Bids opened for library heating

Pampa city commissioners met in a special called session Thursday to open bids on a new heating and cooling system for Lovett Memorial Library.

Three bids were received, according to City Manager Mack Wofford. They were Builders Plumbing and Supply Co., Pampa — $29,898; Malcolm Hinkle, Inc., Pampa — $28,945; and Scotco Mechanical Contractors, Amarillo — $27,397. Malcolm Hinkle is the apparent low bidder at this time, he said.

Herbert Brasher, a representative of the city's architectural consultants, B. G. and R. Architects of Lubbock was present at the meeting. He will study the bids and present a recommendation at the next regular commission meeting scheduled for April 22. The bid is expected to be awarded at that meeting, Wofford said.

The majority of the funding for the new library system will come from a grant given to the city by the county, he said.

Commissioners took action on two other items during the special session:

—Final reading of an ordinance changing the Butler Nursery property from special use to office zone was approved by commissioners.

—Distribution of ballots for the April 26 bond election was completed.

Recount confirms Epperson position

Results of the April 5 Pampa Independent School Board of Trustees election are the same after an official recount committee tallied the ballots early today.

After an hour and a half of counting votes, the committee — composed of three registered voters: chairman Father Francis Hines, Wanda Talley and Bill Kindle — confirmed Saturday's election results.

Buddy Epperson was re-elected to the Place VII seat on the board with 532 votes, while opponent Bunny Nichols received 529.

The results were disputed Monday by Nichols after Saturday night's tallies showed she lost the race by three votes.

Official announcement of the results will be made at the school board meeting scheduled for April 15.

El Paso-Algerian gas talks resume

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Negotiations aimed at resuming the flow of 700 million cubic feet a day of Algerian liquefied natural gas to El Paso Co. of Houston will begin April 21, says Algeria's energy minister, Belkacem Nabi.

Sales of gas to El Paso, Algeria's largest U.S. customer, were halted last week in a dispute over prices. Algeria supplies 1.5 percent of U.S. natural gas needs.

The talks will be held between officials of Sonatrach, the Algerian government-owned oil and gas company, and Leslie J. Goldman, assistant secretary for international affairs of the U.S. Energy Department, an El Paso spokesman said Friday.

Goldman also participated in recent talks with Canada and Mexico which resulted in price increases of about 25 percent on the two countries' gas exports to the United States.

Algeria also has suspended sales of gas to the French company Gaz de France. Nabi said at a news conference Thursday night that talks would be held with the company on April 16 and 17.

Talks between Sonatrach and El Paso were suspended last week with Algeria reportedly demanding a price of $6.11 per thousand cubic feet.

El Paso had been paying $1.95 per thousand cubic feet under an agreement that expired March 31, while the new price of Canadian and Mexican gas sold to the United States has risen recently to $4.47 per thousand cubic feet.

David Mackie, an El Paso vice president, said he could not confirm the reported Algerian stand.

"They have not specifically made a demand for a certain price," Mackie said in a telephone interview from Houston.

Nabi said that Algeria suspended gas sales to the United States April 1 following a "written request" by El Paso because the company was unable to obtain U.S. government approval for a new price. The approval is necessary for the sales to continue.

The energy minister said Algeria was "defending a universally admitted principle which is the parity of gas prices with those of crude oil."

Algeria has pushed the price of its crude oil from $14.10 per 42-gallon barrel at the end of 1978 to $37.21 a barrel today.

DUSK FALLS OVER STEEL BEAMS in construction of the Pampa Youth and Community Center. The $375,000 expansion was begun in February and promises a 25,000 square foot addition that will house a racketball court, an indoor jogging track, two indoor tennis courts and one all-purpose court. The M.K. Brown Foundation donated $250,000 to the center for the initial expansion. Community donations will complete the construction costs.

Lance testifies before federal jury

ATLANTA (AP) — Former U.S. Budget Director Bert Lance, accused in a bank fraud case of misstating his collateral to obtain loans, told a federal court jury that as a banker he "lent people money on their character rather than collateral."

Lance's own character, meanwhile, got a high rating from President Carter's mother, Lillian Carter, who called him "quite a man."

Lance and Mrs. Carter were the first two witnesses Thursday as the defense launched its case.

The president's long-time friend, on trial with three associates for nearly three months, is charged with 10 counts alleging misapplication of funds in loans to friends and family and two counts alleging false statements to a bank where Lance borrowed money.

Twenty of the original 33 counts in the indictment remain to be decided by the federal court jury.

Mrs. Carter, 81, who was on the witness stand only for a few minutes, called herself a "housewife and campaigner." She said she had known Lance since 1970, when her son won election as governor of Georgia with help from the north Georgia banker.

Defense attorney Nicholas Chilivis asked Mrs. Carter if she knew Lance's "reputation for honesty, integrity and truthfulness."

"I think he has more of them than anyone I know," she said. "I think Mr. Lance is quite a man."

Lance was Carter's first budget director. But after eight months, controversy about his practices as head of two Georgia banks forced him to step down.

Prosecutors questioned 159 witnesses and brought tens of thousands of bank records into court before resting their case Wednesday. At that point, two counts were withdrawn by the government and 11 others were dismissed by U.S. District Judge Charles A. Moya Jr.

For the first time since the trial opened, the courtroom was packed with spectators, reporters and members of Lance's family as the 48-year-old former budget officer was questioned by his attorney.

He denied any wrongdoing and scoffed at government testimony about the importance to bankers of collateral and financial statements.

"I got my experience in a country bank in Georgia where you lend people money on their character rather than collateral," he said. "Given a choice between a secured loan to someone with not so good a character and an unsecured loan to someone with excellent character, I'd take the unsecured loan anytime."

An early banking experience with a cow named "Spot" was a further lesson, Lance said. The cow was collateral on a loan the borrower was unable to repay. One day, the woman arrived at the bank with her collateral and said, "Mr. Lance, here's your cow."

"I made a decision right then and there that collateral wasn't all that was cracked up to be, because I didn't need that cow and the bank needed it less," Lance said.

Shortage of working nurses seen

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The chairman of a House subcommittee looking into the problem says there is no shortage of nurses in Texas, but there is a shortage of working nurses.

"There's a lot of nurses out there, but a lot of those nurses are not practicing right now," said Rep. Bob Simpson, D-Amarillo. "Some of them with families find it's as expensive to work as it is not to work."

Simpson, whose subcommittee on shortage of nursing care heard several witnesses Thursday, said low salaries and difficult work schedules are sending many nurses home or to other jobs.

Dean Herbst, head of the College and University Coordinating board division of health affairs, agreed with Simpson.

"I'm not sure new nursing programs will solve the problem," she said. "It's possible the large pool of inactive nurses will but how do you get them back?"

Mrs. Herbst also said widening job opportunities for women have drained the pool of females entering nursing. She suggested Texas might have to look elsewhere for nurses.

"It's been suggested that more men should be recruited for nursing," she said. Simpson said the extent of the shortage is not known.

"Everybody knows there is a shortage but how big it is, it's hard to measure," he said.

Mrs. Herbst said enrollment in nursing schools dropped by 15 percent from 1977 to 1978.

vice president race. Judges declared a tie-vote between Cathy Stephenson and Terri Eads for the secretarial race. Election runoffs for the two will be announced at a later date.

student at Pampa High School, was chosen for the honor Thursday and will represent the Pampa Lions Club in district competition in Amarillo May 25.

Sirens signal thrill seekers

The city ambulance service has been hampered recently by individuals "chasing" the vehicles while on emergency runs and showing up on the scene of accidents, the emergency service officials say.
 "We've had one individual for some time showing up on scenes of accidents," Mark King of Metropolitan Ambulance Service said.
 "This person has had a habit of following where ever an ambulance is going and parking at the scenes," he said.
 Although this particular offender has been caught and cited, King said the public needed to realize that chasing emergency vehicles is against the law, besides the fact it endangers lives and hampers the personnel in their life-saving efforts.
 The Texas Motor Vehicle Laws book states: "no driver of a vehicle except on official business may follow closer than 500 feet behind an ambulance when the flashing red lights are operating. No driver of a vehicle may drive or park his vehicle at a place where the ambulance has been summoned for an emergency call in a manner calculated to interfere with the arrival or departure of the ambulance."
 Violation of this traffic law is punishable by fine.
 An ambulance supervisor will be following the emergency vehicles at sporadic times, King said, checking for violators. Anyone chasing the ambulances will be observed, he said, and the police will be contacted.

Groom Hospital closes

GROOM - Groom Memorial Hospital officials have announced the "temporary" closing of its osteopathic facilities after 20 years of service to the small Panhandle community.
 The last patient has been dismissed, Administrator Sam Fowler said.
 "No one thing" was given as the reason for closing, he said, listing the illness of the main physician, loss of the resident physician and the diminishing number of patients being admitted to the hospital.
 "We're in hopes of it not being permanent," he said. "We're expecting a firm answer from a doctor within two weeks, although it will take longer than that to be open again."
 Fowler said the facility hopes to tie in with Southwest Osteopathic Hospital of Amarillo in the near future.
 "We're just starting from scratch," he said.

police report

The Pampa Police Department responded to 50 calls during the 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. today. Arrests made were results of investigation of reports involving charges of carrying a prohibited weapon and driving while intoxicated. Investigations were conducted as a result of reports of theft and breaking and entering.

Larry Dale Quisenberry, 23, 612 Bradley Dr., was arrested at a store in the 1000 block of North Hobart on charges of carrying a prohibited weapon, carrying a weapon on licensed premises and public intoxication.

Evelyn Frederick, a clerk at a convenience store in the 300 block of North Hobart, reported someone — possibly in a red vehicle — had taken $7.27 worth of gasoline from a pump and drove off without paying. The clerk said the pump had not been turned on inside the store and it was unknown how suspects were able to turn pump from the outside.

Mike N. Silva, 62, of 902 E. Scott was arrested at 600 Henry on charges of driving while intoxicated.

A spokesperson for Radio Shack, 1820 N. Hobart reported at 7 p.m. on April 7, someone removed a green bank deposit bag with four stamped and addressed letters and six miscellaneous checks. Police reports indicated all checks had been stopped. The store loss was listed as zero.

