Israeli air raid on Beirut hits Syrian army

By SAM F. GHATTAS
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli helicopters fired missiles on Beirut's slums today in an effort to wreck the nerve center of Lebanese guerrillas. Witnesses said six missiles hit a Syrian army position and wounded at least 12 Syrian soldiers.

The Israeli air raid on Beirut — the second on the Lebanese capital in two days — was the latest round in an escalating cycle of violence. Earlier in the day, Hezbollah guerrillas bombarded northern Israel with Katyusha rockets, and Israel retaliated by barraging suspected guerrilla bases in southern Lebanon.

The Israeli army warned residents of 40 villages in southern Lebanon to leave their homes because the villages would be attacked for allegedly abetting Hezbollah's war to drive Israeli troops from southern Lebanon. The attacks began six hours after the warnings were delivered.

Panicked residents began streaming northward, and Israel TV reported that Israeli helicopters were going after cars being used by fleeing Hezbollah guerrillas.

Witnesses in Lebanon said six rockets fired by Israeli aircraft struck a Syrian encampment on a seaside highway leading to the Beirut international airport. Israel army reported that the airport was closed.

Syrian troops were firing anti-aircraft guns toward the Israeli helicopters at the time the base was hit, the witnesses said.

Syria maintains 40,000 troops in Lebanon and is the country's power broker.

Israel government spokesman Uri Dromi said Israel did not seek a confrontation with Damascus and that the Syrian troops were hit inadvertently.

"We are targeting neither the Lebanese army nor the Syrian army. Unfortunately, the Syrian army is all over the place," he said.

Israel's peace talks with both Arab countries are deadlocked.

News of the attack on the Syrian military position came shortly after Israeli helicopters fired missiles on Beirut's Shiite Muslim slums, the nerve center of the pro-Iranian Hezbollah.

From the roofs of high-rise buildings in the center of Beirut, residents could see smoke billowing from the stricken targets.

Earlier in the day, Lebanese guerrillas pounded northern Israel with rockets, and Israeli warplanes struck back by bombing suspected guerrilla bases in southern Lebanon.

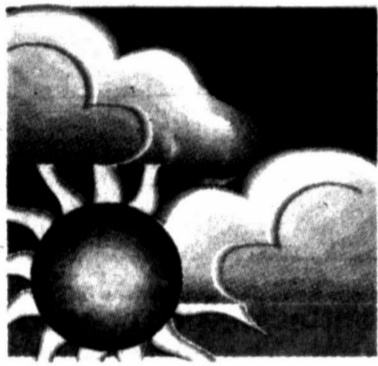

The guerrilla rockets, fired in retaliation for Israeli attacks on Thursday, damaged homes in the border town of Kiryat Shemona and wounded at least four people, one of them seriously. There were no immediate casualty reports from the Israeli reprisals in southern Lebanon.

This morning Voice of the South radio, run by Israel's proxy militia, broadcast warnings from the Israeli army to the 40 villages just outside the enclave Israel controls in southern Lebanon to curb cross-border raids.

It told them to leave their homes by 2:30 p.m. (7:30 a.m. EDT), because their villages would be attacked for allegedly abetting Hezbollah's war against Israel. Shortly after 5:30 p.m., the army released a statement confirming that the attacks had begun, but gave no further details.

Panicky villagers began streaming northward after the warnings were issued, their cars packed with mattresses, blankets and bundles of clothes.

Low tonight in upper 40s, high tomorrow in mid 70s. See Page 2 for weather details.

McLEAN — Trustees voted Tuesday to limit free admission to the junior-senior banquet to members of those classes, sophomore class servers, high school faculty members, administrators and themselves.

A limited amount of $10 tickets will be available for others interested in attending, Superintendent John Griffin said.

The board also approved a $9,792.61 budget for the athletic department, down slightly from last year.

In other action, the board approved a resolution to join the Panhandle Information Network and set a May 6 meeting to canvass votes from the May 4 board election.

They also accepted, "with regret," the early resignation of 39-year English teacher Virginia Holwick, said Griffin.

PAMPA — Gray County commissioners are to meet at 9 a.m. Monday in the second floor courtroom to consider:

- supplemental insurance agent for county personnel.
- the contract with Ron Unruh, fixed base operator at Perry Lefors Airport.

- extension of a resolution authorizing enforcement of Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission burning regulations.

- paving of newly dedicated road in Keller Estates.
- vehicle inventory escrow account with Tax Assessor/Collector Sammie Morris.

Gene Schaeffer from Texas Association of Counties will make a presentation on the county personnel manual. The presentation will be held in the justice of the peace courtroom on the fourth floor of the courthouse.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maybe a birthday tie would have been better.

Christine DeLay gave her husband, Rep. Tom DeLay, R-Texas, a pair of in-line skates for his 49th birthday. On his first outing, he broke his leg.

"I don't know if he'll go rollerblading again in the near future," Tony Rudy, the Republican Whip's spokesman, said Friday. "He's a good sport about these things."

DeLay's birthday was Monday. The next day, he and his wife tried out the blades in their suburban Houston neighborhood. "He just took an unfortunate spill," Rudy said.

It was "a slight fracture," the spokesman said, and DeLay is getting around fine on crutches.

"He will probably oppose any attempt by the Clinton administration to mandate the wearing of knee pads," Rudy deadpanned.

Nixon tapes to be released

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The estate of former President Nixon agreed today to release almost 3,700 hours of still-unheard White House tapes, many made while Nixon was embroiled in the Watergate scandal that ended his presidency.

To date, only 63 hours of tapes had been available for public listening.

The first release under the new agreement, approximately 201 hours dealing with abuses of government power, are expected as early as November. The second release, with a time not set, involves 278 hours of tapings recorded in the White House Cabinet Room.

"I am elated. We won," said history professor Stanley I. Kutler of the University of Wisconsin at Madison. "All of us who believe in open government and full disclosure of our history are the real winners today," said Kutler. He sued for release of the tapes in 1992.

