cut city, county funding Since the beginning of the program 12 years By DEBORAH BRIDGES Of The Pampa News State and local officials have expressed grave concern over the possible elimination of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) grants proposed in President Carter's revised 1980 budget

"Every city and county in our state - in fact every Texan who wants effective law enforcement - will be adversely affected if the Congress eliminates LEAA. At a time when crime is rapidly increasing because of rising inflation and unemployment, we should be increasing our defense against the criminal elements, not stripping it of needed financial resources," Gov. Bill Clements said.

The state has 687 ongoing LEAA grants involving law enforcement, courts, corrections and juvenile projects totaling over $37 million in federal funds, he said

LEAA, according to Clement's figures. currently is providing $383.163 for 13 ongoing criminal justice project grants in the 13th Congressional District which includes Gray County

Since its inception in 1968 through March of 1980, the program has provided $4,315,328 to the Pampa and Gray County have received over $68,000 of the 1980 monies for assistant district attorney for the 31st and 223rd districts, Penny Burt and for a crime analysis and information computer for the Pampa Police Department.

Criminal Justice Coordinator for the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission. Melanie Kinderdien said she had recently received word from the Governor saving a substantial coalition of non-partisan groups were forming in the House trying to push the matter onto the House floor A large number of lobbyists - the National Association of Counties, the National Association of Criminal Justice Planners, the International Association of Chiefs of Police, to name a few are pushing retention of the program to congressman, she said.

Also, the Presidential and Senate budgets are recommending keeping at least the juvenile portion of the federal funding. Kinderdien said.

"I have high hopes of keeping the juvenile portion." she said. At this time the Criminal Justice Division of the PRPC "will continue as usual", she said, as far as giving grants to applicants. All grants will be pending, however, she said, until the issue is decided. "It's kind of like playing with imaginary money," she said.

Loss of LEAA funding will directly affect 30 to 40 jobs in this area, the coordinator said. Specifically, she listed the Panhandle Law Enforcement Academy which is funded by grants and small tuition charges.

'The tuition will increase dramatically," she said, affecting many of the smaller law enforcement agencies on limited budgets who send personnel to the academy for training.

District Attorney Harold Comer said losing the funding will leave his office "out in the mainstream without a paddle

Besides the assistant district attorney, LEAA grants pay for the DA investigator, Kirven Roper and the District Attorney's secretary, as well, he

'All three are now paid under a five year grant with the county assuming 20 percent of the salary each year. The county is taking up 40 percent of the salaries right now, but we've got three years left," he said.

"I can't see how they'd just jump out of it and leave us standing there." the DA added

The Pampa Police Department will also be hit hard by the loss of the program. Chief of Police J. J. Ryzman said ago, he said, the department has received sophisticated radio equipment, a teletype, telephone and television recording devices, walkie-talkies and the addition of the juvenile officer, Ron Howell

As far as the 13th District goes, however, it appears Congressman Jack Hightower is taking the stand that the budget must be cut whatever

"I am supporting a balanced budget," he said. "I don't know exactly what will have to be cut, but I will support cutting of LEAA if it is needed to balance the budget. "LEAA is a very tiny part of what we're going to have to cut," he explained. Balancing the budget will require cuts in many program, he said, even those on the high priority lists.

"The fiscal sanity of our county is more important." he said

Hightower said he had been approached by Gov. Clements and had received many letters from "people writing in response to the Governor's urgings." he said. The number of letters had not been counted, the congressman

"It is important for Congress to face up to the fact it cannot blance the budget and keep everything in it," he said.

"Law enforcement is basically a state responsibility," he concluded

State representative. Foster Whaley, in a recent letter to Hightower, said "Since the State of Texas will be the prime benefactor of this program and is a great deal more financially capable of furnishing the funds than the Federal Government, let the State pick up the tab if it is a worthy program.

He later reaffirmed this statement to the News, adding "If the state has it (responsibility for criminal justice grants), it will be policed

Would Whaley vote for such a state-funded

"I'm not necessarily for it," he said, "I don't know that much about it." But, he added, "I'll be up on it by the time we get to the legislature.

The approximately $20 million spent per year on LEAA projects in the state is only 3 to 4 percent of the total amount of money spent on the criminal justice system in Texas, according to the Criminal Justice Division of the governor's

Will the state and local government's increase their funding by this amount in order to maintain an efficient law enforcement effort?

Chick Morris of the Criminal Justice Division. said it was possible, "but we haven't crossed that Clements said the protection of citizens and their property against crime has become a national problem and a national responsibility.

"It is the primary function of the government to ensure the safety of the people, not only in national defense to protect us from our enemies. but also in law enforcement to protect our people from the criminals." he said

"Reduced appropriations for law enforcement through the elimination of the LEAA program will give great comfort to the criminals since they know that their changes of being detected, apprehended and prosecuted will grow even

City releases bond issue cost estimates

By DEBORAH BRIDGES Of The Pampa News

A breakdown of preliminary estimates of the proposed $4.8 million bond issue has been released by city officials

"The point must be clear." City Manager Mack Wofford said. "that these are estimates and detailed engineering has not been done. These are the best engineering estimates available to us at this time.

The largest expenditure, according to engineering estimates. will be to modernize Highway 70 and Perryton Parkway with $1.242,100 as the projected cost. The street will be widened to a four lane divided and 84 inch to 90 inch storm sewer installed to provide An approximate cost of $869.400 is expected for the reworking of Duncan Street from Harvester north to the city limits. This will include the installation of some storm sewers in the 18th and 23rd street areas.

Overlay for Browning and Francis streets is estimated at a total cost of $153,400 with the breakdown of the expense at $90.820 and $62.580 for the respective percent" hike projected by city officials. 'There are two things the people can be assured of,' Wofford said, "No. 1, the project is for $4.8 million only and secondly, the city commissioners have severa options to be sure the 19 cent increase (in taxes per $100 valuation) will be all

The $4.8 million proposal is based on an eight percent interest rate, according to city financial consultant, Ken Smith of Raushcer, Pierce and Refnes of Dallas. "It may be more than that," he said.

TEXAS WEATHER

For the first time this month Texans looked forward to an uninterrupted weekend of nice weather statewide. Winds were light, skies were clear and temperatures were warm at all weather reporting stations on Saturday, and forecasters said the same weather patterns would hold through

Temperatures generally were in the 70s and 80s Saturday afternoon, although some South Texas points bumped against the 90-degree mark

In the eastern half of the state, winds were generally from the north, while south winds drifted across thee western reaches of Texas. In each case, speeds were 5 to 15 mph.

The forecast, statewide, was for clear, cool overnight weather to be followed by a sunny, warm Sunday.

EXTENDED

North Texas - Mostly fair. Continued warm Tuesday and Wednesday, a little cooler Thursday. Highs Tuesday and Wednesday in the mid and upper 80s, cooling to the lower 80s Thursday. Lows in the low and mid 60s.

South Texas - Continued dry with warm days and mild nights. Highs in the 80s and 90s to near 100 extreme South Texas. Lows in West Texas - Partly cloudy with a chance of showers Wednesday. Lows near 50 north to mid 60s southeast. Highs low 80s north to 90s south, cooling to mid 70s north and upper 80s south by midweek.

NATIONAL

The forecast for Sunday called for sunny, warm weather for much of the nation. Cloudy skies and scattered showers were predicted for the north Atlantic Coast states and in the Pacific Northwest into northern California. More showers and thunderstorms were expected over the southern half of Florida.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - State prison officials never considered building a maximum security facility anyplace other than the Lower Rio Grande Valley, although they spent $6,000 for a report on other areas, a Texas Board of Corrections member said Saturday.

Harry Whittington of Austin also said the 5,292-acre Starr County farm being considered is the only available Valley site the board has

The prison board meets in emergency session here Tuesday to consider buying La Casita Farm, valued at $7.5 million by the General Land Office. The three-member approval board, which must okay purchase of land for a prison site, meets in emergency session a half-hour after the prison board session.

Owners of the farm have set a Wednesday deadline for the state to decide on whether to buy it. Whittington said the decision to buy Valley land was made before

'The real decision to locate in the Valley was made several years ago by the board," Whittington said. "We only looked at two sites in the Valley. There just were not many available down there." "We pretty well felt all along this would be the place to eventually put the prison. There wasn't a lot of searching in different areas," he Whittington said the board looked at another site - which was not for sale - near Starr County, in a "neighboring county" he could not

Earlier this year the prison board paid $6,000 for four Texas A&M agricultural economists to prepare a general report about several regions of the state. The Valley got good marks for its long growing season and high production potential. Two of the A&M economists were sent to La Casita Farm in early April to do an on-site study. It was the only such study requested by the board. Board Chairman James Windham of Livingston said other sites were considered, but reports were not needed. Starr County officials are upset that they were not contacted by prison officials. They say they do not want the prison, and two Valley legislators Friday echoed the anti-prison sentiment.

But Whittington said contacting Starr County officials probably would have been futile. "Those efforts would not be productive," he said, adding new prisons generally are not popular with local officials anywhere in "I don't think we went at it from the standpoint of a public opinion poll," said Whittington. "Our real problem is trying to solve this housing problem we have and getting on with the prison.' Officials in Hidalgo County, on Starr County's eastern border, opposed the aborted 1978 efforts to build a prison near Edinburg.

Whittington said he did not know who owns La Casita Farm. He said he has been told it is owned by out-of-state interests. Records in the comptroller's office list Francois Ballard of Opelousas, La., as president of La Casita Farms, Inc. Ballard could

New recruiter in Pampa area

Doug Kelty, a native of Fort Worth, Texas, has been named the new Army recruiter in Pampa. The U.S. Army Recruiting Station reopened last week and is located at 115 N. Cuyler Kelty and his family moved to Pampa from Vicenza, Italy, where Kelty was stationed for about three years.

He began his duty in Italy as a personnel supervisor with First Battalion Infantry-509th Airborne and later was transferred to the Southern European Task Force as a personnel sergeant.

A paratrooper of nine years. Kelty volunteered for military service in 1965. He served in the Marine Corps until 1969, serving wo tours of duty in Vietnam. In the Army in 1970, Kelty served a third tour in Vietnam before returning to Fort Bragg, N.C., in 1971 with the 82nd Airborne Division

For his service, Kelty received the National Defense Service Medal, the Parachute Badge, the Vietnamese service medal with eight campaign stars, the Republic of Vietnam campaign medal, the Army commendation medal with second oakleaf cluster, the Marine Corps good conduct medal, the Army good conduct medal third award, the combat action ribbon, and unit awards of Vietnam cross gallantry medal with palm and presidential unit citation

His hobbies include cycling, swimming, traveling and attending Volksmarches.

He and his wife, Cindy, have three daughters, Missie, 9; Amy, 4; and Sarah, 2. They reside at 1105 E. Foster.

