Carter concedes - no gas tax Thursday

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration conceded today that the president's dime-a-gallon gasoline fee will not go into effect Thursday as planned, even though the government is seeking to quickly overturn a judge's decision blocking the levy.

On Capitol Hill, meanwhile, Treasury Secretary G. William Miller urged Congress to delay action on the fee while the appeal is pending.

Energy Department general counsel Lynn R. Coleman said the administration decided not to press for an appeals court order that might allow imposition of the fee by Thursday, the day it was scheduled to take effect.

"This means the fee does not go into effect Thursday," Coleman told reporters.

Instead, Coleman asked for — and received — from U.S. District Judge Aubrey E. Robinson Jr. an order that requires companies that would be affected by the fee to maintain appropriate records, giving the administration the ability to quickly impose the fee if the appeals court reverses Robinson's decision of Tuesday which blocked the levy.

Coleman said the administration would file later today its appeals briefs with two appellate courts — the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia and the Temporary Emergency Court of Appeals.

Miller, testifying before a House Ways and Means trade subcommittee, said, "While the matter is thus before the courts, I strongly recommend that the subcommittee defer its own review of the issue."

However, subcommittee chairman Charles Vanik, D-Ohio, said he had no intention of again postponing his panel's vote on legislation to block the fee.

Five killed in Michigan tornado

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — Downtown Kalamazoo looked like a jigsaw puzzle with several pieces missing today after several deadly tornadoes ripped through the city and outlying areas, killing five people and causing $40 million in damage.

"It reminds me of a bombed-out city," said Gov. William Milliken after a 45-minute tour of the damage Tuesday night.

Two tornadoes in Kalamazoo, a city of 90,000, and twisters in four adjacent townships in Van Buren County — Bangor, Arlington, Waverly and Armenia — injured 65 people and left about 1,200 people homeless, officials said.

Kalamazoo Mayor Edward Annen Jr. said the damage figure could increase after more inspection today. Milliken declared a state of emergency in Kalamazoo and the four townships.

City officials originally said seven people had died but that figure was reduced to five early today when it was discovered that one of the reported victims had not died and another had been counted twice, according to officials at Bronson Methodist Hospital.

By early this morning, Kalamazoo police had reported one looting arrest and one arrest for a curfew violation.

Red Cross officials said most of the homeless apparently were staying with friends and relatives although three emergency shelters were established.

The tornadoes touched down during the Tuesday evening rush hour, tearing apart the city's pedestrian mall, sparking scattered fires and knocking out utilities. The top of the 10-story

Industrial State Bank was ripped off and virtually every window broken, said witnesses.

"It happened so fast, you hardly had time to collect your thoughts or prayers," said the Rev. Lewis Briner.

Clifford Smith said he tried to turn his car around and escape when he saw a funnel cloud about half a block away.

"The next thing I knew, I was gone," Smith said. "I could feel it lift up the car."

Smith's airborne auto was slammed against the side of the federal building, but he escaped uninjured.

The Kalamazoo twisters followed by one day tornadoes in Missouri and Pennsylvania that did millions of dollars worth of damage. In Missouri, 33 people were hurt, most of them in Sedalia, where the mayor estimated damage at $45 million to $49 million.

In Kalamazoo, two women, Christina Wellington, 26, and Lucia McFall, 64, both of Kalamazoo were crushed when winds blew off the back wall of a department store. Mazie Gilman, 31, of Kalamazoo died inside a laundromat when a wall collapsed on her, police reported. Ten other persons inside the laundry escaped serious injury.

Raymond Moyer, 67, of Kalamazoo was killed after being blown off the top of a fuel truck, and Francis Hardy, 49, of Paw Paw, died when a tree toppled onto him as he rode his motorcycle through a downtown park.

The governor sent 230 Michigan state police troopers to Kalamazoo and said a request for federal disaster assistance would be made after discussions with local officials.

Deadlock broken on Rock Island Railroad

WASHINGTON (AP) — A legislative deadlock that could have ended all service over the bankrupt Rock Island Railroad has been broken, and congressional leaders now expect final action on the bill in 10 days.

After funding for a month over development of new high-speed, intercity rail passenger corridors, House and Senate negotiators reached a compromise on that plan Tuesday.

The agreement, which could be ratified by the full House and Senate before the end of next week, opens the way for preservation of service by other railroads over about half the Rock Island's 7,000 miles of track, primarily by setting up a plan to protect employees who lose their jobs because of the court-ordered liquidation of the line. It also authorizes $750 million to complete the $2.5 billion improvement program on Amtrak's Northeast Corridor between Boston and Washington.

"All in all it was a matter of compromise and we did get a bill I think we can live with," said Senate Commerce Committee Chairman Howard Cannon, D-Nev.

The Senate and the Carter administration had supported the Rock Island and Northeast Corridor sections of the $1 billion rail package. But both opposed the House plan for $105 million to begin work and buy equipment for 13 proposed intercity passenger corridors with a reservation of another $850 million in oil "windfall profits" taxes to build them.

Transportation Secretary Neil Goldschmidt warned the president could veto the entire package if the so-called emerging corridor section was retained.

In an attempt to break the impasse, the Senate agreed last month to an administration proposal for a $5 million study of the new corridors and then finally accepted $38 million for that study plus another $25 million for new Amtrak equipment.

Farm-belt lawmakers, led by Kansas Republican Sen. Nancy Landon Kassebaum, had been pushing for quick passage of the bill so continued service over much of the midwestern Rock Island could be preserved as the harvest season begins.

Since federal operating subsidies expired March 23, half the Rock Island's 13-state system has been shut down and some 17 other railroads have been running "the other half" under government authority that ends May 31.

The Rock Island section of the bill extends that authority indefinitely, provides $15 million in government funds for emergency operating subsidies and allocates another $25 million to help non-railroad interests buy segments of the Rock Island other railroads are not interested in.

Pampa pumps get gasohol

The alternative fuel, gasohol, will be available in Pampa starting Thursday with the unveiling of a golden pump at the Hobart street Wil-Mart, store officials said today.

"We're shooting for an 11:30 opening of the new pump," said Jerry Wilson of Wil-Mart. A small ceremony will be conducted featuring the Wil-Mart officials, Larry Taylor of Taylor Petroleum, Inc. — the Diamond Shamrock representative here — and Floyd Watson and Luther Robinson of the First National Bank.

