Pampa, Texas

50c DAILY/SUNDAY $1

High today in upper 60s, low tonight in upper 20s. See Page 2 for weather details.

PAMPA — Pampa firefighters were kept busy Saturday afternoon battling grass fires around the city.

The Pampa firemen joined other area units in dealing with blazes in north Gray County that spread into Roberts County. The high winds from the west whipped the fire from an area north of Pampa toward Miami.

Another grass fire was being battled west of Pampa south of Highway 60 and the Hoechst Celanese plant.

Area units were kept engaged in hauling water to the fires and calling in extra equipment to battle the fires. Motorists were diverted around roads and highways being threatened by the fires.

Firefighters were still keeping track of the fires as dark arrived. No damage reports were yet available.

PAMPA — Joe N. Mingus of Higgins, commander of the 18th District of the American Legion in Texas, will be in Pampa Tuesday to continue his efforts to form a Pampa chapter.

Mingus will be discussing the American Legion at 7 p.m. Tuesday, March 26, in the Nona Payne Room of the Pampa Community Building, 200 N. Ballard.

All veterans are encouraged to attend to hear information on the American Legion and the possibility of starting a Pampa chapter.

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Volunteers packed 2,200 teddy bears for shipment to the Scottish school where a teacher and 16 children were shot to death.

"We wanted to do something for the kids," said Bobby Vail of the Tulsa County Sheriff's Office.

American Airlines and Pilot Air Freight have donated their services to deliver the gifts to Dunblane, Scotland. They leave here on Monday.

A gunman burst into the gymnasium of the Dunblane Primary School on March 13, killing the 5- and 6-year-old pupils and their teacher before taking his own life.

Vail said the teddy bear idea was driven partly by the donations that poured into Oklahoma City from around the world in the aftermath of last April's federal building bombing.

Notes, poems and return addresses are attached to the bears. And a plaque contains this inscription: "From Oklahoma this gift we send, To help 'bear' the pain of losing a friend, As you hold this gift close to your heart, We in the U.S.A. pray the healing will start."

PISD trustees agree to review absence policy

By CHIP CHANDLER
Staff Writer

Five personnel resignations were accepted by the Pampa Independent School District school board following an hour-long executive session at the close of last week's meeting.

Counselor Francine Fields, high school teachers Charles Mulligan and Kirk Isslieb, Lamar and Baker teacher Gay Lynn Jones and Pampa Learning Center teacher Laura Clemmens submitted their resignations to the board.

All other professional personnel had their contracts renewed by the board.

In other action Thursday night, the board agreed to review policies on absences and excuses following a complaint and suggestion by parents of a PHS senior.

Benny and Janis Williams first asked the board in June to revise the policy and wipe out their daughter's unexcused absence. The board took no action at the time, thus upholding the decision by high school Principal John Kendall to classify the absence as unexcused.

The Williams explained that the absence was needed so their daughter could attend her brother's wedding.

In a February letter to the board, the Williams asked to be placed on the March agenda to have the board policy revised, to appeal their daughter's absence and to file citizen's complaints against Kendall for allowing other excused absences and against the board for failing to follow through with their first request.

At Thursday's meeting, though, the Williams told the board all they wanted to do was suggest a new policy giving the principal more power to grant excused absences.

Superintendent Dr. Dawson Orr and Kendall had explained the district's policies that allowed Kendall to grant excused absences to students who attended a February basketball playoff game to the Williams' satisfaction, they said.

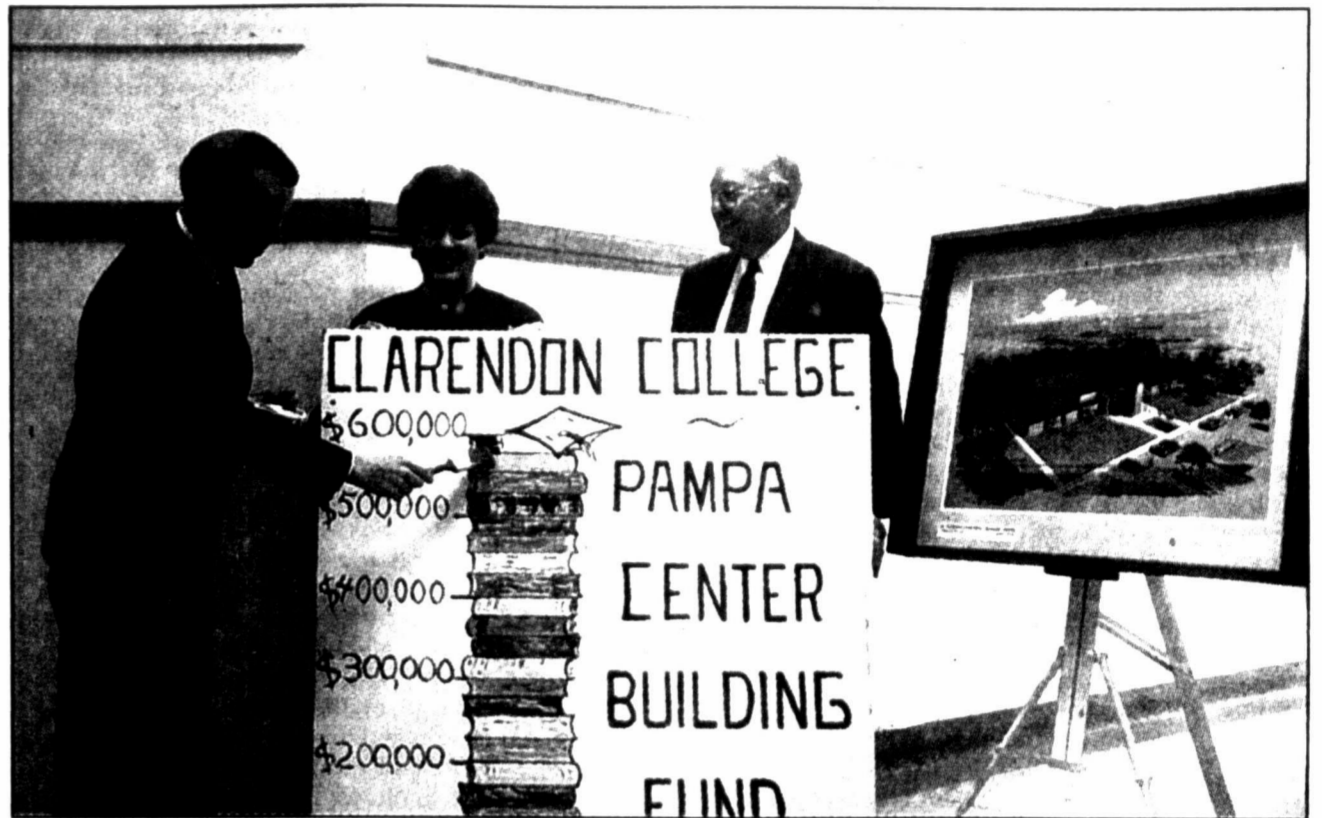

The policy suggested by the Williams would allow parents "to be able to go through a process so that they can submit a request to the principal and so that each individual case would be judged on its own merit," Benny Williams said.

"It still allows the principal to have the final decision as well as having input from parents," he added.

The board also, following some debate, approved the 1996-97 school calendar.

Assistant Superintendent Jane Steele presented the calendar draft to the board with 180 instructional days and 150 teacher preparation days running from Aug. 13 to May 30. School would be in session from Aug. 19 to May 29.

Clarendon College Pampa Center still seeking funds for new building

Clarendon College Pampa Center is into Phase II - grant writing - of its fund-raising efforts to build a new community college facility.

The local goal of $600,000 set by the Pampa Center Foundation board has been raised and meets the requirement needed to seek grant funding for the remaining amount.

Joe Kyle Reeve, dean of the Pampa Center, cautioned, however, that though the base amount of $600,000 has been raised, groundbreaking for the facility cannot begin until the full amount of $4.9 million is raised.

"There seems to be some misunderstanding about the process," reported Dr. Jerry Lane, CCPC counselor. "While we have been busy with grant-writing efforts for several months, local contributions in the form of pledges or checks are still very much needed. The $600,000 raised through donations and pledges thus far is a drop in the bucket. Approximately 14.5 percent of the total is in."

Though the initial goal of $600,000 has been reached and slightly surpassed, local contributions are still badly needed, according to Foundation board members.

Citizens, businesses and organizations wishing to contribute to the effort are still encouraged to do so. The more money that is received locally will reduce the amount of grant money needed to complete the project.

Contributions can be mailed to Pampa Center Foundation, 900

N. Frost, Pampa, TX 79065. Those who pledged money last spring and early summer are reminded that the pledges are to be paid in full by July 1, 1996.

Among the latest donors is Southwestern Bell Telephone, which gave $1,000 to the building fund.

The original goal of $600,000 was set by Loyd Waters, drive chairman, and the CCPC board members as being a little more than the 10 percent of the total cost that must be raised locally before grant funding agencies will even consider matching funds. Once that goal was accomplished, Reeve and Don Lane, chairman of the Pampa Center Foundation board, began writing grant applications.

Reeve explained that in the grant writing process, area applications are sent first. As an area grant is received, then matching funds are sought from regional and/or national foundations until the full amount is obtained.

The grant writing phase is a lengthy process that can take over a year to complete, Reeve said, since some grant funding agencies only meet once every six or 12 months to consider applications.

"We certainly thank the many local people and companies who have made donations," Don Lane said. "We hope to continue receiving pledges so that our final goal can be met. We all recognize that the addition of a higher education facility in Pampa will certainly be a plus for our area."

The completion of the Phase I goal - local contributions - guaranteed that the project would proceed into the Phase II grant writing process. The length of Phase II, which must raise the remaining funds toward the $4.9 million cost, will depend on the timing of grant funding and additional individual donations, board members noted.

When the necessary funds are secured, Phase III - groundbreaking for the facility - will begin.

The 54,000-square foot complex will be located in the 1600 block of West Kentucky. The Clarendon College Pampa Foundation board has signed a contract with architect Larry Donham and has selected the placement for the building on the site.

The facility will be computer networked for access to Internet and distance learning. It will also provide additional lecture classrooms, a computer lab, teacher offices, a multi-purpose meeting classroom, a student lounge, study areas, EMT and electronics lab.

"A modern complex with the latest in technology, instead of the currently occupied 66-year old elementary school building, will increase the attendance as well as enable us to expand the curriculum beyond the junior college level," Reeve said.

Continuing education courses also will be increased, offering opportunities for those pursuing new fields of interest or for plants needing employee training.

The facility is expected to attract more local students and more commuters from the eastern part of the Panhandle as college costs rise.

Drought thwarts wildflowers

HOUSTON (AP) - Drought conditions in most of the state have prevented Indian paintbrushes from germinating and waves of bluebonnets from blanketing the sides of Texas roadways.

But all is not lost. With some rain, the composite family of wildflowers, such as coreopsis and other yellow-blooming flowers that are in the early stages of germination, could take hold later in the spring.

And such plants as the pink primrose that normally are overshadowed by other flowers can be more readily seen.

"It's like survival of the fittest," said Craig Steffens, director of landscape design for the Texas Department of Transportation. Steffens said the wildflower season is "real iffy" thus far, but it may be too early to foretell what will happen.

"I've predicted a lot of good years that didn't pan out," he said. "Wildflowers are difficult to predict. But maybe that's the beauty of it. Otherwise, it would be all cultivated species."

The scene is so sparse now that callers to a toll-free number set up by the Texas Department of Transportation are informed there are no reports of good places to spot wildflowers in the state.

While the drought has delayed or decimated the growth of many wildflowers in the Texas Hill Country, other early reports indicate the Brenham area is one of the few sites in the state to view bluebonnets because it has had some "timely rains" to perpetuate the blue-and-white flowers.

DAR honors Pampa woman for research on her brother

By CHERYL BERZANSKIS
News Editor

A Pampa woman who longed to preserve the story of her brother's death during World War II has been honored by the Texas Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution for her research and preservation of history.

Donna Clyde Arms, a member of the Las Pampas Chapter, tied for second place in the state American heritage program contest. Mary Cantrell of the local chapter accepted the award for Arms on Saturday at the 97th annual state conference in Corpus Christi.

William Wayne Wright of Amarillo died in the North Atlantic when his liberty ship USS John Winthrop was torpedoed by a German U-boat in the North Atlantic in the fall of 1942.

Seaman 1st Class Wright was 21 when he died in the frigid seas. His family only knew he was missing in action and presumed dead.

"We just kinda though he would turn up someday with amnesia," Arms said.

However, Arms spotted a book on the U.S. Armed Guard - in which Wright served as a gunner - mentioned in an out-of-town newspaper. She contacted author Justin Gleichauf, and from his research and hers came the award winning 15 page story, "The U.S. Navy Armed Guard in World War II." James Clyde Wright and Arles Brown Wright, Mrs. Arms' parents, died not knowing what happened to their son, who enlisted in the Navy just a few short months before his death, she said.

"The Navy didn't let us know but they should have," she said. Mrs. Arms wrote about her brother to preserve his legacy for posterity, she explained.

Her nieces and nephew Vardene Searle, Pampa, and Shirley Bailey and Courtney Broadus, Miami, will someday own Arms' larger story about Seaman Wright because the DAR manuscript is actually a condensation of a volume she compiled in 1990.

Besides her brother's story from his induction in Amarillo to training at Great Lakes Naval Training School in Chicago to his assignment to the USS John Winthrop and his subsequent death, Arms documented the facts about the convoy in which the Winthrop traveled from Scotland to New York City. She also has a list of 101 Panhandle men who left for Dallas with her brother in May 1942. Among them were Pampa residents about to start their naval careers.

The Winthrop was operated by United Fruit, she said, and traveled with convoy ON 131 comprised of 54 ships. Winthrop was sunk by an U-619 commanded by Mahowski and subsequently sunk by the British HMS Viscount just a few days later.

Arms retired from Atlantic Richfield in 1979. She moved to Pampa in 1994 from Midland to be near her nieces and nephews.

She is also working on a genealogy for them. Arms is a descendant of patriots John Blackwell and Clement Wilkins of Virginia and counts her forebears from Georgia, Tennessee and Virginia.

TDCJ names new head for justice grant office

AUSTIN - Susan Cranford, a 23-year veteran of the Texas prison system, was named director of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice office which oversees the state's $200 million a year grant program to local departments to supervise almost 500,000 lawbreakers on probation. Cranford, who has been assistant director of the state jail system, was named director of TDCJ's Community Justice Assistance Division by TDCJ executive director Wayne Scott.

"Susan is a strong administrator with a deep understanding that criminal justice must be a seamless system of common efforts and common goals shared by the state and the counties," Scott said. Texas Board of Criminal Justice chairman Allen Polunsky applauded Cranford's appointment, saying that "both the counties and the state of Texas are fortunate to have her talents in this extremely important position." The state, through TDCJ-CJAD, funds local adult probation departments through a network of 121 Community Supervision and Corrections Departments.

Cranford succeeds Dimitria Pope in the $75,000 a year post. Pope in January became Scott's executive assistant. Cranford began her career as a teacher in the prison system's Goree unit at Huntsville. She later became warden of the women's prison in Gatesville before being appointed to the second highest job in the new state jail system when it was organized in 1994. She is a native of Conroe and has degrees from the University of Texas and Sam Houston State University.

