Census Bureau officials of Amarillo were recently presented with the local review of the 1980 census, indicating Pampa's population to be 27,207, more than 5,000 persons greater than census bureau estimates

City Manager Mack Wofford formally submitted the estimate to Census Bureau officials

"The bureau said they will follow up on what we have provided." Wofford said.

However, he said he had no idea whether Pampa's efforts will be rewarded with a revision of the preliminary census figures or not.

"So far," he said, "the district office (of the Census Bureau) has been very cooperative with the city.

Local offices for the bureau have been set up at the Southwestern Bell telephone offices for the purpose of continuing their follow-up program on the census, he said.

A Complete Count Committee was formed of Pampa businessmen before the April 1 census, composed of Floyd Sackett, Warren Hasse, Carl English, Joe Gidden and Wofford.

The committee met several times with the Census Bureau in Amarillo prior to the census in order to provide up-to-date maps and data on the size of the city

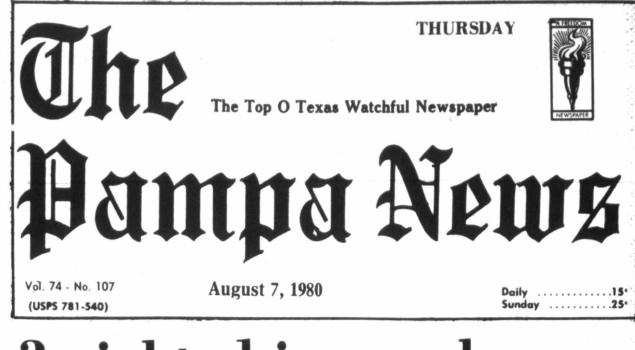

Despite their efforts, officials said, the census did not include a large area of the city which was annexed in 1978.

After the census results were released on July 10, the committee decided to perform an actual count on six of the 18 enumeration districts in the city and then estimate the population for the remainder based on the actual count findings

The Census Bureau counted a population of 22,186, according to the July 10 results

3 sighted in wreckage of lost offshore copter

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Three men were sighted in the Gulf of Mexico today near the wreckage of a helicopter that was evacuating 13 oil rig workers in the path of Hurricane Allen, the Coast Guard

"They've found the wreckage of the helicopter but we don't know if they are dead or alive," said Coast Guard spokesman Joe Gibson. The Coast Guard said a civilian boat found the wreckage about 60 miles southwest of Houma, La.

The Ocean Drilling and Exploration Co. said the pilot and five of its employees were aboard the helicopter, along with seven workers from various offshore services companies

The missing employees were identified as engineer Robert W. Ellison, 26, of College Station, Texas; and roustabouts Stephen Fagnani, 20, of Armonk and Brandon Young, 20, of Armonk, N.Y. Lawrence Neebe III, 29, of Houma; and Joe DiGiovanni, 27, of Independence, La

ODECO spokesman AL Spindler said the the helicopter picked up the last men from a company oil production platform about 90 miles southwest of Houma and was headed to shore when it disappeared.

He said the missing were among non-essential personnel ODECO evacuated from its 10 production platforms in the Gulf

He said the pilot was an employee of Air Logistics of Lafayette, which owned the helicopter under contract to ODECO. The missing were not immediately identified.

Bill Thompson, a spokesman for Air Logistics, said he could not release the pilot's name until his family had been notified.

Thompson said he did not know why the helicopter would have crashed "The weather was not that bad. There were a few thunderstorms out there, but there are all sorts of possibilities," he said. The evacuations were part of an oil industry plan to transfer offshore workers to shore as a precaution against the hurricane. Spindler said company planned to move all of its non-essential offshore employees Wednesday, and to remove the remaining 650 workers today

Amoco Production Co. said it was evacuating 665 employees from 10 drilling rigs and six production platforms off Louisiana and Texas.

Look forward to reunion PAAF members recall war years

Local members of the Pampa Army Air Field Association are expressing anticipation today as final preparations for the eighth annual reunion were underway. Association members, including George Lindahl, Guatemala, Central America, will begin arriving in Pampa Friday for the two-day affair which will be highlighted by the speaking appearance of the Commander of the North American Air Defense Command, the Aerospace Defense Command and the Aerospace Defense Center, Petersen Air Force Base, Lt. General James V. Hartinger, during the Saturday night banquet which will be conducted in the Starlight Room of Coronado Inn

Members of the association include a number of area residents who came to Pampa during the operation of Pampa Army Air Field and returned to establish a home after World War II.

Panhandle minister Maurice Garner Pampan Quentin Nolte; member of the organization committee and first woman aircraft mechanic at the base. Bula Flynn, and Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Taylor, civilian employees and current residents.

A.S. McCartney came to Pampa as an aviation cadet from Wisconsin and stayed on. The list goes on and on, according to Mrs. Flynn.

"I came to Pampa from Amarillo at Christmastime in 1941," Mrs. Flynn said. "On February 26, during a terrible blizzard, a friend and I rode the Liberty Bus to the base. They let us out at the south gate and we walked all the way up to the office. We would get behind trucks parked along the way and thaw out a little, and then go on." It was worth it, Mrs. Flynn said, the pay proved to be excellent.

Mrs. Flynn was the object of a three month long security check. "They knew where I had been, who I had been with and what time I got home during all that time. she said. "And I never knew a thing about

"We felt patriotism and a sense of helping out the war effort. Times have sure changed since then. My only regret is I did not keep a diary," Mrs. Flynn said.

"My supervisor and line chief, Ralph Hibbs from Woodward and Slim Cordin of Pampa are both dead," she said. "But I remember when I put together my first aircraft engine and it ran. "Each month we select one team for the honor among the 90 teams in Texas," Pessink said.

A 100-percent volunteer civic organization, Gray County REACT took part in several civic events, Pessink said, including work with the local police, the "spook patrol" on Halloween, travelers' rest stops on Memorial Day (and another planned for Labor Day), and the efforts they have made in locating lost children.

100 saved in crash

NOUAKCHOTT, Mauritania (AP) - A Romanian jetliner carrying 164 Romanian fishermen crashed in the Atlantic early today just offthe coast of the West African nation of Mauritania, officials said. Witnesses said as many as 100 people may have been saved.

According to the official Mauritanian news agency, the jumbo jet. of the Tupolev series plunged into the sea off the north coast of the west African nation with no indication that the pilot had triggered a distress signal

There was no word on how many crew members were aboard the scheduled flight of Romania's Tarom airlines but officials said the passenger manifest listed 164 fishermen aboard and no other passengers.

The fishermen were en route to Nouadhibou to relieve the crews on the huge fishing boats that ply the waters off Africa's west coast, a changeover made routinely every three months, officials said. The cause of the crash was under investigation.

The worst single-plane accident was the crash of a Turkish DC-10 near Paris on March 3, 1974, in which 346 people died.

Allen churns toward Yucatan

MERIDA, Mexico (AP) - Hurricane Allen, gaining fury and described as the strongest on record in the western Caribbean sea, churned toward Mexico's Yucatan Channel today on a path that could put the killer storm off the U.S. Gulf coast by the weekend. It left behind at least 71 dead and extensive devastation on the fourth day of its rampage through the Caribbean.

Offshore workers spotted a body in the Gulf of Mexico today near where a helicopter with 13 Americans aboard was missing in the storm-tossed seas off Louisiana's southern coast. The 13 were among hundreds of oil drilling rig and production platform workers evacuated in anticipation of the storm.

At 9 a.m. EDT, the U.S. National Weather Service said Allen, with top winds of 170 mph instead of 155 mph recorded three hours earlier, was centered near latitude 20.8 north, longitude 85.0 west, or 120 miles east-northeast of Cozumel, Mexico.

"Extremely dangerous Allen is wobbling toward the Yucatan channel," the weather service said, adding that the storm had strengthened through the night to make it the strongest ever to reach the western Caribbean. It was moving west northwest at about 15 mph

'The projected track of the center will bring it through the Yucatan channel but the strengthening and minor wobbles could result in the center passing over either the extreme western tip of Cuba or the northeast tip of the Yucatan Peninsula. This should bring extreme winds to both of these areas," the weather service said, during the morning hours.

The Texas-Louisiana coast is roughly 700-800 miles northwest of the Yucatan and appears to be in the path of Allen, which has basically followed a north northwest route since building to hurricane force off the eastern Caribbean island of St. Lucia early Monday morning. However, there was no certainty the storm would continue on the same track.

MEXICO CITY, Mexico (AP) - Hurricane Allen bore down on Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula today on a path that could put the killer storm off the U.S. coast by the weekend. It left behind at least 71 dead and extensive devastation on the fourth day of its rampage through the Caribbean storm-tossed Gulf of Mexico off Louisiana's southern coast. The Americans were among hundreds of oil drilling rig and production platform workers evacuated in anticipation of the storm

At 3 a.m. EDT, the U.S National Weather Service said Allen, packing maximum winds of 150 mph, was centered 185 miles east of ozumel. Mexico.

It said Allen was continuing toward the Yucatan and while it had slowed somewhat during the past few hours, was expected to move toward the west northwest at about 20 mph. Its center was expected to be near the northeast tip of the peninsula shortly, the weather service said.

Coast Guardsmen using high-powered lights searched the stormy Gulf of Mexico through the night for the helicopter, which was reported missing when it failed to arrive at 7 p.m. Wednesday at an airport 90 miles away from the production platform.

