Refugees arrive in San Jose

By GORDON MOTT Associated Press Writer

SAN JOSE. Costa Rica (AP) - A third planeload of 157 Cuban refugees from the Peruvian Embassy in Havana arrived today, and some of them claimed they were heckled, mobbed and robbed by supporters of President Fidel Castro before they left.

A fourth planeload with about as many is expected later in the day, leaving about 9,700 still waiting to leave Castro's communist country, according to the Peruvian government's count.

The refugees said about 150 Castro supporters insulted and mobbed them when they arrived at Havana's Jose Marti airport at 3 a.m. for the flight to San Jose, robbing most of them of their personal better flight itineraries with Cuban authorities, and work out details about getting safe conduct and other necessary papers for the remainder of the refugees. In Lima, a foreign ministry official said today Cuba had begun handing out safe conduct papers to Cubans in the Peruvian Embassy.

Speaking to reporters Wednesday night, Peruvian Foreign Minister Arturo Garcia had accused the Castro government of changing the "rules of the game" three times as part of a "constant war of nerves" to frighten the thousands at the embassy. He indicated then that only those the Cuban government had processed to await evacuation at home were being

Former POW shares his thoughts on Iran

BY SHEILA M. ECCLES

Of The Pampa News At 10 p.m. May 7, 1945, James H. (Fred) Gallman was rescued by the American forces in Germany. It was the first time he had been free in one year and three months.

"I felt like a rookie," Gallman recalled. "Some of those men had been there for three or four years.

Fred Gallman is a lively, silver-haired, gentle man, who lives in Pampa. Although he is retired, he works part time and still finds the leisure hours to work in his garden and tend to his home Gallman is one of many World War II POW's, who in contrast to some, is willing to share his experiences with friends.

'If my time over there can do some good, I'll talk," he said. Asked about his thoughts on the Iranian hostages, Gallman said, "I believe that they are putting on a good front for their families back home. They appear on television and smile and send messages that tell how well they are, but it is for us." "I would tell them that my greatest consolation at that time of my captivity was a genuine faith in God. You must know that there is something beyond this life. Your friends cannot console you. They are in the same position. Faith is the greatest asset you may have at this time." Gallman said.

In discussing the current Iraninan situation, Gallman said, "Our government must search out every avenue to try to save them as long as they are alive "If we do something rash, the militants will kill them, and then where would we go? Although the circumstances of Fred Gallman's time in the hands of the enemy differed, the fate of a man in captivity is the same — it is never certain. Gallman recalled, "Every day there is an urgency in the prisoner to be freed, because you may not live to see the next. Every dawn is a victory

In discussing the Iranian crisis, Gallman was certain that he would choose his situation during World War II over that of the Americans in Iran, even though he was half-starved most of the time.

"Over there (Iran), no one has the power to tell the militants what to do. The hostages are pawns of a political situation. Even though I was a prisoner for 15 months, even three days are too many

As a prisoner of war in Germany. Gallman was allowed to associate with the many other Americans in his camp. He could only estimate the number, but said he thought there were at least 3,000 Americans in the German III B POW camp.

There were seven brick barracks in the German camp, where Gallman spent the 15 months. "We could see American planes flying over us. They were bombing Berlin, and we could feel the tremors, It was in 1941 from Italy, Texas, that Gallman was inducted in to the United States Army. "I had heard that the average life of an American machine gunner was 45 seconds. Imagine how I felt," he After several transfers throughout the U.S., the army in 1943 sent Gallman's company to Italy. The company was trying to reach Rome when the war reached the men

"The Rapido River in Italy was a slaughterhouse," Gallman recalled. "We were sent across the Rapido to see what had happened to the previous company, and suddenly we saw it."

It was on Jan. 22, 1944, that the 700 men in the infantry company were taken prisoner "It took us five weeks of marching, and train rides to arrive at a permanent camp," Gallman explained, "and most of the time we

The American prisoners were ingenious. The Red Cross food packages were the mainstay of their diet and proved to be invaluable bartering materials

The German and Polish guards who were responsible for the American prisoners were easily bribed with the bars from the Red Cross packages.

The reason for the almost humane treatment afforded the Americans, was attributed, by Gallman, to the fact that the Germans

"For those captured before us, when it looked as though the German cause would be victorious, treatmant was not so good," he

"The day of reckoning was in the minds of the German soldiers during those last days of the war "There were POW's who did stand up to the German guards, and they found themselves wondering where they got the strength The Americans held hostage are probaly confined to one room and they have no responsibility for their own lives. Men need to be able to feel they are worthy of something, even in captivity." "As I said, they may be putting on a terrific show, but underneath

HEW to probe Tech allegations

were hungry.

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - Federal civil rights officials say will investigate allegations of sex and race discrimination brought by a group of Chicano law students at Texas Tech University

A spokesman for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, however. said Wednesday a date for the investigation has not been set because of a technicality.

The law students submitted the list of grievances co-signed by several Lubbock groups Monday, citing statistics they say show the university illegally discriminates against women and minorities in employment and admissions policies. Taking a shotgun approach to filing procedures, the students sent their allegations to 12 federal, state and local civil rights offices. "It's a method of raising questions about some of the statistics we found" in a year-long investigation of the university's hiring, promotion, pay scale, recruitment and admissions policies, said Sandy

Torres, a third-year law student. The complaint states in part that there are no blacks among the 574 students registered in Tech's school of law, and of the full-time tenured faculty employed at the university, 445 are white males and 87 are women or minorities.

W.V. Rush of the Dallas HEW office said the investigation will begin after the students properly sign their complaint. which was mailed to Dallas.

"If federal investigators say there's no violation, then it'll end right there," Torres

University officials said they were puzzled by the complaints.

equitable, which is not to say we've been absolutely spotless. But nobody is," said spokesman Jane Brandenberger. She said university officials had not yet seen a copy of the complaint, and that they were surprised.

We feel our policies have been fair and

"We were not anticipating it at all. To be sure, in the past we've had individual cases brought, but none have been successful in court during the five years I've been here."

The complaint was initiated by the Chicano Law Students Organization and co-signed by the local chapters of the National Organization for Women, the League of United Latin-American Citizens, the Religious Society of Friends, the National Lawyers Guild, Llano Estacado, and Centro Aztlan.

