

GORE WILL DEMAND OIL TARIFF

Most Of Legislative Day Is Taken By Governor Moody's Address

The oil crisis continues. The reasons given seem to have run the gamut of causes ascribed to overproduction, underconsumption, competition, conditions in Venezuela, and others too fantastic to remember.

It is natural that such a market crash in the raw product should result in cheaper refined products and resultant competition. Recently it was possible to buy gasoline at 12 cents a gallon in Lubbock and other South Plains cities. The "news" never reached this city, hence the price of gasoline up here where we make it remains practically at the pre-crash basis.

There is no doubt that the oil market is in a bad way. Provision was devised to remedy the situation. Provision has been given as a reason why the price of crude should not be further cut. But someone has broken faith—the slashes continue. There are various reasons ascribed by various agencies, all of which try to justify themselves.

The net result is to cause many of us in the face of the flood of foreign oil and refined products—do doubt the effectiveness of provision. It will be truthfully answered that without provision oil would hit the bottom. Our reply is, where is it heading now? Unless the industry can, under provision, and with state regulatory laws, make possible a profitable price structure, it might as well drop production and go to the economic bow-wows. It is admitted by all concerned that had faith in the cause of the present. The public is coming to form a pretty good opinion as to where that had faith originates, and Congress is going to stir it at a not very distant date.

Governor Dan Moody, who as governor riddled a fine reputation that he took into the office with him, said some pretty good things in his farewell speech. We cannot forget that he is the "skipper of the Navigable North Fork," but we cannot keep from commending his declaration that "southern democracy wants certain things. First, the elimination of the present Republican administration as incompetent. Second, a united party which Texas democrats know can bring about the retirement of Republican rule. The Democratic party is the only party that the people can look to for equality of opportunity."

Governor Moody urged that the legislature not split into sectionalism and block worthwhile legislation by needless bickering. He remembers with some bitterness how his own measures, many of them good, died a horrible death in the legislature, but he said he would have demonstrated also that the governor cannot dictate to a legislature, but must lead the voters. He seemed never to be able to achieve the necessary personal following.

Moody spoke wisely when he said that "the income is the fairest basis of measuring a citizen's ability to support the government." This fact is well understood by the farmers, who despite the fertility and inherent value of their farms are unable to secure a decent income because prices of farm products have crashed. He also remarked about the wide spread between the price of gasoline and of crude oil, and recommended the subject for legislative action.

Moody showed in his farewell address a knowledge of the oil situation seldom displayed while governor. He said: "Texas oil is being produced in large quantities and sold on a distressed market in competition with crude oil produced at low cost in foreign countries."

Materials to be used in geography projects by pupils in the county schools are being collected by Miss Helen Davis, supervisor, who has written letters to more than 40 companies, asking them for materials.

REVIEW VOTES FOR GOVERNOR ON SECOND DAY

INAUGURATION TO BE HELD TUESDAY INSIDE

SEVEN BILLS COME UP

HIGHWAY BOND ISSUE OPPOSITION IS VIEWED

AUSTIN, Jan. 15. (AP)—The two houses of the forty-second legislature spent most of today in joint session, listening to Governor Moody's farewell message and canvassing the vote which elected his successor, Ross G. Sterling of Houston.

The official vote in the governor's race was 252,738 for Sterling and 52,224 for Colonel William E. Talbot of Dallas, Republican candidate. Edgar E. Witt of Waco, who will be inaugurated Tuesday, received 274,415 to 40,492 for H. B. Tanner, his Republican opponent.

Fred Minor, speaker of the house of representatives, announced to the house that plans for an outdoor inauguration had been abandoned at Sterling's request and that the inauguration probably would be held in the hall of the house of representatives.

A committee report on rules was submitted to the house but it brought on an argument and further consideration of the rules was made a special order of business for next Wednesday. Pending outcome of the rules fight, both houses are operating under regulations of the last legislature. The senate rules committee has never met and probably won't until next week.

The house rules committee proposed methods of procedure contrary to those provided in the constitutional amendment adopted in the November election. This amendment increased the session to 120 days. The amendment read, however, that the rules could be changed by a four fifths vote of both houses.

The recommendations of the rules committee were submitted by Representative Walter Beck of Fort Worth. They would permit bills to be introduced at any time during the first 60 days, and even after that if two thirds of either house desired. Ordinary bills, however, might be passed only in the last 60 days.

All speakers agreed that the last legislature made a mistake in asking the people to approve an amendment setting aside the first 30 days for introduction of bills, the second 30 days for committee consideration and the final 60 days for consideration on the floor. They differed, however, on how the amendment should be changed.

12 KILLED IN MEXICO EARTHQUAKE

75,000 GO BACK TO WORK AT FORD FACTORY

Detroit's industrial army, idle for a long time while automobile production lagged, returned to the firing line when leading factories announced resumption of production schedules. This photograph shows the main body of the returning workers at the Ford Motor Co. plant at River Rouge. Thousands of men stood for hours in a heavy snow storm, waiting for the gates to open; eventually more than 75,000 had been given jobs for which the pay will be $500,000 a day. Other factories also closed on workers, and a total of 200,000 men are estimated to have obtained work in the Detroit industrial area.

