Clark condemns rescue attempt

The Associated Press
Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr opened a "Crimes of America" conference today with a tirade against America, and former Attorney General Ramsey Clark, one of the participants, condemned the aborted U.S. mission to rescue the hostages as "lawless and contrary to constitutional government."

"It is inconceivable that constitutional government could ever delegate to a single person - president or prime minister - the power to risk killing many people half a world away in a foreign country," Clark said of President Carter's attempt to rescue the 53 American hostages April 25. Eight of the U.S. servicemen in the mission were killed when two of the aircraft collided.

"I hope that the conference and our participation in it can secure the early release of the hostages which I think is an important human concern for all people," said Clark, who arrived in Tehran with nine other Americans in defiance of a Justice Department ban.

He spoke in an interview with a Western reporter as the hostages spent their 212th day of captivity.

There were rumors in Far East money markets that three or more of the hostages had been shot, but the militant students holding the hostages denied the report. In Washington, a spokesman for the State Department's Iran working desk said several hours later. "It's the first I've heard of it." There was no confirmation from any source.

Bani-Sadr, in his opening remarks to the conference, said Iran was virtually governed by Washington and the Pentagon for years and urged condemnation of U.S. efforts in his country.

He attacked colonialism and said many countries have been faced with a "conspiracy of superpowers bargaining over their destinies." He said the superpowers have carved out spheres of influence and that Iran was trying to break out of this mold.

In a message to the four-day conference in Tehran, Iranian revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini called on delegates to "condemn the (U.S.) oppressors." Most world governments "support the oppressor against the oppressed but we expect from you justice and good faith," Khomeini said.

He said the Iranian government would produce evidence showing American intervention in Iranian affairs and the alleged crimes of deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and his father, Reza Shah. Islamic militants demanding return of the shah seized the U.S. Embassy in Tehran Nov. 4 and have been holding 53 American hostages ever since.

Some 100 non-governmental delegations from 50 countries are attending the conference, called by Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr following the aborted U.S. mission to rescue the hostages April 25.

In Philadelphia, the American Friends Service Committee said the group of 10 Americans left for Tehran Saturday despite a warning the day before from the Justice Department that the trip violated a travel ban to that country signed by President Carter April 17. The order, which exempts reporters, bans travel to Iran without special permission from the U.S. government.

On Friday, U.S. Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti issued a warning saying: "I want to remind the American public that the rules restricting travel to Iran are still in effect. Persons who violate these rules are subject to penalties of up to 10 years in prison and fines of up to $50,000 under the international emergency economic powers act."

Ayatollah Sadeq Khalkhali, head of Iran's anti-drug campaign, ordered the executions of two more drug smugglers, a man and a woman. Khalkhali did not say when the death sentences were carried out.

Carter tightens security at Fort Chaffee

FORT CHAFFEE, Ark. (AP) - President Carter today ordered security tightened at the Fort Chaffee relocation center where state troopers opened fire as more than 1,000 angry Cuban refugees pelted police with rocks and stormed the front gate.

Five Cubans were shot Sunday evening as the troopers drove them back onto the base. Four buildings were burned and hundreds of civilians were evacuated before police and soldiers quelled the rioters with tear gas and clubs about 8:30 p.m.

About 15 state troopers received minor injuries in the riot that came on the sixth day of tension at the Army Reserve base.

With the base "fairly quiet" today, federal officials resumed processing the thousands of refugees awaiting resettlement.

"I don't sense the tension that was here yesterday," said Neila Petrick, a public information officer for the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

Bill McAda, also a spokesman for agency, estimated early today that between 1,000 and 2,000 refugees participated in the riots but said he had no exact count.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said today Carter sympathizes with the refugees' problems, "but it does not extend to condoning that sort of thing."

Powell said Carter has "taken steps to increase security," but did not elaborate.

"Obviously, we are watching the situation carefully," Powell said, adding it was hoped that authorities could increase the rate at which the refugees are processed.

He said Fort Chaffee has a higher rate of single males with no family than other refugee centers, and so did not believe the trouble would spread to the other centers.

Gov. Bill Clinton said the riot could have been provoked by agents of Cuban president Fidel Castro. Some Cubans have complained that it is taking federal workers too long to process their entry into U.S. society.

The Sunday night violence came on the sixth day of tension at the 72,000-acre Army Reserve base, now serving as a relocation center for more than 18,000 of the Cubans who have fled by boat to the United States. And it was the second violent confrontation of the day.

One refugee was in critical condition at Saint Edward Medical Center in nearby Fort Smith and two others were in serious, but stable condition, all with gunshot wounds. Another refugee was in critical condition with stab wounds. About 15 troopers had minor injuries.

Clinton, who planned to call in 200 to 800 more National Guardsmen, said he believed there were agitators among the refugees, some of whom could be Castro agents.

"They want Fidel Castro to be able to laugh at us," he said. "We don't want to give them that satisfaction."

President Carter sent Eugene Eidenberg and Tom Casey of the Federal Emergency Management Administration to Fort Chaffee Sunday night. During the day, his assistant Jack Watson conferred with Clinton.

The violence began at about 6 p.m. Some 1,000 refugees marched toward the main gate of the camp, then 200 to 300 vaulted a four-foot high stone fence near the gate and ran toward Barling, a community of 3,000 people less than a mile away.

Confronted by troopers with nightsticks, the Cubans retreated to a rise and began throwing rocks at officers crouched behind police cars.

The police opened fire, and the refugees retreated over the camp's wall. Inside, federal police and soldiers used tear gas and clubs to subdue the refugees.

Two mess halls and two storage buildings were damaged by fires set by bands of refugees roaming the base, said Maj. Brian McWilliams, an Army spokesman.

Some Cubans also battled other refugees who wore white armbands to show support for officers. Some refugees fled into a wooded area on the base to escape the fighting, McWilliams said.

Supreme Court leaves Diggs conviction intact

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court today left intact the payroll-kickback conviction of Rep. Charles Diggs, D-Mich.

Diggs, who already has announced he intends to retire in January from the seat he has held in the House since 1955, now faces a three-year prison sentence.

The justices, without comment, refused to hear arguments aimed at overturning Diggs' 1978 federal conviction for misapplying money allotted for compensating congressional employees.

Diggs was convicted of 11 counts of mail fraud and 18 counts of falsifying congressional payroll forms. He subsequently resigned from his chairmanship of the House District of Columbia committee and a subcommittee on African affairs.

Prosecutors said Diggs received some $66,000 in kickbacks from 1973 to 1977 by inflating the salaries of several staff members and having them use portions of those salaries to pay his personal, business and congressional expenses.

In addition, prosecutors said Diggs hired a bookkeeper and an accountant to do work for his House of Diggs' funeral home in Detroit and placed both persons on the congressional payroll.

Diggs has maintained steadfastly that he believed the financial arrangements were within his official discretion.

His conviction was upheld last Nov. 14 by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington.

In seeking Supreme Court review, Diggs' lawyers raised several instances of alleged trial error — including what they contended was a faulty instruction to jurors by the presiding judge.

"They argued also that federal prosecutors' investigation into Diggs' finances and his criminal trial violated the Constitution's speech and debate clause — giving members of Congress immunity for their legislative acts."

Justice Department lawyers told the high court Diggs' trial-error arguments were "groundless" and "unavailing." They called his constitutional argument "specious."

Diggs said in a statement after the court acted that he will "immediately petition for a reduction of sentence and probation."

He said he will appeal for compassion at the sentencing on grounds that he has been censured by the House and has agreed to repay $40,000, has substantially reduced additional indebtedness and has decided not to run for re-election.

"I trust the trial judge will be compassionate after examining these new circumstances," Diggs said.

In other matters today, the Supreme Court:

- Refused to halt California's investigation into alleged fraud by some leaders of the Worldwide Church of God, turning aside arguments that the probe threatens freedom of religion.
- Cleared the way for a new trial on a civil suit arising from a bloody police raid on Black Panther headquarters in Chicago in 1969.

- Left intact the conviction and death sentence of a Houston man found guilty of poisoning his young son with cyanide-laced Halloween candy to collect the youngster's life insurance.

— Declined to free the United Steelworkers union from a $3 million negligence suit filed by the widows of four men killed in an Idaho mine disaster.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court today refused to reinstate Houston resident Ann Battarbee's conviction in the 1973 drug-overdose death of her husband.

The justices, without comment, left intact a Texas court's ruling that Mrs. Battarbee's 1978 conviction violated her constitutional protection against double jeopardy.

Harris County District Attorney John Holmes Jr. argued that Mrs. Battarbee should not benefit from a 1978 Supreme Court decision barring retrials of criminal defendants whose convictions are overturned because of insufficient evidence.

Vernon Battarbee died April 12, 1973 of an overdose of secobarbital tablets. Mrs. Battarbee was indicted, tried and sentenced to 10 years probation in connection with the death.

Prosecutors said she had given her husband four tablets while he slept, knowing he already had taken at least two other tablets. Trial testimony showed that as few as eight tablets could cause death, and that Mrs. Battarbee had experience as a nurse.

Mrs. Battarbee's 1974 conviction was overturned by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals for insufficient evidence that the four tablets she gave her husband killed him.

Two weekend collisions claim nine lives

SEMINOLE, Texas (AP) - Six members of a New Mexico family died in a grinding head-on collision on U.S. 180 in what officials say was the worst auto accident in Gaines County history.

The family, which included two small brothers, was on the way back to Hobbs, N.M. when the wreck occurred early Sunday morning, police said.

One man survived the crash. "Both cars were demolished," said Department of Public Safety investigating officer Joe Valenzuela. "Pieces were scattered all along the highway. We found a drive shaft from one of the cars 100 feet from the point of impact."

Gaines County Sheriff Ed Welch said it was the worst auto wreck in the county's history. Valenzuela said the family was returning from a visit to their parents in Lamesa. The collision occurred in the westbound lane of about four miles east of this far West Texas town, he said.

"It appears the westbound car swerved to the right and the other car swerved to the left and they ran into each other," Valenzuela said. He said the accident was under investigation.

Killed were Chester A. Young, 22, the driver of one of the cars, and his wife Thyra Lee Young, 26. Clifton Ray Young, 25, his wife Vivian Lemmons, 19, and their children, Vernon, 4, and LaMont, 2.

Clifton Young was the sister of Thyra Young, whose maiden name also was Young.

He said the only skid marks at the scene of the accident were made by the Young vehicle.

"Everyone but the driver in that car was killed instantly, and the driver died at the scene," he said.

The driver of the other car, Paul G. Elam, 21, of Seminole, was treated for minor injuries and released.

"He was in a state of shock when we talked to him," Valenzuela said.

The trooper said both cars appeared equally demolished, and he said he had "no idea" how Elam escaped death.

DIME BOX, Texas (AP) - Three persons, including the 1979 Lexington High School salutatorian and the football captain, died Sunday in a head-on collision near here.

Dead were Alyce Fay Schneider, 18, of Dime Box, the salutatorian; Eddie Lynn Bradshaw, 19, the football captain; and Abraham Gonzales Ortiz, 35, of Mexico, driver of the other vehicle.

Two passengers in Ortiz' pickup truck were listed in satisfactory condition with cuts and bruises at Lee Memorial Hospital in Giddings.

Miss Schneider and Bradshaw were returning to Lexington from a dance in Dimebox about 1:30 a.m. Sunday when the accident occurred on Texas 21. Police quoted witnesses as saying the pickup crossed the center stripe.

Bradshaw was running back and captain on Lexington's Conference 1-A football team that lost the state championship to China Springs last year.

