PACE has its first two graduating seniors

By TIFFANIE FRANKS
Staff Writer

"For I know the plans I have for you," declares the Lord, "plans to prosper you and not to harm you, plans to give you hope and a future." — Jeremiah 29:11.

This was the theme throughout Tuesday night's Pampa Academy of Christian Education awards and graduation ceremony.

"This is our first year to have a high school graduation and we are so proud of our two graduates Kazia Parker and Jeremy Simpson," Principal Joann Taylor said.

The graduation included special music and reading of scripture by students, a blessing song for the graduates and a presentation of roses to Mrs. Taylor from her first two graduates.

Also included were letters from the graduates to their parents, as well as letters to the students from their families. The reading of the letters left the M.K. Brown Auditorium's Heritage Room without a dry eye.

Instead of having the traditional graduation "party," the graduates, student body and parents traveled to Groom to have a special graduation prayer at the Cross of the Plains.

The school also graduated seven eighth graders: Rainy Hopson, Charlene Mejia, Josh Rasco, Aaron Wagner, Christine Mitchell, Trevor Muniz and Austin Smith.

Also graduating from the fifth grade was Beth Platt, who was

The Eagle Award is voted upon by the student body and represents the student who soars overall in academics, athletics and character. Sarah Platt, Rainy Hopson and Kazia Parker were the recipients of this award in each of their learning centers.

Students were recognized for the number of 100's they had made throughout the year. Each club represents the number of perfect grades they have made.

Members of the 100 club were Chad Sublett, Aaron Childress, Bryce Taylor, Josh Rasco, Kristal

Eight area schools to hold graduation exercises on Friday

By CHIP CHANDLER
Staff Writer

Eight area schools will hold commencement exercises Friday evening, including the honoring of 237 Pampa High School seniors at Harvester Field.

Pampa's ceremony is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. in the football arena, weather permitting.

And despite a six-and-a-half month drought, school officials are still prepared for a stormy interruption and a last-minute move to McNeeley Fieldhouse.

"It's rained for [at least] the last five years ... [so] we'll be set up in both places," Principal John Kendall said.

"If there's any possible way, we'll have it outside," Kendall promises, citing broiling temperatures in the gym as well as cramped quarters.

Should the ceremony be moved indoors, seniors will be issued only eight tickets for family and friends. Ticket-holders will be allowed in exclusively until 20 minutes before commencement begins. The general public will be admitted then until the gym's capacity is reached.

"We'd like to get all parents and friends and relatives in, but because of space, we may not be able to," Kendall said.

The Pride of Pampa Band and high school choir will perform the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" to open the ceremony. Three senior choir members — Laura Johnson, Ty Newman and Cullen Allen — will perform vocal solos during the evening.

Valedictorian Shaylee Richardson, salutatorian Edith Osborne and Senior Class president Ross Watkins will speak also at the ceremony.

Diplomas will be presented to the seniors by school board President James Frugé, Superintendent Dr. Dawson Orr, Senior Class sponsor Stephen Porter and Kendall.

Proper attention eases high blood pressure

As emergency service providers, Rural/Metro emergency medical technicians and paramedics are trained to help when help is needed most, when people are hurting and frightened.

"Our job is helping people in trouble, but helping people stay out of trouble is even better. So during National Emergency Medical Services week ... Rural/Metro is emphasizing a few ounces of prevention that can help people avoid serious - and even life threatening - situations," according to local senior medic Nancy Newhouse.

High blood pressure is one of those areas where a little attention now could keep a little problem from becoming a big one. High blood pressure affects more than 50 million Americans; yet the only way to know one is suffering from high blood pressure is through a very simple and painless blood pressure check, Newhouse said.

Rural/Metro offers free blood pressure checks to local citizens by appointment.

High blood pressure, or hypertension, occurs when the heart must pump harder to push blood through the body's arteries. When pressure builds above normal conditions and stays there, high blood pressure results.

High blood pressure cannot be cured, but it can be controlled. To help control hypertension, or to prevent it from happening:

- Have blood pressure checked on a regular basis.
- Keep weight in check.
- If you smoke, quit. If you don't smoke, don't start.
- Take all medications exactly as prescribed.
- Eat a well balanced, low fat, low salt diet.

Remember to discuss all health issues with your primary physician. That way, a specified diet and exercise plan can be designed for your individual needs, Newhouse suggested.

Rural/Metro is in the business of health and safety, and prevention is key. It's never too early to modify toward a more healthy lifestyle, so call Rural/Metro today at 665-6551 and make an appointment to have your blood pressure checked, she said.

Rural/Metro currently has ambulance service and/or fire protection operations in more than 150 communities throughout the United States, and responds to more than a million calls for assistance each year. Locally, Rural/Metro has provided ambulance to Gray County since 1986 and employs 17 people.

Rescue boats circle oil slick from downed ferry

MWANZA, Tanzania (AP) — Rescue boats floated idly today on Lake Victoria, circling an oil slick that marked the site of a capsized ferry and unable to reach passengers believed trapped underwater in the vessel's lower decks.

At least 500 people reportedly drowned in the accident Tuesday, many of them teenagers returning home from school. Survivors said today that the ferry had been listing when it left port, crammed with determined passengers who ignored warnings that the ship couldn't hold them.

Ships passing by the sinking ferry saved 120 people, according to state-run Radio Tanzania. Searchers who pulled 29 bodies from the water offered little hope today of finding any survivors.

The state-owned MV Buboka sank about eight miles from port at Mwanza in Africa's largest lake. Some survivors said 600 people were aboard the ferry, which President Benjamin Mkapa said was meant to carry no more than 441.