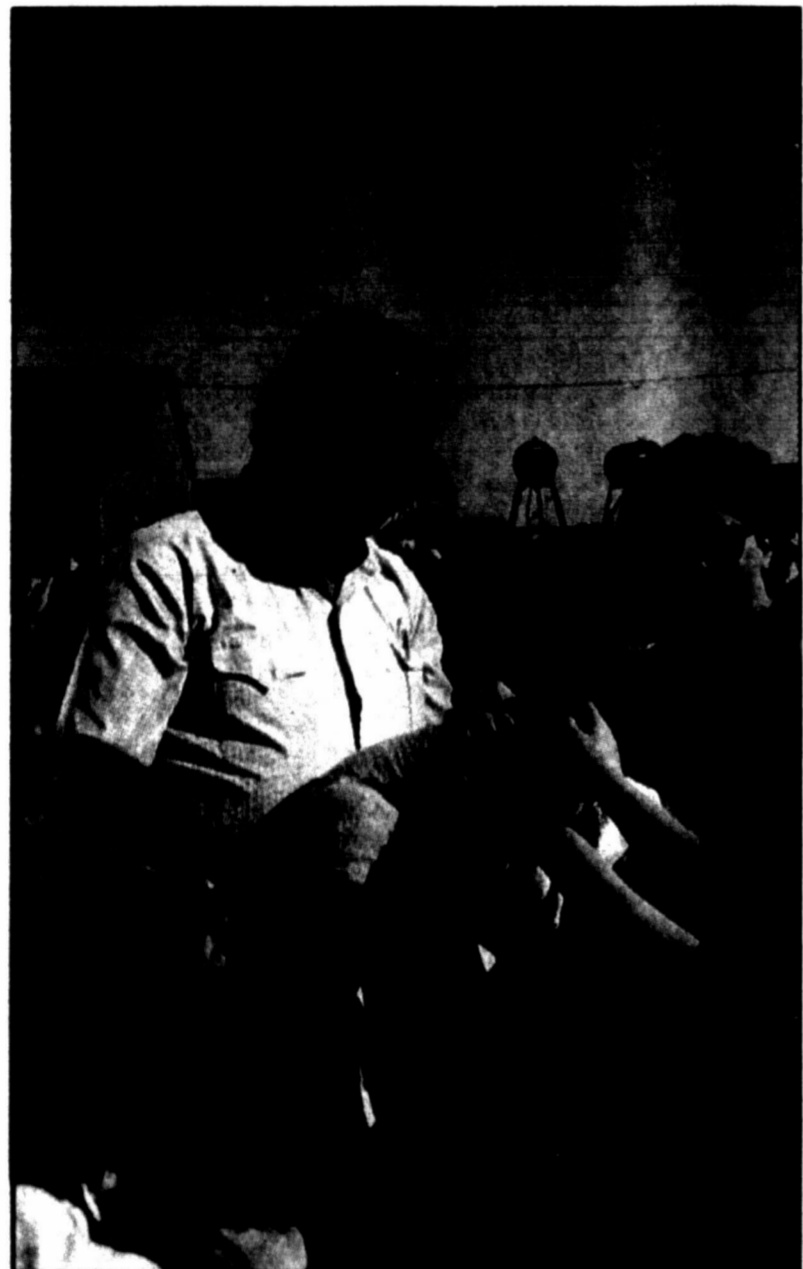

Secret taping systems that recorded both conversations on the telephone and among people in the Oval Office and other locations were revealed during Senate Watergate hearings. Nixon ultimately lost a battle before the Supreme Court with the Watergate special prosecutor over release to a grand jury of portions of the tapes.

Contents of the tapes ultimately led to a House Judiciary Committee vote recommending Nixon's impeachment. He resigned Aug. 9, 1974, rather than be impeached.

The Nixon estate agreed to allow future releases even though one major issue remains unresolved: Whether the National Archives is entitled to keep both originals and copies of tape segments of purely private conversations.

Nixon attorney Herbert J. Miller said most copies of the personal tapes, including dictaphone belts dictated by the former president, have been returned to the Nixon estate.

Ag awareness day

County Commissioner James Hefley cradles a baby goat as students from Woodrow Wilson Elementary pet it Thursday morning. Students from the six Pampa elementary schools and Miami schools took field trips to the Gerry Ingram and John Spearman farms as part of ag awareness day. The students learned about crops and chemicals, irrigation, farm equipment and livestock.

Frank Phillips College President Dr. W.A. Griffin Jr. sees a demonstration of videoconferencing by Southwestern Bell Telephone marketing representative Shannon Campsey during a informational meeting about the Panhandle Information Network Thursday. Videoconferencing and Internet access are just part of what PIN hopes to offer the 26 counties of the Texas Panhandle, coordinator Linda Pitner said at the meeting.

Information highway 'will profoundly affect' lives of Texans, PIN coordinator Pitner says

By CHIP CHANDLER
Staff Writer

"Access to this type of highway — this information highway — will profoundly affect the way we work, communicate, educate and meet health care needs."

So says Panhandle Information Network coordinator Linda Pitner, comparing the burgeoning information superhighway to the development of the railroad or interstate highway system.

Pitner spoke to a crowd of about 30 area residents Thursday night at the Pampa Community Building in the first of a series of five regional informational meetings.

Future meetings will be held in Hereford, Clarendon, Dalhart and Amarillo.

PIN is seeking to develop a regional integrated telecommunications network to serve the 26 counties of the Texas Panhandle, Pitner said.

Organizers hope meetings like Thursday's will build interest in the project.

"This is a true collaboration, a true partnership, and it needs the cooperation of the entire Panhandle in order to become a success," Pitner said.

She lead her audience through the possibilities inherent in a telecommunications network, including distance education.

"We could save community schools through electronic consolidation rather than physical consolidation," she said.

For example, she said, students in Perryton could enroll in a physics class taught at another school district if such a class were not offered at their hometown school.

To bring this about, PIN aims to qualify for state grants from the telecommunications infrastructure fund, established recently through House Bill 2128.

Lawmakers hope that over the next 10 years, $150 million per year will be available to fund technological advances.

"They want to look at partnerships and collaborations and consider that in the decision they make. ... We feel that the partnership we are putting together would be looked upon favorably by anyone," Pitner said.

PIN would serve as a facilitator in bringing technology to the Panhandle. It would also as a technical infrastructure, enabling public entities like schools and libraries to access videoconferencing and the Internet.

Pitner said the group is still in its formative stage and is waiting for state rules to apply for TIF money.

The audience — including representatives from Frank Phillips College and Clarendon College as well as public libraries in Pampa and Canadian — witnessed demonstrations of videoconferencing and Internet surfing.

Dole complains of Clinton financial edge

DALLAS (AP) — Apparently nervous about President Clinton's giant campaign war chest, Republican candidate Bob Dole suggests it is unfair that the Democratic incumbent got $12 million in taxpayer money even though he faced no primary opposition.

"He ought to give the money back," Dole said Thursday night as he raised money in Dallas. "You owe the taxpayers."

Like Clinton, Dole has taken advantage of the availability of the federal matching funds to presidential candidates who agree to abide by spending caps. But Dole has exhausted most of his money in pursuit of the Republican nomination, while Clinton has more than $20 million to spend before the national party conventions in August.

Dole said there was "something wrong with the law" because it allowed candidates without primary opponents to take millions in taxpayer dollars for their campaigns. "We need to change the law," he said.

With his fat checkbook, Clinton can travel the country and air television ads at a time when Dole is severely limited in his ability to campaign, because he is pushing against the $37 million primary spending cap.

Indeed, Dole's fund-raising events Thursday and today, in San Antonio and Houston, marked the end of his campaign fund-raising; from now on, he will raise money for the Republican National Committee's "Victory '96" fund, money used to support all GOP candidates.

Dole visited Duncanville High School today in the Dallas suburb and toured a technology center, where more than a dozen students were using computers. After the tour, Dole made the case that Republicans were as committed to educational excellence as Democrats, but believed the federal government now had too much power in setting school standards and curriculum.

Posing behind the sign marking Pampa Community Youth Services are Kerry Thorp, chairman of the board of directors; Phillip Jeffery, youth director; and Jo Ann Stevenson, vice chairman of the board. In front of the sign are Gene Jeffers, board member; Tammy Wilbon, secretary; and Cody Allison, board member. PCYS aims to make a difference in the life of Pampa youth through educational and recreational programs.

Pampa Community Youth Services set to start summer youth program in June

Pampa Community Youth Services will begin its summer youth program June 5 and continue through August 4, announced board chairman Kerry Thorp.

Besides midnight basketball and summer volleyball, the program will offer swimming, arts and crafts, and bowling during the day. Free lunches will be served to children who attend the daytime activities.

Thorp explained volleyball will be offered in a city park with basketball will probably be played in a public school gym. Arts and crafts will be offered in PCYS facility located on Prairie Center. Organizers plan to bring in guest speakers for seminars on pregnancy prevention, AIDS, drugs and alcohol, careers and college.

PCYS also plans to open Shining Star Childcare Center which will be operated 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday for children birth through 12. It will be housed in the Prairie Center building.

The center will serve a two fold purpose, said Thorp. It will allow early intervention in the lives of at-risk youth with educational programs. Second, it will create jobs for low-income families and its sliding scale fees will make day care more affordable, he said.

PCYS was founded by Valencia Barber and Phillip D. Jeffery, who will serve as its director.

It is dedicated to developing community youth through programs which are both educational and recreational. Organizers believe when young people become statistics, they not only jeopardize themselves but may eventually jeopardize the entire community, said Thorp.

An activity sign up day is planned for May.

Attorney fund-raises for judge, defends official's integrity

AUSTIN (AP) — A lawyer who solicited campaign funds for Texas Supreme Court Justice James A. Baker a week after arguing a case before the court says Baker's impartiality won't be affected by his action.