Bradshaw and Ortiz were killed instantly. Miss Schneider was taken to Scott and White Hospital in Temple where she died about 11 a.m. Sunday of head injuries.

Carter says recession 'serious,' proposes no tax cut this year

WASHINGTON (AP) - Acknowledging that the nation's economic recession is "steeper than we've anticipated," President Carter is holding out the possibility of reducing taxes next year, apparently advancing his tax cut timetable.

But he said in an interview broadcast Sunday that he will not propose any 1980 tax reduction to stimulate the economy.

The president told reporters that the recession, which he said until recently would be "short and mild," was now turning into "a serious problem."

With Carter fighting for a balanced budget, his advisers fear there will be no room for additional aid to help fight the impact of the recession in hard-hit communities and among the poor.

The president said on the CBS News program "Face the Nation" that he sees "no prospect of having a stimulative tax reduction in effect this year."

At the same time, he tied the chance for a 1981 tax cut to economic conditions later this year and to Congress' performance on his budget proposals.

On Friday, the government's index of leading indicators, a compilation of 12 elements measuring economic activity, showed a decline of 4.6 percent, the sharpest drop in the 30-year history of the index.

The question of a tax cut is likely to grow in importance not only as the recession continues, but as election day approaches.

Ronald Reagan, Carter's likely Republican opponent in thofore the November election.

One administration official said recently that while the president's economic advisers would argue that the best way to provide relief from the recession "is to get a quick tax fix, the president is going to resist doing that for a very long time."

Carter's advisers expressed frustration last month that he remained opposed to a tax cut before 1982 to help cushion the recession, so his weekend comments appeared to move up his schedule.

On other topics, Carter said:
— The United States has not closed any option in dealing with Iran — including a "very severe" response if any of 53 captive Americans are put on trial.

— The United States would exercise its veto powers in the U.N. Security Council to stop any move that might usurp the American role in the Middle East negotiations.

In a separate interview with the new Cable News Network, Carter said the veto would be used, "if necessary, to prevent this Camp David process from being destroyed or subverted." Officials of several Western European nations have said recently they might advance their own proposals, making use of the United Nations, in hopes of advancing the stalled Israeli-Egyptian talks on Palestinian autonomy.

But Carter said that "we are asking the European allies not to get involved in it for the time being."

A PICKUP COLLIDED WITH THE BRIDGE RAIL in the 700 block of Somerville Street at 11 p.m. Saturday, injuring the driver, Kevin Michael O'Neil, 16, of 1840 Holly and a passenger in the vehicle, 20-year-old Randy Charles Scott. The two were taken to Highland General Hospital Emergency Room where they were treated for cuts and bruises and released. According to police reports, O'Neil was apparently driving north on Somerville at a high rate of speed when he attempted to pass another vehicle on the right and struck the protective railing of the bridge. O'Neil was cited for passing on the right.

Young man, 18, sought in shooting death of mother

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Police today sought an 18-year-old man whom they charged with murder in the shooting death of his mother, who was killed while she slept early Sunday morning.

Greg Heflin was charged in the slaying of June Heflin, 43, who was pronounced dead two hours after the 6 a.m. shooting in her Northwest Austin home. "We're still looking for him," a police spokesman said. Heflin's sister, Kimberly, 22, also was shot in the head with a .22-caliber rifle while she slept and was listed in serious condition after surgery. Miss Heflin is scheduled to be married June 28.

Frank Heflin, husband of the slain woman; another daughter, Valerie, 20; and two out-of-town guests also were asleep in the house at the time of the shooting, a family friend said. Greg Heflin left the house immediately after the shooting, driving over shrubbery and striking two cars before leaving the neighborhood, according to a friend of the family.

The Austin American-Statesman quoted a close friend of the youth as saying he had changed drastically in the past year, withdrawing from friends and quitting school in his senior year at Anderson High School. He would have graduated last week. The young man's friend was quoted as saying Greg had been an A student but "his last report card was straight Fs."

Indian province ruled by militant students

GAUHATI, India (AP) — For the past nine months, the Indian state of Assam has virtually been ruled — and paralyzed — by leaders of a student movement that wants to expel millions of aliens they claim eventually will overwhelm the native Assamese.

At least 70 student leaders were arrested when the government cracked down in April but a number have become fugitives and continue to issue statements obeyed by the local population, predominantly Assamese Hindus.

Carter visits civil rights leader

The president visited wounded civil rights leader Vernon Jordan Jr. in Fort Wayne, Ind., Sunday and defended his administration's economic policies and role in Iran in television interviews. He also said of his opponent: "My feeling toward Senator Kennedy is one of respect...and I believe we can heal the differences and go forth to a victory."

For Reagan, of course, the nine Republican primaries Tuesday are a cakewalk. Even before George Bush dropped out of the GOP campaign a week ago, Reagan had the nomination virtually in hand. He picked up 20 more delegates over the weekend in party meetings in Missouri, Minnesota and Virginia, giving him 1,068, while he only needs 998 for the GOP nomination.

Reagan is campaigning today in California and will meet Thursday with former President Gerald Ford, a GOP moderate who once criticized Reagan as too conservative to be elected. The former California governor also is expected soon to announce appointment of a national political director with Eastern ties to go along with the move of his headquarters to Washington, D.C.

John Anderson, the Republican congressman running for president as an independent, campaigned Sunday in West Virginia, where he is trying to get his name on the general election ballot in November. He says he is "just inches" away from getting the 7,507 signatures needed.

Efforts of the state and central governments to govern have been flouted and frustrated by the student movement.

Recently he and his followers appealed to the Assamese not to listen to the government's All-India Radio, which they accused of broadcasting biased views about the movement. The response was overwhelming. State officials say more and more people get their news from foreign broadcasts — the British Broadcasting Corp. and Voice of America, for example.

Efforts of the state and central governments to govern have been flouted and frustrated by the student movement.

The student leader is bearded Prafulla Kumar Mahanta, 28-year-old president of the Assam Students Union, who has become something of a folk hero by evading arrest for more than 4 months.

Gardening by moon signs

By Lois Boynton

The moon will be decreasing: 1-12; 28-30. The moon will be increasing: 13-27.

The fruitful signs are 5-6 (Pisces); 13-14 (Cancer); 23-24 (Scorpio).

The semi-fruitful signs are 1-2 until 2:30 (Capricorn); 9-10 (Taurus); 20-22 (Libra) 23-24 (Scorpio); from 4 p.m. on the 27th through the 29th (Capricorn).

The barren signs are from 2:30 the 2nd through the 4th (Aquarius); 7-8 (Aries); 11-12 (Gemini); from 11:30 a.m. the 15th through the 17th (Leo); 18-19 (Virgo); 25 until 4 p.m. the 27th (Sagittarius); 30 (Aquarius).

Use the fruitful signs for all planting and transplanting when possible. The semi-fruitful signs are second choice.

With the wonderful rains and very little wind, May has given us a true Spring. All the trees are wearing a beautiful green and the flowering shrubs and the iris and other blooming flowers have added their beauty. We can remember this in the coming hot days of July and August.

When bringing your pot plants out for the summer, they should be kept in full shade the first week and then for the next few days in light shade before giving them the full sun treatment. They never like the blinding hot afternoon sun.

We knock ours out of their pots and place them in the beds. They do not require much water and it seems to give them new life. In the fall when they are lifted, their roots may require some pruning to get them back into their pots. This will set them back a few days only. We take them up early enough that there will be time to allow them to remain in the pots where they have been growing for a few days before frost.

When planting out geraniums, trim them good, placing the trimmings in the ground by the mother plant. Many of these will take root and make new plants to bloom for you next winter.

For an effective spray for aphids and red spider, put cold water and spray on plants. This should kill off the hardest pests. Be watchful; you may need to spray again.

Now is the time to lift and divide chrysanthemums, using only the new growth around the edge discarding the center. Prepare the soil with bone meal and a little cotton seed meal. They require a lot of water so never let them dry out. Keep pinching back the tops until the middle of July.

Make cuttings from your Christmas poinsettia, if you still have a growing plant, insert them (three cuttings) in a 6-inch pot filled with potting soil. Make a hole in the soil and fill with sand to place the cuttings. Bury the pot in a well protected spot in the garden. They should grow and make a fine plant for you to bring inside before frost.

Start strawberries in small pots filled with soil and buried to their rims in the ground. Pin the strawberry runners to the soil in the pots; they will root and make nice plants. Young plants started in this manner may be planted in a bed in August where they will grow and fruit next year.

Our spring flowering bulbs are retaining their foliage longer than usual because of the cool, wet weather. And they distract from the tidiness of our garden. But we should be encouraged by the thought that the longer the leaves remain green the more time they have to manufacture food to store in the bulbs for next season's flowers.

If you need to left and divide daffodils, dig them when the foliage has browned, then clean and store them in a cool place until planting time in the fall. Cut off the spent blooms from the daffodils and tulips, and do not allow them to set in seed pods.

June is a good month to sow seeds of perennials in well-prepared beds. Some of the perennials are phlox, chubine, delphinium, flax, alyssum saxatile, evergreen candytuft and oriental poppies. There are biennials that may be sown at this time. Those include heperis, Chinese lattern, canterbury bells, foxglove, Sweet Williams, English daisies, Siberian wall flowers, digitalis and hollyhock.

Keep in mind that marigolds, especially the French and Aztec varieties, are recommended to rid soil of nematodes. But it takes more than one season of continuous planting to build up enough of the substance that drives the nematodes away, so you should make repeated plantings throughout the garden, including the vegetable plot.

This is the month when the rose is the queen of the garden. They should be fed with compost or cottonseed meal and kept well watered.

The clematis will be flowering and adding their beauty to the garden scene. They should be pruned after blooming.

The mature plants present such a tangle of flowering and non-flowering shoots that it is almost impossible to know what to prune. All you can do is go over the plant with a pair of pruners,

Kerr County inmates escape

KERRVILLE, Texas (AP) — Law enforcement officers hunted today for two prisoners who smashed a "break-resistant" window and shinned down a homemade rope to freedom.

"We're combing the country. We've got roadblocks up," said Kerr County Sheriff Paul Fields.

He said the two inmates broke out of the jail late Sunday and apparently changed clothes a short distance away.

"They knocked out an exterior break-resistant glass window and made a rope out of torn-up sheets and went out last night about 11:45," Fields said. "They tied up the other trusty in the cell block, but he was eventually able to get to a nearby emergency button and sound the alarm."

No one was injured during the break. Fields said the jailbreakers "got about a five-minute head start on us."

Fields identified the escaped prisoners as Lawrence Davis, 27, who was being held on charges of organized crime activity, and James B. Mills, 19, who was serving a nine-month sentence for misdemeanor theft.

The sheriff said the men were believed armed with a screwdriver or a pair of scissors, but probably did not have firearms. "But they could probably be considered dangerous," he said.

He said deputies recovered the pair's jail clothes about 500 yards north of the jail in a residential area. "Shortly after they escaped they were seen by a witness wearing T-shirts and blue jeans and headed north," he said.

Aide labels campaign great victory for Joan

NEWARK (AP) — In a recent television interview, a reporter referred to Joan Kennedy's struggle against alcoholism and said, "A lot of people are skeptical about having a woman like you in the White House."

Mrs. Kennedy set her jaw. A television cameraman rolled his eyes. Day after 18-hour day, week after disappointing week, the wife of Democratic presidential candidate Edward M. Kennedy has faced probing, sometimes hostile reporters. Their consuming interest: the state of her health ("I've never felt better"); her emotions ("I'm a very optimistic person"); and her marriage.

She knows, as well as anyone, that the Kennedy marriage was considered a political liability for her husband. Her work throughout the long primary campaign now nearly ended was a calculated effort to blunt the criticism.

