Lefors water system 'polluted'

Residents of the city of Lefors may soon be faced with a bond issue to repair or replace the present water system, which consulting engineers say is salty and polluted.

Residue from the many oil company salt injection systems in the Lefors area has caused the largest water supply well No. 5 in Lefors to be shut down.

"The No. 5 well was tested last year by the Texas Health Department, and although the taste was verified as very salty, it was not declared unsafe for drinking," according to the Lefors city secretary.

The city is not using the No. 5 well and is presently using two smaller wells to supply the city residents with suitable water, she said.

The firm of Merriman and Barber Consulting Engineers has been hired by Lefors City officials to find an appropriate site to drill a new and reliable water well.

"The main well, No. 5, has taken on a lot of salt and is in a polluted condition," Gene Barber from Merriman & Barber said.

"There was one injection well working in the Lefors area and has since been closed. However, the entire Panhandle area near Lefors has been in water flood operations by several oil companies. That may have contributed to some of the problems," Barber said.

"We don't know if there is any reason for residents to be concerned at this time, as there is an adequate water supply to the town of Lefors," Barber said.

"We are investigating the possibility of getting a grant and loans but local financing will have to be initiated," Barber said.

One resident of the Lefors community said "Our water has always been so good, but lately it tastes a little salty."

City says water supply adequate

Many West Texas cities have doubled their water use during the summer's heat wave, forcing many to enact water conservation measures, but Pampans have adequate water for the increased demand.

Records of the Pampa City Water Department have verified the amount of water usage during the month of July 1980 as being "255 million gallons."

To illustrate the amount of extra gallons being pumped during the prolonged dry hot summer conditions, Tony Anderson of the city water department said, "Last January, we pumped 84 million gallons of water to the residents of Pampa."

To further point out the added strain on Gray County wells Anderson said that July 1979 records show only "125 million gallons pumped."

The relentless 24-hour water demands being put on many Texas cities have caused city planners to put into action several water conservation measures.

"Pampa, however, is not in any trouble with the water supply," Anderson said.

"Due to the fact that there are 12 active deep water wells and available surface water in Lake Meredith, we have an ample supply," Anderson said.

"But just because we have enough water, I feel that any water waste at all is a bad situation, and we try to keep residents informed concerning the water," Anderson said.

The neighboring towns of Floydada, Friona, Canyon, Boys Ranch, Bovina, are just some of the cities now having assessments made of their ground water reserves and ground water rights in their area, according to reports from the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1.

Of the 12 active wells used for the Pampa water supply, only four are now being used.

"We are allocated approximately 70 percent of our water from the Lake Meredith reserve, so we use our allocation. We pump just the extra gallons we need from the wells," Anderson said.

"We are very fortunate that we have access to two water supplies," Anderson said.

Richard Bowers, manager of the Water Conservation District No. 3, which includes the Pampa area, explained that there are 235 individual irrigation wells in the immediate Pampa area and many more in the McLean area that are now being used.

"We have found that the statistic of one well for every two sections pretty well verifies the number in the county," Bowers said.

"And there are a lot more individual wells in Carson County than in Gray County," Bowers said.

Woman files suit against local physician

A former Pampa woman has filed suit in 223rd Judicial District Court here against a Pampa physician for alleged negligence in prescribing a birth control drug, which the woman claims caused her to suffer a stroke and other symptoms, and emotional instability and stress, which she claims led to a divorce.

Plaintiff Marilyn Tate of Floydada filed the suit July 25 against Joe R. Donaldson, M.D., general surgery, of Pampa.

In the suit, Mrs. Tate alleges that due to the prescription she suffered a stroke in June 1978, as well as partial loss of peripheral vision in the left eye, mental anguish, pain, headaches, nausea, partial loss of memory, emotional instability and stress to her marriage which has since ended in divorce. The suit also claims Mrs. Tate has suffered sustained loss of wages in the past and will in the future.

She also claims that the doctor's knowledge of her prior medical and family history showed the dangers of prescribing such a drug.

In the suit, the drug is listed as Ovulil. However, Bruce Martin of Mark Smith and Associates in Lubbock, representing Mrs. Tate, said the drug prescribed was Ovral-28.

Martin said Mrs. Tate took the birth control drug for 1 1/2 to two years "and finally the symptoms manifested themselves."

A Pampa pharmacist said the drug is a national brand produced by Wyeth Laboratories and is "used a lot" in Pampa. The pharmacist said the product is used nationwide. "Millions of women use it," he said.

No amount of damages was listed in the suit. However, Martin said damages will be listed upon Dr. Donaldson's written acknowledgement of the suit.

Dr. Donaldson was contacted and had no comment on the allegations.

Civic committee to name Pampa 'Beauty Spots'

The Civic Improvements Committee of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce is to begin naming one location in Pampa as the "Pampa Beauty Spot of the Week."

The first "beauty spot" is to be named at the end of this week, with other locations named weekly through September.

Chamber manager Floyd Sackett said the winners will be presented a plaque from the committee for their contribution to the community.

Sackett said the "beauty spot" may be a front yard, back yard, home, business or even an alley. He said committee members have received suggestions from postmen and city sanitation workers and will accept nominations for the award from the general public.

"Anyone can make a nomination by calling the chamber office," Sackett said, "and a member of the committee will view the site."

In charge of the committee project is Thelma Bray and Jane Gattis.

Rotary governor visits Pampa

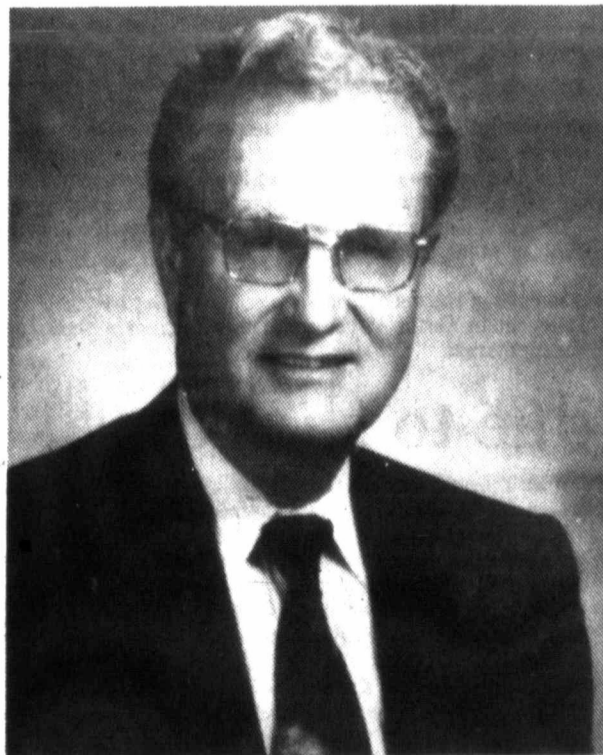

Wayne Sturdivant, district governor of Rotary International, arrives in Pampa tonight to head a Rotary workshop at 7 p.m. at the First Baptist Church for all Rotary Club officers and members. He will also address the club at their monthly meeting Wednesday at noon in the Coronado Inn Starlight Room, according to Paul Turner, Rotary publicity chairman.

Sturdivant, past president of the Amarillo Rotary Club, is one of 381 Rotary governors throughout the world who are representatives of Rotary International in districts composed of member clubs. Each district leader supervises the clubs in his area.

He graduated from the University of Texas School of Law in 1954, after which he was immediately licensed to practice law in the state of Texas, and commenced his practice in Amarillo, where he has practiced continuously for 25 years. He is presently a senior partner in the law firm of Gibson, Ochsner & Adkins in Amarillo.

He is past president of the Amarillo Bar Association, past president of the Texas Association of Defense Counsel, a member of the International Association of Insurance Counsel, and a Fellow of the Texas Bar Foundation. He has also served his community in many civic capacities, including serving as Commander of Amarillo Commandery No. 48. He is also a member of the First Baptist Church.

He and his wife, Ann, have five children and reside at 6309 Jameson in Amarillo.

Two die in accidents

By DEBORAH BRIDGES
Of The Pampa News

Two men have died as the result of separate area accidents, and another was seriously injured in a third mishap over a two-day period.

Lonnie Dale Beavers, 40, of Clinton, Ill., was pronounced dead at the scene of an oil well drilling site at 5:30 p.m. Monday by Roberts County Judge Newt Cox after he was pinned between a bulldozer and a mud truck. The site is located 19 miles north of Pampa off Highway 70.

A 16-year-old Houston youth, Brett Manning, died at 8:30 a.m. today at St. Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo, a hospital spokesman said, from massive head and internal injuries he suffered when the motorcycle he was riding collided with an automobile at the intersection of Kentucky and Duncan Streets.

A third accident victim, 64-year-old Jack R. Cox of Borger, is listed in satisfactory condition today at High Plains Baptist Hospital in Amarillo after he was involved in a head-on collision 3 miles east of Laketon on State Highway 152.

Witnesses to the mishap which took the Beaver's life said the man was hooking a chain from the bulldozer to the mud truck when somehow he became pinned between the two pieces of equipment. Both vehicles were apparently backing up at the same time, the site foreman said.

Beaver had begun working for Pinkley and Kirley Trucking and Crane only two days before the accident, John Harrison, company manager said.

The fatal mishap occurred at the Wylie Reynolds Ranch on a Moran Brothers Inc. oil well drilling site, he said.

In a separate mishap, Pampa's first traffic fatality for 1980 was recorded by city police after the death of the Houston youth in St. Anthony's Hospital early today.

Manning died of injuries he sustained in a motorcycle - vehicle accident at 1:20 p.m. Sunday at the intersection of Kentucky and Duncan Streets.

The 16-year-old was a passenger on the motorcycle driven by James Kenneth Hawthorne, 18, of 1153 Prairie Dr. who is listed in serious condition in the Intensive Care Unit of St. Anthony's Hospital.

According to police reports, Manning was thrown 63 feet when the motorcycle collided with a 1973 Ford driven by Anna Nelson Ross, 67, of 406 N. Warren.

Hawthorne was thrown 40 feet from the point of impact, police said. Neither of the young men was wearing a helmet at the time of the mishap, police said.

After the initial collision on Duncan Street, the Ford then collided with a 1974 GMC camper which was stopped facing east on Kentucky, police said.

Ross and the driver of the camper, Dossie Lee Nickell, 40, of 807 Lefors were not injured in the mishap.

Cox, involved in the third accident in this area since Sunday, was injured Monday afternoon at 5:25 p.m., according to Texas Highway Patrol troopers, when the 1968 Ford he was driving collided head on with a Grant Inc. dump truck, driven by Benjamin Reed, 39, of Amarillo.

Cox was traveling westbound on Texas Highway 152 about 3 miles east of Laketon, Trooper John Copeland said, when he collided with the dump truck on a two-lane, undivided roadway.

Cox was taken to Highland General Hospital Emergency Room where he was treated and then transferred to High Plain Baptist Hospital in Amarillo.

The driver of the dump truck and a 13-year-old hitchhiker, traveling with Cox, were uninjured.

The stretch of highway where the accident occurred was under construction, Copeland said. The two vehicles were attempting to share a single lane of traffic, he said, when Cox "took all of the half and pulled in front of the dump truck."

Carter defense not final

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's extraordinary defense of his handling of brother Billy's Libyan connection doesn't close the case that has rocked his presidency and his party in the final days of his race for nomination to a second term.

The president's own account Monday night to the public and to the Senate subcommittee investigating the affair acknowledged that it is "not definitive or final." Members of the panel indicated they would withhold judgment until their probe is complete.

And in the highly charged atmosphere of an election campaign, Carter's opponents could hardly be expected to let the matter rest.

