Texan ready for trek to Alaska

PORT ISABEL, Texas (AP) — After a 550-mile warm-up, Dallas businessman Thomas Gaddie is ready for his 11,000-mile horseback ride to Alaska and into the record books.

Gaddie closed his fireplace repair shop to realize a 20-year dream of riding cross country.

He planned to set out today from the surf of South Padre Island, taking with him a jar of water from the Gulf of Mexico. By June or July, he expects to be looking at the Arctic Ocean and Prudhoe Bay.

"There are few countries left in the world where a person could realize a goal like this," he said Wednesday.

Gaddie, 56, rode to the southernmost tip of Texas to claim the Gulf as his starting point and to assure that his feat — if completed — is the longest horseback ride on record.

A Spaniard reportedly traveled 10,000 miles from Buenos Aires to Washington, D.C., in the 1920s.

Gaddie arrive in Port

Isabel Tuesday and is camping out on land to be used as a future city park.

Although he looks the part of a weathered cowboy riding the range, his trip combines the comforts of home with some slick public relations.

Twelve others are traveling with him in motorhomes and trailers, including one designated the "bunkhouse" for single hands. The "chuckwagon" is a trailer outfitted with a large booth, grill and appliances.

Gaddie's son, Rockie, hired a Dallas public relations firm to put together a sophisticated four-color press kit of the world's greatest horseback ride.

Rockie Gaddie estimates the trip will cost $250,000, so he formed the Texas Big 'Un Inc. to finance the trek with savings, loans and hopefully, sponsors.

He and his father have asked Chrysler Corp. to sponsor the troupe and its Chrysler fleet of vehicles. So far they've had no answer back.

Colombian government until 10 p.m. EST Thursday to meet their demands for $50 million and the release of more than 300 political prisoners, but earlier today lifted the deadline and said they would release all women and two wounded hostages.

Guerrillas to release women, wounded hostages

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Leftist guerrillas holding the U.S. ambassador to Colombia and some 60 other hostages at the Dominican Republic Embassy said today they would release all women and two wounded hostages. But they warned they were ready for a long siege.

Earlier, a Colombian Cabinet minister said the guerrilla band lifted a 10 p.m. EST deadline it had set for the government to meet its demands — $50 million, the release of 311 political prisoners, publication of an anti-government manifesto in major foreign newspapers, and safe passage out of the country.

The guerrillas have threatened to kill their hostages, who include U.S. Ambassador Diego Asencio, the papal nuncio to Colombia and at least 14 other ambassadors or acting ambassadors, and several Colombian diplomats.

Approximately 25 women and 35 men were taken captive when the 30 raiders stormed into the Dominican mission during a noon diplomatic reception Wednesday.

A guerrilla spokesman, contacted by telephone by The Associated Press late this morning, said two wounded hostages were being freed at that moment and the women would follow. The guerrillas had said Wednesday the acting Paraguayan ambassador and another unidentified civilian were wounded.

The guerrillas, members of the M-19 guerrilla organization, also said one of their men was killed, and the government said three policemen were wounded.

The guerrilla gang's leader, "Commander No. 1," told The Associated Press by telephone, "We are prepared to remain here one or two months if necessary. It all depends on whether the government wants to negotiate or not."

The Cabinet minister, who asked not to be identified, also said the mediation efforts of Rafael Vasquez, a former foreign minister and head of the Colombian Human Rights Defense Commission, had ended, but he did not explain why.

The official did not say what the next steps would be in negotiations with the 30 guerrillas.

The hostages included U.S. Ambassador Diego Asencio, the papal nuncio to Colombia and at least 14 other ambassadors or acting ambassadors, and several Colombian diplomats.

The guerrillas said one of their men was killed and the Paraguayan ambassador and another unidentified person were wounded. The government said three policemen were also wounded.

"We are prepared for victory or death," the leader of the guerrillas, "Comandante Numero Uno," told a reporter. "We are demanding that the government meet certain conditions if it wishes to save the lives of important diplomats. If there is no agreement, everyone will leave here as corpses."

However, he refused to say what would happen if the government did not meet his deadline.

"This is a supposition and we are not dealing with suppositions," he said. But he added that they had pistols, rifles, grenades, bombs and abundant ammunition.

"The situation here is calm," U.S. Ambassador Diego S. Asencio told a reporter by telephone Wednesday night. "They are treating us well and we are awaiting the arrival of a negotiating commission from the government."

The government sent one negotiator, former Foreign Minister Alfredo Vasquez, a critic of the government's anti-guerrilla tactics. He met with the guerrillas in the embassy for nearly two hours, then went to President Julio Cesar Turbay's palace to discuss their demands.

Twenty-six men and four women dressed in athletic togs burst into the embassy with guns blazing during a reception on the Dominican Republic's independence day. Bodyguards of the ambassadors, some inside the two-story and some outside, returned the fire, but the invaders succeeded in taking over the building.

The embassy, which also doubles as the residence of Dominican Ambassador Diogenes Mayil Burgos, was surrounded by a small army of police and soldiers armed with automatic weapons and tear-gas grenades and wearing bulletproof vests. An armored car also was brought into the area.

Windfall profits tax slated for passage by mid-March

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $227.3-billion "windfall" tax on the oil industry — a compromise congressional negotiators took two months to hammer out — is awaiting formal approval in the House and Senate. The Carter administration says the final bill is landmark legislation.

It earmarks about $136 billion, or 60 percent of the revenue the tax would produce in the 1980s, for across-the-board income-tax cuts for individuals and corporations. Any tax cut — which would have to be approved by Congress in a separate bill — could take effect as early as Oct. 1.

The last difference between Senate and House versions was worked out Tuesday night when the conferees agreed on a formula to provide some $57 billion to help lower-income families pay soaring fuel bills.

The rest of the measure's projected revenue would finance energy programs and improvements in the nation's transportation system.

Attached to the bill is a major new tax break aimed at encouraging savings in 1981 and 1982. It would allow a couple to avoid federal income taxes on the first $400 ($200 for individuals) earned each year from interest and dividends.

The bill gave President Carter only 78 percent of the tax he had sought and slashed considerably his request for energy-development money. Nevertheless, Assistant Treasury

Secretary Gene Godley called the bill "one of the most significant pieces of domestic legislation approved during this administration."

"It will take about 10 days for congressional aides to put the terms of the compromise on paper. The bill then goes to the House and Senate for ratification. Despite the opposition of some oil-state lawmakers and conservatives, it is expected to be ready for Carter's signature by mid-March.

DECA group takes top trophy -- again

The Pampa DECA chapter was the outstanding chapter at an area conference conducted in Wichita Falls recently, taking the traveling trophy for the third consecutive year.

More awards were won by the Pampa group than any of the 55 other chapters attending the meeting, and the area Outstanding Chapter Traveling Trophy will now become the permanent property of the chapter, as state rules say that when a chapter wins the trophy for three consecutive years, the chapter may keep it.

The Pampa DECA chapter is the first chapter to win the trophy for three consecutive years since the DECA area was formed in 1972.

Pampa also was the first chapter to win the trophy, winning it in 1972.

Students taking honors in area competition are:

—Jerry Little, third place, petroleum series event.

—Karen Meador, third place, advertising services event and first place in selling advertising.

—Phil Nelson, third place, food service series event.

—Mark David, second place, food marketing writing event.

—Lisa Schaub, second place, apparel and accessories written event.

Those who won first place in area competition and who will be competing in state-wide competition in Houston March 13-16, are:

—Nickita Kadingo, first place, apparel and accessories series.

—Debi Wilkinson, first place, food marketing series event.

—Lisa Schaub, first place, free enterprise project (chapter).

—Kim Gattis, first place, creative marketing project.

—Tena Cotham, first place, general merchandise written event.

—Shelly Anderson, first place, finance and credit written event.

As an added accolade for the chapter, Pampa DECA member Karen Meador was elected to the office of Area IV secretary-reporter.

Amarillo man interested in track

Rail customers of the now defunct Rock Island Railroad in the Texas panhandle must make a decision soon on interim service in eight counties. That's the substance of a meeting sponsored by the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission in Amarillo Tuesday, according to Wayne Hughes, spokesman for the commission.

Hughes said the 41 businesses who regularly use the 385-mile of Rock Island track have one immediate priority—to pool their resources and find a short-term operator for the line that now serves them.

As of March 23, the Kansas City Terminal Company will no longer be required to provide that service under terms of the Rock Island bankruptcy, Hughes said.

He said if service is interrupted for any length of time, area farmers could have great difficulty in getting their crops out of the elevators and out on the market.

"Over the long range, it could spell economic disaster for a large number of farmers and have immediate consequences for at least two manufacturing concerns — Ashland Chemical Company in Wheeler County and Continental Carbon in Moore County," Hughes said.

He said one private short-line rail operator has shown interest in the interim operation of the vacated Rock Island track and Amarillo businessman B. R. Barfield also has shown a willingness to get involved in a short-term arrangement.

"But Barfield is more concerned with the long-term functioning of the Texas panhandle right-of-way," Hughes said.

"He wants to buy the track that runs from Tucuman, N.M., to Oklahoma City, Edder to Morse, and Stinnett to Liberal, Kan., and operate that as a short-haul railroad," Hughes said.

He said whether Barfield succeeds or not, depends on the outcome of a feasibility study commissioned by the shippers and contracted by the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission at the first of February.

Hughes said assuming the recommendations from the study are positive, work could begin to allow Barfield to go ahead with his plan.

Cotham. The chapter has won the Outstanding Chapter Traveling Trophy for the third consecutive year and now may keep the trophy permanently. State winners will be going to competition in Houston in March.

Disease strikes more children

BY SHEILA ECCLES
Of The Pampa News

Monday, Feb. 4, Russell Moore age 12, of Lovington, New Mexico, came down with a simple case of the flu.

Thursday, Feb. 7, acute vomiting caused the Moore family to become concerned.

Friday, Feb. 8, a doctor confirmed it was the flu and gave medication for relief.

Saturday, Feb. 9, no relief for the boy and appendicitis was considered as the problem.

Sunday, Feb. 10, the child was transferred to the Lubbock Health Science Hospital where the symptoms of the little known Reyes Syndrome were recognized.

Monday, Feb. 11, Russell was given massive doses of tranquilizers to keep him almost comatose. His kidneys failed.

Tuesday, Feb. 12, the kidney machine keeping him alive was no longer able to help.

Wednesday, Feb. 13, Russell's 13th birthday, four doctors worked to keep the boy alive. Finally succeeding in getting some response, Russell was able to sit up.

Thursday, Feb. 14, symptoms reoccurring. Internal bleeding caused by medication resulted in ulcerating the boy's stomach.

Friday, Feb. 15, Russell was put back on all life supporting systems.

Saturday, Feb. 16, surgery for the ulcers had to be performed.

Sunday, Feb. 17, Russell was responding, not able to speak, but moving.

Monday, Feb. 18, doctors saw that Russell had survived the disease. Only four out of the seven Reyes Syndrome patients admitted to the Lubbock Hospital in the last two years had survived.

Tuesday, Feb. 26, Russell is home in Lovington. Alive, and doing as well as can be expected. His future remains uncertain.

The above is a true, but grim reminder of the disease once considered rare. Reyes Syndrome has been appearing across the country with alarming regularity.

Reyes syndrome is a non-communicable disease of unknown cause, according to a report from the National Reyes Syndrome Foundation in Denver, Colo., the report adds.

It usually follows a viral illness such as the flu or chickenpox. It can no longer be considered rare but rather a little known disease that is devastating and frequently fatal.

The disease typically develops in a previously healthy child following a viral illness.

To recognize the disease, it is important for parents to watch carefully for the early symptoms. Persistent, uncontrollable vomiting is the first sign. The temperature may be normal. Sleep is the main response in the child. Infants do not vomit. The child will appear to be cranky.

There is no way to prevent Reyes Syndrome. Time and early recognition are the only tools a parent has. Concern can start when vomiting continues over a 24-hour period, especially if there is any change in alertness.

Do not give any anti-nausea medications.

Don't panic — Reyes occurs in only a small percentage of children.

Contact a physician immediately, or go to an emergency room.

Explain your concern about Reyes Syndrome. Have the appropriate tests done.

There is no one test that proves the diagnosis of R.S. A history of the illness in combination with abnormal liver tests, make the presumptive diagnosis.

To confirm the diagnosis, other tests may have to be performed.

There is no cure, for R.S. treatment requires hospitalization and intensive care.

The cause is unknown, but it is thought that several factors may interact and result in R.S.

R.S. is not contagious. It follows a viral infection, which is contagious. Even when all the children in one family have the same virus, only one (if any) may get the disease.

It is impossible to know how many cases of R.S. are occurring each year.

Reyes Syndrome occurs during all months of the year. However, it appears with more frequency during January to March when influenza is most common.

During the peak of the flu season last year, Michigan reported that 48 children contracted the disease.

Only one case of Reyes Syndrome has been reported in Pampa in the last year.

Russell Moore is the nephew of Mrs. Ruby Pruet of Pampa. She feels that he was one of the lucky ones. "Awareness is the key. Some doctors are just now becoming acquainted with the disease," she said.

"Russell was athletic. He has a good chance of recovering without any permanent damage. Only time will tell," she added.

By The Associated Press
Dense fog cut visibility to near zero along portions of the Texas coast and prompted the National Weather Service to issue travelers advisories for the Houston area.

The fog was reported along the coast from near Corpus Christi to Beaumont. Visibility was near zero in the Alice area and down to about one-fourth of a mile at Corpus Christi and Palacios. Visibility was less than a mile along most of the middle and upper coast.

NATIONAL

Snow fell over much of the upper Midwest early today and more was expected as rain dampened the already sodden West Coast.

Showers were forecast for today from northern California and the Pacific Northwest across the Rockies and into Montana. Snow was expected for North Dakota, the Great Lakes and into the northern Atlantic Coast states, and rain mixed with snow was likely in South Dakota today.