"This campaign has been a terrific personal victory for Joan," says an aide who has traveled with her. "The person I saw in the beginning of the campaign was fragile, uncertain, hadn't been in the public eye for two years. She was nervous, but she was game. She knew she had to do it, not just for Ted but for herself."

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Korea comes to a full stop

It seemed too good to be true—and it was. To the surprise of almost everyone following the assassination of South Korean President Park Chung Hee last October, the country, first, did not begin to unravel with the sudden removal of the firm hand in which it had been held for almost 20 years and, second, appeared to be making real progress toward replacing Park's military dictatorship with a genuinely democratic system.

True, a mini-coup two months later concentrated power in the hands of a group of generals of the Park mold: But the civilian, Choi Kyu Hah, who had succeeded Park as president, remained in office, and the drafting of a new constitution and preparations for elections went ahead.

So did pressure, largely from the urban student population, for faster progress on democratization. And so did unrest among workers pinched by inflation and an economic slowdown and already resentful that not enough of the benefits of the phenomenal growth of recent years had trickled down to their level.

Since the first of the year, South Korea's fragile political equilibrium had been shaken by strikes, sit-ins and, most recently, student rioting. Surprisingly, the military initially resisted the temptation to crack down.

It has now yielded. Nationwide martial law is in effect, jails are full and for all effective purposes South Korea is back where it was under Park — totally subdued.

Self-government in the three decades of South Korea's existence has been a lot like Seoul traffic during the rush hour — all starts and stops, mostly the latter.

One of the half countries resulting from the inability of the Western allies and the Soviets to settle accounts after World War II, it got off to a fairly good start under a genuine Father of His Country — Syngman Rhee, a revered scholar and statesman who for decades in exile had carried the torch of Korea's independence from its Japanese occupiers.

Rhee, however, proved to be a stern and eventually harshly autocratic father. The country's recovery from the devastation of the North Korean invasion led to pressure for more political freedom and, eventually, student demonstrations strongly reminiscent of the latest unrest. Rhee was ousted in 1960 and South Korea plunged into democracy.

But not for long. A year later, a coup brought a military oligarchy to power. Eventually, Park Chung Hee emerged as the dominant figure to preside over a political dictatorship that coincided with an economic explosion.

That economic growth, appreciated by the overwhelming majority of South Koreans, was one of Park's greatest political assets, muting criticism and pressures for greater freedom. When he finally fell, it was not to a popular uprising but as the target of a fellow officer fearful of losing his share of power.

The start toward democracy that followed has now from all indications been brought to a complete stop. Political activity, including meetings of the National Assembly, is banned. Opposition leaders are in jail. Strikes and demonstrations are out. Universities are closed. The press is silenced. Rumors are forbidden as is all criticism of the new military leaders and their predecessors.

President Choi escaped immediate removal, but only for his value as a figurehead. A constitution is still promised, but it will be dictated by Gen. Chun Doo Hwan, who led the December coup and is now No. 1 in South Korea.

It was probably too much to expect that South Koreans, despite the promise of the immediate post-Park period, could keep up the democratic momentum this time. It came at a bad time in that their dynamic economy had commenced to misfire with annual growth dropping to 2 percent or 3 percent.

A period of economic doldrums is not a propitious time for adventures in democracy.

South Koreans anxious for another crack at democracy are going to have to fall back on something with which they've already had plenty of experience — patience.

Crisis going on in farm income

The crisis of farm income is worsening. Carrol Chaloupka of Dalhart, president of the Texas Farm Bureau, said indications are "that net farm income will be about one-fourth below what it was last year" in 1980.

Many in Texas are prone to take for granted the acres that produce such a diversified cornucopia for the nation's marketplace, and few give thought, unless they are farmers and ranchers, to how the production is financed. Somebody must foot the bills.

In the long run, regardless of mortgages and long-term and short-term loans, it is the farmer or rancher who does the financing, foots the bills. The money comes from profits, made or anticipated.

But with income headed downward, so will profits be down; and sources of money-flow for the farmer, taking note, may dry up or be most limited.

The crisis is already upon the farmer and rancher. Chaloupka said agriculture's financial problems can be attributed largely to federal deficits "which caused inflation," and embargoes on farm exports "which helped depress farm prices."

He said inflation hits farmers especially hard because they cannot automatically pass along increased production costs to the consumer. He called inflation the "number one domestic problem."

The TFB president said his organization has scheduled a series of meetings with county Farm Bureau leaders across Texas in the next few weeks to assess the extent of the cost price squeeze and to discuss Farm Bureau's program for dealing with it. The program consists of five points:

- (1) Start controlling inflation by immediate steps to balance the federal budget, cut taxes, and increase productivity. (Farm Bureau supports amending the U.S. Constitution to require the government to operate on a balanced budget, and to restrict spending to a "realistic" percentage of the gross national product. Its leadership points out that productivity can be increased by reducing over-regulation by government and by eliminating costly government-protected labor practices.)
- (2) Expand foreign markets through hard bargaining with nations which depend upon American markets for their exports.
- (3) Assure adequate fuel by deregulating the petroleum industry, reducing environmental controls, and by exploring alternate fuels such as agricultural alcohol.
- (4) Stop government's "cheap food" policies by eliminating market restraints (such as embargoes), by emphasizing market-oriented farm programs to avoid accumulating surpluses, and by effective acreage diversion programs when necessary.
- (5) Assure farm credit by limiting credit demands of the federal government in the money market.

Largely, the TFB has moved in the right direction and most of its "points" mean well in this nation's need to return agriculture (and other pursuits in the economy) back to the free market, and the elimination of deficit spending in government. We would suggest going one "point" further and removing entirely from its influence over agriculture, thus taking a firm hold once again on marketing realities. Meanwhile, that is a future thing and today the farmer's income crisis is real. We'd better believe it.

Decent people in our government, too

It may seem that we seldom have an opportunity to say something nice about government officials.

But there are many government officials — elected or appointed — who do a lot of unsung good. And even though this is not Appreciate-Your-Public-Servant Week, we offer a few words of praise for those toilers in the government vineyard who have attached their names and talents to worthy causes. There are a lot of them.

Though government leaders comprise only a fraction of the many involved in community-service projects, we applaud their contribution today because we tend to denigrate some of their actions. We editorially criticize these officials frequently and heartily. Readers might conclude the public sector is full of some very bad apples. That isn't true, of course.

For the most part, those in government office are not different from the rest of us. They may feel a need for a special sort of gratification that comes from winning and exercising political power, but otherwise they have the same inclinations to help other people — and, simultaneously, the same opportunistic desire to help themselves — that most of us do.

Government often fails to improve our lot not because of unusual character flaws in the people who run it, but because of what it is: a system of relationships based on force. When associations are voluntary, the mistakes that all of us make need only affect ourselves and those who have chosen to rely on us. Government magnifies the defects of its decisions by subjecting everyone within a jurisdiction to its will, good or bad. And, of course, even programs conceived with the best of intentions can suffer from errors of the mind, if not the heart.

So, while we often criticize the powers-that-be in an effort to prompt our readers to think, we take this occasion to remind ourselves and

Another kind of war

by Paul Harvey

In Europe's capitals during the 1950s I was distressed to see downtown business remove all valuables from their show windows and, overnight, to shutter those windows behind locked iron grills.

Such precaution was then unimaginable in the United States.

Now in United States cities, merchants have been forced to barricade themselves against thieves.

Again, the cities of Europe are ahead of us, this time in protecting themselves from terrorists.

If modern weapons capable of incinerating whole cities have rendered big war impractical...

And, if, as Korea and Vietnam attest, small wars are no longer worth what they cost...

Then the "next war" will be waged with terrorism. Hereafter, misleaders will revert to intimidating nations by kidnapping national leaders.

What's happened in Iran is soon to become commonplace.

Five years ago a Rand scholar, Brian Jenkins, was trying to warn us that

"national governments will use terrorist groups for surrogate warfare."

For a thousand years, any government-supported terrorism against diplomats was unthinkable. The diplomats of any nation were safe — even when those nations were at war.

Not anymore. If the takeover of our Embassy in Tehran was at first the work of an uncontrolled mob, it has since been adopted as "a weapon" by the country itself.

Embassies have since been taken over in Bogota and London.

Already in the United States, takeovers of the German consulate and the Carter campaign headquarters in Chicago and bombings of commercial buildings in New York forewarn of what could become an epidemic of terrorism.

Alastair Thomson, former director of crime prevention for Scotland Yard — and still an advisor to that agency on that menace — urges Americans to adopt countermeasures already proved effective in Britain: Ultrasonic systems to detect intruders, microwave devices to trigger alarms, closed-circuit TV.

He says secondary diplomatic installations, political campaign headquarters and corporate offices need to install internal strong-rooms — containing food, weapons, communications equipment — in which the staff can sustain itself in secure isolation until help arrives.

The "inner stronghold system" has been used for centuries in European castles and palaces. Coupled with the latest in electronic systems, Mr. Thomson believes it would make embassies, consulates and corporate headquarters virtually invulnerable.

While most of the most sophisticated security equipment is manufactured in the United States, it is used more in Britain. And, says Thomson, "Where good security systems have been installed there is almost never any trouble."

It's sad to have to adopt what Mr. Thomson calls "a security mentality" — to have to lock up the zoo keepers and let the animals run loose. But that, as Walter Cronkite would say, "is the way it is."

Luce's title

By D.R. Segal

I was astonished, I can tell you, to see Clare Boothe Luce referred to on our editorial page the other day as "the Honorable." I mean, after all! This is not to suggest that C.B. Luce is dishonorable. Indeed, I grew up in the South where all men are brave, even though they are notoriously craven cowards, and all women are virtuous even though you know for a repeated fact that they are not.

What shocked me was that our editors used the title "the Honorable" because that is what politicians call each other when, as in the case of Mrs. Luce, they have been ambassadors or held similar public office.

I always got the idea that on our editorial pages "honorable" and "political" were almost exact opposites and that Honor did a Dutch when political office entered into the question. Perhaps we are turning into a bunch of Eastern Establishment Liberals, contaminated by the New York Times wire that comes into our office.

I have always rather enjoyed the way politicians call each other "honorable" as if to plead that they aren't what you'd think they are, being in that line of work. Lawyers call each other, and themselves, "Esq." which is even funnier seeing as how "esquires" were bush leaguers back on the days when the term had some official meaning.

Lawyers in the South used to be called "judge," even though they'd never been at any bar that didn't serve booze. It was a title of self-respect. "Honorable" is one of those titles that Americans cherish because T. Jefferson and ilk foolishly denied us the right to be sirs and lords, thus depriving us of a fundamental need for recognition and advertising.

Military people run around with rows of ribbons on their jackets and insignia on their shoulders so everybody knows they are terrific, but civilians have no means of instant recognition. They have to depend on the "the Hon." before their names or "Esq." after them.

There are more varieties of "doctors" than there is much need for, and a lot of them — clerics and philosophers — wouldn't know a bronchi from a bellybutton. There is nothing much wrong with "the Hon." But I never really expected it to come from the fierce freedom fighters who put out our editorial pages (occasionally backwards). Clare Boothe Luce has been through a lot, including Henry, and I don't begrudge her the title. I was only wondering

Salary oddities and outrages listed in 'American Paychecks'

NEW YORK (AP) — Starting wages for bank tellers average $6,600. In a good year, a busy loan shark can clear $175,000. A starting salesclerk at Bloomingdale's makes around $6,350 a year. The average shoplifter can "earn" $53,000. The head nurse in an average American hospital was paid $15,700 in 1979. Directors of public relations at hospitals averaged more than $23,000. These and other salary oddities and outrages are included in "America's Paychecks," for which author David Harrop pried loose the best-kept financial secrets of everyone from doctors to plumbers, corporate executives to call girls. In the summers of '30 and '31, the New York Yankees paid Babe Ruth $80,000 to play ball. That was more than President Herbert Hoover earned either year.