W. D. Diffe, 626 E. Denver, reported someone had cut a water heater door in half and left his trailer door unlocked. Nothing appeared to be missing. Damage was estimated at $30.

Janel Bevel, 37, 1301 N. Hobart, reported the theft of her brown billfold. Officers' reports indicate the woman was at work at the time the alleged theft occurred. She told officers she heard the back door slam around 4:40 p.m. After checking the premises, she discovered the billfold was missing.

The billfold contained credit cards, a Texas drivers license, miscellaneous pictures and $15. Loss was estimated at $21. One suspect was listed.

The spokesperson for Pampa Auto Center, 126 S. Houston, reported the theft of tires and wheels from his 1974 Vega. The items were valued at $150.

Christine Winborne, Pampa, told police she purchased a 1968 Buick from a person who was allegedly using a false name. The subject, according to the report given police, took the car after receiving money from Ms. Winborne.

Margaret Miller, 1209 S. Farley, reported the theft of two rolls of barbed wire from the north side of her residence. Value of the wire was estimated at $30.

Members of White Deer Junior High School Little Bucks and Little Does athletic teams will be honored Saturday with an All Sports Banquet in the school cafeteria. Athletes, parents and guests will meet at 6:30 p.m. Following the banquet, awards to individuals will be presented by coaches, Dwight Huffman and Terry Cox. Members of boys and girls basketball teams and track teams will be honored as well as the football team.

Lefors Donors Pool blood supply depleted

A volunteer group of Lefors residents has scheduled a blood drive for the city to meet projected needs of local residents.
 Formed four years ago, the Donors Pool has served the community on a volunteer basis.
 Coffee Memorial Blood Bank, Amarillo, will have a mobile unit in Lefors April 14 from 4:30 p.m. until 6:30 p.m. Blood donors are urged to take part in the drive to replenish the credit of the community's pool.
 According to a project coordinator, Irene Moxon, the credit supply of blood has been depleted due to large needs by local residents within the last six months.

Under the plan for the Donors Pool, any resident may participate and designate useage of the blood. A donor may designate a unit of blood is for a specific person; initiate a policy which will benefit the donor and family for one year, or a donor can designate a unit of blood to the pool for use by any resident.
 Ms. Moxon stated new residents in the community are particularly encouraged to join in the project. She also stated several requests for whole blood have been denied during the last few months because of the depleted supply.
 Any person wishing to obtain additional information is encouraged to call Ms. Moxon at 835-2724 or Ray Gossett at 835-2378.

Absentee voting on bond issue begins

Absentee voting began today in the $4.8 million street improvement bond election scheduled for April 26.
 Registered voters may vote absentee in the Finance Office at city hall from 8 a.m. to 12 noon and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. until April 22, election official Pat Eades said.
 City fathers are calling for almost $5 million in general obligation bonds to be used in a major street and sewer renovation program. The total amount will be divided to an estimated $4,480,000 for street improvements and $320,000 to be used to implement a more effective sewer system.
 The capital improvement project will include renovation and resurfacing of 11 major arterials within the city; improvement of a number of street intersections, and construction of two major sewer mains within an area recently annexed to the western portion of the city.

 City figures predict an 8.9 percent increase in the ad valorem tax rate.
 To amortize the existing debt and the new debt incurred by the program, City Manager Mack Wofford said, it will take a 19-cent increase, from 77 cents on the $100 property evaluation, to 96 cents on the $100.

Simple assault on child nets Pampan fine

A Pampa man was convicted and fined for committing simple assault on an 11-month old child by Judge Gene Martindale in city court proceedings Thursday.
 John Woodard, 33, of 412 Craven pleaded guilty to simple assaults charges resulting from a spanking he gave the daughter of Debbie Lomeli, 2313 Rosewood, while he was baby-sitting the infant.
 The mother filed a complaint with the city police department after she returned to pickup her child and found dark bruises on the baby's buttocks. Juvenile Officer Ron Howell said, The injuries, he said, looked like they had been done by a "hand or a paddle".
 Woodard admitted to committing the assault, he said, giving as a reason: "the baby was crying and would not stop".
 The man was arrested Thursday morning by the juvenile officer.

Federal charges eyed in Oklahoma kidnap

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Oklahoma County District Attorney Andrew Coats was meeting with U.S. Attorney Larry Patton to determine whether charges might be filed against Nathan Edward Cowger on the federal level or state level or in both courts.

Cowger is being held in Akron, Ohio, awaiting an April 16 removal hearing in federal court on extortion charges filed in connection with the alleged kidnap-death of 88-year-old Ella Shelton.

Cowger is expected to be returned sometime early next week, an assistant district attorney said.

"(Next) Friday morning some grand jury proceeding will be held," Arlene Joplin, Oklahoma County first assistant district attorney, said.

On Thursday, Dr. Allen Jones, forensic pathologist with the state medical examiner's office, said the elderly woman's body, which was in an advanced state of decomposition, had not been shot or stabbed. He speculated Mrs. Shelton could have died from a combination of her age, exposure, shock at what was happening to her and being gagged, which may have blocked her air.

Mrs. Shelton disappeared from her home in the suburb of The Village on March 23. A ransom was paid by her bank executive daughter, but no trace of the woman was ever found until her body was discovered on Wednesday.

Jones estimated she died shortly after being left in the remote area. Edmond Pistey, FBI agent in charge of Oklahoma, said it is believed Mrs. Shelton was taken to the area of her death the day of the kidnapping.

Cowger, 25, of suburban Midwest City, was arrested Saturday in Youngstown, Ohio, while preparing to board a plane for Chicago.

FBI agents and local officers found Mrs. Shelton's body Wednesday, 27 days after her disappearance. They said her hands and feet were bound with tape and the body was clothed in a blue bathrobe. She was lying on her back in a field with her legs secured to a slender hickory tree, officers said.

Her body was identified by dental and medical records and by comparing an X-ray of the woman's spine, the medical examiner's office said.

Mrs. Shelton's daughter, Jewell Shelton, followed the instructions of a telephone caller and delivered a $25,000 ransom to Denton, Texas, where the FBI said it was picked up near the North Texas State University campus.

The FBI said a portion of the ransom was recovered when Cowger was arrested.

"I'm satisfied we at the county level are the only ones with the death penalty in this case," Coats said.

Coffee beans to be seized by FDA order

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The U.S. Food and Drug Administration has ordered the seizure of $20 million worth of coffee beans contaminated by a poisonous industrial chemical, officials said.

The coffee beans were contaminated three weeks ago when bags of antimony trioxide broke open at the Jacksonville Port Authority warehouse where it was being stored. The coffee has been kept under lock since the contamination was discovered two weeks ago.

The Jacksonville Times-Union reported that the Florida Department of Agriculture also has ordered a halt to sales of "large amounts" of coffee already processed at the Maxwell House plant here.

It was unknown whether any of the coffee has reached supermarket shelves.

Toronado victims slow to forget

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — Last week, almost on the anniversary of 1979's killer tornado, warning sirens whined again as black clouds came rolling toward town from the west.

"I didn't panic," said Mona Brake. "I just slowly started to cry."

Mona, 22, remembers April 10, 1979, the day a triple-tailed twister roared through Wichita Falls, killing 46 persons. The storm took both her legs and her marriage.

Ron and Mona Brake were on their way to a homemakers' class at a shopping center that night. They drove right into the path of the storm.

Mona's legs were crushed, and both were amputated. For days, doctors were not even sure she would live, but she has been fitted with artificial limbs, gone through six months' rehabilitation, bought a new car and gone to work full-time as a secretary.

"I thought she'd be dependent on us for everything," said Mona's mother, Wanda Brockman. "But she's not. She's so independent."

She also has moved in with her parents and filed for divorce.

"It was a marriage like any other marriage," she said of her five years with Ron, 24, her high-school sweetheart. "It had some pressures, some problems. This (the tornado) just triggered it."

Ron has had 16 operations

White named chairman of Pampa United Way

The Board of Directors of the Pampa United Way announced the appointment of Charles M. "Chuck" White as Campaign Chairman of the 1980 United Way drive. White is the Marketing Manager for the Machinery Division of Cabot Corporation.

In guiding the 1980 campaign, he will work with and coordinate the efforts of the Chairmen of the Major Gifts Division, Special Gifts Division, Employee Gifts Division and General Gifts Division.

Other members of the United Way Board of Directors for this year are: Ray F. Hupp Sr., Chairman of the Board; Warren Fatheree, President; Jack Alexander, Vice President; Phil Gentry, Treasurer; and members Jerry Noles, Milo Carlson, Reed Echols, Vic Raymond, Al Miller, Dr. Ron Hendricks, Dick Stowers, Bob Curry, Darlene Birkes, Joe Gidden, and Steve McCullough.

The 1980 United Way Drive will begin September 22, ending on November 3.

Gene transplants considered as inherited disease treatment

NEW YORK (AP) — A new technique for inserting a substitute gene into a living animal may foreshadow direct genetic treatment for sickle cell anemia and other inherited blood disorders, scientists say.

Scientists at the University of California at Los Angeles said Thursday they inserted a new gene into cells from the bone marrow of mice and then proved the gene could function when the cells were reintroduced into living animals.

But when these cells were put back in living mice, they multiplied to fill 70 percent or more of the bone marrow as long as the mice were kept on small regular doses of methotrexate.

This happened because the new cells, which could withstand the drug, had a competitive advantage over the normal bone marrow cells, which were more susceptible to the drug, Cline said.

He said the technique might be used eventually to help cancer patients tolerate higher doses of drugs.

But potentially more important, Cline said, was its possible use to treat sickle cell anemia, thalassemia and other diseases where a gene defect prevents the bone marrow from making normal blood cells.

To do this, doctors would take cells from the patient's own bone marrow and insert two new genes — one to correct the defect and the other for resistance to some drug. The cells would then be put back and the patient would take small regular doses of the drug.

Over many months, the new cells with the healthy gene would gradually replace the patient's own genetically defective cells because of the competitive advantage of drug resistance.

This is the first demonstration that one can put new genes into the cells of living animals," said Dr. Martin J. Cline of the UCLA School of Medicine, who headed the experiments.

