Brilab probe unfolds

By ROB WOOD

Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — An FBI agent testified today that the undercover Brilab probe moved into Texas when word was received that a Houston labor official "would accept bribes."

Special Agent Bill Fleming of Los Angeles told a federal court jury that the information was passed along to informant Joseph Hauser, who in turn advised federal officers.

Fleming, the second witness called in the Brilab trial of Texas House Speaker Billy Clayton and Austin lawyers Randall Wood and Donald Ray, said Hauser got the information from a Texas insurance executive.

Fleming identified the Houston labor official as Harold Grubbs, education director for Pipefitters Local 211.

Grubbs was questioned earlier this year by a federal grand jury investigating the Brilab operation.

Hauser, who was described by Fleming as "a pretty fair con man," is a key witness in the Clayton-Wood-Ray trial.

Grubbs has not been indicted and no charges have been filed against him. He has been subpoenaed to appear as a government witness.

On Wednesday, Justice Department lawyer Bruce Kelton testified that Hauser could be considered "a central figure in insurance fraud in the United States."

The defense made it clear they would attempt to prove that Hauser was "trying to land a big fish in the investigation" so he would get a short prison term on his second conviction involving insurance schemes.

Kelton said Hauser had received a 30-month sentence on the first conviction, but on the second charge — filed in Phoenix, Ariz. — had pleaded guilty and agreed to work with the FBI Brilab, so-called for "Bribery-Labor."

After the Brilab probe, Hauser was given two years on the guilty plea, but this was to run concurrently with the previous sentence.

Kelton also testified that this meant Hauser wouldn't have to serve a single extra day in jail.

The justice department lawyer also said Hauser was paid over $50,000 for his assistance, including $1,500 a month for apartment rent.

Clayton, Wood and Ray were indicted June 12 by a federal grand jury on charges of extortion, racketeering, fraud and conspiracy in an alleged insurance kickback scheme.

Also charged was L.G. Moore of Deer Park, regional director of the International Operating Engineers Union. He will be tried later.

In answer to another question, Kelton said the government estimated Hauser may have taken in as much as $5 million in his various operations, and that he had been involved in a Swiss bank account, although not under the name of Hauser.

Earlier, in opening arguments, Roy Minton, Clayton's attorney, said the FBI used "lies, put together a sham, and misrepresented things" in an effort to get an indictment against Clayton.

He said the "government actually attempted to create a crime where there is no crime. I am personally offended by the action of my government."

"No one in the FBI ever heard anything bad about Speaker Clayton. He had never even cheated at marbles."

Assistant U.S. Attorney Ron Woods said the secret Brilab tapes "will let you hear this crime unfold. You will get an insight into Texas politics."

Paraguay hunts guerilla squad

ASUNCION, Paraguay (AP) — Paraguayan authorities pressed a massive manhunt today for the guerrilla squad that assassinated ousted Nicaraguan dictator Anastasio Somoza in a hail of machine-gun and bazooka fire only through his wristwatch.

Somoza's financial adviser and chauffeur also died in the Wednesday morning attack in the Paraguayan capital.

Police closed the Asuncion airport and sealed the country's borders with Argentina and Brazil in an effort to keep the attackers from leaving the country. Paraguayan authorities say they think six people took part in the fusillade that left the 54-year-old Somoza riddled with some two dozen bullets and his limousine demolished.

Authorities say Somoza's bodyguards, who returned the attackers fire from a car trailing the ousted strongman's limousine, wounded one of the assailants. The government has called on citizens to report anyone seeking medical attention for a bullet wound.

The right-wing government of Paraguayan President Alfredo Stroessner, the friend who granted Somoza asylum after his ouster by Nicaragua's Sandinista guerrillas in 1979, distributed photographs of a man and a woman believed to have taken part in the ambush. The two, identified as Hugo Alfredo Iruzun and Silvia Mercedes Hodgers, were described as members of the Peoples Revolutionary Army, a left-wing Argentine guerrilla group.

Officials offered a reward of $40,000 for information leading to the capture of the two, whose photos were picked out of police files by witnesses to the slaying.

Police said several persons had been arrested for "investigation in connection with the assassination." They gave no details.

Interior Minister Augusto Montanaro described the slaying as "a criminal attack almost certainly perpetrated by a group of foreign terrorists heavily armed with bazookas, automatic rifles and pistols of U.S. fabrication."

In Washington, the Carter administration, accused by Somoza of contributing to his downfall by failing to provide support, reacted with caution. "Naturally we deplore any assassination no matter where it occurs or who is affected," said spokesman John Trotter.

Nicaraguans by the thousands greeted news of Somoza's death by pouring into the streets for celebrations. Violeta Chamorro, the widow of slain journalist Joaquin Chamorro, said: "Sooner or later God had to do justice." Chamorro's death, blamed on Somoza's government, sparked the final, bloody uprising which toppled Somoza in July 1979 and ended 43 years of Somoza family rule in Nicaragua.

Somoza's mangled body was taken from a hospital to the villa where he had lived with his mistress, Dinorah Sampson — a Nicaraguan — and an undetermined number of bodyguards. The woman was taken to the hospital to identify the body, but was unable to recognize it, police said. She identified on his arm a wristwatch he customarily wore.

The Paraguayan government identified the other men killed as driver-bodyguard Cesar Gallardo, a Nicaraguan, and financial adviser Joseph Peitner, a Colombian.

Sources said Somoza's son Anastasio, a former colonel in the Nicaraguan National Guard, would arrive in the Paraguayan capital today. They would not discount the possibility that he would take his father's body to Miami for burial. Somoza first fled Nicaragua for Miami, where he owned considerable real estate, but left the United States to avoid the possibility of extradition.

The attack occurred at 10 a.m. as Somoza, Peitner and Gallardo followed by three bodyguards in an escort car, left the walled villa on a trip to downtown Asuncion some 15 to 20 minutes away.

The two cars had gone only seven blocks when they were intercepted by Chevrolet pickup with three occupants who opened fire with automatic weapons at Somoza's vehicle, police said.

The bodyguards in the escort car immediately returned the fire, but Somoza's car suddenly exploded, hit by a bazooka shell fired from a nearby house, police and witnesses said.

Several more explosions were heard, witnesses said, and the pickup sped out of sight. The vehicle was found abandoned several blocks away. It contained a bazooka, several submachine guns and pistols, wigs and jackets, police said.

Nugent says lignite future energy source

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Railroad Commissioner James Nugent offered the hazy prediction today that Texas — the nation's leading oil and gas producing state — may rely more on lignite than oil and gas in the year 2000 to produce electricity.

The major redistribution of the use of energy resources will be a good thing, Nugent told oil and gas executives, because lignite cannot be hauled very economically and "those damn Yankees can't get it up to the Northeast."

Nugent addressed the statewide oil allowable hearing after the commission routinely set the market production factor for October at 100 percent.

October will be the 100th month for virtual all-out production since a 100 percent allowable was first ordered in April 1972.

As usual, however, the huge East Texas Field was restricted to 86 percent production to avoid possible waste.

Nugent said although major buyers of Texas crude oil asked for 9,000 more barrels a day for October than this month, "we have no indications that there is a leveling off or reversal of the production decline in Texas. Other energy sources are an absolute necessity."

Since 1970, he said, lignite coal production has gone from just over two million tons to 31 million tons this year and is expected to reach 50 million tons by 1983.

In 1978, he said, oil and gas was used to produce 72 percent of the state's electricity. Imported coal and lignite produced 28 percent. There was no nuclear power generation.

By 1985, nuclear power is expected to produce 8 percent of the state's electricity, with oil and gas furnishing 54 percent and coal and lignite 38 percent.

By the year 2000 — "looking through a smoky glass" — the commission projects major redistribution of power sources for electricity generation: nuclear 8 percent, imported coal 25 percent, Texas lignite 40 percent and oil and gas down to 27 percent.

Major buyers of Texas crude requested 2,617,096 barrels a day in October, an increase of 9,163 barrels a day from September.

Venue considered in Smith life insurance suit

By DEBORAH BRIDGES

Staff Writer

A motion for a change of venue in a civil trial to decide the recipient of $200,000 life insurance benefits from the policy on Dennis Lee Smith will be considered by attorneys for Cathy Darlene Smith and Smith's parents, Betty Hayden and William Smith.

Mrs. Smith's attorney, John White said he will be meeting soon with the attorney for the parents of Dennis Smith, Ross Buzzard, to determine a hearing date on White's change of venue motion.

A tentative jury trial date of Oct. 20 has been set by 23rd District Judge Don Cain. Ron Rogers, Department of Public Safety polygraph examiner, and Wayne Williams — both witnesses in Mrs. Smith's recent murder trial — have been summoned to appear at the civil trial.

In White's petition for the venue change — included in the Gray County District Clerk's file on the suit — are affidavits claiming the publicity concerning Cathy Smith's voluntary manslaughter conviction in the Jan. 13 shooting death of her husband has prejudiced Gray County residents against her.

The insurance company, Western National Life Insurance of Amarillo, filed the civil suit in April after Mrs. Smith and Smith's parents presented cross-claims for the life insurance benefits.

Mrs. Smith claimed the $200,000 as the named beneficiary on the one-year-old, decreasing term policy. Smith's parents, Hayden and Smith, claimed the benefits under the provisions of Article 21.23 of the Texas Insurance Code regarding the forfeiture of the beneficiary's rights. The article says, in part, that the beneficiary's rights are forfeited: "... when the beneficiary is the principal or accomplice in willfully bringing about the death of the insured."

Under a court order, the disputed $200,000 was placed in an account until the disposition of the insurance money is decided.

In a summary judgment on July 2, Judge Cain ruled there was "an absence of a genuine issue of any material fact between Western National Life Insurance Company and the cross-defendants." At that time, according to the court records, Western National was removed from the suit.

Mrs. Smith, 29, was convicted of voluntary manslaughter on Aug. 22 by a jury of ten women and two men after a four-day trial in Lipscomb. Tuesday, she was formally sentenced to from two to five years in the state penitentiary by 31st District Judge Grainger McIlhany.

The verdict is presently on appeal with the Criminal Court of Appeals in Austin.

White said it may be up to three years before the case is heard by the appellate court.

Mrs. Smith is currently free on a $15,000 appeal bond.

White said the findings of the civil jury would "clear the question of responsibility for the death of Dennis Smith."

Regarding the effect of the civil suit's verdict, District Attorney Harold Comer said, "The results of the civil action will have no effect whatever on the criminal conviction."

A nine-digit ZIP!?!

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite complaints Americans will be driven "digit dizzy," a U.S. Postal Service official says ZIP codes will be expanded to nine numbers for all the nation's 79 million addresses by the end of next year.