Grav County Commissioners said they would consider giving financial support to the newly proposed Lefors Senior Citizens Center Commissioners discussed financial support for the proposed center during the regular commission meeting Wednesday. Walter, Elliot, representative of the Lefors group, said the 180

senior citizens of Lefors have recently organized and are considering establishing a Senior Citizens Center at the Assembly of God Elliot told commissioners, "The senior citizens have applied for a charter for the proposed center and hope to receive the charter by Saturday when the Lefors committee meets. Elliot asked the commissioners if Gray County could help with the $8,000 needed for the purchase of the church building Commissioner Ted Simmons, Precinct 4, gave Elliot information about the Area Agency on Aging in Amarillo and suggested the Lefors group contact that agency. According to Simmons, "There are funds available for the renovation or purchase of buildings in such projects. Gray County should help the citizens who are on fixed incomes and who need some place to meet.

Commissioner O.L. Presley, Precinct 1, proposed making some provisions in the 1981 budget for the Lefors Senior Citizens center. Funds have been budgeted for the McLean and Pampa Senior Citizens Centers in the 1980 budget

Elliot said, "The Lefors citizens want financial aid for the starting of the center, from there the citizens could take care of the facility. In other action, commissioners authorized $2,000 for the purchase of two new radar units for the Department of Public Safety. Sargeant Powell of the DPS said, "In a recent survey, it was found that 80 percent of Pampa vehicles were exceeding the speed limit. Since the speed limit crack down, the number has been reduced to 52 percent. The new radar equipment will allow the DPS to pinpoint a single speeding vehicle in a full line of traffic."

Highland General Hospital presented the Gray County Court with a $8,666.60 indigent care bill. Judge Kennedy said he was seeking other agencies to help with the large bill. He said the two cases involved did not fit under any other existing program

Commissioner Rice, Precinct 2, said, "We seem to have no other recourse, it is up to us to make payment on the bill." Commissioners approved the payment of $8,666.60 to Highland General Hospital. A request from the FAA to place a transmitter at the 300-foot level on the four-county tower was approved by the court as a benefit to air safety. The transmitter is designed to improve flight service in the air space below 4,000 foot. A request from Northern Natural Gas Co. to place a gas line beneath a county road was approved by commissoners. In the petition, the gas company agreed to assume all responsibility for the line and will reconstruct the road after the line is placed Commissioners considered the request for additional space for the County Health facility. The rent increase to $400 was approved for two additional rooms at the existing facility. Mrs. Holland, State Health Nurse, was commended by the court for her service to the Pampa and surrounding communities. A request for additional equipment at the facility was tabled by the commissioners until further information could be received concerning equipment prices.

The court appointed Commissioner Ted Simmons to the Gray County-Wheeler County Joint Zoning Board. The appointment was made after a Texas Aeronautic Commission letter informed the county that a McLean airport runway passes over Wheeler County ground. No problems were anticipated by the court concerning the runway location

Gray County Commissioner were asked to reaffirm their sponsorship in the Resource Conservation and Development Project. Lee McDonald and Von Kleibrink, SCS representatives, were present to inform the commission of the RC&D progress. Commissioners approved sponsorship payment of $50 and elected O.L. Presley as Gray County Commission representative to the RC&D executive Kleibrink, RC&D program coordinator for this area, said. Although the project may not have anything to offer Gray County at this point, eventually funds may become available for the project; and we should proceed with the planning phase."

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the

The welfare army

In his book WELFARE, Martin Anderson of Stanford University's Hoover Institution suggests that the federal dole may be impossible to cut because recipients and the government workers hired to oversee the programs are now so numerous that they constitute a major political force in congressional districts around the nation. This accumulation of political power can be expected to be brought to bear against any serious attempt to correct this country's current economic difficulties.

Over the last decade the poverty industry has become one of America's largest. About 5 million people have jobs relating to the welfare system and about 44 million people are, in one form or another, on the receiving end of what has to be considered government welfare. Just the dispensers of welfare represent a bigger constituency than other large industries: they outnumber those working in transporation. public utilities, finance, insurance or real estate.

This new force in American politics is pursuing its own interests in the halls of power — federal, state and local. Importantly, it is not in the interest of any of those involved to cut down on welfare — thus there has been for a number of years a momentum aimed at expanding people's dependency on welfare programs.

Current moves to balance the federal budget demonstrate the clout of the welfare establishment. President Carter and Congress seem to agree — it's been a long time coming — that eliminating the deficit is a high priority. Congressmen are readying themselves to battle any suggestion that the balanced budget should be paid for, even in part, by cutting back on welfare payments. What this really means is these politicians recognize what political power there is in the hands of those within the welfare community.

This political power was used in the 1970's to increase the standard of living of those on welfare at the expense of the productive members of the society. A recent article in HUMAN EVENTS pointed out that a Harvard investigator examined all of the benefits that can be obtained legally by a welfare family and concluded that they equal an income that would take a $20.000 per year job to match. With this kind of life available, is there any doubt why people are attracted to living off the taxes of their neighbors?

All of this could have been, and was, predicted by opponents of the welfare programs when they were first suggested. John Kennedy's New Frontier and Lyndon Johnson's Great Society have resulted in a dead-end life for those on the dole and an economic quagmire that defies political solution. It would be overly optimistic to predict that simply because the public now seems to recognize the problem a solution is on the way. Those who've got the political clout don't want a

Death of reason: Texas oil's decline

Recently the Wall Street Journal published an editorial edged in black. It was titled "Death of Reason.

And the first paragraph read: 'Barring a redemptive miracle, the United States Senate today will sacrifice the nation's future security to its own inslakable thirst for revenues. It will give final approval to the massive, falsely labeled, windfall profits tax.

There was no redemptive miracle, and that day the Senate, having lost its reason just as had the President who sought the bill's passage.

dealt this nation a deadly blow and passed it. Where does that leave Texas, the oil state?

