Abbie Hoffman surrenders to authorities

Abbie Hoffman

By WILLIAM MURPHY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Abbie Hoffman, the former Yippie leader and anti-war activist who had disappeared more than six years ago when he jumped bail on a cocaine charge, surrendered at the Manhattan district attorney's office today, a spokeswoman said.

He eluded about 40 reporters waiting for him in front of the New York State Office Building, where the state special narcotics prosecutor has his office, by going in a side entrance.

Hoffman had been living for several years under the name Barry Freed as a freelance writer and ecology activist on a tiny island in the St. Lawrence River. His surrender was announced by Mary de Bourbon, spokeswoman for Manhattan District Attorney Robert M. Morgenthau.

Prior to the surrender, an associate had said Hoffman would be at his publisher's office for a news conference at 12:30 p.m., less than four hours later.

Without a special deal, normal processing of a bail jumper takes 24 to 36 hours, with steps that include processing through central booking, fingerprinting and photographing, checking the print record through the centralized computer in Albany, and drafting and filing a bail-jump charge before the suspect appears before a judge for possible setting of bail.

In an interview broadcast on ABC-TV Wednesday, Hoffman had told Barbara Walters: "I wasn't going to run any more."

His lawyer Gerald Lefcourt, had said, "He will be coming out soon because he feels now is a good time. When people learn his story, they will be impressed."

Hoffman went underground in 1974 after skipping $50,000 bail on a charge of trying to sell cocaine to an undercover officer. At the time, a conviction could have meant 15 years to life imprisonment.

Reports had been circulating that Hoffman, whose autobiography, "Soon to be a Major Motion Picture," was published Monday, would surface this week if he could make a deal avoiding a long prison term for selling cocaine.

Two previous attempts at negotiating a surrender failed, officials said.

Hoffman, 43, sporting a full black beard and short curly hair, told Miss Walters in an interview Tuesday he "really didn't have any identity" during his life as a fugitive.

"My name was Barry ... I actually had three last names and changed them without anyone knowing," he said.

Miss Walters said he had been living under the name of Barry Freed in the tiny upstate New York community of Fineview. A portion of the interview was shown Wednesday on ABC News, and a longer version was to be broadcast tonight on the network's "20-20" program.

Miss Walters said Hoffman had been living in the community along the St. Lawrence River with former model Johanna Lawrenson.

His appearance altered by plastic surgery on his nose, Hoffman zealously adopted environmental causes and helped form the Save the River Committee. His testimony at a U.S. Senate subcommittee hearing about the St. Lawrence River won him a letter of commendation from Gov. Hugh Carey. Miss Walters reported he also won an appointment to a federal Commission on Water Resources.

Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan, D-N.Y., who chaired the hearing about the river, was asked if he had realized Freed was Hoffman. "Well, I'll be damned! Hell no!"

Hoffman said he had joined the successful fight to prevent the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers from breaking up the ice which normally closes the St. Lawrence to wintertime shipping because "I sort of needed the struggle. But at some point I made my decision. I wasn't going to run from here anymore."

The possibility of an interview first was broached about two months ago when a man calling himself Mark Samuels contacted Miss Walters, ABC said. He later identified himself to Miss Walters as Hoffman.

Miss Walters went by chartered plane to Watertown, N.Y., and then was taken by boat to meet mid-river with a man and woman in another boat, which then took her to Fineview Island, ABC said.

Hoffman was a founder of the Youth International Party, or Yippies, a 1960s counterculture group, and was the author of "Revolution for the Hell of It" and "Steal This Book."

He was one of the Chicago Seven, a group of activists tried in 1970 on conspiracy and riot charges stemming from the violence at the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

The defendants and their lawyers were cited for contempt 200 times during the trial. Hoffman and four others were convicted of crossing state lines with intent to cause a riot, but the charges eventually were dismissed.

Lawyer William Kunstler, who had represented the Seven, said of Hoffman's reappearance, "I feel that anyone that lives that kind of life has been in prison. This long period of underground should essentially count, assuming he's guilty of anything. I'm sure society assumes he's guilty of something."

Pampa schools show increase

First enrollment figures for the Pampa Independent School District (PISD) indicate a slight increase in enrollment over last year, while most area schools show a decrease over last year's figures.

Pampa's student enrollment this year is 4,265 as of noon Wednesday, an increase of 20 students over last year's enrollment of 4,245. The increase is 0.5 percent.

School officials say final enrollment figures will not be available for another week.

"(Enrollment) will probably will level off by then," PISD Superintendent Bob Phillips said. "We anticipate a slight increase each day."

Phillips said the largest single class for this year is the Pampa Middle School seventh grade class with 355 enrolled.

This year's senior class at Pampa High School is the smallest class with an enrollment of 280 students, Phillips said.

Kindergarten enrollment in all the elementary schools is up from last year, he added.

More than 2,000 elementary students enrolled the second day of school — a total of 2,026 children.

Stephen F. Austin reported the largest number of students with 428 enrolled Baker Elementary and William B. Travis tied for the second largest enrollment, each reporting 348 students. The other elementary schools showed enrollments of: Woodrow Wilson, 332; Horace Mann, 307; and Lamar Elementary, 263.

Pampa Middle School's second day enrollment totaled 993 students, and Pampa High School reported a total enrollment of 1,246 students.

Special education classes have an enrollment so far of 50 students. Head Start has enrolled 29 and Early Childhood Education classes have three students enrolled.

In area school enrollments, Wheeler school officials report a decrease in the number of high school and elementary students. The high school is down about 12 students this year, with 122 students currently enrolled. Elementary school enrollment is also down with 275 students. School officials attribute the decrease to residents moving to other areas. Wheeler Schools started classes Aug. 21, and the early date will give students a longer Christmas vacation, a spring break and a mid-May dismissal, school officials said.

Mobeetie school officials also report a decrease in students. The school is down about 25 students this year with a total of 95 currently enrolled. High school enrollment, grades 7-12, is listed at 58 students. The elementary enrollment, grades 1-6, is listed at 34 students, and kindergarten enrollment is listed at three students. Mobeetie Superintendent Bob Mickley attributed the decrease in students to a drop in oilfield employment and transfers from the city.

Miami school officials also report a slight decrease in enrollment. High school enrollment is listed at 71 students, and elementary grades list 169 for a total of 240 students currently enrolled. Miami Principal Bob Burgoon attributed the decrease to the normal transient moving of residents.

Skellytown school officials report that elementary enrollment is about the same as last year. The number of elementary students is listed at 143 students. Principal Kenneth Cox said, "Four years ago the enrollment was 117, so we have gradually increased student numbers." The Skellytown school system is incorporated with the White Deer school system for high school classes.

Canadian school officials report an increase of about 50 students currently enrolled. The number of students enrolled in high school is listed at 278, middle school lists 215, and the elementary grades list 495 students. The largest class is the fifth grade with 88 students.

Lefors school officials report a decrease of about 25 students from last year. High school enrollment is listed at 52 students, and grade school lists 129. School Superintendent Jerrel Julian attributes the enrollment decrease to a number of transfers to Pampa High School and Pampa Middle School. "The transfers to both schools are due to the football programs offered in Pampa and special education classes," Julian said. Lefors schools currently do not have a football program or special education programs available.

McLean school officials report an increase in the high school enrollment and a decrease in the elementary enrollment. The high school lists 109 students, and the elementary grades list 184, for a total of 293. Attracting new teachers to the McLean School system was one of the problems this year, according to Principal Ron Cummings. "The pay is low, and there is no local recreation that would draw people here," Cummings said.

White Deer school officials report an increase in the elementary enrollment and a decrease in the high school enrollment. There are currently 140 students attending the high school and 248 attending the elementary grades. The largest grade enrollment is the fifth grade with 42 students.

Teacher strikes delay school for a half million students

By The Associated Press

Teachers walked picket lines in 10 states today in pay disputes that have spread from New England to the West Coast, delaying the start of school for about 500,000 youngsters.

With more than 29,000 teachers were off the job in 60 separate strikes, according to the National Education Association.

In Rochester, N.Y., where most of the 2,300 teachers defied an injunction against the walkout for a second day, officials re-opened all but three of the city's 55 schools despite what was described as "aggressive picketing." More than half of Rochester's schools were closed Wednesday, the start of the school year, but about 20,000 of the city's 34,000 students showed up for class.

The NEA reported teachers also were on strike in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Arizona, Washington, Rhode Island and Iowa.

Officials in Newark, N.J., said they would open schools today as scheduled for 60,691 students in the state's largest school district, where 4,321 members of the Newark Teachers Union voted Wednesday to strike.

The teachers, following a no-contract, no-work policy, were seeking a 10 percent across-the-board salary increase. The school board had not offered any increase.

Closed-door talks continued in Philadelphia between striking teachers and school officials. Classes resume Friday for some 220,000 students. The contract for 23,000 teachers and other school employees expired Monday.

Elsewhere in Pennsylvania, 2,900 teachers in 14 school districts were on strike, disrupting classes for 55,400 students.

In Columbus, Ohio, public schools opened today for 73,000 students with teachers on the job but bus drivers, maintenance and food service employees staying away. The Columbus Education Association voted Wednesday not to honor picketing by the Ohio Association of Public School Employees.

Strikes in three other Ohio school districts continued.

In other teacher activity:

—More than 86,000 Michigan students and 4,700 teachers were being idled in 20 strikes.

—Some 1,760 Illinois teachers were on strike in 12 school districts with 30,296 students affected.

—A strike by teachers in Sierra Vista, Ariz., entered its second day. About two-thirds of the 300 teachers stayed away from class on Wednesday, and about half the 5,700 students did not attend. Teachers are seeking binding arbitration for disputed contract items.

—More than 1,500 teachers remained on strike in four Washington state school districts. There were classes for the 1,500 students in Castle Rock, but nearly 29,000 others youngster were idled.

—In Rhode Island, some 15,700 students were at home because of teacher strikes in Woonsocket and Cumberland, and a walkout by janitors in North Providence that was honored by teachers.

'Unprecedented' Reagan campaign in Texas planned by state GOP

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Texas is a key political battlefield in Ronald Reagan's drive for the White House and Republicans plan to launch an unprecedented effort to carry the state in November, said the state GOP chairman.

Chet Upham of Mineral Wells said the party plans to spend $2 million and put forth an unprecedented organizational effort to win the presidency for Reagan.

He said state Republican chairmen, who met in Chicago earlier, targeted Texas as a must state for Reagan.

"The battleground is here and it's going to be waged as hard as we can," Upham said at a news conference Wednesday.

He said Texas Republicans were buoyed by the 1978 election of the state's first GOP governor since Reconstruction, Gov. Bill Clements, and that they were ready to carry on the fight for Reagan.

"The race in 1976 was close and Texas fell on the Democratic side. We're going to make every effort this year to carry Texas for the Republicans," said Upham.