Snow fell early today from North Dakota into the Great Lakes region. Travelers advisories for more snow were in effect for

FORECAST for Friday
The National Weather Service forecast calls for snow in a broad band from Montana southeast into Oklahoma and northern Texas. Flurries were expected over eastern Michigan and parts of Ohio, Pennsylvania and western New York. Rain was predicted for northern California and over much of Texas and Louisiana and adjacent area, according to the forecast. (AP Photo)

Some high clouds were reported over the Lower Rio Grande Valley before dawn, but the rest of the state had clear skies and quite mild temperatures.
Forecasts called for continued fair skies and warm temperatures statewide. Highs were to be mostly the 70s and 80s.
Only one reporting point in Texas had a pre-dawn reading below freezing. That was at Marfa in the mountains of Southwest Texas. Early morning readings were in the 40s in West Texas and the 50s and 60s over the remainder of the state.

parts of Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana and New York.
Temperatures around the nation before dawn ranged from 3 below zero in Houlton, Maine, to 63 in Key West, Fla., and San Diego, Calif. Other reports:
Eastern U.S. — Atlanta 44 fair, Boston not available, Cincinnati 27 snow, Cleveland 21 cloudy, Detroit not available, Miami 58 cloudy, New York 24 clear, Philadelphia not available, Pittsburgh 20 cloudy, Washington 32 cloudy.

Area cattlemen nix Beferendum

DENVER (AP) — A national referendum aimed at collecting a $40 million war chest to promote beef apparently has failed, the National Cattlemen's Association says.
Cattlemen in all 50 states voted, beginning Feb. 19, on the proposal in which about 20 cents per $100 worth of beef sold would go into a fund for beef research, promotion and foreign market development.
The program was designed to raise about $40 million for the promotion program, the U.S. Agriculture Department estimated.

Officials from the Gray County Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service office have officially verified and reported the votes on the beferendum issue.

Officials said 131 votes were cast in Gray County. Cattlemen voting "yes" totaled 45, and 86 cattlemen voted "no".

Ballots were counted Wednesday at county offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. The county offices were to send their results to state offices today, and those were to be forwarded to the USDA on Friday.

The USDA was to announce the official results on Monday.
Roger Berglund, vice president of communications for the National Cattlemen's Association based in Denver said a poll of scattered ASCS county offices on Wednesday indicated that the so-called "beferendum" will lose.

Candidates file for school board

Three local citizens have filed as candidates for places on the Board of Trustees of the Pampa Independent School District.
Phil Vanderpool of 2132 N. Russell, a local attorney is running for the two-year unexpired term of Al Smith on Place Four, according to Dwan Walker, School - city tax assessor-collector.
Another attorney, Kenneth Fields of 1024 Mary Ellen, is vying for the Place Five seat on the Board presently held by Bill Arrington.
Arrington has announced he will not seek re-election. Fields is currently holding Place Four after being appointed by board members to serve in place of Smith.

Buddy Epperson of 1714 Dogwood, the incumbent on Place Six, has announced he will run for re-election to the position. He now serves as secretary for the board of trustees.

Two candidates have filed for the city commission seats, City Secretary Pat Eads said.

Coyle Ford of 1947 Grape, commissioner for Ward II, has filed for re-election, she said.

Edward G. Moultrie of 525 S. Gray St. has filed for the Ward IV commission seat, presently held by Linden (Butch) Shepherd.

Shepherd, a commissioner for almost six years, announced earlier this year his decision to not seek re-election.

Filing for city offices is open until March 5.

School Board candidates can file at Carver Educational Center, 321 W. Albert and those seeking a place on the city commission may file at the Finance Office in City Hall.

Elections for the city and school offices will be conducted on April 5.

No sign of Texas family plane as CAP searches

TAOS, N.M. (AP) — It's dangerous even to walk through some areas of the rugged mountains northeast of Taos, much less fly a plane, says a Civil Air Patrol spokesman Nelson Cournoyer.
The CAP was continuing its search today in that area of northern New Mexico for a missing single-engine plane with five members of a Texas family aboard. The plane disappeared a week ago.

Mission coordinator Bob Klaier said searchers were rechecking areas in which they had the best leads earlier. And he said CAP planes from Colorado were checking out a new lead southwest of Pueblo, Colo.

Public meeting concerning conservation future tonight

The future of the Soil and Water Conservation Program, as outlined in the Resources Conservation Act (RCA) of 1977, will be discussed when persons interested in future programs will convene today at 7:30 p.m. in the Courthouse Annex, Highway 60 East, Pampa.

The general public has until March 28 to submit comments about their desires on what type soil and water conservation programs are desired in the future. It is very important for local people to express their desires and opinions about the future conservation programs, according to local conservation organizations.

Summaries of public hearings and proposed future alternative solutions have been compiled and are available for public review through March 28.

The booklets are available for public review in the Soil Conservation office in the Annex.

The meeting tonight will focus on the positive aspects of comments by local citizens on the future of soil and water programs.

School board abbreviates meeting; covers agenda

The Pampa Independent School Board of Trustees met recently in what was described as a "record - breaking meeting" lasting 17 1/2 minutes in order to quickly go through business so members could attend the high school basketball game.

Due bills and invoices were approved by members after a brief discussion.
School superintendent Bob Phillips reported to the board on the current budget status.

"The budget is in line with the revenues dissipated and expenditures as budgeted," he said.

Dwan Walker, city - school tax assessor-collector, pointed out the adjustment on a levy on the automobile of Donald McCain for 117,021.75.

"Sometimes," he said, "these leave us red in the face."

The adjusted tax was for $21.75.
McCain never called to report the error, he said.

The tax roll adjustments were also approved by board members.
Curriculum reports for the gifted - talented program, semester plan, Texas Assessment of Basic Skills, and the self - study report were tabled until the next meeting.

In final action, board members approved the extension of the following contracts for another year:

Andy Andrews as assistant principal at Pampa High School; Jane Steele as PHS assistant principal; Raymond Thornton as assistant principal at Pampa Middle School; Arlene Gibson as reading coordinator; Don Nelson as vocational supervisor; Betty Tom Graham as math coordinator; Frances Walls, elementary library coordinator; Jerry Pope, special education supervisor and Jerry Haralson, business manager.

Republican women to host State Federation officers

The Texas Federation of Republican Women in Gray County will be host Mrs. Cathy Smyth of Dallas, president of the Federation, and Mrs. Beulah Childress of San Antonio, vice president.
The officers will be honored at a tea, to be held in conjunction with the regular meeting Friday at 2:30 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Scott Nisbet, 2511 Mary Ellen.

Mrs. Smyth was elected at the state convention held in October, 1979. She had been active in the organization for several years. Mrs. Childress and Mrs. Smyth are touring the state and will attend a brunch in Amarillo on Saturday morning in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Capres Hatchett.

The officers will be discussing the proposed organization of an additional Republican Women's Club in Pampa. The proposed club would be established for those women who cannot attend the day meetings, but would be interested in evening meetings. Mrs. Nisbett said.

Mrs. Nisbet invites all interested persons to attend the Friday meeting.

The State Republican Executive Committee meeting will be held in Austin on March 9 and 10 at the Austin Marriott Hotel, according to Mrs. Scott Nisbet, 31st Senatorial District Committeewoman.

Certification of Candidates, Referenda questions for the May primary ballot and the delegate apportionment formula for state conventions will be discussed and a committee vacancy will be filled during the Austin meeting.

American tankers held in Cuba after spill

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — Cuban authorities have detained an oil tanker and its crew since January in their efforts to collect $1.4 million in damages from an oil spill, the Port Arthur News has reported.

The spill occurred when the tanker ran aground on a trip from the Cayman Islands to Texaco's Port Neches refinery on the Texas Coast.

A spokesman for N.J. Goulandrias Co. in London, ownership representative of the Princess Anne-Marie which is under contract to Texaco, confirmed the Cubans had asked for $1.4 million in "damages."

The Goulandrias spokesman said in London Wednesday he was not at liberty to disclose from whom payment is being demanded or if the payment is for ransom for the crew or to pay for damages caused by the spill.

"The Cubans are quite displeased" the Goulandrias spokesman said. "The crew members are not being held physically. They are with the ship. I can't comment on how the vessel is being held but can say we are taking some action to free it."

The 772-foot deepdraft tanker left Grand Cayman Island Jan. 22 for an anticipated three-day run to the Texas coast, the News reported in its Wednesday edition. It ran aground on Cape San Antonio off the western end of Cuba while going through the Yucatan pass Jan. 28, said Texaco spokesman Larry Bingaman.

He said the ship was a Greek flag vessel but could not say how many of the crew — Greek and Chilean sailors — were aboard.

"The crude oil has been transhipped to another ship after it went aground," Bingaman said. "We really don't know the extent of damage right now."

Bingaman said the vessel was towed to Napea Bay, Cuba, and the Arabian light crude on board was transferred to the Shell oil tanker Sitalia. The Sitalia is being detained by Cuban authorities, waiting clearance to proceed to Texaco's Port Neches plant, he said.

Comanche dispute squeezes Bureau of Indian Affairs

MEDICINE PARK, Okla. (AP) — "No dope or booze allowed," says the cardboard sign on a barricade across the only road to the Comanche Tribal Center.

Another sign says "BIA go home," and the Bureau of Indian Affairs is in the middle of a dispute between two factions over tribal leadership.

The fust between Comanches loyal to former tribal chairman James Cox and others supporting Ken Saupitty's claim to the office came to a head last week when Saupitty's supporters occupied the modern buildings and barricaded the dirt road.

Many of those inside are at desks they usually fill on workdays. But no business is being transacted and programs of health education and commercial development are unattended and unfunded. Telephone service has been cut off.

Nearby, more than 100 Saupitty supporters camp in a clutter of tents, cars and campers around a tipi. By day, the aged sit in the sun as toddlers play. When the sun sets, the air chills to near freezing and someone lights a bonfire near the barricade where tribal policemen, some with holstered .38s, stand guard through the night.

Saupitty, 42, says he believes Cox is orchestrating the opposition that has kept him from assuming the chair following his defeat of Cox last summer. One of Saupitty's first acts was to request an audit of funds and programs, seen by some as a factor in the occupation.

Saupitty did not act on the petition, calling it invalid, and when his 30-day deadline expired, the BIA entered the picture.

William Battese, superintendent of the Anadarko agency, considered himself required by the tribal constitution to break such deadlocks.

He called a Feb. 2 meeting for the recall vote. Saupitty staged a walkout, leaving 185 eligible voters behind, and when Battese called for a vote on the petition to oust Saupitty it carried 184-1.

Saupitty contends the meeting was illegal because a quorum of 250 was not present. Battese stands by it because more than enough for a quorum had signed in for the meeting.

A tribal court issued an order Feb. 15 restraining Saupitty from assuming any duties as tribal chairman.

Siamese twins succumb

HOUSTON (AP) — A delicate, hour-long operation to separate 25-day-old Siamese twins failed when one infant died during surgery and the second died about three hours later.

A medical team headed by noted heart surgeon Dr. Denton Cooley performed the operation Wednesday afternoon on Ivonne and Ivette Falcon Morales, who had been in Texas Children's Hospital since last Thursday after being flown in from Puerto Rico where they were born.

Texas Children's Hospital spokesman Hazel Haby said

Ivonne, described as the weaker of the two, died during surgery about 4 p.m. Wednesday and her sister Ivette died about three hours later.

She said the twins were "very small from birth. We were not able to build up their strength."

Draft proposal is off to rocky start

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's draft registration plan is off to a rocky start in Congress and could be in serious trouble after a House committee refused to approve money needed for the program.

In the first congressional vote on the issue, a House Appropriations subcommittee deadlocked 6-6 Wednesday on whether to approve money for registration of young men, beginning this summer. The tie vote blocks the funds, at least temporarily.

Instead, the panel approved only enough money to set up a standby system in which registration would not start until the president ordered military mobilization in an emergency.

Such a plan was proposed by Selective Service officials last month but was rejected by Carter in favor of actual registration of men and women ages 19 and 20.

But the fact that Selective Service said it could do the job without advance registration was used as ammunition by Carter's opponents to block the administration's program.

They also cited the administration's acknowledgement that advance registration might save only seven days in mobilizing recruits.

The subcommittee never considered approving money to register women, and deleted funds for that even before opening discussion of the bill.

Barry Lynn, head of a coalition called Committee Against Registration and the Draft, called the subcommittee's vote "a serious setback for the administration."

Regulations 'Depress' yet another industry

Faced with the necessity of rearming to meet the Soviet threat, the United States surely needs a healthy steel industry. But government regulators persist in imposing costly requirements on steel companies, which are already in a depressed state. U.S. Steel Corp. has just reported a net loss of $293 million in 1979.

Republic Steel has a coke battery in Cleveland that the government says is polluting the air. Hence the EPA decreed the battery must be rebuilt, beginning now. But Republic executives say they have been unable to get the special bricks needed for the battery. So they asked for a three-month extension of time. The request was denied.

Unless Republic wants to pay a heavy fine, it will have to close down the coke battery, lay off the 50 to 60 workers who tend it and buy coke of other producers at considerable cost. This is an example of problems imposed on steel by government.

Not only Washington but Columbus is guilty. The Ohio House has a "task force" looking into the steel industry. Executives of three Ohio companies, appearing before the committee, testified that government regulators are imposing heavy costs on the steel industry. Taxes — and they cited the state inventory tax in particular — are sapping the capital the industry needs in huge amounts if it is to thrive and grow.

These government-imposed costs are making it harder for the industry to compete with imported steel. David W. Roberts, of Armco Steel in Middletown, stated imported steel has had a devastating impact of American steel companies. In 1976 and 1977, it caused them to lose $4 billion of business, he said.

Why can't Americans make and sell steel as cheaply as can the Japanese? Because, say industry spokesmen, steel makers over there are subsidized by the Japanese government. Seeing this as unfair competition — "dumping" it is called — our steel men demand that the subsidized steel from abroad be excluded.

This would be tantamount to charging the cost of the Japanese subsidy to American consumers. If the Japanese taxpayers are subsidizing the dumping of Japan-made steel in this country, perhaps our steel firms ought to shut down their plants and advise customers to buy the Japanese product. If this were done, the Japanese soon would tire of selling steel at less than true cost and would raise their price to a normal market level. That would be the signal for Republic, Armco and the others to fire up their furnaces.

People in other countries have no magic way of out-producing American industry. In fact, Americans are so much in the lead technologically that foreign producers who bear all their own costs have to strive mightily to equal us and meet our prices in the market.

In steel as in other industries, leaders are shortsighted to plead for curbs on imports as a way of lightening competition. Free competition with any and all is the American way.

Further, those who ask the government to limit imports cannot consistently object to other government actions which may not please them so much.

