Three Murders, Gang Gun Play, Throws New York In Uproar

Pampa folk are interested in the oil tariff

They should resent the outspoken opposition of Secretary Wilbur who with typical gusto comes out against the oil tariff...

Mr. Wilbur's reasons for his stand will not bear analysis. He gives us one, that if the oil tariff were voted the big companies would open up their wells...

The secretary likewise suggests that American oil fields be shut down. He says that the oil will be plentiful in the future...

To shut down fields as a conservation move would mean irreparable damage to the communities affected...

There is a 42-cent wheat tariff—why not an oil tariff likewise? The present wheat price in America is about 25 cents above the world price...

The most sensible thing to come from Hoover lately: "There are too few of us left who know how to laugh."

Wanted—To know who is responsible for the unsightly condition around the courthouse lawn.

It is queer that Augustine Sandino, "George Washington of Nicaragua," should have made as much noise as he has without breaking into the movies.

Oh! Paul of Goshen, Ala., entreats our aid in steps to cut 1931 cotton acreage.

If any reader of this paper is going to get rich on cotton this year, he had better think it over—yes, the weather: Colder and cloudier the rest of this week.

'HACK HANDS' SCATTER AS MACHINE GUN BULLETS FLY

NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (AP)—Three murders—a girl, an elderly business man, and a young ex-convict—excited New York today.

Doris Reiling, a girl in her teens, who tended a bakery on Broadway near 17th street, was killed by a blow dealt with such terrific force it crushed her skull.

Thomas Diorio, only a few weeks out of Elmira reformatory, was done to death apparently for incurring gang displeasure.

SEA SQUADRON LANDS IN PORT AS SCHEDULED

TWO SHIPS FORCED TO LAND AT SEA OFF BRAZIL COAST

NATAL, Brazil, Jan. 6 (AP)—Ten great seaplanes roared down into the harbor here today between 4:15 and 4:30 o'clock (1:15 and 1:30 p. m. CST), completing one of the most ambitious aviation projects ever attempted.

An even dozen ships left Bolama, Portuguese Guinea, early this morning, but was forced to come down in the sea much later near St. Paul's Rock, just off the Brazilian coast.

Both were taken safely in charge by Italian naval vessels, 12 of which lined the course in charge as a precautionary measure.

After arriving here General Italo Balbo, Italian air minister and commander of the exploit, ordered that the disabled airplanes be brought to Fernando de Noronha, the Brazilian penal island not far off the coast.

The flight of 1,875 miles was completed in approximately 17 hours, 15 minutes for the first plane which dropped down, as they came in at intervals and flew all the way in the same fashion.

Starting at 2 a. m., GMT, (9 p. m. Monday, EST), while darkness still hung about the sea, the Italian squadron lifted anchor and soared out for the long flight across the South Atlantic.

Then, at 3:40 a. m., GMT, they passed the Dariceo, first of the Italian vessels along the route. At 4:37 GMT they passed the Italian seaplane carrier and finally slipped to a stop on the waters of Natal harbor at 4:15 p. m.

A great crowd was out to welcome the visitors, people coming from miles around despite heavy rains last night, and a thrilling moment, not only for the natives, but for the aviators who had completed such a hazardous trip.

By 4:55 p. m., all the planes were safely anchored, and general Italo Balbo, who is Italian air minister and commander of the flight, disembarked with his aides to be welcomed by Brazilian officials.

The general naturally was elated, for he had said before the start that if half the planes which left Italy Dec. 17 reached Brazil it would be a remarkable achievement.

After three days here the Italians will go on to Rio de Janeiro.

CORONER GIVES VERDICT AFTER FOUR TESTIFY

MRS. FELKER IS FOUND DEAD IN CAR PARKED NEAR RITZ HOTEL

FORMERLY OF SEMINOLE LIVED UNDER NAME OF CARRIE CARDWELL

IT IS LEARNED Death due to alcoholism, was the verdict returned by the coroner's jury last night after investigating the death of Mrs. Clyde Felker, who has been living here under the name of Mrs. Carrie Cardwell.

Following an investigation of the sheriff's department, the department said the woman's name was Mrs. Clyde Felker who was formerly of Seminole and Three Sands, Okla. She was 30 years old.

Circumstances surrounding the death of Mrs. Clyde Felker were revealed at the coroner's inquest held by Justice of Peace James Todd, Jr. yesterday.

