Officers in D Hall

Of The Pampa News

"No man is above the law and no man is below it; nor do we ask any man's permission to obey it.

Teddy Roosevelt's statement made 75 - years ago was put to the test today, when two Pampa police officers were asked to report to detention hall or take "licks" for a violation of a Pampa High School rule vesterday

The two officers, Lt. Charles Morris acting as school liaison officer and Det. R. J. Howell, juvenile officer, arrived before 7 a.m. to take their punishment in the form of sitting through "D hall" (as it is affectionately known among the students) and studying.

The violation occurred, PHS principal Paul Payne said, when the duo arrived early Wednesday morning to set up a projector for films they to be shown to high school government classes

Howell parked the police department's patrol car in a place rented and reserved by high school junior, Joni Covalt of 431 S.

"I told him not to do it!" Morris said. But the juvenile officer

This all happened about 8:15 a.m., Payne said. He found out about the violation, he said, when the student ran up to him saying. "Can you believe it? A cop is in my place. If I did that I'd be sent to detention hall '

Payne said he told the girl he would see that the offenders would receive the usual punishment for the crime.

A note was delivered to the officers informing them of their punishment during one of their presentations, Morris said.

The note telling the officers to report for detention or licks in uniform was read to the class. For some reason, he said, they thought it was very funny.

When the two offenders arrived at the police station, a letter was on their desks from the chief of police directing them to be at the high school at 7 a.m. today in uniform to take their

Howell and Morris arrived on time for detention. Not all together good - naturedly, however.

The moral of this story is: For those of you who think this is an unjust world, read and take heed, for today justice was done.

"WHAT ARE THOSE GUYS DOING IN THE BACK OF THE ROOM?" Juvenile officer Det. R. J. Howell and liaison officer, Lt. Charles Morris spent an hour in the Pampa High School detention hall after committing a high school parking violation yesterday.

A Kuwait newspaper reported from Tehran today that the release of the American Embassy hostages is "imminent." State Department officials said they could not confirm the report but the situation remained "promising

The Iranian government, meanwhile, took a new step to undercut the power of the militants holding the U.S. Embassy - it banned their accusations against Iranian officials from the air waves.

State Department spokesman George Sherman, after checking on the report, said, "We have no evidence to confirm it.'

But Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher, echoing the cautious optimism of the Carter administration in recent days, said on NBC-TV's "Today" show. "We have a somewhat promising situation and we are working hard on it."

"Bani Sadr has set the settlement of the hostage crisis and the ending of the duality of authority being exercised in Iran as the main objectives at the beginning of his term." the report said.

Al Khadal said U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim is trying to convince Bani Sadr to "pressure the students to leave the embassy and have them replaced by regular Iranian troops. Bani Sadr made plain on Wednesday that he was determined to trim the power of the embassy militants.

He castigated them for getting a government minister arrested, calling them "dictators who have created a government within the government," and gave the cold shoulder to a U.S. delegation invited to Iran by them.

Immigration authorities detained the 49-member U.S. group for four hours Wednesday night at Tehran Airport because they had no entry visas, then sent them to a Tehran hotel. Bani Sadr said later the government would decide whether to let them stay or send them back home

The Americans didn't bother getting their visas in the United States because they were told they would get them on arrival at the airport, an informed source

The delegation was invited by the militants in a bid for the U.S. spotlight they have been denied since American TV cameras were expelled from Iran three weeks ago. One theory then was that the expulsion was a move by the revolutionary regime to deflate the militants' self-importance and cut them down to size so that a deal for the release of the hostages could be

The American delegation was made up of persons sympathetic to the militants' demand for the return of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi to Iran for trial. The leader of the group, Norman Forer of the University of Kansas, said the taking of the hostages was illegal but must be weighed "side by side with the anguish of the Iranian people', under the shah. Forer visited in Iran in December and met with the militants then.

Bani Sadr denounced the militants Wednesday because charges they broadcast on the state radio and TV resulted in the arrest of Information and National Guidance Minister Nasser Minachi. The president said the ruling Revolutionary Council, which he heads. ordered Minachi freed immediately

Bani Sadr said the militants' charge that Minachi had "close links with the CIA" was one for a judge to investigate, and if people were arrested on the basis of something heard on the radio the country ran the risk of collapsing in chaos.

"I think the nation which has voted for me does not agree with this kind of behavior." said Bani Sadr. who got 75 percent of the vote in the presidential election

Minachi denied the charge. The president also assailed the state radio and TV network for giving air time to the militants Tuesday evening without government approval. He said the arrest of Minachi at his home by revolutionary guards several hours later was not authorized by the state prosecutor. The embassy militants and Bani Sadr have been enemies since late last November when he was foreign minister and they helped to get him replaced because he was willing to negotiate with the United States

WASHINGTON (AP) - One of eight members of Congress named in the FBI's bribery investigation admits taking $25,000 in each but says he did so as part of his own personal inquiry into wrongdoing by unidentified "shady characters.

Rep. Richard Kelly of Florida, the only Republican named in the FBI "sting," told that story in a lengthy interview on a network television news special Wednesday, shortly after the Justice Department indicated there likely would be indictments in the case

Also Wednesday, Assistant Attorney General Philip Heymann cautioned the House and Senate Ethics Comittees that if they pursued their own competing investigations, they could imperil the prosecution of those who may have committed criminal acts.

Babrak Karmal, Afghanistan's Soviet-supported president, has reneged on a promise to let an International Red Cross team visit political prisoners in Afghan jails.

The refusal, announced today at the Geneva, Switzerland headquarters of the International Red Cross, came two weeks after Karmal and two of his ministers approved the visits by a four-member Red Cross team in Kabul, the Afghan capital, an IRC spokeswoman said

Spokeswoman Francoise Bory said the IRC did not know what prompted Karmal's change of heart.

A brief statement issued in Geneva said the Red Cross had "learned that IRC delegates in Kabul have not yet been able to visit Red Cross Director Jacques Moreillon, the leader of the team sent

Picasso's 'junk' going on display

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - Pablo Picasso was a hoarder. His homes were littered with empty cigarette packages, broken pots, pieces of wicker, toys and scraps of all kinds. Now, for the first time, Americans will have a chance to see how Picasso made use of some of that "junk." An exhibition of 160 paintings, sculptures, collages and drawings from Picasso's collection of his own works - most of which have never been shown before outside of Europe - opens Sunday at Walker Art Center. The Walker showing runs through March 30.

The only other American showing of these works will be at The Museum of Modern Art in New York, where they will be included in a major Picasso retrospective in May. When Picasso died in 1973 at the age of 91, the art world was stunned to learn that his three homes and bank vaults throughout France were filled with more than 45,000 of his works, many of which were previously unknown. The French government selected about 700 of Picasso's Picassos in lieu of inheritance taxes and is building a museum in Paris to house them. While the museum is readied, the government is allowing a sampling of the collection to be shown at the two U.S. museums. The works span 77 years of Picasso's life from 1895 to 1972, and many are considered by the art world to be among his best.

"Many of the works are very well known and have been on view in Europe. But some of the works never seen before (by the public) are some of his best," said Martin Friedman, Walker Art Center

The exhibition has enormous variety, ranging from realistic to abstract. It includes examples of all the major styles Picasso worked through in painting - his early expressionistic Blue and Rose period, the various stages of Cubism in which he represented objects in geometric terms and classical works and realistic bronze sculptures, created from bits of baskets, old toys and other everyday items.

"Picasso's life was one-man art history. Every major theme is there - portraits, landscapes, still lifes," Friedman said.

Sin Fools Man

It is related in the Bible that after David preserved the life of King Saul, his enemy, this evil king felt temperary remerse over his attempts to kill David and Said, "I have sinned; I have erred exceedingly; I have played the feel" (1 Samuel 26:21).

