Carter takes blame for failed mission

MASS CELEBRATION to celebrate the failure of an American attempt to rescue the hostages was occurring outside the American Embassy in Tehran today. Shouting and raising their arms, thousands of

Iranians converged in the street, after hearing Iranian state radio reports of the news concerning the aborted U.S. hostage rescue attempt followed the mandates of "necessity and duty" in ordering a military attempt to rescue the American hostages in Teheran, said today he aborted the mission when a rescue helicopter failed.

Eight Americans died in the collision of two U.S. aircraft during the attempt to withdraw the failed mission from a remote desert site about 150 miles from Tehran; Carter praised the men and said he felt sorrow for their sacrifice.

In a solemn, 7 a.m. EST, report to the nation, the president said he still holds the Iranian government "responsible for the safety and for the early release" of the hostages.

Emphasizing that there were no Iranian casualties, Carter described the mission as a humanitarian one. He said all involved understood it "to be difficult and ... dangerous." The initial Iranian response was a televised message of restraint there was no word from the militants actually holding the hostages. Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh called the rescue mission "an invasion," and said, "I hope we do not react as nervously as the American authorities have done "We have been disappointed before," Carter said. He said the United States would continue through diplomatic means to seek the "peaceful release" of the hostages. He gave no hint of further military steps Carter said the decision to attempt the rescue operation was his, and so was the decision to cancel it "when problems developed in the placement of our rescue team for a future rescue operation.

That seemed to indicate that the American team, which Carter said was composed of volunteers, got only as far as an initial staging area, and that an actual attempt on the embassy would have come

"In the aftermath of the attempt, we continue to hold the government of Iran responsible for the safety and for the early

Carter said. "The United States remains determined to bring about their safe release at the earliest date possible. In his initial report, Carter simply repeated the sketchy account given earlier at about 1:15 a.m. EST by administration officials. Carter promised more details of the rescue attempt, and the reasons

Carter said that in undertaking the "dangerous" mission, he felt it would have "an excellent chance for success.

He said he ordered the mission to protect American lives, and to reduce the danger of conflict in the world. "It was my decision to attempt this rescue mission," he said in a nationally televised report

"In the aftermath of this attempt, we continue to hold the Iranian government responsible" for the safety of the hostages, he said. At the time Carter spoke, there had been no reaction from the militants holding the embassy.

Carter said the United States would continue through diplomatic means to seek the "peaceful release" of the hostages. He gave no hint of any further military steps.

The president, speaking from his Oval Office, said that when earlier diplomatic efforts failed to gain freedom of the hostages, who now have been held for 174 days, the military attempt "became a necessity and a duty.

"It was my decision to attempt the rescue operation," he said. "It was my decision to cancel it.'

'The mission on which they were embarked was a humanitarian mission," he s aid. "It was not directed against Iran, it was not directed against the people of Iran

Iran's foreign minister today condemned President Carter's "act of war" in launching an airborne mission to rescue the Tehran embassy hostages, but he said he hopes Iranians will react with restraint to the failed military operation.

Eight American crewment were killed when two of the rescue aircraft collided as they tried to withdraw. President Carter said.

Sketchy reports from Tehran indicated the Iranians believed some Americans might have been stranded in the eastern Iranian desert where the daring mission was aborted because of what Carter called "equipment failures.

Government-run Tehran Radio told people in the area around Tabas, in the Dasht-e-Kavir desert 350 miles east of the capital, to search for Marines and raiding personnel now in the Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh told CBS in an interview he had received information "there were some Americans" left behind "but this has not been precise.

Carter said, however, that all those involved in the operation — by Iranian estimates 400 or 500 were safely withdrawn.

The president, in an address broadcast nationwide at 7 a.m., said the equipment failure occurred aboard "the rescue helicopter." But he did not describe the problem, and various other reports from Washington. Tehran and elsewhere said the mission was aborted because of the collision, because of an explosion aboard a helicopter or because helicopters became mired in mud. The Iranian military command claimed the planes crashed while fleeing from Iranian warplanes, but Carter said there were no hostilities and the Iranians were unaware of the U.S. attempt until several hours after the withdrawal

The American raiders took a busload of Iranians prisoner briefly before releasing them and flying off, Tehran Radio said.

The desert was being used as a staging area for the final leg of the mission to Tehran, Carter

In Tehran, an estimated 10,000 jubilant Iranians poured into the streets around the U.S. Embassy when they got word of the failed mission, celebrating with shouts and cheers. They flashed victory signs, clenched their fists and screamed, "Down With Carter!" and "Carter's Finished!"

A spokesman for the Moslem militants who have held the 50 embassy hostages since Nov. 4 said they were "doing well." the Japan Broadcasting Corp. reported from Tehran. The militants previously had threatened to kill all of the hostages if the United States took the slightest military action against Iran or made any attempt to rescue them

Speaking in English, Ghotbzadeh told ABC-News he hopes the Iranian government will proceed with caution and "not react as nervously as the Americans did" in launching the raid. He said he also asked the militants who seized the Americans at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran 174 days ago to "refrain from harsh actions.

The militants holding the 50 Americans in the embassy since Nov. 4 threatened previously to kill their captives if an attempt was made to rescue them. Their spokesman said today they would announce their decision once they had received more details on the raid

Strike force said to be from Fort Bragg

WASHINGTON (AP) - The U.S. military unit that tried to rescue the American hostages in Iran is a highly secret anti-terrorist force based at a North Carolina Army post, an informed source said today.

The source, who declined to be identified, said planning for the operation was well underway in January and that the special unit had a virtually unlimited by iget and access to the most sophisticated weapons and debilitating gases.

The source said the all-volunteer unit was known as the Delta team and was based at Fort Bragg, N.C. Pentagon sources confirmed there was a Delta team, also known under the code name of Blue Light, but they could not confirm that this was the team involved in the abortive action, which left eight servicemen dead in the collision of two aircraft.

Sources said only a handful of top officials knew what units and how many men were involved in the actual operation.

Pentagon officials would not comment on the report, saying the Pentagon had nothing to add beyond what President Carter had The source, who said he personally was aware of the planning, said the Delta team operations were directed by a special direct ction group of planners in the Pent

He said the team was a specially designed counter-terrorist unit that was trained in rescuing hostages and in the use of nausea-producing gases.

The Pentagon has in the past acknowledged the existence of a team modeled on the crack Israeli and West German anti-terrorist units and has said it was headquartered at Fort

The team reports directly to the Joint Chiefs of Staff and is composed primarily of volunteers from Army Special Forces and Ranger units. The Army is responsible for the unit's training.

There was no indication on the size of the Delta team. At the time of its formation in 1978. Pentagon officials said they were seeking between 200 and 250 seasoned soldiers as volunteers for a very, very serious matter" and said he expected

Volcker accused of arranging Hunt credit

Although Volcker was out of the country Thursday and unavailable for comment, the reserve board issued a brief statement denying it had approved the loan to the Hunts.

"Contrary to published reports, neither the Federal Reserve nor its chairman, Paul A. Volcker, initiated any effort to obtain bank loans in connection with financial transactions of the Hunt brothers" the statement said.

"Banking officials have kept the Federal Reserve informed regarding such matters but, contrary to some reports, the Federal Reserve has not approved any such loans," it said.