FATHER SAYS SON KIDNAPED

PAID $15,000 RANSOM TO GET YOUTH FROM GANG OF MEN

CORSICANA, Texas, Jan. 15. (AP)—Robert Cerf, 24, son of Isaac M. Cerf, Corsicana banker, was kidnaped from a street here December 10 and held until his father paid $15,000 ransom next day.

Cerf senior revealed details of the incident today, after it became known last night Dallas police were working on the case.

A report that Cerf senior had received an anonymous communication after his son had been released threatening violence to him and members of his family unless another payment of $8,000 was forthcoming could not be verified.

The victim's father refused to discuss the affair until today when he gave an interview to the Corsicana Daily Sun, revealing some of the details.

Cerf said his son had accepted a ride in an automobile that pulled up to a curb along a street here traversing on his way home about 11:30 p.m. Young Cerf was covered with a pistol after he entered the car and later two or three other men were taken in, Cerf telling his father he was unable to say positively how many.

Ships Seek Refuge From Seas Of Ice On Atlantic Front

By The Associated Press

Mid-January means cold, and it is. Great ships of the sea ploughed to the refuge of their piers along the North Atlantic seaboard yesterday shrouded in ice. Biting winds whipped the plains states and New England bottomed up its overcoat against temperatures that had sunk to single figures.

The ultimate of yesterday's cold was in the Adirondacks, where Tupper Lake, N. Y., had a minus 21; but the Canadian northwest continued brewing cold which made itself felt in the Dakotas, Minnesota, and down in lesser degree into the Midwest.

Unseasonable cold continued to stretch into the usually sun warmed reaches of Mexico. There have been three deaths from exposure in Mexico City and others in the city's suburbs. Temperatures, though only slightly below freezing there, were keenly felt by a people unused to them.

The colder weather yesterday was centered east of the Mississippi, with warmer reports from the West. Washington and Oregon experienced light rains. Snow has fallen in the Virginias and the Carolinas.

In Philadelphia at 16 above it was the coldest of the season there. Most of the day's sub-zero reports came from upstate New York.

DREW HEAVILY STATE CLAIMS

CLARA'S SECRETARY ON TRIAL FOR GRAND THEFT

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 14. (AP)—Daisy De Boe, ex-secretary of Clara Bow, film star, was pictured by the findings of the state today as having dipped heavily into her employer's accounts, possibly taking "much more money" than $16,000 specified in the grand theft indictment on which she is being tried.

David Clark, prosecutor, disclosed 147 cancelled checks, representing as many withdrawals, from Miss Bow's check accounts, were missing. He said documentary evidence indicated the "IT" girl's ex-secretary might have embezzled more than $48,000.

Clark pointed out the blonde defendant's confession as read into the case yesterday, quoted her as admitting she took approximately $35,000.

The prosecutor said George Armstrong, accountant, would be asked to describe in detail to the jury his findings concerning the Bow finances. He explained this would be for the purpose of showing the jury Miss De Boe did not act with good intent throughout her two years employment by the flaming haired actress.

Armstrong was on the witness stand a large part of the day, identifying cancelled checks, bank deposit slips and other alleged documentary evidence. Presentation of all this material, Clark indicated, will complete the state's case, probably early tomorrow.

CITY IN RUINS MESSAGES SAY FROM COUNTRY

BODIES ARE REMOVED FROM DEBRIS OF BUILDING

OAXACA IS DEVASTATED

SCHOCKS RANGE OVER LARGE TERRITORY IN MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 15. (AP)—Soldiers were turning over the wreckage of the thriving city of Oaxaca tonight carrying out the bodies of men and women who perished in the earthquake which last night rocked southern Mexico.

At least 12 persons perished and many more were injured, but telegraphic communication was impossible and radio messages irregular. The city itself, fragmentary messages said, was in ruins and the panic stricken people slept in the open despite intense cold because they were afraid to go back to such homes as were left standing.

The only clear picture of the disaster came out of the ruined city in a message to President Ortiz Rubio from General Evaristo Perez, the military commander in the state of Oaxaca.

It was he who said at least 25 persons had been killed or injured. Another message to the department of communications said that 12 had been killed, but this could not be verified immediately.

Mexico City Hit
The epicenter of the quake, which struck Oaxaca at about 10 o'clock last night, was placed a few miles northward of the city. Mexico City itself was shaken for four minutes and one person was killed and 25 injured. There also was considerable property damage.

Oaxaca has suffered from earthquakes before and was built on lines calculated to withstand moderate shocks. The older houses were low, massive buildings with thick walls, and the most important in the town was its cathedral. The reports did not say which buildings had been wrecked.

Over Wide Area
The quake was felt over a wide area embracing 15 states of the republic. Vera Cruz and Tampico reported only minor damage. It was generally regarded as the most severe shock since that of June, 1911, when the death toll was estimated as high as 2,000.

The only report concerning an individual resident of Oaxaca was a message to William Thompson, formerly of Peoria, Ill., but for the past 20 years a resident of Oaxaca, whose wife sent word from the stricken city that she was safe.