Cabot promotes Clarendon College

Vic Raymond of Cabot Corporation this week presented a $5,000 donation to Clarendon College on behalf of the corporation.

Receiving the donation for Clarendon College was President Kenneth Bond

Bill Balcom, director of Clarendon College - Pampa Center, said donations to the campus from industrial corporations and individual donors now total $68,000.

Balcom said the Cabot donation will go to fund two new degree programs, recently approved for the Pampa Center.

The degree programs are an Associate in Applied Science in Mid-Management and an Associate in Applied Science in Child Development.

Certificates of completion are available in both the mid-management and child development areas.

The mid-management program prepares students for immediate employment in the business world upon completion of one or two years' training. The advisory committee for the Mid-Management Program are Tom Burns, LaWayne Hogan, W. C. Bass, John Quarles, Tom Clark, Bob Knight and George Gattis.

The child development program will prepare the student to function effectively in child care centers, to understand the inter-relationships of home and child and be able to manage and operate a day care facility. Advisory committee members for the child development program are Linda Allred, Bill Jones, Marge Penn, Jeanne Thornburg and Robbie Hill.

Residents of Gray County who come under federal poverty quidelines may qualify for assistance with their heating and cooling

The Panhandle Regional Planning Commission will be conducting interviews beginning Monday for federal funds disbursed through the Energy Crisis Assistance Program

The registration session will take place in the Gray County Courthouse Arrangements are being made through County Judge Carl Kennedy

The applicants will be taken from 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. each day. Heads of households who qualify for the federally funded energy crisis assistance program can receive up to $400 to help defray their heating and cooling costs. In the case of a homeowner, the payment will go the utility company or fuel supplier to pick up back payments or pay disconnect or reconnect charges. If the homeowner is up to date with his bill, payment could be made as a credit to his account.

For renters, the payment would go to the landlord who can show that a part of each month's rent is applied to enviromental utility payments. The homeowner will supply a copy of a typical utility bill at the time of his application. In the case of the renter, the landlord can supply a letter indicating the portion of each payment used for utility costs.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

The rogue BATF

The public is aware of numerous horror stories concerning the abuse of power by the Internal Revenue Service. But most people do not realize that the IRS is an umbrella agency responsible for oppression that extends far beyond that felt by wage earners.

One bureau within the IRS has been conducting a gestapo-like campaign against a segment of the American population in order to bring them under the control of the federal government. That IRS appendage — the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms — is one of the more latent examples of the Orwellian state that now rides roughshod over the rights of the American people.

The Gun Control Act of 1968 estalished BATF and gave it responsbility for enforcing the federal government's gun laws. Since that time the agency has immersed itself in an orgy of civil liberty violations. A recent article in REASON by John D. Lewis, Jr. details the abuse of power demonstrated by this federal bureau during its 12 years of existence. It is not a pretty story.

Examining the statistical evidence leads to the unmistakable conclusion that BATF is concentrating its efforts on honest gun collectors and dealers rather than criminals. In Washington, D.C., for example, during a specific period BATF was involved with 1.603 firearms investigations: only 206 of them had to do with a felon in possession of a gun: only 58 concerned stolen firearms: and, worst of all, only 20 dealt with the use of a gun in the commission of a felony. All the other investigations, presumably, dealt with gun collectors and dealers who had no criminal intent against their fellow citizens. Their crimes: not meeting the guidelines established by BATF

Lewis points out that BATF has intentionally kept its regulations vague in order to increase its power over gun owners. The bureau often uses entrapment-like tactics in order to encourage a gun collector or dealer to technically break the law. This is not done to catch a murderer or a robber; it is done to catch a poor fellow at a local gun Indicative of the focus of BATF's activities is the type of weapons they confiscate. Although most of the gun-related crimes are committed with handguns, the bureau confiscates many more long guns than handguns. The cheap low caliber handguns known as Saturday Night Specials account for only 4 percent of those firearms confiscated by BATF. The list of seized weapons includes a host of shotguns and other weapons that are rarely used in the commission of a crime. Apparently most of the weapons didn't come from criminals.

It is, as Lewis points out, easier for BATF to go after honest gun dealers than risk a shoot-out with a gun-carrying crook. But this does not fully explain why the agency spends so much time arresting people who will never use their weapons in the commission of a crime. It appears that the federal government is out, in the long run, to wipe out individual ownership of guns in this country. The federal bureaucracy obviously thinks this would reduce crime dramatically. Unfortunately, it is just another example of the logic of taking away the rights of the innocent and honest citizens of this nation in order to solve a problem

The abuses of BATF are likely to get worse before the situation gets better. As crime gets worse - and as long as people rely on the government to protect them it will — the public might be sold the story that heavy gun control is needed to turn back the tide of crime. As we are now experiencing with BATF, all that would likely mean is that the guns of honest people would be controlled.

Another example of taxes at work

Of the many weird tax-supported projects, one of the most bizarre was the savage slaughter of a helpless dog - done in the name of art.

Cable television viewers in New York who were unlucky enough to tune in to Channel D last Christmas at 8 p.m. witnessed a 30-second film which was repeated continuously for half an hour. Worse than the pseudo-avant-garde approach of repeating a short segment of film was the gruesome subject matter of the 'art' film

What the cable television audience saw was a small salt-and-pepper dog tied to a stake. A gun appeared and two shots were fired: the trusting animal fell. twitching, to the ground. The film was entitled. appropriately enough, Shot Dog Film

Angry viewers contacted an animal protection organization called Friends of Animals and they investigated the grotesque film They found, you guessed it, that the film had been produced by an organization that received tax funds to do the project. That organization. Collaborative Projects, received a third of its money from the National Endowment for the Arts and two-thirds from the New York Council on the Arts. The National Endowment, which is supported by federal tax dollars, gave $10,000 to Collaborative Projects. That money was spent on a number of films, including Shot Dog Film

This is yet another example of the type of responsibility generated by tax support. Art projects supported by private foundations, art collectors, and voluntary contributions are careful where they put their money. Consequently art organizations which rely on these contributions are very selective about the artists they support and there are meny deserving artists. The last thing they would try to portray is an arrogance toward those who finance their efforts.

The artists supported by the state seem to have a different approach. Mathew Geller of the Collaborative Projects, when confronted with the outrage surrounding the slaughtering of the helpless little dog. commented "people making an issue of whether or not shooting a dog is a work of art is not our concern.

The Iranians' system and ours

By Robert LeFevre

Americans find the situation in Iran almost ludicrous. Even the pundits appear to be baffled. While at the outset many were predicting this or that result, today a cloud of confusion covers everything. Who's in charge? Few in this country, at least, will any longer attempt prediction.

I have never visited Iran, but at first surmised that the confusion there is as great or greater than it is here. Or is it? Possibly everything makes sense over there. I have been reflecting on this possibility and would like to share a few

Confusion within a political framework is a characteristic of democratic governments. When the claim is made that "the people" will rule, uncertainty receives an invitation. If the claim is put into practice, uncertainty accepts and confusion enters. The more democracy that is practiced in fact the greater the degree of confusion that will surround events in such a location

Why is this the case? It has to be the case because of the nature of man Few individuals ever agree wholly with other individuals. While a number of persons may come to one conclusion in respect to a given issue, others will most certainly arrive at a different conclusion. Ask the people to rule and they will take sides. Nor are the sides necessarily indicative of a bilateral confrontation. There are often more than two sides and there may be dozens

But if "the people" are to rule, which position will become the one followed by those "in charge"? The various positions or sides that can be taken by a given individual never provide a solid footing. Why? People change their minds. Indeed, the moment an issue of any kind is formed, the arguments, the shoutings, the posturing and the promising rises to a crescendo. Each position has its spokesman. Eachdoes his best to persuade others to shift to where he stands.

There are a limited number of procedures that can be followed.

out the wishes of the temporary majority (usually no more than a plurality). The inescapable result is that those in the minority, having been led to believe that they are to rule, discover to their astonishment that they are being ruled. They usually obey but redouble their efforts to gain power "next time." Meanwhile, they charge that "the people" are not ruling.

2. Those "in charge" disregard the majorities, pluralities and minorities; conclude that their own wisdom is better than advice from competing mobs, and do as they please. This is called "representative" democracy. The charge will again be made that "the people" are not ruling.

3. Those "in charge" listen to all sides and attempt to compromise the issue by finding a middle ground in between or in the center of the warring factions. This pleases no one. Again the charge will be raised that "the people" are not ruling.

In short, when democratic policies are followed, you, as one person, will find that you have won (temporarily) or that you lost (temporarily) or that you were compromised (temporarily). By any stretch of the imagination, these processes cannot provide stability or certainty. And certainly you are not "in charge"

Let me cite three nations, each of which at the moment claims to be a nation wherein "the people" rule. I am choosing three which will illustrate the three positions as set forth above.

First, take the Soviet Union. this is called, by the Soviets, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. It is alleged that everything is done "for the people" and that "the people" rule. This is the quintessence of socialism. "The people" vote regularly. They vote when and where they are told. Further, they vote the way they are told. Few have the temerity to stay home from the polls.

You can hardly find more practical democracy than this. Those who are chosen (first by the various Soviets who prepare a single slate) make all the decisions. Whatever "the people" may appear to want, those chosen who are "in charge" do what they think best. Carried out, those "in charge" know best who is to be "in charge" next time. This is the height of "representative" democracy and follows the glad cry of "all power to the people." In Russia, all the people have all the power through the Soviets who make all the

These decisions are backed by ultimate

Now consider the United States. This is called, by "the people" in this country, a "representative democracy." It is alleged that the government is a government of the people, by the people and for the people. No one but people have anything to do with our government. Who else is there? Here the people vote regularly. Not all the people vote. Those most concerned and patriotic are beginning to boycott the polls in massive numbers to the consternation of those who wish to argue that they are making decisions because of the "will" or 'wishes" of the majority

However, to provide a semblance of choice, there are two major political parties and a score or more of splinter groups. The two major parties choose their respective slates and the splinter groups have their jollies by going through some of the same mumbo-jumbo. By the time "the people" choose, they have an option between A or B or, as the remaining alternative, they can display their disgust by splintering or staving home

Those who are newly "in charge" either follow the politices laid down by the party which nominated them, or they tend to compromise to make everything seem increasingly "fair." "The people" don't rule here any more than they do in Russia. But they are bemused and beguiled by party propaganda which convinces them that when they are bled white by taxation that it is really what they want. Because others want it and, therefore, they want it, too, since they voted.

Laws enacted are carried out by ultimate force disguised by "due process." Now consider Iran. Even when the shah was in power, and a nominal dictatorship existed, it was argued that what was done was for the good of "the people". The emergence of a 16th century theocrat who has taken the same position of power, has convinced many Iranians that now, at last, they have a true democracy. This is what "the people" want.