A delicate balance

By Don Graff

As Yugoslavia goes, so goes Finland? It is at least a possibility to consider. And with world attention focusing on the long-anticipated change of leadership in Yugoslavia, this could be a particularly appropriate time for consideration.

Something similar cannot be too far around the corner in Finland.

In some respects, the two countries are images of each other, although with mirror-like reversals. Yugoslavia is a Marxist society that has made independence of the Soviet Union the basis of its foreign policy, possibly even its existence. Finland, on the other hand, is a Western-style parliamentary democracy that has made good relations with the Soviets the basis of its policy, and quite probably its existence.

Both countries have been under the firm control of leaders towering over all other figures on the political scene for as long as most adults can remember.

In Finland, that leader is President Urho Kekkonen and the dominant question in national politics is an as yet unanswered one: Will he decide to run for another six-year term in 1984?

Kekkonen, who will be 80 this year, has manipulated Finnish affairs with a deft as well as firm hand since 1956. Foreign policy has been his pre-eminent interest and maintaining the friendliest possible relationship with the Finns' Soviet neighbors has been his primary objective.

This has not been directed at making of Finland another satellite — although when sides are taken on some East-West issues, outside observers at times find it difficult to see the distinction — but in the cause of preserving its cherished independence.

Kekkonen has succeeded admirably. For a quarter of a century, he has shuffled Finnish governments like a familiar deck of political cards. As coalition cabinet has succeeded coalition cabinet, a consequence of the country's fragmented party system, he has seen to it that the mix of political representation can never be read in the Kremlin as a threat.

This often has meant dealing out

Finland's own Communists along with, until recently, the Social Democrats, the largest party but the one least loved in the Kremlin.

As a consequence of the guaranteed friendliness on their northwestern border, the Soviets trust Kekkonen. And as a consequence of that trust Finland has been able to maintain its independence, its democratic institutions, its free economy and its close ties with the West.

Close, that is, but not too close. NATO is, of course, out of the question. Finland has, however, been able to make cautious contact with other groupings such as the European Economic Community, although stopping far short of anything resembling actual membership.

Finland's closest Western association has been with its immediate Nordic neighbors — Sweden, Norway and Denmark. The NATO membership of the latter two has been offset by the determined neutrality of Sweden, an important factor in the delicate Finnish balancing act. It is clearly understood by all parties that should Soviet encroachment on Finland cause Sweden to become any less neutral, the Soviets could well end up losing much more than they might gain politically and strategically in the area.

The questions of Kekkonen's intentions and the identity of his eventual successor dominate Finnish politics. But Kekkonen has every reason to delay the answers. The longer everyone is kept guessing, the less likely the long-maintained but ever-delicate balance is to be disturbed.

And delay at this point may prove particularly useful. Now is not the time to challenge or tempt the Soviets with another transfer of power in an acutely sensitive segment of the long East-West front through Europe.

Also particularly instructive for the Finns, Soviet response to post-Tito Yugoslavia on the front's Southeastern flank may provide some hints at least as to what to expect one of these years on the far-northern.

Those oldest of allies, France and the United States, seem bent on proving over and over that if familiarity in international relations does not precisely breed contempt, it certainly poses no obstacle to a divergence of views.

Having in this century bickered through two world wars and a score of lesser conflagrations, they are at it again in the current complex of crises in which France sees the United States as pursuing a policy of "le zigzag." Not surprisingly, the latter views the situation somewhat differently. For every zig Washington may take, Paris is likely to come up with an equally unsettling zag.

It is clearly not an easy relationship. But it may, and in part for that very reason, now and then have its unexpected advantages. Such as currently in the delicate matter of India's reaction to the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan.

French connections

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi in recent weeks has shown herself of several minds on the subject, at times simultaneously. But, gratifyingly for our side, she took the occasion of Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko's visit to New Delhi to sidle closer to the Western position than she had previously.

Not as close, to be sure, as Washington would like since she did not press for withdrawal of Soviet troops. But her critical attitude toward the Soviet move was unmistakable and most pointedly conveyed by reference to the joint declaration issued during French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing's visit to New Delhi earlier this year.

The Indian preference for a French connection in the Afghan affair is interesting on several points. Flattery may have a little to do with it. Mrs. Gandhi also has received high-level British and American visitors since her return to power, but none approaching the lofty stature of the French president.

More important is a coincidental similarity of views. Neither Paris nor New Delhi is inclined to judge Soviet intentions as harshly or to view the Afghan situation as critically as does Washington, with London tagging along. The obliquely worded Franco-Indian communique, as a matter of fact, does not refer to any specific country in holding the use of force in international relations "inadmissible."

And France's well-publicized role as a maverick in the Western alliance makes association easier for India. The latter's commitment to non-alignment is not compromised.

It might be read as a case of French distance from the United States serving to lessen Indian disenchantment with American policy.

An energetic policy

France may prove of notable assistance in another area — energy.

While the United States takes time out following the Three Mile Island scare to reassess nuclear-power policy, France is accelerating its own nuclear development.

With an annual investment of some $4 billion, it now has 15 reactors in operation supplying 15 percent of French electricity needs. By 1985, the figures are scheduled to rise to 47 reactors and 50 percent. And by the end of the century, the French are expecting a full 80 percent of their electric power and 33 percent of their overall energy requirements to come from nuclear sources.

It is by far the most ambitious program of any nation and, with the rapidly escalating costs of oil-generated electricity, already is paying financial dividends.

The French are not oblivious to the hazards involved. They do have their protesters raising questions about plant safety and waste disposal. Three Mile Island has been very much in the news.

But public support is high and government commitment to nuclear expansion is firm.

The French experience is well worth watching. It may provide some of the answers to questions Americans are asking about their own nuclear future.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, Feb. 28, the 59th day of 1980. There are 307 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Feb. 28, 1704, American colonists in Deerfield, Mass., were attacked by Indians. Those who survived the massacre were forced to march to Canada.

On this date:

In 1483, the Renaissance painter Raphael was born in Urbino, Italy.

In 1808, French forces captured Barcelona, Spain.

In 1933, a Nazi decree in Germany suppressed civil liberties.

In 1974, the U.S. and Egypt re-established diplomatic relations after a seven-year break.

Ten years ago, a federal court in Chicago ordered "the Chicago Seven" released on bail pending appeal of their convictions in connection with the 1968 riots at the Democratic National Convention.

Five years ago, a London subway train sped past its final stop and crashed into the end of the tunnel, killing 37 people.

Last year, Jane Byrne shocked Chicago's once mighty Democratic machine with an upset primary victory over Mayor Michael Bilandic.

Today's birthdays: Republican Presidential Candidate John B. Connally is 63. Chemist Linus Pauling is 79.

"We can't seem to get the hang of it — you say we should take from the which and give to the what?"

A Chrysler, or else

by ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON—All right, we've asked you as nice as we could to buy a Chrysler car. First, Joe Garagiola offered you $500 off on any automobile from the Chrysler lot. Then Ricardo Montalban told you what a Chrysler product would do for your image.

Finally, Chrysler's own chairman of the board, Lee Iacocca, decided to go on the air and beg. Well, maybe he didn't exactly beg. He asked you to just compare the major American models, and if you didn't think a Plymouth or a Dodge or a Chrysler was superior, that was your business. But he knew when you tried the competition, you would be fair about it and go for his product.

Well, you didn't, so Lee made you an offer you couldn't refuse. You could buy the car, and if you didn't like it, you could return it within 30 days and get your money back.

You would have thought that the American people knew a good deal when they saw one. I mean, what more do you want Lee to do for you?

Since you didn't take advantage of his offer, I'll tell you what I'll do. I haven't cleared this with Lee yet, but I know he'll go along with it. After all, he dropped one billion big ones last year, and he has no choice.

If you buy a Chrysler automobile or truck within the next 90 days, we will give you a condominium in Florida, a four-year college education at Yale, Harvard, Princeton or MIT for any member of your family, a lifetime airline pass for any person over 21, a seat on the New York Stock Exchange and a quarter interest in the Alaska pipeline.

I know what you're going to say—you already have a car. That's not the point. Once you drive a Chrysler, Lee and I know you'll never drive anything else again. So, here's our last offer. We're not even going to ask you to buy a car. All we want you to do is to go to a Chrysler dealership and LOOK at one. Is that asking too much? Just stand outside the window and show some interest. If you do this, one of our salesmen will come out and present you with an original Rembrandt painting, signed by the artist himself.

If you decide to come into the showroom, and open one of the doors of our models, we'll give you a diamond necklace from Van Cleef & Arpels, valued at $100,000. And if you decide to take a spin in the car, we'll present you with the franchise to any national football team in the league.

We're being as nice about this as we possibly can. But if you still won't go out and buy an Omni, Volare or a Le Baron, then we will have no choice but to get tough.

We're going to put those automobiles on the road one way or another. If this means getting out there on the highway and smashing them into the car you are now driving and totalling it, so be it. I'm not saying we're going to do this, Lee happens to be dead set against it, but there are a lot of people in the company who want to take a hard line.

You can lose megabucks in this business for just so long and then your patience wears thin. So all I'm saying is you either buy a Chrysler car the easy way or the hard way. It doesn't make any difference to me. I'm not in this business for my health.

'Tooth Fairy' strikes again

By Richard L. Lesher, President
Chamber of Commerce of the United States

WASHINGTON — Congressman Herb Harris is not one who fears adding insult to injury. At a time when inflation and taxes have risen to their most punishing levels in postwar history, the Northern Virginia legislator has dreamed up the ultimate cure for an ailing economy — a bill to significantly increase the size of the federal bureaucracy.

At first glance, the bill, (HR-4717), seems quite innocent. In fact, it's loaded with lots of reassuring rhetoric like "cost-effectiveness" and "personal ceilings." But these are mere buzz words; in truth, the legislation would prevent the federal government with an almost irresistible temptation not to contract out with private firms for goods and services it needs.

As a federal reporter for "The Washington Star" matter-of-factly explained: "Those agencies that increased in-house activities would be rewarded as far as their personnel ceilings are concerned, while those expanding their contracting out functions would be penalized." Not surprisingly, the nation's principal federal union, the American Federation of Government Employees, is a strong supporter of the Harris bill.

One of the longest standing traditions of this country has been for government to rely upon competitive private bids for the goods and services it needs. President Carter put the issue in a nutshell when he stated in 1976: "When there's a choice to be made between the private sector and the government sector, my option would be for the private sector to assume the responsibility."

The reason this policy has endured so long is quite simple—it works. Take a look at the space program. When most Americans think of our space effort, they think only of NASA, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Actually, by the mid-1960s, some 20,000 companies were all working together on a least cost bid basis to send our astronauts to the moon and bring them back.

Nowhere in the Harris bill is there any affirmation that the government will continue relying upon competitive enterprise to supply needed goods and services. Instead, the bill could literally devastate small business while placing the country squarely on the road to socialism. One top official of the Office of Management and Budget, W. Bowman Cutler, publicly testified that it would add a new bureaucratic machine, generate enormous paperwork and provide subtle but clear incentives to agencies not to contract out in order to increase their staff.

And why not? Unlike private industry, where career progress depends upon one's ability to minimize costs while accomplishing objectives, a government employee's promotion often depends upon the size of his budget and the number of people who report to him. There are built-in disincentives to reducing the size of the bureaucracy. But the Harris bill would transform this bad situation into a dreadful one. Once a federal agency head knew he could acquire additional personnel simply by converting a project to in-house performance, and that he would risk losing personnel by contracting out a new project, guess which option he would choose?

Ironically, Mr. Harris argues his bill would help taxpayers, claiming government grows because of excessive contracting out, and contending federal employees can do the same work more cheaply themselves. He puts the cart before the horse. The reason there is more contracting out is because people in Congress, especially people like Mr. Harris, keep voting to spend more of the public's money.

To contend government usually can do any given job more efficiently than private industry is truly to believe in the Easter Bunny or the Tooth Fairy, but not in tangible realities like free competition. Cities all across the country are saving taxpayers millions by contracting out for such services as fire protection, garbage collection and even limited police work. A recent study by the Rand Corporation concluded the Defense Department alone could save $1 billion a year by using private firms to perform work now done by 250,000 civil service employees. Scores of competitions between government and industry document the cost-effectiveness of contracting out.

Mr. Harris' bill represents one of the biggest federal employee relief bills ever. How your Congressman eventually votes on this bill will tell you a lot about where his or her priorities really lie—with those who pay most of America's taxes...or those who spend them.

Police continue roundup in border town 'sting'

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — With 32 persons in custody, El Paso police today continued a roundup of about 100 more suspects in a "sting" operation officers say netted more than $2.1 million in stolen property.

Late Wednesday night, police said they had arrested 32 of the 139 persons sought in the second phase of the operation, which began 18 months ago.

The persons in custody all listed addresses in the El Paso area and ranged in age from 18 to 56, police said.

The first phase of the operation, dubbed "Alpha," resulted in 84 arrests last year, and of that number, all but one suspect has been convicted, according to Police Lt. Ed Agan.

Most of those arrested Wednesday were charged with theft over $200 and under $10,000, although one was charged with delivering a controlled substance, another was charged with possession of heroin and two counts of theft over $10,000.

Authorities declined to specify what type stolen items were recovered.

Police Chief William Rodriguez said millions of dollars worth of stolen property was recovered when officers set up "stores" in various locations and posed as buyers of stolen goods, or "fences."

Thieves, armed robbers, shoplifters, muggers and burglars who were trying to sell stolen cars, silverware, furniture, and other goods at a discount for quick cash were snared in "Alpha," Agan said.

The operation was funded by the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, and Rodriguez said his officers were assisted by agents of the U.S. Customs Service.

About $144,000 in "buy money" was used by undercover agents to buy the stolen goods. The transactions were secretly videotaped, and Agan said the evidence of the tapes accounted for the high conviction rate of those arrested in the first phase.

The roundup, which began Tuesday, was conducted by about 40 federal, state, county and city officers. Most of the suspects had been arrested by noon Wednesday, Agan said.

The first phase of operation Alpha ended last April when a police captain and a Customs agent posing as buyers engaged in a shootout with five men who apparently decided to rob the two men buying their stolen goods.

"They did not know they were dealing with undercover agents," Agan said.

The two officers were shot and seriously wounded, but they managed to shoot back. Two of the thieves were killed, and a third one was wounded. The three escaped but were later captured and are now serving prison terms, the lieutenant said.

