Wichita Falls woman dies fleeing tornado

By C.W. MIRANKER
Associated Press Writer

More bad weather was in store for much of the nation today after more rains soaked flood-plagued Louisiana and Mississippi, a woman died fleeing a Texas tornado and hail the size of golf balls pounded Oklahoma.

More snow hit the Rockies Wednesday, grounding a haylift to cattle in Colorado. Snow also halted helicopter rescue missions for snow-bound western Nebraska residents.

The National Weather Service said new snow was likely today in the Rockies and on the Plains and additional rain was forecast for the South through the upper Great Lakes.

A drenching 8 inches of rain closed schools and businesses in New Orleans. Roads were inundated and more than 300 homes were flooded in St. Tammany, Washington and East Baton Rouge. National Guardsmen were sandbagging the swollen Pearl River in Slidell.

Most Mississippi rivers were reported at or above flood stage.

In Wichita Falls, Texas, strong currents suddenly racing through an underground drainage culvert swept away a 41-year-old woman and her 3-month-old grandson after a family abandoned their car and hid there when tornado sirens sounded.

The southwest part of the city was flattened by a tornado last April 10, and residents fearing another disaster ran for shelter.

Near Whitt, Texas, a tornado leveled four mobile homes and three barns, toppled power lines and damaged two homes, injuring one person.

In Colorado, snowmobilers got bales of hay to 1,400 snowbound cattle that had not been fed since the weekend after snow and fog grounded a National Guard helicopter loaded with feed. Officials estimate cattle losses, mostly calves, at about 10 percent.

In Kansas, where there was snow, thunder, lightning and heavy rains in different areas, most schools were closed for the week in the northwest. National Guardsmen were dispatched to a five-county area and a helicopter was sent to drop feed to stranded livestock.

In Goodland, near the Kansas-Colorado border, there was a record 17 inches of new snow by Wednesday night, and one farmer measured a 20-foot snow drift on a rural road. The community has had 100 inches of snow since October, with 32.7 inches since spring began.

In Oklahoma, hail the size of golf balls, winds and heavy rain uprooted trees, flattened barns and ripped roofs from a vocational school and mobile homes.

In Montana, heavy snow and high winds frustrated rescue workers trying to home in on an emergency signal from a plane with two persons aboard that went down in the Red Mountains near Butte.

In snowbound western Nebraska, where another 4 to 6 inches was predicted by noon today, Gov. Charles Thone has dispatched 36 National Guard ground vehicles for emergency health and safety work and animal veterinary services in 18 western counties. But helicopters ready to head for McCook, North Platte and Sidney were grounded.

Haig is 'satisfactory'

HOUSTON (AP) — Former White House chief of staff Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. was in satisfactory condition after a normal triple coronary bypass operation, according to a spokesman at St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital.

Haig, 55, who took over as president of United Technologies Corp. after an Army career that included a stint as NATO commander, underwent the elective surgery Wednesday.

"The operation was very normal, lasting about two hours," the spokesman said. "No complications are expected."

A team headed by noted Houston heart surgeon Dr. Denton Cooley performed the two-hour operation on the former four-star general. His condition was diagnosed late last week at Walter Reed Hospital.

SIGNING APPLAUDED: President Carter is applauded by congressional representatives and administration officials at the White House Wednesday as he signed a compromise $227.7 billion oil "windfall profits" tax bill. Surrounding the president in the East Room are, from left, Housing and Urban Development Secretary Moon Landrieu; Treasury Secretary G. William Miller; Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore.; Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W. Va.; Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla.; Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J.; and Sen. Russell Long, D-La.

Militants say they are ready to turn over hostages

By The Associated Press

Militants holding American hostages inside the occupied U.S. Embassy in Tehran said today they are ready to turn their captives over to the ruling Revolutionary Council if requested. The transfer could come Saturday, two council members said.

Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, interviewed on American television, said President Carter had met his demands for the government to take control of the hostages, and that he would ask the council to make a decision later in the day.

A spokesman for the militants said, "We will accept any decision that the Revolutionary Council takes because it is the highest body in the country which is supported by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini," leader of the revolution.

The militants had relied on Khomeini's support to defy an attempt by Bani-Sadr last month to take custody of the Americans.

Bani-Sadr, speaking to CBS and NBC News, said the Revolutionary Council would decide on the timing of the transfer, and that an Iranian Parliament to meet this summer would settle the fate of the Americans.

He also said that the hostages would be allowed visitors, but that the council would decide whether their families would be able to see them. No family members have been allowed to see the hostages since militants seized the embassy 152 days ago.

Two members of the Revolutionary Council were quoted as saying the hostages could be transferred as early as Saturday. The Tehran newspaper Kayhan reported that council members Ezzalab Sahabi and Ayatollah Mahdavi Kani discussed the issue with the militants.

Sahabi said he and another council member, Hashami Rafsanjani, are permanent go-betweens in discussions involving the council and the militants.

Kani said that Khomeini would settle any differences that might arise between the council and the militants. Khomeini generally has backed the militants, who demand the return of ousted Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and his wealth to Iran as the price of the hostages' freedom.

The shah, recuperating from removal of his cancerous spleen in a Cairo hospital, was visited today by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, who reiterated the former monarch would be staying in Egypt permanently. It appeared to be an indirect rejection of the militants' demands.

One group close to the militants has denounced moving the hostages. The group, known as The Struggling Moslem Movement, told a Western reporter in Tehran that President Carter has been using threats and flattery to try to force Bani-Sadr to take custody of the hostages.

A spokesman for the movement said that Carter obviously hopes to pressure the Iranian people and Khomeini before the new Parliament meets.

He said Carter will call the Iranian government the only regime in history not to hand over diplomatic hostages once the Revolutionary Council has taken control of the Americans, and that this would put pressure on Bani-Sadr and Khomeini to let the hostages go.

However, the Carter administration says it will be "restrained" in its efforts to free the hostages and is urging the public to "stay cool, at least for a while."

Administration officials said the United States should know in a matter of days whether the Iranian government will make good its offer to take custody of the hostages.

Bani-Sadr was quoted as saying Carter agreed in a message delivered Wednesday not to talk publicly about the hostage situation in hopes the transfer will take place.

"As far as I am concerned, the United States has now met the condition for the Revolutionary Council to take control of the hostages," Bani-Sadr said in the CBS interview.

The New York Times quoted Bani-Sadr as saying, "We asked Carter to say he will speak no more about this matter until Parliament convenes and he has sent us a note saying he accepts that."

The Washington Post, which had a similar report, said the new U.S. message only repeated past U.S. assertions that the hostages should be freed as soon as possible and noted Iran's intention to have their fate decided by the new parliament.

Bani-Sadr said Tuesday his government would take custody of the hostages if the United States issues an official statement promising to refrain from hostilities, propaganda or provocation against Iran until the Parliament takes up the matter, probably in mid-summer.

Carter delayed any new political or economic sanctions against Iran in response to Bani-Sadr's offer, but Bani-Sadr said that action didn't satisfy Iranian demands that the United States refrain from provocation or propaganda.

Administration officials said, however, there are indications Bani-Sadr is making public comments designed for domestic political purposes in Iran, and that other, less inflammatory and more positive signals are being picked up by the government here.

Two members of Iran's ruling Revolutionary Council were quoted today as saying the U.S. hostages would be turned over to the government Saturday if President Carter met Iran's conditions, but a spokesman for the militants holding the Americans denied any transfer had been arranged.

The Tehran newspaper Kayhan reported that council members Ezzalab Sahabi and Ayatollah Mahdavi Kani discussed the issue with the militants. Sahabi said he and another council member, Hashami Rafsanjani, are permanent go-betweens in discussions involving the council and the militants.

Sahabi also said the issue will be discussed at tonight's council meeting and details of the transfer will be settled, but a spokesman for the militants said they have not taken a decision on the hostage transfer and when they do they will announce it publicly.

Kani said that if there are differences between the captors and the council they will be settled by revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. Khomeini generally has backed the militants, who demand the return of the ousted Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and his wealth to Iran as the price of the hostages' freedom.

The shah, recuperating from removal of his cancerous spleen in a Cairo hospital, was visited today by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, who reiterated the former monarch would be staying in Egypt permanently. It appeared to be an indirect rejection of the militants' demands.

Although the militants have not announced their position on transferring the Americans to government custody, a group close to the captors has denounced moving the hostages, who began their 152nd day in captivity in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran today.

The group is known as The Struggling Moslem Movement, and it told a Western reporter in Tehran today that President Carter has been using threats and flattery to try to force President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr to take custody of the hostages.

Economy said good in spite of March building permit drop

Evaluation on the city's building permits was down almost $400,000 for the month of March, according to the monthly building report, however, city officials say local economy still looks good.

A large drop in commercial construction is blamed for the decreased evaluation, city building inspector Steve Vaughn said. Permits issued for the Schlumberger building and the $375,000 addition to the Pampa Youth Center boosted last month's figures, he said.

The only major commercial building begun in March, he said, is the $128,000 offices for Mobil Oil to be constructed on Price Rd. This amount comprised all but $60,000 of the commercial evaluation, Vaughn said. The remainder of the business permits were for two retail outlets.

Despite the lower total evaluation figure, he said, housing permits have risen $82,692 over last month. Four building permits were issued for new residences for a total evaluation of $288,632. Twelve mobile home permits were given, he said, adding $156,000 to the residential evaluation.

Miscellaneous permits were issued for moving a house, $8,000; additions and alterations to residences, six permits - $32,000; and one for an addition to a business evaluated at $5,000.

"We're holding our own," Vaughn said, "but I look for a tightening down next month."

Only one commercial permit has been issued during April, he said. The evaluation on the permit was $30,000.

Total evaluation of permits issued for the calendar year, according to the building permit report, is $2,268,692. Fiscal year evaluation to date, the report says, is $3,576,422.

Chamber of Commerce officially supports improvement bond

A resolution supporting the $4.8 million street improvement bond election was passed by the city's Chamber of Commerce's Board of Directors during a recent meeting.

Board members unanimously passed the resolution after a report and recommendation to the effect was made by J. L. Marcum, director of the Chamber's Highways and Transportation Committee.

After a study of the issues, the committee recommended the board endorse the bond election for the following reasons:

1. The committee felt the street improvement program would be beneficial to the city.

2. The major complaint heard by the Chamber for several years concerned the poor street conditions and past Chamber community surveys recommended the Chamber to work on street improvements.

3. A delay in passing the bonds would increase the cost to the taxpayer because of inflation factors.

4. Due to the growth of the city, the committee reported it feels the improvement is necessary to assure a good traffic flow through the city.

A report was given to the board by Ed Sweet, director of the Publicity and Publications Committee which recommended the authorization of the Executive Committee to re-negotiate the contract with Mosher-Adams Map Company for the printing of 10,000 city maps. The recommendation was approved by board members.

Discussion was held on the Annual Membership Drive scheduled for May 6 through May 23. Publicity and details of the drive are to be handled by the Membership Committee.

Also discussed was the "Operation-Thank You Day" for members of the Chamber slated to begin with a breakfast at 6:45 a.m. April 30. During the course of the breakfast, members will have an opportunity to offer suggestions in improving the Chamber.

In final action, it was announced the next Membership Breakfast will be April 23 at 6:45 a.m. at the Pampa Country Club with Builders Plumbing Supply as the sponsor.

TEXAS

Swift currents in a rain-swollen creek swept away a Wichita Falls woman and an infant who had abandoned a car after tornado sirens sounded and sought shelter in an underground drainage culvert.

Police recovered the body of Oma Crawford, 41, but her grandson, 3-month-old Jerry Crawford, was missing and presumed dead late Wednesday night.

Another person was slightly injured Wednesday when a tornado destroyed four mobile homes, damaged two houses, demolished three barns and downed power lines near Whitt in Parker County, a Department of Public Safety spokesman said.

Funnel clouds accompanied severe thunderstorms that danced across wide areas of North Texas on Wednesday and heavy downpours triggered flash flooding in several areas.

Large damaging hail pelted Parker, Wise, Palo Pinto, Hood, Johnson, Tarrant and Ellis counties, causing extensive damage in some areas.

Wichita Falls residents — still nervous in the wake of last year's massive tornado that killed 46 persons — scurried for cover when sirens announced the sightings of twisters in Wichita and Archer counties.

Heavy rains Wednesday afternoon turned Wichita Falls streets into raging rivers that swept vehicles aside.

It was the same heavy rains that sent water racing through the two-mile-long underground culvert where eight Crawford family members and a friend sought refuge from what they thought was an advancing tornado.

Terry Crawford said the family followed tornado warning advise it heard on the radio.