"The genes that one could put in might have a variety of uses. They could be useful in treating genetic disease, or they may improve the treatment of cancer where the bone marrow is a target of (anti-cancer) drugs," he said.

"If I had to guess I would say clinical (human) trials could begin in three years" if all goes well, he said.

Cline, Winston Salsler, Karen Mercola, Howard Stang and co-workers reported their work in the British scientific magazine Nature.

The UCLA scientists used a recombinant DNA technique developed by Richard Axel of New York's Columbia University to insert into mouse cells a gene for resistance to the anti-cancer drug methotrexate.

Like most anti-cancer drugs, methotrexate has the bad side effect of attacking vital bone marrow cells that renew the blood.

Only a few of the mouse cells picked up the drug-resistance

BEING SMART HURTS
MANHASSET, N.Y. (AP) — Sometimes one can be so smart that it hurts.

According to the Gifted Child Center here, intellectually gifted children can become isolated, combative and lack an acceptable self image, if they are not identified early by schools and parents.

"Sometimes a gifted child will show critical observation, which could intimidate and threaten teachers and fellow students," said the center's Dr. Muriel Belsky. "These children need to be identified, so they may be understood."

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Covenanted Commandment.

Taxpayer vigilance important

A good reason for Texans to be especially watchful over state officials in the months ahead is the state budget that is to be written by the legislature in 1981.

If there is a turn toward extravagance which seems to be indicated in much of the political palaver now prevalent in the state, the legislature could spend us blind.

One should give much thought now to the demands that are shaping up to be made on the state's budget writers in 1981. According to the Texas Association of Taxpayers, salaries will be in the vanguard of the budget battle. And one can be assured even now there is going to be a battle and a lot of side skirmishes.

The TAT reports that budget writing in the 1981-82 session will be tougher than it has been for the past four seasons. "with the crunch largely due to inflation. The 13-plus percent inflation rate has increased the dollars needed to maintain existing state programs... and slowed the growth of the state's most productive tax, the sales tax, as consumers have shifted from taxable items to tax-exempt essentials such as food."

It is enough to cause cold shivers to run up and down the spines of the government spenders to say the state may have to take a lesson from the taxpayers who already have turned to buying largely only the essentials and perhaps doing without some of them.

The TAT reports that "salaries in particular are going to be a difficult issue. Inflation has withered the salary increases given to teachers, college faculty, and state employees this biennium. Heavy pressure is building for more sizeable increases for the next biennium." That, of course, is bad news for the taxpayers who have in recent months been counting fewer increases if any in wages.

Major spending increases already being discussed, the TAT says, are:

—A half-billion-dollar increase in formula funding for colleges and universities recommended by the College and University Coordinating Board, including a 20.1 percent increase for faculty salaries in 1982 and 12.6 percent in 1983. (The first year increase would include what is termed a 7.5 percent inflation catchup, which a lot of taxpayers would like to have, too, but are not likely to get.)

—A Pay and benefit plan for state employees being sought by The Texas Public Employees Association which would cost an estimated $430 to $590 million.

—A $700 million to $1.4 billion increase in spending for public education, for built-in increases plus a 5 to 12 percent a year inflation adjustment. (Although the Texas State Teachers Association has not yet set its salary request, the TAT says, it will be asking the legislature for a statewide group health insurance program estimated to cost another $290 million per biennium.)

These increases alone would amount to from $1.9 billion to $2.8 billion, the TAT estimates. It points out that an increase in the draw from general revenues for highways also appears to be likely. "due to flattening in the growth of motor fuel tax revenues. For example, a 20 percent biennium to biennium increase in this draw would add nearly $500 million." This, the TAT says, would bring the total to from $2.4 billion to $3.3 billion with only a relatively small amount reflecting increased services or increased benefits for employees. It adds, "Most of this money would be aimed simply at keeping pace with inflation, and not all areas of state government are included in this tally!"

Austerity in government operation and exercise of strong fiscal responsibility during the next biennium should be demanded by the taxpayers. Government spending, which has contributed greatly to our inflation woes must be curtailed.

Those peace missions

When a president's popularity ratings begin to sink, the conventional wisdom goes, a president contrives a trip abroad. Preferably on a "peace mission." The news footage of ecstatic, Old-Glory waving throngs in some distant capital, the front-page embraces with foreign chiefs of state, the grandeur of some jointly-issued but meaningless communique — such items are positively boffo, routinely yielding the desired effect of voter gratitude at home.

Jimmy Carter enjoys the luxury of not having to go abroad. All the endangered president need do now is reinvolve the nostalgic "spirit of Camp David," whence, somewhere along the way in his early administration, he brought together Israel's Menachem Begin and Egypt's Anwar Sadat. That managed to rescue his popularity at the time, although most Americans did not realize that the two Middle Eastern adversaries commenced their courtship out of desperation. President Carter had so botched Middle Eastern diplomacy — including inviting the banished Soviets back into the discussions — that Sadat and Begin HAD to do something.

Still, Camp David was popularly pictured as a brilliant diplomatic masterstroke orchestrated by an unfairly underrated Jimmy Carter. So powerful was the magic of Camp David that, three years into his administration, in the pits of popularity, he went back "up the mountain," and, marooning himself for a mysterious fortnight, pronounced his administration a failure. Before God and everybody, he would start afresh. He would bring into his administration new talent, new ideas. Anybody who doubted the nobility of his intentions was the sort of blackguard who would aim a peashooter at Moses.

Camp David, once again, worked a little of the old magic: even so, a few more Americans than normal began to give play to the blackguard's impulse. The suspicion that we had a non compos mentis president, even in the midst of swelling public approval, began to catch on.

A few days ago a surprised Anwar Sadat and an equally astonished Menachem Begin each received a call from the White House. It was Jimmy. An invitation. Y'all come back now to Camp David; it's time for another mountain-top barbecue. Rosalynn, Ham, Jody and the boys — we all enjoyed the negotiati'n' so much last time that we thought we'd have another go-round.

To what purpose? The issue of Israeli-occupied territory is no less intractable than it was a few months ago, before a likely GOP presidential challenger who's been taking articulate snipes at the disastrous Carter foreign policy looked so formidable. The Palestinian question is no more urgent than it ever was. The only thing changed is the disarray brought on by the administration vote to censure Israel at the UN a few weeks back, a vote administration officials explained as a snafu. There are still ruffled feathers in the American Jewish community about that one.

The need for Jimmy Carter to try to pick up his political fortunes is transparent. The need for the old Camp David magic is so patently obvious that Sadat and Begin, who have better things to do and every reason in the world not to revivify the Carter administration, should be dissuaded from attending. At least we hope the peashooter manufacturers can make a few inflated dollars out of this.

Airway Trust Fund "a mess"

By Robert Walters
(First of two related columns)
WASHINGTON (NEA) - The federal government's system of financing critical programs to promote aviation safety is "completely messed up."

That astonishing admission comes from a man who ought to know — Langhorne M. Bond, head of the Federal Aviation Administration, the government agency principally responsible for the integrity and safety of air transportation.

When Bond was pressed at a recent congressional hearing to explain and justify the controversial method used to fund air-safety improvements, he candidly acknowledged that "this whole system is a mess."

The most scandalous aspect of the situation involves the Airport and Airways Trust Fund, established by law in 1970 specifically to collect the money necessary to finance safety advances and other improvements in the nation's complex civil-aviation system.

Approximately 85 percent of the trust fund's annual income comes from the proceeds of an 8 percent federal tax imposed on all airline passenger tickets, with the remainder of the receipts derived from similar taxes on aircraft tires and tubes, air cargo waybills and fuel used by "general aviation" non-commercial planes.

With the entire field of aviation booming and passenger ticket prices soaring because of escalating fuel costs, the already wealthy trust fund continues to grow every year.

Last Oct. 1, the beginning of the current fiscal year, the fund balance was more than $2.7 billion. It is expected to grow to more than $3.5 billion for the end of the fiscal year, with similar increases projected for future years.

There is virtual unanimity within the aviation community that much of the money could be wisely spent on airport "navigational aids" — devices to enhance the safety of take-offs and landings, the most critical and accident-prone segments of any flight.

When Bond testified at the recent hearing, he described the recent fly-by-the-seat-for-your-pants conditions that exist today at approximately 300 airports throughout the country served exclusively by commuter airlines.

"Sixty-seven percent do not have visual approach slope indicators installed, 87 percent do not have an instrument landing system, 92 percent are not served by a tower, 67 percent do not have radar approach control provided."

"Ninety-nine percent do not have airport surveillance radar, 88 percent do not have approach lights and 73 percent do not have runway and identification lights."

Even though all of that equipment is readily available for installation and its safety value is undisputed, more than half of the commuter airports have none of the precision aids.

Why have three consecutive administrations — headed by Presidents Richard M. Nixon, Gerald R. Ford and Jimmy Carter — refused to release trust-fund money to finance installation of basic safety equipment that could prevent fatal accidents?

Because the trust fund technically is part of the government's "unified budget," and consolidating its surplus and revenues with other federal funds helps to artificially enhance the appearance of a very shaky federal budget.

Although Congress clearly intended that the money be used for airline safety, the White House and its Office of Management and Budget don't have to segregate the revenues for that purpose because the applicable legislation doesn't require such earmarking.

The phrase "trust fund" has become little more than a misnamed bookkeeping device. The money goes into the government's general fund and all the trust fund receives is a certificate of indebtedness — a fancy name for an IOU with no fixed interest rates nor repayment terms.

"If a private trust fund were administered the way the government runs the Airport and Airways Trust Fund," says one federal official who requests anonymity, "the trustees would end up in prison."

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, April 11, the 102nd day of 1980. There are 264 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On April 11, 1951, President Harry Truman relieved Gen. Douglas MacArthur of his command in the Far East.

On this date:

In 1814, Napoleon Bonaparte abdicated unconditionally as emperor of France and was banished to the island of Elba.

In 1899, the Philippine Islands were transferred from Spain to the United States.

In 1973, World War II Nazi official Martin Bormann was officially declared dead and taken off West Germany's "most wanted" list.

