PAMPA FIREFIGHTER Capt. Kenneth Kirby, right, gives orders from the rooftop as firefighter Ken Holt sprays water into the attic today during an early morning blaze that heavily dappaged the home of Randy Miller, 213 N. Nelson. No injuries were reported to the Miller family, who were home at the time of the fire. The family's dog died in the fire of smoke inhalation. Firemen received the emergency call at 7:53 a.m. to a location in the 900 block of North Nelson. Minutes later, a second caller reported the correct address. Firemen said important time was lost because of the address mix-up. Emergency callers are urged to stay on the line to verify the fire's location.

Juneteenth becomes Texas state holiday

"Juneteenth" has been added to the calender of formal state holidays, beginning today. June 19. 1865 — the date of the emancipation of

Texas slaves — has been approved by the 66th

Texas Legislature as an official state holiday. "June 19 has long been informally celebrated by Texas blacks as a popular summer holiday,' said Cecil C. Burney, chairman of the Texas Historical Commission, "and it is appropriate that all Texans observe the official holiday celebrating the end of slavery in our state in 1865.

"This is equally an opportunity to appreciate the contributions of blacks to Texas heritage,'

This date recalls the post-Civil War Reconstruction era and commemorates the freeing of Texas slaves by Union General Gordon

Granger arrived at Galveston on June 19 to proclaim U.S. authority over Texas in the name of President Andrew Johnson. Granger also declared the freedom of slaves. He announced that officers and men of the Confederate Army would be paroled

By the turn of the century, black communities in Texas celebrated Juneteenth with enthusiasm and ceremonies paralleling traditional July 4

An Austin newpaper of the 1890s reported the "patriotic and appropriate" commemoration of Juneteenth. Activities included a parade, shooting contest, baseball game, picnic, speeches and music.

With this year's official recognition of June 19 as a state holiday, many Texas communities and organizations are planning similar Emancipation Day programs.

Bani-Sadr shuffles top military

By The Associated Press

Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr shuffled Iran's top military command today in what appeared to be an effort to strengthen his hand against Moslem hardliners seeking to undermine him. Less than 24 hours earlier he urged the nation's revolutionary guards to unify behind him.

Iran's official news agency and radio said Bani-Sadr accepted the resignation of the acting military chief of staff. Gen. Mohammad Hadi Shadmehr, and that Gen. Valiollah Fallahi was made the new acting chief of staff. It said Shadmehr became Bani-Sadr's military

The report also said Gen. Ghasemali Zahirnejad has been appointed commander of land forces and of the Islamic repinND Col. Javad Fakouri, a pilot, was named the air force chief. The news agency did not say

Bani-Sadr, fighting efforts by Islamic fundamentalists to strip him of his dwindling powers, urged the revolutionary guards Wednesday to close ranks behind him after his newspaper reported Moslem hardliners were plotting to oust him as a "tool of America.

Tehran Radio said Bani-Sadr went to a revolutionary guards' barracks to appeal for an end to the feuding that prompted the resignation of his hand-picked guard commander, Abu Sharif. The radio also said Bani-Sadr rejected Sharif's resignation The report did not say who was fighting whom in the guards, but the squabbling was presumed to be between Bani-Sadr's moderate supporters and the extreme Moslem fundamentalists who back the clergy-dominated Islamic Republican Party, which controls Iran's Parliament.

A party leader, Dr. Hassan Ayat, was reported Wednesday to be plotting the overthrow of Bani-Sadr and was quoted as labeling him "a tool of America.

THURSDAY

The Tehran newspaper Enghlab Eslami, owned by Bani-Sadr, published what it said was the text of a tape recording quoting Ayat as saying the president "will be ousted soon." It did not say who he was talking to.

"I have not been conspiring against anybody," Ayat fired back after the paper hit the stands. He said he would expose "a shameful plot that directors of Enghlab Eslami are involved in against me, against the Islamic Republican Party and against the iman (Iranian Revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah

The newspaper report highlighted the growing rift between Bani-Sadr, who has called for a speedy end to the 229-day-old hostage crisis, and the Moslem hardliners of the Islamic Republican Party, many of whom are urging spy trials for the 53 captive

Social Security officials project 1983 breaking point

WASHINGTON (AP) -Trustees of the Social Security system warned Congress today that a prolonged recession could prevent the system from paying benefits on time in 1983.

In their annual report, the trustees said that under adverse economic conditions, the system still might need more revenues in three years even with the Carter administration's proposal to allow borrowing among the three trust funds - Old Age and Survivors Insurance, Disability Insurance and Hospital Insurance (Medicare).

Without borrowing, the Survivors Insurance - the biggest trust fund - "will be unable to pay benefits by late 1981 or early 1982."

The report outlined three possible economic scenarios. The most pessimistic view foresees declines in the real Gross National Product of 1.7 percent in 1980 and 1 percent in 1981, before the GNP increases again. It also figures inflation rates no lower than 9.8 percent until 1985 and unemployment

With that projection, "beginning in 1983, the three combined funds would be between 7 percent and 9.1

due." the report said. "Thus. under adverse conditions. interfund borrowing only would postpone but not eliminate the need for additional income.

Under the other two economic scenarios, the trustees said commingling of funds would allow the system to escape its financial crisis.

The trustees - Treasury Secretary G. William Miller, Labor Secretary Ray Marshall and Secretary of Health and Human Services Patricia Roberts Harris — did not make specific proposals for raising revenues. They did, however, repeat previous advice that the big payroll tax increase said commingling the three scheduled for 1981 should not be reduced.

The report cautioned that all their projections "contain some uncertainty" because they depend on economic and demographic factors, including birth and death rates, that are subject to change.

In their report last year, the trustees also said a recession could jeopardize the system's ability to pay retirement benefits on time beginning in 1983. But they described it then as simply a monthly cash-flow problem - not enough in the till at the start of each month to send out the checks — and they trust funds probably would tide the system over during such crunches.

The $128.4 billion Social Security program sent monthly benefit checks to 35 million Americans and collected taxes from 114 million workers and employers in 1979

Already scheduled tax increases from 1981 to 1990 are expected to rebuild the trust funds and put them on an even keel for 50 years, with the exception of the Medicare fund, the trustees reported. As they have said in the past, they predicted the Medicare fund will be wiped out over the next

Search for Silkwood roommate suspended

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - A two-day search by police and relatives ended Wednesday afternoon when Sherri Ellis, Karen Silkwood's former roommate, called friends to says she was safe.

Miss Ellis, 26, of Guthrie, Okla., was reported missing Monday by family members. Police said she seen in public about 2:30 a.m. Sunday.

The missing woman reportedly told her friend she needed to get away because she felt she was under a lot of pressure in connection with the recent completion of her book about the Silkwood case

Linda Ellis said she talked to the friend who was sure it was Sherri Ellis who called.

The friend said Sherri Ellis told her she left a note explaining her absence in her pickup truck and asking her sister to feed her farm animals. Linda Ellis' roommate, who would only identify herslf as Glenda, said she and Linda found the note. But Linda Ellis denied that.

'I guess she left the door open to draw my attention to the note," said Linda Ellis. "But I guess the wind must have blown it away.

Sherri Ellis also called Alan Bromley in New York City and left a message on his telephone tape recording

"It sounded like she might have been calling from a public phone booth," said Bromley, a magazine reporter who formerly lived in Oklahoma City. Late Wednesday night, she still hadn't called back.

He said the call sounded as if it might have come from somewhere in New York.

Miss Ellis was Miss Silkwood's roommate when Miss Silkwood died in 1974 amid controversy over safety at a Kerr-McGee Corp. nuclear fuel plant where they both

Sgt. Tom Mundy said Miss Ellis was last seen with friends at a private club at 2:30 a.m. Sunday

New Orleans men appear before jury

 A special grand jury beginning a lengthy investigation into the unsolved assassination of a federal judge heard from two New Orleans men in its second session.

Louisiana restaurateur Cirro Callico, Gerald "Jerry" Hebert, also of New Orleans, and a third unidentified man went before the panel Wednesday, but federal prosecutors and FBI agents declined to comment on their appearance.

The grand jury was enpaneled Tuesday to investigate the May 29, 1979,

Judge John H. Wood Jr. and a Nov. 21, 1978 attempt on the life of then-Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr

Joseph Marcello, vounger brother of reputed New Orleans Mafia don Carlos Marcello spent about 10 minutes with the grand jury Tuesday afternoon. He did not appear Wednesday. but sources told the San Antonio Express-News Marcello had asked to postpone his appearance until his New Orleans lawyer could accompany him to San Antonio.

connection to the Wood slaying, saying their testimony concerned a story about the murder that circulated several New Orleans restaurants.