While the ceremonies will be conducted at the Hobart street store, he said, the gasohol will be available beginning Thursday at the O. J. Trimble station and the Amarillo Highway Shamrock.

It can also be obtained at the Wil-Mart on Frederic when the store opens in late May, he said.

The premium quality unleaded fuel is being blended at Diamond Shamrock's McKee refinery located near Dumas in Moore County.

The gasohol pump can be identified at participating Diamond Shamrock stations by the golden colored pump.

"This new, higher octane premium quality motor fuel can be charged on the Diamond Shamrock credit card," said Bob Heard, vice president of the company's sales department.

Gasohol is a blend of motor fuel that is 90 percent gasoline and 10 percent alcohol, he said. Ethanol in the product is produced by fermenting and distilling agricultural crops from this area such as corn, wheat, grain sorghum and sugar crops, Heard explained.

AND NOW FOR THE GOOD NEWS . . . About 800 students at Pampa High School, or two-thirds of the entire student body, took an hour this morning to voluntarily clean the high school grounds and surrounding residential areas, from Kentucky Street north to the high school, including yards, alleys, streets and even the city cemetery. Above, Lynn Pyle, left, and Carl McQueen remove litter from a yard in the 1300 block of Christine Street. The clean-up is a part of Clean Up, Paint Up, Fix Up month in Pampa, now entering its second week. (Staff Photo)

OKC liquidates after Wall Street story

DALLAS (AP) — OKC Corp., haunted by an internal report that reached government agencies and the news media, has announced that its stockholders voted overwhelmingly to liquidate the company and sell most of its assets.

Results of the proxy vote were announced to about 100 shareholders at a meeting Tuesday. Many of them carried copies of Tuesday's Wall Street Journal, which contained a story about the Dallas-based oil refiner and cement producer.

The Journal overcame a temporary restraining order, which sought to delay publication of the article. State District Judge Joe Fish, who granted OKC the order Friday, reversed himself Monday and dissolved the order at a hearing requested by attorneys for Dow Jones & Co., which publishes the Journal. Shareholders voted by a margin of more than 400 to 1 to liquidate and dissolve OKC and to sell its Oklahoma and Louisiana cement divisions.

Cloyce Box, chief executive of OKC, apologized to stockholders for the "bit of confusion" that has enveloped the company recently.

Besides the court action involving the Journal, the company has been fighting investigations by the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Energy Department.

Box said the company was "close to an agreement with the Department of Energy" that would clear OKC of price-gouging allegations.

The Journal article, however, quoted an attorney for Box as saying OKC's chairman "is facing imminent indictment" for criminal violations of federal securities law. Box has refused to comment on any of the allegations against him.

In an effort to limit the investigations, OKC has initiated more than 20 court suits and other actions since 1978. The Journal said one objective of the suits was to keep secret information in an internal investigatory report made by a Dallas law firm commissioned by OKC.

The article said the court actions succeeded in delaying the SEC's investigation for more than a year, and allowed OKC to locate and fire an employee who helped provide the SEC with a copy of the report.

OKC attorneys had tried to prevent the Journal from publishing excerpts of that report, saying it was confidential and protected by the attorney-client privilege.

The Journal article detailed claims that Box and some of his associates were "involved in a number of questionable transactions with OKC."

While the company's earnings and stock prices have roughly tripled in three years, the Journal said, OKC's board urged stockholders to approve the plan because liquidation would yield them more than they "may reasonably expect to obtain through the normal market transactions for OKC common."

Findings of the internal investigation were never disclosed to shareholders, the newspaper said.

Appeals court prohibits closed court proceedings

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas judges are prohibited by state law from closing hearings and trials in criminal cases, the Court of Criminal Appeals said today.

The court held that State District Court Judge I.D. McMaster of Houston was wrong in issuing an order barring the public and news reporters from a habeas corpus hearing sought by Vernon McManus, sentenced to death in the 1976 slaying of Paul Cantrell.

The hearing has not been held, and the court said McManus was premature in requesting one since his conviction is on appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

But the court majority dealt with the issue anyway because it said it expected the matter to arise in McManus' case in the future.

Judge Sam Houston Clinton Jr.'s opinion said the court was not faced with a constitutional issue involving "tensions between freedom of the press, the public right to know and right of an accused to a fair public trial."

"Indeed, we do not address the constitutional provisions at all, for the Legislature of Texas has provided the standard to be applied in the unusual circumstances of the causes before us," the opinion said. Clinton said the Texas Code of Criminal Procedure "plainly and unequivocally" requires that "The proceedings and trials in all courts shall be public."

A habeas corpus hearing, Clinton said, is "a proceeding." The opinion said McMaster, therefore, "was not authorized to order closed the proceeding that the statute commands shall be open to the public."

McManus' conviction was upheld by the Court of Criminal Appeals last December, but McManus, a former assistant football coach at Lamar University, appealed to the Supreme Court.

He also filed a motion with McMaster to have his conviction overturned on the ground he was denied effective assistance of counsel because his lawyer was having an affair with his wife and subsequently married her.

police report

The Pampa Police Department responded to 16 calls during the 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. today.
Danny McGill Daugherty, 30, of Star Rt. 2 pleaded guilty in civil court to criminal mischief charges and was fined $28.50 by city judge, Jean Martindale.
The charges came as the result of a fire in the city jail at 3:20 Tuesday morning discovered by police dispatcher, Evonne Cash. Hearing the fire alarm, Cash alerted two officers on duty at the time. The two patrolmen, J.D. Smith and Sgt. George Keely, extinguished the flames before cans of paint and paint thinner stored in the jail area became involved.
Police speculate Daugherty had found matches in the cell he had been placed in earlier on charges of drunk driving. He had used the matches to ignite some rags and papers.
The matches had probably been left in the cell by a trustee, Police Chief J. J. Ryzman said.

IT'S A WHAT? - Greenbelt Lake fisherman, Katie Taylor of Pampa, has fished Panhandle waters for years...and with little luck. Finally, on Mother's Day, Ms. Taylor obtained a record - that for catching the largest GOLDFISH ever taken from the lake! No, it is not a carp...it's a plain old fish bowl variety of gold fish. The fact it weighs two pounds and came from a lake makes the fete not so plain. Since the trophy is probably not edible, or at least not palatable, and since it won't fit in an aquarium, Ms. Taylor will probably just drag it around on the leash for a few days and turn it loose, but not in Greenbelt. It could grow some more and give the record to another fisherman someday.

