Billy recalls Libyan cable

WASHINGTON (AP) — Billy Carter, reversing statements he made a day earlier, acknowledged today that someone in the White House gave him a State Department cable concerning his 1978 trip to Libya.

President Carter's younger brother told reporters in Plains, Ga., this morning that he did indeed receive a copy of a cable from the American charge d'affaires in Tripoli saying "that he appreciated me coming there and that it helped his job."

Asked who gave him the cable, Carter replied, "I assume I got it from someone in the White House." Asked if that person was the president, he replied, "I won't comment on that directly. It was over a year ago and I don't remember."

He said the cable is now in his lawyer's possession. In Americus, Ga., on Thursday, Billy had strongly denied that he had any government cables, that the president ever gave him any or that he ever said otherwise to Justice Department investigator Joel Lisker.

"I have State Department copies of nothing," the president's brother said at the time. "Jimmy has not shown me anything."

Asked today why he had initially denied receiving any cables, Billy replied, "I didn't realize you were talking about it (the charge d'affaires' memo)."

Billy Carter also had denied lying to Lisker last January about receiving any money from Libya. Today, Billy said Lisker never asked him directly about the money.

"The record speaks for itself," Lisker, who heads the Justice Department's foreign agents registration section, said Thursday.

Also on Thursday, the White House released seven apparently innocuous State Department cables on Billy's visit to Libya and sought to discount any suggestion that the president gave his brother sensitive government information.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell upbraided members of Congress and the news media for their handling of the disclosures of the cables earlier this week.

"I just think that when you're dealing with the integrity questions about the conduct in office of a president of the United States, members of Congress and everybody else ought to know what they're talking about before they leap to conclusions."

Powell, interviewed on ABC-TV's "Good Morning, America" program, said he saw no impropriety in the president sharing the cables with Billy, especially since they had been made available to syndicated columnist Jack Anderson 14 months ago.

"There is absolutely nothing wrong," Powell said. "If he shares them with the news media, which happens all the time, then there's certainly nothing wrong with saying (to Billy) that reports from Tripoli say the trip went well."

The seven cables were released as a special Senate committee investigating the Billy Carter-Libya affair agreed to begin hearings Monday and to try to finish gathering most of the evidence by the end of August.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., chairman of the Senate panel, said he would consider letting the president testify next week, if Carter asked to, but Bayh and the vice-chairman, Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said it would be better to wait until after the Democratic National Convention, which begins Aug. 11.

Powell said the president hopes to issue his report to Congress on the matter Monday and hold a news conference the same day to answer questions about it. Carter has postponed a political trip to Cleveland on Monday.

Powell said the seven cables were the only ones regarding Billy Carter's trip and the only ones the president recalls discussing with his brother.

Five were marked "Limited Official Use," one was classified "Confidential" and one was unclassified. All since have been declassified, and — far from being secret — all actually were released under the Freedom of Information Act to columnist Jack Anderson more than a year ago, Powell said.

The cables contained reports from the U.S. Embassy in Tripoli on the activities of the small, unofficial delegation of Americans headed by Billy Carter in September 1978. They reflected some concern about what he might say that could further exacerbate the already-strained relations between the two nations.

Shortly after the delegation left, however, American charge d'affaires Willi am Eagleton reported home: "As far as we can see, there has been no negative fallout from Billy Carter's visit to Tripoli. In fact, on the local scene we would rate it a very positive event which has opened some doors for this embassy and raised the morale of the American community."

Truck passenger remains critical

An Alabama man remains in critical condition today in an Amarillo hospital after a head-on crash between two semi-tractor trailer rigs early Thursday morning, which took the lives of the drivers and raised the number of fatalities to 14 on "Death Alley" — a 10-mile stretch of construction on Interstate 40 between the Panhandle towns of Alameda and Groom.

Killed were Edmund Monroe Hughes, 57, of Horton, Ala., and Paul Eugene Carter, 47, of Yukon, Okla., identified by Texas Highway Patrol Trooper R. C. Parker as the drivers of the two trucks involved in the accident one mile west of Alameda at 5 a.m. Thursday.

A passenger riding in the sleeping compartment of the Hughes truck, 33-year-old Wayne Johnson of Boaze, Ala., was listed in critical condition in the Intensive Care Unit of Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo by hospital personnel.

Parker said the fatal crash occurred when the Roadway truck driven by Hughes passed over the center lane of the highway meeting head on with the eastbound rig driven by Carter.

One of the victims had to be removed from the wreckage by the McLean Fire Department, a fire department spokesperson said.

Carter died while undergoing treatment at the McLean Hospital emergency room. Hughes died about two and a half hours after the wreck at Northwest Texas Hospital.

The third fatal accident since May, Thursday's wreck occurred in almost the same location where a similar head on collision claimed the lives of two persons in early November 1979.

A British Columbia woman and a man from Collingwood, Tenn., were killed in an accident on Nov. 8, 1979, 1.1 miles west of Alameda. Three others were seriously injured in the mishap.

Over a one-week period last May, four people died in two separate accidents on the dangerous two-lane construction road.

Shortly after the two wrecks, THP troopers began to patrol the area more heavily, slowing traffic and possibly contributing to the two-month lapse between fatal accidents.

Common factors to the series of wrecks, officials say, are out-of-state drivers who are not aware of the dangerous stretch and the fact that a large part of the accidents occur at dawn or early evening when lighting conditions are bad. Also, they say, most collisions are head on and occur when one of the parties is attempting to pass.

Construction work on the over $20 million Texas Department of Highways and Transportation project is expected by highway officials to be completed in October.

In an effort to cut down on the accidents, a total of 136 signs have been posted along the 10-mile area.

Drivers are warned of the road construction, to slow down, to be careful when passing and to keep vehicle headlights on while driving through the two-lane stretch.

Services for Carter are pending with Lamb Funeral Home of McLean. He is survived by his wife, Cecile, and two daughters, all of Yukon.

Hughes' body has been returned to Gunnersville, Ala. for funeral services and burial.

Heat taking toll in Pampa area

Crops, animals and people have been wilting in one of the longest recorded heat waves in Texas history.

Local feedlot operators have reported no direct losses due to the heat, however, there will be consequences.

"The cost of weight gain has increased due to the heat," Gene Atchinson of the 7A Land and Feed Company reported.

The loss of grain crops in Texas due to heat and drought conditions have caused such a shortage that the estimated cost of feed for cattle will soon be increased.

"Some of our losses have been ultimately related to the heat," Atchinson reported. "When the heat continues so long, it becomes harder to treat the sick animals. The rate of recovery goes from a normal 80 percent down to 20 percent during a heat wave."

Texas Tech News reported that the continuing heat has caused declining weight gains for cattle, down from a normal 1 1/2 pounds per day to about three-quarters of a pound.

Bill Stockstill of Heaton Cattle Company reported that his cattle had not yet been affected by the heat.

"Higher humidities would definitely affect our stock, but our relatively low humidity hasn't hurt too much," Stockstill said.

"However, we are pulling cattle about two to three weeks earlier than last year," he said.

"The grain prices have gone up sharply, thus affecting the beef prices to the consumer. This has been noticed within the last 30 days," Stockstill said.

The Department of Agriculture reported that placements of cattle in the lots has dropped off approximately 19 percent during the second quarter of 1980. At the same time, deteriorating pasture conditions in most parts of Texas are forcing some producers to heavily cull older animals and send them to market.

The Department of Agriculture also reported that ranchers in the western part of the Lower Rio Grande Valley are selling off cattle at a very fast rate. In mid July 800 head went through a market that usually handles 150 to 200.

County accepts airport grant

Gray County Commissioners today discussed grants to two airports. Social Security payments and the budget during a shortened session today. Commissioners recessed early to attend the funeral of a former courthouse employee Mr. Charles Thut.

Mrs. Jean Scott of the County Treasurer's office reported to the court that, "Social security payments will now be paid monthly."

The payments had previously been made on a quarterly basis. "The monthly payments will no longer allow the county to purchase 90-day money certificates and earn the accrued interest," Mrs. Scott said. Commissioners approved the $12,000

June payment to the Social Security Office. The Texas Aeronautics Commission grant of $55,000 for the Perry-Lefors Airport and $20,000 for the McLean Airport was approved by the commissioners. The grant is listed as an 80-20 grant. Judge Kennedy explained that 80 percent of the airport repair costs will be paid by the grant and 20 percent must be paid by the county. Judge Kennedy reminded the court that the entire airport project was estimated at $110,000.

"The county will pay slightly more than the 20 percent," he said.

A $2,326 contribution from the M. K. Brown Foundation will be used to purchase voice amplification equipment for vehicles used by the Sheriff's Office personnel. Bill Waters representative for the M. K. Brown Foundation presented the contribution.

The voice amplification system is placed under the hood of the vehicle and allows the officer to speak without leaving his vehicle. Judge Kennedy then requested that the court have an informal discussion of the 1980 budget. "The main thing we need to consider is the cost of inflation within your own precinct budgets," Kennedy said. The commissioners agreed that the rising cost of inflation may play havoc with the estimates for the 1981 budgets.

"Gasoline prices were to be expected to reach $1.75 per gallon, but we have recently seen a slight lowering in the costs. It is hard to predict the budget with such erratic pricing," Commissioner Simmons said.

Delegate says convention harmonious

BY SHEILA ECCLES
Of the Pampa News

Detroit loves a good party and among the 1,994 Republican delegates attending the 1980 Convention, there was one delegate from Pampa who drove 1,200 miles just to be present for it.

Mrs. Bobbie Nisbet who serves as Republican State Committeewoman for District 31, was selected as a delegate to the 1980 Republican National Convention by the Reagan Delegate Selection Committee.

"There were 2,000 delegates, and 2,000 alternates at the convention, plus a whopping 14,000 media people. It was hazardous to leave your seat. You could be hit with a camera at any moment," Mrs. Nisbet said.

But her enthusiasm for attending the convention was not hampered by the large press corps, and Mrs. Nisbet was seen on national television, going diligently about her delegated duties.

Mrs. Nisbet attended the convention with her husband Scott and longtime friend Mrs. Joe Curtis.

"Scott was immediately asked at the Book Cadillac Hotel in Detroit if he was a governor. It seems that conventioners had to be ranked at least a governor, to qualify for the close-in parking," Mrs. Nisbet said.

"My first impression of Detroit was the spruced-up image it presented. Everything was just beautiful. The downtown has been renovated and was filled with a festival like atmosphere for the convention," Mrs. Nisbet remembered.

Although the floor of Joe Louis Arena, as seen through the focus of television cameras, resembled constant chaos, Mrs. Nisbet reported that it was "actually a very harmonious organization."

The many celebrities at the convention provided added entertainment for the delegates during the few moments the political dignitaries left the stages.

"I think that the celebrities at the convention were most sincere in their support for Gov. Reagan. It didn't appear to be just a convention appearance to them," Mrs. Nisbet said.

Mrs. Nisbet's long list of celebrities who shared the limelight in Joe Louis auditorium included Susan Anton, Donny and Marie Osmond, Wayne Newton, Efram Zimbalist Jr., Ginger Rogers, Pat Boone, Elizabeth Taylor and Billy Graham.

Texas Governor Bill Clements and Mrs. Clements hosted a brunch for the Texas delegates. It was billed "A Little Taste of Texas — Detroit Style," and according to Mrs. Nisbet, "it featured some famous Texas recipes and wandering mariachi musicians."

John Connally, Gov. Clements, Mrs. Rita Clements and Sen. John Tower were in the constant view of the Texas delegates on the convention floor.

The convention was a series of events, both entertaining and political. But it was the political that drew Mrs. Nisbet.

"The one person who had the most support for the nomination of vice-president on the convention floor was definitely Jack Kemp," Mrs. Nisbet said.

"If the delegates would have had the vote at that time it would be Reagan and Kemp," Mrs. Nisbet said.

But it was members of the media who were fooled during the naming of the nominee for vice-president.

"Rumors were everywhere that it was to be Ford, then it wasn't," Mrs. Nisbet said.

Those viewing the convention will remember the last minute maneuvers late Wednesday night when it was reported that former president Ford had "left the door open" for possible acceptance of the vice-presidential slot.

"But it was Sen. John Tower who related the news to the Texas delegates that Reagan had named George Bush to the position," Mrs. Nisbet said.

The convention was replete with celebrities from many fields but according to Mrs. Nisbet, "the one man most appreciated and applauded was Barry Goldwater."

"His voice was weakened from a recent hip operation, but his message was as strong as ever," she said.

"Goldwater was introduced by his son, Barry Goldwater Jr., and his pride for his son was evident to everyone on the convention floor," Mrs. Nisbet said.

Another interesting meeting for Mrs. Nisbet was the caucus attended by the Texas delegation and former Secretary of the Treasury William Simon and former commander of NATO forces Gen. Alexander Haig.

Mrs. Claire Chenault also spoke to the entire convention and impressed Mrs. Nisbet with her speech concerning ethnic Americans.

"They are American in a very special way," Mrs. Chenault told the delegation.

"There was no conflict from the delegation as to the Republican platform," Mrs. Nisbet said.

However, Mrs. Nisbet said the media and some special interest groups did play up the ERA issue.

The Nisbets have been very active in local politics, and their Pampa friends were saddened to hear of their impending move with the Cabot Corporation to St. Louis. But there can always be a bright side to things.

"As we came home, we went through St. Louis on an apartment hunting mission. We talked to some of the people who will be our new neighbors and guess what?" Mrs. Nisbet asked. "One man had been a candidate for Republican governor and was the previous chairman of the Republican Party in Missouri. We will soon be neighbors," she said.

The story of political awareness for the Nisbets will obviously continue in Missouri.

MRS. BOBBIE NISBET, a delegate to the 1980 Republican National Convention, displays some of the souvenirs she accumulated while in Detroit. The convention was a highlight in the political facet of Mrs. Nisbet's busy life. She is also State Republican Committeewoman for District 31 and an active local campaigner.

Texas weather

By The Associated Press
Temperatures were expected to reach or pass the 100-degree mark across all of Texas today as August, traditionally one of the hottest months, began.
And the outlook for the next few days shows no indication of improvement.
Forecasts called for continued cloudless skies and searing heat. At Del Rio, Dallas-Fort Worth, Wichita Falls and Waco highs never fell below 100 during the entire month of July.
Wichita Falls was again the state's hot spot Thursday with 108. It was 106 at Dallas-Fort Worth and 103 at Waco.
The National Weather Service said early today the state remains under the influence of that massive upper atmosphere high pressure ridge and there will be no immediate end to the current weather pattern.
A few patchy clouds were reported before dawn over eastern sections of the Panhandle, but clear skies prevailed over the remainder of the state.
Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 70s and 80s. Extremes ranged from 61 at Marfa in the mountains of Southwest Texas to the mid 80s across much of North Texas and North Central Texas.