"Judge Baker is a very independent person. Everyone that knows him knows that. He is a man of the highest integrity. He's not going to be influenced by this at all in terms of his decision-making," lawyer John Hill Jr., a former Supreme Court chief justice, said Thursday.

Baker, who has been asked to recuse himself by Hill's opponents in the case, has been out of the office and didn't return telephone calls from The Associated Press on Wednesday or Thursday.

Hill signed a fund-raising letter sent out by Baker's campaign a week after arguing a case on behalf of Cincinnati-based Merrell Pharmaceuticals Inc., which is being sued by parents of a girl born without fingers on her right hand.

The parents blame the birth defect on an anti-nausea drug the girl's mother took while pregnant. Merrell is appealing a decision to award the family $3.75 million.

The parents have filed a motion asking that Baker remove himself from the case, saying the letter "causes Justice Baker's impartiality to be reasonably questioned in this proceeding."

Baker, a Republican appointed by Gov. George W. Bush to fill a vacancy, faces Democrat Gene Kelly in the November election.

"In my view, it's entirely appropriate to support qualified judges, even in situations where you have cases pending," Hill said.

Those who believe lawyers shouldn't be involved in fund-raising should support changing the way judges are selected, he said.

Hill is a leading proponent of a proposal to change to a so-called merit election system, in which sitting judges are subject only to retention elections without opponents.

State briefs

Day after hostage situation, man found guilty of murder

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The day after he clubbed a 57-year-old woman bailiff and held her hostage, a 20-year-old man returned to the bullet-riddled courtroom and was sentenced to life in prison for killing a grocer.

Evodio Monsivas Herebia, 20, looked disheveled, with his shirt-tail pulled out and wearing beltless pants that hung low on his hips.

Shortly before noon Thursday, 144th State District Judge Susan Reed sentenced him as he stood stiffly by his lawyer's side.

He was sentenced to life for the 1994 shooting death of a West Side grocery store owner. The life sentence for Herebia was automatic after the jury found him guilty. Prosecutors had not sought the death penalty.

Clearcutting trial accusing Forest Service winds down

BEAUMONT (AP) — A federal judge says he'll rule in about two months on a dispute between environmental groups and the U.S. Forest Service over clearcutting — a logging practice in which all trees of like age are removed from a given area.

U.S. District Judge Richard A. Schell heard 7 1/2 days of testimony before ordering the attorneys for both sides Thursday to submit written arguments to him within 30 days.

The trial came more than 10 years after environmentalists filed a lawsuit against the Forest Service. The plaintiffs say clearcutting is a violation of the National Forest Management Act of 1976, written to protect natural resources during logging.

Mexican says patrol agent beat him in Eagle Pass

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The U.S. Border Patrol is investigating a claim by a Mexican national that he was beaten by an agent in Eagle Pass.

Jose Luis Ugalde Hernandez, 31, of Aguascalientes, Mexico, told the San Antonio Express-News he suffered a fractured rib when he was beaten after being detained by the Border Patrol late Tuesday afternoon.

Benny Carrasco, agent-in-charge of the Border Patrol station, said he was told of the alleged incident Wednesday morning by Javier Aguilar Rangel, the Mexican consul in Eagle Pass.

Agents could see no signs of injury, despite Ugalde's complaint, but photographed Ugalde in an effort "to avoid being accused of things like this," Carrasco said.

Civil suits filed by Davidian survivors moved to Waco

HOUSTON (AP) — Nine federal court lawsuits seeking hundreds of millions of dollars in damages stemming from the Branch Davidian siege and fatal fire nearly three years ago are heading for trial — at least for the time being — in Waco.

U.S. District Judge Nancy Atlas' ruling came on a Justice Department motion that contended the Houston-based Southern District of Texas was the improper place to consider the lawsuits, which have been consolidated into a single case.

No trial date has been set. Atlas' ruling suggests any trial may be years away. The Waco federal court had 381 civil cases on its docket as of the start of this year. At the same time, the 11 federal judges in Houston averaged a backlog of 585 civil suits.

The civil rights suits against the federal government and top Justice Department and Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms officials have been filed by a number of survivors of the Davidians who died in the April 19, 1993, fire. The plaintiffs also include a few surviving group members.

The blaze at the David Koresh-led Mount Carmel compound at Waco killed Koresh and 80 followers and climaxed a siege that began 51 days earlier with the fatal shooting of four ATF agents.

"We're studying it," Lawrence Schilling, one of the plaintiffs' attorneys, said Thursday of the ruling, entered a week ago. "We think the venue is in Houston. The criminal case was transferred from Waco to San Antonio."

"We're concerned. We think it is a serious injustice. It's really not fair for the trial to take place where there is so much emotion."

The plaintiffs contended Houston was proper for the trial because the government's supervision of the Davidians' investigation and planning for the Feb. 28 ATF raid was based in Houston, about 180 miles to the northwest.

"The court is unpersuaded," Judge Atlas responded in a 31-page opinion. "Although the court is satisfied that decisions were made in Houston (as well as in other cities in Texas) regarding the execution of the arrest and search warrants, the record demonstrates that no substantial part of the acts or omissions giving rise to plaintiffs' claims occurred in the Southern District of Texas."

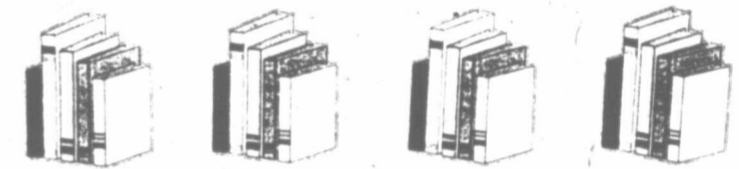

"The events in Houston have an insufficient relationship to plaintiffs' claims for injuries to support venue in the Southern District of Texas."

The judge noted that Waco was the site of the Mount Carmel church, the Davidians, the injuries and fatalities, the Feb. 28 shootout and the siege and fire.

Atlas, however, left open the possibility the case could be moved elsewhere within the Western District of Texas, which also includes Austin, Del Rio, El Paso, Pecos, San Antonio and Midland.

"This court shares plaintiffs' concern that the Waco community may be hostile to the survivors and decedents, and that plaintiffs therefore cannot get a fair jury trial in Waco," she wrote.

"Should plaintiffs concerns prove justified and should the bias persist through the years during which discovery is conducted, and should there be a right to a jury trial on claims that survive after the defendants motions are decided, then this case may be transferred for trial to another division in the Western District..."

State sues EPA for lax standards over nuke dump

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — The state of Texas contends safety standards for a proposed nuclear waste dump in southeast New Mexico were watered down, increasing the chances that radiation could seep across the state line.

Texas Attorney General Dan Morales filed suit against the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency Wednesday in U.S. District Court in Washington, D.C.

The lawsuit says federal agencies held "closed-door discussions" that weakened final technical standards for the proposed Waste Isolation Pilot Plant near Carlsbad.

As a result, the lawsuit says, there was a higher risk of an accidental radiation leak from the site 15 miles from the Texas-New Mexico state line.

"The impact of such a release could be devastating to the State of Texas, Texas' citizens, its natural resources and its economy, particularly the agricultural industry located just miles from the WIPP site," the lawsuit says.

WIPP spokesman Dan Balduini said Thursday the lawsuit was unfounded because a presidential directive ordered every meeting that was held.

"There were no secret meetings," Balduini said. "Everything has been aboveboard."

WIPP is a Department of Energy project designed to bury plutonium-contaminated waste from the nation's defense industry 2,150 feet underground in ancient salt beds 26 miles southeast of Carlsbad.

The complaints about secret meetings in the Texas lawsuit echoed allegations in a lawsuit filed Monday in the same federal court by New Mexico Attorney General Tom Udall.

Udall, two environmental groups and two Santa Fe residents contend in that lawsuit that the EPA, DOE and the federal Office of Management and Budget held private meetings that changed the final criteria from what had been proposed through a public hearing process.