You gotta have sole in smelly shoe contest

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) - This was Dan Lynch's year. After entering his ratty, denim high-tops into the Odor-Eaters International Rotten Sneaker Contest three times, the Montpelier boy - and his shoes - finally won the pungent pageant Saturday. "I had to tell him not to wear them for the last couple of days," said the 12-year-old's father, Jim Lynch. "I thought they were going to fall apart." Lynch took home a $500 savings bond, a year's supply of Odor-Eaters and, of course, new shoes. Six youngsters from around the country, aged five to 15, made it to the final round. Shoes were judged on how frayed the laces were, how floppy the soles hung and how tattered the body of the shoe was. Smell was a powerful factor in deciding the winner. Some went to great lengths to make it to the finals. Amber Fletcher, 15, of Palmer, Alaska, spent nine months cleaning, shoveling and raking manure on her parents' farm in her white Nikes. Chuck Karpatis, the newly-elected mayor of Montpelier, was one of the judges. A contest veteran, he competed in the first running of the event in 1976. "They get worse every year," Karpatis said. "We didn't have the same smell or stink they have now. We're really jealous." This was the 21st year for the contest. Once a promotion for a local sporting goods store, the makers of the anti-odor soles became the sponsor of the event in 1988.

Bosnian government frees 109 Serb prisoners

GRACANICA, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) - The Bosnian government released 109 Serb prisoners just before a midnight Saturday deadline, marching them in a column toward a darkened bridge and waiting relatives on Serb territory. Earlier, delays in the promised release of prisoners brought threats that further stalling by the formerly warring parties in Bosnia would be met by harsh international sanctions. Authorities set a new eight-day deadline for release of remaining prisoners of war, while still threatening the economic sanctions. "The time for words has passed. We expect deeds," Carl Bildt, who is overseeing the implementation of civilian elements of the Dayton peace accord, said after representatives of countries enforcing the peace agreement met Saturday in Moscow. During talks last week in Geneva, leaders of Bosnia, Croatia and Serbia agreed to release all remaining prisoners of war by midnight Saturday.

According to the Red Cross, a total of 152 prisoners had been scheduled for release by all parties. Another 62 prisoners were being held for war crimes investigations. There was no immediate word on whether the Bosnian Serbs had released their prisoners, as promised. Colum Murphy, a spokesman for Bildt, noted that the Bosnian government still is holding 26 prisoners in Tuzla, and called the partial release unacceptable under the peace accord.

Trustee John Curry remarked that the calendar didn't allow for any three-day weekends during ski season, a popular pastime in the area, he said. He recommended deleting a Monday, March 31, Easter holiday and adding a holiday Monday, Feb. 17, for President's Day and for possible skiing. Steele said that three-day weekends were avoided as much as possible because of concerns by elementary teachers that the resulting four-day week disrupts the educational process. The board voted 6-0 to accept the calendar with Curry's change. Trustee Bill Jones abstained from the vote, explaining later that the first draft of the calendar had met the administration's approval. "If it was good enough for them, it was okay to me," he said. In further action, the board accepted a bid of $20.79 per case for 880 cases of copy paper from Dixon Paper Co. The bid totaled $18,295.20, an amount far lower than prices the last time the school ordered paper, Business Manager Mark McVay said. The board also rejected bids for installation of a computer network at Travis Elementary and agreed to rewrite specifications for the project. In administrative reports, District Technology Coordinator Lee Carter and McVay unveiled a proposal to allow full-time district personnel to buy computer technology through the district.

The plan would call for payments through interest-free payroll deduction for no more than a two-year period. This would afford the personnel a better price than they would normally get, Carter said. Typically, schools can purchase equipment for a couple of hundred dollars less than teachers can, he continued. Orders would be placed in bulk on specified dates each year. "This would give incentive for teachers to get more involved in technology," Carter said. McVay said the computers would be purchased by the school through fund reserves. Personnel would then repay the school within two years. Board members could take no action on the proposal but indicated their interest.

Clinton prods corporations to do right thing

CINCINNATI (AP) - President Clinton gently prodded the nation's business community Saturday to do more to address the impact of corporate downsizing and worker anxiety, two key elements of voter nervousness this election year. Clinton announced he will convene a meeting in Washington next month of the chief executives of large American corporations that he said have scored healthy profits while "doing right" by their employees. The president said he hopes the meeting can help create a climate in which the vast majority of American businesses - large and small - will come to understand that they can improve the security of their employees while enhancing the bottom line. In his weekly radio address and in a speech before a student and community audience here, Clinton said his proposal is based on five pillars: Adequate health insurance, protected pensions, a partnership between workers and management, quality skills training and a safe work place. "These are the elements of corporate citizenship that together with proper government policies will enable us to move into the 20th century with the American dream alive," the president said in a speech at Xavier University, a 165-year-old Jesuit institution here. "Many of America's most successful businesses have shown that you can do well by doing right by employees and their families," he said in the radio address. In what the White House billed as a political trip, the president was also addressing Democratic Party fund-raisers here and in Columbus, Ohio's capital.

Reading to the kids

School trustee John Curry prepares to read The Dog That Had Kittens to the second grade class of Jeanne Depee Friday at Lamar Elementary School. Curry and a number of other school leaders — including Superintendent Dr. Dawson Orr, personnel director Jack Bailey and elementary library coordinator Judy Hansen — read to the students as part of Drop Everything and Read Celebration day in the school.

Preparations made for annual horse ride to benefit St. Jude's

It is time to get out and ride for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital again. This year's ride will be May 4 on Bill Arrington's Rocking Chair Ranch west of Pampa.

Riders are needed for this event to raise funds for the world-famous research center to help in its fight against childhood cancer and other catastrophic childhood diseases.

The hospital provides care and treatment to all its patients without regard for the family's ability to pay. Thanks to St. Jude Hospital, children who have leukemia, Hodgkin's disease, sickle-cell anemia, Pediatric AIDS and other child-killing diseases now have a better chance to live.

Riders are asked to get as many sponsors as they would like, with each sponsor making a one-time donation. All monies must be turned in the day of the ride.

All riders turning in money will receive a blue ribbon. Riders raising $35 will receive a St. Jude T-shirt. Riders raising $75 will receive a St. Jude T-shirt and a sports bag, and $125 will bring a St. Jude sweatshirt, T-shirt and a sports bag.

A minimum of $15 is needed to ride.

Many area businessmen have donated prizes. Special prizes have been set aside for the riders who raise the most monies.

The real prize is the satisfaction of the riders who have had a part in St. Jude's fight against catastrophic childhood diseases, according to ride organizers.

One change in this year's ride is that each rider is asked to bring their own lunch. A barbecue meal will be served after the ride is over. Prizes will be awarded at this time.

Sign-up will begin at 8 a.m. The ride will start at 9 a.m. and end at 3 p.m.

For entry forms or information, or if you don't ride but would like to make a donation, call Sharon Williams at (806) 669-0176.

Senators cold to repealing ban on assault weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite the House's approval of a bill to repeal the 2-year-old ban on sale of assault-style weapons, any similar attempt in the Senate seems unlikely. An opponent of the repeal declared it dead.

"I don't think it will be up in the Senate this year," Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, the Republican presidential nominee-in-waiting, said hours after the repeal passed the House on a 239-173 vote Friday.

Sen. Dianne Feinstein, D-Calif., who prodded the Senate into including the ban in the 1994 crime law, said the repeal would be "dead on arrival" in her chamber.

She said she has sufficient commitments from colleagues to mount a successful filibuster or to sustain a promised veto by President Clinton should the measure get through the Senate. The House vote fell well short of the two-thirds majority needed to override a veto.

Dole had promised the National Rifle Association last year that he would produce a vote on repeal, but he signaled a change of heart Thursday by saying a vote was "not a priority" and he was not optimistic it would pass.

Tanya Metaksa, the NRA's chief lobbyist, held out hope that the Senate will act. "We're going to try working with the leadership in the Senate, as we worked with the leadership in the House to get this issue to the floor."

Dole said in San Diego on Friday that it was clear the ban was not working. He said that 50 percent of the weapons covered by the ban had been redesigned and are still available.

And he said he would introduce legislation earlier this year providing for "an instant check" using a national computer database, for anyone who wanted to buy guns so people with criminal records or other impediments couldn't buy them.

Lifting the ban on 19 specific styles of firearms, dozens of similar models and large-capacity ammunition magazines is the top legislative priority of the NRA, which plays an active role in elections through campaign contributions and the votes of its 3 million members.

It spent $5.6 million in the 1994 congressional campaign, the contributions tilted sharply toward Republicans.

The NRA was blamed by its foes for pushing GOP House leaders into scheduling the vote there a year after House Speaker Newt Gingrich, like Dole, promised the group he would do it.

"Republicans want to take police off the streets and replace them with these weapons," Vice President Al Gore said, standing at a news conference beside a table loaded with the banned weapons.

Calling it an "IOU to the NRA," Gore said the approach was "dangerous, radical and wrong" and "a nutty idea that will make crime go up."

Mentalist to provide program for Knife & Fork Club

Bob Ford, a skilled mentalist noted for his popular following, will be the featured guest at the Top O' Texas Knife and Fork Club at 7 p.m. Monday, March 25, at the Pampa Country Club.

Ford's subject will be "A Journey Into Your Mind," according to Shirley Winborne, secretary.

With a spontaneous show of astonishing effects, Ford uses his skill, sense of humor and professional flair while constantly developing new material to keep his presentation amusing and up to date.

Ford is acknowledged as being one of the foremost mentalists on the dinner club circuit today. His personal experiences and research in the fields of parapsychology, psychic phenomena, mental microbial, extrasensory perception, telekinesis and other related fields have given him the opportunity to entertain, communicate and share his knowledge with audience members of all ages and all walks of life.

"A Journey Into Your Mind" is an entertaining journey into the unusual world of extrasensory perception (ESP). More than a mentalist or so-called mind reader, Ford is a trained behavioral scientist who believes that most supposed manifestations of ESP are nothing more than the probabilities and predictabilities of human behavior.

In specially contrived situations, he has had a remarkable success in directing the actions of volunteers. He can "predict" what they will do; he has put psychology back into the parapsychological.

Whatever it is about ESP that turns audiences on, there can be no denying that no other subject has aroused more curiosity, prompted more research and encouraged more experimentation than the mysteries of the human mind, Ford says.

For the last 25 years, Ford has been exploring these phenomena. He is unique among ESP performers in that his program separates fact from myth and true ESP from illusion and trickery.

Whether or not you accept psychic phenomena as fact, whether you are a firm believer, a hard-boiled skeptic or someone only curious and in-between, this program is a "must-see" for you, Ford says.

The show is for Knife and Fork Club members only.

Area newspapers earn awards at Panhandle Press Association

AMARILLO — The Canadian Record, The Miami Chief and The Groom-McLean News each picked up several awards at the Panhandle Press Association meeting in Amarillo this weekend, while The Pampa News returned with three awards.

The Canadian Record earned the general excellence award in Division I, Weeklies, by accumulating the most points from its winning entries.

The Canadian newspaper gained first place honors in editorials, first and second in serious columns, third in feature stories, first in news writing, second in special edition and first in use of photography.

The Miami Chief took second place in editorials, third in society/lifestyles and third in use of photography. It also took first place in the community service award.

The Groom-McLean News picked up third place honors in advertising initiative, humorous columns and special edition.

The Pampa News received second place in sports writing for Sports Editor L.D. Strate, third in use of photography and honorable mention in news writing for stories by staff writers Cheryl Berzanskis and Chip Chandler.

In the Associated Press Managing Editors Association contest — results announced Saturday morning in Austin, The Pampa News picked up two awards for photography.

Former staff writer/photographer David Bowser and News Editor Cheryl Berzanskis earned a second place in the feature lay-

Bowser also gained honorable mention in the feature photography category for "As the Day Breaks," a photo of a sunrise highlighting the Texaco service station on the west end of White Deer.

THANK YOU

To all you great people who worked so hard for me, who called and offered encouragement, support and got out to vote.

To my family, friends and voters in both parties, I offer my sincerest gratitude. I pledge to do my very best on your behalf.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

A case with lots of imagination

Imagine that a high-ranking Justice Department official resigns his post, then proceeds to write a book about corruption within the U.S. government. Imagine that he is implicated in the mysterious death of a key government figure in Washington and flees for Mexico, where he is arrested on a meritless currency charge.

Imagine that the former official spends a year in Mexican prisons and jails as the Mexican government on four occasions fails to convince Mexican judges that there is probable cause to believe he committed any crime and should be expelled. Imagine he is released from jail only after he posts nearly his entire personal fortune which the Mexican government already had seized, anyhow — as bail.

Imagine that the official, after posting those millions of dollars in bail and consistently arguing that he and his family wish to remain in Mexico, is put under house arrest. He is made to wear an electronic bracelet and is placed under armed guard, all to prevent his voluntary departure to any country other than the one to which Mexican officials want him to go.

Imagine that the former U.S. official believes he will be persecuted — and even his personal safety may be endangered — if Mexico finally succeeds in sending him back to the United States, but that Mexico goes to such lengths imprisoning him for a year without bond despite lacking proof of his wrongdoing — because a high-ranking Mexican official believes it will curry favor with U.S. authorities.

Imagine all this has happened, and then consider how it would affect your convictions about the state of the Mexican government. How competent would its federal officials seem to you? How concerned with civil liberties, justice, individual rights? Would this episode confirm your worst fears about the corruption and ineptitude of Mexico City?

Well, imagine no more, because all of this did happen. But it did not happen to a former U.S. official in Mexico. It happened here, in the United States. And it happened to Mario Ruiz Massieu, a former deputy attorney general in Mexico.

Ruiz Massieu was released earlier this month — “freed” would be an inappropriate term since he cannot leave his home without permission and cannot touch the $9 million he has in the bank.

He has been accused of obstructing justice in the shooting death of his own brother, the No. 2 man in Mexico's ruling party. He has been accused of embezzling $750,000. He has been accused of aiding the notorious Gulf Cartel, the drug trafficking ring allegedly operated by Juan Garcia Abrego. He denies all charges and, one year after his arrest, the U.S. government has failed to prove any of them.

A U.S. district judge ordered his release, but Ruiz Massieu remains under house arrest as the decision is appealed. If he beats the government in court again — as he has shown a penchant for doing — he then will face a legal battle to take possession of his $9 million.

Why has our federal government spent so much time and resources on the pursuit of Ruiz Massieu?

The answer seems to be one part drug war zealotry, one part high-stakes international diplomacy.

The Clinton administration's investment in sending Ruiz Massieu back to Mexico accelerated a notch last October when Secretary of State Warren Christopher wrote a letter to Attorney General Janet Reno making the deportation a high foreign policy priority. Christopher's assertion that Ruiz Massieu is a threat to U.S. foreign policy was shot down when Ruiz Massieu sued, claiming that it is an unconstitutional vague argument for deportation. A U.S. district judge agreed Feb. 28 and ordered Ruiz Massieu released.