Bankruptcy hits all-time

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Brad and Kathleen Calhoun, a young married couple, were cruising near Easy Street a few years ago. They had a child, good jobs and their annual income topped $20,000. Today the Calhouns, like thousands of other couples, are in bankruptcy court.
More than 300,000 people and businesses are expected to file bankruptcy petitions for the year ending June 30, the highest number since the government started keeping such figures in 1948.
"Times are tough, and for the last six months times have been getting even tougher," says John K. Pearson, assistant U.S. trustee for Kansas and Colorado.
Nowhere is the onset of recession more apparent than in the nation's bankruptcy courts, where everyone from the overextended credit-card user to the down-on-his-luck businessman goes, for protection from creditors.
Brad Calhoun was in the insurance business in Tulsa, Okla., when the couple bought their first home. Soon, they bought a new, bigger home. Then Brad got a better job in Houston.

But the cost of living there was high. And Kathleen, pregnant with their second child, encountered medical problems and had to quit her job. She was in and out of hospitals for the next two years; medical insurance didn't begin to cover it all.
The Calhouns moved to Pratt, Kan., to be near Kathleen's parents. Brad, 27, took a job at half the pay and Kathleen, 26, began to recuperate. But the family budget was ailing.
"It seemed like we were always borrowing money to pay our bills," Mrs. Calhoun says now. "We'd take out a loan to consolidate our bills, but then we owed the loan company."
The Calhouns couldn't make any headway. When they filed for bankruptcy this spring they listed more than $18,000 in debts. Their assets were less than $5,000.

TESCO will file for a $123 million increase

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — Texas Electric Service Company officials say the company will file a request for a $123 million increase in system-wide revenues Thursday with Texas Public Utility Commission.
The proposed rate increase represents an overall increase of about 17.7 percent in revenues for TESCO. The request for increased rates to generate the additional revenue will be filed at PUC offices in Austin.
TESCO serves 78 cities in North, Central and West Texas.
"Costs associated with providing electricity to the people we serve are higher today than they were a year ago because of inflation," TESCO President Bill Marquardt said Tuesday.

A typical residential customer who electric bill averaged $40 a month will pay about $10 more under the proposed hike.
TESCO also expects to pass on to customers fuel adjustment increases that reflect the cost of higher-priced natural gas as a result of contracts that will expire at the end of 1980.
The expiration of a natural gas contract with Old Ocean Fuel Company means TESCO will have to pay higher costs.
Those increased costs should add about $5 per month to a customer who has an average monthly bill of $40.

NEW YORK (AP) — Videotape is emerging as a potent and versatile communications tool for business. Since 1975, the number of businesses employing video has risen 25 percent annually, says Dan Roberts of US JVC Corp., a manufacturer of industrial video products.
"Properly and creatively used, videotape can add excitement and impact to a business message."
In a growing number of corporations, he says, videotape is taking the place of film or slides for much of their training and communications.

Salvation Army notes 100 years

By DEBORAH BRIDGES
Of The Pampa News

"What most people don't realize is the Salvation Army is actually a church," Lt. David Craddock says. Few people of Pampa are aware that Lt. Craddock and his wife, Cherry are both ordained ministers who regularly conduct religious services at the Army's church located at 701 S. Cuyler.

When the average person thinks of the Salvation Army, they see the blue uniforms with the red shield, the tambourines of the band, the thrift store, the collection boxes.

"I see these endeavors as an extension of our Christian outreach," Mrs. Craddock says. It's the practical side of the ministry of Jesus, the lieutenant further explains.

Mrs. Craddock referred to the Army's founder William Booth's philosophy of "taking care of the whole man..."

May 12 - 18 is the national observance of Salvation Army week. A proclamation officially designating the week in Pampa was signed by Mayor H.R. Thompson Jr.

"The Salvation Army has a long-standing record of service in Pampa," said Thompson. "and this year is a particularly important one for the Army, since it marks the organization's 100th anniversary in the United States. National Salvation Army Week honors the year-round efforts of the dedicated men and women who reach out to our community's needs."

The Thrift Store and sending children to the Army's summer camps near Dallas-Ft. Worth are two projects special to the Craddocks.

"An area where the people really support us is through the thrift store," Lt. Craddock says. "The drop boxes are always full. This is a way where people can help other people."

Clothes donated to the Army are always helpful, he says, because even the ones not useable for resale can be "ragged" and sold to a company in Dallas.

"People sometimes say 'Why are you selling these things for money when you get them free?'" says Craddock.

"Well, they don't understand that the $1.25 for a dress or $.75 for a pair of pants paid at the store goes for building rent, utilities, employee wages and the expenses of a vehicle to pick up the donated articles," he says.

"The only area where we are limited is in unseable furniture and appliances, because we don't have a place to store them or people to repair them like some of the bigger cities," he adds.

Through donations last summer, he says, 25 people from Pampa were able to attend a Salvation Army summer camp.

The camps are important for many reasons, the Craddocks say.

However, to Lt. Craddock, one particular incident which occurred last summer typifies what it means to him.

A young boy named Mike was having a terrible time at the camp, Craddock relates. The boy — from a broken home — was unable to get along with the other children, would not join in and eventually, he ran off.

After Mike was found, he remembers, he was sent to put Mike and another child who ran away on a work detail.

The boy was belligerent, Lt. Craddock said, and finally after "cussing out" the lieutenant, Mike threw down his trash sack and said he had had it at this camp, for Craddock to call his mother and send him home.

The captain of the camp, he said, called Mike's mother apprising her of the situation and asked if they should send the boy home. The mother said the captain had her permission to spank Mike and that the boy was not to be sent home.

The captain walked out of the office, Craddock remembers, pulling a leather belt from his pants and told Mike, "Your mother told me to beat the tar out of you."

Grabbing the boy, he says, the captain dragged him into his office and spent two to three hours counseling with the boy who afterwards became a model camper.

The spanking was never necessary, Craddock says, what the boy needed was understanding and love and attention and he did not know any other way to get it.

The happy ending to the story was, Mrs. Craddock says, at the end of the camp when awards were being given. Mike received the largest trophy for being the "most improved camper."