Attendants at the Stephenson mortuary notified Flora Maddox, Delhi, Okla., whom they believe to be her sister, and ask Jennings, thought to be the woman's brother, at San Jose, Cal., of her death.

At the inquest yesterday afternoon four witnesses testified. Frank Hukel, said he (Mrs. Cardwell), J. C. Roberts and Lillian West had been together in the car and that about 5 o'clock parked the car in front of the Ritz hotel.

Hukel said they had been drinking. Lillian West was taken to her room in the hotel and Hukel said he went to his room and went to bed. Roberts said Mrs. Cardwell was left in the car.

It was revealed that one of the men put his overcoat over her but later was afraid it might be stolen and got a blanket and spread it over her instead.

Roberts then went to the cafe next door to the hotel and stayed until 9 o'clock in the morning.

As oilfield workers kept coming in the morning, they would make some comment about a woman being "passed out" in the car out in front. Employees of the cafe finally became curious and went to the car and found the woman dead.

Attendants at the funeral home were notified and the sheriff's department was called. The undertaker, expressing the belief the woman had been dead between three and five hours.

Letters addressed to Mrs. Carrie Cardwell were found on her body. It is through them, addresses of a woman and a man, believed to be her brother and sister, were found.

GIRL FLIERS SET NEW FLIGHT RECORD—WILL ATTEMPT MEN'S MARK

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 6. (AP)—Bobble Trout, with a new girl flying partner, Edna May Cooper, actress and aviatrix, set a new women's endurance flight record today. At 9:47 a. m. she piloted the "Lady Rolph" an hour past the previous record of 42 hours, 16 minutes, set by herself and Elinor Smith, New York aviatrix, some months ago.

Feasting on beyond the new feminine mark, the two hung around another milestone in their flight this afternoon. At 2:30 p. m., the trim monoplane had been in the air 48 hours. The girl fliers declared they aimed to crack, if possible, the present men's mark of 645 hours, held by Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brien of St. Louis.

The monotonous round above the municipal airport was abandoned for three hours today as the refueling times as the girls hied themselves in search of new scenes, feasting their eyes on aerial views of Hollywood, Beverly Hills, Santa Monica, and the beaches.

Rough air, from a choppy wind which followed last night's inconvenient rainstorm, upset the noon refueling. Miss Cooper got a shower bath of gasoline, and the "Lady Rolph" obtained but 38 gallons of fuel. An emergency refueling was made at mid-afternoon, when the air was comparatively quiet.

A tasty luncheon of various delicacies was spurned. Instead, a pound of chocolates was joyously received. Tomorrow Miss Trout will celebrate her 25th birthday.

by MATEEL HOWE FARNHAM

SYNOPSIS: From the day Fanny Frost marries David, her mother-in-law makes her the target of a jealous hatred. Her most sympathetic friend is Bob Daniels, who is the husband of Lella, David's cousin. Bob is unhappy with Lella, but loves Fanny madly. At a Halloween costume ball, Fanny, downcast by a trivial quarrel with David, is urged by Bob to run away with him. Carried away by his arguments and expressions of love, she consents. Then sobering, she forces him to bring her back, but before he has telephoned news of their escape to Lella, Mrs. Frost refuses to believe Fanny's innocence. David is suspicious, and she leaves again, driving to New York with Bob, where they separate. Fanny agrees to a divorce but insists she must have Sheila, her daughter, as part of each year.

SURRENDER
On the floor below Fanny lived a young married couple and a small boy of 8 or 9. Fanny had smiled at the child as she passed him on the stairs and one evening soon after her interview with Mr. Philbrick the youngster came to call.

"I'm Mrs. Oliver's little boy and we all think you're awful pretty," was his introduction to Fanny.

"That's very kind of you," smiled Fanny, "and what is your name?"

"Elsworth Sherman. And I'll punch anyone's nose who calls me Elly." He was quite at ease, roamed about Fanny's room, his sharp dark eyes appraising her belongings.

"Elsworth Sherman," repeated Fanny, wondering why his last name wasn't Oliver. He continued the amenities.

"My mother's divorce, Dick Oliver is my stepfather. He brings me candy and eats it up himself. My real father can run any kind of automobile there is. Are you divorced?"

"No," said Fanny quickly. "What a pretty tie that is."

"My mama gave me that. But you're separated from your husband, aren't you?"