Still, our federal government plods on in its persecution of Ruiz Massieu. With so much now invested in the case, federal authorities are unwilling to throw in the towel, but throw it in they should. It is time for the Justice Department and Mexican officials if they are, indeed, pressuring the United States — to concede that it does not have the goods in this man.

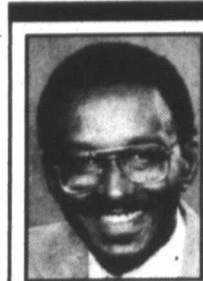

It is time to make him a free man.

A modest proposal about 'caring'

Walter Williams

When the Senate finishes its Whitewater hearings, the distinguished gentlemen should begin hearings on caring and doing good. You say, "Williams, that's the damndest thing we've heard; what do you mean?" It's a matter of serious importance. After all, Congress spends trillions of dollars on do-good and caring programs. All that spending threatens national solvency. So we should find out whether mandated caring and doing good are all that important.

Like millions of other Americans, I own a car, which I think is a very good thing. The question is: How did this very good thing happen to me? Was it because Detroit workers and bosses cared about me? My guess is that they don't give a damn about me and might hate me on sight, but nonetheless, they produced a car for me.

Like millions of Americans, I have a computer. That is a wonderful thing. What's more, computer producers are making me happier and happier as they provide me with products that do more and more, faster and faster, and become cheaper and cheaper. Again, how do we explain this doing good? Do IBM and Microsoft's Bill Gates care about me? I'll bet my entire fortune that they don't care whether I live or die. Moreover, I'm going to bet that if we had congressional hearings on caring, Detroit, IBM and Microsoft workers and bosses would testify that they care much more about themselves than about Williams. That leads us to the crux of the matter: How can all of this uncaring and selfishness produce so much happiness for me?

Here's the mystery: Government schoolteachers profess love and caring for the nation's children. The result is that among industrial nations, our kids are just about the worst in reading, writing and arithmetic. Each year, schools become more decadent and violent and taxpayers are gouged more and more. Thus, the congressional caring question is: How is it that educational caring produces disastrous outcomes while uncaring in the computer industry produces world-class miracles? I don't have the intelligence of Congress or schoolteachers. But it would appear to me that a solution would be for Congress to enact a law requiring educational uncaring. The education establishment should treat students just as computer manufacturers treat their customers.

Another hearing question might focus on trillions spent on caring by the Housing and Urban Development Department: How is it that in the face of megacaring, HUD becomes the nation's, if not the world's, largest slum landlord? En route to this achievement, HUD destroyed whole neighborhoods in the name of urban renewal (read: removal). It demolished flop houses, compounding homeless problems for bums and hobos. And when poor people try to improve their lot, through resident management, and try to toss out drug dealers and prostitutes, HUD, assisted by the ACLU, thwarts their efforts. Again, it would seem that a congressional order for the cessation of caring might be a good idea.

Without question, the parts of our lives that give us the greatest satisfaction are those where providers of goods and services make no pretense of caring for us. Those areas where we have the greatest dissatisfaction and complaints are those where providers profess saintly caring and selflessness.

Since congressmen profess the greatest caring, that might explain the economic mess they've created for our nation. So maybe congressional hearings on caring aren't a good idea after all.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, March 24, the 84th day of 1996. There are 282 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On March 24, 1989, the nation's worst oil spill occurred as the supertanker Exxon Valdez ran aground on a reef in Alaska's Prince William Sound and began leaking 11 million gallons of crude oil.

In 1765, Britain enacted the Quartering Act, requiring American colonists to provide temporary housing to British soldiers.

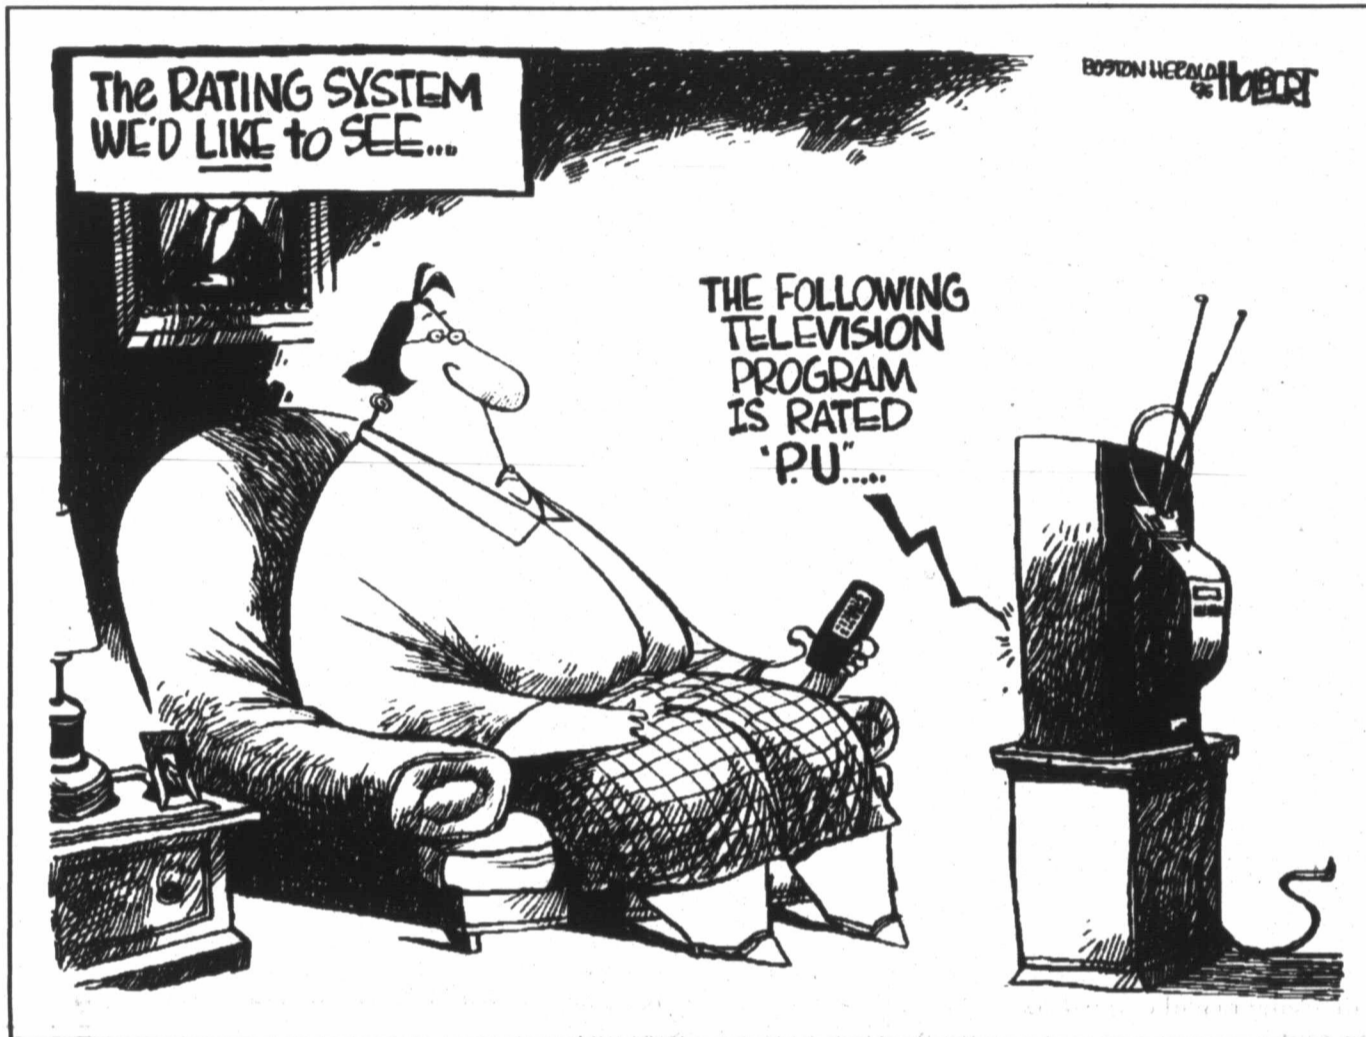

In 1882, German scientist Robert Koch announced in Berlin that he had discovered the bacillus responsible for tuberculosis.

In 1932, a New York radio station broadcast a variety program from a moving train in Maryland.

In 1934, President Roosevelt signed a bill granting future independence to the Philippines.

In 1944, in occupied Rome, the Nazis executed more than 300 civilians in reprisal for an attack by Italian partisans the day before that killed 32 German soldiers.

In 1955, the Tennessee Williams play Cat on a Hot Tin Roof opened on Broadway.

The industry with no standards

Charley Reese

This business of a rating system for television shows is a fraud and a con job. It's a way to get Bill Clinton's entertainment industry buddies off the hook.

The problem is not lack of labeling. It's content. It's gratuitous and graphic violence. It's vulgarity. It's profanity. It's explicit and gratuitous sex. You don't get rid of garbage by labeling it "garbage." You throw it out.

Let's get one thing straight. The people who produce and broadcast this stuff have shown utter contempt for the American people. They are invited guests into our living rooms via our public airwaves, and they have abused our hospitality by acting in a rude and disgusting manner. In a word, there's no need to make any concessions to these greedy sleazebags now in charge of the nation's entertainment industry.

We should insist that Congress clean up the entertainment industry's act as the price of using the public's airwaves. Obviously Congress will not do it on its own. No great amount of censorship, no interference in the true creative processes necessary.

All Congress has to do is to force the entertainment industry, with law, to adopt the same standards a better breed of entertainment executives voluntarily imposed on themselves in the 1950s and '60s.

No profanity. No vulgarities. No on-camera sex. No gratuitous and graphic violence. That's all that needs to be removed. That standard should be imposed on everything: news, entertainment, talk shows, soap operas, so-called magazine shows, radio, television networks and cable.

It would be a pitifully uncreative person who claimed he could not tell a story without profanity, vulgarity and graphic sex and violence. Talented writers have created high drama and great comedy without these things for generations. Do you think any sitcom today will have the staying power of I Love Lucy?

Lucille Ball, Carol Burnett and other great talents produced wonderful entertainment without ever once using gutter material. These talented people were not prudish, but they knew the difference between working a nightclub crowd and entertaining families in their own living rooms.

There is no excuse for not imposing these standards. Labels and V-chips are just political tricks to take the responsibility off the backs of the tycoons of sleaze who have turned America's television sets into sewer outlets.

The television industry and its subsidiaries in Hollywood have directly contributed to the coarsening, vulgarization and brutalization of American life. With its incessant vulgarity and violence, the entertainment industry is guilty of contributing to the delinquency of minors. Any adult who showed pornography to children or engaged in sex in front of them would be prosecuted. We ought to consider prosecuting these people who are doing it electronically.

What goes on in a private theater or what someone wishes to bring home on a video is one thing. But what travels on the public airwaves by public license or by cable over public-right-of-ways by public license or by publicly subsidized satellite is something else.

The vulgar have imposed their standards on the American people. It's time for the American people to impose a higher standard on those who use the public's assets for private profit. We would not put up with a guest who acted in a coarse and vulgar manner in our homes in front of our children. We'd throw him out. And that's what we need to do to these cheap peddlers of sleaze, both on television and radio.

We will never end juvenile crime, juvenile pregnancy and juvenile drug use as long as we continue to allow the entertainment industry, with its enormous prestige in the minds of children, to glamorize the very behaviors we're trying to persuade children to reject.

The public airwaves belong to us. Let's clean 'em up.

Book chronicles Clintons' misdeeds

R. Emmett Tyrrell Jr.

A shocking book has just been released in America's bookstores. Blood Sport: The President and His Adversaries is the work of investigative journalist James B. Stewart. At the suggestion of the Clintons' friend, Susan Thomases, he set out to write a book about the "right-wing" media and how it was relying on persons of "questionable" integrity to present the Clintons as corrupt, venal, devious and, well, cavalier about vows others take seriously. Well, as I am one of the 63 members of the "right-wing" media (we meet yearly in Argentina), I immediately laid my traps to snare a copy of the book even before it came out. Stewart is a very famous journalist. Or, should I say he was once a very famous journalist? This book puts him beyond the pale.

If Stewart's mother is still alive, I urge the family to keep her away from the television and newspapers for the next few months. Her son is going to be called many horrible things. His bona fides as a journalist are going to be called into question along with his patriotism. Apparently, in researching his book on the "right-wing" media's treatment of the Clintons, he put himself in harm's way by actually reading my colleagues' pungent stuff. Now, his book portrays the Clintons as corrupt, venal, devious and cavalier about the aforementioned vows.

Repeatedly, he shows the Clintons guilty of conflicts of interest, abuse of power, and a vindictiveness that sure scared me. I am sorry that I ever said a word about them. God knows what retribution they might have taken. Consider Travelgate. Consistent with the shocking revelations of the "right-wing" media, Stewart recreates Travelgate. with a fugitive, domineering Hillary behind the scenes, pulling the strings, deceiving the press and leaving seven members of the White House Travel Office unemployed — one of whom was hounded by the Federal government for years and at great expense.

Politically, Travelgate was a dreadful botch, and so deeply did it and Hillary's sudden emergence as his political superior disturb White House deputy counsel Vince Foster that he was driven to suicide. Blood Sport also demonstrates how the Clintons engaged in 1980s wheeling and dealing that is very uncharacteristic of the saintly, good-government reformers that they claim to be. Their Whitewater dealings with their partners, the McDougals, look very much like repeated essays into bank fraud. Yet, their treatment of the McDougals is not generous. Here, we see them as selfish, exploitive, reckless and utterly insensitive to the financial disaster they are participating in. Their treatment of friends is almost as brutal as their treatment of enemies.

From Stewart's book, it is apparent that the Clintons have repeatedly perjured themselves. They have engaged in conspiracy to obstruct justice. And, once again, we see Clinton offering Arkansas state troopers jobs for cooperation in controlling the emerging scandal of his hyperactive libido. I say "once again" because I, of course, being a member of the "right-wing" media, have been aware of this felonious conduct since late 1993. That is when we reported it to the usual empty audience at the press club. The rest of the press had hastened from the room, horrified that anyone would believe a politician's bodyguards when they claimed that their boss partied with them and misused state credit cards and other state property while engaging in abuse of power and compromising private citizens along with state employees.

Well, Stewart has reported all of the above and more. What will be his fate? Probably, journalists such as Michael Kinsley and Frank Rich will call his findings unbelievable, with Rich suggesting that Stewart's grim portrait of Mrs. Clinton smacks of misogyny. Others will point out that Stewart once worked at the Wall Street Journal and has very few sources other than people who have known the Clintons for years and suffered the resultant bankruptcy. The White House will raise questions as to who financed the book. Did not Stewart once have lunch with Sen. Bob Dole? And George Stephanopoulos might say of Stewart what he said to a New York Times writer when asked about me — that "(James B. Stewart's) journalistic standards are on a par with The National Enquirer's. It's pulp fiction! Trash! Tabloid! It's not journalism."

That sort of analysis stings, especially coming from such a distinguished writer as George. One thing I am grateful to Stewart for is keeping my role and that of the other members of the "right-wing" media pianissimo as he exposes the Clintons for the rogues that they are. Frankly, I could not endure another round of the mainstream media's obloquy. I prefer the happy company of my "right-wing" colleagues, drinking champagne, smoking cigars and marveling at some members of the wingless press discover the obvious.