If Ruth were playing in the summer of '80, taking into account 50 years of inflation, he would likely be paid $800,000, not much less than the $1 million Nolan Ryan is earning to pitch with the Texas Rangers. And that's still way beyond the $200,000 salary paid President Carter. In his book, Harrop details salaries in such professions as law, medicine, education, government, sports, entertainment, banking, publishing, industry and crime. And of such notables as former secretary of state Henry Kissinger — more than $500,000 a year from lectures, consulting and writing; singer Diana Ross — $2.52 million for 72 singing performances at Atlantic City casinos in 1980-82; Chase Manhattan Bank chairman David Rockefeller — $373,000; and Playboy magazine publisher Hugh Hefner — $302,000. "Most people are secretive about their salaries," Harrop said. "Salaries are personal and very much tied up in the American concept about what you're worth...I expected to be resentful for doing this book, but I wasn't. Most people are very curious about what other people make, but they're secretive about their own salaries." Harrop said he gathered his data from public records and by "just talking to people." The people most consumed with salary matters, Harrop said, are blue collar workers and the very, very rich. An associate editor in publishing earns $15,500 a year. A teacher in Montgomery, Ala., earns $13,038 a year. An electrician averages $21,400; a plumber, $19,100. "The thing that surprised me the most in researching this book was that because of this age of inflation, in certain fields — principally entertainment — people are making just as much now as they did in the old days," Harrop said. "Entertainment is the best paid field, decade to decade." One area where salaries have increased substantially over the decades is medicine. "Doctors' incomes have gone up two or four times more than lawyers or educators," Harrop said. "At one time during our history, the three professions were fairly equal." Radiologists, internists and pathologists are the highest paid specialists, averaging $105,000, $102,600 and $98,700 respectively. Elsewhere in the hospital, a licensed practical nurse earns $9,800; the laundry manager, about $16,700.

Fund-raisers underway to provide mansion furnishings

AUSTIN (AP) — Rita Clements says she has collected four $100,000 donations from wealthy Texans who want to help furnish the mansion the state provides for its first family. However, she said support from all Texans is needed to help raise $2 million to furnish the Governor's Mansion, which is now undergoing extensive renovations. "We won't have any idea of just how much money we raised for a week or so, but I really feel like we're off to a good beginning," she said recently. Mrs. Clements, working with Friends of the Governor's Mansion, attended recent fund-raisers in Dallas, Houston and Austin. The guest lists included some of the state's wealthiest citizens. She would not name the four $100,000 donors, but said they will be identified within the next few months. Friends of the Governor's Mansion is a non-profit private corporation, and contributors do not have to be named. "We want to see 10 individuals or corporations contribute $100,000 each," she said. The drive among rich Texans will be followed up this fall with a push aimed at all Texans. "In the last several months as I've gone around the state speaking to a number of groups, I found them offering $25 and $100 donations. This is where we can have all Texans participate, and we'll need all the help we can get to reach the $2 million goal," she said. The $2 million will pay for antique furnishings for the mansion, which is situated in the shadow of the Capitol, just across the street to the south. All furniture will be from the mid-19th century, when the mansion was built. Structural renovations are also under way at the mansion, and Mrs. Clements said builders are ahead of schedule. The 1979 Legislature approved $1 million for the renovation project. "We feel the people of Texas will be very pleased with the restoration and renovation... keeping in mind we want to be of absolute museum quality and historic interest," she said. While the mansion will house museum pieces, it will remain a residence for governors and their families. It is vacant at present because of the renovation.

Pope ends French visit, returns to Rome today

PARIS (AP) — Pope John Paul II warned today that the future of mankind is "radically threatened, in spite of very noble intentions, by men of science." He said experiments to modify genes and making chemical, bacteriological and nuclear weapons were cases where scientific research was oriented to "destructive goals...or applied to ends contradictory to those of humanity." In a speech to the U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization starting the final day of his four-day visit to France, the pope repeatedly warned of the danger of nuclear war, and called on scientists worldwide to work to avoid it.

The pope cited two reasons for an increased fear of nuclear war: world instability "due to geopolitical reasons, to wounded national prides, to the materialism of our age, to the decadence of moral values," and the possible breakdown of the balance of terror, as nuclear arms are improved and acquired by more nations. The pontiff urged the UNESCO delegates to preserve the fundamental sovereignty each nation possesses in the form of its own culture. "Protect it as you would your very eye," he said. "Never permit it to become the victim of totalitarianisms, imperialisms or hegemonies by which man is regarded only as an object of domination and not as the subject of his own proper human existence." The Polish pope said he was "the son of a nation that has...been condemned to death several times by its neighbors, but which has survived, and remained itself... not by depending on physical power, but solely by depending on its culture." Turning to education, John Paul said the way to progress in countries where there is an unequal distribution of wealth is not through bloodthirsty power struggles but by increased efforts to eliminate illiteracy and popularize teaching. He made a plea for Catholic families to be allowed to educate their children in "schools corresponding to their own vision of the world" and not to see their children submitted to what he called atheist-inspired programs. This, he said, was one of the fundamental rights of man. After his UNESCO speech, the pope travels to the Normandy town of Lisieux to say Mass and visit the famed Carmelite nunnery there. From Lisieux he travels to nearby Deauville where he leaves for Rome. A podium for the Mass has been built outside the Lisieux cathedral and police have been busy ejecting pilgrims trying to camp at the building in order to be close to the pontiff when he arrives. A new cathedral, completed in 1954, is located next to the convent and dominates the Valley of the Auge from a hill overlooking this Normandy town of 26,000 inhabitants 100 miles west of Paris. The basilica contains the remains of St. Therese de l'Enfant Jesus, who died of tuberculosis on Sept. 30, 1897 and was canonized in 1925. Therese Martin was born Jan. 2, 1873, the last of nine children of a watchmaker. From the age of 9, she begged for permission to enter the austere convent. Finally, after overcoming the opposition of her parents, the superior of the convent, the local bishop and carrying her request to Pope Leon XIII during a pilgrimage to Rome in 1887, she was given special dispensation to enter the convent at the age of 15 in 1888.

Warehouse style grocery operation gaining fame

Make way for the bare-bones grocery store. The warehouse-style food operations are gaining popularity among consumers who are willing to give up service and atmosphere in exchange for lower prices. The no-frills trend started about four years ago with generic foods — standard quality products with plain wrappers — that sold at prices up to 30 percent below brand name items. Generics have grown steadily. According to industry estimates, they account for between 5 percent and 15 percent of grocery store sales, compared to 25 percent to 30 percent for private-label store brands. Now, the idea of doing away with the extras has spread to stores themselves. There are two distinct types of no-frills stores: the warehouse outlet and the limited assortment operation. Jeff Prince of the Food Marketing Institute, a trade association, explained that the warehouse stores offer a full line of groceries, but eliminate many of the services associated with traditional supermarkets. You may have to bag your purchases yourself, for example. Products are stacked in their packing cartons instead of carefully arranged on shelves. Sales are often cash only — no checks. Limited assortment outlets offer a smaller selection. They may stock only 500 items — about one-tenth the number available in a traditional supermarket. They usually do not carry perishables like fresh fruits and vegetables or meat. "You have to go to another store to finish your shopping," Prince said. Prices for national brands in the bare-bones stores are generally 15 percent to 20 percent less than those in conventional operations. Willard Bishop, a consulting economist from Barrington, Ill., who studies the food business, said there are about 1,500 limited assortment and warehouse stores spread across the United States. On a dollar basis, he said, they account for about 2 percent of all grocery sales. Until recently, Bishop said, most of the limited assortment and warehouse stores were independent operations. Today, however, large supermarket chains including A&P and Safeway are opening their own no-frills outlets. Gerald Grinnell of the U.S. Department of Agriculture predicted that the popularity of the limited assortment and warehouse stores will grow "up to a point," and he said they could eventually account for 15 percent of grocery sales on a nationwide basis. "There's always going to be consumers who are price conscious," he said. "How popular they (the bare-bones stores) will be depends on the state of the economy." Grinnell also predicted, however, that the limited assortment and warehouse stores would change gradually, introducing some of the services like check cashing and bagging that they now lack. "I expect to see more of the upgrading," he said. "Consumers get very tired of the lack of services and selection. They want a few of the frills, but not very many."

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: About 20 years ago, in a very distraught emotional state, I wrote to you concerning my involvement with a young woman. I was on the verge of suicide and your advice and support saved my life.

So genuinely concerned were you that you kept me advised as to where to reach you during a Southern tour you were taking at the time.

Much has happened since then, and I want to bring you up-to-date. Recently I wrote a book (my first), titled "Night Stalks the Mansion." It became a best-seller. It's now in its 9th printing — approaching the million mark in sales!

Except for your concern and support during a very traumatic time, I would not be alive today, my book would never have been written, and my reasonably rewarding life would not have lasted as long as it has (I am 74).

As a result of the book, the above-mentioned lady (no longer young) found me again. She saw me on television and wrote to tell me she had often tried to locate me. She had never married; she has burned a candle for me every year on my birthday!

So, Dear Abby, two lives in which you played a greater part than you know have been greatly enriched by your kindness and counsel.

Thank you and God bless you,
HAROLD W. CAMERON, PARADISE, CALIF.

DEAR HAROLD: I remember you well. Thank you for writing. Your letter made my day, my month, my year!

DEAR ABBY: I was told that you once had a letter from a grown man who wanted to sue his parents for having had him circumcised when he was an infant. He claimed that he was maimed and permanently disfigured for no reason at all, as he wasn't even Jewish. What was your advice and how did it turn out? I am considering the same action.

NEW YORKER
DEAR NEW YORKER: I told him he could sue if he wanted to, and if he won he could call it "severance pay." (P.S. He sued and lost.)

DEAR ABBY: I live with my daughter and her husband. The other night they had another married couple in for a bridge, and just as I walked into the room where they were playing, I happened to see the other woman wrapping her bare legs around my son-in-law's legs! I saw him move his legs away, and then she stretched her legs like they were rubber and very determinedly trapped his legs with her! I refuse to be in that woman's company again. I never told my daughter why I dislike this woman so much, so she thinks I'm wrong to have such hate for her friend.

Should I tell my daughter? Her husband knows I saw the whole thing, but he says nothing.

SEES TOO MUCH
DEAR SEES: Don't carry tales to your daughter. If the woman with the rubber legs stretches things too far, your daughter will eventually become aware of it and resolve the matter in her own way.

THE PEOPLE'S PHARMACY

By Joe Graedon

Q. My doctor recently put me on a low-sodium diet for high blood pressure. Everything tastes so blah it's hard for me to resist the saltshaker.

A. Does it really matter that much if I slip up occasionally and put salt on my egg or indulge in some pretzel sticks?

Q. Food without salt can certainly taste bland but you really should try to avoid temptation and follow the doctor's orders. Excessive sodium intake can make successful treatment of blood pressure more difficult.

A. Americans love salt. We consume an average of more than two teaspoons each day and that works out to about eight pounds a year. For someone with hypertension even a teaspoon a day would be too much.

Most of what we take in doesn't even come from the saltshaker. Almost half is "hidden" from view in processed foods. Use of the saltshaker in cooking or at the dinner table only accounts for about one-third of the day's ration. The rest comes from foods naturally high in sodium or from drinking water.