"Yes," she said as man to man, "but I don't like to talk about it."

"This was received with blank amazement. Questions evidently rumbled on the tip of her visitor's tongue but he remembered his manners and tactfully suppressed them.

"My father's an illustrator," he went on, determined to put Fanny at her ease. "Dick's an illustrator too, but he doesn't make much. My father couldn't get married this summer because he had to help us out. But now Mama's got a job and he's going to."

"What a terrible child. And yet his thin pale little face was faintly appealing."

"The next time my father sells a picture he's going to get me a bicycle," Elsworth went on. "That is, if Ada lets him. Ada is the girl my father's going to marry. She gave me a steam engine on my birthday. Dick says she'll all appreciate now but we'll see a change once she's married. Dick's awful afraid Ada won't let me stay with them half the time like the Judge said I was to."

"I'm sure your mama will be awfully glad if she won't," said Fanny warmly.

"Well, of course she and Dick haven't been married but five months. I suppose they do get tired of me sometimes." The small brown face was suddenly wistful.

"There was a hard lump in Fanny's throat.

"I know your mama never gets tired of you," she said positively. "And if you go to stay with your father I know she will count every day until you come back."

Her caller's face brightened.

"She says I'm to come to dinner every week with her and Dick. She says she doesn't know which she loves best, me or Dick. And next to us she loves my father. They're not like my Aunt Bessie and her first husband. They fight so we can't have them for dinner together. Do you fight with Mr. Frost?"

"No," said Fanny hastily. "Would you like to look at some of my books with pictures in them?"

"Not particularly. I'd rather talk to you on anything you need. We have it or we'll get it."

"Not at all," said Fanny weakly. A few minutes afterward Elsworth's mother came for him. Fanny had expected something rather awful, but found Mrs. Oliver small and dainty, sweet-faced and low-voiced, with big pansy blue eyes and yellow curls shingled close to her head.

The following week Fanny came home from work too tired to go to the corner cafeteria for dinner, and made herself a cup of tea over an alcohol lamp. About nine o'clock she was aroused by a rap and found Mrs. Oliver at her door. She was in a blue green evening dress and a little frilled white apron, flushed and excited.

"Oh, Mrs. Frost, will you do me a great favor?" she asked.

"Why, of course, if I can."

"It isn't very hard, I hope. But I'm giving a dinner for my ex-- Ben Sherman, and his fiancée, Ada Alwood. I have the George Feltons who named an illustrator whose clown-like drawings were enjoying a tremendous vogue. We've been waiting an hour for Ada but her roommate just called up and said she was sick. The party will be a flop unless you come down and take Ada's place. Won't you, please?"

It was a windy winter's night; Fanny's room was cold. Appetizing odors of steak and onion, mingled with the aroma of coffee, had dogged Mrs. Oliver's footsteps up the stairway. Fanny hesitated, allowed herself to be persuaded, dressed hastily and went down.

The Oliver's apartment boasted a small bedroom, in which Elsworth had just been put to bed, a kitchenette, and a combination studio, dining and living room.

The famous creator of Felton clowns was a little fat man with an incongruous bullet head and outstanding ears. Fanny had read that he made $100,000 a year, and that this wife was his second, to whom he had recently returned. (Imagine David's scorn and contempt!)

It was a thoroughly successful party. Between courses Dick Oliver played a jew's-harp. George Felton sang, in a nasal tone, lugubrious cowboy songs, which for some reason were excruciatingly funny.

That evening long remained a joyous memory to Fanny. But as she climbed the stairs to her room an old ache came back. She had got over missing David, recovered entirely she thought from a tabbing loneliness when she was tired or frightened or awakened in the night. Now she found herself longing persistently to share the fun of the evening with him.

David, however, would never have approved of the Oliver's. He would have been disgusted at the tangled status quo.

Fanny was a little shocked herself, but she like the Oliver's and Ben Sherman. Yet her heart ached for the little boy. Some way, she could not have explained just why, she felt vaguely sorry for them all.

Later Fanny asked herself what a child reared in such a casual atmosphere, would think of marriage when he grew up. If Mrs. Oliver fell out of love again and married a third time, would she love Mr. Oliver next best to her new husband? And where would Elsworth and Ben Sherman come in? If one took marriage lightly--got divorced without any real cause--followed every beckoning fancy--why should not a woman have half a dozen husbands, and a man a dozen successive wives? And if they all remained friends, and all went to parties together and had children by this marriage and that, where would it all end?