Letters to the editor

Proud of our wrestlers

To the editor:

I would like to take a few minutes of your time to let the people of Pampa know that there is another sport in town. It has been here for a few years, but very few know about it. I am talking about the Harvester Wrestling Team.

As a parent of a wrestler, I would like to tell you that Papa can be PROUD of the HARVESTER WRESTLERS; I know I am. This year we had 18 boys finish the season. There is not a lot of spectators at the matches for these boys, but they still go out and give it their all. These boys have to learn discipline, restraint and, above all, sportsmanship. This is not easy for some and that is why so many do not stay with the Wrestling. These boys have to watch their weight more than anything. Do you know how hard it is to have a teenage boy that has to be careful what they eat? I am talking about this is the age where they are growing and usually eat you out of house and home.

When a Wrestler enters the mat to wrestle, he is on his own. But, when a HARVESTER WRESTLER enters the mat, he has the whole team on the side line cheering him on. This shows me that these boys are a TEAM. This could not have been possible if it was not for the great coaching that they get from their coach. I would like to thank Coach Steve Kuhn for the great coaching, support and training that he gives to each and every one of these boys. Also, to Mrs. Kuhn and family who give up even more so that he can coach our sons.

Once again, THANK YOU, Coach Kuhn for all the things that you give these boys. You will be remembered in their hearts the rest of their lives. Because you gave them the chance to succeed.

Sincerely,
Debbie Fondren

Don't voters have a say?

To the editor:

I've recently moved to McLean and I've been reading in The Pampa News about the City Council meetings. It seems that they have money problems and are wanting to fund a financially sizable project — without getting the voters involved!

Aren't the voters the ones who are going to have to pay for this project? Probably by their city bills going up or their taxes going up. Shouldn't the voters have a say in whether or not they want to fund this project? Isn't this their money the council members are spending so freely?

Livestock show citizenship requirement draws criticism

HOUSTON (AP) — An Asian girl appears to be the first casualty of the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo's new citizenship requirement, and officials are considering withdrawing her $10,000 award.

Both Asian and Hispanic community leaders on Friday blasted the rodeo's citizenship requirement saying it would deter otherwise qualified students from applying.

But Friday's deadline for the Go Tejano rodeo scholarships brought in hundreds of qualified Hispanic applicants despite the citizenship requirement, rodeo officials said.

"I'm drowning in applications, and it's wonderful," said Mike Nathanson, director of the rodeo's educational programs in an interview with the Houston Chronicle.

Once officials waded through the applicants' grades, test scores, community service, citizenship and other requirements, winners will be selected later this year, she said. However, a major problem may be the Asian student possibly losing her $10,000 art scholarship because of a question about her citizenship after she was notified of winning in February.

Dan Gattis, Livestock Show and Rodeo general manager, said, "I have personally talked with her and told her not to panic because we're still discussing the matter."

"It is still under investigation. We are trying to gather the facts," Gattis said.

Rodeo officials declined to release her name or details of her

I've always been told that the Landowner was the one responsible for developing their land — not the city and not the people in the town. Are mine the only eyes that are open in McLean? Am I the only one that thinks that maybe the council members have forgotten their duty to the taxpayers?

A lack of fortitude shown

To the editor:

The lack of action by three Gray County commissioners on Monday, March 18, shows in part what is wrong with our country today.

This is a lack of fortitude to stand up for what is morally correct instead of bowing to political correctness. Their support for House Resolution 1833 probably would not stop abortion, as one commissioner stated, but it would show residents of this area what kind of men we have elected to public office.

Letters to the editor policy

The Pampa News welcomes and encourages readers to express their opinions on issues of public interest and concern. However, we also reserve the right to accept or reject any letter for publication.

Letters should be 300 words or less. Letters submitted for publication should be neat and legible, typed if possible, or at least handwritten in a clear manner. Letters may be edited for length, clarity, spelling, grammar, taste, style and potentially libelous statements. Submission of a letter does not guarantee its publication, nor can we guarantee a date of publication due to space and time limitations.

All letters must be signed for publication; no unsigned, name withheld or anonymous letters will be published. The writer must list an address and a telephone number or numbers where he or she may be contacted for verification; addresses and telephone numbers will not be printed, unless requested for a specific reason.

Poetry, candidate or political endorsements, letters to third parties and "thank you" letters will not be published except at the discretion of the editor, depending on general interest.

Letters may be dropped off at the office, 403 W. Atchison, or mailed to The Pampa News, Letters to the Editor, P.O. Box 2198, Pampa, TX 79066.

background to the media.

"Don't change the rules in the middle of the game," said Glenda Joe, spokeswoman for the Council of Asian-American Organizations.

"We wouldn't be having this discussion if the country was not in an ugly immigrant-bashing mood," she said.

"Plus, if she is a refugee, her family probably sacrificed more helping the U.S. military than those making armchair decisions on who's American and who's not," Ms. Joe said.

When the rodeo announced earlier this year that proof of U.S. citizenship would be required, some members of the Hispanic community became upset. They said an unspecified number of Hispanic children would be prevented from applying for rodeo scholarships.

Some members of the Go Tejano Committee also disagree with the citizenship policy, saying that a Texas residency requirement should be enough to qualify a student to apply.

Make-A-Wish Foundation issues chain letter warning

PHOENIX — An unauthorized chain letter encouraging people to send business cards to a seriously ill boy continues to generate thousands of pieces of mail each day, even though the boy is now healed and the family has requested an end to the mail.

News reports stated in 1989 that Craig Shergold, a 9-year-old English boy diagnosed with a terminal brain tumor, wanted to be recorded in the Guinness Book of World Records for receiving the most greeting cards. His wish was fulfilled in 1990 after receiving 16 million cards. Shergold's tumor was successfully removed in March 1991.

But the cards and letters continue. Several versions of the letter exist, most of which wrongly claim that the young boy remains terminally ill and now wants to receive the largest number of business cards. The addressee is encouraged to gather business cards, forward them to an incorrect address in Georgia and then forward the chain letter to 10 friends.

"The chain letter claims that Make-A-Wish is involved and that we have an office in Atlanta," stated Steven M. Cohen, national president of the Make-A-Wish Foundation of America. "That is not true. Our organization is not, and has never been associated with the letter. Yet, our office continues to receive thousands of phone calls each month diverting our staff time and resources from our mission. This is a terrible waste of time, paper and postage by the well-intentioned people who respond to the letter."

"On behalf of the Shergold family, the Make-A-Wish Foundation requests that people please stop sending business cards or greeting cards to Craig Shergold," Cohen continued.

Make-A-Wish Foundation of America, based in Phoenix, has 79 chapters in the U.S. and several international affiliates. Any child between the ages of two-and-a-half and 18 who has been determined to have a terminal or life-threatening illness is eligible to receive a wish. The first wish was granted in Phoenix in 1980, and since then Make-A-Wish has granted more than 23,000 wishes ranging from building a fishing pond in a back yard to an all-expense paid trip to Disney World.

"There are many legitimate charities in this country which truly need help," Cohen said. "There are also many children who have wishes that need to be fulfilled. If anyone would like more information about the Make-A-Wish chapter for their area, please call the national office at (800) 722-9474."

Pampa Chapel of the Apostolic Faith

"A Church Who Cares"

Ron Noble, Pastor 711 E. Harvester — P.O. Box 1535 Office 669-9635
PAMPA, TEXAS 79065 Home 665-1579

The vision of Bible-based preaching and Scriptural instruction for Christian living became a reality in the mid 1960's as the doors of the Pampa Chapel were opened. Still today, the commitment of proclaiming God's Word continues.

The Pampa Chapel is Full Gospel in nature, preaching Biblical Truth without omissions or additions. It is an inter-denominational church, striving to worship God in reality, sincerity, and truth. We endeavor to be a caring church, not only of it's members, but towards all that attend.

The Message of the Pampa Chapel

We realize that in a world of ever-changing ideas, morals, and values, there must be a sincere searching of God's Word to determine the standard which people must live. The Bible teaches the standards that include the following:

- The Bible is the unadulterated Word of God, without errors or contradictions.
- Jesus Christ is its central figure, crucified, risen, and coming again.
- All have sinned and have come short of what God requires.
- The penalty for sin is death, but God is merciful, not willing that any should perish.
- There is freedom from sin and guilt, for all those that ask in faith.
- The necessity of commitment to God with the enabling help of God to continue, and to walk in the way of Holiness.

The Mission of the Pampa Chapel

We, as Christians, are simply striving to present Jesus Christ as the Only True Light in a darkened world. We live in a time where the safety of children is at risk and the Home is in trouble. People kill themselves and each other. But there is an answer to today's questions and Hope when all looks hopeless--it all can be found in Christ.

If you are tired of some man-made religion, we invite you to come visit and feel the difference at the Pampa Chapel. The services are at 10:00 a.m. on Sunday morning for Sunday School and 11:00 for the preaching. Sunday night is at 6:00 and Wednesday evening at 7:00.

Contact crisis line

LUBBOCK — Contact, a volunteer crisis line, is expanding into Pampa.

Contact is staffed by trained, volunteer listeners who are available 24 hours a day to receive calls from people in crisis. They may be contacted by calling 1-800-886-4351. The call is free and the calls are anonymous and confidential.

Telephone workers receive a minimum of 50 hours of training in active listening, compassion, feelings, self-awareness, grief and suicide.

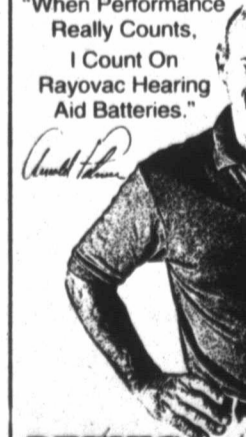

The Contact movement began in Australia in 1960s in response to the need for a listening line for people in crisis. It became a worldwide movement and is now known as Life Line International which includes Contact USA. Contact Lubbock is accredited by Contact USA.

Houston: Offshore development signals growth

By CALEB SOLOMON
The Wall Street Journal's Texas Journal

HOUSTON - Possibly the best indicator that this city's economy is finally almost on par with the rest of the state's is something most people have never heard of: a "rig availability chart."

It's what Anadarko Petroleum Corp. planners use to track Gulf of Mexico drilling rigs that are being used now or are booked in the future. Although Anadarko hadn't rigorously maintained such a chart for 10 years, it recently began doing so again, thanks to surging exploration and development activity off the coast. Without one, Anadarko could wind up ready to drill but without the rig it wants.

"Heretofore you said, 'I'm going to drill a well in July,' and you called on the first of July and said, 'Bring me a rig,'" says an Anadarko spokesman. But these days, he says, the specialized rigs that can drill in the Gulf's ultra-deep waters are booked for years. And even the more common drilling rigs that work in shallower waters are reserved months in advance. In short, the biggest industry in the biggest city in the state is expanding.

"Energy is back helping Houston pretty substantially again," says Bill Gilmer, an economist at the Houston branch of the Federal Reserve Bank. Last year, Houston's economy almost grew as fast as the overall Texas economy. That's the closest Houston has come since 1991, when the city's economy actually outpaced the state's.

In this column six months ago, Gilmer posited that despite years of shrinkage in the oil industry, Houston's economy still is so dependent on energy that it remains countercyclical. It looks like he was right. Since then, Houston's employment growth has accelerated while state and national job growth has slowed.

Last summer, Gilmer pointed to the rapid growth of Houston's oil-refining and petrochemical plants, where profits were soaring, as evidence of energy's resurgence. They're still robust, although off their peaks. But the slight slowdown has been more than overshadowed by a dramatic pickup in the long-stagnant element of Houston's energy economy: exploration and development for oil and natural gas.

The upshot: For 1996, Gilmer predicts Houston's economy will grow about 3 percent. That compares with a growth rate of about 2.6 percent for Houston in 1995, and an expected statewide growth rate of 2.7 percent this year. This year's improvement, however, is not a carbon copy of Houston's growth spurt in the late 1970s and early '80s, when higher oil prices hurt the rest of the country's economy but spurred the Oil Patch's.

Minding your own Business

By Don Taylor

Just communicate

I work with some of the brightest, most enthusiastic men and women in the world. They wear many labels including entrepreneurs, proprietors and the under-employed. They are the owners of small businesses.

For many owners the experience is a lonely one. In general, the owners carefully guard business information and don't feel that employees have any right to know anything about their company's bottom line. Only those employees who must have certain information to do their jobs have access to it. Sometimes the reluctance to release information is due to how much the owner is making, other times it is because of how little.

This situation can lead to two conclusions. First, uninformed employees often assume their boss is making a ton of money, and they therefore make no attempt to find ways to improve the business or eliminate waste. Second, they have no sense of ownership and can't see how their effort - or lack thereof - affects anything that happens in the business.

The owner, who has access to good management information, can't understand why the employees don't show more motivation in helping the business prosper. The employees, who know nothing about the operation, can't understand why the boss is always in a stew about something.

An enlightened staff

Some owners are finding new ways to run their small businesses. They are opening the books to all employees and getting everyone involved in helping the business make money.

In some firms, the owners may have made the move in desperation. The business was struggling and the owner gave the employees an ultimatum: "Help me make money or your job will go away."

When the employees became enlightened and knew their jobs were on the line, they pitched in and turned the company around. Then somewhere else, a savvy owner heard of this success and wondered if it would work for a healthy company. He or she opened the books to the staff, split the upside and everyone came out ahead.

This is the essential principle of "open-book management." The owner makes information available to all employees. Everyone is coached to understand the numbers and how their work affects the company's profit. They know if the company is making money and they know the reasons why.

Empowered with this information, the employees then begin to assume responsibility for moving the numbers in the right direction. The incentive for making these changes is a piece of the larger profit pie. The workers who help generate profit reap a portion of it.

A want-to strategy

Open-book management is not so much a "how to" strategy as it is a "want to" strategy. Making results available to all employees doesn't help them know what to do. What is done for several companies is provide the motivation for making positive changes.

In open-book companies, everyone is an entrepreneur. It's a great adventure every day knowing that you have some control over the company's profits and your own earning power. Employees who are informed and involved are happier, have higher energy levels and are more productive.

Four principles make up the open-book system. First, employees need access to information so they know what is going on in the business. Second, they have to understand that information and relate it to their job. Third, they must have the authority to change outcomes and fourth, they must have a stake in the company's success or failure.

If you want to read more about this topic I'd suggest two books. The first is: Open-Book Management by John Case (1995, Harper Business). The second is: The Great Game of Business by Jack Stack with Bo Burlingham (1992, Doubleday/Currency).

Tenneco announces changes in changes in operation

HOUSTON (AP) - Tenneco Inc. says it will split off its Newport News Shipbuilding division and may do the same to the pipeline business that gave the conglomerate its start 53 years ago.

Tenneco Chairman Dana Mead has hinted for months that he was moving towards making Newport News an independent company. The company is trying to steer its way clear of businesses that are vulnerable to the ups and downs of the economy and concentrate more on auto parts and packaging, which it sees as more stable.