Marcello may not be required to return, the newspaper said, if the grand jury is satisfied with testimony from other witnesses. Carlos Marcello, 70, was indicted Tuesday - the same day Joseph Marcello appeared at the newly named John H. Wood Jr. federal courthouse here - on charges growing out The newspaper's source of the FBI's Brilab

Chief U.S. District Judge William Sessions empaneled the grand jury in open court Tuesday, but sealed juror's identities and subpoena records. The panel has a three-year term authorized under anti-organized crime

Bill Crull of New Orleans, attorney for the elderly, white-haired Callico, said his client knew absolutely nothing about the Wood slaving.

"They think he may have some after-the-act information from some guy who went into Crull said, adding that he didn't know the identity of the man.

A subpoena does not mean the witness is a target of the investigation but that he might have information the grand jury desires, the lawyer pointed out.

There have been no arrests in either the Wood or the Kerr case despite what FBI officials has said is one of the bureau's most intensive investigations. A regular 18-month grand jury examined the cases until its term expired, hearing from more than 100 witnesses

Santa Fe officials agree to extend service to Industrial Park

By DEBORAH BRIDGES

Of The Pampa News Santa Fe officials have agreed to continue service on the Clinton District railway four-and-a-half miles east of Pampa, if the railroad is given permission to abandon the line by the Interstate Commerce

Commission (ICC) "The abandonment as submitted (to the ICC) is for the entire line." said Bill Lancaster, assistant general manager of the Amarillo office of Santa Fe. "However," he added, "Mr. (J.R.) Fitzgerald — general manager in Amarillo - has made a written commitment to the Pampa Chamber of Commerce that Santa Fe would continue service to about the four-and-a-half mile post.

There is no reason. Lancaster said, why Santa Fe would not continue with the agreement. When chamber officials discovered Santa Fe's intent to discontinue the line, chamber manager Floyd Sackett said, a meeting of Santa Fe representatives, the Chamber Industrial Foundation, city and county officials, and persons affected by the move was conducted at the chamber offices.

At the meeting, he said, "We asked for an extension of 12 miles

The railroad representatives - Fitzgerald, Lancaster and Ed Davis - were not enthusiastic. Sackett said, but told those attending the meeting they would negotiate for the extension with Santa Fe personnel in Chicago The railroad officials later compromised with the four-and-a-half mile extension to the Industrial Park located east of the city, he said. Abandonment of the 70-year-old service will affect many of the area farmers, grain elevators and stockyards.

No one has said it will cause the businesses to close down, however. L. D. (Fats) Childress of the Briscoe Grain Co. said the move will ourt the farmers more than his business

"It will have a tremendous effect on farming in this vicinity," he

He said several farmers had told him, that they will go back to grass from farming. "I think, the railroad's theory on this is that they will get 90 percent of the business, anyway," he said. "It will be less cost to them (without maintenance costs)," he said. Most of the people will just truck their produce to the Pampa station, he added

"We'll probably start trucking it (cotton seed hulls) in," said Ed Hughes, plant supervisor of Gordon Wholesale Hull Co. located in Heaton. "It will be more expensive," he added. 'Sure would hate to see them close it right now," he said. The extra expense would hurt the business, he said, with truck trailers costing about $14,000 and revamping the unloading area costing about

"We won't have to close down," Rex McAnnelly of Moody Farms said, "but it will affect us. His feedlot has been bringing in feed by trucks, "but it's getting so expensive," he said.

"It's (rail service) just another tool we're losing," he said. "You can move freight so much cheaper steel against steel with diesel than with rubber against concrete," McAnnelly added.

The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway Company has given public notice of its intent to discontinue service to the line which extends 136.69 miles east from Pampa to Clinton, Okla. The application is to be filed June 30 with the ICC in Washington, D.

Gaslights illuminate village

WYOMING, N.Y. (AP) — Softly hissing gas lanterns cast a sleepy glow over the streets of this western New York village, warming the hearts of its 500 citizens, who have basked in the Victorian lamplight free of charge for nearly 70 years.

Since 1911, 33 stately gas lanterns have burned with a steady. reassuring glow night and day along the shaded streets of Wyoming. "In the past 10 years, it has gotten to be an embarrassment," said Rhoda Warren, town librarian and a former mayor. "It's an utter waste - but it's free

The lanterns don't get turned on and off because "the village would have to hire somebody" to do it, she said.

The National Fuel Co. inherited a contract to provide the gas and maintenance when it took over the Republic Light, Heat and Power Co. in the 1950s, said company spokesman Arthur Coon.

"People used to think that gas was very dangerous," Mrs. Warren explained. "It was explosive, inflammable, toxic. A lot of farmers didn't want the line on their property. And villagers didn't want it through the village.

"So the gas company offered free gas to light the street lights for 99

'A few years ago it was questioned by our company as to what the hell was going on." Coon said. But aftej efamining the documents, National Fuel officials concluded the utilityid bound by ome agre ct,

Gasohol production control of interest to area farmers

Members of the National Farmers Union are concerned by who will control gasohol.

Farmers are being outpaced in the race to control the emerging alcohol fuels industry, according to Victor K. Ray of Denver, Colo., Vice President of the Field Services of the National Ray will be the featured speaker at an Alternate Energy Symposium in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center, June 19-20.

Mike Metcalf of Dumas, attorney with the Northwest Texas Grain Producers Cooperative said, "The plans for our gasohol plant are continuing. We have started the second part of the feasibility study, the site specific study, designed to see how the plant will actually work in Dumas. We anticipate the results of this study no later than October 1, and we are hopeful that we will receive it sooner. Financing for the $40 million proposed plant is also continuing and we are considering proposals from more than one company.

Victor Ray is telling audiences that unless farmers can develop alcohol fuel production and marketing cooperatives, this new alternative marketing opportunity for farm commocities will go the way others have gone, for the benefit of agribusiness and traders.

In Texas, Ray is warning that the large conglomerate oil companies and energy development firms definately have the capital to invest and will move quickly into alcohol and solar fuels as soon as they begin losing market shares of consumers who are abandoning conventional, petroleum and coal-based fuels for alternate sources that can be produced by

"If the giant corporations are allowed to take control of gasohol, then we will merely have another group wanting cheap grain. If the farmers have some control, then we will have genuine pressure to raise grain prices to a profitable level," Ray said.

The NFU vice president is just one of a host of speakers slated for the symposium, according to conference coordinator Jon Thomas of the TFU.

The Lubbock symposium is designed to present information regarding the practicality of the use of various energy sources such as ethanol, methanol, wind, solar, and biomass. The Lubbock Chamber of Commerce is cooperating with the Small Business Administration, Texas Farmers Union and Texas Tech University in sponsoring the meeting.

"The objective of the symposium is to provide interested individuals with empirical data on various energy sources and to dispel misinformation that can directly and immediately benefit the farmer, and society in general," Ray said.

During the sumposium, workshops are planned on wind energy, solar energy, and use of biomass, with noted specialists in each area. Additional information is available at the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce.

Canadian deputy faces indictment second time

A Hemphill County Sheriff's Deputy, was handed a second indictment for discharging a firearm in a public place, and a Canadian man was indicted for aggravated sexual abuse of a child, in a special session held Monday, by the 31st Judicial District Grand Jury

The second indictment was returned against deputy Gary Pettit, charging him with discharging a firearm in a public place, namely, the parking lot of the Oasis Truck Stop, June 5, in The June 16 indictment against Pettit comes on the heels of a June 4 indictment against Pettit for intentionally and knowingly discharge a firearm in a public place, namely the sheriff's office. Allegedly Pettit fired in a show of excitement over the May primary election.

The first indictment against Pettit was accompanied by an order of transfer and was reduced to a class B misdemeanor to be tried in Hemphill County Court. Pettit was arraigned in Hemphill County Court and posted $300 bond for the charge.

The second indictment was also reduced to a class B misdemeanor and will be tried in Hemphill County Court.

Pettit is still on the Hemphill County payroll according to sources in the payroll department. No information concerning the charges against Pettit was available from the Hemphill County Sherrif, C.H. Wright

Bruce Hamilton, 23, of Canadian was arrested Wednesday after being indicted for the aggravated sexual abuse of a child under 17-years of age. Canadian pool rate increase results in citizen opposition

Canadian City Council members were again asked to review the increased rates for the use of the city pool, and to set a special election date concerning the city power plant. The rate review request came from concerned Canadian citizens who have recently formed a Group for Community Action. The new group attended the council session with a large turnout, overflowing the small council chambers into the aisles. Canadian City Council members originally voted the increase in the pool rates at the April council meeting. The rates are now $1 for 18-year-olds and under, $1.50 for 18 and over, $140 for a family season ticket and $35 for private parties. Councilman Bob Lewis asked the group where they were when the new rates were set. "That was the time to make your opposition

Several representatives from the Community Action group addressed the council making suggestions. "With proper management and lower rates, the pool should pay for itself, because more people could buy the season tickets," said one of the young group members.