The board's spokesman, Joseph Coyne, said he could not expand on the statement but Volcker would testify before Congress in the near future

An informed government source, however, said Volcker became involved after the Hunt brothers' regular bank could not meet their urgent request for money to meet debts stemming from their earlier speculation in the silver market.

One source said that brokerage firm and bank representatives asked for Volcker's approval of the loan in late March on the grounds that financial defaults might be in store if the Hunts could not make their payments.

The approval of the reserve board's chairman apparently was considered necessary because rigid restraints on credit sought for speculative purposes were announced March 14 as a part of the government's anti-inflation program.

One government source, who asked not to be identified by name, said Volcker approved of the private banks' line of credit to the Hunts because he was concerned that some brokerage houses and banks might be in jeopardy

The GOP presidential contender met with invited supporters in the chamber Thursday as part of his quick campaign stop here. Security personnel manned the doors and checked invitations.

The meeting, largely ceremonial, took place right before Reagan headed for the Senate chamber for a news conference, open to the public, with Texas Gov. Bill Clements.

"I was under the impression he wanted to use the House to give a little speech," said Rep. Pete Laney, D-Hale Center, adding he did not know it was going to be a private meeting.

Laney is chairman of the House Administration Committee which gave the Reagan camp permission to use the chamber.

'What they ended up having up there, locking all the doors and all, that was not part of the deal. Why they did it, I don't know," he said in a telephone interview from his home.

Laney and Gale Kloesel, "House sergeant-at-arms, said they could not remember any previous closed-door gatherings held by private citizens in the House.

"I don't know that the doors have ever been locked, except for a call of the House," said Lamey. "But that was to keep everyone in, not to keep everyone out."

The doors were not locked for the Reagan meeting, but Department of Public Safety. Secret Service, and Capitol Security guards manned the entrances. Kloesel said about 80 Reagan supporters were at the session. Most of the time was consumed taking photographs. The candidate made a five-minute talk, he said. Laney said he is looking into what went on in "What he did in there will definitely have an effect. Our policy may have to be tightened up,"

Home mortgage rates could drop mortgage rates should dip from present record levels of 15 percent to 17 percent by December to about 12 percent and rescue an ailing savings industry, the industry's top regulator says.

"Rates must drop below 14 percent before mortgage demand recovers and housing starts pick up, and I think we'll see that by the end of the year," Jay Janis, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, said Thursday.

The $550 billion thrift industry, comprising more than 4,000 savings and loan associations and savings banks, is being hurt by the high mortgage rates because many homebuyers are unwilling or unable to qualify for mortgages.

"It is inevitable ... that 1980 will see a marked decline in industry earnings and profitability with, in some cases at least, a negative return on assets, ' Janis told a shareholders' meeting of the Federal Home Loan Bank of New York.

For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Crime and young blacks

This nation is experiencing a major problem that many are afraid to talk about. It is easy to hear people talk about violent crime. With robbery, rape and murder rates that have almost tripled since 1960, it isn't difficult to get a politician to give a speech about that subject. Few. however, are willing to point out that a disproportionate amount of this crime is committed by young black males. Until that fact is confronted, and the reason for it analyzed, the problem will continue to

The obvious reason people don't want to talk about this aspect of crime statistics is fear that they will be labeled racist for bringing up the subject. Yet every study of violent crime points to the high level of crime among young black males. This is not racism; it is reality.

There are reasons for these crime demographics. Government actions in the marketplace and in schooling, much of it done in the name of helping poor blacks, have created the situation. Certainly, in the last 20 years billions have been spent trying to alter the condition of this segment of society. And just as certainly, these programs have been a failure.

One of the most damaging federal programs aimed at helping the poor has been the minimum wage. It is a clearcut disincentive for local businessmen to hire unskilled labor. So instead of spending their time working at a gas station, many black youths, unable to find work, end up hanging around on a street corner. Similarly, child labor laws make it so complicated for businessmen to hire anyone under 18, unless they can endure an avalanche of paperwork, that most businessmen pass. Again the young and unskilled are left on the street with little to do. Black youths are hit proportionately hardest because they tend to come

It is said that idle hands are the devil's tools. Unable to find legitimate work, many young blacks make money selling drugs, something made highly profitable by current government policy, or stealing from their neighbors. Yes, most of the victims are black too. This environment creates a cycle that has been impossible for the Solutions are hard to find. One thing is clear: The solution will not be coming from government. The billions poured into welfare programs have solidified the poverty of the black community. Welfare has created an incentive for blacks to remain poor. This is in contrast to poor illegal aliens from Mexico who, thinking them selves in eligible for welfare, have had an amazing record of upward mobility.

In the early 1960s the public was repeatedly told that schooling was the solution to the misery of the black community. That too has been a failure. Inner city schools ae now turning out functional illiterates. These young citizens can't read and write well enough to fill out a job application, much less hold down a job

One way to provide jobs in the black community is to eliminate some of the regulations that now block ghetto residents from going into business for themselves. Currently fees and license requirements prevent would-be entrepreneurs from so much as making taxis out of their automobiles. Libertarian Review points out that the same politicians who cry over the plight of the poor think nothing of forbidding a ghetto mother to start a child care center because her ceiling is one inch too low. In other words, legislation touted as necessary to protect the poor actually freezes them out of the productive sector. It leaves many of the young few options to earn an honest dollar

There are those who argue that many of those black youths involved in crime would not accept jobs even if opportunities were available. That could be true of many young criminals. It is also true that offering more alternatives would save some from a life of crime. Whatever the case, politicians do not seem ready to cease "helping" the ghetto, regardless of the crime and other social ills generated by such paternalism

Lobbying galore

The more powerful the government gets the more money special interests will pay to influence its decisions. Last year these special interests spent $27.8 million to influence state government, a 12-percent increase over the previous

There are two reasons businesses and others trying to influence government aim their resources in that direction. Some of them want to make a profit from some action by the legislature or regulatory commission; others try to prevent the passage of legislation that would cost them money or hinder them from doing their job. The latter is understandable.

No one should have any sympathy for those trying to make a buck off state government. Businessmen who cannot expect to make a profit by offering their goods or services to the public should not be in business. When a corporation goes to the state, it is doing little more than forcing the public to buy its product. Sometimes this is done by receiving a state contract. Other times this is accomplished by the passage of a law, or a regulation, that prevents competition. Either way a businessman is able to circum vent consumer choice by the use of law. This kind of business tactic stinks.

Corporations are not the only ones trying to influence state government. Last year, for example, the California State Employees Association spent $356.983 lobbying in Sacramento. Their major interest is making sure more money is taken out of the pockets of the taxpayers and put in the coffers of government. Similarly, local governments around the state spent a considerable sum in Sacramento last year: $2.7 million to be exact. Los Angeles alone spent $216,000. These bureaucrats and governmental bodies are trying to get around the desires of the local citizens no less than the corporations.