"We've been put in a position to file a suit to get public involvement and input in what we think are ineffective regulations," Udall said Monday.

George Dials, manager of the DOE's

Carlsbad area office, said Thursday that both lawsuits are incorrect.

To the contrary, Dials said, the final rule is actually more stringent than the criteria that was proposed, placing additional burdens upon the DOE to address mining activities up to 10,000 years from now.

"If there is any risk to the public from transuranic waste, it comes from where the waste is currently located in temporary storage in multiple sites nationwide," said Dials.

"It is environmentally irresponsible to continue to delay the opening of the WIPP for the permanent disposal of transuranic waste," he said.

Both lawsuits ask that the criteria, issued by the EPA on Feb. 9, be thrown out and rewritten.

The Texas lawsuit also raised concerns about two of the major routes the DOE proposes for the transportation of waste to WIPP across Texas. Interstate 20 passes through Dallas, Fort Worth, Abilene, Midland and Odessa, and Interstate 40 passes through Amarillo.

Authorities investigate crash after bones found in victim's home

JALAPA, Mexico (AP) — Police say they plan a new search at the site of a 20-year-old plane crash that apparently killed a U.S. doctor at whose home human bones have since been found.

The federal attorney general's office says the only person tentatively identified is Dr. David L. White of McAllen, Texas, a retired surgeon who vanished in the mid-1970s. The bodies of two women also were found.

Unidentified human bones were discovered last year in White's former home, according to The (McAllen) Monitor.

Searchers planned to fly by helicopter today to the crash site in the Santa Marta mountains near the city of San Andres Tuxtla, according to the Federal Judicial Police office in the city of Veracruz.

The plane, a Beechcraft Bonanza, was spotted April 3. Police officers who reached it on foot this week said they found the remains of a man, identified as White, and two women.

They said documents indicated White had been a Harvard University researcher. But officials at Harvard said Thursday they could find no information about him.

But the address they gave for him in McAllen was the site of a gruesome discovery last October: two human skulls and other unidentified bones.

The Monitor reported that a repairman reconditioning the house for new owners found the bones in a burlap bag stuffed into insulation in the attic. The origin of the bones could not be determined at the time.

McAllen police spokesmen could not be reached in several telephone calls on Thursday.

The Monitor reported that White and his wife, Mable, disappeared while flying their private plane from El Salvador to Veracruz, Mexico, in January 1975.

Friends in McAllen were surprised to hear White's remains apparently have been found.

"Do you mean it?" said Evelyn Blondeau, the executor of White's will at the former First National Bank of McAllen. "I just can't believe it after all this time."

Rosemary Moncrief, who lived down the street from the Whites, said she thought immediately of their sons, who live in Temple and Austin.

Local organists will perform in the world's largest organ recital at 5 p.m. Sunday at St. Matthew's Church, 727 W. Browning. They include Jean Casey at the organ, Jerry Whitten and Doris Goad, standing.

Sunday recital marks centennial of American Guild of Organists

At the stroke of 5 p.m. on Sunday, April 14, the world's largest organ concert recital will open with the notes of Toccata and Fugue in D Minor by J.S. Bach.

The concert which will feature organists across America, including Pampans, is to celebrate the centennial of the American Guild of Organists, according to Jerry Whitten.

In Pampa the centennial will be celebrated by local organists at 5 p.m. Sunday in St. Matthew's Episcopal Church. Recitalists for free the event are Jennifer Scoggin, Jean Casey, Susan Abrahamson, Doris Goad, Myrna Orr and Whitten, a member of the Amarillo Chapter of the American Guild of Organists.

Across the United States, according to time zones, the organ recitals will begin.

Other compositions will be works by Franklin Ritter, A.L. Page, Ernest Tomlinson, C.S. Lang, Hermann Schroeder and Leon Boellmann.

The American Guild of Organists is the national professional association serving the organ and choral music fields. It serves over 21,000 members throughout the United States and Europe.

Teens of Hiland Church won first place in drama/pantomime at the Great Plains Conference Christian Education Talent Competition on March 30. From left, the part of the Christian martyr is played by Rainy Hopson, Christ by Brooks Ferguson, and the Christian father is Chris Foreman. The pantomime was set to the Ray Boltz song "I Pledge Allegiance to the Lamb." They recreated their pantomime Easter Sunday evening during a joint praise and worship service with Hiland Christian Church and Highland Baptist Church.

Hiland youth earn talent prizes

Youth from Hiland Pentecostal Church attended the 1996 Great Plains Conference Christian Education Talent Competition at Guymon, Okla. on March 30.

The competition provides opportunities to develop one's talent in vocal and instrumental music, communication/creative arts and creative writing, according to the Rev. Nathan Hopson, church pastor.

The program, he said, is designed to achieve specific goals - to develop the talents of young people in artistic skills, to teach young people to win with humility and modesty and to lose with grace and dignity.

In the junior competition for age 8 through 12, first place certificates went to Sarah and Tisha Platt, vocal ensemble; Dolly Anderson, Megan and Mandy Poole, and Nicole Sikes, drama/tambourine troupe; Sarah, Tisha, Beth and Chad Platt, Mandy and Megan Poole, Heather Vick and Jessica Reaves, drama/pantomime; Mandy Poole, creative arts/painting; Megan Poole, creative arts/fabric; Dolly Anderson, creative writing.

In the senior division for ages

13 through 19, first place certificates were won by Schanta Platt and Veronica Arreola, duet; Kazia Parker, drama/dance and creative arts/painting; D.J. Ort, creative art/fabric; David and Chris Foreman, Veronica Arreola, Schanta Platt, Tosha Fly, Summer and Brooks Ferguson, Misty Vick, Kazia Parker, D.J. Ort and Rainy Hopson, drama/pantomime.

Seniors earning first place awards will advance to national competition to set for August at Arlington Civic Center. They will compete with winners from 39 conference competitions.

March for Jesus organizers to meet Monday

The second organizational meeting for the March for Jesus is set for 7 p.m. Monday, April 15 at Pampa Academy of Christian Education, across from Central Park.

Task group leaders, church coordinators, pastors and other volunteers are encouraged to attend the meeting, according to Jan Edmondson, parade co-chair.

The March for Jesus is set for 9:30 a.m. May 25. It will assemble at Hobart and Somerville and begin at 10 a.m. The parade will proceed south on Hobart to Hobart Street Park and disband by noon.

Seating on flat bed trucks will be available for those who wish to participate but cannot walk the parade route.

Participating churches include Highland Baptist, Hiland Christian, Hiland Church, Bible Church of Pampa, Calvary Baptist, Trinity Fellowship, Briarwood Full Gospel, Calvary Assembly of God, New Life Assembly, St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church, Harvest Foursquare, Iglesia Biblica Del Pueblo, Salvation Army, Carpenter's Church, Priest Park Church of God.

Churches may still sign up to participate by calling 669-6582.

Ivanovich to speak in Canadian church

Col. Eugene Ivanovich, a former Russian army officer, will speak at First Christian Church of Canadian, Fourth and Purcell at 7 p.m. Tuesday, April 16.

Ivanovich's message will be translated by Andrew Krotov, the son of a man who spent five years in a Siberian prison for holding a prayer meeting in his home.

Religion briefs

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The ordination of married men should be discussed as one option for meeting the continuing shortage of Roman Catholic priests, Milwaukee Auxiliary Bishop Richard Skiba says.

The Roman Catholic Church now opens the priesthood to married Episcopal clerics who convert to Catholicism.

"Given the fact that (Catholics) have been raising those questions regularly (about celibacy), I thought the church needed to explore those possibilities," Skiba said recently. "The archbishop and I have no question about the current practice."

He acknowledged that the Vatican may not welcome another call for discussion.

Barbecue planned at St. Theresa's

PANHANDLE - The 41st annual barbecue dinner sponsored by St. Theresa Catholic Church is set for 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Sunday, April 28 in the parish hall.