Texas forecasts

North Texas - Clear and hot through Saturday. Highs 96 southeast to 107 northwest. Lows 70s.
West Texas - Clear and hot through Saturday. Highs 100 to 105. Lows 58 mountains to 76 south.
South Texas - Clear and hot through Saturday. Highs 90s coast to near 103 along Rio Grande. Lows 70s.
Port Arthur to Port O'Connor - Southerly winds 10 to 15 knots through Saturday. Seas 3 to 4 feet. Winds and seas higher near isolated thundershowers.
Port O'Connor to Brownsville - Southeast winds 10 to 15 knots through Saturday. Seas 3 to 5 feet. Winds and seas higher near isolated thundershowers.

Extended

Sunday Through Tuesday
North Texas - Fair and continued hot. High temperatures 97 southeast to 108 northwest. Lows in the 70s.
South Texas - No significant rain expected apart from isolated afternoon showers over middle and upper coastal plains. Sunny hot days and fair warm nights continuing. Overnight lows in the 70s. Highs ranging from low 90s on the coast to near 105 along the Rio Grande.
West Texas - Sunny and hot days fair and warm nights. Highs 95 to 105. Lows 65 to 75 except near 60 mountains.

National weather

The sun continued to scorch parts of the country, bringing readings of 112 degrees in Batesville, Ark., 108 degrees in Columbia, Mo., and Tulsa, Okla., and 107 degrees in Oklahoma City.
Columbia's temperature broke the record for July 31 by five degrees. Tulsa set a record for its hottest month, with 26 day-of-temperatures 100 degrees or higher in July.
Here are some early-morning temperatures and conditions around the nation:
Eastern U.S.: Atlanta 80, fair; Cincinnati 74, partly cloudy; Cleveland 78, hazy; Detroit 72, hazy; Miami 82, fair; New York 76, hazy; Philadelphia 74, foggy; Pittsburgh 78, hazy; Washington 84,

SHRINE BIKERS IN PAMPA

Thirty to 35 bikers for the Shriners organization will be biking from Perryton to Pampa to Amarillo Saturday to raise funds for the Children's Burn Center. The bikers will be stopping in Pampa at the Pampa Mall about 8:30 a.m. Saturday for a rest break and refreshments. The public is invited to meet the bikers and cheer them on.

PARK SERVICE - CITY SIGN AGREEMENT

A Cooperative Agreement between the National Park Service and the City of Fritch has been signed concerning the provision of ambulance service.

Under the terms of the Agreement, the National Park Service will provide drivers for the Fritch Volunteer Ambulance Service on weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

"A great many of the calls to which we respond are emergency calls within the Lake Meredith Recreation Area, so this arrangement is mutually beneficial," according to John H. Winder, Director of the Fritch Emergency Medical Service.

Winder also explained that the ambulance has had a shortage during the weekday daylight hours, and this agreement will make it possible for the Ambulance Service to continue this needed service.

National Park Service employees have been given training and orientation in ambulance operation by Winder and EMT Midge Savage. Employees who will be initially involved are Doris Wofford, Larry Nielson, John Sponsel, and John Higgins.

July jobs drop off by 92,000 since February

WASHINGTON (AP) - In defiance of economic predictions, the number of Americans holding jobs in July rose sharply for the first time in five months, but the unemployment rate crept back up to 7.8 percent, the government said today.

In a report laden with encouraging but also mixed economic signals, the Labor Department said total employment based on its survey of American households rose by 459,000 jobs - reversing four straight months of declines brought on by the recession.

At the same time, unemployment, which had dropped from 7.8 percent in May to 7.7 percent in June, returned to 7.8 percent last month as the number of jobless Americans increased by 201,000.

The department said unemployment rose in July despite the gain in jobs because people entered the labor market at a faster rate than jobs were created.

The figures, combined with a positive Commerce Department report on economic trends issued earlier this week, suggested that the recession is bottoming out sooner than economists had expected.

In fact, the government had been looking for another drop in employment in July accompanied by a larger rise in the jobs rate, which had surged from 6 percent in February.

Only two weeks ago, the Carter administration predicted in a revised economic forecast that unemployment would peak at 8.6 percent by early 1981 and remain there throughout the year. The prediction, however, was based on the very rapid deterioration in economic activity during the spring, a trend that appears to have slowed significantly in the past month.

But department economists also pointed to a conflicting report suggesting that the government may have overestimated the rise in employment in July.

A separate survey of business establishments reported a 240,000 drop in employment, an opposite trend from the household survey.

Department economists sought to reconcile the differences by suggesting that perhaps employment remained essentially stable in July, and that its statistical treatment of the information may have been somewhat off base.

Total employment in July stood at 97 million, a drop of 950,000 jobs since the peak employment reached in February.

The number of unemployed Americans stood at 8.2 million, up about 2 million from the start of the year.

The government also reported that the median duration of unemployment rose in July to 7.1 weeks, and one in nine job seekers had been out of work for at least half a year.

The department also gave the breakdown on unemployment rates in July and June for the following different population groups:

- Adult men: 6.7 percent in July, unchanged from June.
- Adult women: 6.7 percent, up from 6.5 percent.
- Whites: 6.9 percent, up from 6.8 percent.
- Minorities: 4.2 percent, up from 13.6 percent.
- Hispanics: 10.9 percent, up from 10.2 percent.
- Teen-agers: 19 percent, up 18.5 percent.
- Minority teen-agers: 36.6 percent, up from 34.4 percent.
- Full-time workers: 7.6 percent, up from 7.4 percent.
- Part-time workers: 8.7 percent, down from 8.8 percent.

During the last recession, in 1974-75, unemployment peaked at 9 percent, the highest since the Great Depression of the 1930s, and remained above 8 percent until the start of 1976.

In an encouraging economic development Wednesday, the government reported that its index of leading indicators jumped 2.5 percent in June, the first increase in a year and the largest rise in five years.

Commerce Secretary Philip M. Klutznick said the index, which is supposed to foretell future economic trends, suggests the recession is bottoming out sooner than some economists have expected.

However, Klutznick said he expects output and employment to continue declining until later this year. That is because it takes several months for changes in economic activity to have an impact on the job market.

However, economists do not expect the job market to continue shrinking as fast as it did last spring. Labor Department economists say most worker layoffs in the last few months have been concentrated in the distressed auto and construction industries, but the latest report on leading indicators suggested the worst may be over for those industries.

The index was led by a significant drop in the rate of layoffs in manufacturing and a rise in building permits. The decline in the layoff rate followed three straight months of increases.

In another sign that unemployment may be rising at a slower rate, the Labor Department reported that new claims for state unemployment insurance benefits were averaging about $35,000 a week in July, compared with $25,000 a week in June, on a seasonally adjusted basis.

The department also reported this week that the 3.9 million people were collecting unemployment insurance during the week ending July 12, down from 4.1 million at the end of June.

Auto worker reacted to 'conspiracy'

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) - The veteran autoworker who held 17 people captive at gunpoint in a General Motors Corp. body plant "felt that society and the people he worked with were against him," his lawyer said.

Franklin Rainey, 47, of Detroit, was admitted to the psychiatric ward at Pontiac General Hospital for three days' observation after he surrendered Thursday.

His lawyer William Waterman said Rainey apparently suffered "a classic psychotic breakdown. You could tell there was really some psychosis."

"He thought there was a conspiracy between black and white people on the job against him and they had told people in Detroit he was less than a man, a faggot."

Waterman said Rainey came to work prepared to deal with the imagined conspiracy with a hammer taped to his leg, a bag of bullets, food and a rope. Rainey could be charged with felonious assault, but Pontiac Police Capt. Robert Wachal said police would wait for a doctor's evaluation before deciding if Rainey would be prosecuted.

The 56-acre plant in Pontiac, one of five GM facilities in the city of 85,000 residents, usually employs 4,500 production workers but 2,000 second-shift workers were laid off in the spring.

Conrail engineer investigated

CROTON-ON-HUDSON, N.Y. (AP) - The engineer of a train that rammed another train here was charged today with reckless endangerment for allegedly operating the train without due caution, a Conrail spokesman said.

Conrail police said they were investigating whether engineer John McSorley, 44, was intoxicated at the time of the crash.

At least 28 people were injured in the accident Thursday night, but most of the injuries were minor, officials said. One person admitted to a local hospital in satisfactory condition, they said.

Damage to the trains was said to be minor.

Conrail spokesman Tim Connors said a train operated by McSorley pulled into the station at about 10 p.m. and slammed into the rear of an empty train.

Connors said Conrail was investigating why the first train had not moved out of the station after unloading its passengers and crew at 9:27 p.m.

Conrail police arrested McSorley, of Sayerville, N.J., at Grand Central Terminal in New York several hours after he allegedly "marked off" sick after the crash and left the scene. He was returned to Croton-on-Hudson and charged here by local police, according to Capt. Don Hansen, a Conrail policeman.

He was to be arraigned today before a local judge.

Venue change sought in trial

MCKINNEY, Texas (AP) - Lawyers for Wylie housewife Candace Montgomery have requested that her ax-murder trial be moved out of Collin County.

In motions filed with State District Judge Tom Ryan, Mrs. Montgomery's attorneys contend that "excessive pretrial publicity" combined with "so great a prejudice against her" means she "cannot receive a fair and impartial trial" in the county.

Mrs. Montgomery has been indicted in the June 13 ax-killing of Wylie schoolteacher Betty

Judge grants restraining order in land suit case

HOUSTON (AP) - State District Judge Lynn Hughes has granted a temporary restraining order in a suit alleging deceptive trade practices in land sales in Hudspeth, Culbertson and Jeff Davis counties in West Texas.

Judge Hughes Wednesday scheduled an Aug. 8 hearing in the suit filed by the Texas attorney general's consumer protection division against eight people and five companies.

About 200 complaints have been received from out of state residents, said David Pace, head of the division's Houston office.

Allegation in the suit include such deceptions as misrepresentation of the availability of water beneath the land, false representation that mineral leases for the land would be offered, misrepresentation of true market value and investment potential, and failure to disclose that land displayed in advertisements was not for sale or part of the land listed for sale.

Defendants included Herman T. Isis, Coral Gables, Fla.; Charles Feldman, Arlene Feldman, and Todd Feldman, all of North Miami Beach, Fla.; Kenneth and Richard Calabrese, both of North Miami, Fla.; and Steve Linn, Kingwood; and Albert E. Kuehnert, Houston.

Listed as corporate defendants were Secret Springs of El Paso; Arlet Associates, doing business as Sierra Bravo in El Paso; C.K. Ranches, doing business as Sierra Blanca in Kingwood; Frontier Equity in Kingwood; and Hoyt Inc., Houston.

Carter tactics watched by GOP

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican leaders in the Senate are planning to block confirmation of a batch of presidential nominations they say Jimmy Carter is trying to ram through on the chance he won't be re-elected in November.

GOP officials said the leadership wants to keep key government vacancies open for Ronald Reagan to fill should the Republican presidential nominee capture the White House. The Republican leaders also believe Carter is sending up an unusually heavy load of nominations to strengthen his political support.

Of 139 nominations currently awaiting Senate confirmation, the Republicans are threatening to block all but those considered routine or vital for government services to keep operating.

Exactly how many nominations will be contested as political will be left up to a three-member screening committee made up of minority whip Ted Stevens of Alaska, John Tower of Texas and Mark Hatfield of Oregon.

This strategy was chosen Tuesday at the Senate Republicans' weekly policy meeting, chaired by minority leader Howard Baker of Tennessee, but it was not made public at the time.

"They decided there will not be a blanket hold on all appointments, but rather a case-by-case review by the ad hoc committee," Thomas Griscom, a Baker aide, said Thursday when asked about the effort.

Griscom said the Republicans would oppose an appointment "if it is clearly political and can be held up" without causing a disruption of important agency work.

Although the 41 Republican members of the Senate lack the votes for an outright defeat of a presidential nomination, which requires a simple majority, they can mount a filibuster and deprive the Democrats of the 60 votes needed to shut off debate.

Several Republicans said they are doing the same thing the Democrats did to former President Gerald R. Ford before the 1976 presidential election.

Senate Republicans first began talking about blocking Carter appointments during the GOP National Convention in Detroit in mid-July. Some Republicans complained that the president appeared to be trying to fill every vacancy for multi-year terms so that a new president would be unable to make any appointments of his own for at least a year.

White House press spokesman Dale Leibach responded that Carter has been fulfilling his responsibilities for governing the nation by making appointments "on the basis of merit."

Riot police control Orlando streets

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Riot-equipped police met little resistance early today as they swept through a predominantly black neighborhood following a third straight night of sporadic violence.

Two officers received minor injuries and at least 30 people were arrested as police and troopers cordoned off a 20-square-block area of this Florida city.

Early this morning, police were "putting away the riot helmets, so it looks like it's coming to an end," said Orlando police spokesman Michael Burns. But increased patrols would continue in the area all night, he said.

The only property damage reported late Thursday was a shattered window at a convenience store and the firebombing of a boarded-up liquor store. That blaze was extinguished quickly by passing police officers.

More than 60 people have been arrested here during three nights of trouble sparked by the arrest of a robbery suspect. Two other Florida cities have erupted in race rioting since May.

Black ministers, who took to the streets early Wednesday trying to restore calm, again volunteered to patrol the streets Thursday night to help coax youths to return home. But police said that tactic met with little success.

"The type of crowd we're talking about, if they were inclined to listen to a minister in the first place, they wouldn't be out there doing what they're doing," said Lt. Tom Wylie.

Wylie said patrolmen met only scattered resistance as they approached congregations of blacks and urged them to disperse.

Orange County Sheriff Melvin Coleman suffered a minor cut on his face when his car was hit by a rock. An Orlando policeman suffered a bad leg bruise when he was run over by his own patrol car.

The neighborhood, about 19 miles east of Disney World and other area tourist attractions, was sealed off late Thursday when sporadic rock and bottle throwing erupted. Helmeted police carrying nightsticks, mace and shotguns patrolled the area four to a cruiser.

Teenager arrested

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A teenager has been arrested in Michigan on a homicide warrant issued by Los Angeles police in a slaying that was being investigated as one of the 44 possible Freeway Killings, authorities say.

James Munro, 19, was arrested without a struggle Thursday in the apartment of a relative in Port Huron, Mich., according to state trooper Mark Wieas.

Munro, who was being held at St. Clair County Jail, was arrested on a warrant issued in Los Angeles in the strangling death of Steven Jay Wells, 18, of Downey. Wells' nude body was found June 3 behind a service station in Huntington Beach, Calif.

The warrant charged one count of homicide.

"It is believed Munro was visiting the Los Angeles area at the time of the Wells homicide," said Los Angeles Police Lt. Gary Kamm.

Kamm said he expected Munro to be brought to Los Angeles in the next few days, barring any problems with extradition.