The evidence that salt contributes to hypertension is overwhelming. It would be impossible to list all the studies which have correlated sodium intake with blood pressure but here are just a few examples.

Inland villagers who live on the Solomon Islands cook with fresh water and use almost no salt. They do not develop hypertension when they get older. People who are genetically identical and live on offshore islands use salty sea water to cook with. They have a much higher incidence of high blood pressure.

Researchers report much the same story after studying populations as diverse as African nomads, Alaskan Eskimos and Brazilian Indians. People who take in little salt have almost no problem with blood pressure. But when salt is added to the diet the incidence of hypertension soars.

Most people don't have to worry about how much salt they eat. Eighty percent of the American population won't get high blood pressure no matter how much sodium they take in. But the other 20 percent are genetically susceptible and should cut back.

Since you belong in the second group you should follow your doctor's instructions to avoid the saltshaker. And be wary of processed foods.

Canned and dry soup, sauerkraut, pickles, pretzels, olives, canned vegetables, cheese, tomato juice, ketchup, breakfast cereals, frozen dinners, bread, instant pudding, cake and ice cream also have significant levels of sodium.

Q. I suffer from chronic constipation. My doctor recently prescribed a laxative called Dulcolax (bisacodyl) to help relieve my discomfort.

No sooner did I start taking the drug than I developed trouble breathing — wheezing and coughing.

My doctor says the laxative couldn't be responsible but whenever I stop taking the medicine they symptoms disappear and as soon as I start again the asthma attacks come back. What's going on?

A. Your doctor is right and wrong simultaneously. The active ingredient in your laxative, bisacodyl, won't cause breathing problems. But the Dulcolax tablets also contain a dye called tartrazine (FD & C Yellow No. 5) and it is this "inactive" ingredient that is creating trouble.

Tartrazine is the most widely used coloring agent in the country. It is found in a great many drugs, toothpastes, cosmetics and all kinds of prepared foods, especially desserts.

Unfortunately, some people are allergic to this dye and develop asthma or hives when they come into contact with it. People who have an allergy to aspirin are quite often sensitive to tartrazine.

Your breathing difficulties are undoubtedly due to the presence of this dye in the laxative. Ask your doctor for a different drug, one that doesn't contain FD & C Yellow No. 5.

He credits success to 150 dummies

By Lolo Pendergrast

LUCEDALE, Miss. (NEA) — Danny Kenmar may be a smart cookie, but it took 150 dummies to get him established in business.

Kenmar is owner of the T&T (for Trash and Treasures) Co., located on Highway 98 west of this small town near the Gulf Coast.

The dummies — most of them gone now — stood on the curvy Mississippi roadside, luring prospective flea-market goers to his splintered makeshift sales stand.

Kenmar operates on a policy of laid-back laissez faire. He works when he wants, travels and buys when he wants, keeps half a watch over his sales items when he wants.

"You'd be surprised at the trash that sells," the proprietor says, laughing at himself. Like the dummies?

"I wouldn't have bought one of them," he confides.

Kenmar spent about $500 two years ago for the department-store manikins that had been put out to pasture. He says he figured "some nut" would buy them.

He doesn't really know what motivated him to strategically position the dummies on land adjacent to the highway. But doing so apparently succeeded in nabbing curious — even startled — travelers and truckers.

They came out in droves, purchasing the manikins at prices from $10 to $50.

"One person bought one to head a complaints department at his beer joint," reports the rasy-voiced businessman. "and a lady wanted to rent six of them to put in a spook house on Halloween."

"One man bought one just from the waist up and with no arms. He was a farmer and bought it as a joke to show his workers."

Kenmar reckons it was worth the cost for the farmer to enjoy the hilarity of pulling into the barnyard with the nude quadruple amputee in the cab of his pickup.

A more inhibited woman, obviously wealthy and familiar with the social graces, purchased a manikin to be used as a model for her custom-tailored dresses.

Kenmar's dummies sold quickly. But he managed to save some of the choicest to be permanent roadside ornaments.

They include a female dummy who appears to be pulling another female by the legs from a trash can, a curvy blonde who advertises cane fishing poles and a couple, suitcases in hand, thumbing rides along the highway.

"I had to remove the couple, though, because so many people were putting on the brakes and stopping to pick them up," he says.

During summer, the dummies dress appropriately in bikinis. At Christmas, the don festive apparel.

And to celebrate New Year's, they posed with fireworks — which happen to be illegal in Lucedale.

But a few visitors to T&T fail to be charmed by Kenmar's dummies.

"I had one little boy out here upset, wondering and asking his mama why the little boy wouldn't play with him," reports Kenmar. Of course, it was a baseball-capped boy manikin that had remained unresponsive to the youngster's invitation to play.

"YOU'D BE SURPRISED at the trash that sells," says Danny Kenmar, posing with two of his few remaining dummies. Most of the aging manikins — even one without arms or legs — were purchased by Kenmar's customers for anything from $10 to $50.

Pastoral changes in Methodist Churches

The Rev. David Hamblin was named District Superintendent of the Big Spring District when Bishop Alsie Carleton announced appointments for the Northwest Texas Conference of the United Methodist Church.

The appointments were read at the evening service Tuesday on the first day of annual session which is being held this spring on the McMurry College campus. McMurry was established in 1923 by the conference which owns it jointly with the New Mexico Conference.

Ministers were appointed to 53 charges in the seven districts of the large conference. The session continues through Thursday.

Hamblin, who has been pastor of the Muleshoe United Methodist Church the past three years, succeeds the Rev. Lloyd Hughes as Big Spring DS. Hughes will return to the New Mexico Conference this spring to retire.

Ministerial changes are as follows:

Borger, Wesley UMC: James Putman is new pastor, going there after two years at Haskell-Paint Creek Circuit. He succeeds Michael Struve who was at Wesley three years and now goes to Haskell-Paint Creek in a swap.

Groom UMC: Charlie Lumas is new pastor. He succeeds Kenneth James who was at Groom one year and now goes to Higgins UMC. Lumas served Amherst last year.

Higgins UMC: Kenneth James, who was at Groom one year, is new pastor. He succeeds Elroy Wisian who was at Higgins two years and will now train as a hospital chaplain at High Plains Baptist Hospital.

Memphis UMC: Jim P. Boswell is new pastor, going there after serving at Friona three years. He succeeds Kenneth Metzger who goes to Stratford-Spurlock Chapel Circuit after five years at Memphis.

Phillips UMC: Weldon Rives, who was Seminole UMC pastor the last four years, is new pastor. He succeeds Jack Ellzey, who was Phillips pastor 10 years and now retires.

White Deer UMC: Kenneth J. Kirk is new pastor, going there from Matador-Roaring Springs Circuit where he served two years. He succeeds Stan Cosby who served White Deer four years and now goes to Amarillo's Trinity.

Elderly couple believed killed by bull

RISING SUN, Md. (AP) — An elderly husband and wife whose bodies were found battered and bloody in a pasture next to their home apparently "had been tossed around" by a bull they cared for, a neighbor says.

Einar Friel, 87, and his 88-year-old wife Marie died Saturday night or Sunday morning, apparently of upper body and head injuries, state police said.

Autopsies were scheduled for today.

The bodies were found Sunday morning by their neighbor, Samuel Kirkpatrick.

Mrs. Friel's body lay in the middle of the pasture, and her husband's was about 150 feet away, just inside the fence.

Clutching a bloody stick in his hand, Friel lay battered and muddied, and one clean, untied shoe remained outside the fence.

"You could tell they had been tossed around by a bull," Kirkpatrick said.

The bull belonged to William E. Coutz, the couple's closest friend. Coutz said he bought a calf each year and gave it to the Friels. They would water and feed the animal until it was large enough to be butchered. Then the two families would split the meat, he said.

"I just do not understand what went on out there," said Coutz, who checked on the Friels daily. "If something happened to one of them, why didn't the other call me? I'm just puzzled."

The Friels came to the United States 60 years ago. Friel left a career as a lawyer in his native Sweden when he met his wife, a German nurse living in New York, Coutz said.

An animated 'Roots'?

Ralph Bakshi's 'American Pop'

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD — At Ralph Bakshi's office, you can often hear his voice bellowing through the corridors. "Hey, Disney, come here!" Or, for variety's sake, "Get me Disney!"

It is something that very much amuses the big, burly, black-bearded Bakshi, perhaps the logical inheritor of Walt Disney's animation mantle.

He is a great admirer of Walt Disney — at least, the early and experimental Disney — and he likes the fact that one of his employees today is Roy Disney Jr.

Most people automatically think that Walt Disney, would have hated some — maybe all — of Bakshi's work. But Bakshi himself doesn't think so.

"I regret Disney never saw 'Fritz the Cat,'" Bakshi says. "I think he would have loved it. People say he was old-fashioned, but he loved new things."

And Bakshi is, if nothing else, an innovator. In his most recent feature film, "Lord Of the Rings," he innovated an animation style based on animating from live action photographs. He says that Disney, himself, had "fooled around" with that sort of animation, but kept it secret.

Bakshi's next, now nearing completion, is called "American Pop" and carries the realistic techniques of "Lord Of the Rings" even further.

But Bakshi doesn't think too much should be made of the way in which he works. He says that a technique, such as the one he is using, is only a technique, nothing more.

"People talked about it as revolutionary," he says, "but it isn't. It's just a technique."

SKETCHES FROM Ralph Bakshi's next animated film, "American Pop," which carries the realistic techniques of "Lord Of the Rings" even further.

He also objects to some of the rumors — including many that reached print — which said that the technique consisted of using live photographs and simply tracing over them for animation. He says that simply wasn't so.

"We didn't trace over shots at all," he says. "The artists just used the photographs as guides."

He also gets a laugh — a very hollow one — out of the stories that this technique made animation cheaper. He says it is, in fact, more expensive.

"Just the photographs alone," he says, "cost me five bucks apiece."

As for "American Pop," it is a look at the kinds of pop — music and culture — for close to a century. The film will follow several generations of an immigrant's family, as it lived in Russia in 1890 and came to the United States in 1900, showing the involvement of each generation in the music of that particular era. And on down to the present.

"It's about the American melting pot," Bakshi (himself a product of a Russian immigrant family) says. "In a way, it is an animated 'Roots.'"

He likes to kid around and calls "American Pop" "probably the worst movie of all time — it may very well end my career." But you can tell that, in reality, he is very proud of it.

But you can also tell that making an animated feature film these days is terribly hard work. Bakshi heads a team of about 100 artists.

Situations you may not have been able to control in the past couple of years will be changing for you this coming year. Good friends may play a part in helping you make large strides in your chosen endeavor.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Look at the philosophically today and you'll be a winner with very little effort. You may even be able to gain a friendship you'd like to cultivate. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph letter, which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Good things will be coming your way today, provided you let other do for you what you'd do for them if the roles were reversed.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Get in touch today with persons whose relationships need firming-up. You should find your views are on the same wavelength, and much can be accomplished.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Conditions favor talking to people today who can do things for your work or career. Deal directly with them. Good things could happen.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Follow your nobler instincts today and you should sparkle and shine, no matter who you're involved with. All will find your ways extremely appealing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Changes that will prove quite beneficial to you may be in the offing today. You may not have direct control over what's happening, but you'll like it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Necessary changes may finally be made that could turn this into a red letter day for you materially. The changes might involve your work or career.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You may find yourself in the limelight socially today, even if you aren't seeking it. The reason: diplomacy you employ with all those you meet.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) The power within you that could make you a winner today is positive thinking. With this no hurdle is too high for you to get over.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Alliances you make today could be of major importance. Cement strong bonds while the aspects favor partnership agreements.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Do a good job today. Those who are in the position to make things easier for you are looking over your shoulder. They'll be generous with the rewards.