McDonald's plans to buy 80-store Italian chain

CHICAGO (AP) - McDonald's Corp. plans to buy the 80-store Burghy hamburger chain in Italy, a move that would catapult it to that nation's leading fast-food provider.

McDonald's, based in the Chicago suburb of Oak Brook, will convert Gruppo Cremonini's Burghy restaurants to McDonald's, said James Cantalupo, president and chief executive of McDonald's international division.

Terms of the deal, which is expected to be completed this year, were not disclosed Thursday.

Analysts say surges won't weaken economy

WASHINGTON (AP) - Business inventories and new claims for jobless benefits both posted steep gains in new government reports, but analysts said the surges largely reflected special factors and not a weakening economy.

The Commerce Department said Thursday that inventories jumped 0.6 percent in January, largest since a 0.7 percent surge last October. At the same time, the Labor Department reported jobless claims last week shot up by 32,000 to the highest level in two months.

Therassage professional completes workshop in neuromuscular therapy

Blaine Going, a registered massage therapist at Therassage Bodywork Professionals in Pampa, recently completed a workshop in neuromuscular therapy for the head and neck. This type of therapy is used to elevate pain caused by whiplash, TMJ syndrome, stiff neck, headaches and migraines, etc.

Going traveled to Lubbock to attend an 18-hour advanced training workshop in neuromuscular therapy as part of his post graduate education and hands-on-training. The certification program consists of a total of 300 hours.

This is the first of a four-part series in the neuromuscular therapy certification program that Going has attended and completed. His training in Lubbock focused on head and neck pain and spinal biomechanics. He learned hands-on techniques to alleviate chronic head and neck pain. Some of the techniques involve myofascial, trigger point technique, range of motion, stretching, structural release and re-education of the muscles.

This training, along with his Swedish massage background, gives him a broader range of therapeutic skills to better benefit his client, Going said.

Neuromuscular therapy is a "specialized" practice of massage therapy which focuses on pain relief and injury rehabilitation. Having a different goal than that of the standard Swedish or relaxation massage, neuromuscular therapy deals with assessing the problem area with the modalities needed. This approach gives the client a much quicker result to alleviating the pain.

Blaine Going

Human Resources Association to hold annual seminar

AMARILLO - The Panhandle Human Resources Association will hold its annual seminar, "What You Don't Know Can Hurt You! Avoiding the Pitfalls of Human Resource Issues" on April 11 from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. in the Virgil Patterson Auditorium of Boatmen's First National Bank at 8th & Taylor Streets. Former Pampan competing in Miss Colorado pageant

Former Pampa resident Jessica Bender will be competing for the title of Miss Colorado in the Miss America pageant series after being named Miss Northern Plains recently.

Jessica Bender

Miss Bender attended elementary and middle schools in Pampa before moving to Colorado. She is the daughter of Jon and Joyce Bender of Denver, Colo., former Pampa residents, and the sister of Deon Bender. Her grandparents are J.B. and Maud Minyard of Pampa.

A freshman at Northeastern Junior College in Sterling, Colo., she was named Miss Northern Plains in the scholarship pageant competition at the college. She will compete in the Miss Colorado Pageant in Denver in June.

Miss Bender is a graduate of Gateway High School in Aurora, Colo., where she was on the academic honor roll for three years and was listed in Who's Who Among American High School Students. She served one year in student government and was flute section leader in the marching band for a year. She was awarded a Colorado Honor Scholarship.

At Northeastern Junior College, she plans to earn a bachelor's degree in elementary education and become an educator and role model for young children. At the pageant, Bender played a flute solo for the talent portion of the pageant.

Her platform for the pageant competition is "Sex and Education." She notes that teenagers of the 1990s "are not over educated when it comes to sex, they are not educated enough."

She encourages earlier teaching of sex education in the school system before high school. "How are we going to tell them to abstain from sex after they have already done it?" She says sex education needs to inform middle school aged children about the facts of sex and the risks.

Poll: Americans divided over setting school standards

WASHINGTON (AP) — As governors and business leaders prepare to renew a discussion of academic standards this week, a new poll suggests the American people also favor tougher goals but are split over who should set them.

Seventy-five percent of people surveyed support higher standards, according to this week's issue of U.S. News & World Report, which is on newsstands Monday.

But the poll also found that just five percent of Americans blame low standards as the most serious problem for public education.

At least 45 governors and dozens of executives from the nation's largest corporations plan to meet in New York this week to revive the school standards movement, first proposed by the nation's governors in 1989.

The Education Department has tried to implement those recommendations, but its standards have come under fire by some who say they emphasize the wrong areas and are too vague. Conservatives and some state leaders have complained that the government was trying to impose a national curriculum.

The U.S. News & World Report poll suggests that the American people want standards, but they are divided over who should set them.

Nearly a quarter of respondents said the standards should be written by national authorities, with 27 percent saying they should be written at the state level. Thirty-nine percent said the standards should be written locally.

Eighty-seven percent said students should not be allowed to graduate from high school if they do not pass academic examinations. And 58 percent said employers should screen applicants based on their exams and grades.

Other findings of the poll: — Schools are faltering. Sixty-two percent said public education in the nation was fair, poor or very poor, compared with 31 percent who said it was good or excellent.

Respondents were more optimistic about education in their local schools, with 44 percent calling it good or excellent and 45 percent saying it is fair, poor or very poor.

— Parents are a problem. Asked for the most serious problem in education, 34 percent of people blamed parents who are not involved in their children's education. That was followed by lack of discipline in the schools (22 percent), lack of funding (13 percent) and standards that are too low (5 percent). Twenty-four percent said it was a combination.

— Extracurricular activities count. Fifty-nine percent of respondents said sports, music and other extracurricular activities deserve the emphasis and resources they receive. Thirty-five percent said some of that money should be channeled to the classroom.

Soldier killed in accident in Bosnia

WASHINGTON (AP) — A vehicle accident in Bosnia left one U.S. soldier dead and another injured, U.S. officials said.

Pfc. Lloyd E. Bright, 19, of Houston died in the Friday accident and Pvt. Joseph E. Dory, 22, of Edwards, Colo., was injured.

Both were assigned to the headquarters of the Army's 2/678 armored battalion.

It marked the second death of a U.S. soldier since the Bosnia peace enforcement mission began last December. The first was Army Sgt. Donald A. Dugan, who was killed by a land mine on Feb. 3.

Our business is making things better

Next time you see an ambulance on the street, there might be something different about it.

The sirens and the lights will be the same. So will the dedicated medical professionals inside who have served our community in the past.

But the big change in our ambulance service has already happened. For some time now, we've been a Rural/Metro company, one of the nation's largest private sector ambulance providers. Now we've made it part of our name: Rural/Metro.

More resources. Better systems. Same dedicated professionals.

Rural/Metro works closely with the medical community and stays on top of the latest techniques and equipment. That's why they are recognized leaders in training.

And with 47 years in the emergency services field, they have a wealth of experience with ambulance companies of all sizes. Including systems that can help companies like ours manage resources better while providing optimum levels of service. Which will allow us to keep growing and improving to meet the needs of our community tomorrow.

So the new name and logo on our ambulances simply completes the transition. The people, the dedication and professionalism will be the same, but now, through Rural/Metro, more powerful resources, better training and more efficient systems are backing us up.

Commitment to community: we live here, too

The one thing that hasn't changed is our care and compassion. Ours is a people business in the most profound sense of the term, because the lives of our own families, friends and neighbors are often at stake.

We take pride in the fact that we're the ones who are sent to help when help is needed most. And we're proud to serve the community under a name that means better tools, better systems and better service.

AUTO RACING

PHOENIX (AP) — Arie Luyendyk, the marquee name in the fledgling Indy Racing League, won his first pole at Phoenix International Raceway on Saturday with a record-setting qualifying lap for the Dura-Lube 200.

Luyendyk, knocked out of the first IRL event Jan. 27 at Orlando, Fla., because of gearbox problems, scorched the pole oval in 19.608 seconds, a lap at 183.599 mph.

He missed the wall by inches on his second hot lap, but said he was in no danger of wrecking the Reynard-Ford.

"You're only as confident as the confidence your car gives you," Luyendyk said. "Right now the car has been so good to me. That last lap is an example. If you're confident in your car, you will not take your foot off the throttle because you know it's not going to slide away from you."

Luyendyk, who won the 1990 Indianapolis 500 with the fastest speed (185.981) ever, and the 1991 Phoenix race, will have rookie Richie Hearn alongside him Sunday.

BASKETBALL

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Kim Allen had 17 points and 11 rebounds as Princeton prevailed in a furious finish to beat Illinois State 68-65 Saturday for seventh place of the women's National Invitational Tournament.

The Lady Tigers, playing in a post-season tournament for the first time, finished the season at 20-11. Illinois State's Redbirds finished at 19-13.

The Lady Tigers led 55-45 with less than five minutes to play, but ISU sliced that advantage to 65-61 with 37 seconds to play. However Princeton upped its lead to 68-61, seemingly putting the game out of reach.

But Melanie Ward rattled home a 3-point basket for Illinois State and was fouled on the shot, completing a 4-point play that cut the lead to 68-65 with 7 seconds to play.

Jenny Schmidt fouled Andrea Razi immediately, and when Razi missed the free throw and the Lady Redbirds grabbed the rebound, there was one last hope.

Mary Jane Johnson got off a 3-point shot that would have sent the game into overtime, but it bounced off the rim as the buzzer sounded.

Princeton jumped off to a 7-0 lead, but Illinois State got back in the game with eight straight points of its own, and the game was closely contested the rest of the way.

Schmidt led the Redbirds with 17 points, with Ward adding 12.

Tricia Klock backed Allen with 10 points and 11 rebounds. Princeton shot 42.4 percent from the field and held Illinois State to 32.8 percent.

NACOGDOCHES, Texas (AP) — The Georgia Lady Bulldogs had too many stars for Stephen F. Austin to cover.

The Ladyjacks slowed down Sandra Roundtree, but Tracy Henderson had 20 points and 10 rebounds as Georgia ended Stephen F. Austin's string of upsets with a 78-64 victory in a semifinal game of the women's NCAA Midwest Regional tournament Saturday.

"I thought before the game it would be aggressive on both sides and it was that," Georgia coach Andy Landers said. "We executed well in the first half, punching the ball in to Tracy."

The Lady Bulldogs will play top-seeded Louisiana Tech (31-1) Monday for a berth in the Final Four. Louisiana Tech defeated Texas Tech 66-55.

The Ladyjacks temporarily halted Roundtree but Henderson picked up the slack with 16 of her points in the first half.

"Not to sound cocky, but I don't get frustrated," Roundtree said of the Ladyjacks' strategy. "I just tried to get the ball up the floor myself against their pressure. I didn't have to score in the first half."

Georgia (24-4) built a 56-38 lead with 12:59 left, and was in control against the Ladyjacks (27-4).

Top seeds missing from NCAA regional finals

By The Associated Press

So much for the computer that evaluates teams for the NCAA basketball tournament.

The top seeds will be missing in today's regional finals — Cincinnati vs. Mississippi State in the Southeast at Lexington, Ky., and Syracuse against Kansas in the West at Denver.

"It's a great feeling for us," Mississippi State guard Marcus Bullard said after the Bulldogs upset top-seeded Connecticut 60-55 Friday night to reach a regional final for the first time.

"It's a great day for our program. You can tell that our program is going up."

Saturday was the time for top-seeded teams, with two regional finals between No. 1 and 2 teams. No. 1 Kentucky played No. 2 Wake Forest in the Midwest at Minneapolis and No. 1 Massachusetts and No. 2 Georgetown met in the East at Atlanta.

Sunday's games feature somewhat longer shots.

Mississippi State (25-7) is the lowest seed still left in the tournament, at No. 5. But the Bulldogs have been coming on strong, winning 14 of their last 16, including a victory over Kentucky in the SEC tournament final and Friday night's win over UConn, the nation's third-ranked team.

But Cincinnati (28-4) will enjoy something of a home-court advantage, as it did in its 87-70 win over Georgia Tech Friday night. The second seed in the region, the Bearcats are playing only 80 miles from home, and thousands of fans will make the trip south.

"They were cheering for us as we walked out," Cincinnati guard Damon Flint said. "When I heard that, I knew it was our house."

Like Cincinnati, Kansas (29-4) is a No. 2 seed. The Jayhawks emerged from the most closely contested doubleheader Friday night, edging Arizona 83-80 after Syracuse's dramatic 83-81 overtime win over Georgia.

Syracuse (27-8), the No. 4 seed, is a typical Syracuse team only in one area — its 60 percent foul shooting against Georgia was typical of past Orangemen teams.

But where those teams often were considered talented underachievers, this one has overachieved with only one star — John Wallace, who scored all 10 points in overtime after Jason Cipolla had tied the score at the buzzer in regulation.

It also has history on its side. In both previous West Regional finals in Denver, a Big East team has been a winner — St. John's in 1985 and Seton Hall in 1989.

But Kansas showed the same kind of grit that Syracuse demonstrated in its win. The Jayhawks fell victim to a 17-2 run by Arizona to fall behind 79-76, then won on Jerod Haase's 3-pointer with 35 seconds left.

"I talked to our kids about holding their poise and just doing what we're supposed to do," Kansas coach Roy Williams said. "I told them several times to just have faith."

A little more faith and it's on to the Final Four.

Pampa's Everson takes over medalist race in District 1-4A golf tournament

PAMPA — Pampa's Phil Everson grabbed the medalist lead after two district rounds with a 77 Saturday at the Pampa Country Club course.

As a team, the Harvesters hung onto third place with a 338.

"The wind was brutal," said Pampa coach Frank McCullough. "Of 69 players only one broke 80, and that was Phil."

The Harvesters will take a break from district action and compete in the Amarillo Relays next weekend.

"We're still in pretty good shape. We're only three shots out of second with two rounds to play," McCullough said.

District 1-4A Tournament at Pampa Country Club (after two rounds)

Pampa is also in the third place in the girls' district standings after two rounds with a 397 Saturday at Hidden Hills.

"We've got a pretty young team this year. There's only one senior (Melinda Randall) on our first five, so I look for us to be much-improved next year," said Pampa coach Dick Dunham.

Team totals (after two rounds): 1. Borger, 704; 2. Hereford, 740; 3. Pampa, 769; 4. Dumas, 817; 5. Randall, 832; 6. Pampa JV, 851; 7. Canyon, 859; 8. Borger JV, 875; 9. Caprock, 912; 10. Randall junior varsity, 982.

Tigers swap with A's Padres

By The Associated Press

Randy Smith promised to change the Detroit Tigers when he was named their general manager. He's making good on his word.

Smith, who became the Tigers GM last October after coming over from San Diego, orchestrated two trades on Friday. In need of young prospects, he outfielder Phil Plantier to the Oakland Athletics in exchange for shortstop Fausto Cruz and pitcher Ramon Fernin.

In a separate deal, he traded pitchers Sean Bergman and Cade Gaspar and outfielder Todd Stevenson, to San Diego for catcher Raul Casanova, outfielder Melvin Nieves and reliever Richie Lewis.

"Both of these trades are deals we feel lays some foundation for the future," said Smith. "There were a lot of inexperienced players on both ends. But we felt it was the thing to do."