"We feel, and the Democrats feel, that traditionally and historically, the president has been elected the way that Texas goes. There's never been a Democrat or a Republican elected (president) this century that has not carried Texas."

The state party chairman's remarks came as Republicans prepared for their state convention here Friday and Saturday. A 20-member temporary resolutions and platform committee is working on the state platform to be submitted Saturday. And the state executive committee is scheduled to convene today.

Upham said that Reagan and his running mate, Texas George Bush, both would make several visits to Texas before the election and that he anticipated President Carter also would campaign heavily in the state.

Bush, Gov. Bill Clements, Sen. John Tower — all of whom will address the convention this weekend — and campaign organizations in 240 of the 254 counties will make a strong push to elect Reagan, Upham said.

Upham said the latest Republican poll shows Reagan leading Carter by 10 percentage points in Texas. But he predicted the margin would narrow considerably by November.

The state chairman also said he hoped Reagan would receive at least the 25 percent of the Hispanic vote that Clements and Tower garnered in 1978.

"The election of Gov. Clements in 1978 brought a psychological boost to us that a Republican can be elected to any office. I'm confident we're going to carry it," Upham said. "I'll make that prediction. I think it'll be within 2 percentage points."

Upham said Clements was elected by voters who were dejected because governmental services drew more and more of the gross national product at a time when taxes and inflation continued an upward spiral. And by young couples who were unable to purchase new homes even though both were working.

He said he did not expect Reagan's Labor Day statement about the Ku Klux Klan to hurt the GOP nominee's chances in Texas.

"I don't think it'll be much of a backlash. I think these incidents come and go. This was the first. Carter will be making his, too," said Upham. "When we get down to the main issues they'll be jobs, the economy, national defense, energy and Carter promises that have been broken the past four years."

Barry Freed's friends surprised with truth

FORMER YIPPIE SURRENDERS. Abbie Hoffman surfaced in New York Wednesday night, surprising those who knew the former member of the Chicago Seven as Barry Freed.

(AP Laserphoto)

FINEVIEW, N.Y. — Barry Freed's white wood frame house is boarded up today, its blue shutters closed. Gone is the man who showed off his tomatoes and once testified on the St. Lawrence River before a U.S. Senate subcommittee.

But many residents of this tiny, riverside resort community said they were not surprised Freed might be the man who became national news as a central figure in the Chicago Seven trial.

Rumors had circulated among the residents of Wellesley Island two years ago that Freed was Hoffman, who under the name of just "Free" wrote a book called "Revolution for the Hell of It."

Mike Sheldon said the woman who lived with Freed "vehemently denied" the rumors.

"The rumor came up years ago, but no one ever followed up on it. I don't think anyone cared," he said, adding that according to the old rumor, Freed and Hoffman were one and the same because both had a penchant for corduroy pants.

The talk began spreading again this week when Barbara Walters showed up to interview Freed. Freed had told his neighbors she was going to interview him about his efforts to stop the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority from opening up the river to year-round shipping.

"But my husband was watching the interview and he asked me: 'Are they doing the story on the river or Barry?'" said Judy Spottek, who lived next door. "They kept their cameras on Barry and followed him around his garden, showing his tomatoes. They didn't show the river at all."

After the interviews, Freed disappeared. The house was closed for the winter, two months earlier than usual. On Wednesday, ABC said Hoffman would discuss his life as Freed in a taped interview tonight on the "20-20" program. Excerpts were shown Wednesday night.

Hoffman had been missing since 1973, when he failed to show up for a court appearance in New York City on charges of attempting to sell three pounds of cocaine to an undercover police officer.

Freed lived in a 19th Century house with his young son, Allen, and Johanna Lawrenson, a former fashion model whose grandmother owns the house, his neighbors said.

He was an active spokesman for the "Save The River Committee", which is fighting to preserve the ecology of the St. Lawrence River.

In that role, Freed was frequently interviewed by newspaper and broadcast reporters and once testified before a U.S. Senate subcommittee.

"He was very congenial, very friendly, very quiet. They kept to themselves mostly," said Mrs. Spottek. "We all have boats and we all have gardens here, and so did he."

"He's been living a normal lifestyle here. If he's a fugitive, the police around here must not be pretty good because he hasn't been hiding," said Sheldon.

Reagan blasts Mideast policy: Carter announces new strategy

By LEE BYRD
Associated Press Writer

Ronald Reagan says the Mideast is "approaching a flashpoint" because of weak and confused leadership by Jimmy Carter — a charge leveled only hours after the President's announcement that Israel and Egypt will resume their stalled peace talks under his mantle.

In an address Wednesday night to B'nai B'rith, the Jewish service organization, the Republican presidential nominee said Carter has sacrificed America's reputation as a trustworthy ally and that his conduct of foreign policy "has been marked by inconsistency and incompetence."

Reagan headed to Florida and Louisiana today in the wake of his now-famous Labor Day gaffe over the Ku Klux Klan, a remark which drew severe criticism throughout the South.

The Republican nominee stuck word-for-word with his prepared text Wednesday night, even to the point of ignoring the disclosure by Carter that another three-way summit is in the works with Egypt and Israel.

But when a reporter asked him about it outside a Washington hotel, Reagan declared: "I think it's great."

Nonetheless, Reagan charged in his address that the president merely "stands by and watches" while Israel is isolated by international terrorism and U.N. resolutions designed to undercut its position. Carter gets his chance to reply in a speech to B'nai B'rith tonight.

Reagan said that the Soviet Union has made new inroads in the Mideast, and "because of the weak and confused leadership of Jimmy Carter, we are approaching a flashpoint in this tragic process."

Carter said that his Mideast negotiator, Sol Linowitz, had informed him after his arrival in Cairo from Tel Aviv that Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin had agreed to resume bi-lateral talks within weeks and "they both approved a reconvening of the summit conference later this year at an appropriate time that will be convenient for all of us."

Administration officials said the new summit would occur after the Nov. 4 election.

The president spent the day Wednesday courting ethnic and black voters in Philadelphia, after collecting the endorsements of the million-member American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees and the 250,000 member United Transportation Union.

Today, the president was virtually certain to be handed the biggest labor prize of all — the formal nod of the 13.6-million-member AFL-CIO.

Reagan told the B'nai B'rith that ambiguities in the 1978 Camp David peace accords were responsible for bringing negotiations to a dangerous impasse.

Egypt broke off the talks a month ago after Israel declared that Jerusalem will remain its permanent capital.

"Now it (Jerusalem) exists as a shared trust," said Reagan. "The holy places of all faiths are protected and open to all...each is under the care and control of representatives of the respective faiths."

And then he declared: "Unlike the days prior to 1967, Jerusalem is now and will continue to be one city, undivided, with continuing free access for all. That is why I disagree with the cynical actions of the Carter Administration in pledging to preserve the status of Jerusalem in its party platform — and its undercutting Israel and Jerusalem by abstaining on a key U.N. vote."

Reagan said that as a United States ally, Israel must remain strong.

"The interests of all the world are served by peace and stability in the Middle East," he said. "To weaken Israel is to destabilize the Middle East and risk the peace of the world."

The former California governor's speech re-affirmed his longstanding commitment to a strong Israel. "In defending Israel's right to exist," he said, "we defend the very values upon which our nation is built."

Meanwhile, John Anderson, the independent candidate, tried to dispel reports that his campaign was floundering financially.

"The money is coming in, fear not," he told reporters in Detroit as he completed a five-day campaign swing through Wisconsin, Illinois and Michigan. "We will be able to finance this campaign."

In Philadelphia, Carter toured the city's teeming Italian market and spoke at the black Zion Baptist Church, both standard campaign stops.

"The Republican candidate has suggested that participation in the Social Security system be voluntary," Carter said. "That would destroy the system. Millions of Americans who have worked hard all their lives, who paid in their share for years, would be destitute."

Africans apply for extended visas

HOUSTON (AP) — Nineteen members of a South African troupe have applied for extensions on their expired visas in order to remain in the United States rather than return immediately to their homeland, the Immigration and Naturalization Service said.

Visas for the 23-member, all-black cast expired Saturday, one day before the final performance of a six-week run at Houston's Tower Theatre.

The troupe said it refused to perform Sunday night because the show's producer had failed to provide plane tickets to return to Johannesburg. The show was cancelled, and $12,000 in refunds were made.

Members of the musical "Ipi-Tombi" originally signed contracts to be paid $240 per week each, plus room, board and airfare home.

However, cast members renegotiated their contracts three weeks ago and received a substantial increase — $500 per week plus $120 for room and board — in lieu of plane fare.

INS Assistant Director Bob Strauss said as long as they worked, the 19 people who applied for extensions probably would be allowed to stay in the country indefinitely.

Strauss said two other cast members, both married to U.S. citizens, would apply for permanent residency.

Earlier, officials had said the company might be deported because of invalid visas.

South African Vice Consul Theo Scholtz said Wednesday the remaining two cast members had asked to return to Johannesburg but did not have $2,000 to pay for the plane tickets.

"If someone (from South Africa) should want to go home and has a problem with funds, we will refer it to the Department of the Interior. A decision will be made then to help the citizen," Scholtz said.

Four more cases of suspected sleeping sickness reported

HOUSTON (AP) — Harris County health officials say another four persons may have St. Louis encephalitis, and two of them have been hospitalized.

Health officials confirmed Wednesday six persons have contracted SLE, or sleeping sickness, and 17 others are suspected of carrying the virus. An additional three confirmed and three suspected cases also have been reported in five other Texas counties since last spring, officials said.

Intensified spraying has begun to try to halt the outbreak.

A 4-year-old girl, the youngest case so far, was hospitalized Aug. 15 with fever, diarrhea and disorders of the central nervous system, said Dr. Robert A. MacLean, acting director of the Houston Health Department. The child's condition was listed as good.

MacLean said a 66-year-old woman also was hospitalized Aug. 26, complaining of fever, nausea, vomiting and mental confusion, but was reported in stable condition.

Police investigate missing court funds

LONGVIEW, Texas (AP) — City officials have turned over to police an investigation of $942 missing from a cash drawer at municipal court here.

"This deficiency has been turned over to the Longview Police Department for investigation," said City Manager Ray Jackson. "And should there be any evidence of wrongdoing, the results of the police department's investigation will be turned over to the office of the (Gregg County) district attorney for further action."

If "supporting evidence" is found, he said, the city will file charges in the matter.

Jackson said the police criminal investigation division could complete its investigation early next week.

Municipal court clerk Lois Connell and administrative assistant David Johnson asked City Secretary Jo Ann Metcalf to make an audit of city funds last week, Jackson said.

The audit revealed the money was missing from a cash drawer where receipts and cash from traffic and parking violation fines were kept, he said.

A similar investigation into missing funds in a city tax department account was conducted after an audit showed $1,300 was missing last November.