The boat was so crowded at dock in Bukoba that police stopped any more passengers from boarding. Tanzanian newspapers quoted survivors as saying. Some passengers traveled by automobile to meet the ferry at the next port, and boarded there, survivors said.

When the ferry left that port, it was listing badly, rider Kamuli Magolenga said.

"Then before it capsized, passengers moved to the right, and then to the left — and we went down," Magolenga told Nipashe, a privately owned Swahili-language newspaper.

The ferry sank within sight of shore, amid floating islands of water hyacinths. The only sign of the accident today was an oily sheen from leaking fuel.

Early news reports said the ferry hit a rock, but some survivor accounts suggested the weight of the overburdened ship had been enough to sink it. Survivors said many of the victims were trapped below deck when the ferry capsized.

Tanzania's president declared three days of mourning, and flew to Mwanza.

Tobacco industry fights back, cites $815 million taxes paid to state last year as line of defense

AUSTIN (AP) — The tobacco industry, defending itself against a Texas lawsuit to recoup government money spent on tobacco-related illness, points to $815 million it paid the state last year in sales and excise taxes.

That's almost five times what Texas estimates it spent to treat poor people who got sick from habitual tobacco use that year, the Austin American-Statesman reported Tuesday.

A spokesman for Texas Attorney General Dan Morales says the figures are beside the point. But the tobacco industry says they're key.

"The fact that the state regulates tobacco and makes an enormous profit from the sale of tobacco will absolutely be a critical part of the lawsuit. We think it underscores the hypocrisy of the suit," said Michael Hull, an Austin lawyer representing Philip Morris Inc., one of eight tobacco companies sued. Morales spokesman Ron Dusek said, "Even if they contributed tens of billions of dollars a year in taxes, they still should not be allowed to violate the law and addict our children."

He added, "The taxes that are paid, the $815 million, are paid by the consumers, not by the tobacco industry. The tobacco industry is trying to take credit for taxes it does not pay."

The attorney general in March sued tobacco companies in an effort to recoup more than $4 billion spent on tobacco-related illness and to halt advertising he says targets children. That figure is the amount estimated in smoking-related Medicaid claims paid by the state and federal governments from 1980 through 1996.

Of the $4 billion, about one-third has been spent by the state. The state spent about $170 million on tobacco-related Medicaid costs during the state's last budget year, Dusek said.

"Suggesting that tobacco companies should be allowed to violate the law because they contribute a great deal of money in tax revenue is like some rich guy saying that just because he owns a big business and provides a lot of jobs and other economic benefits to the community, he should be allowed to rape, pillage, plunder and commit murder," he said.

The lawsuit alleges the tobacco industry has violated federal mail and wire fraud statutes, federal racketeering laws and federal conspiracy laws. It also alleges violations of state and federal antitrust laws and public nuisance laws.

Tobacco companies have called the lawsuit meritless.

"Dan Morales has been the attorney general since 1991, and the state will have collected billions of dollars in revenue from tobacco over that time," Hull said.

Valujet holds memorial service for Florida crash victims

ATLANTA (AP) — At a memorial service for victims of the crash of Valujet Flight 592, the airline's president tried to reassure their friends and loved ones about the nature of their final resting place.

Lewis Jordan painted a different picture of the Everglades — where the plane and passengers remain — from the inhospitable place often described in news reports.

"This is not a swamp. This is one of God's most peaceful places. It is a river that flows beneath the grass and provides life," Jordan said. "It is perhaps as beautiful a place of rest as one could find."

About 200 attended the service at Georgia Tech's

Alexander Memorial Coliseum. Many of the mourners wore ribbons of yellow and baby blue, the colors of the discount airline.

The mother of pilot Candalyn Kubeck, who was at the controls of the DC-9, assured them that her daughter was "no fly-by-night pilot."

Ms. Kubeck was based at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport and kept an apartment nearby.

"Whatever happened in that airplane was beyond human control. If anybody could have saved your loved ones, Candy could have and would have," Marilyn Chamberlin said.

Six-year-old killed by electric fence

STEPHENVILLE, Texas (AP) — A 6-year-old girl has died after walking into an electric fence that had been wired improperly.

Joy Hernandez was pronounced dead Monday by an emergency room doctor following the accident at the farm where she lived with her parents and four siblings.

The family was "in very bad shape" Monday at the emergency room of Harris Methodist Erath County Hospital, Sheriff David Coffee told the Abilene Reporter-News. "They were grieving very hard."

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

California bungle supports choice

Learning how to read is not a mysterious activity. For phonetic alphabets, such as the Roman one used in English, one learns how the letters match up with the sounds, the way letters combine, and the exceptions to the rules.

When foreigners come to America, that's how they learn English. And when American schools teach foreign languages with alphabets, that's how they teach reading - even when the alphabet is different, as with the Cyrillic, Armenian or Greek.

Even government-run universities, the U.S. Foreign Service, and the military's Defense Language Institute in Monterey, Calif., use the phonics. In China, the native ideographs are, of course, an entirely different way to represent thoughts. But when English is taught, phonics is used.

Only one place seems to disdain phonics: American public schools, especially in California. In an attempt to restore common sense, Gov. Pete Wilson has approved spending $127 million on new reading textbooks and training for teachers - but only if phonics is used. In response, Superintendent of Public Instruction Delaine Eastin is instituting new guidelines for teaching reading, including phonics.

Some questions: Why is taxpayers' money needed for this? Why isn't phonics already being used, as it is everywhere else in the world, to teach English? Why, instead, is the "whole language" method (formerly called "look-say") still being pursued, despite mounting evidence that it hasn't worked - and common sense analysis showing that it never could work?

The answer is that the state schools bureaucracy, a monolith of imposing strength, hooked into the whole-language method and wouldn't let go.