It is true even today that sin feels man. The devil, who is the "father of lies" (John 8:44) has feeled the world concerning the dovestating power of sin. Some assume that sin is harmless, calling it "good clean fun" or "living life to the fullest" while the word of Truth says "the wages of sin is death" (Romans 6:23) and "the soul that sins, it shall surely die" (excited 18:4). We are convinced that we can "hide" our sins from God so that He decen't knew (Psalm 10:11) when in Truth God is everpresent and aware of our deeds (Psalm 139:7-12) and states outright that "whatseever a man sows that shall be also reep"

Hence we cannot escape the consequences of our sins, though some appear to believe otherwise. Escape is offered through Jesus Christ who "became sin for us" (2 Cerinthinians 5:14) that we might "die to sin and live unto righteousness" (1 Peter 2:24). These past sins removed by the blood of Christ are forgotton (Hobrows 8:12) and future sins will continue in be far than and forgotton to the positions and ebadient child of God (Calessians 1:22-23; 1 John 1:7-10). The Supreme Court said the State Commission for the Blind leased a portion of the bank building from Sept. 1, 1971, to Aug. 31. 1975. The bank was not the low bidder on a subsequent four-year contract and the commission knew it would have to move.

However, the commission did not have adequate facilities and continued to occupy the bank space for an additional 13 months. The state refused to pay rental for those months.

The Supreme Court said the state was liable for the extra rent under the terms of the original written lease agreement

Guarded by federal marshals. 74 handcuffed prisoners from the New Mexico facility arrived by plane in Kansas City. Mo. Wednesday and were then transported by bus to Leavenworth to await possible reassignment to other prisons.

Prison officials in New Mexico are attempting to relocate most of more than 1.000 prisoners who survived the 36-hour weekend riot, which left 35 inmates dead and the penitentiary in ruins.

U.S. Bureau of Prisons officials anticipate at least 350 of the New Mexico prisoners will be shipped elsewhere while "They were passive as they could be." said a flight crewman who asked not to be identified. "Most of them just settled down and went to sleep. They were ideal passengers.

After the prisoners arrived at the penitentiary, they underwent a lengthy classification process to determine, among other things, if they should remain at Leavenworth or be reassigned to other prisons.

Mark Luttrell, administrative assistant to the warden, said some of the inmates would be transferred almost immediately to other prisons around the country. In the

A president in disgrace

Two and a half years into his administration Jim my Carter fired half his cabinet and, after a visit to the mountain top, declared that he was starting over. This unprecedented move was nothing less than an admission that his Presidency had been a domestic failure. Carter's State of the Union message was no less an admission that his foreign policy, too, has been an utter disaster.

As President CArter walked toward the speaker's podium in the House of Representatives television commentators described him as a new man. After three years of hearing Jim my tell the American people that all we have to do is be sincere we are now confronted with a president emphasizing military strength. He is the same man who has canceled the development of weapons systems without obtaining agreement for similar limitations from the Soviet Union. He is a president who has not seriously challenged any of the Soviet military adventures in Africa or Asia. He is the president who proclaimed that America had a inordinate fear of communism. And now, in the midst of a presidential election, he is claiming to be a new man. BALONEY.

Jimmy Carter claims that the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan has dramatically altered his perception of Soviet Russia. If that is the case, he is admitting that for his first three years as chief executive he was dead wrong about the way he was handling an incredibly important part of his job. If this country is in danger, as the speech implied, then it is a result of the way Carter has been running foreign policy, especially in regards to his dealing with the Soviet Union.

Under a parliamentary government such failure usually results in the fall of the responsible government. Only in the United States can a national leader so miserably fail, and expect to be re-elected. Here people tend to rally around the president in times of crisis, even when it is that president's inane and inept policies that have caused the crisis.

It wasn't long ago that Carter was in Vienna kissing Brezhnev and calling for the ratification of a second Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT). Even now, when the president says his view of the Kremlin has dramatically changed, if the text of the State of the Union message is closely examined, it reveals that Carter has still not given up on SALT. The Russians must know just how real the new Carter actually is. They probably remember the last time he got tough and told them to get their combat troops out of Cuba. No wonder they're moving forward with their Olympic plans as if nothing were happening. even as they use poison gas against Afghan freedom fighters.

The domestic and foreign policies of James Earl Carter have been a debacle. We see little reason the American people should have confidence in him

Fleecing the taxpayers

The Washington Post recently carried the following headline: "Duplicate checks cost U.S. millions." Such a headline might get one to imagining all sorts of intricate and complicated schemes devised by some underworld mastermind to bilk the government out of all this money

But such is not the case in the "efficiency capital of the world." Although it is true that the money is being stolen, it isn't true that only a Professor Moriarty (Sherlock Holmes' eternal antagonist) could be behind the heist. In fact, just about anyone who receives a check from the government could be a thief

Here's how the scheme works. According to the article, on a certain day of each month the government sends out its checks. However, some people do not receive theirs on the proper date so they write Uncle Sam and tell him that they didn't get their checks. The government then looks to see whether or not the check in question has been cashed. If it has, it discards the letter. But if it hasn't then it promptly mails out another check without stopping payment on the unreceived first

This routine is an obvious money-haven for the dishonest. Most of the duplicate checks are legitimate. But the Post reports that almost 20 percent of the substitute checks result in a double payment. Either the intended recipient lied when he said he didn't receive the first check, waited for the second one to come and then cashed them both; or the original check fell into the hands of a forger who cashed it.

Since 1970 there is a backing of $86 million in substitute check payments; and $73 million of that has come in the last three years. Of that $86 million, about $13 million is stolen as the result of irresponsible mailing of the substitute government

By Robert Walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Congress belatedly has closed a notorious legal loophole that allowed retiring legislators to pocket thousands of dollars worth of campaign contributions, then use the money to pay their personal expenses.

But the revised law, rushed through the House and Senate in the closing days of the 1979 session with virtually no debates, includes a special exemption that allows all current members of Congress to continue the discredited practice.

The rules of both the House and Senate have, for many years, included a prohibition against converting campaign donations to the legislators' personal use.

The Senate, for example, formally censured the late Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., in 1967 for diverting to his own use more than $100,000 collected through testimonial dinners and political

But once a lawmaker resigns, retires or is defeated, he or she no longer is legally bound by the House and Senate rules. The only applicable federal statute says campaign contributions "may be used for any...lawful purpose.

Financing a backyard swimming pool, a new car or a European vacation are "lawful purposes" under the law, so shrewd legislators in the past have waited until their term of office officially expired, then claimed the surplus accumulated in their campaign treasury

Loophole semi-closed

Former Sen. Gale W. McGee, D-Wyo., defeated in a 1976 bid for re-election, pocketed almost $72,000 in unused campaign funds. Former Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, also defeated in 1976, last year claimed the $857 remaining in his political committee's bank account

After Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., died in mid-1978, his widow, Maryon P. Allen, directed that the $85,700 in his campaign account be transferred to his personal estate. The money then was inherited by two heirs - Mrs. Allen and the senator's

At least five members of the House who were defeated or retired in 1974 enriched their personal bank accounts by claiming money from their political committees. although the donors presumably intended the funds to be used to finance campaigns.

The legislators and the amounts involved were: Rep. Martha W. Griffiths, D-Mich., $8,961; Rep. Bertram L. Podell, D-N.Y. $2,668; Rep. Kenneth J. Gray, D-Ill., $2,905; Rep. Tom S. Gettys, D-S.C., $3,235; and Rep. John J. Rooney, D-N.Y., $4,406.