The all-you-can-eat meal is $6 for adults and children six and up eat for $3. Children under six eat free. The meal includes barbecue beef, potato salad, cole slaw, beans, bread and apricots.

A country store will feature homemade items and barbecue meat will be on sale.

St. Theresa Church can be located by taking Spur 293 off US 60 in Panhandle.

First Pentecostal to host monthly sing

First Pentecostal Holiness Church, 1700 Alcock, will host its monthly gospel singing from 2 until 4 p.m. Sunday.

The Rev. Albert Maggard and the congregation welcome the public to the service.

Tax officials fine carpenter for working at home

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Tax officials have nailed a carpenter with a $1,000 tax bill for working on his own house in his free time, leaving some Norwegians wondering what other leisure activities will cost them.

"If I'd been building the house during working hours, it may have been different. But I did everything in my free time," Halvard Stensrud, 39, told Norway's largest newspaper, Verdens Gang, on Thursday.

The Buskerud County tax office said it didn't matter. It billed him 6,825 kroner — $1,066 — for taxes on the professional services he performed on his new house in Gol, 100 miles north of Oslo.

The rigid interpretation of the law could leave other groups in the same bind, including plumbers fixing their own faucets; cleaners tidying up at home; nurses taking their children's temperature; cooks making meals at home; or tax officials filling out their own income tax forms.

Fighting breaks out near Uganda border

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Uganda's defense minister said Sudanese air force and ground troops have bombed and shelled Uganda army positions near the border this week.

The attacks began Monday near the border town of Keri, 340 miles from Kampala, and lasted for three days, Defense Minister Amama Mbabazi said in a statement broadcast over state-controlled Uganda radio on Thursday.

Mbabazi said the bombs and artillery shells missed their targets and there were no Ugandan casualties.

Sudan charged Uganda last year with supporting the rebel Sudan Peoples' Liberation Army and threatened to invade. Uganda and the rebels denied the Sudanese claim.

Uganda says the Lord's Resistance Army, which is trying to oust President Yoweri Museveni, has become more aggressive because it is getting weapons and other support from Sudan's Islamic government.

Uganda broke off diplomatic relations with Sudan last year over the issue.

Construction workers find remains of 2,000 in province

BEIJING (AP) — Construction workers in eastern Jiangsu province have discovered the grisly remains of some 2,000 people who were killed in 1937 during China's war with Japan, an official report said today.

Orderly rows of broken skulls were recently unearthed by a bulldozer crew just outside the city of Xuyi, in northern Jiangsu. The deeper they dug, the more bodies they found, the newspaper China Daily reported.

The report did not say exactly when the grave was discovered. It said some 2,000 people — civilians, monks and soldiers — were thought to have been killed when Japanese troops stormed the city and set it afire in December 1937. Survivors of the attack covertly buried the dead.

Over time, the location of the mass grave was forgotten.

Peacekeepers join outlaws in thievery; Monrovia brought to knees as supplies run dangerously low

By NYENAIT ALLISON
Associated Press Writer

MONROVIA, Liberia (AP) — Warriors are battling beyond the control of their warlords. Peacekeepers are joining outlaws in thievery. Food and medicine are scarce. Desperation has overcome the residents of Liberia's seaside capital.

"Lord, please help us out of this madness," housewife Maima Jones said Thursday. "Your children are dying."

Up to 20,000 people have sought refuge in the U.S. Embassy compound and U.N. offices since fighting broke out between rebels and government troops last Saturday.

A few people jumped the wall at the embassy compound on Thursday, but were quickly run off by U.S. special forces, said U.S. State Department spokesman Glyn Davies in Washington.

The Washington Post, citing an unidentified European diplomat who witnessed the clash, reported today that the U.S. troops exchanged gunfire with the group. The diplomat said there were no American casualties.

U.S. military helicopters have been evacuating people from the compound. By late Thursday, 712 people had been flown out, including 130 Americans and citizens of at least 35 other countries, officials in Washington said.

No one knows how many people have died.

Dozens of corpses, mostly those of young men, lay by the side of downtown streets on Thursday amid burned-out vehicles and Lebanese-owned shops that were looted and vandalized.

"You Liberians have a good country that God has given to the wrong people," said Joseph Hage, 36, a Lebanese businessman, who saw his electronics shop looted and destroyed.

The U.S. military was expanding its evacuation effort as street fighting among rival factions pinned down some U.S. citizens trying to reach the embassy.

With a U.S. Marine amphibious group expected to arrive in a week, more than 4,000 U.S. military personnel will be involved, U.S. defense officials said.

The seven-year war involving seven rebel factions has killed more than 150,000 people in the West African nation, founded in 1847 by freed American slaves. It has also left at least half the country's 2.3 million people homeless.

A peace accord was supposed to clear the way for elections this year, but civil order collapsed despite the presence of some 12,000 West African peacekeepers.

"A serious humanitarian crisis is likely to erupt if fighting continues," said Tarek El Guindi, director of the U.N. World Food Program in Liberia.

Update

- Up to 15,000 civilians, including foreign diplomats, missionaries and Liberians, have fled to U.S. Embassy compounds and U.N. offices since Saturday.
- Bands of armed thugs continued to roam the streets Thursday, looting homes and shops. Rebels still hold hundreds of hostages in a military base in the capital.
- The violence has destroyed Liberia's only international airport.

Aid workers from Doctors Without Borders said they had treated dozens of gunshot victims and were running short of medical supplies because sniper fire prevented them from reaching the central hospital.

Groups of people broke down the gates at the U.N. compound on Thursday morning, cutting communication with headquarters in New York, spokesman Sylvana Foa said.

Reports from the U.N. mission spoke of a "frenzy of looting" and said it appeared that leaders of the warring factions had lost control of their own fighters, Foa said.

Some peacekeepers, particularly Nigerians, were reported to have joined in the looting, said U.N. sources, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Poisonous cloud of gas hovers over western Montana after train carrying chlorine derails

ALBERTON, Mont. (AP) — As soon as trucker Layne Atwood caught a whiff of the foul mist enveloping Interstate 90 in western Montana, he knew he and his son were in trouble.

"It was burning our lungs and eyes," Atwood, 60, said from his hospital bed. "It takes your breath away. ... You feel like your lungs are on fire."

The two Cardston, Alberta, truckers were carrying a load of tulips from Vancouver, British Columbia, to Chicago when their 18-wheeler entered a fog of chlorine gas from derailed, ruptured railroad tank cars. They stopped to help some motorists who had pulled over on the side of the road, and then proceeded 150 miles to their morning's destination, a truck stop in Butte. They were later taken to a hospital.

The burning fog they drove into wafted from the wreckage of a Burlington Northern-Santa Fe derailment that forced the entire town of Alberton, 400 people, to evacuate. The cause of the crash was under investigation.

The toxic fog sent 105 people to hospitals, mostly to get treatment for lung irritation and difficulty in breathing. Two people were in critical condition.

Eighteen cars jumped the tracks early Thursday, including five tankers that overturned, said Lynda Frost, a spokeswoman for Montana Rail Link, which operates the track. Three cars were leaching chlorine gas, a strong irritant that forms an acid when mixed with water.

A team of specialists wearing protective gear found that one tanker's entire 170,000 pounds of chlorine had virtually vanished; two others had slower leaks.

The chlorine hazard "could continue for a couple of days, easily," said Bill Reed, chief of the Missoula fire department.

Gov. Marc Racicot declared an emergency in Missoula and Mineral counties, making them eligible for assistance from the National Guard.

Rural residents who lived within miles were evacuated. State disaster officials put the total at about 1,000; local estimates were about half that.

It was eerily reminiscent of the Wisconsin derailment that forced all 1,700 residents of Weyauwega to evacuate last month. A fiery propane explosion prompted that evacuation, which kept residents out of their homes for 2 1/2 weeks.

