LIFE-GIVING TOOL. It's a scary sight from the inside, but for those trapped in autos after an accident — it could mean life. Members of the Pampa Fire Department are practicing using the new Hurst "Jaws of Life" rescue tool recently received by the department. Crews from each of the three stations will spend time at a local auto salvage yard this week learning effective use of the tool in the event it is needed for future rescue efforts. ## Self-laundry plan could save school district 50 percent

By DEBORAH BRIDGES
Of The Pampa News

Pampa Independent School District officials will soon be looking into the feasibility of a self-laundry system for the district after a suggestion from a board member during the regular board meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Following a suggestion from board secretary, Buddy Epperson, Superintendent Bob Phillips said he would be conducting a study on the possibility of the district handling its own laundry needs.

Two years ago, Epperson said, eight school districts were asked about their laundry program. The consensus of the reports he received, he said, showed all of the districts were saving 50 percent on their previous laundry figures.

Laundry work was done by assistant coaches and trainers for athletics and non-athletic washing was done by janitors, he said.

The average laundry bill for the district is about $1100 to $1500 per month, Assistant Superintendent James Trusty said.

This month's bill was for over $2200, Epperson pointed out.

Final reading was heard and approved by the board on the revised religion in schools policy.

After a study and re-write by board members Kenneth Fields and Paul Simmons, the new policy was pronounced by Fields to be "...one the administration and we could live with." Simmons said he believed the policy was "extremely fair to everyone concerned" and it would help keep out "every far-out group" that came along.

Death penalty upheld

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals today upheld the death penalty conviction of Raymond G. Riles in the Feb. 11, 1974, slaying of a Harris County automobile dealer.

Riles was convicted of shooting John Thomas Henry, owner of John Henry Motor Co., at the victim's dealership during the course of a robbery.

According to case records, Riles accompanied another man to the dealership and repeatedly interfered while the man complained to Henry about the condition of a recently purchased auto.

At some point in the argument, Riles allegedly shot Henry, and as the victim lay on the pavement stood over him and demanded his money, took it and fled, witnesses said.

Riles' first conviction was overturned by the court, and his second trial also resulted in a death verdict.

In his appeal, Riles complained that the trial judge allowed prosecutors to read from a psychiatrist's deposition portions that showed Riles was on Dead End Row during an interview.

The reading from the deposition followed the psychiatrist's testimony concerning Riles' "disturbed psychological condition," and the court said it was proper for the state to bring out the circumstances of the interview.

"We find the evidence and argument were both proper efforts to place the doctor's opinion in perspective with respect to the more recent events that he admitted would affect the condition observed by him, and the reliability of applying those observations to the issue of appellant's (Riles') sanity at the time of the offense," the high court said.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court today refused to rule off limits "case studies" of the testing of a pain-killing drug in a $7 million Houston case.

Mary Ann Nix sued Winthrop Laboratories, a Division of Sterling Drug, Inc., and Dr. C.D. Henderson, alleging she became addicted to the drug Talwin after it was prescribed for her following surgery in 1969.

She said the addiction resulted in large inflamed areas and disfiguring scars that required skin grafting.

Also, she said, she has experienced extreme lethargy and gastric obstruction when she has tried to quit taking the drug.

Winthrop asked the Supreme Court for an order compelling State District Judge Peter Solito to vacate two pre-trial orders requiring Winthrop to produce certain information about Talwin.

Winthrop said at issue is the confidentiality of records identifying physicians and patients who received the drug during clinical tests. The company also said Solito's order would disclose the chemical structure of the drug.

The company said if the "case studies" were made available, it would deter physicians from engaging in clinical testing, and the "harm which results from the disclosure exceeds by a wide margin the benefits resulting therefrom for the purposes of this single cause of action."

In clinical testing, physicians report, among other things, on side effects of drugs on patients. This takes place after the drug has been tested in the laboratory and on animals.

Winthrop said a drug company has never before been required to release such information.

City cancels storm water overflow plan

Phase three of the Waste Water Treatment program implemented by the city in 1975 has been canceled, city officials announced in Tuesday's city commission meeting.

The last portion of the three-part program received on an $875,000 Environmental Protection Agency grant was the building of storm water overflow ponds designed to control the amount of water flowing into the waste water treatment plant in times of heavy rains or run-off.

By containing the extra water, the ponds would allow the plant to effectively treat the correct amount of water at a time.

A letter from the city manager Mack Wofford was written on Feb. 18 to the state Department of Water Resources informing the construction grants division of the city's desire to abandon this particular phase of the project.

Reasons for the request, the letter said, are because the one bid on the project was "considerably in excess" of the money available; in the three years since the plant's construction, the flow has never reached the volume which would have diverted the excess flow to the holding pond and the city believed it can comply with the requirements of the grant without installing the emergency generator included as part of the proposed project.

A grant amendment closing out the project was given to the city and a letter of concurrence was sent to city from Emory G. Long, director of the Construction Grants and Water Quality Planning Division.

In yesterday's commission meeting it was agreed that all bids received on the project would be rejected. Thus, according to Wofford, saving the city approximately $18,000.

The city manager explained the grant was based on a 25 percent participation by the city. Since the third phase of the project would have cost about $100,000, the city's share would have been $25,000. Approximately $7,000 had already been spent in advertising and preparation of plans and specifications for the ponds for which — under the terms of the grant — the city will be responsible, he said.

Mexico chief gets Texas thanks for Ixtoc capping

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements, armed with details about the long-awaited end of the Ixtoc I oil spill, has congratulated Mexican President Jose Lopez-Portillo on the capping of the well.

"We know this has been a trying time for you, and that controlling the well has been a matter of great concern and expense to your country," Clements said in a telegram to Lopez-Portillo and Jorge Diaz Serrano, director general of the Mexican national oil monopoly that drilled the well.

The governor told the Mexican officials that Texans are relieved the massive oil spill will not threaten another tourist season on South Texas beaches.

Clements said he had been given a detailed report on the technology used to plug the runaway well.

"We want to be true good neighbors and to be helpful to you at all times in those matters in which we have a mutuality of interest," Clements' telegram said.

On other matters, Clements said:

—He would not object if the shah of Iran had headed for Texas, rather than Egypt, when the deposed monarch left Panama this week.

"If he wanted to come back to Texas that would suit me fine," Clements said. "But I wasn't asked before and there's no reason I'd be asked now."

The shah was in Texas in December after being released from a New York hospital. He remained at Lackland Air Force Base near San Antonio until arrangements were completed for his Dec. 15 transfer to Panama.

"That whole thing has been bungled from the beginning," Clements said of the shah's search for a home.