In March, a Gregg County grand jury considered the case against a former tax office employee, but returned no indictments.

NTSU jazz director announces retirement

DENTON, Texas (AP) — Leon Breeden, who catapulted North Texas State University's jazz bands to worldwide fame during his 21-year tenure, will retire as director of jazz studies next August.

"It seems to me that the time has come for someone new to bring some fresh air to the program without the scars of the past constantly haunting that person," he told the largest group of jazz majors ever at the university in announcing his retirement Sunday.

Under Breeden's guidance, the One O'Clock Jazz Lab Band has been nominated for two Grammy awards, won numerous awards at jazz festivals, performed with Stan Kenton and at the White House, made U.S. State Department tours to Mexico and the Soviet Union, and appeared three times at the Spoleto USA festival.

Breeden, 59, read from a letter of resignation he wrote last November to Dr. Marceau C. Myers, dean of the School of Music. The announcement came as a surprise to students and faculty alike, however.

"It is my fervent hope that one will be chosen as my successor who is truly an educator and not one whose priorities are based upon commercial and show business aspects," he read.

Breeden said his plans include writing a book about the struggles that led to wide acclaim for the NTSU jazz program.

His final foreign tour with the band will come in October, when it will headline a music festival in Interlaken, Switzerland. The jazz studies program, as it now is called, was established in 1947 when NTSU became the first school in the nation to offer a major in "dance band."

"When I came here in 1959, the total instrument inventory for the jazz program was one worn out, beat up old baritone sax and a sound system that wasn't much better," Breeden recalled.

He was the only jazz faculty member then — now there are almost a score — and he typed his own letters for the first 12 years.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

A chilling example of misplaced power

When seven law-enforcement officials invaded the news offices of a Boise, Idaho, television station, KRCL-TV, and ransacked files and seized videotapes of a riot at Idaho State Penitentiary a few days earlier the station recorded it all on film.

That film is documentary dynamite. The spectacle of the police plundering a news room for information is the most powerful kind of indictment of the U.S. Supreme Court's unconscionable decision in the Stanford case that legalized such surprise searches and seizures. The electronic immediacy of this desecration of First Amendment rights, heretofore inviolate until the Burger Court decree, smacks of state oppression ordinarily associated with totalitarian regimes.

All Americans who view the televised police raid in Boise are provided a warning more vivid than that sounded by any dissenting court, associate justice, or newspaper editorial. It proclaims that the confidential records of doctors, lawyers, clergy, and average citizen are as vulnerable to snooping police officials as those of the media.

What happened in Boise is the latest and most chilling example of how the U.S. Supreme Court, which has traditionally been the guardian of constitutional freedoms, has, through legal sophistry, become the most dangerous instrument for denying these rights.

Those who mistakenly argue that law-enforcement agencies need the new powers granted them by the Supreme Court because of an uncooperative citizenry forget the authorities have always had effective investigative authority through use of the subpoena. This simple legal procedure serves law enforcement and simultaneously preserves free-speech rights under the First Amendment and the Fourth Amendment's protection against police search and seizure.

Inasmuch as the Boise TV station had a policy of complying with subpoenas, the question is why the prosecuting attorney didn't follow the subpoena route, why he obtained a search warrant and pounced less than 48 hours later, knowing this unusually swift action would deprive the station of time in which to mount a legal defense: as indeed was the case.

The answer is clear enough. A subpoena would have permitted the station its day in court to try and defend its unused videotapes, which it argued contained confidential information. A judge, not a lowly magistrate issuing a search warrant, would have decided the merits. The Boise prosecutor simply didn't want to bother with the niceties of the station's First and Fourth Amendment rights and, thanks to the Burger court, didn't have to. But in taking the short-cut route of search and seize, the prosecutor converted his police into storm troopers and, moreover, forced the TV station to become an arm of his own law enforcement by sweeping aside its rights under normal legal review.

When the Burger court overturned the rulings of two lower courts in the now-famous Zurich v. Stanford Daily case, and decided law-enforcement officers may search a newspaper office for information they think may be there, it compromised the confidentiality of media sources, laid open the files of the American people to surprise search and seizure, and, as well, made the reporter or average citizen an involuntary arm of law enforcement.

It is true the Boise episode is believed to be only the second application of the Stanford decision to a news-related organization. One other during two years since the Stanford ruling was the police search last month of the Flint, Michigan, Voice, a small muckracking newspaper. This was done to obtain an advance copy of an article criticizing Flint's mayor. Moreover, last year — as proof the press's defeat in the Stanford case was everyone's defeat — agents of the California attorney general's office raided a Beverly Hills law firm for the purpose of seizing documents in a Medi-Cal investigation.

The quick, easy payoff for the Boise prosecutor may tempt other prosecutors around the country to follow suit. Fortunately, there's a good chance the egregious Boise affair will strengthen rather than weaken defense of the First and Fourth Amendments. Fortunately, we still have legislative remedy for gross judicial error.

By Robert Walters
NEW YORK (NEA) — Boyd McGranaghan, a delegate to the Democratic National Convention from Glenoid, Pa., stood forlornly at the edge of the crowd in Madison Square Garden, clutching his blue-and-white "Kennedy for President" placard.

McGranaghan had hoped to use the sign to demonstrate his support for Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., during the nomination and balloting for a presidential candidate in the final days of the convention — but Kennedy himself had foreclosed that option by withdrawing on the first night of the meeting.

Asked what he planned to do with the sign, McGranaghan had an instant reply: "Save it for 1984."

Eileen Kenahan, a Kennedy delegate from Providence, R.I., sat in the middle of the hall, equally despondent about the senator's unexpected decision to pull out of the race. She had identical plans for her placard: "Save it for 1984."

Therein lies the tale of a Democratic Party whose activists will go through the motions of supporting their presidential nominee in the forthcoming general campaign but regard him as irrelevant at best and unacceptable at worst.

Kenahan plans to vote for President Carter in the general election. In fact, she's mildly indignant about the suggestion that she might consider any alternative because "I'm a good Democrat."

But when asked if Carter can carry Rhode Island, traditionally one of the most Democratic states in the union, she pauses, then responds: "I really don't know."

McGranaghan is considerably more certain — and more negative — about the president's chances in his home area of Delaware County, Pa., a Philadelphia suburb: "Carter lost the county by 45,000 votes in 1976. He's not even going to come that close this year."

Robert Nece, the 29-year-old president of a United Auto Workers local in Cleveland, offers a similar prediction when asked about Carter's chances in Ohio: "He'll probably lose the state by at least 200,000 votes."

Nece, also a Kennedy delegate at the convention, doesn't even want to waste any resources on the president's campaign. "I'll vote for Carter," he says, "but I'm going to recommend that our union's political action committee ignore the presidential race and put our money into state and local contests."

Much of that bitterness may fade, but Carter never has been an inspirational figure to most Democrats. Even his own supporters were notably unemotional when the president won the crucial rules contest on the opening night of the convention.

In 1976 and again this year, Carter has proven himself to be an extraordinarily dedicated and determined politician, capable of protecting and promoting his personal fortunes in presidential campaigns.

But there remains no emotional quality to match that technical expertise. For professional politicians and citizen activists alike, Carter's administration remains a distinctly joyless period in contemporary Democratic history.

Indeed, only overwhelming support from the president's native South averted the possibility of a defeat on the rules dispute — an event that probably would have led to the ignominious dumping of an incumbent president by the frustrated Democrats.

Although Carter's position of power afforded him the luxury of displaying grace and class under pressure, it was Kennedy's act of distinction — withdrawing immediately after losing the rules challenge — that provided the opportunity to begin constructing at least a facade of party unity.

Kennedy is a thoroughly professional politician who will make the requisite number of campaign appearances and statements necessary to avoid any suggestion that he is disloyal or unresponsive of his party's presidential nominee.

But for the senator, for other presidential aspirants and for millions of Democratic voters, this year's presidential race will be little more than a pro forma exercise. The campaign to which they're looking forward is four years away.

Take my house

by ART BUCHWALD

LOS ANGELES — Everyone knows that Californians are different from the rest of us. They were the pioneers of pyramid games, they invented the candlelight dinner and hot tubs, and they were the first to put Gucci shoes on their roller skates.

Californians are into something new now. It's called "real estate." It isn't who you are or who you know that counts anymore. It's how much you're asking for your house.

I didn't realize how much real estate values mattered in people's lives out here until a very nice lady took me to a lunch in the Malibu colony at a $2 million shack which resembled the stockade in "The Bridge on the River Kwai."

The guests were all gathered around the small swimming pool and my hostess introduced me to the people. "This is Ted and Jane, who are asking $950,000 for their villa in Ventura; Bob and Alice, whose English Tudor is now on the market for $1 million five; Don and Phyllis, who turned down $2 million one for their Spanish hacienda in Brentwood; and Mildred, who just split with Sam and is showing her $850,000 redwood contemporary by appointment only."

They seemed like really nice people. The hostess apologized because lunch was late. "We're still waiting on Henry and Roz, who have just listed their Tarzana colonial for $2 million six, and Allen and Marjorie, who won't take less than $1 million seven for their place in Laurel Canyon."

"They're worth waiting for," I said.

Most of the people were in the movie and television business so I expected some hot gossip about the stars which I could take back East with me. But it was not to be.

The table conversation went like this. "Rhonda left Johnny's fabulous $2 million panoramic hillside retreat with four bathrooms and an indoor jacuzzi and moved in with Herb in his $600,000 condominium with a wet bar on Wilshire Blvd."

"What a fool. Rhonda is always trading down."

"When Rhonda falls in love you can't talk any real estate sense into her at all."

"Someone told me the Saudi Arabians are moving into Culver City."

"I can't believe it. They haven't gobbled up Bel Air yet."

"Do you know the mobile home on the highway near Trancas?"

"You mean the one that was set up after the waves washed away the seven-figure Cape Cod on the dunes?"

"The mobile went for $1 million six."

"I thought it had been condemned by the zoning people."

"It had. That's why it sold so cheap."

I tried to get into the conversation.

"What's Johnny Carson really like?"

"Six million for his home in Beverly Hills, and one million eight for his house on the beach."

"How about Candice Bergen," I asked.

There was dead silence at the table. Finally, someone said quietly, "Off the record!"

"It won't leave this patio."

"Candice sublets."

New facts on smoking

By William Steff
On Sept. 4 it'll be 100 years since James Bonsack, a Virginian with a mechanical knack, changed American life.

Few recall Bonsack today, but a quarter of all Americans are directly affected by what he did, and most of the rest are affected indirectly.

What Bonsack did on Sept. 4, 1880, was to file for a patent on his device to manufacture cigarettes.