But in his 99-page report and the hour-long nationally broadcast news conference that followed, the president insisted that although he may have made some mistakes in getting information about the case out in the open, none of his actions in dealing with Billy and the Libyans was illegal or improper.

The president said — and excerpts from his personal diary confirm — that he tried repeatedly, if unsuccessfully, to dissuade his headstrong brother from making a return trip to Libya last year. "I'm not trying to make excuses," the older brother said. But "anyone who knows Billy knows that no one can push him around."

On July 22, White House disclosed that Billy Carter arranged a meeting between White House and Libyan officials last Nov. 27 in an attempt to gain Libya's support for release of the hostages seized in Iran three weeks earlier. Libya subsequently appealed, without effect, for the American captives' release.

"In this respect the approach to the Libyans was successful," the president said. "Whether it would have been successful if Billy had not participated is a question no one can answer with certainty."

"In his statement, Carter reiterated: "I can state categorically that my brother Billy has had no influence on my decisions or on any U.S. government policy or action concerning Libya. I can also state that Billy has never asked me to take any step that would affect any of these actions or policies."

The president also made these sweeping points: — He never tried to influence the Justice Department investigation of Billy Carter.

— He did not learn until it was made public last month that the Libyan government had paid his brother $200,000.

— He never received any of Billy Carter's Libyan money.

Initial reaction to Carter's explanation was cautious.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., chairman of the special Senate subcommittee, declined comment, but his vice chairman, Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said, "We have heard the president's side of the matter; now we will hear the witnesses and maybe hear the other side."

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., perhaps the president's sharpest critic on the committee, said there still is "a lot to explore." He expressed particular interest in a conversation between Carter and Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti in which Civiletti told the president that Billy Carter would not be prosecuted if he registered as a Libyan agent.

Carter acknowledged he made a "highly technical" mistake when Civiletti and the White House denied the two men had discussed the Billy Carter matter before a thorough record search revealed they had.

City approves $5 million budget

City commissioners put the finishing touches on the preliminary $5 million city budget for the 1980-81 fiscal year during a study session in city hall Monday afternoon.

The draft of the budget agreed on in Monday's meeting will be submitted Friday to the city secretary by City Manager Mack Wofford.

Preliminary figures indicate the budget will be close, but balanced, Wofford said.

During the meeting, attending commissioners Coyle Ford and Clyde Carruth and Mayor H. R. Thompson agreed to cut the major capital expenditures except for the landfill compactor, eliminating a fire truck and a sewer machine designed to clean sewer lines. Also, one of the three vehicles requested by the police department was cut.

As it is now, Wofford said, the budget is set at approximately $5,387,000.

The budget includes a 14.3 percent overall increase in wages and salaries to be divided into an 8 percent overall raise Oct. 1 and another 4 percent merit raise in April. The other 2.3 percent is included in temporary and part-time employee salaries.

City officials agreed to hire five personnel in the coming year — four police officers and one sanitary-sewer employee.

A plea to keep the four police officers in the budget was presented by Mike Ehrle who cited facts that indicated on the average Pampa is protected by one officer for every 9,000 population where state law enforcement statistics recommend one officer for every 850 persons.

Many officers were working off-duty without pay, Ehrle said, to help on-duty officers who were "snowed under."

Despite the limited personnel, he said, the department was still managing to keep a good record of cleared cases and recovered property. The city police department has a 30 to 50 percent recovery rate, he said, compared to the national average of 24 percent.

After the speech, commissioners commented favorably on retaining the proposed officers.

"We've been passing them (the police department) over for so long," Mayor Thompson said, "I don't see how we could do it anymore."

No rate changes for city utilities nor an increase in the current tax rate of $2.13 per $100 valuation has been proposed in the new budget, Wofford said.

ONE MAN WAS INJURED in a head-on collision 23 miles east of Pampa Monday afternoon. The vehicle driven by Jack R. Cox, 64, of Borger, is shown above where it came to rest crunched beneath a dump truck owned by Grant, Inc. The force of the crash caused the rear wheels of the Cox vehicle to rise from the ground in the airborne position before tow chains were attached.

TANNER SCOTT KELN

CANADIAN - Graveside services for Tanner Scott Keln, 11-day-old son of Mr. and Mrs. David Keln were held at 10 a.m. today in the Canadian Cemetery under the directions of Stickle-Hill.

Tanner Scott Keln died Sunday in Amarillo. Survivors include his parents; one brother, Ross Poyner of the home; one sister, Joy Poyner of the home; his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Keln of Canadian, and The Rev. and Mrs. Harry Fare of Cunningham, Kansas.

NANNIE LICENA BUCKNER

Services for Mrs. Nannie Licena Buckner, 89, of 701 E. Albert St. are pending with Smith Funeral Home.

Mrs. Buckner died Monday in Highland General Hospital. She was born Aug. 30, 1890 in Fort Smith, Arkansas.

Mrs. Buckner had lived in Pampa since 1928. She married David S. Buckner in 1933. He died in 1965.

She was a member of the Harrah Methodist Church. Survivors include two sons, Clifton Perkins of Pampa, and Clyde Perkins of Lubbock; one daughter Mrs. E.L. Varley of Fort Worth; two sisters, Mrs. Mamie Ramsey of Keithville, and Mrs. Webb Moak of Port Arthur; one brother, Jesse Wheeler of Grandview; seven grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

CRUSADE YOUTH NIGHT SET

Thursday night was designated as Youth Night during the Wayne Bristow Evangelistic Crusade now in progress at Harvester Stadium, according to crusade chairman, Dennis Barton. This special service is scheduled to begin after the crusade meeting.

Evangelist Bristow is a frequent speaker on campuses both in the United States and overseas. He has a great rapport with students, and relates the Christian message to them in an aggressive, straightforward manner. His sermon Thursday night will have special interest to young people from junior high through 25 years of age.

Bristow has expressed his strong desire to see local civic and educational leaders present at the crusade on Thursday evening, when a positive answer will be voiced to many of the problems facing today's youth.

A "youth only" session described as "That Thursday Night Thing" will follow the evangelistic service on Youth Night at M.K. Brown Auditorium. This period will feature Jimmy Hodges, soloist for the Bristow team, doing an exciting drum demonstration.

During a recent crusade, Bristow said, "I have looked at every hero and cause calling for the commitment of young people, and not one of them compares to Jesus. Christ alone can meet the deep need of the human heart. Young people everywhere are turning from the pursuit of sex, security, and success, and are turning to Jesus. Where this is happening, men are really coming alive!"

HUNTER SAFETY COURSE REGISTRATION

Registration for the Hunter Safety Course is underway at Al's Surplus on West Alcock.

All sportsmen planning to hunt in the neighboring states of Colorado, Kansas, or New Mexico must have a certificate of attendance from a Hunter Safety Course. The certificate is required for obtaining a hunting license in those and several other states.

The course consists of an eight hour class, which has been planned for Saturday and evening hours. Instructing the class will be several certified Hunter Safety Instructors.

Anyone 12-years-old or older will be given a certification card upon completion of the course.

Fee for the course is $1.

fire report

There were no fires reported to the Pampa Fire Department during the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today.

minor accidents

An accident occurred in the 300 block of West Kentucky at 3:30 Monday, when a 1972 Oldsmobile driven by Francis Craver Appleby, 74, of 1305 Charles was in collision with a parked 1978 Ford. No injuries were reported at the scene of the mishap. Appleby was cited for improper passing.

National weather

Heavy thunderstorms swept from the upper Great Lakes to eastern Kansas, bringing 70 mph winds to Illinois.

Thunderstorms overnight downed trees and power lines throughout Illinois and flooded some streets.

But the storms also brought at least an inch of badly needed rain for the state's corn and soybean crops.

High winds tore the roof off a medical clinic in Lanark, and lightning touched off minor roof fires in a half-dozen communities. Power failures blacked out parts of the northern third of the state for several hours, with 5,000 homes in Winnebago County left without electricity.

"We got hit broadside in the north, south, east and west," said a Commonwealth Edison spokesman. "There are a lot of transformers out and a lot of lines down. It's not something that we can fix easily. These are individual problems and they are scattered all over."

Power was expected to be restored later today.

Skies were fair Monday across the Gulf Coast states and over much of the Atlantic seaboard. A few thunderstorms lingered in Texas, while the western third of the nation had fair skies.

Cooler air settled over the northern Rockies and the northern Plains.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 a.m. EDT ranged from 42 degrees in Evanston, Wyo., to 95 degrees in Phoenix, Ariz. Here are some early morning temperatures and conditions around the nation:

Eastern U.S.: Atlanta 76, fair; Boston 78, hazy; Cincinnati 70, fair; Cleveland 73, hazy; Detroit 71, foggy; Miami 83, fair; New York 77, fair; Philadelphia 79, hazy; Pittsburgh 69, partly cloudy; Washington 81, fair.

Texas weather

By The Associated Press
Thunderstorms were forecast today for southern and western sections of Texas.

Most of the state was to have clear to partly cloudy skies and very warm to hot temperatures.

Highs were to range from the upper 80s along the coast to near 100 in the southwestern third of the state and as high as 110 in the Big Bend area of Southwest Texas.

Dense clouds rolled over most of Texas Monday, dropping temperatures below 100 at Wichita Falls, Dallas-Fort Worth and Waco for the first time after 42 consecutive days of readings of 100 or higher.

Wichita Falls had 98 and Dallas-Fort Worth had 96. Midland and El Paso tied for hot spot honors with 100 each.

National Weather Service forecasters warned, however, that the heat wave is not over.

"We haven't seen the last of the 100-degree days," said Bill Scott, a NWS meteorologist at Fort Worth.

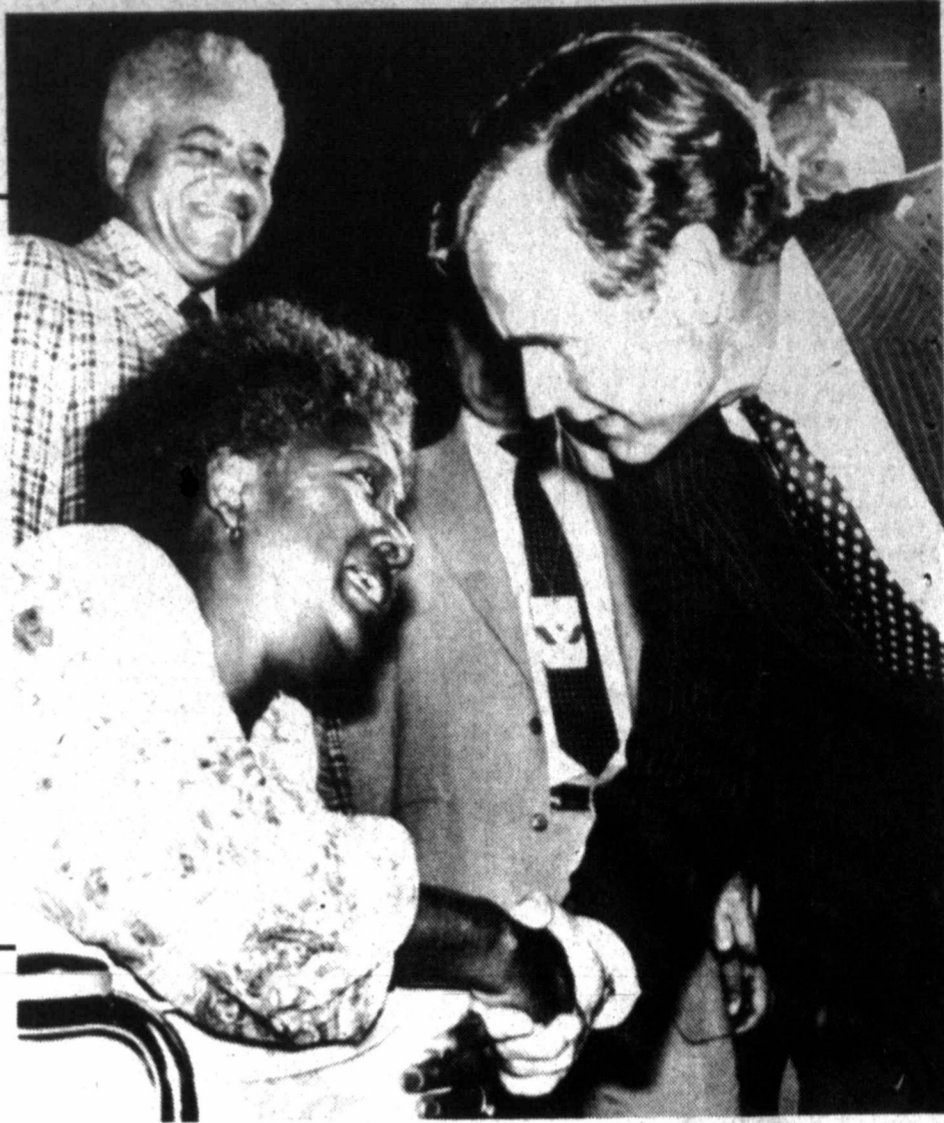

Most of the state was not expected to go over 100 today, but Scott said "It's going to be close, and in all likelihood we will be back up there in a day or two."