"The first thing you do is get in a ditch and get out of the car,"

NATIONAL

Snow continued to fall from the northern Rockies to central Nebraska, and more snow was headed for the Midwest.

A series of snowstorms has stranded cattle in high drifts without food at the height of calving season in Nebraska and Colorado. Heavy snow grounded haylifts in Colorado and emergency helicopter missions to snowbound Nebraska communities.

Rain fell in eastern Nebraska and northeastern Kansas as showers and thundershowers extended from northern Florida to the southern coast of South Carolina and across parts of the central Gulf Coast region.

Showers and thundershowers lingered over parts of Arkansas and Missouri after buffeting north-central Texas, which also had some tornadoes.

A Wichita Falls, Texas, woman was swept away by a raging creek and died after she and her family left their car and took refuge in an underground culvert when a tornado siren sounded. Her 3-month-old grandson also was missing.

In Louisiana and Mississippi, rains pelted swollen rivers and

RAVAGES OF STORMS.

Cattle in the northwest are suffering as a result of spring storms. Ranchers in the Wray, Colo. area are attempting to feed pastures blocked by snow and ice. Too late for the calf in bottom photo, hay is being dropped into remote areas. Officials are predicting heavy losses to the spring calf crop as the weather conditions continue an adverse pattern.

Army announces alert plan for retired officers

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an unprecedented action in peacetime, the Army plans to notify up to 200,000 retired officers and enlisted soldiers that they could be recalled to active duty in a crisis mobilization so younger troops could be freed for overseas assignment.

The plan, announced Wednesday, would affect men and women up to age 60, who retired without disabilities and who live in the contiguous 48 states. Those living in Alaska and Hawaii would not be affected under present arrangements, although officials said they may be included later.

Retired soldiers recalled to active duty in a war or national emergency would be assigned to bases in the continental United States, enabling the Army to release younger soldiers for transfer overseas, the statement said.

The program is aimed at giving the Army a quick transfusion of manpower for backup missions, along with mobilization of National Guard and Reserve members.

In the absence of a draft, the Army has been searching for ways to mobilize thousands of extra personnel for necessary assignments in the early weeks of a crisis. The first group to be called would be drawn from about 82,000 officers and enlisted personnel who have retired within the past five years. Current plans call for selected retirees to receive peacetime orders telling them when and where to report to active duty in event of a presidential decision to mobilize.

No retirees are being recalled to active duty now, the Army stressed.

Prisoners complicate anti-rat campaigns

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Rats are real pests at the Caddo Correctional Institute, where guards make a game of chasing and kicking at them in the kitchen and dining areas.

The prison farm on 1,200 acres of mostly wooded land 28 miles south of Shreveport has 400 inmates.

Superintendent Gene A. Scroggy said rat poison would be put at strategic points inside the building walls, but added that an anti-rat campaign was complicated by the prisoners.

"I am reluctant to put rat poison out for the simple reason that you don't know what inmate will attempt to put rat poison in the food," Scroggy said.

Shreveport Journal reporter Bill Hensel Jr. worked two weeks at the prison farm as a guard trainee. He said rats running about on top of the tiled

Ambassador thinks Mexican oil spill problem near end

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bob Krueger, ambassador-at-large for Mexico, expects a U.S.-Mexican agreement shortly on a plan to combat future offshore disasters that threaten the waters of both nations.

"We hope within a matter of weeks," he said Wednesday.

Krueger said the marine contingency plan was one of the topics included in his talks Tuesday in Mexico City with Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo.

"We feel that the two countries are fairly near agreement on a joint plan," the former Texas congressman said.

Krueger said the most discussion time was spent on agriculture, transportation and trade issues.

"I thought it was a very friendly tone," he said.

The marine agreement reportedly would form a joint response team for offshore drilling accidents or other spills posing a threat to both nation's waters.

Subpoenas name school officials

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — District Attorney Bill White has issued subpoenas for the two top officials in the San Antonio Independent School District and a private investigator who conducted an internal investigation for them.

White said he issued the subpoenas Wednesday for SAISD Board President William Elizondo and Superintendent Harold Hitt because school officials had not given him all reports concerning the controversial investigation they conducted in 1978 and 1979.

The district attorney has been critical of school officials for not giving him a copy of the report because it contains evidence of possible misuse of school district funds, personnel and materials by district employees.

Several school district employees resigned or were fired in the wake of the investigation.

Elizondo and Hitt won temporary reprieves, however. State District Judge James Barlow ordered their appearances postponed for a week until a hearing can be held on a motion to quash the subpoenas.

Texas International investors file suit

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A federal lawsuit has been filed in Delaware by two Texas International Co. investors seeking a court order instructing that company to hand over a list of stockholders, a local newspaper has reported.

The Thursday editions of the Daily Oklahoman said Miami, Fla., businessman John Bertoglio and Texas financier James Ling want the list of shareholders so they can solicit support for their candidacy for election to the oil firm's board of directors. The Oklahoma-City based firm is registered in Delaware.

Ling and Bertoglio together own just under 5 percent of TI's 10 million shares outstanding.

HEAVY MAIL. Mary Myers, a postal worker in suburban Blue Springs, Mo., had the splintery task Wednesday of sorting the wooden blocks mailed to President Carter and other federal officials by angry homebuilders in Jackson County. About 600 of the 10-inch two-by-fours were mailed by the builders asking for financial relief because of the current slump in homebuilding, said spokesman Larry Wyss.

Texas political briefs

AUSTIN (AP) — State Republican Chairman Ernest Angelo said Wednesday that GOP presidential candidate Ronald Reagan has been endorsed by 36 members of the 62-member State Republican Executive Committee.

Angelo, also state chairman for Reagan, announced that Reagan would visit Lubbock and Amarillo on Wednesday, April 9.

"With Governor Reagan's impressive victories in Wisconsin and Kansas, it is clear that his appeal is broad-based in all parts of the country," Angelo said.

Reagan's Wednesday schedule calls for him to arrive in Lubbock at 12:30 p.m. for a news conference and airport rally, then fly to Amarillo for 2:30 p.m. news conference and airport rally.

Reagan will leave Amarillo at 3:30 p.m. for Nebraska.

AUSTIN (AP) — Buddy Temple, a Democratic candidate for the Railroad Commission, said today he sees merit in the "Texas triangle" plan for passenger service, but not the "bullet train."

"It is the kind of pie-in-the-sky scheme which voters have accepted on face value and which politicians have pushed to fruition without any consideration of the cost-effectiveness of the idea. It should be killed quickly," he told a news conference.

Temple said one of his opponents, Railroad Commission Chairman John Poerner, has endorsed the "Japanese bullet train" to link Dallas-Fort Worth, Houston and San Antonio with an elevated two-way electric powered 750-mile rail system. He estimated it would cost about $20 billion instead of the $6 billion estimated by some.

"The Texas Triangle idea grew out of Department of Transportation study done at the urging of passenger train advocates, including several Texas congressmen," Temple said. "The Texas Triangle has merit. It should be examined."

AUSTIN (AP) — President Jimmy Carter will be campaigning in Texas this fall but not before the May 3 primary elections, Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong said Wednesday.

Armstrong, a co-manager of the Carter-Mondale ticket in Texas, said he felt the Wisconsin and Kansas returns followed the pattern that Carter has established in the early primaries.

"I think the pattern is pretty well established of about 2-to-1 favoring Carter over (Sen. Edward) Kennedy," he told a news conference. "I do not see any other states, except maybe California or Pennsylvania, that would interrupt that pattern."

Armstrong said he did not think Carter's position in Texas would be changed should Rep. John Anderson, Republican, run as an independent in Texas. "I have heard that any votes for Anderson might come from Carter's supporters, but I do not think that would change the pattern in Texas. We are not worried."

Drug-sniffing dogs cause student unrest

BAYTOWN (AP) — Three students who say their constitutional rights are being violated by a school policy that allows drug-sniffing dogs to randomly search students have challenged the policy in federal court.

A class action suit filed Wednesday in Houston on behalf of the students by the American Civil Liberties Union asks U.S. District Judge Robert O'Connor to halt the searches at Baytown Sterling High School.

The students — Robby Horton, 18, his sister Heather, 15, and Sandra Sanchez, also 18 — have been singled out by the dogs and searched, according to Arthur Val Perkins, their attorney.

Collision in gulf under investigation

GALVESTON (AP) — Two crippled ships — a freighter with a smashed bow and a tanker with a gash in its side — will be brought to port by their own crews, U.S. Coast Guard officials said.

The two ships collided in heavy fog near the entrance to the Galveston-Houston ship channels Wednesday, setting off fires on both ships.

The Coast Guard said one tanker crewman was hospitalized for smoke inhalation, but the other 34 crewman who abandoned ship after the collision were pulled from the chilly Gulf waters unharmed.

The 789-foot Liberian registered tanker Amoco Cremona was about six miles offshore Wednesday night. The Coast Guard said the crew had returned to the ship and was getting the tanker ready to move into port at Galveston.

TEA files desegregation plan in court

HOUSTON (AP) — The Texas Education Agency has filed a desegregation plan in federal court that may have statewide impact, according to the superintendent of the Houston Independent School District.

Documents filed Tuesday with U.S. District Judge Robert O'Connor call for the voluntary transfer of white students to inner-city schools and emphasizes "magnet" schools that offer special studies.

HISD superintendent Billy Reagan said because of the emphasis on magnet schools, the plan could have statewide impact in desegregation efforts.

The plan, drawn up by a 14-member committee named six months ago by O'Connor, is designed to stimulate cooperation between urban schools that are losing students and often overcrowded suburban schools.

Forty-five HISD magnet programs are listed in the plan as being of potential interest to suburban students. The committee also recommended an expanded day program that might be attractive to working parents.

The documents will become part of a 25-year-old HISD desegregation case.

James Hill, TEA associate commissioner, said the plan will require considerable financial assistance.

O'Connor said he will call a meeting in about two weeks to discuss possible means of implementing the plan.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Chavez tries some intimidation

In the 1960s Cesar Chavez rose to celebrity by unionizing - with the help of a boycott that forced growers to sign union contracts - lowly paid farm workers. His United Farm Workers took on the Teamsters union and won. The image of the softspoken Chavez struggling against powerful agricultural interests to improve the lot of downtrodden migrant workers captured the hearts of millions of Americans. Like many of the other heroes of the 1960s, Chavez's image is fading.

Over the years Chavez seems to have been seduced by some of the same temptations that caused the downfall of other union leaders. Contrary to his delicate appearance, Chavez has always been a tough hombre, willing to make brutal decisions and stick with them. As the UFW grew in power this toughened individual began looking at his organization as an end in itself. Whether he has changed or was always that way does not matter; many people now see Chavez as no different from any other tyrannical union boss.

There are numerous reports suggesting the UFW has been involved in questionable practices. Last year Patti Newman, a Laguna Beach researcher, found a number of instances where the UFW appears to have taken federal funds fraudulently. In an article printed in REASON, Newman disclosed major discrepancies in the union's clinic program, credit union and communications system. Later "20-20," an NBC news program, focused in on some of these charges.

Columnist Jack Anderson recently detailed some of the unpleasant trends within the UFW. According to Anderson, Chavez has been purging dissident elements and consolidating his own power rather than using his energy on behalf of the workers. Much of the money he collects on highly publicized fundraising tours ends up, according to Anderson's sources, in the UFW headquarters and is never disbursed to the states. Anderson's most damning charge was that an investigative reporter was badly beaten in Chavez's presence when doing a story about one of Chavez's cousins, who just happens to be a high-ranking member of the union.

In California Chavez has lost much of the clout he once had in the state legislature. One bill headed for Gov. Brown's desk, SB 584, would end a practice Chavez has been able to get away with for a long time. Unlike other unions - farm workers are not under the restrictions of the National Labor Relations Act - Chavez's has been free to kick members out of the UFW for numerous reasons, including that they had not contributed to the union's political slush fund. SB 584, if signed by the governor, will prevent this strong-arm tactic. The legislature's passage of legislation like this demonstrates how far Chavez's influence has declined.

One of Chavez's last bastions of influence remains the Brown administration. Last week an administrator on Brown's Agricultural Labor Relations Board ruled, inexplicably, that growers must pay back wages to strikers because the administrator determined the growers were not bargaining in good faith. It is just this type of lunacy that Chavez has been about to exploit for his own purposes. Obviously, if any such ruling were permitted to stand, it would destroy any balance during labor negotiations. It would also incredibly strengthen the UFW.

There is a common perception that there is a relationship between the power of union bosses and corruption. Obviously, not all union leaders are seduced by the great power in their hands. It will be interesting to see what kind of man Cesar Chavez turns out to be.

Are we really to blame?

One thing to remember about politicians when considering the stupidity of their economic policies is the degree to which they are really self-serving is that anyone who must run for office generally is in the business of giving people what they want.