DESERT RESCUE

NEA El Paso Bureau. Marooned in Death Valley for two days and two nights when her auto broke down, Madeline Henderson, 23, University of Nevada co-ed, above, was rescued by the famous Death Valley Scotty who chanced upon her in the desert just as her supply of water was near exhaustion. Scotty towed her car 60 miles to a California town where repairs were made and from there she continued on, via El Paso, Texas, to her home in Akron, Ohio.

FLOYDADA, Tex., Jan. 15. (AP)—A search that started more than a month ago ended here today when T. P. Guilmartin, 71, ex-district clerk of Floyd county, returned to his home from Jacksonville, Fla., to tell a story of aimless wandering in company with two unknown companions who got his money and other belongings.

Guilmartin said he was hit over the head with a blunt instrument when he went to look at a suburban grocery in Fort Worth December 5, in company with two men who proposed to trade the store for Floydada property.

From that date until sometime in January, Guilmartin said he can remember little that happened. He "came to" himself in Miami, Fla., hotel, his money and clothing gone. From that city he fired his family for money to return home.

Instead of sending all the money, a small amount was wired to Mr. Guilmartin with the information that the balance would be sent by mail. J. G. Wood, a son-in-law, went to Florida instead and found Guilmartin in a Jacksonville hotel. He was normal by that time, excepting the effects of nervousness and shock.

FRANKLIN HITS WILBUR POLICY ABOUT TARIFF

THREE STATES FORM COMMITTEE FOR PROTECTION

SEVERAL FAVORING MOVE

IMPORTS ARE CAUSING BAD CONDITIONS IN INDUSTRY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15. (AP)—Independent oil producers today prepared for a dual campaign for a tariff on oil.

The drive will be carried to congress and the white house by two committees appointed late today. Senator-Thomas P. Gore of Oklahoma heads the group that will lay the tariff plea before the house and senate, and Wirt Franklin, president of the Independent Petroleum association, will lead the committee before President Hoover.

Representative Garner, Texas, said he was for a tariff if convinced one was needed. Secretary Hurley, a member of the oil conservation board, of which Wilbur is chairman, appeared as a representative of the board. He said the administration has taken no official stand either for or against a tariff.

Secretary Wilbur's recent statement, Wilbur said at the time, was a personal opinion and not an official remark. Imports, rather than overproduction, were blamed by the state delegations for the present ills of the industry.

They expressed the opinion that obtaining an embargo would be difficult but there was hope for a tariff. A formal resolution explaining that over supply was the trouble, proposed by the Texas delegation, was adopted unanimously.

Wilbur Not There
Secretary Wilbur, who was invited by Franklin to attend today's conference, was unable to appear. He notified the conference, however, that he expected to attend tomorrow.

The producers joined in a general attack on companies importing South American oil, which they blamed for forcing down American prices.

Orville Bullington, of Wichita Falls, Texas, who was made vice chairman of the committee to congress, submitted the motion to the conference that congress be called upon to pass a tariff. Members of the committee include: Van S. Welch, New Mexico; A. G. Dana, Wyoming; R. P. Jackson, Montana; R. J. Alexander, Pennsylvania; W. S. Hollman, West Virginia; C. J. Curry, Kentucky; I. O. Grimm, Ohio.

Wheat closed nervous, 3/4 to 1 1/2 cents lower, corn 2 1/2 to 3/4, oats 3/4 to 1/2 off, and provisions unchanged to 12 cents decline.

Unsteadiness of a notable character developed first in wheat, although corn showed a downward trend from the start, and finally dropped faster than the bread grain.

She came forward and gave David her hand.

"It seems natural to see you again," Fanny said quietly.

"Fanny made conversation-spoke of Amelia's journey, the storm outside.

"Good God," David burst out, "do you think I came all the way from Cloughbaire—after seven years—to talk about the weather?"

"No, I suppose not. I beg your pardon. It's a little hard to know just what to say. Amelia sent you—didn't she?"

"Yes, I would have come anyway. I had to see for myself what the years had done to you. You haven't changed at all."

They talked then of Spella and the future.

"There's no reason you should work—never has been a reason," David said authoritatively.

"My rent," she said proudly, "is $90 a month. I have but the one room and I sublet in the summer. I cook my own meals. My maid is Mrs. Murphy, the janitor's wife, whom I hire occasionally at 50 cents an hour. My clothes I get at less than cost at the shop where I work. Anything else?"

"No, I—beg your pardon."

"You might have spared me that, I think."

David got up and walked over to the window. Gone now was his belief in his own integrity of soul. He recognized with agonized clarity of vision that he had been glad a few moments ago—God in heaven, glad!

—to accept the seeming evidence of Fanny's guilt. He had been willing to rebuild his own tottering pride, his lost faith in his mother, at Fanny's cost.

Then in broken, jumbled sentences he poured out his horror of himself, the bitterness of his lost faith in himself, Fanny, with her gift of perception, caught and understood the intolerable horror and pain. David, his face hidden in his hands, murmured something about forgiveness.

"Of course I forgive you," said Fanny gently, "as you must forgive me. Rather we'll wipe it all out—the bitterness and misunderstandings. How can there be forgiveness between you and me? We were happy once. Let's remember that, and forget the rest."

