Democrats argue for end to Whitewater hearings

The report says lawyers did not find evidence of fraud or intentional misconduct that would be needed to sustain a claim against the Rose Law Firm of Little Rock in the collapse of Madison Guaranty, the Arkansas S&L once owned by the Clintons' Whitewater partners.

A team of attorneys from a private law firm prepared the study first disclosed in today's Washington Post – for the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

Mrs. Clinton prepared a real estate document in regard to a money-losing land development financed by the S&L. The report said it would be highly unlikely a jury would find Mrs. Clinton knew of any wrongful purpose regarding the document.

WASHINGTON (AP) – There development, a 1,050-acre tract that stretch back to last July, was south of Little Rock known as Castle Grande. The discarding was part of a general effort to get rid of unneeded files, said the report, which concluded there is no evidence that Mrs. Clinton knew anyone might need the

The report disclosed that Mrs. Clinton now says it was Vincent Foster who first approached her about their law firm doing work for Madison.

Mrs. Clinton told federal regulators nine months ago in writing that another lawyer at the firm had approached her. That lawyer, Rick Massey, disputed her story in January before the Senate Whitewater Committee. Foster killed himself in July 1993.

For lack of a quorum – Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole was campaigning in South Carolina the Rules Committee was unable to act on a resolution for an additional $600,000 and open-ended Whitewater hearings. Democrats said Republicans just want to finance a politically motivated investigation deep into the presidential campaign season.

Earlier, the Banking Committee voted 9-7 to continue the probe indefinitely.

Whitewater Committee Chairman Alfonse D'Amato declared the issue would be brought up today on the Senate floor. Democrats said they would block debate. With the Republican-Democratic split at 53-47, Democrats could achieve that goal if no one breaks ranks.

"If they want Whitewater to be the total focus of the Senate, that's fine with us," said Dole. Picking up on that theme, D'Amato said, "It is now obvious that the Democrats are afraid of letting the American

"Did that make sense?" her reacher asked

"No," the child answered.

"Well, let's make it make sense then," the teacher replied. "Try it

"They watered it," the child began again, right index finger tracing each word, "but it didn't grow." She paused slightly before finding the correct form of "did."

"Do you think that is right?" the teacher inquired.

"Yeah, that's better," the child said with a grin.

First grader Destinie Solis read "The Seed" for first time Wednesday afternoon to teacher Sheryl Springer.

The child is a student in Springer's Reading Recovery approach in which students class, attending a 30-minute sound out words as they attempt group session four days a week with two other young girls in Recovery method emphasizes her regular class at Wilson Elementary School.

Previously, she had been found needing extra help developing her reading skills through a diagnostic reading test based on literary skills she had before starting school.

Students in the bottom 20 percent of their class in reading skills are eligible for individual sessions with Reading Recovery week-long series of articles on pro- elementary schools - Baker, grams in Pampa's public schools in Horace Mann, Lamar and recognition of Texas Public Schools Wilson. Those students identified as needing the most help in that 20 percent are the first to attend the individual sessions.

> In the one-on-one sessions, Reading Recovery teachers identify first what the child knows and works from their strengths.

> For example, Solis was having difficulty spelling the word "cheese" until Springer asked her to relate that word to a word she already knew, "see." From that hint, Solis figured out that the word she was trying to spell contained two "e's."

> After time spent in individual sessions, students move on to group sessions with two to three classmates.

"Reading Recovery means taking children where they are, deciding what they know and building on those strengths. It's not looking for their weaknesses, but moving toward their strengths," explained elementary curriculum coordinator Betty Beyer.

Instead of a phonics-based to read them, the Reading reading for comprehension. The students try to decipher the words by understanding the story as they read it.

Phonics is not totally absent from Reading Recovery, Horace Mann teacher Kristi Smith said. Students do sound out words, but tend to use a method in which they stretch the word out instead of puffing individual sounds.

plant will be kept as a weapons assembly and disassembly complex, but the Department of Energy says up to 1,600 of the plant's weapons workers may be laid off over the next 10 years.

Pantex's total work force now numbers about 3,600, of which 2,315 are involved in assembly or disassembly of nuclear weapons, officials said.

Energy Secretary Hazel O'Leary said Wednesday that as dismantlement work begins to slow down later this decade, the DOE anticipates downsizing would begin at Pantex in 1998 through layoffs and attrition.