In 1978, Israeli forces began withdrawing from part of southern Lebanon in the first move toward compliance with United Nations call for complete withdrawal.

Ten years ago, New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller signed a liberalized abortion law for his state.

Five years ago, the United States announced the closing of its embassy in Phnom Penh and the evacuation of hundreds of Americans and Cambodians from the communist-encircled Cambodian capital.

Last year, rescue workers began sifting through the near-total devastation of Wichita Falls, Texas, caused by a tornado the day before.

Today's birthdays: New York Gov. Hugh Carey is 61. Ethel Kennedy is 52.

Where have all the young men gone?

by Paul Harvey

While the eyes of the news have been focused on hostages held in embassies in Tehran and Bogota...

While indignant, impatient armchair strategists have been demanding that we "do something about it... storm the embassy... whatever it takes..."

A woman reporter in suburban Chicago, Harriet Vrba, thought it a timely time to remind her readers that military intervention has a hidden cost. It is a price that has to be paid after the war is over — a continuing cost which we all try to ignore.

It is a cost in blindness and paralysis and leglessness and armlessness and endless anguish that we carefully sweep behind the lawnscape facades of veterans hospitals and try to forget.

During our miserable misadventure in Vietnam 8,911,000 splendid young Americans were mobilized. 2.8 million were actually involved in what the Pentagon likes to call "the theater" of that war.

Most of them were between the ages of 18 and 20.

That is a critical period in the psychological development of a boy-man. From 20 to 30 percent of those who came home have not been able to readjust. Much of the problem relates to the unwelcome which many veterans of that war received when they returned.

Instead of being hailed "heroes," many were taunted with epithets: "Butcher," "rapist," "baby-killer."

Of those who were married before going to Vietnam, 30 percent are divorced.

Then there are the physical scars of war. And this is more than I can bring myself to describe in any degree of graphicness.

If a Veterans' Administration hospital is depressing when you visit — for each of tens of thousands therein imprisoned by his hurts — the nights are filled with anxiety, depression, loneliness, fear, confusion and flashbacks that won't quit.

There are those on their bellies or their backs for however many long years a life sentence lasts.

There are those so misshapen even after a dozen operations that they cannot face a mirror and will not face a relative.

Reporter Vrba talked to a former Marine sergeant, sent to "Nam" when he was 19, involved almost immediately in the Tet offensive — all of it.

He did what he had to do, came home to be pilloried for it.

He can't take orders anymore; can't work for anyone; hides his ribbons — physically whole but an emotional cripple.

While the Pentagon contemplates military countermeasures and the Congress contemplates draft registration and each consideration gets reduced to numbers...

Perhaps it is an appropriate time to remember these: 172 V.A. hospitals. Six billion dollars. Last year 18 million outpatient visits. And inside — perhaps permanently — 110,000 of what once were our strongest and best and most promising.

Reagan's win strategy

By Robert J. Wagman

WASHINGTON (NEA) - As far as the Reagan camp is concerned, the primaries are over. Ronald Reagan may suffer several more setbacks along the way to Detroit, but the nomination is his, say his followers.

This means they now can turn their attention to November and Jimmy Carter. They believe they will win that election. Here is how:

In 1976, Gerald Ford came within a whisker of remaining in the Oval Office.

Jimmy Carter got 297 electoral votes by winning most of the states east of the Mississippi plus Texas, while Ford tallied 240 electoral votes by taking every state in the West save Hawaii and also winning Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and New Jersey. Had the vote turned around in just a few states, Ford would be in the White House still.

The Reagan forces think they can win in November by holding most of those states won by Ford and adding a few he narrowly lost.

Of the states that went to Carter in '76, the Reagan forces are confident they can take Texas (with 26 electoral votes) and several other Southern states, such as Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, North Carolina, West Virginia and Missouri.

If they can hold the states that went Republican in 1976, this shift of about 45 electoral votes would be enough to give Reagan a victory.

But can they hold the Ford states? As they now see it, Illinois is the Ford state they'll most likely lose. Although far from ready to concede the state to Carter, they admit it will be an uphill battle. But Texas would be an even trade with Illinois (also 26 electoral votes).

Reagan's people believe the key lies with four traditionally Democratic states that Ford won in 1976: California, New Jersey, Michigan and Indiana. If they can hold three of them, they say, then the expected gains in the Southern and border states would be enough.

California is the biggest prize with 45 electoral votes. Although the state is nominally Democratic, Mike Curb, a Republican running for lieutenant governor, received more votes than re-elected Gov. Jerry Brown during the last state-wide election in 1978.

Reagan had little trouble carrying the state in his races for governor, and no state has been harder hit by the current economic problems. Reagan's people say that, of the four, California will be the easiest to hold.

Indiana is also nominally Democratic. But politics in Indiana are becoming increasingly conservative, and the state did elect Republican Richard Lugar to the Senate in 1976.

Reagan's conservative politics will appeal to many in Indiana who call themselves Democrats, his strategists say, and he will hold the state.

New Jersey may well become a critical state for Reagan in November. Ford carried it by less than 1 percent in 1976. While the state is solidly Democratic, having re-elected Brendan Byrne as its governor two years ago despite his spotty record, it is becoming more conservative and is susceptible to economic ills.

Because the economy will form the basis for Reagan's challenge, his people say they have better than a fighting chance in New Jersey.

Michigan, too, is a Democratic stronghold. It probably went to Ford in 1976 only because he is a native son. But Reagan's protectionist trade arguments will win a lot of points with those in the auto industry (especially if a third of the workers are laid off by November, as some predict). The Reagan forces have great hopes for Michigan, but admit it will be a fight.

The Reagan people are aware their choice of a running mate might make the difference in some of the swing states. For instance, Howard Baker on the ticket could deliver Tennessee, which went to Carter in 1976, and make a big difference in several other border states. So, they will choose their vice-presidential nominee carefully.

Most of Reagan's key advisers are champing at the bit to get started with the campaign. They expect the press to label Reagan an underdog, but they say they can win and think they know just how to go about it. They can hardly wait.

'Truth-in-advertising' proposed rule for insurance companies

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A housing project resident says it's bad enough that she pays $38 out of her $140 monthly income for insurance, but what really bugs her is deception by fast-talking agents.

"The worst part of the problem often is that the agent doesn't explain that the policy pays off only if you are flying on the Goodyear blimp or riding a rickshaw in China," Willo Hardin told the State Insurance Board on Thursday.

The board heard a day of testimony from consumerists and insurance men on its proposed "truth-in-advertising" rules and will decide later whether to put them into effect.

Mrs. Hardin, speaking for the Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now, said poor people buy life insurance policies whose premiums are collected door-to-door by agents.

"Some people may prefer home collection but they should be told it will cost more," she said.

Nell Hahn, attorney for Acorn, urged the board to add to the rules a requirement that advertising for such coverage — called "industrial life" — should disclose the additional cost policyholders must pay because of at-home collection of premiums.

Insurance men generally criticized the rules because they differ from model rules recommended by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC) and adopted by 36 states.

They also objected to regulating all forms of insurance advertising — life, health, auto and homeowners — in one set of regulations.

Several asked the board to scrap the rules — three years in the making — and appoint an advisory committee of insurance men and board staffers to write new ones.

Joe Peel of the Health Insurance Association of America objected because the rules lack an NAIC provision saying an ad is not deceptive unless its "overall impression" tends to mislead.

"In proposing these rules, you have gone beyond being a rubber stamp for any kind of uniform rule," said Susan Kelley of Austin, attorney for the Senior Citizens Legal Project.

The proposed rules include these:

- Advertisements could not come in the guise of mailings from state or federal agencies, and advertisements styled as "important notices" to Medicare recipients would automatically be considered deceptive.
- Medi-Gap advertising must specify whether the coverage supplements Medicare part A or part B.
- Health insurance advertising must spell out anything that would dilute or delay coverage, such as waiting periods before a policy takes effect or exclusions of ailments that existed at the time coverage was purchased.
- Life insurance or annuity ads may not use words like "savings" or "investment" that imply a policy is more than what it is.
- Policy limitations may not be phrased in a "positive manner" that imply they are benefits, such as calling a waiting period a "benefit builder."

CONSERVE ENERGY

Dialysis funds now available

Almost every person in the Pampa area who has permanent kidney failure and needs maintenance dialysis treatment or a kidney transplant is eligible for Medicare health insurance, Howard Weatherly, social security manager in Pampa, said recently.

Medicare helps pay for kidney transplant surgery and related inpatient hospital services. It also covers outpatient maintenance dialysis and helps pay for doctors' services, including surgeons' services for transplants, outpatient self-dialysis training, and home dialysis equipment, supplies and periodic support services. Medicare also helps cover the costs of a donor for kidney transplants.

To be eligible for Medicare due to kidney failure, a person must have worked under social security long enough to be insured, from 1 1/2 to 7 1/4 years, depending on age, or be the wife, husband, or dependent child of an insured worker.

Medicare generally ends 12 months after a person no longer requires maintenance dialysis treatments or 36 months following a kidney transplant. Medicare can, however, be resumed if the transplant fails.

Anyone with permanent kidney failure who is not covered by Medicare should apply at the Pampa social security office.

West Virginia's New River — despite its name — is actually the oldest river in North America. It has maintained its ancient course for a hundred million years. It is also probably the most concentrated dose of white water in the United States — with 21 major rapids in one 15-mile stretch.

Iranian flight students leave Texas air bases

By The Associated Press
More than 40 Iranian military pilot trainees stationed in Wichita Falls and Lubbock have flown from their temporary homes in Texas, some reportedly en route to Iran.

President Carter ordered all military trainees out of the country by Friday after severing diplomatic ties with Iran. More than 200 trainees were stationed in the United States, 99 in Texas.

The movement of 38 trainees stationed at Sheppard Air Force Base in Wichita Falls was kept under official wraps. But a reporter for the Wichita Falls Times and Record-News said all had departed by noon Thursday, some leaving in their own cars.

Col. Richard A. Ingram at Reese Air Force Base in Lubbock said the three pilots stationed there left Thursday for Houston where they would catch a plane for London, then Tehran.