By Thursday night, though, residents of two small Montana communities were allowed to go home. Hundreds of others were expected to be out of their homes until at least tonight. Montana Rail Link was paying for food and lodging for displaced people.

IOU Is Legally Worth Paper It's Printed On

DEAR ABBY: Much as it pains me to publicly disagree with another attorney, the letter you published from Max D. Rynearson about the value of an IOU was more wrong than right — and your original advice to parents to get an IOU when lending money to their children was more right than wrong.

Yes, a detailed promissory note, with due dates, interest, default provisions and attorneys fees is nice. (A mortgage on the homestead or a security interest in the family Mercedes is even nicer.) However, to say that a written IOU has no legal value is incorrect. I would hope that none of your readers, after seeing that in your column, would tear up an IOU or abandon their hope of repayment.

An IOU is written evidence of a debt. If signed by the borrower, it is even better evidence. As documentary evidence of a debt, a signed IOU is as good as any promissory note. Only the bells and whistles of a promissory note are missing. Any defense that could be used against a signed IOU can be used against a promissory note.

Not lending and not borrowing is best. Getting a note and secured collateral is next best. But if someone you cannot or do not want to refuse needs a loan at a time or place when you can get no lawyer, note or collateral, a signed IOU is enforceable written evidence of a debt. Surely, someone holding one should not think it has no legal value.

JOHN D. RICE, ATTORNEY AT LAW, CHANHASSEN, MINN.

DEAR MR. RICE: Thank you very much for straightening this out. I'm sure that many readers will be relieved to know that the IOUs they are holding are valid legal documents after all. But the words of William Shakespeare seem even truer today than when he wrote, "Neither a borrower nor a lender be..."

DEAR ABBY: I have a family dilemma. My 11- and 5-year-old sons are disrespectful to my husband and me. They also swear a lot. My problem is my husband doesn't care and refuses to do anything about it, while I care a great deal and try to do everything I can to stop it. Obviously, my kids are getting a mixed message.
Since my husband allows it, my 11-year-old swears at him, but knows not to mess with me. My 5-year-old doesn't understand, though, and swears at both of us — and I just can't stand it. I feel as though I'll go out of my mind or even leave the house if it doesn't stop.

How should I deal with this?
UPSET IN UTAH

DEAR UPSET: One way to get a child to behave is to withhold privileges (something the child enjoys) if he misbehaves. It might be television, movies, sweets, phone privileges, playing with friends, favorite toys, video games or computer time. Your 5-year-old is certainly old enough to understand English. Once he realizes that cursing Mommy makes her less cooperative and generous, he might think before speaking disrespectfully to you.
By refusing to assert parental authority over his sons, your husband is being incredibly foolish. It appears you're dealing with three children — not two!

SOFTBALL

PAMPA — The Pampa Softball Players' Association announces their 15th annual softball tournament to be held Saturday, April 20. This USSSA Tournament will include men's C-D-E and mixed C-D. The deadline will be at 5 p.m. Wednesday, April 17. For more information, call Shane Stokes at (806) 669-5770.

FOOTBALL

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Troy Aikman and Barry Switzer, who were on such icy terms they rarely spoke in the last half of the 1995 season, "had a meeting to settle our differences," the Cowboys quarterback says.

Neither would comment on what was resolved at the meeting, which occurred in the past two weeks, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported today.

"That's between me and Troy," Switzer said, but he called the powwow "very productive."

Aikman said, "We're just going to put everything behind us and work on next season."

Problems began after reports got back to Aikman that defensive line coach John Blake complained to Switzer that Aikman seemed to regularly single out black players as targets for occasional angry outbursts.

BASEBALL

CHICAGO (AP) — The major leagues or playground games, it's all the same to Lyle Mouton.

Mouton hit a three-run homer with one out in the 11th inning Thursday, giving the Chicago White Sox an 8-5 victory over the previously unbeaten Texas Rangers, snapping their seven-game win streak.

"Who knows how long the streak could have gone?" Rangers starter Bobby Witt said. "But tomorrow, we'll try to start a new one."

With one out in the 11th, Mike Henneman (0-1) walked Frank Thomas and gave up a single to Harold Baines, advancing Thomas to third and setting up Mouton, who drove a 1-0 pitch into the right-field bleachers.

BOXING

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A year after his release from prison, Mike Tyson is marooned in Ohio while police investigate a complaint he sexually assaulted a woman at a Chicago nightclub.

Tyson, on probation for a 1992 rape conviction, may leave Ohio only for emergencies or reasons approved in advance during the investigation, said George Walker, chief probation officer for Marion County, where Tyson was convicted.

An out-of-state boxing match would likely be allowed, he said.

"There would be no problem with that," Walker said Thursday. "We're not going to prohibit him from making his livelihood."

BASKETBALL

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Earlier in the season, the Portland Trail Blazers might not have been considered a threat in the playoffs.

They are now.

"Portland has really put it together," Dallas coach Dick Motta said after the Mavericks were overpowered 114-99 by the Blazers on Thursday night.

The Mavericks (24-53) trailed by 15 points at half-time. They got no closer than 11 and trailed by as many as 23 in the fourth quarter.

The Mavericks took 101 shots, making only 37 (36.6 percent), including 10 of 40 from 3-point range. They were out rebounded 59-45 by the Blazers, who made 50.6 of their field goals.

Norman takes first-round Masters lead

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — If nothing else, years of heartache at Augusta National Golf Club have taught Greg Norman to be patient.

As badly as he wants to win the Masters, as pure as his swing felt when he warmed up on the practice range before the first round Thursday, nothing could alter his plan of attack — which really wasn't much of an attack at all.

Norman simply waited for Augusta National to come to him, and then he refused to let it go.

His 24-foot birdie putt that bounced over a spike mark before falling dead center into the cup on No. 18 was his ninth birdie in the last 12 holes, giving him a 9-under-par 63.

That's the lowest first-round score in 60 years of the Masters. It tied the course record first set by Nick Price in 1986 and, more importantly, gave Norman a 2-stroke lead over Phil Mickelson.

"When you get into the type of roll that I got into, let it happen," he said. "Let the reins of the horse go and let him run as fast as he wants to run. I wanted to get as much under par as I could. I didn't care if I got the lead or not. I wanted the situation."

He had to wait for it, which was a stiffer test than some of the pin placements on fast, firm, greens that made the course play harder than Norman's score would indicate.

He could have pressed when he missed birdie putts of 10 feet or less on three of the first six holes. He could have panicked when Mickelson tapped in a 2-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole for his 65.

"I didn't attack today," Norman said. "If you lose your patience, get a little too aggressive with your putter and you have those 3- or 4-footers coming back and miss one, you get impatient and let it get away. All I could do was be patient."

It paid off on a day that figured to benefit the early starters, like Bob Tway and Scott Hoch, who shot a 67 before the warm Augusta air began to dry out the greens even more. Lee Janzen, another early starter, was at 68.

Nick Faldo was in a fivesome at 69, while Jack Nicklaus — 10 years after his sixth and most amazing Masters title — Raymond Floyd and Paul Azinger were in a group at 2-under 70.

John Daly took a double-bogey on the 18th hole to shoot 71. Defending champion Ben Crenshaw was at 77, six shots worse than 59-year-old Tommy Aaron but still better than Fred Couples, who ballooned to a 78.

That got Couples a surprisingly early tee time — the Masters is the only major that puts out new pairings every day — when play began today in ideal, dry weather, with warm temperatures in the 60s.

Four straight days of those conditions have put the table-top greens at their swiftest, making 40-foot putts up the slope often more desirable than an 10-footer from above the hole.

That's one of the lessons Mickelson learned in his short history at Augusta, and it worked to his favor on Thursday.

"When I first came here, I felt like I should be firing at every pin," he said. "And I feel like now I might fire at a pin in a certain spot, but firing at a pin means maybe 8 feet left of it so I have an uphill putt."