The Ocean Drilling and Exploration Co. said five of its employees were aboard, along with the pilot and seven workers from various offshore oil service companies.

Mexican rig and production workers were also evacuated from Mexico's oil-rich Campeche Bay and port authorities suspended all navigation there and in the Yucatan Peninsula, warning ocean-going ships to take "maximum precautions."

A gale warning was issued for the Florida Keys, on the norther fringe of Allen's course Wednesday night. Warnings were also in effect for western Cuba and the Cayman Islands.

The Texas-Louisiana coast is roughly 700-800 miles northwest of the Yucatan and appears to be in the path of Allen, which has sically followed a north northwest route since building to hurricane force off the eastern Caribbean island of St. Lucia early Monday morning. However, there was no certainty the storm would continue on the same track.

The hurricane's latest victims were reported by Havana radio, which said three people were electrocuted - a 30-year-old man and his 14-year-old boy in eastern Cuba and a 36-year-old man in the island nation's central region.

Including the three Cubans, Allen's overall death toll stands at 71: 8 in Jamaica, 41 in Haiti, 3 in the Dominican Republic and 16 on the tiny eastern Caribbean island of St. Lucia. In nearby Dominica, one person was missing and feared dead.

ALLEN'S DESOLATION. Scenes of desolation and destruction are everywhere on the northeast coast of the Caribbean island of Jamaica. Although the full force of the hurricane did not hit Jamaica, the 100 mph winds left hundreds homeless and at least three dead

Texas history highlighted on new phone book cover

Tips for consumers and a glance at Texas history are offered in the 1980 Pampa telephone directory, to be distributed beginning Aug. 8. Gary Stevens, manager for Southwestern Bell, said the new directory has 72 white pages.

"The cover bears a striking painting of key figures from Texas history, selected with the help of the Texas Historical Commission," Stevens said. An explanation of the painting appears on page one of the Call-Guide Pages.

Stevens said one copy of the directory will be mailed to each residential phone customer. Additional copies may be obtained from any Southwestern Bell business office after early August.

Stevens said a total of 35,777 books are being printed. Of that number, 17,920 new phone books will be mailed to area residents by early August.

"The extra books are for new customers moving to Pampa throughout the year. Also businesses and customers sometimes wear out their books and need replacements," Stevens said.

Allen eyeing Texas coastline?

DALLAS (AP) - Whether Hurricane Allen, dubbed the most vicious of this century, is a real danger to the Texas coast is "anybody's guess," says a National Weather Service forecaster.

Churning its 135 mile-per-hour winds near western Cuba, the gigantic storm was expected to continue its northwesterly course and enter the Gulf of Mexico sometime Thursday afternoon, according to reports from the National Hurricane Center in Miami.

'The hurricane is so big that so far land masses haven't really affected it, except for decreasing the maximum winds from 170 mph to 135 mph," said Johnny Wallace, of the National Weather Service.

Allen now threatens Mexico's northeastern Yucatan Peninsula. after making a slight westward turn Wednesday night, but the killer hurricane is expected to continue its relentless approach into the Gulf of Mexico, reports stated.

However, if the hurricane passes over the rugged mountain ranges of western Cuba, the storm's strengh could further decrease, Wallace said.

"Once it gets past land and out into the Gulf - well, it's anybody's guess," Wallace said. "Somebody could hold a gun to my head and I still couldn't tell you where it's going to be in the next 72 hours.' If the storm continues its current trek, it should pass beyond the tip of Cuba and stay out over the water, heading dead center into the Gulf at 20 to 25 miles per hour, he said.

Reports show no way to avoid cancer

WASHINGTON (AP) - It seems that everytime you pick up a newspaper, there's a new report about some everyday item that may cause cancer

Now, the government says it's true - there's no way to avoid cancer-causing agents.

The report issued Wednesday by the Department of Health and Human Services said that almost all Americans are exposed - at low levels - to some type of carcinogen.

Cancer, the nation's second-largest killer, may take 400,000 lives this year and is one of the most worried-about diseases. The report came in response to a congressional directive to survey all known and suspected carcinogens to which a large number of Americans are exposed.

The study examined 26 drugs, compounds and processes that have been studied by panels of international experts.

Even though the list is long, said Dr. David Rall, it is incomplete. Rall, director of the National Toxicology program, said, "The next report is planned to cover 100 carcinogens and within two years, the report will include all known important carcinogens. The report found :

-Asbestos is so widely used that the entire population is exposed in some fashion, including about 2.5 million workers who have some daily occupational exposure

Asbestos, a carcinogen, is released into the air by a large number of products as the result of wear or deterioration.

-Benzene, another carcinogen, occurs widely in petroleum and coal tar distillates. It has been used as a paint solvent and in adhesives, dyes and chemical laboratories. It is also used to make other chemicals, plastics, detergents and some pesticides.

Benzene long has been associated with defects in blood cell formation and leukemia in individuals who work with it.

Convention can count on fireworks

NEW YORK (AP) - Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, in a rare appearance by a presidential candidate on the floor of a political convention, promises to bring more fireworks to what clearly will be a turbulent Democratic National Convention.

Kennedy said Wednesday he will address the convention to stand up for his beliefs on economic issues, but political considerations also seemed to play a part in the decision of the long-shot challenger to take to the convention rostrum.

It has been more than 80 years since an orator took the convention floor and snatched a presidential nomination from the favorites. Then William Jennings Bryan led another economic debate and dispatched the opposition with his famous "Cross of Gold" speech.

Kennedy said he will address the convention during Tuesday night's prime-time television debate on economic policy. He said he was making the break with tradition to bring "maximum attention" to his cause

"I would certainly welcome it," Kennedy said, if Carter would join the debate. Such a confrontation is unlikely since Carter has steadfastly refused to debate Kennedy throughout the campaign.

Kennedy said the dramatic appearance is intended to redeem a campaign pledge to stand up at the convention for the "victims of our current recession and inflation." But practical politics would seem to compel the effort, too.

Carter is well ahead of Kennedy in convention delegate votes and

Relatives say wife in conspiracy

DAINGERFIELD, Texas (AP) - Relatives of the five people slain in an attack on First Baptist Church in this East Texas town have filed a civil suit against Alvin Lee King III and his wife that contends Gretchen King was involved in a conspiracy with her husband. The civil suit, filed the Linden district court, said one of the semi-automatic rifles King allegedly used to kill the five and wound 15 others was purchased by Mrs. King.

Texarkana attorney William Peek Jr., representing the families said he intends to prove a conspiracy between King and his wife caused the June 22 slavings.

has more than enough to get the nomination unless a small miracle occurs between now and next Wednesday night when the convention votes

A new effort at converting delegates to Kennedy's "open convention" polistion was launched on Wednesday with mailgrams sent to 1,200 delegates urging them to oppose the proposed loyalty. rule

Rep. Tom Downey, D-N.Y., said the Mailgrams stressed that the sponsoring group was not trying to dump Carter but merely believed an open convention "is the only way to have a strong ticket and a united party" to beat the Republicans in the fall.

On the other side of the issue, Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., said attempts to open the convention were dangerous for democracy and that he would act as the point man for Carter supporters in the rules fight.

Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan, meantime, was relaxing at his Pacific Palisades, Calif., home, and a spokesman said he planned to spend next week watching the Democratic convention on television and "planting fenceposts."

Independent candidate John B. Anderson got two preliminary boosts for his presidential campaign Wednesday.

A federal judge ruled that Anderson's name will appear on the Maryland ballot for the Nov. 4 election, though the state said it would appeal the ruling.

A hearing on the $18 million suit has been set Aug. 25 to determine whether a restraining order should be issued to prevent the Kings from disposing of any of their assets.

Peek said he has information that Mrs. King purchased the AR-15 semi-automatic rifle about two years ago under her maiden name. Gretchen Gaines.

Mrs. King, who filed for divorce from the former high school cometry teacher July 3, could not be reached for comment. King, who is recovering from a self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head, is undergoing psychiatric tests at Rusk State Hospital.

Nursing shortage: a persistent, growing problem

By LEIGH SHIRLEY Associated Press Writer

The critical shortage of registered nurses has been a bitter pill for Texas hospital administrators to swallow.

A "persistent and growing problem" statewide, the shortage has caused consternation within the medical industry and resulted in push-and-shove competition between hospitals vying for available qualified personnel, according to a House subcommittee Nursing Shortage report released Monday.

Citing a 1979 study by the Texas Hospital Association, the report stated the shortage was created by a "changing work ethic" among today's nurses reacting negatively to rigid schedules and growing demands of the profession.

"The days nurses can be told when and where they will work ... those days are gone," said one Dallas hospital adminstrator.

"Many women refuse to put up with the demands in this women-dominated field, and they are no longer locked into two or three profession choices - they can make better money and work better hours in other fields," he said.

Administrators, faced with a growing number of vacancies, have been researching their own temporary cures.

One attempt at filling the empty spots temporarily is the use of agency nurses, hired through an outside firm for up to double or triple the wages of regular staff nurses.

For a few hospitals, such as Parkland Memorial in Dallas, this practice has shoved administrators from the frying pan into the fire.

'Agencies are a viable way to staff in emergencies, but we were using them for longterm staffing, and it is just too expensive," said Kent Norman, director of nurse recruiting at Parkland. "At our current rate we would be spending $22.6 million of taxpayers' money just paving agency nurses.