Police have said they are not sure that all 44 of the possible Freeway Killings, which began in 1972, are related. However, the killings have similarities. Many of the victims had been picked up while hitchhiking and were strangled or smothered. Their bodies, often nude, have been found near freeways in Southern California.

RIOT POLICE arrest a number of black women involved in rioting on increasingly quiet Orlando streets Thursday night. The third night of violence in the city was reportedly calmer. The disturbances have been occurring in predominately black neighborhoods on the west side of Orlando. (AP Laserphoto)

Chemical cleanup attempted

SHELL BEACH, La. (AP) — Once the remains of 12½ tons of deadly PCP are vacuumed from a muddy shipping channel floor here, the Coast Guard plans to dump the chemical back into the ocean, far out in the Gulf of Mexico, state officials say.

Scientists say that when the chemical is spread over a wide area of the ocean, it should pose little danger to marine life.

But in the rich fishing areas near the chemical spill in the Mississippi River-Gulf Outlet, PCP contamination has shown up in oysters and killed 200 shrimp. The areas have been closed to fishermen since 500 bags of pentachlorophenol went overboard July 22 when two ships collided.

The PCP, mixed with small concentrations of deadly dioxin, can build up in the bodies of fish and be passed along the food chain. Mildly contaminated seafood, however, eventually can cleanse itself of the chemical.

Marine biologist K. Rango Rao said Thursday he was encouraged because there has been no major fish kill. The PCP appeared to be confined to a small area and was slowly dissolving. "Right now, there is no reason to have an alarm situation," said the University of West Florida biologist.

Compost pile emissions causing olfactory distress

SAN ANGELO (AP) — Something's "in the air" in this West Texas city — the peculiar scent of burring manure wafting from a 25-foot tall compost heap near an exclusive housing development on the east side of town.

The mountain of manure, taller than many nearby homes, caught fire July 21 sending nearby residents into olfactory distress. But the homeowners' pleas fell on deaf ears, until the smoky scent drifting toward town opened the sinus' of a Texas Air Control Board investigator, passing through on a routine check.

The compost pile, maintained for fertilizer in the city's parks, had drawn a barrage of complaints and a horde of ecstatic flies long before the manure started cooking, officials said.

"The parks department likes it," one official claimed. But TACB investigator Mark Newman didn't. He came to San Angelo to investigate the residents complaints. He said charges by the air control bureau against the city are "possible but not probable."

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Committee reports tragedy of refugees

"The cases come every day. Most get better but too many die. For those who get well, there is great joy all around, playing and joking and happy scenes of departure when they leave. You hope it will be those that stay most vivid. Like the grandfather who buried all but one of his children and grandchildren in Cambodia and brought in his last sick grandson. A day later, the little child just faded away. Then, a teen-age girl carried in her little brother stricken with meningitis. As we tried to save him through the night, she stood close by, touching him, sponging him off and weeping. When he died, she quietly left, leaving her brother on the floor wrapped in an old blanket."

That passage is excerpted from the letter of a volunteer worker at a facility in Thailand of the International Rescue Committee. It is included in the IRC's latest annual report, a document that makes both distressing and encouraging reading.

The latter because of the evidence it provides of the efforts of compassionate humans to do something about a human problem.

Take Indonesia to start — and that, unfortunately, is exactly what it is, only the start. The refugee crisis there has been years in the building and IRC has been involved throughout. From facilities in Thailand, it is providing medical and food assistance to hundreds of thousands of Vietnamese, Cambodians and Laotians who have fled the oppression and continuing disorder of their homelands.

Recommendations of its Citizens Commission on Indochinese Refugees have been adopted as government policy and, through committee offices in U.S. cities, it has processed a large portion of the 280,000 refugees resettled in the United States during 1979.

Although they dominate the headlines and news columns, the Indochinese are, however, only a part of the refugee problem — and effort. Worldwide, the IRC reports, it has been a bumper year with greater effort expended during 1979 and the early months of 1980 than in any comparable period since the founding of the organization in 1933 in response to the refugee flood unleashed by the rise of the Nazis.

The IRC has responded, through facilities in Florida and Central America, to the needs of Cubans. It has aided Haitians, Chileans, Argentines and other Latins who have fled their homelands for diverse reasons.

Also Ugandans, Angolans, Somalis and Ethiopians on the continent, Africa, where the refugee crush may be greatest of all — estimated at more than 2 million.

And Afghans, crowding into camps in neighboring Pakistan. Also Jews, Armenians and others permitted to leave the Soviet Union (53,000 during 1979, compared with 40,000 in 1978) plus dissident Czechs, Poles and fellow East Europeans.

And Chinese

One of the report's more illuminating sections is on Hong Kong, the destination of some 75,000 Vietnamese boat people during 1979 and also a haven for refugees from another quarter.

In this era of sudden good feeling with Communist China, it has been easy to overlook, or under-report, the fact that many Chinese would prefer to be elsewhere. For those who can evade the Crown Colony's patrols and the shoot-to-kill zone established by Chinese authorities on their side of the border, that turns out to be Hong Kong.

They included "freedom swimmers" who take their chances in the treacherous waters between the mainland and the Crown Colony, many of whom fail to make it and reach freedom posthumously as bodies washed up on beaches.

For those who do make it, the International Rescue Committee is there to help.

IRC is only one of many volunteer agencies active in its chosen field. Name the Red Cross and Oxfam, among its more notable associates, and you have only begun the roster.

But considering the continuing magnitude of the problem, the field of refugee assistance is scarcely overcrowded. That is the distressing aspect of the encouraging effort.

STEIN '80
ROCKY MOUNTAIN NEWS NEA

By Timothy Schiller
Mr. Schiller is a Business and Economics Instructor and Librarian. He is currently at Rutgers University in New Jersey.

As the current recession deepens and spreads, the government's role in creating endless cycles of boom and bust is being debated once again. An understanding of how the government affects the economy on a broad front is necessary before we can hope to moderate or control the business cycle.

Last fall, after several years of economic growth and accelerating inflation (the "boom"), the Federal Reserve Board began to decrease the rate of growth of the nation's supply of money. Later it reduced the supply of money absolutely. Rarely since the Great Depression has the Federal Reserve choked off the money supply so severely.

The Federal Reserve controls the money supply through its Open Market Committee. This Committee formulates policy and gives instruction to the Manager of the Open Market Account. To reduce the money supply the Manager sells U.S. Government securities, mainly short-term U.S. Treasury bills. The public buys these securities with checks. When banks honor these checks money is transferred out of the banks and to the Federal Reserve. Thus, the banks have less money to lend. Eventually this money returns when the securities are paid off at maturity or when the Federal Reserve buys them back. In the meantime, the money is out of circulation.

The reason for reducing the money supply is that too many people are spending too much money, driving prices up. In order to reduce spending, the public is induced to give its money to the Federal Reserve in exchange for government securities and the interest earned on them.

What are the results of transferring money from the public to the Federal Reserve? With less money in the banks the first effect will be a reduction in loans and an increase in interest rates. There will be less money available for borrowing by businesses to increase their plant and equipment or manufacture more products. Some investment projects that would have been profitable at lower interest rates will not be profitable at the new, higher rates. They will not be undertaken.

There will be less money available for borrowing by consumers to purchase the expensive things they cannot buy without loans. Credit will be restricted and loan rates will rise.

All this is happening now. Businesses have postponed or cancelled plans for expansion; mortgages have become nearly unavailable; auto loans are difficult to get.

The people who would have been hired if business expansion were not cancelled now must wait for work. Industries that depend heavily on loans will have to reduce production. Construction and auto workers are laid off as the recession begins. Since these people have reduced income they will reduce their spending and saving. This will affect other industries; production will decline, workers will be laid off, and plants will close. The recession will spread throughout the economy. Eventually, prices must be reduced to eliminate inventories and sell more goods, and wages must be reduced before workers will be hired again.

Given enough time, prices and wages will be re-established at a new equilibrium level. Income in dollars may be less, but prices will be lower also. Unfortunately, until this equilibrium is reached there will be a period of real hardship. In order to speed the recovery, the Federal Reserve usually begins to reverse its actions at this time. Securities are purchased from the public. All the steps that brought about the recession follow in an opposite fashion, with reverse effects. Money moves from the Federal Reserve into the banks, more loans are made and interest rates decline. Business expansion resumes and consumer spending increases. Income rises, but so do prices.

At first it seems that a recession has been cured and a way found to prolong economic expansion indefinitely. But the attempt by the Federal Reserve to stimulate the economy artificially is self-defeating. As people come to recognize the inflationary aspects of the increasing money supply they will begin to include expectations of the inflation rate in their economic calculations.

There are two major ways in which inflation's falsifying effect on economic activity becomes obvious and counteracts its stimulating effect. In the first case, when more loans and lower interest rates cause more business expansion than would otherwise take place, costs of production increase as businesses attempt to hire more workers and acquire more raw materials. (This is why the producer price index, formerly called the wholesale price index, usually increases before the consumer price index.) Because the money to do this is provided by the Federal Reserve and not by private saving and investment, more production takes place than is demanded. When the increased costs of production are ultimately compared to actual demand, many business ventures are then seen to be unprofitable. A reduction in business activity is the inevitable result.

The second recognition of inflation takes place simultaneously. Lenders, the banks, and the purchasers of bonds realize that the combination of lower interest rates and price increases of inflation are actually causing them to lose money, in real terms. They refuse to make further loans until the interest rate rises above the inflation rate. Businesses are unable to invest in projects that do not return enough to pay the interest rate plus the inflation rate. Any investment that does not return this higher rate is actually losing money, which makes less money available for further investment. Production and employment fall again.

Even if the rate of inflation is increased in an attempt to thwart the public's planning for it, its effect on the profitability of investment cannot be mitigated. The cumulative effect of abandoned and unprofitable investment projects is a reduction of the useful quantity of plant and equipment as well as a real reduction in the amount of loanable funds in the economy. This increases unemployment and reduces the productivity of those who are employed. Under these conditions the co-existence of inflation and unemployment ("stagflation") eventually results.

Sustained prosperity depends on the productivity of the economic system when the equilibrium between saving and investment is achieved free of disturbances in the flow of credit. Monetary stability is essential. It is only when the government attempts to stimulate the economy by an artificial expansion of credit that we take off on the roller coaster ride of boom and bust.

Odds improved and improving!

by Paul Harvey

I've waited months with my fingers crossed before writing these words. Even now I am hesitant — not wanting to celebrate in a manner which might tempt fate.

But after a decade of struggle, son Paul has stopped smoking.

Of course I am aware that many families have more serious problems than this, but it was no small thing to his wife and his parents; it answered many prayers.

Now, when a smoker stops smoking, how much does it improve his odds for survival against cancer?

Thirty years ago the cure rate for cancer was 33 percent. Today it is 41 percent.

President Vincent De Vita of the National Cancer Institute (NCI) is so encouraged by experiments presently underway that he predicts the cure rate will improve to 50 percent within five years!

There is even encouraging evidence in the laboratory that vitamins A and C might actually "prevent" some cancers.

The statistics would appear much better than they do except for the mostly self-inflicted disease of lung cancer.

After investing $57.5 million in an attempt to develop a harmless cigarette, the NCI has given up on that. Instead, it will concentrate future efforts on behavioral studies with the objective of discouraging smoking.

Chicago's Dr. Paul Meredith recently brought the problem into sharp focus when he published a study of cigarette smoking under the heading of "Drug Addiction."

Dr. Meredith reminded his colleagues that nicotine, by designation of the Department of Health and Human Services, is "an alkaloid poison, generally understood to be the addictive element in tobacco."

By definition, an addict is a person who cannot resist a habit, especially the use of drugs or alcohol, for psychological or physiological reasons.

Dr. Meredith believes smokers will stop smoking only when they become aware that they are, in fact, "drug addicts."

What's the incentive? If you quit smoking, how much does it change the odds?

Any effort to project "numbers" on any reduced rate of lung cancer has to be based largely on conjecture. We will have a more accurate measure of this cause-effect within another year or so.

This much we now know: If you quit smoking, your bronchitis (cough) will improve almost immediately.

For heavy smokers who quit, the chances of avoiding premature coronary artery disease improve by 25 percent the first year.

The smoker who quits will add years to his life. As closely as this can be projected statistically (the age at which one stops smoking being the principal variant), quitting will mean 8.3 more years of living. Quit younger, you'll last longer.

The pending proposal of the City Commission to change the billing procedures for water, sewer and trash ordinances for multi-dwelling units such as apartments and mobile home complexes will come before the Commission meeting on August 12, 1980.

Since the announcement of the proposed change, there have been numerous comments and discussions presented to the Commission without, however, any justifying data or figures.

The purpose of the proposed ordinance change is to correct an inequity which has been becoming increasingly unjust to the majority of city residents because of the very low charges which exist for those dwelling in multi-unit type residences.

It is obvious from the typical figures shown in the table below that a significant inequity exists. It is estimated that approximately a thousand multi-dwelling units now, or shortly will, exist in the city. If this corrective action is taken it is easily apparent that not only will the inequity for the majority be corrected, but the city revenues will be increased, thus postponing the probability of further rate increases in the near future.

Let your Commissioners know that you are interested in an ordinance to correct this procedure and make an equitable charge to all citizens in the City for water, sewer, and trash services.

Berry's World

"I'm for big government, high taxes, weak national defense and argyle socks. Also, I'm a little weird."

1980 recession bypassing Wall Street

NEW YORK (AP) — When E.F. Hutton talks, people listen — and when people listen, E.F. Hutton makes money.

These days, lots of people are listening. Despite the well-documented woes of many other areas of the American economy, there's no 1980 recession on Wall Street. By all accounts, the stockbrokers and investment bankers of the financial community are enjoying their biggest year ever. The large publicly owned firms — Merrill Lynch, E.F. Hutton and the like — have been posting profit gains that would make an oil-company treasurer blush. Hutton, for example, reported a few weeks ago that it earned $41.3 million in the first half of this year — topping the full-year record of $37.3 million the company set in 1979 with six months to spare.

One primary reason for all this prosperity in the midst of a recession has been a thriving stock market. In the month just ended, the Dow Jones industrial average reached its best level in three years, jumping from 867.92 to 935.32, and many other measures of stock prices set all-time highs.

"Brokers no longer have to hide in alleys whenever they see a customer on the street, the way they do in bear markets," said Robert Stovall, a market analyst at Dean Witter Reynolds Inc. and a 25-year veteran of the business.

Even more important to the level of brokers' profits has been the unprecedented pace of stock-trading activity. More than 7 billion shares have been traded since the start of the year on the New York Stock Exchange, and last year's record of 8.15 billion is likely to be surpassed soon after Labor Day. A big chunk of the typical brokerage house's earnings comes from commissions on stock trades. On top of that, business boomed during May and June in investment banking, particularly sales of new bond issues by corporations.