—He took another shot at Present Carter's non-campaign, saying, "The rose garden strategy is now being better understood by the American public" and is "wearing thin."

Carter has said he will not campaign until the Tehran hostage situation is resolved.

But Clements warned that the latest polls he has seen show Ronald Reagan gaining support while Carter is losing backers.

Clements has remained neutral in the presidential race, reminding reports that Reagan, Gerald Ford, John Connally and George Bush all helped his gubernatorial bid.

Reagan concludes Texas tour, bouyed by Connally support

LONGVIEW, Texas (AP) — Bouyed by new-found support from former nemesis John Connally, Republican presidential hopeful Ronald Reagan concluded a whirlwind tour of Northeast Texas by pooh-poohing his defeat in the Connecticut primary.

Reagan was edged in Connecticut by Texan George Bush, who spent his boyhood years in that Northeastern state. Reagan said he hadn't expected to win in Connecticut anyway, calling it "George Bush's state."

Reagan said Tuesday night he was pleased with the outcome and added he was happy with returns from New York, where he soundly defeated Bush and Republican John Anderson.

Making his first appearance before the May 3 Texas primary, Reagan courted sure-fire support in this conservative region of East Texas after a brief rally and fund-raiser at Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport.

Shortly after deplaning from early morning campaign stops in New York, Reagan was greeted by Connally, who then announced he was throwing his support to the former California governor, "the second best man I can think of."

The silver-haired Connally, who served three terms as Democratic governor of Texas before switching parties, towered over 69-year-old Reagan, as the two stood arm in arm, posing for photographers.

"This country desperately needs a change," Connally said amid accolades for his former opponent. "I want to be part of the effort that set the course of this change."

At a Longview Chamber of Commerce banquet later Tuesday, he continued to praise Reagan.

"I've always believed if you can't whip 'em, join 'em," he told a cheering crowd of 1,700. "He (Reagan) penetrated the very roots, the very core of the feeling of the American people. I saw it tested in Florida ... New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Vermont. But I said wait until South Carolina and South Carolina came and it went and they spoke and it was still Reagan."

After garnering only one delegate and racking up $11 million in campaign debts, Connally bailed out of the Republican race March 9, still stinging from a sound whipping in South Carolina.

Connally reiterated that he is not interested in a vice presidential slot or a position in Reagan's administration, should Reagan be elected.

"I have stated repeatedly that I do not want to be vice president," Connally said. "The idea of being vice president does not appeal to me. I don't want anything. I don't want an appointment."

Before departing for Wisconsin, Reagan was greeted by thunderous applause at the Chamber of Commerce dinner, where his strong criticism of Democratic policies won him two standing ovations.

"It is time for the government to get out of the energy industry and turn it loose in the free market," he said. "It is also a time to begin a moral and military re-armorment for the decade ahead."

He said the Carter Administration had made a shambles of the national economy by choosing a path of federal deficit spending and easy money. But the economic damage was nothing, he said, when compared to "what the Democrats have done to national security."

SALT II and foreign policy toward the Soviet Union have "depleted the great arsenal of democracy," he said.

"The president says if we don't approve the SALT treaty, no one will like us. I think it's time for the American people to say, 'We don't care if they like us. We want to be respected.'"

Carter's foreign policy borders on "appeasement," Reagan said, adding "it is time for the men and women of the business community to come to the rescue of the country."

Turning to inflation, Reagan said the blame should not rest with consumers and business, but with government.

"We've heard a lot of talk about inflation ... and that somehow we are to blame and that we should settle for a smaller piece of the economic pie," he said. "But government causes inflation and government can make it go away" by halting the influx of newly printed money and initiating an across-the-board tax cut.

Rapes and murders increase in 1978

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Department of Public Safety says there were 373 more murders and 1,101 more rapes in the state last year than in 1977.

The DPS said Tuesday law officers cleared 73 percent of the 2,226 murders by an arrest and 52 percent of the 6,028 rapes in 1979.

Col. Jim Adams, DPS Director, said the number of major criminal offenses committed in Texas last year rose by 68,140 to 791,304—or by 9.42 percent.

Only 21 percent of the crimes were cleared by an arrest, Adams said.

Texas' annual crime rate rose 6.4 percent in 1979, with the largest increase in rape and motor vehicle theft, he said. The crime rate is based on the number of crimes per 100,000 population.

Adams said there were an estimated 72,687 motor vehicle thefts, a 22.2 percent increase, and a 19 percent increase in rapes from 1978. He said murders were up 16.9 percent over the previous year.

Property valued at over $610 million was stolen in 1979, and only $216 million worth of property was recovered, Adams said.

He placed the number of drug arrests at 47,879, down 19 percent from the previous year. The reason for the lower number of arrests, he said, was that the DPS concentrated on major narcotics cases.

However, Adams said, all criminal arrests—not including traffic cases—totaled 763,541, up 2 percent.

Partial reports on arson reflect 5,347 cases in 1979, with property damage totaling more than $78 million. These figures, mandated by Congress in early 1979, came from reports covering approximately 64 percent of the state's population.

Adams said 10 police were killed in the line of duty by criminals last year, two more than the previous year. Three other officers died in duty-related mishaps. A total of 3,256 assaults against police officers were reported for 1979.

The DPS figures were compiled from data submitted by 709 Texas sheriffs and chiefs of police whose jurisdictions represent 99.3 percent of the state's total population.

Crime insurance studied

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A state insurance regulator says the State Insurance Board's integrity has been unfairly questioned by suggestions that Texas needs federal crime insurance.

Bill Harding, the board's deputy assistant administrator, said in a bluntly worded letter to Federal Insurance Administrator Gloria Jimenez that Texans already can get burglary and theft coverage at rates justified by experience.

Harding concluded that "the federal crime (insurance) program is not needed in Texas at this time."

Ms. Jimenez has the power to offer the tax-subsidized coverage to homeowners and businesses in what she deems to be "high crime areas" of Texas.

She sought comments from state officials before taking action and said in a letter that mayors of Dallas, Port Arthur and San Antonio had requested the coverage for their cities.

High school class president charged as murder suspect

DUNDALK, Md. (AP) — Michael Schindler, class president, told everyone he wanted to make his final year at Patapsco Senior High School his most memorable ever. It has been.

Today, as his classmates look ahead to graduation day, Schindler sits in a jail cell and contemplates a murder trial.

He is charged with the stabbing deaths of two women during Thanksgiving weekend last year in what authorities allege was a murder-for-hire scheme. He is being held without bail because a judge decided it was too dangerous to allow him to be at large.

A formal plea of innocent by reason of insanity was entered earlier this month by his attorney, William Zinman. Schindler, 18, is to undergo a psychiatric evaluation.