That night Fanny made up her mind to fight no further for Sheila. Whether she liked the Brownbecks or not they were not cheap. They had a permanence. One could build on the foundation they had laid--Sheila must so build.

There had been no dignity in her fight, no real excuse for smashing her marriage. She could see it now. It was right that David should have Sheila.

The pang of that decision was as if it rent apart soul and body, but an uplift too came with it. Her spiritual acquiescence went deep and entitled her to a sense of spiritual regeneration that brought in time a certain peace of its own.

The divorce went forward on well greased wheels. There was no contest and David was granted his freedom on the ground of abandonment.

GRAIN PRICES JUMP

By JOHN P. BOUGHAN
Associated Press Market Editor
CHICAGO, Jan. 6. (P)—With corn receipts less malleable in many months, grain prices jumped today. Speculative buying of corn future deliveries broadened and the market rose 3 1/2 cents over the day's bottom figures. Commission house trading was larger than for some time past.

Corn closed strong, 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 cents higher, wheat unchanged to 1 1/2 up, oats 1 to 1 1/2 advanced, and provisions showing 5 to 20 cents gain.

New upturns in corn followed fluctuations of 1 1/2 to 4 cents every day for more than a week. Commission houses said that for the present corn furnished an ideal trading market, and they noted much of the persistent falling off shown in the movement of corn from farms.

Compared to corn, wheat was sluggish, but finally scored sharp rallies. Unfavorable harvest conditions in Argentina and Australia were reported, and dearth of moisture for winter wheat from central Kansas through Missouri to extensive areas east of the Mississippi, some towns resorting to winter rations.

Provisions advanced with cereals and hogs.

Closing indemnities: wheat: May 81 1/2, July 64 1/2, 65, 66 1/2 to 1/2. Corn: March 70 1/2, 72 1/2; May 71 1/2 to 3/4, 74 1/2; July 72 1/2, 75 1/2.

CATTLE PRICES HIGHER
KANSAS CITY, Jan. 6. (P)—(U. S. D. A.)—Cattle trade around the eleven market circuit was featured by a fairly to slightly broad demand for better fed steers and yearlings at firm to slightly higher prices. Medium short feeds continued to meet a rather indifferent demand, and difficulty was encountered in maintaining steady values. Demand at eastern dressed beef markets and was rather low. Chicago had a top of 13.25 on medium weight steers and realized 12.25 on 1441 lb. beefs. Bulk short fed steers are selling downward from 1050 with common bogies as low as 575. Stocker and feeder classes were in limited supply with prices little changed. Aggregate receipts estimated at 33,600 were 2,500 less than a week ago and 4,500 short of the corresponding day last year.

Hogs were active at prices unevenly steady to 25 higher. Late trade had an especially good tone with packers purchasing freely in the city.

David's uncle, Judson Brownbeck, died three days after the granting of the divorce.

COMMISSION STRIPS SCHMELING OF CHAMPION TITLE

SHARKEY-STRIBLING FIGHT PROPOSED BY DIRECTORS

SCHMELING - STRIBLING FIGHT LOOMS FOR SOLDIER FIELD

By EDWARD J. NEHL, Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK, Jan. 6. (AP)—The storm brewing over the heavyweights for the past six months broke in a crash of verbal thunder today as the New York State Athletic Commission stripped Max Schmeling of his championship and drove another title fight into outer pastures.

Rising in all its might to stand off the logic of Joe Jacobs, manager of the Teuton, of Bill Carey, president of Madison Square Garden, and the combined attack of sports writers and fight critics, the commission ruled Schmeling null and void for a return match with Jack Sharkey. Then in the same breath the fight fathers declared they would accept as champion the winner of a match between Sharkey and Young Stribling, the Pride of Georgia, although they had refused up to this point to consider Stribling as a fit opponent for Sharkey in a match to determine an outstanding challenger for Schmeling.

So, following the precedent of 1926 when Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney were forced to Philadelphia to fight for the heavyweight crown because of commission objections, Schmeling will take his title claims either to Chicago, Detroit, Jersey City or Philadelphia in June and defend them against the assaults of Young Stribling.