Since joining the Tigers, Smith has brought in several players he had in San Diego. Plantier was one of them, along with first baseman Eddie Williams and pitcher Brian Williams.

Plantier, 27, joined the Tigers in December as a free agent. He was with both Houston and San Diego last season, hitting a combined 255 with nine homers and 34 RBIs in 76 games. He spent almost two months on the disabled list.

"I liked Phil. I'm glad to see he's going to get a chance to play someplace," Detroit manager Buddy Bell said. "But I guess there was some interest in Nieves all along. He's going to play left field every day."

Bergman, who went 7-10 last year with a 5.12 ERA, would have been in the Tigers' starting rotation.

Phillies

Philadelphia's pitching problems may be worse.

The Phillies were expected to be without starters Curt Schilling, David West and Bobby Munoz — all nursing injuries — when the season opens April 1 against Colorado.

Now, Tyler Green, an All-Star pitcher last season, may need season-ending shoulder surgery.

According to team physician Dr. Phillip Marone, Green has been bothered by soreness in his right shoulder all spring and has undergone two MRI exams, the second of which showed a lesion that may require arthroscopic surgery.

"It is the same injury as Curt Schilling and David West," Marone said. "We won't know the degree until we have it scoped. I would imagine he would face a lost season unless the scope wound up being just a cleaning out of the shoulder joint."

Green went 8-9 last season with a 5.31 ERA. He opened the season 8-4 before losing his last five decisions.

Brewers

Milwaukee submitted a financial package for their $90 million share of a new $250 million ballpark to a stadium board, but declined to publicly reveal the source of much of the funding.

Wisconsin Gov. Tommy Thompson said the Brewers met a noon deadline by presenting the package, which included a loan from their bank co-signed by Milwaukee business executives and a $41.2 million deal with Miller Brewing Co. to name the stadium Miller Park.

"I don't think they're quite there yet," Thompson said.

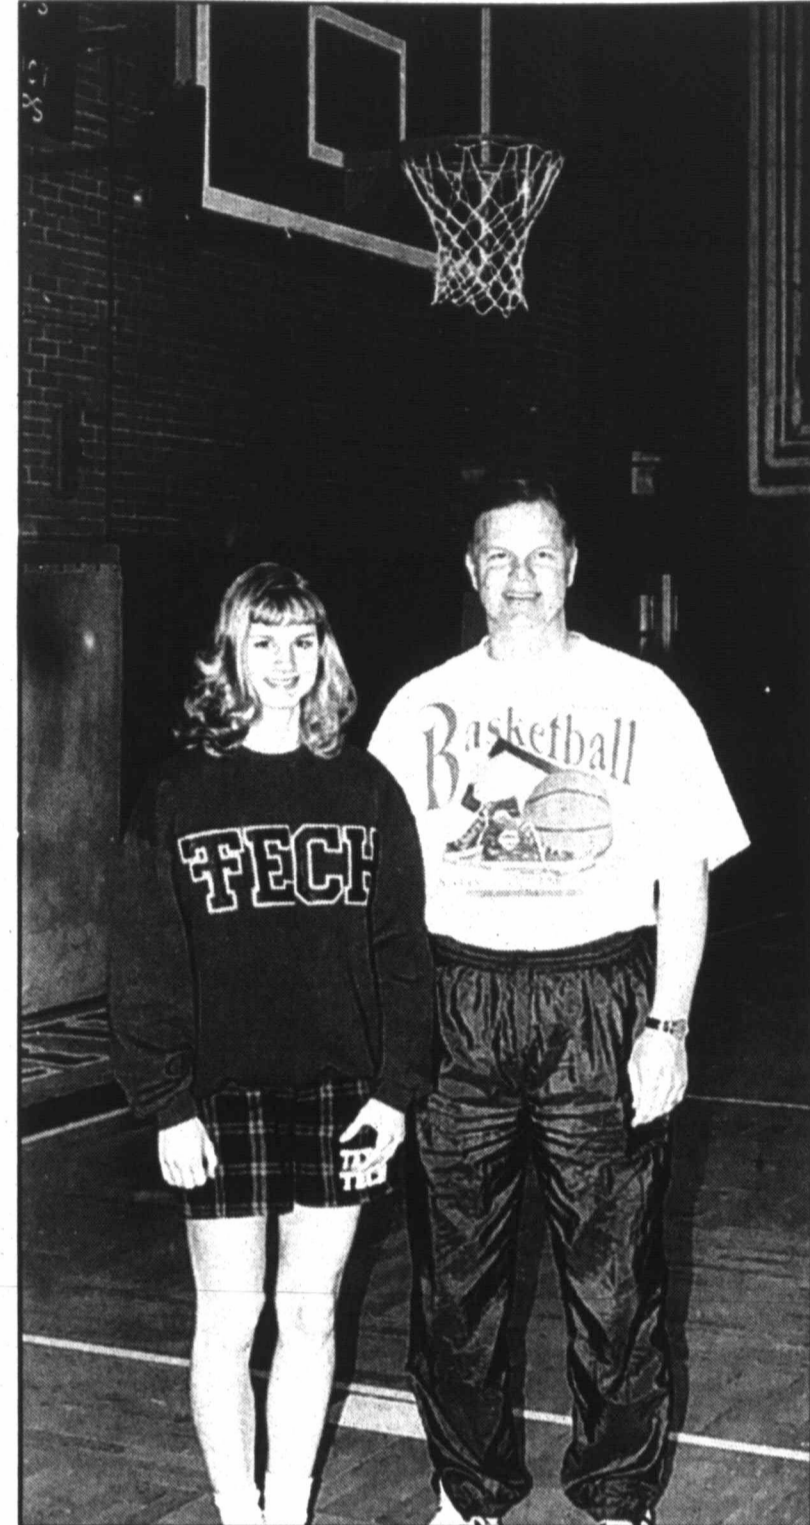

The Brewers had been striving for weeks to secure the funding after an expected $50 million state loan fell through because the team lacked collateral.

Giants

After failing four times to win voter approval for a new ballpark, the San Francisco Giants are gearing up for a final push heading into a citywide vote on whether to let the team build a privately financed replacement for windy, aging Candlestick Park.

Giants Hall of Famer Willie Mays will lead a rally on Saturday in support of the measure that will be voted on next Tuesday. Approval would clear the first major hurdle for construction of the $255 million, 42,000-seat waterfront ballpark in the city's China Basin.

Pampa High junior Jennifer Jones has been named to the Texas Association of Basketball Coaches Third-Team Girls All-Region 4A Basketball Team for 1995-96. She averaged 16.4 points per game in district and 15.7 points for the season to lead the Lady Harvesters in scoring. The 5-11 Jones also averaged 6.1 rebounds per game. She's pictured above with Lady Harvesters' head coach Mike Jones. A TABC selection committee picked the all-region team members.

REWARD

in Pampa Bucks, spendable at any participating Chamber Member Location.

A contest has been initiated to select a slogan or phrase to promote Pampa to Panhandle shoppers, many of who pass through Pampa on their way to Amarillo. We need to make these customers aware of the benefits of doing business in Pampa.

New businesses, recently opened franchises, existing businesses offering extended shopping hours, and the relocation of families into our city are continually transforming the face of doing business in Pampa. There are more than 150 businesses open on Saturday and over fifty businesses open on Sunday. This establishes Pampa as the regional center for shopping, health care, and business. We are the logical choice for business, and we are the logical place to shop. We want to share the news with the 87,000 residents of the eastern panhandle.

Your idea could change where the panhandle does business. Pampa's strength is her people. We give personal service with hometown courtesy and pride. We have a lot to offer... big city amenities with rural personality. Just as Chevrolet has used the "Heartbeat of America" slogan to position themselves in their market, the winning slogan or phrase will become the "positioning" statement for Pampa. Your submission can be a word, a phrase, an idea, a concept, or a slogan... anything that will identify and promote Pampa as the regional hub for business. Enter the contest and become an exciting part of the history and heritage of our city!

Dumas downs Pampa in district play

By Matt HUTCHISON
Pampa News Sports Writer

PAMPA — The Pampa Harvester baseball team ended Saturday's game against the Dumas Demons with a 10 run loss, 13-3. This was Pampa's second district game of the season.

After a quiet first inning of play Dumas jumped on the Harvesters in the second, hitting well off of Pampa pitcher Rene Armendariz to go into the third inning with a 3 run lead. Dumas continued to hit well into the third inning, scoring a total of 6 runs. Pampa tried to slow the Demons streak by switching pitchers, first switching to Ryan Schumacher and later giving the mound to Ryan Cook who pitched the remainder of the game.

Dumas hit well throughout the rest of the game despite the pitching changes, and were able to score 3 runs in the fourth inning and 1 in the fifth. A few questionable calls also benefited Dumas during the game.

The Pampa Harvesters next play Tuesday vs. Frenship at Pampa in non-district action, and look forward to playing their next district game against Hereford at Hereford at 1:00 on Saturday.

Fort Hays wins Division II title

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Sherick Simpson scored 24 points and Anthony Pope added 19 as No. 1 Fort Hays State completed a perfect season with a 70-63 victory over Northern Kentucky in the NCAA Division II championship game Saturday.

Fort Hays State (34-0) became the third team in the division's 40-year history to finish with an undefeated record. Evansville (1965) and Cal State Bakersfield (1993) also had unbeaten records.

No. 19 Northern Kentucky (25-7), which defeated No. 6 Bakersfield and No. 2 Virginia Union to reach the final, shot a season-low 29 percent (17-of-58) and couldn't contain the sharpshooting of Simpson and Pope.

Simpson made 8-of-10 shots, including 2-of-3 from beyond the arc, while Pope hit 6-of-8 shots, including 6-of-7 from 3-point range. Simpson was voted the tourney's most outstanding player.

Pope's 3-pointer from 25 feet with 2:49 to go gave Fort Hays State a 57-52 advantage and took some steam out of a Northern Kentucky rally.

Paul Cluxton finished with 17 points, Andy Listerman 15, LaRon Moore 14 and Andre McClelland 11 for Northern Kentucky. Alonzo Goldston had 12 points and nine rebounds for Fort Hays State.

Fort Hays State made 9-of-19 shots from 3-point range while Northern Kentucky, which hit 44 percent in the first two games, made 7-of-21.

Simpson pulled down 10 rebounds in helping Fort Hays State to a 41-36 edge on the boards.

The Staff, Volunteers, Administration and Board of Trustees of Coronado Hospital take this opportunity to publicly recognize our Medical Staff and thank them for their hard work and dedication throughout the year.

"March 30 was chosen to commemorate one of the greatest discoveries in Medical History. On this day in 1842 Dr. Crawford W. Long, the famous Georgia Physician first used ether as an anesthetic agent in a surgical operation, thereby providing mankind with the blessedness of freedom from pain and suffering during surgery."

Lifestyles

Jesus, portrayed by Lee Cornelison, hangs on the cross between two thieves in the crucifixion scene from "The Promise."

THE PROMISE

"The Promise" is set for 7 p.m. Saturday, March 30, and Sunday, March 31 at M.K. Brown Auditorium. It is a presentation of the music ministry of First Baptist Church of Pampa.

"The Promise" presents the birth, ministry, death and resurrection of Jesus in a fresh and touching way. In a unique way, according to Minister of Music John Glover.

"The Promise" blends the past and present. People will come away with an acute awareness that Biblical people, places, things and events are not unlike their modern day counterparts. The players and stages change; the Lord does not. What He did then, He does today. What He did for those in the past, He does for us. He invites us daily to participate in this divine drama of the ages," he said.

The cast of 100 includes:

- Grandpa - Jim Erwin
- Lisa - Meredith Hendricks
- Billy - Stephen Nelson
- Jesus - Lee Cornelison
- Joseph and Mary - Richard and Wanetta Hill
- Baby Jesus - Quintin Juengerman
- Young Jesus - Nathanael Hill
- Gabriel - Ben Howard

Satan - Luis Nava

John the Baptist - Jeff Maxwell

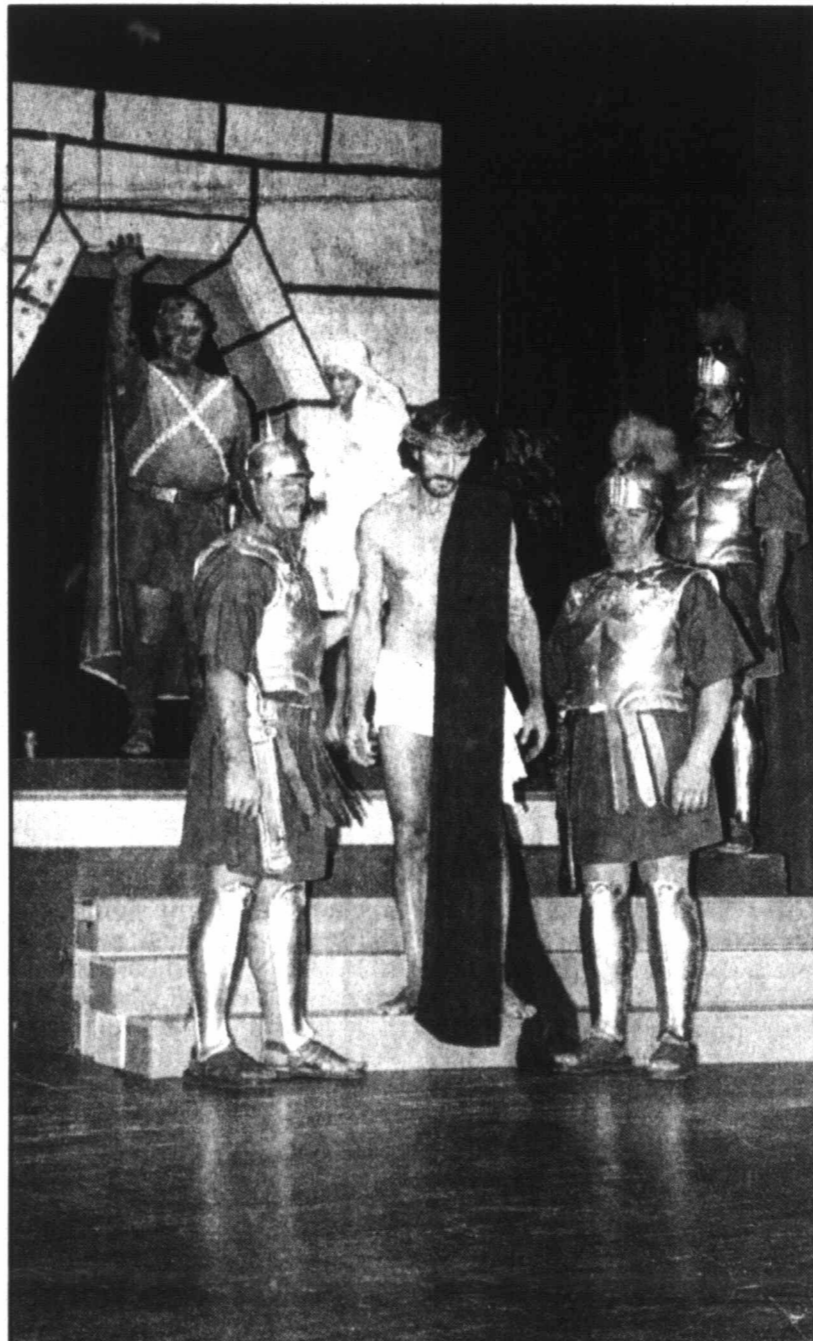

Scenes include:

- Birth of Jesus
- Young Jesus
- Baptism and Temptation
- Call of the Apostles and teaching the multitudes
- Ministry of Jesus
- Triumphant Entry
- Upper Room
- Trial and Crucifixion
- Resurrection
- Great Commission and Ascension

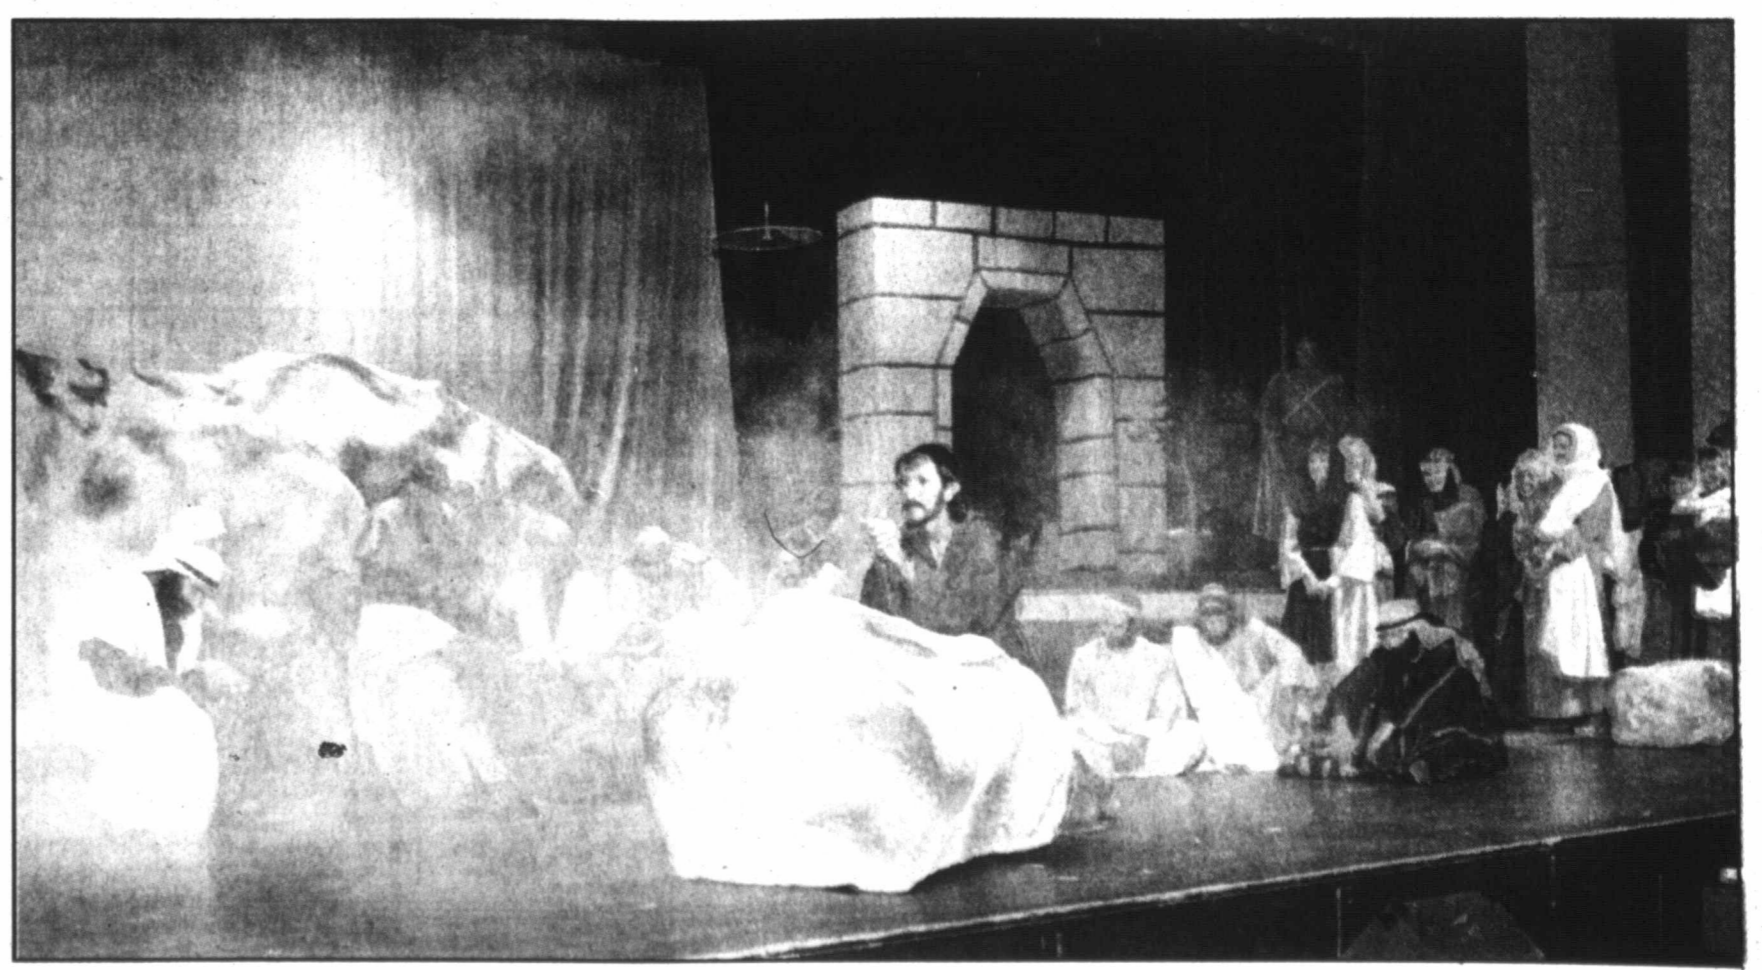

In photo below, Mary and Joseph, played by Richard and Wanetta Hill, are the parents of the fulfillment of "The Promise." At right, Jesus, flanked by Roman soldiers, will face Pilate, played by Wayne Wilson, to answer for his life and ministry.

"ASSURANCE OF SALVATION"

"Wherefore, brethren, give the more diligence to make your calling and election sure: for if ye do these things, ye shall never stumble: for thus shall be richly supplied unto you the entrance into the eternal kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ." (2 Pet. 1:10-11.) God's guarantee of salvation is conditional as the apostle points out. His epistle is addressed to "them that have obtained a like precious faith with us in the righteousness of our God and the Saviour Jesus Christ." (2 Pet. 1:1.) The word "obtained" suggests that righteousness is something realized through effort.

Certainly, salvation cannot be earned in the sense that one's obedience is deserving of the reward (cf. Rom. 4:4.) But when one, by faith, does the Lord's will, God, by His grace, grants unto him eternal life. The "righteousness of God" (the righteousness God desires man to obtain) is revealed in the gospel of Christ (Rom. 1:16-17.) The standard of righteousness set forth in the gospel requires that certain things be done. We do not accidentally or by chance become righteous.

The apostle John points out that those who practice sin are the children of the Devil and those who practice righteousness are the children of God (1 Jn. 2:18-3:12.) Salvation is assured or guaranteed IF we do the things God requires. Peter lists some seven things which are to be added to our faith and, he further states that if these are ours and abound they make us to be not idle nor unfruitful unto the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ (2 Pet. 1:5-8.) If we lack these things, he says we are blind, seeing only that which is near and have forgotten the cleansing of our sins (2 Pet. 1:9.) And so, these things must be done, as well as having our sins cleansed in our initial obedience to the truth (1 Pet. 1:22-23.) We must believe that Jesus is the Christ the Son of God (Jn. 8:24), we must repent of our sins (Acts 17:30), we must confess our faith in Jesus Christ (Acts 8:37), and we must be baptized for the remission of our sins (Acts 2:38). Then we are to add to our faith the things in 2 Pet. 1:5-8.) The possibility of stumbling or falling always exists and therefore we are to give the more diligence to these things.

Take On Modern Spelling Is True All The Way Thru

DEAR ABBY: I enjoyed the poem I'm sending you so much that I hope you will share it with your readers.

SCHOOLTEACHER

DEAR SCHOOLTEACHER: I'm sure many of them will enjoy it. It reads like the lyrics to a rap song:

Hey, whatcha doing? Whaddaya say?

Do ya wanna read a good poem today?

Hey, gotta sec? C'mon! Let's see!

Our language is changing, you'll hafta agree.

Well, gimme a minute, and lemme just show:

There's a new coined spelling, doncha know?

It's a heckuva note; it's kinda sad.

'Cuz our sloppy talking has gotten this bad.

If you're like me, and you hate there to be

Words like ain't in our vocabulary;

Don't be surprised if we're soon gonna see

Sorta or coulda in the dictionary.

Yeah, merchants and stores are doing it, too;

Making things EZ and quik

Abigail Van Buren

SYNDICATED COLUMNIST

for you.

They'll offer mor-va-lu; we can sav-rite tonite; But the spelling's not kool; it's outtasite!

It's "lots of" (not lotsa), and "going to" (not gonna), And "got to" and "want to," (not gotta or wanna);

It's "extra" (not x-tra), and "light" (not lite).

And who sez it's OK to use shur or nite?

Comic book lingo; doesn't it getcha?

Annoy? Perplex? Confuse? You betcha!

A whole lotta words like thru and tho;

So why do we all do it? I dunno!

GEORGE WILLINK, 1995

DEAR ABBY: I'm getting married in four months and was planning on having a "dollar dance" at my reception.

My soon-to-be father-in-law is totally against it. He says it's tacky, and he would be embarrassed in front of his millionaire friends.

I told him that I have had friends do this at their receptions, and nobody thought it was tacky.

Help, Abby. I don't know what to do.

DANCE DILEMMA IN ST. PETERSBURG, FLA.

DEAR DILEMMA: Since your father-in-law-to-be has told you that he would be embarrassed, I suggest that you skip the "dollar dance." The few dollars it would bring in aren't worth risking your relationship with your future in-laws.

DEAR ABBY: Re "Wiser Now," who bought fire extinguishers as gifts for weddings, housewarmings and graduations, after she had a close call with a pot of burning rice on the stove:

That has been a two-decade tradition in our family. My late father came up with the idea as a "funny" but practical shower gift. Dad suggested that I combine the "wishing well gift" (a bottle of aspirin) and the fire extinguisher, with a note:

"The extinguisher is for the bride to put his fire out, and the aspirin is for the groom to get rid of her headache!"

In all the years I have attended bridal showers, this is one gift that has never been duplicated, or returned.

Horoscope

Your Birthday

Monday, March 25, 1996

The objectives you establish for yourself in the year ahead might be more difficult to achieve than usual. This is okay because the rewards for success will increase proportionally.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today you can obtain more effective knowledge from personal experience than you can get from books. This information can be used immediately. Major changes are ahead for Aries in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today.

Mail $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Make sure to state your zodiac sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today your success might depend on the role models you choose to emulate. Do not set up a cheering section for has-beens.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you become involved in a project with friends today, make sure everyone has a chance to express his or her opinions.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you have to make a choice between something that offers long-range possibilities as opposed to something that has only immediate benefits, choose the former.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) An associate's ideas might be better than yours today. You should not reject his or her suggestions just because this person doesn't make you feel warm and fuzzy.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You will benefit from changes today, even those implemented by forces over which you have little or no control. Try to go with the flow.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Associates will determine your degree of assertiveness today. If they are progressive and ambitious, you will be too.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Verbal agreements could have limited value in your financial affairs today, so use caution. In order to protect your interests, put everything in writing.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Any feasible formula for success today will employ proven techniques. It will not matter if you continue to use the same methods.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Timing will be essential today if you have to negotiate a critical matter. Avoid using your high cards until your opponents have used up their trump cards.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Usually it is unwise to involve friends directly in your business affairs, but today could be an exception. Their knowledge could enable you to succeed.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You will have a high probability of achieving what you aspire to today if you act promptly. Do not let the grass grow under your feet.

Producer's promise: Whoopi and Oscar will mean dignified fun

By LYNN ELBER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Quincy Jones, in the midst of producing this year's Oscar ceremony, offers up some choice phrases to describe the pressure of handling Hollywood's biggest close-up.

"It's like trying to have a picnic at the end of a 747 runway, wondering if they're gonna miss the blanket," he says.

Anxiety, huh? "It feels like running through hell with gasoline underwear."

And hard work? "Like trying to hold water under your arm," he explains.

So why are you famed musician, composer, movie and record producer that you are, putting yourself through this for Monday's 68th Annual Academy Awards, scrutinized by about 1 billion TV viewers worldwide?

"I love the film business. I love the people in it," he says. "The academy hands you this kind of responsibility. ... It's a killer job, but when they put it in your hands, they're trusting you with their baby."

Jones is sharing the precious bundle with host Whoopi Goldberg. Lullabies will come from Vanessa Williams, Bruce Springsteen, Randy Newman, Lyle Lovett, Gloria Estefan and Bryan Adams on the nominated songs.

Look for hot moves in the production numbers, Jones said. The choreographers are Barry Lather and Jamie King, who have worked on MTV and with the likes of Janet Jackson.

The ceremony, airing live at 9 p.m. EST Monday on ABC, will include salutes to actor Kirk Douglas and animator Chuck Jones (creator of Wile E. Coyote and other cartoon classics), recipients of honorary Oscars.

A special tribute for dancing man Gene Kelly, who died Feb. 2, is planned by Jones, co-producer David Salzman and director Jeff Margolis.

Presenters are set to include John Travolta, Sandra Bullock, Anthony Hopkins, Sophia Loren, Jim Carrey, Steven Spielberg, Nicole Kidman and Alicia Silverstone.

Then there's the all-important performance by the host, the figure who provides the evening's glue — if he or she can avoid getting stuck in it.

As David Letterman learned last year, the Oscars have a rhythm and style of their own. And an apprehensive audience makes for a tough room.

Even Billy Crystal's magic faded by his fourth Oscar gig in '93. Jones expresses complete faith in his friend Whoopi, making her second appearance as host.

In her first outing, in 1994, the buzz promised an outrageous and impudent turn by the comedian-actress. Instead, Goldberg turned out to be a restrained guide; some critics even called her uninspired and unfunny.

Such comments were "hurtful," Goldberg says in the March 23 issue of TV Guide. "I won't lie and say it didn't hurt my feelings. But I'm getting used to that."

Jones sees no pitfalls for his host; she has the right perspective.

Goldberg realizes "this show is basically about celebrating the people who spend their life building their art to become part of a collaborative art, making motion pictures," Jones says.

She possesses the right talents he adds.

"She's everything. She's a stand-up comic. She's an Academy Award-winning actress (Ghost). She's edgy. She has dignity. ... She's just got it all. There's nothing that can catch her off-guard."

Which is not to say the show itself is bulletproof.

"You got everything to deal with," says Jones. "You got film clips. You got graphics. You got choreography. You got speeches. You got lighting. You got dancing."

A lot of things can go wrong." Jones is doing what he can to ensure a swift-moving ceremony. He even offered nominees at the traditional pre-Oscar lunch a miniseminar on how to avoid overlong or overwrought acceptances.