As the hospital's desperation for personnel increased, more than 100 agency registered nurses were hired for extended periods to fill the vacancies, he added.

Administrators found themselves far over budget and opted for a "float pool" of nurses instead of continued use of agency personnel. Norman said.

The part-time nurses are not bound to rigid schedule demands, but 'work when they can'' to fill the hospitals' needs until adminstrators can eventually fill the positions with full-time employees, Norman said. "Then they could be vacation relief and so forth.

Other Texas hospitals also opt for nurse pools instead or turning to agencies for help

When faced with the nursing shortage, Bexar County Hospital in San Antonio form its own nurse pool, offering staff nurses overtime to work when needed, said spokesman Jeff Duffield.

"You have a greater experience factor within our own personnel. and we have used nurses who resigned full-time work, but went into the part-time pool," he said. "It's worked out very well for us." In the scuffle to recruit full-time nurses, hospitals today must make adjustments and work at "selling the hospital" to the nurse, not vice versa, said Cristy Rossett, coordinator of nurse recruitment at Baylor Medical Center in Dallas.

Hospitals spend an average of $1,010 to recruit one nurse, according to the National Association of Nurse Recruiters. Apparently it is money well spent.

Those institutions with the most active nurse recruiting programs seem to be holding their own against the nursing dry season.

"We recruit nationwide, and having a nursing school associated with us helps, too," Ms. Rossett said. said. "Our turnover rate is around 30 percent, that's 20 percent lower than the national average.

"We've been able to hold our head above water through this thing because we are extremely active in nurse recruiting," said Karen Cason spokeswom an for Houston's Hermann Hospital.

'Our people go out and contact nurses one-to-one and let them know about the benefits that make us attractive," she said.

Hermann's benefits are fiercely competitive in a city saturated with hospitals.

Nurses receive complete tuition if they wish to return to school. An internship program allows graduating nurses the chance to sample different areas and then decide where they would be happiest working, Ms. Cason said.

"A big selling point is our emphasizen primary care nursing on a one-to-one basis that involves the nurse in total patient care, working closely with the physician and really being a specialist in one area, she added. "Nurses aren't just warm bodies who take temps and bring water, anymore."

"We have been actively recruiting for 10 years, at least." said Hazel Haby, spokeswoman for St. Luke's Hospital in Houston. "We try to sell the economic, cultural and training opportunites in Houston as well as hospital benefits."

Yet, even with active recruiting, there is still only a limited number of available nurses. The number of graduating registered nurses has dropped by 16.9 percent and there is an approximate 50 percent drop-out rate among working nurses.

Recruiting efforts abroad by short-staffed hospitals and agencies have been frustrated by rules installed last May that require home countries to pre-test foreign nurses before they can immigrate, said John MacFarland, who visited London 15 times in two years to recruit staff for his San Antonio nurse agency.

"Lobbying by the National League of Nursing Schools and the American Nursing Association has furthered this," he added. "They want a closed market even though we don't produce enough nurses in this country for the jobs."

Another stone wall for hospital recruiters was a cut-back in federal funding to nursing schools after a government study found no shortage of nurses.

"It's just ludicrous," said Norman, who also serves as president of the Dallas-Fort Worth nursing recruiters.

"They counted all the licensed RNs (registered nurses) without taking into consideration those that are not working and counted those licensed in different states more than once," he said. Norman's outlook for the future is bleak.

"The shortage will just get worse unless something happens to change the trend.'

Recent publicity concerning the shortage of skilled persons in the nursing profession offers a problem of concern for local officials who indicate the shortage has been reflected here.

General complaints attributed to those in the field have been narrowed to pay and working conditions. ## P.S. that's Pampa

There are some things that mere mortals need to be reminded of now and then. Like the fact that all of us are just that. Mortal.

There is a tendency to roll along in our little patterns, long on self. esteem and short on humility. The idea comes that we can handle just about anything.

And then the drought sets in.

Hot, searing and killing.

Turkeys and chickens die. Cattle shrivel up and become carcasses. The ground cracks and people are laid to rest in the hot earth, victims of a force beyond their control

And then, along come the terrible summer storms. Frightening in their intensity, swift and sure and unnerving their vivid flashes of lightning. Terrifying as the thunder rolls across the heavens like the foretaste of doom

Storms are no playthings. They are a grim reminder of the awesome force of nature - and the bottom line, which always reads: God!

Tinkering with the economy

As the country heads toward the November election the economy is in a shambles. With a majority in both houses of Congress and one of their own in the White House, the Democrats have few excuses.

The economic chaos now ravaging the fiber of America is a product of the notion that the economy can be managed. Well, it can't. The current high levels of unemployment and inflation are testimony to that fact

If the economy could be politically managed the Democratic Party would have done so since 1977. Although President Carter's proclamations have sounded like he has some faith in free enterprise. his actions have been totally consistent with the theories of left-of-center economic manipulators.

With Congress full of people willing to help him mold the economy into a smooth flowing horn of plenty, by now the country should be enjoying government guaranteed economic bliss. Like most fairytales, government planning doesn't work - even when one party has its man in the White House and control of both houses of Congress

If what is happening in Iran these days gives revolution a bad name, what has happened in Nicaragua during the past year does much to make up for it.

The Central American country has just celebrated the first anniversary of the insurrection that overthrew the 45-year Somoza dynasty.

It has good cause for celebration. Rather than the terror-ridden chaos that so frequenty follows such upheavals - in Iran it verges on anarchy — a stable government has been established. The revolutionary junta continues to display a remarkable cohesiveness, giving primary attention to the country's problems - and they are many and serious - rather than squabbling over the spoils.

First priority is restoration of the agricultural economy, devastated in the civil war; self-sufficiency is expected to be achieved in the coming year. A crash literary crusade is under way to teach the 52 percent of the population that was unlettered under the Somoza regime the pasics of reading and writing

Winning one - so far A start has even been made toward rebuilding the center of the capital of Managua, left in ruins by Anastasio Somoza after the 1972 earthquake.

But if what the new government has undertaken in such a short time is impressive, wht it has not done is equally Although ubiquitous armed youths - the guerrilas of yesterday who are today the nation's armed foces - are a constant reminder that Nicaraguans remain in a state of revolutionary emergency, it has not succumbed to military authoritarianism.

The press is free with the leading newspaper, La Prensa, which played a leading role in the campaign against Somoza, frequently criticizing the government. The revolutionary leadership is avowedly Marxist, but rather than destroying private enterprise it is encouraging qualified cooperation.

In a complex of reform programs, the new Nicaragua is avoiding mistakes made in Cuba 20 years earlier, reportedly on the explicit advice of Cuban consultants

One promising year does not, however, a successful consolidated revolution make. Massive problems remain. Not the least is a $1.6 billion foreign debt the new government has agreed to honor although half of it, incurred during Somoza's last year, for the most part never entered the country but was funneled into the dictator's personal bank accounts abroad.

New financial aid has been slow in materializing, a $75 million U.S. package having just cleared congressional hurdles. Total need is estimated at $3 billion.

Eventual elections are an issue between the revolutionary leadership and moderate elements. Nicaraguan private business questions the permanence of its-alliance with the junta, suspicious that once its usefulness in national reconstruction is ended it will be written off ...

But all that considered, it has nevertheless been a remarkable year for the Nicaraguan revolution. So far, very good indeed.

America. You can usually count on every gain for democracy to be balanced by a setback

At the moment, Bolivia represents the latter. A military coup everyone including this time the U.S. State Department - knew was coming has canceled elections that would have made a moderate leftist president

It is a setback not only for Bolivia but for a grouping of nations - the so-called Andean Pact also including Peru, Ecuador. Colombia and Venezuela - that of late has been playing a constructive role in strengthening democratic processes throughout the Latin world.

A few months back, the Peruvian army accepted the election of a president who was not its preferred candidate.

The Bolivian army is something else, however, proof of the rule that the purpose of Latin armies is not to defend the nation against foreign enemies but to keep the home folks in line. It's very hard for many college students to live up to the roles they have been given by the mass media. What newspapers, magazines, and television networks expect from students is more than most of them can deliver. I discovered this when I was speaking at a Midwestern campus not long

"It'll hurt him," I agreed. "What will your mother say?" "I don't know. She's first one said she didn't come to college to frankly that it would hurt

Politics seems to get in the way of most well-laid plans of even the most well-intentioned politicians. One example: the administration's tax policy

For a year and a half the Carter dministration has been labeling Republican tax-cut proposals as inflationary. Spearheading this attack on the GOP was Alfred Kahn, the president's chief spokesman on inflation. Kahn and the rest of the Democrats called the Republican idea irresponsible and risky.

With Nov. 4 now in sight, the administration is changing it tune. Kahn recently suggested that a tax cut was indeed being considered. Carter similarly hinted a tax cut is in the works

It appears that Carter's economic planning is not so different than his foreign policy. Instead of a steady course, the nation's chief executive is making quick swerves from one side to the other.

Businessmen, of course, must calculate their own plans based on the taxes they will pay and the money available to consumers to purchase their ware. What Carter appears to have done in three years is make it impossible for men of commerce to make decisions based on federal economic policies

Is there any wonder why the business community is in such a state of confusion? Government control of the economy is providing more uncertainty than when no attempt was made to regulate the economic condition of the nation.