Although four bidders already are in the field for the match, Nate Lewis, matchmaker at the Chicago Stadium which controls Soldier Field and its seating capacity of 100,000, has the inside track with a $500,000 bid for Der Mastie's services as well as an option on Stribling. Lewis and Sidney Strotz, president of the Chicago Stadium Corporation, arrived here today for further conference with Jacobs.

Jacobs has all but formally accepted the Chicago offer, and in Miami today, "Pa" Stribling announced he had come to terms definitely with Lewis and Strotz for a title fight with Schmeling at Soldier Field in June. Stribling declared he was not interested in matching his son with Sharkey, either in New York or elsewhere.

Meanwhile, it appeared negotiations for Stribling to fight Primo Carnera, the big Italian, in Miami next month, or for any heavyweight match in Florida, were very much up in the air as a result of today's development. It was understood Stribling, assured of a Schmeling match, was disinclined to risk any other venture in the meantime.

MOBETTIE'S CRIMSON CAGERS WIN DOUBLE-HEADER LAST NIGHT

Mobettie's crimson-jerseyed cagers repeated their victories of the past week over the Nubbins and the Gorillas by defeating both local teams in a double-header here last night, the Gorillas losing 36 to 15, and the Nubbins 19 to 13.

The Gorillas played the invaders first and despite the numerous substitutions were powerless to stop the strong men of Mobettie. Starting lineup of the Gorillas was Woodward and Cullen, forwards; Bianchi, center; Howard and Weedman, guards. Substitutes were Robinson, Adair, Heard, Max Marbaugh, Klehens, Stout, an Taylor. Mobettie's lineup was Owens and Tarwin, forwards; Price, center; Goodnight and Johnson, guards. Harrison, Tanner, and Brock were subs sent in by Mobettie.

Pampa's Nubbins lost in a game that was close until the last period. Nubbins lineup: Rogers and McDuffie, forwards; Brown, center; Miles Marbaugh and Patton, guards. Subs were Powell, Heskell, and Mandy. Mobettie's lineup: Hurst and Barthrum, forwards; Dysart, center; Tanner and Tarwin, guards. Substitute: Harbon.

Miss Ruth Little returned yesterday evening from Holiday, Texas, where she has been spending the Christmas and New Year's holidays with her parents.

Sport Slants

by ALAN GOULD ~ ASSOCIATED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

Cleveland has developed a trio of fine all-around young outfielders in Morgan, Averill and Porter in the last season or two of the Evans-Peckinpaugh regime.

The big gap left by the flight of the Gray Eagle, Tris Speaker, has come nearer to being filled by Ed Morgan than by any other aspirant for that difficult assignment.

Speaker is the standard when centerfielders are under discussion, but the former Tulane university boy has made American league fans sit up and take notice of his versatility. Morgan may outshine Speaker as a slugger, for his stickwork during the 1930 season included the collection of 47 doubles, 11 triples and 26 home runs, exceeding the club record.

Morgan starred in football as well as baseball at Tulane. His former coach, Clark Shaughnessy, considered him one of the greatest of college athletic products and a possible successor to Ty Cobb in all-around baseball ability.

Eddie need not be discouraged even if he falls a trifle below the Cobb or Speaker standard. Only 25 years old, Morgan hit for 350 last season, but at that age Cobb was pounding American league pitchers for around 420, meanwhile putting on a combined baseball act that has never been duplicated.

Morgan wasted little time making the big league grade. He jumped from college to the New Orleans club of the Southern association in 1927 and a year later was in a Cleveland uniform.

If the high-scoring spree in National league hockey arenas continue, the boys may be accused of using a "lively puck," since the material used comes from the same firm as the "lively baseball."

Speaking of outfields, Bucky Harris, boss of the Tigers, has disposed of all of the famous Tiger sluggers who made a habit of bringing American league batting championships to Detroit.

Harris succeeded the greatest of them all as manager, Ty Cobb. He sold Harry Heilmann, four-time champion, to the Cincinnati Reds. Harry Manush, who led the league in 1926, went to St. Louis and later to Washington. Goof Fothergill, the "pooey" slugger, was sent to the White Sox last season. Harry Rice, who went to Detroit in the Manush deal, was traded to New York.

The heaviest hitting Tigers of 1930 were infielders, Gehring, Alexander and McManus. Stone was the only outfielder above the 300 mark while Funk and Johnson barely reached 275.