At Patapsco High, Schindler's name does not come up as much now; another youth has been elected senior class president. But in interviews with teachers and advisers, it was obvious Schindler is still well thought of.

"Anything bad he's done has been so outweighed by the good," said Elva Venzke, an English teacher and adviser to the high school yearbook, "The Patriot."

"He told the kids he wanted this to be their most memorable year, something they'd never forget," said Thomas Dessecker, a history teacher and co-adviser of the senior class.

"He was such a remarkable kid. Mike was really a natural leader."

Dessecker thumbed through several letters Schindler wrote to his classmates while he was class president, urging them to take pride in the school, pay their class dues and take part in school activities.

Last fall, his classmates voted the 18-year-old "most popular senior" and "the senior with the most school and class spirit."

"He ranks with the best senior class presidents I've seen," said Patapsco Principal David Driver, a secondary school principal since 1947, the last 12 years here in this working-class industrial suburb of Baltimore.

"He wanted to be helpful. Whatever he could do to make his class or his team or the yearbook shine, he'd do," Driver said.

Last year, when new helmets for the football team arrived and were the wrong color, Schindler took them home and painted them the Patapsco Patriots' school colors — red, white and blue.

"He was the kind of kid interested in preventing vandalism in the lavatory," said Dessecker. "He set a really good example for the rest of the school."

A few days before Christmas, the dark-haired, 195-pound, 5-foot-7 youth was arrested at his home, charged with two counts of first-degree murder and a number of related offenses in the deaths of Maria Zisser, 83, and her 23-year-old granddaughter, Mary Thompson.

The two women had been stabbed repeatedly and their throats were slashed, police said.

Clements urges low-cost celebration

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements wants Texans planning the 150th anniversary celebration of Texas' independence from Mexico to do it up right but also keep the cost down.

24-member commission got a six-year head start in preparing for the 1986 celebration.

"This is a marvelous opportunity to put our best foot forward in Texas and add to the growing sense in the country that Texas is unique," Clements said.

"Steam ahead!" Clements told the Texas Sesquicentennial Commission on Tuesday.

Meeting for the first time, the

Clements noted the commission includes private citizens, legislators and state and private agency directors and said:

"By marshaling all our resources we can have a cost-effective celebration... the largest and the best and the highest quality celebration we possibly can at the least expense — get the most for our dollar."

Clements referred to himself as a "history nut on Texas." He has been collecting Texana for 30 years, and Rep. Chris Semos, D-Dallas, the commission chairman, said Clements has probably one of the largest private collections of Texas books. "He is a great historian," said Semos.

For the first time in his lifetime, said Clements, 62, Texas "is being recognized for the quality we have in the state... We're being cast in a different light than we have heretofore 'enjoyed' in years past. I knew we would prevail if we would have perseverance — that sooner or later the rest of the country was bound to realize what we're all about."

Some East Coast states, in reviewing their histories, "don't like what they see," Clements said. "We look back, and we like what we see."

"We, in 1986, will represent a high point of interest for the rest of the country," he said.

TEXAS BRIEFS

By The Associated Press
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Austin City Council voted unanimously Monday to postpone indefinitely the sale of $100 million in local housing bonds.

The bonds were offered to bidders Monday but investors bought only about $30 million of the planned issue.

A city financial adviser blamed a deteriorating market and Texas' 10 percent limit on bond interest rates for the slow sale.

Bill Milburn, one of the city's largest builders, said he would begin returning escrow money to about 100 persons who hoped to qualify for homes under the local housing finance program.

The program was designed to provide housing loans to families with an annual income of $30,000 or less. Individual loans would be limited to $70,000.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — County Judge Jon Wisser said Monday he had no authority to compel Beth Frerking, editor of the Daily Texan at the University of Texas, to produce photographs made during a former Iranian ambassador's campus speech.

However, Lynn Talor, an attorney for the UT system, told the court that UT would produce the photographs if necessary. He said UT did not agree with the editor's opposition to turning over the subpoenaed pictures.

Miss Frerking earlier told the county attorney's office she would not produce pictures that were not published in the Daily Texan because she considered use of the photos a First Amendment issue. "News agencies should not be part of an investigation," she said.

Taylor said the photographs are the property of the University of Texas, not the Daily Texan.

The photographs involved were taken of the arrests of a group of Iranians and Arabs at a speech Jan. 31 by former Iranian Ambassador Fereydoon Hoveyda.

A pretrial hearing for those arrested is set for April 15.

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A 15-year-old El Paso youth has pleaded guilty in the Jan. 30 shooting death of a motorist.

Under state law,

McCutchen could be held in a detention home until he is 18 years old.

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Adult book store owners and movie theater operators will ask a federal judge Friday to stop police actions shutting down their businesses.

The plaintiffs say the police department issued a warning earlier this month that operators of the adult theaters and bookstores would be arrested if they were still in business after April 1.

The lawsuit against the city contends the law allows the stores to operate in certain areas of El Paso.

SP proposal okayed by ICC

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department says it has no objection to the Southern Pacific Railroad System's proposal to buy a Rock Island Railroad line that runs through the Texas Panhandle.

The line known as the Golden

Star Route runs from Santa Rosa, N.M., to St. Louis through the northern Panhandle towns of Dalhart, Stratford and Texhoma.

In a brief filed Tuesday with the Interstate Commerce Commission, the department's antitrust division said the proposed acquisition would not diminish competition.

The proposal would produce a single-line freight rail route between California and the Midwest, because it would make possible connections between Santa Rosa and a Rock Island line to California.

Competing railroads have urged the ICC to reject Southern Pacific's plan.

New rules for credit users

Associated Press Writer
Your pocketful of plastic may carry less clout than it used to. The impact of the recent credit controls announced by President Carter varies according to where you live, the type of credit you have and how much you spend.

More than a week after Carter unveiled his anti-inflation program, including moves designed to down consumer spending by making it harder to buy now and pay later, lenders are still trying to figure out exactly what to do.

"We don't see any clear cut trend," Tim Lynch, a spokesman for MasterCard (formerly Master Charge), said on Tuesday. "Most banks aren't promoting new cards. Others are making the qualifications more stringent."

U.S. Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., chairman of the House Banking subcommittee on consumer affairs, called officials of the Federal Reserve Board to testify at a hearing on the controls today. Another hearing by another subcommittee was scheduled for next week.

Among the things faced by the millions of Americans who already have credit cards are bigger minimum monthly payments, limits on cash advances, annual fees and higher interest charges.

Different cards, however, have different strings. There is also a difference between the "travel and entertainment" cards like American Express or Diners Club, whose customers generally must pay their bills in full each month, and the bank and store cards which offer users the option of paying a little bit at a time and incurring a finance charge on the balance.

