor, said his client "categorically denies that any of his conduct in connection with Dynamic Energy Resources violated any law" and predicted that Brown will "be completely and thoroughly vindicated in all respects."

Internal company records show that a top aide to Brown at the Commerce Department, Melinda C. Yee, accepted at least two trips from Dynamic or the Lums since 1994.

None were reported on her financial disclosure statement to the government, which require all travel over $250 paid by outside sources to be reported.

During one of the trips, in January 1994, Yee attended a Dynamic board meeting at which her mother, Helen, was put on Dynamic's board along with the younger Brown and awarded stock that earned her $14,500 in dividends the first year.

A lawyer for Yee, Nancy Luque, said Tuesday: "Melinda Yee has done nothing wrong. And the record will bear that out."

Investigators for the Commerce inspector general met with Price last summer to discuss concerns about the contacts between Dynamic and Commerce officials.

In a letter Tuesday to a Senate subcommittee, the inspector general wrote that Price's allegations were part of "an open criminal investigation" that had been referred to independent counsel Daniel Pearson.

Pearson was appointed last year by a federal court to investigate why Ron Brown received $500,000 from a business associate since becoming Commerce secretary in 1993 and whether he intentionally falsified his financial disclosure report to the government.

Lovett Library staff picks

Lovett Library staff picks for February include:

The Brimstone Wedding by Barbara Vine

Both a finely crafted mystery and disturbingly honest depiction of the kinship between love and madness, The Brimstone Wedding tells an unsettling story about the power and the poison of love. A gracious, dignified woman, who's dying in an English nursing home, reveals the secrets of her erotic past to her young caretaker.

Contagion by Robin Cook

Finding his life in a shambles after losing his practice to a for-profit medical giant and his family in an airplane crash, Midwestern ophthalmologist John Stapleton retrains in forensic pathology and relocates to New York. Numb by his past, he finds his attention drawn by an outbreak of virulent and extremely lethal illnesses related to a deadly strain of flu. Investigating, Stapleton learns that the apparent source of these illnesses are a chain of hospitals and clinics controlled by the same medical giant who put him out of business. He teams up with art director Theresa Hagen, and uncovers a conspiracy of overwhelming proportions.

Intensity by Dean Koontz

The hugely popular horror writer creates 36 hours of heart-racing suspense and emotional intensity, in an inventive new thriller about a young woman in the sights of a serial killer. Chyna Shepherd discovers she is the survivor among the victims of a self-described "homicidal adventurer," a man who kills for kicks. When she unintentionally learns the identity of the next target, she must draw on her deepest courage and daring to confront a raging evil before it strikes again.

Mindhunter: Inside the FBI's Elite Serial Crime Unit by John Douglas

The inspiration for Special Agent Jack Crawford in the Silence of the Lambs offers an unprecedented study of the mind of serial killers, as only he can. A pioneer in criminal profiling, the FBI agent describes in chilling detail how he imagines himself into the shoes of both criminal and victim, and analyzes the motives and behavior of the most vicious killers of our time, including Charles Manson, John Wayne Gacy and Richard Speck.

The Same River Twice: Honoring the Difficult by Alice Walker

The critically acclaimed author of the Pulitzer Prize winning The Color Purple shares reminiscences of her fascinating life in an evocative new memoir. Recalling the extraordinary celebrity that followed in the wake of the film version of her novel, Walker describes her unpreparedness for fame and the vilification she suffered from the African-American community because of her portrayal of black men. She goes on to discuss the other challenges that she was forced to confront — her own serious illness, her mother's failing health and a painful betrayal — and her long road to recovery. A candid and poetic study of the private life of an artist and the creative process.

Chef Paul Prudhomme's Fiery Foods of the World that I Love by Paul Prudhomme

Chef Paul introduces some of the greatest flavors the world has to offer, from dark and savory tamari to the crisp brightness of ginger, from peanuts to plantains, and presents them in unusual and exciting combinations. Included are Chef Paul's techniques for building flavor and cooking it deep into crusts, glazes, sauces and more.

Italian man going home after receiving six organ transplants

MIAMI (AP) — Leonardo Cioce is a walking, talking medical miracle.

He should be dead. But there he was at his hospital, smiling in front of TV cameras with six new organs and eager to return to his homeland to eat better pizza.

Cioce, 29, an industrial equipment designer from Bari, Italy, looked like a goner last year when he was brought to Jackson Memorial Hospital. Tumors, some the size of grapefruits, had ravaged most of his vital organs. He was bleeding inside. Infections were eating him alive.

But surgeons transplanted six new organs into Cioce, virtually cleaning out his abdominal cavity during the 36-hour operation July 15.

His kidney, pancreas, stomach, large intestine, small intestine and liver were removed. They were replaced with organs taken from a brain-dead donor. Other parts of Cioce's innards had been removed previously.

Never before in the United States had so many organs been transplanted into a patient's abdomen, experts said.

"It is still difficult for me to realize I have so many different parts of someone else's body," Cioce said Tuesday as surgeons and nurses gave him a going-home party with cake.

Worried a year ago about whether he would see his next birthday, Cioce said he is now looking forward to returning home to eat real Italian food again.

"America is great, but the pizza here is just awful," he said through an interpreter.

Cioce leaves Miami on Saturday to return home to Bari with his father.

He had been living in an apartment near the hospital for nine months while doctors gave him medication to keep his immune system from rejecting the new organs.

Cioce had Gardner's Syndrome, a congenital disease in which tumors slowly invaded and strangled his organs. Doctors in Milan, Italy, had tried for 10 years to remove or shrink the reappearing fibrous tumors.

Finally, they referred him to Dr. Andreas Tzakis, director of Jackson Memorial's gastrointestinal transplant program.

SPS declares quarterly dividend

AMARILLO — The Board of Directors of Southwest Public Service Company has declared a regular quarterly dividend of 55 cents per share on common stock.

The dividend on common stock is payable March 1, 1996, to holders of record at the close of business Feb. 15, 1996.

SPS does not have preferred stock outstanding.

Southwestern Public Service Company is a regional electric utility that primarily provides electric service to a population of about one million people in a 52,000-square-mile area comprised of eastern and southwest New Mexico, the South Plains and Panhandle of Texas, the Oklahoma Panhandle and southwestern Kansas.

Through its Utility Engineering Corporation and Quixx

Corporation subsidiaries, the company also provides engineering, design and construction management services to a variety of industries and is involved in a number of non-utility power generation projects.

Corporate headquarters is in Amarillo.

Pain may be eliminated for millions

(SPECIAL) — A new drug has been approved that is exciting researchers in the treatment of pain. This material has been formulated into a new product known as "Arthur Itis..." and is being called a "Medical Miracle" by some, in the treatment of debilitating conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, painful muscle aches, joint aches, simple backache, bruises, and more. Although the mechanism of action is unclear, experiments indicate that Arthur Itis... relieves pain by first selectively attracting, and then destroying the messenger chemical which carries pain sensations to the brain, thus eliminating pain in the affected area. Arthur Itis... is an odorless, greaseless, non-staining cream and is available immediately without a prescription and is guaranteed to work.