The Texas oil industry has been reeling under federal controls and tax policies for a long time, and last year it was knocked to its knees by that oppression. That was bad, bad enough, but one probably hasn't seen anything bad until the impact of the "windfall" profits tax is felt

The Texas Railroad Commission has indicated that for the first time in 15 years. Texas oil production in 1979 fell below the one-billion barrel mark, Edwin L. Cox, president of the Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas

The commission reported that marketed production in 1979 in this No. 1 American oil producing state amounted to 978,544,145 barrels, which was 28.422.618 barrels less than the 1978 production

The causes of the decline are numerous, Cox said, but mostly they have been political and economic in nature, and are the result of unnecessary intrusions of the federal government into the oil and gas

Cox drew a word picture of the decline of the state's oil production over the past eight years of federal price controls on most domestic oil.

"Because of these artificial ceilings," he said, "the U.S. petroleum industry was unable to attract or to generate sufficient capital to sustain or to increase oil production levels. In addition to these federal price controls, oil men in Texas and throughout the nation labored during the past decade under increasing governmental restraints.

One of thsoe governmental restraints has been on federal price controls on interstate natural gas which have virtually destroyed that market, he said. He pointed out that the depletion allowance was cut from 2712 percent to 22 percent in 1969 and practically eliminated in Cox said that a counterproductive energy bureaucracy (The DOE). and a number of intimidating environmental acts became law. And, Cox emphasized, inflation affected the oil industry in much the same way it has every household in the country.

Inflation, of course, is caused by the government. Now, the windfall", profits tax. Instead of much needed deregulation, the Senate saddles the industry with a revenue scheme designed to take at least $227.3 billion industry income for non-energy uses. Cox said.

In tracing the dropoff of oil production in Texas each year since 1972. Cox said, "The federal policies of price control, discriminatory taxation, and oppressive regulation have proved to be too much of a handicap for Texas oil men to overcome." The Texas oil production industry, orphaned by the death of reason, like the Wall Street Journal said, has been driven into the ground.

Baseball and the opera

By John Willson

It is reliably reported that even Ludwig von Mises, the grand champion of unfettered enterprise, had a weak spot: the Vienna State Orchestra, which he felt must be preserved even if necessary against the dictates of market economics. A friend of mine insists that we all have our soft spots; his, he says, was the control of baseball owners over the employment of their players. As Mises could not bear the thought of life without his beloved orchestra, so my friend was convinced that a free market in baseball would destroy the integrity of the game.

I was put in mind of these attitudes when the other day the major league ball players struck, and a Congressional subcommittee held hearings in New York on government subsidies to the arts. The temporary strike of rich baseball players (average annual salary: over $130,000; fifteen players make more than $600,000) for their freedom from owners comes at a time when Mr. Carter's 'balanced' budget for 1981 proposes slowing the rate of increase in subsidies to the National Endowment for the Arts.

So just now the arts and the American Pastime have in common the vexing question of the relation of government to their futures. In arts the question is subsidy, in baseball, regulation. Both are now in fashion, and both give a special quality of pleasure to their fans. Since our progressive government has come to feel that a) everything good should be subsidized and b) what is subsidized must ultimately be controlled, it is time to apply some Right Thinking to the question. It is interesting to note that (so far has our governmental culture come) the reporter discussing the arts for the "New York Times" says that "as it happens with many other activities, the result will depend in large part on the political power of whatever constituency the arts organizations can mobilize." When baseball and the opera become political, what can be left?

Now, it is important to understand the arguments for government participation. Baseball owners want control over their players to avoid "chaos"; which as near as I can tell means "freedom." They feel that excessive salary demands, too much player mobility, and general inflation will soon lead to the destruction of the game by driving its consumers (fans) out of the market. They recently called in a federal mediator to help avert the temporary strike, and they want permanent protection, legislative if need be, against the destructive forces of unrestrained competition. Have you heard it before? These are the exact arguments used by businessmen and reformers for 'rationalization,' or government supervision of many other economic activities, from banks to railroads.

Meanwhile, in New York the star performer for the arts was Bevery Sills. 'Bubbles,'' the beloved opera singer (beloved by, among others, this writer). Emotion in her voice, she recalled the millions of Americans she has sung for, 'and across my rather ample bosom are the words 'made in U.S.A.' "We must have the arts, she insisted-they are our heritage: "And the question I would like to ask is what kind of a country do we want to leave to our children." The audience, and the subcommittee, applauded (can you guess the substance of its report?). Have you heard this before? These are the arguments for public parks, education, and depending on the culture, could be also for religion, soccer, or voodoo. Something is so important that it must receive special help and protection beyond what consumers are willing to pay, presumably because of the residual benefits to the

Mr. Ernest van den Haag notices this in his article, "Should the Governent Subsidize the Arts?" which appeared in the Fall, 1979, "Policy Review." He brings to the subject the concentrated (and cutting) logic of a laser beam. Although his discussion is too long for this space, it is interesting to note his conclusion: "a) There is no good sociopolitical reason for the government to compel taxpayers to subsidize governent-selected art; b) to do so compels all classes to subsidize the middle class; c) to do so is more likely to harm than to help the creation of actual. valuable art." I can't help but quote two more of his adapted phrases, with apologies to Gresham and Friedman: Bad art, as does bad money, drives out good."; "There is, of course, no free art any more than there is a free lunch.

It should be stressed that subsidy and regulation always lead to control. Baseball and opera have been relatively free and relatively prosperous without government help. I doubt that the wonderful Bubbles would really want to be told what to sing by a bureaucrat (ask the Russian dancers). Or that George Steinbrenner really wants a reserve clause enough to be saddled with permanent federal mediation. They should mow when they are well off.

To cuss a diplomat

by ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON--A terrible thing happened in Washington last Monday. A U.S. State Department diplomat lost his temper and cussed in front of the Iranian Charge d'Affaires This is what happened. The Charge d'Affaires, Ali Agah, had been called in by State to be told that he and his staff were being expelled from the United States after five months of diddling around trying to resolve the hostage question. According to Mr. Agah, Henry Precht, in charge of the U.S. State Department's Iranian desk, exploded in front of the Charge d'Affaires with the world "B...S..."

Mr. Agah was shocked that anyone would talk to an Iranian diplomat in such terms. He stomped out of the meeting and in one of the most moving statements ever made on the steps of the Iranian Embassy, Agah said. 'We will not take any longer to have any of my brothers insulted," (sic) as tears poured down the cheeks of the reporters who surrounded him. "The U.S. government does not understand us. They do not understand our revolution. They use language that I am ashamed of. The revolution gave us dignity and by insulting us they are trying to take our dignity

The State Department will obviously have to take strong measures against Mr Precht for insulting an Iranian diplomat. How can you have good relations with a country holding 50 of your diplomats as hostages for almost six months if a U.S. government official tells a charge d'affaires that what he is saying is 'b...s..''?