'We don't want to make the swimming pool a free ride," another added.

A compromise between the old rates and the new was suggested at the May council meeting by a smaller group of residents, no action was taken at that time concerning the pool rates. The issue was taken to the Hemphill County Court in the June commission session. A group from Community Action were on hand to request that the county take over the management of the city pool. The county commissioners were aware of the legal ramifications of such a move and tabled any action for further investigation. Mayor George Arrington reminded the group that the budget had been appropriated and there was already a deficit of $180,000 when the funds were allocated. We are in a deficit spending period and I do not think that we should subsidize the recreation program at this time," Councilman

City manager Vernie Farrington reported the pool deficits from the year 1976, "In 1976 the deficit was $1,800, in 1977, it was $2,200, in 1978 it was $4,000, in 1979 it was $10,000," he said. The motion that passed, concerning the swimming pool rates stipulated that the rates would be left as they were for the 1980 season and new rates would be discussed next year. Three council members voted aye for the motion, councilman Charlie Plumlee voted against. In a continuing discussion of the Canadian City Pool, councilmen were asked to find a way to stop night swimmers from climbing the pool fence and enjoying the facility under dark.

Pool manager Charla Carter told the council of the dangers to both swimmers and the facility because of the after hour activity. The council motioned to have a barbed wire fence constructed over the existing fence and to look into the lax law enforcement by the County Sheriff's Department at the pool facility

In other action three councilmen approved the request from county residents James McCarley and J.A. Ullam to tie into the city sewer McCarley and Ullam offered to pay all expenses and do the work themselves with no city involvement.

It was decided among the council that the sewer line should belong. to the city if it was allowed to be put in. McCarley and Ullam agreed. It was a report from Smiley Johnson from the Canadian zoning and planning board that brought questions to the matter.

"Mr. McCarley and Mr. Ullam want to tie into the city sewer line because they are planning a mobile home park. The proposed mobile home park is at the end of the airport runway, right under the approach end. This is not a proper place for homes, "Johnson said.

Johnson also reported that the city now receives many calls from citizens near the airport complaining of the noise. "And soon we will have more traffic and jets flying in," Johnson said. Councilman Plumlee made the motion concerning the issue. "It would be to our advantge to let McCarley and Ullam put the sewer lines in, according to city specifications. We will have a written brief prepared to see that these specifications are followed." Three councilmen approved the motion, Councilman Lingg

Senate poised to restore death penalty in fed crimes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, rebuffing the Democratic leadership in eagerness to take an election-year stand on capital punishment, is poised to vote on restoring the death penalty for some federal crimes

By a startling 50-36 vote, the Senate rejected a plea Wednesday from Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., to postpone action on the issue until there can be a more thorough debate later in the summer

Byrd succeeded in delaying the vote until today, giving him only overnight to convince some of his colleagues to change their minds. He argued that the Senate was being intemperate by rushing to judgment. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., a strong supporter of capital punishment who engineered the move to force a vote, said that if the Senate doesn't vote now, it probably won't have the chance anytime this year.

The bill would restore the death penalty for crimes, including the murder of the president and other high-ranking federal officials.

There has been no federal capital punishment law since 1972, when the Supreme Court ruled it unconstitutional because it was administered in a capricious manner. Since then, several states have adopted new laws that have been upheld by the court, and proponents say national polls show most Americans now favor the death penalty.

Byrd admitted he was taken by surprise when Helms maneuvered the issue into position for a vote by proposing it as an amendment to an annual authorization bill for running the Justice Department.

Byrd agreed beforehand to limit debate on Helms' proposal to one hour, but he said later, "I didn't know the substance of that amendment....This is a major issue to consider

The Senate leader said it would be inappropriate to vote in the absence of Sen. Edward F. Kennedy, D-Mass.

Silver miner strikes to save children from life in tunnel

REAL DE MONTE, Mexico (AP) - For five generations, members of Venancio Rosales Estrada's family have crawled through tunnels digging out gold and silver from one of Mexico's richest mines.

But he is now leading a strike against the 450-year-old mine because his $4.80 daily salary is not enough to break the "vicious cycle" he says will force his children into the mines.

"My grandfather and his grandfather suffered in this mine and things are not much different now," said the 36-year-old miner, his raspy voice broken by coughs caused by 20 years in the dust-filled mine. "The work here is the same as our ancestors," said another miner. Workers die from the gases and we still run through Rosales said: "I don't even have money to buy clothes. I don't want my children to work in the mines, but to get good jobs you need a high school education. That costs money...money that I don't have. The only legacy I can leave is what my father left me: to become

The Miners and Metallurgical Workers Union went on strike at the government-owned mine May 12. They are demanding a 50 percent salary increase, a social security program and better working conditions. Some workers have agreed to accept the state corporation's offer of 20 percent plus benefits, but a majority are still holding out.

Real de Monte was founded in the 1540s by Spanish conquistadors. The mine's nearly 2,500 miles of tunnels, which would nearly stretch from New York to San Francisco, once made it the world's largest silver mine. It still produces 1,100 pounds of gold and 80 tons of silver annually, making it about the fourth largest Enrique Ibarra, the director of the company, said the workers deserve more money, but not as much as they are asking. He also said the $4.80 a day can be stretched by an incentive program with bonus Union Secretary General Napolean Gomez Sada said that Real de Monte's pay scale is lower than any other major mine in Mexico including Penoles near Guanajuato, which is the world's largest producing silver mine and where wages average $12 a day. 'We are just asking for a just salary," said Jesus

Madrid, a 38-year-old miner standing on a picket line. 'We are the producers. We sustain all those people making thousands of pesos a week who sit at desks, sign checks and drink coffee while we go down 1500 feet, eat dust and breath venomous gases.

The workers also said they would have be "supermen" to qualify for bonuses in the company's said "Sure the company says you can earn $675 a month by getting the bonus of 100 pesos ($4.38) for every meter over 20 meters a day. You would have to work 16 hours a day, and that doesn't take into account the heat, the noise and the cramped space.'

The miners claim the company is not concerned about the workers' health. They say the mine should be ventilated for six hours after an eight-hour shift, but claim the company works two eight-hour shifts before ventilation. They also claim the six company-supplied doctors for the 4,500 workers often prescribe medicine without an examination Ibarra said, "Our health care is not the best in the world, but it is certainly adequate." He said 3,500 workers are treated for upper respiratory infections annually, but added: "We only have 20 cases of black lung." He attributed those cases to workers too stubborn to wear company-supplied masks and breathing equipment.

Real de Monte won Mexico's award for the fewest mine accidents in 1979. There were three deaths in the mine in 1979, but four people died in one accident in February 1980

"In general, the working conditions of the miners are much, much worse than the United States," said one foreign mining expert.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Government causes housing shortage

Whether one is looking for an apartment to rent or a house to buy. clearly many areas of this nation are experiencing a housing shortage. Not since the days following the Second World War has the housing problem been so acute. But it is obviously bad. It will likely get worse and the government is at fault.

Most people don't remember the post-World War II housing crisis. Young men returning from the war were eager to get married and settle down. The hitch in getting hitched was finding a place to stay. House and apartment construction had ceased during the war and by 1946 a major shortage existed. Happily, the post-war generation turned to the marketplace for the solution.

Motivated by the profit to be made, of course, the construction industry went to work creating the American Dream the soldiers had fought for. From 1950 to 1968 over 32 million homes were built. The construction industry put home owenrship within reach of the average citizen and employed tens of millions of people doing it.

There is good reason to believe the outcome might have been far different had the country turned to government to solve the post-war housing problem. In Libertarian Review Doug Bandow details the horror story of government involvement in housing. Not surprisingly he found that most government housing programs result in less, not more, housing. During the period when private industry built 32 million, the government destroyed more than one million. This was not the intent of the program, but bureaucratic solutions do not always go

Urban renewal has managed to eliminate an incredible amount of Jew income housing with very little protest from those who normally claim to speak for the poor. The Department of Housing and Urban Development estimated that from its creation in the early 1960s to 1975, 612.850 housing units were demolished and replaced by only 265,161 private units, half of which were luxury apartments. Certainly these urban development projects made the cities look better, but not to the poor people who ended up with one-half million fewer places to live.

We have on numerous occasions detailed the horrendous effects of rent control, zoning, building codes and other forms of government interference in the housing industry. It is sufficient to say that most of these programs, ostensibly established to uplift living conditions, have usually had the opposite effect. Low-priced housing has all but disappeared because of the protection the government affords its

It is much easier to say the solution lies with a return to the market than it is to make that solution a reality. But one thing is certain: government programs and regulations are crippling the housing industry. They exist, for the most part, because the people believe they should exist. If the people can be convinced that government involvement, and not private greed, is at the heart of the problem, the country will have come a long way toward reversing a serious trend.