The whole sordid story was told in "The Blackboard Bungle," by Jill Stewart in a recent issue of the L.A. Weekly: "While the new techniques known as 'whole language' may seem bizarre, they now predominate in classrooms from Marin County to San Diego, the hottest fad since the 'open' classroom of the 1970s."

"Since 1987, whole-language theory has swept California. At its furthest extreme are whole-language zealots who believe reading and writing are natural processes that children will pick up on their own, without formal instruction if they are immersed in good literature and allowed to freely write without correction.

The theory's basic principles have been institutionalized in the form of a widely acclaimed reading 'framework' adopted by the state Board of Education that downplays the teaching of traditional reading skills."

Helping impose this preposterous fad was then-Superintendent of Public Instruction Bill Honig, who now admits, "We never dreamed it would be driven to this bizarre end."

Well, why were these imperious educators even allowed to experiment with the children of America's largest state? Why are they still experimenting?

On one national test, California fourth-graders scored worse than kids from every other state except Louisiana. And a survey recently released by the California State University system showed that 49 percent of freshmen students needed remedial classes in English and 54 percent in math.

Gov. Wilson's proposal to restore the old reading methods makes sense so far as it goes. But if your first child dies from a quack doctor, would you take your second child to the quack as well - even if you bought the quack a new medical book?

Likewise, the care of young minds should not be entrusted to a system that has embraced a quack reading method. What's ultimately needed is not a new supply of books paid for by taxpayers, but a way out of the bureaucratic government system. School choice would let parents choose to leave the government run schools. The time is now, before another generation of young minds is bungled.

Media turns mealy-mouthed

Reporters hung ten recently, surfing along on the wave of their favorite Republican story, intra-party fratricide. In this case, it's a topic they'll cover with glee all summer: the abortion language in the GOP platform. But reporters are hiding their own squirming and equivocation over the most revolting initiative ever countenanced by our government - the grotesque procedure called the partial-birth abortion.

After years of spotlighting and feeling the pain of the darling little children subjected to the injustice of Republican budget "cuts," how must journalists feel when confronted by the graphic reality of a partial-birth abortion, where the baby is removed from the womb, except for the head, which is punctured by scissors so the brain can be sucked out?

There it is: the absurdity of the media exposed. For years, they have suggested the Republican platform's pro-life declaration is "extreme" but that the Democrats' federally funded abortion-on-demand position (opposed by 80% of the public) is not. Now, President Bill Clinton and Co. have embraced infanticide, and still there's nothing extremist there.

The networks have had trouble presenting the issue. Some can't even use the term "partial-birth abortion." Dan Rather first touched on the issue on November 1: "On Capitol Hill, abortion is reemerging as a national election issue. The House voted overwhelmingly today to make a rarely used type of late-term abortion a felony." On CBS This Morning, reporter Sharyl Attkisson filed an entire report without explaining the procedure. When Clinton demonstrated his extremism by vetoing the bill outlawing partial-birth abortion, Rather still equivocated, describing it as a "rarely used, so-called 'partial-birth' abortion."

Of course, CBS doesn't resist activist semantics when they are safely on the left. During the House debate on repealing the "assault weapons" ban in late March, CBS employed the term "gun lobby" six times on the morning and evening news to describe opponents of the ban. Rather didn't call them "so-called assault weapons," just as he hadn't mentioned the existence of an "abortion lobby."

The effort to downplay the issue despite its newsworthiness has been obvious. When two Cardinals of the Catholic church attended a vigil outside the White House on April 1, none of the Big Three networks reported it. But in the 1980s, when the Catholic bishops issued pronouncements on the immorality of nuclear weapons and the shortcomings of capitalism, the networks pounced.

Douglas Johnson, legislative director of the National Right to Life Committee, is also finding bias in the print media. Reporter Ann Devroy told readers on April 11 that "the procedure is rarely used and usually only when severe birth defects ... are discovered too late in the pregnancy to use other abortion methods." On April 30, Washington Post religion reporter Laurie Goodstein said the procedure was "believed to be used only rarely and mostly in cases when the woman's life is at risk or the fetus is seriously deformed."

In a May 1 letter, Johnson took the Post to task: "These statements regarding the circumstances in which partial-birth abortions are 'usually only' or 'mostly' performed are wrong. Not just unsubstantiated, but wrong. On April 11 and again on April 30, we have provided you with specific, documented statements by Dr. Martin Haskell and Dr. James McMahon, who between them performed thousands of partial-birth abortions, and with other documentation to substantiate the uncomfortable truth that the great majority of partial-birth abortions do not involve the circumstances cited by The Washington Post in the April 11 and April 30 stories. We have offered to provide more detailed, primary documentation. We have received no response."

Reporters have made no real effort to investigate how many partial-birth abortions occur each year. The numbers have ranged from "100 to 400" in a Nov. 13 U.S. News & World Report article to "13,000" in an ABC World News Now segment by Dick Schaap. And yet, as Johnson told the Post, Dr. William Rashbaum of New York City wrote a letter to Rep. Charles Canady stating he alone has conducted 19,000 late-term "procedures" and that he has performed the partial-birth procedure "routinely since 1979." How many reporters have covered this? Has anyone ever heard of this man?

The network news have filed more than 500 stories in the past three years, visuals and all, on pro-life violence. When will the networks stop acting as the public relations arm of the abortion industry and get to the bottom of this grisly procedure - and the shocking extreme to which Bill Clinton and the abortion lobby are going to protect it?

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Wednesday, May 22, the 143rd day of 1996. There are 223 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On May 22, 1868, the "Great Train Robbery" took place near Marshfield, Ind., as seven members of the Reno gang made off with $96,000 in cash, gold and bonds.