In one case, a man who never even served in Congress used the same technique to enrich himself. He was Dr. William E. (Bud) Davis, a Democrat who ran an unsuccessful campaign in 1972 against Sen. James A. McClure, R-Idaho. In August, 1974, almost two years after the election, the treasurer of Davis' campaign committee wrote to federal officials disclosing that "after paying all bills and reporting all expenditures and " contributions, the amount of $16,903 was turned over to the candidate. The Senate considered legislation to - change the law on Dec. 18, two days before it recessed for the year. With no publicity and no debate, the bill was passed by a voice vote in less than 10 minutes. The measure was presented on the House floor on Dec. 20, the final day of last year's session. After less than 20 minutes of desultory discussion, it was approved by a Referring to surplus campaign contributions, the new law says: "No such w amounts may be converted by any person to any personal use ..

But buried in the middle of the statute is an exemption specially carved out for current members of Congress. It states that the prohibition is inapplicable to those serving in the House and Senate "on the date of the enactment" of the new law.

The only clue to what transpired behind the scenes comes from a cryptic statement inserted in the Congressional Record by . Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., suggesting that the House was unwilling to accept a total prohibition.

"The compromise," said Hatfield, "was necessary to insure passage of (the) bill.

We are throwing away oil

Big Oil is not too big to be moved by

In early January, Exxon and Gulf announced they would not allow their affiliated stations to charge gasohol on company credit cards. The oil companies have been publicly proclaiming themselves in favor of developing and using other forms of energy, yet their instinctive resentment of this competition from alcohol fuel became apparent when they limited its sale by company stations. Some of us publicly lamented those companies' arrogant ineptitude; within a week the companies announced they would accept credit cards for the purchase of gasohol and Texaco announced that it would be selling gasohol at 1,100 stations by early spring.

There is something else we can do to extend our petroleum supplies. We can stop throwing away plastic items made of

But there are some things our nation can do immediately to make more fuel We can use more nuclear energy. We can use more coal. We can use more alcohol And we can stop throwing away oil--in the form of plastics. Most plastics are made from petroleum; 1.5 percent of all petroleum goes into plastics. During the days when oil was $2 a lighters and coffee cups, throwaway flashlights and safety razors. Now that $2 oil is costing us $30 and more. we can no longer afford to throw it away.

Yet we still do. We throw away coffee stirrers and ballpoint pens. We throw away diapers with plastic liners. We throw away the total output of a lot of oil wells when we throw away plastic pop bottles.

Let me say that eventually the cost factor will drive us away from plastic containers and back to glass--made of sand--of which our nation has more than enough. Also, glass containers can be recycled with a

The taxman cometh

This may seem early to be talking about April 15, but it isn't.

You're probably one of the 87.5 million federal income tax-payers to whom the Treasury Department's Internal Revenue Service already has mailed Form 1040, the individual income tax form that will be commonly used for filing 1979 returns.

Don't wait until one day in early April to start preparing to fill out your tax return. You're going to need information for that task, and you're smart to gather the information now.

This year, the forms are slightly different. Most important, from your standpoint, the 1978 Revenue Act which took effect Jan. 1, 1979, has changed the tax

Here are some changes, listed by IRS Commissioner Jerome Kurtz.

-The familiar personal exemption that goes to every taxpayer rises from $750 to $1000. That also applies to the extra personal exemptions for the blind or persons 65 or older.

-Taxable income brackets have been widened, so that it takes more income to push you into a higher tax bracket.

-The gross income levels at which you must file a return have been raised. For example, a married couple (filing a joint return) last April had to file if their 1978 income was $4,700 or higher; this year they'll have to file if their 1979 income was $5,400 or higher

Here are examples of how the changes could affect you.

-A married couple filing a joint return showing a taxable income of $17,000 in 1978 would have had a tax of $2,710 (before any tax credits). On the same taxable income in 1979, the couple's tax would be $2,505 or $205 less than in 1978 (again, without taking credits into account).

-A married couple with a taxable income of $25,000 in 1978 would have had a tax of $4,956 (before credits); on the same taxable income in 1979, the tax would be $4,633 or $323 less than in 1978, without any

Before you cheer, remember, first, that you're likely to have earned more money in 1979 than in 1978, and, second, that your employer has been withholding taxes for you from your paycheck throughout the

The second point suggests a critical step in getting your tax data together: Be sure your employer gives you your Form W-2. which lists your total 1979 pay and the amount withheld. Check to see that it's correct (mistakes are possible) and if you haven't got a W-2 by Feb. 1, ask your local IRS office to jog your employer. If your total 1979 income was $20,000 or less ($40,000 or less if you're married and filing a joint return) and you receive ONLY wages, tips, unemployment compensation and not more than $400 in interest or dividends in the year, you may be able to use Form 1040A. That's much easier to fill out, and you don't have to do the math if you don't want to: Just fill in the data asked on Form 1040A, mail it and IRS will do the math and bill you within 30 days after April

Other changes this year include: -Unemployment compensation payments may be taxable. -Your credit for political contributions has been doubled, so that you can claim half of what you gave, but no more than $50 ($100 if you're married and filing a joint return)

-You get no deductions for state and local gasoline taxes. -Standard mileage for business use of a car or truck has been raised to 18.5 cents a mile for the first 15,000 miles (after which the rate drops back to 12 cents a mile)

If you have questions, the best thing you can do is to phone your local IRS office listed in the phone book under "U.S. Government." Where this is a toll call, there's a toll-free "800" number. You also can write Internal Revenue Service, Room 5577, 1111 Constitution Ave., NW. ngton, DC, 20224, for help.

Federal grand jury indicts 5 suspects

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Five persons have now been charged in connection with two federal grand jury drug indictments that were issued here Tuesday relating to an alleged southwestern Oklahoma Jimmy Birdsong, chief enforcement officer for the Oklahoma Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, said the arrests were made by OBNDD agents and deputy U.S. Marshals.

Federal authorities said two other persons charged in one of the indictments, Jacqueline James, 26, of Stillwater and Gregory Lynn Franklin, 24, of Oklahoma City, are free on federal court bonds posted after they were indicted last month. A spokesman for the U.S. Attorney's office in Oklahoma City said the Tuesday indictment against James and Franklin supercedes the one last month

The defendants charged in a sealed indictment issued Tuesday were identified as George W. Roberson, 47, Donald Duley, 38, Temple Kirby, 36, and Elsie Kirby, 49, all of Altus; and Gerald Butler, 27, of Assistant U.S. District Attorney Mike Ringer said the sealed indictment charged all of the defendants except Franklin and James with distribution of 35 pounds of marijuana, interstate shipment of marijuana from Texas to Stillwater, conspiracy to distribute marijuana and illegal use of the telephone to aid and abet in the distribution of marijuana.

He said Franklin and James are named as unindicted co-conspirators in the sealed indictment.

Ringer said they are also named in a second 16-count indictment charging them with conspiracy to distribute three ounces of cocaine and 35 pounds of marijuana, and illegal use of the telephone to aid and abet in the distribution of drugs.

Birdsong said the indictments and arrests climaxed a six week investigation by OBNDD undercover agents assisted by Jackson County authorities.

Investigators said the marijuana involved was valued at about $11,550 and the cocaine would have sold on the street for $6,600.

ements: I'll veto strike bill

Bill Clements has sent the Texas State Teachers Association a simple message about their 1981 legislative effort to gain teachers the right to bargain collectively and "If the Legislature passes it. I will veto it." Clements said Wednesday while the TSTA outlined its legislative program for reporters elsewhere in the Capitol

"I am absolutely opposed to it and will oppose it in any way I know how. ... I think they (TSTA) are making a mistake. To borrow a phrase. I think they've shot themselves in the conference.

TSTA leaders said their 118,000-member organization is not abandoning its insistence it is not a union, despite the new push for collective bargaining

"We are a professional organization," said president Cecile Russell of Amarillo, who contended this makes TSTA different from the rival Texas, Federation of Teachers.

Major items in TSTA's legislative program are:

- Job security - similar to tenure at colleges - for teachers who satisfactorily probationary period. When lay-offs are necessary, senior teachers would go last.

- Collective bargaining, with teachers receiving a right to select by majority vote an organization to negotiate wages and working conditions with school boards.