The cooler weather was triggered by a cold front that entered the Panhandle Monday, triggering a strong southerly wind and some shower activity.

A surface low pressure trough over far West Texas triggered some thunderstorms in Southwest Texas Monday. Some isolated thunderstorms produced more than an inch of rainfall.

Humor touches senate hearing of Texan candidate for FERC

WASHINGTON (AP) - David Hughes, in line to become the first Texan on the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, did not let his Senate confirmation hearing slip by without a touch of humor.

After a long grilling about natural gas prices was finished, the next senator on the panel turned to simpler matters and asked why Hughes wanted to be a FERC commissioner.

"Well, I'm beginning to wonder," the assistant Texas attorney general flipped back before giving a more complete answer about his commitment to public service.

The intensive questioning from Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, was prompted by a speech Hughes gave to an industry association.

"The whole thrust of the speech is for higher (natural gas) prices," Metzenbaum said at the Senate Energy Commission's hearing Monday.

Hughes said his speech to the Interstate Oil Compact Commission did not represent an endorsement that might prejudice his ability to determine cases as a commissioner.

"I was trying to be very careful to quote the various positions that have been put forth," he said. "All I was trying to do was merely point out the testimony and evidence."

FERC is a 5-member commission that regulates the natural gas industry by setting prices in the interstate market.

The agency succeeded the Federal Power Commission, where a seat traditionally was held by someone from an energy-producing southwestern state.

At FERC, Hughes would fill the vacancy created by the resignation of a commissioner from Arkansas.

Energy committee aides said a vote on Hughes' nomination probably would not be scheduled until after the recess for the Democratic national convention next week.

Confirmation by the full Senate then would be required.

State energy funds earmarked

WASHINGTON (AP) - About $1 is headed to Texas from every $8 of heat wave relief that the federal government has made available so far this summer for lower income people.

President Carter signed a bill Monday that allows $21 million - including a $2 million allocation for Texas - to be distributed by the Community Services Administration as energy assistance funds.

Texas received $2.5 million last month when $6.75 million was distributed in an emergency action spurred by the fatal heat wave.

At least 96 people have died from heat-related causes since the heat wave began 43 days ago.

CSA spokesman John Macomber said the additional funds will be sent to the agency's regional offices for distribution to local community action agencies.

The formula for allocating the funds to the states is based on the severity of the heat and the number of elderly poor.

The White House said the funds would be provided for transportation to heat relief centers, rental or purchase of fans and coolers, rental or purchase of small air conditioners if medically necessary and payment of household utility bills if life or health were endangered by the heat.

Democrat governors take up unity

DENVER (AP) - The Democratic governors are telling the Democratic presidential candidates to stop the bloodletting and get back to the business of beating Republicans.

It is the latest and boldest move by the governors since they took up the unity mission when the party fell apart in 1972, and which they exercised in giving former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter his final boost to the presidential nomination and a party comeback four years ago.

Most of the Democratic governors are still behind Carter, but they signaled strongly on Monday that they are more interested in party survival than his quarrels with SKEN. Edward M. Kennedy, the remaining challenger to Carter's renomination.

In a show of independence, Democrats caucusing at the National Governors' association annual meeting, pointedly declined to vote a new endorsement of Carter's re-election.

And they refused to back the president in a fight with Kennedy over a proposed rule which would bind Carter's delegates at next week's Democratic National Convention in New York.

"We are not going to contribute to further laceration of this party," declared Gov. Robert Graham of Florida, a staunch Carter supporter who will place the president's name in nomination at the convention.

Tech researchers dispute study

SAN BENITO, Texas (AP) - Fish caught in the Arroyo Colorado are all right for consumption, say two Texas Tech researchers, whose laboratory tests contradict the findings of two other laboratories.

The tests by the researchers at Texas Tech's medical branch at San Benito show the amount of pesticide residue found in edible portions of the fish comply with standards of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

Dr. Tony Mollhagen and Dr. William R. Elliott said their tests showed levels of .06 parts per million of DDE, a breakdown product of DDT, and 3.1 parts per million of toxaphene. Under FDA standards, fish are unsafe for eating if they contain at least 5 ppm of pesticides.

Tests by Raltech Scientific Services of Madison, Wis., and Columbia National Fishery Research Laboratory of Columbia, Mo., showed 31.5 and 25.6 ppm of DDE and 24.8 and 25.6 ppm of toxaphene, respectively.

Elliott said there is no record of anyone ever dying from DDT in their system.

The Tech researchers said their laboratory methods are superior to others because of a confirmation technique that double checks the results.

The Texas Department of Health made its own tests on the fish and said its report should be complete by late next week.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service sent a letter to the Environmental Protection Administration, asking that it ban fishing from the stream or post warnings about the pesticides found there.

Soviet boy, sister wards of the state

CHICAGO (AP) — Twelve-year-old Walter Polovchak, who ran away from home and won political asylum when he learned his family might return to the Soviet Union, has been ordered by a judge to visit his parents three times a week.

"I don't want to tear this family apart," said Circuit Judge Joseph C. Mooney on Monday.

The ruling involved custody of Walter and his teen-aged sister and apparently does not affect Walter's political asylum status. Federal officials say the grant of asylum allows Walter to remain in the United States if he chooses.

Mooney named the boy and his sister Natalie wards of the state, adding he intended to return Walter to his family "at the first opportunity."

He said as soon as he is convinced the family can live in harmony "then the court will walk away." Mooney expressed concern that Walter could run into trouble if he ran away from home again.

Walter ran away from home last month when he learned that his parents, Michael and Anna Polovchak, wanted to return to the Ukraine. He was named a temporary ward of the state pending the hearing Monday and has been granted political asylum.

His 17-year-old sister Natalie, who also wants to stay in the United States, is free to remain because she had her own visa when the family arrived seven months ago. She was added to the custody hearing at the request of the state.

Mooney found that the two were in need of state supervision, making them wards at least until a further hearing on their status Sept. 9.

Through a translator, he told the parents, "We want to make certain they don't run (away) again ... I'm afraid the next time Walter runs, he may not run to his cousin Walter. He may run somewhere where he will be harmed."

"It's my decision that if at all possible the children be placed with your sister and brother-in-law in Chicago," and that the cousin with whom the children have been staying not be involved, Mooney told the parents. "Three times a week, and three at least, I want them to visit their parents."

A FLAG FOR THE HOSTAGES. Gayle Jalbert, left, and Lt. Governor William O'Neill, right, display a flag designed by Jalbert and three other Connecticut women that was presented to O'Neill at a brief ceremony at the state Capitol in Hartford Monday.

The women have sent the flag, which was made to honor the American hostages in Iran, to the governors of all 50 states and President Carter with a plea that it be displayed continuously until the hostages are freed.

Clayton attorneys want copies of tapes

HOUSTON (AP) — Attorneys for House Speaker Billy Clayton and three others indicted in the Texas Brilab investigation say they want copies of 48 tape recordings that prosecutors have not released.

They also complain many of the 93 tapes they have heard are of poor quality with words that are impossible to understand.

In a pretrial hearing Monday, U.S. District Judge Robert O'Connor heard arguments about release of the tapes and a request from government attorneys for a hearing on whether the tapes may be used as evidence in the Sept. 8 trial.

The first four persons indicted in the FBI's undercover operation were Clayton, labor leader L.G. Moore, and Austin attorneys Randall B. Wood and Donald W. Ray.

Roy Minton, representing Clayton, said some of the tapes "are sorry as hell. Really, really bad. Some of it sounds like Chip and Dale (cartoon chipmunks) for 30 seconds, then God knows what."

Prosecutors released eight more tapes to the defense Monday, but said many of the others have no connection with the case.

Defense attorneys said they want to listen to all of the recordings and Mike Ramsey, attorney for Moore, said he would file a motion soon asking that all the tapes be turned over to the defense.

"How do we know if they are relevant or not until we hear them," Ramsey said. "I just don't think it is right for the prosecution to say what is relevant and what is not without our side listening to it."

The tapes, certain to be the heart of the trial, were made from Nov. 19, 1979 until Feb. 8, 1980.

The indictments accuse Clayton of taking $5,000 from Moore and FBI informant Joseph Hauser in November, after the two men visited Clayton's office to talk about the $70-million-a-year state employee insurance program.

The indictment also alleges Clayton was to have received an additional $600,000 if the insurance contract was awarded to a firm Hauser allegedly represented.

Clayton has said he received the money from Moore, but insisted he thought it was a campaign contribution and had put it in a safe place with the intention of returning it to the labor leader.

The federal grand jury reconvened Monday and heard testimony from Charlene Womack, secretary for Houston City Councilman Jim Westmoreland. It was Mrs. Womack's second appearance before the panel.

Community benefits from millionaire recluse

ARGENTA, Ill. (AP) — Grace Winings, afraid she would outlive her fortune as she had outlived family and friends, died a reclusive millionaire. But the 1,000 people who live in this farm community will benefit from the money she refused to spend.

"Like most old people, she wanted to be sure that she didn't have to go on charity," said her attorney, Gus Greanias. "She was a very thrifty person and bought no luxuries for herself."

Mrs. Winings decided her estate should be used to meet the needs of the community where she had lived for nearly a century, though many of its residents were strangers to her. "She had a feeling that since she earned the money in that community, she should leave it to do some good there," said Greanias.

Mrs. Winings died last year at the age of 90. Her will stipulated that the income from her 380-acre farm and the interest from her investments — properties valued at a total of $1.9 million — be used each year for community projects.

The trust committee of the Gerber State Bank, which will administer the funds, met Monday and awarded this central Illinois town $12,350 to remodel the municipal building and to obtain an engineering study for a new storm drainage system.

Another $23,805 will be used for heating and electrical improvements in the Friends Creek Community Building, a public meeting hall.

In accordance with the will, the rest of the $125,743 earned since her death will be divided among two churches and the library.

Calvin Sharp, who farmed her rich land for 30 years, said it was a shame she did not spend more of her money before she died.

Names in the News

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The salvage expert who wrote "Raise the Titanic" says a large cluster of underwater junk he found in the Elizabeth River must contain remnants of the Confederate ironclad Merrimack.

Clive Cussler also said Monday there's a "90 percent chance" the wooden wreck his divers found in the James River off Newport News is the Florida, the Southern scourge of Union merchant ships.