The Iranians vote. But however the vote may go, the mobs in the street and the revolutionary extremists express their political views by demonstration.

There are at least three layers of authority: The ayatollah, the elected government and the mob. The titular government and the mob. The titular head of the Shi-ite sect is the religious font of wisdom and has a position which could be equated with any papal authority.

Because Islamic peoples are usually devout to a fault, theocratic power in Iran is powerful indeed. One might compare Khomeini's position as equivalent to the United States Supreme Court. The government may make a decision but the supreme ayatollah will aprrove or disapprove as he pleases according to his interpretation of the sacred Koran.

The government of Iran was elected democratically. That is, those "in charge" decided who should be "in charge" and set up a slate. "The people" approved by voting favorably

Thus, the Iranian government passes the laws and sets policy. Their Supreme Khourt rules on the validity of these laws and policies.

The third branch of the Iranian power structure is "the people." This, if I may carry the comparison one step further, provides the executive branch of the Iranian triumvirate. The elected government decides, the Khourt approves or disapproves, and "the people" enforce. All decisions are carried out by demonstration and mob action.

Of the three countries mentioned, Iran is by far the best example of pure democracy. Indeed, it's one of the few places in the world right now where "the people" are actually engaged in governing by wielding executive power.

It's confusion to us because here "the people" have no power at all. If one cares to examine it dispassionately, the Iranians have the same divisions of power our government has, judicial, legislative and executive.

One can begin to appreciate the confusion American politics have caused in the minds of non-Americans when we have a system in which the legislative enacts the laws, which the Supreme Court could nullify if it pleased, and which the executive branch could execute or not as "the people" are served.

The only democratic government I know of which engenders a minimum of confusion is in the Kremlin. Of course, it engenders a maximum of tyranny and oppression but it sure is orderly.

As for our own government, it seems to engender a high level of order (which some are sanguine enough to call suppression) as well as a high level of confusion (which some call "hearing all sides). We do live in an interesting world, do

Money putdowns

by ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON--Almost every week the topic of conversation in this country changes. Just a month ago, everyone you ran into was talking about how much their houses were worth on the open market.

Now it seems, no matter where you go, they're talking about money. The trouble with talking about money is that it can become pretty boring after a while.

In case you're one of those people who doesn't like to talk about it, here are a few put-downs to cut off the conversation.

By DEBBIE DUKE A dread disease has began it's journey throughout the halls and classes of Pampa High School. I'd call it an epidemic. Yes, the annual-striking Senioritis has begun its outbreak on over 200 of Pampa's youth.

Also known as Senior Slump, the disease usually strikes with the beginning of spring and lasts until the night you "walk down the isle." However, some Senioritis begins earlier than some; like mine, which started in November of 1978 and hasn't tapered yet.

It's strange, but seniors aren't the only ones susceptible to the ailment; I've many times seen a sophomore break out with the same "not-a-care-in-the-world" symptoms as their upperclassmen. However, counselors and specialists in this field reflect on this as only a mild case which is attracted when one is exposed to the older infected students.

To date, there is no known cure for this disease and the number of class skipping, daydreaming students it affects. However, we might as well get used to it; think of it as just another one of those "childhood diseases."

--DD---The music of Pampa has begun its travel over the U.S., with the arrival of the "Pride of Pampa" band last week in Atlanta, Georgia and the upcoming May 1 departure of the "Golden Voices" Concert Choir to Tempe, Arizona, both to represent Pampa in national contests.

The band is scheduled to return Tuesday evening. The P.H.S. Choral Department will present a concert Monday night at 7:30 p.m. in the P.H.S. Band Room in preparation for their upcoming Greater Southwest Music Festival in Amarillo next weekend. The public is invited.

Echoes of shot

LOS ANGELES (AP) -There is something liberating in admitting that you watch "Dallas," the Texas soap opera on CBS. To confess that you like it, that you actually admire its sinuous lines and vulgar rhythms, is positively cathartic.

So, when a friend planned a 'final 'Dallas' episode of the season party" a few weeks ago. my wife and I quickly accepted the invitation. It was as much a group therapy session as a arrived. If you watch "Dallas,"

JR was shot

It was the perfect act of vengence; at least, the most justifiable attempted murder in television history. Every character who had ever appeared in "Dallas" had reason to take a shot at J.R. The question is, who did?

The producers of the show cleverly left that tiny matter to the imagination for the summer, offering as clues only the sound of high-heels walking through the darkened corridors of the Ewing Building and the sound of a pistol delivering its

Music makers: Preston & Syreeta

LOS ANGELES (AP) - For more than 15 years. Billy Preston has been playing and singing gospel, rock and rhythm & blues, not just his own, but with a true Who's Who of stars - including Little Richard, Ray Charles, the Beatles and the Rolling Stones. Although Syreeta Wright hasn't had quite as much exposure, she too is known in the soul circuit for recording and writing with ex-husband Stevie Wonder. Together they penned such uptempo hits as Signed, Sealed, Delivered (I'm Yours)" and "If You Really Love Me.

But the duet Preston and Syreeta have riding on the charts sounds like none of the above. In fact, "With You I'm Born Again" is - of all things strangely reminiscent of the Barbra Streisand-Neil Diamond smash, "You Don't Bring Me Flowers.

Preston and Syreeta - she goes by her first name professionally because she started her performing career during her divorce - admit the resemblance has been noted by

"I'm Barbra and this is Neil - we're just in blackface." jokes Syreeta, obviously in high spirits, during an interview in a Motown Records office commanding a good view of Hollywood.

The duet is on Preston's recent Motown album, "Late at Night," but Syreeta and Preston were actually paired by their mutual manager to record the song more than a year ago for the soundtrack to the movie "Fast Break."

The film fizzled, and the rest of the tunes on "Late at Night, are, in fact, far more in keeping with Preston's past output which isn't surprising since he wrote them. But Motown believed in "Born Again" and that belief was obviously

At this point, a hit of any kind must be welcome to Preston. A talented keyboard player who contributed the funky organ solo to the Beatles' "Get Back," he's always been in demand as a session player and was a popular fixture on the Rolling Stones' 1975 U.S. tour.

SAN DIEGO, Texas (AP) — South Texas political boss George B. Parr could not have committed suicide in the manner described in official reports, four members of his family now say five years later. Parr's body was found in his automobile on the Los Horcones Ranch near Concepcion April 1, 1975. Authorities said he shot himself in the right temple with a .45-caliber automatic pistol

At the time of his death, Parr, 74, who had ruled Duval County for almost four decades, was a federal fugitive.

The man who controlled much of South Texas for many years and was credited with helping boost Lyndon B. Johnson into the presidency by manipulating a 1948 election died from a self-inflicted gunshot wound, ruled Justice of the Peace Luis Elizondo

Parr had failed to appear in Corpus Christi the day before for a federal court hearing that probably would have resulted in his being jailed pending appeal of an income tax evasion conviction.

Texas Rangers and Duval County deputies who investigated the death determined that it was suicide.

No note ever was found. No autopsy was performed because Parr's nephew, former Duval County Judge Archer Parr, objected. Texas Ranger Gene Powell's report said the bullet entered Parr's right temple and exited through the left.

Four close relatives said in a recent interview that Parr was not able to use his right hand well enough to have fired the weapon. They said he had learned to shoot a rifle and pistol with his left hand because of the disability.

Mrs. Eva Parr, his widow; her daughter, Georgia Parr, 13; and Gregoria Perez and Connie Garza Perez, who lived in Parr's palatial mansion on the southern outskirts of San Diego at the time of his death, reject the suicide theory.

'George couldn't fire a weapon with his right hand. He couldn't even shake hands." Mrs. Perez, Parr's sister-in-law, said. "He couldn't move the fingers on his right." Parr's widow said her late husband could not even handle a knife and fork. "Goya (Gregoria Perez) cut up his meat for him." This is kind of bad, but he couldn't zip up his pants. We had to put a clip on them so he could zip them up and down," Mrs. Perez said. The four relatives said the hand began giving Parr trouble after surgery for skin cancers. In an interview in the office of Alice lawyer Rufus E. Lopez Jr., the women said they had never told anyone about the hand nor of their doubts about his death being a suicide because "no one had ever

'No one ever asked us anything about it and when I tried to tell some Rangers about it, they told me to 'let the investigators do the investigating." Perez said.

An Army 45-caliber automatic such as the one found in Parr's lap beside his right hand has a safety requiring a person to be able to grip the handle in order to fire the weapon.

'I don't think he could have even lifted the gun with his right hand, much less fire it," said Lopez.

Mrs. Parr said no one ever asked her if she wanted an autopsy, indicating she would have probably asked for one.

Ranger Powell said had never heard about Parr being unable to

'If we had had any reason to believe anything was wrong, we would have looked into it," he said.

Powell, now stationed at Pleasanton, said he and now-retired Texas Ranger Capt. John Wood would have preferred an autopsy, but learned that Archer Parr opposed it.

There was nothing we could do because the justice of the peace refused to order it," said Powell, adding that an autopsy would have cleared the air.

"Everything at the scene pointed to suicide," Powell said. He said there were no traces of tracks, either foot or tire, leading to or from the pasture where the car was found. Also, the amount of blood found indicated Parr was shot at the scene

Of the family's current allegations, Powell said, "It's hard to have to admit that someone in your family would commit suicide.' Dr. Linda Norton, a pathologist with the Dallas County Medical Examiner's office, said the inability to use the right hand would not have prevented Parr from shooting himself in the right temple. She said that 25 percent of the persons who commit suicide with guns actually hold the pistol to their temple with the left hand and use the right hand merely to brace the left. After reading portions of the report on Parr's death, she said, "An autopsy should have been done, but I think basically you're dealing with a suicide."

Norton said the justice of the peace "bungled" the case by not ordering an autopsy even if a family member objected. She noted that the family could not have prevented the autopsy if the justice of the peace had ordered it.

"An autopsy should have been done in this case since it involved a prominent figure. This leaves the case open to speculation from now

Until the women's interview the only words about the events leading to Parr's disappearance had been in a statement from one-time deputy Rene Martinez. Martinez said he drove Parr to Corpus Christi March 31. U.S. District Judge Owen Cox had set a hearing to determine if Parr should have his bond revoked and be jailed pending the outcome of his income tax evasion conviction.

Earlier that week Parr appeared at the Duval County Courthouse in San Diego, armed and making threats against the life of then-State District Judge O.P. Carrillo and Freer rancher-banker Clinton Manges.

Martinez said he took Parr to the office of lawyer Douglas Tinker in Corpus Christi. He said he waited outside the office while Parr went inside for a few minutes.

Tinker said that in his brief chat with Parr that day there was nothing to indicate he was contemplating suicide.