On this date:
In 1761, the first life insurance policy in the United States was issued, in Philadelphia.

In 1819, the first steam-propelled vessel to attempt a trans-Atlantic crossing, the Savannah, departed from Savannah, Ga. (It arrived in Liverpool, England, June 20.)

In 1939, Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini signed a "Pact of Steel" committing Germany and Italy to a military alliance.

In 1947, the Truman Doctrine was enacted as Congress appropriated military and economic aid for Greece and Turkey.

Some serious GOP tactical errors

A few months ago, the 1994 election was widely, almost universally, interpreted as the first wave of a massive realignment of American politics. The electorate was signaling its weariness with liberal governance.

Today, the conventional wisdom in Washington is that the above interpretation was totally wrong and that the Republican Congress erred by assuming a mandate the voters did not intend.

What short memories we have. Let's recall that the election results in 1994 were quite unequivocal. In all of the races for the House of Representatives, the Senate and state governorships, not a single incumbent Republican was defeated. After more than 40 years of Democratic control, the House of Representatives was converted to Republican control with a gain of 52 seats. The freshman class of Republicans was 72 members strong. The freshman Democrats (elected to open seats) were a mere handful.

Republican candidates for Congress ran on a platform, the Contract With America, that was swiftly enacted by the new House (with significant numbers of Democratic votes). In the months following the 1994 election, 166 Democratic office holders - in a plebiscite of their own - switched parties. The Democratic president held a press conference to assert that he was still relevant and rapidly acknowledged that he had raised taxes too much, was reconsidering the wisdom of a tax cut (he was once again in favor, he declared) and was suddenly re-energized about ending welfare as we know it.

The Republicans did not misinterpret the results of the 1994 elections. But they did make tactical errors that have left them damaged and hurting - but not necessarily defeated, unless they despair.

Tactical error No. 1: Republicans failed to use their majority status in Congress as an educational tool. Perhaps they assumed that the case for cutting government did not need to be made - again. But hearings detailing government waste and duplication would have been a useful tutorial for a dissatisfied but uninformed electorate. They might have helped build momentum for a budget fight with the administration.

Tactical error No. 2: Republicans failed to highlight one or two key reforms that would have limned the differences between the two parties. Republican proposals for welfare reform and tax cuts, for example, should have been passed as stand-alone legislation, rather than subsumed under the massive budget bill. The resulting vetoes could then be held against President Clinton in an election year. As it is, the president can claim - indeed, he has already claimed - that those vetoes were in response to other aspects of the budget bill.

Tactical error No. 3: Republican leaders became too wrapped up in their own egos and momentarily lost their sense of history for the sake of an airplane seat.

Tactical error No. 4: They failed to anticipate the degree to which this president is willing to lie in order to win. During the budget showdowns and government closures, the president dominated the debate by calling Republican proposals "extreme" and decrying "cuts" in Medicare. There were, of course, no cuts, only reductions in the rate of increase. Moreover, these reductions were virtually identical to those recommended by the president himself in Mrs. Clinton's health care bill. When you opponent is dishonest, there is nothing you can do except continue to call attention to the facts. Speaker Gingrich has lately begun to do that, with some good results. At a recent press conference, CNN's Wolf Blitzer did challenge the president for continuing to label Republican Medicare reforms as "cuts."

Which brings us to Tactical Error No. 5: Failing to overcome the liberal bias of the press. That most of the elite press corps is liberal and Democratic is a fact. The most recent survey on the subject found that just 4 percent of congressional reporters and Washington bureau chiefs are Republicans. Republicans must therefore be particularly creative and careful about getting their message across.

Still, Republicans are feeling unnecessarily blue these days. The very fact that President Clinton, true weather vane if nothing else, feels compelled to adopt Republican policies - from tax cuts to a balanced budget to adoption reform to cutting off benefits for welfare mothers who refuse to stay in school - proves that Republican issues are winners.

Nebraska bishop causes a controversy

By now you have probably seen in the papers or watched on television at least snatches of the great brouhaha kicked up recently by the Right Reverend Fabian Bruskewitz, the Roman Catholic bishop of Lincoln, Neb. Although I am not myself a Roman Catholic, I found myself sympathizing with the bishop's plight as our liberal media bound him (figuratively speaking) to a stake, piled kindling around it, and grimly set it ablaze. There are lessons here for those of all faiths, and none.

Bishop Bruskewitz's offense was to publish a list (his critics promptly dubbed it "a blacklist") of 12 organizations that he believes promote ideas that are squarely incompatible with the teachings of the Roman Catholic Church. He believes that it is morally and intellectually wrong for members of the church to belong to such organizations.

The organizations on the list include Planned Parenthood (which is loudly and powerfully pro-abortion), the Hemlock Society (which advocates the right of a person to commit suicide), Call to Action (which favors the ordination of women as priests, something Pope John Paul II has officially proclaimed out of the question) and the Freemasons. The latter is a worldwide organization several centuries old which has boasted a large number of distinguished members (George Washington, for one), but which is no stranger to controversy. The Encyclopedia Britannica notes that "Generally, Freemasonry in Latin countries has attracted freethinkers and anticlericals, while in the British Isles, northern Europe, and the Anglo-Saxon countries, the membership is drawn largely from among white Protestants."

Bishop Bruskewitz has no objection to anyone belonging to any of these organizations, or for that matter to all of them, but he doesn't believe a person can do this and simultaneously be a good Catholic. So he has ordered that, in his diocese, Catholics who persist in belonging to such groups after May 15 will be "excommunicated" - which is to say, they will not be allowed to participate in the Catholic sacraments, including Holy Communion.