The Merrimack, renamed the Virginia when the Confederates won the ship from the Union, was run aground in 1861 and scuttled when Northern troops took over the naval shipyard.

A German diver raised the Merrimack's hull in 1876, Cussler said, but there should be plenty of debris left.

Cussler, whose eyes light up at the mention of any major wrecked ship yet unfound, takes on a special glow about the Merrimack. Because "the North wrote the history books," Cussler said, the Merrimack's most famous Union foe, the Monitor, has gotten most of the attention.

"The Merrimack sank three ships. The Monitor never sank a thing," the 49-year-old Denver resident said.

NEW YORK (AP) — Imelda Romualdez Marcos, first lady of the Philippines, is in this country to secure two large loans for her country, according to a published report.

The 51-year-old wife of President Ferdinand Marcos flew to Washington on Monday to sign for two loans totaling $83 million from the World Bank, the New York Daily News reported.

A bank spokesman was quoted as saying the loans would be used for watershed management and a livestock and fisheries project.

Mrs. Marcos, who arrived in New York last week, dined with former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and his wife, Nancy, undertaking the banking trip.

Bull ride ends in man's death

WEWOKA, Okla. (AP) — A 39-year-old Shawnee man died after being kicked by a bucking bull here during the weekend while competing in his first rodeo.

George Robert Furness was thrown from a bull Friday night during the Greenhorn Rodeo. He was taken to a Wewoka hospital, given emergency treatment and then transferred to a Shawnee hospital where he was dead on arrival.

"I had a premonition that something was going to happen and that's why I didn't go to the rodeo with him," she said Monday, while making plans for her husband's funeral.

"... I felt it was too dangerous. We didn't argue about it, but I asked him not to go," she said.

She said before Furness left for the rodeo, family members took pictures of him in his bull riding outfit to keep as mementos.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Local prosecutors, in a postscript to the Marvin vs. Marvin "palimony" case, say neither actor Lee Marvin nor his onetime live-in girlfriend will be tried for perjury.

"We decided that given the circumstances, we couldn't prove beyond a reasonable doubt that either of them had committed perjury," district attorney's spokesman Al Albergate said Monday.

Neither Marvin nor Michelle Triola Marvin, who sued for half of the almost $4 million the actor acquired in their six years together, could be reached for comment.

Last year, Superior Court Judge Arthur Marshall rejected Miss Marvin's claim that she had an implied contract with her former lover. He awarded Miss Marvin $104,000 for "rehabilitative purposes."

Two months later, her attorney, Marvin Mitchellson, asked the court to reconsider its decision in the light of a column by Jimmy Breslin in the New York Daily News. In the article, Breslin quoted Marvin as saying he "learned how to lie" during the trial.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Covering Commandment.

A clouded 'human rights' vision

Only a few months before the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan oil baron Armand Hammer proclaimed his trust in the Soviet Union's dedication to peace. In his interview with our sister paper, The Register of Santa Ana, California, Hammer repeatedly applauded Soviet intentions. It appears that even the bloodbath taking place in the mountain valleys near Kabul has not dampened his trust of the Russian bear.

Last week the third Armand Hammer Peace and Human Rights Conference was held in Warsaw, Poland. Choosing Soviet dominated Poland as a location for a human rights conference would be somewhat like the American Legion holding a convention in Berkeley, California.

Predictably, the conference was marked by bickering between East and West. One major conflict centered on the internal banishment of the well-known Soviet dissident Andrei Sakharov. Sakharov, one of Russia's most prominent scientists, was shipped off to Gorki when he had the courage to speak up about Soviet violation of the human rights provisions of the Helsinki agreement. An American representative at Hammer's conference suggested the treatment of this world-famous scientist was repressive and harmful to detente.

The Soviet delegation saw things differently. One member of the Russian team, Samuel Zivs, vice president of the Soviet Lawyers Association, called Sakharov a traitor to his country. In the Soviet Union speaking against public policy is considered treason. Nevertheless, good Dr. Hammer is optimistic. He will not let a little thing like repression get in the way of his vision of peace, even if the gang in the Kremlin hauls away the last peace advocate in Russia.

No one should have been surprised that the Soviets and their Eastern European puppets — like Poland — would not talk seriously about human rights. The question remains why Armand Hammer is promoting trust with these fascists of the left. Why, even after the brutal rape of Afghanistan, does he still celebrate detente?

Peace and human rights will never be secured by overlooking the slaughter of distant villagers or the repression of internal dissidents. If the Communist bosses want the trust of the West they need only change their policies. Until then anyone captured by Armand Hammer's vision is deluded.

Support, not boycott, efforts in Guatemala

The sacking of Frank V. Ortiz, Jr., the highest ranking Hispanic-American in the Foreign Service, as U.S. ambassador of Guatemala again betrays the incoherent Carter administration policies that may be hastening the communication of Central America.

But because Guatemala ordinarily has difficulty competing for the attention of preoccupied Americans, the Ortiz affair could serve to spark a bit of public interest.

Indeed, it was Ortiz's attempt to bring some coherence to the State Department's policy in Guatemala that apparently led to his removal after only 11 months in Guatemala City.

In a report to Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie that prompted the showdown, Ambassador Ortiz suggested that his efforts to "strengthen the middle" in Guatemala had been frustrated by statements from Washington giving Guatemala the impression the United States favored the leftist opposition against the government and conservative forces. "It is not in our interest to be perceived as predicating and publicizing our actions in Guatemala on the assumption that the radical changes proposed by the ideological left are the wave of the future," he said.

The ambassador's apprehension about the negative effects of undermining Washington policy statements are well-founded. For example, the assistant undersecretary of state for inter-American affairs, James Cheek, last spring told Guatemalan businessmen they should nationalize their banks and exports and follow El Salvador's example in surrendering their land for redistribution. He warned that social change was the price Guatemala would have to pay for the friendship of the United States. In other words, the State Department line is that Central American countries need "moderate Marxism" as a sort of inoculation against the real thing.

Such advice, such words are bad enough, but U.S. deeds are now crippling Guatemala which is under violent revolutionary siege by the Marxists. Since the beginning of the Carter administration in 1977, the United States has placed an embargo on the sale of all military equipment to Guatemala, even spare parts for planes and helicopters.

Even though the Carter administration provides military sales and assistance to numerous despotic regimes around the world, it considers neighboring Guatemala, where a freely elected president is limited to one four-year term, as being insufficiently pure in its human rights policies.

Such a U.S. boycott of Guatemala's military and even its financial needs, as Ortiz was at pains to point out to Secretary Muskie, has only made matters worse. The Marxists, who are supplied and supported by Cuba and the Soviet Union, are emboldened to even greater violence and the anti-Marxists, the so-called rightists, are driven by paranoia to take violent vigilante action in reprisal.

The strengths and failings of Guatemala's representative government are, to be sure, not without interest. But in a real sense, Guatemalan democracy is as irrelevant as the lack of it, say, in Pakistan, mainland China or Saudi Arabia. The real consideration that should prevail in Guatemala and elsewhere is whether American interests are being served — whether the United States will openly offer, in the ambassador's words, "...unmistakable support for the essential political freedoms." If these are the issues in Guatemala and elsewhere in the world, then the United States should actively support the elements of freedom, however imperfect, and not boycott any ally under violent siege by Soviet-supplied, Cuban-led Marxists.

Cut-ups on the Potomac

By Don Graff
The question is no longer if there is to be a tax cut, but when?
Also, how large and to what eventual effect?

For all except those few who may have discontinued the paper and turned off the television for the summer, that has to be old news.

Talk of a cut has been around for some time, antedating by quite a bit the current slide into recession. The subject was raised months back along with warnings of the coming steep increase in Social Security rates, a compensatory tax break being a quick way to ease the pain of larger paycheck deductions. And more on that later.

But it has now become much more than talk. It is an issue in the campaign.

Republican nominee presumptive Ronald Reagan's call for a 10 percent cut across the board brought an immediate Democratic response, first from congressional leaders on their panicky own and then from a reluctant administration.

The latter is about to unveil for the third time this year yet another budget for the next fiscal year. It is widely advertised that it will provide for tax reductions totaling some $25 billion — with a consequent projected deficit in the $30-$40 billion range.

That compares with an inflation-fighting $16 billion surplus on the previous try. And with the one before that, way back last January, that worked out to a mere $16 billion deficit and was scrapped as dangerously inflationary.

Does this mean inflation is no longer a problem?

Come now. Have you checked your income and outgo lately? But the effect of a recession on voters (it tends to turn them surly) is a much greater problem from your average politician's point of view.

So much for if. Now we come to the matter of when.

The administration is pressing — holding back is probably the better way of putting it — for after the first of the year, arguing in principle that a tax bill should not be slapped together in the heat of the campaign and on practical grounds that there isn't enough time to get one through the legislative mill before Nov. 4 anyway.

But rest assured, there are those who will try. Including a considerable number of vulnerable Democratic incumbents in Congress.

As for how much, the Reagan proposal is guesstimated to come in at a good $10 billion more than what the Carter folks have in mind.

Meanwhile, individuals on Capitol Hill are tossing proposals of their own into the debate. One would be based on those higher Social Security rates, splitting a 10 percent tax credit on payments between employees and employers. An argument in its favor is that by reducing the tax load on business, it theoretically would have an anti-inflationary effect.

Another approach finding considerable favor would reduce the number and widen the income range within tax percentage categories, providing relief from "bracket creep" — particular curse of middle-income groups who find that higher wages, by pushing them into ever higher tax brackets, can be less than no help in keeping up with inflation.

There are also varying opinions as to how the benefits of tax reduction should be split between individual taxpayers and business — the business view, naturally, being that emphasis on the latter would be most effective in shortening the recession.

Of course, it might do much more than that. Under the pressures of the election, it could easily be too big, too much stimulus for consumer demand. The result would be to give the economy another powerful inflationary push that would leave everyone in the post-election long run worse off than ever.

Ideally, a tax cut should be structured to brake the recession and at the same time slow inflation. It is not inconceivable that such a measure could be devised, although history is not encouraging on that point.

But that's an operation calling for exceedingly fine surgery on both national finances and their complex impact on the larger economy.

What we're much more likely to get under the prevailing election-year panic on the Potomac is butchery.

"We'll have seen everything if we see it fly."

Skirt the issues, George

by ART BUCHWALD

During an election year, it is only fair to speculate how George Washington would do if his presidential campaign was being managed by some of the people involved with today's campaigns.

"George, you're a very popular figure, but the fact you won the war for us doesn't necessarily mean you'll be elected as the first president of the United States. We're going to have to work on your image."

"What do you suggest?"
"Well, for a starter, you're going to have to get rid of those wooden teeth. We're going to have to get you some ivory ones that shine, so when you smile everyone can see them."

"I have no intention of smiling. I hate to smile. Have you ever seen one painting of me smiling?"
"All right, forget the teeth. We need a slogan that will catch the imagination of the 13 states."

"How about 'Vote for a man who has never been to Washington.'"
"You are Washington, George."
"I mean Washington, D.C."
"There is no Washington, D.C. It won't be named that until after you die. If you're elected, you're going to have to live in New York and Philadelphia."

"Well, I'm not sure I want to be president if I can't live in Washington, D.C."
"It doesn't make any difference where you live. The important thing is to get you elected as the first president of the United States."

"I'm not certain I want to be the first president of the United States."
"But don't you see that if you are, you will go down in history as the 'Father of our Country'? If you don't go for it, John Adams Campaign! We have to launch a 'Stop Adams Campaign' and you're the only one who can do it."

"He's not a bad fellow."
"George, would you want the capital of the United States to be called Adams, D.C.?"

"No, I guess not. What do you want me to do?"
"First, we have to show that you're completely honest. The question is how do we do it?"
"What if I say that if I am elected I will never lie to the American people?"