James Stetler of Diners Club was quoted by Advertising Age, a trade journal, as saying: "The new ruling is meant to restrain consumer credit and not business expenses. Diners Club members use the card primarily for business expenses."

A full-page American Express ad in The Washington Post on Tuesday, addressed to cardholders, said: "You are expected to pay your bill in full every month. You don't get in over your head. That's why our Cardmembers can continue to use the American Express Card in the manner in which they always have... responsibly."

Where possible, banks and other creditors are raising interest rates. In places where state usury laws put a ceiling on interest, lenders are experimenting with new fees. In Miami, for example, the Southeast Banking Corporation said it would charge MasterCard and Visa holders an $18 annual fee, beginning next month.

Citibank, the nation's second largest commercial bank and one of the most aggressive in the field of consumer credit during much of the past decade, announced new rules on Monday. Among the changes: no new MasterCard or Visa cards; minimum monthly payments of $15 for current cardholders; no installment loans to new customers.

Many of the changes began even before Carter's action. Lenders, faced with the high cost of borrowing money themselves, found it was no longer profitable to grant loans at current rates. In the state of Washington, where there is a 12 percent usury ceiling, Seattle-First National Bank eliminated advertising for credit cards last summer.

Sailor rescued after 2 days

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — For 21 days and nights, Kenneth Enoe sat alone in a 12-man lifeboat, ate "C" rations, drank canned water and drifted aimlessly in the Gulf of Mexico.

On the 22nd day, the crew of the Cova Navigator fished Enoe out of the water about 200 miles southwest of New Orleans, gave him a hodge-podge set of clothing and found him in surprisingly good condition.

On the 23rd day — Tuesday — Enoe stepped from a U.S. Coast Guard launch onto a pier and, asked what he felt when he saw land again, replied: "I couldn't believe it."

"I'm very tired," the native of Grenada, a small Windward Island in the Caribbean near Venezuela, told waiting reporters as he was helped onto the pier.

He looked dazed and bewildered as he moved slowly along the dock, supported on each side by employees of a local shipping firm who met him when he arrived at the Coast Guard station shortly after 5 p.m. Tuesday.

The bearded seaman whispered "yeah," when asked if he always thought he would be rescued.

Clad in red-checked slacks, a white sweater and blue house shoes given to him by the Cova Navigator's crew, Enoe was taken to a Galveston hospital after a brief medical examination at the Coast Guard base.

Enoe's ordeal began shortly after 1 a.m. March 3, when the Panamanian ship Marvina radioed that it was sinking about 300 miles southwest of New Orleans in the Gulf of Mexico.

He later told Cova Navigator crew members that he was trying to lower a lifeboat when he fell overboard.

His bray is worse than his kicker

Who's really running the oil company?

By Robert Morgan

JENA, La (NEA) - Jack goes wherever he wants on the Justiss-Mears Oil Co. equipment yard on Louisiana Highway 8 just inside the town of Jena. And he does just about whatever he pleases.

Jack does not work at any of the drilling operations. He does not care for or construct equipment.

But when he speaks, most of the town hears what he has to say.

He says it with a full-throated "eeeyonn-heeyonn-heeyonn," the bray of a purebred Mexican burro.

Jack spends most days near the office, looking for something to eat or a friendly pat on the nose. It is the only home he has ever known. He was born there 19 years ago.

His family has always been the men who come and go every workday at the equipment yard - and the many children who have visited him through the years.

W.B. "Bo" McCartney, Jack's owner, calculates that "50 kids a day" dropped by to see the burro when he was first born.

McCartney brought Jack's mother to the equipment yard in 1960 and she gave birth to the colt shortly afterward. The mother burro, who was purchased for McCartney's children, has since died.

Though he was ridden some in his younger days, Jack now does none of the duties normally associated with equine animals. He appears to serve no useful function.

Yet, says McCartney, "he's a fixture."

Indeed, it is said that a company employee once wanted to have Jack removed from the equipment yard and that company owner J.F. Justiss Sr., McCartney's brother-in-law, told the worker he would leave before the burro did.

"There was some talk about moving him, but it never went any further," recalls Justiss of the incident. "Too many children have had too much entertainment over the years."

Justiss adds that he feels about Jack the way he would into a car window to beg for food.

"If you fed him and he didn't get enough, he wouldn't let you leave until he was through," explains McCartney. Jack would race to the front of the car and stand there to keep the driver from pulling out.

"The only way you could get away from him was to back up," says McCartney. "And when he went to the back of the car to try to stop you, you'd have to race your car forward before he could get in front of you again."

Once Jack kicked the window out of the office, presumably because nobody would feed him. And he has been accused of carrying the office's sugar and coffee for his own lunch.

And that's not the limit of the burro's human tastes.

"We keep a quart jar of peanut butter and a loaf of bread in the warehouse all the time," says McCartney. "He loves peanut-butter sandwiches."

Jack's pushiness is not restricted to seeking food. He has been known to hog the lighted fire barrel that keeps employees warm in winter.

"Jack would ease around the door and before you knew it he'd have you pushed up against the fence and he'd be up to that fire barrel," says McCartney.

Then there was the time Jack stuck his head in the office door and started braying. A dispatcher at the company's two-way radio pushed the microphone button and broadcast Jack's song all over South Louisiana.

One of Jack's fondnesses brings a smile to just about everyone.

It seems that the burro once had a close encounter with a shetland mare in a yellow trailer on the equipment yard. Afterward Jack made a fuss whenever anyone went near the trailer. "For a long time, if you tried to move that trailer you were likely to get it from Jack," adds McCartney.

Despite his flashes of temper, Jack's bray clearly seems worse than his kick.

about any faithful animal. So do most of the men who work at the equipment yard.

"If anybody was hurting him, they'd come to his rescue," Justiss adds.

Many of the stories about Jack concern food.

"He'll eat anything that's edible," says Justiss. "He'd eat a cigar."

The burro knows the maneuvers necessary to stay fed.

One roughneck used to share his lunch with Jack every day.

The man would park his car in the morning at the rear of the equipment yard. Jack had to chase him from there all the way back to the cattle guard at the front entrance to the yard before he got the portion of the man's lunch that was intended for him.

Then there is Jack's one-time habit of putting his head

U. S. buying Soviet-bound grain

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The U.S. government so far has bought 16.4 million bushels of wheat that had been destined for the Soviet Union, slightly more than 10 percent of the amount that will be purchased, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said today.

Most of the grain was bought from country elevators that serve farmers, he said. No prices were announced, but Bergland in announcing details of the plan on March 4 said the purchases would be at "prevailing market prices."

Bergland said the wheat purchases would continue "until a quantity equal to that suspended from shipment to the Soviet Union has been removed from the market."