Michael S. Coughlin, assistant postmaster general, told a House Government Operations subcommittee that a major benefit of the longer code will be increased efficiency and "longer periods of time between rate increases."

"We hope!" was the skeptical reply of Rep. David Evans, D-Ind., who chaired the hearing into the ZIP code change.

The Postal Service plans to begin distributing new code assignments — adding four new digits to the present code — next February. Large-volume mailers are first on the list, with home addresses to be included by the end of the year.

"Z stands for Zip-posterous," declared Ray Geiger, editor of the Farmers' Almanac, who has spearheaded a nationwide campaign to zap the new ZIP. ZIP stands for Zone Improvement Program.

"What you're telling us is to zap the nine-digit code to keep us from getting digit dizzy," said Rep. Richardson Preyer, D-N.C.

Geiger, in his blast against the expanded ZIP codes, also said that if any of the complicated computers needed to read the longer code ever broke down, mail would be sent flying pell-mell across the country.

Geiger said the firm that publishes the Farmers' Almanac, which has a circulation of 6 million copies in the United States and Canada, also has mailing lists for other products. He estimated it would cost Geiger Bros. up to $30,000 to change the ZIP codes.

Coughlin said the new code will enable post offices to process the mail more easily, more quickly and more accurately.

No connection found in Texas - Louisiana rapes

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Investigators trailing a man who has raped at least 16 West Texas women say there is nothing to link cases here to similar brutal attacks in Shreveport, La.

Two Shreveport investigators, armed with stacks of reports on the local assaults, flew here this week to compare notes with officers pursuing the "Traveling Rapist."

But after two days of discussions, investigators from both states decided there was no connection, said Hal Hensley of the Lubbock District Attorney's office.

"We pondered over it and spent all morning talking about it," Hensley said Wednesday night. "It's not there. There are some similarities, but the similarities are not strong enough to lead us to believe there is a probability or even a possibility that it's one and the same."

Earlier this week Shreveport Capt. Sam Burns said news accounts of the West Texas "Traveling Rapist" described attacks similar to rapes occurring in his city.

Hensley said the "Traveling Rapist" preys on single women who usually live alone. He wears a ski mask, cotton gloves, carries a flashlight and is armed with either a knife or a gun, Hensley said.

The attacks have occurred in Lubbock, Amarillo, Abilene and Fort Worth over the last nine months, Hensley said.

Competitive disadvantage claimed by Bell

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Inflation and increased competition have made it tougher for AT&T to attract the money it needs to keep the phones connected, says a Florida finance professor.

Eugene Brigham of the University of Florida was the second witness for Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. as it tried to convince a Public Utility Commission hearing examiner Wednesday that the company needs the $326.3 million it requested.

The professor testified the Bell System may have to fight its new competitors with "one hand tied behind its back."

"At this point, investors' behavior indicates that they have begun to perceive AT&T's investment risk to be comparable to that of the large industrial companies," Brigham said in pre-filed testimony.

Those other large industries do not have to operate under the maze of regulations that Bell faces, he contended.

"Telephone utilities are required to provide a prescribed level of basic telephone service to all new and existing customers in their service areas. Industrial firms ... have no obligation to expand. They can defer expansion, abandon unprofitable products or markets," he said.

Assassination group says Oswald theory 'dubious'

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The counsel for the House Assassinations Committee says the panel thought claims that Lee Harvey Oswald had been replaced by a Soviet spy so dubious that it purposely avoided questioning the author who promotes the impostor theory.

Michael Eddowes advanced the theory in his book, "The Oswald File," and has fought numerous legal battles to exhumate the body.

A judge may rule Friday on whether the body buried in Rose Hill Burial Park here should be unearthed.

Robert Blakey, former general counsel for the assassinations committee, said the committee purposely skirted Eddowes to avoid publicizing issues it concluded were of dubious importance.

"It was so preposterous and so far off that we did not want to give him (Eddowes) space in our limited hearings," Blakey said. "This kind of publicity in Fort Worth now does a disservice to the American people."

"Apart from this agony it causes the Oswald family, people ought to say, — people in the position to know — how evil this suit is. There is no merit. There is nothing to be gained by digging that man up except harm to his family."

Michael Goldsmith, senior staff counsel for the committee from 1977-79 said he is sure there was no substitution while Oswald was in Russia.

"There is no question at all that the Lee Harvey Oswald who came back from Russia in 1962 is the same one who defected to Russia in 1959," said Goldsmith, now a visiting law professor at Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn.

Both men say questioning the identity of the body only deflects attention from a more important question: Who assassinated President John F. Kennedy on Nov. 22, 1963?

"The conclusion of the committee was that two people were shooting at President Kennedy in Dallas, and sidesteps like this one now going on in Fort Worth divert from the central question," said Blakey, now a law professor at Notre Dame University.

Marina Oswald Porter, Oswald's widow, has given Eddowes permission to open the grave. But Robert Oswald, a Wichita Falls businessman, filed suit to halt the exhumation.

A court official said Wednesday that State District Judge James Wright had told him he would rule on the lawsuit Friday.

However, it may be some time before the question is settled. Attorneys for both sides have said they would appeal if Wright rules against them. And after appeal avenues are exhausted, a suit requiring a lengthy hearing on a permanent injunction could be filed.

Wednesday, sources said the FBI had contacted attorneys in the case, asking for permission to observe the exhumation and autopsy as an "impartial observer."

The FBI, however, declined to comment.

"We have no objections (to the FBI being present) at this time under the circumstances," said Eddowes' Dallas attorney, Jerry Pittman.

Pittman said Blakey and Goldsmith probably have not read Eddowes' book or examined his claims.

"They basically are just writing him off without examining his study of the evidence," he said.

Blakey said in three separate tests, fingerprints, photographs and handwriting samples taken before and after Oswald's defection were judged identical by experts.

"The only thing that could be done to add to it would be to look at his dental X-rays and anybody crazy enough to believe one Oswald went to Russia and another came back is not going to be satisfied with the dental X-rays, either."

Billy Carter calls to Libya show extensive communications

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Almost immediately after learning last spring that White House officials knew of his planned Libyan oil deal, Billy Carter began placing telephone calls to an oil consultant and Libyan officials, telephone records obtained by Senate investigators indicate.

The records were released at a special Senate subcommittee hearing Wednesday at which White House national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski hotly denied trying to cut Billy Carter's Libyan connection to keep it from damaging President Carter's re-election chances.

The panel has scheduled no further hearings in its investigation of Billy Carter's activities and his refusal to register as a foreign agent until Justice Department investigators learned he had received $220,000 from the radical Arab government.

The telephone records — of calls believed to have been made by Billy Carter — show calls last April 1 and 2 to New York oil consultant Jack McGregor and to Libya, where Carter's associate, Henry "Randy" Coleman, was negotiating the oil deal.

On April 1, Brzezinski warned Billy Carter that Libya might exploit the deal to damage U.S. foreign policy and embarrass the president. The president's brother testified earlier that he assumed Brzezinski's call meant his telephone had been bugged, but he denied he told Libyans about the conversation or his suspicion.

Philip W. Tone, special counsel to the subcommittee, said his investigators are tracing the calls to determine whether they were relevant to the case.

Brzezinski testified Wednesday that he learned of Billy Carter's projected oil deal from an intelligence report brought to his attention by CIA Director Stansfield Turner. When he complained about it to the president's brother, Brzezinski said, he was told to mind his own business.

The records show that four minutes after talking with Brzezinski, a call was placed from Billy Carter's home in Buena Vista, Ga., to McGregor, an old friend from the Marine Corps who had suggested a Libyan deal.

Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, the subcommittee's ranking Republican, charged that Brzezinski, Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti and Turner all worked to keep the Billy Carter matter from becoming a political issue.

"I consider those to be a series of groundless assertions," Brzezinski replied.

"There is substantial evidence," Thurmond continued, "that you were acting as the president's political troubleshooter, trying to prevent Billy from doing something that would hurt the political fortunes of the president."

"I consider that to be a highly improper insinuation, an innuendo that is not justified by the facts," Brzezinski said.

Cullen Davis back in court

DALLAS (AP) — A name and face familiar to the inside of Texas courtrooms was back in court today for the second day of a hearing on his ex-wife's request for additional child support.

Fort Worth millionaire industrialist Cullen Davis is being asked to increase the monthly allowance for his two natural sons, Thomas Cullen Davis, 17, and Brian Davis, 15.

The hearing began Wednesday and was to continue today.

Davis stood trial and was found innocent of a murder charge in connection with the August, 1976 shooting death of his step-daughter, Andrea Wilborn, and Stan Farr, the lover of his other ex-wife, Priscilla Davis. Priscilla Davis and two other persons were wounded in the shooting death at his $6 million mansion in Fort Worth. Davis later stood trial on a charge of conspiring to murder the judge who was presiding over a divorce trial. He was found innocent.

Mrs. Sandra Davis' lawyers noted that the original divorce decree in 1968 required that Davis pay only $150 per month in child support and $2,000 per month to Mrs. Davis.

The lawyers for Sandra Davis noted that while Davis had voluntarily begun paying an additional $1,000 per month in child support, they want the payments increased to $12,000 per month.

Lawyers for the ex-wife painted a differing picture of the lifestyle of Davis and his latest wife, Karen Master, and her children, and the lifestyle of Sandra Davis and the two children.

"We have all read about Mrs. Davis' lavish lifestyle.

While his kids are living in penury, he lives in luxury. While he lives in a $6 million home with servants bumping into each other, his own children live in very straight circumstances," said lawyer William C. Koons, who represents Sandra Davis.

"He has bought his new wife, Karen, a Thunderbird, a Cadillac and a $39,000 Mercedes Benz, while the mother of his children drives a 1975 Pontiac she can't afford to fix the air conditioning on," Koons added.

"His sons deserve to live in the style that their step-brothers are living in. We are asking that they be allowed to live in a $1 million house, and we are not ashamed of it," Koons continued.

Midway through Koons' remarks to Judge Linda Thomas, Jack Pate, who represents Davis, stood up and asked, "How much longer are we going to have to listen to this bull?"

Seaborne Israelis attack Palestinian guerrillas

By The Associated Press
Seaborne Israeli troops attacked Palestinian guerrilla targets near the southern Lebanese coastal city of Tyre in a raid aimed at heading off terror raids against the Jewish state, the Tel Aviv military command said today.

A spokesman said the raiders destroyed several guerrilla buildings and vehicles near the guerrilla-controlled Mediterranean port, 12 miles north of the Israeli-Lebanese frontier.

A communique said the Israelis suffered no casualties in the Wednesday night action. It gave no account of guerrilla losses.