A couple of years later James Buchanan Duke, son of a Confederate soldier who returned to his North Carolina farm and peddled smoking tobacco, decided to increase his family's tobacco enterprise. He'd seen Bonsack's invention and in 1884 bought and improved some of the machines, using yellow, fine-cured tobacco for the cigarettes.

By 1888 Duke alone was selling 740 million cigarettes, 50 percent more than the nation's entire output in the year Bonsack filed for his patent. In 1889 the nation produced 2.5 billion cigarettes, 40 percent of them Duke's. The next year Duke formed the American Tobacco Co., which monopolized the industry until 1911, when the trust was broken into American, Liggett & Myers, Lorillard and Reynolds.

By 1919 production was up to 53 billion cigarettes. Last year it was 704 billion cigarettes, and there were 54 million American adults and at least 3.3 million American adolescents smoking.

That's after almost a generation of adverse publicity, which includes a statement on every cigarette package saying the contents are "dangerous to your health." Most of us are aware that male smokers have a relatively slim chance of living to 70 and female smokers have only a year or two longer.

Not only smokers are affected. Dr. William Bennett, writing in the current Harvard Review, notes that a recent study shows "a typical room where smoking takes place is more polluted with inhalable (and toxic) particles than a car riding down a busy commuter highway. Non-smokers who must work around smokers routinely suffer from gross violations of the national air-quality standards."

Bennett points out that cigarette who inhale (almost all of us do) are addicts, just like heroin addicts. Acidic flue-cured tobacco smoke travels to the absorbing surface of the lungs, which "neutralizes the acidity sufficiently to permit absorption...An entire cross-section of the bloodstream is loaded with nicotine. It travels to the heart and then to the brain without dilution" in seven seconds, "twice as fast as heroin traveling from the forearm."

Each puff gives the inhaling smoker a quick, tiny "high."

The federal government is trying to make these facts known through its Office of Smoking and Health, in the huge Health and Human Services Department. The office, begun with much fanfare under ex-Secretary Joseph Califano several years ago, has been quiet in recent months, but it's plugging away in a Washington suburb.

At the moment it's focusing on women 18 to 24, whose cigarette habits seem to be the most intractable of any age group. Over all, says the office's Carol Sussman, the prevalence of smoking is "definitely down." That's relative, of course: Peak national consumption was 4,345 cigarettes per person in 1963. The level in the 1970s was close to 4,000 cigarettes per person yearly. In 1978 it was 3,965, last year 3,900.

The office has $2.5 million a year to spend on what is essentially an advertising or "education" effort (plus another $10 million a year in grants to states for the same purpose). That may seem like a lot until you realize that cigarettes are a $17 billion-a-year industry and that five of the nation's 10 most heavily advertised products are cigarettes. Says Bennett:

"The cigarette industry is based on the principle of purveying perhaps the most addicting of known substances to ill-informed minors."

If you want straight information on the subject — for example, on pregnant women and smoking or teenagers and smoking — write The Office on Smoking and Health, Room 1-66 Park Building, 5900 Fishers Lane, Rockville, Md., 20857. One free pamphlet that's particularly good is "Warning the Air."

Synanon founder must end shady practice

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Synanon founder Charles Dederich, placed on probation for conspiring to kill a lawyer with a rattlesnake, is under orders today to end his connections with the drug rehabilitation center he established or risk a prison term.

The ailing Dederich, 67, was placed on five years probation Wednesday after medical tests showed he has suffered two strokes and is beset by multiple ailments including diabetes, hypertension and heart disease.

Dederich was also fined $10,000 for the rattlesnake plot and another incident and was ordered to pay hospital and medical costs of attorney Paul Morantz, who was bitten by the snake when he reached into his mailbox in October 1978. Morantz, who had just won a suit against Synanon at the time, recovered.

Superior Court Judge William Hogboom said Dederich's failing health was "the sole reason for not imposing a substantial prison term."

"Specifically, the court orders that the defendant is not to be active as a board member, director, officer or consultant to Synanon or anyone involved with Synanon or subsidiary organizations," Hogboom said.

However, he granted a request for Dederich to live at a Synanon residence where he could be attended by a doctor and psychiatrist.

Two of Dederich's followers, codefendants Lance Kenton, 22-year-old son of the late band leader Stan

Kenton, and Joseph Musico, 30, had their sentences postponed until Nov. 3 pending a 90-day diagnostic analysis at the men's prison at Chino. Kenton and Musico pleaded no contest to charges of conspiracy to commit murder and assault with a deadly weapon.

Dederich had pleaded no contest to a charge of conspiracy to commit murder and, in an unrelated incident, to solicitation to commit kidnapping and assault. His fine was $5,000 on each count.

The second count stems from Dederich's response to someone who criticized him in 1977. According to the prosecution, Dederich was heard telling follower James O'Donnell to kidnap and assault the critic, who has never been identified or located.

Official calls for 'bread and butter' issues

AUSTIN (AP) — Travis County Commissioner David Samuelson says he has "grave concerns" that the Texas Democratic Party is spending more time on gay rights than on bread and butter issues.

"We have gone too far," Samuelson said Wednesday in announcing that he is a candidate for next state chairman of the party.

"Political institutions should serve as instruments to act in behalf of protection and advancement of the standard of living of all people. This we are not doing. The party is in a dangerous drift away from crucial economic principles."

Samuelson has been county commissioner since 1970 but is not seeking re-election.

The new state Democratic chairman, to succeed retiring Billy Goldberg of Houston, will be elected by delegates to the second state convention in Houston on Sept. 26-27.

Rep. Luther Jones, D-El Paso, and Bob Slagle, Sherman attorney, campaigned vigorously at the June convention for the job.

Samuelson told the news conference "the two persons who have announced for the chair are in line with this drift of the party... I find there is very little difference in the two who have announced. The people need a choice."

He said a group of moderate-conservative Democratic leaders and members of the American Agriculture Movement had formed an "Alliance of Producers" to support his candidacy.

"We will work for a return to the basics for the Democratic Party of Texas," Samuelson said.

He said founding members of the alliance included Houston attorney John Brunson, Corky Smith of Dallas and Houston businessman Dick Arlington — all three well known "mod-con" Democrats — and Marvin Meek of Plainview, national president of the AAM.

"The party is losing its compassion it has always had for the worker, family farmer and the producer," he said. "The windfalls profits tax and lack of parity for agriculture are two of these examples."

Samuelson said he supported Jimmy Carter for president in 1976 and would support Carter in his campaign for re-election this November. He said he managed the statewide Rural People for McGovern in 1972.

Sheriff relates perjury comments

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — The Hidalgo County sheriff once told a reporter that former prosecutor Oscar McInnis should be subpoenaed before a grand jury "so he can perjure himself."

Sheriff Brig Marmolejo testified Wednesday he made those comments to a reporter for the McAllen Monitor before McInnis appeared before the federal grand jury to answer questions about an alleged murder plot.

McInnis and a former client, Patricia Parada, are on trial facing charges they lied to a grand jury July 7, 1978, when they denied knowing anything about a scheme to kill Ms. Parada's ex-husband.

The former spouse, Noe Villanueva, was not killed.

Ms. Parada was a client of McInnis in a civil child custody fight with Villanueva.

Marmolejo also told jurors he gave a jail inmate a small recorder to tape conversations between the prisoner and McInnis.

The sheriff said he gave the inmate the recorder after learning McInnis allegedly inquired about getting rid of Villanueva.

Marmolejo took the taped conversations to U.S. Attorney Tony Canales in Houston, who then called in the FBI.

McInnis was disbarred last year after a trial with many of the same witnesses called for the current case. The jailhouse tapes were played to the state court jury in the disbarment trial.

U.S. District Judge Filemon Vela has not allowed jurors in the perjury trial to hear the conversations. However, jurors have heard tapes of the grand jury testimony in which McInnis denied knowledge of any scheme.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Ron Woods also testified Wednesday about his questioning of McInnis before the grand jury.

The perjury indictment was thrown out by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans on grounds prosecutors should have told McInnis he was being investigated before he showed up before the grand jury.

Woods said he was afraid the prosecutor might destroy evidence if he knew about the probe ahead of time.

McInnis' lawyer, Frank Maloney of Austin, questioned Woods about the fact the indictment was written in Houston several days before the case was presented to the grand jury.

With the jury out of the room, Maloney called the government's case "a classic example of entrapment."

McInnis has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity and diminished capacity. Woods testified McInnis exhibited no bizarre behavior during his grand jury appearance.

Students guilty in Austin fracas

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Judge John Wisser today found 12 Middle Eastern students guilty of disrupting a University of Texas speech by the former ambassador to the United Nations under the late shah of Iran.

Four of the 16 defendants were found innocent by Wisser, who posted all the names on the door to his outer office.

Wisser, a captain in the Army reserve, said he would delay sentencing until he returns from two weeks' active duty at Fort Sam Houston in San Antonio. The training camp starts on Monday.

Misdemeanor charges against the Middle Eastern students — 13 Iranians and three Palestinians — carry a maximum penalty of six months in jail and a $1,000 fine.

Attracting more attention than the students' trial was the issue of whether student newspaper editor Mark McKinnon of the Daily Texan would relinquish unpublished negatives of the Jan. 31 speech taken by University of Texas student photographer.

McKinnon, 25, refused and was jailed for almost two hours Tuesday. He was released on $1,000 bond, pending a hearing today on his claim Wisser's contempt order was unconstitutional.

Assistant Travis County Attorney Jeff Blackwelder said the defendants chanted "Death to the shah" in disrupting the Jan. 31 speech by Fereydoon Hoveyda.

One of the defendants, Mehran Ebrahimi, said in closing arguments Tuesday night Hoveyda represented "a regime that killed our brothers and sisters and destroyed our economy and, with that, our independence and freedom."

Ebrahimi claimed the United States was grooming Hoveyda and others for a takeover of Iran from the Ayatollah Khomeini and was sending them to college campuses to portray themselves as "a progressive anti-shah element."

Bill Allison, attorney for the students, compared their "passion" to that of America's founding fathers, who felt "the same kind of rage when our country was being gutted and raped by Great Britain."

"I agree it's a freedom of speech case — the freedom of Hoveyda to speak and the audience to hear him, but they wouldn't let him," said Blackwelder.

Thieves force boy to remain at home

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — When Raul Espino Jr. enrolled in first grade this year, he already was battling the odds.

But thieves are trying to make his fight even tougher.

The first-grader at Egly Elementary School is confined to a wheelchair from an auto accident and also suffers from a respiratory dysfunction.

Doctors told his parents his body cannot regulate its temperature and he must remain in a controlled environment.

The Brownsville Independent School District designed a special Plexiglass enclosure with a window air conditioning unit for him. But someone keeps stealing the units and forcing him to stay at home.

None of the elementary or intermediate schools are air conditioned in the poor district.

School Principal Hesiquio Perez says a third air conditioning unit has been ordered and it will be locked up when not in use.