The two wounded officers recovered from their wounds.

Alien child teaching self at home

HOUSTON (AP) — A 9-year-old girl testified that she has been teaching herself math at home because of a Texas law requiring the children of undocumented workers to pay tuition to attend public school.

The girl, identified only as Gabriela, testified Wednesday in the office of U.S. District Judge Woodrow Seals as a witness in a trial to determine the constitutionality of the Texas tuition law.

Gabriela, who has been living in the United States illegally, testified with the aid of a priest who acted as an interpreter and told the judge that she misses going to school.

She said she stays at home while her 8-year-old brother, who was born in the United States, goes to school. She also testified that she tries to teach herself arithmetic by using a book supplied by her brother's teacher.

Lawyers challenging the Texas law had asked Seals to allow the child to testify in his office because they felt the large courtroom might intimidate her.

An immigration counselor testified that Gabriela had been denied admission to public school because her parents had been unable to get documents from Mexican authorities.

School officials argue that because the girl's father is a U.S. citizen, she could attend school without tuition. All that is required is for the parents to show they are going through the process of obtaining legal status for the child, officials said.

Seals is being asked to overturn the tuition law and state attorneys have contended that such a move would be costly and cause and overall decline in the quality of education.

Also called to the stand Wednesday was a seven-year-old Dallas girl who was admitted to school after being kept out a year.

Report says Texas Triangle meets congressional outline

By SOLL SUSSMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Texas Triangle between Dallas-Fort Worth, Houston and San Antonio would fall within the congressional guideline for ridership if rail service were expanded, says a report by Amtrak and the Department of Transportation.

The area also would meet the congressional standard for the projected ratio of revenue to expenses.

The Texas Triangle was among 18 corridors studied for possible expansion of rail service. All of them met the congressional guidelines.

"As rising fuel prices and continuing shortages change the transportation makeup in this country, we must be prepared to offer the public attractive alternatives to the automobile," Amtrak President Alan S. Boyd said in submitting the report on 13 of the corridors to Congress.

"Amtrak is convinced that these developing corridors can provide such alternatives, where trip times and frequencies are competitive with the automobile," Boyd said.

Amtrak and DOT prepared the report at the request of three congressmen last fall. It was submitted over the weekend.

The Texas Triangle was the longest, with 772.2 miles, and the least densely populated, at 10.124 persons per mile, of the 13 corridors studied first.

Amtrak estimated that it would cost at the most $1.2 billion for track and signals on the route if trains traveled at 79 mph maximum speed. The cost for grade crossings would be $99.6 million.

Those figures were by far the highest of the 13 routes.

Passenger trains now running in the Texas Triangle include the Inter-American between Dallas and San Antonio once a day and the Sunset Limited between Houston and San Antonio three times a week.

The report said the capital costs for the Texas Triangle are particularly high because the San Antonio-Houston segment is near capacity and the Houston-Dallas segment would have to be upgraded for passenger service.

Other corridors in the report include Chicago-Cincinnati, Chicago-Cleveland, Chicago-Detroit, Chicago-Twin Cities, Chicago-St. Louis, Los Angeles-Las Vegas, Los Angeles-San Diego, Miami-Jacksonville, New York City-Buffalo, San Jose-Sacramento, Seattle-Portland and Washington-Richmond.

Union officials indicted in alleged scheme

By SUSAN STOLER
Associated Press Writer
BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Local union officials in five Texas cities have been indicted in an alleged kickback scheme involving payments of $311,000 in exchange for awarding of union group insurance contracts.

A federal grand jury Wednesday named 10 men in a 16-count indictment that capped 17-month investigation.

Nine of the ten had surrendered to authorities by late Wednesday and were released on $10,000 personal recognizance bond.

The defendants are:

- Robert Dale Massey of Los Fresnos and Michael P. Kleemeyer, address unknown, who together operated four companies specializing in the sale of union group hospitalization insurance plans.
- Jack Wheatley of Dexter, Mich., an international representative of the Plumbers and Pipefitters union whose territory included Texas and Oklahoma.
- John E. Dale, former president of the Plumbers and Pipefitters local 823 of Harlingen.
- Conrad Truss, business manager of Plumbers and Pipefitters local 142 of San Antonio.

- George Isaacs, business manager of pipefitters local 185 of Corpus Christi.
- William Dean Pickens, business manager of plumbers union local 68 of Houston. Pickens had not surrendered by late Wednesday afternoon.
- James Melton Bradshaw, financial secretary of the Plumbers and Steamfitters union local 100 of Dallas; Alva Bernard Patterson, business representation and health plan administrator of the Dallas local; and Oscar D. Seastrunk, trustee with Bradshaw and Patterson of the Dallas union's health benefit plan.

Named as an unindicted co-conspirator was Don Gray, former business manager of the Harlingen local, who pleaded guilty in 1978 to state and federal charges of theft and fraud in connection with a manpower scandal.

In a plea bargain, Gray was given a five-year probation term in the manpower investigation, which also turned up evidence of local union funds being misspent.

Isaacs is accused of receiving $148 from Massey.

No answers in ship loss inquiry board

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The pilot of the tanker Capricorn may have been told about the approaching Coast Guard cutter Blackthorn by radio before the two ships collided in Tampa Bay, a tugboat captain says.

Russell Wanamaker told a Marine Board of Inquiry Wednesday that he heard the pilot of a Soviet cruise ship inform the Capricorn that the Blackthorn was right behind the cruise ship.

"(He) was letting him (the Capricorn) know that the Blackthorn was behind him," Wanamaker, captain of the tugboat "Pat B." testified. "I heard him say...that the Blackthorn was behind him."

Under further questioning, however, he admitted he wasn't sure whether he heard the radio message before or after the Jan. 28 collision that killed 23 Coast Guardsmen.

The Capricorn pilot and the Russian ship pilot have both testified that they talked about the Blackthorn after the collision, and not before.

The wreck occurred as the Capricorn was steaming into port with a load of fuel oil and the Blackthorn was heading for its home port of Galveston, Texas.

Crewmen from both ships have said they tried unsuccessfully to reach each other on a standard marine radio band.

In other testimony, a ship's cook said as the Blackthorn began sinking some of its crew members waited at their posts for orders that never came.

For the love of a woman named Kyle

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Have you heard the one about the fellow who fell in love with the imaginary woman?

It's no joke. It happened in Toledo to Ron Reed, and he's not laughing.

On Wednesday, a week after Reed, 34, found out that Kyle Stratton — the love of his life, the woman he would die for — never existed, he sat down and talked about it.

"She was sincere and passionate. I would have given my life for that lady. I lived as if we were married," he said in an interview.

Wednesday was also the day Robert and Carolyn Matuszak went before a Toledo Municipal Court judge, charged in connection with an alleged ruse that bilked Reed out of at least $34,400 since 1973.

Mrs. Matuszak, 38, is charged with grand theft by deception. Her 35-year-old husband is charged with complicity in grand theft. They have refused to comment on the charges. Both are free on their own recognizance.

Police Sgt. Fred Neipp and detective Richard Pohl said that since Reed's case has been publicized, at least four other men have contacted police. Each has told police he was contacted by Mrs. Matuszak to contribute to the welfare of Kyle Stratton.

Neipp described the men as "mousey and mild and impressionable." At least one other unidentified man spent at least $4,000 on roses for Miss Stratton over a two-year period in the 1960s, police said.

"Our feeling is that there are still other victims," Neipp said. According to Reed and police, he became involved with the fictitious woman through Mrs. Matuszak, who he said he had met when he moved from Dayton to Toledo.

Reed said she did his horoscope, then told him about her invalid sorority sister — Miss Stratton — who had been hospitalized first at the Mayo Clinic and later at Toledo Hospital for injuries received in a car crash.

Reed was told Miss Stratton wanted to leave the hospital but needed money for a nurse, a kidney dialysis unit and an apartment.

Reed, a production designer for Libbey-Owens-Ford, a plate glass manufacturer in Toledo, began shelling out for Miss Stratton's care. He says he can prove he paid at least $34,400. The total may be as high as $40,000. He also sent clothes and gifts.

Reed — a quiet, slightly balding man about 5-foot-10 and 200 pounds — said he was kept going by pictures of a beautiful, petite blonde, not realizing until much later the pictures were the kind found in any dime store. He also received some letters purportedly written by Miss Stratton, and occasionally was able to talk to a woman with a soft alluring voice.

The pictures decorated the walls of Reed's small, south Toledo apartment. A giant computer printout with the words "I Love Kyle" printed thousands of times covered a wall of his bedroom, and a huge red heart still hangs on the wall.

once emblazoned with the words "I Love Kyle."

One day he received a letter from Miss Stratton referring to him as her husband. "From that point onward, I was married and I governed my actions accordingly," he said.

Reed said he routinely worked six or seven days a week for the last few years, putting in 60- and 70-hour weeks.

He went so far as to name "Kyle Reed" as beneficiary of his $149,000 life insurance policy.

Through the years, he said, Mrs. Matuszak kept him from seeing Miss Stratton, saying that Kyle's lawyer-guardian didn't approve of Reed.

So Reed worked out an elaborate plan to get her out of Toledo Hospital and to a nurse in Dayton: "I felt once we were out of the hospital, and I could get Kyle a nurse in Dayton, then we could get married, and then the lawyer would have to accept us."

Reed told skeptical friends that he actually had met Kyle and had talked with her.

Louisiana attorney says client got Brilab money

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — An attorney for the No. 2 man in state government acknowledges that his client got money from an FBI Brilab informant, but he won't say how much cash changed hands.

But a New Orleans newspaper says it was $25,000.

In a copyright article today, the Times-Picayune says Charles Roemer, the state's commissioner of administration, got the money from Joseph Hauser, a twice-convicted insurance promoter from California who reportedly turned informer for the FBI.

Through Brilab, code-named for Bribery-Labor, undercover agents reportedly posed as insurance executives and offered money to officials in four states, seeking promises of business advantages.

Earlier reports linked Roemer to a $15,000 contribution from Hauser for the campaign of state Sen. Edgar Mouton of Lafayette, a candidate for governor last year.

At the time, Roemer was a top campaign aide for Mouton.

The $15,000 contribution included in earlier reports was part of the $25,000, the Times-Picayune said.

Roemer said Wednesday night that his lawyer has advised him not to talk about the reports.

"I find myself in a different position than ever before in state government," he said. "But my attorney says he knows of no law I've broken."

Roemer's lawyer, Michael Fawer, acknowledged that his client accepted money from Hauser but declined to discuss how much.

"The extent of the amount is unimportant," Fawer said.

Legal rule falls in Supreme Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, altering a 22-year-old legal rule, said today that husbands and wives cannot be barred from testifying against each other in federal court.

"When one spouse is willing to testify against the other in a criminal proceeding, whatever the motivation... there is probably little in the way of marital harmony for the privilege (against such testimony) to preserve," Chief Justice Warren E. Burger wrote for a unanimous court.

The justices upheld the conviction of Otis Trammel Jr. of Los Angeles, a convicted heroin smuggler who had contended that his trial was tainted by his wife's testimony against him.

Today's decision changed a federal rule of evidence shaped by the Supreme Court in a 1958 case called Hawkins vs. U.S. In it, the justices said spouses may not testify against each other unless both consent.

But today, the court said it is all up to the prospective witness.

"We conclude that the existing rule should be modified so that the witness spouse alone has a privilege to refuse to testify adversely; the witness may be neither compelled to testify nor foreclosed from testifying," Burger said.

"This modification — vesting the privilege in the witness spouse, furthers the important public interest in marital harmony without unduly burdening legitimate law enforcement needs," he said.

Mrs. Trammel was arrested in Hawaii two years ago and charged with attempting to smuggle heroin from the Philippines. She agreed to cooperate with federal authorities and lead them to others in the alleged drug-importing ring.

Mrs. Trammel carried the heroin to Denver, where other members of the alleged ring were arrested.

Trammel, described by his lawyers as a military veteran in his early 20s who served in the Philippines, was arrested and convicted for his role in the ring. His wife, named as an unindicted co-conspirator, testified against him under immunity.

Trammel is now serving time in a federal prison.

Today's ruling affects only federal courts, but Burger's opinion noted that since 1958 the trend in state law has been toward depriving the accused person of the privilege to bar adverse testimony by his or her spouse.

The number of states providing such a privilege has declined to 24, Burger said. The Supreme Court's ruling could serve as a catalyst to a further reduction in that number.

Connally reported not surprised in New Hampshire race

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — John Connally, who finished sixth among Republicans in the New Hampshire presidential primary, says his poor showing wasn't really a surprise.

"With the effort we put into it we obviously had to be satisfied with whatever we got," the former Texas governor said late Tuesday after arriving in Florida following a day of campaigning in Chicago.

Connally finished with only 2 percent of the GOP votes in the New Hampshire race for delegates to the presidential nominating conventions.

He said the main thrust of his campaign will begin with South Carolina's primary.

Connally said his organization simply doesn't have enough money to campaign fully in every corner of the nation.

"We don't want any of the states to feel that we're not interested in them. We don't want any of the states to feel that we're not going to make some effort," Connally said. "But at the same time we want to be realistic. Politics have gotten so enormously expensive."

Connally said his campaign will kick into high gear with the South Carolina primary and will continue to run hard in Georgia, Florida and Illinois. "Those are the crucial states," he said.

His target will be Ronald Reagan, who swept the New Hampshire primary with more than half the Republican votes cast. Connally said.

"Goy. Reagan is the man that we have to beat. I said that in the beginning," he said. "I repeat it now. And it's not going to be easy because he's got 15 years and probably $30 million of efforts behind him and maybe closer to $50 million."

"We're going to have to go to selected states where we can beat him," Connally told reporters at a Jacksonville motel. "We're going to try to do that beginning in South Carolina."

Asked if he can beat the former California governor in South Carolina, Connally replied:

"I'm going to try. I think I can. I'm kind of like the choo-choo pulling the hill. I think I can. I think I can. I think I can. and I think I can."

Reagan campaign renewed

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — After purging his top command and punishing his chief GOP rival with a runaway victory, Ronald Reagan promises to campaign from now on just as he did in New Hampshire, affording the voters "an opportunity to question and talk."

Reagan, once criticized as an aloof and reluctant candidate, swamped former U.N. Ambassador George Bush and the rest of the Republican pack Tuesday with 50 percent of the vote in the Granite State's primary.