Patience can be as imperative as knowing the subtle breaks of the greens, and no one proved that more than Norman. While he knows a tournament can be lost but not won on the first day, he realizes the same holds true for the front nine.

"We're out there churning our guts out knowing that if you don't get off to a good start you're going to be in a for a long day," Norman said. "The way I played the first five holes set up the rest of the day. I played them good. I played them strong."

District 1-1A meet to be held at Sunray

SUNRAY — White Deer coach Ralph Samaniego looks for the District 1-1A boys track meet today and Saturday to be a tossup between several teams.

"We're looking for it to be a pretty close meet. Sometimes you'll have the winning team score 100 points or more, but I don't believe that's going to happen this year. It should be equally divided," Samaniego said.

Wheeler is the defending champion.

"Wheeler has a good chance to win again," Samaniego said. "Both Shamrock and Sunray have some good athletes."

For the Bucks, Tim Sandlin (triple jump) and Nick Knocke (110 hurdles) have the best chance of qualifying for regionals," Samaniego said.

"Both our relay teams have a good chance of going to regionals," he added.

Wheeler, which won the North Plains Relays title last week, is led by hurdler Jason Porton and pole vaulter Travis Stevens. Porton is tied for 10th in the 300 hurdles (41.2) on the Amarillo Globe-News Track Honor Roll. Stevens' best in the pole vault is 13-6, which has him tied for sixth on the honor roll.

In the girls' division, Wheeler and Groom could both qualify a number of individuals for regionals.

Brooke Stevens, who won the long jump, 110 hurdles and 300 hurdles at the North Plains Relays, is Wheeler's best choice. Ember Bradstreet (3200), Elissa Ray (800), Jesse Wallace (110 hurdles), Kristen Marion (400) and Dena Compton (1600) are other regional hopefuls.

Groom's Kay Case, who won the discus throw at North Plains, has an excellent shot at advancing. Sandie Conrad (high jump and 100) and Kay Britten (200) could also make it.

Groom is the defending district girls' champion.

The top two finishers in each event advance to the Region 1-1A meet April 26-27 in Levelland.

Pampa hosts Randall to end first half of District 1-4A baseball season

PAMPA — Pampa welcomes District 1-4A leading Randall at 1 p.m. Saturday at Harvester Field.

Randall is 4-1 in district play and 13-8 overall. Pampa is 3-2 in district and 13-7 for the season.

Randall gained the district lead with an 11-6 win over Dumas on Wednesday. Pampa is in a three-way tie for third after beating Caprock, 7-4, on Wednesday.

Junior shortstop August Larson hit a three-run homer in the seventh inning as the Harvesters rallied from a two-run deficit to defeat Caprock.

Randall third baseman Brad Dewey led the Raiders' 11-hit attack against Dumas with a double and two singles.

"Six of the top 10 hitters in the Amarillo city area are from Randall, so they have a good offense," said Pampa head coach Dennis Doughty. "Randall is basically an all-senior team. The only player they don't returning is their catcher. But we're feeling pretty confident right now. We had been having some hitting problems, but we had a good inning against Caprock and broke out of our slump."

Doughty said Drew Daniel or Toby Hudson would probably pitch for the Raiders.

Daniel is a righthander and Hudson is a lefthander," Doughty said. "Daniel is a hard thrower. He gets it up there 85 to 90 miles an hour."

Ryan Schumacher will draw the pitching assignment for the Harvesters.

"Ryan is a great competitor on the mound," Doughty added.

Borger (4-2) holds down second place in the district standings while Pampa is tied with Dumas and Canyon for third. Caprock is 1-4 while Hereford is still looking for its first district victory after five losses.

In other district games, Caprock is at Hereford and Dumas hosts Canyon. Saturday's action completes the first half of district play.

"This game (Randall) is critical. If we win there would be three teams tied for first. If Canyon upsets Dumas there could be five teams tied for first. That would make things pretty interesting going into the second half of the season," Doughty added.

Rockets down Nuggets

HOUSTON (AP) — There are definite signs that the Houston Rockets are once again coming together at playoff time.

Hakeem Olajuwon showed no indications of sitting out for seven straight games with tendonitis in both knees Thursday night as he scored 37 points, including 14 in the fourth quarter, helping the Rockets to a 113-109 victory over the Denver Nuggets.

Mario Elie, who missed 36 games with a broken bone in his right arm, contributed valuable minutes and Robert Horry, plagued by back problems this season, hit the clutch 3-point basket in the fourth quarter that put the Rockets ahead for good against the determined Nuggets.

"I like the way we're building toward the playoffs," Olajuwon said. "We're getting a little better every game. My knees are getting much better. They didn't hurt much at all tonight."

All of the Rockets key players are off the injury list except Sam Cassell, who could return on Saturday.

"The good thing about tonight was Mario looked so good," teammate Robert Horry said. "When he was doing that driving, it let me know he's back and ready to play."

The Rockets had a season high 36 assists, proving to Olajuwon the Rockets are on the right course.

"That shows we're playing together," Olajuwon said. "We're moving the ball and finding the open man."

All-region selections

(Pampa News photo)

Pampa head coach Robert Hale presents the all-region trophy to Rayford Young (center) and Coy Laury. Young and Laury, both PHS seniors, were named to the All-Region 1-4A Team this season by the Texas Association of Basketball Coaches. The state champion Harvesters will be honored during a basketball banquet at 6:30 p.m. Monday in M.K. Brown Auditorium. Tickets for the public are available only through Monday at the high school athletic office. Tickets are ten dollars, which includes a rib-eye steak dinner.

Two of nation's top baseball coaches have identical roots

DALLAS (AP) — Dora isn't much different than many other New Mexico farming communities: It has a service station, a cafe and a high school basketball program steeped in tradition.

But it's safe to say that the town outside of Portales, N.M., is the only place in the state that has produced two of the nation's top college baseball coaches.

"When you grow up in Dora, New Mexico, there's not a lot of things to do except play sport," said Texas Tech coach Larry Hays, who has combined for nearly 2,000 victories with former schoolmate and current Dallas Baptist coach Jim Harp.

Hays, 51, owns a career 1,052-578-2 record entering this weekend's crucial series at Southwest Conference leader Texas, in which a sweep for either team could go a long way toward determining the league's final title.

Meanwhile, Harp (930-492) has his top-ranked NAIA team looking to extend a 14-game winning streak that has included weekend sweeps of Baylor and Texas A&M. Today, the Patriots visit the same Rice team that beat Tech twice last Saturday.

Like Harp, Hays got his start at an NAIA school. And both men's aspirations initially rested on the hardwoods rather than the diamond.

"I always thought basketball was in my future when I finished at Lubbock Christian (then a junior college)," said Hays, whose father helped recruit Harp to the school two years later.

Hays returned to Lubbock Christian as an assistant basketball coach with the idea he'd become baseball coach if they restarted the program.

Baseball returned in 1971, and Hays became a mainstay there for 16 years, leading the basketball team, too, for half that time.

"I got lucky, because I had plenty of good players right off," Hays said of his 28-16 initial season. "We had guys with a winning attitude, not guys who were willing to play good enough so they wouldn't get embarrassed."

The coach, whose contract was due to expire in June, now will get $520,000 in salary over the next five years after he signed a new pact, Texas Tech officials said Thursday.

LCU's baseball team quickly overshadowed that of larger Texas Tech and brought the city its first college national championship in 1983.

Players at Dallas Baptist are fighting to grant a first-ever title to Harp, who also built his program from scratch.

"Every time the grass would get up, cows would come from across the creek and eat on our field," Harp recalls of the early years in southwest Dallas. "I told the maintenance department we needed a fence down the side and they told me they'd put a barbed-wire fence down the line."

"I said, 'No, that's not exactly what I had in mind.'"

Baseball success came more quickly than a proper field, which watered by pumping from the creek in the early 1970s to a modern facility for the city's only college baseball team.

Harp considers 1983, the year Hays won his only title at LCU, also to be the season he finally took DBU over the hump since taking over 10 years earlier.