David reached for her hand and clung to it.

"You remember what you said when you came into the room—that it seemed natural to see me again? That's what I'm feeling now—the naturalness. You and I, hand in hand, before the fire. Do you remember those first weeks after we were married, before we moved to the cottage? Have you forgotten all that—our fire dreams?"

"No," said Fanny unsteadily. She tried to withdraw her hand but David would not let it go.

"There's one thing still missing," David's voice was pleading. "I couldn't think what it was until a moment ago. You used to have a funny way—an adorably funny way of saying, 'David, darling.' Will you say that again, Fanny? It's what I've unconsciously been waiting for—for seven years."

Fanny felt the sudden leap of fear a fish must feel when the net first begins listening about him.

"David, darling," she said in a low voice, but rather as a question, as a lesson only half remembered.

"Not that way—the old way."

"I can't David. The old way belongs to the old days, days when we were happy."

"We'll be happy again—happier. There never was any reason—" He clutched her hand in desperate appeal. "You can't send me away—now."

"David, darling," began Fanny hesitatingly, and burst into a passion of tears. Not for some minutes, not until she had cried herself out, did David move or speak. Then he reached over and wiped her eyes, with his own handkerchief, patted her hand.

"I gather you're pretty certain you don't want to come back," he said dryly.

He stretched out his hand.

"Give me another chance, Fanny. I think you owe me another chance. And we both owe it to Spella. She's never had a normal home. It's worth a sacrifice to give her that. She'll be off at school, married, almost before we realize. And then I swear if you aren't happy I'll let you go. You won't have to tell me, I'll know. Only we'll do it decently and in order."

David went on impulsively, one argument tripping on the heels of the other. It was a hideous thing to break up a marriage—even a bad marriage—if there was any other alternative. And their marriage had been bad only in spots. They belonged together. They were still one. Couldn't she feel that?

It was something far from modern which defeated Fanny—her gentleness, her womanliness, her pity; her starved primordial maternal instinct (mothering David) the consciousness, learned and transmitted through a thousand generations that there were responsibilities that lasted into death—sacrifices more essential to her spiritual development than any happiness.

She finally gave her hand to David, told him quietly that she would do as he wished. He kissed the tip of her fingers, held tight to her hand. Neither spoke for three, four, five minutes. A grandmother's clock on a corner shelf struck the half hour—half past nine. David jumped to his feet. His face, Fanny noticed, looked 10 years younger. There was a new energy, a new quickness to his movement.

"Have you your old wedding ring?" he asked bashfully.

"Yes, in that old chest."

"Then get it out. We'll be married tonight."

"But David—darling, we couldn't. It's a terrible night. And one can't be married in New York without a license."

"One can in Connecticut. I'll order a limousine. The Benarasia sails tomorrow at noon. A man I met at the hotel said there were plenty of state rooms. We'll have the bridal suite. We'll spend our honeymoon on the Riviera—in Tunis. I've always wanted to go to Tunis."

"But the bank!"

"Damn the bank," cried David gaily. "I haven't had a vacation in years."

There was no laughter in Fanny's heart half an hour later as she followed David down the stairs to the waiting limousine. At the foot of the first flight he stopped and waited for her.

"Fan, sweetheart, you're not sorry? You don't really mind, do you? It's not yet too late to change your mind."

Fanny made her gallant resolution—David must never know her inner reluctance.

"Of course I don't mind," she said lightly. "It's terribly exciting, running away a second time, like this."

David kissed her then—timidly, boyishly, as he had on the eve of their first elopement. Fanny was humbled and abashed at the worshipful tenderness in his glance impulsively she put her arms around his neck and kissed him again.

David was wiser than she. She at last had come home.

WILD BEAUTY

Chapter 37

END OF THE HEARTACHE

At Amelia's suggestion, David arranged to see Fanny in New York regarding Spella's future.

Amelia had told him that Fanny was working as a model. He had pictured her in shabby makeshift surroundings—still pretty perhaps, but tired and a little faded, nervously anxious to please. He was not prepared for the evidences of prosperity in Fanny's comfortable, tastefully decorated apartment.

She came forward and gave David her hand.

"It seems natural to see you again," Fanny said quietly.

"Fanny made conversation-spoke of Amelia's journey, the storm outside.

BULL MONTANA DEFEATS CLINGMAN IN WRESTLING BOUT

Pampa Basketeers Lose Both Games To Perryton Teams

MOVIE ACTOR DRAWS LARGE CROWD TO VIE

NEARLY THOUSAND SEE TOUGH BATTLE ON PLA-MOR MAT

The Bull, an old, ugly and temperamental one, defeated his younger and smaller challenger last night to remain king of the range. Bull Montana, British ox of the movies, took the last two falls of a three-period event at the Pla-Mor auditorium before a crowd of nearly a thousand fans.

Clingman won the first fall in 17 minutes with a toe hold but lost the next pair in 10 and 13 minutes when battered with repeated headlocks and slams.