In Beirut, a spokesman for Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization said guerrilla gunfire foiled the Israeli ground attack, which was accompanied by an artillery barrage from Israeli batteries on land and at sea.

The Israeli spokesman said guerrilla counter-fire was "sporadic and ineffective."

The PLO spokesman said guerrillas fired several Soviet-made Katyusha rockets at the Israeli town of Metulla in the northern Galilee panhandle "to avenge the aggression against Tyre."

The Tel Aviv spokesman denied any rockets were fired at Israel's northernmost town.

Israel said the attack was the latest in a series of "pre-emptive actions against terrorists in the area (southern Lebanon) to disrupt terrorist actions against Israel."

The United States and other countries have sharply condemned Israel's program of pre-emptive attacks.

In Washington on Wednesday, Secretary of State Edmund Muskie discussed the pre-emptive raids with Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir. Shamir told reporters he gave Muskie "some explanations. I think, satisfactory." He did not elaborate.

Meanwhile, the foreign ministers of the world's Islamic countries were to begin a conference today in Fez, Morocco to map plans for a PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Former Yippie leader Abbie Hoffman says he wants to donate most of the money from his forthcoming book to his "Save the River" Committee.

Hoffman was in Portland for a taping of the Phil Donahue talk show for broadcast today.

The Internal Revenue Service has slapped a lien on the earnings Hoffman could make from his book, "Soon To Be A Major Motion Picture."

Hoffman said he would like most of the money, if released, to go to his St. Lawrence River environmental group.

"Every single penny is assigned to people," Hoffman said. "I suppose I'll make some money on it."

Hoffman had been a fugitive since 1974 after jumping bail on a charge he sold cocaine to an undercover police officer in 1973. He was released from jail in New York on Tuesday after posting $10,000 of a $25,000 bail.

That 'good ol' boy' caused a lot of grief

Who believes the Justice Department would have countenanced Billy Carter's liaison with the Libyan government with such Job-like patience were he not the president's brother?

It took 22 months to get Billy to register as an agent of the Libyan government and to admit that he had been paid $220,000 for his work. What he may have accomplished on behalf of Libya is unclear, but it certainly was worth that much money to Libyan strongman Moammar Khadafi — no friend of the United States — to give the world the embarrassing spectacle of the president's brother signing up as a foreign agent.

The incident would have been less damaging to the presidential image if the Justice Department had acted more swiftly to force Billy Carter's compliance with the law. As it was, a civil suit was filed, rather than a criminal prosecution, and nearly two years were required to induce Billy to acknowledge his foreign entanglements.

Unfortunately, Billy is not the only Carter connection with Arab money. While Billy was playing footsie with Khadafi, Bert Lance, the family banker, seriously compromised the president by a deal with Saudi Arabians.

At the very time President Carter was being pressured to sell Saudi Arabia 60 F-15 warplanes, Saudi interest bought control of Lance's National Bank of Georgia for $2.4 million. Why the Arabs would want to buy a country bank in Georgia is uncertain, but the president was personally liable for a $830,000 debt in the bank.

Arab purchase of the bank, which had made large loans to the Carter family peanut business in Plains, would have left a bad taste under any circumstances, but the F-15 deal was consummated within a month after Lance had sold out to the Saudis. Three months later, the bank renegotiated its loan with the Carters at a savings to the president's family of $60,000.

The American people don't expect much of Billy Carter, the good ol' boy from Plains, except a bit of comedy, perhaps. No one is much surprised, therefore, at his hiring himself out for deals that exploit his White House connection.

The president has to be burning under the collar, however, for here is just one more thing to drag him down further in the polls.

Carter's military pretense

Recently, a journalist telephoned the White House to inquire about President Carter's flip-flop on pay raises for the skilled enlisted personnel and young officers now leaving military services in droves. The public relations specialist who answered the phone began by assuring the caller that the Joint Chiefs of Staff were in full support of the administration's defense policies.

Nonsense. The list of Carter decisions opposed in whole or in part by the Joint Chiefs would easily fill the rest of this column. Yet, the general public knows little more about the opinions of the Joint Chiefs than President Carter chooses to announce. And, as one might guess, Carter and his key defense aides treat the private views of the Joint Chiefs as though they were state secrets.

By law, the Joint Chiefs of Staff serve as the principal military advisers to the president, the National Security Council and the secretary of defense. And, by tradition, JCS members are almost always team players loathe to complain publicly when their considered judgments are overruled.

Thus, Jimmy Carter can, and frequently does, cite the chiefs' public and essentially pro forma expressions of confidence in the nation's military strength as "proof" that we are adequately defended. The tactic is persuasive enough to dilute the impact of knowledgeable critics, including legions of retired generals and flag officers, who insist that the United States faces the equivalent of a national defense emergency.

All of this poses a difficult, delicate dilemma for the service chiefs. Where, after all, is the dividing line between appropriate submission to civilian policy and authority, and their professional charge to warn Congress and the public when the policy endangers national security?

Reasonable men can, of course, differ. But it seems clear that any service chief who believes his forces inadequate to support national policy has an obligation to say so, and in public if necessary. The chief may be wrong, but at least the issue has entered the public discourse.

At least one member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff has reached that point. Adm. Thomas B. Hayward, chief of naval operations, has begun to differ with President Carter with commendable candor and no small amount of courage.

Last spring, Hayward lobbied hard for increased pay and benefits for career Navy personnel as the only way to stem what he aptly termed a "hemorrhage of talent." This summer, the admiral declared that a "one-and-a-half ocean fleet" cannot meet the nation's need for a three-ocean Navy.

It is safe to assume that the White House has resented these public statements, which so dramatically challenged the administration's soothing assurances that all is well. But all is not well, and members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff recognize as much. That being the case, Admiral Hayward shouldn't be the only service chief saying so in public.

Housing and dependence

By Anthony Harrigan
The action of the U.S. House of Representatives in approving a $38.5 billion federal housing program is thoroughly irresponsible.

Among the bad features of the legislation is a provision that for the first time would extend federal rent subsidies to a limited number of middle-income renters.

The government ought not to be in the business of paying anyone's rent. Self-reliance should be the rule in that area.

From the start of federal housing aid in the 1930s, the program has been a disaster. It has helped create a dependent class that looks to government for the necessities of life, one of which is shelter. Millions of people manage to find shelter on their own and pay for their houses or apartments. It's outrageous that a privileged element of dependents should be given rent money by Uncle Sam.

Public housing has destroyed countless neighborhoods. Federally-financed housing projects have become breeders of crime. Not only are neighborhoods pushed into a state of deterioration, but the residents of the projects live in fear. Gangs inhabit many of the projects and terrorize the law-abiding in and out of the buildings.

In a number of cities, the huge, federally-financed housing projects constitute vast barracks for the unskilled or incompetent. They constitute roadblocks in the way of municipal reconstruction. Often, private interests are eager to redevelop an old area, but a housing project—kind of island of crime—stands in the way of a much-needed enterprise that would benefit the entire community.

Subsidized renters have no interest in the properties they inhabit. They vandalize their own projects. Across the land, one finds relatively new housing projects that are boarded up and covered with graffiti.

The federal housing was first conceived, the proponents had idealistic goals. They hoped to pull people out of slums and give them a new style of life. But public housing hasn't worked out as the idealists imagined. It has helped breed a new dependent class with no stake in their communities.

The private housing industry has enjoyed enormous success in the past generation. Private investors have built homes and apartments for millions of people. Savings in lending institutions have made possible the huge growth of the housing stock in the nation. The overall effect of government, however, has been to retard the construction of new housing.

At this point in time, the federal government ought to wind down all its operations in the housing field and let the free market take over. Promoting further federal involvement, through the use of billions of taxpayers dollars, will be counter-productive.

Beyond this, every program that enlarges the dependent class is a threat to the survival of a free society. We can't maintain our democratic system in America if the number of people who ask the government to support them continues to exceed the number who support the government. A heavily dependent society is an invitation to domestic tyranny.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, Sept. 18, the 262nd day of 1980. There are 104 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On Sept. 18, 1793, President George Washington laid the cornerstone of the Capitol in Washington.

On this date:
In 1759, the French surrendered Quebec to the British.

In 1810, Chile declared independence from Spain.

In 1850, Congress passed the Fugitive Slave Act, allowing slave owners to reclaim slaves who had escaped to other states.

In 1961, United Nations Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld was killed in a plane crash in Rhodesia.

Ten years ago, Israel freed more than 400 Arab hostages who had been seized in occupied territory.

Five years ago, fugitive Patricia Hearst was apprehended by the FBI in San Francisco, along with two confederates in the Symbionese Liberation Army.

Last year, Radio Pakistan reported that former Afghanistan President Nur Mohammed Taraki, who had been overthrown in a coup, had died of gunshot wounds apparently suffered in the palace shootout.

Today's birthdays: former film star Greta Garbo is 75 years old. Actor Robert Blake is 47.

Thought for today: The height of folly is to live poor so you can die rich — anonymous.

New Polish jokes

by ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — In the last few months everyone is taking a new look at Polish jokes.

Here are some of the latest Polish jokes going around.

"How many Poles does it take to make a government fall in Warsaw?"

"A few hundred in Gdansk, providing they stick to their demands."

"How many Poles does it take to drive the Kremlin up the wall?"

"One, if he's asking for secret union elections."

"How do you know when a Polish coal miner is mad?"

"When, despite all his perks, he tells the Communist Party to go to hell."

"When was the last time a Polish worker ate meat?"

"Two weeks before he went out on strike and closed down the shipyards."

"What does a Pole say to a deputy premier when the premier tells him he has to work longer hours for less pay?"

"You're fired."

"What does a Pole carry in his lunch pail?"

"Secret pamphlets telling his working comrades what is really going on in the country."

"How does a Pole keep the Russians from invading the country?"

"By not taking any money from the CIA."

"How long does it take a Pole to make an omelet?"

"Twenty minutes to make it, and four hours to stand in line to buy the eggs."

"What does a Polish worker do to show he believes in the Communist system?"

"He goes to Mass every day."

"How many Poles does it take to screw in a light bulb?"

"None, if their strike leaders tell them to shut off the electricity."

"What does the Party manager of a Polish factory do when his workers decide to sit in?"

"He gets out of the place as fast as he can."

"What does a Pole say to his wife at night?"

"If I'm not home by six tomorrow evening, you'll know the strike is on."

"What does a Polish wife say to her husband at night?"

"It's about time. You can throw your dirty clothes over the fence."

"How many Poles does it take to repair a motorcycle?"

"None, because they can't get the spare parts to repair anything."

"What does a Polish government official say when a Soviet official complains he is not happy with what is going on in Poland?"

"Sue me."

"How do you get a Pole to work?"