Pantex's future workload is projected to decrease from dismantling 1,000 to 2000 weapons a year to several hundred weapons a year, based on DOE projections for weapon rebuilding, disassembly work and assembly and disassembly stockpile surveillance.

By the year 2003, when current dismantlement work needed to meet disarmament goals are finished, the work force directly associated with weapons work is torically performed at Pantex, workers.

AMARILLO (AP) – The Pantex expected to dwindle to 915, DOE projections show.

By 2005 Pantex would need about 765 weapons workers for a one-shift operation to support a smaller-sized weapons stockpile. If a larger stockpile is required, about 1,250 weapons workers would be needed to handle the workload, DOE projections show.

During a news conference in Washington that was linked to DOE sites nationwide, O'Leary said downsizing across the complex will reduce the annual operating budget for the entire weapons complex from $1.5 billion to $1 billion. That compares $2.5 billion about four years ago.

"What we have done here is downsize in place," O'Leary said of various job cuts across the nation's weapons production network. "The Pantex site will be downsized. They will continue

Earlier this year, DOE officials indicated that high explosives fabrication would be moved to one of the labs, but the department reversed its position and decided further evaluation was needed, DOE spokesman Tom Walton said. Currently, about 50 Pantex workers perform highexplosives fabrication work at the plant, he said. Although job cuts are slated for Pantex, the plant could see some jobs regained if the facility lands the mission of long-term storage or final disposition of nuclear materials. Mayor Bob Neslage officially proclaimed this week Texas Public Schools Week in Pampa Tuesday, flanked by local Masons R.C. Grider, left, and James Lewis. Texas Masons first began recognition of the state's public schools over 40 years ago. In his proclamation, Mayor Neslage notes that the Pampa public school system "is vital to the very existence of our way of life" and is "one of which all of us as citizens of Pampa can be justly proud." Neslage urged all citizens to visit a public "to observe the excellent work being done by our young people and their teachers and administrators." The Public School Week is proclaimed for March 4-8 in the state, but the Pampa schools have been observing the occasion this week.

WEATHERFORD (AP) - A range fire that raged out of control last week, destroying about 80 residences, is believed to have started by sparks from trash burning in the backyard of a residence, officials say.

A 71-year-old man was charged Wednesday with violating Parker County's anti-burn ordinance. He surrendered Wednesday morning and was released on his own recognizance.

Parker County Attorney Pat Fleming emphasized that the man, who lives on the outskirts of Poolville, 35 miles northwest starting the range fire, but of building a strong country." leaving trash unattended while it in an elevator shaft is suspected of sparking a fire that destroyed at least four historic buildings.

Fire strikes Ennis ENNIS (AP) - An electrical short

Thick, black smoke could be seen from downtown Dallas, 30 miles north of this small town, from the fire, which burned for several hours Wednesday.

Bill Sanders, manager of the Ennis Chamber of Commerce, said the fire was under control by about 2:30 p.m., but would continue to burn until today because of hot spots likely to flare up overnight.

The blaze also ignited a number of grass fires, but all were also under control by Wednesday afternoon.

The fire apparently started about 11:30 a.m. in an old elevator shaft in the Avenue Emporium, an antiques store that was destroyed.

Condemnation consternation

In California, the redevelopment agency of the city of Orange, in conjunction with a private developer, is paying an average of $17,000 in relocation benefits to families forced to move from the Villa Santiago apartments, which the agency is razing to make way for what it plans to be more attractive low-

Some of the benefits being paid out to larger families go as high as $35,000, enough for a down payment on a condo or

All of which is causing consternation among some area taxpayers. A private rental-property manager, on giving notice that the renter's lease won't be renewed, isn't required to pay out relocation money. And even if you accept the obligation of government to act differently when it seizes rental property or commands a new use of that property, why such large payments, amounts beyond the ability of many ordinary taxpayers to accumulate through hard work and frugal saving habits?

Maybe we shouldn't be surprised by these inequities. There is something fundamentally out of balance in the redevelopment process to begin with. It is a system that allows public-sector planners to condemn and seize property and impose their own vision for its proper use. The fact that the state compensates the owners of the condemned parcel can be cold comfort for those who had no desire to be shunted aside this way. While there are always winners in the process - the business people to whom the targeted property, or use of the property, is transferred - the losers are those who had no choice in the matter, no option but to give up their homes or businesses to the bulldozing insistence of the planners.