The local boy weighed 165 and Montana about twenty pounds more. Clingman was going strong, but his antics were those of a small boy trying to toss about a sack of corn. He could barely slam the huge Italian, and the latter repeatedly backed out of drop holds. He dealt the visitor much misery at times but the Bull was too adept with his headlock to be beaten.

To take the second fall, Montana simply headlocked his foe and lay upon him. Otis couldn't dislodge the big carcass and Cal Harley patted the Californian's back. The last period found Clingman frantically trying the drop hold and the Bull headlocking successfully and successfully. Otis went himself down trying to toss the actor around and was pinned without difficulty.

For the crowd it was a humorous exhibition. Montana took his position in the middle of the square and belted in English and sundry European tangles when his opponent around him. He grunted and sought the ropes when in trouble and made typical bull rushes when angered.

The semi-final event went to Roy Welch, who won a fall in the first 16 minutes of the 30-minute limit event but was held to a draw in the remaining minutes by Jack O'Hara. Young Samson of Borger refereed this match.

Sime's syncopators furnished music during intermissions. Sheriff Lin Blansett was present in the usual corner reserved for occupants of that office.

GOLDEN CONTINUES TO LEADS AGUA CALIENTE GOLF PRO TOURNAMENT

By BRIAN BELL
AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Jan. 15. (AP)—John Golden continued to set the pace in the $25,000 Agua Caliente open golf tournament today by adding a score of 73 to his 70 of yesterday for a two-day total of 143.

He was a stroke in front of Ed Dudley at the halfway mark, the Wilmington, Del., pro equalling the Connecticut man's 73 today for 36 hole count of 144.

Tied for third place with scores of 146 were MacDonald Smith, Mortie Dutra, the Carmouche star shooting a 74 today and the Spanish sharpshooter 75.

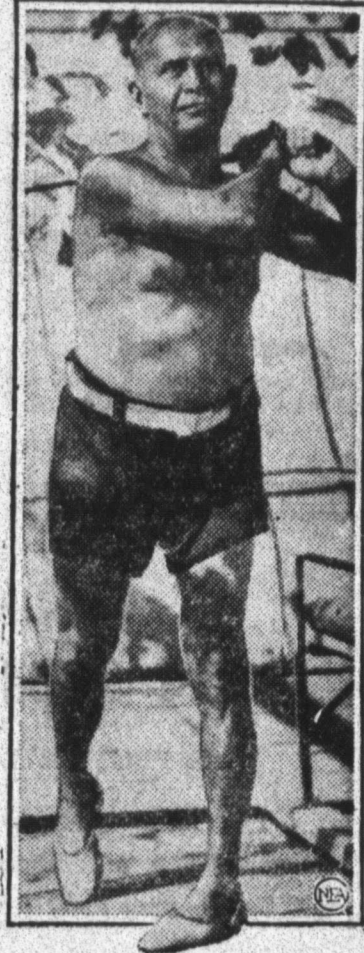

The close of the second day's play found three well known players and two of lesser reputation grouped at 147, in fine position to leap into the forefront of the battle if the leaders falter in the later rounds.

Gene Sarazen and Horton Smith each shot 75 today and George Von Elm, the business man, came in with a fine 73. Ralph Guldahl, Dallas, Tex., and Willard Hutchison, the young Chicago pro, made it a quintet in the tie for fifth, Hutchison being a score of 73 today and Guldahl 74.

The first 36 holes, divided between tomorrow and Saturday, will be fought out by 52 pros and ten amateurs.

No pro requiring more than 157 strokes in the first 36 holes will be permitted to travel the long, long trail with thousands of dollars at the end.

STEEE-RIKE ONE!

If a baseball player this season asks Bill Klem how he got that "school girl complexion," he'll probably be ordered off the playing field. If the truth be told, however, the veteran National league umpire will admit that it was sunshine, taken in large quantities in Miami Beach this winter. The photo above shows Klem practically down to his birthday suit and going through the motions of a Bobby Jones.

TILDEN'S NAME WILL BE MISSING ON ROLL OF TENNIS PLAYERS

NEW YORK, Jan. 15. (AP)—Unless the annual meeting of the United States Lawn Tennis association should override its ranging committee and reverse a rule it made in 1927, the name of William Tilden II will be missing from the 1931 list of leading tennis players.

In 1927 the committee listed Vincent Richards, then a professional, but who had finished the 1926 season as an amateur, as America's leading tennis player.

He had not turned professional until after the close of the season, the committee reasoned, and therefore was entitled to recognition in any list which purported to show the 1926 standings of the players.

The annual convention, however, overruled the committee, erased Richards' name from the list and passed the following resolution: "None but amateurs at the time such rankings are officially approved (which is the annual meeting) shall be named by the committee."

This quite definitely disposes of Baylor's veteran team, led by Captain Raymond Alford, will make its bow Saturday night at Waco against the road weary Rice five. Although they are said to lack another forward of Alford's brilliance, the Bears have a team calculated to make its presence felt in the race and probably will rule favorites.

The bureau of standards has been asked to test a radium commitment worth $325,000, one of the largest single orders on record.

Cuba's central highway is termed the largest single project of high-speed road construction. It is over 700 miles long.

Tom Heenev, the New Zealand favor of the youngster.