This story, Craddock says, exemplifies why these camps are needed.

The latest project for the Pampa Salvation Army chapter, the Craddocks say, is the beginning of a monthly senior citizens luncheon and fellowship to be held at the Army's offices on S. Cuyler.

The Army's board okayed a luncheon program to start in June where senior citizens can go for a free lunch and an afternoon of fellowship and games, they say.

In these and many other ways, the Salvation Army has served the country for 100 years.

THE SALVATION ARMY THRIFT STORE "is one of the areas where the people really support us," said Lt. David Craddock head of Pampa's division of the Army. Betty McPherson, an employee of the store, is shown placing a pair of pants on a rack of clothes. The Army's thrift store is one of several community projects the Salvation Army conducts as part of the church's service program.

Air fare hike okayed in U. S.

By HOWARD BENEDICT

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board has given U.S. airlines authority for the largest air fare increases ever, but doesn't expect any immediate, dramatic ticket price hikes.

And if air passengers are abused by too-high fares, the board said, it could change its mind.

The CAB ruled Tuesday that carriers can:

—Charge whatever they feel the market will bear on flights up to 200 miles;

—Hike prices as much as 50 percent on flights of 201 to 400 miles; and —Raise fares 30 percent on longer flights.

The increases apply to flights in the 48 adjacent states. The board expects to decide by Friday on international fare hikes and within two weeks on fares to Hawaii, Alaska and Puerto Rico.

Present ticket prices are based on a standard industry fare level set by the CAB. The board said airlines can file for the new rates immediately and that some could take effect by Thursday.

The Airline Deregulation Act of 1978 calls for lifting all air fare ceilings by the end of 1982. The board's action Tuesday, a major step in that direction, will give members a chance to assess the impact of fare flexibility to see whether it feels changes are needed in the law.

The move also is aimed at aiding an industry hard pressed by soaring fuel prices and other operating costs. Industry profits dropped dramatically in 1979, and in the last three months the industry reported its worst quarterly financial showing ever.

To help carriers offset climbing operating costs, the board in the last 16 months has granted fare increases totaling 37.2 percent, including a 5.4 percent rise May 1.

Children rescued in San Antonio flood

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A dramatic battle for survival was won Tuesday night by two San Antonio brothers who traveled almost a mile in turbulent, rain-swollen waters of a storm drain before literally hanging on for dear life to a ladder leading up to a manhole to waiting police and firemen.

The drama began about 8 p.m. when violent thunderstorms lashed San Antonio, dumping up to two inches of rain in some parts of the city as winds whipped close to 60 mph in some places.

During the downpour, 12-year-old Daniel Hughes slipped into an open drainage ditch at Babcock Road and Wilson Boulevard a short distance from the families home.

His brother, Leonard, 16, tried to reach him and followed Daniel as the swirling waters carried him downstream.

"I tried to throw tree branches in for him to grab, but I couldn't reach him. It was funny at first, then I got scared and wanted to get him out," Leonard said.

Leonard then said he fell in, but was surprised by the depth and swiftness of the current. The powerful water carried the pair into part of the channel which goes underground, and Leonard recalled, "When we started going underground, I didn't think we were going to get out alive."

In the darkness of the storm drain, Leonard managed to catch up with his little brother and the two clutched each other as the rapidly rising waters roared through the culvert.

Police and fire units, meanwhile, had rushed downstream and were flipping open manhole covers, trying to determine the whereabouts of the two brothers.

Finally, after being carried almost a mile, Leonard said he grabbed the railings of a ladder at a manhole. Leonard said he struggled to get onto the ladder and hold his brother.

Police and fire units pulled them from the ladder. The two were rushed to Bexar County Hospital where they were treated for minor bruises and shock and later were released.

Death suit settled against Texas witches

DIMMITT, Texas (AP) — Attorneys have declined to reveal details of a wrongful death suit settlement reached between self-avowed witches Loy and Louise Stone and the parents of a teen-age girl killed on the Stone's property.

Roxanna Casas, 15, was killed instantly Halloween night 1977 by a shotgun blast that hit a pickup truck as it turned into the Stone's driveway. Two of three other youths riding in the vehicle were wounded by the blast.

Jurors in Plainview acquitted Stone of murder in the case Feb. 1. Criminal charges are still pending against Mrs. Stone.

Raul and Karen Casas, sued the Stones for an amount to be set by the court. Attorneys for both sides came to terms

Friday, and District Judge Van Stovall signed an order Monday dismissing that suit.

The Casas' attorney, John Maner of Lubbock, said Tuesday the suit was settled in favor of the Casas and the money was paid. The Casas had no comment on the case.

"The law in Texas provides for no pain and suffering element in the death of a minor" when death occurs instantly, Maner said. "The damages are limited. It's almost criminal in my book. The law has a cruel outlook in my opinion."

There has not yet been a trial or settlement in two other civil suits filed against the Stones by the families of the wounded youths. The suits seek a total of $200,000.

District Attorney Jimmy Davis said previously if the civil cases are settled, he would consider dropping murder charges against Mrs. Stone. "If they are settled, we'll just have to review" the criminal case, Davis said.

Council calls for cold turkey break to metrics

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Metric System Advisory Council has called for a cold-turkey break from inches, ounces and the other measures we are used to.

The council Tuesday approved a resolution suggesting industry go to packing products in metric sizes — rather than using existing sizes and listing metric equivalents.

The council was formed to recommend ways for the state to assist in the transition to the metric system.

At Tuesday's meeting, council members said consumers can be confused by the decimals and fractions needed when converting from the English system to the metric measurements.

What they want to avoid, for example, is milk sold in quart containers that would also show that the container has 95 liters of milk. They would prefer milk sold by the liter.

Council member Walter Cunningham of Houston favored the cold turkey approach. He said listing both systems of measurements confuses shoppers and breeds resentment to the metric system.

"I can think of no surer way to slow (the conversion to the metric system) down," said Cunningham.

Frank Eikenburg of Plano agreed, saying the switch might be difficult for some consumers to accept at first.

"But we might as well go ahead and bite the bullet now or 10 to 20 years from now we will have really messed ourselves up," he said.

Alice Kidd, a council member representing the Texas Education Agency, agreed that trying to maintain both systems causes confusion. She said public schools in Texas now teach the metric system separately, without dwelling on comparing metric measurements with their English system equivalents.