Sweet tooth raises consumers' cost as sugar prices are upped

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Consumers with a sweet tooth are out of luck. An Associated Press marketbasket survey shows sugar prices went up sharply last month, helping boost family grocery bills by half a percent.

The AP drew up a random list of food and non-food items and checked the prices at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973. Prices have been rechecked on or about the start of each month since then.

Among the highlights of the latest survey:

- The marketbasket went up during May at the checklist store in eight of the cities surveyed and decreased in four. It was unchanged in one city — Detroit. On an overall basis, the average marketbasket bill was half a percent higher at the start of June than it was a month earlier. That compares with a 1 percent increase during April.
- Comparing prices today with those at the start of the year, the AP found that the average marketbasket bill went up 3.1 percent. In the same five months of 1973, the survey showed the bill up 4.3 percent.

Sugar was to blame for May's price rises. The price of a five-pound sack of sugar went up at the checklist store in 12 cities and was unchanged in the 13th — Boston. The average increase in the price of sugar at the checklist stores last month was 16 percent; the average rise since the first of the year was 53 percent.

The price of sugar in the AP survey — over $2 for a five-pound sack in most cities checked — is higher than it has been in about five years. The U.S. Department of Agriculture reports that in the first quarter of 1980, the wholesale price of a pound of U.S. sugar was about 24 cents and the average retail price was just under 28 cents — the highest since the third quarter of 1975.

When sugar was removed from the marketbasket total, the AP found that grocery bills at the checklist store declined — by 1.2 percent — instead of rising last month.

—Shoppers looking for bargains in the area of protein found savings on eggs and pork chops. The price of a dozen eggs dropped at the checklist store in eight cities last month, while pork chops declined in six cities.

The AP checklist originally included 15 items, but chocolate chip cookies were dropped because the manufacturer discontinued the package size used in the survey.

The AP did not try to weight the survey results according to population density or in terms of what part of a family's actual grocery bill each item represents.

The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, butter, Grade-A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, milk, frankfurters and granulated sugar.

The cities checked were: Albuquerque, N.M., Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, R.I., Salt Lake City and Seattle.

Long dry spell prompts citizens to convene for prayer for rain

SWEETWATER, Texas (AP) — Caught in a six-year drought that threatens to dry out their entire water supply in a year, 500 Sweetwater residents took drastic measures Sunday.

They prayed for rain.

During an afternoon rally on the grounds of the Nolan County Courthouse, they held hands, prayed, and sang hymns to draw public, if not more heavenly attention to their plight.

"Send rain to the watershed," they intoned. "Fill our lakes and fill our hearts to overflowing. Give us the water we need... physically and spiritually."

By the end of the meeting, skies overhead were cloudy. But still no rain.

No matter, said the Rev. Orvel Brantley, organizer of the meeting. "God will respond in His own good time, because He knows we need His help."

Brantley, a native of Godley and pastor of Lamar Street Baptist Church here, arranged for the service after city officials predicted gloom and doom for the water supply.

A "vast spiritual vacuum" in Nolan County has kept the rain from falling, Brantley said.

"I believe he wants to give us rain... more rain than we want," he said to a chorus of "Amen." "But suppose it doesn't rain? Hey, that's God's business."

Last week, City Manager Joe Benton said

unless it rains hard and soon, the city's water supply will be exhausted in a year. City Commissioners have a rationing plan on the back burner in case it doesn't rain. But they opted to encourage voluntary rationing for the time being.

In the meantime, the city waters only the greens on its golf course and only the shrubs in its parks. And residents at the rally said they've all but stopped watering lawns.

Sweetwater lies in the heart of West Central Texas on a watershed that has been blessed with less than four inches of rain this year. Its dry, dusty spells and the irony of its name are famous in Texas.

GOP secretary and Democratic Party feud continues in state

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — If you have the feeling there is a feud on between the Texas Democratic Party and the Republican secretary of state, you are right.

And you can count Attorney General Mark White, a Democrat with strong yearnings for the governor's chair, as a participant.

First and foremost, most Democrats resent the fact that Secretary of State George Strake Jr., the only top statewide official who is appointed instead of elected, is in charge of all Texas election procedures.

Strake, 44, Houston oil man appointed by Republican Gov. Bill Clements as his one-man cabinet, says this is all beyond him. He says he is doing the best he can with Texas' antiquated election laws and tries to treat Democrats as fair as he does Republicans.

Harold Hammett, Fort Worth attorney and chairman of the powerful state Democratic legal affairs subcommittee, agrees to the extent that he thinks "the election code was drafted by a bunch of dropouts from IRS." Otherwise, he usually takes issue with Strake.

One of the biggest differences surfaced last week when White, the state's chief legal advisor, overruled Strake, the state's chief elections administrator, on who could sign petitions for Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill., and other independents for president.

Strake said Democrats who voted May 3 could sign for Anderson because the Democratic presidential primary was a non-binding "beauty contest." White said this was not only contrary to the state election code but violated the Republican party's own rules.

Strake replied that he would accept Democratic signatures on Anderson petitions no matter what White said.

He said White's opinion was "a partisan effort to chill the legal rights of Mr. Anderson and his potential supporters."

Officials of the state Democratic headquarters said if Strake's advice is followed they would file a lawsuit to keep Anderson off the Texas ballot.

On at least three other occasions Strake raised Democratic hackles.

First, he struck down a proposal of the State Democratic Executive Committee that a loyalty oath be added to the official filing forms filled out by political candidates.

Some Democrats, particularly liberals unhappy because a number of conservative Democrats deserted John Hill to vote for Clements in 1978, felt this was necessary. Strake said this was above and beyond the powers of the parties and could only be done by state law.

Then shortly before the May 3 primaries, a good many Democratic county chairmen complained they were not getting the amount of election expense money needed.

State Democratic Executive Director Gary Mauro accused Strake of changing the rules in allocating money for primary elections.

Previously, the allocation was made on primary turnouts, which gave Democrats an edge. Strake said turnouts at previous general elections should be considered.

"This would be like mixing crabapples with oranges," said Hammett.

He advised members of the State Democratic Executive Committee, governing body of the state party, to be "most cautious" in inquiries to the secretary of state.

"Do not accept any secretary of state ruling without giving us a chance to discuss it," he warned.

A more recent incident has been the handling of reports of Democratic county convention reports from the May 10 meetings. The secretary of state supposedly gathers the reports, puts them into the computer and then passes them along to Democratic state headquarters.

Two weeks after the county conventions, there still was no statewide report available on the number of state convention delegates pledged to President Jimmy Carter and Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.

Strake's office says all reports have not been received from county chairmen.

"We can't get the reports from the secretary of state's office," said a top staffer at Democratic headquarters. "We call over there and they say their elections division will be in a staff meeting all day and unable to talk. How's that for an operation?"

"George Strake is just real inexperienced. It's a real strain on the parties," says Mauro. "Bob Bullock and Mark White (former Democratic secretaries of state) were tough and hard-headed, but they never treated Republicans like this."

"Sure, the secretary of state's department has changed," says Strake, "but three-fourths of the elections division is still Democrats. There has been no house cleaning as such. The division's main concern is running a clean election."

Strake says he has enough employees, although he could use a couple of extra attorneys to help answer the telephone.

"The secretary of state's staff is helpful," said Hammett, "once you can get through to them on the telephone."

"I've heard lawyers all over the state complain that they can't get answered, particularly in the corporations or elections divisions," he said.

Corpus Christi taxpayers attempt oust of council

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — A taxpayers organization says it will have 10,000 signatures on recall petitions by Saturday — more than enough to force an election to toss the entire city council out of office.

The Corpus Christi Taxpayers Association must have the signatures of 9,400 registered voters by June 12. More than 2,000 had been collected Sunday, a spokesman for the group said.

"I feel confident we'll have 10,000 by next Saturday," five days before the deadline, said Joe O'Brien, the association's secretary.

The squabble in this South Texas resort city of 240,000 erupted after voters approved a tax-limiting amendment to the city charter in April known as Proposition 14. It reduced the tax rate and limited future property appraisal hikes to 6 percent a year.

The City Council said the amendment violated state law and filed suit in Austin seeking to have it nullified.

The suit named every single taxpayer in Corpus Christi as a defendant and that, O'Brien said, made his organization pretty hot under the collar.

The group met Thursday night and started circulating the petitions.

"I can't give you a reliable count, but I know we have well over 2,000 names so far," O'Brien said. He said he was overwhelmed at the response so far.

Collin County rancher dead; wife claims fear was motive

DALLAS (AP) — Madeline Timmons said she waited behind a door in her $200,000 home to fire the shots that killed her rancher husband because she was afraid he was going to beat her and her children, police said.

William Franklin Timmons, 39, was shot to death during the weekend as he returned home from his Collin County ranch, police said.

Mrs. Timmons was released on a motion filed by her attorney after questioning by homicide investigators.

Officers said a court hearing will be held during the week. No charges were filed in the case.

The woman told police Timmons had beaten her, his 18-year-old son and the couple's 14-month-old daughter several times in the past. She said the shooting came Saturday after she and Timmons had argued on the telephone and after she said Timmons told her "things were really going to get bad when he got home," police said.

FARM SCENE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department isn't making any firm predictions about 1980 crop production costs yet.

But its chief economist says they may go up significantly and that could force changes in the government's farmer-owned reserve program.

"Using projected yields and our latest information with respect to the prices of inputs — and they're very sharp — under those circumstances if yields were at a projected level there will be extremely sharp increases in the cost of producing crops in the United States this year," Howard Hjort says.

"That may require us to relook at the reserve release and call prices," he said.

The release price is the point when a commodity under government loan in the reserve program can be redeemed by the farmer in return for repayment of the loan. The higher call price is the point at which the government requires the farmer to redeem his commodity or forfeit it to the Commodity Credit Corp. for nonpayment of the loan.

The range between the two prices, Hjort said, is intended to form "a band within which the vast majority of our producers would find that their costs were covered."

"While it appears that those bands may be quite justified for corn," he said, "they do appear to be out of line for wheat."

Wheat, which the USDA said was selling for an average of $3.62 a bushel during the last week of May, generally has a release price of $3.50 a bushel and a call price of $4.38. Those are based on the current loan rate of $2.50 a bushel.

Corn, which was selling for an average of $2.42 a bushel, generally has a release price of $2.63 and a call price of $2.94 based on the current loan rate of $2.10.

Hjort said, however, that he sees no changes in terms of the reserve for any commodity in the near future.

"With respect to the wheat cost-of-production, that is a matter that we need to look at," he said. "But it's not one that is on the immediate horizon in terms of potential change."

In connection with the partial embargo on grain sales to Russia, Hjort said the government may have to buy as much as 150 million more bushels of corn if farmers do not increase the amount in the farmer-held reserve.

"The administration has always preferred to have the farmer continue to own his products and have the farmer continue to use the farmer-owned reserve," Hjort said. "We're purchasing corn, really, only because the farmers were not putting a sufficient quantity into the reserve to move the prices to where we believe they otherwise would have been."

Since the embargo, the government has extended participation in the reserve to farmers who would not have been eligible last year in an effort to remove from the market a quantity of corn equal to the embargoed amount.

But while the USDA hoped farmers would put another 235 million bushels in the reserve this spring, they have deposited only another 50 million so far. The situation has forced the Commodity Credit Corp. to directly buy more than 115 million bushels already, and more purchases are expected.

"To short the free supply sufficiently over the summer," Hjort said, "we may have to see farmers take out of the market or the government through purchases as much as 1.2 billion or 1.25 billion bushels of corn."