Cornell university turned up one of the backfield finds of the 1930 football season in Bart Viviano, of Plainfield, N. J., an all-eastern section, also a sensational end in cow-catchers. Gorilla of Mexico City. The Itancans have another non-Nordic star for varsity introduction next fall. His name is Ferraro; he is faster than Viviano and can pass as well as crash the line.

The Gildobian Era of Gloom above Cayuga's waters seems distinctly on the wane.

About New York

By RICHARD MASSOCK
NEW YORK.—Famous beauties, old New Yorkers will tell you are no more.

And it's because beauty, like everything else, has become standardized.

A nation that worships Greta Garbo may look around and see plenty of other women of superior pulchritude. The handsome face in itself has too much competition on all sides to become notable.

Thus it is that two former beauties of distinguished names now appear in public places without exciting comment. They are Lady Ribblesdale (the former Mrs. John Jacob Astor) and Mrs. William Guggenheim.

These two were perhaps the loveliest women of society 20 years ago. Each still are handsome leaders, carrying themselves with an unmistakable air of distinction when they appear in the smart restaurants at sea-time.

In the days of carriages, each would embark every fine afternoon for the ride up and down Fifth avenue. The avenue then was a parade of society. The American Beauty rose occupied the place the orchid now has and every beauty wore her floral counterpart, as she bowed to her acquaintances in passing.

Now that sort of thing is all over.

UNRECOGNIZED
During the Christmas shopping days a woman was being shown some negligees in a Fifth avenue store. She was looking for a gift for a friend and finally found one that she liked. The price was $35.

Inspection showed, however, that the garment was shopworn and, therefore, unsuitable for a present.

"I'm sorry," the saleswoman said. "That is the only one at that price. Here is a nice one, but it's $49. Is that too much?"

"No, I think not," the shopper said. "You may send that one. And charge it to Mrs. Vincent Astor."

Lincolntonville, the Staten Island town that became too proud for its name, is not the first community hereabout to pick a new one.

Almost a hundred years ago Mosquito Cove on Long Island became Glen Cove. The original name, Muskeeta Cove, was an Indian appellation, meaning "cove of the grassy flats." It sounded so much like mosquito, though, that the spelling was corrupted and in 1834 a mass meeting of citizens voted for a change that would disassociate it from a disreputable pest.

There also was once a movement to give Hicksville, Long Island, a new name, but the majority of inhabitants were against it and now it has an aviation country club, just to show that you can't laugh a good town down.

SILLY SINGERS OF MANHATTAN
Within the past year a new versifier appeared in the local press, and the notes he sung are about to be published in book form.

He is Ogden Nash, a punny youth, who rhymes "breach of promise" with "red hot mommie." He comes from the same family that gave the name to Nashville, Tenn.

His first published verse began: "I sit in an office at 244 Madison avenue
And say to myself you have a responsible job, haven't you?"
Now, as one who knew him when, I am glad to be his friend.

BIG THREE IS NOT WHAT IT WAS FORMERLY

NO LONGER DOMINATED GRID SPOTLIGHT OF EAST

(Note: This is another of the series of stories based on an Associated Press survey of college problems, dealing particularly with football.)

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor
NEW YORK, Jan. 6. (AP)—The old eastern "Big Three" isn't what it used to be in the days of its bewhiskered, heavily padded football giants. Competitively, Harvard, Yale and Princeton no longer dominate the east, let alone another section of athletic activity, but their influence, nevertheless, remains potent in the intercollegiate world. They are among the leaders now in widely-discussed plans for football reforms.

The old triple agreement, involving one of the strictest athletic codes in effect anywhere in the country, was broken up more than four years ago when Harvard and Princeton severed relations, but its provisions still are effective through the dual agreements made by Yale with its two old rivals. Nevertheless, Yale, was the only member of the ancient triumvirate given a "purity" rating a year ago by the famous bulletin 23 of the Carnegie foundation.

Yale was among the first major colleges to seek the removal of scouting as a by-product of college football, but the support for this, especially at Harvard, disappeared after a brief trial.

The trio long have restricted the start of fall football practice to September 15, although there was some agitation for the removal of this restriction last season. Since then, leaders of the three institutions have favored its retention, along with the abolition altogether of spring practice.

The Associated Press survey now had disclosed a definite move on the part of these leaders gradually to reduce the length of football schedules as part of the move to eliminate gridiron over-emphasis.