So equity is not at the heart of the process. There is obvious inequity in the government paying renters tens of thousands of dollars because they have to move from a redevelopment site while renters in private apartments that aren't targeted for redevelopment are guaranteed no such bounty if their landlords ask them to leave and jump through the right legal hoops. And what is the message to the average lower- or middleincome taxpayer, for whom $35,000 in the bank is a dream, when tax money of that magnitude is lavished on people because they happened to be in the right place at the right time?

Some of the critics of such projects, however, need to examine their own positions. The goal of getting a broader pool of affordable housing will require harnessing the market, not government condemnation programs, if the gains are to be anything more than incremental. Allowing private builders to meet the demand for modestly priced shelter by constructing projects with greater density is the effective answer to the lack of affordable housing. But the Not-In-My-Back-Yard syndrome impedes such projects, and one effect of that NIMBYism is to provide a justification for public-sector planners to intervene with their own coercive redevelopment tools, which, in many ways, are less preferable than simply allowing the market to work. Some of the people who are protesting the waste and inanities of the redevelopment process - but are also prone to fight legitimate private projects that build more units at lower cost - ought to realize that they're holding positions that jar with each other, and in that sense are inconsistent with the public good.

Thought for today

"Error of opinion may be tolerated where reason is left free to combat it."

Thomas Jefferson, 1743-1826

GOP snarls at corporate America In New Hampshire, the heirs of Abraham Lincoln fought over the mantle of Samuel Gompers. Pat Buchanan picked up where he left off in Iowa by posing as a defender of the beleaguered working class. Bob Dole gave a speech objecting to a disgusting paradox: "Corporate profits are setting records, and so are corporate layoffs." Any day now, you can expect to see Lamar Alexander wearing a tool belt and leading choruses of "I Dreamed I Saw Joe Hill Last Night." Makes you wonder: Why not just elect a Democrat? Democrats, of course, have been talking like this for years. Everyone from Robert Reich to Ted Kennedy agrees that Fortune 500 companies are too concerned about making profits and not concerned enough about improving the lot of their employees. With wages allegedly stagnant or sinking, corporate layoffs dominating the headlines and Americans expressing general anxiety about their economic future, the conventional wisdom is that corporations are too greedy and

By now, we have come to expect denunciations of the free market from Buchanan. It's surprising, though, when Dole begins stealing lines from Jesse Jackson. He brings to mind Oscar Levant's self-description: "Underneath this flabby exterior is an enormous lack of character." This shameless conversion might be expected of a politician whose idea of a great president is Richard Nixon - who shackled the entire economy with peacetime wage and price controls.

short-sighted for our own good.

The idea that heartless CEOs are the enemy of prosperity is composed of two parts misinformation and one part misunderstanding. Contrary to popular myth, most Americans are not worse off in economic terms today than they were 20 years ago - though male workers with a high school education or less have slipped.

Stephen Chapman

Nor is it true that job security has gone the way of the rotary telephone. "There is absolutely no evidence that job durations have gotten shorter than before," says labor economist Robert Topel of the University of Chicago. People get worried when they hear that AT&T is going to get rid of 40,000 employees over the next three years. No one hears about all the other companies, large and small, that are adding workers every day - as a lot of them have been doing to get the national unemployment rate to its current low level of 5.8%.

Critics complain that the stock market often rewards corporations with higher stock prices after they announce mass layoffs. These are the same people who complain that executives and investors are too focused on the short term. But the reason a company may shed workers, even during good times, and see its value increase as a result is that it is looking beyond the next quarterly report, preparing for competitive challenges that may lie years ahead.

In a world in which no firm enjoys guaranteed survival, managers don't have the luxury of keeping workers on the payroll just because it's the nice thing to do.

Generally, the choice is between getting rid of 10% or 20% of the work force today by deliberate Party still has a few.

pruning and getting rid of 100% of the work force tomorrow by going out of business.

The American economy has gotten much more competitive in recent years, which puts intense pressure on managers to eliminate every unnecessary cost. Is that a bad thing? Back in the good old days of the 1960s, liberals thought large U.S. companies faced too little competition and used their resulting market power to shaft consumers.