Brokers also operate many of the largest money-market mutual funds, which have been the hottest new product in the financial world. "When you get all the cylinders popping in unison, you have a huge earnings machine going," Stovall said.

In the past — the 1960s, say — such a heady period in this boom-bust business would have meant widespread hiring, big bonuses and a general gold-rush atmosphere on the Street. But that doesn't seem to be the case this time.

Alaska sues government over oil and gas deals

By ROXINNE ERVASTI Associated Press Writer JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Alaska is suing the federal government over its "arbitrary and capricious" decision to sell offshore oil and gas leases in Bristol Bay, a prime world fishery, state officials said today.

Gov. Jay Hammond and Attorney General Wilson Condon said they expect California officials to announce a similar challenge over offshore leases scheduled in that state.

The lawsuits will be the first challenge to the Interior Department's five-year leasing schedule under 1978 amendments to the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act, an attorney for the state said.

"The federal government is basically saying it must save Alaska from Alaskans by locking up the state's resources, barring planning and rational resource development," Hammond said.

But, he said, "to explore prematurely and recklessly and develop (the controversial offshore) sales...could have disastrous effects on world-renowned fisheries."

Alaska's challenge comes as Congress is debating how much and to what degree the state's land should be protected from mineral development.

The state's petition for review of the leasing schedule asks that Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus delete from the schedule the 2.7 million-acre St. George Basin area, set for auction in 1982, and the 1 million-acre Northern Aleutian Shelf area, set for sale in 1983.

The areas, which include the Pribilof Islands, a prime nesting and seal pupping grounds and bird rookery, generated a $356 million commercial fishing catch last year. The waters are rich in cod, sole, herring, halibut and crab in addition to salmon. The areas have never been leased, and could contain a total of about 360 million barrels of oil and 1.4 trillion cubic feet of natural gas. Hammond said that represents just 5 percent of the petroleum the government estimates is recoverable from the 36 planned offshore lease sales.

DPS pessimistic about rising fuel costs

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Department of Public Safety is pessimistic about the future price of gasoline.

Col. Jim Adams, DPS director, told examiners from the Legislative Budget Board and the governor's office Thursday he expects gasoline prices to hit $1.75 a gallon in 1982 and $2 in 1983.

"And some consider that to be conservative," Adams said.

The DPS budget request to the next Legislature includes $6.8 million in 1982 and $7.8 million in 1983 for gasoline for highway patrol cars, compared with $3.1 million in 1981.

Adams said he thinks Texas will meet this year's federal goal of 40 percent compliance with the 55 mph speed limit.

"My problem is the 50 percent next year. We need additional visible (highway patrol) units. We don't have what you would call saturation coverage," he said.

Adams said he also wants the Legislature to get rid of the long-standing prohibition against the use of aircraft, including helicopters, for speed law enforcement.

"I think this is an area the Legislature should leave to the judgment of a law enforcement agency," Adams said.

He said aircraft "have been accepted in almost every state as a valid, effective weapon for speed law enforcement."

Adams said if the provision is removed, he would do a "very thorough study" of the cost effectiveness and usefulness of aircraft before using them to identify speeders.

"We only have seven aircraft, and we are making full use of them now in law enforcement and criminal investigations. So there is ample protection against the widespread use of aircraft," he said.

Reporter arrested after filming man's suicide

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — A television news photographer, who videotaped the suicide of a man in the basement of a city police station, was arrested when he refused to leave the scene, police said.

KMBT-TV cameraman Chuck Cochran sped in behind the 48-year-old man who wounded his father-in-law in a high speed chase down Main Street before pulling into the police station, officers said. They said the man put a pistol in his mouth and pulled the trigger.

Cochran, released early Thursday, said the officers used excessive force in the arrest and attorneys for the television station are considering legal action.

Adam Doucet, who shot his estranged wife and her father in the arm, then pointed the pistol at a police officer, was found dead on the floor of his car from a self-inflicted gunshot wound.

Dorothy Doucet told police her husband had followed her and her parents from a Beaumont hospital where the four had been visiting a relative Wednesday afternoon.

According to officers, Doucet was upset of a recent marital separation and Mrs. Doucet said there had been an argument.

She told police she knew her husband had a gun and that was why she drove to the police station.

Doucet followed, firing at the car repeatedly, wounding his wife and her father, Ovey Doucet, before the two cars drove into the police department's basement, where Mrs. Doucet called for help.

Police said Doucet rammed his wife's car twice before pointing his gun at an officer, who fired six shots into Doucet's car.

Suicide ends gun attack

REDONDO BEACH, Calif. (AP) — A 53-year-old woman, who fired five shots outside a courtroom at the man who killed her son, committed suicide to join her dead children rather than "go to prison" for the attack, authorities said.

"She just couldn't accept what happened," Redondo Beach police Detective Mike Minard said Thursday.

Helen Soncarato was found dead in her home Monday, apparently killed by a drug overdose, Minard said.

She was to have been sentenced on Tuesday. The judge in her case said he had no plans to send her to jail.

Mrs. Soncarato left a page-long note, allegedly explaining why she killed herself.

"What she indicated (in the note) was that there was no other way," said Minard.

She wrote that she preferred to go to the "other place" — an apparent reference to an afterlife — to join her daughter, who died some years ago, and her slain son, rather than "go to prison" or face a court-appointed psychiatrist, authorities said.

The note was in the possession of the coroner, who was to perform toxology tests to determine the exact cause of her death, according to Los Angeles County Coroner's investigators.

Mrs. Soncarato had been charged with assault with a deadly weapon for the June 4 attack on James Hyland, 32. He shot and killed her son in self-defense Oct. 4 during a quarrel at Hyland's Redondo Beach home.

Carmine Joseph Soncarato, 24, broke into Hyland's home after learning his girlfriend, Victoria Crenshaw, had gone there after an argument. Ms. Crenshaw corroborated Hyland's statement that Hyland shot Soncarato in self-defense with a gun hidden beneath the dining room table.

Hyland was booked for investigation of murder, but never charged with that crime.

music too good and that's a big handicap."

But what he lacks in musical talent he makes up for in spirit.

"I love to play 'God Bless America,'" he said. "Over the years," recalled Webb, "the Rudacilles have been the backbone of the band. Of course there were four brothers."

Brother Lester, now in his 70s, still plays the clarinet. Roy and Bernard are dead. But Russell's son, Earl, and Roy's son, Gary, are in the band, carrying on the family tradition.

The number of band members has fluctuated over the years. There are now between 20 and 25. "It's a nice, friendly group," said the 67-year-old Webb, who joined the band when he was 10. "Musically, we are not a good band, but we have a lot of fun and we fill a need. We play for the joy of playing. Some of us have very little musical training."

The band mostly plays for free, at nursing homes and Fourth of July picnics, and for the local American Legion on Memorial Day.

The band does not have uniforms any more and does not march. It is "a strictly seated band," said Webb, a balding, gray-haired, wiry man. It is a band that plays "for our own amazement," he added.

Its repertoire strongly favors the marches of John Philip Sousa and "old favorites," like "Waiting For The Robert E. Lee" and "Over The Waves."

"We don't play 'The Stars and Stripes Forever' too often, it's fairly difficult," Webb added.

Ghost town's band keeps on playing

DANIELS, Md. (AP) — No one lives here anymore, but on a quiet summer evening the strains of "Let Me Call You Sweetheart" drift out of the Methodist church and across the empty streets.

The church is just about the only thing left in the once-bustling mill town. Over the years, the company-owned town began to deteriorate as the cotton industry shifted to the South. The houses were eventually torn down, and in 1972 Tropical Storm Agnes finished off what remained.

But the members of the Daniels Community Band, some of whom are not much younger than the 101-year-old band itself, faithfully troop in from their new homes to practice in the Gary Memorial United Methodist Church.

William Webb, who plays trumpet and baritone horn, says he keeps the band going partly because it reminds him of his now-deserted hometown. "To me, it's a labor of love...The town is gone, but the band plays on," he said.

"I think we have a real good country band," says Russell Rudacille, who used to work in the mill and joined the band in 1915 when the group was known as The Alberton Cornet Band.

A photograph from that year shows the members of the band in tunics, peaked hats, and sharply creased white trousers emblazoned with dark stripes down the sides.

Rudacille won't say how old he is, except "I wasn't born in this century." He plays the tuba.

"I'm the oldest and the worst musician in the band," said Rudacille, laughing. "I can't see the

Musicians join striking actors

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — With talks at an impasse and a strike deadline passed, the film industry's musicians apparently went on strike today, compounding the woes of producers who lost 60,000 striking actors 11 days ago.

Negotiations reached a "total impasse" and broke down just two hours before a midnight PDT strike deadline.

Neither the union representatives nor officials of the producers association could be reached for comment after the deadline passed, but the halt in talks virtually assured the musicians would go on strike.

There were no announced plans by the musicians regarding the use of picket lines.

Negotiations between the American Federation of Musicians Union and representatives of the Association of Motion Picture and Television Producers broke off late Thursday.

A work stoppage by the 5,000 musicians would halt all scoring sessions at most major studios and networks. It could cut down the supply of new programs since some shows shot before the actors' strike began July 21 have not yet been scored and could not be broadcast without music.

With the halt of filming and taping, and the prospect of a fall without new TV shows, network officials are already scrambling for contingency programming.

The "total impasse" reached Thursday night, according to AFM president Victor Fuentetaja, involved the musicians' insistence on receiving compensation for reruns of TV programs and films.

"We've always felt this was an inequitable situation," he said, citing residual payments to actors, directors and writers for prime-time network TV shows that are repeated.

However, a management negotiator, who requested anonymity, said there was a significant difference between paying residuals to a few actors and doing the same for an orchestra with 50 members.

In contrast to the musicians' issues, the dispute between the actors and producers revolves around actors' demands for contract provisions to cover compensation for home video cassette sales.

There were no comprehensive figures available, but union and studio officials have said the actors' strike has caused widespread layoffs of non-acting studio personnel.

City-wide crusade to open Sunday

Evangelist Wayne Bristow of Lubbock will lead a City-Wide Evangelistic Crusade at Harvester Stadium, August 3-10, according to Crusade Chairman Dennis Barton. Services are scheduled nightly at 8 p.m.

Bristow is a veteran of more than 400 evangelistic crusades throughout the world. These campaigns have ranged from local church meetings to massive area-wide endeavors. He has been heard by crowds of people in every part of the United States and in Canada, India, Portugal and Africa.

A native of Texas, Bristow is a graduate of Wayland Baptist College. He is an ordained Baptist minister and served as a pastor prior to entering a full-time ministry of evangelism in March of 1963.

Married and the father of one son, Bristow often expands his ministry to include Bible conferences, youth retreats and radio and television. He is especially popular with student groups, and always gives at least one night of every crusade to a youth emphasis.

Other featured performers and speakers at the crusade will include Jimmy Hodges, a recording artist and former jazz band leader from Edmond, Oklahoma, and Felix Snipes, musica coordinator and accomplished magician, recognized as an authority on ESP, psychic phenomena and the occult. Hodges will head the youth organization during the crusade, while Snipes will direct the all-city church choir.

The Women's Corp for the crusade have been working to reach and invited people in the Pampa area to the crusade. Volunteers from various churches in the area are inviting residents by phone to attend the services.

The nursery for the crusade will be at the Central Baptist Church, 513 E. Francis, for children three years of age and younger. It will be open each night of the crusade.

If transportation is needed to the crusade, call the crusade office at 669-3213, between 5 and 7 p.m. each night. Volunteer families will be glad to give those needing transportation a ride.

The chairman for the Women's Corp is Myrna Orr of Central Baptist Church. The following women are co-workers: Katrina Bigham, Lamar Full Gospel; Lois Thompson, First Assembly of God; Dovie Lou Rasco, Pampa Chapel of the Apostolic Faith; Ora Mae Hedrick, Hobart Baptist; Alene Stokes, Community Christian Center; Betty Stovall, First Baptist; Mollie Martindale, Bethel Assembly of God; and Marlene Wyant, Calvary Assembly of God.

Everyone in Pampa and the surrounding area is encouraged to attend this week of spiritual events at Harvester Stadium.

Religion roundup

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Through this week and next, the American Friends Service Committee representing Quakers and various church-related and other anti-draft groups is staging vigils at post offices in many cities.

"THINK before you register for the draft," reads an AFSC leaflet handed out in front of post offices. "Remember, there has never been a draft registration without a draft and seldom a draft without a war."

Like several church groups, the Quaker organization urges young men to heed their consciences about registering. It offers support to those refusing to register or who conscientiously object to military service.

The purpose is to help youths "make informed decisions based on individual conscience wherever it leads," says Asia A. Bennett, AFSC executive secretary.

The Lutheran Council in the U.S., in a letter to pastors, says that if a young man decides not to register, "the churches stand ready to support him with counseling and love."

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Denmark's Queen Margrethe says "Christianity is not merely an outward cultural organization, something which provides us with beautiful old churches, fine furniture and good hymn singing, but it is something that belongs to the life-blood of western culture."

On a recent Danish television portrait on her 40th birthday, she added: "There is in the western world the spiritual resources on which we shall be able to survive, and personally, I have no hesitation in saying that Christianity is a very, very essential side of this spiritual strength."

TORONTO (AP) — Representatives of the world's Baptists have urged ratification of the SALT II treaty between the United States and the Soviet Union ussia to limit strategic missiles — a matter on which the U.S. Senate has suspended consideration.

A resolution about it was among those passed by the general council of the Baptist World Alliance, which ended its world congress last week. It was attended by about 20,000 Baptists from 120 Baptist denominations in 85 countries and territories. Baptists total 33.4 million in the world.

THE BRASHEAR FAMILY from Fort Smith, Arkansas, will be presenting a Gospel music concert tonight at the First Pentecostal Holiness Church, 1700 Alcock. The service will begin at 7:30 p.m. Voted outstanding musical group of the Southern Gospel Music Association, the group travels full-time across America. The public is invited to attend this special service.

HERE IS THE PATH

An Added Touch of Beauty

Robert Louis Stevenson said:

"The world is so full of a number of things,
I'm sure we should all be as happy as kings."

God's world is filled with loveliness, but we need to add our own touch of beauty, so that we might be builders of a better world with Him. Each of us was given talents which would enable us to contribute to the world and mankind something great and lasting and beneficial. May each of us use these talents to the Glory of God. Add a touch of beauty to your life this week by attending church.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is being married to a young man whose parents we have met only once, when the couple announced their engagement last June. They live 90 miles from us.

I wrote to the mother of the groom, explaining that we planned a catered reception and dinner, but because we are on a very tight budget she should limit her guest list to 100 people. (Our list is also limited to 100.)

She sent a list that numbered 130, explaining that she couldn't possibly trim it because they "owed" so many people. (Her guests were mostly friends — not relatives.)