Those who would blame Carter should think again. It is not Carter; it is the notion that the economy can be managed properly by the government. Government and politics go together even in nations like the Soviet Union where elections are meaningless. In democratic societies the political pressures are even greater. Eventually economic decisions become political decisions and that kills the idea of rational planning

If left to flow the economy will flourish. Millions of individuals will strive to maximize their self interests and things will generally get better. Thinking that life can be improved by a little tinkering at the top is probably the most irrational economic concept. It can't be done and Jimmy Carter is proving why,.

Having a tax attack

Internal Revenue Service employees - many of them tax examiners - have unionized themselves and lodged a nagging grievance against the powerful government agency.

They say the IRS internal security division is deliberately harassing them by auditing their tax returns. The employees are so enraged they are calling for a congressional investigation of the matter.

More than 60.000 IRS workers belong to the National Treasury Employees Union. They complain the check on their income records was initiated shortly after the General Accounting Office recommended the security division duties be transferred to other agencies.

The officials say the tax check is just a test to see if the IRS employees are receiving preferential treatment from their fellow workers.

We don't like to see anybody go through an IRS audit, but if somebody has to face such an ordeal, who better than an IRS examiner?

GOPs zany fiscal approach

By Robert Walters

DETROIT (NEA) - The overwhelming majority of voters who presumably view the Republican Party as most qualified to restore the government's fiscal equilibrium are going to be unpleasantly surprised if they read the GOP platform.

Amid all the clamor over the abortion and women's rights planks in the platform adopted by the Republican National Convention, virtually no attention was paid to that document's irresponsible handling of the federal budget process.

The 1980 GOP platform advocates three simultaneous yet inherently contradictory courses of action - massive increases in defense spending, huge tax reductions and balancing of the federal budget

Those most likely to be dismayed by such an implausible and unorthodox - if not bizarre and zany - approach to fiscal affairs are the participants in a new national survey whose results were touted by party leaders at the recent convention here

When asked whether Republicans or Democrats would do a better job in handling various national problems, the respondents in that public opinion poll preferred the GOP by a wide 58-25 margin on the issue of controlling government spending.

On the question of controlling inflation, the GOP was favored by an only slightly narrower 53-24 margin. When the subject was holding down taxes, the Republicans were preferred by a 50-29 margin.

The party platform indeed is committed to slashing taxes. It calls for implementation of the Kemp-Roth approach of reducing personal income tax rates by 30 percent during the next three years

In addition, a little-noticed section of the latform says "the so-called (petroleum industry) windfall profits tax should be repealed as it applies to small volume royalty owners, new oil, stripper wells, terthary recovery and heavy crude oil.' That's virtual repeal of the entire law.

At the same time, however, the platform includes a Defense Department shopping

EPA releases list of waste sites

DALLAS (AP) - Dangerous chemicals found at four waste disposal sites in three states have prompted the Environmental Protection Agency to sue several companies to try to get the potentially hazardous wastes cleaned up, federal officials say.

In a statement released Wednesday, the EPA wants to clean up dump sites in Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana and make the comppanies pay for the damage, said spokesman Eddie Lee.

However, Lee said, 59 sites throughout Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, New Mexico and Oklahoma investigated by the federal agency were found to pose no potential problems.

Among those companies cited by the federal agency was the Helena Chemical Co., of Mission, Texas, a former pesticide plant that produced DDT, Lee said.

Soil containing the pesticide was being blown from the plant site into nearby residential areas, the EPA stated in requesting a federal court order the former owners to clean up the site.

"There have been several conversations and some kind of clean up plan will be initiated at some point," Lee said.

A preliminary injunction requiring immediate cleanup measures was obtained against the Vertac Corporation, Jacksonville, Ark. A recent study showed dioxins from chemicals produced at the plant. were found in soil samples on the site and in nearby residential areas, as well as in water emptying into the Bayou Meto, 100 miles south of the plant, the EPA said.

About 900 deteriorated drums of pesticides were removed from the Southeastern Chemical Co., site north of New Orleans, La., according to EPA officials. The owner of the firm is awainting financing for further cleanup, officials said.

Hydrocarbons, heavy metals and other hazardous materials eleased into waterways flowing into the Mississippi River also were found at two dump sites near Baton Rouge, La., prompting EPA officials to sue Petro Processors and 11 other companies that dumped wastes at the site, officials said.

Other EPA actions involve financing the cleanup of several sites where companies were either bankrupt or owners could not be found. Lee said.

A cleanup completed at Motco, Inc., in Texas City involved cancer-causing agent PCB and benzene chemicals that overflowed or seeped from the dump site into nearby ditches, polluting groundwater near the area, Lee said.

At French Ltd, in Crosby, EPA tests revealed PCB contamination of the dump site, and "cleanup negotiations with the owners are under way at this time" he said.

Federal officials also were trying to decide what will be done at Sikes Pit, a dump site in Harris County, where various types of industrial wastes from Houston area plants were dumped into four ponds which frequently flood into the San Jacinto River, Lee said.

Judge to hear motion in brilab cases

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge has agreed to hear motions from two key figures in the FBI's Brilab investigation who claim they were the victims of government misconduct in an alleged after attorneys for Texas House Speaker Billy Clayton and Houston labor leader L.G. Moore filed motions in federal court asking for

"We are claiming, first of all, that the government created the criminal conduct that is largely provable through the tape recordings that were made," said Charles Burton, one of Clayton's attorneys

Mike Ramsey, representing Moore, asked that his client be given a separate trial if the indictments, handed down June 14 after a 10-month investigation, were not dropped.

Clayton, Moore and Austin attorneys Randall B. Wood and Donald W. Ray were indicted in connection with an alleged insurance kickback scheme.

Clayton is accused of accepting $5,000 from Moore and FBI informant Joseph Hauser last fall at a meeting where the three men discussed a $70 million insurance policy for state employees.

The indictment alleged Clayton would have received $600,000 if the insurance contract was awarded to the company Hauser allegedly represented

Clayton has said he thought the $5,000 was a campaign contribution and that he gave it to an aide, intending to return it later.

Utah: Hollywood rated 'G'

By JUDY GIBBS Associated Press Writer

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - Hollywood cowboys have long been digging their booted toes into the red Utah dust. squinting into the camera under the desert sun. These days, the state is more than a backdrop — it's home to the whole show.

A growing community of film makers. alienated by Hollywood's morality and high costs - or both - has found fertile soil in Utah's economic and social climate.

"People are shocked when they learn how many films are being made here," said Paul McGuire, a former New Yorker now with Utah's Linton Productions. "Utah is a phenomenal place for movie production - but it's still almost a secret." Hollywood film companies often use Utah for location shooting. Director John Huston and actor John Wayne made some of their best-known westerns on the state's vast deserts, among its delicate sandstone arches or high in its mountains. And actor Robert Redford, who lives in Utah near his Sundance ski resort, filmed "Jeremiah Johnson" and parts of "The Electric Horseman' here.

But the state is more than scenery. In the past decade, about 50 feature films - for TV and cinema - have been shot almost entirely in Utah, many by home-grown companies.

One lure for film makers is Utah residents' strong support for family entertainment. Utah film makers have latched onto the family film industry, orphaned by Hollywood because many there consider a "G" rating the kiss of death

Sixty percent of Utah's residents are members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints — a faith that emphasizes wholesome family activities.

Adams." "The Lincoln Conspiracy," Where the Red Fern Grows," and "In Search of Noah's Ark."

"The Utah films don't have the big budgets, but they have a certain kind of integrity," said McGuire, whose company makes only G-rated movies. "We're making films for Middle America. These people are not thrilled with what they're seeing from Hollywood - they're offended.

He said the Mormon emphasis is apparent in most Utah religion is not. "We don't make religious films, but we make films that are healthy, positive and uplifting.'

Another Utah film company, Osmond Productions, owned by the singing family, acknowledges its philosophical tie to the church.

President William Critchfield, a former Mormon bishop, called the Osmonds 'among the strongest missionaries of the church," attributing 35,000 converts worldwide to Donny, Marie and the family. He brags the Osmonds "brought Hollywood to downtown Orem" with their $8 million entertainment center and its TV and movie production facilities. The center has a strict code - the Osmonds won't lease to makers of R-rated films. "We don't let them in," Critchfield said.

'We turn down that kind of thing. We're committed to wholesome, family entertainment.

Even the Osmonds have learned about G-ratings.

After a 1978 G-rated film starring Jimmy Osmond flopped, the next Osmond film, 'Going Coconuts," starring Donny and Marie, was PG.

One character was killed on screen to win the rating. "We found a lot of people were offended at that," said Crutchfield. "They Except for Walt Disney Productions, couldn't believe the Osmonds would make film makers must drop their emphasis on G includi 'xe "The Life and Times of Grizzly see it, it's so cute and so hilarious you see wider market.

The Utah boom also is partly due to the changing industry, with its new markets of cable and syndicated TV and foreign sales, said John Earle, director of films in the state Division of Industrial Development. "These are voracious sorts of markets. It's no longer the bailiwick of some producers in Hollywood. Any Joe Blow can have access now." he said.

Film producers have become more competitive and more decentralized, Earle said, adding needed services were once confined to Hollywood, but now are available elsewhere.

"We're trying to build a community of film makers here with all the ancillary services so you don't have to go to Hollywood for anything," said Dennis Picture and Television Artists.