The relative serenity of that era let big automakers and steel companies pay handsome wages to high school dropouts on the assembly lines. But it also meant we all had to drive poorly built and overpriced American cars: Only later did highquality, inexpensive Japanese imports force Detroit to pay more attention to the needs of the buying public. Buchanan, who drove a Mercedes before he became a presidential candidate, should need no tutoring on the value of automotive competition.

A lot of politicians and pundits think businesses could actually make more money by treating employees more generously, which is supposed to make them more productive. To believe this requires you to believe that corporate executives are too dim-witted to know how to maximize their profits - and that they have something to learn from academics and politicians who have never operated a lemonade stand.

The free-market system has given us the highest standard of living in the world, but a lot of people wish it would do that without ever laying people off, closing factories or reducing wages. That's like wishing a school could maintain high standards while giving out nothing but A's.

A certain amount of creative destruction is the price of economic progress. That will come as no surprise to grownups, of which the Republican

Today in history

By The Associated Press Today is Thursday, Feb. 29, the 60th day of 1996. There are 306 days left in the year. This is Leap Day.

Today's Highlight in History: Two hundred years ago, President Washington proclaimed Jay's Treaty, which settled some outstanding differences with Great Britain, in effect. On this date:

In 1504, Christopher Columbus, stranded in Jamaica during his fourth voyage to the West, used a correctly predicted lunar eclipse to frighten hostile natives into providing food for his crew.

In 1792, composer Gioacchino Antonio Rossini was born in Pesaro, Italy.

In 1892, the United States and Britain agreed to submit to arbitration their dispute over seal-hunting rights in the Bering Sea. (A commission later ruled in favor of Britain.)

In 1896, 100 years ago, movie director William W. Wellman was born in Brookline, Mass. In 1904, President Theodore Roosevelt appointed a seven-member commission to facilitate completion of the Panama Canal.

Buchanan could unite the entire nation

The Liberals, or as I like to call them, the Rockefeller Republicans, Pat Buchanan's mortal enemies, have adopted a new line in the face of his continued success: Well, old Pat can win in states with a lot of Christian right-wingers, but, of course, he could never win against Bill Clinton. In other words, the message to conservatives is, If you want to beat Clinton, then you must choose a Rockefeller Republican. Well, if a Rockefeller Republican beats Clinton (and I don't think one can) all that would change in Washington would be a few faces and the

Just as Clinton differs from George Bush only on marginal matters, so would a Rockefeller Republican differ from Clinton only in a cosmetic fashion. A Wall Street toady is a Wall Street toady regardless of party label.

Conservatives should not forget that once Rockefeller Republicans are elected, their attitude is, as expressed by former Secretary of State James Baker, "(expletive) the conservatives! Who else are they going to vote for?"

Well, Baker found out in 1992. And, if Rockefeller Republicans sabotage Buchanan's candidacy, they will find out again in 1996.

Conservatives should not forget that conservative and Republican are not necessarily synonymous. Nor should they forget that not everyone who calls himself a conservative, actually is.

Charley Reese

The truth is, Buchanan has the best chance of beating Bill Clinton for a number of reasons.

Clinton would slaughter Bob Dole or Lamar Alexander in a televised debate. A much younger and more energetic Dole was trounced in 1976 when, as President Gerald Ford's running mate, he had to debate Walter Mondale. And Mondale is so reticent and poker-faced, he makes Al Gore seem like a speed freak. Dole is too old a warhorse to ride to an inauguration.

The liberal Republicans, Alexander and Steve Forbes, are too much like Clinton to oust him.

Buchanan, on the other hand, would leave them Clinton on the floor in a televised debate. He's very good at that and very comfortable on television, where his humor shows to good effect.

Moreover, Buchanan can do what the country club Republicans can't do, and that is bring in independent and blue-collar union voters. Buchanan, and in my opinion only Buchanan, can put together the same coalition that elected Ronald Reagan to two terms.

Speaker Newt Gingrich, the Rockefeller Republican mole in the House, is proposing that Republicans run against unions, corruption and of Clinton.

cronyism. What a disastrous strategy that would be. Republicans are as vulnerable to corruption and cronvism charges as are Democrats.

And a working man or woman's union membership card is a whole heck of lot better recommendation than a membership card to some rich man's private club. It hasn't been the working men and women, union or otherwise, who have sold out the country. It's been the white elite.