The worst thing you can do to an Iranian diplomat is take away his dignity. Just because Iran has a flaky Ayatollah running the country, and a bunch of thugs occupying the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, and a government made up of lying mullahs, is no reason for a State Department official to cuss out a representative of that country.

Precht hurt Agah's feeling as well as that of Mohammad Lavassani, the other Iranian official in attendance. In their wildest dreams they never imagined that anyone would ever use such a strong expletive in their presence.

But the damage has been done and both Agah and Lavassani have left the country in dismay. The big question is how we can make it up to them. An apology by State Department spokesman Hodding Carter would be a first step. The second would be a public humiliation of Mr. Precht in the courtyard of the department's headquarters, with the entire U.S. Diplomatic Corps in attendance.

At a formal parade Secretary of State Vance would strip the leather straps off Precht's briefcase and wash out his mouth with soap and water If this didn't satisfy the Iranians,

President Carter could go on national television and announce that he was forbidding the use of the word by anyone in his Administration unless it was first cleared with him. The most important thing we have learned from this affair is that when you take away a diplomat's dignity by cussing him, you not only insult him but also the country he represents. Precht was not only saying B.S. to the charge d'affaires but also

I believe I speak for all Americans when I say the last thing this country wanted to do was send Ali Agah away mad. (c) 1980, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

The American dream

By Anthony Harrigan

For generations, an important part of the American dream has been home ownership. That dream is imperiled today as a new generation finds it enormously difficult or impossible to purchase a home. This situation should receive priority the private and public sector Countless young married couples are trying to find homes they can afford. Skyrocketing interest rates and high attention from local and national leaders in downpayment requirements make it unlikely that they will be able to fulfill their Our country is set up for home ownership. It's an established personal and family goal. A home is a symbol of stability and confidence in our economic system. It is the structure around which are built the values of working Americans. Home ownership, of course, also offers a financial advantage. Interest paid on home mortgages can be deducted on one's income tax.

We will be in a bad way in America if the rising generation can't get the stake in society represented by a home. It will mean that they are being cut out of the

Many people rent apartments and houses. But one never has the same feeling about rented quarters that one has about a home of one's own. The renter doesn't build up a stake in the property he occupies. To a degree, the renter always is a transient. One reason that this country has never succumbed to leftist ideas is that so many people owned their homes and felt a strong alliance to capitalist concepts of property. We can't afford to let a new generation lose their strong allegiance to our way of life.

Perhaps interest rates will decline in the months ahead. One certainly hopes that this will happen, though economists speak of the prime rate going to 20 percent or Government officials, the lending industry, local leaders--all should address themselves to the pressing problem of providing more home-buying opportunities to young people of moderate means. Many cities have large numbers of solid but deteriorated 19th and early 20th century houses--streets of well-built houses that have become slums or near-slums. These can be rehabilitated to make comfortable homes and pleasant neighborhoods.

Pittsburgh, Pa., is a city that has tackled urban rehabilitation in an innovative manner, in order to provide more homes

The Pittsburgh Redevelopment Authority has floated bonds to provide low-interest mortgages (81/2 percent for 30 years) with minimum downpayment requirements-only 5 percent.

In an inflationary period, young people find it exceptionally difficult to save. But if national and community leaders act with vigor and imagination, the American dream of home ownership will come true for a new generation.

DENVER (AP) - The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency on Wednesday proposed new standards for cleaning up 25 open land areas and buildings contaminated with radioactive waste from inactive uranium processing mills.

The proposal, which applied to several Western states and Pennsylvania, marked the first in a series of standards that eventually will clear the way for cleaning up waste from active and inactive uranium mills around the country.

But the standards proposed Wednesday applied only to cleanup of inactive sites, said Roger Williams, EPA regional administrator in Denver.

They did not apply to active uranium mills, nor did they set standards for disposing of the radioactive materials once they have been cleaned up, Williams said.

Those standards are to be issued within a year, he said.

Meanwhile, Williams said the cleanup standards would take effect immediately on an interim basis while the EPA took comments on the proposal and held a public hearing.

The clean-up standards apply to more than 1,000 acres of land in Arizona, Colorado, Idaho, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oregon,

Pennsylvania, Texas, Utah and Wyoming

The mills in question were shut down by the 1960s, but tailings have been scattered by wind and water and also have been used as landfill or in the construction of homes and other buildings, Williams said.

"The main health risk of tailings is lung cancer caused by breathing decay products," Williams

The cleanup was authorized by the Uranium Mill Tailings Radiation Control Act of 1978, but was stalled pending the EPA's determination of what standards should be applied in the operation.

Tailings are sand-like materials left over after processing ore to remove uranium. They contain about 85 percent of the original radioctivity of the Radioactive contaminants of major concern to the EPA - known as "radon decay products" are Radium 226, with a half-life of 1,620 years, and Thorium 230, with an 80,000-year half-life. The term "half-life" refers to the time it takes for an element to decay to half its radioactivity.

The 1978 cleanup act required EPA to set health protection standards and set up a joint federal-state remedial action program.

Civic Culture Club celebrates 50 years

The Civic Culture Club, originally organized as a home demonstration club, broadened its scope 50 years ago when it became associated with the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs.

A group of about 60 celebrated the 50th anniversary Tuesday at a tea. Presiding was Mrs. A.B. Cross, president. Lennie Sims of Wellington, state president-elect, was introduced by Pat Youngblood of Lefors, district president. Mrs. Sims spoke to the group on the federation and its goals.

Mrs. Dudley Steele gave a program on fashions and fads for travelers and Martha Smith of Higgins, district president-elect, led the group in a club collect.

DEAR ABBY

Mrs. Emmett Osborne gave an "in memorian" program, naming the deceased members of the club.

The Wayside Club was organized in 1926. In the spring of 1930, members decided to broaden their focus to include the arts, travel, government and other cultural

Mrs. Irvin Cole, the only surviving charter member, entertained at the piano during the tea. She and the late Mrs. Katie Vincent were honored in the past by having their names placed in the Golden Book at state headquarters in Austin.