As President Carter was announcing his latest shipment of snake oil, that truism was brought to mind by a WALL STREET JOURNAL article that followed Missouri Sen. Thomas Eagleton on a recent trip home from Washington. Eagleton for a short time George McGovern's running mate for the White House, was to his credit attempting to tell the home folk that the federal budget had to be controlled and some goodies had to be taken away even as he stands for re-election.

What he found was instructive. In Kansas City, a black minister pleaded for no cuts in the summer youth program.

The Missouri Builders Association applauded Eagleton for bringing to the state a $120 million IRS facility, a $50 million check to repair a decaying bridge and a $10 million HUD grant for a new hotel.

A St. Louis director of the local Job Corps program warned that a CETA vocational training center mustn't be cut back.

At a convention of pig farmers, an official of the group vowed to go to Washington to preserve its tax paid research budget.

A district official of the machinists' union said he wants to moderate cuts in Labor Department programs.

A leader of the state nurses association argued that, "if anything, more money needs to go to the nursing profession."

And on and on. Most people seem to recognize a need to reduce spending, but are intent on seeing that the other guy's program is the one to be whacked.

It isn't just that way in Missouri, either. The first thing Sen. Alan Cranston's office did after the President acted last Friday was to assure Californians that they would suffer least of anyone from any cuts, that the big park projects, the arms contracts, the refugee subsidies and the export supports would be maintained.

Evidently, this is what people want. The polls indicate this, and those who vote, given a clear choice in 1976 between a president whose advisors had put the country on sounder financial footing and a candidate who offered a tastier free lunch, chose Jimmy Carter.

The answer to inflation starts at home. And it starts young, with an end to government subsidies to medical care and then to child care and then to schools and then to college scholarships and then to home buying and then to small businesses and then to the roads and parks and sewers of the communities we live in and then to the trade associations and the big businesses and the labor unions and then to the mammoth federal retirement system that is not a pension fund but a direct income transfer from the producers. Then maybe we can start talking about the people getting handouts; they always live someplace else.

Marriage of inconvenience

By Don Graff

We have it on the authority of his latest host that Iran's globe-trotting deposed Shah has now come to rest "permanently."

Those of us willing to believe that from Egyptian President Anwar el-Sadat probably also believed that had his ex-majesty only been willing to sit out in Panama supposedly purely ritual extradition proceedings never intended to be acted upon, the Tehran militants would have released the embassy hostages.

The fact is that the most celebrated traveler of our time is very likely embarked upon an odyssey that has no end, in this life. And in fleeing from one illusory refuge to another, he is not leaving his troubles behind but taking them - and ours - with him.

Those in what passes for authority in Tehran give every indication of being prepared to continue pursuit indefinitely, or at least as long as they are the authority.

And there is no indication that flip-flopping U.S. policy, Iran's internal power struggles or developments in Afghanistan or anywhere else are very soon going to effect a significant change in that basic situation.

Nevertheless, makers of what passes for policy in Washington are reported to be concerned about the immediate consequence of the shah's latest flight for the current apparent authorities in Tehran - the so-called "government of President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr. And in the longer run for Egypt.

The fiasco in Panama is seen as weakening Bani-Sadr in his contest with even more radical revolutionary elements. Yet it is difficult to see how he would be any better off otherwise. The proposition that the radicals would have accepted the playing out of an extradition charade that in the end failed to deliver up the shah in person is also one to strain belief.

The shah is reported to be little concerned about the consequences for Bani-Sadr or anyone else back in Tehran. With good and probably more realistic reason that being exercised in Washington.

Egypt, however, is another matter - one that is of understandable concern for Washington and that should be for the shah and also Sadat.

The shah's and our troubles in the Iranian conflict now become Egypt's, which is already under ample strain in its maneuvering with Israel, over the Palestinian issue and its feuding with the rest of the Arab world. For all Sadat's display of confidence in having the situation under control, there are legitimate questions as to how much strain that control can withstand. And the permanency of the shah's present refuge is directly dependent upon that of Sadat's retention of power.

The shah may be fully aware of, and care about, the burden he presents in this respect. Or he may not. Quite possibly the latter. Many in Washington who have had to deal with him during his nomadic exile are said to find him insensitive to the interests of others, self-centered and imperious.

All of which is resented, understandably so. But in none of this does the shah shorn of power differ essentially from the absolutist potentate who was the staunchest and, so long seemed, most durable U.S. ally in the Mideast.

Those years and that policy have forged a marriage for better - and now very much - worse. A marriage, in respect to its continuing consequences, until death do us part.

And that, as things are developing, would appear to be exactly the end it is approaching.

The people are lying

by ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON - Well, the pollsters blew it again. To my knowledge none of them had any idea that Teddy Kennedy would win in New York and Connecticut by such a large margin.

You would think the pollsters would be humble about it - but they are not. They're angry.

Harris Gallop, a man who makes his living taking the pulse of the country, said bitterly, "We're not at fault. The American people are lying to us."

"I can't believe it," I said. "Why would a person lie to a pollster?"

"It's part of the malaise in the country. People are angry and bitter and they don't trust their leaders. So they're taking it out on us. They figure if they don't tell us the truth about how they're going to vote it could screw up the 1980 presidential election, which they're not too thrilled about to start with."

I was shocked to hear the news. "All of us in this country were brought up to respect the flag, love our country and tell the truth when a stranger with a clipboard asks us who we are going to vote for. Have we lost our moral compass?"

Harris replied, "It appears that way. I guess you could blame it on the 'me' generation. In the past Americans considered it their duty to tell a pollster the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. They were aware that their responses affected the lives of candidates, campaign managers, the media and the public. The American system cannot operate if its leaders don't know what the public will do."

"Today when you stop a man on the street and ask him who he's going to vote for, you're likely to be told, 'It's none of your damn business.' It's gotten so bad that people don't even know who's going to win a primary until all the ballots have been counted."

"That's terrible," I said. "It not only makes you people look like fools, but it keeps everyone in suspense. It's no fun to follow a primary and not know who is going to win until Election Day."

"Well, that's what's happening. People now prefer to be kept in suspense, and they know the best way to do it is by not leveling with the pollsters. I'm aware of several cases in New York where registered Democrats told me they didn't know who they were going to vote for, and then went into the booth and pulled the lever for Kennedy."

"That's tantamount to perjury! What can you people do about it?" I asked.

"Pass a law that if you lie to a certified pollster in the street or on the phone, your vote doesn't count."

"That's a good idea, but how would you find out that they weren't telling the truth?"

"We'd poll their neighbors and relatives to find out how they really voted."

"Won't that cost money?"

"Perhaps. But if we keep going the way we are, we'll be out of business anyway. What you have to understand is that those of us in the polling business are not just involved in politics. We make our big money working for private firms which are test-marketing new products. If a woman is going to lie to us about which candidate she is going to vote for, what is to prevent her from giving us a cock-and-bull story about the type of soapflakes she uses to wash her pantyhose?"

LETTERS

Dear Editor,

Concerning the proposed street improvement bond issue that we voters will be asked to vote on, may I say this:

This proposal is the most ill-timed, ill-conceived, and needless burden to us taxpayers that I have knowledge of to date (locally).

It-timed, because at a time when all financial analysts in the know are saying don't go in debt now, do with what you have, even though it may involve a little belt tightening, our "wizards" on the city commission and the mayor are doing exactly the opposite!

They are asking us to yet assume another financial burden at a time when we can least afford it.

All of us know that every presidential election year, our economy gets a case of the jitters. This year, even more so. Do our "wizards" know something we don't?

Ill-conceived, because I feel that "emergency" called meetings of this type are "kissing cousins" to closed meetings.

May I ask the mayor and commissioners what the "emergency" is?

The plan is a needless burden to us taxpayers because instead of making improvements where there are none, we are being asked to vote for tearing up paved intersections and streets because there is a dip there for drainage. Paved, mind you!

I live two blocks from Main Street, and I have to go the long way around to get to Cuyler because the intersection going directly to downtown is impassible in wet weather. It has no drainage at all! Even in dry weather, it is only barely passable because of the deep holes. I have been stuck many times on this street. Once, I pulled out of my driveway because the street is our drainage area.

That we here living in Pampa are going to need to keep up with our growth in areas such as those named in the proposed bond issue. I will not argue.

What I am saying is let's do it right! Let's go after those improvements that are definitely needed now, if they are. Keep the cost to us taxpayers as small as possible at this time.

Let's have paved streets and intersections alone for now. Where drainage is acute, let's try to remedy that first. Secondly, let's concentrate on better traffic arteries, east and west, as well as north and south. Then maybe by that time, our economy and finances will be better so as to allow us to improve already existing improvements.

Let's vote "no" until such time as our economy and finances at least level off and stabilize, let's wait.

VOTE NO.

Cost of farm operation goes up..profit down

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — While David Wilson was trying to get his corn and soybeans to grow last year, interest rates were shooting up like weeds.

Now Wilson, like thousands of American farmers, is heading for the bank to borrow money for his spring crop. He dreads the trip.

The cost of money farmers need to borrow to operate has jumped 50 percent in the past year. And farmers are borrowing more — fuel and fertilizer costs have risen 30 percent to 50 percent while crop and cattle prices remain low.

From now until fall, Wilson will borrow $13,000 a month for seed, fertilizer, fuel, machinery repairs and food for his table.

Will he make any money? No way.

"All we're hoping for now is to hold our losses down enough to borrow money for next year and hope for better prices then," Wilson says. "We'll have to have better prices just to get back where we started."

Interest rates at banks in rural America have risen to about 17 percent, a spot check indicates. That's less than the 19-plus percent prime rate but still a hefty jump from the 10 and 11 percent available just a year ago.

"Farmers are not just crying wolf," says Roy Frederick, an extension economist at Kansas State University. "There really is a serious problem out there. This is the time of year when requests for operating money is at its zenith."

"The average farmer will have to borrow way, way more than, say, a hardware store owner," says Bruce Frost of the Production Credit Association in Salina. "And the farmer can't raise the price he gets for his product."

Wilson's loan, from a PCA, contains an escalator clause based on the prime rate and the interest he pays has risen from 10 percent to about 14 percent. He owes the bank a third more than he did last year at the start of planting. He borrowed $27,000 for fertilizer and chemicals in December, hoping to escape price increases.

Wilson farms about 900 acres near Osawatimie and grazes 300 head of cattle on 700 acres.

Great white hope drama goes on and on and on

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Great White Hope yarn has been made into so many movies it's beginning to sag under the weight of its own scar tissue.

With every new rendition, the story seems a little more punch-drunk than the last time out. It's like a great athlete who tries to hang on too long. The Great White Hope drama should have been retired after "Rocky."

"Rocky II" sent it reeling. "The Contender," a CBS miniseries beginning tonight, may put The Great White Hope down for the count.

You know the story — a white fighter, not good enough to be champion but good enough to pretend, stirs hope in the hearts of everyone who's tired of nonwhites ruling the boxing ring. He fights bravely, but is pummeled in the end (and about the face, as well).

It's one of Hollywood's standard structures, with new twists occasionally inserted to freshen it up a bit. "The Contender's" little twist is a black manager for the Great White Hope.

Sorry. It's like putting after-shave lotion on a goat. The thing still stinks. Not only is the story worn threadbare, but the execution is so sloppy and the acting so amateurish you wonder if CBS is airing it on a lost bet.

Marc Singer plays the not-so-Great White Hope, Johnny Captor, managing to come off as an actor pretending to be a fighter. Moses Gunn is no better as Johnny Captor's washed-up-fighter-turned-manager, although he does get the primo line of the opening episode:

"He's got one thing nobody in your whole stable's got." Gunn says to another fight manager, trying to get his boy a fight. "And that one thing is why this whole turkey town will turn out for him — white skin... Yessir, I've got what the white folks is crx&I've got the Great White Hope."

Later, when he can't arrange a big fight for Johnny, he slams his hand to the wall in angst and cries. "If he had a manager he'd get this fight, instead of a punched-out bum like me."

Well, Johnny Captor gets the big fight with Killer Dinwittie, but he lets Dinwittie take it because he feels sorry for Killer's little sister. I swear.

"You could have put him away," says Gunn.

"I know that," replies the Great White Hope. "But tonight, there was something more important."

It's hard to tell where the lousy lines end and the lousy acting begins.

Lots of other stuff is thrown in (this thing goes on for five episodes), including suicide, lust and the Fresno Mob. But what it boils down to is another prime time soap opera whose hero happens to be wearing boxing gloves.

I have the feeling that "The Contender" will take a dive somewhere after the first episode. If so, perhaps the Great White Hope story can finally hang up its gloves.