"That's good, but how do we dramatize it?"

"Well, I never told anyone this story. But when I was a kid, we had this cherry tree on our plantation, and I went out with an ax and chopped it down. It was my father's favorite tree, and he was really mad so he said, 'George, do you know who chopped down my cherry tree?' I still had the ax in my hand so I figured I'd better tell the truth and said, 'I did it, father,' and he whacked the living daylight out of me just for one lousy cherry tree."

"That's beautiful. We'll put out a press release on that story right away. The papers will eat it up. Anything else you can tell us that will help the campaign?"

"I once threw a silver dollar across the Rappahannock River."

"You'd better not talk about that. It might give the taxpayers the impression you're willing to throw away their money."
"Wait a minute. Let's not reject that out of hand. Suppose we say George threw a silver dollar across the Rappahannock and then swam over to retrieve it. It would show he really cared for a buck."

"But, gentlemen, that would be a lie."
"Look, George, every president of the United States is going to have to lie to the people sooner or later. If you set a precedent of absolutely no lying, no one will ever be able to govern the country."

"I hadn't thought of that. Okay, you can say I swam over and got it back."
"Great, we'll leak it to the papers. Now what about detente with the Indians?"

"What about it?"
"We'll say you're for better relationships with the Indians but detente is a two-way street. If they want to buy grain from us, they're going to have to give us Ohio."

"Why do we need Ohio?"
"We need Ohio just in case John Adams wins the primary in Pennsylvania."

Cut the TV melodrama

By Robert Walters

DETROIT (NEA) — The three commercial television networks once again have managed to provide their promised "gavel-to-gavel coverage" of a presidential nominating convention without actually reporting much of the proceedings.

It isn't easy to fill an entire evening's program schedule with live convention coverage while simultaneously ignoring as much as half of everything that occurs on the podium at the front of the hall.

But the networks' news divisions spared no expense to divert their viewers' attention from the real business of the convention, distort the mood of the meeting and — with the possible exception of the negotiations with Gerald Ford over the vice presidency — exaggerate the importance of what few controversies they could find.

Consider, for example, the NBC News coverage of the opening session of the Republican National Convention, a meeting devoted to welcoming speeches, election of temporary officers and assorted other preliminary chores.

NBC was, of course, "covering" the meeting — but it was offering its viewers an interview devoted to provoking Republican presidential candidate Ronald W. Reagan as he boarded a plane in Los Angeles for his flight to Detroit.

Did Reagan have "any apprehension" about the disputes over abortion and the Equal Rights Amendment planks in the Republican platform? "What controversy?" replied the soon-to-be nominee. "I really don't know what you're talking about."

Undeterred, the intrepid reporter persisted in his efforts to stimulate conflict: "Do you think you will have to put out any brush fires when you get to Detroit?"

But Reagan again refused to go after the bait, so NBC switched back to the convention hall — but not to the podium.

Following a quick exchange with Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., about the possibility that black voters "will walk away from the party," the network turned its attention to "one of the most controversial issues" at the convention — abortion — and "the man at the center of that storm," Rep. Henry J. Hyde, R-Ill.

That's unfortunately typical of the convention coverage of all three of the nation's networks — a process described as "a sort of shell game" by Duke University political science professor David L. Paley and Duke student Martha Elson.

In a perceptive analysis published in the Political Science Quarterly, they note that television coverage of the 1972 Democratic National Convention was subject to criticism because it "emphasized the sensational, the controversial and the unusual."

Eight years have passed and the sponsoring political party has changed in the case of the most recent convention — but the network news divisions remain determined to highlight conflict, division and stress.

The necessity of compressing and even exaggerating events is an understandable if not justifiable product of television news programs limited to 30 minutes and newspaper stories confined to 600 or 900 words.

But there's no excuse for mangling reality when the special convention broadcasts are allocated four to six consecutive hours each evening — adequate time to provide accurate, complete and honest accounts of the proceedings.

Moreover, the presidential nominating conventions of the two major political parties are supposed to be the premier showcases for the network news divisions — the special occasions every four years when they really can show off the talent of their personnel and the technical wizardry of their equipment.

Ceaseless coverage of tedious speeches at the podium, many of them little more than political propaganda, isn't the remedy for what ails television coverage of the conventions — but neither is a repetition of the broadcast industry's penchant for oversimplified, melodramatic reporting. Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Tuesday, Aug. 5, the 218th day of 1980. There are 148 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On Aug. 5, 1963, the U.S., Britain and Soviet Union signed a treaty outlawing nuclear tests in the atmosphere, in space and under water.

On this date:
In 1858, the first transatlantic cable was completed.

In 1861, the government levied an income tax for the first time.

In 1884, the cornerstone of the Statue of Liberty was laid at the entrance to New York harbor.

In 1962, movie star Marilyn Monroe was found dead in the bedroom of her Los Angeles home.

Five years ago, Japanese terrorists ended their one-day-old occupation of the U.S. consulate in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, taking 15 hostages along with them to the airport.

Thought for today: Best be yourself, imperial, plain and true — Robert Browning (1812-1889).

Nursing shortage prompts sophisticated recruiting

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Finding nurses for hospitals has become a big industry complete with high-priced recruiting and bounties, according to a House subcommittee.

The National Association of Nurse Recruiters reports hospitals spend up to $4,000 to lure a single nurse into their facility. The average recruiting cost is $1,010 per nurse.

The Subcommittee on the Nursing Shortage, which issued its recommendations Monday, said the shortage could get worse if pay and working conditions for nurses does not improve.

Texas is short 9,000 nurses, the subcommittee said.

"A persistent and growing problem in health care delivery has been a shortage of nurses that affects, to some extent, all areas of this state," the report said.

"One blatant example of the nursing shortage in Texas is the curtailment of some services by hospitals due to the unavailability of nurses," according to the subcommittee headed by Rep. Bob Simpson, D-Amarillo.

"The competition has moved some hospitals to offer 'bounties' and provide special incentives for new nurses," the report said.

Bringing in non-Texan and foreign nurses might provide the best immediate relief, the report said. The Texas Tourist Bureau and other state agencies should start "selling Texas," the subcommittee recommended.

Major efforts also are needed to bring more students into nursing programs. A "changing work ethic" among students has kept them out of the nursing programs.

"Some of today's students react negatively to the somewhat rigid and demanding employment environments associated with nursing careers and find potential careers that require night, evening and weekend assignments unattractive," the report said.

Hospital officials complained that some nurses are not prepared for the "reality shock" of working in acute care facilities.

The subcommittee also found many students are not prepared for nursing school. "Educators complain that the typical high school graduate enrolling in college programs is not well prepared in basic sciences, mathematics and communications abilities," the report said.

The subcommittee listed 16 recommendations, including a "review of wage and fringe programs."

It also recommended including nurses in decision-making at hospitals and reimbursement of costs of special training programs.

Other recommendations included:

- Establishing a central state office to monitor statewide needs.
- Efforts to persuade federal officials to increase funding for nurse training.
- Recruiting more male, minority and older students for nursing careers.
- Recruiting qualified foreign nurses.

Oil benefitting producers

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas wildcaters, independent oil hunters who say they almost broke seven years ago, today are enjoying the biggest oil boom Texas has seen in more than 20 years.

Backers for new oil drilling projects are almost standing in line to invest their money in a high-stakes gamble that there's oil in them there holes.

"We're seeing doctors, lawyers, anyone that has some money to invest," said Ed McGhee, executive vice president of the International Association of Drilling Contractors.

Reports from the Texas Railroad Commission, which regulates the state's oil and gas industry, show the number of active Texas drilling rigs has jumped by 30 percent over last year, from 722 in 1979 to the current number of 938.

"There's a lot of security people coming in, selling limited partnerships, and also a couple of big companies, like General Electric. Even the banks are getting back in," McGhee said.

One industry expert calls it "the biggest boom in 24 years" and another said the charge of investors trying to get into the business sometimes resembles a stampede.

Most of the drilling is in traditionally oil-rich West Texas, around San Angelo, Midland and Lubbock. Railroad commission figures indicate 235 rigs are operating in that area.

Next is the upper Gulf Coast, north of Corpus Christi, where 130 rigs are pumping crude, commission officials said.

The Texas trend is echoed nationwide, according to industry figures. The number of active drilling rigs has increased from 2,022 in the first six months of 1979 to 2,695 from January through June of this year, and at one time the total hit 2,900.

Court-ordered recount fails

JOURDANTON, Texas (AP) — Although Pleasanton real estate man Bob Lunsford came out on the short end of a court-ordered recount of votes in legislative district 47, he still has not given up on his attempt to defeat runoff opponent Joe Moran of Beeville.

A spokesman for Lunsford said late Monday "he will go ahead with the suit" in state court. The lawsuit charges unregistered voters, out-of-district voters and felons were allowed to cast ballots in the June 7 Democratic runoff.

The statement came after the State Democratic Executive Committee in Austin Monday released unofficial recount totals showing that Lunsford still lost to Moran by a total of 102 votes, 12 less than the original SDEC canvass showed.

The recount was ordered last week by the Texas Fourth Court of Civil Appeals and is scheduled to become official on Wednesday at another SDEC canvass.

Lunsford's voting irregularities suit had been set for a hearing in Jourdanton on July 28 before visiting Judge Eugene Williams of San Antonio, but it was postponed until after the recount. The Lunsford spokesman said Monday another court hearing likely will be scheduled after the recount becomes official Wednesday.

Bar leader wants KKK abolished

DALLAS (AP) — The Ku Klux Klan has no constitutional right to exist and should be outlawed by the U.S. Justice Department, the president of the National Bar Association said Monday. Robert L. Harris, president of the group of black lawyers meeting here, said the "black bar is fed up with the Justice Department inaction" in stopping the KKK. Harris called on President Carter to appoint "a special staff of lawyers to investigate.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 79 years young, and as an avid reader of your column I was sadly disappointed in your response to the gentleman from Minneapolis who requested your definition of "old age." You replied: "To recycle an old cliché, old age, like beauty, lies in the mind of the beholder. But I would say that you reached it when:

"You need your glasses to find your glasses."
 "You walk into another room and wonder what you went there for."
 "People start telling you you're looking good, but no one says you're good-looking."
 "You pass up a romantic encounter because you're worried about your heart."
 "You think today's policemen look like kids."
 Your characterization of older people as sightless, absent-minded, ugly and sexless is unworthy of the usual thoughtful insights your readers expect of you.

President Eisenhower once said, "I'm saving that rocker for the day I feel as old as I really am."
 I know that he would consider the following more apropos of old age than your reply:

"There is only one thing that old age can give you, and that is wisdom." — S.I. Hayakawa
 "Old age is ready to undertake tasks that youth shirks because they would take too long." — Somerset Maugham
 "As soon as a man acquires fairly good sense, it is said that he is an old fogey." — Ed Howe
 I'm told that President Eisenhower never used that rocking chair. With kindest regards,
 CLAUDE PEPPER, FLORIDA, CHAIRMAN,
 U.S. HOUSE COMMITTEE ON AGING

DEAR REP. PEPPER: I beg your forgiveness, and the forgiveness of all others whom I may have offended.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a girl, just turned 15. I am allowed to date guys who drive regular cars, but my father won't let me go out with a guy who drives a van. I think that's dumb, but as long as I am living under his roof I have to do what he says and keep my mouth shut, right?

My next question is this: When a guy calls up and asks me to go out with him, is it OK if I ask him what I should wear, or isn't that considered cool?

DUMB QUESTIONS

DEAR QUESTIONS: No questions are dumb if you really want to know the answer.
 In response to your first question: Right.
 And when a guy asks you for a date, it's not only "cool," it's smart to ask him what he has in mind. You wouldn't dress the same for a movie date as you would for a basketball game.