In the 50-year span, about 140 women have had membership in the club, which has received many district awards through the years. In 1956, club member Mrs. A.D. Hills was chosen Pampa Woman of the Year by the city's Beta Sigma Phi Present projects of the group, led by Mrs. A.B. Cross as president, include Girls Town in Borger, Optimist Boys Club, CIP projects, cancer research, local fine arts, Pampa Friends of the Library and projects recommended by the federation.

Special projects of the club in the past have included the March of Dimes, the polio fund, tuberculosis X-rays, Girls Town in Whiteface, and Christmas gifts to hospital patients.

DEAR ABBY: This is the second marriage for both of us. All our children are grown and live away from home. Now for my problem: His children never call and ask if we have the weekend, holidays or whatever; they just call and say, "We will be there on a certain day." Occasionally they don't even call, they just come.

Sometimes we've made plans to visit friends, or we've invited my children to visit us, and we can accommodate just so many houseguests.

When his children are here, they call up their friends and invite them over for dinner without asking us first. If they're moving from one place to another, are out of work or had a fight with a spouse, they bring their furniture, clothes, etc., to store at our house without asking permission.

My husband says this is their house, too, and they can come and go as they please.

Abby, I agree we should want our children to feel at home, but just how far should they go?

By Joe Graedon

PHARMACY

My children and I have an understanding that we never visit each other's homes without being invited. How do you draw the line between making your children feel at home and letting them use you?

NEEDS ADVICE

DEAR NEEDS: The line is (or should be) clearly drawn when a child is grown and leaves home. Should he return for a day, a week or a month, he returns as a guest. This means he should not come without an invitation. If he's between jobs, or marriages, and needs a roof over his head, the chances are he will not be refused, but he should always ask first. And inviting others to one's parents' home, and storing furniture, clothes, etc., without permission is also out of line.

DEAR ABBY: I'm new here and have a problem with a coworker. I'm right out of college and she is an older woman. She never misses an opportunity to put her hands on me. Body contact doesn't normally bother me - most of my friends greet me with hugs and kisses - but this woman's touch is not that kind. It's a lingering, caressing feeling that makes me uncomfortable. Whenever she passes my desk she'll stroke my hair or playfully massage my neck or shoulder. I think you get my point. I don't want to make an enemy of her, but I don't want to hold still for this either. Got any ideas?

DEAR UNCOMFORTABLE: Why not lay it on the line in a friendly, inoffensive way. Try this: "Please don't touch me - I'm ticklish."

DEAR ABBY: This is for women who loudly insist that housewives are also working women. Turn it around and you have the true picture - working women are also housewives.

I have worked for 20 years; I work because we need my income. I do not have a maid, nor do most working women. We have jobs, not careers. The luxury of indulging in a hobby like needlework, painting or tennis is a dream to most of us. What housewives have all week to do, we do before 8 a.m. or after 5 p.m. I clean the house, do the shopping, cook meals and try to do all the other things necessary to keep a home going after I put in eight hours on my office job. Oh, yes, I do windows on weekends.

Tell it like it is, ladies. How come you are all up on the afternoon soaps, when you're so busy being working

Q. For years I've been using Contac when I had a cold, and it always seemed to make me feel better

The package I bought last week is marked "new and improved," but I can't say I've noticed any improvement. In fact, it doesn't seem to clear my runny nose as well as it used to.

I've also been getting headaches and feeling very sleepy after I take a capsule. Could my reaction be due to some new ingredient in Contac?

A. "New and improved" Contac contains no new ingredients. But your symptoms could be due to the reformulation

The makers of Contac have eliminated one ingredient, belladonna, from their product and merely increased the dose of the two remaining

We'd applaud the manufacturer's decision to remove belladonna, since this drying agent could cause dangerous reactions in people with glaucoma, prostate trouble or heart disease.

However, the gains made by eliminating belladonna may have been offset by increasing the amount of the decongestant phenylpropanolamine (PPA) by 50 percent to 75

Such a dose can cause increased blood pressure in susceptible individuals. People who experience a sharp rise in pressure may also have symptoms such as dizziness, headaches, palpitations, chest tightness, tremor and nausea. This reaction with PPA is more common in people who are simultaneously taking certain other drugs for high blood pressure or arthritis.

Your drowsiness could be related to the doubled dose of the antihistamine, chlorpheniramine, in the new-formula Contac. The old warning against driving or operating machinery after taking this cold remedy should hold double now

Although Contac is being marketed as "new and improved" the overall benefits of the reformulation appear slim.

Q. I have just had a baby, and do not wish to breast feed. My doctor has prescribed a new medicine called Parlodel to dry up my breast milk. What is this drug, and are there any side effects, or warnings?

A. Parlodel is the brand name of a drug called "bromocriptine." The drug actually has been on the market for some time for inducing menstruation.

Just recently, however, the drug has been granted FDA approval to be used in preventing lactation. Your physician is right up with the In order to get the low-down on its new usefulness we consulted our colleague, Joseph Gruber, co-director of the Drug Information Center of the Jewish Hospital Pharmacy of St.

He says that the drug is not a hormone like estrogen, which has been used to prevent lactation, and cause some distressing side Parlodel seems to be a significant improvement over hormones, although the length of therapy is longer (up to two weeks). Some people respond to Parlodel with a slight lowering of blood pressure, or headaches, nausea, and dizziness the first few days. These symptoms are relatively uncommon, and do not usually cause problems.

MENDING MATURE MARRIAGE

By LOUISE PIERCE

Grudges are easy to acquire - and equally easy to cherish, sometimes all your life. You can live lividly, recalling them. And that can change your mate's happy disposition as well as your own. It takes genuine effort to free your heart of a long held hurt.

Don't we all feel a twinge of annoyance that borders on grudge every time we remember the kid who lied about us to our parents or teachers when we were six, the high school competitor who beat us out of our just rewards when we were 16 or the. fellow who undermined us and got the job we wanted when we were 36?

The worst case of grudge I've ever witnessed was that of a family in a town where we used to live. Six brothers quarreled among themselves, four to two, when they were quite young. They held onto the dispute into their adult life, never visited each other, never even spoke if they met on the street.