The plan involves the eventual purchase of about 4 million metric tons of wheat that Bergland says will be "isolated from the market and used only for overseas food assistance programs after the U.S. Congress approves the Food Security Act."

For the last two years, Bergland has sought congressional approval of a food security program under which the grain would be stored and used for overseas hunger relief.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 36.7 bushels of wheat. The 4 million tons would be about 146.8 million bushels. The wheat bought in the first round of purchasing equals about 47,000 metric tons.

By comparison, U.S. wheat production last year was about 2.14 billion bushels or around 58.3 million metric tons.

BURWELL COX, who founded Jones-Cox and Co. in 1905, still feels right at home behind the venerable cash register that remains in use at the hardware store, located in Haskell.

Caskets are gone

Few changes since 1905

By Diane Jennings Justice
 HASKELL, Texas (NEA) — Walk into the Jones-Cox and Co. hardware store and Wallace Cox Sr. will drop his newspaper, rise from his resting place in the oak rocker that was once his father's and ask if he can help you.

Cox has been asking that question since he started blacking stoves for 10 cents each when his father, Burwell Cox, opened the store in 1905.

The hardware and furniture store is the oldest continuous family business in this West Texas town north of Abilene. It was passed down from Burwell to Wallace Sr. and now is run by Wallace Jr.

There's also a fourth generation to pass it on to since Wallace Jr. and his wife Jo have five children.

If Burwell Cox walked into his store today, he would have no trouble recognizing it because little has changed since it opened at the turn of the century.

The original flooring and decorated tin ceilings are intact as well as the old-fashioned pine cabinets, display cases and storage units.

The hand-made ax holder is still in use, as is the old nail scale and the cash register.

Modern lights hanging from the ceiling appear to be the only innovation since the store was opened.

"We're trying to keep it old," Wallace Jr. explains as he points out the new wooden display areas and other additions designed to fit in with the older fixtures.

But that wasn't always the owners' intention.

"In 1962 we had a tornado come through here and tore up a lot of these new buildings," recalls Wallace Sr. "This old thing only lost one window. We were hoping it would get tore up so we could get a new building."

Remodeling plans have come and gone through the years.

Finally, says Jo Cox, "the nostalgia craze hit and we had a genuine country store on our hands."

But Jones-Cox and Co. — the Jones representing a one-time part-owner — was more than a country store in years past. It has also served as a blacksmith shop, funeral home and cooking school.

In the early 1900s, it was common for the local hardware store to double as a funeral home. In the back of the store was an embalming room, casket room and parlor for small services.

The Coxes quit the funeral business in 1944 because, says Wallace Sr., "we couldn't work all day and work all night."

His son still remembers when bodies were brought in and out of the establishment. "I used to bring my buddies to play hide and seek in the caskets," he says.

The younger man also remembers when county extension agents used to set up chairs in the upstairs balcony area and hold cooking schools for area homemakers.

The elder Cox still works six days a week, 9 1/2 hours a day — with a three-hour lunch break and time for a nap, he jokes. He used to get up at 6 a.m. to open the store; sometimes he stayed open until 11 p.m. or midnight.

"I found out it didn't make me rich, so I quit it," he says.

Although the business may not have made the Coxes rich, the contents of the store are invaluable. Among them is an old wooden screw case that sits next to the rocker.

"I had a gal who wanted to buy it for $300 years ago," says Wallace Sr., pulling out the triangular drawers. "I told her no. I wouldn't have any place to put my screws. That's 10 times more than it was worth."

Library can help identify old prints

By Jean Barnes

Identifying an old print or painting can be as simple as a trip to the library or as exciting as a good mystery novel.

Your first clue is the artist's signature. Once you have the artist's name, take a trip to your library or museum and ask for the Benezit Encyclopedia of the Art World, advised Sondra and Louis Goldman, both knowledgeable art dealers.

Almost any good library will have a copy of Benezit and although the encyclopedia is in French, it contains listings of all known artists who have ever lived, they explained. The reference work will give such information as museums where the artist's work may be seen; prices paid as well as a signature of the artist for comparison purposes.

"You can tell by the importance in Benezit whether your painting is worth much or little," they said. "If the artist has a whole page, then you've got a fortune on your hands."

Etchings, engravings and lithographs are identified not only by signature but by size and the stock of paper used. Well-known artists will use paper with their own personal watermark in it.

A good dealer, museum curator or the head of a university art department can help you with your identification problems.

Cleaning and restoration of area qualified, wait until you can take it to a qualified person to have it taken care of. Contact the art department of the nearest university or art museum for the names of persons experienced in this kind of work.

The Goldmans were particularly emphatic about the use of tape on a print or painting. "Don't use it," they said and explained that the glue of the tape will destroy the paper or canvas over a period of time.

It's amazing what a restorer can do to repair damage done to a painting. "An entire oil painting can be lifted from the old canvas and placed on a new one," they said.

Other tips on the care of oil paintings include: Don't hang an oil over a fireplace that is used often; don't subject it to extremes of heat or cold; do not hang it in direct sunlight and dust with a dry, soft cloth or feather duster — never with moistened cloth or sponge.

Water colors need special handling, too. They should always be matted with rag paper and framed with proper hinging (no tape) under glass.

art should never be done by an inexperienced person. If you have a painting that needs cleaning or has been damaged, don't attempt to clean or repair it.

"Leave that to the experts. Don't do anything to your painting, don't touch it," the Goldmans said emphatically.

If there is no one in your

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Here's the situation: Last weekend my 12-year-old son, Danny, asked if he could invite his 13-year-old friend, Steve, to sleep over. Steve had just moved into the neighborhood and Danny was the only friend he had. I said yes.

When I went to make up the beds the next morning I found that Steve had wet the bed! I was really steamed because the mattress was ruined.

I told Danny about it, and he said that Steve never told him that he had a bed-wetting problem before he slept over, but the next morning when he discovered he had had an "accident," he begged Danny not to tell me or his mother about it.

What can I do, Abby? Should I tell Steve's mother (whom I haven't met) and hope she offers to buy me a new mattress? STEAMED DOWN SOUTH

DEAR STEAMED: I wouldn't. The poor kid probably has suffered enough humiliation as it is. But do tell Danny to tell Steve that since such an "accident" can happen, if he plans to sleep over anywhere, he should bring his own bedding, plus a rubber sheet.

DEAR ABBY: What is this world coming to? Yesterday I received a birth announcement, proudly announcing the birth of a baby girl. The mother is 21, the father is 40. He is married, but is separated from his wife of nearly 20 years! This man's wife and legitimate children live in the city and are well-known.