Now, this is a serious step, and one may legitimately wonder whether the bishop was wise to bring down on his head the uproar that promptly followed. For of course the media treated the story as a brutal offense against what they implicitly suggest is the democracy that exists, or ought to exist, in the church. The stories were all about "splitting the church apart," "witch hunts," etc.

But I am indebted to the Washington-based Media Research (full disclosure: I sit on its board) for pointing out a most interesting analogy about which the media haven't uttered a peep.

The American Civil Liberties Union is a great icon of liberalism, one of whose principles is to support abortion. Nat Hentoff is a distinguished and impeccably liberal writer who was at one time on the ACLU's national board of directors. But Hentoff, as will happen occasionally to conscientious people, found his view of abortion changing, and ultimately he concluded that it is morally impermissible. Hentoff being Hentoff, he started saying so publicly.

And - what do you know? - Hentoff suddenly found himself ousted from the ACLU board at the next election.

Now, these two cases are not, it seems to me, logically distinguishable. The ACLU's leadership is entitled to feel however it cares to about abortion, and to insist that membership on its board be confined to people who share its view. This is, after all, a free country, and "pro-choice" activists don't have to tolerate pro-life spokesmen in their private organizations (even organizations, like the ACLU, dedicated to free speech) unless they want to.

But what's sauce for the ACLU goose, it seems to me, is - or ought to be - sauce for the Catholic gander. So how about it, ladies and gentlemen of the media? Not even one little raspberry for the ACLU?

Military continues arrests despite protests

RANGOON, Burma (AP) — Ignoring protests from the United States and human rights groups, Burma's military regime arrested more supporters of opposition leader Aung San Suu Kyi today in its push to block a key pro-democracy meeting.

The junta has detained at least 71 people in the sweep, including Suu Kyi's spokesman, Suu Kyi herself, winner of the 1991 Nobel Peace Prize for promoting democracy in Burma, remains free.

Despite the arrest, the three-day meeting of opposition leaders will begin as planned Sunday at Suu Kyi's home in Rangoon, another opposition spokesman, Aye Win, said.

The meeting will be the most important gathering of opponents of Burma's 34-year military rule since last year, when the government released Suu Kyi from six years of house arrest.

Doctors threatened over human rights abuses

LONDON (AP) — Iraqi doctors were forced to cut off the ears of alleged deserters and Kenyan doctors were pressured to ignore evidence of torture, Amnesty International said Wednesday in a report on dangers facing health workers who won't condone human rights abuses.

In some areas of the world, medical workers are killed, imprisoned or tortured when they resist, Amnesty International said in a 46-page report.

"This report has a simple message: Doctors and nurses have a duty to expose human rights violations, but by doing so they put themselves at risk," said Amnesty spokesman Jim Welsh.

In the Iraqi case, the report said, doctors by law had to amputate the ears of healthy army and civilian "deserters," and brand their foreheads.

Doctors were told in 1994 they would be branded and mutilated themselves if they failed to carry out the government policy. One doctor who refused was allegedly murdered, the report said.

The London-based organization presented evidence from health professionals in Asia, Africa, the Middle East and Central America who have been pressured by their governments to ignore human rights abuses.

In Turkey, the Amnesty report cited "an exodus" of health professionals from the southeast of the country, where Turkish forces face Kurdish guerrillas. Welsh said they left because up to 10 doctors had reportedly disappeared.

DARE graduation

Officer Rob Goodin welcomes a crowd of parents and fifth grade students to the Project DARE graduation ceremony Monday evening. Seven classes from Horace Mann, Lamar and Travis elementaries were honored, with students from each class reading an essay about staying drug free. Looking on are Horace Mann teachers Connie Nicklas and Stacey King.

Businessman led dual life, police say

DALLAS (AP) — Investigators are delving into the background of a slain mayoral appointee and prominent real estate agent who friends and police say lived another life by night.

Arnold Blair's second life probably holds the key to his death, say police, who have asked a weekly newspaper distributed in Oak Lawn restaurants and gay bars to publish a request for call-in tips.

After days spent singing in the church choir, serving on the Dallas Plan Commission or helping some blacks buy their own homes, Blair spent nights picking up young hustlers and, until recently, living with a convicted drug dealer, friends and the police officers interviewing them say.

Sgt. Jerry King said the request went out only to the gay newspaper "because he was known to frequent that area. In any type of investigation, a person's lifestyle is something that's investigated."

Refugio Hernandez, a bartender and confidant of Blair's, said Blair struggled to keep his second life hidden by using only his initials and telling effeminate friends to "butch it up" when calling his office.

"He wanted to keep both his lives separate," Hernandez is quoted as saying in Wednesday's editions of The Dallas Morning News.

'Twister' turns to gold at box office

By MICHAEL WHITE
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Twister earned $37.1 million as the No. 1 movie at the weekend box office, nearly twice as much as the rest of the top 10 films combined.

The dolphin adventure Flipper was the closest competitor, with $4.2 million.

Twister set a record for May openings with $41 million in earnings last week. The movie was on track to reach the $100 million mark by today, said John Krier of Exhibitor Relations Co. Inc., which tracks box office performance.

Some of the film's success was due to good timing: It was the first major summer release to hit the screen. The special-effects thriller also is doing "exceptionally well" in smaller towns, Krier said.

The other nine films on the top 10 list earned a total of $19.1 million. Twister will face tougher competition this week, when Tom Cruise's Mission Impossible debuts.

The Craft was third with $3 million, while the romantic comedy The Truth About Cats and Dogs finished fourth with $2.9 million. The Alec Baldwin thriller Heaven's Prisoners, debuted in fifth with $2.3 million.