Two of the did not attend their father's funeral service, sending word that they would not sit with the other four.

They were middle-aged men when their mother died. When all six showed up at her memmorial service, we thought that surely they would shake hands over her casket.

But they did not. They sat in separate rows in the church, scowling at their familial enemies. Then they got up, filed past the coffin without looking to the right or left, got into their cars, sat on opposite sides at the graveside rites and drove home without so much as a word of consolation to

None of us ever knew what their original quarrel concerned. I doubt if they themselves remembered its origin by the time of their mother's death. But they were stubborn men who would not give up either their pride or their prejudice.

Another sad case was described to me in a recent letter.

DEAR LOUISE: I am 69 years old and I am ashamed to admit that I cannot forgive or forget something that happened when I was two years old. That sounds crazy, doesn't it? But let me tell you what happened to my father, my brother and

Just after my second birthday, my folks drove off a rickety bridge and my mother was killed. The other three of us were in the hospital for weeks, none of us being expected to live. But we pulled through. Dad was unable to work so he asked his sister and her husband to take us for a while, which they did.

Dad went back to his house - and found it empty! Mother's four sisters had gone there in the belief that we were all going to die (or else through plain greediness) and had stolen all the furniture, dividing it up among themselves. They also took all our clothes

Dad was a timid man, bereaved and unable to keep us, so we stayed with our aunt and uncle until we were grown. Dad never asked for his possessions back. And Mother's sisters never offered to return them.

My brother, Jim, was six years older than I was and he remembered our furniture. Once when we were at the house of one of the offending aunts for a few minutes. Jim whispered to me, "See that dresser in the back bedroom? That was

The only concession these aunts ever made was to cut up Mother's beautiful fur coat and make large stoles for their daughters and a small one for me. I never wore it much. I couldn't stand the sight of

These aunts are dead now. But what they did still rankles in my heart. It's such an obsession that I'm cranky to everybody. even my husband. I don't want to go on hating those who wronged us so long ago. But how can I keep from it? W.S. DEAR W.S.: Your grudge was certainly justified at first. But since it was never resolved and you cannot now get an apology from the offending relatives, what good does it do you to continue to harbor your resentment?

We all have grudges we need to wipe from our souls. We can do it in many ways and we must devise the one that best helps us to forgive and forget.

Visit with yourself about it, aloud if you need to. It's time to cut this deep-seated hurt in two and then in four and finally into bits that will blow away in the soft breeze of heart cleansing

The only person hurt by a lifetime grudge is oneself. The "wronger" has either forgotten the wound he inflicted or else resolved not to apologize or make restitution after a period of years. Obviously the matter never troubled him.

But the "wrongee" can feed his sore spot until the cancerous growth involves his heart and soul and life

Straightline:sports

It's a long way from the watermelon capitol of the world to the Big Apple, but Garland Nichols is headed there just the same.

Nichols, who coached the Pampa Harvesters to the District 3-AAAA basketball title this season, has been invited to New York City this summer to participate in a camp conducted by St. John's University coach Lou Cunnesecca.

"I'm real excited about it," said Nichols, a Rush Springs, Okla. native. "I'm be looking at the basketball programs there and making comparsions with our program. I've been asked to speak about what we've done here, so I'm looking forward to that.

Nichols also rubbed elbows with Indiana University coach Bobby Knight during the Texas Basketball Coaches Association meeting last weekend in Waco.

Nichols was one of 2,000 coaches that heard Knight speak. Nichols talked with Knight to get some of his ideas about basketball strategy. With the less than spectacular season IU had this season, perhaps Knight could have used some tips from Nichols

Clifford McNeely, former Pampa High coach, was inducted into the Texas Basketball Hall of Fame during special ceremonies.

Roy Young of Bovina is the new boys' basketball coach at Miami High School. Young, a former Wayland Baptist College player, has coached at Channing, Clarendon High School, Clarendon College, Van and Meeker, Colo.

Miami football coach Dennis Anderson has resigned and applications are now being accepted for the position.

Two recent rulings by the University Interscholastic League (UIL) Legislative Council has the approval of Pampa High cross-country coach Charlie Tindall

The boys' distance has been extended from the present two miles to three miles and the season has been moved up two weeks, according to UIL. Tindall is satisfied with the distance ruling, even though he would like to see it pushed to five miles like it is in college.

"When college people go to look at high school runners, they can't get a feel of what a kid can do at five miles," Tindall said. "Track meets in general have two-mile events.

Tindall feels the early season should benefit Panhandle area schools, but it will be more advantageous to the northern part of the state.

"Up north the summer ends early, so the new ruling will keep the kids from running in cold weather," said Tindall. "We don't get into the cold weather until late November, but the earlier we start the better. It will be good for us."

However, Tindall isn't that all agreeable with the "jogging" concept that some people have about cross country.

"The other district schools feel like we ought to hold our cross country events in some park or in a confined place where it's easy to run," Tindall said. "To me cross-country is a test of endurance and the course should be as challenging as possible

Tindall said the Pampa course east of town has the most rugged terrain among district sites, but he feels it's still not as tough as it should be.

"We've had some complaints about our course, but it's not because the terrain is too rough. It's because of the cows that get in the way of the runners. Of course, that's understandable. Tindall would like to see the course moved to hilly country south of Pampa.

"There's canyons out there and it's up and down all the way," he added. "That would be a real test for a runner.'

Cross-country runners, along with other athletes, are always subjected to blisters. Want to know the best way to treat them?

Here's the answer from Frank Donegan, a well-known trainer.

Donegan says most doctors recommend piercing them to alleviate much of the pain. First, clean the blistered area with a disinfectant such as alcohol. Next, sterilize a needle or pin over a flame until it gets red hot, let the needle cool and then pierce the blister near the edge. Press the liquid in the blister out through the hole. Tightly fix a piece of adhesive tape over the blister and leave in place until it comes off. The blister should be healed.