- Higher salaries, but the amount of increase TSTA will seek has not been decided. Executive secretary Jim Butler said Texas teachers average $13,038 a year, compared with a national average over $15,000.

- A statewide group health insurance program for teachers and retired teachers that will

"Because many teachers cannot afford or obtain health proposal leans heavily on binding arbitration to resolve impasses with school boards. It opposes strikes that "present a danger to public health or

At a Dallas news conference Tuesday, she said strikes would be useful to upgrade districts with "deplorable" conditions and in "situations where there is a lot of fear and concern on the part of teachers.

She said 70 percent of Texas teachers polled by TSTA support collective bargaining.

Butler said TSTA members will be asked to contribute $12 to the association's political action committee. $9 for legislative candidates and $3 for congressional races

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Gov. Bill Clements says there are ways to keep the federal government from approving a Galveston shipyard as a storage site for nuclear reactor waste.

But he is not revealing his methods. "I could but I won't." he told reporters Wednesday after meeting with U.S. Department of Energy officials. Clements said the federal officials are still considering the Todd Shipyards as a dump site for high-level nuclear waste. The governor, who has expressed concern with the storage of low-level wastes at Todd, said he tried to convince the federal officials he is serious about his opposition.

"There are lots of things I can do and I assure you I will do." to prevent the use of the Todd Shipyards as a dump site, he said. Clements said the federal officials indicated the Texas site is one of about 20 locations, nationwide, that are being considered. However, he said he does not believe the site would meet federal AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The much-discussed special session of the Texas Legislature definitely will be held in August, says Gov.

"I just don't think September is an appropriate date because of the nearness to the general election," Clements tolds newsmen Wednesday. "I'm saying it will be in August. The date will be set later ... I hope it will last less than 30 days."

The National Democratic Convention is scheduled Aug. 11-14 in New York. Normally, many of the Legislature's predominantly Democratic members and the House and Senate leaders attend the national meeting.

Clements has said since the end of the 1979 regular session that he planned to call a special session to consider initiative and referendum, wiretapping for drug control and tax relief.

The Republican govenor. Texas' first in 104 years, gleefully hinted at times he would pick a date as inconvenient as possible for the Democrats.

At first he said it would be March, August or Sepptember. Later, it became August or September, and Wednesday was the first time for him to narrow the date to one month

Clements, obviously pleased by the political filings this week, ppredicted to reporters that Republicans and conservatives will show a definite gain in the 1981 Legislature.

"We will have a more conservative House by at least 15 or more votes," Clements told reporters. "The Senate will have a change of about four on the conservative side

Clements said he "guessed" the 25 GOP state representatives would grow by about 10 after the general election. He said there might be an additional GOP senator added to the current five

On another much-discussed subject, the governor said he is in the process of collecting results of his demands that state agencies reduce payrolls by 5 percent over a two-year period. But I am satisfied we will meet our goal.

He said agencies have "put in some ifs, ands and buts when they passed resolutions (pledging themselves to the 5 percent goal) which is all right with me. so long as we meet our goal.'

On other matters, Clements said: - He agreed with Rep. J.J. "Jake" Pickle, D-Austin, that New Mexico prison inmates should not be sent to Bastrop, as first planned by federal authorities. "That is a low security-type prison and it is questionable it would be suitable for the type of characters just coming out of the New Mexico riot. Bastrop was not intended for that type prisoners."

— He plans to appoint Sen. Bill Braecklein, R-Dallas, to some non-paid volunteer job in state government. Braecklein switched from Democrat to Republican last year, then decided recently not to run for re-election. "I am going to appoint him to something. I am now trying to decide just where we can use him best. He will make a fine contribution to state government as a volunteer,

- He thinks the Texas GOP presidential primary will play an important part in selecting the national Republican presidential nominee. "History says that no Democrat can be elected president without carrying Texas and I don't think any party can win without carrying Texas." he said. "I think Texas will be terribly important to both parties ... I still think we will have about 1 million or 1.2 million in the Republican primary.

- He thinks the Texas State Teachers Association is making a "great mistake" in pushing for legislation that would give teachers the right to strike. "If the legislature passes it. I will veto

To answer your question specifically, yes, fat can be taken off the trunk, including the buttocks, abdomen and thighs. These overhaul jobs are done as part of modern cosmetic surgery. Of course, the fat will usually come right back unless a person has changed his or her living habits to avoid patterns that lead

You may have a couple of other problems which concern me. First, you may have fat inside the abdomen itself, not just under the skin. There's no way you can squeeze . that down with exercises. Your height and weight don't suggest a lot of fat. Second, I'm concerned about the possibility that you may have some osteoporosis.

As the bones become porous and the vertebrae shrink in size or collapse, particularly in women in your age group or older, it literally shortens the spine and usually allows spine to bend forward. That's why you see the buffalo hump in many older women.

The combination of the shortening of the spine and its forward bending causes the abdominal muscles to be

Test yourself on gold's colorful history

NEW YORK (AP) - It's one of the hottest headlines in today's news. It's up, it's down. And it has always intrigued and fascinated mankind.

It is gold The lure of gold and the luxuries and power it promised helped colonize the New World, enslaved the Aztec nation, and sent frantic 49ers to California to strike it rich, notes the Jewelry Industry Council, pointing out that gold is a mainstay of dentistry, the very heart of jewelry manufacturing and important in exploration of outer

But what else do you know about this fabulous yellow metal that is virtually indestructible, yet is the most malleable of all metals? The council offers this quiz:

1. It is believed gold was first discovered: (a) by Aztec tribesmen digging the foundations. for the step pyramid that glorified Montezuma; (b) when alchemists of Queen Aniri of Egypt were commissioned to find a suitable metal for fashioning personal ornaments; (c) when gold nuggets, glittering in river beds, caught the eye of primitive man, who collected them for their beauty.

2. The earliest known single piece of jewelry, discovered by archeologists in 1922, is: (a) an elaborate neckplate worn by young King Tut in the 14th century B.C.; (b) a gold nugget the size of an egg, pierced at the top where a leather thong passed through it so it could be worn around the neck, found in the grave of an unknown Aztec chieftain in Peru, dated about the 16th century; (c) an arm bracelet set with gemstones unearthed in the tomb of Queen Shubad. who reigned in 2000 B.C.; (d) a man's gold signet ring, dating back to the rule of Charlemagne

3. Gold is important to America's space program because: (a) the life cord astronaut Edward White used when he stepped into cosmic space was gold; (b) gold is indestructible and resists chemical decomposition; (c) gold is used in the heat shields worn by spacewalking astronauts.

4. One ounce of gold could be hammered so thin it would cover: (a) 10 square feet; (b) 100 square feet; (c) 1,000 square feet.

5. The same ounce of gold could be stretched in a wire long enough to (a) reach to the top of a regular telephone pole; (b) circle a city block four times; (c) go halfway to Philadelphia from New York. 6. Twenty-four karat gold means: (a) 24 parts of gold to 24 parts of a base metal; (b) pure gold; (c) one 24th of an ounce. 7. Throughout history, alchemists have sought to discover how to make gold. Today, it is possible through nuclear fission, but a bit of gold large enough to fit on a pinhead would-cost a fortune to produce.

It could be made from: (a) lead; (b) coal; (c) radium.

8. The phrase "rich as Croesus" comes from the Lydian king of the fifth century who was incredibly wealthy. He was also noted because: (a) he constructed a gilded bridge with twin towers of gold on the island of Mikonos; (b) his ship of state, the "Golden Swan," was richly encrusted with gold; (c) he was the first to issue paper money, backed by his gold treasury; (d) he issued the first gold coins

10. Early Egyptians used gold signet rings: (a) to denote their rank; (b) to seal important documents so that they could not be opened and read by curious messengers; (c) as one way to carry their wealth in a safe place; (d) as a means of identification when they presented themselves to guards at the royal palace.