The top 20 movies at U.S. and Canadian theaters Friday through Sunday, followed by studio, gross, number of theater locations, receipts per location, total gross and number of weeks in release, as compiled Monday by Exhibitor Relations and Entertainment Data Inc.:

1. Twister, Warner Bros., $37.1 million, 2,785 locations, $13,319 per location, $95.1 million, two weeks.

Job Competitors Must Work On Friendship After Hours

DEAR ABBY: My best friend and I recently got jobs at the two biggest competitors in town. We always have confided in each other about everything important, including work-related problems. However, our two businesses are so cut-throat and competitive, we're not even supposed to associate with people who are employed by the competition.

I don't want anything to affect our closeness. How can we maintain our friendship and also our jobs?
TROUBLED IN TEXAS

DEAR TROUBLED: You will be doing a bit of a balancing act to stay friends in a competitive job situation, but it can be done. Look at Mary Matalin, who worked on the Republican campaign of former President Bush, while dating James Carville of President Clinton's campaign. They later married. Or United Press International's White House correspondent Helen Thomas, who worked in competition with her late husband, Doug Cornell of The Associated Press.

The secret is to keep your business and personal lives separate, agree to avoid discussing work-related problems or situations outside the office, and don't spread office gossip.

DEAR ABBY: I hope my story gives "Ticked Off in Georgia" a good laugh. He and his wife had attended a party given by friends. Not many were in attendance, and only hot cider and nonalcoholic beverages were served. Later, when comparing notes with other friends, he learned that there had been two guest lists. Group A described the open bar, fine wines, etc., while group B was on the "dull and cheap" list.

Years ago, my aunt and her husband invited us over for a chicken dinner at the noon hour. When we were called to the table, my husband and I noticed at once that the meat plate held boiled wieners. We never batted an eye, and no explanation was offered to us about the missing chicken.

Right after we had eaten, my aunt and uncle went outside for some reason. I speedily peeked into their kitchen cupboards. Lo and behold — there on the stack of remaining dinner plates sat a whole cooked chicken. I was miffed!

When my aunt and uncle returned, over coffee they commented that their preacher and his wife were dropping over for supper that evening. Then it all clicked! We felt better knowing we had been switched to the "B" list so the good preacher could have chicken for supper. Still chuckling ...

JANETTE KAUFFMAN, BEAVERTON, ORE.

DEAR JANETTE: Thanks for pointing out that in some cases, there are extenuating circumstances.

DEAR ABBY: Last year my brother-in-law got married and less than two months later, the marriage was over. He moved out and all the wedding gifts were put in storage by the bride, as the groom wanted to give her everything. Here's the question: Since the marriage lasted less than two months, shouldn't the wedding presents be returned to the people who gave them?

The extent of his medical problems are disclosed in the May 27 issue of Sports Illustrated. The magazine reports that Favre's addiction led to a seizure in February following ankle surgery that nearly killed him.

Bulls use press to rally past Orlando

CHICAGO (AP) — Trailing in the second half by 18, the Chicago Bulls didn't look at all like the super team that won 72 regular-season games and trounced Orlando in the opener of the Eastern Conference finals.

"We were lost," admitted Michael Jordan. So the Bulls turned to a full-court press and sent their double-teaming defense at Magic center Shaquille O'Neal.

What followed were bad passes, turnovers, missed shots and a total breakdown of Orlando's offense.

Suddenly the Magic's lead went 'poof,' disappearing more quickly than a Jordan steal, length-of-the-court dribble and acrobatic, tongue-wagging dunk.

Orlando became so discombobulated it managed only 35 second-half points Tuesday night and the Bulls pulled out a 93-88 victory that gives them a 2-0 lead in the best-of-7 series.

"Needless to say it was a very difficult basketball game for us to lose," said Orlando coach Brian Hill, whose team lost by 38 in the opener.

"We lost our aggressiveness on offense. We began looking to pass backwards."

The Bulls trapped ballhandlers and doubled O'Neal, forcing the huge center to pass. He'd hurt them with 26 first-half points, mostly in 1-on-1 coverage.

"In the first half, they played with a lot of rhythm in the way they got the ball into Shaq," said Jordan, who had 35 points one day after winning his fourth MVP Award.

"But once we were able to put that press on, they lost the fluidity. It takes a lot of energy to play the press. When we were down 18 points, we had no choice."

O'Neal, who had 36 points and 16 rebounds, hit a short hook to give the Magic a 64-46 lead with 6:17 left in the third quarter.

Then came the collapse.

Orlando missed 11 of 12 shots, had five turnovers and Jordan scored nine points to spark a 26-5 Chicago run. That gave the Bulls a three-point lead. Orlando came back and regained the lead, but never the poise it had earlier in the game.

"We had a lot of careless turnovers," O'Neal said. "When I was doubled, I just had to give up the ball and shots weren't falling."

"Anytime you have a lead like that, man, you just got to take care of the ball. ... But they (the shots) will fall at home. No need to panic now."

Eleven of the Magic's 17 turnovers came in the second half.

Penny Hardaway, the Magic's other star, had 38 points in Game 1. But he was limited to 18 Tuesday night on 6-for-15 shooting and he managed to get off only one fourth-quarter shot.

"I told myself I picked the wrong day, the biggest game, to not be ready to play. And it cost us the victory," Hardaway said.

Games 3 and 4 are in Orlando on Saturday and Monday. The Magic hope to be bolstered by the return of Horace Grant, who missed Tuesday night's game with a hyperextended left elbow.

"Orlando has to be very disappointed," said Bulls coach Phil Jackson. "They played well for 2 1/2 quarters. Now they have a chance to go home and maybe get Horace back for Saturday's game. They play very well at home. We have to go to Orlando and find a way to win a game."