Pampa Rifle and Pistol Club will hold its monthly Hunter's Pistol Silhouette Match at 1 p.m. Sunday at the outdoor range six miles west of town on 23rd Street

Here's some news from the bowling front. Bowlers are needed for summer leagues at Harvester Lanes. For more information, call

Winners in the City Men's Bowling Association Tournament this season were Earl Henry Wheel Alignment (3164), team; Floyd Sackett-Nick Kadingo(1346), doubles; Donny Nail(1760), scratch all-events; Ricky Bryan(691), singles; Betty Parsley-Ronnie Parsley(1439), ragtime mixed doubles

Sixteen bowlers are needed to complete the 40-man field in the Pampa Merchants Classic

Besides a $200 first-place prize, $16.50 will be given to the winner of each qualifying round(10 games). More money can be added to the pot if more sponsors get involved. Sponsors, so far, include Harvester Lanes, Avon, Parsley Sheet and Metal, Playmore Music, K&M Cattle Company, McMinn Welding, and Circle B Meat two-game winner The big difference, other than five months, is that when the luckless Keough posted his second triumph of 1979, he had lost 16 times en route to a 2-17 record after an 0-14 start. Today, Keough ranks with Baltimore veteran Jim Palmer and Minnesota rookie Doug Corbett as the only two-game winners in the American League. The 24-year-old right-hander, who blanked Minnesota on four hits last Friday, hurled a six-hitter Wednesday as the A's whipped the Seattle Mariners 6-1.

"Last season speaks for itself," said Keough, who obviously prefers to dwell on this year.

'We're going to be tough this season. I believe that. I really do," he added after pitching the A's to their fourth triumph in seven games. They were never above .500 all last season when they finished last in the AL West with a 54-108 record.

In other AL action, the Baltimore Orioles nipped the Kansas City Royals 2-1, the Boston Red Sox outslugged the Detroit Tigers 10-9, the Toronto Blue Jays clubbed the Milwaukee Brewers 11-2, the New York Yankees blanked the Chicago White Sox 6-0, the California Angels edged the Minnesota Twins 2-1 in 10 innings and the Texas Rangers downed the Cleveland Indians 8-7.

The A's scored all their runs in the fifth inning, highlighted by Dave Revering's two-run triple. The A's sent 11 batters to the plate and scored all their runs off Jim Beattie, with Rob Picciolo, Dwayne Murphy, Jim Essian and Tony Armas adding RBI singles.

Although the season is still in its infancy, Keough said Manager Billy Martin has made "an indescribable difference" in the A's, who have virtually the same players as last year's motley crew.

"His intense concentration creates the same for everybody," Keough said. "He's not going to tolerate the same mistake being made twice and we all know that and are bearing down. We all know that if we stay close, we're going to steal a game now and then

"Matt has his confidence back. That's the big thing," said Martin.

Seattle had only four hits, all singles, before scoring in the eighth on Julio Cruz' double and Bruce Bochte's single, breaking Keough's string of 16 shutout innings. Orioles 2, Royals 1

Rich Dauer, a notoriously poor early-season hitter, singled home the tie-breaking run in the seventh inning as Mike Flanagan pitched Baltimore over Kansas City with a seven-hitter. Dauer's single off Larry Gura followed infield hits by Rick Dempsey and Al Bumbry and was only his second safety in 16 at-bats this season. Dauer went 0-for-22 during April as a rookie in 1977, was 3-for-28 during April 1978 and started last season with two hits in his first 27 at-bats.

The Orioles' first run was a solo homer in the third inning by Ken Singleton, who has hit 37 of his 98 Baltimore homers in support of Flanagan, including two of three this season.

Red Sox 10, Tigers 9

Tony Perez had four hits, including a two-run homer - his first in the AL - and a two-run double, and Boston withstood a three-run Detroit ninth inning. Perez, signed as a free agent last November after 15 years in the National League, also walked to complete a perfect 4-for-4 day. With two out in the bottom of the eighth, Perez singled and scored what proved to be the deciding run on Carl Yastrzemski's double, giving the Red Sox a 10-6 lead. Lance Parrish drove in four runs for Detroit, two with his second homer of the season.

Blue Jays 11, Brewers 2 Roy Howell cracked a two-run homer and Alfredo Griffin and Rick Bosetti also drove in two runs apiece as Toronto posted its fourth consecutive opening day victory at home. Dave Stieb limited the Brewers to six singles. Howell hit a two-run homer off Jim Slaton in the first inning and made it 4-0 in the second with a pair of unearned runs.

Yankees 6, White Sox 0 Tommy John hurled a two-hitter and Oscar Gamble drove in two runs with a pinch triple and scored on a pinch single by Jim Spencer as the Yankees ended Chicago's four-game winning streak. John gave up a first-inning single to Alan Bannister and an infield hit to Wayne Nordhagen with two out in the fifth. The Yankees jumped on Ken Kravec for three runs in the fourth inning on Rick Cerone's sacrifice fly and RBI singles by Willie Randolph and Ruppert Jones.

Angels 2, Twins 1

Don Baylor, who singled and scored the tying run in the minth inning, hit a sacrifice fly with one out in the 10th to give California the victory behind Dave Frost's four-hit pitching. Baylor's decisive fly followed singles by Al Cowens and Dan Ford around a sacrifice bunt. The Angels, blanked on four hits over the first eight innings by Pete Redfern, tied the score in the ninth when Baylor and Rod Carew singled, Brian Downing sacrificed and, after Joe Rudi was intentionally walked, Bobby Grich hit a sacrifice fly.

Rangers 8, Indians 7 Richie Zisk, batting a mere .168, hit a three-run homer off Cleveland reliever Victor Cruz with two out in the bottom of the ninth to give Texas the victory. The Indians, who once led 7-0, took a 7-5 lead into the ninth before singles by Mickey Rivers and Al Oliver chased Sid Monge. Cruz struck out Buddy Bell and got two quick strikes on Zisk, who then worked the count to 3-2 before smashing his home run.

Sonics have backs to wall, need win over Bucks Friday 3 cat

By the Associated Press

The Seattle SuperSonics are on the verge of starting the 1980s the same way every defending National Basketball Association champion finished in the 1970s - as a loser.

No NBA champion has put together consecutive titles since the 1968-69 Boston Celtics, and the Sonics, despite the homecourt advantage in the NBA Western Division semifinals against the Milwaukee Bucks, trail 3-2 in their best-of-seven series. The sixth game will be in Milwaukee Friday night.

"We've really got our backs to the wall now, Sonics Coach Lenny Wilkens said Tuesday night after his team lost 108-97 before a Seattle Kingdome crowd of 40,172, an NBA single-game record.