Cannot blame all in refugee rioting

Rioting by Cuban refugees at Fort Chaffee, Ark., we dare say, left most Americans shocked and angered. After all, arson, assaults on police and general lawlessness are strange ways to demonstrate gratitude for the sanctuary and opportunity this country has extended to 100,000 Cuban refugees during the last 60 days Congressional reaction was swift, predictable and appropriate. Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd and House Whip Jim Wright called for the prompt deportation of those refugees identified as rioters. Significantly, Florida Sen. Richard Stone, whose constituency includes the largest concentration of Cuban-Americans in the United States, joined in and also demanded the expulsion of those refugees identified as common criminals.

While we certainly share these sentiments, we also hope that the disgraceful conduct of a few hundred troublemakers does not sour the welcome extended to the overwhelming majority of Cuban refugees.

Federal screening of the first 47,000 Cubans showed only 681 to have records as common criminals. These few will not be considered for resettlement, although the administration has yet to decide how and when they should be deported. Most of the remaining refugees are relatives of Cuban-Americans who have long since proved them selves exemplary citizens of the United States.

The events at Fort Chaffee have prompted the Carter administration to begin an investigation aimed at identifying the riot's causes and culprits. Delays in the resettlement process together with simple boredom may have been enough to incite Cubans already conditioned by life under Fidel Castro to a violent hatred of bureaucracy and

But we think the investigation should also explore the possibility of deliberate agitation by selected "refugees" who are, in fact, agents assigned by Cuban intelligence to embarrass the United States while discrediting those Cubans who have rejected communism. Nothing could have served both ends with more telling effect than the riot at incumbent president seeking the eight states where unhappy Democrats November general election went to the polls.

Unmistakable signs of the president's vulnerability were apparent in three public-opinion surveys of voters as they left the polls in California, Ohio and New Jersey - the three heavily populated states that held primaries in the last round

A New York Times-CBS News poll found that more than 50 percent of all Democrats surveyed in those three states said they did intend to vote for Carter in the

An Associated Press-NBC News poll showed that Democrats in both New Jersey and California had "a very low opinion of Carter's work as president." His performance in office was rated as good or excellent by only 22 percent in New Jersey and 25 percent in California. (The comparable figure for Ohio was a more respectable 33 percent.)

An ABC News poll of both Republican and Democratic voters here in California found Carter in third place when matched against Ronald W. Reagan, virtually certain to be the Republican presiential nominee, and Rep. John B. Anderson. R-Ill., running for president as an

In that trial heat, Reagan won with 48 percent, Anderson followed with 23 percent and Carter trailed with 21 percent.

The ABC News survey also found that only 35 percent of the California Democrats polled planned to vote for Carter in November and 31 percent of those Democrats expected Reagan to win the

In the "big three" states, Carter defeated Kennedy only in Ohio - and even there the president's victory was attributable to an improbable coalition of rural and small-town residents, people at the very bottom of the income and education scales and voters in heavily Republican areas such as Columbus and Cincinnati.

Kennedy handily carried both Democratic Cleveland and its Cuyahoga County suburbs, then battled Carter in the major cities of the state's traditionally northern industrial tier - including Youngstown, Akron, Canton and Toledo.

Claiming that throughout the primary season he has "carried the states that are the heartland of the Party," Kennedy now insists that "Democrats from coast to coast (are) unwilling to concede the nomination to Jimmy Carter and neither am I."

Kennedy's continued fierce opposition to Carter's bid for a second term can only further weaken the president's already shaky position - and Reagan is moving deflty to take advantage of the Democrats' internecine struggle

When asked at a primary-night press conference here if he assumed Carter would be the Democratic presidential nominee, Reagan responded: "I haven't accepted that at all. There might well be an open convention in the Democratic Party.'

Similarly, Reagan is actively promoting Anderson as a logical participant in any televised debate of presiential candidates knowing that a three-man debate would make Carter vulnerable to attack from two especially skilled orators.

Carter could regain his equilibrium during the five long months that reamin before the general election, but right now he's in worse shape politically than he was at the beginning of the primary season. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

PYRAMID SCAM

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON - As if we didn't have enough unthinkable things to think about we now have to think about a computer going berserk at NORAD and starting World War III. The same computer has malfunctioned three times within the year, thereby alerting American forces to a Soviet attack which was not taking place. I'm one of those people who believes war is too serious a business to be left to

The day after the foul-up, a blue ribbon panel of generals and admirals was assigned to investigate what had gone

They were flown out to NORAD Colorado Springs to question the computer about the mistake.

By Don Graff If we had it to do over again, would we?

Rather, will we? Because there'll be the opportunity in four years when we crank up for another presidential election. Unless, that is, the present system for selecting candidates is overhauled in the interim. Specifically, the trial by primaries just completed for the 1980 event. They're out of the way now - all 37 of them (it only seemed like thousands) - and that is cause for both relief and critical re-evaluation of the entire exhausting process. Criticism focuses on the length of the primary process - almost five months and its effectiveness in selecting the best from a field of candidates. On that last point, some would say experience is proving precisely the opposite

Rep. Richard Ottinger, D-N.Y., to name one, is dismayed at a "media spectacle" that this time around "threatens to produce two candidates unable to win the respect of a broad spectrum of Americans."

In that respect, today's primaries are no improvement over yesterday's smoke-filled rooms, and may even be a step backward. At least the old political power brokers gave us Cleveland, the two Roosevelts, Eisenhower and others. Of course, they also gave us Buchanan. Harding and others, but even pros can't win them all.

For all their current prominence, the primaries as a major - even decisive factor in presidential politics are a relatively recent development. Florida was the pioneer in 1901, but provided only for the popular selection of convention delegates; no commitments to specific candidates. Oregon, in 1910, was first with a presidential preference vote.

By the 1916 election, there were 26 primary states. But then enthusiasm waned. By the mid-Thirties, in fact, eight states had repealed primary legislation.

candidate selection in the voters.

Interest picked up again when several free-lance presidential hopefuls - notably

Democrats Estes Kefauver in 1952 and John Kennedy in 1960 - exploited primaries to outflank hostile party leaderships, demonstrating their popular vote appeal. Then came the tumultuous Democratic convention of 1968 and the sequent overhauling of the nominating machinery to the intended end of vesting

In 1976, the newly "democratized"

A primary issue system was exploited with spectacular success by one initially long-shot hopeful -Jimmy Carter. A success that has more than a little to do with current agitation for > Agitation has, however, been around almost as long as the primaries. Dissatisfaction surfaced as early as 1912, when former President Theodore Roosevelt won nine out of 12 Republican primaries but lost the nomination to incumbent William Howard Taft. It peaked again in 1952 and 1968, with wide-spread feeling that convention choices had not reflected electorate preferences.

In the hundreds of reform proposals put forward over the years, a few ideas predominate - a single nationwide primary, regional primaries and standardizing dates within a limited primary period.

Congressman Ottinger is the author of one currently pending measure that would combine several of these features. He would assign each state to one of five regions within which primaries would be held on the same date, the five regional votes occurring at three-week intervals during an April-June primary season.

Interestingly, the public is less concerned with primary shortcomings that are political professionals. Or was at the start of the 1980 season. In a nationwide poll conducted early in the year by Civic Service, Inc. of St. Louis, 21.8 percent of respondents thought the present system too drawn out. It got an unqualified vote of approval from 32 On the other hand, when asked whether presidential campaigns, including both primaries and general election, should be limited to six months, 68.6 percent agreed while only 21.2 percent opted for the existing marathon

Which may only prove that when it comes to opinion polls, you picks your questions and takes your chances with contradictory answers. Whatever. At this point there is only one certainty about the 1980 primary year: It will be added to the list of those of peak reform interest. Does that mean reform will be converted from talk to fact? Tune in next election and find out. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Carter, Kennedy contest for Demo party control

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - President Jimmy Carter's supporters outnumber those of Sen. Edward Kennedy at the State Democratic Convention but Kennedy forces hope to retain some say in party affairs.

The state convention with its 3,900 delegates and almost as many alternates formally opens Friday night and continues Saturday.

However, pre-convention activities began today with a meeting of the State Democratic Executive Committee set for 5 p.m.

The major duty of the committee meeting is to canvass votes cast in the June 7 Democratic

Possible changes in state party rules may

Nationwide, Kennedy's backers are urging a change in party rules to release national convention delegates from any pledges made to presidential candidates at state conventions.

"I am firm on this," said State Democratic Chairman Billy Goldberg, Houston, an avowed Carter supporter. "I don't think we should do any tampering with party rules for the 1980convention. I think it would be destructive and disastrous to throw out the decisions already made in the primaries.

Other sources predicted Kennedy supporters in Texas would try to offer the "open

According to reports from county conventions. there will be 2,462 local supporters of Carter at the state convention, plus 770 for Kennedy and Goldberg has predicted, on the basis of the county convention reports, that Carter will get 106 national convention delegates and Kennedy 33, with 13 delegates uncommitted.