But what else can Rockefeller Republicans advocate, as they support the same global socialist policies the Democrats do - policies that are killing off American jobs, driving down the standard of living and wasting American lives and treasure in various rat holes around the world? It's typical that Gingrich wants to divide Americans whereas Buchanan wants to unite

Check 'em out. Buchanan is the only one in the bunch who has a coherent vision of where he thinks America should go, buttressed by specific positions on specific issues. He's the only one who would put the welfare of Americans and the country first. He'd be the first president to actually represent ordinary Americans since Harry Truman. He'd be the first, since Truman, to talk the same after his election as he did before it.

You really have only one choice: Buchanan or Clinton - the real Clinton or Republican versions

The corruption of language and concept

Totalitarianism requires corruption of language and concepts. Tyrannical regimes call themselves "People's Democratic Republic"; indoctrination is called "reeducation"; genocidal murder is called "ethnic cleansing" or "racial purity"; dogma is called "enlightenment," ad nauseam. Let's look at similar corruption in our country.

"Those who've been blessed ought to give something back." That's emotionally appealing but deceitful. For the most part, people with high incomes have produced valuable services for their fellow man. Sam Walton, founder of Walmart, Bill Gates, founder of Microsoft, and singer Michael Jackson provided services deemed highly valuable by their fellow men who voluntarily paid for those services. Incomes earned by these men stand as unambiguous proof that they served their fellow man. As such, they met their social obligations. So have grocery clerks, mechanics and pharmacists in varying degrees.

On the other hand, a thief truly should "give something back" because he's taken and has given nothing in return. We have it backward. Productive people (the rich), like Gates. are held up to social ridicule, while thieves, bums and other social parasites are shown compassion and concern and have become society's mascots.

"People have a right to food, decent housing right is something that exists simultaneously

among people. My right to speech and religion and to move about freely imposes no positive obligation on you. My exercising these rights in no way diminishes your rights to the same. You have the "negative" obligation of non-interfer-

So-called rights to food, housing and medical care are something entirely different. In order to deliver on a "right" to food, housing and medical care, government must burden others with the obligation to provide the same. As a consequence, those burdened are forced to have less food, housing and medical care. If this lame notion of rights were applied to free speech and freedom of religion and movement, you'd be obliged to provide me with an auditorium, church and plane fare. A and medical care." That's a stupid statement. A better term for what we call rights nowadays is

"Sensitivity" is another corrupted term. Essentially, it means don't criticize, be judgmental or call things what they are. Criticizing deadly homosexual lifestyles, acknowledging that women tend to be physically weaker than men, flunking a student for poor performance or acknowledging that black performance on standardized tests is lower than whites' qualifies one to receive charges of insensitivity and to become a candidate for mandatory reeducation. In some cases, it has led to school expulsion or loss of promotions and jobs.

Then there's meaningless language to avoid the truth. How about an "exceptional" child? I don't know if I want one around me. Would you want a "differently enabled" person to operate on you? You just don't know. My physician is an excellent internist but a poor economist and basketball player, making him differently enabled. How about a native American? Being born here, I am. "It goes by your roots, Williams. You're African-American," you say. That poses a problem. There are Americans born Afrikaners, and Egyptians. Are they African-Americans as well?

John Milton predicted, "When language in common use in any country becomes irregular and depraved, it is followed by their ruin and degradation." Case closed, just in case you're puzzled by our national decline.

Seeking to shake its stodgy reputation, the recording industry shunned the mainstream - Mariah Carey was zero for six nominations – and looked to others to counter complaints that winners did not reflect the most vital elements of contemporary music. The academy changed its nominating process this year the first time in its 38-year history. In each of the top four categories – record, album and song of the year, and best new artist – 20 entries with the most votes from the general membership were submitted to a 25-member blue-ribbon panel picked by the academy. The panel reviewed entries and selected nominees by secret ballot.

Dozens arrested on computer chip thievery charges

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) - In a sweeping crackdown on hightech thievery, authorities arrested 43 people allegedly linked to computer chip thefts at Silicon Valley companies.

More than 500 officers converged on the suspects' hideouts Wednesday, seizing weapons, computers and chips and more than $200,000 in cash, the FBI and police said.

More than 50 defendants already were in custody before Wednesday's roundup, officials said. In all, federal indictments were returned against 47 defendants and state charges were filed against 77 others.

The charges include armed robbery, distribution of stolen property, illegal gun sales and drug trafficking.

As part of the investigation, the FBI and San Jose police secretly operated a storefront business, "Prospect Distribution," for 18 months. They used hidden tape recorders and video cameras to record activities inside.