"We're playing the world champs," said Bucks Coach Don Nelson. "I know the way they can play. Friday night is another game.

The Seattle-Milwaukee series is the only one in the second round to go beyond five games.

The Los Angeles Lakers eliminated the Phoenix Suns 4-1 and will meet the Sonics-Bucks winner in the Western finals. The Philadelphia 76ers beat the Atlanta Hawks 4-1 and the Boston Celtics defeated the Houston Rockets 4-0; the two winners will meet Friday night in the first game of the East playoff final.

If the Sonics can turn the tables and beat that and Bucks at Milwaukee Friday, the seventh gam; after will be Sunday in Seattle. Otherwise, the Buck will head to Los Angeles to start the Wester it is finals against the Lakers.

nals against the Lakers.
"Sunday would be a good day to start, buile the Tuesday would be fine, too," said Los Angele, or i interim coach Paul Westhead, who saw thwould Lakers beat the Suns 126-101 to end that serie ple, Tuesday night.

Westhead would prefer to avoid a long layofy beer like the one that followed the end of the NBA regular season.

"I guess Seattle would cause me and Magicating more problems because they are more guardin a oriented," said the Lakers' Norm Nixon, who teamed with rookie Earvin "Magic" Johnson to form a backcourt combination that rivaled the Sonics' Gus Williams and Dennis Johnson as the best in the NBA.

But Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who celebrated his 33rd birthday a day early with 35 points and 16 rebounds in Tuesday night's victory, was thinking about the problems he would have it Milwaukee wins and he has to face Bucks center Bob Lanier

"Milwaukee jelled after they got Bob," he said, referring to its 20-6 record after Lanier arrived in a trade with Detroit

Mothers killed in baby kidnap ring

HOUSTON (AP) - Cheryl Ann Jones was proud of her baby nanda and pleased by the compliments a dark-haired woman paid r daughter on a shopping center parking lot in Algiers, La., last

Three weeks later, Mrs. Jones, 20, lay dead in a posh Houston hotel om. The same day a New Orleans taxicab driver returned Amanda her father in Algiers. "We don't know." replied FBI Special Agent Jack Johnston of New rleans when asked how the toddler made the trip from Houston to Igiers on the same day a hotel maid found Mrs. Jones' body. Johnston said he suspects the death is connected to a bizarre baby dnapping ring involving bogus baby pictures, the mysterious ark-haired woman and a food shopping contest.

Harris County medical examiners initially ruled the death a nicide because of a large quantity of depressant found in Mrs. ones' blood and slash marks on her wrists.

But FBI agents now are fairly sure the woman was slain and the nedical examiners have reopened the case.

Johnston says the case is similar to one in January that involved a dark-haired woman offering to photograph the child of an Athens, Ala., woman for a baby magazine.

The mother later was shot to death and the unharmed infant was found the same day in a pasture 32 miles away.

When Mrs. Jones' body was discovered March 8, officials also found two notes saying she had left her husband for another man but Johnston says it appears the woman wrote the notes, but the handwriting is being analyzed.

He said the case began Feb. 15 when the victim was shopping in the Navy Post Exchange and witnesses said he was approached by the dark-haired woman, who told her she worked for a baby magazine and wanted to take Amanda's picture.

"The woman complimented her on her baby," Johnston said. "She

(the woman) was very well dressed, very well spoken." The woman said Amanda's picture would be entered in a contest copies.

The next week, the woman came to Mrs. Jones house and took pictures. The following week - around March 1 - the woman returned and said Amanda had not won, but that Mrs. Jones had been entered in a free food shopping contest.

Mrs. Jones was told she would have "only a short time to get ready" if she won, Johnston said. Another week passed and someone told Mrs. Jones she had won and that she and her baby had to go to Houston.

Johnston said Mrs. Jones, her baby and a blonde woman checked into Houston's Galleria Hotel on March 7.

Police said the room was reserved through March 9 in the name of a couple from Orange, Texas, by a woman who left a phone number that turned out to be a Houston tavern.

Mrs. Jones was last seen alive on the evening of March 7. About 3:30 the next morning Johnston said witnesses saw the blonde leave the hotel with the infant

The FBI agent said on the day the woman's body was found, a New Orleans cab company received a phone call and sent a taxi to an area Colsor prices U.S. C

"When the cab driver got there," he said, "a woman, very attractive, with brownish-red hair, came out to the cab with the baby

"She put the baby on the front seat, handed the cab driver a note and a $20 bill, telling him to take the baby to the daddy. She did it very fast and slammed the door.' Johnston said taxi took the child to its father, Dennis Jones, a Navy seaman, at the family home in Algiers. Johnston believes the woman was murdered, but knows of no reason for the return of the child. The FBI suspects that at least two and possibly three women and a man are involved in the strange case. The man was spotted by a hotel

Athens police chief Richard Faulk sees a similarity between the case in Houston and the one in his town.

Drug helps heal spinal injuries

NEW YORK (AP) - A drug that blocks the action of certain brain chemicals has proved successful in animal tests in helping to heal spinal cord injuries and reversing. paralysis, two U.S. Army scientists reported today.

The drug may one day prove useful in treating human spinal cord injuries which paralyze thousands of persons each year, they said.

Drs. Alan Faden and John Holaday reported the work today at the annual meeting of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology in Anaheim, Calif.

The scientists, both from Walter Reed Army Institute of Research in Washington, created paralyzing spinal cord injuries in nine cats by surgically exposing the cords and bruising, but not severing,

The cats were then injected with naloxone, a drug that blocks the effects of natural pain-killing. morphine-like chemicals in the brain called endorphins. Because of this effect, the drug is widely used to treat heroin and morphine

Two of the animals died. But of the seven who survived, all were able to walk again although some walked in a jerky fashion - by the time they were sacrificed for study three weeks later.

In a control group of 13 cat: receiving an injection o non-active salt solution, five o the animals died outright and only one was able to walk after the injury, Holaday said.

The scientists said it is essential that the drug be giver soon after the accident while the nerve cells are still alive, or i would not do any good. It would be of no benefit, for example, a week later when the damage to the spinal cord has already beer

Naloxone has not yet been tried in humans for treating spinal cord injuries in a systematic way