FARM SCENE

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new analysis by the Agriculture Department shows that cattle and hog producers still have some way to go before striking it rich.

Market prices lately have been below year-earlier levels, and USDA experts say no large-scale price boom is in sight.

Although beef supplies have been smaller than a year earlier, the margin is narrowing. Also, supplies of pork and poultry are huge and are expected to continue that way for some time.

Market prices of U.S. Choice-grade steers by late March were down $5 per 100 pounds from a year ago and hog prices were down almost $15 per 100 pounds, the department's Economics, Statistics and Cooperatives Service said Tuesday.

Moreover, the figures showed little chance of the situation for cattle feeders and hog producers improving much in the near future.

In fact, livestock prices are expected to be substantially under the agency forecast issued less than two months ago.

At that time, prices of Choice-grade steers in the first quarter were indicated in a range of $66 to $68 per 100 pounds and hogs at $37 to $39 per 100 pounds.

As it turned out, the new report said, steers averaged $66.90 or within the earlier range forecast, and hogs at major markets, $36.35 per 100 pounds, which was less than the predicted range.

Looking at the second quarter, the agency on Feb. 12 forecast steer prices — the Omaha, Neb., market is used as a guide — at $71 to $75 per 100 pounds, indicating a substantial improvement in market prices was expected.

Hog prices in the second quarter were forecast then at remaining about level at $37 to $39 per 100 pounds. But now, the new report said, steers are expected to range between $68 and $72 in the second quarter and hogs, $34 to $37 per 100 pounds.

For the first time, the new report projected market prices for the third quarter of this year — steers at $69 to $73 and hogs at $37 to $40 per 100 pounds, somewhat better than in the second but far from a big boost.

The report said, "Livestock prices have decreased because of large total red meat and poultry production and a weakening general economy."

Pork output by the nation's packing houses was up 21 percent from a year earlier in the first quarter and is expected to remain at near-record levels for much of 1980, it said.

"Low fed-cattle prices and uncertain future price expectations have made cattle feeders reluctant to sell cattle they have in feedlots and purchase replacement feeder cattle," the report said.

As a result of slow sales of cattle from feedlots, the animals have put on more weight, thus adding to the beef supply and putting further pressure on prices when the animals are sold for slaughter.

As required by farm law, President Carter has set up a special 90-day quota that allows about 500,000 bales of foreign upland cotton to be imported by U.S. textile mills.

The existing quota allows imports to total only about 43,000 bales a year.

But under the Food and Agriculture Act of 1977, the president is required to establish a special import quota whenever the average spot price of cotton for one month exceeds a price level specified by a formula.

Cotton prices rose above the specified level in February, thus forcing Carter to act. The 90-day quota period begins April 3 and ends July 2.

According to the Agriculture Department, the special quota of about 500,000 bales — some 244 million pounds — represents the equivalent of a three-weeks supply for U.S. textile mills.

The special quota is effective for 90 days, but officials said if the average price still is higher than the trigger level at the end of the period, another quota must be proclaimed.

In a related development, USDA said Tuesday a U.S. cotton trade mission will visit the Far East later this month to discuss the cotton supply situation and help drum up business for American producers.

New legislation would clarify custody hearings

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — In the wake of the U.S. Supreme Court's refusal to hear a child-custody case, Sen. Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo., has introduced legislation he says will deter "child-snatching" and clear up jurisdictional problems in custody cases.

Wallop said Tuesday the Supreme Court let stand a Texas court decision giving a Texas man-custody of the man's children even though the mother had been awarded custody in Arizona and had never been to Texas.

The children were living with their mother, Julie Burley Thornlow, in Tucson, Ariz., in 1977, when their father, Norman Henry Thornlow, moved to Brownsville, Texas, Wallop said.

After Thornlow got his wife's permission to take the children to Texas for a visit, he was granted a divorce and custody of the children by a Texas court, Wallop said.

The mother's attorney described the case as "an excellent example of a currently popular method of forum shopping in interstate custody disputes: snatch the children and run the state line."

Wallop said the Supreme Court, in refusing to hear the case, "declined to settle the question of interstate custody disputes. It is imperative that Congress take up the slack."

Greet spring season with Easter breads

GREEK EASTER BREAD

6 cups all-purpose flour, sifted
2 pkgs. active dry yeast
4 large eggs
1 1/2 sticks butter
1 cup milk
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
1 egg white, slightly beaten
Flour for kneading

Warm 1/2 cup milk at 105-110 degrees and add yeast. 1 package at a time, until dissolved. Melt 1 1/2 sticks butter in remaining milk. Cool. Cream sugar and eggs in electric mixer; add yeast mixture, milk-butter mixture and flour on low speed. Add orange peel. Knead dough on floured board, using remaining butter on hands. Place dough in greased bowl, turning once to oil both sides. Cover and let rise in warm, draft-free place 2 hours.

Knead again, let rise 2 more hours, and knead a third time. Let dough rest before shaping and placing in pan. Grease a 10-inch springform pan, divide dough into quarters. Pat 1/4 into the bottom of the pan. Divide another fourth in two and twist together like rope. Form rope into a circle and place it on top of the dough in the pan. Divide each remaining fourth into three pieces and make two braids, each about 10 inches long. Lay braids on top of the dough in a cross, tucking the ends under. Brush with egg white. Place hard-cooked, dyed Easter egg in center of the cross, making a nest. Let dough rise about double. Bake in preheated 300-degree oven 45 minutes. Remove from pan and cool on wire rack. Note: If preferred, Easter egg may be placed on top of bread after baking.

HOLIDAY BREAD

2 pkgs. active dry yeast
1/2 cup brown sugar
1/2 cup water, 100-115 degrees
1/2 cup melted butter
2 whole eggs plus 3 eggs yolk
1 teaspoon salt
3 cups all-purpose flour
1 to 1 1/2 cups whole wheat flour
1 egg white, beaten
sugar

Dissolve yeast and 1/2 cup brown sugar in warm water in a mixing bowl and allow to proof. Stir in melted butter, whole eggs, yolks and salt and blend well. Add flour, 1 cup at a time and beat with a wooden spoon. Turn dough onto a floured board and knead about 5 minutes with additional flour until you have a soft, elastic dough with no trace of stickiness.

Divide dough into 15 pieces. Roll pieces into balls and stack in a greased 1 1/2 quart souffle dish. Let rise in warm, draft-free place until double in size, 1 to 2 hours. Brush dough with egg white and sprinkle with sugar.

Bake in 325-degree oven 35-40 minutes or until bread sounds hollow when tapped with knuckles. Cool on wire rack.

PINEAPPLE HOT CROSS BUNS

1 (1 pound, 4 oz.) can crushed pineapple
2 pkgs. active dry yeast
one-third cup lukewarm water
one-third cup lukewarm pineapple syrup
3 eggs, lightly beaten
one-third cup sugar
1/2 cup melted shortening
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon mace
5 cups sifted all-purpose flour
one-third cup currants
one-third cup finely chopped citron
melted butter
Pineapple Glaze

Drain pineapple well, pressing out and reserving syrup. Set aside 1/2 cup drained pineapple for glaze. Soften yeast in lukewarm water and one-third cup pineapple syrup. Combine eggs, sugar, melted shortening, salt and mace. Stir in 1/2 cup flour, then add yeast mixture and beat well.

Stir in currants, citron and remaining drained pineapple. Beat in remaining flour, reserving about 1/2 cup for kneading, to form a moderately soft dough. Turn dough out onto lightly floured board. Use remaining 1/2 cup flour and knead 3 to 5 minutes, until dough smooths out and rounds up. Place in greased bowl, cover, and let rise in warm place until doubled (about 1 1/2 hours). Punch down, then divide evenly into 24 pieces. Shape into buns and place about 2 inches apart on greased baking sheets. Brush with melted butter and let rise until almost doubled (45 minutes to 1 hour).

With sharp razor blade or scissors, cut a 1/4-inch deep cross in top of each bun. Bake in center of moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 20 minutes. When cool, frost buns with Pineapple Glaze. Makes 2 dozen buns.

Pineapple Glaze
Combine 1/2 cup reserved drained crushed pineapple with 1 1/4 cups sifted powdered sugar in small bowl. Makes 3/4 cup.

CHALLAH

3 pkgs. active dry yeast
1 and one-third cup water,
100-115 degrees
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon salt
3 tablespoons butter, softened
3 eggs
5 to 5 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
1 egg white mixed with 1 teaspoon cold water
poppy seeds

Proof yeast in water in a large bowl. Add sugar, salt, butter, eggs and 3 cups flour, a cup at a time. Beat thoroughly with a wooden spoon. Add more flour gradually until dough is stiff. Turn dough out on a floured board. Knead until dough is smooth and elastic, around 10 minutes. Place dough in large, buttered bowl, turning once to coat the dough. Cover and let rise in warm, draft-free place until double in size, about 1 1/2 to 2 hours.

Punch dough down and divide into six equal parts. Roll each portion into a rope about 1 inch in diameter on a lightly floured board. Braid three ropes together to make two loaves. Braids can also be made into a circle for a wreath effect. Place about 6 inches apart on buttered baking sheet. Cover and let rise in warm place until almost double. Brush tops with egg white and sprinkle with poppy seeds. Bake in preheated 400-degree oven 35-45 minutes or until loaves sound hollow when tapped with knuckles. Cool on wire racks.

THE WHOLE FAMILY will enjoy a bread baked especially for Easter. Breads above, clockwise, are Challah, Holiday Bread and Greek Easter Bread. Below, Pineapple Hot Cross Buns, featuring a special Pineapple Glaze, are a traditional treat to pamper the family. Though their shapes may look difficult to make, they're not.

Final concert slated tonight

Cecile Licad, a pianist from the Philippines, will perform tonight in the season's final concert of the Community Concert series. The performance will be at 8 p.m. in M.K. Brown Auditorium, with admittance by membership in the Pampa Community Concert Association.

Miss Licad, 19, has studied and performed extensively in the United States and abroad. She is one of Rudolf Serkin's three students studying at his Institute in Vermont.

Association members wishing to renew membership for next season may do so at the concert. A membership drive is scheduled later this month.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I share a one-bedroom flat with my girlfriend. (She is also a girl. We are both straight.) About a month ago she asked me if her boyfriend could stay over for the weekend since I was leaving town. I said OK.

When I got back, the boyfriend didn't leave. Instead, he started sleeping on the sofa in the living room. Meanwhile my girlfriend was spending about half the night out there with him on the sofa and I had the bedroom (twin beds) to myself.

Now it turns out that the boyfriend lost his job and he is bunking with us — indefinitely. He's a nice enough guy, but it is very crowded with the three of us in this little flat.

He doesn't appear to be looking too hard for a job (he's getting unemployment) and frankly, I am fed up with this arrangement. He has been here exactly 30 days, and he never mentions moving.

How much longer should I let this go on before I say something?

HAD IT IN BUFFA! O

DEAR HAD IT: Give him until sundown tonight. Then tell your girlfriend and her boyfriend that there is more of a crowd than you bargained for. The squeaking wheel gets the oil. So squeak!

DEAR ABBY: My brother's only son was killed two years ago. He was only 16, and his parents are still grieving for him. We never mention the boy's name unless they do, because we know how heartbroken they are. Now the problem.

A cousin recently had a baby boy. And what does she do? She goes ahead and names the baby after our brother's dead son. She and her husband thought they were "honoring" the dead boy by naming their son after him. I happen to think it was a cruel and thoughtless thing to do because now every time my brother and his wife hear that name they will think of the son they lost, and their grief will be renewed.

I can understand naming a child for a dead father or grandfather to perpetuate the family name, but a cousin? Please give me your opinion as I, too, am heartbroken.

LONE STAR STATE

DEAR LONE: You could be mistaken. Perhaps your brother and his wife feel honored that a child has been named for their son. Judge the deed by the intention. I am sure your cousin and her husband wanted to give only pleasure to the grieving parents, but they should have asked first.

MENDING MATURE MARRIAGE

By LOUISE PIERCE

We have always heard that the two things we cannot escape are taxes and death. But it is my contention that there are many more inevitable forces that are arrayed against us, bugbears we cannot change and should not try to.

These abounding, astounding irritations include our age (even the traces of creases left after face lifts reveal the years that have been lived), the world situations that seem worse every week and the unwillingness of our young friends and families to believe in our enduring intelligence.

We could lose our minds fighting these facts and others we cannot change or dim, no matter how hard we try.

Plastic surgery, cosmetics, all the modern methods of hiding our ages are commendable if we choose to use them. But if we lack the means or the desire to do so, we need no attempt to hid our years anyway. An older surgeon, a scientist, a lawyer, all these and others are respected for their knowledge, their ability to deal with problems better than younger minds. Why should we not acclaim ourselves smarter than we were a few dozen years ago?