Jack Dempsey, now active as a referee, probably will enliven the main ten round bout with his presence.

A quartet of ambitious youngsters furnishes the supporting cast of two rounds. Paul Swiderki, tackles Marty Gallagher, of Washington, in the semi-final. Stanley Pordea, one of the most promising of the younger crop, meets Tony Starr, in the first ten.

HORNED FROGS TACKLE STEER FIVE TONIGHT

CHRISTIANS TO DEFEND THOUSAND PER CENT IN CONTEST

By STANDARD LAMBERT
FORT WORTH, Jan. 15. (Special)—When Horned Frogs and Longhorns meet on the Plains Friday night, Coach Schmidt's proteges will have their first test of the current season. The Frogs will be defending their 1,000 per cent for the season, and the pupils of Fred Walker will be making a determined bid to stay in the running after dividing the two-game series with the champion Razorbacks.

In the pre-season games, the Frogs have the better record. The Longhorns dropped a two-game series to both the Centenary Gentleman and the Oklahoma Sooners while the season was still in its swaddling clothes, but staged a good comeback and defeated strong independent teams from Galveston and Houston by wide margins. In dividing the opening conference games with the champions they forced the Razorbacks to come from behind to win the first game, and then tossed them out by two points in the second fray.

Coach Schmidt used the independent teams of Fort Worth and Dallas for most of his pre-season battles, and won all of them with the exception of a Christmas holiday game that was lost by two points without the services of Dietzel, Capt. Atkins and Robertson. The Frogs boast of a pair of victories over the strong Denton Normal and Simmons Cowboys, and a single triumph over Daniel Baker, Dallas Athletic Club and the Rice Owls when they scored 22 tallies before the Owl forwards were able to loop the basket for a tally, finally winning 49-38.

There is due to be a sensational battle for the tip-off between Ad Dietzel, 6 foot 6 inch Christian center, and Fomby, veteran captain of the Steers. Both are stars of the first water and more than likely half of the all-conference battle for that position will be fought Friday night, with the final result depending on the outcome of the battle in the return game in Austin.

As far as height is concerned, both teams hit around the six-foot mark, with the Frogs showing a slight advantage. Three men on both teams have an extra tall man and a shorter one. Dietzel, the Frogs' "tall man," towers 6 foot, 6 inches from the hardwood, while Capt. Fomby of the Longhorns is but 6 feet, 2 1/2 inches. Green, the Christian guard, is one inch below the six-foot standard, and the Longhorns' "short man," Elkins, falls short of the popular six-foot standard by three inches.

Coach Schmidt is still undecided as to his starting combination, but he works under the theory that a veteran is better as a starter than a sophomore. This indicates that Clyde Robertson, senior forward, will start in the doubtful forward position. Sumner, forward; Dietzel, center; and Capt. Atkins, guard, are sure bets for the opening roles.

HIGH SCHOOL GAMES DREW LARGE CROWDS DURING PAST YEAR

NOTE: This is another of a series of stories on athletic trends and tendencies based on a nationwide survey made by the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15. (AP)—Forty thousand persons are banked in a great stadium at Dallas, Texas. Brilliantly dressed cheering sections on either side of the field break the drab greys and browns of the sea of overcoats and hats. On the field two teams of eleven men each crouch, then thud together. The stands roar.

Texas playing Southern Methodist? No. It's North Dallas and Sunset high schools waging their annual football war.

Similar scenes were enacted at San Francisco last fall when Polytechnic played Lowell high school before a crowd of 30,000 and several schoolboy games in New York City drew over 20,000 through the gates. Allentown and Bethlehem high schools, in Pennsylvania, play every year before larger crowds than Lehigh and Lafayette draw.

The amazing growth of high school football is shown by figures gathered by Parke H. Davis, sage of Easton, Pa., and statistician to His Majesty, the king of inter-collegiate and interscholastic sport, and by the Associated Press.

There are approximately 10,000 high school teams in the United States, Davis estimates, representing about 250,000 players, almost 20 times the number of schools and players of collegiate rank.

In every state except Nevada they are organized much more closely than are most college groups, or river valleys in Massachusetts, by cities and counties in New York state, by arbitrarily defined sectors in Pennsylvania, by some similar method in other states.

High school football is self sustaining, as is the college sport, and pays the expenses in most instances of its less popular brothers—basketball, tennis, baseball and track.

The survey made by Davis brought out the interesting fact that only a small proportion of these high school football players continue the sport when they get to college. He interprets this as indicating the youngsters are more interested in scholastic attainments than they are in athletic achievements and finding the college curriculum too heavy for them to voluntarily drop football in order to get the most from their studies.

LAGOSTE IS COMING BACK TO NET GAME
PARIS, Jan. 15. (AP)—Jean Rean Lagoste, 25 years old, builder of motor cars, possessor of what has been described as the world's most perfect tennis technique, is coming back to the tennis this year.

Hindered by bronchitis in the competition entirely in 1929 by ill health, the slim young Frenchman

It was largely due to the wizardry of Lagoste's strokes that the Davis cup trophy was wrested from the United States in 1927 and taken to France. In the prospect it will remain for the next year, more if the leader of the "three musketeers" can regain his old form.