Orlando came back to take an 81-79 lead on O'Neal's layup with four minutes left, but the Bulls scored the next nine points — 15-foot jumpers by Jordan and Steve Kerr, two free throws by Randy Brown, a foul shot by Dennis Rodman and a layup by Scottie Pippen — for an 88-81 advantage with 41 seconds left.

Jordan wrapped up the win with four free throws, giving him 12-for-12 in the second half and 15 of 16 from the line for the game.

"Any time you allow Michael Jordan to go to the line 16 times, we are not going to have a chance," Hill said. "Every time he drove to the basket, we got called for a foul, even though he initiates the contact."

Pippen finished with 17 points, 10 rebounds and nine assists and Dennis Rodman had a season-high 15 points and 12 rebounds. Orlando's Dennis Scott, scoreless in Game 1, scored 13. But Nick Anderson, who had just two points in the opener, continued to struggle, shooting 3-for-11 and scoring nine.

Once again, Orlando's 3-point shooting was off. The Magic made only 4 of 19 and in the two games are just 9 of 35.

Major Bambino team has perfect record at season's halfway mark

PAMPA — Solid pitching, solid hitting and solid defense provided Glo-Valve with a 9-1 win over Dyers Bar-B-Que Tuesday and a perfect 7-0 record at the half-way point of the Optimist Major Bambino League.

Matt Driscoll and Zach Windhorst lead the way for the Glo-Valve hitters. Driscoll hammered a home run as one of his two hits, scored three runs and had three RBI. Windhorst was two for two including a triple, with a run scored and two RBI.

Randy Tice raised his pitching record to 4-0 allowing one run and three hits in four innings pitched. He struck out nine and walked one. Driscoll relieved in the fifth. He struck out five, walked one and hit one batter allowing no runs or hits.

Tice hit the game's first pitch for a double and stole third as Nathanael Hill drew a walk. Hill stole second. Walks to Justin Waggoner, Driscoll and Erik Brown plated three runs. Driscoll scored on a passed ball to make the score 4-0.

Glo-Valve added to its lead two innings later as Waggoner again walked. Driscoll followed with a home run over the scoreboard for 6-0 Glo-Valve lead.

A double by Tyson Moree and a triple by Ryan Nash in the bottom of the third narrowed the score to 9-1.

Ryan Zemanek lead off the Glo-Valve fourth inning with a double and scored on Windhorst's triple. Windhorst tallied on a wild pitch.

With two out in the sixth inning, Driscoll singled. He took second on a wild pitch and closed the scoring on a single by Windhorst.

Glo-Valve's second baseman, Nathanael Hill, made a sensational jumping catch of a rocket hit by Keenan Davis, who had doubled his first time up. Not to be outdone, Dyers' Chris White knocked down a smash by Driscoll with the bases loaded and nipped a runner at second to thwart a potential Glo-Valve rally.

Both teams played well defensively as only one error was committed during the game. Dyers' ended the first half with a 5-2 record.

Tigers' record falls to woeful 12-34

By The Associated Press

At least the Detroit Tigers didn't allow any home runs.

The Tigers take small accomplishments where they find them. Tuesday's 7-1 loss to the Kansas City Royals dropped them to 12-34 and left their ERA at 7.35.

"I just want to have a chance to win," Tigers manager Buddy Bell said after Detroit's seventh straight loss, its 27th in 31 games. "It seems like we're never in a position to do so."

Remarkably, Detroit allowed at least one homer in each of its 18 previous games at Tiger Stadium this season.

It's not just the pitching that stinks. The Tigers' team batting average is .246, the worst in the AL.

"It's a combination of us not being very close most of the time and their pitchers not having any pressure on them to make a pitch," Bell said.

In other games, Seattle beat Boston 13-7; New York beat Oakland 7-3; Cleveland beat Milwaukee 6-5; Chicago beat Toronto 2-1; California beat Baltimore 5-2 and Minnesota beat Texas 4-3.

Doug Linton (1-1) got his first victory since June 17, 1994. He allowed one run and four hits in six innings, struck out five and walked one. Julio Valera finished with hitless relief for his first save.

Linton, who had shoulder surgery in 1987, said he didn't pitch again without pain until three years later.

"Ever since, it seems I pick up a mile an hour a year on my fastball," Linton said. "I'm not the hard thrower I used to be. I just have to realize that I have good stuff when it's down in the (strike) zone."

Brian Williams (0-3) gave up three runs and nine hits in six innings.

Mariners 13, Red Sox 7
Ken Griffey Jr. became the seventh-youngest player to hit 200 homers and Jay Buhner homered for the fifth straight game.

Griffey's three-run shot and Buhner's two-run homer came in a six-run fourth at Fenway Park that wiped out Boston's 5-4 lead. Seattle had 19 hits, four by Edgar Martinez.

Bob Wells (3-1) allowed one run in 4 1-3 innings. Vaughn Eshelman (0-1) was tagged for six runs and five hits in two-thirds of an inning.

Yankees 7, Athletics 3
Dwight Gooden, coming off a no-hitter, gave up a hit three batters into the game. He won his third straight start. Gooden (2-3) allowed three runs and six hits in seven innings, struck out seven and walked one.

Tim Lincecum hit a leadoff homer at Yankee Stadium. Wade Boggs, out since May 15 due to a bad back, had three hits.

Austin athlete faces tough Olympic odds

AUSTIN (AP) — Austin pentathlete Rob Stull knows he's behind late in the competition. But the three-time Olympian hasn't counted himself out of this year's games in Atlanta.

After suffering what could have been a career-ending injury, the 35-year-old Stull this weekend is competing in Italy for a spot on the Puerto Rican modern pentathlon team.