"By granting amnesty to all strikers who have been arrested, guaranteeing him freedom in the press, giving him a pay raise and promising to get off his back."

"What does an East German worker say to a Pole when he meets him in a bar?"

"The drinks are on us. Now tell us how you did it."

I know these new jokes aren't buffos, but we can take comfort in the fact that they're even less funny to the people who used to tell Polish jokes in the Soviet Union.

Election is Reagan's to lose

By Robert J. Wagman
EMMETSBURG, Iowa (NEA) — With Ronald Reagan leading Jimmy Carter into the fall campaign, say the experts, the election becomes the Republican nominee's to win or to lose. If Reagan runs a calm, steady campaign, he should win in November; if he makes mistakes, he could easily beat himself before Election Day.

That outlook is shared by voters of Emmetsburg and surrounding Palo Alto County, a farming community that has the distinction of backing the winner in every presidential election since 1896. Right now a majority of those voters support Reagan — but are more than a little nervous about him.

Interestingly, the county's Republican and Democratic chairmen view the current campaign in much the same way.

Says young attorney John Brown, the Democratic co-chairman: "A month ago, I was absolutely sure that there was no way we were going to carry this county for the president. But today I'm not so sure. The more people hear Reagan, the shakier his support is getting. No doubt he is still ahead in this county, but if things continue to go as they have in the last couple of weeks, maybe Carter will carry Palo Alto County."

Brown admits he will have trouble getting his people to work for the Democratic ticket. "Four years ago, Democrats in the county worked very hard for Jimmy Carter," he says, "but I just don't see that they are going to get out and work for him this time around. Reagan's support is definitely weakening, but without people out working for Carter, things will be difficult for us in November."

"I didn't think there was any way Reagan could lose this county," echoes banker Ed Norland, the county's Republican chairman. "But now I'm not all that positive. There is no doubt that he is currently ahead — probably well ahead — and I think he will win in November. But it will all depend on how many boo-boos he makes in the coming weeks."

Unlike Brown, however, Norland is sure he will have willing workers this fall for the Reagan-Bush ticket.

When local businessmen and farmers gather at Dutch's Diner to talk crop prices and politics over morning coffee, it is difficult to find anyone — especially a farmer — with much good to say about the president.

As Larry Stoker, who runs the Emmetsburg grain elevator, explains: "The farmers around here are still very upset about the grain embargo. Even though prices in recent weeks have gone up, an awful lot of the farmers in this county had to borrow heavily at very high interest rates this spring in order to plant. They will be paying off these loans for quite a while, so even though prices are back up they are not going to forget the embargo very quickly."

A number of local residents do say they will vote for Carter, but few of them speak of him with much enthusiasm. Typical is George Geelan of Ruthven, who remarks: "I've always voted Democrat, and I guess I will vote Democrat again this time even if it means voting for Carter. I don't think he's done much of a job, but I will vote for him."

While a majority of voters on the street say they will vote for Reagan, they give the impression that the Republican nominee's support is not all that deep. Take pharmacist Irv Beiter, who comments: "I guess that I'm going to vote for Reagan as the lesser of two evils. Carter just hasn't done the job, and we're going to have to give someone else a shot. I might vote for (independent) John Anderson if I thought he had any chance of winning, but he doesn't."

The same goes for Mary Manly, who works at the grain elevator. "I've always voted Democrat," she says, "but I don't think I'm going to this year. Actually, I don't much like any of them, but Carter really hasn't done very well."

Reagan's statements on China and Vietnam have shaken a number of his supporters in this town.

Says Tom Pico, who runs the local motel: "I was all for Reagan, but the more I hear him the less sure I am. I don't think Carter deserves another term. Actually I like what I hear about John Anderson, but I don't think he has much of a chance and I don't like the idea of wasting my vote. I guess I've gone from Reagan to undecided."

So, this bellwether county is currently in the Reagan column but not solidly. We'll come back in a few weeks to see if local opinion has changed.

Polish man expresses co-workers fears

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer
URSUS, Poland (AP) — "People in Poland used to sit in their chairs and watch the world go by. But now they are afraid. They just watch their chairs," said a young man outside the main gate at the Ursus tractor factory.

The young man, who asked that his name not be used, was referring to the doubts, confusion and insecurity among his 20,000 fellow workers at this plant because of rivalry between independent and state-controlled unions.

The rivalry is expected to intensify with word from Gdansk that independent unions from all over Poland will unite into a confederation. That will make Poland the only Soviet bloc country with rival national labor groups.

Many workers here and at other factories in Poland appear confused by the slogans and claims of the two groups and are uncertain which organization will better protect their interests.

The decisions of workers at this plant and others in Poland will determine the future of the country's independent labor movement and of the liberalization wave sweeping the country.

So far the tide appears to have been in favor of the independence forces. But the old trade unions have the advantage of money and state backing and are mounting a counterattack, promising to reform themselves while guaranteeing social and economic benefits.

In the new spirit of reform, the state-controlled steelworkers union has called for a congress next month to consider withdrawing from the Central Council of Trade Unions and operating independently.

And the metalworkers union, which represents employees at Ursus, is also expected to call such a meeting.

But many free trade union activists see this as a ploy by the old, state-run outfits to win back members by passing themselves off as "autonomous" labor groups.

"Well certainly that is what is happening now," said Janusz Onyszkiewicz, a leader of Mazowsze, an independent trade union federation in the Warsaw area.

"By changing their slogans, they are taking a bit of the wind out of our sails. So far they have managed to create a significant amount of confusion."

The degree of confusion was apparent at the Ursus plant, a factory complex in a grimy suburb of Warsaw known for its politically active employees.

In 1976 workers in Ursus and Radom staged strikes to protest meat price increases which were eventually rolled back. And last July workers at Ursus were among the first to protest the meat price increases which eventually touched off the nationwide strikes in August that brought the government concessions.

This year a politically active group of workers at Ursus began organizing an independent trade union committee within days of the Aug. 31 agreement under which the government recognized the right of workers to form independent unions.

The new Ursus group is affiliated with Mazowsze, a regional organization with members ranging from doctors to factory workers. Its temporary offices are in Warsaw's Club of Catholic Intelligentsia, across the street from the Central Trade Union Council.

Elections to posts within Ursus' old trade union, which were to have been held from today until Monday, were suspended because so few workers took part, sources claimed.

One management official at the plant acknowledged that the new unions had gotten the jump on the old organizations and that the situation had left both workers and managers confused about the future.

"The new unions began organizing early," he said. "But there is more to operating a union than merely slogans. There are questions of finances and benefits."

One young worker who supports the independence movement said he thought at least some Ursus workers would be lured back to the old union by the promise of reform.

"A certain amount will come back," he said. "Management is using some pressure as far as financial problems are concerned. They tell people they may lose social benefits or not be able to borrow money from the union funds. In this way they try to get people to stay."

Worker sources say the financial benefits are frequently mentioned by management as a reason why workers should remain with their old unions.

But Onyszkiewicz said that under Polish labor law, many such funds, vacation homes and other benefits are actually the property of the factories and are only administered by the unions.

Spinal Curvature Often Mistaken For Bad Posture

"Scoliosis" is the term used to describe lateral curvature of the spine, and it has been a medical enigma since ancient times. Science News in May of 1979 reported that "Recent findings suggest that perhaps as many as 10 percent of the children in that age group (10-13) have scoliosis."

Serious spinal curvature detracts from appearance, can produce psychological stress, and extensive physical consequences like degenerative arthritis of the spine, with increasingly severe back pain and disability. As scoliosis stresses the spine, it may lead to disk disease and sciatica. Preventing the permanent deformity and disability caused by scoliosis is largely dependent upon early detection. Early signs of scoliosis include obvious spinal curvature, one shoulder higher than the other, prominence of one hip and/or shoulder blades, one leg shorter than the other, and body trunk shifted out of balance. Scoliosis screening tests are quick and simple and highly recommended for children in their formative years. In fact, scoliosis screening tests are required for school-aged children in New York, Florida, Minnesota, New Jersey, and Washington.

From September 15th to September 27th, this office will provide scoliosis screening tests to the public without charge as a public service in conjunction with the Texas Chiropractic Association's state wide screening program.

Carver accountant testifies

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Roy Carver's financial situation deteriorated seriously in 1976, the year in which he tried to drill oil out of the Persian Gulf, the Muscatine millionaire's accountant testified Wednesday.

Larry Griffith's testimony came in the third week of Carver's $42 million lawsuit against SEDCO Inc., a Dallas oil drilling firm Carver claims lured him into a Mideast oil drilling deal that caused him to lose $17 million.

Griffith said that Carver's net worth dropped more than $60 million during 1976 and by mid-1977, he had almost nothing left of the $22 million in liquid cash he had possessed two years earlier.

Carver, who made a substantial fortune when he founded Bandag Inc., says that SEDCO failed to inform him that the oil to be drilled off the coast of Qatar was contaminated by a deadly gas and the cost of removing it would increase the expense of the project many times above the $2.5 million originally planned.

Griffith said that as of the last day of 1975, Carver's total net worth was $170.2 million. Of that total, $137.9 million was in Carver's controlling ownership stake in Bandag, the truck tire retreading firm based in Muscatine.

But by the end of 1976, Carver's financial statement showed that his worth had dropped to $106 million, Griffith testified.

The accountant noted several reasons. One was that Carver's ranch in central America was running in the red. Another was that Carver had to put up almost one-fifth of his Bandag stock as collateral to get bank loans to assist his Carver Pump Co. in Muscatine, Carver's original business venture that had run into problems during 1976.

Another reason was that Bandag stock began dropping sharply in 1975 and 1976 when the financial community discovered that the company's inventories were badly overstocked.

Carver earlier testified that he borrowed $8 million from banks in Chicago and New York to keep his oil company going in 1976 when costs began to mount. But when he went to bankers for another $15 million loan to cover a projected cost increase, he was told he would have to pledge his Bandag stock at a value of twice the sum of the loan.

Griffith said he recommended against such a borrowing and the loan was never made.

"I was convinced by this time that any more borrowing for the oil deal was not good," Griffith said.

Carver eventually got out of the oil business late in 1977 when the Qatari government revoked his drilling concession.

Griffith said he had recommended that Carver "go slow" in the oil deal because "the deal seemed to be too good to be true."

"Roy was tremendously excited about the deal, and I can see why from the information he was given," Griffith said.

A look at Texas

DALLAS (AP) — About 100 residents of the Dallas Love Field area have organized to try to reduce noise pollution and solve other environmental concerns caused by increasing air traffic at the city-owned airport.

The Love Field Citizens Action Committee said it does not plan to file lawsuits, but instead plans to work by enacting ordinances through the Dallas City Council.