Raul's teacher says he is ahead of other children in the class, despite his trouble hearing from inside the plastic box. She stands next to the enclosure when speaking so he can hear her.

Raul's father had never seen his son's special arrangement until this week and doesn't like it.

"What I don't like about it is that it sets him off. He doesn't mind, but kids can be cruel sometimes... without really meaning it," he said.

The father wants the school to air condition the entire room.

School Superintendent Raul Besteiro says that is unlikely.

Besteiro said the district has "already bent over backwards" for the child and predicted parents of other children would want their classrooms air conditioned.

"The trouble is not every place in the world is air conditioned. We can only do so much... Maybe this climate is not for him," the superintendent said.

As for little Raul, he doesn't complain openly.

"I've already made one friend," he said.

Doctors say Adair 'doing well'

CLEAR LAKE, Texas (AP) — Doctors say oil well firefighter Paul "Red" Adair has been resting comfortably and may be released in "one or two days" from Clear Lake Hospital, where he has received treatment for injuries suffered while battling a blowout.

Adair remained in stable condition Wednesday with bumps, bruises and soreness of the neck and shoulders, doctors said.

The legendary oil well firefighter was thrown earlier this week from a tractor dragging a wrecked derrick away from a burning well near Villahermosa, Mexico. He was flown to Houston for a physical checkup.

Libyan - Billy issue thickened by memorandum

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Six days before warning President Carter about his brother's Libyan activities, Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti reportedly told a top Justice Department investigator to delay action against Billy Carter for 10 days, a Senate memorandum says.

The report, which Civiletti denies, surfaced Wednesday as the Senate's Billy Carter subcommittee prepared to ask Justice Department officials today to explain why the president's brother was allowed to register late as a foreign agent for Libya and why no criminal charges were brought against him.

The memorandum was prepared by Robert K. Kelley, Republican counsel for the special subcommittee.

The memo quotes Joel Lisker, chief of the department's foreign agents registration unit, as saying he told Civiletti on June 11 that the president's brother had received $220,000 from the Libyan government.

Lisker said Civiletti told him: "Wait 10 days," the memo says.

On June 17, Civiletti told the president it was "foolish" for Billy Carter not to register and that he could avoid prosecution by doing so. The president called his brother about two weeks later and urged him to register, which he did July 14.

Neither Lisker nor Kelley suggests in the memo that Civiletti asked for a delay to give himself time to talk to the president.

And Civiletti is quoted as denying he ever told Lisker to wait or gave any other instructions about the direction of the investigation.

Lisker and Assistant Attorney General Philip Heymann, who is in charge of criminal prosecutions, were called before the committee today.

Civiletti is to appear Friday.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., chairman of the panel, said Wednesday the subcommittee expects to find out "why the case was negotiated and a decision made for a civil remedy instead of a criminal remedy."

Sedco president testifies in bad oil lease hearing

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Amos Carter, vice president of Sedco Inc. of Dallas, testified Wednesday that he leased an offshore oil rig to Roy Carver without telling him the oil to be drilled was contaminated.

"Don't you think that the quality of the oil and potential problems with it should be of interest to a potential investor?" attorney David Elderkin asked Carter.

"Yes, it would be important," Carter said. "But at the time I did not recognize the magnitude of the problem."

"Did you tell Mr. Carver that it might take between $8 million and $20 million to fully develop those wells to solve the hydrogen sulfide problem?" Elderkin asked.

"That was never discussed," Carter replied.

Carter was on the stand the entire second day of testimony in Carver's $42 million damage suit against Sedco. Carver of Muscatine, founder of Bandag Inc., a truck tire retreading firm that operates in 90 countries, said he lost $17 million on an abortive oil-drilling operation off the coast of Qatar in the Persian Gulf in 1975-76.

Carver charges in his suit in U.S. District Court that Sedco never informed him and partner Eugene Holley of Augusta, Ga., that the oil contained hydrogen sulfide, which is potentially fatal to humans. The wells Carver and Holley leased had been drilled earlier by a Japanese firm but were given up because of their low flow rates and the contamination.

"The condition of the oil was not something that interested me greatly at the time," Carter testified. "I considered myself responsible primarily for the equipment."

Carter insisted in his testimony that in several meetings with Carver and Holley, the oil deal was discussed "only in the broad general sense of the business" and that no specifics were brought up about the eight wells in the Persian Gulf.

The trial is expected to last about three weeks.

GM announces auto recall

DETROIT (AP) — More than 1 million General Motors Corp. cars will be recalled to fix a pollution control device, the automaker has announced.

GM said Wednesday it will ask owners of 1,034,000 Chevrolet, Pontiac, Buick and Oldsmobile models produced in the 1977 and 1978 model years to take the cars to dealers and have exhaust recirculation valves fixed.

The cars affected were GM's entire production in those two years with the 3.8-liter, or 232-cubic inch, V-6 engine. It was GM's largest recall to fix a pollution problem, though not an industry record. Ford Motor Co. once recalled 1.4 million cars for a similar reason.

Tests by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency showed excessive nitrogen oxide emissions because the valves get clogged with exhaust deposits, GM said.

Of 20 cars tested by EPA, said GM spokeswoman Colleen Belli, a "significant number" averaged 5.8 grams of nitrogen oxides per mile compared with the 1977-1978 limit of 2.0 grams per mile. GM's own tests confirmed the problem existed, she added.

She said GM did not know what it would do about the valves or how long it would take to reach a decision. When the decision is made, owners would be asked to take their cars to dealers for free repairs.

GM gave no figures on what the recall campaign would cost the company. The valve retails for about $14 to an individual customer.

The valve recycles a fraction of engine exhaust back into the intake manifold. The cooler exhaust gases help lower the temperature of combustion, which holds down the production of nitrogen oxides, a principal precursor of smog.

A look at Texas

By The Associated Press
CREDIT UNION LOANS INCREASE
DALLAS (AP) — The Zale Employees Federal Credit Union, which offered lower interest rates for borrowers buying American cars, report that such loans increased 50 percent since the program started.
 Loans for American-made auto led loans for new foreign vehicles by a three-to-one margin since the credit union announced its reduced interest rates July 5, said Jerry Gray, president of the 7,000-member institution.
 This compares with an almost one-to-one ratio in the six months prior to July, Gray said.

 The interest rate policy is to charge 11 percent for American car loans and 13 percent on all other new vehicles. The average interest savings on four-year-loans on new cars costing from $7,000 to $9,000 is about $380 over the life of the loan.
 Between Jan. 1 and June 30, the credit union processed loans for 73 new American-made cars and 70 imported ones. In the two months since the reduction, loans were made from 59 American cars and 21 foreign cars, Gray said.
SCHOOL DISTRICT CUTS TAXES
HOUSTON (AP) — It may be hard to believe, but the Huffman Independent School District in northeast Harris County has cut taxes and at the same time given teachers a pay raise.
 Once that was done, the school board took another look at the budget, decided they hadn't done enough, and called an emergency session for the next day.

 This time they cut the tax rate even more and gave teachers an additional $300-a-year salary increase.
 The final tax rate now is $1.24 per $100 assessed valuation, down 15 cents from a year ago.
 And teachers will get a $700 annual pay raise.
 School officials said the action was possible because of increasing property tax collections.
STUDENT'S DEATH RULED SUICIDE
LUBBOCK (AP) — The death of an Ethiopian student who fell eight floors from a Texas Tech University biology building was ruled a suicide Wednesday.
 Teo Eros Fellegesean, a zoology major, died instantly after falling from a window about 5 p.m. Tuesday, said Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy, who made the ruling.

LeCroy said the student apparently was despondent over his relationship with a girlfriend.
 Several witnesses saw the victim fall, LeCroy said.
GULF ANNOUNCES BOOSTER PROGRAM
HOUSTON (AP) — A Gulf Oil Corp. subsidiary announced Wednesday a $255 million program to boost the ability of its Port Arthur refinery to process low grade crude oils.
 Gulf Refining & Marketing Co. said the projects scheduled for completion in 1983 will not boost the overall capacity of the 390,000 barrels a day plant but include new and revamped units to process 95,000 barrels of sour crude a day and units to improve flexibility in the manufacturing of lubricants.
 A similar $210 million program initiated last year is scheduled for completion in 1981.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I'm 15, and I've been taking piano lessons since I was 8. I guess I'm pretty good, but I'm far from a concert pianist.

Whenever we have company, my mother asks them (right in front of me) if they would like to hear me play the piano. Well, what can they say?

Then they all start coaxing me and, of course, I have to play. I've asked my mother not to do this to me, but she does anyway. I know she's proud of me, but the company is probably bored stiff, and I'm embarrassed.

Please print this. It might do some good, but don't mention my name or I'll get killed.

COMPANY SHOW-OFF

DEAR SHOW-OFF: Appeal to your mother again. In the meantime, I'll help from this end by printing your letter. (P.S. Your company is lucky. Ours had to listen to my twin and me play violin duets until we were 17.)

...

DEAR ABBY: When my husband and I announced our plans to adopt a baby, here are some of the comments we received:

"Are you sure you really want to? I've known people who have adopted a baby and then had their own."

And: "Aren't you afraid? What if the baby's retarded? Will they take it back?"

Abby, please tell your readers that by the time a couple announces their plans, they have already given the idea a great deal of consideration, not to mention multiple discussions with a social worker, and all they want to hear is, "Congratulations!"

EXPECTING IN THE N.W.

DEAR EXPECTING: Congratulations! May I add a few more questions adoptive parents don't want to hear:

"Do you know anything about the baby's parents?"

"Where are you getting the baby from?"
"Are you going to tell the child he's adopted?"
"How much did it cost you?"

DEAR ABBY: I am a grown woman who is in a very embarrassing situation. The daughter of a friend was recently married, and I sent her a luncheon cloth with matching napkins for a wedding gift. She phoned me to say that the color did not go with her decorating scheme, and asked where it was purchased so she could exchange it for another color.

Well, Abby, I've had this luncheon set for years. It was given to me as a gift, so of course it can't be exchanged. How should this be handled?

EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: Tell her that it was purchased years ago (it was), and cannot be exchanged.

DEAR ABBY: I saw red when I read that letter from "84 IN S.C.," complaining because her children moved her out of her old familiar home and away from lifelong friends because they wanted her in a better climate in a "cheerful apartment" near them.

"84" should consider herself lucky. Some elderly folks find their old familiar neighborhoods unsafe. My mother fought relocation until she was mugged, then she couldn't move fast enough. My husband and I were thrilled when we got her into a brand new senior citizens' apartment complex. Everything in her apartment is keyed for retired persons, including the best security features.

Know what Mom said? "I hate it! I can't hang my clothes out to dry. I feel like I'm living in an old folks' home!" (She's 80.)