"He was angry and upset about the possibility of going to jail," Tinker said, adding he was surprised to learn the next day of Tinker said he knew of Parr's surgery and problems with his right hand, but was not aware of their extent.

Family members said Parr had attempted to keep the extent of his disability secret from just about everyone because it was his practice to "keep quiet" about any medical problems. Dr. E. E. Dunlap, a San Diego physician who treated Parr and members of his family over the years, said he knew Parr had surgery on his hand, but said he knew nothing about any disability because he had not seen Parr as a patient in more than a year before his death.

Dunlap said he talked with Parr on occasions during the year before he died, but he knew nothing about the problems mentioned

Mrs. Marie Parr Thompson, Parr's sister, and Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Ellis, her daughter, said they were notified of the death by her son, Archer Parr, who drove to their ranch after the body was found After telling them of the death, Mrs. Thompson said her son told them, "We have to say it was suicide.

Mrs. Thompson, 86, said she didn't question her son about the remark because "I was just in shock.

Archer Parr, who later served a federal prison term for perjury and is now on probation on state charge accusing him of stealing public funds, is not allowed to live in Duval County and was not available for comment.

Martinez told authorities that when Parr came out of Tinker's office he told him to drive him back to San Diego. During the 50-mile trip. Martinez said, Parr was upset and crying at times. Parr stopped, however, at a supermarket on the outskirts of Corpus Christi for groceries, he said.

Martinez said Parr stopped in San Diego at the office of lawyer Nago Alaniz, a longtime friend and political ally, to pick up a .45 caliber pistol he had given to Alaniz.

Martinez said he then took Parr home. It is at this point that his account of what happened differs from family recollections.

Mrs. Parr and the others said Parr called to a group of children, including his daughter, who were playing on a trampoline in the back yard. The daughter said he called everyone inside, gave them some of the fruit and orange juice and talked, joked and

Parr then went upstairs and changed clothes. When he came back down armed with the pistol, he asked Mrs. Perez for his AR-15 rifle. She said she had hid the semi-automatic weapon and some other guns because she heard the authorities were looking

My sincere thanks to each of you who voted in the trustee election of the Pampa Independent School District. Your interest and concern in the education of our children is very important.

A very special thank you to those who supported me in my re-election. Your confidence is deeply appreciated. I will continue to work for the best educational opportunity possible for the children of our district.

Energy conservation moving, but; slowly

By MAX B. SKELTON AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - Fred L. Hartley says energy conservation as a national policy has moved forward. but much too slowly, since the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo. Hartley is chairman of Union Oil Co. of California and chairman of of the American Petroleum Institute

In a letter to Union's employees. Hartley said industry in general has achieved greater energy savings than have individuals

"For one thing, the federal government set specific conservation goals for industry and we and most other manufacturing companies regularly report our progress in meeting these goals," he said.

'Also, industry lives with a profit and loss statement that reflects rising energy costs, which can have a major effect on earnings.

As a nation. Hartley said, the greatest shortage is one for which there is no quick solution-- transportation fuels, primarily gasoline. diesel and aircraft fuels.

Dependence on liquid fuels for transportation will not change before the year 2000 and any changes thereafter will be gradual.

Liquid fuel dependency, he added, is as great for the armed forces as it is for civilian transportation.

"Thus we are dealing with matters that concern our nation's security as well as its economic well being," he

Hartley said energy efficiency, particularly of liquid fuels, is as equally as important as the production of additional domestic petroleum to minimize the energy problem for at least the next decade.

For most of us this relates primarily to how we use and care for our automobiles, although savings in electricity. natural gas and heating oil are important," he said

Mrs. Perez said she crawled under a bed and got the rifle. "I've got to do something. I'll be back, but if I don't come back, take care of Georgia," Mrs. Perez quoted Parr as saying. "He was out to kill someone, not to kill himself," she said

It was after Parr left that Martinez returned to discover Parr had left armed. Martinez told authorities he was only gone a few minutes before he returned to find Parr gone.

Martinez said Parr had indicated he wanted to kill Carrillo and Manges because he believed the two men were trying to doublecross him politically. Martinez said he went to the courthouse and told some law enforcement officers, including a U.S. marshal sent to hunt for Parr, that Parr was armed and that he believed he might try to harm the judge or Manges. Mrs. Perez said that after Martinez left the second time, she became concerned and drove to Alaniz' office where she found

Archer Parr, lawyer Marvin Foster and Antonio Garcia. "They were having a party, drinking and laughing," she said. Mrs. Perez said she told Archer Parr that his uncle had left with the guns and said Martinez told her Parr was going to try to kill the district judge and Manges. She said Archer Parr merely laughed and said, "There's nothing we can do about that now, baby.

A massive nightlong manhunt was launched for Parr, but no

Duval County deputies, U.S. marshals and other officers guarded Manges and the judge throughout the night Perez said he refilled his gas tank three times that night as he made an extensive countywide search for Parr. Perez said he was on the Concepcion area ranch where Parr's body was found and was at the exact location as late as 3 a.m. April 1. He said no one was there at that time

"That leaves about 9 hours unaccounted for," Perez said. The mesquite tree dotted, rolling hills of southern Duval County were shrouded by fog and it was late morning before authorities could launch a helicopter.

After a very brief search. Parr's automobile was found at 11:20 a.m. by a Texas Department of Public Safety helicopter occupied by a DPS pilot, another DPS officer, FBI agent Ruben Martinez and Duval County Deputy Israel Saenz.

Old-timer recalls semipro baseball days

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — They are not names that stir the imagination of diehard baseball fans. The Lufkin Firemen. The Grand Prize Brewers.

Austin's Seven-Ups. The Waco Dons. Jubilo Clements remembers them, though, remembers the Depression days when baseball was free and almost every town in Texas had a semipro baseball team. 'Those days,' says Clements, now 76, "baseball was about the only entertainment people could afford. It was free.

You didn't get rich playing semipro ball in those days. A place to sleep was often a prize in itself.

'Why, I remember times where we had to sleep in the office of some lumber company, "We were glad to have it, too."

Otto John Clements - he was nicknamed "Jubilo" after a character in a Will Rogers movie because of his less-than-neat attire on the playing field - was a baseball rarity in the 1920s and 30s First, he graduated from the University of Texas in 1926. The major leagues pooh-poohed uppity college kids in those days, preferring to draw their talent from minor league farm systems. Second, he was a pitcher of some note while in

row. Clements only lost one game during his last three vears in school. He spent the next two year playing ball for professional minor league clubs in Austin and San Angelo, but traded in his glove for a managerial college. All Southwestern Conference two years in a position with Southwestern Bell Telephone Company.

'I wanted a job during the off-season that would keep me in shape," he says, "cause I figured I'd be going on in professional ball.

"I went to the phone company and told them I wanted a job that was really tough, putting up poles or heavy construction. They gave me a job, but it was as a manager.

"Since I had that telephone career right in my lap, I decided to stay with it.

But he also kept playing baseball. Most of the towns had a team of some kind in those days, usually sponsored by a local industry - hence the names.

Clements met his wife Hazel in 1932 - on a baseball field, of course - and was transferred by the phone company to Nacogdoches in 1933, where he met the late Morris Frank, who went on to become a popular newspaper columnist and broadcaster.

Frank was manager of the Lufkin Firemen and had recruited Clements to play for his team in 1934.

In a game with the then-awesome team from the Texas Department of Corrections in Huntsville, Clements showed he still had his stuff by retiring one inmate after another, much to the dismay of the local Grinning. Clements recalled one particularly irate spectator who roundly criticized Morris for "importing" a pitcher that was successfully quieting the home team's bats.

'Morris looked up at the stands and gestured toward the dugout where a burly group of TDC inmates glowered out at the field." Clements said, then asked: "Excuse me, sir, but are these all local boys?"

The complaining fan silenced, the Firemen went on

Perhaps because of its leisurely pace, thus creating time for dialogue, baseball more than any other sport seems to breed legendary stories.

Clements is full of them and tells each with relish. "On night, when I was playing on a team in the Valley League," he says, "our right fielder misjudged a fly ball and it went for an extra base (hit). "A few minutes later, we looked back at the culprit and he had all these weeds hanging out of his cap.

"He told us it was to protect his head in case he misjudged another one and got beaned. 'I don't wanna get killed out there,' he said."

Another story quickly follows, this one about a "When I played in Austin, we had a manager from the old school who was suspicious of college players. A very good prospect from a Texas school joined us, however, and the manager put him in the game.

"The kid was fast, but the manager warned him to play it safe and not try to steal any bases ... the first time the rookie reached first, he stole second. On the next pitch, he stole third."

His wayward charge now within earshot, the manager decided it was time for a lesson.

"The manager, mad as can be, picked up a bat, walked to home plate, looked at the rookie and said, 'Okay, Buster, let's see you try to steal home!'" Those days are gone but Clements still likes to go up to Austin when he can and watch Texas play. He's not sorry he didn't play big league baseball - he figures his years in semipro ball more than made up

SKEET GREGORY of Pampa displays a pair of bass, weighing five and six pounds, he caught in an area farm pond last week. Gregory snared the catch from his new "Bass Chaser Boat (right photo). "It's the latest thing in boats," Gregory said. "It's perfect for ponds when you get tired of fishing from the bank. You can take it out in the middle or from inlet to inlet with much more ease than you can a rowboat or rubber raft. Gregory said the Bass Chaser weighs only 60 pounds and can be carried in the back of a station wagon or on

Filly trying for Derby bid

Women's Lib and Title IX have contributed a great deal to the campaign for equal opportunities for the fairer sex, but you can't say they've done much for female race horses.

In the vernacular of human beings, the fillies and mares are still doing the dishes and mopping up the floors while the guys are having a ball at places such as the Kentucky Derby, Preakness

But every once in a while - once in a generation - a feisty filly will come along and demand through sheer track performance a matchup with the colts.

That has now happened in the case of undefeated Genuine Risk, a pretty chestnut with a blaze of white on her forehead, named to go against favored Plugged Nickle and 10 other colts in Saturday's Wood Memorial at Aqueduct, a test for the Kentucky Derby May 3.

Should she make a favorable impression, Genuine Risk conceivably could be pointed to the Louisville classic, the first of the 3-year-old Triple Crown events.

Shades of the tragic Ruffian.

Genuine Risk, owned by Mrs. Bert Firestone and trained by Leroy Jolley, is undefeated in six starts and has won $131,445, running against speed animals of her own sex. She was sired by Exclusive Native, who also sired Affirmed. She is untested in an established race against colts.

As a guide to the enormity of her task, it may be noted that in all of the 105 years of the Kentucky Derby only one filly has managed to win. That was Regret in 1915 - 65 years ago. The last even to compete was C.V. Whitney's Silver Spoon in 1959, finishing fifth.

Although Genuine Risk is undefeated, she has not fired the nation's imagination as Ruffian did five years ago. Yet there are a couple of unusual coincidences in her latest venture.