"We had the three deadly list of speeches — the ones who get up there and rediscover the English language and can't say the alphabet or their name. ... Then we have the list maker who wants to thank Betty and Annie and their web site designer."

"The third kind just talks too long," he says. Clips of effective speechmakers, including Tom Hanks, Don Ameche and director Alfred Hitchcock were played for the nominees.

There is one who clearly doesn't need any coaching: Jones confides a bit of favoritism on Goldberg's part for this particular nominee.

"She's got a real strong thing for Babe," he said. "Boy, women love that pig. My 3-year-old daughter does."

Schoolteacher role brings Dreyfuss Oscar nomination

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Cynics claim that Hollywood savors the failures of stars as much as their successes, yet the town dearly loves a comeback. Thus the pleasure with the re-blossoming of Richard Dreyfuss.

Not that he had suffered an eclipse such as John Travolta's.

Since his bit parts in Valley of the Dolls and The Graduate in 1967, Dreyfuss has worked almost steadily in movies, theater and television. But he has never matched his three-way smash with Jaws, Close Encounters of the Third Kind and The Goodbye Girl, for which he won the Academy Award for best actor in 1977.

Mr. Holland's Opus changed all that. The sentimental drama about a music teacher with dreams of being a serious composer drew middling reviews, but it was embraced by moviegoers — $57 million in nine weeks and still climbing.

The film also struck a note with members of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, who handed Dreyfuss his first best-actor nomination since The Goodbye Girl.

Dreyfuss talked recently about Mr. Holland's Opus, and its unbridled success.

"There are two elements. One is the experience of being taught and teaching; the experience of being inspired by someone in your past is universal. I think we tapped that element in our culture," he said in explaining why the movie became a hit.

"The other thing is that we tapped the very present feeling that I think exists in everyone. A lot of people tell me it's a baby boomer thing; that is, living a life that is dissatisfied, thinking that the life you've led is less than you hoped for. And then to dream of having the gift of people appreciating what you've done and who you are."

"I think that everybody was struck by that. We all go home at night and say, 'I cudda been a contender, I cudda been this, I cudda been that.' We don't get that opportunity that he (Mr. Holland) gets at the end of the film."

Dreyfuss admitted that he expected mixed reviews. But he believed that if people could be induced to see the film, they would love it. He credited a series of sneak previews across the country for helping to stimulate the word-of-mouth, which remains the best kind of publicity.

"My life has always been a life of ups and downs, hills and valleys. Professionally, I've had moments of the public's central attention, and moments when that goes away. Anyone who says they can take the ups and downs is lying!"

"But it doesn't kill. It's better to be up than down. Hopefully, you can ride it out."

WHAT IS TITLE INSURANCE?
Everyone uses title insurance, but few people know what it is. Essentially, it protects buyers of property against losses if there is a defect in the property's title.

This insurance means the insurer will pay to defend lawsuits attacking the title as well as pay any claims if the title proves defective. It should be part of most sales contracts.

Standard title insurance covers defects in public records, forged documents, incompetent grantors, incorrect marital statements or improperly delivered deeds.

Extended coverage includes defects in property inspection, inquiries of person in possession, examination of survey, unrecorded liens not known by policy holder.

An examination to determine if there are defects in a title is called a title search.

Agriculture

The Market Forecaster

By George Kleinman

WHEAT - (BULL/BEAR)

OUTLOOK: The condition of the US new winter wheat crop continues to decline. The recent rating indicated 47 percent of the Kansas crop is in poor or very poor condition. Raise this number to 52 percent for Oklahoma, and 61 percent for Texas.

These are all new record highs for the "poor" categories at this stage of crop development for this very important producing region.

This is certainly bullish, yet the market at this time is yawning. New crop wheat prices, as measured by the July Chicago board of Trade futures, are actually lower than they were a month ago. A month ago the crop condition was certainly better than it is today.

What's the problem? It's hard to say. There are other major wheat exporters who will have new crop supplies available soon. Can they collectively make up the difference? Time will tell.

I sincerely doubt the highs are in for this year; however, there's an old market saying that goes something like this: "It's not the news, but how the market reacts to the news that's important." This market is not responding to bullish news at this time, so at least for now we suggest taking a more cautious approach.

STRATEGY: Hedgers: Puts continue to be our preferred hedging tool since they assure you a floor price, but will never limit your upside potential. Our program is 50 percent complete with prior purchases of July Chicago 420 and 430 puts for 19 cents. This "locks in" 450 puts which are, at this writing, available for 19 cents as well.

Traders: We own July Chicago wheat at $4.52 or less. I would look to exit now, and reenter on strength. Use a buy stop above $4.62 to rebuy the July Chicago. If filled risk 15 cents. If the market remains under $4.62, just stand aside.

CORN - (BULL)

OUTLOOK: The bull corn story has recently added another chapter. In its most recent Supply/Demand Report, the USDA raised exports by another 50 million bushels. This lowers the ending supply to about 400 million bushels. This is only weeks of usage and is an impossible number.

In reality, the pipeline will require more corn than this prior to arrival of new crop. The only way to achieve this is to lower demand. The best way to accomplish this will be higher prices. We'll stick to our long held belief that old crop corn prices will exceed the four dollar level at the Board of Trade before this bull market is over.

STRATEGY: Hedgers: We continue to advocate "paper ownership" of corn after cash sales by buying options or futures. This exercise not only generates cash flow from cash sales, but with the options, it also limits risk to the cost of the options.

Meanwhile, upside price potential is maintained. Feed users should continue to hedge needs using options as well. Currently we own the May 360 calls and have previously collected over 40 cents per bushel in additional profits.

Traders: We own July futures at an adjusted price [includes March profits] of $3.30 per bushel. The stop is $3.55. The objective is above $4.00.

CATTLE - (BULL)

OUTLOOK: Due to recent market action and an improving cash basis, I'm going to return once again to the bull side. While I recently turned short term bearish, it was based on weak cash fundamentals. These fundamentals were due to huge supplies coming to market, plus higher weights per carcass. Now both these numbers seem to be on a decline, and the major packers have turned aggressive bidders over the past week.

In the past, I mentioned cattle prices have a tendency to move up from late February to early April. This happens 4 years out of 5. It was looking for awhile like this might be that one exception year, but now we appear back on track!

STRATEGY: Hedgers: You own the April 65 and 66 puts, both options purchased for less than $2. Feeders also own the June 64 puts and August 63 puts. Hold until you market your cattle. Lower cash prices should be offset to some extent by option profits, but options do not limit upside potential.

Cow/calf operators: I've been recommending the use of puts and/or futures, whatever you're most comfortable with, for downside feeder price protection May through September. While a stronger fat cattle market will help stabilize feeder prices, higher corn prices will ultimately still have a negative effect.

Traders: Last week we exited our recommended spread - Long June/Short August - placed at 20 points or less, at the modest profit. No new recommendations at this time.

Agriculture resources abundant on Internet as farmers go online

By JEAN H. LEE
Associated Press Writer

VISALIA, Calif. (AP) - Wander onto Nigel and Frances Walker's home page on the Internet and you learn they grow vegetables organically and offer weekly "veggie boxes" for San Francisco and Davis-area residents who sign up online.

"We've already gotten several customers over the Internet," said Frances Walker. "It's kind of fun."

Farmers like the Walkers, who are based at Winters, are using the global computer network to reach out to customers. They also farm the Internet for agricultural information, from news on upcoming conferences to expert advice on how to grow crops without using pesticides.

The U.S. National Library of Agriculture, the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization are some of the agencies with their own sites.

"There are more and more agricultural resources coming onto the net all the time," said David Katz, who launched a World Wide Web site for the agricultural information clearinghouse agAccess last year.

Electronic mail, or e-mail, is particularly useful to farmers who can't sit by the phone waiting for answers to technical questions, Katz said.

"It's an excellent tool for making direct contact to a technical adviser," he said. "You get right to them and you tend to get a concise answer back fairly promptly. You don't have to play phone tag."

With e-mail, you also can subscribe to mailing lists or join an agriculture-oriented news group like SANET, the Sustainable Agriculture Network, where members converse by posting messages onto a cyberspace bulletin board.

The Walkers use e-mail to keep in touch with three employees, seed suppliers, customers in San Francisco and farmers' market managers. They also receive a pest management magazine by e-mail and correspond with fellow farmers throughout California and around the world.

Customers also can check on how the Walkers' cherry tomatoes or garlic are faring through an online "Farm Diary" and can download a recipe for pumpkin pie.

The Walkers say it's time farmers get on the information superhighway. Some of the country's youngest consumers, like their daughter and her friends, could someday do their shopping over the Internet, Nigel Walker said.

"It's something that a lot of young people are using to communicate with one another," he said. "We should have our own two pennies out there."

The Walkers pay $15 a month for unlimited service. Registering the site name cost $5 plus $10 a month to maintain.

Susan Port, an Amador County melon grower, attended an Internet workshop offered at a Visalia farm conference.

"I'm sort of half-lost," she said.

She wanted to see how others were using computers, but decided she wouldn't understand the lessons until she got her hands on a mouse herself.

Still, her children are clamoring to get on the Internet and she figures she could use a computer to track produce and payroll on her 160-acre farm. She gave herself until the year's end to hop onto the superhighway.

"With e-mail it seems like a good alternative," she said. "It seems like it could be a tremendous network."

Meeting set to form marketing club

MARKETING CLUB ORGANIZATION MEETING

We will be meeting at 7 a.m. Thursday, March 28, to discuss the organization of a marketing club. We will meet at the White Deer Community Center in White Deer.

Dr. Steve Amosson, Extension economist, and Steve Warminski, Gray and Carson County producer, will visit with interested participants about what marketing clubs have to offer. These clubs give producers the opportunity to get together and share expenses about using options and hedging. All activities should be hands-on and excellent training for all involved with these meetings.

If for some reason you cannot attend this meeting, but you are interested in participating in these activities, please give me a call at 669-8033 or come by the Gray County Extension office.

WHEAT SITUATION

Drought, freeze, wind, static electricity, greenbugs and many other factors have been blamed for the poor looking wheat in the area. All of the above could have been true in many situations. All wheat fields are different and need to be evaluated as such. Some of the late planted wheat seems to have been hurt by freeze and much of the irrigated wheat has been infested with greenbugs.

Danny Nusser

Much more important is the evaluation of how much potential wheat is still out there and what your options might be for the coming weeks. If I can be of any assistance in helping you determine the loss of yield or help you with any of these decisions, please let me know.

Many of the experienced wheat producers will tell you that wheat has nine lives and can withstand much stress. There is no doubt that wheat is a very resilient, extremely tough plant. Wheat yield potential also is determined by spring conditions so we still have hope for this crop.

Call if I can help!

PREDATOR MANAGEMENT TRAINING

The Texas Department of Agriculture will conduct a Predator Management Training Program on Thursday, March 28, at the Clarendon College in Clarendon. The training session will begin at 6 p.m. and will end by 9:30 p.m.

The program will include identifying cases of predation, alternative methods of predator control and M-44 sodium cyanide application. The Texas Agricultural Extension Service is assisting TDA in conducting this free training session.

Corn growers praise EPA's ethanol decision

ST. LOUIS - The nation's corn growers praised a decision by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to allow more ethanol in gasoline sold in major U.S. cities with air pollution problems.

The EPA raised the maximum level of ethanol allowed in reformulated gasoline from 7 percent to 10 percent.

"The EPA took a hard look at the science and determined there was no basis for limiting the amount of ethanol in fuels used to reduce air pollution and urban smog," said Wallie Hardie, vice president of the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA). Ethanol producers use more corn to make the alternative fuel than any other commodity.

use of reformulated gasoline in cities with severe air pollution. Gasoline blended with ethanol continues to demonstrate significant pollution reduction results in cities such as Anchorage, Alaska; Denver, Colo.; Chicago, Ill.; and Milwaukee, Wis.

"Everyone who has supported ethanol-blended fuels throughout the rule-making process should be encouraged by this announcement," said Hardie, a North Dakota farmer.

EPA earlier limited the amount of ethanol blended with gasoline due to concern about evaporation during hot, summer months. In a prepared statement, EPA Administrator Carol Browner refuted the claim.

the health of Americans through the use of American products, like ethanol," Browner said. "The reformulated gasoline program is one of the most significant steps under the Clean Air Act to protect public health by combating urban smog."

Members of the NCGA and its 25 affiliated state organizations fund numerous programs to promote the use of corn-derived ethanol and its derivative known as ETBE.

The organization continues to establish a network of fueling stations throughout the U.S. that offers E-85, fuel made up of 85 percent ethanol and 15 percent gasoline.

New Mexico wheat fields face quarantine

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP) — Authorities have quarantined Hidalgo County wheat fields planted with Arizona seed contaminated with a crop-damaging fungus that made its U.S. debut two weeks ago. "What happened was the (karnal bunt) disease came over on seeds that our growers purchased from Arizona and planted in their fields," said Natalie Goldberg, plant pathologist for the New Mexico State University Cooperative Extension Service. The New Mexico Department of Agriculture issued the quarantine for Hidalgo County for affected fields and farm equipment. Last week, the department posted similar quarantines for Dona Ana, Sierra and Luna counties, where wheat seed from Arizona also was sown. As of last week, more than 1,900 acres in New Mexico were affected, agriculture officials said. The quarantine initially applied to the Reva variety of Triticum durum wheat, which is used for pasta. Karnal bunt was first found in the United States in a Reva batch that was traced to the Paloma Ranch near Gila Bend, Ariz., a contract grower of pasta-quality wheat for Borden Inc. But now, officials said the contamination has cropped up in Arizona in three other durum wheat varieties — Durex, Ocotillo and Kronos. Goldberg said contaminated Reva seed was shipped to Dona Ana, Sierra and Luna counties. Karnal bunt was first reported in 1931 near the city of Karnal, India. The initial discovery of the fungus in the United States prompted federal authorities to quarantine farms in Arizona and New Mexico and to suspend all U.S. wheat shipments to 23 countries. But the U.S. Department of Agriculture said 10 of those countries have agreed to take shipments of U.S. wheat after receiving assurances karnal bunt does not affect the major harvesting areas.

'Design Trends' seminar set

"Design Trends 2000" will be the topic of a seminar at 1 p.m. for Friday, March 29, at the Texas A&M Research and Extension Center, 6500 Amarillo Boulevard West, Amarillo.

Session one will focus on "Getting Started." Gray Pfeffer, owner of Collections, will share the focus of a presentation by Ann Fry, owner of Kitchen and Bath Concepts. Emphasis will be given to quality cabinetry and standards for accommodating disabilities.

"Some Things Never Change" will be the theme of session three. Anne Haralson Nail with Amarillo College and owner of Anne Haralson Designs will help participants understand how to make interior spaces work for them.

The final session will feature Terry Stewart Huber of Amarillo College and owner of Maggie and Me at County Co-op Mall. "Smart Antique Buying" will be the presentation focusing on ways of buying antiques and distinguishing between real antiques and reproductions.

Cost of the program, sponsored by the District 1 Association of Extension Home Economists, is $5 for the public and $3 for Family and Community Education Club (FCE) members.