"For every flight that comes out of Love Field, we lose," Lori Palmer, committee chairman, said. "We lose sleep. We lose money. We lose relaxation. And we lose our peace of mind."

The group wants the city to limit operations at Love Field, set curfews for take-off and landings, redirect flight patterns and begin an in-depth environmental impact study, she said.

DALLAS (AP) — Drivers, mechanics and cleaners of the Dallas Transit System voted Tuesday to discuss their dissatisfaction with several DTS policies, mentioning the possibility of a work slowdown if their grievances are not acted upon.

The workers, who belong to the Amalgamated Transit Union, are unhappy with the disproportionate raises given to supervisors, according to B.J. Simmons, union president. Union members are slated to receive a 7 percent raise.

Even if members are not pleased with the results of the Oct. 1 meeting, they are prohibited against striking by law. "The law says that it's against the law to strike. It doesn't say you have to work," Simmons said.

GRAND PRAIRIE, Texas (AP) — City council members unanimously approved a $17.6 million budget Tuesday, even though one member accused Grand Prairie's mayor of "rubber-stamping" the budget.

The budget received little discussion during the public hearing, but in an earlier council work session, council member Anne Gresham accused Mayor James Weems of rushing it through.

"I believe this is the worst budget session I've been in during my five days years on the council," said Ms. Gresham, who was upset because the council did not go through the budget line by line.

However, Weems said, "If we listened to you, we'd be here a year and a half."

MAN SHOT TO DEATH

AUSTIN (AP) — A 20-year-old man was shot to death by a grocery store owner Tuesday after he was refused credit on a bottle of wine and then broke the owner's car window, police said.

The victim was Kenneth McArthur, a 10th-grade dropout. William Strange, owner of the Circle T Grocery and Drug store, was charged with murder and bond was set at $10,000.

MEDICAL ASSOCIATION CONFERENCE

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Medical challenges and costs in the 1980s will be discussed Saturday at the Texas Medical Association's fall conference.

Dr. Edward Annis of Miami, former president of the American Medical Association, will analyze the impact of inflation and interest rates on health services.

Dr. Daniel Cloud of Phoenix, Ariz., the association's president-elect, will speak on "The Challenges of the 1980s: What Physicians Can Expect."

ELEVATOR BACK IN OPERATION

GALVESTON (AP) — The Farmers Export Co. grain elevator that was wrecked by a 1977 explosion that killed 17 people is back in operation.

The Brazilian freighter Forteleste began taking on a cargo of 925,000 bushels of wheat Tuesday for shipment to South America. The Dec. 27, 1977 explosion attributed to a spark igniting grain also injured 22 people.

STATE FUNDS EARN RECORD INTEREST

AUSTIN (AP) — State Treasurer Warren G. Harding said Wednesday interest earned on state funds totaled a record $225.2 million in the fiscal year ending Aug. 31.

This was an increase in interest earned of $47.3 million over the previous year, Harding said.

He added in a statement that in August an all-time high daily average of 98.1 percent of the state's operating funds were invested and earning interest for the state.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES SEEK COURT RELIEF

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — Local school trustees have voted to seek a temporary reprieve from the federal court order requiring a free education in Texas schools for illegal alien children.

The Brownsville Independent School District's board of trustees also voted Tuesday to investigate possible litigation to obtain monetary relief for the poor district.

On Sept. 4, U.S. Supreme Court Justice Lewis Powell said Texas must enroll all illegal alien children while the original case is on appeal.

Soviet Union stepping up missile output

By LOUIS NEVIN
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet Union is stepping up the output of a powerful nuclear missile with a range of over 3,000 miles and carrying three warheads, each with a punch of 150,000 tons of TNT, the authoritative International Institute of Strategic Studies said today.

The Institute said Moscow has increased the rate of its deployment of the SS-20 missile from one every seven days to one every five days and now has 160 ready to go into action. The organization called this "disturbing."

The SS-20, which is replacing the aging SS-4 Intermediate Range Ballistic Missile first deployed in 1969, is only one weapon in a buildup that has given the Soviet Union and its satellites a big lead over the United States and the Western allies in both strategic and conventional armaments, the Institute said.

There is little hope of paring the communist advantage until the alliance begins putting into service new long-range missile systems expected in three to four years time, the Institute said in its annual survey of world military might — The Military Balance 1980-1981. The survey covers research by its staff up to July.

The Institute is frequently consulted by leading governmental figures throughout the non-communist world. This year's Balance is the 21st by the organization, which is devoted to the study of the problems of international security, defense and arms control in the nuclear age.

The Institute said the Soviet program of modernization of intercontinental missiles has reached a point where more than "half the ICBM force is now less than 10 years old." The newest American ICBMs, the Minuteman III, were first deployed in 1970.

Minuteman III carries three warheads with the equivalent of 170,000 to 200,000 tons of TNT each. The Soviet SS-18, which is replacing the SS-9, carries one warhead with the equivalent of 18 to 25 million tons of TNT.

The institute said the SS-18 is reportedly to be used "against deep underground shelters."

A new generation of shorter-range missiles for use on battlefields, the SS-21, 22 and 23, are about to enter service, if some have not already done so, according to the Military Balance.

It added that evidence is growing that the Soviets are also striving to develop a new long-range bomber, probably to be equipped with long-range, air-launched missiles.

Similar modernization programs are going on in the Soviet navy, the Institute said, with two new nuclear-propelled attack submarines and a new cruiser reported on trial and two new cruise missiles.

The Institute warned the United States to hurry along more survivable strategic nuclear forces although it agreed that the MX, the new U.S. mobile ICBM, and the takeover by the longer-range Trident C-4 missile from the Poseidon in American submarines "will go far to assure the credibility of the American deterrent."

Islamic countries plan holy war

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH
Associated Press Writer

FEZ, Morocco (AP) — Foreign ministers of the world's Islamic countries today began mapping plans for a possible "jihad," or holy war, against Israel and its allies to restore East Jerusalem to Arab sovereignty. But they say they will resort to guns only if political, diplomatic and economic pressure fail.

Morocco's King Hassan II formally opens the three-day emergency session of the World Islamic Conference to plan a long-term campaign against the Israeli annexation of the holy city.

Tunisia's Habib Chatti, secretary general of the Islamic conference, and several delegation chiefs began preliminary discussions Wednesday in Morocco's religious capital.

Chatti also conferred with King Hassan, chairman of the 14-nation Islamic committee on the "liberation" of Jerusalem.

In an interview with The Associated Press, Chatti said the Islamic countries were determined to maintain permanent pressure on Israel to put an end to the present stalemate and achieve a "genuine solution" of the Middle East problem, and particularly the problem of Jerusalem.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 23-year-old, fairly popular male who dates a variety of girlfriends.

Abby, how come every time I date a new girl, the guys ask me if the girl fools around and did I score with her? They don't even ask me if I like her, or how nice she is, etc.

What is a good comeback line to use when I'm asked these questions?

B.K. IN MINN.

DEAR B.K.: Don't dignify juvenile questions with any kind of "comeback." Little boys kiss and tell. Grown men do not report scoring or striking out.

DEAR ABBY: I was dating a guy I really liked for about six months. (I'll call him Marty.) He proposed a couple of times, but I'm 23 and not ready for marriage yet. We had some really good times together.

The problem started when Marty lost his temper and gave me a hard shove. For a minute I was afraid he was going to hit me, but he didn't. (Not then.) When it happened a second time, I decided to stay away from him, but he called and apologized, saying he'd been drinking and was upset about something else, so I saw him again.

One night while Marty and I were out, I ran into an old friend (male) so I stopped to talk to him for a few minutes. Later that evening Marty accused me of coming on to the old boyfriend, and he really lost his temper and started hitting me.

Abby, he beat me so badly I ended up in a hospital! After I was discharged Marty said he didn't mean it, he loved me and swore it would never happen again.

I should have learned my lesson months ago when he first started shoving me around, but no, I had to learn the hard way.

I hope this letter will be a warning to other women not to wait as long as I did to tell these macho jerks to hit the road.

J.N.D., PITTSBURGH

DEAR J.N.D.: If only a few women learn that the most violent beatings always begin with a shove, a punch or a twisted arm, it will be well worth a shot in this column.

DEAR ABBY: My father-in-law is about 50 and is very obese. He doesn't seem at all self-conscious about it and continues to eat and drink all the wrong things. He has no interest in diets or weight-loss programs, and he avoids doctors because he knows they will put him on a diet.

So far Pops has broken the springs in our family room sofa and the chairs to match. Nearly every kitchen chair is broken, too. I recently bought some cushions for our kitchen chairs, and two days after we had them, Pops came over, sat on one of the new cushions and tore the ties off!

Abby, I've worked for nearly five years to help buy really nice furniture, and we can't afford to keep replacing it.

My husband doesn't have the nerve to say anything to his father, but do you think it would be so terrible if I asked him to buy himself a chair to use while he's at our house?

HEAVY PROBLEM

DEAR HEAVY: No. Ask him. And if he's unwilling, you should spring for one sturdy chair to be used by Pops for his visits.

Do you have questions about sex, love, drugs and the pain of growing up? Get Abby's new booklet: "What Every Teen-ager Ought To Know." Send $2 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Book recalls bombings

THE FALL OF FORTRESS-ES. By Elmer Bendiner. Putnam. 258 Pages. $11.95.

Through the years Elmer Bendiner has retained many a poignant memory of his 25 World War II missions as a navigator on American bombers blasting German-held Europe. During those years he has also formed many a question as to why so many of the raids were patently hopeless.

Bendiner centers on two for particular illustration. They both were against Schweinfurt factories said to produce most of the ballbearings needed for German industrial and military use.

The first raid was on Aug. 17, 1943. The bomber crews actually were told by high brass that this single blow would end the war. The result: relatively small damage to Schweinfurt plants, a terrible loss in American planes and crews.

Two months later the strike was duplicated with huge losses but somewhat greater damage. Far less than enough to end the war, however.

How did all this come about? Bendiner put in a lot of research to find that the idea first was broached long before at a Washington cocktail party. It was an outgrowth of a long-developing idea for "strategic" or pinpoint bombing to knock out key war facilities.

But in 1943 things weren't quite ready. Bombers at last had the range, but they were easy targets for masses of German fighter craft and flak guns. Why do it, then? Well, perhaps to see what might happen. Perhaps to grandstand a bit for morale back home.

Bendiner interweaves his thoughts about his missions, then and now, into a powerful narrative detailing both major and minor episodes amid many terrifying hours of yesteryear. "This is a book," says a publisher's blurb, "that inquires into the myths and realities of war; the absurdities of battle and the bitter necessity of human sacrifice." Exactly.