But the former California governor told The Associated Press that it will take "several primaries yet" before the race for the Republican presidential nomination settles down to even two contenders.

"When you get into the South, you may get a better indication of that," Reagan said in an interview in his motel room Tuesday night.

Next Tuesday, two more New England states, Massachusetts and Vermont, hold presidential primaries. The following week, the race shifts into the South with contests in South Carolina on March 8 and Georgia, Alabama and Florida on March 11.

The size of Reagan's victory in New Hampshire became clear a few hours after the candidate abruptly replaced the top ranks of his campaign staff.

Forced to resign was John Sears, Reagan's campaign manager and a longtime target of many conservative backers. Sears was replaced by William Casey, a former chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission and who has been active in Republican presidential campaigns over the past 30 years.

The New Hampshire results gave Reagan a victory far larger than he dared predict over Bush, who had emerged in Iowa as the Californian's chief contender for the nomination.

Bouy planned for campaign

BOSTON (AP) — Though Sen. Edward M. Kennedy claims to know the thrill of defeat after finishing second once again, his top strategist says "a considerable number of changes" are in order to buoy a campaign which found thin ice in New Hampshire.

"We got almost 40 percent of the vote," Kennedy told several hundred supporters Tuesday night after absorbing his third straight loss at President Carter's hands.

Four years ago, Jimmy Carter got 28 percent of the vote and he claimed victory (in New Hampshire) and we're claiming victory tonight. "Nowhere in his brief speech did Kennedy concede the president's triumph."

Actually, the final results showed Kennedy with 38 percent, Carter with 49. Carter's edge was magnified by the fact that it came in a neighboring state to Kennedy's native Massachusetts.

Kennedy, campaigning outside a Boston subway station today before he flew to Alabama, vowed to stay in the race and said he would continue to stress economic issues in his challenge of Carter.

The senator said the central issue is whether the Carter administration "has a program that's going to be meaningful" to deal with inflation. "I just don't believe that it is," Kennedy said.

"We continue the campaign and we bring it right back to Massachusetts and on to the Democratic convention," he said, surrounded by family members and top staff aides.

Kennedy is the heavy favorite to defeat Carter in the Massachusetts primary election next Tuesday. A substantial victory there would likely give Kennedy a temporary lead in Democratic convention delegates as well as break a string of losses that includes New Hampshire and caucuses in Iowa and Maine.

Family record-keeping...

How does your money Measure up?

By TINA McCLOY
Of The Pampa News

The average wage earner is deep in the midst of preparing a tax return for Uncle Sam, so this is an ideal time to take that confusion one step further and check your "financial health."

"A family is a small business with assets and liabilities as in any other small business," said Bonnie Piernot, a family resource management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "Businesses take inventory occasionally — a family should too."

"Figure out your net worth, and do it every year — not every five years," emphasized Mrs. Piernot, who spoke Tuesday night on "Estate Preparedness."

The reason for this is the changing value of some things, such as the changing market value of gold and silver.

Figuring your net worth — determining how much you are worth in dollars and cents — is figuring the difference between the total of what you own and what you owe, or the difference between your assets and liabilities.

"Calculating your net worth may not change your spending habits, but it can point out whether you are overextending your use of credit and whether you are moving toward your financial goals," said the specialist. "If you are not making the financial gains you expected you can decide how and where to change your direction."

A net worth statement comes in handy when you request a loan, assess insurance needs and plan your estate, an area many people avoid because they don't like to think of losing a loved one.

Although many men are no longer taking full responsibility for financial matters, many continue to shield their wives from any participation in the handling of family business matters.

If the husband suddenly dies, the wife has no knowledge of where important documents, such as his will and insurance policies, are filed. Yet she is suddenly thrust into the major decision-making role.

"Plan for your survivors instead of leaving them where they have to hunt for papers and try to be the mind reader of the deceased," said Mrs. Piernot.

"Estate planning is not just for senior citizens," she explained. "Any person who has any kind of assets at all, even if you own an automobile purchased on borrowed time, that's part of an estate when you die."

By the time you're 35, you should start planning for your retirement years or you'll never catch up with the rate of inflation, explained Mrs. Piernot. "At an increase of 6.7 percent inflation annually since '67, you've got to do some fantastic planning to retire."

Mrs. Piernot suggests making three copies of all important records and documents — one for a home file, one for a safe deposit box, and one for a friend or relative to keep.

Documents to be kept in these places of safekeeping include:

- A list of family financial advisers — your lawyer, banker, insurance agent, accountant, and executor of your will.
- A family record, listing names, dates and places of births, and social security numbers of family members.
- A record of business interests and employment records.
- Records of life, health, accident, disability and hospitalization insurance.
- Real estate and personal property insurance records.
- A list of account numbers for credit cards and savings and checking accounts, with other pertinent information about them.
- A list of information about investments such as government bonds, other bonds and stocks.

- A record of outstanding debts and a list of money owed to the family.
- Documentation of where other important papers, such as birth certificates, adoption papers, marriage and divorce papers, wills, death certificates, citizenship papers, military service records, passports, health records, social security and employment records, are kept.
- A list of where property records, such as deeds, abstracts, mortgage papers, automobile title and bill of sale, and automobile registration are kept.
- Business records, including location of insurance policies, tax, income and property records, receipts, canceled checks, safe deposit box and keys, savings books, contract papers, guarantees and warranties, stock and bond certificates, and pension plan records.
- Household inventory, with photographs of furniture, appliances, valuables and other belongings, the date of year purchased, and the cost.

"If a paper or document is hard to replace," said Mrs. Piernot, "it does not belong in your home. It belongs in a safe deposit box." These items include original copies of the records listed above, as well as copyrights and patents.

In a home file, also keep tax returns for at least five years, bank statements, income-expenditure records, a net worth statement, a copy of your will, a household inventory, information on household appliances, a list of financial advisers, a list of papers in your safe deposit box, and health, education and employment records.

"This isn't something that's going to happen overnight," said Mrs. Piernot in reference to a family record-keeping system. "But it's also something that you can't put off until next year. There's not a one of us that knows we're going to be here tomorrow."

MENDING MATURE MARRIAGE

By Louise Pierce

Are any of you maturely-married couples ashamed of each other or of your circumstances or neighborhood? If you are, please don't be.

Whether you lived your most productive years like an ant and thus are prosperous, or whether your grasshopper lifestyle has brought you to the barest necessities in your older years, you formed your present circumstances together.

The most wonderful thing about your life now is that you are still in each other's company. Nothing else is as important as that.

I know a few older couples who do not abide by that beautiful truth. They stay together — but one or the other, or both, feel unhappy about the clothes they have to wear or the little worn-and-torn house they are forced to live in.

They are so sensitive about their present way of life that they don't want callers. The get out sometimes but they never ask friends to visit them. One woman told me, "I don't want you to see what we've come to in our old age."

They're only 69, which certainly isn't old age. And what they have come to is good health and each other's affection sprinkled with wonderful memories of the years they shared. They ought to open their house and their arms to old and new friends, never apologizing for their loss of former wealth. They have all they need for happiness.

School-age youngsters whose parents are lower middle-class but whose friends are over-rich sometimes are understandably reluctant to admit their comparative poverty. Teachers have told me that when they tried to call on the families of certain students, they drove to the addresses and found vacant lots.

But that should never happen to couples our age. We fought life together for 30 or 50 years. We won or lost our battles for wealth and prestige, and we are now spending our older years in what should be pleasure — new vistas of play and work, of interesting hobbies, of all the happy activities that await retirees. These can, and should be the happiest years of our lives.

Otis and I have been up and down, money-wise, all our years together. We have lived well and not so well. But I hope I have never belittled his ability to feed and clothe me as best he could. It doesn't bother me if more company drops in than I have beds or "good" silverware for: cots and stainless steel suffice. Our five-year-old Cadillac looks as good to me as our friends' newer models. Any my audiences see me wearing the same dress in speech after speech. Somebody once told a stranger, "You'll know Louise when you see her."

And sure enough, as usual, I was. Perhaps I adjust better to circumstances than wives who have lived lavishly all their lives. I've never been upper crust. But haven't you know women who demanded, and got, one magnificent house after another, each one bigger and better than the last? I hope they will never sorrow and sob over their reduced prosperity.

Most of all, if curtailment is necessary in retirement years, neither mate should blame the other. If they lost a fortune through extravagance, it was probably the fault of both. If medical bills swallowed their savings, neither spouse was the cause.

If they mortgaged their home for self-improvement or for the benefit of relatives, it was well-intended. In any case, neither has the right to complain about it now. They should rejoice in their heaven-sent privilege of spending their later years as one person instead of two. Nobody could ask for more than that.

DEAR LOUISE: My folks were rich and J's were poor. After 40 years of marriage, I still want things he can't give me. And I want our grandchildren to have what we could never afford for our own kids. I love J and don't want to make him miserable all the time, but I cried like a fool when our son couldn't send his boy to Europe with his college friends — and neither could we. Am I wrong to let our lack of money mean so much to me? A.W.

DEAR A.W.: Indeed you are. You called yourself a fool; I didn't. But you don't need to be one. You knew J was poor when you married him, so you must have married him for love. And that love should sustain you now. Learn to be happy with what you have, which is mature happiness. Enjoy each other — and let the younger generations of your family make their own way. They will be better for it.

TWEEN 12 AND 20

By Robert Wallace

Dr. Wallace: My mom is constantly on my back to keep my room neat and clean. Every morning before I leave the house, we have a captain's inspection and if everything is not just so, I receive a certain number of demerits. Fifty demerits and some privilege is denied. Last week I could not attend a slumber party because I exceeded my allotted 50 demerits.

Dr. Wallace, my room is never really dirty or messy. If I should happen to fall asleep while studying, I'm in trouble because I know I won't have time to pass inspection the next morning. After all, it's my room not hers! Please have your guest writers share their thoughts on my dilemma.

Nancy, Hagerstown, Md.

Nancy: I'm going to make a lot of mothers mad at me but I think your room should be just that — your room. Every teen needs privacy. I also think that mother would get better results with a merit system instead of the demerit system. — Dr. Wallace

Hi Nancy: My brother is a freshman at the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs and he said you will make a fine cadet with the training you are receiving. Actually, he said that you have it more strict than he does.

My mom is always on my case to keep my room tidy and I usually say, "Mom I'll get it straightened out," but I seldom do. But believe me, after reading your column, I'll never have to be told again. I promise you, mother. — Alice, Vahcouver, Wash.

George exhibit set at WTSU

Marion George, formerly of Pampa and now of Sunday Canyon, will exhibit her sculpture, weaving and basketry next week at the Activities Center on the campus of West Texas State University.

The exhibit will run Sunday through March 9. The center will be open Sunday from 1 to 6 p.m.

A former Pampa schoolteacher, Mrs. George has been named "Artist of the Year" and has conducted workshops in Pampa and Canyon. Her sculpture is displayed in nine churches throughout Texas and in numerous galleries and private collections.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A woman I work with comes to work drunk periodically. She's nice when she's sober, but when she's drunk she's rude to clients, uses foul language and is very obnoxious to the rest of us. We have covered up for her so far, but it's really getting to much to handle.

I realize that alcoholism is an illness and that this woman needs help, but I'm afraid if I suggest it she will tell me to mind my own business.

She gets a good salary, but on those days when she's drunk she isn't able to do her job. What should I do?

VOTE FOR SOBRIETY

DEAR VOTE: Risk being told to mind your own business, and tell her anyway. Anyone who needs a drink to face the day is in serious trouble. You and your co-workers do her no favor by covering up for her. The poor woman needs to come to grips with her problem now. Alcoholism never gets better, nor does it go away without treatment. It just gets worse. Let her know that you care by urging her to seek help through Alcoholics Anonymous. They're in your directory.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 62-year-old woman who recently decided on an early retirement, although I'm in good health. I have a friend my age who is still working. She began calling me several times a week to come and have dinner with her. Just as I am about to leave after dinner she loads me down with half a dozen boxes, several books, etc. She says, "You have more time than I have now, so I hope you won't mind taking these shoes to the shoe repair, dropping these books at the library, and returning this blouse for credit."

At first I accommodated her with a smile, then I realized that every time she asked me over she had a list of errands for me to run. Abby, she has a car, and even though I no longer have an 8-to-5 job, I have plenty to keep me busy and don't appreciate running other people's errands.

The last time this happened, I said, "I would like to be invited over here just once and not be asked to run any errands!"

Well, I haven't heard from her since. I miss her. Should I call and apologize?

MINNIE

DEAR MINNIE: Not unless you miss being her errand girl.

DEAR ABBY: You wrote that if a person is invited to a wedding reception, a gift is in-order.

Well, I disagree. I received an invitation to the wedding and reception for a girl whose name didn't mean a thing to me. I later learned that she was the daughter of my car-insurance agent. I am not a good (or even casual) friend of this man. In fact, I didn't even know he had a daughter!

I did not feel obligated to send a gift. Do you still think I was wrong?

CHUTZPAH IN OMAHA

DEAR CHUTZPAH: No, I was. I didn't consider those with so much chutzpah that they'd send invitations to virtual strangers.

Theatre ballet performance slated tonight

The Richard Thomas Theatre Ballet will perform today at 8 p.m. in M.K. Brown Auditorium for membership holders of the Pampa Community Concert Association.

The program will include selections from classical ballet as well as new, innovative choreography. The New York-based ensemble performs in cities where technical requirements prohibit visits by bigger ballet companies.

Some members of the group will teach a guest class this afternoon for members of the Pampa Civic Ballet.

Heart bypass gave Pampa woman new zest

By TINA MCLOY

Editor's note: This is the third in a series of three articles concerning heart disease.

You'd think an almost unsuccessful operation to correct a coronary blockage would slow Dorothy Neslage down a bit.

But on Monday, aromatic smells were drifting through her house as she baked dozens of cookies for a Twentieth Century Club tea she was to host the next day.

Mrs. Neslage, who'll be 62 in April, hasn't changed her pace much. In some areas — exercise, for example — she's increased her activity quite a bit.

Almost five years ago, Mrs. Neslage underwent a coronary bypass operation to correct a problem she had in a sub-clavicle artery. In three areas of the artery, blockage was preventing normal blood circulation.

She discovered her problem after several fainting spells — which usually occurred when she was sitting in a position which restricted her blood flow.