In successive matches at Germantown, Pa., in the fall of 1927, he defeated the two invincibles of American tennis—"the Big Bill" Tilden and "Little Bill" Johnston—and assured France possession of the Davis cup.

RANGERS TAKE CLOSE VICTORY ON HARVESTERS

GIRLS LOSE FIRST ONE OF SEASON HERE LAST NIGHT

Two powerful basketball teams from Perryton proved to be too much for Pampa's girls and boys squads here last night at the high school gymnasium and went home with two clean victories. The Pampa girls lost 37 to 26 while the boys were defeated 20 to 16.

The girls went down in defeat for the first time this season but not without putting up a fight. Perryton girls started off the first period with a bang and led at the end of it by nine points. The sextet added 16 more in the second and in the last two 10 more. Pampa girls took a slow start with two points and added seven more in the second period.

In the third period Adelle Stone cut loose and the period ended up with 11 more points. The locals made six points more in the closing bracket. Stone led the Pampa girls with 18 points while Eads was high scorer for Perryton with 22 points.

A last quarter scoring spree won a slow, lumbering cage tilt for Perryton's Rangers over the Harvesters. Although Perryton's Morris rung up six loopers, it was the long distance shooting of Witt in the last quarter that won the game for Perryton. Witt garnered six points by the field goal route, four of these coming in the last quarter.

James found the basket three times in the first half but after that all he made was a personal foul. Kennedy, Foe and Chastain each shot two baskets from the field. However, Morris made the game interesting for all concerned. The score at the half was Pampa 12, Perryton 8. In the last few minutes, Saulsbury, Moore and Ayres entered the game for some reason that was not quite clear.

The Rangers made a point of speed and passed the ball in long, hard but accurate catches. None of their baskets were made under the goal.

PORKERS LEAD SOUTHWEST BY 3 WINS-1 LOSS

FROGS, MUSTANGS ARE TIED WITH ONE WIN APIECE

By GAYLE TALBOT, Jr.,
Associated Press Sports Writer
DALLAS, Jan. 15. (AP)—The University of Arkansas Razorbacks have served notice they do not intend to relinquish their Southwest Conference basketball crown without a spirited struggle.

By trouncing the Rice Institute Owls twice at Fayetteville the first of the week, 36-32 and 31-25, the five-time champions moved into the nominal leadership of the circuit, with three wins and one loss. Texas Christian and Southern Methodist and Texas Christian, with one victory apiece, had a percentage edge on the Porkers, but they had not been to the wars as often.

If comparative scores against Rice may be taken as a medium both Southern Methodist and Texas Christian have displayed a slight edge over the defending champions so far. Where the two Texas members walloped the Owls with ease in the opening tilts of last week, running up huge scores, the Razorbacks were extended to lick Coach "Pug" Daugherty's charges. Only some dazzling shooting by Captain

JIM PICKREN IN THE LAST MINUTE OF play enabled the Ozarkians to push out the fight night, and they were pushed to the limit the second.

The two setbacks at Fayetteville made it four in a row for the Owls and definitely eliminated them from the title quest. They had the satisfaction, however, of supplying the conference's scoring leader in Dixon, sophomore forward, who ran his total to 33 points for four games. Tom Murphy, Arkansas' sophomore forward was running a close second, with 30. Kenny Holt, towering Arkansas center whose five field goals did much to down Rice the second night, was third with 22.

Five conference games scheduled this week-end promise to strengthen Arkansas' position in the race. While the Razorbacks are entertaining the Texas Aggies, ostensibly one of the weak entries, on Friday and Saturday at Fayetteville, their three stoutest rivals for the title will engage in a cut-throat series in North Texas. The Texas Longhorns, who split with the Porkers last week at Austin, tackle the vaunted Texas Christian quintet Friday at Fort Worth and then lock down the barri of the Southern Methodist artillery here Saturday night. The home boys were favored to turn back the Longhorns in each instance, but there was no doubt they would have their hands full with Fred Walker's loopers. A victory for Texas in either game would be a boon to Arkansas.

FOOD PRICES BY REGIONS

The superficially dry reports of the Department of Labor on wholesale and retail prices supply material for interesting conjecture as to the cause of the erratic movement of prices as to the individual cities reported and the sections of the country these cities represent. The figures show, of course, the retail cost of food to be declining for the country as a whole, the decline in November being greater than any other month in the year, and the 11 months up to December showing a drop of 77 points, or 4.1 per cent from 1929. The index figure of retail cost of food in December was 141.1, the comparison being with the pre-war year 1913, whose average was taken as 100. November's 141.1 was the lowest figure since 1913, and compares with a high of 203.4 for 1920.

When we compare sections with one another there is shown a variation in the rate of decline of retail prices of all retail foods, the extremes being 17 per cent in the Eastern States and 2.3 per cent in the South. Between these extremes fall the Middle section and the Far West, with a percentage of 2.2 each.