Let birthday child help to plan party

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — To make a child's birthday party a more meaningful event, let the child help in the planning and encourage him to act as host, suggests an educator and child psychologist, Dr. Kevin O'Shea.

"Involve the birthday child as much as possible in deciding on a theme, the guests, decorations, food and activities," he says.

Even young children can play a role in preparations and older ones can practice their developing skills by writing invitations, making decorations and helping an adult bake and decorate a cake or cookies, he points out.

"For many children, refreshments are what a party is all about," O'Shea says. "The birthday cake is something which can not only be enjoyed for its good taste, but may be admired as an artistic creation."

"Instead of buying a cake that's already decorated, let the birthday child add a personal touch to a home-baked one with a squeeze tube of colored icing or write special messages on the cake or on individual cupcakes with the colorful icings."

Blowing out the candles, when the birthday child is told to close his eyes and make a good wish, is the most exciting part of the party for many children, O'Shea notes.

"This appeals to a child's way of looking at the world as a place where things happen if only you wish strongly enough — a form of magical thinking, which we never completely outgrow," he says.

Limit to a manageable size the number of children at the party, according to their age, the type of activities planned and space available, advises O'Shea, who offers these guidelines for various age groups:

— For 1-year-olds: A child's first birthday tends to serve as an excuse for a gathering of relatives and close friends; often, no other children are present. Children of this age can be upset by unfamiliar faces or large numbers of people.

— For 2-year-olds: three or four guests should be invited and a time limit of one-and-a-half to two hours should be set. Listening to records and playing with toys are the best activities. Children this age tend to play separately, unlike older ones who enjoy playing with friends.

— For 3-year-olds: This group is ready to be consulted about guests, — perhaps five — decorations, games, prizes and food, with adults assuming the major responsibility. They enjoy listening to stories, drawing, playing with clay, blocks, watching short movies and cartoons. They are interested in colors and shapes, and can do simple craft projects or perhaps use their own creativity in decorating their own cupcakes with icing from squeeze tubes.

— For 4- and 5-year-olds: Guest numbers can range from four to eight, and supervised games provide entertainment.

Weather permitting, outdoor games will help discharge built-up tension. Or if the party is indoors, a muscle-stretching game of Simple Simon will give children leadership experience with the role of leader rotated.

— For 5- to 8-year-olds: Mixed parties of six to 10 boys and girls sometimes become noisy and it is helpful to involve the birthday child as host to set an example of good behavior. Games such as "Pin the Tail on the Donkey" are popular among this age group.

— For 8- to 11-year-olds: Parties for this group tend to be either all boys or all girls, with 8 to 15 guests, depending on space and type of party. Older children choose to have activity parties such as bowling, ice skating, swimming or slumber parties. Games and sports provide the children with opportunities for healthy competition according to structured rules.

New law highlights 'lazy eye alert'

The Texas Society to Prevent Blindness is putting Texas on a "lazy eye alert" this fall, the importance of which is highlighted by the new state law that requires a vision test for every child entering school, says the Society's president, Clymer L. Wright Jr.

"The purpose of the new law is to find the one youngster in 20 who has an eye problem that needs to be treated early in life," Wright said. "However many children, especially those with amblyopia or 'lazy eye,' have a condition that can be best corrected in the preschool years, often when the child is as young as three or four. That is why Prevent Blindness, even though busy certifying personnel is over 300 school and health agencies to screen under the new law, is also sponsoring open 'lazy eye alert' screenings during September and October through its volunteer preschool vision screening units around the state.

"Vision screening of preschoolers is a year-round program for TSPB," Wright pointed out. "Over 40,000 youngsters were screened by the Society last year alone. The 'lazy eye alert' has been added as a special project to draw attention to children's eye care needs and to increase the number of children reached by the program.

"The Texas Health Department says that 20,000 children enter school each year with vision problems. Two percent of those probably have 'lazy eye,' the chief target of all childhood screening programs. Without early treatment of this problem a child can suffer permanent vision loss or even blindness in the lazy eye by the age of 6, an age when many children are just starting school."

The basic screening test for both the Society's and the state's program involves "reading" a chart with the letter E turned in different directions. To children who haven't yet learned alphabet recognition, the "E" is a game in which they point in the direction they see the "legs" of the letter pointing.

"A companion project to the TSPB screening programs is its home eye test for preschoolers," Wright added. "This is a free do-it-yourself kit that allows parents whose children are not able to take advantage of an organized vision screening to play the 'E' game with their youngsters at home. The Society recommends that children who fail the 'E' test should be taken for a professional eye examination."

For information about the "lazy eye alert" or for a free copy of the home eye test, write Prevent Blindness, P.O. Box 2020, Houston, Texas 77001.

FIVE-YEAR-OLD Travis Loy of El Paso demonstrates with the Texas Society to Prevent Blindness home eye test the "E" that this fall is as important as "ABC" to children entering Texas schools for the first time. The "E" is the symbol on the basic vision test that, by law, all children must have. In Travis' case, the "E" chart indicated he had amblyopia or "lazy eye."

LUBBOCK — Lifestyles of the Texas cowboy in Pulitzer Prize winning photos will go on display at The Museum of Texas Tech University on Ranch Day Saturday.

The photographs, taken by Dallas Times Herald photographer Skeeter Hagler, are part of a photo essay on cowboys which won him the Pulitzer Prize for feature photography last April.

Photos include scenes from a fall roundup at the historic Pitchfork and the 6666 ranches east of Lubbock. Photographic portraits of Tom Blasingame, the 81-year-old cowboy at the JA ranch in Palo Duro Canyon are included.

Described by Pulitzer judges as "superb" and illustrating "the sensitivity to a way of life that is fast disappearing in this country," the photo series will be displayed on the balcony of the museum.

Hagler says of his pictures: "The pictures were there waiting for you. Those guys were classic looking. How could you miss?" The photographer, 32, is a native of Fort Worth and a graduate of the University of Texas where he earned a degree in architecture. He said he bought his first camera to help in his architecture studies and came to like photography better than architecture.

After college, Hagler was turned down for news photography jobs at both Dallas newspapers. His trip home to Austin got him a job at the Waco Tribune-Herald where he stopped to apply. In 1972, he became a photographer at the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. Six months later he was named photographer of the year for Texas, New Mexico and Louisiana by the National Press Photographer's Association.

He joined the Dallas Times Herald in 1974 and has won numerous honors since.

He has sent 20 of the cowboy essay photos to the Texas Tech Museum to be a part of Ranch Day. The Museum and Ranching Heritage Center will be open for Ranch Day activities from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The Museum regularly is open 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Mondays and Fridays, 8:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays and 1:30-4:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — low the instructions in the books," Lund said. "For example, to obtain explosives a person would have to adopt some subterfuge or commit a burglary to get the chemicals needed. We are no more an agent of the crime than DuPont is as manufacturer of the actual items," he said.

And he isn't surprised that his books, advertised in more than 30 magazines that range from Conservative Digest to Mother Jones, appeal to both conservatives and liberals.

"I personally feel there is an unstated coalition of people in the United States who are anti-government. We've come full circle from the 1960s when the right and the left were poles apart," Lund said.

"We appeal to the gun hobbyist and the history buff and the individual who believes in himself as an individual rather than one of the sheep in the herd," he added.

Lund joined Robert K. Brown in 1970 and turned Brown's hobby of pastime of publishing military manuals into a business. Lund bought Brown out in 1975 and Brown began publishing Soldier of Fortune magazine.

DR. LAMB

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm a 45-year-old female and I have trouble with recurring xanthomas in the eye area. What causes this? I take four grains of Atromid-S tablets every day. I have a high cholesterol and triglyceride count. Do these high levels cause xanthomas? Will diet control this? Does smoking cause these? I am a half-a-pack a day smoker. I do need to lose 20 pounds and I'm on a diet prescribed by my physician. I'd appreciate any information you could give me about this problem.

DEAR READER — Yes, xanthomas are accumulations of cholesterol underneath the skin and commonly they occur in little plaques or patches under the surface of the skin of the eyelids or in that area. You can have larger amounts of cholesterol accumulations and nodules other places in the body.

Commonly, these are associated with a high cholesterol level and the tendency to form them is usually inherited. That's why it's frequently important to study the entire family group when such evidences of abnormal fat and cholesterol metabolism are observed.

I presume that you're taking thyroid because you have low thyroid function. Four grains of thyroid on a daily basis is a pretty good dose. Individuals who have low thyroid function are prone to have high cholesterol levels.

Yes, diet is one of the tools used to help control the level of cholesterol and does help in such cases. The type of diet used is discussed in The Health Letter number 15-4, Diet to Prevent Heart Attacks and Strokes which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Bike buyer's guide offers information

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans will purchase more than 11 million multi-speed bicycles this year, according to Bicycling Magazine.

To help the average person get his money's worth when buying a two-wheeler, the publication has issued a "Buyers Guide" offering detailed information on weight, measurements, frame sizes, color and price for all 1980 major bike brands.

Among factors it says a cyclist should consider:

— One-speed coasters are suitable for short, 2- or 3-mile level trips. A three-speed is good for trips up to 10 miles while a 10-speed is the logical choice for touring or long-distance commuting.

— A good touring bike should have a high-quality frame and aluminum alloy rims. It should be designed for touring, not racing.

— Choose the right tire. A light tire makes it easier to climb hills, accelerate, stop and turn. Wider tires give a more comfortable ride, but they have a greater drag and thus take more energy to pedal. A wide tire, however, is considered safer.

alone are not adequate to lower the cholesterol sufficiently in individuals who have xanthomas. That's why you're also getting some medicine. Since you're overweight, I must stress the importance of getting rid of every excess pound of fat you can if you want to get your cholesterol and blood fat levels down to normal.

DEAR DR. LAMB — A friend of mine gave me a lot of vitamins but I would like your opinion before taking them.

DEAR READER — If you are eating a balanced diet and have no problems in digestion and have no diseases you really do not need additional vitamins. However, I don't object to people taking an all purpose daily vitamin pill without excessive amounts of vitamins in them. These are sometimes helpful to people who do not eat adequately for one reason or another.

The list you gave me looks like your vitamins will not be harmful. The water soluble vitamins in reasonable amounts above your daily requirements are simply flushed out by your kidneys. The two vitamins we really worry about are vitamin A and D. These are fat soluble vitamins and can be stored in body fat. They are the most likely sources of vitamin toxicity.

There have also been some questions raised about the adverse effects of vitamin E but in small amounts as a dietary supplement it is not likely to be harmful. Larger amounts on a regular basis is questionable.

AT WIT'S END

By Erma Bombeck

Every fall, an army of authors swathed in polyester and hope hits the trail to bring their books to the attention of the public.