Charles Forester of the Texas Department of Agriculture said a switch to metric sizes could create business expenses that will be passed on to consumers.

The council also heard a report concerning the switch to metric measurements at Texas gas stations. Staff member Chuck Newell said over 1,000 service stations in the state now pump gas by the liter.

"Indications are that several other oil companies are now in the process of converting to metric pump dispensers in Texas, but the conversion is not to the point where the companies wish to make the conversion public," Newell said.

He said pump conversion is progressing rapidly in Texas coastal areas, but much more slowly in North and West Texas.

Budget 'balance' collapsing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress' drive to produce the first balanced federal budget in 12 years appears near collapse, the victim of a worsening economy, an inability to control spending and a federal court's rejection of President Carter's dime-a-gallon gasoline fee.

The effort has been dealt a series of blows this week, perhaps the most severe coming Tuesday when a federal judge struck down Carter's fee, which would have raised $10 billion in fiscal 1981, which starts Oct. 1.

Loss of the fee — scheduled to take effect Thursday — automatically unbalanced the Senate's 1981 proposed budget and left the House spending plan with scant reserve to cope with a deepening recession.

House and Senate negotiators also showed little restraint Tuesday in revising the 1980 budget, which they hoped to finish today before turning to the 1981 budget.

The negotiators repeatedly accepted higher House spending figures on domestic programs and, for defense, adopted an amount $1.5 billion higher than either the House or the Senate favored.

The negotiators' actions raised the prospect of a $44 billion 1980 deficit if the higher spending trend continues. Last fall, Congress projected a $29.8 billion 1980 deficit before that was increased by near record-level inflation.

"I am very much concerned that we're going to end up with a 1981 budget that we have no chance of balancing," said Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M. "We are absolutely idiotic to put these kinds of numbers" in the budget.

But Rep. William M. Brodhead, D-Mich., said the higher 1980 spending is needed to pay for programs, like trade adjustment assistance that aids autoworkers hurt by the surge in foreign car imports.

Police patrolman cites paranoia as worst hazard

A patrolman meets many hazards in his line of duty, but one which Patrolman James Laramore believes can be the worst for an officer is paranoia.

"I guess this type of work causes some people to become paranoid," he said, "to think the worst of most everyone they meet."

"That is a hazard of this job," he said.

As a police officer, he said, "contact with the public is limited usually to a certain percentage of the population of a given area."

"Out of so many people, we seem to have the same repeaters of the same people a lot of the time," Laramore said.

"Most of the people we keep coming in contact with a lot of the time become — given the situation — either worse or not as bad as the time before. Then paranoia sets in, and the officer primarily thinks, 'What am I going to meet this time as I come up against the individual?'" he said.

"Again," he adds, "they're only dealing with a very, very low percentage of the people, all of the time."

Laramore has worked three and a half years for the Pampa Police Department, with an interdepartmental transfer to the Amarillo Police Department to serve on the Special Weapons and Tactics force (S.W.A.T.).

Some of his accomplishments include an associate's degree from Amarillo College. 11 personal commendations for arrests and he is a computer programmer.

Negotiators agree on study of Texas Triangle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Compromising between the $55 million proposed by the House and the $5 million by the Senate, negotiators have agreed that $38 million is the right figure for studying new passenger rail routes.

The corridors proposed for improved service include the so-called Texas Triangle between Dallas-Fort Worth, Houston and San Antonio.

The House and Senate have to give final approval to the compromise authorization approved Tuesday by a conference committee. Actual appropriation of the funds is a separate process.

The compromise is included in a measure designed to complete Amtrak's Northeast Corridor with a $750 million authorization and to preserve some of the bankrupt Rock Island Railroad's freight service.

The bill, which does not specify how the funds should be divided among the routes proposed for new corridors, recommends that the studies should be completed by February.

The compromise also includes a $25 million authorization for new Amtrak equipment, although its use would not be limited to the new corridors.

The House had passed an authorization for $50 million in equipment and $55 million for study and design of 13 new intercity rail corridors.

The Senate, under pressure from farm-belt senators anxious to speed the compromise along because of the Rock Island situation, reluctantly approved a $5 million bill for studying the new corridors' feasibility.

The Carter Administration had objected to the emerging corridors proposal as being too costly in a year when the balanced budget is the hottest topic.

Sen. Howard Cannon, D-NeV., the chief Senate negotiator, said he doubted that President Carter would veto the bill although he still hears complaints from the administration that the $38 million is too high.

The compromise deletes the House mention of a possible $850 million authorization at a later date from "windfall" profits tax revenue to complete work on the new corridors.

Rep. Phil Gramm, D-Texas, a supporter of the Texas Triangle, said the compromise should be sufficient to determine the new corridors' viability.

"I think my primary interest has always been trying to make Amtrak a national system instead of a regional system and I have supported the concept of studying the triangle as a way for people in Texas to get some of their money back from supporting Amtrak," he said.

Gramm, who was not on the conference committee, said he planned to support the bill.

Critics of Amtrak point to its heavier service in the Northeast.

Supporters of the Texas Triangle claim that it ranks high in viability among the 13 proposed new corridors.

The other corridors listed in the bill are Cincinnati-Chicago, Cleveland-Chicago, Detroit-Chicago, Los Angeles-Las Vegas, Los Angeles-San Diego, Miami-Jacksonville, New York-Buffalo, St. Louis-Chicago, San Jose-Sacramento, Seattle-Portland, Twin Cities-Chicago and Washington-Richmond.

GTC strike is possibility

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Union leaders can call a strike against General Telephone Co. of the Southwest if negotiators cannot reach agreement on a new pact by Midnight Thursday.

Ballots received by mail and counted Tuesday showed 4,383 in favor and 383 against granting the Communications Workers of America, AFL-CIO, bargaining committee power to call a walkout, said committee chairman T.O. Moses.

The CWA represents about 8,000 company operators, linemen, repairmen, installers, clerks in 400 communities in Texas, Arkansas, Oklahoma and southeastern New Mexico. General Telephone workers in Louisiana are not covered by the CWA.

Although the strike could come as early as 12:01 a.m. Friday, the vote did not rule out the possibility of talks continuing without a strike if union negotiators thought progress was being made. However, negotiations were in recess Tuesday.