"I noticed I would sort of faint," she says, "and I kept thinking to myself, 'Well, it'll go away.'"

After a spell in Sunday School one morning, her husband, Fred, contacted a doctor, who insisted she come in the next day for tests.

After the blockage was pinpointed, bypass surgery was scheduled. After the operation, her body rejected the veins — taken from her own leg — which were used to bypass the blocked areas.

The second time, four days after the initial bypass was done, surgeons successfully replaced the veins with plastic material.

"I feel real good," says Mrs. Neslage. "I have lots of energy — it gives you a new lease on life. I've had five years that I would not have had and they've been real productive years."

A helpful nurse outlined the procedures the surgeon would follow and told her what to expect, something Mrs. Neslage says helped alleviate her fears. She emphasizes the competent medical care she received and respects the doctors who worked with her.

"If I've gained a pound or two pounds when I go back for a check-up, he says, 'Get it off' and I do. I have a great deal of confidence in my doctors and I do what they tell me."

Mrs. Neslage, who quit smoking shortly before her surgery, watches her diet closely and doesn't drink alcohol. She didn't exercise much before, but after the bypass, she began walking about six miles a day.

She doesn't walk that much now; instead, she rides a stationary bicycle eight to 10 miles every day.

"Every morning, whether school keeps or not, I go to the youth center to work out for an hour or an hour and a half. I think that gives me my energy."

The mother of 11 — seven boys and four girls — also swims every week and takes ballet two nights a week.

Even when she stepped up her exercise regimen, she continued her extracurricular activities. Mrs. Neslage, whose sons all gained the Eagle Scout rank and her daughters earned comparable Girl Scout honors, just began a term as a board member for the Boy Scouts.

Involved in her church, she also gives her time to Genesis House and Panhellenic.

She does her own housework in the 6,000-square-foot home her husband bought 19 years ago, on their 25th wedding anniversary.

Of the couple's 11 children, 10 are college graduates, with the youngest working on his degree. An avid reader, Mrs. Neslage is the grandmother of 15, with another on the way.

The Neslages enjoy traveling to see their scattered family, but most days, Dorothy Neslage can be found drying off from a swim, peddling a bicycle, or tending to numerous church and civic activities.

"I've learned to open my eyes to a lot of things I wouldn't have seen," she says, "like helping other people."

Editor's note — The Total Life Clinic in West Virginia provides basic health care for residents in its Appalachian area. But there's something more provided than general medicine, pediatrics, psychiatry and dentistry. That's religion.

By GEORGE ESPER

Associated Press Writer

BUCKHANNON, W. Va. (AP) — When Greenbrier Almond and some of his friends were medical students at West Virginia University back in the early 1970s, they felt they were losing their identities as persons.

"We were learning a great deal of facts, particularly the first couple of years," recalls Almond. "We were just becoming computers and into the competition of things."

So, his group started a Bible study and a fellowship time at West Virginia University.

Out of this grew the Total Life Clinic, which Almond incorporated a little over two years ago. The clinic has 3,000 patients or more and is planning to expand its staff and facilities over the next five years, Almond says.

"What we're wanting to do at the Total Life Clinic is, first of all, provide primary care services to our area," Almond explains. "But we're different in that we feel that Jesus Christ is central in our own lives and we're coming from a Christian care perspective with each patient that we have."

The clinic provides care in family medical practice, pediatrics, psychiatry and dentistry.

Almond, 31, a medical doctor, is the psychiatrist. His wife, Araceli, a Filipino-American whom he met at the Charleston, W. Va., medical center, is the pediatrician. His father, Harold, who has been in practice here for 30 years, is the family doctor.

The clinic staff tries to get to know patients and not just make a diagnosis and a treatment plan and rush them out.

Almond, a United Methodist, feels it is easier to get to know the patients better in a small community like Buckhannon, an Appalachian college town two hours away from both Charleston and Pittsburgh.

The town population is 9,000, the rural county 20,000. It is the home of West Virginia Wesleyan College, which has an enrollment of nearly 2,000 students.

Clinic gives more than medical aid

THE PEOPLE'S PHARMACY

If you've ever tried to read a doctor's prescription you may know how incredibly frustrating the experience can be. Until recently, though, there has never been any scientific evidence to support what a lot of people already knew — many doctors, despite their other skills, have trouble writing legibly.

A recent article in the Journal of the American Medical Association evaluated the handwriting of staff physicians in a 500-bed teaching hospital. The findings were shocking.

According to the author, who preferred to remain anonymous, "The average writing skill performance is fair to average. This means that 50 percent of all orders written require extra time to interpret because of handwriting ... 16 percent of physicians had illegible writing, and 17 percent had barely legible handwriting."

Illegibility wastes time and probably increases the cost of hospital medical care. Whenever nurses, secretaries, other physicians and pharmacists have to ask "What was meant by that order?" it slows down the system and ultimately, that costs money.

But even more important than increased cost, poor handwriting can cause serious errors.

Many drugs are spelled alike. For example, the digitalis heart medications digoxin and digitoxin are easily confused even when handwriting is good. Such a mistake could be dangerous.

Someone who was being successfully treated with digitoxin could develop a potentially hazardous overdose reaction if digoxin were mistakenly substituted.

If the decongestant cold medicine Dimetapp were given to someone with hypertension or heart trouble in place of the antihistamine Dimetane, a dangerous elevation in blood pressure might result.

Fortunately, most pharmacists do not rely on their ability to translate an illegible scrawl when they fill a questionable prescription. When in doubt they call the doctor and double check what was intended.

But confusion could be eliminated before it gets started if patients insisted on legible prescriptions in the first place. Before leaving the doctor's office you should know exactly what medicine has been prescribed and how you are supposed to take it.

Many studies have shown that patients often make serious mistakes with prescribed drugs. From 50 to 80 percent take their medication at the wrong time, in the wrong dose or for the wrong purpose. And much of this misunderstanding is apparently caused by unclear prescription directions. But what may have seemed clear in the office may become confusing when you get home and try to recall whether the doctor meant "every four hours" or "four times a day."

Other physicians use Latin abbreviations when they write prescriptions. For example, "3 gtt. Q.I.D. p.c." translates as, "take three drops four times a day after meals."

The leading pharmacology textbook in the world, edited by Drs. Louis Goodman and Alfred Gilman, is unequivocal in its condemnation of this practice: "The directions to the patient should always be written in English ... abbreviations and empirical jargon, whether written in Latin or English, should not be employed."

Good communication between patients and physicians is a goal that is worth striving for. Clear information about the medications that are prescribed and the directions for their use are essential.

If your doctor has trouble with penmanship, politely request that he or she take a few extra seconds to print your next prescription or, better yet, have it typewritten.

MIDWAY

Henry Fonda (pictured left) and Toshio Mifune (right) star as the two admirals who pitted their fleets against each other during World War II in a Japanese-American battle for control of the Pacific, in 'Midway' on NBC-TV's 'Friday Night at the Movies'.

FRIDAY, FEB. 29.
The battle begins when Japanese bombers attack the island of Midway, hoping to draw the American fleet into the open. Soon, scout planes from both fleets are searching for the enemy's warships. Once sighted, an all-out battle is underway. The epic drama also stars Charlton Heston, James Coburn, Glenn Ford, Hal Holbrook and Robert Mitchum.

Fats Waller lyrics make him original

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fats Waller lived hard, laughed loud and wrote lyrics like this:

"This joint is jumpin', it's really jumpin', come in cats and check your hats, this joint is jumpin'... The roof is rockin', the neighbor's knockin', we'll all run when the wagon comes, this joint is jumpin'."

If you are in America and not in jail, find a television set this Thursday and watch PBS-TV's "Camera 3" episode, "Fats Waller: An American Original." If you are in jail, bribe the keeper.

This is as basic as good gets: Fats Waller, performing his own music.

Thomas "Fats" Waller died in 1942 at the age of 39; but he left a lot of himself around, in hundreds of songs and stories and, fortunately, in some remarkably well-preserved film performances.

The "Camera 3" tribute includes Fats' own renditions of "Honeysuckle Rose," "The Joint is Jumpin'," "Your Feet's Too Big" and "Ain't Misbehavin'," the title number of the current hit Fats Waller revue.

The central cast from "Ain't Misbehavin'" acts as sort of group host for the half-hour, filling in with Waller legend and history and doing a couple of numbers themselves.

Of the Waller legend, we are told:

"Fats Waller was an easy force, a grand creator. He was a composer, pianist, a master of the organ and comedian... Fats was a hit right from the start — a big, jovial man who could go all night on gin alone."

But there was a man underneath, "a black man, selling his stuff in a white world. And it was a buyer's market."

When Waller died, all of Harlem turned out for the funeral, and Adam Clayton Powell Jr. began his eulogy with the words: "Fats Waller always played to a packed house."

The thing doesn't pretend to be a biography, just a glimpse of a big, hard-pounding man who peddled joy. But ample sampling of his product is presented here, and that's the show's merit.

Tugging at the opposite reaches of your emotions, NBC offers a documentary on troubled kids, "For The Child's Own Good." NBC reporter Bob Rogers focuses on the treatment of delinquent children, which has become a boom industry, fed by anxious times and big government grants.

The star of the show is a place called Elan, a treatment center in the Maine woods that features confrontation as its prime therapeutic device.

At Elan, dunce caps, paddles and high-volume group confrontations are employed because, claims Joe Ricci, who runs Elan, there is no such thing as a good kid who has not been disciplined.

Elan has made Joe Ricci a millionaire.

The NBC White Paper offers no judgments here, but it does point out that no hard evidence refutes or supports the centers' claims; nor is there any uniform code regulating such places.

On the light side

DETROIT (AP) — Feel like cussing out the family car? In the future, a properly programmed car may be able to understand you, researchers say.

Researchers from three companies briefed reporters on their projects in speech synthesis and speech recognition Tuesday before presenting papers at the convention of the Society of Automotive Engineers.

According to the scientists, the Air Force more than 20 years ago started using tape-recorded voices to warn pilots something was wrong. A vocal warning "may well be more effective. I've known people to keep right on driving after the 'low oil pressure' light came on," said Richard Higgins of Texas Instruments.

Cheap micro-computers synthesizing human speech would never wear out, would have no moving parts and would be cheaper, he said. "It can be done right now," said Gil Liscano of Threshold Technology Inc. "But there are hard questions. What does it cost? Do people really want it?"

The other side of the conversation, of course, is from driver to car. Janice Baker of Dialog Systems Inc. said a car might incorporate a device to unlock the doors only on hearing the owner's voice. But she said researchers are trying to find ways to get such devices to respond to a master with a bad cold.

How Much Does It Cost To Mail $1,387?
CINCINNATI (AP) — Officials at the Eagle Savings Association didn't want to pay the 67 cents postage due on a bank bag — until they saw the cash inside.

According to police, the case of the wandering bag apparently began after a holdup last week, when a dye bomb in one of two stolen bags exploded as robbers fled. Police found the exploded bag, which contained $1,282 in red-stained cash, but no trace of the other.

On Monday, a postal worker brought in a bag and asked savings and loan officials for 67 cents postage due. The carrier allowed a bank official to peek inside. Detective Gus Feldman said the officials were glad to pay the postage once they caught sight of $1,387. There was nothing to identify who mailed the bag, police said. They added there had been news reports that the cash was marked.

Three men have been taken into custody in connection with the robbery.

NAMES IN THE NEWS

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — More than a year after Florida oranges ended up in the middle of a controversy over homosexual rights, citrus spokeswoman Anita Bryant may be on the way out.

Miss Bryant's contract with the Florida Citrus Commission expires in August and agency marketing director Douglas Hoffer says no more commercials with the singer are planned. Her departure is "probably true if the commission goes along with it," Hoffer said.

The former beauty queen, who has represented citrus growers since 1968, began to lose favor last year after leading the 1978 campaign against homosexual rights in South Florida. Gay activists urged a boycott of Florida products and two industry lawyers, in arguing that Florida identification should not be required on product labels, told the state Supreme Court recently they did not necessarily want their products tied too closely to Miss Bryant.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — People are people but Miss Piggy, the snout-nosed bombshell of the big and little screens, is only a puppet — and not eligible for a best actress Oscar, say Academy Awards officials.

The starlet and her creators — Frank Oz and Jim Henson — were not immediately available for comment in the case. A few weeks ago, Miss Piggy said she was having a gown designed in case she were nominated — "something daring, yet elegant, something only a pig could wear."

Asked then whether her asking price for a picture could go up, she replied: "I'm just a silly woman. I don't know about big important things like money. All I want is to fulfill myself as an actress and a pig while Bernie (Muppet manager Bernie Brillstein) watches the gross receipts."

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Former Olympian and Dallas Cowboy star Bob Hayes was leaving prison today after serving 10 months on a narcotics conviction, say state corrections officials.

Hayes, once dubbed the "world's fastest human," was sentenced to a maximum five years last April after being convicted of delivering cocaine to an undercover police officer.

Partners are likely to play very prominent roles in your affairs this coming year. You may form several beneficial alliances in order to accomplish different goals.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't let anyone push you into making hasty decisions today. It could be against your best interests. When you think things out for yourself the results will be advantageous. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter Mail $11 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you permit outside diversions to gain the upper hand, the day will not be as productive as it should be. Focus on practical endeavors.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In the morning hours your mate may be a trifle difficult to get along with. However, he or she can be quickly placated if you make light of the issues.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Do not attempt tasks today until you are prepared to give the your undivided attention. Lack of concentration could cause errors.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Should you decide to go on a shopping spree today, be wary of making impulsive buys. Choose your items only after making comparisons.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't be discouraged today if you're subjected to a few false starts. Once you get in gear, you'll be able to correct earlier mistakes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Jumping to conclusions could cause you unnecessary problems today. Reserve your judgment till you have full command of all the facts.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Conditions are rather unusual for you today in that you should be able to turn an unprofitable situation into something gainful. Use your smarts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't be afraid to go to friends today for help with something you cannot do on your own. Their luck will rub off on you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Major achievements are possible today, but they may not be accomplished with your initial effort. The harder you try, the luckier you get.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be prepared to make adjustments in your plans if things aren't working out as you hoped they would. A few proper changes could put you on the path to success.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're luckiest today in situations where you manage something for another and you're also cut in for a piece of the action. All will come out ahead.