She will be ridden by Jacinto Vasquez, who was on Ruffian that fateful July day in 1975 when the fabulous filly broke down at the three-quarter pole while leading Foolish Pleasure, the Derby champion, in their heralded $350,000 match race at Belmont Park:

Ruffian, suffering a shattered right ankle, had

AP Sports Writer

Rick Matula's first major-league shutout couldn't have come at a better time for Bobby Cox, manager of the Atlanta Braves.

Matula's five-hitter helped Atlanta beat the Cincinnati Reds 3-0 Friday night in a game that saw two streaks come to an end. Atlanta had lost its first seven games of the National League season while Cincinnati had won its first eight. 'We can be loose for a change," added Cox. "It's about time. It's been about a month."

"This takes the lid off," said Cox after opened their season with a 9-0 pasting at the hands of the same Cincinnati Reds. In fact, five of Atlanta's seven losses had been to the Reds, by a lopsided combined score of 29-5. "I felt a little bit of pressure in the first two innings because of the losing streak," said Matula. "I was tight, but then I just said to heck with it and relaxed. He went on to baffle the Reds on 91 pitches. getting 18 of the 27 outs on grounders.

'He throws a sinker and a slider and he says, 'Here boy, hit it,'" said Cincinnati's Johnny Bench. "We chopped it in the ground all night. He was making good pitches.'

"I wanted to go at them and not give them a good pitch to hit," explained Matula, who was 8-10 as a rookie last season. "That's the best I've

Perry blanks Red Sox, 8-0

BOSTON (AP) — Manager Don Zimmer of the Boston Red Sox was a gracious loser, praising veteran right-hander Gaylord Perry of the Texas Rangers.

"The master got us." Zimmer said Saturday after Perry pitched a five-hitter for his 280th major league victory in an 8-0 decision over the Red Sox before 22,620 fans at Fenway Park.

"His fast ball ain't there any more, but he still knows how to pitcher," Zimmer added.

Often accused of throwing an illegal spit ball during his 19 years in the majors, Perry said, "We were legit today" after fashioning his 51st career shutout. "My fork ball was moving and I stayed with it," the 41-year-old wonder said. "As for the shutout, it means 52 is next, and I'm proud to be there."

Perry, 1-1 on his return to the Rangers after two seasons at San Diego, boosted his lifetime record against the Red Sox to 17-4.

"Every chance I get I watch them on television," he said. "They've got some good hitters. I'm fortunate that I get a couple of heads up plays against them. I also learned how to pitch in San Francisco where I had the wind blowing out. I've got to use that to my advantage."

Perry reached another milestone along with veteran slugger Rusty Staub, who belted the ninth grand slam of his career.

Pampa takes fourth in district track, qualifies three for regionals

Pampa qualified three thinclads for the regionals during the District 3-AAAA Boys' Track Meet Saturday at Randy Matson Field.

Taking first-place honors for the Harvesters were Danny Buzzard, shot put, 56-7; Kyle Bradford, high jump, 6-6, and Doug Kennedy, discus, 56-7.

The trio lifted Pampa into second place behind eventual champion Tascosa in the field events, but the Harvesters just didn't have enough experience in the running events to push the Rebels for first place. "We were just shy on sprinters," said

Pampa coach Mike Brent. "I've got some good young kids, so people better watch out next year."

Pampa finished fourth in total team points with 63. Tascosa collected 161 for first, Amarillo High, 143 for second, Palo Duro, 92 for third, and Caprock, 25 for fifth.

Also placing for Pampa, but failing to qualify for the Region I meet Friday and Saturday at Lubbock, were Bradford, fifth, long jump, 20-5; 400-meter relay(James Borchardt, Cavin Coleman, Randy Slaybaugh, Gary Dabbs), fourth, 45.0; Joe Murray, 800-meter run, sevent, 2:03; Leroy Kuhn, 100-meter dash, fifth, ll.4; Steve Kotara, 400-meter dash, seventh, 51.0; Mike Wheeler, 1600-meter run, third(no time listed): 1600-meter relay(Steve Kotara, Cavir, Coleman, Raymond Mendoza, Rick Kupcunas), fourth, 3:33.4 Pampa's B team finished fourth with 48 points in the junior varsity division.

Parnell Jackson, who leaped 5-10 in the high jump, was the only first-place winner

76ers sneak past Celtics

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics knew that Julius Erving would get his usual bushel of points. What they didn't count on was Darryl Dawkins and Henry Bibby filling the basket as well.

With those three men playing key roles at various points, then pulling together in the stretch, the Philadelphia 76ers drew first blood in their National Basketball Association playoff series with the Celtics here Friday night.

The 76ers, who hadn't won here all season, edged Bostn 96-93 to grab a 1-0 lead in the best-of-seven Eastern Conference

"The key tonight was they came down, and the things we didn't want them to do they did," said Boston forward Cedric Maxwell. "We didn't contain the people we wanted to contain. We know Erving will score his points, but when Dawkins scores a lot and Bibby comes off the bench and scores like he did, then we have problems."

it was disallowed by the stewards.

Erving finished with a game high of 29 points. Ten of them came in a 16-2 burst that transformed a 58-48 deficit into a 64-60

Dawkins had 23 points, six of them late in the game to snap an 88-88 tie and put Philadelphia in front 94-90. And Bibby had 17 points and four assists 76er lead with 5:24 left in the third period.

And Bibby had 17 points and four assists in 26 minutes. He canned a critical jumper with 56 seconds left to make the score 96-93 and forced the Celtics to try a three-point field goal with 12 seconds remaining.

"I thought I had the good shot. I was open and I had the confidence," Bibby said. "We're playing with confidence, more confidence than any Philly team I've been on. This year, we're not tired coming into the playoffs. We're fresh and that's a change from the past."

jdawkins said. "Julius Erving is the difference in this ball game." and, in the late stages Erving was a major asset. With 2:52 left, he stole a pass by Nate Archibald. A minute later, he chased Maxwell down and prevented a dunk that would have made the score 94-92.

"I had a lead on him and he just ran me down. He caught me at the basket and he hit my arm." said Maxwell.

Maxwell made one of two foul shots and the score was 94-91. When Dave Cowens threw in two foul shots 38 seconds later, the Celtics trailed by one.

Larry Bird led Boston with 27 points and Maxwell had 21, but Coach Bill Fitch said, "Some individuals played horrible games."

Boston had the NBA's best regular-season record, 61-21, and Philadelphia was third. They split their six meetings, with each team winnicnc4i. u the win Friday night, the 76ers gained the home-court advantage in the clash of Atlantic Division powers. The next game is scheduled here Sunday.

Mrs. Kitchens has ace

Eva Kitchens of Pampa had a hole-in-one Friday afternoon on No. 16 at the Pampa Country Club. Mrs. Kitchens used an eight-iron to ace the 75-yard hole.

Her playing partners were Fran Wilson, Mary Nelson, and Vi m. It was her first hole-in-one in 25 years of game, but she recalls watching someone else perform the feat. Her sister, Ava Warren, knocked the ball in the same cup approximately 15 years ago. Mrs. Warren is the wife of Pampa club pro Hart Warren.

Hill leads Citrus Open

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) - Although 21-year-old Carolyn Hill is a rookie on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, the second-round leader of the $100,000 Lady Citrus Open is accustomed to tournament pressure. Hill played in two of the nation's top women's college golf programs, at Tulsa University and the University of Miami. She played in two NCAA championships for Miami.

"It's about the same here," she said of pressure Friday, after her second straight 3-under-par 70 gave her a one-stroke lead.

Hill also noted she played as an amateur against tour veterans Amy Alcott and Laura Baugh in tournaments in her native California. She said the LPGA tour was more exciting, though.

"The most exciting thing about the tour is the quality of the play. The best players in the world are here," she said. Hill had only one bogey on the 6,200-yard Rio Pinar Country Club course. She also posted four birdies for a 140 total.

Consumers warned on credit useage who used to tell you to charge your way to happiness are now warning you to be careful of what you spend. "Use your MasterCard only for necessities and emergencies," urges one advertisement.

"Sears agrees with the government that credit must be used with care, that it is a tool for the prudent, not a license for spendthrifts, says another promotion. The words of caution come in the wake of the March 14 announcement of President Carter's latest anti-inflation program - a program designed to control spending by putting curbs on credit Interbank Card Association, which operates MasterCard, had been running a national advertising campaign designed to let people know that the card - formerly called Master Charge - had a new name. The campaign, part of an $11 million advertising and promotion effort this year, also advertised MasterCard as "the only card needed to help achieve a fuller, richer life, according to Interbank.

"We have substituted a new program on a crash basis," said Timothy J. Connor, public relhe Good Life' campaign immediately after March 14," he added. A new promotion, which began last Saturday, has Russell E. Hogg, Interbank president, telling consumers to use their cards wisely. 'We're all feeling the money squeeze these days and Washington has asked us to help fight inflation," says Hogg. "Buy only what you need. Don't over-extend.

Cynthia Chaddick of Visa said the San Francisco-based card operation had "attempted to cancel our spring campaign" that featured a family traveling around the United States on bicycles, visiting famous landmarks. The television campaign started March 10. About three weeks later, according to Ms. Chaddick, Visa "notified the networks and regusted relief from our media schedule.'

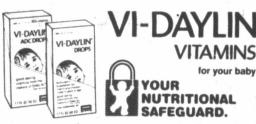

Ms. Chaddick said it is "a little too early to tell" what type of campaign will be substituted. She said it depends on whether the networks could sell the advertising time previously purchased by Visa and how much of its expenditure the card company could recover. She also said that advertisements for Visa travelers checks that are issued separately would continue as scheduled.

Note: The local banks that actually issue Visa and MasterCard may continue running their own promotions, although Connor said many of them had been cutting back as well.

A ROSE is more than just a rose for Marge Penn - it symbolizes her Woman of the Year award from Pampa's Beta Sigma Phi chapters

Beta Sigma Phi names Marge Penn

Health coordinator chosen Woman of the Year

Throughout the years, Pampa school's health coordinator Marge Penn has found she can't leave her job even when it's time

Her telephone never stops ringing ... a worried mother checking to see what she should do with her child, a local doctor inquiring about some aspect of a student's injury or illness, a neighbor needing a little help with a problem ... the list goes on.

Mrs. Penn's efforts in the public schools. in the community and throughout the county have resulted in her selection as 1980 Woman of the Year, an honor awarded by Pampa's six Beta Sigma Phi chapters.

Mrs. Penn, a registered nurse, was nominated for the annual award by several individuals and clubs. Members of the six Beta Sigma Phi chapters recently voted on naturally with her position. the nominees and a special committee tallied the votes. She will be honored Sunday afternoon at the annual Woman of the Year tea. Mrs. Penn is the 35th recipient of the award.