MENDING MATURE MARRIAGE

By Louise Pierce

My guess is that everybody who has lived in the Texas Panhandle as long as 10 years has had something valuable blow away in our blustering, flustering wind. It whips us in the daytime and whines us at night.

Lknow we have to respect our brisk breezes because they turned the windmills for early settlers and still do for some modern cattlemen. But we older couples who have been whished and swished by the wind all our lives feel resentful of it when it snatches our poise and our possessions.

You'd better cling to two corners of a filmly scarf in this country, or it's gone. You'd better not open the newspaper until you get inside the house or you'll never recover the pages. As for opening a brief case on the sidewalk - well, I saw a man do it once; he sat down and took turns crying and cussing as his charts and graphs and cancelled checks soared out of

My wind loss was $4 in $1 bills, snatched from my hands on our front porch years ago. It was barely past the Depression and $4 bought quite a lot these days. I stood there bereft, bedraggled and beside myself I learned three things from that frustration. I learned not to sob over spilled milk, not to rehash the tragedy and to profit

It works the same way for older marriage. If a clash occurs between husband and wife (conflict of interest or work or friends or entertainment) that results in a temporary loss of affection, we need to avoid its possible growls and growths. If we over-pout, day after day, we risk ruining our dispositions and driving ourselves and our spouses even farther

Ditto in regard to the rehashing of the overwhelming disappointment. The more we talk about a loss of $4 or $400, the greater it grows. And we start blaming ourselves or our mates, so loudly and long that we end up building a personal wailing wall between us.

The third admonition is to search and find the values in our special wind loss.

My best value, the one I've followed to this day, was using my loss to cover careless spending. Every time I was tempted to buy something I didn't really need after that wind storm, I would argue to myself. You can't buy silly frills because you're $4 in debt to circumstances.

I've saved a lot of money that way. And Otis, who is a liberal spender in contrast to my conservatism, approves heartily. But he believes in getting your money's worth - and in being sure you don't blow it. The difference in us, he says, is that he "invests" money andd I just spend it. I agree, so I hang onto my mad money. Our compatibility continues to prosper. DEAR LOUISE: When your income is low, just Social Security and a moderate pension, how can you spend it without fighting over it? I want new clothes and steak for dinner sometimes and enough money to stay in the clubs I've belonged to ever since we were married 47 years ago. But my stick-in-the-mud husband wants to add to his pipe collection with expensive tobaccos to smoke, fishing gear and shells for hunting season. Which of us should have the say-so? B.B.

DEAR B.B.: You should share it. Your necessities have to come first - rent if you are tenants, taxes and repairs if you are owners, utilities, medical bills and others.

You ought to put a few dollars into savings of some kind, even in retirement, because you may need such a nest egg

When there is money left over - which there usually is, at least a little - you should go 50-50 on spending it. Neither one should get the whole amount. Sharing is essential to happy, continuing marriage, especially for couples our age. We've been with our mates too long to harbor serious quarrels over anything. Write problems to DEAR LOUISE, Box

Q. I am middle-aged and overweight, and I have finally decided to do something about it. Since I take medication for high blood pressure, I need to know if this will interact with the diet pills I can buy without a

A. In one word, yes. Over-the-counter diet pills contain phenylpropanolamine (PPA) in fairly high doses (75 mg or so). This drug can cause a dangerous rise in blood

One study recently reported in the Lancet, a British medical journal, considered the effects of phenylpropanolamine on more than 140 healthy medical students. Blood pressure increased significantly in those receiving the dose available in one non-prescription diet pill; students with the greatest increase in pressure also reported a variety of unpleasant effects, ranging from dizziness to tingling feelings in the head, palpitations, headache, chest tightness, rash, tremor, nausea, lassitude, and ringing in the ears.

The inactive placebo caused neither a substantial increase of blood pressure nor other undesirable effects in the people who

Some medications, especially high blood pressure drugs such as Aldomet (methyldopa), antidepressants like Nardil, Marplan and Parnate, arthritis medicine such as Indocin (indomethacin), and possible oral contraceptives, may increase the risk of a bad reaction to PPA. With your high blood pressure and antihypertensive medicine, you'd be wise to stay away from diet pills and to read the labels on over-the-counter decongestants very carefully. Many of them, including Contac, Sine-aid, Sine-off, and Sinutab, also contain phenylpropanolamine. We applaud your resolve to lose weight, however. Remember, diet pills are meant to be used mostly as "crutches" to overcome the inertia of starting a diet. The most successful programs available use behavioral changes and group support to get you into a sensible eating pattern for the rest of your life. One of these groups can probably help you lose weight without resorting to these diet pills, which hold potential dangers for you.

Q. My 85-year-old neighbor has more energy than anyone on the block. He's fond of saying he maintains his robust good health with onions and garlic, claiming "an onion a day keeps the doctor away." Is there anything to this?

A. There just may be a grain of truth to your neighbor's claim. Though garlic may be best renowned for keeping stray werewolves and vampires away, modern medical research suggests it may also have some more practical uses.

Researchers at George Washington University in Washington, D.C., have found that both onions and garlic can keep red blood cells from sticking together and forming a clot.

Several other studies in India indicate that these pungent roots can decrease blood fats, both cholesterol and triglycerides. Garlic, especially concentrated garlic extract (not garlic powder), may be a bit more effective than onions.

Of course, not everyone who indulges in onion and garlic can expect to live as long as your neighbor. Lowering the level of fat in the blood and reducing the likelihood of blood clots are both likely to help rather than hurt your heart, though. Now it's up to you to decide - is the possible benefit worth the certain risk of keeping friends and associates at a "healthy" distance?

summer job, but for those hoping to earn money in 1980 the time is now. Co-ed magazine offers six useful hints for young people seeking employment.

- Begin looking early. Many of the jobs available to teenagers are seasonal, such as camp counselors and resort waiters and waitresses. As such, they are especially in demand, and the early bird may get the best shot at them, as well as the respect of a potential employer.

Teens: It may seem early to be thinking of finding a

- Do your homework. Homework is not just a fact of school life. A well-prepared interviewee will have researched the company he is visiting and will formulate several thoughtful questions ahead of time.

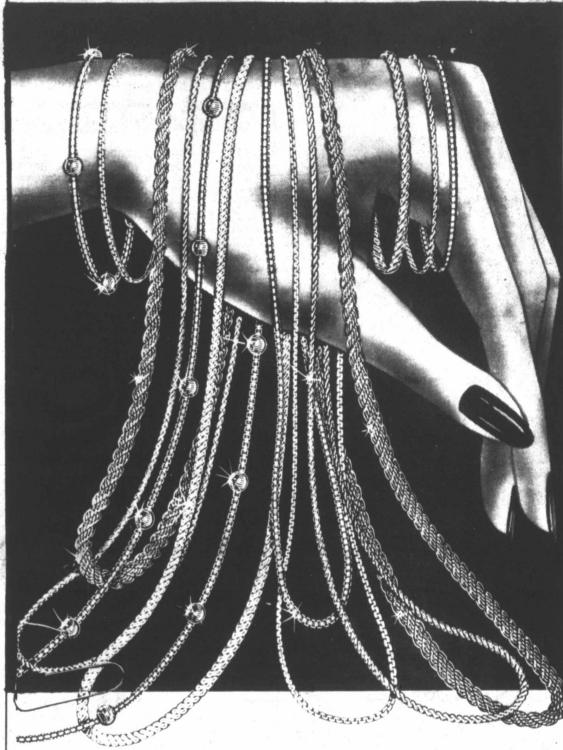

- Check your appearance. Most employers don't expect a teen-ager to walk in with an ultra-short haircut, or in overly conservative clothing. What they do expect, however, is neatness: pressed pants and dresses, combed hair, an appearance of good grooming.