To top it off, the proud parents signed themselves, "Gator Guy" and "Wooly Woman" — some clan, sect or gang name. We were really stunned. My question: Is a gift in order for an illegitimate child? TOO OLD TO COPE

DEAR T.O.T.C.: There are no "illegitimate children" — just illegitimate parents. Don't penalize an innocent child because of the circumstances of his birth.

DEAR ABBY: For quite some time I have wanted to ask your opinion regarding the practice of some people who turn their left hand backward in a so-called "friendly" handshake, rather than extend their right hand in the conventional manner.

I vaguely recall having read somewhere that this is a "token" handshake which says, "I don't care for you, but nevertheless here's my left hand to indicate to folks nearby that we know each other." (It's just a cut above a snub.)

I would prefer to be ignored rather than accept this fishy left handshake. How do you feel about it? RIGHT HAND, PLEASE

DEAR RIGHT: On occasion I've been offered a left hand to shake and I shook it; I'm sure there were times when I have offered my left hand, too. Why look for some hidden meaning? It simply could indicate that one's right hand is otherwise occupied, that the left hand is handier or the right hand is wearing a large ring which invariably cuts into the flesh when grasped too tightly. Or some reason other than a putdown.

Are there questions you can't ask your parents? Get Abby's new booklet: WHAT TEENAGERS OUGHT TO KNOW. Drugs, sex and alcohol are plainly discussed. Send $2 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

DR. LAMB

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm a 16-year-old male, I'm 5 feet 7 and weigh 140 pounds. About a year ago I went on a barbell exercise program and have been exercising regularly for about an hour on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. My problem is that I cannot build muscle. Also I'm trying to lose some weight and cannot succeed. I thought it might be due to an inadequate diet but I wasn't sure. I eat mostly carbohydrates and I try to eat a correct diet but it doesn't seem to help. Can you give me any advice?

DEAR READER — The two most important aspects of building muscle are the type of exercises and manner in which you do them and the kind of diet that you eat.

You should be able to develop muscles on an exercise program three days a week provided it's properly designed. The right exercises, of course, are strength exercises, which include barbells or any of the other devices available in many health clubs and gymnasiums that you can use to contract the muscles against resistance.

Some enthusiasts do too much exercise when they're trying to grow muscles. Exercise does use calories and the individual who is doing weight training to develop arm muscles and then spends an excessive amount of time running may burn up the calories that he needs to help build the muscles.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 5-4, Weight Training for Energy and Weight Control. It will give you some helpful information on the types of exercise programs needed and how the diet influences your progress.

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Eleven states are still child-snatchers' havens

CHICAGO (AP) — Only 11 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico still provide a legal haven for parental child-snatchers seeking courts willing to overturn custody orders handed down in other states.

National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws records show 39 states have now enacted the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act (UCCJA). Uniform Laws Commissioners drafted the measure to:

- Avoid jurisdictional conflicts and promote cooperation between courts of different states.
- Provide for litigation to take place in the state with the "closest connection" to the child.
- Discourage continuing controversy by encouraging binding decisions.
- Penalize parents for "abductions" and other unilateral removals of children.

Conference members agree that UCCJA will work best when all 50 states have enacted it. That would eliminate all U.S. sanctuaries for parents who abduct their children in hope of finding a court in a non-UCCJA state that would overturn a lawful custody order issued in another state.

Non-UCCJA states are: Alabama, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Mississippi, New Mexico, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Texas, Utah, Vermont and West Virginia.

NCCUSL has been urging every state to enact its proposal since it was completed and promulgated as a Uniform Act in 1968. States requested such legislation amid reports of increasing interstate conflict involving custody orders.

The Conference includes about 250 of the nation's leading practicing lawyers, judges and law professors, they are selected by each of the 50 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico.

Chicago museum most visited

CHICAGO (AP) — The Museum of Science and Industry was the most visited Chicago tourist attraction in 1979.

According to the Chicago Convention and Tourism Bureau, the museum was visited by more than 3.5 million persons last year.

Las Vegas hospital deaths investigated

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The lawyer for a woman who testified before a grand jury hearing evidence about an "Angel of Death" at a Las Vegas hospital says a nurse asked his client to sign a release for her husband's body a day before his death.

Jack Pursel said his client, Bertha Fraser, told him that a nurse at the hospital "had her sign a release for the mortuary the day before" her husband died March 3. Pursel said Mrs. Fraser was considering a wrongful death suit against Sunrise Hospital.

A nurse, termed a scapegoat by her attorney, also testified before the grand jury which is investigating allegations that as many as six patients at the hospital died after someone tampered with their life support systems.

Sixteen persons have been questioned by the panel that heard testimony for about eight hours Monday before recessing until April 1 to hear "three or four" additional witnesses, said Deputy District Attorney Mel Harmon.

Among those who appeared before the 17-member Clark County

Grand Jury was Jani Adams, the nurse in charge of the 11 p.m.-7 a.m. shift at the hospital's west respiratory unit where the deaths allegedly took place. The 32-year-old nurse, accompanied by her attorney, Melvin Belli of San Francisco, spent about 30 minutes before the grand jury.

She emerged to tell a waiting crowd of reporters that she was sickened by the charges, which she claimed had "absolutely" no substance.

The accusations resulted in the suspension March 13 of Ms. Adams and several other employees in what Sunrise officials would identify only as a "small unit" at the 666-bed hospital, the largest private medical facility in the state.

At least two and possibly six deaths are under investigation. There was no motive known for the alleged activity, but investigators reportedly have found no evidence supporting original claims that other hospital employees made bets on when the patients in question would die.

Knicks whip Cavaliers to end skid

By the Associated Press
Coach Red Holzman of the New York Knicks isn't glib or loquacious or particularly quotable or the king of one-liners or given to exaggeration. He is, rather, a master of understatement.

—Item: The Knicks ended a three-game skid and snapped Cleveland's eight-game winning streak Tuesday night with an impressive 128-115 victory that boosted their playoff hopes and eliminated the Cavaliers.

Holzman: "We played well and we shot well."

—Item: Mike Glenn came off the bench and scored 19 points in 19 minutes on 8-for-8 shooting from the floor — including a three-point basket — and 2-for-2 from the line.

Holzman: "Mike Glenn had an incredible night."

Elsewhere, the San Antonio Spurs whipped the Houston Rockets 126-107, the Boston Celtics ripped the Washington Bullets 96-95, the Milwaukee Bucks ripped the Chicago Bulls 122-111, the Seattle SuperSonics tripped the Phoenix Suns 104-95, the Portland Trail Blazers clipped the Kansas City Kings 106-102 and the Utah Jazz beat the Denver Nuggets 109-91.