New hat is in the ring

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Rep. Craig Washington, a black Democrat who represents a near-downtown district in Houston, has announced he will run for speaker if Bill Clayton abandons his bid for an unprecedented fourth term in the job.

Washington, 38, would be Texas' first black speaker if elected by other House members to be the state's third most powerful officeholder.

But he told a news conference he was confident Clayton would overcome his legal problems and win re-election as speaker. A federal grand jury in Houston is examining evidence against Clayton developed during the FBI's Brillab (bribery and labor) sting investigation.

Washington said he was concerned over the "blitz" by liberal Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, and conservative Rep. Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, to lock in votes for the 1981 speakership. Both have indicated they have a majority.

The 150 House members elect their speaker on the opening day of each regular legislative session.

"I am not running as a black candidate. I happen to be black, as everybody knows. I think I enjoy a better reputation among the members... than John Bryant or Gib Lewis," Washington said.

He said he was concerned over the "fear" that existing speaker campaign tactics generate among members who think they will receive insignificant committee assignments if they fail to commit ahead of time to a winning speaker candidate.

"I want the speaker elected in an atmosphere of calm, reason and wisdom, not fear, panic and chaos," he said.

Washington said he is convinced there is a large pool of uncommitted members who "vividly demonstrate that neither John Bryant nor Gib Lewis is the logical alternative to Speaker Clayton."

Asked if he really thought a black could be elected speaker, Washington said, "I hope we have grown to the point where qualifications mean something. ... I don't delude myself into thinking the use of the secret ballot may not be beneficial to me. ... Some members may not feel comfortable doing it on an open ballot."

Washington, a lawyer, has been in the House since 1973 and has been chairman of the criminal jurisprudence, social services and human services committees.

Sex barriers crumble for news anchor spots

EDITOR'S NOTE — Barely a decade ago, most television news directors restricted the anchor's desk to men, fearing women lacked credibility and authority. This first part of a two-part series examines the status of the anchorwoman today.

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Less than a decade ago, the news anchor's desk was a man's world. Today, more than 150 anchorwomen are on the job at stations in the 90 largest television markets.

"Anchorwomen present no special problems," says Irwin Safchik, news director at KNBC-TV in Los Angeles, reflecting an attitude now common in a profession that once shunned the female anchor as lacking in authority and credibility.

KNBC has two anchorwomen, Kelly Lange on the 6 p.m. news and Tricia Toyota at 11.

Credibility was, for news directors, an important consideration, but stations began to assign women to the anchor's desk in numbers only after the Federal Communications Commission decided in 1971 to include women in its affirmative action program for broadcasting.

That development was accompanied by increasing attention from the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

"There's no difference between anchorwomen and anchorwomen," says William Fyffe, acting news director at Chicago's WLS-TV, where Diane Allen anchors the 5 p.m. news.

"Performance depends entirely on the skill of the person."

"I don't see any special problems," says Paul Steinle, news director at KING-TV in Seattle, which has assigned Jean Enersen to both the evening and late news.

And Fred Barber, news director at Atlanta's WSB-TV, goes a step further: "Stations are learning there is a plus with their audience to have a woman on the air. The audience is a mixed bag of people, and anchorwomen have a nice balance of voice characteristics and looks on the air."

A recent survey by Television News Research, Inc. of New York indicates that equality in the newsroom is becoming increasingly widespread, at least in the number of jobs now open to women.

The TNR survey showed 156 anchorwomen at stations in the 90 largest TV markets, compared with 77 in the first 75 markets in 1978.

While most big city stations now employ anchorwomen — indeed, they were among the first to elevate women to the position — that assignment often is the culmination of a process that begins in a smaller market, often in the West or Southwest.

"A good deal of innovation in television, including the use of female anchors, has come in an area that begins near Seattle and Portland, swoops through the Southwest and South and up to about Richmond, Va.," Riley says.

In fact, 50 of the 156 anchorwomen counted by TNR were in markets 61-90, he says, and the majority of those are in the so-called Sun Belt.

NEXT: A Success Story

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: A year ago, after being married 30 years, I came home and found a note on the kitchen table saying, "So long!" My husband and I had been bickering for several years, but I never thought he'd leave me. (He is 65 and I am 60.)

I worked our entire married life, as we have no children. He refuses to sit down and talk to me or anyone else. All he says is there is nothing to talk about. We both belong to two groups that meet once a month for dinner. When he sees me at these affairs, he sits with me and even pays for my dinner. When I run into him into restaurants, he'll join me and pick up the check, but as soon as I ask him what the future is for us, he turns me off and clams up.

I'm still living in our home and paying all the bills. He knows that I have a well-paying position and can support myself, so he makes no effort to send me any money.

I am going crazy wondering what his intentions are. What do you suggest? Should I just sit tight until he makes a move?

WAITING

DEAR WAITING: Since he left a note saying "So long," and hasn't lived with you since, you can assume that he has deserted you. A lawyer can tell you where you stand legally. Socially, you're a woman without a husband.

DEAR ABBY: I recently came across a book that described masturbation as a "valuable tension safety valve."

As a woman of 77, brought up to believe that "self-abuse," as it was called in my day, would lead to idiocy, I was startled and confused.

During all my 44 years of married life (and five children), I never once experienced an orgasm. Now, as an old widow, I self-induced one, and found it wonderful! Am I on the path to perdition? Is single ecstasy wicked?

Being of a logical turn of mind, I cannot see how an occasional self-indulgence is harmful. Certainly no one else is involved or harmed. How can such a glorious, exciting and relaxing experience be wrong, harmful or dirty?
ANONYMOUS, PLEASE

DEAR ANONYMOUS: Masturbation is normal, natural and universal. The only harmful aspect is the guilt it produces in those who have been programmed to believe it is wrong, harmful and dirty.

DEAR ABBY: I have a next-door neighbor who invites me and my family over for dinner often. (I'll call her Millie.) I really enjoy her company, but her cooking is the absolute pits! You wouldn't believe what she can do to a simple roast and mashed potatoes. When I tell my kids we are eating at Millie's, they say, "Oh, Mom, do we have to go?" It's so bad, I've seen her own family leave the food practically untouched.

When I invite Millie and her gang here for dinner, there is never anything left over. Last time I made hamburgers, and her kids said, "Mom, find out how to make these — they're great!" Abby, the recipe was so simple, a 5-year-old could have thrown it together in 10 minutes.