DEAR ABBY: I am a pushover for young people. Four young employees who work with me have borrowed money from me for "personal emergencies." The smallest amount was $300. Not one of those who owes me has ever mentioned the debt, or made any effort to repay even a part of it. One debt is three years old. (By the way, I didn't ask for any interest on my money, nor did I ask anyone to sign a note.) All four co-workers are very friendly to me, and none seems embarrassed about his non-payment. I am far from wealthy and could use the cash myself, as I shall be retiring soon. How shall I handle this?

TIMID

DEAR TIMID: Try this: "Look, my young friend, you have owed me $_____ for _____ months. I've said nothing, hoping you would recognize the importance of keeping your credit good. You will hurt yourself in the future more than you hurt me now if you don't face up to the responsibility of paying your honest debts, so how about it? (P.S. Never lend money — not even to your brother — without an IOU.)"

Novel makes fun reading

NO MORE MONDAY MORNINGS. By C.P. Crow. Viking. 191 Pages. $9.95.
 C.P. Crow's "No More Monday Mornings" is a skillfully written suspense novel.
 It is the story of Jake Stratton, a middle-aged public-relations man, who discovers that the CIA and organized crime have conspired to buy his upstate property to use as a secret nuclear-waste dump.
 Jake, suspicious by nature, begins to piece the plot together after talking to a friend — a former newsman who writes crime books. The ex-reporter lives near Jake's land, and recognizes one of the men interested in buying the property as a New York hood. This piece of information, coupled with other tidbits, arouses their curiosity, and the two join forces to unravel the scheme.
 Jake's motives in taking on the syndicate and the CIA are not entirely noble. He does it for money. He is tired of watching his paycheck being gobbled up by taxes and inflation. He also wants excitement. Still, there is something in Jake's character other than thrills and dollar signs that moves him to battle the bad guys.

 Somehow, Jake's plan works. He even winds up with a woman, a daughter and a place at the shore in the process. But the story's conclusion can be taken as ironic. Although his new life is simpler, it is "more boring."
 Much of the novel's success can be attributed to Crow's crisp style. His characters, on the whole, are vivid and believable. His descriptions succinct. This all helps to make "No More Monday Mornings" a fun book.

Kids missing breakfast

NUTLEY, N.J. (AP) — Breakfast is missed at least once a week by nearly half of 3,000 children 8-14 years old who were surveyed as part of a national tour featuring Nutro, a nutrition-teaching robot.
 Thirty-five percent of the students said they missed breakfast once or twice a week, while 13 percent missed it three times or more. The poll also showed that 41 percent of the youngsters snacked three or more times each day, and 59 percent once or twice.
 Their favorite snack choices were sweets, 35 percent; fruits and vegetables, 27 percent; potato chips, 18 percent; soda, 11 percent, and nuts and cheeses, 9 percent.

 Nutro held classes in 35 schools in 16 states as part of a public service program sponsored by Hoffmann-La Roche Inc. The program was created in response to the growing national concern for children's poor eating habits, and the need for more effective approaches to nutrition education, said David Canty, nutritionist and "voice" of Nutro, who expressed concern over the findings.
 "Youngsters at this age are in a critical growth period," he points out.

AT WIT'S END

By Erma Bombeck

"We should spend more time with the children," I told my husband the other day. "In a few years they'll be gone and we'll rattle around in this empty house wishing we had taken the time to sit down and find out how they felt about things...their hopes...their ambitions...what are you smiling about?"

"I'm still back at the part on rattling around in the house. Do you know I shaved the other morning without steam on the mirror and nearly scared myself to death?"

"Children need the companionship of an adult," I continued. "That very special relationship in the formative years where you listen to one another, advise, assess, mold values, exchange ideas and points of view. We don't even know how they feel about life."

"Get on with it. What are you suggesting?"

"You should take your son fishing and I'll have the weekend here alone with our daughter. That way it's a one-on-one situation where we really get into the meaningful stuff."

Last week, as I watched father and son load up all the gear into the four-wheel drive, a lump came into my throat. When they left the driveway, I called to my daughter.

"Whatya want? I'm on the phone."

She was on the phone for more than five hours.

As she was showering, I fell to my knees and yelled under the door. "Do you want to talk about anything?"

"Yes," she yelled back. "Do you have a clean pair of panythoes?"

Later, as she tore out the front door, I tugged at her sleeve and asked, "You want to tell me how you feel about life?"

"I'm for it," she said simply, pecking me on the cheek.

The next morning, she slept until noon and at lunch she wore a pair of headphones and a blank expression to the table. I was relieved when my husband and son pulled into the driveway. "How did you make out?" I asked.

He smiled triumphantly. "If I do say so myself, it was one of my better performances. I talked about values in this life and how sometimes it was hard not to become tainted by what is going on in the world around us, but we are a family and if we stick together, there isn't anything we can't do. I talked about aims and goals in life and how you had to be patient and sometimes compromise and you know...all the brilliant things a kid will remember his father saying for the rest of his life."

"What did he say?" I asked excitedly.

"Nothing. He slept all the way up and back."

He smiled triumphantly. "If I do say so myself, it was one of my better performances. He smiled triumphantly. "If I do say so myself, it was one of my better performances. I talked about values in this life and how sometimes it was hard not to become tainted by what is going on in the world around us, but we are a family and if we stick together, there isn't anything we can't do. I talked about aims and goals in life and how you had to be patient and sometimes compromise and you know...all the brilliant things a kid will remember his father saying for the rest of his life."

Rivermen escape high-pressure life

By ROBERT BURNS Associated Press Writer

The life of a riverman, romanticized in Mark Twain's famous tales a century ago, is attracting a growing number of workers. For about 85,000 Americans it's a refuge from an accelerated age.

Rivermen lead simple lives, sheltered by nature from the elements of man. Miles of winding river are cut off from the outside world by rows of willow trees or steep, gray bluffs reaching into the sky.

At the same slow pace of their journey on the river, they speak of peace and quiet, of escape from crowds and crime.

"It's just you and the river," said David Blackwell, a first mate on the towboat Joe Pat Eckstein. "It gets in your blood, this life."

The Joe Pat, as it's called by its crew, was pushing a convoy of dry cargo barges down the lower Mississippi River past the historic riverside communities from St. Louis to New Orleans.

There is an unusual sense of isolation, of quiet solitude and peaceful stillness on the river that strikes a romantic chord in many rivermen.

Rivermen lead neatly portioned lives: six hours on duty, six hours off, seven days a week. It's a life of little glamour, yet rivermen say it's a final frontier in American labor.

The Joe Pat's captain, Frank Van Wagner, has been a riverboat pilot for 38 years, all but 34 as a captain. A taciturn Texan, his fascination with rivers began when he was a child in southeast Kansas.

"I used to watch the houses float down the Verdigris River in a flood and I would hear there were boats bigger than those houses," he said. "That got me started."

At 52, he has no intention of stopping.

With his cowboy boots, blue jeans, sport shirt, wire-rimmed glasses and gold neck chain, Van Wagner looks as if he were entertaining friends at a backyard barbecue — hardly the folklore image of a riverboat pilot.

"Most people who aren't acquainted with the river think we're a bunch of thugs and pirates," Van Wagner said. "They figure we go up and down the river, go ashore whenever we want and get drunk and spend all our money."

That scenario is a far cry from reality, of course, but there is a reason such myths might exist. River work is far removed from the rest of the laboring world; it's devoid of white collar pressures, ringing telephones, public protests, office politics and production quotas.

Yet there remains in the minds of many a certain mysticism about rivermen, they who are tucked away on the country's 25,000 miles of inland waterways, rarely seen and never heard.

Michael Resnick, a dimpled, red-bearded Illinois native, is a newcomer to towboat work, but it took him no time to recognize its romantic appeal.

"You don't have the presures of what's happening in the rest of the world. You're alone out here, away from it all," he said.

Resnick was one of four deckhands on the Joe Pat, a snub-nosed, squat towboat of the Marquette Transportation Co. of Cassville, Wis., as it made its way down the granddaddy of American rivers. Its 5,600-horsepower engines can push a load of barges up to 250 miles a day in the open water of the lower Mississippi.

Deckhands are the lowest ranking workers on a towboat.

DR. LAMB

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My son has lifted weights for about five years now every day for about one hour. He's 6 feet tall and will be 21 next month. He weighs 170 pounds and was never built strongly but since he's started lifting weights, he has become very muscular.

He lifts weights very hard. I think too much and too hard. He's exhausted after he lifts. No matter how tired he is, he still does it. I've noticed for quite some time that his hands shake a little, especially after the lifts. His hands also shake when he's trying to hold his hand real steady. I think he's hurting himself. Can he overdo it by straining?

DEAR READER — The shaking hands and the weight lifting may have no connection at all. If a muscle is markedly fatigued, it will shake. It's possible that excessive fatigue could cause him to have an increased tendency toward shaky muscles immediately after lifting. It should not result in shaking hands after he's rested.

I'm not sure what you son's goal is with weight lifting, but if he wants to develop larger and stronger muscles he may not be following the proper program. Very good studies show that excessive exercise can result in a plateau effect. Specifically, the muscles don't get any larger and the strength is not increased further. There is an optimal rate of training for continued increase in muscular size and strength.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 5-4, Weight Training for Energy and Weight Control. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. As this issue explains, developing and maintaining muscle size also will help prevent obesity or unsightly fat deposits around the body.

The only connection I can see between the weight lifting and the shaking hands would be that he has muscle fibers in the neck and shoulder area that are causing pressure on the nerves that go to the arms. In any case, the steadiness of the hand is related to its neuromuscular control and if the shaking persists it might be advisable to have your son see a doctor, possibly a neurologist.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is it really important to have the rectum and lower colon checked with an instrument when a person isn't having any trouble? The phosphosoda makes me sick and the instrument check upsets me so bad I hurt in my chest for a month afterward. It upsets my whole system. I am fine before these check-ups. My doctor seems to think these check-ups are necessary.

DEAR READER — Just keep in mind that cancer of the colon and rectum is the second most common cause of cancer deaths, exceeded only by deaths from cancer of the lungs. Successful treatment depends upon early detection. A rectal examination during your regular physical examination is important. A simple finger examination may detect a number of rectal cancers early enough that they can be completely cured. How frequently you need a more extensive examination will depend upon your own condition. I think considering the significance of the problem, you should rely on your physician's judgment.

You might ask him if there's something that can be done to avoid the complications you're having. You may be able to use something else to prepare for the examination.

Report cites kids' health risks

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — According to the recently issued report prepared by U.N. Environment Program, 350 million of the world's 1.5 billion children lack the basic needs of food and shelter.

In industrial countries, UNEP says, there is an average of 15 deaths per 1,000 live births. In poorer African and Asian nations, many infants, weakened by malnutrition, die from preventable diseases.

The worst killer is filthy water, with which a long list of diseases like cholera, typhoid and typhus are associated. A standpipe in a slum or a concrete lip on a village well are just two ways of improving a child's chance of survival, the report says.

Children are the section of society most vulnerable to a contaminated environment, UNEP points out. Pesticides used to grow crops can contaminate human milk. In cities, children are at risk from pollution in the form of smoke, sulphur oxides and lead from car exhausts.

Equally damaging to the child, the report adds, is the lack of education. Although enrollment in primary schools doubled in developing countries between 1960 and 1975, about one-third of their 6-11 year olds don't even start school.

Youngsters tap energy of sun

NEW YORK (AP) — While energy czars juggle world resources, New York City Boy Scouts have been investigating some practical uses for the free energy from the sun.

The Solar Energy Workshop has given thousands of youngsters the opportunity to build and experiment with an array of sun-powered devices to cook meals, heat water and power electrical equipment.