"I, I, I" ... Abby, it's self-centered, nit-picking people like my mother who are difficult to understand. Just think of all the poor people of any age who would gladly trade places with "84 IN S.C." and "80 IN PA."

KIDS CAN'T WIN

AT WIT'S END

By Erma Bombeck

I got a letter the other day that needs a reply. A reader who signs herself "Concerned Vivian" wrote, "I saw you speak in Toledo, Ohio, in 1969. The other day I saw you on the Mike Douglas show and you looked 11 years older. Can you explain this?"

Well, C.V., all I can do is try.

For the formative years of my life I was influenced greatly by my grandmother. She was a stunning woman who was always being asked, "How do you remain so eternally young?" When I began to answer, "She eternally lies," Grandma began leaving me eternally home. She lied about her age on all five of her children's birth certificates and by the time her kids were in their 30s and 40s, she had regressed to puberty again.

For years, I watched Grandma baste her roots, massage her elbows, pumice her heels, saturate her skin, pound her body and pat her chins in an effort to bring the aging process to its knees. She succeeded. She was a bit like a Timex watch that you could bury in sand, spin around, sink, beat on, misplace, or drop, but she kept right on ticking until the day she died.

There are a couple of ways you can handle time. You can be like my grandmother who regarded it as a formidable foe in a game of wits where one wins and the other one loses. Or you can have respect for one another and live in reasonable harmony in a give-and-take situation. I chose the latter.

At age 37, my knees had grown together, my laugh lines were deep enough to plant barley, oats, or rye, and wicker chairs were painful. For the first time since the kids were born I felt I could pursue a career.

As I walked to the podium in Detroit to deliver my first speech ever... I noticed that everyone in the audience looked like me. Maybe if I had looked like Bo Derek, they would never have believed a word I said.

I have to tell you, C.V., the aging process hasn't been all that bad. I gave up phone books and went for directory assistance at age 40. At 43, there was nothing left in my mouth to fill. At 45, I was advised to give up peanuts and cucumbers. I hate peanuts and cucumbers anyway. At 47, I was in my night clothes at 7:30 p.m. and no one cared. At 49, no one wanted to borrow my clothes or records anymore. At 50, I could say outrageous things and get away with it because of my age.

C.V., I understand your disappointment in a world where a wrinkle is considered a blemish and an extra chin an appendage, but somewhere between Toledo and Mike Douglas, I lived 11 years... and if you want me to get rid of them... you'll have to send me out to be pressed.

U. S. grandfathers young at heart

NEW YORK (AP) — There are an estimated 11 million granddads in the United States today, and the majority are young in spirit, dedicated to their work, their families and their communities, a recent survey indicates.

"The comprehensive portrait of the typical granddad of 1980 does not conform to traditional stereotypes — either that of the kindly, old bewildered gentleman rocking away his golden years on the front porch or the more tragic image of the lonely soul cut off from society," says research director Dr. John Crothers Pollock.

"Both types certainly do exist today but they are in the minority," he adds, citing the study, "Granddads in America: The Young at Heart," conducted by Research & Forecasts Inc. of New York City, a national research organization, and sponsored by Old Grand-Dad. The grandfathers surveyed ranged in age from 33-92.

Granddads show a deep involvement with their families, reports Pollock, a social scientist. Almost 90 percent of American granddads are married to their first and only wife, and three of five see their grandchildren at least once a week.

Among the key findings of the survey:

— Despite the fact that granddads enjoy an extremely close relationship with the grandchildren and feel they are being brought up properly (only 8 percent often disagree), there is noticeable disapproval of the behavior of youth today. Just over half (53 percent) say that today's youth behave less well than those of yesteryear.

— Home-oriented granddads tend to be active with hobbies, gardening, doing odd jobs about the house (42 percent), playing cards and visiting family and friends. Sixteen percent often perform volunteer work and are active in their communities. Traveling as a leisure activity is enjoyed by 65 percent, while 24 percent go dancing regularly — and that includes disco.

— American granddads today are completely in step with the trend to fitness and health, with the age having little significant relationship to health. They engage in a whole range of physical activities, from walking (73 percent) to yoga (1 percent); 25 percent swim regularly; 22 percent bicycle; 18 percent engage in calisthenics; bowlers number 17 percent and golfers 15 percent.

— Of granddads who are working full time, 76 percent report good to excellent health, compared with 59 percent of those working part time and 57 percent of those who are retired. And 74 percent of those surveyed have no plans to retire.

"The current life expectancy for males is 74 years of age," says Pollock. "It is therefore reasonable to assume that a substantial number of today's youthful, spirited, fully involved granddads are likely to become great-granddads. Their affirmative views about family, work and life represent a strong sign of hope for the future. Granddads are a social resource for younger Americans, positive examples of what youth should become."

DR. LAMB

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I need to know more about cirrhosis of the liver. The doctors have diagnosed this as my problem. I stay on a very slim diet at all times. Is there anything I can do for this disease? If so, please advise.

DEAR READER — Cirrhosis of the liver really refers to destruction and damage of the cells in the liver itself. Often the liver cells are replaced with a form of scar tissue. In some stages of cirrhosis the liver is enlarged. In advanced states, the scarring of the liver and the contractions of the scars may cause the liver to become hard and small.

Just as you can have many different forms of injury that cause a scar on your skin, you can have a lot of different forms of injury to liver cells that induce scarring. Perhaps the most common one in our society is the excessive use of alcohol causing alcoholic cirrhosis.

You may be surprised to know that cirrhosis of the liver is the fourth most common cause of deaths in American men between the ages of 35 and 54. And it's the fifth most common cause in women in the same age group. About 60 percent of these cases are caused by excessive use of alcohol.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 7-8, Living with Your Liver, which explains how the liver functions, what it's for and provides some information about its common ailments including hepatitis. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Now some people develop cirrhosis of the liver even if they've never had a drop of alcohol in their entire life. This can be a complication of hepatitis or it can occur because the little bile ducts become inflamed or as a complication of obstruction of the bile duct system for any reason. It can even occur in right heart failure that causes an accumulation of fluid in the abdomen and swelling of the liver. The treatment isn't always the same; it makes some difference what the underlying cause is.

It is true, though, that whether cirrhosis of the liver is caused by alcohol or not, anyone who has it should not have a drop of alcohol thereafter. Alcohol is toxic to liver cells even if you're on a good normal diet.

Many people have a chronic, low-grade form of cirrhosis that they can live with for years if they just follow a few sensible rules, including a balanced diet. I wonder about your statement that you're on a very slim diet and would like to know more about that. You should have a normal amount of carbohydrates, proteins, vitamins and minerals.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is breathing through my mouth a habit or is there something wrong with me?

DEAR READER — It could be a habit. Some people have an obstruction of the nasal passages and this causes mouth breathing. Intermittent swelling of the lining of the nasal passages can also cause it temporarily. Enlarged adenoids cause mouth breathing. In children this can lead to a characteristic facial appearance. Let your doctor take a look and see if you have narrow passages or any other cause for an obstruction.

FARM SCENE

China's leadership change could affect exports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Anticipated changes in China's leadership could bring about a dramatic expansion of American farm exports to that country, according to Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland.

"The potential (for exports) there is beyond comprehension," Bergland said.

Next week, China's National People's Congress, the parliament, is expected to approve the resignation of the current premier, Hua Guofeng, and name Zhao Ziyang to the post.

The change has the approval of Senior Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping, who wants his own men to form a new collective leadership and continue China's modernization program.

Zhao says his ideal is to combine the forces of the marketplace with the planned economy of socialism.

In a telephone news conference with farm broadcasters Wednesday, Bergland said there is a great potential for American exports to China of food grains and breeding livestock.

He added that Chinese agriculture lags far behind the United States in sophistication, now resembling American farming at the turn of the century.

Thus, he said, the need in China for U.S. products and expertise is clear.

There is "one bridge on which we speak the same language" — the U.S. desire to sell farm products and the Chinese need to import such goods, Bergland said.

Following the news conference, Bergland said China has the potential to become the No. 1 customer for U.S. farm exports.

Previously, China has refused to buy farm goods on credit, preferring to do business on a cash basis only.

But, Bergland said, recent developments in China are "very important" and indicate "clearly (the Chinese) are re-examining their position" regarding agricultural imports.

Bergland said a decision by the Chinese to use credit in making purchases could greatly expand their potential as a market for U.S. goods.

He said no request for credit has been received yet. But, he quickly added, the United States is willing and able to extend credit to the Chinese.

Currently, China is the largest importer of U.S. cotton and the fifth-largest importer of American farm goods, overall. Chinese imports of U.S. agricultural products are expected to be about $2 billion this year, Bergland said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Agriculture Committee has apparently finished its legislative business for the year by endorsing a House-passed bill to reduce the weighing requirements for grain slated for export.

In other action Wednesday, the panel designated nearly 17,000 acres in North Carolina as part of the National Wilderness Preservation System, and approved the appointments of Rep. William Wampler, R-Va., and Ralph Raikes of Nebraska to the Federal Farm Credit Board.

Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., the committee chairman, said these probably would probably be the panel's last actions on legislation this year.

The committee's decision to send the grain-weighing bill to the Senate floor comes despite indications that President Carter may veto the measure if it receives final congressional approval.

"I don't know of any objection to this bill other than by the administration," said Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., the chief Senate backer of the proposal.

"We're not tinkering with grain inspection," Dole said. "We're just modifying it to eliminate some of the costs and reduce the overkill we had in the first act."

The bill would change the nation's four-year-old Grain Standards Act by eliminating requirements that grain be weighed when it is moved into American export elevators by means other than barge.

The bill was passed by the House in mid-August.

Names in the news

MALIBU, Calif. (AP) — William Saroyan admits his house is an "eyesore," so the 72-year-old writer wants to sell the battered beachfront property. While he's at it, there's an old play he'd like to sell, too.

In an ad in the entertainment trade publication Daily Variety, Saroyan says he will let the house go for $500,000. The play, however, is a different story. "This property may be had for $5 million, but the writer reserves the right not to sell to anybody he finds unacceptable," the ad says.

Saroyan, who wrote "My Name is Aram" and the play, "The Time of Your Life," writes bluntly about his house in thead. "It is a local eyesore," the ad says. "and high tides have washed away the hillside, the garage, the septic tank, and the stairways to the front door and to the beach."

The play, called "An Imaginary Character Named Saroyan," was written at the house between 1952 and 1958. It may cost a lot, but he reasons: "A look at the house is free of charge."

Saroyan doesn't live there anymore. He divides his time between residences in Paris and Fresno.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bonnie Franklin, star of the television comedy series "One Day at a Time," in which she plays a divorced mother, has married TV producer Marvin Minoff in a private ceremony, according to her publicist.

Only immediate family members attended the wedding Sunday in Miss Franklin's Los Angeles home, Kim Garfield said Wednesday. It was the second marriage for both.