Professional groups seem to spend an inordinate amount of time and money trying to influence the legislature: doctors and dentists are especially active. In fact, when it comes to lobbying state government, the California Medical Association has the unsavory distinction of being last year's top spender. That organization spent $535:143. Some of that money went to lobby against legislation the medical association did not find in its interest. A recent bill opposed by the CMA was sponsored by Sen. William Campbell, R-Hacienda Heights, to legalize the use of Laetrile. The medical association's opposition to the bill is yet another example of the manipulation of state government to thwart individual choice. Last year the cost of lobbying came close to half of what it cost to run the state legislature. Unfortunately, all this money was a total waste. Had the same amount been spent developing and manufacturing a new product the society would be richer in many ways. Instead, all the high-priced talent used to sway state government does not produce anything but ink on paper. This waste will continue, and indeed increase, as long as power keeps flowing to

Mohammed Reza Pahlavi was allowed to enter the United States, even if only for medical treatment

The economy remains a disaster despite the economic program introduced by President Carter in March. Inflation is still running at 20 percent, the prime rate is the same and unemployment has reached 6.7

Obviously, the United States is not happy with Carter. A pre-convention Gallup Poll shows the president's approval rating has dropped below 25 percent to its lowest point behind its ticket of former California Gov. Ronald Reagan and Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, and the polls show Reagan with a comfortable and growing lead over Despite an impressive win in Pennsylvania and follow-up victories in California and Ohio, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts has won only about 38 percent of the convention delegates. With the remaining 62 percent, the president will win on the first ballot.

YKNOW .. ROBALTINN ..

First, a little history. In 1976, Robert Strauss, now Carter's campaign boss, was chairman of the Democratic Party. He knew the value of the television image of a smoothly run convention, so he pushed through a rule that no measure could be brought to the floor with less than a 25 percent vote of the delegates. (It had been

But now it is Tuesday, Aug. 12, the second day of the 1980 convention. This year, the challenger has more than 25 percent of the votes and a major floor fight is about to begin over party rule F(3)(c), which says convention delegates are legally bound to vote on the first ballot for the candidate they were elected to support.

The Kennedy forces tried to overturn F(3)(c) in the party's Rules Committee, but that committee firmly was in the hands of the president. The full convention must approve all decisions of the Rules Committee, however, and the Kennedy delegates have moved to reject the ruling that F(3)(c) must stand.

For weeks, the delegates have seen the articles, the columns, the commentators saying that Carter cannot win re-election. While there is not exactly a stampede away from the president, several full delegations and members of several others have become convincd the convention must be thrown open so that anyone can be chosen. They join Kennedy in the rules fight. When the votes are in, 55 percent of the delegates have voted to eliminate F(3)(c).

The convention is wide open. It is now up to the Kennedy forces to convince the majority of delegates to support their man while preventing any other serious challenger from entering. Fully 30 percent of the convention delegates abstain on the first round. Little by little, they begin to come to Kennedy. On the fourth ballot, he Farfetched? Hardly, if you believe the people in the Kennedy camp. In fact, a floor fight to eliminate F(3)(c) is at the heart of their plan to win the nomination.

They now concede that Carter will go to the convention with an absolute majority of the delegates. If those delegates remain bound to vote for the president on the first ballot, he will win renomination. But if the rule can be changed and if confidence in Carter continues to fall, they believe they have a real chance.

At the very least, says Pat Lucey, former Wisconsin governor and Kennedy's deputy campaign manager, "We'll have quite a lively convention

The prospect should make the television people happy, but it can't be too pleasing to Carter or Strauss. A bitter floor fight, even they win, could irreparably damage them for November

A Senate-House committee is working out a compromise settlement of a tribal dispute over some two million acres that goes back to 1882 and the establishment of the Honi Reservation as an enclave within much larger Navajo holdings.

Putting in simplest terms an exceedingly complex situation, the village-dwelling Hopis made little use of much of their land.

The nomadic Navajos surrounding them gradually moved in seeking grazing land for their herds. The Hopis, who have the letter of the law on their side, now want back the land from the Navajos, who claim the other nine points - a century of possession.

Conflicting interests and concepts of justice on the part of the tribes and both houses of Congress have complicated the search for a fair settlement, which as in Maine is going to have to be financed by the Treasury. How much it will ultimately cost is one of the questions the compromise committee must now resolve.

This is a case in which there is unlikely to be any Little Big Horn-type victory. There is no clearcut right and wrong side. The Navajos, however, stand to be the most numerous losers. Even if they are not required to surrender the entire disputed tract, several thousand of their members will have to be relocated as against some

The case would seem to demonstrate that we still haven't quite got the hang of how to do right by the Indians among us. After generations of callously depriving them of their heritage, the federal government now steps in as an impartial arbiter and the result is still an Indian loss.

One final point: In addition to turning the law to their advantage, today's Indians have also learned to use another weapon from the white man's arsenal. In the Hopi-Navajo dispute, they have enlisted public relations practitioners to advance causes with characteristic professional

That's certainly a civilized advance over the old war party. But then again, maybe

As a future taxpaying and voting citizen of this city. I would like to express my views on the upcoming street improvement bond election

A recent letter in this column stated that we can "pay a stiff price for street improvements at this time or delay improvements and pay an even stiffer price because of inflation." I say, DELAY! What do people think inflation is all about anyway? We can't stop inflation until we stop spending money that we don't have.

Concerning North Somerville: I cannot accept the statement that "really good maintenance (of Somerville) is impossible." I believe the record will reflect that the Beautification Committee has offered new trees of a different variety at no cost to the city. I know of two Somerville street residents who attempted to help care for the trees and were not allowed to do so. Apparently, someone in our city government is afraid to have beautiful trees. I know Somerville is rough. Yet, what good did it do to remove the trees from Francis Street? It is as bumpy as Apparently, the supporters of the bond issue do not care about the feelings of the general public. Why can't alternative solutions to the Somerville problem be presented and voted on?

The school improvement issue has already proved to be a waste of taxpayer's money. Instead of re-roofing the high school, they merely lowered the ceilings! How many times can you lower a ceiling? You can't put new wine into old bottles! Taxpayers: Can you afford to have your money wasted again? Do you want to help contribute to inflation? Which would you rather have at this time: a few bumpy streets or money in your pocket? Is it really

I am certainly in favor of improvement and progress in our city. I am not in favor of destruction of natural beauty and of waste of taxpayer's money. I sincerely urge all Pampans to get out and vote against waste and destruction. It's in your

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The state Court of Criminal Appeals has been asked to bar Canadian County District Judge Floyd Martin from closing any more sanity hearings involving persons facing criminal charges

A petition filed by attorneys for the Oklahoma Publishing Co. contended Martin acted illegally on April 10 in closing a sanity hearing for Glen Burton Ake. Ake and Steven Keith Hatch were charged in the shooting deaths of the Rev. Richard B. Douglass and his wife, Marilyn, at their rural Okarche home on Oct. 15, 1979. Martin convicted Hatch April 16 after a non-jury trial and

"Because the reocrds are sealed, the petitioner does not know when the committment petition was filed, who filed it or what it alleges." the attorneys said.

Martin announced after a closed hearing that Ake had been found

The petition said only Martin and OPUBCO attorney Michael Minnis participated in a discussion over whether the hearing should "None of the attoneys for the defendent Ake waived any of

The petition said that Martin agreed in an announcement after the April 10 hearing that the public had a legitimate interest in knowing the outcome of the hearing. The petition contends the implication was that the public had no legitimate interest in the hearing itself. The petition asks the appellate court to prohibit Martin from Nasreen has been frightened and confused since she came to New York. "She's still a child. She only says, 'I can't see. It's too dark.

Where's Mommy, where are my sisters and brothers?" said Khan. The questions - "Why is it so dark? When will the lights go back on?" - have been on her lips since the day after the Indian doctors cut out the wrong eye.