I wrote back saying our budget would allow for only 200 and no more. She phoned to say that she could eliminate only two, and that was final!

Abby, the invitations must be mailed soon. I have two choices: Either trim my own list to 72 so she can have her 128, or trim her list myself and take the consequences. In view of her unreasonable attitude, would I be justified in doing this?

WEDDING HEADACHE

DEAR HEADACHE: Don't trim her list unless you want to start World War III.

Tell her you regret that your budget doesn't allow for any more than 200 guests, so she will either have to trim her list to 100 or pay the tab for the extra guests who cannot be eliminated.

DEAR ABBY: Can a girl get pregnant from kissing with her mouth open?

NEEDS TO KNOW IN JUNEAU

DEAR NEEDS: No. But it's a good beginning.

DEAR READERS: Sheila Cole, formerly of England, and now of Mulga, Ala., sent me a poem from "This England," an English publication. She wrote, "I hope you think it's good enough to share with your readers."

I do, and I shall:

IF GOD SHOULD GO ON STRIKE

How good it is that God above has never gone on strike.

Because He was not treated fair in things He didn't like.

If only once He'd given up and said, "That's it, I'm through!"

"I've had enough of those on earth, so this is what I'll do.

"I'll give my orders to the sun — cut off the heat supply!

"And to the moon — give no more light, and run the oceans dry.

"Then just to make things really tough and put the pressure on,

"Turn off the vital oxygen till every breath is gone!"

You know He would be justified, if fairness was the game.

For no one has been more abused or met with more disdain

Than God, and yet He carries on, supplying you and me

With all the favors of His grace, and everything for free.

Men say they want a better deal, and so on strike they go.

But what a deal we've given God to whom all things we owe.

We don't care whom we hurt to gain the things we like;

But what a mess we'd all be in, if God should go on strike.

ANON.

Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How To Write Letters for All Occasions." Choose an employment agency to help meet your career goals

Are you looking for a job? If you are then you have probably approached an employment agency or personnel consultant for help in your search. The question is, have you approached the agency which can help you the most?

"There are three different kinds of firms which specialize in locating jobs," says Robert E. Kushell, president of the 300-office, national Dunhill Personnel System. "but most people aren't aware of the differences."

One such firm is the local employment agency. Local agencies work mostly with businesses in the immediate area. Some are part of a national employment agency chain, but nonetheless work exclusively with local positions. Consultants who work in this type of agency are most often generalists who handle a wide variety of positions which they advertise in the local newspaper. And, although most companies pay the fee when an applicant is placed, some local employment agencies require that the candidate pay the fee.

The second category of employment firms consists of companies which are members of a national personnel network

(such as Dunhill). An agency which is part of a national employment network places candidates nationally as well as locally because it has access to job information from all the other offices in the network.

Consultants in this type of agency generally specialize in a particular industry or occupation, since they aren't limited to local placements. Additionally, they frequently recruit candidates for jobs rather than advertise.

The third type of employment firm is the executive recruiter. Executive recruiting firms work exclusively at the highest echelons of business and industry. They are retained by companies to fill job slots like the company president and they conduct searches which frequently last many months.

Which type of personnel consultant is right for you?

If you are at the beginning of your career, fairly flexible in the types of positions you will consider, and have no interest in relocating, a local employment agency might be a good bet. If you are moving up professionally, want to take advantage of job opportunities nationwide and want to work with a specialist in your field, you should seek out your local branch office of a national personnel network.

"If your local office does not have a recruiter specializing in your field, he will circulate your credentials among all the recruiters in the national system who do," says Mr. Kushell.

If you are reaching the pinnacle of your career, you should seek out the services of an executive recruiter. This individual will have knowledge of the very top jobs the country has to offer — but beware. The lowest salaried job these firms generally recruit for is $60,000.

"Choosing an employment firm depends on what you are looking for," say Mr. Kushell. "The important thing to remember is that in the final analysis you will be working with an individual, not a company. Make sure that you and your consultant work together compatibly, and that he or she has experience."

Perhaps most important, make sure your consultant knows what your personal goals are. Only then can he or she really help you get where you want to go.

Prison inmates earn college credit

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Neil Miller dropped out of high school, never had a single thought about going to college, and ended up in prison. But now he is close to earning an associate of arts degree from a community college.

What caused the change? Prison. Miller is earning his degree in prison.

He is one of 330 adult inmates — "residents" is how they are referred to — at the Arizona Correctional Training Facility, the state's only prison devoted exclusively to rehabilitation and education.

I quit high school and then earned my GED (General Educational Development diploma) after I got out of the service," Miller said. "Until I came to this place, I didn't imagine myself in college."

If he doesn't get paroled first, Miller could earn his degree in general studies by the end of the year. The Tempe resident's parole review is due in November, when he will have been here just short of three years.

Miller, serving time for assault, said he hoped eventually to be a drug counselor, and would need more schooling than he can get in prison. But his school work here is a start, just what corrections officials had in mind when they conceived the facility.

The Department of Corrections' approach is to provide each inmate with the chance to take academic and vocational classes as a way of steering him away from further crime.

Inmates are screened before being assigned to the facility, and Superintendent Tom Korff said most were suitable for the program offered. All are young, with an average age of 20 and a maximum of 25, and all are in prison for the first time.

While specific skills and learning are available, the general goal of the program is to help the inmates gain maturity, Korff said.

MISHELLE SAVAGE, 20, will present a piano selection during the talent portion of the Miss Top O' Texas pageant. Miss Savage, the daughter of Mrs. Richard Savage of Borger, is sponsored by Whaley's Marine of Fritch.

Enjoyable book tells how TV spots are made

THIRTY SECONDS. By Michael J. Arlen, Farrar, Straus & Giroux, 211 Pages, $9.95.

Television is a fact of life. So are television commercials — those breaks in a program that everyone says they use to run into the kitchen to get a snack but few admit to watching.

If that's the case, why devote an entire book to describing how one 30-second commercial is made? One reason is that the book is written by Michael J. Arlen, a very fine writer with such good things to his credit as "Exiles" and "Passage to Ararat." Another is that the description of how that brief commercial is put together is, as detailed by Arlen, fascinating.

In "Thirty Seconds," Arlen tells of the hard — often tedious — work involved in creating a commercial that flickers quickly across the TV screen with an easiness that shows nothing of the difficulties encountered in making it.

First, a story line has to be thought out. How many people are going to be calling how many other people? Who will be the callers, who the receivers? This done, actors must be auditioned for the various roles, a time-consuming process. Lines must be written for the actors to say. Music must be written that complements the

Last to be interviewed often first to be hired

NEW YORK (AP) — The last person interviewed has a better chance of being hired than any of the preceding candidates, according to a study that revealed the final candidate was hired 55.8 percent of the time, while the first person interviewed got the job in only 17.6 percent of the cases.

The study was based on a sampling of positions recently filled by 40 of the offices of Robert Half Inc., financial executive, accounting and data processing recruiters.

He suggests that employers fill out a detailed rating sheet immediately after each interview, to provide a more accurate and comprehensive picture of each candidate's assets and liabilities. "It would be an invaluable tool in assuring that positions are filled by the best-qualified candidates," Half added.

ICEBOX CHEESE CAKE

One of the best of its kind.

ZwiebackCrust, recipe follows

1 envelope unflavored gelatin

3 large eggs, separated

1/2 cup sugar

Two 8-ounce packages cream cheese, at room temperature

Grated rind of 1 lemon

1 teaspoon lemon juice

2 teaspoons vanilla

1 cup heavy sweet cream

1/2 cup cultured sour cream

Make Zwieback Crust. Soften gelatin in 1/4 cup cold water. In a small saucepan whisk together the egg yolks, sugar and 1/2 cup cold water. Stirring constantly, cook over low heat, without boiling, until thickened — about 10 minutes. Off heat, stir in the gelatin until dissolved. In the large bowl of an electric mixer, at medium speed, beat together the cream cheese, lemon rind, lemon juice and vanilla; gradually beat in gelatin mixture. Beat egg whites until stiff. Beat sweet cream to soft peaks. Gently beat egg whites and cream into cheese mixture to blend. Turn into Zwieback Crust. Chill until set. Spread with sour cream, chill again.

Zwieback Crust: Mix together a 6-ounce package of zwieback (finely crushed), 1/2 cup soft butter, 1/4 cup sugar and 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg. Press over bottom and 3/4 up side of a 9-inch springform pan. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven for 10 minutes. Cool before filling.

TIA plans move to Dallas-Love field

DALLAS (AP) — Texas International Airlines plans to begin construction within a week on ticket facilities for new, in-state flights originating from Dallas Love Field, city and airline officials said.

All the airline's current flights operate from Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport, but TIA representatives Wednesday told an executive session of the Dallas City Council they want to resume flights at the city-owned airport.

After the meeting, city official Camille Barnett said the city can not prevent the proposed new service that would, initially, link Dallas and Houston.

"There is no legal basis to fight them," she said. "The City of Dallas does not have any authority to decide whether Texas International Airlines flies out of Love Field."

Fort Worth Mayor Woodie Woods said he was "shocked and disappointed" the airline had begun negotiations to return to the Dallas field without consulting the D-FW Airport Board or the Fort Worth City Council.

London paper joins Fleet Street death row

LONDON (AP) — The owners' threat to close Britain's oldest Sunday newspaper, the Observer, is the latest evidence that things are getting worse along Fleet Street, London's famed newspaper row.

As a result of what The Times of London calls Fleet Street's "death wish," Britain's newspapers are being squeezed between the restrictive practices of the powerful unions and the nervous, uncoordinated responses of owners with a history of ducking showdowns.

"On the tombstones of Fleet Street write one word 'suicide,'" The Times declared in a recent editorial.

The Times and its weekly stablemate, the Sunday Times, were shut down by a labor dispute for nearly a year, costing Lord Thomson of Fleet, the owner, more than $70 million. Publication resumed last November with the key issue — the refusal of the unions to allow journalists and advertising clerks to use computer terminals — unresolved.

No other national British newspaper has dared try to introduce the new technologies that are widely used in the United States.

Of the 18 newspapers with offices on or near Fleet Street, 10 are estimated to be losing money.

Paperworkers strike settlement reached

MONTREAL (AP) — An agreement has been reached apparently ending a strike by some 6,000 Abitibi-Price Inc. paper workers in three provinces. The walkout depleted much of the newsprint supplies in Canada and the United States.

A Canadian Paperworkers Union spokesman said Wednesday in Toronto that members of 19 locals had approved a new contract in three days of voting. The union arranged the news conference here Thursday to disclose the results.

Although the union spokesman declined to announce details, Saunders Bedford, president of a Thorold, Ont., local, said the agreement provides a wage and benefits package totaling $3.37 an hour over two years.

Under the old contract, which expired April 30, average pay was $9.15 an hour. Key issues in the dispute were improvements in pensions and job security and a cost-of-living provision.

During the walkout, which lasted almost four weeks, Abitibi-Price operations were all but halted in Ontario, Quebec and Newfoundland.

What about no new fall shows?

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — On a recent "Tonight Show," Johnny Carson was trying to tell a joke about the actors' strike.

The punch line was, "The strike might get an Emmy for most improving the quality of television." But before Carson could deliver it, he was interrupted mid-joke by enthusiastic applause from the studio audience.

They were cheering the joke's set-up line, which was: "Because of the actors' strike, there may be no new shows in the fall."

That familiar half-surprised, half-knowing grin came to Carson's face. He'd registered another direct hit on the American mood.

This wasn't a group of hip critics that was cheering the possibility of no new TV season. Carson audiences are avid TV watchers, vacationing heartlanders who savor the Burbank heat and smog for the privilege of sitting in the presence of television's biggest star.

When a Carson audience boos prime time, prime time is in trouble. And they have a point.

Suppose that the strike by the Screen Actors Guild and the American Federation of TV and Radio Artists strike is a prolonged one, and there is no new television season in the fall... what will we miss?

There would be no new episodes of "Charlie's Angels," which means we'd miss meeting Charlie's newest angel, Tanya Roberts. But as this is a series whose success turns on its... er, action, rather than dramatic value, it's possible that no one would notice they were watching last season's reruns.

A protracted strike would mean no new episodes of "Vegas," "Sheriff Lobo," "House Calls," "Flo," "The Facts of Life" or "Laverne and Shirley." The democracy could survive that. "Monday Night Football" is not affected by the strike.

On the other hand, "Those Amazing Animals," "Real People," "That's Incredible," "Games People Play" and "Speak Up America," not being dramatic or comedy shows, aren't affected by the strike and would premiere as scheduled. The new season would comprise a group of freak shows.

Worse, there would be no new "M.A.S.H.," or "Lou Grant" or "Barney Miller." No "White Shadow" or "WKRP in Cincinnati" or the promising new NBC series, "Hill Street Blues." There would be no "Dallas."

And if there is no new TV season, think of all the TV critics who'll have to find honest work.

Coe-Ovett battle upstage controversy

MOSCOW (AP) — Since their last meeting, Steve Ovett has revealed his humanity, Sebastian Coe has admitted his stupidity and the two of them have declared their everlasting non-animosity.

Today, it didn't matter what they thought of each other. All that counted was who won a mere footrace over 1,500 meters.

The sequel of Ovett-Coe has taken center stage on the final day of track and field. It was only one of 10 finals, including the marathon, but it certainly created the most interest.

Besides these two brilliant British runners, the flap over the "Red Coats" and possible Russian "red faces" has drawn a great deal of attention at the track. Although the head of the international track federation said Thursday that he had caught a Soviet pole vaulter cheating, he said his organization was satisfied with the all-Soviet judging at the Olympic track competition.

Adriaan Paulen, president of the International Amateur Athletic Federation, said the alleged judging irregularities of the Soviet officials, which prompted the IAAF track officials coming down to the field to oversee events, were just "ugly rumors."

Paulen wanted to keep the IAAF officials off the field, rather than embarrass the Soviets, but was outvoted by his executive council 14-1 Wednesday.

There have been no incidents of judging irregularities since then, but Paulen saw Soviet pole vaulter Sergei Kulibaba providing illegal assistance to a teammate and was removed from the field. Kulibaba had been making hand signals about the wind conditions.

Boxing had the day off today in preparation for Saturday's 11 finals, which will have eight Cubans and seven Soviets going for gold medals. The headliner, as he's been for the past two Olympics, will be Teofilo Stevenson. On Thursday, the Cuban heavyweight had to go three full rounds for the first time in his Olympic career stretching over 10 fights. His opponent in the final will be Pyotr Zaev of the Soviet Union.

The confrontation between the White House and the International Olympic Committee seems to have been averted with the IOC's decision to abandon normal protocol, bow to President Carter's wishes and not fly the American flag at Sunday's closing ceremony.