The way delegates sign in at the 31 state senatorial district caucuses Friday night will determine exactly the division of delegates between Carter and Kennedy. Both sides hope to win over some of the uncommitted delegates

Another duty of the state convention is to choose four men and four women for the Democratic National Committee, one more than the state has now

A final action of the San Antonio convention will be a meeting of the 152 national convention delegates to choose a delegation chairman for the New York convention. Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, former Attorney General John Hill and Goldberg all are in the running.

Behind-the-scenes action will include campaigning for a new state Democratic chairman to be named at the September state convention. Bob Slagle of Sherman, a backer of former Gov. Dolph Briscoe, and Rep. Luther Jones, D-El Paso, a backer of Hill in 1978, are

Judge orders attorneys to speed up

DALLAS (AP) - The veteran federal judge, impatient with the slow pace of a complex Securities and Exchanage Commission trial, ordered attorneys to speed up their presentations. SEC lawyer James Sims made the mistake of rising to explaain why it was taking so long.

"Don't argue with me. Do as I say," the jurist

Sims sank back into his chair. "We're sorry if we have offended the court," he said. If Sims made a judgment error in trying to talk back who don't know better have been underestimating her

Today, her forthright courtroom style continues to surprise lawyers, witnesses and courtroom spectators. When a defendant pleaded guilty to income tax evasion, defense attorneys seeking a probated sentence called in a character witness. As the witness began to testify, the judge interrupted.

"What do you mean, 'He's a pillar of the community'? This man has just admitted that he cheated the government.' Mrs. Hughes, who served three terms as a state representative from Dallas County during the early 1930s, soundly defeated a 1932 opponent who scoffed at the idea of a woman bold enough to presume to be a state legislator. "We ought to slap her face and send her back to the kitchen," the loser said.

It was an inappropriate remark. "I don't like to cook," explained Mrs. Hughes in a recent interview. She explained that her late husband, George Hughes, a native of Palestine, Texas, was an excellent cook.

Few of the stereotyped traditions of the American housewife were instilled in Mrs. Hughes when she was growing up in Baltimore, Md., as Sarah Tilghman.

"My mother ran a boarding house," Mrs. Hughes recalled. "She always expected me to be first - in everything. I remember coming home one day and telling her that I was fourth in my class. I was proud of that, but she said, 'You ought to have been first.'

Mrs. Hughes attended the National Democratic Convention in Baltimore in 1912. "I had a desire early in life to get into politics," she said. "I decided the way to politics was to get into law."

She earned a degree in biology at Goucher College, an all-women's school in Maryland, and then worked her way through George Washington University law school by serving as a policewoman in Washington, D.C. She married Hughes, a football player, during her final year in law school

The couple moved to Dallas in 1922. "I offered my services to every law firm in Dallas. I didn't know there was any discrimination against women," Mrs. Hughes said. "I didn't get a job, but I did get permission to sit rent-free in the ante-room of a law firm that was without a secretary, and they gave me a

After serving three terms in the state legislature, Mrs. Hughes was appointed a state district judge, the first woman to hold the post in Texas. She won re-election as a district judge seven times. President Kennedy appointed her to the federal bench in 1961.

A self-professed liberal Democrat, Mrs. Hughes ran for Congress in 1946, but was unsuccessful. "I did not realize the people of Dallas County were so conservative," she said. "It was my own fault that I lost. I should never have run.

"People were willing to vote for me for judge because they thought that I would b fair. But they were not willing to vote for me in a place where I could

Mrs. Hughes said her greatest single achievement was forcing reluctant local officials to bring conditions in the Dallas County Jail up to federal standards.

Her orde calling for improved conditions for inmates at the jail - which she called a "factory for crime" was handed down in 1972. Construction of a new jail is just getting under way.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - A new inquiry, called routine by the Coast Guard, will examine what transpired on the bridge of the Blackthorn when the cutter collided with an oil tanker in the service's worst peacetime

Twenty-three crewmen died and 27 escaped when the Blackthorn and oil tanker Capricorn collided Jan. 28 in Tampa Bay

Lt. Cmdr. Tom Pearson, public affairs officer at the Coast Guard's 8th District headquarters, said the board would look into the conduct of the commanding officer and officer of the deck when the Blackthorn collided with the oil tanker Capricorn.

The two officers were Lt. Cmdr. George Sepel, the Blackthorn's commanding officer, and Ensign John Ryan, officer of the deck.

"This investigation is basically equivalent to a grand jury investigation, but is not an indictment of the two officers," Pearson said. "It is merely an inquiry to determine if further action is warranted."

Rear Adm. Paul Yost, 8th District commander, named Capt. D.S. Smith as principal investigating officer. Pearson said. Smith is commanding officer of the Coast Guard Marine Investigating Office in

The Coast Guard early held lengthy hearings into the collision, but its board of nquiry drew no conclusions and de no recommendations.

Harless appointed Routh temporary administrator on May 23, one day after the state attorney general's consumer protection division filed a civil

Two charged in school supply scam

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) - Federal grand jurors have charged an Abilene man and a local Texas Education Agency supervisor with bilking a dozen Valley school districts out of nearly $600,000.

The indictment accuses J.W. Hooker, owner of the Abilene-based West Texas Coffee and Equipment Co., and Kitty McLaughlin, TEA supervisor for South Texas special programs, of using "trickery and deception" to obtain contracts to improve school lunchroom facilities.

The alleged fraud - carried out from 1975 to 1977 - involved the federal Non-Food Assistance Program, intended to help poor school districts improve their lunchrooms.

The Texas Education Agency reimbursed school districts 75 percent of their purchases through the program, based on the lowest competitive bid.

In the indictment handed down Tuesday, grand jurors alleged Hooker fraudulently obtained contracts from 12 South Texas school districts with Ms. McLaughlin's help.

It's been more than 20 years since youngsters aged 10 to 13 donned their Mickey Mouse ears and T-shirts to dance, sing and show serials to a nationwide television audience. YALE UNIVERSITY scholar of the House Ella King Torrey displays a Barbie doll and some of the Barbie accessories. Torrey is researching the doll, which first appeared on the market in 1959, as her senior project at Yale

Yale scholar uses Barbie doll to study American culture

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) -One of Yale University's "scholars of the house" is studying a doll house.

When she's through, Ella King Torrey will have a bachelor's degree in the Barbie doll, which she views as a cultural artifact showing American society's "incredible consumerism, an obvious obsession with the more beautiful self."

Ms. Torrey is one of about a dozen seniors in Yale's Scholars of the House program, which frees students from formal course requirements so they can pursue approved research

For the past 18 months, Ms. Torrey has been cluttering up her apartment not only with doll houses, but also with examples of the changing models of Barbie - the forever young, shapely and beautiful plastic

"She certainly is the icon of the 'me generation,'" said Ms. Torrey, "a denial of any sort of

No other doll before or since has approached Barbie's popularity.

Ms. Torrey, who admits having a Barbie doll as a child. figures that at least 120 million of the dolls - Barbie and her friends and relatives - have been sold since Mattel Inc. of Hawthorne, Calif., introduced the products in 1959.

Sales of the dolls and accessories have topped $1 billion, Ms. Torrey said, and show no sign of slackening.

Ms. Torrey, a 23-year-old Philadelphia native, jokes about her academic endeavor. which she expects to finish next

"I don't have to go to any classes. I just play with my dolls," she said.

Ms. Torrey's research is due to culminate in an exhibition at Yale or in New York City - and eventually a book - on the history, development and meaning of the Barbie doll and its jumble of related dolls, doll costumes, houses, cars, recreational equipment and spin-off products.

What does this doll scholar think it all means?

"Barbie was designed to meet any little girl's fantasy. She's associated with the American Dream. Children are not immune to this. They inherit notions of the American Dream from their parents and from the society at large.

"The doll changes each year. It's always bigger and better and more deluxe. Barbie is one of our heroes, and maybe that's because there are so few real heroes," Ms. Torrey said.

"A society needs something that personifies its dream of itself, and maybe she's it."

Ms. Torrey originally was majoring in art. Then along came Barbie.

"I was very drunk one night in December 1978 with a bunch of friends," Ms. Torrey said in her blunt style. "Someone just said, 'Wouldn't you love to see a book on the Barbie doll?'

"I sort of woke up and said, 'That's it. That's it.'

Ms. Torrey, drawing on her experience as a museum exhibition organizer in London and Boston during a year in which she took a break from college, decided to organize an exhibition on the Barbie doll she calls it a "socio-cultural examination of art and artifacts.

She began studying the doll's evolution and collecting objects for the exhibition, with Yale paying some of the costs.