As for world conditions, we cannot affect them in any way. We can, and should, vote for our elected officials and write them our beliefs and wishes. But we cannot weld enemies, bring home wronged prisoners, force our religion on those of opposite faiths, tear down the Rocky Mountains or fly in a kite without wings or engines. We will be much happier, much more vital, much better mates to the spouses we adore, if we accept what we cannot change.

After World War I and again after World War II, we believed that peace would reign forever upon the face of the earth. It did not happen. But we would be foolish to brood about it. It was not of our doing and we cannot change the course of human events, at least not by fretting about them.

If we have influence in high places, if our worries would have any chance of turning the nations of the world around, then perhaps it would be worth a stint of mind-boggling to scowl and sputter and shout in public. But that seems a remote possibility to me. Writing our state and national personalities seems to be our limit of achievement in this area. So let us settle down and learn to cope with the lives we must lead.

How can we cope? There are as many ways as there are people. You can work out the one that tends toward the greatest happiness for you. I'll offer a few of my suggestions.

I believe we can cope by participation in the things that we can influence. There are plenty of possibilities in this category. We can take part in local elections, working on election boards or speaking up for the candidates we prefer and trust. We can accept posts of town and county authority if public life is what we enjoy. Many older officials are part of area management.

We can improve our towns. Almost every settlement has clean-up campaigns periodically, rejuvenations of yards and churches, civic drives for myriad charities and countless other means of washing the faces of our cities.

In this regard we need to be careful that we do not dispose of a spouse's treasured trash. This almost happened to me one day. Otis' closet contained a pair of shoes so cracked and worn that they were literally falling apart. There were no laces in them, not even ones tied together. So I was carrying them to the dumpster when Otis came home and snatched the ancient clotheshoppers from my hands, demanding, "What do you think you're doing with my car-washing shoes?" And he squirreled them back to the corner of his closet.

A friend of mine had a similar experience. She was helping conduct a rummage sale for her church and included a pair of well-worn trousers that her husband, so she thought, had worn out in the oil fields long ago. During the sale her husband came home to change his clothes and missed the pants she had taken. He went downtown, walked calmly into the midst of the rummage contributions, paid the amount listed on the britches and took them home for many more years of wearing.

Scent sale draws lines in Peking

Long lines of women formed outside one of Peking's main department stores recently when perfume was put on sale for the first time in years. Many of those in the lines were women soldiers in uniform. The perfume is called Spring Storm.

Test-tube babies: hopes, fears

By R.D. GERSH
Associated Press Writer

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — There are no babies and few test tubes in the 10-by-12-foot room known as the test-tube baby laboratory at Norfolk General Hospital.

The lab does contain an incubator, a microscope and a stack of half a dozen small plastic petri dishes, in which human eggs are fertilized by human sperm.

It also holds the hopes of many women and men who want to be mothers and fathers, and the fears of some who envision the coming of a "Brave New World."

The hospital won state approval to build the lab Jan. 8. Two months later, a spokesman for Eastern Virginia Medical School, whose doctors run the clinic, acknowledged, "The lab is in operation."

The lab is the first of its kind in the United States and has already earned Norfolk a certain notoriety. On the door to the office of the hospital's public relations director is a bumper sticker reading: "Norfolkians Do It In Test Tubes. An original seven couples were accepted for the program, out of thousands who applied. There were 2,500 couples on the initial waiting list; the day after the lab got state approval, 300 more called in."

An unspecified number of women have gone through the process of in vitro fertilization, in which an egg is surgically removed from a woman's ovary, fertilized with her husband's sperm in the petri dish and transferred to the woman's uterus.

The hospital has not said, and will not say, if successful pregnancies have been achieved.

EVMS spokesman Vernon Jones said the clinic's doctors, led by the husband-and-wife team of Howard and Georganna Jones, want to "shield the ladies" from disturbances that could disrupt the hormone levels crucial for successful implantations.

The patients are women whose Fallopian tubes, the conduits from ovary to uterus, are missing or irreparably blocked.

Jones described the process as sort of a "Fallopian tube bypass. We're providing the passage. It's sort of like a helicopter picking up cargo — the egg — in one place and putting it in another."

He said the clinic should be able to treat about 50 women a year. The procedure costs about $4,000. Blue-Cross of Virginia has said it will not pay the costs.

The women see in vitro fertilization as their last chance to bear children. But others see it as the first step toward something unsafe and immoral.

The Tidewater Chapter of the anti-abortion Virginia Society for Human Life failed in its attempt to get state Attorney General Marshall Coleman to seek an injunction against the clinic.

Norfolk businessman Charles Dean, chapter president, said the group plans further legal action, partly on the grounds the state review was not done properly.

But doctors involved with the clinic claim the fears are unfounded.

Dr. Jack Rary, the EVMS scientist who runs the lab, is responsible for checking to see if an egg is contained in the fluid removed from the woman, for setting up the egg for fertilization and for determining if fertilization has taken place.

But he noted that doctors do not make the final determination whether the egg is good — able to be fertilized.

"The sperm know which eggs are good," he said. "We don't have to make that decision."

If fertilization does take place in a petri dish, usually within 12 hours, the fertilized egg is incubated for another 36 hours and then transferred to the uterus.

That's about the same time span an egg fertilized naturally would take to travel down to the uterus and implant itself, Rary said.

Rary said he knew the clinic would not receive unanimous approval, "but I had no idea there would be that much opposition."

SCIENTIST Dr. Jack Rary demonstrates his technique at a Norfolk, Va., General Hospital room, known as the test-tube baby laboratory. But there are no babies and very few test tubes in the 10-by-12 room that holds the hopes of many women and men who want to be mothers and fathers and the fears of some who envision the coming of a "Brave New World."

Food savings lunch program set

"The Cost Saving Food Plan" will be the first in a series of Lunch 'n Learn programs to help consumers save money.

The first noon program will be April 10 from 12 noon to 1 p.m. in the Reddy room of Southwestern Public Service. The free program is sponsored by the Gray County Family Living Committee.

Mrs. Mary Sweeten, a food and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at College Station, will be the featured speaker.

A registered dietician, Mrs. Sweeten received a home economics degree from the University of Texas and completed a dietetic internship at Indiana University Medical Center. She received a masters in food, nutrition and institutional administration from Oklahoma State University.

"The Cost Saving Food Plan" will feature information on why the consumer spends more on food, how to save of the food budget, how to spend less time in the kitchen, how to shop food sales and how to recognize marketing gimmicks.

Those planning to attend should bring a sack lunch; drinks will be provided. The program is designed especially for the working homemaker. Any homemaker interested is encouraged to attend this free program.

THE PEOPLE'S PHARMACY

By Joe Graedon

High blood pressure is aptly called the silent killer. It creeps up on people slowly and often without warning. In its early stages the disease doesn't produce symptoms and even after damage to the heart, blood vessels and kidneys has developed, many people are still unaware that they suffer from hypertension.

It's hard to get worried about something you can't feel. Drugs which can effectively lower high blood pressure may cause unpleasant side effects and so many patients don't take their medicine or take it haphazardly. That's a bad mistake.

At least 35 million Americans have high blood pressure and the figures would be even more alarming if we counted borderline cases. Unfortunately, many people go undiagnosed and even those who realize that they have hypertension often don't take the problem seriously.

A comprehensive study sponsored by the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute recently produced evidence showing that if people were more conscientious about monitoring their blood pressure and treating it adequately, 120,000 lives could probably be saved each year.

Until the results of this investigation were published doctors were uncertain how vigorously they should attempt to control mild hypertension. But the new study demonstrated that aggressive treatment can reduce the number of deaths from heart attacks and strokes by almost 20 percent even in so-called mild cases.

Not everyone who has a slightly elevated blood pressure reading in a doctor's office is a candidate for lifelong drug therapy. Many things can temporarily raise pressure. Anxiety, anger (often caused by a long wait to see the doctor), exercise or even some drugs can lead to increases in pressure.

Because blood pressure can vary by as much as 20 or 30 points in the same individual throughout the course of a day, it is important to take several readings under relaxed conditions.

It makes sense for anyone who may be borderline to purchase or borrow a blood pressure measuring device. Taking multiple measurements at home over the course of weeks or months can provide the doctor with an accurate record reflecting the true blood pressure variation.

Once hypertension has been diagnosed that does not necessarily mean that drug therapy is the only answer. Some people are especially susceptible to salt. Banning the shaker can make a world of difference for many folks and may eliminate the necessity for drug therapy.

A spare tire can also contribute to problems with high blood pressure. Shedding those extra pounds can reduce elevated pressure for some people.

Other approaches include bio-feedback and mental relaxation techniques which are beginning to be utilized in many research centers.

When all else fails, drug therapy is almost always effective in controlling hypertension. There are now so many different medications available that a physician can practically tailor a treatment program for each individual patient.

The drug of first choice is often a diuretic. These medications may deplete potassium, but have few other serious side effects and may effectively lower mild high blood pressure.

Newer drugs called "beta blockers" like Inderal (propranolol) and Lopressor (metoprolol) have become popular in recent years as second-line treatments for moderate hypertension. Other alternatives include drugs like Aldomet (methyldope), Minipres (prazosin), and Catapres (clonidine).

For severe or resistant high blood pressure doctors often add Aprozolene (hydralazine) or Ismelin (guanethidine). These high-powered drugs usually do the trick but they also have more side effects than the second-line medications.

No matter what therapeutic program is selected, the key to success is persistence. Monitoring progress at home with a blood pressure kit allows both patient and doctor to check the effectiveness of the therapy. Controlling hypertension really can prevent strokes and heart attacks and ultimately saves lives.

Varietas members hear garden tips

Mrs. Rue Hestand presented a gardening program to members of the Varietas Study Club, which met last week in the home of Mrs. Lee Harrah.

Mrs. Hestand discussed growing companion plants and vegetables in order to increase yields and eradicate pests and weeds. She also described the advantages of a vertical garden, which requires one-tenth the space of a large garden.

Mrs. J.E. Gunn, president, conducted the meeting. Plans were made for participation in the district and state conventions of the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs.

THE CONTENDER

Johnny Capor (Marc Singer, pictured) prepares for his first major heavyweight bout, with a boxer who has befriended him, but doesn't know if he will have the killer instinct to put his opponent away if he has to, in the special 90-minute premiere episode of The Contender, THURSDAY, APRIL 3 on CBS-TV.

Coolly observing Johnny in a grudge match in a small-town police gym is George Beifus (Moses Gunn), an ex-prizefighter who sees a sure meal ticket in this young, strong "white hope." Beifus offers to train and manage him and Johnny, anxious to chart a new direction in his life, seizes the offer.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

April 4, 1980

Substantial rewards could come to you this coming year for a job well done. However, first make certain that everything you go after has an honest chance of being attained.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) How you would like things to be and what they really are are two different things. A costly mistake could be made today if you don't face facts. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all in your Astro-Graph Letter which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You have a strong tendency to be unrealistic regarding the way you manage your financial resources today. Some form of loss is extremely likely.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Good opportunities will go for you today if you think too much in terms of "I" instead of "We." The more you share, the better your chances.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you make a mistake or are guilty of an oversight today, don't attempt to cover it up. The situation could become far worse than what you'd have to face by fessing up.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Resist the urge to try to keep up with the Joneses or to put on airs. People like you for what you are, so there's no need to feel inadequate.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You could, if not careful, ask too much of others and thereby deprive yourself of a goal you could have realized had your request been reasonable.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Double-check your sources to make sure the information you get from others is valid. You may be a bit on the gullible side today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Stay at arm's length from situations not of your concern today. You could be drawn into something that would prove more expensive for you than for the actual participants.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Tread softly today in areas where your reputation or image are on the line. A wrong or thoughtless move will produce a poor lasting impression.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Kidding yourself about your capabilities or exaggerating to coworkers will have a deleterious effect. You'll lose out completely when you can't perform.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) If you're prone to take risks today, don't do so with things that belong to others. A friend will be angered if something he values is ruined.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Placing too-heavy demands on your mate will have a twofold effect: You'll create an unhappy home environment and you still won't get what you want.

Parachute rigger charged in death

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — The Army says it is checking thousands of parachutes after a parachute rigger was charged with murder in the death of an officer who was killed when his chute failed to open.

The rigger, 20-year-old Pfc. Alvin Williams was charged Tuesday. He was being held in the Cumberland County Jail.

Williams is accused of sabotaging the parachute used by Capt. Lawrence D. Hill, killed last Wednesday when his main parachute failed to open during a routine proficiency jump at Fort Bragg.

Maj. Tom Woods, public affairs officer at Fort Bragg, said the 82nd Airborne Division is rechecking several thousand parachutes to see if the alleged sabotage is more widespread.