"The government already owns more than 200 million bushels and farmers are getting close to having 900 million bushels in the reserve," he said. "So there's a certainty that there will be at least 1.1 billion bushels removed from the market and there may have to be as much as 100 million to 150 million bushels more."

The department would rather have farmers use the reserve, he said, but in light of the response so far the CCC "very like will continue to buy some quantity."

He said higher loan rates, as proposed by the agriculture committees of both houses of Congress, would probably increase participation in the reserve. But he indicated the costs of such an increase keep the USDA from supporting them.

"We don't in this department have any problem with the merits of a proposal such as both the Senate and House have reported," Hjort said. "But it does have a budget impact and until that matter gets resolved and the Congress itself finds a way to bring the budget into balance, I think that one is just part of a whole range of other issues."

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the government's cost of borrowing money declining, the Agriculture Department says it's considering a reduction in the interest rate it charges farmers for Economic Emergency Assistance loans.

"We expect a change very soon," said one official, who asked not to be named, "possibly as early as this week."

Last week, a grain-belt congressman complained to Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland that the Farmers Home Administration, which runs the loan program, was moving too slowly in dropping the interest rate. In March, the rate was increased to 14 percent from 11 percent for real estate loans and 12 percent for operating loans.

"To be quite frank, Mr. Secretary, I find it very disturbing that the department would be so quick to increase interest rates and to be so slow in reducing them," Rep. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, said in a letter to Bergland.

Harkin said the interest rate, which is supposed to be based on the cost of borrowing money to the government, should be cut immediately to 10 percent since the government was borrowing money at an average of less than 10 percent in May.

The emergency loan program, set up in 1978, is aimed at helping farmers survive during times of high costs, low prices and tight credit on either a regional or national scale.

Richardson earns MVP honors

LIBERAL, Kan.-Pampa's Kelly Richardson earned another honor when she guided Texas to a 66-56 win over Kansas in a high school all-star basketball doubleheader here Saturday night.

Richardson paced the Texas Panhandle team with 15 points and was named the game's most valuable player. Stinnett's Dena Hart was right behind her with 14 points. Also scoring for Texas were Trish Fortenberry with nine points, Teresa Morehead, eight; Susan Corcoran and Lisa Albert, seven apiece; Alicia Hobby, five, and Sherry Wilson, one.

Denice Bromwell of Plains Southwestern Heights led the Western Kansas squad with eleven points.

Richardson, who is headed for Amarillo College to play basketball next season, was the MVP in the Gold Spread East-West game earlier this year.

Ronnie Faggins of Pampa tossed in 14 points in Texas' 93-84, losing effort to Kansas in the boys game.

Texas led by 10 points, 45-35, at intermission, but Kansas fought back to knot the score at 64-all after three quarters.

Alan Kaufman of Medicine Lodge led the winners with 18 points and was named the game's most valuable player.

Borger's Brett Smith topped Texas with 23 points while Tim Price of Channing added 18. Also scoring were Bruce Ammons, eight; Michael Lewis and Alan Morden, five apiece; Brad Billingsley, four; Robert Guinn, three; Henry Young and Greg Field, two points apiece.

Yarborough wins NASCAR

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Cale Yarborough had a special reason for wanting to win Sunday's NASCAR 400 stock car race at the Texas World Speedway.

He wanted to erase an identity crisis.

Yarborough survived heat and an empty gas tank to win for the second time this year on the NASCAR circuit, and then explained why he wanted to win so badly.

"I just wanted them to know who I was," the spunky, 5-foot-7-inch superstar said. "They threw me out of here last year. You'd think they could recognize the Grand National champion."

Yarborough, one of the most popular and recognized drivers in stock car circles throughout the South, was summarily ejected from the track by two guards prior to last year's race.

"Those guys were as big as that wall and they wanted to fight," Yarborough said. "If I'm not running for the national championship next year, I won't behave."

Yarborough's ejection last year and all other problems were behind him for most of Sunday's race as he ran away from Richard Petty, who finished second, one lap off the pace.

Yarborough's only snag was running out of gas on the 48th lap.

"We had some kind of problem with the fuel tank, it wasn't getting all the gas," he said. "I coasted all the way around the track."

Yarborough had led the race up to that point, but kept his Chevrolet running cool while other leaders dropped out with overheating problems in the sultry 90-degree temperatures.

Dale Earnhardt, the current NASCAR point leader, took the lead after Yarborough's gasoline problems, but fell back when his engine overheated.

Darrell Waltrip and Benny Parsons, winner of last week's World 600, also led the race before developing overheated engines.

Bobby Allison, driving despite a stomach virus, drove his Chevrolet to a third-place finish. Waltrip was fourth, two laps down, and Terry Labonte, a rookie from Corpus Christi, was fifth, three laps off the pace.

Yarborough's winning average speed of 159.094 miles per hour earned him $12,000, putting his career earnings over the $3 million mark. Petty, who is approaching $4 million in career earnings, is the only other driver to earn more than $3 million.

There were no yellow flags in the entire 400 miles of Sunday's race, the first without a yellow flag since the Western 500 in January 1979 at Riverside, Calif.

French Open a test of survival

PARIS (AP) — The question at this year's weather-beaten, upset-ridden French Open tennis championships is not who will win, but who will survive.

No.2 seed John McEnroe was upset in the third round, French hope Yannick Noah was forced to withdraw after a fluke fall while playing against Jimmy Connors on Sunday.

Virginia Wade of Britain, seeded fourth in the women's singles, was dumped 6-0, 6-7, 6-2 by Argentina's 18-year-old Ivanna Madruga in what Wade called "abominable" weather.

Defending women's champion Chris Evert Lloyd was in trouble but survived, coming back from a set down to stave off 16-year-old American Bettina Bunge 4-6, 6-4, 6-3.

"Great champions, even if they play badly and when the court and the weather conditions are bad, still manage to win," Bunge said. "They always manage to come back. That's the difference."

To hear defending champions Bjorn Borg of Sweden and Lloyd tell it, another difference is in the attitude toward losing.

Borg has said that in this two-week tournament, where all men's matches are best-of-five sets, and on the tricky clay, there are more than a dozen players who can knock off the top seeds. And he said it was good for a player to lose from time to time.

Lloyd, who did not look particularly sharp in her scrambling comeback against Bunge, said that for her, the match turned when it first became a "reality" that she might lose.

"I really thought about losing. It was a reality. Everything seemed to be going against me," the 28-year-old Lloyd said. "I relaxed after thinking I could lose. And that thought wouldn't be so bad. As long as you are playing your best, there is no disgrace."

"I have a cold and several of the players are sick," Connors said after winning his match by default against Noah. "One minute it's cold, one minute the sun's shining, another minute it's raining."

Noah, 30, a rising French star who was runner-up to Guillermo Vilas at the Italian Open in Rome, gave Connors a tough time before pulling a leg muscle in diving for a drop shot at the end of the second set. Connors led 7-5, 6-4 when Noah withdrew.

Vilas finished off Britain's Buster Mottram 6-2, 6-2, 6-3, and continued to look strong in the tournament, which he won in 1977. Only Borg has looked better during the first week of competition.

In other matches, American Brian Gottfried upset Czech Ivan Lendl, the No.9 seed, 2-6, 7-6, 1-6, 7-5, 6-3; Harold Solomon, the No.8 seed, also moved into the final 16, whipping fellow-American Van Winitsky 6-7, 6-4, 7-5, 6-4.

Wade, rattled by gusting winds and Madruga's superior handling of the clay surface, said Madruga "makes you make mistakes." "But of course, there was no need to make as many mistakes as I did."

In other play Sunday, Wojtek Fibak of Poland defeated the man who displaced McEnroe, Australian Peter McNamee, 6-4, 6-4, 6-7, 6-3. Vilas Gerulaitis felled another American, Ferdi Taygan, 6-3, 7-5, 6-1, and will meet Fibak in the quarter-finals.

Mahaffey wins Kemper Open

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — John Mahaffey, winner of the $400,000 Kemper Open, suffered from pain as a child and wasn't supposed to walk again, let alone play championship golf.

The 32-year-old Mahaffey made his debut Sunday after winning the Kemper Open with a 23 total, 5 under par over the historical 7,054-yard par-70 Congressional Country Club course, and then struggled over Craig Stadler, the second-place finisher.

Mahaffey revealed that he had pain of the left leg at age 4 when he was asked how he could overcome the physical injuries he has suffered over the past few years, including a hyperextended elbow in the PGA Championship four years ago, and still play winning golf.

"I don't talk about it but I had pain in my left leg and wasn't supposed to walk again," he said. "It's kind of tough when you go through it, seeing the other kids participate in sports. I got through that and played all sports. I believe that if I can dedicate myself, I can do anything. I learned at a very young age about adversity."

Mahaffey, who shot a 2-under par 68 to nail down his 19th PGA Tour title and the $72,000 first prize, did not win it easily even though he finished the tough Congressional course, which threatened to end his career four years ago, with a pair of birdies.

He had to stave off a number of contenders, including Stadler, who bogeyed the last hole; Dr. Gil Morgan, who was the only other under par with a 279, and Lee Trevino who held the lead alone with nine holes to play but who finished with an even-par 278.

Tom Watson, the outstanding player on the tour and leading money-winner, saw his bid for a sixth victory fall short at 281.

Mahaffey said he made what he described as a "senseless bogey" on No. 8 "but that may have inspired me because I played the last 10 holes better than I've ever played before, even in the PGA."

He said that when he reached the last five holes, still tied with Stadler who was playing ahead of him, "I wanted to birdie out." He missed birdie opportunities on 14 and 15, made a 20-footer on 17 that he didn't expect to and saw that Stadler had bogeyed 18, giving him a 2-stroke lead. He then made a 35-foot bird on 18.

"In lieu of what happened to me in 1976, this is a very satisfying win," he said. "There is no revenge involved. This is just a very gratifying win."

In the 1976 PGA Championship at Congressional, Mahaffey suffered an elbow injury and was forced to withdraw. He felt the effects of the injury the following 18 months. He later suffered two other serious wrist and elbow injuries.

"I've had some good breaks," he said, "but I've had some adversities."

Scramble results

Clint Deeds, Dr. Joe Donaldson, Ava Warren, and Gene Brown shot a 12 under par 59 to win an 18-hole scramble Sunday at Pampa Country Club. Harold Friga, Coyle Winborn, Bob Cherry, and Monte Monica were tied with Roy Miller, Jerry Martin, Jim Brashears, and Don Parks for second place.

There were 76 golfers entered in the scramble. The next 18-hole scramble is scheduled for July 12.

American League roundup

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

You can understand a pitcher's plight when he faces the Milwaukee Brewers.

If you get by Paul Molitor, the American League's top hitter with a .364 average, there are still Robin Yount and Cecil Cooper, who are tied for fourth in the league at .343. And if you get by them, you must still face Ben Oglivie, hitting .320 and leading the AL in home runs with 12, and Gorman Thomas, last year's home run champion.

You can also understand why the Boston Red Sox are glad to see the Brewers leave town.

With Molitor, Yount, Cooper, etc., doing their thing, the Brewers put together an eight-run inning for the second straight day Sunday to defeat Boston 8-5.

"We're an explosive ballclub," said Oglivie. "We're a very happy team with guys who help each other. It's a combination of talent. In any situation we can score a lot of runs."

The Red Sox had a 5-0 lead, sparked by home runs by Carlton Fisk and Butch Hobson, when Milwaukee broke loose in the seventh inning.

"Eight is a nice number," Milwaukee interim manager Buck Rogers said. "I hope no one finds out what the secret is. It's nice to put together eight-run innings two days in a row."