Most travel plans were kept secret at the request of the Iranians, said Lt. Col. Ali Jan Sargazi, the ranking Iranian air force officer in the United States. He said all would be out of the U.S. by today's deadline.

"I regret that we're leaving the country under these circumstances," said Sargazi. "I'm deeply concerned about the welfare of the people under my command, and I want to get them home as quickly and safely as possible."

"Therefore, I must decline to make public our departure schedule or travel plans."

Two of the Iranians are assigned to the Naval Air Station at Corpus Christi, three are assigned to Reese Air Force Base at Lubbock, 38 are at Sheppard Air Force Base in Wichita Falls, and 56 Iranians are at Laughlin Air Force Base, Del Rio.

The Air Force has assigned liaison officers to help any Iranian students who may choose to stay.

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) — This western Massachusetts college town has no massage parlors, but just the thought of one — its neon sign flashing something like "All Girl Massage" — makes Debra Waldron mad.

"If one of them ever comes here, it'll be over my dead body," vows Ms. Waldron, herself a 27-year-old masseuse, or as she prefers, massage therapist.

She says massage is an ancient and vital form of physical therapy, "a way to make people feel good that's legal and has no side effects."

But on television, along highways and in pornographic novels, massage has become a codeword for impersonal, commercial sex.

That bothers other professionals such as Karen Korvitz, founder of a massage salon for women in Boston, who declares that "it's time to bring massage out of the alley" and redeem its tarnished reputation.

The 1,500-member American Massage and Therapy Association has launched a campaign to get states to regulate massage therapists as they do doctors, lawyers or hairdressers. And it is trying to bury massage's X-rated, den-of-sin reputation, a big task, members say.

Sex is not part of the service offered by Ms. Waldron, whose clients have ranged from businessmen to long-distance runners to the handicapped. For her, "massage is for everyone."

But she and another Amherst massage therapist, Patricia Wachter, complain that in Massachusetts, as in most states, massage is not a licensed physical therapy.

Anyone who satisfies local ordinances, which often require no more than a business license can hang out a sign advertising massage. The familiar neon-sign offers of "Full Body Massage" or "Topless Staff" have made massage synonymous with sex in some minds.

In the 11 states that regulate massage, sex businesses have been forced to use euphemistic descriptions that do not mention massage.

But in the many jurisdictions where massage is either unregulated or covered by weak local laws, massage parlors have hurt legitimate practitioners and discouraged young people from becoming massage therapists, according to Thomas Fink of York, Pa., former massage association president.

The association's own campaign for regulation has been hampered by the sunset legislation movement, which hopes to reduce the number and power of various state boards which regulate occupations such as hairdressing and dance teaching.

Sometimes, massage parlor owners use their political and economic influence to block such reform. AMTA members charge.

The association has accredited 19 massage training schools in the United States. It has also drafted a model ordinance requiring a massage therapist to have at least 1,000 hours of training before beginning practice.

As for the sex merchants, "they'll always call it something. Just as long as they don't call it massage," says Perry Plouffe, who has a massage salon in Pawtucket, R.I. "They're infringing on a beautiful profession."

Sex parlor employees, she insists, "are not qualified; they've got a few hours of instruction. What do they know about releasing an arthritic spur? Would they know a blood clot if they saw one? What do they know about anatomy?"

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I struck up a conversation with a very good-looking guy at a bar and he bought me a drink (two actually). Well, before I was halfway finished with the second one, he was giving me this "your-place-or-mine" routine.

Abby, what gives a man the idea that all he has to do is buy a drink for a girl and he can make it with her? I realize that women have come a long way. A few years ago a woman without an escort wasn't even allowed to sit at a bar! Fortunately, times have changed, but the attitude of most men hasn't. They still don't consider women their equals. Men continue to do the picking and choosing, and treat women like they were put here on earth to satisfy men.
FED UP IN CONN.

DEAR FED UP: One swallow doesn't make a summer, nor need one drink make a strange bed-fellow. But if you really want to promote equality between the sexes, the next time you strike up a conversation with a guy at the bar, you buy the drinks, and you won't owe him anything.

DEAR ABBY: Is it ever possible to forgive and forget?
JACKIE

DEAR JACKIE: Yes. But don't dwell on what you're "forgiving" — or you'll never forget.

DEAR ABBY: I recently attended a house party in a very crowded apartment. I had a cigarette in my hand when a friend walked by and brushed her sleeve up against my cigarette and burned a hole in her dress. She was very upset, and so was I. I told her to get the hole mended and I would be glad to pay for it.

She called me a week later to say that she had taken the dress back to the store where she purchased it and they said the hole could not be repaired. Then she said she called her insurance company and was advised that my insurance company would pay for the dress.

I then called my insurance company and was advised that since I had a $100 deductible policy, they could not pay for the dress. When I told my friend this, she said I had a lousy insurance company. By the way, this friend smokes at parties, too.

Abby, just what is my responsibility in this situation? I want to be fair.
SAD SMOKER

DEAR SMOKER: Tell your friend to look in the Yellow Pages for a weaver who is expert at repairing cigarette burns. (Or you look, and tell her where to go.)

CONFIDENTIAL TO STUNNED BUT SILENT IN ROCHESTER: Tell your hostess. If a very good friend of yours had had money taken from her purse while a guest in your home, wouldn't you want to be told about it?

Do you feel left out? There are secrets in developing the art of making yourself popular. You're never too young or too old to learn. Get Abby's booklet: "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Meals on Wheels gets donation

Meals on Wheels received a $75 donation from Epsilon Sigma Alpha service sorority, according to Shirley Kucifer, coordinator of the meals service.

The money was raised through the sorority's last dance, said Mrs. Kucifer, who added that Barbara Shearer, president of the service group, presented the check.

Meals on Wheels, operates seven routes daily to deliver meals to about 60 persons in Pampa, said Mrs. Kucifer. The service is funded through donations and the United Way.

Buying a pool -- a midsummer's dream

Thoughts of past summers spent battling traffic in a sweltering car on the way to a club, beach or pool may be causing many consumers to dream of their own backyard pool where they can enjoy the sun and water in peace. Spring is the time to decide to make this dream a reality. Contractors are not as busy as they will be later in the season.

Once your decision to buy a pool has been made, there is a natural eagerness to have a pool installed as soon as possible. The Better Business Bureau cautions that late spring and early summer months can bring dishonest salespersons and builders into communities where home swimming pools are popular. Incredibly attractive advertisements combined with an overly anxious consumer can turn a dream into a nightmare.

Here are some tell-tale signs of a dishonest operator: — The salesperson says an advertised pool offered "on sale" is not available and then tries to switch the customer to a more expensive model.

— The salesperson uses the ploy of offering a reduced price on the basis that the installed pool will be used as a model.

— The salesperson pressures the customer into signing a contract. No reputable builder and no authorized representative of a reputable builder will rush their customers into signing any agreement or contract at any time.

Dishonest sales tactics are not the only cause for consumer dissatisfaction. Poor planning and lack of communication with the contractor also can cause problems.

Do some advance thinking. Consider the reasons for buying a pool. Will it be for personal recreation, family recreation, exercise, physical therapy and entertaining. Its use will determine, in part, what type of pool to buy — above ground or in-ground. Cost, of course, is also a major consideration.

Above ground pools are generally less expensive to install because of the materials and construction methods involved. Usually a special heavy-duty vinyl lining is laid over a supporting structure built of steel, aluminum, wood or other material. Some can be taken down and stored or moved to new locations. Maintenance is relatively simple and small cuts or tears in the vinyl can be repaired with inexpensive patching materials. In many communities, above-ground pools are not taxed as property improvements.

In-ground pools are more expensive to build because of the installation costs for excavation, supplies and labor. They are usually taxable as property improvements, but can represent a permanent improvement to property when it is sold.

Once the type has been chosen, talk with more than one builder and, if possible, inspect and compare swimming pools the various builders have installed. Check with the Better Business Bureau to learn of their reliability. Be sure the builder under consideration is properly licensed and can make any necessary site and soil evaluations of the property. He should know about existing zoning, building and grading requirements.

Ask about any liability and compensation insurance he may carry in the event of an accident during construction of the pool.

Work closely with the builder from the first planning meeting until the pool is completed. There will be day-to-day decisions to make and any questions should be thoroughly discussed. Talk over any necessary or possible removal of shrubs or trees to allow equipment and supplies to be brought to the site and any possible damage to driveways, walks or lawns because of heavy equipment or supply storage.

Review local building regulations. Find out what lot grading may be necessary and the height and cost of any required fencing. Take time to be sure about all construction details as well as the size, shape and materials wanted for the pool.

Most importantly, the BBB stresses that consumers should be certain all specific information about the pool is written into the contract before it is signed.

DR. LAMB

By Lawrence Lamb, M. D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My inquiry is about cancer and how many symptoms of cancer there are. I understand there are seven. I'm sure I know five but most of my friends don't even know one. If that's true here in this city, it must be true all over the country. Would you list the symptoms and what to do about them?

DEAR READER — There are innumerable symptoms of cancer since you can have a cancer anywhere in the body involving almost any tissue. I suspect you're talking about the seven danger signals of cancer that are provided by the American Cancer Society.

These are: 1) Change in bowel habit, either unexplained loose stools or constipation; 2) A sore that does not heal; 3) Unusual bleeding or discharge (that includes bleeding from the uterus, bowels or coughing up blood); 4) Thickening or lump in the breast or elsewhere; 5) Indigestion or difficulty in swallowing; 6) Obvious change in a wart or mole; 7) Nagging cough or hoarseness.

Now, you can have any one of these and not have a cancer, but they're warning signs that deserve an immediate checkup. I would add to the list weight loss and anemia with weakness and fatigue.

To illustrate how varied the symptoms of cancer can be, a person may develop painless jaundice from a cancer of the pancreas that obstructs the bile duct. Still others may develop pain as the only indication, such as bone pain from spread to the spine or other bones. The list is unending.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 14-8, Cancer: A Fact of Life. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. This issue will give you more information about signs of cancer and what you can do to prevent cancer.

I'm very impressed with what could be done to prevent a large number of cancers in our society. In many instances if prevention was used we wouldn't need to worry about a cure. This particularly applies to cancer of the lungs associated with cigarette smoking.