Army officials say parachutes used in the division since the death have been checked prior to use and commanders have been told to advise their troops of the checks to ease fears.

Parachute riggers in Williams' unit are responsible for packing all chutes used by the division.

I am adding a poem in answer to a request:

Jonquils
There are many things you forget, like dates and names and faces.
But a beautiful picture made by the flowers in your garden, you remember.
Like the jonquils along the walk, nodding their bright yellow faces.
I felt that surely in each face I could see the love of God.
But then like a thief in the night, came that cold winter blast.
Laid them low their heads all bowed down in the cold, cold sod.
How the picture had changed, it made me so sad.

But there was another day, the sun shone brightly and warmed the earth.

Many of the jonquils lifted their heads and made me so glad.

They were nodding with shining faces as if to say,

Will I came through that OK!

But there were some that never made it, they bowed their heads.

Never to rise again.

This is like people, you and I, the storms of life bring us down.

With heartache and pain.

But then we feel the warmth of God's love and lift our heads.

And we are able to say with the jonquils, I am OK!

While others are brought down with the troubles of life.

And never know the Master's touch.

Who can help them through the strife.

So always keep in touch with the Master so you can say

When the storms come as the jonquils did I came through that OK!

CONSERVE ENERGY

Although April should be beginning of spring weather, we have found the soil to be friable and ready for working.

There is scarcely a month in the year that some pruning is not needed. However, spring pruning is very important. Shape cotoneaster, pyracantha and other berried shrubs while in bloom for more even berry distribution. Train new shrubs and young trees while the branches are pliable and not stiff to bend so they may train easily. Branches of flowering shrubs and vines need shortening after bloom to encourage new growth and desired shape.

A good rule to follow is to shorten back a third of the flowering branches, using these for bouquets. Keep new trees in balance by pinching the terminal buds. This is a good practice on evergreens.

From the 1st through the 3rd of this month is the best time for pruning, especially roses. Remove all dead wood, cutting all strong branches down to the highest living limb, preferably outside of bud. If you make this cut, and the stem is tan or brown in the center, continue cutting the stem until the pit is whitish in color.

In planting new roses, the bud union should be placed about soil level. Do not fertilize newly planted roses until they have become established and begin to put out new growth.

Fertilize your established roses with cow manure, peat moss and some gypsum, scratching this well into the top soil, then water well, allowing the water to run slowly for several hours.

If you have a special plant to be frozen by a late frost, thaw it by spraying with tepid water from a watering can, then cover with paper or black plastic for several hours.

Much time will be spent this month in sowing seeds. A warm window sill is a great place to start tomato, peppers or annual flower seeds. This will make it possible for you to get your

Nothing says spring like fruit trees blooming. Cut some branches to bring inside for bouquets to enjoy. But remember this is pruning so do this wisely. So far the fruit has been unharmed by the cold weather, but we do have more cold weather ahead.

Cheyenne record snows prompt resident parties

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — While a warm spring sun melted the latest accumulation of powder, Cheyenne residents toasted their success in weathering the worst winter of snow in the prairie city's history.

One bar doubled its Happy Hour to four hours to celebrate Cheyenne's new snowfall record — 102.1 inches this winter. The bar was soon full and patrons were jubilant when they learned of the two-drinks-for-one celebration.

"I plan on getting snowed under myself, right here," said one. The old record, 100.8 inches in the winter of 1904-05, had been under attack since a record 26-inch snowfall before Thanksgiving blasted in from the surrounding rolling grassland.

A succession of heavy snows fell during December and the snow removal budget for the city of 60,000 was exhausted before Christmas, forcing officials to seek state aid and leave some streets unplowed.

On Wednesday, residents awoke to a 2-inch blanket of snow that broke the record. The total was twice the 51-inch average here.

"It's fantastic, but I don't want one more flake," said the Rev. Gary Ruzicka of St. Mary's Cathedral.

"I'm glad we broke the record so we don't have to do it again next year," said Dean Prosser of the Wyoming Stock Growers Association.

But he said the record snows have meant extra sub-soil moisture for southeastern Wyoming, and "ranching should be pretty good this summer."

Lenders must notify borrowers by rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board today required all lenders to notify their borrowers 30 days in advance of any changes in credit terms.

The board also voted to allow consumers to pay off existing credit account balances under old finance terms.

However, if a customer continues to make charges on the old account, "he or she will have to agree to pay the entire balance in accordance with the new terms," the board said.

The new requirements alter consumer credit controls adopted less than three weeks ago by the board as part of a major anti-inflation package that included President Carter's budget surplus plans for fiscal 1981.

The changes could force many lenders to revise new credit policies they have announced since the Federal Reserve Board's March 14 announcement.

The board today made the revisions retroactive to March 14, meaning that any lender who already changed credit terms will have to renotify their customers.

Teachers merge for legislation

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas State Teachers Association will be getting back talk from a new, 19,000-member teachers' organization when it asks the Legislature next year for higher pay and collective bargaining rights.

The Association of Texas Professional Educators was formed by the merger of the Association of Texas Educators (ATE) and the Texas Professional Educators (TPE).

Presidents-elect of the two organizations held a news conference Wednesday to announce the merger and denounce the TSTA for even thinking about collective bargaining.

"Our main thing will be to fight against collective bargaining and unionism and to keep school teaching a profession in this state," said Gloria McMeans of Stanton, president-elect of TPE.

Teachers and administrators who opposed TSTA's decision to unify with the National Education Association (NEA) formed ATE and TPE in 1975.

NEA has strongly supported collective bargaining for teachers while opposing unionization efforts by the American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO.

"It seems to us that TSTA's and NEA's claim to fame is controversy," said Mike Morrow, executive director of ATE.

Alfarr Hammett of Santa Rosa, president-elect of ATE, said she opposes collective bargaining because she believes it interferes with "the smooth teaching of students. It usually ends with some striking or walkouts."

Both Ms. McMeans and Ms. Hammett agreed with the TSTA's view that teachers need higher salaries but said the new organization has not come up with an exact proposal.

Neither has TSTA, but Morrow said, "TSTA has made totally unrealistic demands on a salary bill. We have been much more willing to cooperate than they have."

"Nobody needs a raise any better than teachers. But when I became a teacher, I knew in advance I was not going to get rich doing it. Teaching is more of a calling than a job someone goes out and gets because there is nothing else to do," said Ms. McMeans.

The association's board will decide whether Ms. McMeans or Ms. Hammett will be the new organization's president and whether its executive director will be Jack Martin of TPE or Morrow.

Food stamp flow could end in June

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Some of the 11 million Texans who depend on food stamps might starve to death in June if Congress does not find $2.5 billion to pour into the founding program, according to a coalition of social activists.

"Last month the federal government sent Texans $44 million in food stamps," said Velma Roberts of the Austin Welfare Rights Organization.

The food stamp flow will end in June unless Congress allocates the $2.5 billion for the system by May 15, she said. Food stamps again would be available after the federal fiscal year begins Oct. 1.

"The food stamp program is out of money. Inflation, unemployment, and skyrocketing medical and utility costs have forced more people to turn to food stamps. Last year Congress expanded eligibility for the program, but did not appropriate any extra money to pay for those who were nearly eligible," Mrs. Roberts said at a Wednesday news conference at the Capitol.

She predicted hungry Texans might turn to crime to feed themselves and their families.

Tom Smith of the Community Nutrition Institute, a non-profit organization that helps federal food program recipients remain abreast of developments, predicted some Texans would die if the food stamps are cut off.

"There are no plans in place for feeding the poor," he said, adding programs used before the food stamp era have been "dismantled."

"You hear about the elderly picking through the garbage. I think we'll see a lot more of that," he said.

Mrs. Roberts said churches cannot meet the needs of the hungry. "After the third or fifth of the month they run out of food and they run out of money," she said.

The spokesmen said the elderly and the disabled would be among the first to suffer if the program ends. Sixty-five percent of the Texas food stamp recipients have incomes below $212 per month.

Mrs. Roberts and Charlotte Flynn of the Gray Panthers urged Texans to notify their congressmen about their concern.

"The likelihood that all three of these (Congressional actions needed) will occur before May 15 is not good. Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland has notified Gov. Bill Clements to prepare to stop food stamps on June 1," Mrs. Roberts said.

Smith said 1.1 million Texans — one out of every 13 — received food stamps in February. The average amount of food stamps per meal for each recipient was 44 cents, he said.

The end of the food stamp program could mean the loss of $160 million worth of business for Texas, particularly agri-business, according to Mrs. Roberts.

"No one is getting rich on food stamps," she said, adding that only 0.3 percent of last year's food stamp recipients were involved in fraud.

JOANNE CARNER is considered one of the favorites in the $305,000 Winner's Circle Tournament even though she missed the cut for the first time in her career during the LPGA Tournament last week at Costa Mesa, Calif. ## Winner's Circle Tournament opens today

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — JoAnne Carner is unhappy. Nancy Lopez Melton is happy again, and Sandra Post is in love — and that could all spell trouble for the other women golfers in the $305,000 Winner's Circle tournament that opens today at Mission Hills Country Club.

Carner's distress stems from the fact that she missed the cut for the first time in her career last week in the Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament at Costa Mesa, Calif. Lopez Melton is pleased because she won the event, ending a six-month victory drought. And Post has a thing for the Mission Hills layout.

Those three, even without added motivation, are considered the players to beat in the tournament. "I love that course and it loves me," said Post, who has demonstrated her contention by winning the last two Winner's Circles, the LPGA's richest tournament. "Mission Hills is the type of course that the more you play it, the better you play it," said Post.

While Lopez Melton and Carner have contrasting incentives to play well, Post said there's one big incentive for all in this tourney.

"I think I get jazzed up for the tournament because its financial clout makes it the most important tournament we play," said the native of Canada.

The winner receives $37,000 and a new car, and Post's victory in the tournament last year helped her finish second on the money-winners list to Lopez Melton. Post collected a total of $178,750. Lopez Melton $197,000.

Post thinks Carner and Lopez Melton will be the toughest obstacles to her possible third consecutive Winner's Circle title. She also mentions a longshot, Beth Daniel.

"She is a long hitter and an excellent putter, but the strongest part of her game is the way she handles the middle irons," Post said of Daniel, the LPGA's 1979

Rookie of the Year.

Lopez Melton, who dominated the tour in 1978 and 1979, winning 17 events, said she felt a burden had been lifted from her shoulders when she won the Costa Mesa tournament.

"The pressure I was putting on myself was killing me," she said after ending a six-month drought with a 2-stroke victory over JoAnn Washam and Debbie Massey.

Carner, winner of four tournaments this year, had a pair of 78s in shooting herself out of that tournament. She said she'd like to take this week off, but added, "Of course I can't miss the Winner's Circle."

Lopez Melton's $22,500 first prize at Costa Mesa moved her into second on the 1980 earnings list with $55,785. Carner is the leader at $78,985.

The tournament at Mission Hills, which will have 85 contestants, is officially named the Colgate-Dinah Shore Winner's Circle Classic.

Tewell, Pate tee off again today

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Doug Tewell and Jerry Pate, the winner and loser in a playoff showdown for the Heritage title, will try it again this week in the $250,000 Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament.

"I'm still in a state of shock," the 30-year-old Tewell said after scoring his first career victory in a one-hole playoff Monday in the rain-delayed final at Hilton Head Island, S.C.

"I don't feel like I got beat. I feel like I beat myself," said Pate, who hit one in the water and bogeyed the playoff hole.

Those two head a surprisingly strong field for the Greensboro event that starts today on the 6,994-yard, par-72 Forest Oaks Country Club course.

The old event often is bypassed by golf's more illustrious performers, who take the time to put the final touches on their preparations for next week's Masters.

This time, however, the 144-man field includes six of the top 10 money-winners for the year and five men who have won 1980 PGA tour titles.

George Burns, the Crosby champion and No. 3 with $89,295, is the top money-winner entered.

In addition to Tewell, other 1980 winners include Dave Eichelberger, Andy Bean and Ray Floyd, probably the leading contender for the $45,000 first prize. Floyd, who beat Jack Nicklaus in a playoff for the Doral title three weeks ago, is the defending champion here and played well last week in South Carolina.

And there's a brand new record-setter in the field. Veteran George Archer used only 94 putts in 72 holes last week, breaking the all-time tour record for fewest putts in a tournament. The old record was 99 by Bob Menne.

Other standouts include South African Gary Player. Master's title holder Fuzzy Zoeller, J.C. Snead, Lou Graham, Larry Nelson and Leonard Thompson, who has been in title contention two of the last three weeks.