No one knows exactly what caused the mix-up at the Sarojini Eye Hospital on Feb. 22. Indian officials have speculated the chart that accompanied Nasreen into the operating room was mismarked. The incident sparked such a furor in India that state legislators called for an investigation. Officials suspended the doctors involved and promised to pay for future medical treatment. That treatment in New York has been painful for Nasreen. She wails when strangers touch her. She doesn't like American food and is uncomfortable in the cool weather.

Lighthouse program doomed in Dallas

Declining sales, rising costs and a shortage of salesmen have doomed a 24-year-old Dallas institution door-to-door sales by the Lighthouse for the Blind. "It's just not economically feasible anymore." said Austin Scott, executive director of the Dallas Lighthouse.

Like the Washington farmers, Rhode Island textile workers depend heavily on exports and Samuel Azzinaro, state director for the Amalgamated Clothing & Textile Workers Union, said that not even the recent surge of the dollar has hurt the market. "Our people are getting 40-hour weeks with no problem at all and there's plenty of overtime, too," Azzinaro said.

More than 250,000 people are employed in the textile industry in North Carolina and more than 125,000 others have jobs directly related to it. In the last year, 16 new plants were opened and 67 were expanded, creating 4,500 jobs.

Most Massachusetts firms also are at least holding their own and some are expanding, with capital spending in the region up 18 percent from last year. Digital Equipment Corp. recently opened two new facilities, one in Hudson, the other in Boston; GTE Sylvania and Avco are expanding because of military contracts; and the General Electric jet engine plant in Lynn is expected to benefit from Canada's decision to buy F-18 fighters from McDonnell Douglas.

gentlewoman handles a tough job

ROSEBURG, Ore. (NEA) - The 15-speed Kenworth shoulders its way through the early driver flips on the Jake brakes and the engine acts to slow the massive truck. Each time, the machine snorts, echoing through narrow canyons and down wide, sweeping valleys. The curves on Highway 42 between the Oregon busy. The Kenworth has no power steering.

The roughness of the road, practically unnoticeable in a car, transmits through the truck's biscuit suspension like a shot. The ride is stiff, sometimes violently bumpy. The driver shakes in the seat at times like a bronco rider.

It is a rough, grueling, grinding job, clearly not for the faint of heart.

So, what's a woman doing here? Venita G. McBride ("I've been signing the 'G." since I was a kid") is not burly. She doesn't chew tobacco or talk like a carnival worker.

She is a gentlewoman with auburn hair that tumbles down around her shoulders. Her truck is powder blue. Today it matches her outfit and her eye makeup.

But not one of the other truckers scoffs or laughs at her.

"They treat me like I'm their baby sister," she says. "They really take care of me." Part of the reason for that may be that she is a lily in what has the image, at least, of being a rough-and-tumble valley. But she also is a strong, durable lily who pulls her own weight. If she wasn't, she wouldn't have lasted eight years driving a truck. "I consider her one of my top drivers," says her boss, Darrell Boyer. "She is an excellent driver and a good worker. Not bad when you consider Boyer has 17 trucks and 27 drivers.

Miss McBride has her own view of the situation: "I don't believe in all that women's lib with equal rights. It's only equal rights if you can

After graduation from high school, she worked in the hayfields for a while. Then, atypical for her, she got a cosmetologist's license and worked as a hairdresser for a year.

But inside work wasn't to her liking, so she went to work for her father, drilling wells by hand. She also drove a school bus.

Then she got a job in the office of a trucking outfit, but the itch to get back outside quickly returned. She talked the boss into letting her learn to drive.

And she's been on the road ever since.

Nowadays, she makes up to 12 trips a week two or three trips a day - hauling chips. But from time to time she also hitches onto a flat bed and hauls lumber. Once she even took a couple of elephants to Everett, Wash.

The days begin early, sometimes at 2 a.m., and may run long. She tends to make them longer by working with her horses on her 10-acre ranch until late in the evening. A night with only three or four hours of sleep isn't uncommon.

And the work is hard. "A person really takes a beating in a truck," she says. "If the guy who built the roads would ride them in a truck, I think he'd do a better job of building them."

But she loves what she does. "I just like to drive," she says. "It can get monotonous, making the same trips two or three times a day, but at least I get home every night. To me, this is like going out and playing all day every day because I know so many people and they're all good people.'' She knows the other drivers primarily through her CB, although she went to high school with a lot of them. The CB chatter is friendly and constant - she even met her boyfriend that way.

DR. LAMB

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I'm a 19-year-old girl. About a year ago I lost my boyfriend. My whole life changed. I gained weight and my menstrual cycles became irregular. Now can't lose the weight that I've gained and my menstrual cycles have never returned to normal. Also I'm sluggish and tired all the time. I'd like to lose weight and regain my energy but I just don't seem to be able to do it. I feel like I lost everything when I lost my boyfriend. I've tried diet pills and everything else and noth-

I've had complete medical examinations and they're all perfectly normal. My doctor put me on birth control pills to try to regulate my periods and I'm afraid that they will cause me to gain even more weight. I'm home almost every night because I lack friends and I'm basically a shy individual. Could you give me any advice for what I can do for

Two cookbooks for diabetics now available

By CECILY BROWNSTONE Associated Press Food Editor Readers who have asked me to give recipes suitable for diabetics will be interested in two new cookbooks

"Cooking Creatively for Your Diabetic Child" by Caroline Hastings Babington (Doubleday) is for parents who have trouble enticing their diabetic child to stick to the bland diet usually prescribed.

The author is a home economist and nutritionist with a practical knowledge of the subject of her book — she has a diabetic child. Recipes are offered for daily meals. including school lunches as well as for snacks and festive occasions. Also included is major information from the American Diabetes Assn.

The 10-year-old "The Diabetic Gourmet" by Dr. Angela Bowen (Harper & Row), is here in a revised edition. The author, a longtime diabetic researcher. explains three diabetic diets sugar-free, altered fat and food exchange - plus how to change recipes to suit diabetics. The wide range of recipes - from appetizers to desserts - are designed for the whole family.

Here's Angela Bowen's recipe for Oatmeal Cookies, made with egg whites rather than whole eggs. Don't expect the cookies to be chock-full of oatmeal they have a light and delicious

DR. BOWEN'S OATMEAL COOKIES 11/2 cups fork-stirred all-purpose flour 2 teaspoons baking powder 1/2 teaspoon salt 2-3rds cup margarine 11/2 cups quick-cooking oats ½ cup sugar 1 teaspoon vanilla 4 egg whites

½ cup skim milk

1/2 cup raisins

½ cup chopped walnuts

(medium fine) On wax paper stir together the flour, baking powder and salt. In a medium saucepan or metal bowl over low heat melt the margarine. Off heat stir in the oats, sugar and vanilla. In a small bowl beat the egg whites only until frothy; stir into the oats mixture. Stir in the flour mixture in 3 additions, alternately with the milk, just until blended. Stir in the raisins and nuts. Drop by level tablespoonfuls, a few inches apart, onto lightly greased cookie sheets. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until lightly browned on undersides - 10 to 12 minutes. Makes about few hours with a witty and cultured man might enjoy reading "Book Society." Phil Thomas AP Books Editor

On Nov. 5, 1872, Susan B. Anthony became the first American woman to vote in a presidential election.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been happily married for 16 years. My problem is that since before we were married I've had a crush on my husband's older brother, whom I'll call Arnold. It seems ridiculous at my age (39) to admit this, but it's true. Arnold is 42 and seems happily married.