Utah's stable economy makes fund-raising relatively easy, Earle said, and the pot is sweetened by the state's right-to-work law. With labor eating up at much as 35 percent of film making costs, a company can save on non-union labor, said Critchfield

Utah-made films also save on location shooting. "Within a couple hundred miles, you can tap almost every kind of scenery,' said Al Pedersen, a spokesman for Taft Productions, a film company.

"There's no doubt about it - the state is consistently pulling ahead of other states that have similar locations and economic situations," Berrett said.

Earle says Southern California is still home to the bulk of all U.S.-made films, with New York second. Texas and Florida come next with about $45 million in productions, and Utah, gaining fast, had about $42 million in productions last year.

To stay competitive, Berrett said Utah

Subcommittee charges cover-up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government deliberately concealed radiation dangers from people living downwind of atomic tests in the 1950s and 1960s and should pay damages to innocent victims, charges a House subcommittee.

The panel, in a draft report released Wednesday, said the now-defunct Atomic Energy Commission "not only disregarded, but actually suppressed" all evidence of harmful effects from radiation given off by atmospheric tests at its Nevada Test Site.

The subcommittee said the nation owes a moral debt to those who relied on false assurances of safety during the tests and should not force radiation victims to battle for damages through the courts.

"It is all the more pitiful that the forgotten human beings - the guinea pigs of our country's atomic bomb testing - have in some cases had to wait nearly 20 years just to have their cries heard," said Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Texas, the subcommittee chairman.

"Simple human compassion and morality dictate that we promptly and adequately compensate these unfortunate victims for their past suffering," he added.

The subcommittee's report charged that the AEC deliberately discouraged health studies and concealed information on radiation hazards. The panel said statistics have shown Utah residents, many of whom were in the path of fallout from the blasts, have higher rates of leukemia, thyroid cancer and thyroid abnormalities than would ordinarily be expected.

Indeed, the subcommittee said, the AEC had known since 1953 of the potential health hazards of eating or drinking contaminated foods, but did not try to stop infants or children from drinking milk from cows grazing downwind of the test site.

Although such milk can carry radioactive Iodine-131, which tends to concentrate in the thyroid gland, the report said the AEC refused to monitor the milk until 1957.

Changes approved to insure readable insurance policies

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - It should be easier to read and understand your automobile insurance policy, the State Insurance Board says.

By a 3-0 vote, the regulatory agency decreed that beginning June 1, 1981, a new insurance policy form will be used by all companies selling auto insurance in Texas.

"This will give Texas automobile owners a better organized and easier to read auto insurance policy," said William P. Daves, board chairman

The new policy form replaces one that has been used since 1957. The document has been trimmed from 9,590 words to 6,251 words. The new form must be printed in at least nine-point type, which is larger than most of the type used in a newspaper story or a news magazine. Many insurance policies now are in six-point type, about the size of want ads.

"The proposed policy is shorter, simpler, uses non-technical language; has sections more logically arranged and simplifies some coverages," said a board spokesman.

The new policy will stop calling accidents "occurrences" and just call them "accidents." It will say "you" when it means the policyholder and "we" when it means the insurance company. A committee consisting of insurance men and board staffers recommended the new policy and started work in 1977, but its project "has been sitting on the shelf for almost two years," in the

The new policy is modeled after one that is actuaries for both the companies and the insurance board say they will not affect the overall price of coverage.

The new form is expected to result in greater use of "combined single limits" liability coverage because this is offered in the body of the policy along with the "split limits" coverage commonly purchased now.

Policyholders will have a choice but would have to pay a little more for combined limits.

Virtually all drivers now buy split limits liability, customarily $5,000 for property damage and $10,000 per person for injuries or deaths, up to $20,000 per accident.

Combined limits liability would provide the same $35,000 total coverage but without restriction as to how the money is divided. If one person were injured and his car totaled, for example, the policy might pay $25,000 worth of hospital bills and replace his $10,000 car.

The new policy will guarantee Texans their liability insurance would meet the requirements of any state where they have an accident, even if the limits are higher than those of Texas.

One thing the new policy will not cover - even for an extra premium - is so-called "Fuzz-busters" that detect police radar units.

"We think it is against public policy to insure these devices whose only use is to avoid apprehension for speeding," said Richard Geiger of the Texas Automobile Insurance Service Office.

Tom Baker of Houston, president of the Independent Insurance Agents of Texas, praised the new policy

Actors' strike may help NBC take first place

LOS ANGELES (AP) — I'm afraid that without some help, Fred Silverman won't be able to keep his promise about making NBC No. 1 by Christmas, which is only 140 days away.

Some help has arrived, in the form of the actors' strike. NBC's chances for success in the fall season are considerably enhanced by the possibility that there will be no fall season, at least not the one that was planned by the three networks.

Reordering of the status quo is best accomplished in a maelstrom. and the Screen Actors Guild-American Federation of Television and Radio Artists strike could provide the necessary turbulence. It is up to NBC to seize the moment

If the strike continues, the networks will be scrambling for programming to fill strike-emptied schedules. The obvious answer would be to schedule programs not affected by the strike -- "Real People," "That's Incredible" - along with a lot of movies.

But instead, NBC could assemble a fall schedule comprising great series from its past. While the other two networks were sputtering along, NBC could be reliving television's Golden Age.

A sample NBC All-Star schedule:

-SUNDAY: "Esso Newsreel," a little feature from NBC's 1946 season, which could compete with "60 Minutes" for the news-information audience. "I Love to Eat," another favorite from that vintage year, with James Beard cooking. "Campus Hoopla," a variety show from the '47 season that was set in a campus soda shop. -MONDAY: NBC could borrow from NBC's various Mondays through the years, starting the evening with "What's My Name?" with Paul Winchell and Jerry Mahoney. "Voice of Firestone," a selection of documentaries on such subjects as vocational guidance and diary farming, could follow, or "Arthur Murray's Party. -TUESDAY: I'd like to see these shows from NBC Tuesdays past: "Nat King Cole," "The Bob Cummings Show" (remember Schultzie?) "Dragnet," and, of course, "My Mother the Car."

-WEDNESDAY: An all-star night in NBC's history. "Wagon Train." "Father Knows Best," "The Virginian" and "I Spy."

-THURSDAY: The best show NBC ever had on Thursday, maybe any night, was Groucho Marx's "You Bet Your Life." But there were others. "Jefferson Drum," frontier editor; "Bachelor Father," one of my personal favorites; and "Dr. Kildare."

-FRIDAY: For old times' sake, let's start the evening with "The Herman Hickman Show," from 1952. Mr. Hickman was a former Yale football coach, who talked about his days on campus and read poems. It would be a nice lead-in for "Life of Riley," to be followed bv "The Thin Man" and "Thriller." A perfect Friday schedule

-SATURDAY: Start with "People Are Funny," starring Art Linkletter, followed by "Brains and Brawn," a 1958 selection pitting audience teams comprising someone with intellectual skills and someone with athletic skills (it lasted three months). "Flipper," "Get Smart" and "My Little Margie" should follow.

Sports gambling probe opens

N ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A newly formed federal grand jury ustin has opened an investigation into sports gambling believed ed to prostitution, drug sales and public corruption in the state tal. according to a federal prosecutor.

umie Boyd, U.S. Attorney for the Western District of Texas, said aday one of the first five witnesses to appear before the grand 7, sworn in Monday for an 18-month term, was a San Antonio man, Boyd refused to identify any of the five.

"I also believe we will discover evidence that it ied in with prostitution, narcotics sales and public corruption."

Boyd said the type of gambling in question was "bookmaking, orts betting, and I'm talking about large scale — hundreds of usands of dollars."

The Travis County Organized Crime Unit, Travis County District torney Ron Earle, and the Texas Department of Public Safety all we been involved in the initial investigative phase begun six onths ago by federal authorities, including Internal Revenue rvice agents, the prosecutor said.

"We have been in the organizational throes and the intelligence gathering throes," he said. "Hopefully we can now concentrate on specific groups."

Boyd said the grand jury would meet again on Sept. 18 to hear from additional witnesses, adding, "The investigation will intensify from now to the end of the year."

Activities under investigation came to his attention through information produced by the IRS, Boyd said, and it was decided to begin a federal grand jury probe because federal tax laws can be used to investigate gamblers.

He said he transferred Assistant U.S. Attorney Carl Pierce from San Antonio to Austin earlier this year to work on the case.

Legal criteria for beginning the grand jury investigation were that five or more people were believed to be involved through operation or ownership of the interests, gross revenues appear to exceed $2,000 a day and the activities have been going on for more than 30 days, Boyd said.

The federal attorney said he has requested authorization from the U.S. Attorney General and the IRS commissioner to use information from federal income tax forms in the investigation through a provision in the Tax Reform Act.

"That's simply not true," Cox said of the loan. "We have reduced our debt, as a matter of fact. I don't know what they're talking about. All companies borrow money and they pay it back."

For now, parents must rely on informal group situations neighborhood co-ops and paid baby sitter services for the type of child care a family member or relative would provide. Says Piers, "I find good in-home care is generally preferable to the best child care center.

There are a number of qualified child care institution springing up across the country. If the waiting lists are not too long and the expense isn't too steep. Piers feels these centers are especially beneficial to children over 3 who "need more stimulation and educaitonal activities unlike the younger child who basically requires simple custodial care.