Saturday, the Brewers tallied eight runs in the second inning en route to a 19-8 blasting of Boston.

In other games Sunday, the New York Yankees trounced Toronto 11-7, Seattle edged Cleveland 8-7, the Chicago White Sox stopped Kansas City 6-1 and Texas defeated Oakland 7-3. Two games — California at Detroit and Baltimore at Minnesota — were rained out.

Boston starter Steve Renko blanked Milwaukee on two hits for five innings. But the veteran right-hander was forced to retire because of a blister on the middle finger of his right hand.

Yankees 11, Blue Jays 7
Eric Soderholm cracked five hits, Bobby Brown slammed a three-run homer and Graig

Nettles added a two-run shot as New York stopped Toronto to sweep their three-game series.

Soderholm was in the lineup against Toronto's left-handed starter Paul Mirabella, 4-4, and scored the first Yankee run after singling to start the two-run fourth.

Brown's three-run homer and Nettles' two-run shot were included in the 13-hit assault on three Blue Jay pitchers to make Tom Underwood, 5-3, a winner.

Mainers 8, Indians 7
A ninth-inning homer by Larry Cox, hitting .167 at the start of the game, gave Seattle its triumph over Cleveland.

Cleveland had four sacrifice flies to tie a major league record set in 1913 by the Boston Red Sox and equaled by the New York Mets in 1967 and 1972. Five sacrifice flies by both teams also tied a major league record set by the Red Sox and Washington Senators in 1965.

White Sox 6, Royals 1
Britt Burns and Ed Farmer combined to pitch a seven-hitter while Mike Squires and Lamar Johnson provided batting support to lead Chicago past Kansas City.

The 20-year-old Burns, 7-3, gave up five hits before leaving the game in the eighth after developing a cramp in his right hip.

Squires doubled in the third and eventually scored on an infield single. He also singled in the eighth and scored on a single by Johnson, who also scored twice in the game.

Rangers 7, A's 3
Pat Putnam blasted two homers and a single, driving in four runs, as Texas downed Oakland. Danny Darwin, needing last-out help from Sparky Lyle, scattered 12 hits to run his record to 4-1.

Matt Keough, 6-5, took the loss.

Putnam hit a solo homer in the second inning and a three-run blast in the third. Al Oliver also homered for Texas.

The victory snapped a four-game Texas losing streak and Oakland's three-game winning string.

Dale Berra might not be exactly a chip off the old block — but he does get good wood on the ball from time to time.

Sunday was one of those times.

The son of Hall of Famer Yogi Berra knocked in five runs, four with a grand slam homer, to help the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the New York Mets 13-3.

"It's the biggest home run so far for me, and coming against a New York team makes it extra nice," said Berra. "I always get a little more excited when we play against the Mets because my dad managed and coached them for so many years."

The younger Berra played shortstop for the Pirates Sunday only because Tim Lincecum is on the disabled list. He made good use of his time, also collecting an RBI single and a double for his day's work.

Before this command performance, Berra had collected only four RBIs for the season.

"And he used our television to do that," said Mets Manager Joe Torre with a smile. "Yogi was probably in the clubhouse (in New York) watching."

Elsewhere in the National League, the Chicago Cubs edged the Philadelphia Phillies 5-4; the Atlanta Braves pounded the Los Angeles Dodgers 9-5; the San Francisco Giants beat the Houston Astros 6-2; the Cincinnati Reds nipped the San Diego Padres 7-6 and the Montreal Expos stopped the St. Louis Cardinals 7-6 in 12 innings.

Berra's grand slam, the first of his major league career, capped a seven-run fifth inning for the Pirates. He drove a pitch from reliever Mark Bombardieri over the fence in straightaway center at Three Rivers Stadium.

Earlier in the fifth, the Pirates had chased loser Pete Falcone, 3-4, with run-scoring singles by Bill Robinson and Bill Madlock.

Jim Bibby improved his record to 6-1 with an eight-hitter. He struck out five and walked three.

Cubs 5, Phillies 4
Scott Thompson's tie-breaking single with two out in the seventh inning scored Dave Kingman from second base and led Chicago over Philadelphia.

Kingman, who earlier had hit his ninth homer, singled off loser Ron Reed, 3-1, and advanced to second on a wild pitch before Thompson looped his game-winning single to center.

Dick Tidrow, 2-0, was the winner, and Bruce Sutter worked the last two innings to gain his 11th save.

Braves 9, Dodgers 5
Bob Horner hit two homers and drove in four runs to lead Atlanta over Los Angeles.

Glenn Hubbard and Dale Murphy both had three hits as the Braves collected 13 hits off four Los Angeles pitchers.

Doyle Alexander, 2-2, earned the victory with relief help from Rick Camp, who gained his third save. Loser Dave Goltz, 3-4, gave up six runs and eight hits in five innings.

Steveth homer for the Dodgers, a two-run shot in the third, and Dusty Baker hit a three-run homer in the sixth.

Giants 6, Astros 2
Left-hander Bob Knepper overcame a shaky start and Jack Clark knocked in two runs with a double and a sacrifice fly to help San Francisco beat Houston.

Knepper, 4-6, was touched for five hits and two runs in the first three innings, but allowed the Astros only one hit thereafter, retiring 20 of the final 21 batters.

Clark knocked in the Giants' first run with a double in the third inning, then gave them their winning run with his sacrifice fly in the fifth.

Reds 7, Padres 6
Dave Collins socked three hits, scored twice and drove in a run and Johnny Bench walloped a pinch three-run homer to lead Cincinnati past San Diego.

Sheldon Burnside, 1-0, earned his first victory for Cincinnati with relief help from Tom Hume, who earned his seventh save. Burnside had replaced Mario Soto with two out in the fifth inning, when the Padres chased the Cincinnati starter with three runs.

San Diego rookie Gary Lucas, 2-2, gave up nine hits and four runs through 4-3 innings.

Bench's homer in the eighth, off Bob Shirley, eventually turned out to be the winning hit as 5-6.

MIAMI (AP) — Major league scout Vince Cepece says he didn't see any baseball players worth signing when he visited refugee camps to check out the first Cuban talent to reach the United States in nearly 20 years. Most other scouts are wary of the

ARE AMONG THE MANY Cuban players who've played in the major leagues.

Tony Perez, playing first base for the Boston Red Sox, and Luis Tiant, now pitching for the New York Yankees, were among the last players to come out of Cuba before Fidel Castro shut the island nation off from American baseball. Tiant's first year in the U.S. minor leagues was 1962.

Some baseball players who have turned up among the refugees who left Cuba have dreamed of having a chance at the major leagues.

"I would give my left arm to play in the major leagues," said Eduardo Cajuao, a 23-year-old shortstop. "All I've ever dreamed of is playing in the big circus. I would only ask for my right arm and legs so I could play well."

Cajuao is one of the players Pena mentioned to the Tigers.

"What I hear, he is supposed to be the best shortstop to come out of Cuba since Willie Miranda," Pena said. "The way some people talk, he can play Triple A ball right now. I've seen him. Already, he is a better fielder than (Detroit regular shortstop Alan) Trammell."

NEW YORK (AP) — After 10 years away from his bumbling work as a secret agent, Maxwell Smart is once again embroiled in espionage. And this time, the Enemy has a secret weapon that'll knock your socks off — and all your other clothes, too. Don Adams is making a comeback, and a move from television to movies, in the "The Nude Bomb."

There's even talk of resurrecting the "Get Smart" TV show or spinning off a series of Smart films if "The Nude Bomb" doesn't bomb at the box office.

Adams, 54, apparently has gotten over his irritation with the TV series. "The first few episodes I saw angered me so much I felt like throwing the TV though a window. I couldn't stand the laugh track," he told People magazine.

thought it would be nice and cheerful," said the latest Mrs. Charles Addams.

The comical, macabre cartoonist, 68, and the former Marilyn Matthews Miller, 53, wed Saturday, in a picturesque dog cemetery that is the third Mrs. Addams' "favorite place in the world."

The wedding took place behind Addams' property, Toad Hall, in Water Mill, Long Island, under a Japanese pine tree in the burial plot of five dogs and one turtle. Among the guests were 20 friends and four dogs, including Alice B. Carr and New Dog.

The wedding was kept secret, even from the invited guests, who thought they were going to be celebrating Addams' honorary degree from the University of Pennsylvania.

Honeymoon plans for the creator of Morticia, Gomez, Cousin It, Lurch and Uncle Fester, and his wife were modest. They plan to stay in Long Island. "We're going to a motel in Garden City," Mrs. Addams said.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three burglars, one of whom was armed with a 22-caliber rifle, walked in through a glass sliding door at the home of actor Darren McGavin and his wife Kathie Browne McGavin, roughed up the couple and took $6,000 in appliances and silver.

Fuel-efficient compacts

By the Editors of Consumer Reports

Sub-compact cars generally deliver excellent fuel mileage, but you may need more interior space than such small vehicles provide. If that's the case, a somewhat larger, but fuel-efficient compact model may be a good alternative.

Four compacts tested by Consumer Reports' auto engineers delivered fair to good fuel mileage. They also provided seating for five to six adults and were priced at around $6,000, including power steering, power brakes and air-conditioning. At today's prices, $6,000 is relatively inexpensive.

All four cars had automatic transmission — not as good as manual transmission for fuel mileage, but in the tested models, found more convenient and easier to use. Front-wheel-drive Chevrolet Citation was judged best, followed by Ford Fairmont, AMC Concord, and Dodge Aspen.

Consumer Reports' tests indicate that a four-cylinder Citation (or other similarly-equipped GM X-cars including Buick Skylark, Oldsmobile Omega and Pontiac Phoenix) can be expected to deliver outstanding fuel mileage combined with good acceleration.

In a 195-mile test trip — combining highway and stop-and-go driving conditions — the Citation yielded 28 miles per gallon. (The MPG rundown for the other models was: Fairmont 26.4; Concord, 24.3, and Aspen, 19.1.)

The Citation engine did hesitate slightly during warm-up, but its performance was much improved over that of early production X-cars Consumer Reports tested last year.

For seating space, the Aspen was the standout. It had room enough to fit six adults comfortably, one more than the other test models. In fact, interior space, along with excellent climate control, are the strong points of the Aspen and its twin, the Plymouth Volare.

Still, the Aspen's standard six-cylinder engine doesn't offer very good fuel mileage. And had repair records for previous models of both the Aspen and the Volare (recorded in surveys of Consumer Reports' readers) count against them.

The Fairmont and its corporate twin, the Mercury Zephyr, have decent frequency-of-repair records. And, although the Fairmont wasn't tops in fuel efficiency, it did provide good handling and good climate control.

While fuel mileage is important to most drivers, cruising range is a significant feature to many. The Concord, with its 22-gallon fuel tank, has an extraordinary cruising capacity.

Note, however, that in Consumer Reports' tests a 5-foot-tall driver had to stretch very hard to reach the accelerator and brake pedals and the headlight dimmer switch. Still, for drivers tall enough to operate this car comfortably, it provided a smoother ride than other tested compacts and its engine generally ran well.

For road test data and price information on the four tested compact cars, see the February 1980 issue of Consumer Reports. It also contains brand-and-model ratings of refrigerator-freezers and laundry boosters. (To order, send $1.25 to: From Consumer Reports, P022, Box 9000, Orangeburg, N.Y., 10962.)

If interior space, fuel economy and low sticker price are your three main considerations, several GM models not tested for this report may be worth looking into. Consumer Reports' earlier experience with the Buick Century, Chevrolet Malibu, Oldsmobile Cutlass and Pontiac LeMans indicates that they would rate about on a par with the Chevrolet Citation.