- Watch your manners. Manners mean more than knowing when to say "please" and "thank you." In a job interview situation manners mean offering a firm handshake, looking the interviewer directly in the eye, sitting and standing up straight and speaking clearly.

Don't be shy. The job interview situation is essentially a selling situation. When asked about previous experience, teen-agers too often assume the employer cares only about jobs for which he or she was paid and sell themselves short. But there are countless other areas where a teen-ager may have gleaned valuable experience, such as in work for a school paper, or on student council or baby-sitting a younger brother. Mention anything that might be pertinent.

- Be "upfront." Honesty is absolutely the best policy in the job interview situation. Saying you don't intend to go to college but will work full-time may get you the job initially, but when you leave after three months to start your freshman year, you'll leave behind the possibility of a poor recommendation that will follow you. Be honest about your previous training - or lack of it - your future plans, and whether you've ever been employed by "the competition." Now with all this good info, teens, go get 'em.

Donations flooding USOC

NEW YORK (AP) — As the televised pitch for money goes, "America doesn't send athletes to the Olympic Games; Americans do." And they're still trying. despite President Carter's threat to boycott the Moscow Olympics.

In early and mid-January, Americans were sending money at "a furious rate" to fund the U.S. Olympic team, says an analyst of the U.S. Olympic Committee's fund-raising figures. But Alan Sack, senior vice president of Hub Mail Advertising in Boston, said Wednesday that he noticed some slackening since Jan. 20, when Carter said the Moscow Games should be cancelled, postponed or moved if Soviet troops aren't pulled from Afghanistan by

And Sack admits it's still too early to tell how the boycott threat hanging over the Games will affect future fund-raising efforts, although E. Ray Mueller, the USOC's director of fundraising, says: "As of now, we're on target."

That's partially because Americans didn't slow down when Carter threw up the caution flag Jan. 4, hinting at the possibility of an Olympic boycott for the first time. Even though polls reflected popular opinion in favor of a boycott, Americans sent more money to fund the U.S. Olympic team during January 1980 than they did during the identical period one year ago, Sack said.

Sack's company uses its computer to tally private citizen donations to the USOC. which asked for contributions from 750,000 individuals in letters mailed last October. That total was 35 percent higher than the number of appeals mailed out in October number of donors last month increasd by 66 percent over January 1979, while the amount of money raised jumped 79

Sack said that logic would dictate money being withheld while an American team's participation was in doubt.

Still, the USOC appears in good shape for the months remaining in this Olympic quadrennium. The USOC is some $10-11 million short of the $44 million it estimated was needed to cover the 1977-80 Olympic period. The costs for the actual two Olympic weeks in February in Lake Placid and July in Moscow are expected to account for less than 10 percent of the budget - $950,000 for the Winter Games and $2.4 million for the Summer Games.

McKay to broadcast Olympics again

By FRED ROTHENBERG AP Sports Writer

Since he will be coming into many of your homes for 13 straight nights starting next Tuesday, it might be nice to give you the man behind the makeup - Jim McKay up close and personal.

Next to Johnny Carson, McKay is American television's second most famous host. The Lake Placid Games (Feb. 12-24) will be McKay's ninth Olympics, dating back to 1960 when he worked for CBS in Rome.

Carson began his entertainment career as a magician, which oftens puts him in good stead when he has to make 30 minutes worth of material stretch over an hour and a half. McKay began his career as a police reporter for the Baltimore Sun, which is a superb background when news events like the massacre of 11 Israelis at the

Munich Olympics - play games with

From newspaper work, McKay went to a Baltimore TV station in 1948 to host a three-hour sports show. In those infant days of TV, everything was live. McKay learned early on about the agony of defeat. During sports gaps or technical difficulties. McKay would squirm and apologize. Other times, he would become a song-and-dance

For the past 18 years. McKay has been host of ABC's "Wide World of Sports." What he can do better than anyone else in the business is give viewers a sense and feel for the humanity and atmosphere of an event. He is a terrific story teller, with a recognition that all tales need a beginning, middle and an end.

While McKay has been spanning the globe, his wife, Margaret - a freelance writer - has been at their home in Westport, Conn., raising two children.

"I'm usually home in the middle of the week," he said. "It's a tribute to Margaret that she made it normal for me to be away on weekends and still have a regular home

Margaret is 5-foot-71/2 inches McKay says he is 5-634. McKay gave her back the seat. A courtship started, but not very quickly. It was a full year before McKay asked Margaret for a date. She didn't like sports - and still isn't a big fan - but she accompanied McKay to a Baltimore-San Francisco football game in 1947. They were married in 1948. They have a son, Sean, now a production assistant at NBC Sports. and a daughter, May.

When they're home together, the McManuses don't watch much TV. "The only thing we watch regularly is Lou Grant.

Taiwan refused entry

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) - Athletes from Taiwan, pressing a court suit to call themselves representatives of The Republic of China, continue to seek admission to the Winter Games here despite the International Olympic Committee's refusal to allow them into the Olympic Village.

Meanwhile, an American on the IOC described as ineffective President Carter's call for the United States to stay out of the Summer Games in Moscow unless the Soviet Union ends its occupation of Afghanistan.

And IOC President Lord Killanin arrived here from Ireland to rally opposition to a boycott of the Moscow Games.

The delegation from Taiwan awaited a decision as early as today on a discrimination suit filed by a Taiwanese athlete against Lake Placid Olympics Inc., the operating committee for the Winter

A favorable ruling by New York State Supreme Court Justice Norman L. Harvey could allow Taiwan's entry into the Games under its national flag and anthem, said Taiwan spokesman Timothy Lynch.

An IOC resolution adopted in Japan last fall bars the Taiwanese from using the name China or their traditional flag or anthem.

The People's Republic of China holds China's U.N. seat and for the past year has been recognized by the United States as the government of China. The Nationalist regime on Taiwan no longer has formal nation's status in the international community.

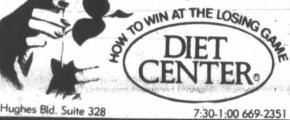

However, the IOC resolution said Taiwan's athletes could compete as a team under a different name, flag and anthem. The Peoples Republic of China is competing in the Games for the first time, and 28 of its athletes were given credentials last week

Transfer rule taken to court

AUSTIN. Texas (AP) — John Sullivan says he might be playing college basketball now - instead of talking to reporters outside a courtroom - if not for a University Interscholastic League transfer rule his family considers unfair.

Sullivan and his family moved from Vermont to Austin in March 1977 when his father was transferred to a new job. The student expected to continue the high school basketball career he began in

However, a UIL transfer rule instituted to prevent recruiting of schoolboy athletes, forced Sullivan to sit out his junior year. He said his interests wandered and he did not go out for the team in his senior

His family sued the UIL, but the case was thrown out by a state district judge here in November 1978.

A Texas Civil Liberties Union lawyer representing the Sullivans argued the case here Wednesday before the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals. Clyde Farrell of Uvalde said the rule — which mandates a one-year ban on playing the same sport a student played at his or her previous school - is unconstitutional because it assumes all transfer Farrell said the UIL has a duty to monitor recruiting, but he said the transfer rule poses an "irrefutable presumption that whenever an athlete moves he was recruited.

Arden Classic opens today

MIAMI (AP) - A $100,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament begins today with a field that includes 20 of the top money winners of 1979. including defending champion Amy Alcott.

The Elizabeth Arden Classic is the second LPGA event of the season, following last week's tournament in Deerfield Beach. Fla., won by JoAnne Carner.

Alcott, who is only 16 days shy of her 24th birthday, has been one of the steadiest golfers on the tour since she turned pro five years ago. She has won nine tournaments and earned $370,000.

Her fascination with the game started early. When I was small I was a cartoon nut." she recalled between practice sessions. After the cartoons, the golf tournaments came on and I loved to watch them. They had a certain mystique. It was a very gentle game, like watching ballet. I was fascinated by it."