Quality child care, whether conducted in the home or in an organized center, should convey an ambiance of childhood joy. "The caretakers must like children and express a sense of commitment even in the fact or disciplinary conflicts or frustrations," Piers says. "Children thrive in care situations where the growth process is encouraged and babysitting for a particular age or stage is avoided.

"A process that can be unsettling for both the parent and the child," says Piers. She suggests looking for sanitary conditions first. "Are rooms well aired? Is outdoor play encouraged? How are meals prepared, served and presented?

As in the home, discipline must be allowed and freely utilized although "excessive and unending punishment such as isolation or corporal punishment have no place in child care," Piers says. "These hostile forms of punishment simply trigger hostile behavior in the child which is likely to resurface in his or her play and social interaction.

"Caretaker attachment is inevitable," claims Piers. "Parents don't need to feel threatened by it. The attachment is simply a child's display of love and trust and a reflection upon quality care." The worst reaction is to encourage the child to choose or specify which person he likes better. "Let the child know it's acceptable to like more than one person." she says. Jealous reactions and comparisons often backfire and negative repercussions will most likely be felt at

"Care centers and caretakers must be given the freedom to provide an adequate sense of security since they are being entrusted with basic parenting responsibilities."

The best source of care is the mother or father, in Piers' opinion. However, present economic pressures and burgeoning numbers of working parents place the onus on developing improved alter-parent care for both parental peace of mind and quality child development.

Jaffe's books reflect change

"College girls of the 50s were concerned about keeping their virginity," says Rona Jaffe, author of last year's best-selling "Class Reunion." "Today's girls feel pressure to give it up. Many girls - and boys - prefer not to have casual sex, but there's pressure to do it, even if it's mean ingless. Free-floating sex bothers many young people, so we have begun to see some nostalgic longing for the more 'innocent' days, as witness the popularity of shows about families where parents are understanding, but firm about moral conduc

Miss Jaffe frequently writes about the way the times we live in affect our lives. Her 10 books reflect a common theme of how people change and how they get what they want - find they want different things.

'In the 50s girls were programmed like robots: get married as fast as you could otherwise you were a failure Men were terrified by women they considered too assertive or too independent or too intelligent, so girls had to act inept. ## DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: My boss is the president of a good-sized corporation. I am his secretary. He has instructed me to open all his mail and mark each piece with "date received."

Abby, he is always getting sex mail with very embarrassing putures, and he orders slides of trashy sex. I feel like quitting my job because I resent this sort of thing so much. He's a middle-aged man, well-respected in this community and has a lovely wife. I can't imagine why he wants anything so trashy coming through his office. If my husband knew about it he would insist that I quit my job

What should I do? My job would be ideal if it weren't for this problem.

EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: Since your boss is "always" getting mail of this kind, you should be able to identify it readily by the envelope. Don't open it. Simply mark "date received" and give it to him unopened.

DEAR ABBY: This problem concerns my sister. She is 38, married for 12 years, and as far as I know, not very happily. Her husband is a good man, but he is "weak" and has no voice in the household, which is probably part of the problem, because my sister has become a compulsive TV watcher, compulsive eater, and now a compulsive drinker. Her husband has tried to correct these problems, but maybe he didn't try hard enough or he gave up too easily. I am very worried about my sister. She has three young children, and God only knows how they're going to grow up, watching their mother sit in front of the TV all the time with a drink in her hand. She stays in her pajamas all day because she's overweight and doesn't care to dress up.

Everyone in the family is worried about her, but she won't listen to anyone. Please don't suggest professional help,

WORRIED SISTER

DEAR WORRIED: Sorry. The only suggestion I can offer is professional help. The fact that your sister tried it "once" without success doesn't mean that it will never work for her. Therapy sometimes fails because the patient and therapist do not relate well, in which case the patient should try another therapist. Or possibly the patient expects an immediate miracle. Successful treatment takes time.

DEAR ABBY: Do you know of a way to test one's own breath to find out if it is unpleasant or offensive?

My employer, who is young enough to be my son, always takes several steps backward whenever I approach him, as though my breath is offensive to him. No one else - man or woman - does this. Nor have I seen my employer react this way to anyone except me.

My doctor says my breath is fine. My dentist confirms this. My best friend says I am foolish to be concerned. By the way, I am certain that I do not have a body odor because I am meticulous about my person, and have been complimented often on my "fresh fragrance." Please help

DEAR BREATH: If your doctor, dentist and best friend have assured you that your breath is not offensive, perhaps your employer is either allergic to, or offended by, that "fresh fragrance" you've been complimented on so often. Quit fretting about it. Tell your employer what's on your mind and clear the air!

Physiognomists read the face

By ELLIE GROSSMAN

NEW YORK (NEA) - "The ear," says Peter Shen," should be placed in between the eyebrow and the top of the nose.

He means on the side of the head, of course. 'And it should be round and smooth." he goes on. The "outer wheel" should also curve like "the inner wheel," and the longer the earlobe, the better

"People with long earlobes are the kindest, like the Buddha," he says. People with small earlobes look the other way when the check comes Shen's ears, it happens, are "perfect," he says, "but my inner wheel sticks out little so they told me I would not settle down, that I would move around a lot.

And "they" - the physiognomists he studied with in Tokyo (an uncle. and disciples of the school called Linen Robe because the monks used to wear linen robes") - were right. Born in Shanghai. Shen lived in Hong Kong. Taiwan, Australia and Japan before coming here 15 years ago and eventually going to work for Aziza cosmetics. Sure enough, as their make-up artist and creative designer, he travels all over.

But why shouldn't the physiognomists be right? They've had enough time to decide what the lay of the face and its features may say about personality and future prospects. Says Shen, 'Physiognomy goes back before Confucius." who lived during the fifth century B.C. "It's considered a very respectable art in the Far East and you learn it from a master. But they only train you if you're part of the family or if they like you."

What you learn may make you want to give up mirrors forever

For starters. "The face is divided into three areas: the forehead, the middle section from between the eyebrows to the tip of the nose, and the bottom section

'You look first for harmony among them," he says. "and then for outstanding features. A big, high, wide forehead, for instance, shows a lot of potential and a good family background.

the potential to make a good fmaily A "homely" nose he says, it "straight and small with nostrils that are enclosed, not flared or upturned. The closeness of the nose means you can budget and accumulate money. and if the tip is round, you'll make a terrific wife. But a thin, sharp nose like Bo Derek's, however attractive, is bad news. "That indicates a person who may be a little bit selfish and want to care for her own interests first. She would not put in as much as she would take out of the situation, which makes it hard for a marriage." She will, however. "be good in art and business." And, if her eyebrows are upswept and highly arched, "she'll make a good name for herself. You cannot become famous if you eyebrows are not good. Look at Elizabeth Taylor, after all, "the most talked about woman in the world."

On the other hand, Joan Crawford was famous too, and her eyebrows, he says, "were very dominant, thick and rather straight before they curved out. Straight eyebrows mean masculine qualities, a lot of willfulness and selfishness. Women who have them are achievers, independent and effective in business, but not homemakers."

Whatever Katharine Hepburn's eyebrows look like, "she has a very good chin." he says, which is why she's enjoying a comfortable retirement. "The lower part of the face shows what you can expect in old age. The ideal facial shape for a woman is a rectangular oblong with a square-cut chin. Women with typical beautiful oval-shaped faces will not be fortunate when they grow older. They'll be poor in health and things won't work out with their children.

Look, again, at Elizabeth Taylor. "Her chin is the only weak area of her face. She has a terrific forehead and her middle section is very balanced, but because of her pointed chin, I'm sure she will not have a terrific old age."

Here's hoping she's got cheekbones to pull her through. "People with no cheekbones," he says, "are easy marks. They're doormats. They take orders and people like them because they can take advantage of them. Still, if Ms. Taylor's are as prominent as Katharine Hepburn's, she's still in trouble. "Ms. Hepburn's cheekbones indicate authority and power which is why she can never have a man," he says. "No one can put up with a woman so strong and intelligent." Which means that sometimes you just can't win, on the face of it.

By EARL ARONSON

The conclusion of the brilliant color show provided by spring flowering bulbs doesn't mean you can't have bulb color throughout the remainder of the growing season.

There are bulbs that will bloom for a week or two or all summer, in sun or shade, in beds, or borders, excellent for cut flowers.

Let's describe them, according to a timetable for blooming

First come lilies, which make a striking display in groups in beds or borders, or against evergreen background. They'll bloom season after season and you don't have to lift them from the ground in cold climates. By selecting your varieties you can have lilies in bloom from spring through summer.

Next come the multi-colored gladiola, pastels, bright and dark shades on spears that range from miniature one-footers to five-footers. Plant them at two-week intervals and you'll have continuous blossoms for garden or cutting through September.

Dig up glad bulbs in the fall after the foliage has turned brown, cut stems and leaves close to the bulb and let the bulbs dry in a tray for 10 days. Then clean them and store them in a warm (60 F), dry place for the winter.

Thriving in the shade is the tuberous begonia, which offers flowers in camellia, carnation and rose shapes, in colors ranging through rose, scarlet, yellow, gold, pink and orange. They bloom into early fall.

You can start begonias in pots indoors, pressing them into peat moss but not covering them. Keep them in a warm place, with the peat moss damp, until they are 2-3 inches mercial fertilizer low in nitrotall. Transfer them into 7-8 inch gen around the plants in early pots in rich soil and move them August, hoeing it into the soil. into the garden when frost danger ends.