Dolphins compete in Odessa meet

ODESSA-Raymond Hill captured first place in three events for the Pampa Dolphins, who participated in the Odessa B-C class swim meet held recently.

Hill took first in the 50-yard backstroke (38.2), 50-yard flystroke (38.2), and 50-yard breaststroke (43.3). Shonda Corcoran also earned a first place in the 100 fly with a 1:21.3 clocking.

Miss Corcoran also earned an A certificate for competing in a higher class. She was timed at 1:21.3 in the 100 flystroke and 30.2 in the 50 freestyle. Richie Hill picked up a B certificate in 200 breaststroke with a time of 2:44.0.

"These were excellent swims," Pampa coach Mike Eckhart said. "All the Dolphins did an good job in their particular events. Everyone keeps improving."

Other teams competing were from Abilene, Amarillo, San Angelo, Odessa, Hobbs, New Mexico; Monahans and Midland.

The Dolphins compete in the Amarillo Aquatic Club A-B meet March 7-9 at the Amarillo Town Club.

Dolphins who placed in the Odessa meet are listed below:

Richie Hill, fifth, 8:52.6, 500 free; fifth, 45.6, 50 backstroke; second, 47.7, 50 breaststroke; Richie Hill, second, 2:15.6, 200 freestyle; B certificate, 2:44.0, 200 breaststroke; second, 1:11.2, 100 flystroke; third, 2:35.4, 200 intermediate; second, 27.2, 50 freestyle; fourth, 1:01.0, 100 freestyle; third, 1:15.3, 100 breaststroke; Shonda Corcoran, B certificate, 2:31.0, 200 freestyle; third, 1:27.4, 100 backstroke; second, 1:29.8, 100 breaststroke; first, 1:21.3, 100 flystroke; A certificate, 30.2, 50.

Competing, but not placing were Neil Turner, John Edwards, and Scott Rabel.

"These three swimmers were able to improve their times," Eckhart said. "They did a fine job."

The Dolphins range in age from eight to 16 years old.

Model train club scheduled to meet Friday afternoon

One of the most popular hobbies in the United States can have a chance to grow in Pampa if you're interested enough to attend a meeting at 4:30 p.m. Friday in the Clarendon College Center.

Perry Moose, who would like to organize a model railroad club, urged persons who like to play with train sets to attend the meeting.

"There's several, maybe as many as 25 here in Pampa who have model train layouts," Moose said. "It ranks high with hobbies nationwide."

During the meeting, the group would select one of the classrooms for a train layout and also exchange ideas with each other, Moose said.

"We'd like to start a club patterned after the one in Amarillo," Moose said. "They're very well-organized and they have a lot of fun at what they're doing."

More information can be obtained by calling Moose at 665-1027 or Bill Quarles at 669-3664.

Pampa shooters continue to win

Pampa shooters continue to take top honors in Hunter's Pistol Silhouette Matches.

Last weekend's match was no different as local sharpshooters dominated a long afternoon of target shooting.

Gary Clark was match winner with a 27. Juanita Nichols took second in Class AAA with a 25. Dick Blain was second in Class AA with a 23 and Gary Clark Jr. was Men's Class A champion with 19.

Other Pampa winners were Robert Brewer, second, Men's Class B, 14; Steve Barnes, first, Junior, Class B; Janet Billyeu, second, Women's Class B, 10; Diane Tidwell, third, Women's Class B, six; Brenda Blain, first, Women's Unclassified.

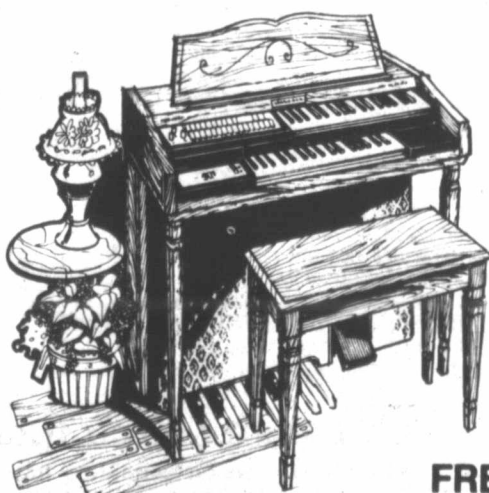

In team competition, Pampa won both the four-man (Gary Clark, Juanita Nichols, Jim Barnes and Gary Clark Jr.) and two-man (Gary Clark and Juanita Nichols) events.

Ninety-six shooters participated, which made the match much longer than usual. Most contestants had to wait at least an hour between targets to shoot.

"It was a long afternoon, but the rewards were well-worth the wait," Fran Gross, secretary-treasurer of the Pampa Pistol and Rifle Club, said.

Myers wary of Mustangs

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Texas Tech Coach Gerald Myers wishes things had been a little more peaceful this season for the Southern Methodist basketball team.

The Red Raiders go against SMU tonight in the Southwest Conference post-season basketball tournament. And Myers is worried that the Mustangs will benefit from season-long "win or else" pressure and last week's resignation of SMU Coach Sonny Allen.

"I think they have some extra incentive. They probably will be more relaxed and play better because of the pressure they've been under all year. That pressure's off now," Myers said Wednesday at the coaches' press conference. "But our team has plenty of incentive. We've had a lot of disappointments this year, and our players feel they have a chance to salvage a little bit."

SMU athletic officials delivered Allen a

"win or else" ultimatum before the season. The Mustangs won their first seven games. But they floundered to a 7-9 record in the SWC, splitting two games with Texas Tech. Allen resigned last Friday, saying it was "best for the school and best for myself."

The Mustangs then dispatched Baylor 86-83 Monday night to earn a berth in tonight's second round.

Allen agrees that the tournament pressure will be anticlimactic after what his players went through this season.

"They've been under the gun all year," he said. "When you've been operating the whole year like that, pressure is nothing new."

But Allen admits the upheaval has affected his son, Billy — SMU's crack sophomore playmaker. Billy Allen is averaging more than 13 points and nine assists per game this season, but his shooting has been off.

"It's affected Billy, but he's responding pretty good to it," said Allen. "It's enough pressure that he's my son, but he's also our ball handler. All this pressure has affected his shooting, but not his floor game."

SMU, 16-11, meets Tech, 15-12 at 9:30 p.m. after Texas, 17-9, and Houston, 14-13, open tonight's twinbill in the 16,000-seat HemisFair Arena.

The winner of the Houston-Texas game plays Arkansas in Friday night's semifinals, while the SMU-Tech winner draws regular season champion Texas A&M. The championship game is Saturday night.

The Longhorns have won their five games against Houston in the past two seasons, eliminating the Cougars from last year's tournament.

"Texas has handled us better than anybody in the league," said Houston Coach Guy Lewis. "Texas has just worn us out."

Billie Jean looking for another win

HOUSTON (AP) — When Billie Jean King says she wants to win a Women's Pro Tennis tournament "with the heavies in it," she's not talking about overweight tennis players.

King battled through the field of the tour stop at Detroit last week and won the championship and now she'd like to build momentum with a victory in this week's $150,000 tournament at The Summit.

"I need to win tournaments back to back and now I've got to win one with the heavies in it," King said.

That would be top-seeded Martina Navratilova and second-seeded Tracy Austin, who did not contend for the title at Detroit.

But the oft-interrupted schedule for this week's $150,000 tour stop in Houston's Summit and King's own hectic personal schedule is making it difficult to even play a match.

The tournament started Monday and yet King had to wait until today to play her first round match against Regina Marsikova.

King's personal schedule took her to Shreveport, La. for an exhibition on Monday to New York on Tuesday for a news conference and back to Houston for her first round match Wednesday.

The tournament, sponsored by Avon Products, continues through Sunday.

Teagle tops All-SEC team

DALLAS (AP) — Baylor's slender sophomore gunner, Terry Teagle, was named the Outstanding Player of the Year and Texas A&M's Shelby Metcalf was voted Coach of the Year on The Associated Press 1979-1980 All-Southwest Conference basketball team.

The 6-foot-5 Teagle, who averaged 22.5 points and 7.9 rebounds per game, did most of his damage inside although he could make a 20-footer with the ease of a layup.

Joining Teagle of Broadus, Texas, inside on the mythical dream team picked by the SWC coaches were junior Rynn Wright, the most consistent of Texas A&M's regular-season SWC champions who averaged 14.2 points and 6.9 rebounds per game and Arkansas' Scott Hastings, who scored at a 17-point per game clip with 7.1 rebounds.

The guards were Houston freshman Rob Williams and Texas senior Ron Baxter, who scored 15.7 and 17.9 points, respectively. Baxter triggered the Texas offense although he did some of his scoring inside.

Rice's sensational Ricky Pierce, a sophomore from Garland, was named The Newcomer of the Year. He averaged 18.8 points and 8.4 rebounds per game. The 6-6 Pierce headed a second unit inside that included Texas A&M's Vernon Smith (15.9 PPG and 7.3 rebounds), and Texas' LaSalle Thompson, only a frosh who averaged 13.3 points and led the league in rebounding with 9.8 caroms per game.

Arkansas jumping-jack U.S. Reed, who scored 13.6 points a game, and Texas A&M's Dave Britton, who calmed down his clowning antics to direct the Aggie offense and score 11.3 points per game plus 3.2 assists, were the second team guards.

The coaches voted Texas A&M's Wright, who usually drew the opposition's top offensive star, as the Defensive Player of the Year.

Metcalf outdistanced Rice's Mike Schuler in the Coach of the Year balloting.

The coaches voted for an All-Newcomer Team for the first time. It included Williams and Southern Methodist's Dave Piehler and Texas Christian's Darrell Browder — a tie — outside, and Thompson, Pierce, and Texas A&M's Claude Riley inside.

The only seniors among the Top Ten players were Baxter and Britton.

Pampa swimmers enter regionals

Sixteen Pampa High swimmers will compete in the Class AAAA regionals Friday and Saturday. It's the largest group ever to represent Pampa in the regionals, according to coach Mike Eckhart.

"They've all been working hard and are ready to swim," Eckhart said. "I look for both our boys and girls to do a real fine job. I'm just real proud of them."

Two swimmers, Cindy Raymond and Lisa Raymond, placed last year at the regionals. Both return again. Cindy, a sophomore, took third in the 400 freestyle, and Lisa, a junior, placed fourth in the butterfly.

Girls who qualified for the regionals after placing in the district meet earlier this month include Julie Turner, Cindy Raymond, Lisa Raymond, and Lynly Cambern. 200 medley relay: Lisa Raymond, 200 individual medley and 100 butterfly: Lynly Cambern. 50 freestyle and 100 freestyle: Cindy Raymond. 100 freestyle and 100 breaststroke: Julie Turner. 200 individual medley and 100 backstroke, and Lynda Wilson, 200 freestyle.

Qualifying in the boys division were Cody Moore, Mark Alexander, Scott Grayson, and Jerry Bond, 200 medley relay: Don Braswell, Clay Douglass, Darrell Kyle, and Richard Steger. 400 freestyle: Richard Steger. 200 freestyle and 100 freestyle: Don Braswell. 200 freestyle and 500 freestyle: Clay Douglass. 200 individual medley and 400 freestyle: Scott Grayson. 100 butterfly: Cody Moore. 100 backstroke: Eugene Thompson. 200 individual medley and 100 breaststroke: Tyler Berry. 200 freestyle: Phillip Trusty qualified as an alternate in the 200 medley relay and 400 freestyle relay.

Pampa boys finished in a tie for second with Tascosa in the District 3-AAAA meet while the Lady Harvesters took third in the girls division. Amarillo High (boys) and Tascosa (girls) won the district titles.

The only first-place winner for Pampa was Cindy Raymond, who won the 100 breaststroke with a 1:16.64.

All-Stars meet Whittier tonight in boys tourney

Pampa All-Stars meet Whittier of Amarillo at 7:30 p.m. tonight at the Optimist Club gym as action continues in the Top O' Texas 5-6 grade boys tournament.

The All-Stars routed Skellytown, 73-11, in their first-round game Monday night. Panhandle meets Skellytown at 6 p.m. tonight in the first game of the tournament.

In last night's games, Dumas rolled over St. John's, 95-12, and Coronado of Amarillo trounced White Deer, 40-16. Games are being played each night this week in the double-elimination tournament, starting at 6 p.m.

The finals are scheduled Saturday night. The tournament is sponsored by Pampa Optimist Club.

Pampa gals tee off golf season here Saturday

Pampa's Lady Harvester golf team will tee off the season Saturday in a triangular meet with Amarillo High and Tascosa at the Pampa Country Club.

Pampa gals were scheduled to start two weekends ago in the Lubbock Invitational, but canceled out due to the bad weather.

Team members include Susie Carter, the only senior.

Notre Dame surprises DePaul

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Top-ranked college basketball teams which venture into Notre Dame's Athletic and Convocation Center indeed are invading treacherous ground.

Five times in the 12-year history of the ACC — as the school's "sixth man" student body affectionately calls it — the Irish have stopped the nation's No. 1 team in its tracks.

On Jan. 23, 1971, it was UCLA. Three years later, it was UCLA again and the Bruins' 88-game winning streak. In 1977, it was unbeaten San Francisco, and a year later defending national champion Marquette.

Wednesday night was DePaul's turn. It took two overtime sessions, but the Irish got the job done again with a pulsating 76-74 victory which snapped the Blue Demons' 26-game winning streak.

"That's what freaks me out about this place," said Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps. "Don't play Notre Dame when you're No. 1 and unbeaten."

"But this doesn't compare with 1974. Beating UCLA, snapping the winning streak and everything that goes with it rank with the greatest moments in sports. I think any coach would have wanted to be part of it," Phelps added.

Orlando Wooleridge canned two free throws with 19 seconds left in the second overtime to give the Irish, 21-5, the victory. The winning shots capped a steady uphill climb which began after DePaul, 25-1, scored the first eight points of the second half to take a commanding lead.

But Notre Dame roared back and wiped out a nine-point deficit by scoring 11 straight points to set up a see-saw battle which saw the game tied at 64 after regulation, and 70 after the first overtime.

Both teams wasted opportunities to win the game in regulation. Two free throws by Tracy Jackson tied the game at 64 with 1:08 left. DePaul went into a delay game and held the ball until Teddy Grubbs threw it away with 13 seconds left.