They will spend full days being interviewed by the press, answering questions from radio listeners, doing talk shows and signing books in department stores.

At the end of eight or 10 weeks, they will return to civilian life. They will not be the same people they were when they left.

They will not be able to pass a couch without sitting on it and launching into a discourse on how they got their start. They will refuse to use a bathroom that does not have a sanitized strip over the commode. If anyone puts so much as a passbook at the bank in their hands, they'll mechanically write, "Best Wishes," autograph it and give it back.

The Willy Lomans of the literary world are rarely championed. Having survived six book tours, I have found solace in the fact that every author from Bacall to Vidal, from Krantz to Michener has endured the selling of a book. As I sat around greenrooms, I used to fantasize that if Matthew, Mark, Luke and John were coming out this fall with the Four Gospels, they would be going through the same thing I was going through.

MERV GRIFFIN GREENROOM: "Okay, guys, Merv has a doctor theme show for tonight. Got any ideas? Luke is a doctor? Fantastic! You can do eight minutes on diet pills. You'll follow Joyce Brothers."

DINAH SHORE GREENROOM: "Hey, fellas, this is going to be fun. You and Dinah are going to put together a zucchini casserole with parmesan and talk about your books. Geez, wish you all hadn't worn white. Have fun!"

MIKE DOUBLAS GREENROOM: "Now, the co-host this week is Shelley Winters. Anything you got that relates to Shelley, throw it in. Read your books last night. Love 'em. Mark, maybe you could expand on the miracle stories. Had Jeanne Dixon a few weeks ago. It's dynamite."

JOHNNY CARSON GREENROOM: "What's your book about again? I know they're gospels...they all say that. What about humorous stories like signing books in a department store and someone wants to buy the desk. Anything upbeat you can think of. You follow Gordon Liddy."

JOHN DAVIDSON GREENROOM: "John will ask you why you wrote the books, how long it took, what they're all about and what impact the will have on civilization. Take your time, you've got 4 1/2 minutes. You don't sing, do you?"

Tasty winners! Buckeyes and the Irish

By Major Amos B. Hoople
Pigskin Prophet

Egad, friends, every section of the country boasts tasty pigskin treats this weekend. There are plenty of succulent specials for your enjoyment.

In the Midwest, for instance, several spectaculars are on tap. Ohio State hosts Minnesota, Notre Dame hosts Michigan, Wisconsin hosts Brigham Young, and Kansas hosts Pittsburgh.

In two key inter-regional games, Iowa travels to face well-regarded Nebraska in a Big 10-Big 8 match-up and mighty Stanford pays a nocturnal visit to the aerie of the Boston Eagles.

Down South, Mississippi

Major Hoople's

Football Forecast

hosts Alabama, Florida State entertains rough-and-ready East Carolina, and Auburn is at home to Duke.

Looking to the Southwest, Houston hosts Miami of Florida, Texas is at home to Utah State, Texas A&M welcomes Penn State, and Arkansas hosts Oklahoma State.

In the West, Southern California is ready for its first-ever meeting with South Carolina.

Wow! What a schedule! Here is how the Hoople System sizes up these important engagements:

Ohio State and Minnesota engage in bruising battles. And Ohio State usual'y wins. Our Midwest scouts call it for the Buckeyes, 31-20, as Art Schlichter has another good day through the air.

It could be a big day for Carter at South Bend, Ind., this Saturday. Not (heh-heh) for the current resident of the White House. But for either Phil Carter, the Irish runner who rambled for 142 yards in his first start as the replacement for All-America Vegas Ferguson, or Anthony Carter, the Wolverines' split end who is one of the fastest men in football and knows what to do when he catches the ball. In a high-scoring affair, we see Notre Dame winning 35-21, as Mike Courcy shows he belongs on the long list of fine N.D. quarterbacks.

Brigham Young will make its first appearance against the Wisconsin Badgers a winning one as it takes home a hard-won 35-28 victory. The Pitt Panthers, shooting for the national title, will romp over Kansas, 38-20. Kaff-kaff!

Nebraska's Cornhuskers, looking ahead to Penn State next week, will roll over the Iowa Hawkeyes, 35-21. Elsewhere, QB John Elway and his Stanford Cardinals, too powerful for the BC Eagles, will roll to a 34-17 triumph.

In its second game of the season, Alabama, an easy 26-3 winner over Georgia Tech in its opener, will run its string to 22 straight, whacking Mississippi, 28-13, and giving Paul "Bear" Bryant his 297th victory.

Florida State's Seminoles had better be prepared for surprises as they take on the East Carolina Pirates — who slipped it to Duke, 35-10, in their season opener. The Hoople System calls it 21-18 for the Seminoles.

And for poor Duke, it's more bad news as the Blue Devils fall 38-10 before a fine Auburn aggregation on the latter's home field.

Southern California's Trojans, out of the Rose Bowl picture due to suspension, will concentrate on the national rankings. And this week's game could go a long way to show how good the Trojans really are.

Spearheading the invading South Carolina Gamecocks offense is George Rogers, who rushed for 1,681 yards last season, second to the Trojans' Heisman Award winner, Charles White.

This should be a real crowd pleaser as Southern Cal takes a 24-21 decision.

Coming back to the East, we find a full lineup of Ivy contestants.

At Providence, R.I., the invading Yale Bulldogs will take the measure of the Brown Bruins, 17-10.

Cornell and Princeton are getting together for the 63rd time. And the Hoople Hunch is that Bob Blackman's Big Red will knock over the Princeton Tigers, 27-20.

In Hanover, N.H., the Big Green of Dartmouth should get their season off to a flying start with a 28-13 win over Penn. If the Dartmouth passing combo of Jeff Kemp to Dave Shula sounds familiar, it should. Kemp is the son of Jack Kemp, ex-Buffalo Bills quarterback and now a congressman from New York. Shula is the son of Don Shula, the Miami Dolphins coach.

Harvard will open its season in 1980 just as it did last year — over Columbia.

JOHN SIMMONS, senior cornerback of the Southern Methodist University Mustangs, has been named The Associated Press' Southwest Conference defensive player of the week. Simmons of Little Rock, Ark. intercepted a North Texas State pass and returned it for a touchdown to put the icing on a 28-9 SMU victory.

Area football schedule

Six of the seven Pampa area football teams will be in action Friday night.

Miami, 1-1, has an open date.

Four of those teams—Wheeler, Canadian, Groom and Panhandle—remain unbeaten after two weeks into the season.

It will be a battle of unbeaten when Panhandle and Canadian, both 2-0, hook up at Canadian. Panhandle, ranked eighth in the state according to Class 2A polls, has defeated River Road, 20-13, and Wellington, 17-6. Canadian has wins over Morton, 22-21, and Stinnett, 19-0.

Wheeler, 1-0, hosts Booker in the Mustangs' annual homecoming clash. Groom (2-0) travels to Phillips. McClean (0-1) hosts Silverton in another homecoming game and White Deer (1-1) travels to Claude.

All games kick off at 8 p.m. Here at home Friday night, Pampa will attempt to stretch its winning streak to three in a row against Lawton High (Okla.). Gametime is 7:30 p.m.

National League roundup

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

Tug McGraw was cuffed around so badly by the Pittsburgh Pirates last year that he was listed as their batting practice pitcher in the program at an off-season banquet.

But the flaky Philadelphia left-hander's two victories this season (he has 17 saves), have both come against the defending champion Pirates, including a 5-4 decision in 11 innings Wednesday night.

With the triumph, the Phillies cut Montreal's lead in the National League East to 1½ games when the Expos lost 5-2 to the New York Mets, while the Pirates stayed five games back.

In other NL games, Los Angeles took over sole possession of first place in the West with a 2-1 victory over San Diego, while Cincinnati beat Houston 7-0, San Francisco blanked Atlanta 2-0 and St. Louis whipped Chicago 8-5.

McGraw, who was the self-proclaimed Pittsburgh Most Valuable Player in 1979, won't get any awards from the Pirates this season.

"I wouldn't have accepted the invitation to the banquet except I knew the Pirates would have been disappointed not to have their MVP there," McGraw said. "Maybe now the plane won't shake every time I fly over Pittsburgh."

The Pirates battled back from a 4-1 deficit against 22-game winner Steve Carlton to tie the game. But McGraw pitched two shutout innings and Sparky Lyle registered his first National League save after Garry Maddox led off the 11th for the Phillies with a single, stole second and third and scored on Del Unser's pinch-single.

Mets 5, Expos 2

Montreal had its East Division lead sliced as Lee Mazzilli drove in four runs for New York with a homer and a sacrifice fly.

The Expos led 2-0 until the fifth inning, when Jose Moreno, batting for winning pitcher Dyar Miller, 1-1, opened with a single, went to third on a double by Mookie Wilson and scored on Wally Backman's single. Then Mazzilli walloped his 16th home run of the season to give New York a 4-2 lead.

Dodgers 2, Padres 1

Rookie Jack Perconte scored one run and his bunt single brought home the decisive tally in the sixth inning as Los Angeles broke its first-place tie with Houston.

Don Sutton won his fourth straight game and 12th in 16 decisions this season by scattering seven hits in seven innings. Steve Howe allowed only one hit the final two innings to earn his 17th save.

Reds 7, Astros 0

Ray Knight hit his third grand slam homer of the season and singled in another run as Cincinnati remained 4½ games behind Los Angeles in the West.

Mario Soto, 10-6, pitched a five-hit shutout, allowing only one runner to reach third base, and George Foster had two RBI with his 23rd homer and a single.

Cards 8, Cubs 5

Leon Durham and Tito Landrum knocked in two runs apiece and St. Louis took advantage of two Chicago errors in the first inning to score three runs. John Vuckovich worked 7-3 innings to gain his 12th victory in 21 decisions.

Giants 2, Braves 0

Vida Blue pitched his third shutout of the season to break Atlanta's five-game winning streak. Jim Wolford tripled in San Francisco's first run in the sixth inning and came home on Rennie Stennett's single.

Brookshire appeals to working man

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

This football Sunday is a perfect time to throw down a couple of cold brews with the guys and watch the Tampa Bay-Dallas game for the sheer fun of it. That's Tom Brookshier's game plan, and he'll be doing the national television broadcast.

Brookshier, who along with play-by-play man Pat Summerall forms CBS' No. 1 football announcing team, cultivates a macho, fun-loving barroom image on the air, intimating how the game he's doing is just half-time between his last and next drinking bouts.

But that's not all there is to Brookshier, the working man's color man. To paraphrase the slogan for one of his favorite products, he's everything you always wanted in a man. And less.

—Did you know that Brookshier collects paintings from young artists? One year he gave pieces of art as Christmas presents to his crew.