The two-day qualifying event in Rome is the last of four, in which more than 30 men are competing for seven remaining spots in the Olympic field of 32.

The one-day, modern pentathlon, which will be held on July 30, includes a 4.5-mm air pistol event consisting of 20 shots fired at 20 targets; one-minute, electronic-touch fencing bouts; a 300-meter freestyle swim; a 450-meter horse ride over 12 jumps, including a double jump and a triple jump; and a 4,000-meter, handicapped cross-country run.

Competitors earn points for each event and the athlete with the most points after four events starts first in the handicapped run. The first athlete to cross the finish line wins.

Local journalist named to Media Honor Roll

AUSTIN - Chip Chandler was named to the Media Honor Roll, a program sponsored by Leadership Texas Association of School Boards project team, by Lefors Independent School District.

The Media Honor Roll recognizes media representatives statewide who deserve recognition for fair and balanced reporting of news at public schools. Reporters representing more than 300 Texas newspapers and radio and television stations were honored by 163 local school districts.

Criteria for the nomination included media representative's efforts to get to know the superintendent, board president and the district's mission and goals; report school news in a fair, accurate and balanced manner; give a high profile to positive news about schools; visit the schools; and maintain a policy of no surprises by sharing information with school officials.

"Districts across Texas appreciate these reporters for their balanced and accurate approach to sharing both the challenges facing our schools and the successes achieved by local teachers and students. Their work aids local communities in focusing on the goal of providing the best public schools we can for every child," said Robert Key, a member of the Leadership TASB project team.

In most cases, local school boards passed a formal resolution to add names of media from their communities. The Media Honor Roll will appear in the May issue of Texas Lone Star, and certificates were created for presentation at the local level.

The Media Honor Roll was initiated by a Leadership TASB project team of board members that included Martha Keith from Hunt ISD; Joe Rios, Jim Hogg County ISD; Debbie Porter, Pleasant Grove ISD; Rebecca-Ann Taulton, Mexia ISD; Robert Key, Coppell ISD; and Clarence Bailey, Longview ISD.

Leadership TASB is a development program designed by school board members for school board members. The program is open to all Texas trustees who have fulfilled 30 hours of certified school board member training credit and have demonstrated leadership ability on their local board and in their community.

Eleventh child of grocer graduates from university

DALLAS (AP) — Imagine trying to raise a family of 15 kids.

Also, imagine sending up to 14 to a top-dollar private university for an education in the family faith.

"We finally made it," said Albert Ostermann.

The semiretired Windthorst grocer and his wife, Adeline, could imagine nothing less. So when the University of Dallas presented their 22-year-old son, Louis, with his bachelor's degree in theology, it also had something for his parents — an engraved silver bowl.

Louis, the Ostermann's youngest child, is the 14th of the Ostermanns' 15 children to attend the small Roman Catholic liberal arts school and the 11th to graduate. And he did so with honors.

The Ostermanns have been a fixture at the 3,000-student university for most of the past 27 of the school's 40 years.

"There have been families that have sent four or five kids (to UD), but never anything like this," said UD spokesman Alan Van Zelfden.

Judge refuses to try suspect in desert killings

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — Prosecutors will appeal a judge's decision not to try a man on charges he killed one of 17 young women found slain on the city's outskirts.

For the second time in the case against Sharif Sharif, Judge Netzahualcoyotl Zuniga said there isn't enough evidence to link the suspect to one of the killings.

The judge ruled Friday that evidence collected against Sharif in the slaying of Olga Alicia Carrillo Perez, 20, is mostly hearsay, according to Tuesday's El Paso Herald-Post.

For months, Sharif was considered the sole suspect in the case and he remained a central figure even though the killings continued while he was in prison. Authorities say he has been linked to nine alleged gang members who were indicted last month in seven of the slayings, including some of those committed after Sharif's arrest in October.

Authorities are protesting the judge's ruling.

Welfare recipients to be fingerprinted in test program

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Welfare recipients in Bexar and Guadalupe counties will be fingerprinted this fall under a test program to verify eligibility for state services.

State Comptroller John Sharp is expected to discuss the program today, along with other innovations in welfare fraud prevention, at a daylong seminar in Austin.

The $270,000 pilot fingerprinting project, scheduled to begin Sept. 1, will use state-of-the-art technology to verify eligibility for state welfare services in the two test counties, Sharp's office said.

Toys R Us toy store faces possible antitrust charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Facing possible antitrust action by the government, Toys R Us says its buying practices are designed to protect its investment in the industry, not to bully manufacturers.

Federal Trade Commission staff members have recommended that antitrust charges be filed against Toys R Us, the nation's largest toy seller, amid complaints that it pressures makers not to sell to rival retailers, particularly discount stores, The Wall Street Journal reported Tuesday.

The five-member commission is scheduled to meet today, but agency spokeswoman Bonnie Jansen declined Tuesday to discuss its agenda.

She also declined to comment on the published report, which said the FTC began investigating the toy industry two years ago to determine how the practices of manufacturers and retailers affect prices.

One of those complaining about Toys R Us is Price-Costco Inc., a warehouse shopping club based in Issaquah, Wash., the Journal reported.

Telephones at the warehouse club's offices rang unanswered Tuesday.

Toys R Us invests millions of dollars yearly to develop and promote toys, Michael Goldstein, Toys R Us chief executive officer, said in a statement.

Then warehouse clubs that aren't as tied to the industry show up a few weeks before Christmas, choose the hottest-selling items and sell them at or below cost to attract shoppers, he said.

"Given that behavior, and Toys R Us' contribution to the industry, we have told manufacturers that we reserve our unquestionable right to refuse to carry the same items as warehouse clubs," Goldstein said.