Interestingly, it was the Soviets who pushed for some sort of compromise on the issue, preferring to de-escalate tensions over the issue of Afghanistan. The IOC reluctantly gave in. "We didn't make the decision without a good deal of soul searching," said Lord Killanin, who ends his presidency of the IOC with Sunday's closing ceremony. "The people here have been so good at running the Games that we didn't want to create any problems for them."

"It is better to end the Games on a happy note than a sour one."

If the Games ended today, the dominating Soviets would still have medals records that seem invincible. The assumption is that in future Olympics the United States will be represented, making it much harder for any one nation to better the Soviet totals thus far of 69 golds and 163 medals. The previous marks were 50 golds, set by the Soviets in Munich in 1972, and 125 medals, established by the Soviets in Montreal in 1976.

One medal the Soviets weren't expected to win was the gold in the 1,500 meters, which, according to the form, was reserved for Coe or Ovett, the two Britons who share the world record of 3:32.1.

They also share a relatively peaceful co-existence, which Ovett and Coe recently revealed in separate television interviews.

Ovett won the first encounter in the 800 meters last Saturday, which was only the third time they have raced each other. But Ovett intimated that his victory might take a slight edge off the 1,500.

He said motivating yourself "after you win the gold is very difficult. And others want to prove they're better than you are."

It was during this interview with ITV, Britain's independent TV network, that Ovett revealed he wasn't the ogre the media had depicted. He came across as a warm, intelligent man who is a devoted son and a sentimentalist at heart.

After winning Thursday's semifinal heat in a casual 3:43.1 for his 28th consecutive victory, Ovett drew three letters in the air as a message to his girlfriend back home in England, 18-year-old art student Rachel Waller. The letters were I-L-Y for "I love you."

Ovett claims the reason he doesn't get along with the media is because he surrounds himself with a self-protective shield, which others misconstrue as arrogance. "I don't want to become public property. I'm a very shy person."

But he may have the perfect temperament on the track, just mean enough to have an edge when the running gets rugged, or as he puts it "middle distance running is a contact sport."

"I thrive on pressure, like a coiled spring," Ovett said. "But I'm not some kind of rebel without a cause. I'm no James Dean. I'm not really aggressive at all. All my aggression goes out on the track."

Coe has choirboy looks and a placid nature. He was interviewed by the British Broadcasting Corp. Monday night and publicly kicked himself for running a stupid race.

"I suppose I must have compounded more cardinal sins in middle distance running in 1 1/2 minutes than I've done in a lifetime. What a race to choose," he said, referring to his move that came too late. "I got into a silly mess 150 meters from home."

Coe, the world record holder in the 800, managed to catch the rest of the field for second place, but at the end he wasn't gaining ground on Ovett. "There's no joy in that silver medal," said Peter Coe, Sebastian's father and trainer.

Ovett has now beaten Coe to the tape in all three meetings. And the 800 was supposed to be Coe's best distance.

Racing is very much psychological, and Ovett looked the picture of confidence Thursday. Just as he was making his big kick past the leaders on the last turn, Ovett smiled and waved to a group of Britishers in the crowd.

After accelerating in the far turn and racing away for a victory in 3:39.4, Coe was equally playful. While unwinding, he saw the camera on him, and he went into a boxer's pose, throwing several combinations into the air.

In other events Thursday, Olympic veteran Bronislaw Malinowski of Poland overtook a tiring Filbert Bayi of Tanzania to win the 3,000-meter steeplechase in 8 minutes 9.7 seconds, the fastest time this year.

Bayi was one of the favorites in the middle distance races in 1976, but lost his chance to run because Tanzania supported a 29-nation walkout in protest of New Zealand's sporting contacts with apartheid South Africa.

"This is the first Olympic medal for Tanzania and I will be very happy to return to my homeland with it," said Bayi.

Zimbabwe, which was only recognized by the IOC 36 days ago, also won its first medal ever, taking the women's field hockey title with a 4-1 victory over Austria. Rhodesia, which used to be Zimbabwe, had never won an Olympic medal either.

Granny's Korner wins women's softball game

Granny's Korner defeated Pampa News, 24-11, Thursday in women's softball action at Lions Park.

Winning pitcher was Mia Dacus while the losing pitcher was Sylvia Santacruz.

B.J. Douglas and Mia Dacus were Granny's top hitters, both going 5 for 6. Dacus had two triples. Dorothy Anderson, Jean Terry and Jan Edmondson were 4 for 6.

Molly Mitchell, Maria Santacruz and Sylvia Santacruz were three for four for the Pampa News. Rosie Santacruz was two for three.

Mitchell and Rosie Santacruz hit homeruns. Mitchell and Gayl Davis had triples.

Granny's biggest inning came in the fifth when eight runs crossed the plate.

Players for the women's fastpitch all-star game at 8 p.m. Monday at Lion's Park have also been selected.

A team members include Mia Dacus, Granny's

Rangers win

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — From his postgame comments Thursday night, it was evident Ferguson Jenkins hasn't forgotten what Oriole manager Earl Weaver said about him the last time the Texas Rangers visited Baltimore.

"I ain't got nothing to say except we won and that midget ain't never going to beat me," the 36-year-old righthander said after he scattered seven hits in a 7-4 victory over the Orioles, evening his record at 9-9 and raising his lifetime win total to 256.

After Jenkins beat Baltimore 7-1 on July 20, he told writers he would have won 400 games long ago if he had been playing with a team like theirs.

Jenkins struck out seven and walked four in Thursday night's win, but unlike some times in the past, he got plenty of help from the Ranger bats.

Pampa eliminated in regionals

PLAINVIEW-Curveballing righthander K.T. Taylor hurled a one-hitter as Plainview blanked the Pampa American Little League All-Stars, 7-0, Thursday night in the Regional 11-12 Tournament.

Plainview advances to the state tournament in Waco while Pampa is finished for the season.

Paul Smethers singled in the third inning and was the last Pampa player to reach base as Taylor retired the last 12 hitters in a row.

Smethers walked only three and didn't allow a runner past second base.

Plainview rapped out six hits and accepted five bases on balls. Pampa committed seven errors.

Jeff Gaines started on the mound for Pampa, but yielded two runs on a single and three walks to the first four batters. Brent Cryer relieved him and got Pampa out of further trouble in the first inning.

Cryer gave up a run in the fourth inning on three walks, a passed ball by the catcher and a hit batter. Plainview put the game out of reach by scoring two runs in the fifth and sixth as Pampa's defense began to unravel.

Pampa American finishes All-Star play with six wins and two losses. Pampa National had four wins and two losses in tournament competition. Three of the four Pampa losses came when they faced each other in the Phillips Tournament.

Pampa American had advanced to the regionals by winning the Phillips Tournament with a win over Phillips-Stinnett and two victories over Pampa National.

Last week the Americans won the District Tournament in Pampa by beating Dumas, 4-2, and Friona twice, 6-1, 23-4.

Ronnie Haynes was the team's manager and Gene Cryer was coach.

Wilson has low gross score

Fran Wilson of Pampa had the low gross score of 81 in a Panhandle Women's Golf Association Tournament Thursday at Dumas Country Club.

Pampa Country Club finished second behind Phillips in the tournament with a 271-1,105. Phillips shot 259-1,093.

Other team scores were Huber, 266-1,109, and Ross Rogers, 284-1,129.

Maxine Ormsby of Phillips and Margaret Dauer of Huber tied for low net score with a 61.

There were 73 golfers entered in Thursday's competition. The next Association tournament is scheduled for the Pampa Country Club Aug. 12.

Richard may have stroke

HOUSTON (AP) — J.R. Richard, the Houston Astros' hard-throwing right-hander, has a weakness in his left arm and left leg that doctors caution may persist despite emergency surgery to remove a blood clot.

Surgeons who performed the two-hour operation late Wednesday night said in a statement Thursday that Richard may have suffered a stroke when he collapsed during a workout at the Astrodome.

Drs. Charles McColium III and George Noon determined after their examination that immediate surgery was required to restore "good circulation to the arm, neck and brain," Rivers said.

UNIDENTIFIED YUGOSLAV basketball player lifts big Misha, the Olympic mascot, as he leads teammates in an honor lap after beating Italy to take the gold medal.

Yugoslavs not surprised by Russia's downfall

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Sports Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — The big surprise of the Moscow Olympic Games was the demise of the powerful Russian basketball team, but it came as something less than a shock to two stringbean Yugoslavs who got their hardwood degrees in America.

"The Russians can't handle pressure," said Kresimir Cosic, the 31-year-old center of the gold medal Yugoslavian team. "They play good when they are winning. They panic when it gets tough."

"They have fear of our team," added Mihovil Nakic, the 28-year-old forward. "They know we are not afraid of them. They know we can beat them. So they are very nervous."

Cosic and Nakic both played at Brigham Young University, but not together. Cosic, 6 foot 11 and 216 pounds, spent four years at BYU, leaving without a degree in the early 1970s, and became a Mormon. Nakic, who is 6-8 and 198 pounds, spent only a year at the Salt Lake City institution of higher learning in 1977-78.

"I was not playing enough. I got homesick and returned to my home in Zagreb," said Nakic.

The Yugoslavs swept undefeated to their first Olympic championship Wednesday night, beating Italy 86-77. It marked only the second time since basketball was introduced to the Games in 1936 that anyone except the United States had taken the title. The Soviets won in 1972 at Munich on a disputed goal.

"I am not sure the Americans would have won here," said Cosic. "The Russians play better against the Americans — they have more incentive. The Yugoslavs play better against the Russians. The Americans — they kill us."

"We play more the American style." The tall, kinky-haired Nakic described Russian basketball as "old-fashioned."

"They make a mistake in depending too much on their big man (Vladimir Tkachenko, 7-3 and 297 pounds)," he said. "They don't run and shoot enough. They are very bad on rebounds."

He said Sergei Belov, the 36-year-old team captain, and playmaker Anatoly Myshkin both got impatient and shot wildly. "Both were very nervous against Italy and us," he added.

The Yugoslavs are disturbed that the United States continues to bolster Soviet basketball by sponsoring games in America. The Russians, national teams and juniors, have made more than 50 trips there and another is contemplated in November.

Mirko Novosel, the famous Yugoslav coach who now is an Olympic director, has been quoted as saying, "Americans are freely opening up their book of knowledge to the Russians so that the Russians some day will come back and beat them with their own techniques."

The Yugoslavs, with less exposure to the American game, have absorbed their lessons well. They are tall and rangy, quick, and exploit a fire-engine, run-and-shoot attack. They have many good shooters.

"We played an American all-star college team in Chapel Hill, N.C., in 1977," recalled Nakic. "In the U.S. lineup were players such as Larry Bird, Magic Johnson, Phil Ford and Darrell Griffith. We lost by only a couple of points. Afterward, Coach Joe Hall (Kentucky) told us we were as good as any amateur team he had seen."

Soviet tv coverage of Games ranks among the best, says NBC official

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviets have gone for television in a big way and their coverage of the Moscow Olympics is on a par with many foreign broadcasters, although it makes one appreciate down-home, good ol' American TV...even with commercials.

"Overall, these people are doing a wonderful job," says Geoff Mason. "Overall, their coverage is as impartial as any other host broadcaster I've worked with."

Mason knows. This is his sixth Olympics. The other five were with ABC. When NBC acquired the rights to the Moscow Games, Mason and Don Ohlmeyer were lured to NBC to run the show. For these two weeks, Ohlmeyer, executive producer of NBC Sports, is pulling the strings in New York, while Mason, coordinating producer of NBC's limited Olympic coverage, is manning the controls here.

As host broadcaster, the Soviets are required by the International Olympic Committee (IOC) to provide clean feeds — pictures without commentary — from every Olympic venue. The domestic TV outlet, NBC in the case of the United States, then spruces up the coverage with additional cameras, special graphics, more replay machines and its own commentators.

If a broadcast entity has no supplemental cameras, it's stuck with the Soviets, even when they're not being impartial. Because of the American boycott and President Carter's ban on further equipment shipments to the Soviet Union, NBC has no extra cameras. It can merely tape what others, including British TV, are showing.

At the opening ceremonies, the Soviet feed switched away whenever a nation carried an IOC flag, which was the way 16 countries chose to protest the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

"I was very surprised about that," said Mason. "When I questioned the guy in charge, he said to show the flags would have been a political statement too."

Another example we saw of biased coverage was at the Italy-Soviet basketball game. From the replays, you would never have guessed the Italians won the game, or were even close. The replays of Soviet baskets sometimes interrupted live shots by the Italians.

Chargers gear for bowl

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A year ago, on the way to their first playoff appearance in 14 years, the San Diego Chargers lost their top defensive player, their leading scorer-placekicker and their brilliant first-round draft pick of 1979. But they didn't lose faith.

Instead of buckling, the potent Chargers, mixing an explosive passing attack with a tough-minded defense, tied the Pittsburgh Steelers with the best record — 12-4 — in the National Football League.

"It showed what type of team we have here," said two-time All-Pro defensive tackle Louie Kelcher, who sat out the entire year with a torn knee ligament.

Without Kelcher, kicker Rolf Benirschke and rookie tight end Kellen Winslow, the Chargers merely finished 1-2-3-4 in key NFL categories — passing, pass rushing, overall offense and overall defense.

"In the past, we depended a lot on Louie," said linebacker Ray Preston. "When he was gone, we pulled together. It brought out the best in us."

With all three healthy again, the Chargers, who open the NFL preseason Saturday against Green Bay in the Hall of Fame game, enter the 1980 season with Super Bowl aspirations. A hale and hearty Kelcher increases those chances.

Jones welcomed with open arms

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — "Yes, we lost Roger Staubach, Cliff Harris and Tom Henderson," said Dallas Cowboys running back Tony Dorsett. "But we got 'Too Tall' Jones back."

Dorsett seemed to express the feelings of the Cowboys when defensive end Jones reported to the Dallas training camp at California Lutheran College after a year's fling as a heavyweight boxer.

"I had a warm welcome when I returned, from coaches and players alike," said the smiling Jones.

He will reclaim his left end slot in Coach Tom Landry's "Doomsday Defense" in 1980, joining John Dutton (shifted from end to tackle), Randy White and Harvey Martin in what may be the most punishing front four in the National Football League.

"I figure we at least will be one of the best," Jones said. "I'm excited about our defense."

Jones, who stands 6-foot-9, is reluctant to talk about his decision to come back to professional football.

"I consider my boxing career a success," he snapped when it was suggested he failed in the ring. "I had a 6-0 record and I was showing improvement. I was beating people who had far more experience than I had."

So why did he abandon the ring? "Let's just say the decision was based on a lot of personal reasons," he said.

Jones hopes to bolster the Cowboys in a needed area this season. In 1979, the Dallas defense created only four turnovers in the final eight regular-season games.

"That's terrible," said Jones, who is starting his sixth season with the Cowboys. "The front four has to put pressure on the offense and create turnovers, otherwise the opponents will dictate the course of the game."