The early detection that has led to early cure of many cancers has also been dramatic. Deaths from cancer of the uterus have decreased to one-third of what they used to be. That's primarily because of public education and early detection.

There has also been a similar decrease in deaths from cancer of the breast. We're hoping that there will be decreases in the incidence of cancer of the colon and rectum in both men and women and cancer of the prostate in men.

Public education, appropriate regular examinations for early detection and proper treatment will improve the cure rate in cancer even more. You might be interested to know that today one out of three cancer victims will live five years or more.

She built her future on shattered dreams.

IM WHEELER OF PAMPA participated recently in a work service project at Pine Creek Methodist camp in Pineville, Indiana. Pine Creek Camp is a summer camp where predominantly inner city, lower income children spend a couple of weeks in exercise and Christian education.

Rev. H.L. Steger, pastor of St. James Baptist Church in Odessa, Texas, will be the featured evangelist at the spring revival of Macedonia Baptist Church, 441 Elm Street in Pampa.

Rev. Steger is one of the great evangelists of present-day occupancy in the field of revival campaigns.

Services will be held nightly April 14-18 at 7:45 p.m. The public is welcome to attend.

PASTOR J.W. HILL and his wife, Mildred, of the Church of God, 1123 Gwendolyn, will be honored Sunday at a special program and lunch signifying Pastor Appreciation Day. The couple came to Pampa in March of 1979 from Graham, Texas.

St. Mark C.M.E.

"To know is to serve" will be the theme of the St. Mark C.M.E. Men's Day Program, Sunday at 406 Elm.

Rev. C.C. Campbell, St. Mark's pastor, will bring a special message at the morning worship. Music will be rendered by the men's choir.

Inspirational messages from various men of the church in a special program at 3 p.m. will highlight the day's activities, further discussing the theme.

Refreshments will be served immediately following the evening's program. The public is invited to attend.

Calvary Assembly

Sister Hazel Burns from Clement, Oklahoma will be the featured evangelist at the spring revival at Calvary Assembly of God Church, Crawford and Love Streets, April 13 through April 20.

Services will start at 7:00 p.m. Sunday night and 7:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. There will be a special singing each night and a nursery will be provided.

Pastor Mike Benson invites everyone to attend these services.

PSALMS IV will be the special attraction for the Homecoming at Mary Ellen and Harvester St. Church of Christ April 20 at 2:30 p.m. The group has performed all over the Great Southwest and are scheduled to perform in Arkansas, Lubbock and Wichita Falls in the near future. Pictured from left to right are Ron Loe, Lyndon Latham, Pete Talley, and Tim Forrest. The public is invited to attend.

"Thou wilt shew me the path of life.
in thy presence is fullness of joy..."

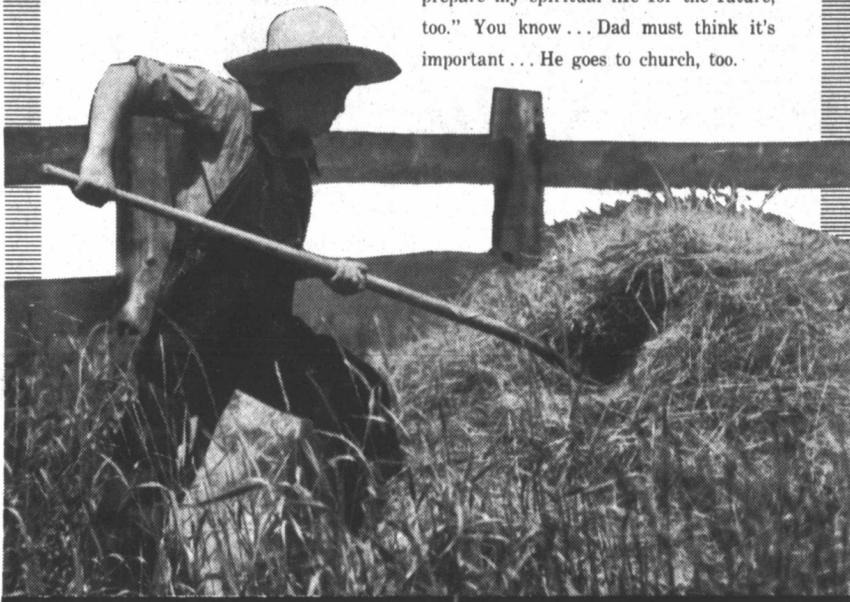

PSALM 16-11

HERE IS THE PATH

DOING A... MAN SIZED JOB

Heat... sweat... fatigue... blisters... aches... Dad says its all a part of "carrying my share of the load." He also says that, "it's important that I help make provisions for the present and near future." But he says "that it is even more important because I am preparing for the days ahead when I am a full grown man." Sometimes I think that my Dad has the wisdom of Solomon, that's this king that I learned about at church... and that's another thing that Dad says is important... "that I go to church regularly, so that I can learn about God, and prepare my spiritual life for the future, too." You know... Dad must think it's important... He goes to church, too.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

April 12, 1980
 Your largest rewards this coming year could come from areas you least expect, so don't jump to quick conclusions concerning any opportunities. At least leave the door open.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) You must be realistic about the issues that confront you today. They are not going to vanish or rectify themselves without your taking action. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph Letter that begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Remorse regarding a situation where you feel you were overly generous with a friend is likely to set in today. However, it's folly to sit and stew over it.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You have a tendency today to underestimate what it takes to reach your mark. Don't let wishful evaluation take precedence over your common sense.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) Rather than go along with the ideas of someone you're peeved at, you could do something out of spite today that would be against your best interests.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be careful today about what you get involved in with a friend that could cost you out-of-pocket. The larger slice of the expenses could come from you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It may be difficult to make a decision today concerning a loved one because you're apt to overemphasize both the pros and cons and never reach an objective conclusion.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You will saddle yourself with more responsibilities than you can handle today if you allow overly dependent people to lean on you. Learn to say "No."
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Take care today that you don't put a pal in an awkward financial situation that he or she can't afford. This person will resent it if you do.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today you're apt to take the course of least resistance and permit a family member to pressure you into doing something you'd rather not do.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Some people are not as forgiving as you might think, and a person with whom you're involved today could judge you harshly for a mistake. Be careful.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be sure you have your old obligations well in hand today before taking on any new ones. You'll quickly find out you can't handle both.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There is no reason to think that someone who always opposes your way of doing things will behave any differently today. Avoid this person.

'Joni' to be presented in three-day showing

"JONI", the dramatic story of a young woman's struggle to find useful life in the wake of a tragic accident which left her totally handicapped, will be presented in Pampa, Sunday, April 13 at 3 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. and Thursday and Friday, April 17 and 18, at 7:30 p.m. nightly.

According to her high school yearbook, her graduating class Woodlawn High School in Maryland, had voted Joni Eareckson "Most Athletic" girl in the senior class. She was not only active outstanding in a variety of sports, including ice hockey, baseball, basketball, and diving. She was also an excellent horsewoman winner at both trick and show riding.

A month after graduation, diving from a raft in the shallow water of Chesapeake Bay, she found her world had changed. Her neck struck something solid and, in a fraction of a second, she suffered a broken neck.

The film follows Joni's progress from that moment when she became a quadriplegic. She survived a broken neck; she was able to walk again and against that she rebelled with the quiet rage of her Scandinavian heritage.

JANIE WHITE AND THE SON LIGHT SINGERS will be singing in the Sunday morning worship service at Lamar Full Gospel Assembly, Bond and South Sumner Streets. Pastor Gene Allen and congregation invite everyone to share this special time with them.

Rangers win in extra innings on bases-loaded wild pitch

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

"I was looking for the strikeout and then the ground ball, in that order." As it was, Manager Dick Howser of the New York Yankees didn't get either from Rich Gossage Thursday night.

All he got was a wild pitch with the bases loaded from his ace reliever and a number in the loss column.

Gossage came into the game in relief of Tom Underwood in the 12th with one out and proceeded to throw his only pitch low and away from catcher Rick Cerone. The ball bounced to the backstop, allowing Mickey Rivers to race home from third with the only run of the game.

"Boy, I can find a way to mess them up," said Gossage. "I wanted to get the ball down. If he (Richie Zisk) did hit it, I wanted him to hit it on the ground."

Starting pitchers Jon Matlack of the Rangers and Ron Guidry of the Yankees duelled brilliantly for nine innings before turning the game over to relievers.

Matlack yielded only three hits and retired the last 18 hitters he faced before giving way to Jim Kern in the 10th. Matlack, who struck out five and walked none, retired 25 of the last 26 batters he faced.

Guidry allowed two singles, retiring the final 12 batters and 20 of the last 21. He struck out four and permitted no walks before he was relieved by Underwood in the bottom of the 10th.

In other American League action, the Baltimore Orioles whipped the Chicago White Sox 5-3; the Detroit Tigers beat the Kansas City Royals 5-1; the Milwaukee Brewers outscored the Boston Red Sox 9-5 and the Minnesota Twins stopped the Oakland A's 9-7 in 12 innings. Cleveland and California, open tonight in Anaheim.

Orioles 5, White Sox 3

Eddie Murray's two-run double keyed a four-run first inning that carried Baltimore and Jim Palmer over Chicago. Palmer, an eight-time 20-game winner, posted his 226th career victory with late relief help from Tim Stoddard.

Tigers 5, Royals 1

Rookie Kirk Gibson hit a home run and a triple, and Jack Morris tossed a three-hitter to lead Detroit over Kansas City. Gibson smashed a solo homer to tie the score in the fourth, and tripled off loser Dennis Leonard to ignite a three-run uprising in the sixth.

Brewers 9, Red Sox 5

Sixto Lezcano hit a two-run homer in the fourth inning and a two-out, grand slam blast in the ninth to lead Milwaukee over Boston.

With the score tied at 5-5, Paul Molitor singled leading off the Brewer ninth off Dick Drago, Boston's third pitcher. With two outs, Ben Oglivie was intentionally walked and Gorman Thomas walked to set the stage for Lezcano's shot into the right field bullpen.