Barbie is surrounded by a changing array of several dozen other dolls, including her boyfriend, the Ken doll. Clothes and accessories range from a $1 set of hangers to the latest model of Barbie's "dream house," selling for up to $150.

Barbie's world has evolved along with her appearance, Ms. Torrey said, explaining: "In 1964, she was sort of the big girl from the small town, going to college, really a rather practical dream. By 1977, she became a superstar, that's what they called it, putting her way out of reach of the average little girl, with no indication of how to achieve the dream

"Why do we want our idols to be so far away? Are our lives, this society, so unstable that we don't want them near? If the dream is beyond reach, then we don't really have to strive for

MENDING MATURE MARRIAGE

By Louise Pierce

When we older married couples were children, many houses held three generations - the kids, Mom and Dad, Grandma and Grandpa. I thought they got along fine. But now I know that some of them didn't. They lived in the same house because they had to bunch up in those hard times. In some parts of the country, people are doing it again because so many have lost their jobs and have had to move in with relatives to share expenses. That problem is not yet widespread in the Southwest, and we hope it never will be. So I feel free to ask you older couples to maintain your own home (a mansion, a small house, an apartment, even a shack by the railroad track) as long as you can. You need the joy of living your years in shared freedom and affection, unhampered by having your younger family members re-make your lives to their orders. A worthwhile book on this special subject is the "The Best Friend

You'll Ever Have" by Bernard Sloan. He tells of the trouble his ailing, elderly mother made when he took her to live with him, his wife and their two young sons. Complete unhappiness ensued. If you ever consider moving in with your children, you will do well to study this true story. It will help you avoid the same kind of heartbreak. Friends of ours once took in her parents because they had plenty of room, the old folks weren't eating right, sometimes they forgot to take their medicine when they were sick, Grandma let their house go because she didn't feel like cleaning - and dozens of other reasons. They felt sure everybody would be compatible and comfortable. But they weren't. Grandma tried to take over the house, Grandpa tore up Dad's expensive workshop tools and picked on the little kids besides. The youngsters begged to stay overnight at friends' houses, which they had never done before. Mama got mad because Grandma her false teeth and because At last they all agreed that the best solution to their problem was a retirement home for Mama's parents. When the old folks got settled

Why is this so? I'll tell you. Every woman wants to manage a household. And few will give it up. Every female animal fights to keep her own nest - and that includes us human females. But it can't happen happily if another woman chimes in, even a loved daughter or mother. Parents just don't want grandparents helping them rear their children.

Some couples have told me that they resolved to keep silent in their children's homes, no matter how much they wanted to interfere. I've known only a few cases where it worked well. Either they couldn't stand their own silence and they blew up - or else they became non-persons, imprisoned and embittered

Some couples make rules when they take in Grandma and Grandpa. But I don't believe that would pan out either. There are enough laws of the land without having a household make and enforce new ones for three generations.

I hope that, for Otis and me as well as for the rest of you older couples, there will always be some place that we can be alone together. If the time comes when we need to be taken care of, we will want to live in a retirement home. There are many lovely ones in almost every area in the country. Couples can have several rooms or

When they shut their door, they can read to each other or watch TV or write or sing or do whatever else they want to. It they're healthy enough, they can take long walks - or hire taxis to take them to town

About all they have to do is to get to the meals on time in the Home. And most of the Homes serve such delicious meals that nobody wants

DEAR ABBY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to PREPARED FOR THE WORST, the woman with MS (multiple sclerosis) who was told by her doctor that eventually she would be paralyzed and confined to a wheelchair. How right you were to tell her not to accept her doctor's gloomy prognosis. She was debating whether to tell her 13-year-old about her disease in the hope that she might be more cooperative and understanding - yet she didn't want to frighten or upset her younger children.

I think all her children should be told. She should also contact her local MS society. Members will invite her to meetings, put her in touch with other MS victims and provide her with a lot of helpful information.

PREPARED FOR THE WORST should also read "The Pursuit of Hope," an excellent and inspiring book by Miriam Ottenberg, a Pulitzer journalist, herself a person with MS. I know firsthand about MS because I have it, too. My 8-year-old daughter and 11-year-old son were told what I have and how they can help. They are among my greatest assets. Without their help and my husband's constant assurance. I wouldn't be able to do the things I do today. I'm a substitute teacher. Brownie leader, team mom for my son's baseball team and active in my church and PTA. I manage to keep my home going and keep up a moderately active social life. I realize that someday I could be paralyzed and in a wheelchair. But right now I am not, and I intend to use to the fullest everything I have. Every day I fight to keep my body on its feet and walking. It's a struggle, but it's well worth the effort when I see what I can still accomplish PAT HERMAN, OXNARD, CALIF.

DEAR PAT: Thank you for a wonderful letter. I received hundreds of letters from those with MS, and all were in complete agreement that no one should expect the worst and resign him/herself to a wheelchair. They also told me that telling the children and asking for their help bring the family closer together. For those who want more information about MS, write to the National MS Society, 205 E. 42nd St.,

New York, N.Y. 10017. DEAR ABBY: My husband and I both work in jobs covered by Social Security. We have three young children. I know that if my husband becomes disabled or dies, the children would get monthly Social Security payments. Would the children be able to get any benefits if something

THE PEOPLE'S PHARMACY

By Joe Graedon

The pharmacist is the health professional people see most often. Yet few consumers take full advantage of the druggist's knowledge and skills.

Since modern drugstores frequently place barriers such as high partitions or clerks between the pharmacist and the customer, the customer has to learn to leap them in order to recruit this valuable ally in personal health care. The trick is in selecting a druggist carefully and using his or her services wisely. Our associate, Marvin J. Feldman, pharmacy supervisor at the Boston Hospital for Women and Clinical Instructor at the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy, suggests several factors that consumers should consider in choosing a pharmacist First and foremost, the druggist should be accessible and easy to talk to. A willingness to answer questions in a clear and friendly manner

A conscientious pharmacist should also maintain a patient profile. This record of all prescription and over-the-counter medications that each client is taking allows the pharmacist to warn of potentially dangerous drug interactions. This is especially important in today's world of specialists because many atients receive prescriptions from more than one doctor. Ideally, your pharmacist should provide you with a phone number you can use in the event of an emergency or if you need an important prescription filled after regular hours. It would also be helpful if the pharmacy provided a delivery service and allowed you to charge prescription drugs. Here are a few more tips:

Whenever you have a prescription filled make sure you understand exactly how to take the medicine. If your doctor provided nonspecific instructions such as "Take as needed" or "Take before meals," find out exactly what You should also ask about what kind of liquid to swallow the pills with. Some antibiotics are inactivated if taken with fruit juice, milk, or soft drinks.

- If you are shopping for an over-the-counter product be sure and ask the pharmacist for a recommendation. Besides the fact that there are still some compounds on pharmacy shelves that are ineffective many non-prescription medications can be dangerous for people with chronic conditions

 Ask about proper storage of the medicine. While some drugs can be left at room temperature others will last longer if kept in the refriderator. And if you suffer from arthritis and don't have children around the house you can request an easy-off lid stead of a child-proof cap.

- You should never be afraid to ask the pharmacist about side effects and potential drug interactions. All medications, including non-prescription remedies, have the potential to produce adverse reactions in ceptible individuals.

concerned druggist can help hold down your expense by recommending that the physician prescribe a larger quantity of medicine. This can be especially useful for long-term conditions such as arthritis or high blood pressure. Generic substitution can also save money and your pharmacist will know which mpanies supply safe and effective products.

Your pharmacist is a highly skilled professional and a respected member of the health care team. Take advantage of that knowledge...it's included in the price of your prescription.

Free cards valuable By DAN HALL

Associated Press Writer AVON, Conn. (AP) - "Baseball cards cost 35 cents or so.

Business cards are free.' Ben B. Klau makes it clear that he doesn't think lightly about collecting things. If he had collected baseball cards instead of business cards, at 35 cents each he would have shelled out more than $1,600 so

The 11-year-old collector has 4,632 cards, and he's been at it for only a year.

'Most people think business cards are pretty dull things, but they come in all shapes and sizes," said the bespectacled hobbyist, whose conversational ability has already far outgrown his diminutive frame.

Ben shows obvious relish as he displays his cards: staid white ones, cards shaped like beer cans, some with comic illustrations.

Little time passes without a visitor learning that President Carter's card is one of his prized possessions.

He mailed his own Ben B. Klau, business card - to the White collector" House and, after a considerable wait, got two back from the president.

Ben says his overall favorite is an elaborate card shaped like an oil can.

Ben, who also has a "ham" radio license and handles a newspaper route, got hooked on his unusual hobby when classmate Matt Tierney gave him 40 duplicate business cards in return for cards of Ben's mother and father for his own collection. From there, it became a familv affair. Ben's lawyer father began setting aside cards he received; an uncle who flies jetliners has picked up others from as far away as Turkey, Iran and Peru, and one aunt relied on friends to get the largest contingent of cards in Ben's collection, from IBM executives.