Still more difficult to explain is the variation inside section lines. For instance, Dallas, in the South, showed a decline in the retail cost of food for 1930 of but two-tenths of 1 per cent, as against the average of 2.3 per cent for the South as a whole, and compared with a decline of 3.1 per cent at Savannah and 2.9 per cent at Houston. The greatest decline for the year was shown by Detroit, with 4.5 per cent. Dallas and Norfolk, Va., with nine-tenths of 1 per cent, lowered the South's average considerably.

Transportation necessities no doubt explain partially the variation between cities and sections in retail prices of meats, in which Texas has a large interest. Taking sirloin steaks, the retail price per pound in November ranged from 30.2 cents at Butte, Mont., to 67.9 cents at Boston. The average retail price of this commodity was 54.4 cents a pound in the East, 41 cents in the South, 41.5 cents in the Midland, and 34.2 cents in the Far West. Birmingham, Atlanta and Dallas were the high-price cities in the South, Dallas' average price of 43.3 cents being 1 cent higher than the Houston average.

Less variation was shown in respect to a number of foods, such as are canned or marketed in standard packages, but these variations are of a nature to further establish the fact that it costs most to live in the East and least to live in the South and Far West. In general high prices start in Maine and get gradually lower as one goes West or South—Ft. Worth Star Telegram.

THIS GREAT HEALING OIL BEST FOR PIMPLES AND SKIN TROUBLES

Make up your mind today that Emerald Oil—an 85 cent bottle lasts you are going to give your skin a real chance to get well.

You've probably been, like a lot of other people, convinced that the only thing to use was an ointment or salve (some of them are very good) but in the big majority of cases these sticky salves simply clog the pores and the condition primarily remains the same.

Go to Fatheree Drug Stores or any other good drugist today and get an original bottle of Moore's Emerald Oil—85 cent bottle lasts you a real chance to get well.

The very first application will give you relief and a few short treatments will thoroughly convince you that by sticking faithfully to it for a short while your skin troubles will be a thing of the past.

Remember that Moore's Emerald Oil is a clean, powerful, penetrating Antiseptic Oil that does not stain or leave a greasy residue and that it must give complete satisfaction or your money cheerfully refunded.

 countries. A low price for crude oil is a business calamity to the university and school funds and to thousands of private citizens.

As expected, the governor echoed the stinging highway building policy: "The best public policy is for the state to assume payment of county and district bond issues and relieve the counties and road districts of further contributions to the cost of state highway construction, and continue the present program of highway building with funds derived from issuance of state bonds, to be paid by pledging part of the revenues received by the highway fund from current taxation."

Some executives learn too late how best to put through a great program. Moody never lacked good ideas of state government, but it is doubtful whether, in retiring, he has fully comprehended why his projects met such stubborn opposition.

Pile Sufferers

End Your Misery Without Salves or Cutting

External treatments cannot permanently end piles. Nor does cutting remove the cause. The cause is internal—bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel. The veins are flabby—the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To quickly and safely rid yourself of an internal medicine must be used to heal and strengthen the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonard, a specialist, after years of study discovered a real internal pile remedy. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1000 patients, with the marvelous record of success in 900 cases and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID from their own drugist.

Don't waste time on external remedies or think of the pain and expense of an operation until you have tried HEM-ROID. Fatheree Drug Company will supply you and guarantee money-back if it does not end your Pile misery. No. 2

RECOMMENDATIONS

What Governor Dan Moody recommended:
 Improvement of the educational system, particularly rural schools.
 A highway bond issue.
 Reformation of the taxing system to relieve small home owners.
 Conservation and taxation of natural resources.
 Use of public waters on the basis of priority of need.
 "Thoroughgoing reformation" of the state highway system.
 Adoption of the short ballot.
 More flexibility in the veto power allotted the governor over appropriation measures; authorization for the governor to have a continuing control over public money expenditures.
 Elimination of unnecessary duplications in institutions of higher learning.
 More equal division of available funds and taxable values between city and rural schools.
 Payment by the state of all outstanding highway bonds.
 Enactment of an income tax, in lieu of ad valorem taxes. Fair taxation of natural resources.
 Provision of a place of confinement for criminally insane.
 Reorganization of state government, with administrative officers responsible to the governor.
 The short ballot—election of the governor, lieutenant governor and attorney general, with all other heads appointive.
 Compensation insurance for state employes in dangerous work.
 Stringent regulation of motor transportation.
 Creation of a public utility commission.
 Farewell Thoughts
 It is my hope that this legislature will not reduce its usefulness through partisan divisions.
 Present conditions again demonstrate the impotency of the Republican party.
 Prosperity can be restored to the meals were served him. Young Cerf said he was not certain how many men held him and he could not accurately describe the place where he was prisoner.

He told his father he was not bound or gagged on the trip to Dallas, but was kept covered with a pistol and admonished not to make any kind of an outcry or attempt to escape.

Cerf said he did not make a report of the incident to Corsicana or Dallas officers. A Dallas report had James Cerf, 16, younger brother of Robert, the victim until the banker gave his interview.

At first Cerf refused to discuss the incident and would not deny or affirm the kidnapping.

The Navarro county grand jury will not be called into special session to investigate the kidnapping, though said. He said the jury would meet in regular session January 26. Sheriff Rufus Favelhouse and County Attorney Cleo G. Miller started an investigation.