Jones is back up to 268 pounds after slimming down to 236 as a boxer.

"No way I could play at 236 pounds in this league," he chuckled. "Why, they'd double-team me and wipe me out."

Jones said he doesn't expect to be rusty after the layoff.

"That might be true if I were an offensive lineman," he said. "Timing is much more important on offense. But I'll be just like new before long."

The Cowboys require all players to run 1 1/2 miles in less than 12 minutes.

Dickey undecided

BALTIMORE (AP) — World speedster Curtis Dickey, the Baltimore Colts No. 1 draft choice, isn't sure what he's going to do, but he's ready to sit out his first year in the National Football League to await more money.

Dick Szymanski, general manager of the Colts, issued a prepared statement Thursday, saying "Jerry Argovitz (Dickey's agent) has flatly rejected a contract offer in excess of $1.2 million and informed us that he would not let Curtis Dickey play football this year."

"I don't know what I'm going to do," Dickey told the Bryan Eagle. "I'm just going to hang loose for a while and see what happens. I might have to lay out of football for a year. If I do, I'll probably run track for the Houston Track Club and go to work down there somewhere, maybe for my agent."

Winning horse

Ray Rodgers Jr., a former Pampa resident, had the winning horse in the $146,094 World Championship Classic held last weekend at Ruidosa Downs.

Amamitos Feature, owned by Rodgers, earned $73,047 for his owner after crossing the finish line first. Gary Oliver was the jockey.

Amamitos Feature was the odds-on favorite to win the race after an easy victory in the time trials.

Rodgers, who now lives in Wichita Falls, is the son of Mr. Mrs. Ray Rodgers of Pampa.

Insect hordes seeking shelter in Dallas homes

DALLAS (AP) — Invading hordes of insects driven by the blistering heat of a torrid Texas summer are seeking cool shelter in the damp recesses of Dallas homes.

Legions of scorpions, ants, ticks and fleas have joined the army of other Dallas residents trying to avoid the heat in a city where the mercury has rocketed past the century mark for 39 consecutive days.

"For the most part insects are like other terrestrial animals and have to consider conserving water in order to survive," said John Owens, urban entomologist with the Texas A&M Extension Service in Dallas.

Scorpions are leading the migration, Owen said Thursday. But fire and carpenter ants, ticks and fleas are finding comfortable new quarters in the air conditioned homes of Dallas.

He said other bugs, such as spider mites and grasshoppers, thrive in the scorching temperatures and are content to remain outdoors.

"Scorpions tend to be in wall voids, under furniture, wherever there are places to hide," he said. "They stay out of the way during the daylight and come out at night to feed on other insects."

Owen said ants travel long distances to escape the summer heat, and fleas and ticks are ferried into the homes by family pets also seeking a respite from the heat.

The entomologist suggested residents battle the invaders by sealing outdoor cracks in their houses, filling weep holes in mortar and by using yellow instead of white lighting outdoors.

"If you seal your house and change the lighting, you have a better chance of keeping the insects outdoors," he said.

Widow tried to understand accidental police shooting

DALLAS (AP) — It's difficult for Mattie Page to consider the tragedy in her life and she has more trouble making sense of it.

She says she cannot understand how Dallas police could accidentally shoot her husband to death, how a quirk in the law could make his life worth just $75,000 or how that figure could melt to a much lower amount.

"When I start thinking about all those things, I go and pray as fast as I can to get it off my mind," she said.

Her husband, Lee Douglas Page, 39, was killed by police gunfire last Oct. 25 when he stepped from the front door of his South Oak Cliff home into the midst of a standoff between a gunman and police.

The gunman took Page hostage and was forcing him to drive away when police opened fire on the car, shooting out the windows and blowing out the tires.

Page leaped from the car and began to run, police mistook him for the gunman and shot him to death.

"I don't hold anybody in any fault for what happened. If I did, it wouldn't bring my husband back," she said.

A Dallas County grand jury looked into the shooting and ruled it an accident.

Mrs. Page filed a $1 million claim against the city. But under state law, police officers are not liable for deaths or injuries resulting from their efforts to stop a crime.

However, city officials agreed Wednesday to pay Page's family a $75,000 settlement, an amount that could have been five or six times greater if the shooting hadn't involved governmental immunity, said her attorney William Hayner.

Most of the money will either go for attorney's fees — roughly $25,000 — or will be placed by a probate judge in a trust for her two sons to receive when they turn 18.

But Mrs. Page, who lives on Social Security payments and the little she earns from odd sewing jobs, says she's not upset though she thinks "they could have done better."

Her confusion about the tragedy is shared by sons Douglas, Jr., 13, and 10-year-old David.

"They have their down moments. That's when I just try to explain it the best I know how that there should be no hate because that's not the way God would have them see it," she said.

"I just don't understand," said Mrs. Page. "I don't understand how ... they (police) could trail a guy from miles away, then look at another one and say they don't know the difference between the two."

"But I don't want to hold no grudge, no hatred," the widow said. "God's the only one giving me comfort ... and I've been holding onto his hand, asking him to hold onto mine just in case I let his slip."

Accused hairdresser leaves note, dies

STEPHENVILLE (AP) — A 33-year-old hairdresser accused of capital murder solicitation last week was found dead of carbon monoxide poisoning.

The body of Terry Don Poyner was found Thursday morning near a hose connected to the exhaust pipe of an automobile on his father's ranch in Eastland County, said the beauty salon owner's attorney Gary Lewellen.

Last week, the hairdresser and one of his customers were arrested and charged with solicitation of capital murder, and released on $100,000 bond, authorities said.

On June 21, Poyner allegedly asked a Department of Public Safety agent, who was having his hair dyed at Poyner's beauty salon, about hiring an assassin kill Jack Gray, said District Attorney spokesman Ralph Mozier.

Mozier said Gray's 48-year-old wife, Peggy Joyce, was arrested with Poyner after she withdrew money from a bank account and, along with Poyner, allegedly gave the undercover agent payment for the hired killer.

Ironically, Gray, whose life insurance policies total $1.5 million, insisted his wife and Poyner were innocent and part of a frame up, Mozier said.

But, he added, prosecutors had the meeting between the undercover agent, Mrs. Gray and Poyner "all on tapes that you can't deny."

"Terry had no reason to commit suicide," Lewellen said. "... we had a good chance of winning it (the case)."

An autopsy, ordered by Eastland County investigators, revealed carbon monoxide poisoning to be the cause of death, and authorities said a note in Poyner's handwriting was found at the beauty salon.

Computer failures plague traffic control officials

FORT WORTH (AP) — Computer failures plagued the Fort Worth Air Traffic Control Center, which reported 66 power outages last year, according to figures released Thursday by the Federal Aviation Administration.

Spokesmen for the FAA said the outages, occurring more consistently in Fort Worth than in the other 19 regional centers, do not necessarily indicate less air traffic safety at the nation's fourth busiest center.

Fort Worth center chief Sabe Comley said the outages are not exemplary of centers' safety record.

"... We are as good, equal or better than any of the 20 centers in the system" that control North and West Texas, as well as Oklahoma, eastern New Mexico, western Louisiana and Arkansas, he said.

However, the controllers' union has complained for several years about the failures in the computer system, despite the FAA's insistence that computer failures do not affect

SORAYA KHASHOGGI

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Soraya Khashoggi, who is seeking a $2.5 billion settlement in a divorce suit against a Saudi Arabian billionaire, has refused to identify the father of her new child.

Mrs. Khashoggi gave birth to the 8-pound, 9-ounce girl Thursday, according to lawyer Marvin Mitchelson, who is representing Mrs. Khashoggi in the divorce.

Mrs. Khashoggi had five children during her marriage to the Saudi arms dealer and had one child before that. She has been estranged from her husband for six years.

Her divorce suit against Adnan Khashoggi, which is pending in court in Los Angeles, asks for half of his fortune. Khashoggi's lawyers are contesting the location of the action. They want the case tried in London.

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert Evans, the producer of such movies as "Love Story" and "The Godfather," will be sentenced Oct. 7 on a conviction for possession of five ounces of cocaine.

Evans, 50, of Beverly Hills, Calif., pleaded guilty to the misdemeanor in U.S. District Court on Thursday, as did his brother and brother-in-law. The pleas were entered as part of a bargain in which prosecutors agreed not to press for other indictments.

Prosecutors said the cocaine was purchased from a federal undercover agent for $19,000 in May.

Each of the three men could receive up to a year in jail and a fine of $5,000.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Karolyn Rose has been granted a divorce from her husband, Philadelphia Phillies first baseman Pete Rose.

Mrs. Rose filed for divorce last September, accusing her husband of gross neglect of duty. Rose, who formerly played for the Cincinnati Reds, did not contest the divorce, granted Thursday by Domestic Relations Judge George Paul.

Paul set a hearing next month on a property settlement. The Roses, married for 17 years, have two children.

INDIO, Calif. (AP) — A new set of documents filed in a challenge of Darryl F. Zanuck's will contends the movie mogul's signature on the will was forged by his daughter.

The contention came in an affidavit filed Thursday in Riverside County Superior Court by attorneys for Genevieve Gilles, 34, who says she was Zanuck's mistress for eight years. She contends earlier wills named her as an heir to 45 percent of Zanuck's estate. Miss Gilles was not mentioned in Zanuck's most recent will.

The affidavit by Thomas Shirley, a friend of the Zanuck family, said Zanuck's daughter, Darrilyn Pineda, told him in 1975 that she signed her father's name to the will that was submitted for probate. It is this will, dated Oct. 31, 1973, which is being challenged by Miss Gilles who seeks a $15 million share of Zanuck's estate.

Zanuck, head of 20th Century Fox Studios for 40 years, died in Palm Springs last year. He left the bulk of his estate to his wife and children. Ms. Pineda was not immediately available for comment.

Man survives deadly snakebite

MONROE, La. (AP) — A 24-year-old man bitten by a krait — a snake far more poisonous than the deadly cobra — has been saved by a blood transfusion from a man who says he has survived more than 100 poisonous snake bites, officials say.

James Lee, 24, an amateur in herpetology, the study of snakes, was in serious condition today at St. Francis Medical Center. He was bitten on the finger Wednesday while feeding one of the six kraits in his collection of 30 snakes.

"He still cannot move his eyes. He cannot lift his eyelids more than about halfway. But he is alert. He is conscious. He never lost consciousness through the whole thing," said Dr. Ernie Rutherford, who is treating Lee at St. Francis.

The blood transfusion came from Bill Haast, operator of the Mian

Serpentarium Laboratory.

"It turned out to be very fortunate for him that we both have the same blood type — A-Positive," said Haast, who flew to Monroe Wednesday night with his assistant, Nancy Harrell.

Ms. Harrell said Lee was also lucky that only one fang punctured him. The fang hit a fingernail on his right hand. She said Lee was lucky, also, to have been bitten by a young krait.

"A krait is many more times deadlier than a cobra," said Ms. Harrell. Kraits are native to China and Formosa.

Ms. Harrell said krait venom, like cobra venom, attacks the central nervous system. She said krait venom is 240 times deadlier than rattlesnake venom and said victims of krait bites usually die within an hour.

Bobby Van dies after long battle with cancer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor-singer Bobby Van, a 25-year veteran of show business, has died following a long battle with cancer, a spokeswoman said. He was 47.

The boyish-looking performer died Thursday at UCLA Medical Center, said publicist Nancy Strauss.

In June, Van had apologized for his appearance as he served as emcee of the nationally televised Mrs. America pageant. He had also thanked his wife and friends for their support in his "time of trouble," but did not say specifically what his trouble was.

Van, who had appeared in nine movies and some two dozen television shows, once said the highlight of his career came Jan. 19, 1971, when the Broadway revival of "No, No, Nanette" opened.

"It was a thrilling experience when 2,000 people rose to their feet to applaud and cheer," said Van, who earned a Tony nomination for his portrayal of lawyer Billy Early in the popular musical. The New York City-born Van was one of the last contract players at MGM. He played the original Dobby Gillis in "The Affairs of Dobby Gillis" and did his "Hop" routine in "That's Entertainment, Part II."

Other films included "Small Town Girl," "Kiss Me Kate," "Lost Flight" and the remake of "Lost Horizon." For seven years, he and Mickey Rooney were a popular nightclub attraction. Van also appeared in clubs with Judy Garland.

His television credits included the Ed Sullivan and Perry Como variety shows, a widely acclaimed appearance on "Skag," and guest spots on "Vegas," "Love Boat," "Battlestar Galactica" and "Fantasy Island."

Recently, he served as host of the game show, "Make Me Laugh."

Van is survived by his wife, actress Elaine Joyce, and his 4-year-old daughter, Taylor.

Graveside services will be held in Burbank on Friday, Ms. Strauss said.

Robison appeals to pastors to get involved in politics

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Stepping away the traditional Baptist separation of church and state stance, evangelist James Robison has made an emotional appeal for 600 pastors to get involved in the political arena this fall.

Robison appealed to preachers from the Dallas-Fort Worth area that met here to get instructions on how to rally enough support throughout their congregations to insure the election of Bible-believing, God-professing candidates to Congress.

Robison, a Baptist pastor and Fort Worth television evangelist, is the vice president of Religious Roundtable, a national organization trying to get church leaders involved in defeating liberal congressional candidates.

Sponsoring an Aug. 21-22 National Affairs Briefing in Dallas, Robison's group initiated the Wednesday meeting to garner delegates from the churches for the upcoming briefing, designed to instruct ministers in getting Christian voters to the polls.

Two key speakers at the August meeting will be Republican presidential candidate Ronald Reagan, and ERA opponent Phyllis Schlafly.

Embalming not required by state health laws

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The State Health Department will not require embalming of bodies and does not believe embalming is necessary to protect the public from disease, says Health Commissioner Robert Bernstein.

A 1979 law says a state agency may not issue a rule requiring embalming without issuing a finding that it is necessary to protect the public health.

The Health Department had an embalming rule for many years, and undertakers said it was necessary to protect the public from diseases transmitted by corpses.

Attorney General Mark White recently issued an opinion upholding the new law and saying embalming could not be required "unless and until the State Board of Health makes a finding that the rule is necessary to protect the public health."

Bernstein, a physician, said his department knows of no situation where embalming is a public health necessity.

"I don't know of any disease which would be affected by embalming," Bernstein said in a statement issued this week.

He said there are safe methods for handling and transporting bodies of persons who died of communicable diseases.

Bernstein said there are situations in which a family might wish to have a body embalmed "for aesthetics" but this was a personal decision, not a state requirement.

Sen. McKnight hospitalized

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Sen. Peyton McKnight, often mentioned as a possible candidate for lieutenant governor, is in a Houston hospital recovering from surgery to correct "complications" that resulted from a coronary bypass on July 2.

McKnight, 55, is in "satisfactory condition" following surgery Monday, according to a statement from his office.