At least 400 businesses that manufacture, distribute or store computer memory chips have suffered losses totaling millions of dollars in the crime wave that started in Northern California in the late 1980s.

The crime has spread to Texas, Oregon, Florida and other states. With the tiny microprocessors fetching as much as $550 each, the chips are a lucrative target for thieves.

Teen Who's Hard To Handle Needs Firmer Grip From Dad

DEAR ABBY: I am living with a man I'll call Steve and his 17-yearold son, "Charles." We plan to marry in four months. I love Steve very much, but I can't handle Charles. I lived with my stepmother from the time I was 11 until I was an adult, and believe me, I know what it's like.

Charles' mother lives nearby. She's a heavy drinker, which is why she can't keep him, and he doesn't want to live with her. At first, everything went fairly well. I tried hard to get along with Charles, but he took advantage of me. I recently put my foot down, and now I'm the wicked old witch."

Charles dropped out of school, stays out all night, has girlfriends spend the night, and his bedroom is so filthy the door must remain closed because of the smell. He works full time, and I feel that if he's not going to school, then he should pay rent and do his share around the house. That was the rule when I was growing up, and it worked

Part of my problem is that I can't get his father to enforce any rules; when I try to talk to him, he either says, "Well, Charles is only 17" or, "I don't want to talk about it." It's putting a strain on our relationship. Abby, I am childless, so maybe I am too strict. I was not raised the way Charles is being raised meaning no control at all!

I've loved Steve for six years and I'don't want to lose him. Abby, am I PAMPA — Pampa rallied to defeat Sanford-Fritch, 11-7, in a non-district baseball game Tuesday at Harvester Field.

The Harvesters (2-1) trailed 7-2 after the first two innings. Jamisen Hancock and Todd Finney helped get Pampa back into the game. Hancock knocked in three runs while Finney, who has been bothered by a sore shoulder, collected a triple.

Duane King pitched four strong relief innings for the Harvesters. He came on in the second inning and didn't allow an earned run.

The Harvesters travel to Guymon, Okla. for a doubleheader Friday. Pampa's next home game is March 5 against River Road.

MERIN ON NO.

AUSTIN (AP) — The Interscholastic University League has decided to open the high school football season next fall without the new NCAA overtime rule that will do away with ties in college football.

The UIL uses NCAA rules, but can make exceptions, and UIL athletic director Charles Breithaupt said Wednesday that the governing body wants to get input from coaches around the state and the UIL Legislative Council.

However, barring an overwhelming outcry against it, the new NCAA overtime rule will be used during the playoffs next fall, Breithaupt said.

We're still looking to get back some surveys from coaches, and we'll seek input from the Council before making a final decision," Breithaupt said.

The UIL has been criticized for its use of a tiebreaker in playoffs. The UIL's tiebreaker system considers penetrations, first downs and total vardage, in that order, to determine which team advances whenever there is a tie at the end of High school coaches have generally been against changing the tie-breaker, but Briethaupt said he anticipates the rule probably will gain acceptance when the NCAA begins using it for regular-season games.

The NCAA's Division I-A overtime rule, approved earlier this month for all college games, gives each team a possession at the opponent's 25yard line at the end of regulation.

The overtime system is not sudden death as used in the NFL, and the clock is not a factor.

The team winning the coin toss can choose to start on offense or defense, or it can choose which 25-yard line the possessions will start on. Each team begins each possession on the same end of the field.

A possession ends when a team scores, commits a turnover or fails to convert on fourth down. The game ends when the score is no longer tied at the end of an overtime.

Any score by the defense wins the game, except the return of an extra-point attempt following a touchdown. A game also ends when a team trailing in the overtime commits a turnover.

The UIL has in the past bypassed a few NCAA rules changes — notably changes that made field goals more difficult by narrowing the width of goal posts and eliminating the use of kicking tees.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — State senators want Tennessee to sell $55 million in bonds to help build a stadium for the Houston Oilers.

Now it's up to the state House of Representatives, the Metro Council and Davidson County voters to determine whether the NFL team should move here in

And if they don't decide soon, the Oilers could end up elsewhere.

Today, the council is scheduled to give its final word on the deal, and the House also plans to vote on its share of the $292 million agreement.

Some council members said they want to wait for the results of a referendum by county voters.