Alcott coaxed her mother into buying her a set of cut-down clubs, and by age 9, she was hitting a ball about four hours a

"My dad put a net in the back yard for me to hit into." she said. "We put a sandtrap in the middle of the ivy patch in the front yard. I used soup cans as cups in the yard.

National Basketball Association roundup

By the Associated Press
For openers, Houston's Rick Barry showed seven 3's Wednesday night but he had a pair of aces in the hole that proved fatal to the New Jersey Nets.

Barry set a National Basketball Association record with seven three-point baskets - he tried nine - but it took his pair of free throws with four seconds left to give the Rockets a four-point lead en route to a 115-114 victory over the Nets.

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) - "The bane of my life is the word boycott," says Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee (IOC)

Killanin's comment as he arrived in Lake Placid for the XIII Winter Olympic Games Wednesday night sets the tone for the IOC session this weekend. There is likely to be no support for President Carter's call for next summer's Olympic Games to be moved from Moscow, cancelled or boycotted.

"I think it is very important that we should not be dictated to by governments on where we shall go," Killanin said at a press conference, underlying the traditional role of the Olympic Games as being independent of politics.

Some 76 of the 89 members of the self-elected, self-perpetuating IOC, the ruling body of the Games, are expected for the Lake Placid session. Some have already arrived and have indicated they are backing Killanin and standing firm against Carter's boycott call.

Julian K. Roosevelt, one of the two IOC members from the United States, kept up his campaign to keep the Olympic Games in Moscow, despite the world reaction against the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

"I have heard it said that a boycott of the Olympics would be the strongest weapon we could use against the Russians," Roosevelt said before Killanin arrived. "If that is the strongest thing we can do, we

"The United States would be a bunch of cowards if we stayed home. The only way we can stand up to the Soviets is to go over there and beat them in Moscow this summer

Killanin plans to meet Friday with Robert Kane and Col. F. Donald Miller, president and secretary, respectively, of the U.S. Olympic Committee, which has promised to pass on Carter's call for moving or cancelling the Games.

Killanin told the news conference he is ready to let Kane and Miller go before the full session of the IOC, although he has said repeatedly he Games cannot be moved from Moscow.

Buffalo Lake Dam to be discussed at public hearing

United States Fish and Wildlife Service will hold a public meeting to discuss future plans for the dam at Buffalo Lake National Wildlife

The meeting will be held at 7 p.m. April 22 in Room 101 of the Science Building at West Texas State University in Canyon.

After a series of inspections over a 20-year period (with 3 in 1978), the Fish and Wildlife Service, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Water and Power Resources Services (formerly) the Bureau of Reclamation), and the Texas Department of Water Resources found the dam's spillway to be inadequate and unsafe. Acting on this information, the Fish and Wildlife Service began draining Buffalo Lake in September, 1978.

In studying the dam's safety problems, the Service identified five alternative solutions, ranging from no action to breaching the dam. Public safety, water availability and quality, cost and impact on flood control below the dam were considered in each alternative. The Fish and Wildlife Service will summarize its study of the alternatives at the meeting and will answer questions.

Hayes paroled by Governor

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Bob Hayes will get out of prison next month after an 11-month stay.

The former Dallas Cowboy wide receiver and Olympic gold medalist, serving five years for cocaine delivery, was granted a parole by Gov. Bill Clements, who signed the order.

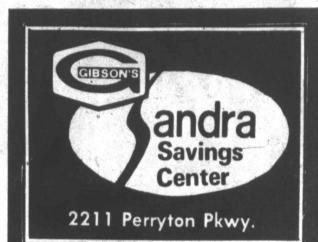

"I wrote him that I did so with a real sense of anticipation, that with his experiences now, both bad and good, he could be a great influence on young people, not only in Texas but in the entire country." the governor said Wednesday at a news conference.

Clements said he has read reports that Hayes plans to work with the Rev. Jesse Jackson's youth programs, but said he could not verify those reports personally.

Hayes will be eligible for release in March, according to a spokesman for the state Board of Pardons and Paroles, who said board members would determine the exact release date.

Hayes has served 10 months of his five-year sentence for delivering cocaine to an undercover officer. The board had recommended Hayes for parole in early January, and Clements' staff concurred earlier this week. The governor said his decision to sign the parole was consistent with similar cases and Hayes got no special consideration.

Social workers, courts must gamble: losers are battered; dead children

LONDON (AP) -Fourteen-month-old Malcolm Page died hungry, cold and rotting with gangrene in an unheated bedroom. His parents were sentenced to one year in iail for neglect

Claire Haddon was not yet six weeks old when she died of a fractured skull. Her father was sentenced to life imprisonment for her murder

In both cases, social workers knew the babies were in trouble. but decided it was best to keep them with their parents - a "gamble with death." as the British press is calling it.

"It was not that no one cared." wrote the London Daily Mail. which accused the social workers of "arrogant complacency

They palpably did. It was that no one was prepared to move from what the textbooks teach and what ordinary common sense and experience

British legislators are demanding a public inquiry into the handling of the cases, both of which were tried in January. Several members of Parliament are pushing for a welfare services shake-up.

The English incidents bring to mind the case in Tennessee of 4-year-old Melisha Gibson, who was tortured and beaten with a baseball bat before her lifeless body was found on Oct. 13, 1976. Her stepfather. Ronald Maddux, and mother. Wanda Maddux, had served brief terms for abusing her when she was 11 months old. Social workers returned Melisha to the home five months before her death.

The Madduxes were sentenced to 99 years in prison for murder. A new state law requires approval of the Tennessee human services commissioner before an abused child may be returned to

But social workers in Britain. unless armed with court warrants. have no powers to demand anything for a problem family. Some say their main priority is to keep the family together. That policy is at the heart of the controversy.

Despite 48 visits from the Essex County Social Services · Department, Malcolm had been so neglected he was near death when finally brought to a hospital.

Five of his toes were gangrenous. His legs were purple with ulcers. The rest of his body was covered in sores and burst blisters, and the thin romper suit he was wearing was soaked in urine.

He had lain on a stinking mattress in an unheated bedroom during Britain's coldest winter in 10 years. The baby died of hypothermia and malnutrition, said prosecutor Kenneth Zucker

The Pages pleaded guilty to cruelly neglecting Malcolm and to willfully neglecting their 2-year-old daughter. Suzanne. They pleaded innocent to charges of manslaughter in Malcolm's death

Suzanne and the other Page children, including an infant born after Malcolm died, are now in foster homes, but British legislators want to know why they were not removed from their parents' care sooner.

We believed the Pages loved their children and that they were in no emotional danger. said social services director Maurice Hawker. "We felt the children were in no physical danger. We were wrong and naturally we regret it."

The evidence presented in court portrayed the Pages as a deeply troubled couple whose children became their victims. Social workers first became concerned in 1978 after some minor problems.

The family had no beds, although Page brought home $160 a week as a storeman. The Pages slept on the floor of a filthy house. Malcolm's diapers had not been changed for days. In May 1978, the agency decided to place the children in foster homes. But when the Pages cleaned their house, the agency decided to return the children.

"It became a proper home. one where the family could live as a unit." said Susan Riches, 24. the social worker on the

In the end, it wasn't enough The judge was openly critical of the social workers, but the Essex County staff denied they were to blame.

"I have no reason to feel guilty." Miss Riches said after the trial. "There is nothing on my conscience

In the Haddon case, social workers in Birmingham had several warnings the parents were not fit to care for their daughter. But they decided to allow the child to stay at home. The girl died on Feb. 18, 11 days after Malcolm Page. A pathologist said at the trial that it appeared she had been picked up by the legs and swung against a wall. Robert Haddon, 23, was sentenced to life in prison. The mother, whose name was not released because of her age only 15 when Claire died pleaded guilty to causing the girl grievous bodily harm. The mother first came to the Department's attention as a 13-vear-old truant. At 15, she was found living with Haddon in a squalid one-room flat whose toilet was a bucket in the middle of the floor. She had become pregnant.