Twins 9, A's 7

Roy Smalley and Rick Sofield hit solo homers in the 12th to lead Minnesota over Oakland in Billy Martin's first game as the A's manager. Smalley led off the Twins' 12th with a homer to right field off Steve McCatty after going hitless his first five at-bats. Sofield homered with two outs for his third hit of the game.

Richards whiffs 13 as Astros nip Dodgers

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

On a night when he came within 22-3 innings of joining the likes of Bob Feller and Leon Ames in baseball's history books, uppermost in J.R. Richard's mind was not walking anyone.

Richard, the National League's strikeout king, breezed through 61-3 innings of perfect ball Thursday night before yielding a hit as he pitched the Houston Astros to a 3-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The 6-foot-8 Richard struck out 13 before getting relief help in the ninth from Joe Sambito, but more importantly he did not walk a batter. Including spring training, the hard-throwing right-hander has gone 20 innings without yielding a free pass.

"I think this was the best night I've had since I was in the major leagues," said Richard, who walked 98 batters last season after passing 141 the year before. "Just getting the ball over the plate was my secret."

In other NL games, St. Louis edged Pittsburgh 1-0, the New York Mets whipped the Chicago Cubs 5-2 and San Diego downed San Francisco 6-4.

Montreal is at Philadelphia Friday night for the season-opener for both teams.

Cards 1, Pirates 0

Pete Vuckovich tossed a three-hitter, and George Hendrick drove in the only run of the game as St. Louis spoiled the World Series champions' opener. Vuckovich retired 16 in a row until Phil Garner singled with one out in the sixth.

The Cards got their only run in the second when Bobby Bonds walked and scored from first when Hendrick lined a double over third.

Cards pitching coach Claude Osteen said Vuckovich's strength was in his off-speed pitches. "You just don't know what to look for. I don't think there's anybody that has that many pitches under control," Osteen said.

Mets 5, Cubs 2

New York won on opening day for the sixth straight year behind the pitching and hitting of right-hander Craig Swan. Swan scattered seven hits in seven innings and drove in two runs with a bases-full single in the Mets' four-run sixth inning. Jerry Morales also knocked in a pair of runs for the Mets.

The Cubs got their runs in the sixth on Dave Kingman's run-scoring single and in the seventh when Len Randle singled home a run.

Padres 6, Giants 4

Dave Cash, Gene Richards and Dave Winfield each drove in a pair of runs to give rookie Manager Jerry Coleman, San Diego's former radio play-by-play man, his first victory.

San Diego trailed 4-3 before scoring three runs in the fifth off Bob Knepper. Lefty Randy Jones worked the first seven innings for the Padres, allowing seven hits and walking two before he was replaced by Bob Shirley, who got the save. Larry Herndon homered for the Giants.

Bradford to play in Astrodome

Vic Bradford of Wheeler has been selected to play in the 1980 Texas High School Coaches All-Star football game July 26 in Houston's Astrodome.

The 6-1, 200-pound senior will play for the North, coached by Tommy Kimbrough of Plano.

Bradford, a versatile lineman, helped lead Wheeler to a 14-0 record and the Class B state title in 1979. He received first-team All-State and All-District honors on both offense and defense, was chosen as first-team defensive lineman on the Panhandle Area Super team, and third-team Texas Super team, which included players from all classes. Bradford was honored at the Wheeler Chamber of Commerce Banquet and school sports banquet this season.

In 1978, Bradford was named All-District first-team on defense and second-team on offense as Wheeler advanced to the state semi-finals. Bradford also participated in basketball and track and was a member of the Wheeler Key Club and high school choir. He recently competed in the University Interscholastic League Editorial and Feature Writing contests.

A B average student, Bradford plans to attend Texas Tech University in Lubbock.

"Wheeler can be proud to be represented in Houston by such a fine young man and outstanding athlete," Wheeler football coach Joe Allen said. "His athletic accomplishments have brought statewide recognition to our community."

Vic is the son of Duane Bradford.

Valley wins 3-B girls track championship, Groom finishes second

GROOM-Valley used the running events as a steppingstone to the District 3-B track title here yesterday. Valley nudged Groom, 115-103, for first place honors. Claude was third with 78 points, McLean, fourth, 71; Silverton, fifth, 62; Happy, sixth, 46; Nazareth, seventh, 28; Lefors, eighth, 12, and Lakeview, ninth, 10. Groom won three of five field events, but Valley took command of the running events, winning five of nine categories. Lenora Wieberg of Groom was one of the top performers of the day as she won the triple jump(33-7), high jump(5-4), and 100 hurdles(16.3). Also winning first-place medals for Groom were Karen Kuehler, shot put, 33-10, and D. Brooks, 400, 62.0. Others placing for Groom were T. Weller, second, shot put, 28-5½, and Jenny Treadwell, second, 200, 27.8. L. Skipper of McLean won the long jump with a 16-3¼ leap and also took second in the high jump(5-1).

District 2-A tennis results

Panhandle and White Deer ended in a three-way tie for third place with 20 points apiece in the District 2-A Tennis Tournament Thursday. Memphis collected 75 points to win the tournament while Wellington was second with 35. Eddie Metcalf and T. Hicks of Panhandle won the doubles title by defeating Brent Long and Chaney Wood of Wellington, 6-3, 6-4. Stacy Urban of Wellington defeated Lloyd Bohannon of White Deer, 6-2, 2-6, and 6-2, for the singles championship. In the girls division, Della Satterwhite and Kandy Mynear of White Deer downed Lisa Hodge and Diana Freeman, also of White Deer, to take third in doubles.

Basketball Hall of Fame to induct new members Saturday

WACO, Texas (AP) — Kyle Rote, Dub Malaise, Carroll Broussard, Clifton McNeely and Benny Tompkins will be inducted Saturday into the Texas High School Basketball Hall of Fame.

Rote will be the first athlete to be installed into both the high school football and basketball halls of fame. Better known as a football star at SMU and the New York Giants, Rote was an all-state basketball all-stater at San Antonio Jefferson and led the Mustangs to the state tournament in 1947.

Malaise played for his father at Odessa High, was the most valuable player in the Texas High School coaches' game his senior year and later went on to become all-Southwest Conference for Texas Tech.

McNeely was an outstanding scorer at Slidell and later posted a 321-43 record while coaching at Pampa, including four state championship teams.

Broussard was a two-time all-state player at Port Arthur Thomas Jefferson and later made all-Southwest Conference three times at Texas A&M.

Tompkins played at Brownsboro and Athens high schools. At Brownsboro he played on the team that went on to win the coveted high school national championship played in Chicago.

The Texas High School Hall of Fame was originated in Athens in 1971 and has inducted 25 members.

It recently moved its headquarters to Waco.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Al Angelos and Tom Catagnus of the Philadelphia Textile basketball team, two crack guards, are often mistaken for each other. At a home game this winter, the public address announcer succeeded in mixing up the two.

An impulsive fan, who apparently couldn't stand that, rushed out of the stands, pushed the announcer aside and took over the microphone. He received a standing ovation from the people in the stands.

3-2 tournament

Pampa Softball Association is sponsoring a 3-2 slowpitch tournament April 25-26 for city teams only. A $25.00 entry fee should be turned in to Jay Trospier at Vance Hall Sporting Goods no later than April 18.

Cowboy schedule announced

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys, playing without long-time quarterback Roger Staubach, open 1980 regular season play with a Monday night game in Washington on Sept. 8. The Pokes open at home on Sept. 21 at NFC Central champ Tampa Bay. Here is the schedule for the National Football League team: Monday, Sept. 8, Dallas at Washington. Sunday, Sept. 14, Dallas at Denver. Sunday, Sept. 21, Tampa Bay at Dallas. Sunday, Sept. 28, Dallas vs. Green Bay at Milwaukee.

Keeping the miracle going

Eleanor Roosevelt: new facts of life

By Carol Felsenthal American Library Assn.

"It is all the little things, tones in your voice, the feel of your hair, gestures, these are the things I think about and long for... I wish I could lie down beside you tonight and take you in my arms."

In 1934, Eleanor Roosevelt wrote those words to Lorena Hickok, an AP reporter who had covered the First Lady extensively during the 1932 campaign. They are published, for the first time, in "The Life of Lorena Hickok: ER's Friend" by Doris Faber (Morrow, 394 pages, $12.95). How they came to be published is itself an intriguing story.

Doris Faber had been assigned to write a brief life of Eleanor Roosevelt for children. The year was 1978, 10 years after Lorena Hickok's death. Shortly before her death, "Hick" filled 18 cartons with personal papers and gave them to the F.D.R. Library in Hyde Park. Included was a correspondence spanning 30 years, from 1932 when F.D.R. began his first term, to 1962, when the former First Lady died — 2,336 letters from E.R. to Hick and 1024 letters from Hick to E.R.

Miss Hickok instructed that her papers be opened to the public 10 years after her death. As it happened, that 10th anniversary arrived a few days before Faber arrived at Hyde Park — to gather what she expected, at most, would be a few fresh anecdotes for what was, after all, the 10th anniversary of Eleanor Roosevelt. She got much, much more than she expected, or wanted.

The second file Faber opened contained page after page of creamy paper headed, in gold letters, THE WHITE HOUSE. "Hick, my dearest," the letters invariably began. An hour later, in a state of shock (as a reporter, Faber had covered Eleanor Roosevelt and is a great fan of the First Lady's) she hurried to the library director and pleaded with him to look up the letters for at least another several decades, before anyone else could see them. The director pondered that request briefly, and then, to his credit, said "no."

At this point, Faber shifted gears. She could not include this new information in a biography for children. Apparently she didn't want to write another Eleanor Roosevelt biography for adults, because she decided to focus on "ER's Friend," as the title clumsily identifies Lorena Hickok. Hick was an interesting character — she rose out of an awful childhood (her father raped her and tortured small animals) to become one of the most eminent reporters of the 1920s and early 1930s. But she is not interesting enough to sustain a book. What the reader wants to know more about is the relationship with Mrs. Roosevelt. But Faber hedges on the homosexuality issue, concluding, "The effusively affectionate passages in numerous letters were the expression of just an intense, if unusually belated schoolgirl crush."