Notebook Canyon, Alief Elsik only unbeaten teams

By CHIP BROWN Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — Undefeated Alief Elsik's Class 5A semifinal against Georgetown on in the semifinals. Friday in the girls' state basketball tournament has the makings of a championship

But the winner will have no time to celebrate with either 1994 5A champion Amarillo or last year's 5A titleholder Austin Westlake waiting in the finals.

Tourney semifinals in Class 1A, 3A and 4A kick off today.

Led by Rice-signee Marla Brumfield, a 5foot-9 slashing forward who averages 17 points per game, Elsik (38-0) comes to Austin as one of only two teams in the 20team tournament field with the glitz and burden of an unblemished record.

The other unbeaten team is Canyon (30-0) in Class 4A.

Defending champion Austin Westlake (34-2) will face Amarillo (29-8) at 3 p.m. Friday. Simply looking at the records, one would think Elsik should be facing Amarillo. At least that's what Elsik coach Laura Dawson

"I thought we would be playing Amarillo based on the records," Dawson said Wednesday. "But we feel very fortunate that we are in the tournament.

Westlake, which beat Duncanville 59-56 in last year's 5A title game, is led by Krista Watson and Sarah Howden, who each average 12 points. Amarillo features a balanced attack, led by junior guard Jenny Blades with an average of 14 points per game.

In Class 4A, Canyon is top-ranked and clearly the team to beat. Coached by Joe Lombard, the Lady Eagles won the 1992 3A championship.

Georgetown senior guard Natalie Tucker (12 points, 6.1 rebounds and 5 steals per game) and Valeree Valdez (12 points and 9.3 rebounds per game), is seeking its eighth state title in its 15th tournament appearance and will face Crosby (22-10) today.

In Class 3A action today, Groesbeck (34-2) will meet Liberty Hill (28-4). In the other bracket, Lindale (33-3) faces Slaton (25-7), will be making its second tournament which won the 3A title in 1987 and 2A titles

In Class 2A, three teams from last year's final four are back, including defending champion Ozona (35-2), which takes on Poth (32-5) in Friday's semifinal action. Ozona beat Poth 65-42 in last year's semifinals.

Gunter (34-1), which lost in last year's semifinals to Cooper, takes on tourney newcomer Edgewood (33-2).

In Class 1A, perennial powerhouse Nazareth (34-2) will be making its 16th state tournament appearance when it faces threetime state titlist Round-Top Carmine (25-3) Canyon, which is led by Courtney Sims in semifinal action today. Nazareth has won 12 state titles, including four straight 1A crowns from 1988-91.

Harvesters have best W-L mark

PAMPA — Of the eight teams remaining in the Class 4A playoffs, Pampa's 30-3 record is the best of the lot.

Santa Fe has the next best record at 32-5. Round Rock McNeil follows at 30-5.

Of those eight teams, the remaining four will advance to the Class 4A state tournament in Austin after this weekend's regional finals action.

The Harvesters meet Frenship (29-7) at 7 p.m. Saturday night at Hutcherson Center in Plainview. Pampa beat Sweetwater, 62-58, and Frenship defeated Randall, 64-54, in the Region 1 semifinals Tuesday night.

The other regional finals matchups are: Dallas Madison (24-6) vs. Dallas Maceo (26-5), Bay City (24-11) vs. Santa Fe (32-5), Round Rock McNeil (30-5) vs. Austin Reagan (25-9).

Frenship coach Grady Newton knows his team is considered the underdog, but he's trying to keep a sense of humor about Saturday's showdown with Pampa.

"Oh, we'll probably beat them about 30," laughed Newton. "No, not really. "I know they're going to be the toughest team we've faced. It's going to be an extremly tough game for us because of Pampa's quickness."

Frenship finished second to Sweetwater in the District 5-4A race. They split two meetings.

O'Donnell is moving to the Jets

By The Associated Press

Neil O'Donnell, who quarterbacked the Pittsburgh Steelers to the Super Bowl, is moving to the New York Jets. He agreed today to a five-year deal reportedly worth as much as $25 million.

While the club did not disclose financial terms, several reports said the package includes a signing bonus of up to $7 million.

The Jets, who had the NFL's worst record last season at 3-13, avidly pursued O'Donnell and signed offensive tackles Jumbo Elliott and David Williams in an attempt to impress the quarterback.