76ers, Rockets, Suns win playoff games

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The home teams took advantage of their home-court advantage as the National Basketball Association playoffs got under way, and they did it largely with defense.

"We had to win this first one because it's the key in a short series," said forward Caldwell Jones, who had 18 points and 26 rebounds as the Philadelphia 76ers turned off Washington's power game and beat the Bullets 111-96 Wednesday night in the opener of their best-of-three mini-series.

"Tonight was the most important game," added Jones. "Hopefully we'll get one more important one Friday night."

All three other home teams also won Wednesday night and can wrap up their first-round series on Friday.

The best defense of the four opening games was played by the Houston Rockets, who held San Antonio, the league's highest scoring team, 34 points below its average and beat the Spurs 95-85.

"We decided to defend the fort," Houston Coach Del Harris said after his club circled its wagons to stop the run-and-gun Spurs in the third period. San Antonio went 5-41 without a point and was outscored 24-11 in the quarter as Houston overcame a 51-42 halftime deficit.

In the Western Conference, the Phoenix Suns beat the Kansas City Kings 96-93 in what Suns Coach John MacLeod called "typical of every game we play against the Kings, a tough defensive battle all the way." And in the only game where the scoring was higher than normal, the Seattle SuperSonics opened defense of their title with a 120-110 decision over the Portland Trail Blazers.

76ers 111, Bullets 98

Kevin Grevey of Washington led all scorers with 34 points, including four three-pointers, but said his scoring total only emphasized Philadelphia's defensive dominance. "We couldn't get inside," said Grevey. "That's why I started bombing."

Washington scored the first eight points of the game but had little to celebrate after that as the Sixers quickly took command with a 12-3 spurt for a 56-45 halftime lead. The Bullets hung within striking distance until midway through the final period, when Philadelphia's fast-break attack resulted in a dunking exhibition by the Sixers.

Rockets 95, Spurs 85

Calvin Murphy led Houston with 28 points and Moses

Malone, hampered by a sprained ankle, dominated the boards in the second half as the Rockets recovered from a slow start.

Suns 96, Kings 93

Paul Westphal hit 23 points and five other Phoenix players scored in double figures as the Suns beat the Kings.

Phoenix limited the Kings to 30 percent shooting from the field in the first half and built a 41-32 lead at intermission. The Suns led by as many as 19 points in the third period and by 17 with 4:16 remaining before Phil Ford led a Kansas City rally that fell short.

The loss was the Kings' sixth in a row to Phoenix.

Sonics 120, Blazers 110

Gus Williams scored 19 of his game-high 35 points in the third quarter, making all seven of his shots in the quarter as the Sonics built a 19-point lead before a Kingdome crowd of 26,412.

Portland closed to 95-85 entering the fourth quarter and limited Seattle to just three baskets in the final period. But the Sonics stayed on top by hitting 19 of 20 free throw attempts. For the game, the Sonics were 40 of 45 from the foul line.

Billy Ray Bates, a late-season pickup from the Continental Basketball Association, led Portland with 29 points, including 19 in the second half.

Portland has now lost six of its seven meetings with Seattle this season and Blazers forward Jim Brewer summed up the situation by saying, "They're the champs until somebody beats them."

Players continue to practice, exhibition games canceled

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

It's back to Square One for most of the striking members of the Major League Baseball Players' Association — taking batting and fielding practice and possibly playing some intrasquad games just like the pre-exhibition days of spring training.

And it's on to Round Two for negotiators Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players' Association, and Ray Grebey, chief bargainer for the clubowners, who were scheduled to hold their second session with federal mediator Kenneth E. Moffett today in New York.

Having decided to cancel the last week of exhibition games but open the season as scheduled next Wednesday and give the two sides until the Memorial Day weekend to reach a settlement, the players branched out from coast to coast, with those not involved in official or informal workouts promising to stay in shape on their own.

Only two teams — the Montreal Expos and San Diego Padres — did not hold some sort of practice Wednesday. The Expos refused to work out under their coaches' supervision while the Padres voted to return to San Diego.

Some players were combining workouts with a chance for a rare April vacation.

After taking batting practice and doing his running, Boston star Carl Yastrzemski said he would work out today and Friday and then spend the Easter weekend at his Florida home.

"I'll be back Monday and be ready to accompany the team to Milwaukee for the season opener," he said.

For others, like Jack Brohamer of the Red Sox, a week without exhibitions won't make much difference.

"I'm going to sit on the bench, as usual," quipped the reserve infielder. "That's how I stay in shape during the season."

With millions of dollars at stake in the ongoing negotiations, some petty differences crept into the picture, with the owners refusing to pay room and board — a contract requires a player to participate in exhibition games — which brought gripes from some players, who will have to shell out several hundred dollars to stay in camp.

"Because we're going to work out, I think we should be reimbursed, but we won't be," said Baltimore's Mark Belanger.

And Minnesota's Mike Marshall, the Twins' player representative, said he would return home "if my expenses aren't paid."

In addition, the April 1 deadline for the players' modified proposals has passed and they are no longer on the bargaining table.

District golf begins

Pampa High golfers start the first round of District 3-AAAA play today at Amarillo Public Golf Course.

Pampa's Barry Terrell returns as the top medalist finisher from a year ago. Terrell was runner-up to Amarillo High's Bill Russell, who has since graduated. Terrell had a two-round total of 155 while Russell finished with a 149.

Pampa finished third last year in team play. AHS won last year's 36-hole tournament with a 632. Tascosa was second with a 659.

The final round of district action is slated for April 18 at the Pampa Country Club course.

The Pampa club is the site of today's first round of the girls district tournament. Amarillo High is defending champion.

Coffman leads relays

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Bob Coffman captured four of five events in the opening day of the Texas Relays decathlon to take commanding lead over the field.

Coffman won the 100-meter dash, long jump, shot put, the 400-meter dash and finished 4th in the high jump to amass 4,233 points — a meet record for the first day of competition.

Bill Blackburn of Auburn, Coffman's closest competitor, collected 3,778 points Wednesday.

The decathlon kicked off the 53rd running of the Texas Relays which runs Friday night and Saturday afternoon.

The decathlon concludes Thursday with the 110-meter hurdles, pole vault, discus, javelin and 1500-meter run.

But God commendeth His love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us.

Dodgers favored to win division

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Nolan Ryan and Joe Morgan are Houston Astros. The Los Angeles Dodgers added Dave Goltz and Don Stanhouse. Rennie Stennett, Milt May and Jim Wohlford now perform for the San Francisco Giants. The San Diego Padres signed pitchers Rick Wise and John Curtis and traded for four regulars. Chris Chambliss and Al Hrabosky are Atlanta Braves.

Only the defending champions, the Cincinnati Reds, as is their custom, stood pat in the National League West. Nevertheless, Manager John McNamara says there is "no doubt in my mind that the Reds will be even in 1980."

The main reasons for that statement, McNamara says, are outfielders George Foster and Ken Griffey, who missed 40 and 66 games, respectively, last year. "Too many people," he says, "judge improvement only by the number of free agents that a team signs. That's a mistake."

The Reds have a lot of familiar faces — pitcher Tom Seaver, catcher Johnny Bench, first baseman Dan Driessen, shortstop Dave Concepcion, third baseman Ray Knight (who hit .318 in 1979 as the replacement for departed Pete Rose) and Foster in left field.

Reserve Junior Kennedy is the likely successor to Joe Morgan at second base, while Griffey, Dave Collins and Cesar Geronimo are contesting for the other two outfield spots. Griffey, however, is coming off knee surgery and is engaged in a bitter salary battle that led the Reds to put his name on the waiver list to see who might be interested in him in a trade.

Much of the Reds' 1979 success was due to the arrival of young pitchers — starters Mike LaCoss and Frank Pastore and reliever Tom Hume. Much of the 1980 outlook depends on how well Bill Bonham recovers from the tender elbow that has plagued him for several years.

The punchless Astros, who took the Reds to the wire before finishing 1½ games out last year, added the fireballing Ryan (for a $1 million a year) to a staff that already boasted flamethrowing J.R. Richard and 21-game-winning knuckleballer Joe Niekro, with Joe Sambito in the bullpen.

The Astros have a surplus of infielders and outfielders and Manager Bill Virdon has countless lineup possibilities. Cesar Cedeno has moved back from first base to center field. That means one of last year's outfielders — Jose Cruz, Terry Puhl or Jeff Leonard — likely will switch to first base unless third baseman Enos Cabell moves there.

Catcher Alan Ashby and shortstop Craig Reynolds are fixtures but it remains to be seen how much Houston can get out of 36-year-old second baseman Morgan — if he plays second. If healthy, he could supply some much-needed power to a club that hit only 49 home runs last season and was last in the league in runs scored. They did, however, steal a league-leading 190 bases.

"The pennant race provided some needed experience for our players," says Virdon. "That should make us a better club in 1980."

The Dodgers dropped out of the race early in 1979 after two winning straight pennants, but Manager Tom Lasorda, baseball's reigning eternal optimist, insists, like Douglas MacArthur, that "we shall return."

The only undecided position is center field, where Rick Monday played only 12 games last year before undergoing Achilles tendon surgery and must contest several holdovers, plus hotshot rookie Rudy Law.

Steve Yeager and Joe Ferguson are back behind the plate. The infield, for the seventh year in a row, consists of Steve Garvey, Davey Lopes, Bill Russell and Ron Cey. Dusty Baker is in left field and Reggie Smith in right.

On the mound, starter Goltz and reliever Stanhouse were signed from the free agent re-entry pool to cure a couple of question marks. Burt Hooton, Rick Sutcliffe and Don Sutton are other starters.

In San Francisco, Dave Bristol begins his first full season as manager with a new catcher (May) and second baseman (Stennett). They won't be nearly enough unless starting pitchers Vida Blue, John Montefusco, Bob Knepper and Ed Halicki, along with right fielder Jack Clark, all bounce back from subpar years and first baseman Mike Ivie recovers from an off-season hand injury.