I hesitate to offer Millie any help because she really doesn't seem interested in cooking. It's just another chore to her. Several times when she's invited us to dinner, I have tried to get out of it by saying, "I'm sorry, I've already got my dinner started." Then she says, "Well, bring it over and we'll pool our dinners." I end up pooling mine, and she ends up chucking hers. So what should I do?

MILLIE'S FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: Next time Millie invites you, remind her that her kids liked your hamburgers, then tell her if she'll have the ingredients ready, you'll show her how to make them. (The best way to learn cooking is by looking.) And if that doesn't work, accept one invitation in three.

CONFIDENTIAL TO NAMELESS, PLEASE: You are mistaken. Gonorrhea is not on a par with the common cold. Between 70,000 and 100,000 women are made sterile every year when gonorrhea causes scarring of the fallopian tubes. If you suspect that you have any kind of venereal disease, you can be treated by your local county health department free of charge. Please, make an appointment today!

Free air can save you costly gas

What costs nothing (usually) and can save gasoline? Answer: Air in your car's tires.

Motorists are wasting precious and costly fuel when they neglect the air pressure in the tires.

Underinflated tires increase the rolling resistance on the road surface and that condition makes the engine and transmission and other components work harder to move the car.

Survey after survey by tire companies and other sources show that up to 90 percent of the tires on the road are underinflated, many to the point of being not only wasteful of gas, but of being dangerous.

And, ironically, air is free, although some stations have installed coin-operated air pumps.

"Perhaps if a motorist has to pay for air he will value it more than if it's free," said one tire official, only partly in jest.

Improper air pressure not only cuts into gas mileage by about 5 percent but it also reduces the life of a tire because of heat build-up caused by too much sidewall flexing.

Air is as important to the life of a tire as oil is to the life of an engine; therefore, they deserve better care than they receive.

Perhaps one of the reasons for tire neglect is that tires have become so reliable that they are taken for granted. Too often they are forgotten until one gets a puncture.

Some motorists also check the pressure by "eyeballing" them.

But put one inflated to 24 pounds next to one with 16 pounds — a difference of one-third — and the tires will look virtually the same. That's why it's important to check the air pressure with a gauge.

DR. LAMB

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — A family member has developed cancer of the lung. She is presently undergoing radiation therapy. My question is, if she is cured or in permanent remission, what are the chances of it returning to the other lung? Also if the body cells replace each other regularly, why don't the cancer cells just replace themselves with healthy new cells?

DEAR READER — There are many different forms of therapy available in the modern treatment of cancer. Radiation therapy is very successful in certain types of tumors. Before a decision is made as to whether to use surgery, radiation, chemotherapy or any combination of these, the doctor has to know exactly what kind of cancer is present. It is possible to cure or produce a relatively permanent remission of a number of cancers with modern treatment.

There are several different forms of lung cancer. Some are more dangerous than others. About 80 percent of lung cancers are associated with cigarette smoking. That automatically means that some of them are totally unrelated to smoking.

To give you more information about cancer, I am sending you The Health Letter number 14-8, Cancer: A Fact of Life. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. This issue will explain how cancers originate, their spread and the kind of basic information I think you're asking for.

It's true that most body cells do replace themselves, but the catch is that cancer cells are really body cells. As they degenerate they replace themselves with new cancer cells. This is really done by doubling, which means each single cancer cell divides in half and forms two cells. Those two divide in half and form two more. So these cells do replace themselves through constant multiplication just like body cells do but in an uncontrolled manner. This uncontrolled growth is characteristic of cancer.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am female and just turned 50. For as long as I can remember I had long, strong fingernails. They never broke. To keep them trim I had to cut them. Now for the past six months my nails have been peeling in layers. They also split. I'm heartsick and I don't know what to do. Do I lack something in my diet?

DEAR READER — This is a fairly common complaint. One of the most frequent causes for fingernail problems is fingernail polish. Some preparations are used to harden nails and they're effective for some women but for others they're not. Finally, the nail polish remover contains powerful chemicals which will damage some women's nails.

If you have an adequate amount of protein in your diet, sufficient calories, plenty of calcium (which many women don't get) and have an adequate amount of iron in your diet, then the diet usually can't be blamed for fingernail problems. You might review your diet and make sure you're getting enough calcium, iron and protein. If you're using fingernail polish and polish remover, stop it for a while and see if your nails improve.

'Mork' co-star won't worry if show goes under

By PETER J. BOYER
 AP Television Writer
 LOS ANGELES (AP)—As ABC kicked the legs out from under its biggest hit last season, one of the interested observers was Pam Dawber. Of "Mork and Mindy," the victimized show, she is Mindy. "This show," she says, "has given me power. It has made me well-known. It has put me first in line for jobs."
 "Because of that, I don't have to look at the job as the beginning and ending of my career. If it goes down the drain next year, I'll be OK. But it would be a shame."
 It would have seemed ludicrous a year ago to suggest that down the drain was a possible destiny for "Mork and Mindy." It was an instant, unparalleled success, and it was just beginning. "Mork" would last, it seemed, as long as the frenzy of its star, Robin Williams, could last.

 But ABC unwittingly submarined "Mork and Mindy" by trying, unsuccessfully, to use it as a Sunday-night battering ram against CBS.
 "We were all very worried about the move, but we didn't think it would hurt the show as much as it did," Miss Dawber says. "We were surprised. Very surprised, and very sick."
 Worse, ABC tinkered with the image of the show. The network tried to sex it up with a Raquel Welch episode and a silly, bouncy, unfunny episode with the Denver Broncos cheerleaders. Mork, the visiting alien goof, lost his appealing innocence. ABC lost a powerful hit.
 ABC finally moved the show back to its comfortable Thursday night slot, where it showed signs of slow recovery, and the network hopes to restore some of the show's lost charm.

 For such a young show — it began in spring 1978 — "Mork and Mindy" has suffered a full quota of difficulties. Besides the problems of the Sunday night adventure and cast resentment over the attempt to titillate, there was a noisy dispute between Miss Dawber and the network over money. She reportedly resented earning substantially less than her $15,000-a-week co-star, Williams, and demanded that her contract be renegotiated.
 "Glad you brought that up," she says. "I don't know where that all began, about my being upset about Robin's salary. He does make more than I do, and he should. I make more than I should, for that matter. We all do. It gets to be like Monopoly money after awhile."