Arnold and I have the same interests, share the same opinions, and we seem to have much more in common than he has with his wife or I with his brother.

Not that it's important, but even members of the family have commented on how much alike Arnold and I are. I'm ashamed to say that I've often wondered what it would be like to go to bed with him.

How do I put this man out of my mind? And why do I still fantasize about him after so many years?

I love my husband, and at times feel that my feelings about his brother could be considered infidelity. It would be a great relief to have an answer soon.

OLD-TIME CRUSH

DEAR CRUSH: Fantasizing is a far cry from acting out, so don't feel guilty. Unless you're looking for trouble, avoid fantasizing in Arnold's presence. He could be operating on the same wavelength and pick up your signal.

DEAR ABBY: I have just graduated from college and am thinking about getting married. I have a girlfriend whom I love very much, but I am afraid if I marry her I will also be marrying her mother.

My girlfriend is 24, and she still tells her mother everything! When she's not at home with her mother, she calls her on the phone just to "talk" or "ask her advice." She has never made an important decision without consulting her mother first. She freely admits she doesn't have any selfconfidence, and she needs her mother for support.

Abby, I can give her all the support she needs, and if she wants to talk things over, she has me to talk with. I think at 24, it's time she cut the cord between her and her mother. What do you think?

DEAR ME: I think you're right. If you marry this woman now you will be competing with her mother.

So unless she changes her priorities, don't rush out to buy a ring - it might end up through your nose.

DEAR ABBY: You recently asked how the children should be named if both parents retained their own names

Both my wife and I kept our own names, and we agreed that our children will be named in this way: Girls will take their mother's last name, and boys will take my last name. This seems both fair and sensible.

We rejected using both our names, hyphenated, because it would be too cumbersome. And we didn't want to give our children a new name unrelated to ours M.H. IN IOWA CITY

DEAR M.H.: Your solution makes sense.

Book business is book topic

BOOK SOCIETY. By Graham Watson. Atheneum. 164 Pages.

Graham Watson is an engaging writer. A publisher who later became a literary agent, Watson knows all about the book business and the people who inhabit it.

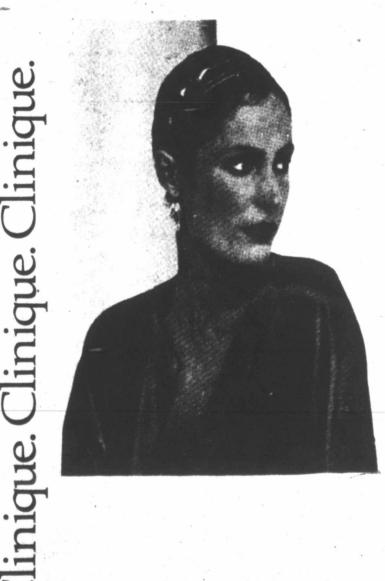

In "Book Society," Watson tells of the many years he has spent in the British book trade as well as of the early years of his life and the influences that led him to his career. These reminiscences are for the most part interesting to read at an unhurried pace. One nice thing is that they are not so technical as to put off the reader who is not all that interested in the book business. Rather, they are of a general nature and delivered in a friendly conversational tone that holds the attention. After service in World War II - a period which Watson tells of with understated humor -Watson returned to the world of books. He moved from publishing to literary agent, and it is this latter period in his life that he describes in most detail.

Of most interest are the anecdotes and stories Watson has to tell of his meetings with noted British and American writers. Among the best of these are those that deal with Gore Vidal - "one of the most engaging men I have known"-John O'Hara, and John Steinbeck, a man who sticks in the author's memory because of "the sheer fun of many of the things we did together.'

Another amusing anecdote describes Watson's description of how publishers get rid of 'unsellable books which are taking up expensive space in their warehouses." The solution: Send them off as

Special church reaches for mentally disabled

By JIM DAVIDSON Duluth News-Tribune DULUTH, Minn. (AP) — It's a small, warm church community. People snuggle into pews together, sing hymns, offer prayers and ponder the ser-

There is a difference at CHUM Church, however. The people who attend the monthly services are mentally disabled. But don't go murmuring, "Isn't it nice they have a place of their own" around members of the congregation or John Hawley, executive director of Central Hillside United Ministry.

The idea is to help church attendance become commonplace for the mentally disabled so they can be comfortable in a regular congregation.

CHUM Church, which has 80 to 100 members, is a 4-year-old program in which 11 Central Hillside United Ministry churches rotate responsibility for arranging services on the first Sunday night of each

The church's philosophy, as stated in a brochure, is "...to reach out to the retarded, not out of pity, but in the fullest confidence in God's creation. We affirm that God is a wise and loving God, not cruel and capricious, and each of His children was created with a gift to share with us

At each service, the host church provides a priest or ninister and 10 to 15 other nembers of the congregation to read devotions, assist the reguvolunteer teachers, pass out cupcakes and - most imporant — mingle with the CHUM Church people.

"People don't expect to find a group of people (worshipping at CHUM Church) with such a sense of themselves," Hawley aid. "You see people walking and-in-hand, or with an arm round a woman's shoulder.

Dan Moore, co-director of the hurch with his wife, Sandy, aid too many people think the etarded person is a child forver and has childlike needs.

"They treat them like chilren, but the majority have dult needs," Moore said. Hawley added that treating etarded people like children ook away their opportunity to struggle and achieve.

At CHUM Church, however, the integrity and adulthood of retarded people is recognized. Experience has taught Moore and Hawley that all retarded adults cannot be treated alike. The CHUM Church services begin with separate 30-minute religious education sessions in which the congregation is divided into groups of lower-func-tioning, middle-functioning and higher-functioning people.

The aim with the lower-functioning people, Moore said, is to broach "a complete acceptance and understanding of God that comes through positive experiences with people."

The church also aims at avoiding the usual policy of assigning simple tasks to all disabled people.

"Frankly, some of the higherfunctioning people were really getting bored," Hawley said in discussing changes in philosophy at CHUM church since it was established in 1975.

"The religious education class is the closest thing to adult education we've done. It's not unlike a class that would be held in a local church.'

The class sets its own topics for discussion - legal advocates have met with the group to discuss decisions people can make in a group home or in the workplace, and a human development worker has discussed love and marriage with the

"The church has treated retarded people like the poor under the care of God who need our mercy, instead of saying 'these are our brothers and sisters,' " Moore said. Instead of ministering to retarded people, he added, CHUM Church believes in ministering with them.

Hawley and Moore agree, however, that the mentally disabled won't be able to be comfortable in regular church congregations until those who are not mentally disabled can feel comfortable with the disabled.

They hope that through the interaction of CHUM congregation members and volunteers who work with the program that better understanding will be achieved. This, in turn, will have an effect throughout the REACHING OUT - Father Jim Crossman delivers his sermon at CHUM Church, Duluth, Minn. The church, which has 80 to 100 members, is different from other churches: the people who attend the monthly services are mentally disabled.

"Thou wilt shew me the path of life: in thy presence is fulness of Joy..."

It takes a Good Eye ...

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

"The tree that owns itself."

Home of the 'Tree that owns itself'

Arbor Day may have Georgia roots

ATHENS, Ga. (NEA) Arbor Day, the celebration of trees, was initially observed in the state of Nebraska. But it might have started instead in this tidy Georgia college community.