Yale has not yet committed itself, but Dr. Charles W. Kennedy of Princeton, has gone on record as favoring a reduction in the number of games. Harvard is understood to be pruning its competition from eight seven games in 1932 and probably to six by 1933. Princeton already is on a seven game basis.

Harvard's president, Dr. A. Lawrence Lowell, has gone so far as to suggest it would be ideal for Harvard to play one major football game a season, with Yale.

The size of athletic receipts, which at Yale and Harvard have reached the million-dollar class in recent years, is not "viewed with alarm" by the old Big Three. During the year ending last June 30, Harvard took in almost $700,000 from football but paid out more than $1,000,000 to maintain all its sports, replace and repair buildings and condition the playing fields. Yale's income and outlay were slightly larger for a similar period, due to the bigger "grates" possible in the Eli Bowl.

Schedule for enrollment for the second semester at the Pampa high school is expected to be completed today. Semester examinations will be held January 13, 14, 15.

DOUBLE-HEADER GAME WILL BE PLAYED ON CAGE COURT TONIGHT

Girls and boys basketball teams of LeFors and Pampa will meet tonight in a double-header at the high school gymnasium when the girls basketball team of Pampa high will play the LeFors girls at 7 o'clock and the Pampa boys team will play the LeFors boys team one hour later.

Coach Mitchell did not know last night just what his starting lineup would be, saying that he had two groups. He indicated that members of both groups would be given a chance to play.

Starting lineup of the girls basketball team will be selected from the following: Adelle Stone and Verna Clemmins, forwards; Lucille Kentling, guard; Yvonne Thomas and Wilma Barker, jump centers; Susie Campbell and Susie Bell Hickman, running centers; Betty James and Lorena Weir, guards.

Second team members who are showing up well are Louise Walstad, Sara Rose, Amy Lard, Lona Mae Scott, Dorothy Butler, Margaret Buckingham, Verna Murfee, Allene Chandler, and Ruth Brown.

IN HARVESTER SQUAD

Miles Marbaugh, guard, and Reginald Brown, center, on the Nubbins teams, have shown up so well that Coach Mitchell has taken the boys over into his group of Harvesters, and is having them workout with his squad. Marbaugh weighs 130 lbs. and Brown, 165, and were a part of the ideal combination that Coach Kelley of the Nubbins had developed.

GIRLS PEP SQUAD TO ENTERTAIN HARVESTERS

Members of the Girls Pep squad of the Pampa High school will entertain the football team with a banquet in the gymnasium at 7 o'clock tomorrow night.

Faculty members, captain of the Harvesters, and the captain-elected are scheduled for speeches. Miss Lavelle Meyer will be toastmaster.

A donation of $20 that was received by the pep squad from the Kiwanis club to be used in giving the banquet is appreciated by the pep squad.

MAYOR GIVES AWARD TO NOTRE DAME CREW

NEW YORK, Jan. 6. (AP)—Mayor James J. Walker today presented to the Notre Dame team the Albert Russell Erskine award, a large silver trophy emblematic of the national intercollegiate championship. The trophy was received on behalf of the team by Frank Carideo, quarterback.

At the same time in accordance with the conditions of the award, Knute K. Rockne, famed Notre Dame coach, was presented with an automobile as well as with a scroll which set forth that he had set up the "noble ideal of victory with honor."

The trophy is awarded annually by a jury of award consisting of 275 sports writers from all sections of the country.

WALKERS ARE HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Walker have returned to Pampa after a two weeks' visit in Fort Worth and Gainesville.

CAGE TOURNAMENT IS BEING PLANNED

A basketball tournament between the Grainwagons and the independent basketball teams of the city and county has been planned, and those who expect to enter are requested to call Therman Harris, at 946J, Mr. Harris said yesterday afternoon. Teams of LeFors and of Mcbettie are expected to be among those entered, Harris said.

It would be only as mail tournament, Harris explained, and would be played between five or six teams, during two night, or during one day. Tickets to the tournament will sell at 25 cents each, and will entitle the possessor to see all of the games. Proceeds of the sale of tickets will go to the H-Y organization of the high school, that will sponsor the tournament, Mr. Harris said.

WILL GIVE PLAY

"Mansions," the prize winning play of the Panhandle Speech tournament, will be presented on Wednesday at the meeting of the Rotary club, Miss Ariess O'Keefe, announced yesterday afternoon. The same cast that presented the play in the tournament will be used.