The program, which started in Troop 70 under the direction of volunteer Jesse Slome, who originated it seven years ago, has spread and is now run during the summer for Scouts attending Ten Mile River Scout camps in upstate New York.

Slome, who has trained the leaders, including youngsters who started in the original group and now run workshops, got interested in the field when he did research for a college term paper on solar energy.

Developing tomorrow's energy sources is everyone's concern, but it is particularly vital for our nation's young people whose world will depend on new and alternative forms of energy," Slome, 27, said.

The Solar Workshop was conceived during the 1973 energy crisis to stimulate the minds of its young participants. "We wanted to look beyond energy conservation," Slome explained, "for a long-term solution which would be meaningful, yet fun for kids to learn."

With an initial investment of $50, the workshop's creator began to build and test an assortment of solar cookers, as well as unusual solar devices such as sun-powered flashlights and radios, in an effort to interest the young audience.

Slome points out that one of the current problems facing acceptance of solar energy by adults is the belief that its use is limited to a few Southern states.

"Convincing a doubting young mind is even more difficult," Slome acknowledged. "A simple explanation of how the sun heats a home is inadequate. When someone actually feels the tremendous heat generated by a small solar oven then the concept, on a larger scale, becomes reality."

Part of the program's persuasive approach involves urban youngsters' cooking hot dogs with the sun in the snow.

Since its inception, a growing number of schools, summer camps and youth organizations nationwide have adopted many of the workshop's activities. The New York Scout Troop 70, which operates the program year-round, has produced several solar energy booklets and a kit of solar projects which youngsters can build.

Each summer, however, the program shifts into full gear as thousands of youngsters at Scout camps gather to fry eggs sunny-side up, and broil solar kebabs in the noontime sun.

"The most gratifying experience is knowing that what we're doing will have an impact on our country's future," Slome says. "Meeting teenagers who cooked their first solar meal as part of the workshop, and who are now preparing to major in solar engineering at college, that's a pretty bright moment indeed."

CLAY DOUGLASS, son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Douglass of Pampa, finished third in two swimming events to qualify for the summer world games for the deaf next summer in Cologne, West Germany.

In swimming

Douglass qualifies for world games

Clay Douglass, a member of the Pampa High swim team, has qualified for the summer world games for the deaf, which will be held in Cologne, West Germany in July, 1981.

Douglass, 15, qualified for the team by winning third place medals in the 1500 meter freestyle and the 200 meter backstroke during the trials last month at Cleveland State University in Cleveland, Ohio, site of the 1979 NCAA swimming championships.

Over 80 college and high school swimmers from across the United States participated in the competition.

Douglass, who will be a Pampa High sophomore, entered nine individual events at the meet, and qualified for the finals in every event. He also bested his previous high marks in every event.

Douglass was born deaf and started swimming when he was three years old.

Seven years later he became the first 10 and under from Pampa to ever make the Texas Age Group Swimming Finals.

Last year as a freshman, he qualified for the high school regionals in all his events.

Douglass, who will compete for both the Pampa High and Dolphin swim clubs next year, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Douglass.

Eleven men and eleven women were selected for the U.S. team. The men's team will be led by Jeff Flood, currently a collegiate swimmer at the University of Southern California and one of the premiere college swimmers in the United States.

Beth Lutz from Dallas was the only other Texas qualifier for the team. Miss Lutz is a member of the University of Arizona team and a junior national qualifier. John Wieck, from Birmingham, Mich., coach of the team, said the current U.S. team should be the strongest team that the U.S. has ever sent to the world games.

Over 1200 athletes from approximately 50 countries competed in the last summer games held in Bucharest, Rumania, in 1977, before crowds exceeding 35,000 people. The United States will send approximately 150 athletes to Cologne to participate in 14 different sports. The Americans claimed 103 medals (38 gold) in 1977 at Bucharest, which makes up the highest total by any country since the games began in Paris, France in 1924. Russia finished second with a total of 61 medals.

The United States swim team will meet in North Carolina three weeks prior to the world games in Cologne for conditioning. Following 10 days of competition in Germany, the team will then take a two-week sightseeing tour of neighboring countries in Europe.

IOC has new prexy

MOSCOW (AP) — Juan Antonio Samaranch has taken over the presidency of the International Olympic Committee bent on "restoring harmony" to the Olympic movement.

"We must restore everything that was destroyed in the last few months," the new IOC president from Spain said after taking over the chair from Lord Killanin. "We must re-create harmony in the Olympic movement, so that the youth of the world may meet in an atmosphere of friendship and joy the next time."

Samaranch's reference, of course, was to the recent 36-nation boycott of the Moscow Olympics spearheaded by the United States.

At his first news conference as president, Samaranch was a distinct contrast to Killanin.

Mariners fall in cellar

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The pathetic Seattle Mariners, losers of 10 consecutive games and 21 of 25 contests since the All-Star break have taken what President Dan O'Brien called a "new direction," with former base-stealing star Maury Wills at the helm.

The Mariners announced Monday afternoon that Darrell Johnson, the only manager the American League team had ever known, was being dismissed and Wills, a star shortstop mostly with the Los Angeles Dodgers during his playing days, was his replacement.

Wills made his debut as a major league skipper Monday night, but it made no difference as the Mariners lost their 10th straight, an 8-3 setback at the hands of the California Angels.

The loss dropped the Mariners into last place in the AL West, one game behind the Angels.

Since his retirement as a player in 1972, Wills has made it clear that he wanted to be a big league manager. He becomes the third black to hold such a position, following Frank Robinson, who managed the Cleveland Indians from 1975-77, and Larry Doby, who guided the Chicago White Sox for part of one season after that.

As far as being baseball's third black manager is concerned, Wills said: "I hadn't thought of it. But many times I wondered why I didn't get an offer to manage in the major leagues. I did a lot of soul-searching. I didn't come up with anything feasible."

Johnson, who managed the Boston Red Sox to an AL pennant in 1975, lasted 3½ seasons with the Mariners, who were formed as an expansion team in 1977.

Johnson, 52, guided his teams to records of 64-98, 56-104, 67-95 and 39-65 this season.

Bullpen Coach Don Bryant was also dismissed by the Mariners.

"We appreciate everything Darrell has done," O'Brien said during a news conference at Anaheim Stadium. "But we want to take a new direction and we think we have the man to do it."

"I think he (Wills) was the best baseball man available. I hope he manages the way he played, aggressive and effective."

Wills, 47, has been hired to manage the Mariners through the 1982 season.

National League baseball roundup

By BRUCE LOWITT AP Sports Writer

"The biggest thing I did," Tom Seaver said, "was to tell myself not to get excited." But he is gonna tell that to the rest of the Cincinnati Reds?

The Reds, without their pitching ace for more than a month, managed to stay right in the thick of the National League West pennant race. And on Monday night, Seaver returned with a flourish.

He pitched six innings, striking out five batters and limiting San Diego to four hits and one unearned run as Cincinnati, riding home runs by George Foster and Johnny Bench, snapped the Padres' eight-game winning streak with a 7-1 victory in the opener of a two-night doubleheader. The Reds then ran roughshod over the Padres 11-2 in the second game.

Elsewhere in the NL, Houston defeated San Francisco 4-2, Los Angeles beat Atlanta 5-3 and, in another two-night twinbill, Montreal beat New York 4-3 in the 10-inning opener, then the Mets won the second game 4-3.

"I'm totally happy. We did just what we wanted to do. I threw 87 pitches," Seaver, 45, said after his first appearance since going on the disabled list last July 1 with a sore right shoulder.

"My God, yes, I'm happy!" he exclaimed. "I'm very happy, particularly because I went out throwing hard ... I wasn't going to rush. I was able to throw every pitch I had."

"I will take my place in the starting rotation Saturday against the Dodgers," Los Angeles, with its victory, is second in the division, one-half game behind Houston. The Reds, who were 6½-games back in third place when Seaver went on the disabled list, are still third — but only 3½-games off the pace.

Seaver, who underwent cortisone and anti-inflammation injections, hot-and-cold treatments and a muscle-stretching program during his layoff, recalled that a year ago at this time he was bothered by stomach-muscle problems.

"Last year I pitched my way through it, but this year I decided I wasn't going to do it," he said. "You don't know what's going to happen. It's no fun going out there and getting your socks knocked off."

In the first game, Dan Drissen hit a two-run triple off Randy Jones in the first inning. Ken Griffey walked before Foster hit his 16th homer in the third, then Foster was aboard on an error in the sixth when Bench hit his 16th.

In the second game, Ray Knight had a pair of run-scoring singles, the second one when Cincinnati erupted for eight runs in the seventh inning, five off Padres relief ace Rolie Fingers. Joe Nolan had a two-run single in the outburst.

Astros 4, Giants 2
"With J.R. Richard out, I have to win some ballgames," said Houston's Nolan Ryan, winning for the first time since June 19th. He did so thanks in part to Enoch Cabell's triple in a two-run first inning and Craig Reynolds' decisive single in the second.

Ryan struck out seven, walked five and allowed four hits in seven rough innings before Joe Sambito registered his 11th save.

"Our team being in first place is a reflection of our bullpen," Ryan said. "I struggled the whole game."

But Houston Manager Bill Virdon observed: "I thought Nolan did a better job than usual. He kept us in the ballgame and that's all you can ask of a pitcher. That's the kind of pitching we need to stay in contention now that Richard is unavailable."

Dodgers 5, Braves 3
Steve Garvey and Dusty Baker homered and Steve Yeager broke a tie with a sixth-inning double that carried the Dodgers past Atlanta for their fifth victory in six games and the Braves' sixth consecutive loss.

Garvey hit his 20th homer of the season in the second inning and singled before Baker hit his 20th in the fourth. Pedro Guerrero singled and went to second on Tommy Boggs' wild pitch before Yeager doubled to put LA ahead to stay.

Expos 4-3, Mets 3-4
Andre Dawson's 10th-inning single won the first game and extended his hitting streak to 19 games, the longest in the league this year. It also matched Montreal's club record. But in the second game, with the chance to provide more heroics in the ninth inning, he struck out and his streak ended.

The first-game single scored Ron LeFlore, who had walked and stolen second. In the eighth inning, the Expos scored three unearned runs to halt Pat Zachry's scoreless-inning streak at 27.

FENWICK'S PLANS

REISTERSTOWN, Md. (AP) — Charles Fenwick Jr., the jockey who won the 1980 Grand National Steeplechase aboard Redmond C. Stewart's Ben Nevis II, hopes to have another crack at the National in 1981 with Dosti, owned by his mother, Mrs. Donald M. Culver.

Although Dosti suffered an ankle injury this spring, Fenwick is confident the 11-year-old jumper will be ready for a try at the Aintree course next spring.

"Dosti will be jumping again this fall," Fenwick said, "and ready to race in England next year."

Harris would return if Dallas needs him

DALLAS (AP) — Cliff Harris says he would come out of retirement and rejoin the Dallas Cowboys if coach Tom Landry asked him to do so, but that prospect does not seem likely, according to the coach.

Harris, 31, a former All-Pro free safety who retired unexpectedly in March after 10 seasons with the Cowboys, made his comments after his replacement, Randy Hughes, dislocated a shoulder in a weekend scrimmage.

"I'm sure they're waiting to see what develops, and nobody knows yet," Harris told WFAA-TV reporter Bill Macatee on Monday. "Coach Landry and everybody know how I feel. They know if the predicament becomes serious I would help them out, but I don't think they think it's serious at this time."

Landry was asked Sunday whether he was toying with the idea of luring Harris from retirement because of the Hughes injury. "I wouldn't say so right now. As long as Hughes is going to try to do it, I think we have to let him," Landry said.