People here have a special affection for trees.

For example, the University of Georgia has a weeping willow taken from a tree at Napoleon's tomb. And the town once had an elm grown from a cutting of the Cambridge Elm, under which George Washington took comof the Continental

Then there is the white oak on Dearing Street. It may be the most honored tree in the South. An enduring legend suggests the oak holds legal title to the land on which it grows. It's not merely timber, this oak. It's thought by many to be the only tree in the country that in effect owns itself.

The legend of the oak goes back more than 150 years, and is supposed to have begun with a planter named William H. Jackson, Jackson was the son of James Jackson, an authentic Georgian hero; the War patriot and afterwards became the governor of the William Jackson was less noted than his father, but something of a prominent gentleman all the same. He was a longtime university trustee, for one thing, and he served in the Georgia legislature for a decade. Besides this he was a well-to-do businessman, owning a 655-acre plantation in the region. The story is that a magnificient white oak stood on that plantation. In-fact it had stood there for more than 250 years, and was Jackson's friend and favorite. People say the planter grew up with the tree, and would often go to it in the heat of the afternoon to lie down and rest in its shade.

As years passed, Jackson is said to have become worried about the tree's maintenance after his death. So he reportedly made provisions for its perpetuity. The legend says that before he died, Jackson marched to the county court-house where he deeded the property under the oak to the tree and its heirs.

Thus the old tree was allegedly given "entire pos-land within 8 feet of it on all sides." Jackson's idea was to spare his friend from the woodsman. He thought the only way anyone could thereafter harm the tree would be to buy its land, and naturally the oak wouldn't sell.

Later, in 1914, philanthro-pist George Foster Peabody heard the story of the oak, and was so delighted that he added his prestige to the tree's defense. He provided funds to enrich the soil around the tree, ring it with chained bollards and mark the site with a tablet of ivory marble.

With Peabody's gesture, the legend of the tree spread. Articles appeared in magazines. Postcards carried colored photographs of the oak. Even William Jackson took on new stature, as imaginative authors began referring to him as a judge and finally as a justice of the Georgia

Supreme Court.
Despite the hyperbole, though, the old tree was worthy of the attention. Its limbs stretched for nearly 200 feet, and its twin trunks were as wide as barrels. Many residents of the town took cuttings from the oak, and grew offsprings at their homes. Others propagated saplings from the tree's acorns.

As it happened this cloning was providential. For on the night of Oct. 9, 1942, after almost 400 years on earth, "The Tree That Owns Itself" collapsed from its own weight and the high winds. The noise of the great fall woke people for blocks, and a good number of Athenians found themselves in mourning.

But the tree lived on in the form of the cloned saplings, and in 1946 the Junior Ladies Historic Club planted a descendent. Hence "The Tree That Owns Itself" became The Tree That Inherited Family Land," and here it today, on Dearing still protected by legend and public Street, still chains, Alas there is some question as to whether the protection is legitimate, and indeed whether the tree legend is correct. For one thing, local historians say Jackson never owned the land where the oak grew. As for growing up with the tree, it's clear the planter did not come to Athens until his middle age.

Interventional radiology ...

Can be a subsitute for surgery

When is the surgeon not a surgeon? When the physician is a radiologist using a catheter to open a clogged artery or to stop internal bleeding. Interventional radiology, in which a very thin tube-like catheter substitutes for a scapel, has been perfected by radiologists to repair abnormalities within the body and thus avert surgery for the pa-

Probably the most famous patient who benefited from nonsurgical procedures is the former Shah of Iran. A technique refined by a radiologist, a physician specializing in x-ray diagnoses, was used to remove a gallstone that was left in the shah's bile duct after his gallbladder had been removed surgically.

Snaking the flexible catheter into the duct through an opening in the stomach wall, the overlooked stone was snared in a tiny "basket" that is affixed to the tip of the tube. While monitoring the search for the troublesome stone by x-ray the radiologist twists the catheter into place. When the stone is reached the wire-mesh basket is opened, the stone captured, and pulled out.

An estimated 5000 patients a year would require further surgery for gallstones, which can be life threatening, if the nonsurgical procedure had not Interventional radiology began humbly and probably by accident years ago when some radiologist recognized that he an intussuscep tion in a child during a barium enema procedure. An intussusception is the telescoping or invaginating of the bowel. Watching on the fluoroscope, the radiologist noted that the pressure of the barium pushed the bowel back into its normal tubular form. But intussusception reduction bears as much relation to today's interventional radiology as the wheel to the automobile, or the abacus to a computer.

WHAT CAN BE DONE

Without surgically opening the abdomen or other parts of the body and without general anesthesia, interventional ra-diology can do these things:

- By decreasing or halting the blood flow, it can stop massive bleeding from stomach ulcers and other gastric conditions, from diverticula in the colon, from pelvic fractures and from tumors, cancers and

By increasing the blood flow, it can salvage areas of the bowel dying from a lack of blood supply (ischemia) widen and relax blood vessels arteries narrowed (stenosed) or totally clogged (occluded)

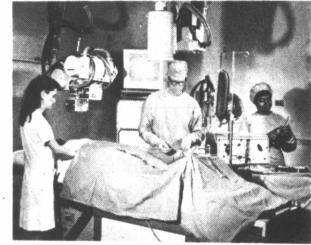

Whalen removed from parks job

WASHINGTON (AP) -William J. Whalen, the controversial director of the National Park Service, was removed from his job Thursday by Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus said he was removing Whalen because "I believe it best for the service, for the department and for Mr. Whalen's health.

Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., chairman of the House Interior Committee, had called for Whalen's resignation because of unhappiness over Whalen's decisions involving concessionaires in the national parks. Whalen also had drawn fire from environmentalists for proposals he had made nvolving Yosemite National Park in California.

Whalen had taken a brief leave of absence for "personal and physical reasons" in March and checked into a San Francisco hospital. Interior Department officials refused to characterize the nature of Whalen's illness.

by bernice bede osol

April 26, 1980

This coming year could be very exciting socially. Your chances for forming a number of new friendships are better than they have been for quite some time.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Attempting to sweep tasks under the rug or to leave them to the last minute will cause problems today. It could also create complications for persons involved with you. Romance, travel, luck resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph Letter, which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) When mixing with friends today, avoid discussing subjects where peo-ple feel forced to take sides. Debates could put a damper on everyone's fun. CANCER (June 21-July 22) Airing personal family matters could be a serious mistake today. Outsiders have no place your domestic affairs. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Think twice before criticizing the ideas of others today. Thoughtless remarks will open you up to a counterattack.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Before taking on any new expenses today, be certain you can handle your current liabiliues. Commit yourself only there is a surplus. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you permit others to do your thinking for you today you'll end up being like a straw in the wind, drifting from one direction to another. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Carry your share of the burdens today, but don't attempt to take on more than you can manage. Let everyone do their part.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be very careful today not to show partiality in dealing with friends. You'll lose the admiration of pals who feel neglected.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It's important to guard against a defeatist attitude today. Being too fearful of challenge may cause you to lose before you begin. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Even though you may secretly feel your ideas are superior to those of others today, don't let them know it. Put downs will leave lasting scars.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)

Someone may request financial assistance today and your heart could rule over your head. Be helpful, but don't give what you ARIES (March 21-April 19)

Normally, friends have no trouble knowing exactly where you stand on important issues. Today, however, your indecisiveness may leave them completely

New coach has impressive record

A highly-successful junior high coach takes command of the Pampa High girls basketball program next season.