As health coordinator for Pampa High School, Pampa Middle School and Baker Elementary, Mrs. Penn has seen various changes - for the better - in school and city health systems.

"I remember the days here in Pampa when I was the only resource we had for these kids," says Mrs. Penn, a 20-year resident of Pampa. "There was no Plan A and there wasn't even an elementary counselor when I came to Pampa."

In 1960, when Mrs. Penn was working as Lefors, Grandview and Hopkins school nurse, there was no public health nurse on the county level. "Up until then what public health nursing that had been done had been done by school nurses," says Mrs. Penn. who adds that the county position was filled less than five years ago.

The honoree, who assumed her role with Pampa schools in 1966, has worked in various areas of community service as well as school nursing, something that comes

"Parents ask the schools for all kinds of help," she explains. "I'm a source for whatever their needs might be. In the schools, we also have an opportunity to pick up on symptoms a child might be having — diabetes, epilepsy, and such and refer them.

"My main job is to pick up on symptoms," explains the coordinator. "As a rule, we don't treat. We see that the child gets the right kind of treatment."

She's also responsible for keeping the records on about 2,400 students, students with psychological, emotional or medical problems.

"Each day is different," she says. "If it's during flu season, you have kids sick all day. If it's in the spring, you have accidents and injuries, when they're outside a lot. Some days you spend taking a child to a specialist and some days, like today, you're in meetings all day."

The lengthy meetings are with counselors, teachers, parents, therapists, state and regional health officials and anyone else who might be involved in the care of a specific child 'The whole point to all our testing is to do the followup, to see that the child is taken care of," explains Mrs. Penn. "So many of a child's learning disabilities are due to a health problem. Mrs. Penn, who grew up in Wichita Falls, attended Midwestern University there. An older doctor, whom she respected a great deal, is probably the one who influenced her in the direction of nursing.

She graduated from Wichita General Hospital School of Nursing and studied pediatrics - her special love - and psychiatry at John Sealey in Galveston.

After that came 10 years of hospital nursing, a year as school nurse in Midland, and some private duty and office nursing. She served as director of nursing in Rankin and Spearman before coming to Pampa, where she set up the first in-service training program at Highland General.

With no public health nurse and limited state and federal programs, most of the county's indigent medical services were handled by the school nurses. The early '60s saw help from various organizations and medical personnel in the area, and resulted in the establishm immunization clinic for indigent schoolchildren, even before the state government required it.

When 1970 came along and we had our state regulations, we set up mass clinics for the whole public," says Mrs. Penn, who adds that the service has been expanded in Gray County to include free monthly clinics

Until several years ago, mental health services in Pampa, and most other cities across the state, had little to offer until some interested volunteers decided to remedy the situation. Mrs. Penn and a number of other volunteers began to meet and formed the Suicide Prevention Crisis Intervention.

"That finally fell through," she says, "but out of that grew the realization of the need for counseling. The Family Service Center now does that Today, when a great deal of publicity is given to welfare, it is difficult to imagine a time without such programs. But in Mrs. Penn's first years in Pampa, there was only one county welfare worker to handle such. Now there are several.

"A lot of programs have been state initiated, but our community has done so much to recognize the needs. All you have to do is let them know there is a need and they will respond," says the nurse.

Laws have been passed to aid the handicapped and to test school children and identify their problems, she explains, but Pampa pioneered a program for the deaf before regional and state programs were set up. "We already had our children identified, so we were ready to go with the new programs.

Planned parenthood is another area in which volunteers gave their efforts before a full-time program was established. Doctors volunteered weekly until a program with a regular practitioner was adopted.

Drug abuse is probably one area in which Pampa still needs to be served, with a need for more counseling, says Mrs. Penn, who's also been active in Red Cross, Gray County Cancer Society, the Heart Association and Altrusa Club of Pampa.

She's in the process of training Pampa teachers and students in first aid and cardio-pulmonary-resuscitation short

Has she become unsympathetic to the needs of people, after many years in the nursing profession?

'If I get to the point where I lose my feeling for people, I'll get out," she says

MENDING MATURE MARRIAGE

By Louise Pierce

We need to send and receive bills in time to get them paid by the due date. But we need not pay before that day. And we certainly should not demand payment from debtors until that date

We older couples are often still in business and send out statements each month. I hope we refrain from heckling our debtors until they have a chance to pay us on time.

But I know of a husband-wife partnership our age that does not abide by this plan. The wife, who keeps the books, asks people for money ahead of time, sometimes meeting them on the street and reminding them of a bill that will be due in a week or a month.

The husband scolds her for this because people criticize him for her actions. Then they quarrel about whose method of collection is better. That can't be good for their marriage.

Other older couples disagree because they are dunned too early. A lady once told me that she and her husband were awakened one morning at 6 o'clock by a creditor who asked them to be sure to pay their bill by 5 that afternoon. She was so upset that she screamed at the caller and slammed the phone in his ear. Her husband said she shouldn't have shouted.

After a short argument, she said he was right. He waited until 4:48, at which time he walked into the creditor's office and paid their account in full. Of course they never did business with that

She said that was the worst possible kind of collection tactics. But I told her I knew a worse one - that of sending out bills six months ahead of the due date.

We take a lot of magazines and condensed books. Most of them send out notices so far in advance that it is easy to put them aside and forget them - or to pay them at once, which is not always good either.

Last year Otis and I paid two magazine subscriptions five months ahead of time. In both cases, the magazines began sending us two copies of each issue - and billed us for the two copies each month. We cancelled both subscriptions.

I believe that younger people sometimes think we older ones need more nudging than they do. How wrong they are! Our minds, in most cases, are still wired to sense and sanity. All they have to do is tell us what we owe them, when we owe it and then give us time to get the money to them but not a year ahead of time.

It will behoove us to do the same for our debtors. We will thus avoid disagreements concerning collection tactics, with our mated. our friends, and all who do business with us.

I've heard so much about billing far in advance of payment time that I've tried to analyze why it irritates us.

One reason is that it insults our intelligence, implying that we might forget our contractual

Few people do that. There are some deadbeats, of course, and every creditor must be alert for them. But most people mean to pay their bills on time if they can - or, if that becomes impossible. to make arrangements with creditors for when they can pay.

Corporations and companies sometimes go broke because of unforseen circumstances. But we older individuals usually mean to pay our personal bills when they are due.

Another reason for our objection to getting bills ahead of time is that the practice questions our ability to pay. It's as if a creditor were saying, "Your finances are in such bad shape that you'd better start saving now for this bill that is due in six months." And that's an insult to anybody's pocketbook.

Sometimes a debt situation is unnecessary, even ridiculous. A letter described such a case.

DEAR LOUISE: My husband and I have had separate bank accounts for 40 years because we had different businesses before we retired and we kept them that way when we quit the businesses. Last year he borrowed $500 from me and signed a note to pay it back in six months. He could have done it too, but he spent his income on gadgets for his boat and hasn't paid me a penny.

I've yelled and yelled at him but he only says he'll pay me back when he can. Isn't this kind of dishonesty enough to make a wife leave home?

DEAR D.W.: Not in my opinion. I believe in joint bank accounts, discussion of finances and agreement on what's spent and where and when and how - but never any fighting over who spends whose money. I'd forgive the debt, quit yelling, stay married - and give marital love a

DR. LAMB

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - My husband had bad breath to an extreme degree. He saw his doctor, his dentist and an ear. nose and throat specialist, and they didn't come up with anything. About a year ago, he saw an advertisement about a tongue scraper to use for this condition. He thought he had nothing to lose, so he got one. This little instrument is made of surgical-grade stainless steel and has a cleaning edge. You can use it to scrape the tongue clean. It's dishwasher safe and lasts for a lifetime. In my husband's case, it proved to be everything it claimed to be. Since then he hasn't had any problem.

DEAR READER - Thank vou for your helpful suggestion. A person certainly can use a tongue scraper or tongue cleaner if he chooses. However, as I have mentioned before, everyone should learn to brush his tongue. You can clean your tongue with your toothbrush at the same time you're brushing your teeth and you can use toothpaste on the tongue as well. It's no problem to look at the tongue in the mirror and see if you've got it all clean or if you need to brush a little longer until it is clean.

Because of your interest in this problem, I am sending you The Health Letter number 9-4. Halitosis: The Breath Problem and What to Do About It. This issue also discusses cleaning the tongue as well as the teeth. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper. P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

one of many causes for bad breath. Other causes are discussed in The Health Letter

I'm sending you.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am expecting my second child in three months and I'm very worried. About a month ago a friend of mine who is also pregnant told me that her doctor warned her not to eat any foods prepared in a microwave oven because of the radiation. Well, I've eaten foods prepared in a microwave oven. Naturally, this upset me so when I went to see my doctor he said that there was probably no danger in eating the foods but that standing in front of the microwave oven could be harmful. I've also stood in front of a microwave oven when it was in use, but the most has been about five minutes. Is this going to affect my baby?

DEAR READER - Put your mind at ease. Foods cooked with microwaves present no hazard at all from the microwaves. All the microwaves do is speed up the movement of natural molecules that are inside the food to begin with.

A properly functioning modern microwave oven does not emit any significant amounts of microwaves. As a result, you can stand in front of it all day and it won't damage you. Finally, more recent studies have raised serious questions as to whether microwave exposure poses any hazards at all to human

Of course, you can get burned with them if you stick your hand in a source of microwave just as food can get cooked, but that may be about the only hazard that exists. Apparently, much of concern about microwaves has been some what exaggerated occasionally without having a hassle about it? WISCONSIN GRANDPA

DEAR GRANDPA: I think you're entitled to do whatever you want (as long as it's legal) in the privacy of your own home. And if it's "new faces" you want, your wife is lucky they're on film.

DEAR ABBY: Our 41-year-old daughter still lives at home. She never married. The problem is she thinks she is an artist. She attended some art classes, but she is far from good. In fact, to be honest with you, she's pretty bad. I don't claim to be an authority on art, but I know what I don't like.

About three years ago she painted some pictures, had them framed and hung them in the living room. What a collection! Abraham Lincoln, Groucho Marx, Mona Lisa and Woody Allen!

Abby, these ugly, amateurish paintings have been staring me in the face for about as long as I can stand it. I would like to take them down, but I don't know how to go about it without hurting her feelings.

DEAR ABBY: Last year my sister and her husband came from New Jersey to visit us here in Southern California. They are good company, about our age (mid-50s) and are about as well-off financially as we are. (Maybe better.)

They stayed at our home for 10 days, during which time we paid for all their entertainment, which included Disneyland, sight-seeing, Universal Studios tour, restaurants nearly every night, and even a side trip to Las Vegas. They never offered to pay for a thing. They must think that because we live in California, we are rich.