Ray Williams scored 27 points to pace a balanced New York attack. The Knicks broke on top early and, with Williams scoring 13 points, the Knicks held a 38-29 first-quarter lead.

Staubach expected to retire

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dallas Cowboys' quarterback Roger Staubach will announce his retirement at a press conference next week, it was reported Tuesday night.

Ted Dawson, sportscaster for KABC Television in Los Angeles, reported that a "close source inside the Dallas organization" told him that the Cowboys will announce Staubach's retirement at a press conference next Monday.

"At 38, Staubach figures that he's taken one too many shots to the head and wants out," Dawson said.

Staubach, a Heisman Trophy winner at Navy, joined Dallas in 1969 and went on to lead the Cowboys into five Super Bowls, two of which they won.

Williams had 24 at the half and the Knicks led 66-62.

Spurs 126, Rockets 107

George Gervin scored 24 points and Mike Gale led a key second-quarter outburst that helped San Antonio defeat Houston. It was the Spurs' seventh victory in nine games and left them 1½ games ahead of the Knicks in the race for the fourth Eastern Conference playoff spot. The score was tied at 29 after one period but Gale came off the bench to score eight points and hand off six assists as the Spurs outscored Houston 37-22 in the second quarter. They led by as many as 24 in the third period.

Celtics 96, Bullets 95

The Pistol outshot the Bullets. Pistol Pete Maravich scored all his 19 points in the final period, including a three-pointer with 51 seconds remaining, to give Boston the triumph. The Celtics' triumph put them 2½ games in front of second-place Philadelphia in the Atlantic Division with just three to play.

Bucks 122, Bulls 111

Milwaukee needed last-quarter heroics by Marques Johnson, who came off the bench after the Bucks had nearly squandered a 24-point lead and scored 10 of his 18 points. The Bucks were also helped by the steady play of Brian Winters, who had 21 points, and Quinn Buckner as they took a two-game lead over

Kansas City in the Midwest Division. Junior Bridgeman led the Bucks with 22 points.

SuperSonics 104, Suns 95

Dennis Johnson scored 12 of his game-high 26 points as Seattle pulled away in the third quarter. Seattle, which plays in Phoenix tonight, leads the Suns by two games in the battle for second place in the Pacific Division. Both have three games remaining. The Sonics dominated the boards with Jack Sikma pulling down 17 rebounds.

Trail Blazers 106, Kings 102

Dave Twardzik and T.R. Dunn each made a pair of free throws in the late going to nail down the triumph for Portland. Twardzik hit one with 18 seconds left to put Portland ahead 104-102 and Dunn was fouled after rebounding a missed shot by Kansas City's Scott Wedman with four seconds to go. The Kings did not score in the final 2:38.

Calvin Natt led Portland with 24 points as the Blazers moved two games ahead of idle San Diego in the race for the final playoff berth in the Western Conference. They can clinch it by winning in San Diego Thursday night.

Jazz 109, Nuggets 91

James Hardy scored a personal season-high 22 points for Utah. He teamed with Ron Boone and Paul Dawkins to spark the Jazz, whose victory was just their 24th against 55 losses. Boone wound up with 17 points while Dawkins had 12 but contributed early during a fourth-quarter spurt which saw Utah increase a 74-72 edge to 90-75.

Harvesters lose in eighth

HEREFORD-Pampa continued its hard luck on the road as Hereford edged the Harvesters, 5-4, Tuesday in an eight-inning game.

Pampa led 4-3 in the top of the seventh when Steve McDougall stole home on a passed ball. McDougall had reached base on a single, then went to third on a pair of errors.

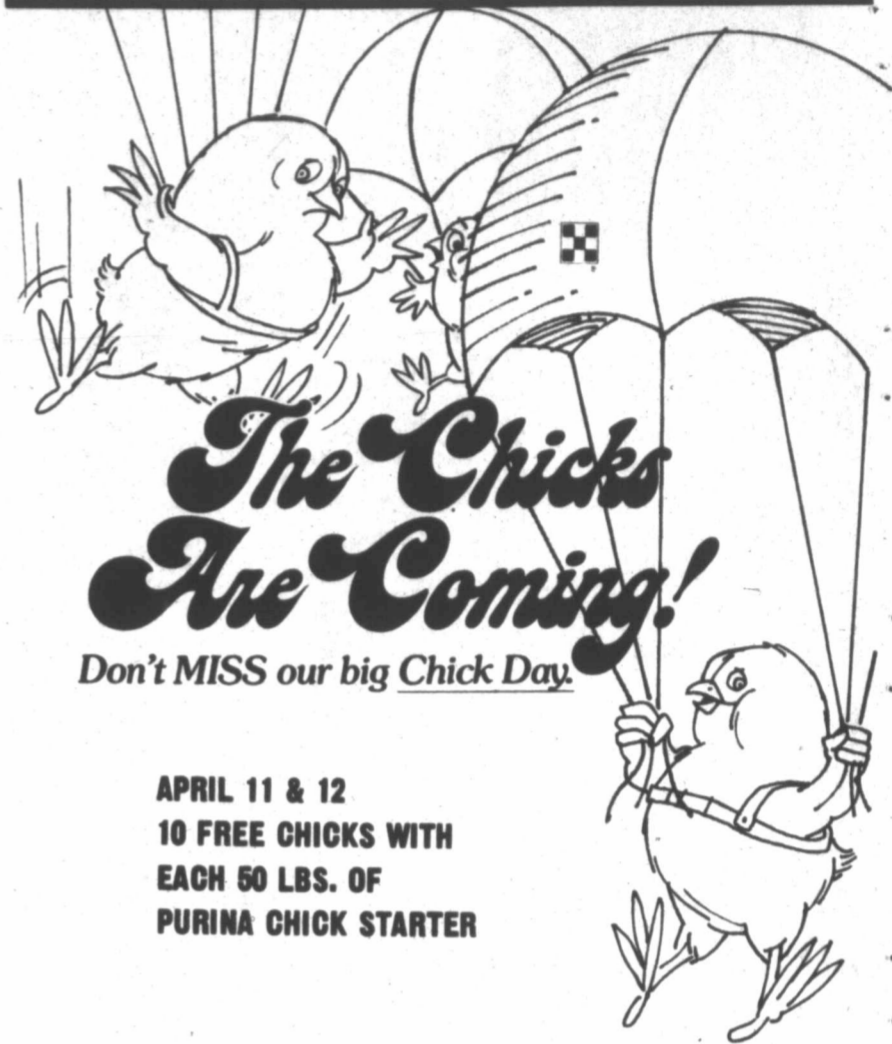

Edward Dominguez sent the game into extra innings when he homered in the bottom of the seventh.