Social Security to take food stamp applications

y Gill Fex

VT.

LUBBOCK - Some Texans may now apply for food stamps through Social Security offices, according to the Texas Department of Human Resources, the state agency which administers the food stamp program.

An agreement between the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Social Security Administration now makes it possible for a person to apply for food stamps at a Social Security office under the following conditions

1. If you and your household (all the people who live and eat with you) are applying for Supplemental Security Income (SSI), or

2. If you and your household already receive Supplemental Security Income (SSI) but are not receiving food stamps.

The arrangement is designed to allow the elderly and disabled to participate in the program without having to travel to a separate office to apply for benefits.

Persons already receiving food stamps who did not apply for them through a Social Security office, must reapply at the food stamp office when their benefit certification period ends.

Also, persons still may apply for entry into the food stamp program at a food stamp office rather than the Social Security office, if they so desire.

Gas station fined for overcharging

DALLAS - The Department of Energy has taken legal action against one retail gasoline station in the West Texas area for charging prices in excess of that allowed by federal regulations, according to a recent news release.

The action results from audits conducted at 23 area stations by the department's Office of Enforcement during the period April 1 through May 31. The time period of the audits varied from station to station, depending on the individual circumstances, but most included the period Aug. 1, 1979, to the date of the audit.

According to the news release, overcharges found in the audit, apparently of the station involved in the legal action, were not continuous during the audit period but occurred at various times within the audit time frame.

The dealer has signed a consent order with the DOE and agreed to immediately reduce its sellings prices and also has paid a civil penalty of $150.

The news release states that a consent order is neither a charge of violation by the department nor an admission of guilty by the dealer

Big bills, lost jobs forcing many households to double-up

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - Big bills and lost jobs are forcing households to double-up. Married couples are moving in with parents. Singles are giving up apartments. Elderly parents are moving in with children.

The result, says Sindlinger & Co., is a household decline of 239,000 in June and July, and the potential for a one-year shrinkage of a million units, which would be the greatest since World War II.

Albert Sindlinger, chairman of the Media, Pa. economic research and forecasting firm, blames "rising utility bills, high property taxes, the high cost of week, which has been a regular routine for close to 25 years.

He calculates that in the following two months the household count declined from 73,931,000 units to 73,692,000, and that further declines can be expected, especially if the economy worsens.

He feels the extreme possibility - not forecast - would be a falloff of up to 10 million units, a range that presupposes a depression. For now, however, he sees the decline continuing "for a year at least."

In a way, he said, we are retreating to the lifestyle of 50 years ago when three generations lived under one roof, a style that in more recent years gave way to one-generation and even one-member households.

other economic expectations and projections.

It could, for example, mean reduced appliance and automobile sales, he says. He believes it would certainly mean less than anticipated demand for housing. And it probably means more additions to existing housing.

Sindlinger's researchers found the greatest household contraction in the industry states of the Midwest and Northeast, excluding New England. He finds the trend especially clear in such states as Ohio. Michigan, Illinois, Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey.

The tipoff came, he says, when researchers found 4 or 5 adults living at the same address and sought to determine the said, it was explained that "our daughter just moved in," or "our son moved in with

It's next Oct. 19 and the Dallas Cowboys, playing in Philadelphia, are trailing the Eagles 24-19 with two minutes remaining in the important National Football League game.

Suddenly, this slender guy with dark curly hair and wearing a sport jacket and slacks bursts out of the CBS broadcast booth, scrambles over the shoulders of the crowd, rushes onto the field and breaks into the Cowboys' huddle.

"Okay, gang, this is it - let's go!" "Could happen," Roger Staubach admitted with a grin, obviously relishing the fantasy. "I'm itchy already. I've kept myself in good shape. I could play tomorrow. It's going to be tough for me to watch without being eager to get in there. 'With me, it's a natural instinct. I have been competitive ever since I can remember.'

When the whistle signals the opening of the 1980 pro football campaign, it will mark the first time in 20 years, including his five-year stint in the Navy, that Staubach hasn't had to wrap his ankles, pull on those stretch uniforms and concentrate on the play book.

"I even played some service football in the Navy - at Pensacola," said the retired passing ace of the Cowboys, a Heisman Trophy winner at the U.S. Naval Academy in 1963 and statistically the all-time No.1 quarterback of the NFL.

"It's been a pretty long grind - but I wouldn't have swapped it for anything.

Last March 31, Roger, now 38, stood before a Dallas news conference and tearfully announced his retirement after 11 productive years as the whiphand of the Dallas offense. During that period, he had thrown 2,958 passes, completing 1,685 for 22,700 yards - some 13 miles - and 153 touchdowns.

The most meaningful of these numbers seemed concentrated in the fading minutes of the games. Staubach figured in 23 come-from-behind fourth quarter triumphs, 14 in the last two minutes.

The NFL hasn't seen a better "two-minute quarterback.'

"I don't think I was tailing off," he said. "I will miss the game but I think my decision was the right one. I had five concussions in 1979. That worried my wife, Marianne. I felt I was getting a

Dallas and an interest in a fastfood franchise in Ohio, Staubach has decided not to divorce himself completely from the game that has saturated his life.

Girls volleyball practice starts Monday, Aug. 11

Approximately two weeks before school officially starts, the Pampa High girls volleyball team opens the season at Hereford. UIL(University Interscholastic League) officials voted to move the volleyball season up this year. Last year the Lady Harvesters didn't play their first game until Sept. 8. Practice starts at 8 a.m. Monday at Clarendon

College-Pampa Center, coach Lynn Wolfe announced today. All girls (grades 10-12) interested in trying out for the team should attend the practice, coach Volfe said.

"Newcomers are welcome to come out for the team," she added.

Wolfe said five games plus the Pampa Tournament would be played at the Pampa Center gym while the high school fieldhouse is undergoing repairs and remodeling. Wolfe, who starts her ninth year as head coach, has had a highly-successful career here. The Lady Harvesters have won the district title three UIL play.

Pampa's home opener is a doubleheader Aug 23 with Lubbock Coronado. Junior varsity matches will start at 6:30 p.m., followed by the varsity, unless otherwise noted.

HOUSTON (AP) - About all that's left for football opponents of the Houston Cougars to use against monster defensive tackles Leonard Mitchell and Hosea Taylor is a pair of log trucks.

Tough to move

And there's no clear cut answer who'd win that collision

"I don't know anything else they can do to them," Coach Bill Yeoman said. "They've been held, clipped, 'chopped and double teammed. What else is left?'

The answer may only be found in large earth-moving equipment. Last season, Mitchell, 6-7, 270 and Taylor, 6-5, 265, anchored a defense that finished second to Texas in Southwest Conference total defense statistics.

Taylor and Mitchell are primary reasons the Cougar defense isn't expected to be significantly weaker despite the losses of seven defensive starters.

Even more chilling, Yeoman figures both seniors will be better this season, Mitchell because of off-season work on weights, and Taylor because of more intensity. Mitchell was a two-sport letterman in basketball and football until he dropped basketball to concentrate on his senior football campaign. He spent the off-season in the weight room and Yeoman says the results have been gratifying.

"If his upper body strength comes along to match his leg strength, he's going to be a very difficult youngster to block," Yeoman said. "He's got fine change of direction and quickness.

"Now if he has the additional strength to get rid of that guy on the pass rush, that's just another problem for the offense.

As for Taylor, Yeoman saw definite signs of malevolence in his spring training performance. "Hosea played well last year but he was no where what he can do," Yeoman said. "His frame of mind is a whole lot more intense than last year. Houston's only other returning defensive starters are cornerback Donnie Love and Grady Turner, who filled a large gap at linebacker last year with a super sophomore season.

Yeoman says defensive ends Kelly McDonald and Alvin Ruben will have to perform well because opponents will be running away from Taylor and Mitchell. Dan Essa and Mike Black are battling at noseguard.

Steve Bradham and Joe Keys will return to join Turner at the other linebacker position and new safeties are Larry Curry and Albert Windom with James Durham joining Love at cornerback.

The Cougars had fewer offensive losses and return the heart-stopping pass-catch duo of quarterback Terry Elston and flanker Eric Herring.

The Cougars won seven games in the fourth quarter last year en route to their third SWC crown in four years as a member of the league. Elston engineered four of the sudden death victories with Herring's help. Yeoman is glad to have the comeback capability but "I think we were terribly lucky to survive that action as many times as we did last year," Yeoman said.

Holtman wins first round

Holtman Tank Trucks defeated Lindsey Furniture, 23-10, Tuesday night in the opening round of the Pampa Women's Softball Playoffs. The hitting attack of both teams came alive late in the game after the score was knotted at 1-all after three innings.

DeAnn Gray and Dawn Romines blasted home runs for the winners.

Winning pitcher was Peggy Terrell while the loser was Sharon Moultrie

The Pampa Harvesters don't kick off two-a-day football v until Aug. 18, but head coach Larry Gilbert and his staff have been plotting the 1980 season several weeks in advance.

Grid workouts begin Aug. 18

"We've had meetings every day for quite a spell," Gilbert said. "Lately, we've been going over our overall offense and defense and the kicking game.

It hasn't all been strategy sessions for Gilbert and assistants Rick Palmer, Mike Lowe, Mike Brent, Frank Belcher, Ron Pinckard, Joe Matulich and Charles Tindall. They've also done their share of physical labor

'We've painted the dressing room and given the place a good cleaning," said Gilbert.