Notre Dame took possession but turned it over when Bill Hanzlik was whistled for traveling five seconds later. DePaul's Clyde Bradshaw missed a 20 footer at the buzzer, and the game went into overtime.

Rich Branning tied the game at 70 with a jumper from the corner with seven seconds left in the first overtime. He got the chance after James Mitchem, playing with a broken hand, missed the entire backboard on the front end of a one-and-end free throw situation with 36 seconds to go and DePaul leading 70-68.

While Coach Ray Meyer obviously was disappointed with the loss, he seemed a bit relieved.

Girls state tournament tips off today

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Nazareth, winner of three consecutive Class B girls' basketball titles, opened the state tournament today with a semifinal game against newcomer Port Aransas.

The second game was a rematch of the 1979 semifinal contest between Weatherford Brook and Avinger. Brook won by three points last year and gained the finals, where it lost to Nazareth, 46-43.

Slaton, another defending champion, and Hardin had an afternoon game. Slaton has won two straight championships in 2A. The other first-round game in 2A featured Hays Consolidated and Powderly North Lamar.

Dallas South Oak Cliff, the team with the most impressive record — 38-0 — opens play Friday against Pearland, a Houston-area team with a 29-6 record.

South Oak Cliff has won 103 and lost one in the last three years, falling only to Victoria, 43-41, for the 4A championship last year. South Oak Cliff won titles in 1977-78.

This season South Oak Cliff's pre-tournament record includes victories over seven of the other 19 teams in the tournament.

It beat one team by 82 points this season, and its closest victory was 56-51 over another 4A semifinalist, Austin Lanier.

Lanier, the first Austin team ever to appear in the 30-year-old girls' tournament, is 34-2. Lanier will play Lubbock Monterey, 30-2, Friday night.

Class 3A semifinal games matching Corpus Christi Flour Bluff and Azle and Dumas and Waco Midway were set for Thursday night.

Harvesters open track season Friday with Top O' Texas meet at Randy Matson field

The annual Top O' Texas Track Meet gets underway Friday at Pampa's Randy Matson track with 17 teams entered in the boys' and girls' high school divisions.

Teams entered in the boys division include Pampa, Amarillo High, Borger, Dumas, Hereford, Palo Duro, Plainview, and Tascosa.

Teams entered in the girls division include Pampa, Borger, Dumas, Hereford, Lubbock Dunbar, Lubbock High, Palo Duro, Plainview, and Tascosa.

Preliminaries begin at 2:30 p.m. with the girls' variety relay and conclude at 5 p.m. with the girls' 16 meter relay. The meet continues at 10:30 a.m. Saturday with boys' 110 meter hurdles. The finals are scheduled for 2:30 p.m.

Defending champions are Tascosa (boys) and Palo Duro (girls). Pampa finished fifth in the six-team boys division, but the Shocker B squad won the junior varsity competition.

The Lady Harvesters took fourth a year ago while the Pampa B team gals placed fifth in the JV division.

Harvester coach Mike Brent will be counting on veterans like high jumper Kyle Bradford, shotputter Danny Buzzard, miler Mike Wheeler, and Joe Murray, 800 meters, to carry much of the load.

However, there are a few underclassmen who could pull some surprises.

Randy Slaybaugh won the shot put in the junior high district meet a year ago by tossing the eight-pound ball over 50 feet. Kevin Coleman ran the quarter in 53 seconds as a ninth grader last year. Derek Young, a transfer, won the district ninth-grade sprint championship in the Dallas school system last year.

Others expected to help out are high jumpers Pernel Jackson and Roy Britt, Denny Coombs, 1600 meters; Mark Kotara, 100; Neal Braswell, distance; James Borchardt, long jump and sprints; Steve Kotara, quarter; Don Braswell, distance, and Tim Bailey, pole vaulter.

"We're going to be weak in the hurdles and sprints," Brent said. "We don't have to be weak in the hurdles and sprints," Brent said. "We don't have anybody on the hurdles and we have very few sprinters. However, we should be able to point in the pole vault, high jump and other field events on a regular basis which is something we haven't been able to do in a long time."

In the girls division, Pampa coach Betty Chamberlain faces a rebuilding year.

Sprinters Shelly Thompson, Christy Youngblood, and Mary Darby, hurdler Kellye Richardson, Penny Harbin, shot put and discus; and distance runners Jolynne Ellis and Carrie Golden comprise the bulk of the Lady Harvesters squad.

12 GOOD REASONS WHY YOU'LL FIND THE DAILY NEWSPAPER AN IMPORTANT PART OF YOUR CHILDS EDUCATION...

1. It's an adult medium. No big seventh-grader with a reading problem likes to be seen carrying around "Six Ducks in a Pond." But he's proud to be seen reading the newspaper.
2. It deals in reality, in what is happening here and now. Motivation is built-in for reading and discussions.
3. It bridges the gap between the classroom and the "real" world outside.
4. It contains history as it happens, reported as completely and objectively as is humanly possible.
5. It contains something for every student: comics for the slow reader, editorials for the bright youngster; real math problems for the child who hates textbooks; science as it happens.
6. It contains practical vocabulary, the words students will use over and over again throughout their lives.
7. It can be marked, cut, pasted, colored-important to young children who learn by doing and seeing.
8. It contains in its news stories the best models for clear, concise, simple writing.
9. It is the perfect model for teaching students to write for a purpose and for a particular audience.
10. It is the only up-to-date social studies text there is.
11. It is the only text the majority of children will continue to read throughout their lives.
12. It is an influential and integral part of our free society. Its freedom is guaranteed under the Constitution which some have said is "less the right of the newspaper to print than it is the right of the citizen to read."

STATE BRIEFS

HOUSTON (AP) — A man charged with 66 robberies has been sentenced to 35 years in prison in connection with four of the holdups. Nolan Luvon Johnson, 21, was convicted and sentenced Wednesday. All of the robberies involved fast food restaurants.

HOUSTON (AP) — A 10-year-old boy has been arrested in connection with 10 fires that police say were deliberately set, including a $175,000 warehouse fire.

The youth, who is in the third grade, was taken into custody after a witness saw him enter a building Tuesday that caught fire minutes later.

The boy reportedly told police he lit the fire with matches he bought at a nearby store. The boy's father allegedly told police he expected the arrest.

HOUSTON (AP) — Harris County Judge Jon Lindsay says he will push for a resolution opposing the planned construction of a radioactive materials processing plant in southeast Houston.

Lindsay said Wednesday the facility, which is to be built by Nuclear Sources and Services Inc., could pose a "potential health hazard" to nearby residential areas.

The firm has received permission from the city and state to build the facility.

Lindsay said he was ask Harris County Commissioners to approve a resolution opposing the plant.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Conservative Union said Wednesday three House members and two senators compiled perfect conservative voting records during the 1979 Legislature.

The representatives with 100 percent conservative records were Republicans Tom Delay of Simiton, Bill Ceverha of Dallas and Brad Wright of Houston.

Democratic Sens. Roy Blake of Nacogdoches and Ed Howard of Texarkana also compiled perfect conservative voting records, the Conservative Union said.

The "worst rankings" in the House, the Conservative Union said, were compiled by Democratic Reps. A.C. Garcia of Pharr and Senfronia Thompson and Ron Wilson of Houston, all of whom scored zero.

The worst conservative record in the Senate, the group said, was 8 percent by Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas.

The Conservative Union said it based its ratings on 12 Senate votes and 17 House votes.

It identifies itself as a "non-profit, non-partisan conservative political organization which promotes and believes in the preservation of the free enterprise economic system."

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Visitors to this city between Dallas and Fort Worth will pay a percentage point more in taxes if they stay overnight in a hotel or motel.

The City Council voted Tuesday night to hike the hotel-motel occupancy tax from 3 to 4 percent to pay for a convention center.

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — A proposed $110 million expansion of the Dallas-Fort Worth Airport here has won approval of city councils in both Dallas and Fort Worth. But not everyone agrees with the proposed construction.

Delta, Ozark and Frontier airlines say it would benefit Braniff and Texas International Airlines at the expense of the rest of the airlines that use D-FW.

The work would be done on the Braniff and TIA terminals. But airport board president Jack Evans said, "It's the airport's responsibility to the citizens and not to one airline."

WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The man hired to investigate charges of corruption and brutality in the Immigration and Naturalization Service says he's going to need a staff increase to police the conduct of some 10,000 employees.

The investigator, former New York City police official Walter Connery, and acting INS commissioner David Crosland testified Wednesday before Congress. Crosland said he is detailing 30 employees from other duties to assist the permanent staff of 12 investigators. He said he also wants $1.5 million to clean up a backlog of complaints against INS employees.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The productivity of American workers and businesses declined in the fourth quarter of last year — but not as much as initially reported.

The Labor Department said Wednesday that the decline in productivity, which measures how many goods and services are produced in an hour of paid working time, declined at an annual rate of 0.6 percent in the fourth quarter. Earlier figures had put the decline at 1.6 percent.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A four-year battle by the Justice Department to force Philadelphia to hire women police officers is back in court over the issue of threatened layoffs.

The Justice Department sought a federal court order Wednesday to prevent Philadelphia officials from including 32 women police officers among the 628 officers to be laid off Friday. Justice attorneys say the 32 women would have had enough seniority to prevent their being laid off if the city had hired them as quickly as the court had ordered. The layoffs are planned to relieve budget problems.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Warring factions in Cambodia may see the value of an international peace conference once they realize more fighting would be useless, says Prince Norodom Sihanouk of Cambodia.

Sihanouk, who met Wednesday with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, said he sees no hope for peace in his homeland until China, the Soviet Union and Vietnam decide the forces they support cannot win a battlefield victory. But he said that, so far, those countries have shown no interest in his proposal for an international conference.

OVERSEAS

LONDON (AP) — Cuba is suffering an epidemic of African swine fever that is causing a meat shortage and is being wrongly blamed on soldiers returning home from wars in Angola and Ethiopia, the London Times reported today.

It quoted the Cuban Prensa Latina news agency as saying the government had been forced to destroy pigs in the province of Guantanamo, where the bulk of the country's pigmeat is produced, in an effort to combat the disease.

The Times said that Cuba's party-controlled press, trying to dispel rumors of the African origin, blamed the outbreaks on illegal Haitian refugees landing in boats on Cuba's east coast. African swine fever is transmitted only through carcasses and live animals, the Times said.

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The South Korean government will restore civil rights to opposition leader Kim Dae-jung and about 670 others Friday in a special amnesty designed for political reconciliation following the assassination of President Park Chung-hee, government sources said today.

The amnesty measure would make Kim eligible to run for president in elections tentatively slated for early next year. Kim, who came close to beating Park in the 1971 presidential election, served nearly three years in prison for criticizing Park's authoritarian rule in 1976.

Those affected by the amnesty are politicians and other dissidents stripped of their civil rights following convictions under three emergency decrees issued by Park in 1974 and 1975 to ban political dissent. Political prisoners convicted under the decrees were freed shortly after Park was killed by his intelligence chief Oct. 26.

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — Government relief workers aided by civil defense and military units are rushing food and medical supplies to areas affected by floods that have left almost 250,000 persons homeless in 178 towns in northern Brazil.

The government said Wednesday it was unable to provide official information on casualties, but sources said at least 60 persons died. Officials have called the flooding the worst in 30 years.

Interior Minister Mario Andreazza visited stricken areas and toured in an open boat towns flooded to the rooftops by cresting rivers. The government said it has administered typhoid vaccine and other medicines to more than 100,000 persons.

Fort Knox's goldsitter takes life easy, day-to-day

By SAUL PETT
AP Special Correspondent
FORT KNOX, Ky. (AP) — Like many of us, George Benjamin Wright keeps a small calculator in his office desk to tote up business bills or balance his checkbook.

Now and then, he figures out the market value of the merchandise across the hall. One day last month, his little $15 calculator told him that he had lost $14,734,232,027.20. Before lunch.

George went to lunch knowing that the morning's losses might well be made up the next day. It is, of course, all mental exercise, and typical of the plumb that folks around here show toward the wildly fluctuating value of a commodity that exists in their backyard in boggling abundance.

To tell it straight out, there are 147,342,320.272 ounces of gold at Fort Knox, more than was ever viewed by all the pharaohs of Egypt or the conquistadors of Spain, or the Hunts of Texas, and George Wright is responsible for every ounce and fraction thereof.

This is Uncle Sam's largest single hoard, more than half the total gold he stashes around the country. At the peak of the market in January, the local stuff alone was worth more than $123 billion (re'eat, billion). There is no law that says it can't be sold. It is no longer needed to back up our currency. If sold, it could conceivably wipe out the federal deficit for years.

But Uncle Sam isn't selling (not at this writing), and the amount of gold at Fort Knox has varied very little in recent years. It just sits there, on the shelves of narrow little rooms in a building smaller than many banks — 446,698 gorgeous little bars smaller than building bricks and each worth at least $250,000.

Watching over gold doing nothing used to be a quiet sort of job. But now strangers badger George Wright asking if they and the kids can come and see the gold (no), is it all there (yes), and is he sure it's safe (yes).

To get to Fort Knox, you take Highway 31 south, exit on Bullion Boulevard and then you'll see it at the intersection of Gold Vault Road.

It's a drab, severe, two-story rectangular building of granite, steel and concrete.

Built in 1936, the building measures 105-by-121 feet and stands 42 feet above the ground. There are rotating TV cameras on the roof, sentry boxes at the corners and along the electrified steel fence that surrounds the building. Over the marble entrance is the simple inscription: "United States Depository."

You will not get close enough to read it. You will not even reach the fence. Visitors are stopped at the road by a sign: "HALT. STATE YOUR BUSINESS INTO THE LOUDSPEAKER. DO NOT ENTER - WITH - OUT PERMISSION." If you have no real business, a disembodied voice invites you to leave.

The gold at Fort Knox and other items Uncle Sam keeps in his safety deposit box are stored in a two-level vault that occupies the core of the Depository Building. The vault door weighs 30 tons and requires several people to open, since no one person here knows the whole combination.

The walls, three feet thick, and the roof of the vault are made of steel plates, steel I-beams and steel cylinders laced with hoop bands and encased in concrete, which helps explain why nobody has ever attempted a heist.

An inside job would be equally difficult. Inside the vault are 28 compartments, each key-locked and sealed with metal, tape and sealing wax and a document bearing the signatures of several officials attesting to the number of bars, weight and the purity of the gold they saw put inside.