The St. Louis Rams also expressed interest in O'Donnell, 29, whose value didn't diminish despite two interceptions in the Super Bowl that set up two touch-downs in Dallas' 27-17 victory over Pittsburgh.

The Arizona Cardinals, one of the NFL's least successful franchisground in the 1996 signing season.

The Cardinals, who secured their two best players in defensive tackle Eric Swann and cornerback Aeneas Williams, picked up major help for the offense Wednesday when they signed six-time Pro Bowl left tackle Lomas Brown.

They hope Brown can anchor an offensive line for the Cards, 4-12 last year and in the playoffs only once in the last 21 seasons.

"You need a top-quality left tackle," Vince Tobin, the Cardinals' new coach, said after Brown signed a $9 million, three-year deal to help shore up a line that gave up a league-high 55 sacks.

You pay a lot of money to quarterbacks, and if they get hit on the blind side they could be out of they are in the fortunate position of $1.3 million.

The Indianapolis Colts matched the Jacksonville Jaguars' $18 mil-Corvatt and will get to keep their top linebacker.

sheets — the San Francisco 49ers for running back Rodney Hampton of the New York Giants and the San Diego Chargers for Miami Dolphins' defensive end Marco Coleman.

Both Coleman and Hampton are transition players, and their old teams will have a chance to match.

Carmen Policy, the 49ers' president, said the team hoped to have left San Diego on Tuesday, hoping an offer ready by Friday that to get a better offer from would include a $3 million signing Jacksonville. He said Wednesday bonus, the most in the team's history. The New York Times reported today the 49ers offered Hampton a six-year deal Wednesday night for $16.5 million, including a $3.6 million signing bonus.

Policy seemed to go out of his es during half a century in three way to avoid offending the Giants because they have Tyrone Wheatley, their top pick last year, to step in.

"We are not structuring a deal that has a lot of gadgets, gimmicks or poison pills," said Policy, who added that he believed the extra $2 million added to the salary cap earlier this week by Judge David Doty could help put the 49ers in position to grab Hampton.

"We are not an organization that believes in that style of operation. We do believe that the deal we ultimately sign will not make sense for the Giants to match because was injured, had been seeking having depth at that position."

Official named to form Taiwan-China policy

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — In an apparent goodwill gesture to Beijing, Taiwan has appointed a China-born official to head the agency that formulates policy concerning the mainland.

Chang King-yuh, a 58-year-old China scholar, is the first chairman of the Mainland Affairs Council to be born on the Chinese mainland instead of Taiwan. He was sworn into office Wednesday.

Yang Kai-huang, a political scientist from Taiwan's Soochow University, said that by appointing Chang, President Lee Tenghui has taken a "first step in making substantial moves to improve relations with the mainland."

Yang added that Chang's experience and background should help alleviate Beijing's suspicions that President Lee is scheming to make Taiwan independent of China.

Police ask for American activists to be deported

JERUSALEM, West Bank (AP) - Police have asked for the deportation of two American peace activists who tried to block the destruction of five Palestinian homes in the West Bank.

Diane Roe, 53, of Corning, N.Y., and Robert Naiman, 30, of Chicago, were arrested Wednesday when bulldozers demolished five homes that Israel said were built without permits in Hebron.

Hebron is the last Palestinian city in the West Bank still under Israeli control.

The two Americans, members of the Chicago-based Christian Peacemaker Teams living in Hebron, sat on the roof of one the homes with family members and had to be forcibly removed by Israeli soldiers.

Boaz Goldberg, spokesman for Israeli police in the West Bank, said police wanted the two deported because "they're disturbing the peace and disturbing police and army soldiers in their work."

"We want to send them back to where they belong," he said. Roe and Naiman have been jailed in Jerusalem since Wednesday. A hearing is scheduled for

Gorbachev says he may run for presidency

Friday afternoon.

MOSCOW (AP) Gorbachev said today that he has "internally" decided to run for the Russian presidency, but stopped just short of declaring himself formally in the race.

The former Soviet president told reporters he expects to announce his candidacy sometime in March.

"I can confirm that I am internally ready" to run, he said as he arrived at his Gorbachev Foundation think tank in Moscow. "It's just a question of the time and the place that I will declare."

Asked to rate his chances, he said: "If I make the decision to run, then I don't just intend to be a wedding general" - that is, make a ceremonial entry into the contest. If I run, I'll do everything possible to count on winning.