Harvesters have impressive grid practice

The Pampa High football squad had their most impressive workout of spring practice Tuesday, prompting head coach Larry Gilbert to call for a little break in the action.

"We'll work some on our passing game today," Gilbert said. "All three quarterbacks are looking good, so it looks like it's going to be quite a battle there."

This year and he's made the adjustment well. Mark is coming on fast for us.

Trans-continental balloonists Maxie Anderson, 45, left, and his son, Kristian, 23, of Albuquerque, N.M., announced what they hope will be the next leg of an eventual journey around the world by balloon — the Soviet Union. Clements says prison location his decision BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says he knows that the possible location of a state prison in Starr County hinges on his yea or nay.

"That's why I'm governor," he said Tuesday in response to reports that Starr County officials consider him the key to the controversy.

The State Board of Corrections negotiated secretly to pay $7.8 million for the 5,293-acre La Casita Farms and then voted to approve the purchase a day before a supposed deadline set by the owner.

However, Clements and Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong blocked the deal until it could be investigated and local residents given time to learn more.

Clements and Armstrong sit on the approval board which reviews land purchases for the prison system. The three-member board will decide the matter May 22.

"The communities themselves need to be a strong advocate and part of the process," Clements told a news conference.

He was in the Rio Grand Valley for a series of public appearances and political receptions.

In a meeting with local newspaper editors, the governor emphasized the state should not build prisons where people oppose them. But he added he could not understand why the relatively poor, rural county did not want the maximum security facility.

"We should not do something that the people of the community don't want to happen," he said.

"I don't know why in the world they would object to a prison. I personally think it would be a good thing for the county."

The prison would employ 300 with an annual payroll of $3 million.

County officials say they are afraid of losing tax revenues when the property goes off the rolls. Businessmen are concerned that industry will not locate in a prison community. And officials of the crowded school system fear a worse situation.

if prison employees with school age youngsters move to town.

Clements, the state's first Republican governor since reconstruction, has traveled to this traditional Democratic part of Texas several times since January. His frequent visits are seen by some local observers as an attempt to boost Republican strength for the upcoming presidential battle.

South Texas was considered a key factor in putting Texas in Jimmy Carter's camp in 1976. The failure of Democrats to turn out the vote in this overwhelmingly Hispanic area two years ago is considered one factor in Clements' win.

The governor told editors he is traveling all over the state and said he did not think his trips to the Valley were that numerous.

"It's part of trying to keep up with what's going on in the state, particularly as we move into the November election process," he said.

Clements said Ronald Reagan will carry Texas in November but it will be a close, 52 percent-48 percent split over President Carter.

In another matter, the governor estimated 3,000 to 4,000 Cuban refugees from the "Freedom Flotilla" will settle in Texas.

"They will get into Dallas, Houston, San Antonio and probably the Lubbock-Amarillo area. They already have groups of Cuban refugees in these areas," he said.

DEATHS

Elliot Arnold
NEW YORK (AP) — Elliot Arnold, who wrote more than 25 books on such topics as World War II and the Wild West, died Tuesday. He was 67.

Charles M. Messer
CINCINNATI (AP) — Charles M. Messer, who headed the construction company Frank Messer & Sons, which built many major buildings in the Midwest, died Monday at the age of 71.

Despite stable prices, homebuyers are wary

NEW YORK (AP) — Homebuyers aren't likely to rush into the marketplace now that prices seem to have stabilized and mortgage rates have dropped even faster than they rose. They have learned to be wary.

"There are a lot of scared buyers out there," is the way Robert J. Mylod describes the market. "People know we're in a recession, they're still waiting to find out how severe."

Mylod, president of Advance Mortgage Corp., a lender, reasons: "A 12 percent rate may appear a bargain to a person who looked at 17 earlier, but his tendency will be to see if rates aren't going lower still."

Still, according to some current forecasts being made by knowledgeable housing people, it might not be wise to wait too long. Prices, and interest rates too, they say, may head higher again next year.

In the meantime, economists expect the existing home market, in which sales fell from a rate of 4 million units last summer to 2.7 million in March, to get back on its pinnings before the new home market rebuilds.

In fact, Jack Carlson, operating head of the National Association of Realtors, believes the existing market might already have seen its worst and that sales will now build slowly for the rest of the year.

For new housing, however, "It will be next spring before we see any kind of life," Leonard Santow, an economist, told a conference sponsored by the National Association of Home Builders.

Panelists at the meeting suggested that the new home market, where sales are below a million starts a year, may be hindered by cautious buyers and a slowness of lower interest to be reflected in mortgages.

Still, says Mylod, "there is a reservoir of backed-up demand," that eventually will feed into the market. "Some areas have real shortages, and inventories of completed houses are low." And, he added, "Most Americans still perceive housing as their best inflation hedge."

A lot of housing people agree. Jay Janis, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, said at the home builder's conference that low production this year and into 1981 could precipitate more sharp price increases in 1982 and 1983.

Kenneth Rosen, University of California at Berkeley economist, concurred. Price surges in 1981 through 1983, he said, would be comparable to what occurred in the 1977 and 1978 economic recovery.

Carlson and other housing authorities are on record with essentially the same outlook for prices. Carlson also foresees a return sometime next year to sharply higher mortgage rates, perhaps 20 percent.

For the most part, they reason that as demand rebuilds inflation must return because the underlying causes of inflation have not been dealt with by Washington. Carlson, an economist, is vehement.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Conditions involving your career or finances could change today, making it possible to achieve something you've desired. Be alert. The opportunity could be fleeting.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Knowledge and experience are your best allies today. If something has you stymied, unlock the door to the past and search for a similar situation to guide you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Sitting down with a person in whom you can confide will prove extremely beneficial to you. Valuable insights will result from this encounter.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your confusion can be cleared up by seeking opinions and suggestions from as many persons you can find today. You'll know the answer when you hear it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Past experience can serve as an agent to guide you in an uncertain situation you're involved in with a friend. You'll fare extremely well.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Inspiring the family to pull together will make headway even through the roughest of waters. Be the captain of the ship. Lead by example.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) This is a good day to discuss matters or situations requiring some changes with your mate or an associate. You'll both be able to offer excellent suggestions.