The card-collecting classmates also have a form letter that they send to promising

Deadwood fights for a colorful remnant of West

DEADWOOD, S.D. (AP) - Deadwood's houses of prostitution have been in business since Wild Bill Hickok was shot to death in a earby saloon. Now their doors have been padlocked, but some folks in this old gold mining town say they'll fight to keep alive a colorful emnant of the Old West.

More than a century of tradition ended Tuesday when a circuit judge signed an injunction allowing authorities to close the controversial brothels. The houses, which have operated since 1876 while city fathers looked the other way, will be closed at least through the summer

A hearing on a permanent injunction is expected sometime in September. In the meantime, debate over the issue will continue in the Black Hills tourist town of 2,500.

Supporters of the women who earn their living in the brothels collected more than 1,000 petition signatures in an effort to keep the

They contend the dozen-or-so houses attract business to the area, and they point out that local madams have always given generously to local charities.

But others say the town can do without the reputation it has earned through the brothels.

"I don't want to take away from what has happened," said resident Thomas Blain of the role of prostitution in Deadwood's history. "But we don't have opium dens anymore, they don't shoot people on the streets anymore. Heritage is a thing of the past, we should leave i

Some businessmen have warned that a permanent shutdown will hurt the town financially. One madam estimates her business at $5,000 a week. Annually, the figure approaches an estimated $1

"During hunting season, a lot of guys don't even bring their rifles," said Gary Keehn, manager of the Old Style Saloon, where Hickok died in 1876. Keehn said it's not unsual to get 30-40 inquiries a night. Blain is not swayed by those arguments.

"If they're good for business, maybe we should franchise them like Colonel Sanders," he says. Local law enforcement officers have been accused for years of ignoring the prostitution. Police Chief Robert Kelley said he is often chided for picking up drunks instead of "cleaning up the cat houses." But authorities say there has never been a public outcry against the brothels. State officials had to take initial action without local help. Finally, Lawrence County States Attorney Craig Grotenhouse reversed an earlier stand and signed a complaint saying the brothels were a nuisance to the community.

The houses were closed after a May 21 raid.

The injunction apparently has discouraged at least one brothel owner. Rapid City lawyer John Fitzgerald said he plans an auction on behalf of one of his clients.

He said additional tests would be made of the city's water and of chemicals sprayed last week to combat mosquitoes.

Skrovan estimated 50 to 80 percent of Georgetown's 10,000 residents have been affected by the illness that causes diarrhea and vomiting over a period of several days.

He said doctors at Georgetown Hospital were providing stool and blood samples of petients with the illness for laboratory tests.

Dr. Stehen Benold of the Georgetown Family Practice Clinic said he treated patients from nearby Round Rock and Florence. A nurse in his office reported calls from people with the illness in North Austin, 20 miles south of Georgetown.

Kenneth Poteete, administrator of the Georgetown Hospital said most of those with the illness, which first appeared about two weeks ago, were treated at doctors' offices although a few had been admitted to the hospital.

Skrovan said the illness strikes quickly. The symptoms are cramps, slight fever or chills, diarrhea and sometimes vomiting. He said the symptoms last two to six days.

W.L. Walden, Georgetown's assistant city manager, said the city was sprayed for mosquitoes June 9 and 10 with a Malathion mixture, which had been used before.

Mark White labels Beaumont boxing as illegal event

AUSTIN (AP) - A "Texas Tough Guys" boxing contest held in Beaumont in April reaped illegal profits for the promoters, according to Texas Attorney General Mark White. The bouts, which lured inexperienced fighters into the ring for a $1,000 prize, left one man paralyzed and attracted a $14,000 profit, White said. A suit filed here Tuesday by White asks that the promoters be ordered to pay the 3 percent state gross receipts tax, and civil penalties. State District Judge Jim Dear set a July 9 hearing on the case.

The suit also asks that the promoters be banned from holding any more Tough Guy contests. Bubba Busceme, Dave Smith, Ken Boutwell, and Buddy Gilley were named as White said the promoters did not have licenses and bonding required by the Texas Department of Labor and Standards.

The bouts were held on April 4 and 5. Peter LeBlanc, an unemployed Beaumont man, was left paralyzed and with possible brain damage after being knocked out.

White said the promoters had claimed the bouts were endorsed by the Beaumont Sports Association, a non-profit amateur athletic corporation. The profits were to be used for the promotion of amateur athletics, White said.

"However, the association received only $500 from the total net profit, and the promoters split a $14,000 profit in violation of the rules for exempt boxing groups. At no time were the promoters licensed or bonded as professionals, nor were the participating boxers," the

The suit was filed on behalf of the Department of Labor and Standards, which regulates Busceme previously has said he felt there was nothing wrong with the bouts, and that the state should not be involved.

The judge was to convene a Wednesday hearing on a suit filed by White against the Corpus Christi promoters of a similar contest, which was postponed last week when the American League baseball roundup

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON .

AP Sports Writer
The Boston Red Sox are in a rut. And, in case you haven't checked today's standings, they're also in second place in the American League East.

The rut the Red Sox are in is a nice one. They have rapped out at least 10 hits in their last 10 games and have won eight of their last nine in climbing from sixth place to second Wednesday night, they collected 11 hits - "We win when our offense carries us," says catcher Carlton Fisk - in defeating the Seattle Mariners 6-2, but more important was the seven-hit pitching of Dennis Eckersley, who has turned in three strong efforts since missing almost a month with a sore back.

"I knew it would come eventually. There's just too many good players on this ballclub," said Fred Lynn, who drove in three runs with a homer and single. "All the problems we had are in the past. We have nothing to look behind at."

Nevertheless, the Red Sox seem to be on something of a treadmill. Their hot streak has not enabled them to gain so much as half a game on the front-running New York Yankees, who made it six victories in a row by blanking the California Angels 5-0.

Elsewhere, the Texas Rangers trounced the Milwaukee Brewers 8-1, the Kansas City Royals whipped the Cleveland Indians 10-2, the Baltimore Orioles nipped the Oakland A's 3-2 and the Toronto Blue Jays swept a doubleheader from the Chicago White 5-4 and 3-1. Detroit and Minnesota were rained out

Yankees 5, Angels 0

Ron Guidry fired a six-hitter to break a personal two-game losing streak and Bobby Brown and Graig Nettles homered as the Yankees handed the Angels their eighth consecutive setback.

Rangers 8, Brewers 1

Al Oliver blasted a three-run homer and Bud Harrelson drilled a rare home run, a two-run shot, to back the six-hit pitching of Doc Medich, who sent Milwaukee tumbling into third place in the AL East. Oliver singled a run home in the third inning, then knocked in three with his fifth-inning homer, his seventh of the season. Harrelson hit the seventh homer of his 14-year major league oareer, and his first since 1977, in the sixth 1

Royals 10, Indians 2

Jamie Quirk drove in three runs and Amos Otis two to back the seven-hit pitching of Larry Gura, who tied New York's Tommy John at nine victories, most in the league. The victory, coupled with Toronto's doubleheader sweep of Chicago, made Kansas City the only team in the AL West above .500 and 4iked the Royals' lead to 81/2 games over the White Sox.

Orioles 3, A's 2

Pinch hitter Lenn Sakata drove in the winning run with a one-out single in the ninth inning after Ken Singleton singled and took second on a wild pitch. Singleton also singled to ignite a two-run first inning. Mike Flanagan allowed seven hits in pitching Baltimore to its fourth consecutive,

Blue Jays 5-3, White Sox 4-1

Ernie Whitt hit a solo home run, his first; of the year, and John Mayberry and Otto; Velez delivered RBI singles to help Jack Kucek, just up from the minors, win the nightcap. Mayberry's hit gave him a club record 17-game hitting streak.

DALLAS (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys signed two more draft choices Wednesday, to bring their 1980 draft picks under contract to eight. Three Cowboy draft picks still are without contracts.

Eighth-round choice Larry Savage of Michigan State, 6-2, 213-pounds, was signed to a series of one-year contracts. Gil Brandt, director of player personnel, said Savage was an outside

Norm Wells, a 6-5, 249-pound defensive tackle from Northwester, was also signed to one-year contracts. Wells was a 12th-round pick in the draft

FARM SCENE

WASHINGTON (AP) — As Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland sees it, Canada is "the critical link" to the survival of the partial U.S. embargo of grain sales to the Soviet Union.

If the Canadian government caves in to pressure and steps up grain sales to the Soviet Union, the entire embargo will be in jeopardy, Bergland said Tuesday.

President Carter is expected to discuss the grain embargo with Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and others at an conomic summit meeting in Venice next Sunday and Monday, Leaders of France, Germany, Great Britain, Japan and Italy also will attend the conference.