The most recent surgery was performed at the Texas Heart Institute of Saint Luke's Episcopal and Texas Children's Hospital.

"Complications which can occur as a result of any surgical procedure arose following coronary bypass surgery performed on July 2.

A fearless camera man films Margo McKenna (Emily) and Tony Craig (Draper) on a roller coaster ride as part of the action on "Edge of Night."

Although no one underestimates the difficulty of shooting on a closed set, there is a world of difference and difficulty shooting a scene on location. As I discovered on my behind the scenes look at "Edge of Night," camera crews and cast members are at the mercy of the elements, the general public and the fates as well. Imagine the anxiety of director John Sedwick and producer Nick Nicholson as they viewed the ominous clouds that gathered over Rye Playland threatening what was to be a fun filled day for Emily and Kirk; the calm before the storm and destruction of their romance as Kirk is pursued by underworld thugs and his own rapidly returning memory. The fact that Tony Craig who plays Kirk/Draper was suffering from a bad case of the flu and Terry Davis who plays April, his long suffering wife, had sprained her ankle did not deter either of them from remaining to film their scenes from 7:00 pm the previous evening to 3:00 pm the following day without a break.

THE DOCTORS — Jason is found and is alive. Claudia is worried that Ashley will remember that Ashley was driving and not her father the night of the fatal accident. A detective is called in when a nurse is murdered. Darcy turns to Brad for support when Jack goes to Ashley's aid. Armed men take over the hospital and hold doctors, nurses and patients hostage.

THIS WEEK: Claudia confides in Jack. The police are called in.

ANOTHER WORLD — Jason attempts to stall the wedding of Tracy and Russ by announcing a conflicting Vegas show date on a talk show. When that doesn't work, he causes Russ to have an accident. Rachel asks Mitch to forget about the fact that he is the father of her child. He is confused. Delaney wants to see Cory. Blaine goes to the casino opening with Jordan.

THIS WEEK: Russ and Jim talk to Pat about her drinking. Will the wedding come off without a hitch?

DAYS OF OUR LIVES — Margo dies. Lee surprisingly agrees to Doug's request for a divorce. Meanwhile, Lee calls in her hit man. Alex is angry when he learns that Mary has also confided in Marie. Chris proposes to Leslie but she is undecided.

THIS WEEK: Alex tries to undermine Chris at the plant. Mary wonders if Alex set the fire.

TEXAS — Next week Speaking of Soaps will begin to feature recaps and previews of NBC's newest entry on the soap opera scene.

Refusal to bear children not grounds for divorce

HAUPPAUGE, N.Y. (AP) — A man is not entitled to divorce his wife just because she refuses to bear him children, a state Supreme Court Justice has ruled.

"It follows naturally that if a woman can terminate a pregnancy without the consent of her husband, she should be allowed to make the unilateral determination to prevent it," said Justice Joseph Jaspas.

Herbert Zagrow, 34, of Stony Brook had filed a divorce action against his wife, charging mental cruelty because she would not have sex with him unless he used contraceptives.

In a ruling last week, Jaspas said that was not sufficient reason to seek a divorce. But Jaspas granted a divorce to the couple anyway, because Zagrow's wife, Eileen, 30, had also filed a divorce suit. She accused Zagrow of adultery and was awarded $75 a week in alimony.

The couple had no children after 10 years of marriage.

Jaspas based his ruling against Zagrow's suit on a U.S. Supreme Court decision that said a woman could have an abortion in the first 12 weeks of pregnancy over the objections of her husband.

Mrs. Zagrow's lawyer, Ira Sloan, said there was precedent in New York that a spouse does not have the right to refuse intercourse. But he said the case was the first in New York "that gives the woman the right to determine whether or not she wants to have children without subjecting herself to divorce if she refuses."

Mrs. Zagrow is an employee of the Suffolk County Department of Social Services. Zagrow is dean of students at Suffolk Community College in Selden.

Zagrow has 30 days to decide whether to appeal.

The couple declined comment on the suits.

On the light side

Court House Hen House

JACKSON, Tenn. (AP) — In Jackson, the answer to the riddle, "why did the chicken cross the road" isn't "to get to the other side."

The answer is, "to roost on the courthouse lawn."

Nobody's figured out why the temperamental bantam hen decided to take up residence at the Madison County Courthouse.

"She's been around here for about two months," said Blake Anderson, administrative assistant to the county executive.

The hen eats with the pigeons and squirrels and sometimes roosts in a tree on the south lawn of the courthouse.

During the heat of the day, she opts for a small coop a courthouse worker put out for her.

But courthouse workers say the hen never leaves the courthouse lawn.

"Moonshine" Mobile

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Drinking and driving usually don't mix, except when the hooch is Bradley Gore's "white lightning."

Gore carries his still on the bed of his pickup and uses the "white lightning" — like moonshine whiskey — to power the truck.

Hostesses strike back

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — At the Republican National Convention in Detroit, I went to an Italian restaurant the first night and was seated in the hurricane path of a 30-inch floor fan that cooled the pasta and fanned my ire, since I was the only customer in the joint.

"We're expecting the Guam delegation," the hostess explained without apologizing. And sure enough, both of them showed up as I was leaving. At least I think it was them. They immediately were escorted to a table overlooking the garden and rewarded with a platter of olives, celery and sliced raw carrots that never came my way.

The next night at a well-recommended steak house I drew the table between the two doors leading to the kitchen and had my suit dry cleaned for free by occasional blasts of steam from the dish-washing machine. The Guam delegation was nowhere in sight, but the Alaskans, eight of them, were huddled shoulder to shoulder at a table for four directly beneath the air-condition blower amid an arctic white sea of empty tables.

Venturing across the Detroit River to a seafood house in Windsor, Canada, my party, if it can be called that, drew the post position next to the jukebox, which was programmed entirely with French-Canadian hard rock melodies for Quebecois afflicted with hearing problems. Above us was a ventilator through which, between musical selections, you could hear the temperamental French chef profanely denouncing any diner who had dared to order fired white fish. "Cochon! Cretin! Imbecile!" were some of lesser epithets.

There was room here for the combined California, Texas and New York delegations, with alternates, but they never showed up either.

All of this, because several months ago this unbiased seminar on matters of public annoyance considered the subject of restaurant hostesses. The conclusion was reached that if a women's draft came along, these experienced authority figures would provide a much needed reservoir of first sergeant material and come in handy at Army reception centers where the accent is on assigning people to places where they don't want to go.

Since then, the mail has been merciless in putting a menu price on my head and calling for a comeback of the public whipping post.

"What ever happened to your research in good journalism?" demands Jean Orr of Omaha.

"Your article in the World-Herald only points out your home work wasn't done.

I've been in the food business for over 11 years and do not believe you could get a man to do the job... Just to brush you up, most eating places have stations — so many stations, so many waitresses. These waitresses keep a sharp surveillance, and that hostess had better be certain that each one gets a fair share of the business... They really have to depend on her being fair and they can be rough cookies, believe me. A hostess has one hell of a job keeping both the public and the waitresses happy. It is my hope that you apologize to the many women who do this work for your incorrect view."

If I ever get to Omaha, remind me not to eat in one of those steak houses out by the stockyards, lest I be led to the Sledge Hammer Suite.

Real 'Quincys' find fact stranger than fiction

By JANE SEE WHITE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Quincy, the TV medical examiner, is outraged by a heinous murder: He pinpoints the time and cause of death, doggedly pursues the likely villain and — as the hour ticks to a tidy end — Quincy solves the crime.

In the real world, it doesn't work that way.

No, they don't do their jobs the way Quincy does his, medical examiners say, but what they do is more interesting and, sometimes, far stranger than fiction.

"We paint a picture of a slice of time — what the situation was at the moment of death," said New York Medical Examiner Michael Baden. "We never know what we're looking for. We never know what we'll find."

New York's chief medical examiner, Dr. Elliot Gross, has been preoccupied this last week with the slice of time when a petite, blonde violinist met a killer police have dubbed "The Phantom of the Opera."

Helen Hagnes Mintiks, 31, vanished last Wednesday night during an intermission in Her body was found the next morning in an air shaft at the rear of the Metropolitan Opera House. She had plunged 60 feet down the shaft from the roof of the building.

So far, Gross has revealed this much:

—Based on the condition of food in her digestive system, Mrs. Mintiks died before midnight; she was last seen at 9:30 p.m. Therefore, she died between 9:30 p.m. and midnight.

—She was alive when tossed into the airshaft. She died from injuries, including a fractured skull, sustained in the fall.

—There is no evidence she was raped.

Gross may know a great deal about the killer: He may know the killer's sex, race, hair color and blood type. He may know something about the clothes the killer wore. He may know all about the murderer's teeth.

But Gross isn't telling — in part, certainly, to avoid tipping the hand of detectives investigating the murder.

Forensic pathology advances almost daily, medical examiners say. The things a medical examiner can learn in an autopsy room, in a laboratory, over a microscope are mind-boggling.

Consider maggots: "Maggots," Baden said, "are our friends. They give us an idea how long a person has been dead."

Flies are drawn to a decaying corpse. They lay eggs. Eggs grow into larvae, or maggots. Maggots grow into flies.

"In many cases, maggots have been a major clue as to how long the person has been dead and sometimes that leads police to who dunnit."

Consider skin, wedged under a murder victim's fingernails during a struggle:

"It can tell the race of the killer. If the appropriate cells are present, skin can tell whether the killer was male or female," said Dr. George Katsas, a medical examiner in Boston's Suffolk County.

In a recent rape-murder case, Baden learned key information about the killer because he bit his victim.

"We recovered saliva from the bite. It will tell us his blood group. We'll also be able to match his teeth, if they get him," Baden said.

At times a medical examiner must autopsy a decomposed body, or worse:

"This is ghoulish stuff, but sometimes we just have to examine what is left," says Katsas. "I had a man who had been dead for weeks when he was found. He had just melted away."

On the other hand, Katsas once autopsied the exhumed body of a man who had been dead 16 years. "Embalming fluid is a preservative," he says. "The body was in excellent condition."

Baden once autopsied the 200-year-old body of an American Indian. The body was mummified by desert heat, but from the bones and teeth Baden learned the Indian died at age 14, suffered from malnutrition and ate mostly coarse vegetables.

It's a different business now than it was for the first medical examiner, a Roman physician named Antistius, who pronounced Julius Caesar dead more than 2,000 years ago:

"He counted 23 stab wounds and pronounced that only one wound was fatal," Baden said. "Antistius didn't say who dunnit. Shakespeare notwithstanding, he didn't say Brutus did it. That's the way it is today: We get the facts. The rest is up to the courts."

Grocery bills showing effects of heat wave

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The rate of inflation at the supermarket slowed during July, but an Associated Press marketbasket survey found that grocery bills already are showing signs of the effects of the heat wave that baked much of the country.

The AP drew up a random list of food and non-food items and checked the price at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973. Prices have been rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month.

The latest survey showed that the average marketbasket bill at the checklist store went up less than 1 percent last month. That compared with an average boost of 3.1 percent during June.

Price fluctuations at the checklist stores varied widely. Many items went up in four or five cities and down in an equal number. There was no single trend.

The price of eggs, however, was clearly up. Eggs increased at the checklist store in seven cities, with price boosts ranging from 14 percent to 61 percent. Spokesmen for the poultry industry have been warning that prices of their products would rise because of the heat in the South and Midwest. Millions of broiler chickens died and the heat caused hens to lay fewer eggs. The decrease in supply has led to higher prices in some areas.

The AP survey found that the marketbasket bill increased at the checklist store last month in eight cities, rising an average of 2.3 percent. The bill decreased in five cities, down an average of 1.8 percent. On an overall basis, the marketbasket bill at the checklist store was seven-tenths of a percent higher at the start of August than it was a month earlier.

Comparing prices today with those a year earlier, the AP found that the marketbasket bill had risen in every city, for an overall average increase of 12.1 percent.

One of the relatively bright spots in the AP survey came at the dairy counter. The price of a pound of butter dropped at the checklist store in five cities during July and rose in only three.

No attempt was made to weight the AP survey results according to population density or in terms of what percent of a family's actual grocery outlay each item represents. The AP did not try to compare actual prices from city to city. The only comparisons were made in terms of percentages of increase or decrease.

The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, butter, Grade-A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, milk, frankfurters and granulated sugar. A 15th item, chocolate chip cookies, was dropped from the survey after the manufacturer discontinued the package size used in the check. The cities checked were: Albuquerque, N.M., Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, R.I., Salt Lake City and Seattle.

Columnist suggests adding tax increases to 'misery' index

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The trouble with the misery index — that's a combination of the inflation and jobless rates — is that it doesn't tell just how miserable things really are. It doesn't measure taxes.

An improvement, it seems, would be the infideltax index, a simple combination of inflation, idleness and the rate of tax increases. President Carter might not like that, but he is the one who started the whole business when, as a candidate in 1976, he devised his misery index to show how poorly Gerald Ford was handling the economy.

Back then the index stood at about 12 percent. Under Carter it soared to as much as 24 percent and even now stands at 19.7 percent, enough for him to wish he had never been so clever in the first place.

But, clever as it was, the misery index failed to take into account those tax increases, which in recent years have been a growing cause of discontent, regardless of all that political talk about tax cuts.

In the period from 1976 to the fall of 1979, for example, it appears that federal income and Social Security taxes, to say nothing of other taxes, rose faster for most families than did prices as a whole.

In many cases, however, this knowledge was hidden from the public because there has been no easily understood measure of tax pain, as there is for the discomfort of unemployment and inflation.

Instead, you might recall, we blamed our vague distress on the middleman or unions or corporate greed or unfair foreign competition or a malaise of the spirit or a dozen other scapegoats.

Finally, however, an easily understood measure of tax increases has been developed by economists at the Tax Foundation, thus filling in the important missing ingredient in the old misery index.

You may, therefore, add to the 12 percent inflation rate (as measured by the consumer price index), and the 7.7 percent jobless rate, a 13 percent taxflation rate, for an infideltax index of 32.7.

For the time being, it is probably best to round those numbers off, for a couple of reasons. First, inflation and joblessness are fluctuating. Second, that 13 percent is really the rate for 1979.

However, the rounding won't change the picture. It is unlikely that inflation or idleness will improve much over the next couple of months, and it is unlikely also that 1980 tax increases are less than in 1979.

Later this year it will be possible to use a more precise figure for taxes, because the Tax Foundation promises to compute its index on a quarterly basis in order to allow more up-to-date comparisons.

As of the end of 1979, the foundation's index of federal, state and local taxes stood at 336.4, a jump of 39 index points or 13 percent over 1978. The base year of 1967 was given an index of 100.

From 1975 through 1979, it reports, the upward sweep of taxes has been enormous. "The tax index jumped 65 percent, more than twice the 30 percent rise in prices, and over three times the 21 percent rise in the real output of the private business sector," it states.