That year, DBU won its first district championship. Two seasons later, the team finished second in the NAIA World Series.

Harp and Co. are still searching for the big one.

"If everyone shows up, we should be able to win that ring and bring coach that flag," DBU third baseman Jason Mendels said.

The 49-year-old Harp is happy at DBU.

"I was eager, young and too stupid to see this was a lousy job when I took it," he said. "No one around wanted the thing. Now, I think it's one of the better jobs around."

Hays was ready for a new challenge by 1986, and the traditionally mediocre Red Raiders seemed to be the ticket, though things were slow in the early going.

"It was ready to do something different," he said. "They hired T. Jones as athletic director from Texas, and he knew what it took to have a good baseball program. I took a look at what his plans were and kind of bought into the idea."

Tech won the SWC championship last year after some early losing seasons. Hays said his team still doesn't have the national reputation to risk losing to NAIA powers like DBU, which he said could hurt his College World Series chances.

"We have trouble with the selection committee," said Hays, who won't play his schoolmate or his own son, Daren, now coach at Lubbock Christian. "I don't know if that will change."

Astros' Reynolds snaps Reds' jinx

CINCINNATI (AP) — Shane Reynolds broke a Cincinnati jinx, getting his first victory against the Reds and hitting his first major league home run, all in one night.

"In our meetings, we went over how well he can swing the bat, but he still shouldn't be as good as the other eight guys," Reds manager Ray Knight said of Reynolds.

That's what Mark Portugal (0-1) did too frequently throughout his four-inning struggle, giving up five runs on nine hits and two walks, starting Houston on its way to a 9-4 victory Thursday night.

Reynolds gave up two hits in the first inning, but Rick Wilkins threw out both runners trying to steal second, and Reynolds (1-1) threw just well enough after that to stay around for seven innings.

"He was almost sharper after 100 pitches than before," Houston manager Terry Collins said. "Indeed, Reynolds threw 125 pitches, 74 of them strikes, and didn't allow a run in his last four innings."

"I'm a control-type guy, and when I get behind and have to come in with the ball, they beat you," Reynolds said. "These guys have always hit me pretty good."

Reynolds had been winless in four decisions against Cincinnati last season, and was 0-5 overall against the Reds.

The Astros, 0-6 at Riverfront Stadium last year and 1-12 against the Reds overall, had a season-high 18 hits. Brian Hunter had nine hits, Derek Bell homered and Jeff Bagwell doubled and drew four walks.

Giving up a home run to a pitcher galled Portugal. "I don't like giving up hits, period, but it's worse when you give up hits to pitchers," Portugal said. "I threw the ball up there with no idea, and it hurt me."

Collins had made it clear that he was unhappy with his team's 3-6 season start in a nine-game homestand. So he relished a win in the Astros' first road game of the year.

"It was important to us because we needed a win. We needed a win bad, whatever we had to do," Collins said.

Reynolds' homer was a solo shot in the fourth inning that made it 5-3. He also had an RBI double.

Houston scored first, getting two runs in the second on an infield out and Reynolds' double off Mike Kelly's glove in left field. The Reds evened the score on an infield out and a wild pitch.

Bell homered in the third for Houston after Bagwell doubled. The Reds made it 4-3 in the bottom half on another infield out.

Reynolds homered in the fourth, and Houston added four more in the sixth on RBI singles by Bell, Sean Berry and John Cangelosi and a sacrifice fly by Ricky Gutierrez.

The final Cincinnati run came in the eighth, again on an infield out.

Ford to assume control of Mazda

TOKYO (AP) — Ford Motor Co. will assume virtual control of ailing Mazda Motor Corp., which has been battered by Japan's recession and the strong yen. Mazda and Ford put out a joint statement Friday confirming reports Ford would increase its share in Mazda to 33.4 percent of the company's shares, and that Mazda would voluntarily cede management control. Trading in Mazda shares was suspended Friday morning in Tokyo following the news reports of the impending changes. The increased share alone does not give Ford control, but analysts said coupled with the top-level management changes, it would effectively put the U.S. company in the driver's seat. "Ford and Mazda believe that closer coordination of our cooperative strategies and plans, particularly in the areas of product development, manufacturing and distribution of vehicles, will enable both companies to improve competitiveness and to achieve improved economies of scale and efficiencies," said Wayne Booker, executive vice president of Ford. Even before the formal announcement, the news was being welcomed. Japan's trade minister, Shunpei Tsukahara, said Ford's plan to raise its share in Mazda was "good for the world economy" in an era of economic liberalization. Tsukahara said the Ford-Mazda moves cannot be directly linked to the U.S.-Japan auto agreement of last year, which was aimed at further opening the Japanese market for foreign auto makers. However, the development comes only days before President Clinton is to visit Japan, and the same day on which the White House is to release a report touting American progress in the Japanese auto market. In recent years, Ford has been pouring cash and management expertise into Mazda, which has seen its sales sag significantly since the decade began. Ford bought about 25 percent of Mazda in 1979, and had maintained the level of its stake since then.

Family mourns daughter, questions third-world help

NASHUA, N.H. (AP) — Peace Corps volunteer Nancy Coutu spent 18 months living in a mud hut in Madagascar, teaching 300 villagers how to grow vegetables and building a school, hospital and roads. She was supposed to finish her assignment this fall, travel and then go to graduate school. But Coutu, 29, was killed Tuesday while riding her bicycle just outside the village of Bereketa while on her way to another village to visit a Peace Corps volunteer. She died from a blow to the head, showed signs of being raped and was attacked by up to three people, her father said he was told by the Peace Corps. No arrests had been made and the Peace Corps had no details Thursday about possible suspects or a motive. While relatives mourn her death, they are doubting the value of sending young Americans into dangerous areas by themselves.

Her step-mother, Paula Paul-Coutu, said she hopes the slaying prompts the Peace Corps to review its policies on safety.

Court rules Megan's Law applies to 12-year-old

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — A boy who confessed at age 12 to fondling his stepbrother must register as a sex offender under New Jersey's Megan's Law, a state appeals court ruled. The ruling, issued Wednesday, triggered protests from some who said it highlights flaws in the law hastily passed in 1994. Attorneys for the boy said they would appeal. Megan's law was adopted in response to the rape and murder of 7-year-old Megan Kanka, who was allegedly attacked by a twice-convicted sex offender who lived across the street from her family's Hamilton Township home. "I think many pedophiles do start at a young age," said Megan's mother, Maureen Kanka. "If he does have pedophile tendencies, ... I think it's important that he falls under Megan's Law. If there's any type of treatment for him, I think it has to happen at a young age."

For love of ducks, a highway sign is suggested

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — One man wants the state to replace highway exit signs with "Xit" signs to save millions of dollars in paint. The Ohio Department of Transportation has also been asked to lower all 35 mph signs to 33 mph to honor Jesus' age at his death. And a group of middle school pupils in the Dayton suburb of Washington Township wants a yield sign so drivers won't hit the ducks that cross four lanes of traffic in search of handouts at a restaurant. While none of those suggestions were adopted, the state keeps an eye out for ones that could work out of the dozens of unsolicited ideas received each year, officials said Thursday.

Marlon Brandon changes mind about public apology

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Marlon Brando called off the public apology he agreed to make today for saying Jews run Hollywood. Instead, the actor said he would meet privately today with Rabbis Marvin Hier and Abraham Cooper of the Simon Wiesenthal Center's Museum of Tolerance. In a telephone call to Hier, the Oscar-winning star of The Godfather expressed remorse and said he would publicly apologize for remarks he made a week ago on CNN's "Larry King Live." Brando had said he would issue his apology at the center, which is named for a famed Nazi hunter, and has Holocaust memorial exhibits and tracks hate groups. Jewish leaders had condemned Brando for his comments on CNN. It was not immediately clear why Brando changed his mind about the apology. Telephone messages left for his agent were not returned.