They wrote to tell us that they had such a fabulous time last year they're coming again. Abby, we don't mind putting them up and feeding them at our home, but we can't afford to give them a repeat performance of last year's entertainment, which is probably what they expect.

My husband says I should write to my sister and give her the facts before they start out. Would that be proper?

DEAR NOT CHEAP: Not only would it be proper, I think it's essential.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the woman who never knew how to answer people who asked if her late-in-life baby was an accident, brought back memories.

We had two grown children and nine grandchildren when I became pregnant. I was 45, and my husband was 48. Many people asked me if that baby was an accident. (They still do.) I always said, "He may not have been planned, but he was a gift from God - and that is no accident."

Storybook Players to troupe schools

The Storybook Players of the Pampa High School Drama Department will tour the city's elementary schools this week with two productions.

The youngsters in the audience will assist with the production of "Aladdin," by Moses Goldberg. The familiar story of the peasant boy Aladdin and the magic lamp, the "participation" play is acted by a group of wandering peddlers, with the audience members assuming roles of flowers or roaring tigers.

The cast includes Cary Raulston as Burgundo and the Sultan, Allen Morgan Jr. as Domino and Aladdin, Tammie Wilcox as Dahlia and the Princess, Sherae Peters as Cordova and Aladdin's mother, Debbie Summers as Pico, Dorma Smith as Regalia and Genie of the Ring, and David Smith as Renaldo and Genie of the Lamp

"The Unwicked Witch" is a play about three wicked witches, their "granddaughter" and two mortals. Written by Madge Miller, the play is about grandmother witch Gobble, great-grandmother Hobble, great-great-grandmother Wobble and the young Winona.

Into their dusty cottage of cobwebs comes, Luke, a boy searching for a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow. He is accompanied by his grandfather, Sad Simon, a famous fiddler who "lost his tune" after Luke's infant sister was kidnapped years before.

When Winona secretly tries to help the mortals, conflicts arise among the witches.

Cast members are Nancy Morgan as Gobble, Esmerelda Martinez as Hobble, Glenna Wilkins as Wobble, Lori Campbell as Winona, Allen Morgan Jr. as Luke, and Carv Raulston as Sad Simon. Crews for the plays will be from the advanced drama class.

Director for the shows is Mrs. Rochelle Lacy.

Both productions are sponsored by the Pampa Fine Arts Association, with Mrs. Cinda Lafferty of White Deer as coordinator.

Sewing in-service program slated

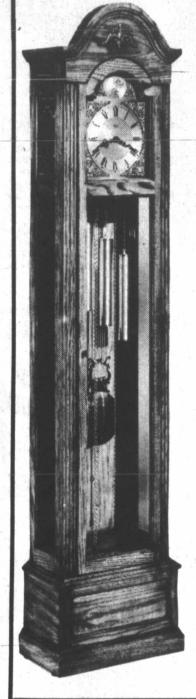

An in-service program on "Sewing for Children" plus "Energy Conservation Using Clothing and Textiles" will be Thursday from 4 to 6 p.m. at the Texas A&M Research and Extension Center in Amarillo. Beverly Benfer, in-service program coordinator for Coats and Clark, Inc., will present the program. As in-service program coordinator, Ms. Benfer develops the educator in-service program, designed for home economics educators, such as teachers, extension home economists, college faculty members and 4-H leaders.

The program includes information on teaching ideas, educational trends, new products and new sewing techniques which are researched and developed by the department.

Ms. Benfer received her bachelor of science degree in home economics education from Mansfield State College, Mansfield, Pa. Before joining the Consumer and Educational Department at Coats and Clark, she taught home economics in a co-educational system.

Mindy: You wouldn't have a problem if you kept your toys out of the kitchen. Unfortunately for you, your parents are saying, 'Do as we say, not as we do.

I think parents should set an example for their children, but I also think you should remove your toys from the kichen and obey your parents. Your question, "Is it fair?" can't be answered. As you know, adults have privileges that kids don't.

Dr. Wallace: I am writing to let you know how shocked I was when I read your response to Debbie from Porterville, Calif., who wanted to know if she should play basketball with three boys behind her house.

While she should certainly be encouraged to go ahead and play without worrying about it being "unladylike," I think you did her (and young women and men everywhere) a disservice with your closing remark, "Your only problem is that if you are too good, the boys might not ask you to play again." If these boys are too insensitive and immature to accept the fact that someone else does something better than they do, whether male or female, then that is a problem that they are going to have to work out on their

It is hard to believe that you would so blatantly perpetuate the sexist myth of female inferiority, or suggest that a woman (or girl) should subordinate herself and deny her abilities just because some man (or boy) might be offended.

I am not saying that you are wrong — neither of us knows these three boys and how they might react if Debbie were indeed a better basketball player than they, but if they can't handle it, it is they who have a problem and not Debbie.

MARY ANN SMITH

One woman show slated

"Roar Like a Dove" will be presented Saturday as the Pampa Fine Arts Association's annual membership dinner theater performance.

The play, a hit on the London stage in the '60s, will feature Mary Ann Smith of Dallas in a one-woman show. The performance begins at 7 p.m. in the Starlight Room of the Coronado Inn.

Ms. Smith, an actress, musician and civic leader, is known to Texas audiences for her one-woman presentations of Broadway plays and for her involvement in Dallas cultural activities.

Ms. Smith was an award-winning drama student in high school, as well as at the Cocke School of Drama, the University of Texas and Southern Methodist University. A former Dallas Woman of the Year, she is associate producer of the forthcoming Broadway

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) Some people collect stamps, some like old guns or swords and others opt for coins. But for Bill Shea, aviation director of the Port of Portland, there's nothing quite like an old air-

And when it comes to his 1935 Stinson Reliant and others of that era, he nearly bursts with enthusiasm.

"It's where aviation began, he exclaims. He doesn't discount the feats of the brothers Wright, but says modern aviation stems from the time when airplanes changed from biplanes to monoplanes and became transportation instead of "I really believe in that.

That's the era that gave some persons their love of aviation,"

Shea's Stinson harks back to the days when most airplanes' wings were braced with wood, their bodies covered with linen instead of aluminum, and third wheels were on tails instead of

Except among antique enthusiasts like Shea, you don't and a transportation system in hear much about Stinson airplanes anymore.

The company was a division of the Cord automobile company when Shea's airplane rolled out the door in Wayne, Mich., with a price tag of about $6,000.

The first owner was actor Wallace Beery who, so the story goes, used the craft to fly underprivileged children to summer camp.

It went through the hands of many owners, including the federal government, which used it for transportation in World War II. Shea got it last year from a former Marine fighter pilot in Chehalis, Wash., who coveted a restored Army Bird Dog observation plane that

A LOVER of antique airplanes. Bill Shea, aviation director of the Port of Portland, Ore., has a special feeling for this 1935 Stinson Reliant that he got last year from a former Marine fighter pilot. The plane, which has had many planes and about 6,000 hours in the air, since he learned to fly in 1945. Before he came to Portland, he headed California's Division of Aeronautics Binghampton, N.Y.

Shea's Stinson is one of but 50 turned out and, as far as he knows, it's the only one still flying. A more common model is like Shea's but has a different wing - one that arches where it joins the fuselage and is referred to, reverently, as a gullwing Stinson.

The welded-steel skeleton of Shea's plane has been re-covered with fiberglass fabric and it has a newer engine and propeller, but the big nine-cylinder radial engine still starts with a belch of smoke, just like in the old days. The wood-braced wings still carry the original Sitka spruce spars.

The 300-horsepower Lycoming pulls the craft along at 120-140 miles an hour while drinking as much as 18 gallons of gas an "Look at that! Isn't that something!" Shea chants in his Boston-Irish brogue as the big propeller swings through. 'Just smell that. Isn't that smell something," he beams as the odor of aviation gas wafts through the cockpit. If nothing else, the Stinson is BIG; bigger than any single-engine civilian craft turned out today although it carries only four, maybe five, persons. Shea has to keep it in a hangar designed for a twin.

With the tail on the ground it is impossible to see straight ahead past the mammoth nose.

To taxi, Shea swings the tail back and forth so he can look out the side.

Shea is one of a large group of antique airplane lovers who gather each year at Vancouver, Wash., and Merced and Watsonville in California to share tales and experiences.

"It's a labor of love to keep these old planes running," he says as he walks around the

CULTURAL ARTS WORKSHOP:

The Gray County Extension Homemaker Council Cultural Arts Committee is sponsoring a Cultural Arts workshop Monday at 9:30 a.m. in the Courthouse Annex Meeting Room. Jan Pyne from Pampa will demonstrate glass etching. There will be no charge for the workshop. Those planning to attend should bring a pair of rubber gloves and a small glass object such as a mirror, flat ashtray, glass or jar.

The guest speaker also will show some new project ideas. Everyone is invited to attend. For more information, contact the county extension office.

CLEAR UP "FOG" BETWEEN SLIDING-DOOR PANES:

Do-it-yourselfers can remedy "fog" between the two panes of double-glazed sliding glass doors. Usually, dead air space between the two panes of glass serves to insulate the glass area and the home against heat loss and heat gain.

However, prefabricated double-glazed doors are subject to condensation between the two panes of glass. The most common type of double-glazed door is two panes of glass separated by a hollow aluminum mullion. Usually the mullion is filled with a desicant, such as silica-gel granules so air between the panes is continuously dried.

Problems with condensation generally occur after long-time use of the unit. Breaking of the seal causes the desicant to become waterlogged and condensation forms between the panes of glass. Do-it-yourselfers can correct the problem for the cost of a tube of sealant and about two hours of actual labor.

Solving the problem involves taking the unit apart, drying out the silica granules and putting the unit back together with new sealant. To disassemble the unit, follow these steps:

First, remove screen and then the sliding section of the door by turning screws to relieve tension on rollers. Pry the door up and, with a helper, lift the heavy panel out. Place on a flat surface resting the unit on top and bottom by tapping gently with a mallet and wood block. Carefully remove the rubber or vinyl gasket and save for reuse. To cut through the old sealant, run a razor-type knife around the perimeter between the top glass and the mullion. Then, lift off the top glass.

To dry out desicant, cut loose the mullion containing the desicant, remove end caps, and pour silica into a baking dish. Avoid contact with the silica gel. To drive off moisture and to restore moisture-absorbing properties, heat the granules in a 400-degree F. oven for at least three hours.

Clean old sealant from glass and mullion by using a razor scraper and solvent-saturated cloth. Clean and polish the glass. Then, pour the dried desicant granules back into the mullion and

To reassemble the unit, place a thin bead of clear sealant around inside edge of the bottom sheet of glass, and position the mullion onto the sealant. Press down lightly. Run another bead of sealant around the edges of the slides and top of the glass. Positioning the gasket so the splice is at the top, press the gasket into the still-wet sealant. Finally, replace metal edges of the door and set it back into the frame.