The couple met last November during filming of Franklin's television movie, "Margaret Sanger — Portrait of a Rebel," which Minoff produced, Garfield said.

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Brooke Shields is trustworthy and could never be vicious. New York Mayor Ed Koch is a self-starter and NBC newswoman Jessica Savitch can be overly sensitive.

Those are just three of the conclusions Peter Shen, practicing physiognomist, reached for the Daily News today.

Physiognomy is the art of detecting temperament and character by studying facial features.

Academy-Award winning actress Meryl Streep's irregular facial features tell Shen that she does not let others take advantage of her...When she says something, people listen."

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

September 5, 1980
 This coming year you are likely to move around more than you have in the past. In your short jaunts and journeys you will have some interesting experiences and meet some exciting people.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Most persons you encounter today should be very easy to get along with, but you could run into one character who might ruffle your feathers. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are discussed in your Astro-Graph, which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Generally this should be a pleasant day, but you must guard against treating your resources or possessions carelessly. Don't leave valuables lying around.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be ambitious and assertive today without doing anything at the expense of others, and everything will turn out OK. You don't need to depend on anyone to get ahead.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Normally you're not the type to harbor a grudge, but today you could treat another poorly because of a past misunderstanding. Be forgiving.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Friends will be cooperative and eager to share with you today if they see you are willing to do so with them. Remember, the choice is yours.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In important one-to-one relationships today, take care not to overpower your counterpart. Be a diplomat, not a dictator.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Enjoy yourself today, but don't neglect your responsibilities. You may later try to blame others for problems caused by your procrastination!
ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're very productive today as long as you schedule adequate time to complete your tasks. Jobs you rush to conclude could get fouled up.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Most of the day you'll be very pleasant and easy to get along with, but if you make too late a night of it your personality and attitude could make an about-face.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Coworkers will match you stride for stride today, provided you set a good example and don't make demands of them to undertake things you wouldn't do yourself.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your managerial and organizational qualities are very proficient early in the day, so take care of major projects at that time. Later, you may get a trifle careless.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be patient today in situations you can't personally control and things will work out smoothly. Getting pushy might cause a log jam.

PIRATES' DAVE Parker, 39, is congratulated at home plate by teammate Bill Madlock after hitting his second two-run homer of the night as Houston Astros' catcher Luis Pujols, right, stands by in dejection Wednesday night at Pittsburgh. The Bucs won the game, 10-4.

Three-way battle

National League baseball roundup

By DAVE NELSON
AP Sports Writer

Dave Parker's got it going, but now he has to take it on the road with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Pirates, who ended an eight-game losing streak Monday, finished up a nine-game homestand with two straight wins, including a 10-4 victory over the Houston Astros Wednesday night, fueled by Parker's two home runs.

The defending world champion Pirates, in a three-way battle for first in the National League East with Montreal and Philadelphia, now begin a 10-game road trip that could be pivotal in the division.

"It's going to be a tough road trip, but I think we're up for it," Parker said. "The important thing right now is the team thing, the overall thing, the Pirate family going to another World Series."

The trip includes three games in Atlanta, two in Philadelphia, two in St. Louis and three in Montreal.

Philadelphia maintained a half game lead over Pittsburgh with a 4-3 victory over San Francisco, while Montreal dropped a game off the pace, losing 4-3 to San Diego. The Los Angeles Dodgers, meanwhile, took advantage of Houston's loss with a 2-0 shutout over the New York Mets to take a one-game lead over the Astros in the NL West.

Parker, who went into the game with only one homer since July 25, hit two-run homers in the third and fifth. Parker also singled home a run in the first off Joaquin Andujar, 2-5, and Mike Easler followed with a homer to help lefty John Candelaria to his 10th win.

Parker has hit .400 in his last 21 games, and Manager Chuck Tanner said the man finally was getting his due.

Elsewhere in the league, St. Louis edged Cincinnati 4-3 in 10 innings and Atlanta got by Chicago 4-3.

Phillies 4, Giants 3

Philadelphia wound up a three-game sweep of San Francisco behind the pitching and hitting of Dick Ruthven, who won his fourth straight game. Ruthven picked up the Phils only extra-base hit with an RBI-double in a three-run second inning.

Ruthven went 81-3 innings, leaving after rookie Chris Bourjos rapped a two-run homer in the ninth. Lefty reliever Tug McGraw got the final two outs and earned his 16th save.

Padres 4, Expos 3

San Diego right-hander Steve Mura ended a personal four-game losing streak and combined with two relievers on a five-hitter to beat Montreal. Mura, 5-7, went 71-3 innings before getting relief help from Gary Lucas and Rollie Fingers, who got his 19th save.

Gene Tenace and Luis Salazar each scored once and drove in a run to account, in one way or another, for all of San Diego's scoring.

Dodgers 2, Mets 0

Burt Hooton went 81-3 innings and pitched the Dodgers to their seventh straight victory. Hooton gave up four hits before Steve Howe relieved with one out in the ninth.

Steve Garvey homered for the Dodgers in the sixth, and Bill Russell got the other Los Angeles RBI with a squeeze bunt in the second off Pat Zachry, 6-9.

Cardinals 4, Reds 3

Ken Reitz homered twice, and Tony Scott drove in the winning run with a single in the bottom of the 10th for St. Louis, dropping Cincinnati four games back in the NL West. Jim Kaat, 6-7, pitched the 10th inning and got the victory.

Terry Kennedy led off the 10th with a pinch single, and pitcher Don Hood came in to run for him. Hood was sacrificed to second by Ken Oberkell, and Scott then lined his winning hit to left center off reliever Tom Hume, 7-9.

Borg slips past Tanner in U.S. Open quarterfinals

NEW YORK (AP) — "This was a great match, right up to the last point."

With that statement, Bjorn Borg summed up his suspenseful quarterfinal slugfest with Roscoe Tanner at the U.S. Open Wednesday. The top seed from Sweden displayed all the skills that mark him as the best player in the world in his 6-4, 3-6, 4-6, 7-5, 6-3 victory over the gallant, cannonball-serving 11th seed.

"I'm very relieved to survive this match," added Borg, whose dreams of a tennis Grand Slam were smashed by Tanner in a night match in the same round here last year. Once again this year, Borg has a shot at the slam — Wimbledon, the French, U.S. and Australian Opens — and, once more, Tanner took him to limit.

"He aces me many times (19 in all, plus 26 service winners), but I won all the big points. When he's putting in his first serve in, there's nothing you can do."

Trying to join Borg in the semifinals today were No. 2 seed John McEnroe, the defender, who took on No. 10 Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia under the lights, and No. 3 Jimmy Connors, who faced Eliot Teltscher in the afternoon. Striving for the women's semis were No. 8 Andrea Jaeger, who had a night match with No. 14 Ivanna Madruga of Argentina, and No. 9 Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia, who took on unseeded Barbara Hallquist in the daytime.

Tanner led Borg 4-2 in the fourth set and the Swede's chances for his first U.S. Open title looked slim.

"I thought at 4-2, he'd really be pumped up and it would be very difficult," said Borg. "I knew I needed to stay one break behind, that he might make errors if I put more pressure on him."

Borg held for 3-4, then broke Tanner's serve to tie it 4-4.

"At 4-4, I'm in the match again," noted Borg. "I started playing better."

Did he ever! Suddenly, it was Borg who was in charge, passing with authority, serving more dynamically and hitting winner after winner.

He held twice more while Tanner struggled, winning on serve in the 10th game at deuce, but then being broken at love in the 12th game for the set.

"He makes shots that you don't expect from him," said Tanner. "Especially some of those winners down the line."
Borg continued his awesome display in the fifth set but Tanner stayed with him until the eighth game. Borg got the decisive point in that game on a forehand down the line.

"I feel pretty relaxed when it comes down to 3-3 in the fifth," Borg said in explaining that special quality on which he calls in tight spots. "I served my best in the fifth set and was taking chances when he might have been a bit tight."

Borg plays Johan Kriek in the semifinals. The unseeded South African outlasted Wojtek Fibak, the No. 14 seed from Poland, 4-6, 6-2, 3-6, 6-1, 7-6 Wednesday night.

The speedy Kriek won the last five points in a fifth-set tiebreaker to upset the steady Fibak.

"This is the toughest match I've ever played," said Kriek. "I don't ever want to play another set like that last one."
"This is the best tournament I've played in my life," added Kriek, who made it to the quarterfinals here the last two years.

"The fifth set was one of the best I've ever played," said Fibak, a close friend of Kriek's. "I never remember a match with so many good points."

As expected, top-seeded Tracy Austin and No. 3 Chris Evert Lloyd advanced to a semifinal meeting, to be held Friday. Austin continued her mastery of Pam Shriver with a 6-2, 6-3 victory while Lloyd struggled a bit before subduing unseeded Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia 7-6, 6-2.
"I feel comfortable playing her," Austin, 17, said of her 18-year-old contemporary, whom she's beaten nine times in juniors and twice in the pros without a loss. "She comes in more than anybody. I'm not saying that's bad, it's just her style. But I can pass better when someone is at the net."

Despite the lopsided score, Shriver, a finalist here two years ago but plagued by shoulder problems last year, felt she wasn't far from pulling an upset.

"I felt like I was just an inch away from turning it around," said the No. 13 seed. "I hadn't met a good groundstroke all tournament."

Akers impressed with offense

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas Coach Fred Akers had said he felt his offensive line would be good, "and they really did a job" in Texas' 23-17 victory over No. 6 Arkansas on Monday night.

Tackle Terry Tausch, selected on some pre-season All-American teams, was "really outstanding," Akers told his weekly news conference Wednesday.

Assistant Coach Leon Manley graded Tausch, a 6-foot-4, 260-pound junior, at 98 of a possible 100.

Center Mike Babb and guard Joe Shearin both graded 88, and guard Les Studdard and tackle John Tobolka 87.

Akers announced, however, that halfback A.J. "Jam" Jones, who tore up nine jerseys in ripping Arkansas for 165 yards and two touchdowns, had been selected by Longhorn coaches as the outstanding offensive player of the game.

Jones, a 6-1, 200-pound junior, had knee surgery late last year, and Akers said, "He's been telling us all along he feels better than ever.... He invested a lot of time in rehabilitating that knee."

Safety William Graham, a junior starting his first game, made a team-high 13 tackles, including several that saved touchdowns, and was the outstanding defensive player, Akers said.

"He was all over the field, getting there first or backing someone else up," Akers said.

Freshman linebacker Jeff Leiding won the "Strike Award" that is given for the best single play with a jarring tackle on a kickoff. Leiding pinched a nerve on the play, but Akers said he should be healthy by the next game, Sept. 20 against Utah State.

"It's like we had two seasons," said Akers. "The first started and ended with Arkansas. Then, we'll start like we never played a game. It will be like two-a-days with basics and fundamentals. It will be a great opportunity to improve our young players, especially the freshmen. They can get enough work that they will be closing the gap and challenging people."