The baby was born on Jan. 9. 1979. Although social workers knew the state of the flat, they decided to permit mother and child to return. They said they didn't want to break up the mother's relationship with Haddon because it gave her "stability

"A decision was made, and a carefully taken decision, that these two people had one thing each other's care and concern," the social services department told the court. "The decision was made not to attempt to break up the relationship but to support it."

On Jan. 24, a health services official called on the Haddons. She found Claire lying wet and into a foster home. But the social services department maintained the baby was well fed and warm. She was killed 25 days later

Cutter crew member: radar missed tanker

TAMPA. Fla. (AP)- A navigator aboard the Coast Guard cutter Blackthorn says the "radar was finely tuned" but failed to pick up a huge oil tanker looming ahead moments before a collision that killed 23 sailors Quartermaster Jeffrey Huse. 27, spent eight hours before investigators Wednesday recounting the shocked slience among Blackthorn officers when they realized collision with the SS Capricorn was imminent the moonlit night of Jan. 28.

Huse was scheduled to return to the witness stand today, the seventh day of a federal inquiry into the Coast Guard's worst peacetime disaster Huse said all systems had been checked out before the Blackthorn

Huse said he'd been taking navigational measurements as the Blackthorn puttered beneath the Sunshine Skyway Bridge to the deep waters of the Gulf of Mexico.

'Windfall profits' tax distribution undecided

WASHINGTON (AP) - A House-Senate conference committee. after scoring a major breakthrough on President Carter's "windfall profits" tax on the oil industry, is trying to decide if part of the money should finance an income tax cut for individuals.

A path for final action on the tax bill was cleared Wednesday when the conferees broke a two-week stalemate and agreed that the tax on the oil industry should remain in effect at least until Sept. 30, 1990.

Still to be decided is an unrelated amendment, aimed at stimulating Americans to save and invest more. It would let an individual avoid income taxes on up to $201 a year - $400 for a couple - in interest and dividends

Aides to the conference committee have proposed a spending package that would ticket at least $85 billion for individual tax cuts in the 1980s, with the first installment in October 1981.

The proposal also envisions federal aid of at least $4 billion a year to help lower-income Americans cope with rising energy costs, and to provide incentives for energy conservation, development of non-oil energy sources and money for improving the nation's transportation

Although the Carter administration backs the energy-related incentives, it opposes any tax cut now because of fear it would fuel

The staff recommendation for income tax cuts would replace non-binding language in the Senate-passed bill designed to pave the way for a freeze in Social Security taxes next year. That provision was sponsored by Sen. William Roth, R-Del., who also is the most persistent advocate of income tax cuts.

Senate conferees, most of whom favor a comparatively weaker tax as a spur to greater domestic oil production, wanted the tax to expire as soon as it produces $227.3 billion in revenue.

But House delegates said that would give U.S. oil companies and the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries an incentive for sharp increases in crude oil prices over the next few years, since such action would hasten expiration of the tax. The House wanted parts of the tax to be permanent. But House conferees accepted the compromise after Sen. Russell B. Long. D-La.: chairman of the committee, cautioned that it "is about as good a deal as can be worked out."

The compromise would begin phasing out the tax in January 1988 or as soon as the $227.3 billion is raised, whichever is later. The tax would decrease by 3 percent until it ceased to exist.

The "windfall" tax is tied directly to oil prices - the more quickly oil prices increase, the more revenue it produces. The committee is ming prices will increase above today's $30-per-barrel level by 2 percent a year, plus the rate of inflation.

Court upholds Stacy Dam

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) -State District Judge Herman Jones says he still has some questions about the Texas Water Commission's decision to allow the construction of the Stacy Dam but he found no reason to overturn the commission

Jones upheld the permit Wednesday for the $60 million Colorado River dam and reservoir that would provide water for several

West Texas cities Downstream interests... including the Lower Colorado River Authority and the city of Austin water supplies to Central

But he added. "I am not able to say they are without substantial evidence to support them or that they are contrary to law. Hence. (the commission) order is

The permit was granted last year after prolonged hearings before the water commission. LCRA was joined by others in the court

The dam is planned for 26 miles southeasy of Ballinger. The Colorado River Municipal Water District, which was granted the provide water - mostly for drinking purposes - to San Angelo, Big Spring, Midland, Odessa. Snyder and Stanton.

LCRA attorneys argued the dam and reservoir would "export" West Texas' water shortages to Central Texas. The LCRA and city of Austin have claimed the dam would divert 36 billion gallons of water a year from communities below the dam.

Bandidos inserted into lineup

SAN ANTONIO. Texas (AP) - Two unidentified persons have viewed a police lineup that included Bandidos Motorcycle Club members named as suspects in the 1978 attempted slaying of a federal prosecutor, according to sources and observers. Federal authorities refused any comment on the lineup. They had summoned the Bandidos to appear Wednesday before a federal grand jury investigating the unsolved case.

James Gillespie. attorney for two of the Bandidos, said his clients and three other "alleged" members of the club took part in the seven-man lineup. But Gillespie and other attorneys were barred from the viewing room.

An unidentified woman and a man, not known to be connected to the case, were observed being escorted into the lineup room by federal agents and prosecutors.

Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr viewed a police lineup last March and selected two Bandidos and a former Bandido as closely resembling those who attempted to kill him Nov. 21, 1978, according to FBI documents released in court last year.

An assailant firing from the back window of a stolen van riddled Kerr's auto with bullets as the prosecutor drove to work. Kerr, 38, who had been heavily involved in drug investigations, escaped serious injury by ducking behind the dashboard.

There have been no arrests in the case. The federal investigation has centered on the Bandidos, but all members of the club linked to the case deny any knowledge of the attack.

Kerr underwent hypnosis before viewing the lineup to heighten his memory of the attemped assassination.

According to an FBI affadavit released in court, Kerr said Bandido Steve "Boo Boo" Barbour was the driver of the van and said the gunman appeared to be either Bandido Richard Paul Ricks or former Bandido Timothy Kenneth Larson.

FBI Special Agent Gregg Van de Loo has testified that Larson is 'a prime suspect' in the case. The agent also testified that an FBI informant said he had been asked by Bandidos to help kill Kerr. Sources said Barbour and Ricks were among those in Wednesday's lineup. Larson, who is serving a three-year prison sentence for a federal firearms conviction, was brought to San Antonio after being summoned to appear Wednesday before the grand jury. But federal officials did not ask Larson to take part in the lineup or go before the grand jury, said his attorney, Charles Butts. Numerous Bandidos and their associates have testified before the grand jury, which is also investigating the unsolved assassination last May 29 of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr.

Former Cowboy star gets parole in March AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Next month, Bob Hayes will get out of

The former Dallas Cowboy wide receiver and Olympic gold medalist, serving five years for cocaine delivery, was granted a parole when Gov. Bill Clements signed the order.

"I wrote him that I did so with a real sense of anticipation that with his experiences now, both bad and good, he could be a great influence on young people, not only in Texas but in the entire country." the governor said at an afternoon newsconference. Clements said he has read reports that Hayes plans to work with the Rev. Jesse Jackson's youth programs, but said he could not verify those reports personally.

Hayes will be eligible for release in March, according to a spokesman for the state Board of Pardons and Paroles who said board members would determine the exact release date. Hayes has served 10 months of his five-year sentence for delivering cocaine to an undercover officer. The board had recommended Hayes for parole in early January, and Clements' staff concurred earlier this week. Clements said Wednesday he had discussed the matter with Texas Department of Correctios director W.J. Estelle, who called Hayes a "model prisoner" and performed very well while in The governor said his decision to sign the parole was consistent with similar cases and Hayes got no special consideration.