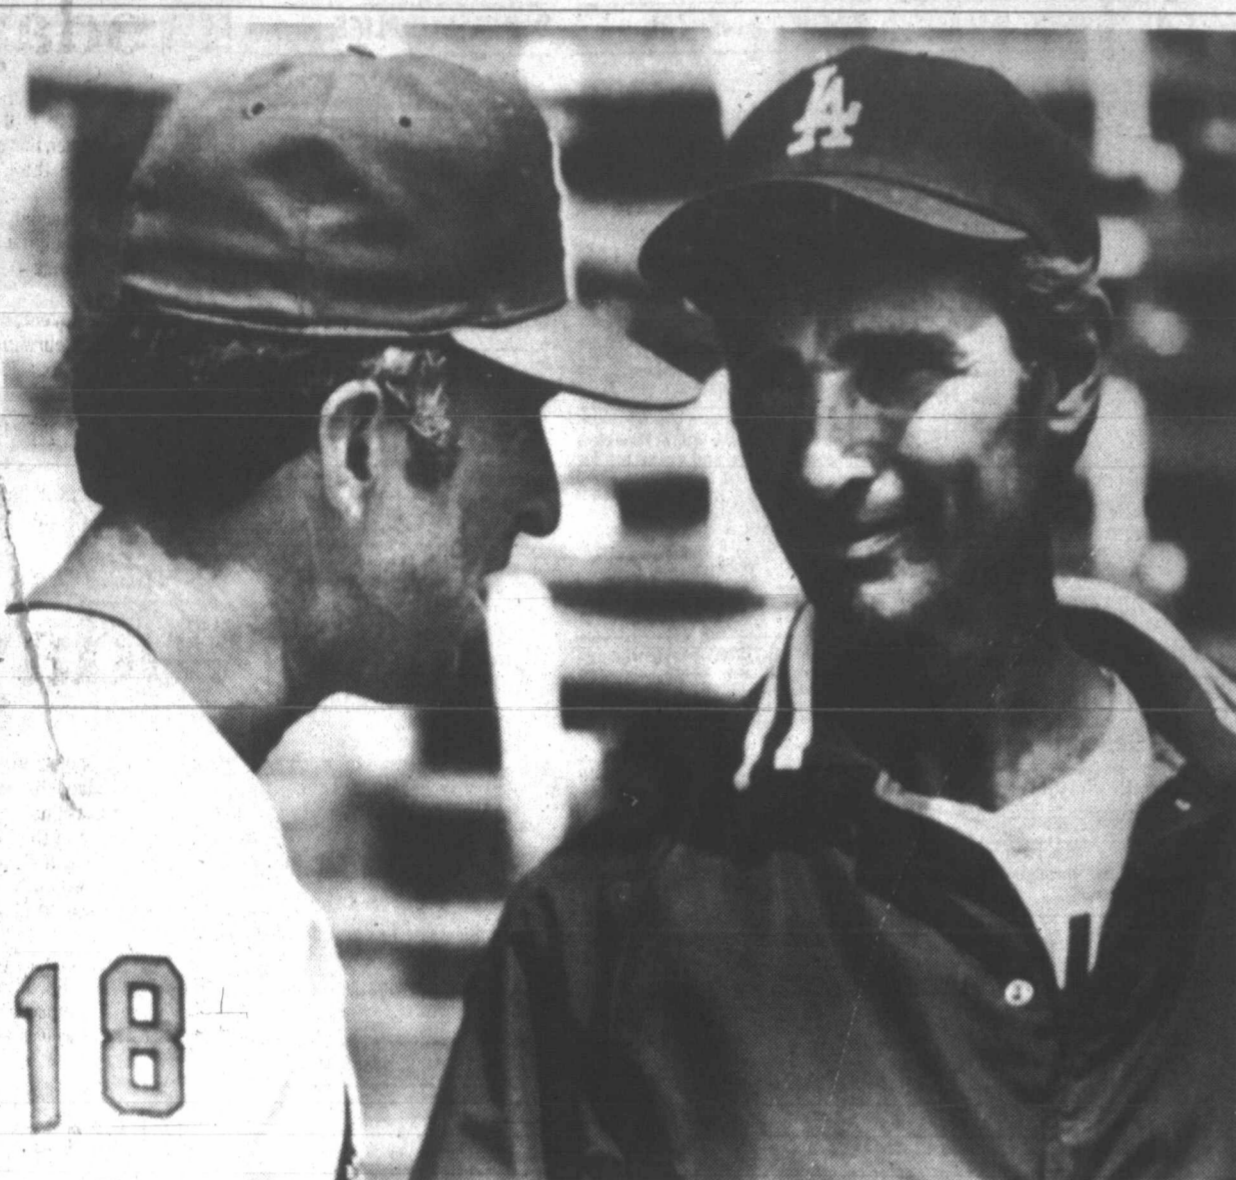

Color the Padres new, including Jerry Coleman, who was moved from the broadcasting booth to pilot with no previous managerial experience at any level. Shortstop Ozzie Smith is the only infield holdover, joining veteran newcomers Willie Montanez (1B), Dave Cash (2B) and Aurelio Rodriguez (3B).

Another newcomer, Jerry Humphrey, will be in center field, with superstar Dave Winfield in right but threatening to become a free agent after the season. For the Padres to move up, Wise and Curtis must replace Gaylord Perry and Bob Ovwchinko on the mound and starter Randy Jones and relief ace Rollie Fingers must regain their old form.

Atlanta, seeking to snap a string of four last-place finishes, has a power-laden lineup featuring right fielder Gary Matthews, third baseman Bob Horner, first baseman Chambliss and left fielder Dale Murphy (last year's first baseman), to bat behind speedy rookie Ed Miller (CF) and Jerry Royster (2B).

Prediction: Los Angeles, Cincinnati, Houston, Atlanta, San Francisco, San Diego.

NEXT: American League East.

ST. LOUIS Cardinals pitching coach Claude Osteen (left) talks with Los Angeles Dodgers pitching instructor Sandy Koufax before the two teams met in a recent exhibition game. # TV dollars bring King - Arum together again

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Boxing is coming down to the Big "Gunfight at KO Corral" but — contrary to general impressions — the principle cast won't be the ever-present Muhammad Ali, classy Larry Holmes and Mike "Hercules" Weaver, the ex-Marine with the fastest left-handed gun in the West.

They'll have important roles, for sure. But the real showdown will be between a bookish-looking New York attorney-out-of-Harvard law school named Robert Arum and a hulking one-time numbers runner in Cleveland who spent four years in a Marion, Ohio, slammer for manslaughter, Don King.

They're the power brokers. They pull the strings of big-time boxing. As controllers of the split heavyweight champions, they set the tone for the multi-million-dollar spectacles you see on TV.

They were one-time partners. They staged perhaps the biggest heavyweight fight of the generation — the Thrilla in Manila between Ali and Smokin' Joe Frazier in 1975 — but they split bitterly in a financial war.

At the time, Arum vowed: "I'll never join King in a promotion again." But he has.

Big TV bucks can make strange bedfellows and now the two are finding some accommodation in the first boxing shootout of the '80s, the Ali-Weaver fight in New Orleans' Superdome in June or early July, the winner to meet Holmes in September.

This is supposed to solidify the confused, fractured heavyweight division with its dual champions.

"Don King and I have already agreed," Arum admitted.

Arum has a three-fight lien on the services of Weaver, the game's new sensation because of the manner in which he stopped Big John Tate for the World Boxing Association version of the heavyweight crown on Monday night in Knoxville, Tenn.

Terrell lone dissenter in strike

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Spurred by deep religious convictions, Jerry Terrell, an aging utility infielder fighting for a job, has become a footnote in the history of baseball.

Still-unborn generations of trivia experts will some day recall that it was Terrell who cast the lone negative vote in the 971-1 tally by which major league players authorized a strike in 1980.

That Terrell was the union's player representative for the Kansas City Royals at the time will only add to his mystique.

Patience, the slender Terrell refuses to confirm or deny he was the lone dissenter. But a few days before union head Marvin Miller came to Kansas City's spring training complex in Fort Myers, Fla., to get the Royals' strike authorization vote, he was overheard telling a teammate: "I'll be a scab if I have to."

And a few of his teammates, while bearing him no animosity, have confided that he is indeed the lone dissenter. They also believe Terrell took his stand because of religious considerations, not because he supports the owners in their bitter dispute with players.

"I am just 1-39th of a team's opinion, and the majority feels the other way," Terrell said. "It is not hard to cast the vote. The players know my views and there is mutual respect."

A lifetime .255 hitter, Terrell came up with the Minnesota Twins in 1973, at one time or another playing every position but catcher. He signed with the Royals as a free agent in 1978, but the most significant year in his career and life, he says, was 1975.

"I'm comfortable at any position," he said. "But if I hadn't given my life over to Christ in 1975, I would have had an ulcer." Since he refuses to say whether he cast the lone anti-strike vote, it follows that he would refuse to say why he cast it.

But he stayed in Florida this week when player representatives met in Dallas to vote to cancel the rest of the exhibition season and put off a strike until May 22. Terrell's wife was in Kansas City expecting their third child any time and he wanted to be able to get home at a moment's notice.

"You know me," he said. "God first, family second and baseball is way down there third on the list."

Terrell says he's not concerned that his spot on the Royals' 25-man roster is in jeopardy.

"God doesn't care if I'm a ballplayer or a gas station attendant," he said. "Somebody should be able to use a good utility man."

Pole vaulter still in coma after fall

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Pole vaulter Chris Schnedar, who qualified for the Olympic tryouts two days before being critically injured during a workout, has undergone brain surgery in an attempt to save his life.

The 24-year-old La Jolla resident was injured Tuesday when, after descending from a vault, the back of his head hit a concrete slab near the end of the pole vault pit.

Schnedar remained in a coma Wednesday night at Alvarado Hospital and was listed in critical condition. His prognosis was poor.

"He had a great chance of making the Olympic team. With his infinite potential, he could have been a record-setter," said San Diego State University track coach Dick Hill.

On Sunday, in Walnut, Calif., Schnedar vaulted 17 feet, 3 inches, the minimum to qualify for the Olympic trials.

During the Tuesday workout at San Diego State, Schnedar landed on the back edge of the foam rubber pit. The pit collapsed and Schnedar's head hit the concrete.

Owens to be buried Friday

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Joggers, children, athletes and political officials were among the many to pass slowly by the blue casket of Jesse Owens, Olympic gold medalist who died Monday of lung cancer at 66.

Funeral services will be held Friday in Chicago. Owens' body lay in state in the Arizona Capitol Rotunda Wednesday in a casket emblazoned with an Olympic flag as religious and political leaders praised him as a champion of the black race and of humanity.

Flowers from President Carter, the U.S. Olympic Committee and youths Owens had worked with were placed around the casket as members of the Arizona Army and Air National Guard stood at attention.

"For Jesse Owens, the American dream came true in 1936 in Berlin," said Gov. Bruce Babbitt. "Then he came home. The dream fell apart. It fell apart because Jesse Owens was a black man in a white society."

But Owens overcame bigotry and racism, Babbitt said. "He showed us how to live and he showed us how to die."

Born on a sharecropper's farm in Oakville, Ala., in 1913, Owens gained acclaim when he won four gold medals at the Berlin Olympics. Adolph Hitler, using the Games as a showcase for his white-supremacy doctrine, turned his back to Owens when the medals were awarded.

There will be an Industrial League men's softball meeting at 7 p.m. Monday at Sims Electric. All league members are urged to attend.

Texas millionaire buys ski resort

HARRISONBURG, Va. (AP) — A Texas oil and ranching millionaire and a Florida resort hotel developer have bought the 3,500-acre Massanutten Village ski resort about 10 miles east of Harrisonburg.

The new owners, Curtis D. Robert of Fairfax, Va., and John R. Swaim of St. Petersburg, Fla., bought all the Massanutten Village Corp. stock earlier this week for an undisclosed sum. The sale was made public Wednesday.

The ski resort had been owned by Harrisonburg law partners Henry Clark and Stephen Bradshaw and two North Carolina businessmen. They bought the sprawling resort from Del Webb Corp. in February 1977.

Clark said Swaim operates the Beckenridge Hotel, a resort hotel in St. Petersburg that has been partially converted to time-sharing units.

Time-sharing is a concept under which owners buy a portion of a condominium. For example, one condominium can be owned by 52 individuals, each having the right to use it one week a year.

Robert and Swaim apparently became interested in Massanutten Village after learning of the ski resort's time-sharing development.

Clark attributes the recent boom in time-sharing for his group's success in keeping the resort profitable after Del Webb reportedly lost $4 million in 1974 and 1975.

Massanutten now has 46 time-sharing townhouse units completed, another four scheduled for completion in May, and 40 more scheduled to be built this year.

Clark said the new owners "are interested in continuity of operation and basically have the same goals as we did. But they intend to accelerate development."

Ron Petcher, who has been retained as general manager of the development by the new owners, said, "The acceleration of growth could entail faster construction of time-sharing units and earlier construction of overnight accommodations."

The sale came about three months after the new owners first approached Clark and Bradshaw.

REQUEST FOR PROPOSAL EMPLOYMENT TESTING, COUNSELING PROGRAM

The Panhandle Regional Planning Commission, acting as the Administrative Unit for the Texas Panhandle Employment and Training Alliance, is accepting proposals for an Employment Testing, Evaluation and Counseling Program for CETA participants. The designated purposes of the program are:

- (1) The development of a testing and evaluation system which can produce an accurate measure of the job-readiness of individuals;
- (2) predict, with a high degree of accuracy, the probability of success of an individual in any particular occupation;
- (3) the development of a training and counseling program which will teach employment and life-survival skills to individual participants; and (4) produce functional, job-ready participants for the labor market.

The focus of this program is to be directed toward CETA participants who have a work history of hard-core unemployment or are considered to be potential dropouts. The program should be operational October 1, 1980 to September 30, 1981.

Eligible applicants of this program will include agencies with the knowledge and capabilities for developing and delivering the described system; which exhibit sound fiscal management practices; and which have demonstrated an effectiveness in reaching and relating to those types of individuals described as the target group above.

Proposals must be submitted to James Barrington, CETA Administrator, Panhandle Regional Planning Commission, P.O. Box 9257, Suite 730, Amarillo Building, Third and Polk Streets, Amarillo, Texas 79106, by 5:00 p.m. on Monday, May 12, 1980. Application packages may be requested from the address listed above.

LEGAL NOTICE
On or about March 26, 1980, Pioneer Natural Gas Company ("Pioneer") a division of Pioneer Corporation, filed a Statement of Intent with the Railroad Commission of Texas proposing to increase natural gas rates to the following large volume special contract customers:
American Cotton Growers
Celanese Chemical Company
Dorchem, Inc.
Hi Plains Feed Yard, Inc.
Plainview Oil Mill, Ltd.
Lubbock Beef Processors, Inc.
Occidental Chemical Company
Tel Pro, Inc.
Texas Pipe Line Company
The proposed rate change, which has been agreed to by these customers, consists of an increase from 29.92¢ per Mcf to 33.90¢ per Mcf above Pioneer's cost of gas plus certain adjustments for changes in the Consumer Price Index. The rate change is to become effective thirty-five (35) days after filing of the aforesaid Statement of Intent, or such other date as is permitted by the Railroad Commission.
The increase will not constitute a "major change" in rates as defined in Section 4310i of Article 1448c, V.A.T.C.S., and will not affect any of Pioneer's customers other than those listed herein.