Jerry Johnson, 29, was hired Wednesday by the Pampa School Board to replace Mary Thomas. who resigned as Lady Harvesters coach, but will remain in the Pampa school system as a teacher.

'We are very pleased to have coach Johnson on our staff," said new Pampa Athletic Director Loyd Waters. "We feel his ability and desire to organize and promote girl's athletics will be a great benefit to our total athletic program at Johnson, an Eastern New Mexico University graduate, has spent the past three seasons as coach of Clovis Yucca Junior High in New Mexico where he compiled a 47-3 record. His teams won the district title every year.

The Clovis native also coached a junior high track team that finished no lower than second in meets the past three years. He also organized girls' volleyball and gymnastic programs. His volleyball team has won district two years in a row while the gymnasts have not lost a meet in four years.

Johnson and his wife, Roxanna, have also been active in the women's softball program.

Horner given more time

ATLANTA (AP) - Al Thornwell, executive vice president of the Atlanta Braves, said Thursday night he has extended by two days the time in which Bob Horner has to report to the club's Class AAA farm team at Richmond.

"In order to be a little lenient with Bob, I have extended his reporting date to Sunday,' Thornwell said. "This gives him a couple extra vs to rethink his position or next Saturday, but he is not reporting to Richmond," said Bucky Woy, Horner's agent. "We just want out. That hasn't changed. Ted Turner has taught us who's boss. He loves controversy, but it's destroying Bob."

Horner, the 1978 National League Rookie of the Year who batted .314 last year but was hitting .059 in 10 games this season, was demoted to the minors Monday night by the Braves.

The Chicago White Sox are loaded down with left-handed pitchers. But as everyone knows, Fenway Park is not for left-handers.

Two of Chicago's leading men were pitchers Richard Dotson and Ed Farmer, who combined to hold the Boston sluggers to two earned runs.

"Dotson pitched a good game but his arm stiffened during the sixth," said Chicago Manager Tony LaRussa. "I had to take him out.

Dotson struck out nine and walked two through his strong six-inning performance before giving way to Farmer. The right-hander left with the game tied 3-3, but the White Sox came up with two runs in the top of the seventh and thus presented him

'If we hadn't scored (the two tie-breaking runs), I really would have been weighing taking him out." LaRussa said of the 21-year-old Dotson. "I hate to take a pitcher out with no decision, especially after he has struck out four batters in a row, like he did. The game was the only one played in the American League Thursday. In the National, the Atlanta Braves edged the San Diego Padres 8-7 and the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the San Francisco Giants 5-2 in 10 innings. Along with the good pitching supplied by Dotson and Farmer, the White Sox continued to get good hitting from Lamar Johnson. Johnson drove in four runs, two of them with a homer in the third inning. His RBI grounder in the seventh produced the tie-breaking run. The victory gave the surprising White Sox a 9-4 record so far this young season.

"What we have is a bunch of guys who like to play." said LaRussa, explaining his team's hot start. "If we go out and play every day, we're good enough to be in the ball game.

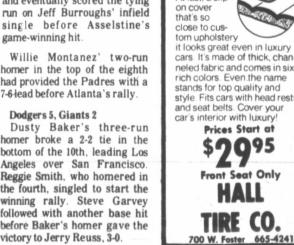

Braves 8, Padres 7 Brian Asselstine's RBI single capped a two-run rally in the ninth inning, leading Atlanta over San Diego. Larvell Blanks started the rally with a single and eventually scored the tying run on Jeff Burroughs' infield game-winning hit. Willie Montanez' two-run homer in the top of the eighth had provided the Padres with a

7-6-lead before Atlanta's rally. Dodgers 5, Giants 2

Dusty Baker's three-run homer broke a 2-2 tie in the bottom of the 10th, leading Los Angeles over San Francisco. Reggie Smith, who homered in the fourth, singled to start the winning rally. Steve Garvey followed with another base hit before Baker's homer gave the victory to Jerry Reuss, 3-0.

Underdog leads New Orleans golf

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Longshot Chip Beck, in a surprise share of the first round lead in the $250,000 New Orleans Open golf tournament, says he knows what to expect.

"I know what they're going to say," the 23-year-old Beck said after posting a no-bogey 66 in a tie for the lead with defending champion Hubert Green and Tom Watson, golf's outstanding performer.

"They're going to say, 'That guy will fold. He'll choke.' And it'll be a tough row to hoe," said Beck, who never before has had a lead and hasn't finished higher than 31st in his brief, two-year tour career.

"I know I've got to play good to stay anywhere around the lead.

"But I figure I'm going to play good. I know what it is to play a bad round. I figure I can prevent that. I'm starting to get some confidence in my ability. I'm looking forward to the next couple of rounds.'

Like Beck, Green birdied all the par-5 holes a didn't make a bogey in a solid effort over the Green said. "We're just having fun, getting in position."

Watson, who scored his third victory of the season last week in the Tournament of Champions, had to play his last seven holes six under par to grab his share of the lead. "I just got hot," said Watson. "Honestly, that's the best score I could have shot today."

He finished with a string of four consecutive "3's," a burst that went eagle, birdie, par, birdie. Lee Trevino, who once won this tournament without making a bogey, topped a group of nine players at 67, a single stroke off the lead.

Also at five under par were D.A. Weibring, Rod Curl, Mike Reid, Mark Lye, Bill Kratzert, Tom Jenkins, Allen Miller and Mark Pfeil, a winner last week in Tal lahassee.

In all, 72 men in the field of 156 broke par 72 on the 7,080 yard Lakewood Country Club course, a flat, lake-dotted, tree-studed layout that recovered well from a flood that put part of it 18 inches under water less than two weeks ago.

"You couldn't have had a better scoring conditions," said Watson, who was even par through 11 holes.

golf's millionaires find an invitation to the suddenly prestigious Legends of Golf tournament eases the pain of turning 50.

Arnold Palmer got his invitation this year and will be shooting for the $70,000 first-place prize with Dow Finsterwald in this third annual 54-hole tournament that begins Friday.

Fred Raphael, the originator of the tournament, said that next year Gene "The Machine" Littler and "Mr. X," Miller Barber, will be invited to play.

Palmer is already in the swing of things over the tight but treacherous Onion Creek club course.

Asked what he thought about being a legend, Palmer said, "I think it is fine ... whatever ... I'm just be happy to be here. I think the potential for this type of golf is tremendous. I think the future of a tournament like this is unlimited.

Littler, along with Sam Sneed, is thought to have one of the finest swings in golf. He parlayed that swing into 29 tournament victories and a whopping $1.5 million in career winnings.

Barber, known as "Mr. X" because of the sunglasses he wears while playing, has collected 11 tournament victories and $1.4 million in winnings since he joined the tour

Palmer stole half the gallery Wednesday and his appearance prompted Raphael to predict this is the year the tournament makes money. "Our tournament was an artistic success before we got Palmer but there's no secret he will boost our galleries," said Raphael. Raphael said the first two years of the tournament were bathed in red ink.

"Some of the crowds have been disappointing and we have lost money, but it would be unfair to say just how much," he said. "However, with a contract we now have with Liberty Mutual (Insurance), and NBC-TV through 1981, and the enthusiasm we are getting this year, we have turned the corner financially.