The Arkansas-Texas Southwest Conference game was moved from Oct. 18 to accommodate national television and was featured as the first major college football contest of the 1980s.

The key to the victory over Arkansas, said Akers, was ball control.

Starting senior cornerback Vance Bedford, one of four Longhorn captains, had surgery Tuesday to repair damaged knee ligaments after playing only about 11 minutes of the first quarter.

MARK KOTARA, junior running back for the Pampa Harvesters, is resting comfortably in Highland General Hospital after four of his toes were severed in a mowing accident last week at Pampa Country Club golf course. "It was tragic," Pampa head coach Larry Gilbert said. "I don't know what it's going to do to his athletic career, but as far as I'm concerned he'll always be a part of the team." Kotara was the leading rusher on Pampa's Junior Varsity team last season.

Construction costs in Texas catch up with nation

By SOLL SUSSMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal housing official says the rising prices of houses in Texas are an indication that construction costs in the state have caught up with the rest of the nation.

"Texas — the Houston area particularly — used to be one of the most inexpensive areas in the country to build in, but during the past 10 years we've seen it catch up with the other areas," he said.

The official, who asked not to be identified by name, was discussing the dramatic jumps demonstrated in some categories of the Department of Housing and Urban Development's new list of typical housing costs.

In Houston, the high range house sold for $112,600 — almost double the $66,700 figure on last year's list.

Increases in other categories for the Houston area were less severe. The price for a medium range home rose from $53,500 last year to $67,900 on the newly published list while the price of a low range home increased by $500 to $41,000.

In Dallas, the price of a high range home soared to $113,600 from $76,600 last year while a medium range home increased to $66,600 from $56,500.

There was no change, however, in the low range where the HUD field office reported the typical selling price was still $36,000.

A HUD spokesman has said the list of "prototype housing costs," published for the first time last year, is similar in intent to the Environmental Protection Agency's regular publication of estimated gasoline mileage for each kind of automobile.

"It's just supposed to be a guide to people," spokesman Andy Gasparich said.

In San Antonio, the price for a high range home increased from $50,000 to $67,500 and the medium range from $36,400 to $54,500. The low range home rose to $32,900 from $27,500.

In Fort Worth, the high range home rose to $80,600 from $69,500; the medium range to $66,500 from $52,400; and the low range to $56,000 from $44,600.

In Lubbock, the price of a high range home jumped to $70,200 from $49,900; the medium range to $52,800 from $45,800; and the low range to $32,900 from $27,500.

Each HUD field office reported representative sales prices projected to 1982 for three types of homes, including land and site improvements in the price.

The low range home had three bedrooms and one full bath, the medium range three or four bedrooms and two full baths and the high range had three to five bedrooms and two or three full baths.

The square footage for the list of typical housing costs was different for each area.

The Dallas field office, also making reports for Waco and Tyler, said the low range home had 1,090 square feet, medium range 1,600 square feet and the high range 2,390 square feet.

In Tyler, the price of a low range home on this year's list was $34,500. The medium range home sold for $56,200 and the high range for $109,000.

The low range home in Waco sold for $33,800, the medium range for $56,200 and the high range for $109,000.

The Fort Worth field office also estimated prices for Wichita Falls, Abilene, Brownwood and San Angelo. It said low range homes had 1,400 square feet, medium range 1,600 square feet and high range 2,200 square feet.

In Wichita Falls, the low range home sold for $52,700, the medium range for $61,900 and high range for $76,700.

GOP chairman predicts Reagan victory in Texas

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Texas is a key political battlefield in Ronald Reagan's drive for the White House and Republicans plan to launch an unprecedented effort to carry the state in November, said the state GOP chairman.

Chet Upham of Mineral Wells said the party plans to spend $2 million and put forth an unprecedented organizational effort to win the presidency for Reagan.

He said state Republican chairmen, who met in Chicago earlier, targeted Texas as a must state for Reagan.

"The battleground is here and it's going to be waged as hard as we can," Upham said at a news conference Wednesday.

He said Texas Republicans were buoyed by the 1978 election of the state's first GOP governor since Reconstruction, Gov. Bill Clements, and that they were ready to carry on the fight for Reagan.

"The race in 1978 was close and Texas fell on the Democratic side. We're going to make every effort this year to carry Texas for the Republicans," said Upham.

"We feel, and the Democrats feel, that traditionally and historically, the president has been elected the way that Texas goes. There's never been a Democrat or a Republican elected (president) this century that has not carried Texas."

The state party chairman's remarks came as Republicans prepared for their state convention here Friday and Saturday. A 20-member temporary resolutions and platform committee is working on the state platform to be submitted Saturday. And the state executive committee is scheduled to convene today.

Upham said that Reagan and his running mate, Texan George Bush, both would make several visits to Texas before the election and that he anticipated President Carter also would campaign heavily in the state.

Bush, Gov. Bill Clements, Sen. John Tower — all of whom will address the convention this weekend — and campaign organizations in 240 of the 254 counties will make a strong push to elect Reagan, Upham said.

Upham said the latest Republican poll shows Reagan leading Carter by 10 percentage points in Texas. But he predicted the margin would narrow considerably by November.

The state chairman also said he hoped Reagan would receive at least the 25 percent of the Hispanic vote that Clements and Tower garnered in 1978.

"The election of Gov. Clements in 1978 brought a psychological boost to us that a Republican can be elected to any office. I'm confident we're going to carry it," Upham said. "I'll make that prediction. I think it'll be within 2 percentage points."

Upham said Clements was elected by voters who were dejected because governmental services drew more and more of the gross national product at a time when taxes and inflation continued an upward spiral. And by young couples who were unable to purchase new homes even though both were working.

He said he did not expect Reagan's Labor Day statement about the Ku Klux Klan to hurt the GOP nominee's chances in Texas.

"I don't think it'll be much of a backlash. I think these incidents come and go. This was the first Carter will be making his, too," said Upham. "When we get down to the main issues they'll be jobs, the economy, national defense, energy & Carter promises that have been broken the past four years."

Caffeine labeled a cause of danger to unborn babies

By TIM AHERN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government says pregnant women should stop drinking coffee, tea and some cola drinks — or at least cut down — because caffeine may cause birth defects.

The Food and Drug Administration, expected to make that warning official today, stopped short of requiring warning labels on products that contain caffeine.

Pregnant women have long been warned to watch their diet and to curtail smoking, alcohol and drugs. Caffeine, a stimulant, and other substances reach the unborn child through the placenta that links mother and fetus.

The agency's actions do not include warnings to others who drink caffeine beverages. Americans consume an average of 2 1/2 cups of coffee and 12 ounces of a soft drink each day.

The FDA action comes in the wake of studies that show caffeine causes birth defects in rats. But, FDA spokesman Wayne Pines said Wednesday, the evidence is inconclusive whether the drug also causes human birth defects and the agency wants further studies done.

"There is no reason for people to be frightened. The scientific evidence is not conclusive," said Pines. "We feel it is incumbent on us nevertheless to report to the public where we stand. We feel that because caffeine is active as a drug, pregnant women should avoid caffeine-containing foods and drinks or use them sparingly."

The agency also is changing its standards to permit the sale of decaffeinated cola drinks.

One study, using rats, found that caffeine caused birth defects when fed the animals at levels equivalent to 12 to 24 cups of coffee a day. But another study, conducted for the coffee industry, found that rats metabolized caffeine differently than humans, undermining the results of the first study.

The first study was often cited earlier this year by those who want warning labels required for caffeine products. No available human study produced similarly strong evidence of a connection between caffeine and birth defects, however.

Pines said it will be two to four years before studies on the effects on humans are conclusive. The industry already has expressed its willingness to undertake such experiments.

Nurses in Wichita are on the run for money, health

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Betty Snyder scurries from floor to floor at Wichita's Wesley Medical Center, going about the business of making people well again.

But each noon, the 57-year-old nurse spends a few minutes in the hospital's labyrinthine basement, tending to her own health with a brisk walk along a half-mile fitness course.

The course is part of a new "wellness" program designed to help the hospital's 3,000 workers relieve stress, lose weight and feel better.

"I feel different now in the afternoons," Mrs. Snyder said. "It relaxes me and gives me a lift."

A growing number of hospitals across the land are looking for ways to improve the health of the doctors, nurses, secretaries and bookkeepers who make up the teams who heal the sick.

In addition, some 400 companies have hired fitness directors in recent years, noting the balance-sheet benefits of a healthy workforce as well as the growing national interest in preventive health care.

The intended results: Lower health insurance costs, longer life, better job performance and renewed company spirit.

About 100 hospitals have adopted some form of employee or community fitness programs in the past two years, according to the American Hospital Association.

"The hospital already is recognized as a center for health information, and this is a natural extension of what the hospital's goals always have been," said Lynn Jones, staff specialist in employee health for the AHA in Chicago.

At Baptist Hospital in Pensacola, Fla., a Light Fitness Center for employees and the community had more than 1,000 participants in its first 18 months. Center director Don McDaniel sees it as a good sign.

"I hope this is the wave of the future," he said. "It'll be a question of cost-effectiveness and it may be our only alternative to the rising cost of health care."

Wesley's wellness program for employees is typical of many. It includes physical examinations, lifestyle questionnaires, a dozen free self-help classes and physical fitness areas.

It was launched, ironically, with money the hospital had overpaid for employee health insurance last year. The insurer reimbursed the hospital and some $50,000 was set aside to start the program.

Jerry Kerschen, a 35-year-old former college basketball player, was hired as fitness coordinator. He promptly created the "Magic Walk" fitness course that runs past the laundry and pharmacy in the basement corridors.

Mrs. Snyder said the course, which includes stops for stretching exercises, already has helped her lose 10 pounds.

"I had become so involved and busy every day at work that I had lost time to get out and be active," she said. "This makes me better able to cope with the pressures of the rest of the day."

The program now has an $80,000 Wellness Club under construction, a computer to analyze health data and classes in everything from stress management and physical fitness to weight control and quitting smoking.

More than 140 workers recently underwent "risk intervention" tests to gauge their lung capacities, body fat, muscular strength, flexibility and other fitness characteristics. Another part of the test analyzed temperament and lifestyle.

The employees now are mapping their own strategies for shaping up. At the end of three months, the tests will be repeated to judge their progress.

The program also has published a pamphlet that outlines stretching exercises for the desk-bound worker. And Kerschen scans thick medical journals for the latest information about staying healthy.

"We've gotten used to the quick fix here in the medical establishment," he said. "If we have a headache, we take an aspirin. But it might be that our headache is caused by straining over our desks. And in that case, a few stretching exercises might work just as well."

Those who deal daily with the sick and dying need few reminders of the importance of preventive health.
