from a selfah point of view, one should support the Church for the scke of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it relis the truth about man's life, death and destiny, the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

"Research, experience, and technology," says Dr. J. W. Ed-gar, Commissioner of Education, "clearly indicate that age six is too late for children to begin their schooling."

Not A Crash Program

If approved by the Legislature the program could go into effect for participating school districts as early as the opening of school next year.

as early as the opening of school next year.

"It should not be a crash programs," warns Edgar. The proposal provides for a gradual, rather than sudden move toward the new additional year."

The program is to be voluntary—if a school district wants to participate the state will pay half the costs.

Drafters of the proposal go into detail to recommend that the new year of schooling should not be what we generally conschool training but an actual part of the total educational program.

Electric Autos

The Federal Power Commission expressed the opinion recently that sufficient technology existed for the successful production of electric automobiles. While the Commission did not say long-distance high-speed electric automobiles were feasable, it expressed the view that urban and suburban electrically-powered automobiles and trucks are feasible.

automobiles and the sale it was a sible.

And it predicted that within ten or twelve years some two million vehicles of this type will be in use in the United States.

This would, of course, be before the batteries needed re-charging.

Today's urban needs would not require greater endurance and if recharging facilities were located in one's garage, the urban, electric car would do much to eliminate smog and air pollution, if seems such a vehicle is definitely on the way back-encouraged by today's serious smog and pollution problems in our cities,