"We felt that this type of tournament would either catch on immediately or it wouldn't catch on at all. We brought back all the big names and the fans loved it. For example, it was the first time Gene Sarazen had ever been on live television,'

"I'm convinced the Legends of Golf is here to stay. There is no doubt NBC feels that way, and I'm convinced the players feel that way. I think the finest compliment we got was Arnold joining us," said Raphael.

The informed source said that the government would not meet the guerrillas' demand for the release of seven imprisoned leaders of their M-19 organization, but instead other guerrillas held without charges would be allowed to accompany the group to Cuba.

Government sources reported previously that the government agreed to expedite the trials of other alleged guerrillas and to the presence of observers from the Inter-American Human Rights Commission at the

THE REPORT OF

NEW YORK (NEA) -Sooner or later, it was bound to happen. Bad movies have become a research project, a matter of record and an art form. And the Medved brothers - Michael, 31, and Harry, 19 - are the authorities. Just published is "The Golden Turkey Awards" (Perigee Books, $6.95), a large-format paperback in which the Medveds move forward from their pioneering volume, "The Fifty Worst Films of All Time," which appeared two vears ago.

In their new book they not only expand the previous list include 424 cinematic disasters, but they salute achievement (if that's the word) in a number of categories. Such as:

The worst casting of all time: John Wayne as Genghis Khan in "The Conqueror" (1955). That also rated high (low?) in the competition for "the worst lines of romantic dialogue in movie history' (sample - Susan Hayward: "For me, there is no peace while you live, Mongrel!" Wayne: "Say ... You're beautiful in your wrath!"). However, "Northwest Mounted Police" (1940) with Gary Cooper and Madeleine

Carroll, won. The worst musical extravaganza: "At Long Last Love" (1975) with Burt Reynolds and Cybill Shepherd - directed, written and produced by Peter Bogdanovich. The worst performance by Sonny Tufts: "Government Girl' (1943). The wost credit line of all time: for "The Taming of the Shrew" (1929) with Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks - "By William Shakespeare with additional dialogue by Sam Taylor." The most brainless brain movie of all time: "They Saved Hitler's Brain" (1964). Among the 32 categories, penultimate are designated Life Achievement Awards. These are for: the worst director of all time (the late Edward D. Wood, Jr., for "Plan Nine from Outer ," (1959), also "Jail "Night of the Ghouls," "Bride of the Monster" and the worst actress (Raquel Welch, over Candice ored in a new book, "The Golden Turkey Awards," as the worst film of all time. Bergen, Vera Hruba Ralston and Mamie Van Doren); and the worst actor (Richard Burton, over John Agar, Tony Curtis and Victor Mature). And ultimately, the worst film of all time, as chosen by a poll of readers of the Medveds' first book on the subject, is "Plan Nine from Outer Space." By a scant nine votes it edged the "The Exorcist II: The Heretic" (1977) with Richard Burton and Lin-

Meanwhile, The World's Worst Film Festival in New York is celebrating the publication of "The Golden Turkey Awards," showing classics such as "The Attack of the Killer Tomatoes," "The Horror of Party Beach," "White Pongo," "Robot Monster," "I Changed My Sex" and "The Incredibly Strange Creatures Who Stopped Living and Became Mixed-up Zombies."

The last of these is shown "in hallucinogenic hypnovision! The world's worst film project sprang from the brain of Michael, the elder Medved. several years ago. A native Philadelphian, graduate of Yale who had attended Yale Law School, Michael was not happy with his career to date.

Pampa streets

Bumpity bump...bumpity bump bump.
No, it is not the sound of a new disco beat but the sound made by most of our New and old alike. Pampans are taking the situation of poor streets right where it hurts — in their pocket books. While we try to watch the dips and holes in city streets sooner or later they will get you and more importantly they will get your car. Now that the days of the $2,000 car have passed into history we should take all the precautions available to us to protect one of the most expensive purchases we will make in our lives. Repair bills to the front end of our autos are not cheap and are spiraling every day. We are told that there is currently a $100,000 project in the works to repair and repave Pampa streets. This is great but, $100,000 will repave about four blocks. Now what are we going to do for the rest of town?

It is time that Pampans start looking to the future growth of the city and away from the past. The street drainage situation is to the point that it has now become dangerous and must be corrected SOON.

Besides wrecking the alignment of your car the drainage ditches that make up the water removal system for Pampa poses an even grater menace—the threat of death. When a vehicle hits a dip in the road it can cause the driver to lose control of his vehicle which could result in property damage. serious injury or death. We should not wait until someone loses their life on these terrible streets before we correct the situation. A former Pampa resident summed up the street situation when he said, The same cracks that were in Somerville when I was here twenty years ago are still in the street. The only difference is that they are wider now Remember the old saying of days gone by! An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

ROCK TAVERN, N.Y. (AP) - Of all America's zoos, one of the most fascinating no, arresting is the apt word - is on a 75-acre eminence with a sweeping view of the Hudson River valley but no view at all of the animals.

"If we let people get near the animals," Dr. Percell Taylor explained, "it would defeat the purpose of this place.'

The place is the national Animal Import Center and Dr. Taylor is its assistant supervising veterinarian. Until a few years ago, Dr. Taylor, like most Americans, was not even aware such a place existed.

It is where animals shipped here from abroad, which could carry diseases to American livestock or poultry, pause for a period of quarantine until they pass a stiff physical exam. That could take anywhere from a month or so to

Two reindeer sent to Amy Carter, gifts from Finland, were held 30 days. A rare species of crane, sent from Russia, first had to pass muster at the center. So did a French stallion named Alleged, who went on to command $85,000 stud

"The most memorable?" Dr. Taylor said, stroking his beard.

"That would be a certain Hyacinth macaw. Meanest damn bird I ever saw. Loudest and meanest. Could eat right through a coconut hull, or a galvanized iron cage, and did."

The center is an operation of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Since the turn of the century, when it was set up to control a certain rampant livestock disease, it had been located at Inevitably, the town grew and needed more space. So did the center. Now it is being moved here to a properly isolated area about 60 miles from the port of New York, where most immigrant animals, like most immigrant people,

"The transition is a pain in the neck," Dr. Taylor said, "but when it is finished there will be no finer facility. This one was designed with a lot of experience to guide us. Dr. Taylor is a 30-year-old native of Richmond.

Iran answers in Lubbock company suit

LUBBOCK (AP) - A local realty company has sued the wrong government, according to a lawyer representing Iran.

Uncle Sam, not the Ayatollah, is responsible for the trouble Associated Builders Realtors Inc. has had trying to sell the former Lubbock house of Iranian Crown Prince.

Bickel made the argument in his answer to an April 15 freeze of Iranian assets suit brought by the real estate company, which said and subsequent freeze of Iranian assets in the United States breached the contract between the company and the Iranian government.

The inability of the realty firm to sell the house, Bickel argued "is a result of the Bank loan was to avert panic

Paul A. Volcker oversaw the extension of an $800 million credit line to the Hunt brothers of Texas to avoid an economic panic after a margin call was made on the Hunts' vast silver holdings, the Los Angeles Times reported today

A group of the nation's largest banks agreed to the loan after details were worked out by Volcker and other top government officials with the heads of the banks, unidentified sources told the newspaper.

A spokesman for the Federal Reserve refused Wednesday to "confirm or deny" Volcker's role in the $800 million credit arrangement.