Prior to the morning and afternoon practice sessions that signals the beginning of the season, players may pick up shoes and socks at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 13 at the fieldhouse

Players will work out the first four days in shorts before donning full gear

The first intrasquad scrimmage is set for Aug. 23.

All-Stars begin workouts

East and West squads have started two-a-day workouts for Saturday night's Greenbelt Bowl Football Game.

The annual contest is slated for 8 p.m. at Fair Park Stadium in Childress. The East leads the series, 17-11-2, but the West has won the last two outings, including 17-6 a year ago.

Tight end-safety Dwayne Avery of Pampa is listed on the East roster and so is Wheeler lineman Vic Bradford. Quarterback Rich Brown, also of Wheeler, will be playing for the West.

West coach Clyde Alexander said Georgetown quarterback Ricky Coulson has looked sharp and is first in line for the starting job.

East standouts so far have been Childress linebacker Timmy Dean, Caprock running back Bobby Short and Clarendon quarterback Lynn Thompson, according to East coach Don Cortez.

Buzzard listed as starter

Pampa's Danny Buzzard, who is headed for Texas Tech to play football, was named to the starting lineup as an offensive tackle for the Texas schoolboy all-stars.

REGGIE JACKSON of the New York Yankees hits the dirt, but the ball thrown by Texas Ranger pitcher Doc Medich hit the top of his bat and he was thrown out by third baseman Buddy Bell in the sixth inning of Wednesday night's game. Ranger catcher Jim Sunberg watches the play. Despite Jackson's bad luck, the Yankees still won, 2-1. (AP Laserphoto) American League baseball roundup

By ALEX SCHARE AP Sports Writer The New York Yankees had two starting pitchers ready and the Baltimore Orioles almost didn't have any, but the results were the same - victories for the top two teams in the American League East. The Yankees listed Ron Guidry as their scheduled starter against Texas for 82-3 innings before giving up a home run to Richie Zisk. Rich Gossage then came on and got the final out as the Yankees posted a 2-1 victory. "Give me the ball anytime you want," said May, "and I'll go out and do the best I can. By winning without using Guidry, the Yankees came away with a bonus. "This way Guidry gets a shot at Baltimore this weekend and another shot at them in the five-game series the following weekend," explained Yogi Berra, the Yankee coach who managed the club in the absence of Dick Howser, who became ill earlier in the week.

Baltimore, meanwhile, stayed six games behind the first-place Yankees by beating the Chicago White Sox 4-1 as Ken Singleton and Eddie Murray homered and Mike Flanagan and Tim Stoddard combined on a six-hitter.

Flanagan has been bothered by a sore left shoulder and thought his streak of 130 consecutive starts dating back to June, 1977, might come to an end

"I had my doubts before the game," he admitted. "The last couple of days, my shoulder has been sensitive to the touch. Earl Weaver (the Orioles' manager) asked me if I wanted to miss a start and I said I'd rather not.'

Flanagan worked eight solid innings, and although he threw only 94 pitches. Weaver brought Stoddard in to pitch the ninth. "Mike was just about barbecued," said

Weaver, referring to the hot, humid weather. "He won't quit, so you've got to make the decision for him.'

In other American League games, the Kansas City Royals edged the Detroit Tigers 5-4, the California Angels defeated the Seattle Mariners 8-3, the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Boston Red Sox 9-4, the Cleveland Indians topped the Toronto Blue Jays 5-2 and the Oakland A's trimmed the Minnesota Twins 3-1.

Yankees 2, Rangers 1

The Yankees scored on Bobby Murcer's run-scoring single in the fifth inning and Jim Spencer's homer in the sixth.

May allowed just three hits before Zisk hit his 16th home run with two out in the ninth. Gossage came in and gave up a pinch-single to Rusty Staub before retiring Pat Putnam to end the game.

"I used my fastball and my control," said May, 9-5. "I had location and my breaking ball was doing what I wanted."

Orioles 4, White Sox 1 Singleton, who is batting .371 over the last 48 games and has raised his season average to .299, drove in three runs as the Orioles won their fifth in a row and 12th in the last 14 games. He had a run-scoring double in the first inning, the 1,500th hit of his career, and a two-run homer in the third.

Since they became teammates in 1975, 40 of Singleton's 107 homers have been hit in support of Flanagan, including five of 14 this season. But he hadn't accomplished the feat since May 25.

"I told him we've got to get that combo going again for the stretch run," said Flanagan, now 12-8 after winning his fourth consecutive decision.

Angels 8, Mariners 3 Seattle lost its 12th in a row and third under Manager Maury Wills as California rallied for seven runs in the seventh inning. Carney Lansford capped the big inning with his 12th home run of the season.

The losing streak is the longest in Mariners history and in the major leagues this season. The last team to lose more than 12 in a row was the 1977 Oakland A's, who lost 14 straight.

Royals 5, Tigers 4

Larry Gura raised his record to 16-4 and Dan Quisenberry recorded his 23rd save as Kansas City, runaway leader in the AL West, edged Detroit. Gura went 8 1-3 innings for his sixth win in a row, while the save by Quisenberry matched the Royals' club record set in 1971 by Ted Abernathy.

another submarining right-hander. "I'm glad it was another sidearmer," Quisenberry said. "We freaks have got to stick together.

Brewers 9, Red Sox 4 Cecil Cooper raised his average to .346 with four hits as the Brewers ripped the Red Sox. Milwaukee scored snapped a 4-4 tie with three runs in the seventh and two more in the eighth to end Boston's four-game winning streak.

Indians 5, Blue Jays 2

Rick Waits posted his first victory in a month as Cleveland won its fourth in a row and 12th in the last 14 starts. Waits, 8-10. scattered five hits over 71-3 innings before. giving way to Victor Cruz, who got the last five outs.

Residents of cities served by General Telephone Co. of the Southwest praised a penalty assessed the company by the Public Utilties Commission, but company executives called the action "too harsh.

The PUC Tuesday approved a rate increase of sti million a year, half the amount sought by GTE. But the panel penalized the company $4 million for poor service by lopping one percentage point off the company's profit rate.

PUC also ordered its staff to begin an investigation Feb. 1, and if service is not in compliance with PUC standards, said hearings should be held to consider revoking GTE's certificate to do business in Texas.

"I'm a little surprised at the commission's additional penalty (the delay in raising rates), if that's what you might call it. We were not expecting it. That is a rather severe blow." said F.E. Hightower, GTE vice president. In San Angelo, where GTE employs about 6,000 at its Southwest headquarters. Mayor Tom Parrett adopted a wait-and-see stance on improved service.

LULAC to tell aliens their U.S. rights

LAREDO, Texas (AP) - The League of United Latin American Citizens says it will sponsor a program to inform resident Mexican aliens of their rights under the U.S. Constitution.

National LULAC president Ruben Bonilla of Corpus Christi said the local chapters, on a voluntary basis, also would instruct aliens on how to apply for resident status.

Bonilla reaffirmed his organization's support of the recent decision by U.S. District Judge Woodrow Seals of Houston that resident alien children were entitled to a free public education in Texas. He urged Attorney General Mark White to drop an appeal of the decision and seek repeal of the tuition charge imposed by the legislature.

"LULAC is urging the U.S. attorney general and Immigrationand Naturalization Service commissioner to issue directives to INS field personnel prohibiting the review of information compiled by school authorities concerning the children of undocumented workers,' Bonilla said Wednesday.

However, Bonilla said he wanted to make it clear that his organization was not supporting a free education for children of Mexicans who live in Mexico and send them across the border to attend U.S. schools.

"If a Mexican family are residents of Mexico, it is right and proper for a school district to impose a non-resident tuition fee to offset fears and apprehension that American taxpayers are educating Mexico residents," he said.

WASHINGTON (AP) -Negotiators between the Bell System and three unions representing 700,000 workers are going down to the wire in an effort to avert the first nationwide telephone strike since 1971.

Union sources said Wednesday that differences with any other company, but I understand this is the first time the PUC has put such a penalty on a company," he said. "I hope service can be improved to where complaints can be reduced to a minimum.

"It's the first time the utilities commission has taken the consumer's point of view," said Del Rio City Councilman Bobby Fernandez. "If they're (GTE) going to make a profit, they should earn it.

GTE long has been criticized by customers for poor service ranging from delays in repairs and billing errors to an answering service that has all its beepers on the same frequency - thus allowing everyone to hear everyone else's messages.

"On a long distance call from a regular resident, you might get through on a direct dial and you might not." one San Angelo resident said. "It's the worst I've ever seen. They've let their equipment wear out.

Levelland City Manager Crain Lonon, who testified before the PUC in May, said he thinks the panel should have been even tougher with GTE

es and other major over wag economic issues have not narrowed since last week, when the unions rejected as insufficient a wage proposal by American Telephone & Telegraph Co

However, both sides said there was ample time to reach agreement on new three-year contracts before the midnight Saturday strike deadline, when current pacts expire.

The largest union in the talks, the Communications Workers of America, which represents $25,000 employees, has accused the company of not responding adequately to union demands for wage and pension improvements that help members keep pace with inflation.

However, both the company and other union officials expressed optimism about averting a strike

The third union involved in the talks is the Telecommunications International Union, which represents 60,000 workers.