When Eleanor Roosevelt is holding center stage, "Lorena Hickok," for all its faults, is a fascinating book. After all, those letters contain much new, eye-witness, straight-from-the-source material, and not only about the First Lady. "Did I tell you that the first day in his office at 3 p.m., E.R. wrote Hick, 'F.D.R. found himself alone and with nothing to do? Horrors, nothing like that had happened to him in years. So he reached under the desk and rang all five bells and people ran in from every side to find him calmly demanding 'Something to do!'"

On Southern women and men

The "good ole girl" as epitomized by Blanche Dubois and Scarlett O'Hara is still very much alive in the South, says Rosemary Daniell in her new "Fatal Flowers: On Sin, Sex and Suicide in the Deep South" (Holt, Rinehart and Winston, $11.95).

"I did not know as a child that my mother was mad with her own contradictions," she says. "Like Florence King's Southern belle, she was supposed to be frigid, passionate, sweet, bitchy and scatterbrained — all at the same time. Worse, it was imperative that she be as stoic as her mother and deal with a husband as crazy as she was."

"Southern girls still strive to reach the same ideals," Miss Daniell adds, "and in the process often destroy themselves." The book traces her family history, which includes her mother's suicide and father's alcoholism. "Every Southern woman who didn't fit cleanly into the role of little girl, masked lady, society woman or good ole girl suffered drains of energy, loss of identity, even insanity. I survived, but my mother — and many other women — didn't."

Although she is tough on Southern men for their role in keeping the good-ole-boy-good-ole-girl myth alive, Miss Daniell says she enjoys dating those same men. "Southern men just pour on the compliments," she says, appreciating the irony of her remarks. "It's a wonderful reinforcement of one's femininity. Southern men really believe they're addicted to women. I never feel so needed as when I'm with a Southern man."

The charm of men from the Northeast, however, is that you can talk to them. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Anne Murray: just needed a break

By Rob Patterson

Anne Murray explains why she's late in calling me from her Toronto office: her car broke down, carpenters finally came to the house, and she had this Cadillac that keeps breaking down and is "driving her crazy."

The super-successful Canadian singer's true confessions are straight from real life.

Ask her about being on tour in the early '70s, after a string of hits like "Snowbird," "You Won't See Me." Says Anne bluntly: "I was miserable."

The grind of touring — those unending one-night gigs in a dizzying succession of towns — took its toll. She even took affront at her own image: "I hated that girl next door thing — like what I am now. Everyone called me that, and I wanted to get away from it."

"But that had endurance," says Anne now, and she knows that now in more than one way. "I was consumed by business, constantly playing or recording, and having hit songs, but I felt like I was banging my head against a wall."

This is all blunt talk for the Nova Scotia-reared mother of two, who got her start singing in the local area, "doing it on instinct, and it worked." By 1975 her career was strong and steady, but the frustrations persuaded her to take a break.

Since then she gave birth to her two children, William and Dawn. "I always wanted a family, not a singing career," admits Anne. But the blossoming of her family life has also coincided with her greatest career success, which Anne attributes to "control and planning. In 1977 we sat down and planned, because you have to have a game plan. I'd been going at it like a goat with my head down, but never totally committed. "Now I play where and when I want to, usually on weekends. I have time for my family, yet for these past two years I've really hit the top. That happens only once, so you have to grab it ... but the right way."

Anne's most recent smash — "You Needed Me" — seems to bear that out, and despite some good-natured grousing about not being nominated for a country Grammy this year after sweeping them the year before ("my record company closed their Nashville office, so there was nobody to vote for me," she observes), Anne feels positive about her country success (she's been asked to sing at the Grand Ol' Opry) and her imprint on the wider pop audience.

"I'd like it," concludes Anne, "if people could see me for the next 50 years!" (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Casual moviemaking for 'Bandit II'

By Dick Kleiner

JUPITER, Fla. (NEA) — When people say, "It could only happen in Hollywood," they're usually kidding. They generally mean that it could never happen anywhere, least of all Hollywood.

Miracles don't happen any more. Good guys seldom win. The upset is in storybooks. Justice seldom triumphs. The meek inherit little except a kick in the shins.

But it does happen enough to keep us all in their trying. Maybe once a decade or so it happens. The last time it happened, it happened to Hal Needham.

Needham is the ex-stuntman who got a miraculous chance to direct a movie and the miracle proliferated and that movie became "Smoky and the Bandit," which made more money than a counterfeiter could print with the wind at his back.

They're shooting the sequel here — "Smoky and the Bandit II" — and Needham, Burt Reynolds, Sally Field and Jerry Reed are all here, trying to make another miracle.

Needham and Reed were talking about the first one. Needham says it began when he was working as a stunt man with Reynolds in Texas, when they were filming "The Longest Yard." He says somebody gave him a case of Coors beer, which is ordinarily not available down in Texas.

"And that beer kept disappearing from my room," Needham says. "People would steal it — the maids, everybody. And it hit me that that was a good idea for a funny crime, somebody stealing Coors beer. And that's how the idea started."

Needham is one of those directors who is loved by his crew. He's easy going. He gives frequent big parties. He might be a good time to buy old silver, before auction prices increase, as they are likely to soon.

So advises Gray D. Boone, editor of Antique Monthly and The Gray Letter, both of which are addressed to antique collectors and dealers.

"Silver has always been costly, prestigious and pretty," she explains, "and now it also is a good place to put your money. Because new silverware costs so much, people will buy silver services more at auctions, which will push prices up. Also, if you own silver, get it appraised and insured quickly."

In 1932, when the price of pure silver hit an all-time low of 24 cents an ounce, a silver place setting was a modestly priced wedding gift, even by Depression standards. Until fairly recently, a five-piece setting, or even a single serving spoon, wasn't apt to strain anybody's budget.

Now, however, a complete silver service can cost as much as a house did in the 1960s. A five-piece service for shooting, OK?" And they are, when Hal calls for action, they don't utter a sound.

They were shooting a scene in a motel room — they had put up a small studio on Burt's 180-acre ranch here, and the plans were to make the building over into an airplane hangar after filming is over.

Burt was wearing a flashy outfit — a black cowboy suit with red roses, with boots to match. In the story, he's fallen on hard times, been drinking too much, and Jerry Reed is trying to help him, trying to keep him dry for a new job.

Burt wrote some of his lines onto the bedspread, where he could see them but the camera couldn't.

Hal Needham recalled that once he was in a picture with Marlon Brando and Brando had trouble remembering his lines, so he wrote them on the nearest white surface available — which happened to be the flanks of a large white horse.

Later they were outside, working with the elephant that is a key figure in the plot. The elephant's trainer was wearing a T-shirt that carried the legend: Think Big — Hug An Elephant.

That's when Needham and Reed started talking about the beginnings of "Smoky" and Needham's new career.

"I never had a burning desire to direct," Needham said. "But Burt and I, on many pictures together, used to watch other directors and we realized that he or I could do a lot better."

He says he wrote the original "Smoky" story and designed it for Jerry to play the lead — the bandit. But then Burt became available and Needham showed him the script and he said he'd do it and Reed graciously stepped aside and took the supporting role.

"Burt said to me, 'I'll do it, but this has got to be the worst dialogue I've ever seen in my life — we'll fix it as we go along.' And they're still practically writing as they go along, going off to the side between scenes and ripping the script to shreds and starting over again. And it seems to work."

Since then she gave birth to her two children, William and Dawn. "I always wanted a family, not a singing career," admits Anne. But the blossoming of her family life has also coincided with her greatest career success, which Anne attributes to "control and planning. In 1977 we sat down and planned, because you have to have a game plan. I'd

Good silver will hold its value

By Norman Nadel

NEW YORK (NEA) — Don't sell the wedding-present silverware, no matter how much the pale metal is worth in today's trading. In fact, this might be a good time to buy old silver, before auction prices increase, as they are likely to soon.

So advises Gray D. Boone, editor of Antique Monthly and The Gray Letter, both of which are addressed to antique collectors and dealers.

"Silver has always been costly, prestigious and pretty," she explains, "and now it also is a good place to put your money. Because new silverware costs so much, people will buy silver services more at auctions, which will push prices up. Also, if you own silver, get it appraised and insured quickly."

In 1932, when the price of pure silver hit an all-time low of 24 cents an ounce, a silver place setting was a modestly priced wedding gift, even by Depression standards. Until fairly recently, a five-piece setting, or even a single serving spoon, wasn't apt to strain anybody's budget.

Now, however, a complete silver service can cost as much as a house did in the 1960s. A five-piece service for 12 of S. Kirk and Sons "Reposse" pattern, with all the place and serving pieces, lists for $42,500 (although at the moment it is on sale at 60 percent off, or about $17,000). A six-piece service for 12 of Reed and Barton's "Francis" (116 pieces) is tagged at $31,816.

"The cheapest teaspoon Gorham makes will retail in a 40-percent-off sale for about $90," he says. "Many run as high as $160. My heaviest and best Gorham (used) sells for about $40."

Eaton just sold a service for 12 of Wallace's "Grande Baroque" pattern, with serving pieces, for $4,500. That is only $200 more than the value of the silver in it (153 ounces) as scrap.

Many people are offering their silver at auction today in order to get the quick and attractive cash. But traditionally, good silver objects have held their value better than money. This is partly because of the workmanship involved, with sentimental value another potent reason.

The status value of silver, going back more than three centuries in this country, is not about to change.

"Silver has been a part of nearly everyone's existence at some point," wrote Barbara McLean Ward and Gerald W.R. Ward in the catalogue of ourselves and one another to glorify and refine eating and drinking, so as to place an infinite distance between us and the brutes, even at the moment when we are enjoying a pleasure which we have in common with them. Women getting married today are registering patterns in stainless steel, says Mrs. Boone, to illustrate that flatware still is the traditional wedding gift. Nevertheless, silver continues to be a possibly affordable option — by buying open-stock pieces through used silver dealers and at auction.

Recently a Kirk 235-piece set, retailing at $65,000, was auctioned at Christie's in New York for $7,000. That is out of most brides' bracket, but there are relative values at auction of individual pieces or place-settings, costing a fraction as much.