Spring cooking school slated May 8

KITCHENS Cooking School, coming May 8 to M.K. Brown

The school is sponsored by Progressive Farmer magazine and the Pampa News.

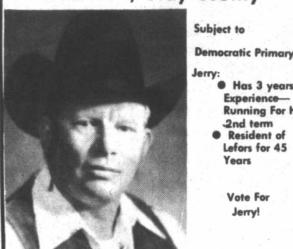

"This year we decided to delve into the regions and origins of the recipes to creat the more personal aspects of the food," explains Susan Todd, home economist for SOUTHERN KITCHENS Cooking School. "We want to show, not just the food, but highlight the customs, cooking and food habits of the South without losing the simplicity that the busy consumer today needs.

Menus that will delight everyone will be featured under sections such as Savannah Savoire Fair, New Orleans ... and All That Jazz, Deep in the Heart of Texas and Blue Grass Cuisine. Thirteen recipes will be featured on stage during the Cooking School

"Our favorite part of the program is inviting people from the audience to come up and taste many of the dishes we prepare during the show," says Janice Allen, program coordinator for the school. At the end of the show, we will hold a drawing for door prizes donated by our national sponsors, as well as local merchants.'

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

April 20, 1980

Early this coming year you will be laying solid foundations. Near autumn the shape of what you have been building will be evident.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
Unfinished tasks will bother you mentally today and could spoil your fun. Finish them first, then forget them. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph Letter, which $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Funds earmarked for domestic needs should not be blown on pleasurable pursuits today

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today you may look for faults in others rather than for their virtues, and create problems that need not exist. This is especially true of family members.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Bad feelings will grow if you remind another of how much you've done for him or her in the past. This person already feels obli-

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be very careful today if you're doing things with friends where each has to pay a portion of the tab. Someone could get upset if they feel their share is too large LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)

There's a possibility that you might underrate yourself in com-parison to the opposition. The odds are really in your favor. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) As long as you rely on your logic today instead of your hunches or intuition, you'll have no problem. Don't attach importance to negative thoughts.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Where joint ventures are con-cerned it's very important that wavelength. Be sure your objectives are in harmony.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There has been a difficult decision you've been dodging lately and it's not likely to correct itself. Face the issue squarely and fear-

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Others cannot be counted upon today to help you with a task. It may be slower and more difficult, PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)

Profit from experience and don't involve yourself in anything that previously caused you problems. Repetition would be asking for

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Even though you may feel your mate is wrong today, bend a little and compromise. Diplomacy dissolves discord

Just a short time ago. Debby Boone was being referred to as the daughter of 'white shoes' Pat Boone and the girl who had the pop You Light Up My

Since then, a few folks have had to move over in order to make room for a few Debby Boone singles on the country charts. Some of them lacked the 'country' flavor, but that's another

The current chapter is beginning with the Boone LP from Warner Brothers/Curb Records titled Love Has No Reason. For the most part, the album is at least mediocre country music, with a measure of too much pop in too many places.

4-H Corner

by marilyn tate 🕳

Three 4-H teams will represent Gray County in District contests to be held April 22. One junior team and one junior individual will compete in the horse judging contest which is to be held at the WTSU Horse Center in Canyon. One junior and one senior 4-H rifle team will compete in the shooting sports competition held at the Amarillo Rifle and Pistol Club.

DISTRICT 4-H METHOD DEMONSTATIONS:

On May 3, some twenty Gray County 4-H members will present sixteen method demonstrations and illustrated talks in District competition on the WTSU Campus in Canyon. First and second place winners in the senior divisions on either April 22 or May 3 will be eligible to attend the Texas State 4-H Roundup at Texas A&M University, June 3 and 4.

COUNTY 4-H CAMP:

Weed control and soil fertility will be the topics of the program to be presented on Thursday, April 24, at the

I have had several farmers ask about obtaining TAM 105 seed wheat to plant next fall. Recently, I obtained the names of several growers around the Panhandle area who obtained registered seed last year with the intent to produce certified seed this year of TAM 105. If you are interested in obtaining some of this seed, call of come by the County Extension Office for the list of area growers. PRUNE TREES -- NOT TOP THEM:

Freshly topped trees are once again begining to make their annual appearance in the area. Unfortunately, this method of so-called tree pruning continues to be done by unknowledgable tree service men and home owners.

The topping practice is only justified when tree limbs are fouling overhead utility lines. Then the best alternative is to remove the tree and replant with a small growing tree that will not grow tall enough to get into the overhead lines. A booklet on pruning trees is available through the County

Extension Office RABIES CASES UP SHARPLY LAST YEAR:

Rabies cases continue to increase at an alarming rate in Texas. Laboratory confirmed positive cases of rabies in Texas showed a 115 percent increase in 1979 over 1978.

The number of cases of rabid dogs took the biggest jump with an 118 percent increase. A total of 82 dogs were found rabid in 1979 compared to only 9 in 1978. More rabid skunks were confirmed than any other animal with 857 skunks reported rabid compared to 447 in 1978.

A large number of foxes, raccoons, horses, cats and bats also made the rabid list. Reports so far for 1980, indicate the incidence of rabies in wild animals, especially the skunk, are still high. We recommend the following steps when animals are exposed -Dogs and cats bitten by a known rabid animal should be destroyed immediately. If the owner is unwilling to have this done, the unvaccinated animal should be vaccinated immediately with a modified live virus vaccine against rabies and placed in strict isolation for six months. If the animal has a record of current vaccination, it should be revaccinated immediately and restrained for at least 60 days.

-Livestock bitten by rabid animals should be destroyed immediately. If the owner is unwilling to have this done, the animal should be placed in quarantine for six months.

-Exposed livestock can be safely killed and its tissues eaten without risk of infection if the animal is slaughtered within three days of being bitten.

-Persons who slaughter and skin an exposed animal should wear gloves and perform their duties with care to prevent possible exposure from the wounded area. Liberal portions of the tissues in the bite area should be discarded. The remaining muscle tissues of the animal are considered safe to eat.

Certain percautions should also be taken when seemingly healthy pets bite a person for no reason.

In this case, the animal should either be confined and observed by a veterinarian for ten days of killed immediately and examined by the flourescent antibody technique. If the owner opts for observation and signs suggestive of rabies develop, the animal should be humanely killed immediately and its head submitted for rabies examination.

One final reminder. House Bill 1323, which requires all dog and cat owners to have their pets vaccinated against rabies at four months of age and at regular intervals thereafter, became effective April 1.

Good weather benefitted game in 1979

Deer and turkey both benefitted from favorable weather conditions early in 1979, with ample spring and summer rainfall over most of the major habitat areas during the fawning and hatching

A fair year for turkey nesting in 1978 was followed by a very good year in 1979, resulting in high turkey populations and the highest statewide harvest figure since the department began its statewide survey in Poor torage conditions due to drought caused above average feeding activity during the hunting season, which contrubuted to the high harvest. North Central Texas showed

The outstanding year for turkey was reflected in a harvest of 4,621 for the Rolling Plains of the Panhandle.

Biomass is becoming a buzz word for agriculture. In the world of advertising, 'buzz'' word is one par ticular word that demands attention and is most likely to cause reader or viewe In agriculture, iomass (the organic matter in plants and trees) is being used to denote the alternate energy sources available for use from an agricultural base. Biomass can be a successful enery source whether used by direct burning or for conversion to liquid or gaseous fuels. In either case, it represents what may well become the greatest challenge for American agriculture. "How can biomass best be produced and converted into energy?", will become one of the most often asked questions of the eighties. It's a question that will be answered in large part by our farmers and ranchers as they apply the results of the extensive research now

Pioneer Corporation is a diversified, energyresources corporation with facilities and/or operations in 14 states.

Pioneer covers the energy spectrum. We explore for and produce oil and natural gas both onshore and offshore. Operate rigs for contract drilling. Explore for and mine vanadium and uranium for nuclear power generation. Extract liquids from natural gas. Through other subsidiaries, we manufacture and fabricate oil field equipment and sell it worldwide . . . and sell, service and lease heavy equipment for construction, roadbuilding, aggregate production and surface mining.

Pioneer is committed to producing energy resources now, finding them for the future. In the past five years, $415 million has been invested in exploration and capital improvements.

Energy. It's Pioneer's business to find it, to produce it. And we're doing it right here at home to help lessen America's dependence on foreign energy sources. The future is promising, and with your wise use of all our vital energy resources, we will make it.

Scouts begin Spring Roundup

There couldn't be a better time of the year to join Boy Scouts — as 19. Are you a man over 18? spring arrives and youngsters want to get in the outdoors.

Scouting offers wholesome outdoor activities for boys ages 8-18.

With summer nearing, scouts will really enjoy Camp Brown summer camp, which will be open July 13-19 and July 20-26. Hiking, swimming, fishing, visiting an Indian village, archery and target practice with target rifles are among the many activities.

To join, contact any of the troops listed below, or call Doreen Miley, District Executive, Adobe Walls Council, 669-6845. YOUR SCOUTING I.Q.

Would you like to:

1. Canoe in the rapids?

2. Work with ropes, saws, axes?

3. Build a 20-foot signal tower? 4. Earn an ax or tent?

5. Spend a week at Camp Brown?

6. Learn about trees and shrubs? 7. Swim a mile?

8. Sit around a campfire?

9. Understand the stars in the sky? 10. Camp out in the snow?

11. Lead other boys?

12. Earn colorful badges and medals?

13. March in a parade?

14. Fish in a 100-acre lake?

15. Hike 20 miles?

16. Use a compass and maps? 17. Become an Eagle Scout?

18. Are you a boy nearly ll (or 12 or 13)?

20. Did you show this test to friends? DID YOU PASS THIS TEST?

I like scouting because we go on camp outs and diffent other

Kendall Rodgers, age 15

I like scouts because we go on campouts.

D. Scott, age 12

I like scouting because it gives me a challenge. The goal of my challenge in to become and eagle scout. Our troop likes summer camp and participates in other activities as well as campouts, camporees, expositions, and skiing.

Everybody gets "Boys Life" scouters magazine.

I think troop 414 is the best troop in town. I hope that we have some more boys join our troop. When you earn eagle, you get better jobs because it shows that you stick with it. So go out and try to join the best troop that you can find.

Greg Sokolosky, age 12 Patrol leader, Troop 414

I like to meet new freinds and get along with people the way people should. I think that Scouts is the best thing that happend to America in many years. I also like to earn things. It helps me know and try Scott Alexander

I like scouting because we go on alot of camp-outs. Our troop is pretty big and we have alot of fun. We work hard, trying to get the eagle rank. We have had one eagle scout Kevin Ebenkamp. Our troop is very active. We like summer camp and have pretty good attendance. I enjoy scouting and am working to the 2nd eagle in our