In the Hereford eighth, Ken Cosper singled, stole second and scored the winning run on a bloop single over secondbaseman Mark Jennings' head.

The Harvesters took a 3-0 lead in the third, but Hereford bounced back to knot the score on two runs in the fourth and one in the fifth frame.

Pampa outhit the hosts, 10-9, with catcher Clyde Coffee banging three hits in four trips to the plate and knocking in a run with a double. McDougall had two hits in four times at bat while Jennings, Andy Richardson, Monte Covalt, Bret Atchley, and Joe Jeffers had one hit apiece. Richardson's hit was a triple.

UNIVERSITY OF Louisville guard Darrell Griffith, the net around his neck, sits atop the shoulders of supporters and tells the world the Louisville Cardinals are number one. Griffith led the Cardinals to a 59-54 win over UCLA to claim their first basketball championship. (AP Photo)

Griffith fits All-American mold of leader, shooter, and winner

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Darrell Griffith wore a red, white and blue baseball cap for a crown and a shredded basketball net around his neck as a royal robe.

"How does the net feel?" was the first question asked of the sleek, bearded senior guard who had just led the Louisville Cardinals to a 59-54 victory Monday night over UCLA for the NCAA basketball championship.

"Like gold," Griffith replied. An aide rushed to the dais to inform Louisville Coach Denny Crum that President Carter was on the phone, calling from the White House.

"Go ahead, coach," Griffith said. "I will take over."

Indeed he did. He is a take-over guy. Hail to the new king of the college basketball realm, valedictorian of the class of '80, headed for a multi-million-dollar career with the pros.

He conforms to the mold in the highest tradition of past collegiate greats — an inspirational leader, a ball-faking Houdini, remarkable shotmaker and a winner.

"When I came to Louisville, I told everybody I wanted to be a champion," he said. "I predicted we would win the national championship before I was through. Tonight it all came true."

Griffith is not a boastful man. There isn't an ounce of arrogance in his supple 6-foot-4, 190-pound frame. Every other answer to the barrage of questions is threaded with the words:

"I don't mean me individually, I mean the team. All we've accomplished has been as a team."

He is indeed a jewel. The 43-year-old Crum, delighting in the first national title for a team that many feel has played in the shadow of the more celebrated University of Kentucky, chided newsmen for failing to name Griffith the college Player of the Year.

"You guys don't know basketball," the coach said, referring to the writers' choice of DePaul's Mark Aguirre in The Associated Press poll.

The Louisville coach, disdainful of comparisons, called Griffith the best player he had ever coached. Larry Brown, coach of the beaten UCLA Bruins, praised Griffith's remarkable talents and compared him with the former North Carolina State star. Later a standout pro — David Thompson.

Guarded relentlessly by a pair of UCLA freshmen, Michael Holton and Rod Foster, with occasional help from another yearling, Darren Daye, Griffith nevertheless tossed in 23 points to lead the game's scoring.

Known as the "Doctor of Dunk" because of his rare leaping ability, he converted most of his field shots from the outside — the most spectacular of them a one-hander from the top of the key which put the Cardinals ahead 56-54 with 2:19 to play. It broke the Bruins' heart. They went 4½ minutes without scoring.

Griffith's unselfishness is not confined to the court. Recently one of his schoolboy friends, Jerry Stringer, was found to have cancer in the late stages.

"I won this one for Jerry," Griffith said.

Lopez back among money winners

COSTA MESA, Calif. (AP) — Here comes Nancy.

Shaking off a sluggish 1980 start, Nancy Lopez Melton is back among the Top 10 money winners on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour.

Melton, the tour's most dominant player for the past two years, is winless in 1980, but her $19,600 second place finish Sunday in the LPGA tournament at Las Vegas boosted her into third place on the money list.

She and 40-year-old JoAnne Carner are co-favorites in the $150,000 LPGA tournament that opens Thursday at Mesa Verde Country Club.

Carner, the defending champion, is enjoying one of the best starts in the LPGA's 30-year history. She has won $78,986 already for a $27,800 lead over her closest challenger.

Donna Caponi Young, Melton trails Carner by more than $45,000.

Young won the Las Vegas tournament, picking up $30,000 for her one-stroke victory over Melton.

Carner, who was seeking her fourth straight victory, finished in a seventh place tie.

A year ago at Costa Mesa, Carner, Melton and Young finished regulation play in a five-way tie with Jan Stephenson and Chako Higuchi. Carner won it on the second extra hole.

A 1-under par total of 287 at Las Vegas indicated that Melton has her game back in form.

Last year, five of her eight victories came in the first five months of the year.

Baseball talks still stalemated

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Negotiations on a basic agreement between major league baseball owners and players were to reopen here today, with owners guardedly optimistic and players' representatives flatly pessimistic about avoiding a strike at the start of the season.

Major league executives met Tuesday with their chief negotiator, Ray Grebey, who said no modifications were made in the owners' latest offer.

"No votes were taken or policy decisions made today," Grebey said following a 90-minute meeting with the owners' negotiating committee. The committee is composed of Grebey, the presidents of the American and National leagues, and six team executives: Daniel Galbreath of Pittsburgh, Bob Howsam of Cincinnati, John McHale of Montreal, Joseph Burke of Kansas City, Ed Fitzgerald of Milwaukee and Clark Griffith II of Minnesota.

The executive director of the Players' Association, Marvin Miller, was dismayed by the news that the owners made no policy moves Tuesday.

"Since the Players Association finds that the owners' demands are unacceptable and the owners apparently are unwilling to change their position," Miller said he could see no reason for any of the optimism expressed by the owners.

"As long as we have bargaining sessions left, there's hope of avoiding a strike," Grebey said.

Negotiating talks were planned daily through Friday, and Miller is also scheduled to meet with players from seven more teams this week to discuss the negotiations and the possibility of a strike.

Players from 19 teams have already authorized a strike on or after April 1 if a new four-year basic agreement is not hammered out by then.

"We see no reason for the strike talk," Grebey said.

"Major league baseball's objective is the same as it has been — to attempt a negotiated settlement."

The success of the talks apparently hinges on several key issues left unresolved at the last session on March 18, including particularly an owners' proposal to have a player, rather than an amateur draft choice, as compensation in certain cases when a team loses a player to free agency.

Players argue that such a rule would kill the free agent system, since few teams would be willing to part with a player from their roster in order to sign a free agent.

Other important issues yet to be settled include an owners' proposal to restrict to one-year contracts any player with four years service or less, and another that would force an arbitrator to give extra weight to a player's time in service, rather than performance, when ruling on a salary dispute.

Miller planned to meet in Phoenix with members of the San Francisco Giants and Cleveland Indians before this afternoon's negotiations.