Hughes, a 6-year veteran, was hurt trying to make a tackle Saturday in a squad scrimmage at Thousand Oaks, Calif. Receiver Butch Johnson's knee hit Hughes in the right shoulder, dislocating it again.

It was the same shoulder Hughes dislocated last Dec. 9 in a game against Philadelphia.

Surgery would sideline Hughes for the season, but that has been ruled out for the present. Team officials said Hughes will rest a week or 10 days, then try to play with a protective brace, as he did at the end of last season.

In the meantime, 5-11, 170-pound third-year pro Dennis Thurman will play in Hughes' place, Landry said.

Cowboys release seven

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Six free agent rookies and a draft choice were sent packing from the Dallas Cowboys pre-season training camp Monday.

Seventh-round draft pick Lester Brown, a running back from Clemson who was shifted to cornerback, became the first of the team's 1980 draft choices to be put on waivers. Dallas coaches considered Brown, 5-11 and 178 pounds, too small to play running back in the National Football League but the defensive back experiment did not work, coaches said.

The others released were quarterback Doug

Woodward of Pace University, running back Levell Quiller of Pacific, fullback Wayne Russell of Cheyney State, offensive lineman Craig Silverman of Nevada-Las Vegas, punter Mark Ross of Northeast Oklahoma and linebacker Scott Warren of Florida State.

The cuts reduced the team roster to 84 players. The first mandatory roster limit is 60, to be imposed Aug. 19.

The Cowboys return to Dallas on Friday to prepare for the pre-season opening game Saturday against Green Bay.

Yankees bomb Rangers

NEW YORK (AP) — For Reggie Jackson, Monday was a memorable night as a prelude to what he expects to be a more memorable occasion in the near future.

Jackson's 399th career homer was part of a 14-hit assault by the Yankees in New York's 10-4 victory over the Texas Rangers.

"I have 50 games left this season," said Jackson, "and I'm pretty sure I'm going to hit one more homer. I think now, after 13 seasons, I'm recognized as a good player like (Joe) DiMaggio, (Yogi) Berra and (Al) Kaline. But it takes time."

His 400th career home run will be a big event for Jackson, even more so because his father — Martinez Jackson — is coming from his Philadelphia home to watch his famous son until Jackson hits the milestone.

"I don't think 400 homers automatically puts you in the Hall of Fame," Jackson said. "I think 500 probably does. But now I have 13 years, 400 homers, maybe I'm a superstar. And I would have taken it (number 400) off (Sparky) Lyle tonight even without my father here."

New York jumped to a 2-0 lead in the second inning off Texas starter Gaylord Perry, 5-9, when Jackson scored from third on a double play grounder and Eric Soderholm followed with a bases-empty homer, his sixth of the season and first since June 2.

"Perry has given up only six earned runs in his last five starts," said Ranger Manager Pat Corrales, "and came away with an 0-1 record. But tonight was one of those nights when he got the ball up, and in this park, you just can't afford to get the ball up."

Bobby Brown finished Perry in the fourth with a two-run homer that capped a four-run Yankee inning, giving New York a 6-1 lead.

Jackson connected for his 30th of the season off reliever Dave Rajisch in the fifth and the Yankees scored twice more before the inning ended with Soderholm singling in another run and Lyle forcing the third home with a bases-loaded walk to Willie Randolph.

"I just want to play," said Soderholm, the Yankee reserve third baseman who raised his average to .322 with three hits in the game.

"Now that I'm the regular third baseman until (Graig) Nettles gets back from his hepatitis," Soderholm said, "I've been taking extra ground-ball practice and extra hitting against right-handed pitching. I guess it's a human, but I let that go when I didn't have to do it." Rick Cerone's third single of the game drove in another run off Lyle in the sixth. Bucky Dent had singled in the other two runs during the Yankees' four-run fourth.

Parsons resigns

Lefors junior high coach Don Parsons resigned Monday to become assistant football and head track coach at Booker.

Parsons coached four years at Lefors.

Persons interested in the vacant coaching position may contact Lefors High school at 835-2533. A social studies position is also open.

Johnson making comeback attempt

HOUSTON (AP) — In the Houston Oiler football seasons generally referred to as BC (Before Campbell) the most exciting player on the field was a 5-9 jitterbug from Widener College with an irrefragable smile and unbelievable moves.

Billy "White Shoes" Johnson would spin, twist, duck and run his way into the end zone and flash that smile and do his touchdown dance. While building to their playoff prowess of the past two seasons, the Oilers looked to Johnson to make things happen.

By the end of the 1977 season, Johnson was the National Football League all-time leader in career punt returns with a 13.1 average.

But Earl Campbell arrived in 1978 to become a two-time NFL rushing leader and knee operations have removed Johnson from the Oiler roster for the past two seasons.

Johnson is making his second comeback attempt and won't even consider the possibility that it's all over. The smile is still there and, Johnson says, so are the moves. What is not there, is a hesitancy to run.

"Not at all, I might have felt that way if I'd been hit," Johnson said. "I was fortunate that both my injuries were freak accidents."

"When you get hit, you might think about it the next time. It would always be in your mind. But I'm back and I'm ready to do whatever they want me to do."

Johnson went down with cartilage damage while making a cut against Dallas in a preseason game and was out for the year. Noone touched him. The 1979 injury came on a punt return when a player fell on Johnson after he was already on the ground.

Randall quits

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Two-year veteran offensive lineman Tom Randall walked out of the Houston Oilers training camp Monday, unhappy over being moved from guard to tackle, said coach Bum Phillips.

"Tom came to me and said he wasn't real happy at tackle," Phillips said after Randall's departure, "but I told him that was the place we felt like he could most help our team."

"He's the type of kid who has always done what you asked him but this time was the exception."

Phillips said Randall's future was uncertain.

"I told him I would either try to trade him, waive him, whatever is best for him. He's supposed to call me but as of yet I've not heard anything."

Randall saw action in 13 of the Oilers' 1979 games. He originally signed with Dallas in 1978 but was waived by the Cowboys before last season opened.

Current recession being written off

NEW YORK (AP) — While it still might turn out to be the second worst recession since the Great Depression of the 1930s, the current downturn is already being written off by some allegedly far-seeing seers.

This, of course, is an ancient behavioral trait of so-called economic observers. They love to anticipate. They spent two years telling us a recession was coming; now they are telling us an upturn is on the way.

There is prestige in calling the turns, and money, too. It pays to go out on a limb, because if you happen to be right you can forever after advertise the fact. And if you are wrong, you can help people forget.

One well-known economic forecaster helps that process along by means of his own poor memory. If events trip him up, he merely adjusts the record and advises his clients: "As I told you six months ago..."

There is another class of seer who forecasts not for money but for politics, and we are seeing plenty of that ilk in the past few weeks. They are an indomitable sort, always trying to offset misery with hope.

Are we in a recession? Well, it's hard to deny it, but you can try. Isn't it really more civilized to say, as did Treasury Secretary G. William Miller, that "we're forming the basis for a recovery?"

So much has been made of the distant recovery, and so little of the immediate recession, that some of the less-publicized but perhaps more educated and profound economists are reacting with warnings.

"There is an uncomfortable level of euphoria floating through the hot summer atmosphere," says Richard Nenneman of Girard Trust. He calls "simplistic" the notion that the recession is already on the wane.

Chase Manhattan Bank economists are telling customers this week that claims of the recession's end are unfounded. While the worst may have passed, they say, the economy will weaken throughout the year.

Claims that the worst has passed are often based on a slight rise in June retail sales, a rise in housing starts, and an increase in the index of leading economic indicators.

But, says Chase, "these are tender reeds on which to base the claim that a recovery is under way." For one thing, these indicators could continue rising for months before the economy reached where it was.

Man, wife reconcile after murder attempts

DURANT, Okla. (AP) — A man who survived at least six attempts on his life allegedly masterminded by his wife and her lover wants to get the charges against his spouse dismissed because they have reconciled.

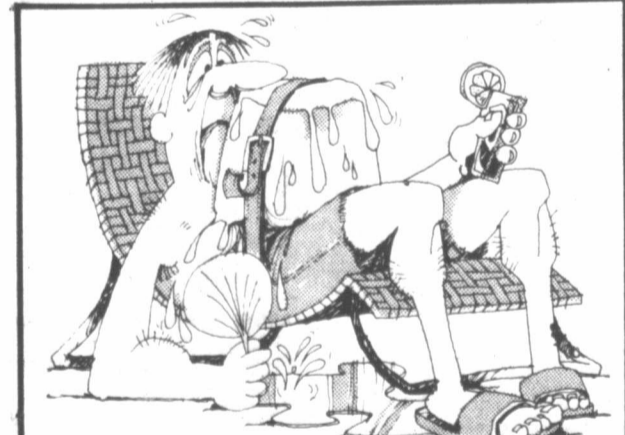

Lawyers for LaFray Stackhouse, 38, of Durant have filed a motion seeking to dismiss charges of conspiracy to commit murder and shooting with intent to kill.

The motion reveals Stackhouse and his wife, Phyllis, reconciled after the death of the woman's lover, James Franklin, two months ago.

According to the motion, Stackhouse has decided he won't testify against his wife.

District Attorney Ron Stubblefield said Monday he wouldn't have any case without Stackhouse's testimony.

At a preliminary hearing for Mrs. Stackhouse and Franklin, testimony revealed Franklin once waited to ambush Stackhouse as he left work.

Television's stout line withers in face of live shows

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Public television's stout line of corporate benefactors, so generously supportive of the arts on PBS, has withered in the face of a project not as easy to get behind as "Live From Lincoln Center."

As a result, PBS' 13-hour Vietnam saga, tracing the Vietnam War through the 1975 American evacuation, has gone begging for funds. The ambitious and worthy series may still be made, if help arrives, but it will likely emerge an abridged version of the original vision.

The project, produced by station WGBH in Boston, intended to dissect that American nightmare, displaying its many parts before a public that — now safely distanced — is seemingly eager to comprehend it.

PBS funding is always a precarious art, but the foundation of this project's deal seems especially complex and fragile. WGBH has a deal with three European TV networks — including ATV in England, which co-produced the controversial "Death of a Princess" with WGBH last year — to produce seven of the proposed 13 episodes.

To get the project going, and to keep those European partners involved, WGBH had counted on a $1 million grant from the Corporation for Public Broadcasting (a total of $4 million is needed.) CPB Program Fund Director Lewis Freedman turned down the request last week, contending that CPB should fund programs of more contemporary subject matters, such as the Equal Rights Amendment.

Now there is the chance that the European partners, unable to wait indefinitely for WGBH to raise money, may drop out.

But the really interesting aspect of WGBH's problems is the disinclination of PBS corporate patrons — such as Exxon, IBM, Xerox and Arco — to help out.

"We all knew this would be a tough one for corporate America," says WGBH's manager for news and public affairs, Peter McGhee. "We knew it would be the last part of the polity wanting to talk about Vietnam. But we did think there was a small group who had enough faith in the system to examine it."

WGBH thought it had found its corporate hero in Exxon. Exxon usually prefers to fund in the area of the arts, like "Great Performances." But to the surprise of WGBH, Exxon "said they wanted to do it," according to one close to the project.

"They believed in the project. They knew there were few companies who had the guts to do it. They saw themselves as one who would."

The producers were excited about Exxon's interest, because among public TV's friends in big business, Exxon has the reputation for "respecting the creative process," as one PBS producer put it. Exxon usually leaves its beneficiaries alone.

But suddenly, Exxon said no. "The chief operating officer (Howard Kaufman) of the company nixed it," according to a source connected to the proposed series.

Kaufman was not available for comment, but an Exxon spokesman said, "I can't believe a decision like this ... would go to that high a level."