Bergland said the new Trudeau government has been put under increasing pressure from Canadian grain farmers to abandon its previous commitment to support the U.S. embargo.

"If the Canadians can hold the line politically and say they will stay with the United States, I'm convinced the rest of the world will stay hitched," he said in an interview with a group of reporters.

"But if the Canadians decide for their reasons that they have to pick up as much of the slack as they can ship (to the Soviet Union), ... that heightens the pressure on the Australians and that heightens the pressure on us and everybody else."

Carter imposed the partial embargo on grain sought by the Soviet Union on Jan. 4 in retaliation for its occupation of Afghanistan. Canada, Australia and the European Common Market countries pledged not to exceed their normal sales of grain to the Soviets.

Argentina, the only other major world grain exporting country, did not agree to the embargo and has been supplying the Soviet Union with some grain needed to make up the shortfall created by

Argentinea was asked again recently at a meeting in Brussels to cooperate with the embargo and indicated it would "take it under advisement." Bergland said

The Australians provided qualified support for continuing the embargo "to the extent they can," Bergland said.

Support for continuing the embargo, including the monitoring of transshipments of U.S. grain, also has been provided by Common Market leaders, Bergland said.

"If Canada kicks over the traces and decides to pick up the slack (in supplying grain to the Soviets), that'll put heavy pressure on the Australians. It'll put heavy pressure on us, matter of fact."

The pledges of support being sought by the United States affect the fifth year of a U.S.-Soviet Union grain agreement, which will

Under it, the United States agreed to supply the Soviets with at least 8 million metric tons of corn and wheat annually, and more than that if it was mutually agreeable.

Last fall the Soviet Union was given permission to buy up to 25 million metric tons of grain in the 1979-80 agreement year, and the Soviets were expected to take the full amount to help make up for Carter canceled deliveries of 17 million metric tons but honored the basic agreement enabling Russia to buy 8 million. Further, the administration says it will allow the sale of 8 million metric tons in the final year of the pact, beginning Oct. 1.

So far, however, Moscow has not indicated it wants to buy any grain at all from the United States next year, Bergland said. As he has previously, Bergland said there is no plan by the administration to remove the curbs and enable the Soviets to buy grain in excess of the 8 million metric tons until "the president finds they're no longer a threat to our security."

WASHINGTON (AP) - A team of visitors from China will be here next month, but Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland says he has no evidence that a bilateral pact for importing U.S. grain will be on the agenda.

Rumors have circulated that China may want to talk about the possibility of having a formal agreement under which it would buy U.S. grain over the next few years.

We don't have any official request from the Chinese on this matter," Bergland said Tuesday.

But he acknowledged that Chinese officials during Bergland's visit to China in 1978 expressed an interest in the workings of such agreements, particularly one between the United States and the Bergland also said he was aware of "trade reports" and other information that suggested China may want to talk about a similar agreement with the United States.

A team headed by Huo Shilian, China's minister of agriculture and deputy to the National People's Congress, will visit the United States July 5-22, Bergland said.

The Chinese will be in Washington July 7-8 for meetings with U.S. officials and then visit farms and other agricultural operations in Georgia, Illinois, Missouri, Colorado and California.

WHEN NIBBLE

For example, a "bus" is a group of circuits that carries information from one location to another. "Ram" is shorthand for Random Access Memory, a type of information storage. And "nibble," as might be expected, is half a "byte," a basic unit of information, says American Computer Appraisal

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House has apparently decided that it wants Congress to have the authority to veto Environmental Protection Agency decisions on pesticides. By a 215-199 vote, the House

Tuesday defeated a bill to extend for one year the EPA's power to study and regulate pesticides. The bill would have strengthened congressional review of EPA studies and decisions about pesticides, but it apprently did not go far enough to satisfy House members.

WASHINGTON (AP) Saccharin, an artificial sweetener which is suspected of causing cancer, won't be banned until at least June 30,

President Carter signed a bill Tuesday blocking, until at least that date, efforts by the government to ban the popular additive. The ban on Food and Drug Administration efforts to block the use of saccharin began Nov. 23, 1977, after a Canadian study showed that saccharin causes cancer in test

WASHINGTON (AP) - A House committee has decided to double the size of a proposed environmental "superfund" to pay for cleaning up hazardous chemical waste dumps. The panel also voted to make industry pay a bigger share of the clean-up cost.

The Ways and Means Committee voted 20-15 Tuesday increase the size of the fund to $1.2 billion, but delayed a final vote on the entire measure. The panel later voted 21-14 to require the oil and chemical industry to pay 75 percent of the fund's cost, rather than 50 percent. Support for the bill has grown, supporters say, in the wake of the recent explosion at a chemical storage site in New Jersey and reports about possible chromosome damage to residents of the Love Canal area of western New York. where homes were built near an

JUNETEENTH FESTIVAL

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Texas blacks celebrate their freedom Thursday with parades, baseball and basketball games, dances, gospel singing, picnics, basketball, prayer vigils and a watermelon seed-spitting contest.

Rep. Al Edwards, the author of the bill making June 19 a holiday for state employees, said he would attend a sunrise Emancipation Day service at Ashton Villa in Galveston.

Ashton Villa is the site at which Gen. Gordon Granger, commander of federal troops in Texas, issued a proclamation on June 19, 1865, which freed the slaves in Texas. In Austin, a morning parade was scheduled, with government officials and others to speak at Rosewood Park, and an

THE BADDEST MAN IN TOWN AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The promoters of "The Baddest Man in Town Contest" in Corpus Christi agreed Wednesday not to stage the boxing event until they get the required state licenses. State District Judge Jim Dear approved a temporary injunction agreed on by National Custom Shows, Inc., of Ohio and the Texas Department of Labor and Standards.

The Baddest Man contest, initially scheduled for June 10-11, was to feature inexperienced brawlers boxing for a $1,000 prize in a series of bouts. State boxing officials say the contests are dangerous.

Jim Limotta and Pat Helsten were named as defendants in ths suit. Attorney General Mark White has also filed suit against the promoters of a similar contest held in Beaumont in April. One man was paralyzed in a fight. White's suit says the bouts were illegal and the promoters should pay a civil penalty and a 3 percent gross Bryant, D-Dallas, said the 30-minute program will be broadcast Sunday and Monday in virtually all major markets. He said a full schedule would be released this week.

Bryant said the unprecedented broadcast is designed to direct attention to the "obvious collusion of the Republican governor, the recently indicted incumbent speaker and the special interest lobby to handpick the next speaker.

SEES 'DALLAS' PREVIEW

DALLAS (AP) - Horace Miller, a concrete finisher, has seen a preview of a fall episode of the television series "Dallas," although the circumstances were less than favorable.

Miller, recovering from a mild heart attack, shared the intensive care unit of a hospital with the notorious J.R. Ewing of "Dallas," and chatted with Jim Davis, the actor playing J.R.'s father. Larry Hagman, who portrays J.R., was not on the set Tuesday. He is still haggling over his new contract. The filming crew for the weekly evening soap opera went to the Oak Cliff Medical and Surgical Hospital, where Miller was BENTSON FORMS CAUCUS WASHINGTON (AP)- Sen. Lloyd Benten says he is forming a Senate caucus to help promote the "supply side" economic policies supported by the Joint Economic Committee he chairs.

Sixteen senators already have joined the Senate Economic Caucus. the Texas Democrat said Wednesday Bentsen said formal announcement of the new caucus made in a few weeks "I am hopeful that the Senate Economic Caucus will provide leadership for the use of supply side, or post-Keynesian, economic policies as the best and quickest means of sustaining healthy economic growth in this country while minimizing both inflation and unemployment," Bentsen said in a statement. 'The use of supply side economics- economics that encourages production, savings and investment- as a guide for public economic policies in the 80s is the objective of the caucus," he said.

KIDNAPPED CABBY RETURNS HOME

HOUSTON (AP) — A cab driver who started to take three persons to El Paso but wound up in Tallahassee, Fla., after his passengers kidnapped him is apparently on his way back to Houston.

Franklin Hotchkiss, 20, was "sleepy and hungry after being without food or rest for more than 30 hours" following his ordeal but otherwise unharmed, Dixie Houston, co-owner of the cab firm that employs Hotchkiss, said Wednesday.

The driver's unexpected trip began early Monday when he picked up three persons in downtown Houston who told him they wanted to go to El Paso. Hotchkiss told a dispatcher he had collected the $875 fare in advance and headed west.

About 50 miles west of Houston, the woman passenger pulled a gun and Hotchkiss was told to reverse directions. He went to Tallahassee, then to Columbus, Ga., before the two men and the women got out of the cab.

Hotchkiss told police in Columbus the trio took the $875 fare and about $100 of his own-money. He left for Houston Wedneday - in his cab - after the company wired him some money