—Did you know that when he has time off with his wife, Barbara, he enjoys redecorating the rooms in their suburban Philadelphia home?

—Did you know he likes to read a lot. He's currently wrestling with James Michener. "He's tough. I have to reread him," he says.

—Did you know he runs a charity golf tournament for cystic fibrosis?

—Did you know his ambition is to "some day raise big dogs and show horses. I want to find a good broodmare and live in the wilderness."

—Did you know he thinks the worst broadcasting job he ever did was his work in last January's Super Bowl? "I just wasn't as prepared as I can be. My confidence factor was at an all-time low."

Brookshier played for the Philadelphia Eagles in the 1950s and '60s when Chuck Bednarik was the last great two-way player. Brookshier only played defense, but today he seems to go both ways.

Will the real Tom Brookshier please stand up?

"I think I'm the guy who's been there but I haven't left the neighborhood. If I go out late at night, I still go to the diner to have eggs. I like to have a good time when I'm with the boys, but a lot of the things I say are because people want me to be that way.

"I appeal more to the working stiff, the 8-4-5 guy. He's much more a booster of mine than the real sophisticated fan. I can't betray that. It's very hard for me to ride in a limo."

I would get about 10 minutes of copy into a two-minute show."

Brookshier says his bosses were patient with him because he was still a football legend in town. "They waited for me to grow up. I think my injury helped. When I was carried off Franklin Field, the team made more of my loss than I did."

He moved to Philadelphia TV in 1964 when local broadcaster Jack Whitaker landed a network job at CBS. Several years later, Brookshier became the first former athlete to do play-by-play, not commentary.

He rose in the CBS ranks and was eventually teamed with the low-key Summerall. Super Bowl XIV was Brookshier's third Super Bowl — and his worst.

Pigeon race results

Jerry Mirabella continues to dominate the Top Of Texas Racing Pigeon Club series.

Mirabella had the top three birds last weekend in a 100-mile (airline distance) race from Boise City, Okla. to Pampa.

A Blue Bar cock recorded the winning speed of 1208.959 yards per minute. A D. Check hen (1206.170) and a D. Check cock (1204.993) were second and third respectively.

A Splash hen and a splash cock, owned by A.P. Coombs, were fourth and fifth respectively with times of (1132.878) and (1130.939).

R.W. McPhillips' Blue Check cock was sixth with a time of 1095.147.

Weather conditions for the 64 entries were clear and calm on the first leg of the trip, but the birds ran into a southeasterly wind of two to five miles per hour on the return trip.

Dorsey, McDougall fit Harvester team pattern

By L.D. STRATE

Pampa News Sports Editor

Bobby Dorsey and Steve McDougall are typical team players.

They believe in the team first and the individual second in on-the-field performance.

Dorsey, a halfback, downplayed his role in Pampa's 40-22 win over Dumas Friday night. Many felt the 180-pound senior halfback turned the game around with his 88-yard touchdown reception in the first quarter that put the Harvesters ahead to stay, 8-7.

"I wouldn't have scored or even caught the ball if it hadn't been for the other guys," Dorsey said. "If James Borchardt (junior defensive end) hadn't tipped the pass, it would have gone right over my head. As it was the ball came right to me and I knew I would score because of the good blocking I had."

Dorsey, who stays in shape during the off-season by playing handball and racquetball, rushed for 59 yards on ten carries.

"I think it was the best game I've ever played offensively," he said.

Dorsey set up Pampa's first TD when he returned the opening kickoff 58 yards to the Xumas 25.

Now with Dumas behind them, Dorsey and his Harvester teammates are turning their full attention to Lawton High.

"Lawton is going to be tough," Dorsey said. "They're not just an offensive team. Their defense is almost as good. They've weak in spots, but they've got good sound linebackers."

Dorsey wants to play college football next year.

"I'll play for anybody that will take me," he added.

McDougall, Pampa's glue-fingered receiver, must feel like his shadow ever since he led District 3-5A in receptions (15-276 yards, two TDs) as a sophomore.

The 160-pound senior finds himself double-teamed on almost every passing situation.

Dumas' double coverage limited McDougall to only one catch for 19 yards, but the extra attention doesn't bother him.

"We won the game. That's what matters. I think our key to beating Dumas was getting those fumbles. Our defense was hitting them hard and knocking the ball loose," McDougall said.

McDougall said it will take another team effort to stop Lawton High and Ronnie Douglass, their highly-regarded quarterback.

"Our defense is going to have to contain Douglass," McDougall said. "He likes to run the option. We also need a good running game and we're going to have to pass better."

Pampa, 2-0, meets Lawton High, 0-2, at 7:30 p.m. Friday night in Harvester Stadium.

American League baseball roundup

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The New York Yankees have picked up some supporters in their bid to win the American League East title—the Kansas City Royals.

That was the general feeling expressed by the Royals Wednesday night after they clinched the AL West championship with a 5-0 victory over California in the first game of a doubleheader — they'd like to settle an old score with the Yankees in the AL pennant playoffs.

"It's not vengeance," pointed out Kansas City third baseman George Brett. "It's just wanting to regroup and regain your pride and self-respect. We were in Chicago one day and I saw a sign that said, 'Welcome Pennant Chokers.'"

That referred, of course, to the Royals' lack of success against the Yankees in three previous playoff meetings, in 1976, 1977 and 1978.

The clinching of their fourth West title in five years was the earliest in Royals' history. And the crowd of 25,908 at Royals Stadium was on its collective feet cheering when Dennis Leonard struck out Jason Thompson to end the game.

"I really didn't feel that much pressure," said Leonard. "We had a 17-game lead. It was more exciting in 1977 when I pitched the clincher."

The Angels went on to win the inconsequential second game, 7-4.

In other AL action, Baltimore defeated Detroit 9-3; Cleveland edged Boston 6-5 in 11 innings; Oakland trimmed Texas 6-4; Milwaukee swept a doubleheader from Minnesota 3-2 and 6-1 and Seattle blanked Chicago 4-0. The game between Toronto and New York was suspended by rain in the top of the 10th inning with the Blue Jays leading 5-3.

Leonard, 19-9, struck out nine and walked two in winning his ninth game in his last 10 decisions.

The Angels, last year's West champions, won the second game behind a five-RBI performance by Brian Downing. Brett, the major league's leading hitter, returned to the Kansas City lineup for the first time since injuring his hand on Sept. 6 and collected two singles in five at-bats to keep his average at .396.

Orioles 9, Tigers 3

Dan Graham, Terry Crowley and Rich Dauer combined to drive in seven runs as Baltimore defeated Detroit.

Graham clouted a two-run homer, his 11th in the second inning, and his RBI-single capped a three-run rally in the fifth. Crowley rapped a two-run single in the fifth and Dauer's third hit, a bases-loaded single in the seventh, drove in Baltimore's final two runs.

Reliever Sammy Stewart, 5-7, who allowed three hits over 51-3 innings, was the winner as the second-place Orioles trimmed the Yankees' lead in the East to 5½ games.

Indians 6, Red Sox 5

Gary Alexander drove in pinch-runner Jerry Dybzinski with a two-out pinch-single in the 11th inning to lead Cleveland over Boston.

Jack Brohamer started the rally with a one-out single and gave way to Dybzinski. Tom Verzyer followed with a single off reliever Mike Torrez' leg, sending Dybzinski to second. Miguel Dilone forced Verzyer at second, but Alexander followed with a single off reliever Tom Burgmeier, scoring Dybzinski and handing the victory to Dan Spillner, 15-10.

Dwight Evans sent the game into extra innings tied at 5-5 with a two-run homer in the Boston ninth.

A's 6, Rangers 4

Rickey Henderson set a club record with his 82nd stolen base as Oakland defeated Texas in a game that saw Rick Langford's complete-game streak come to an end at 22.

Langford, 17-11, failed to finish a game for Oakland for the first time since May 18, when he was pulled with one out to go in the ninth after giving up a two-run homer to Rusty Staub. Bob Lacey got the last out, chalking up his fifth save of the season.

This was only the fourth time in 29 starts that Langford failed to finish.

Twins 3-6, Brewers 2-1

Jerry Kosman scattered eight hits and Roy Smalley contributed a game-winning sacrifice fly in a three-run fifth inning, leading Minnesota over Milwaukee in the first game of their doubleheader.

Rob Wilfong hit his first career grand slam and Glenn Adams and Ron Jackson hit solo shots as the Twins scored six runs in the seventh inning to earn their second-game victory.

Mariners 4, White Sox 0

Floyd Bannister and Mike Parrott combined on a six-hitter and Reggie Walton knocked in two runs to lead Seattle over Chicago.

Walton's RBI-groundout gave the Mariners a 1-0 lead in the fourth, the second scored on Larry Cox's double-play grounder in the fifth. Dave Edler hit his second homer of the year in the seventh and Walton doubled home another run in the eighth.

Blue Jays 5, Yankees 3

Right fielder Reggie Jackson's three-base error on Ernie Whitt's single allowed two runs to score in the 10th inning and gave Toronto a 5-3 lead over New York before rain suspended the game one out later.

AP honors Port Arthur receiver

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

Port Arthur Jefferson receiver Brent Duhon motored through his pass routes in moderate traffic last season, grabbing 70 passes for 1,009 yards and eight touchdowns, the fourth best receiving effort in Texas schoolboy history.

But after only two games this season, it is clear that Duhon will be fighting traffic jams the entire season, which makes his 10 receptions for 165 yards and one touchdown last week even more amazing.

"Brent is continuing to do things well this season but now he's having to contend with double and triple coverage," Port Arthur Jefferson Coach Ron Thompson said. "But he's still making his catches."

Duhon's performance in last week's 21-6 victory over Baytown Lee earned him mention in this week's Associated Press Schoolboy Honor Roll.

"Last year we were a team coming off a 1-9 record and the word was all we had was a quarterback that could pass and a receiver that could catch," Thompson said. "We didn't get that much attention."

But the exploits of Duhon and quarterback Todd Dodge, who passed for 2,000 yards last season, now are known by all opponents. Although it makes Duhon's duties tougher, Thompson thinks he's well equipped.

"Brent can broad jump 22 feet, high jump 6-1 or 6-2 and runs a 4.4 40-yard dash," Port Arthur Jeff Coach Ron Thompson said. "He uses all his skills very well and he runs disciplined patterns."

Through two games this season, Duhon has caught 15 passes for 235 yards.

Bridge City football coach Andy Griffin decided to move Bryan Ward from tailback, where he had gained over 3,000 yards in his first three seasons, to quarterback this year. His reasoning was simple and effective.

"With Bryan at quarterback, he touches the ball on every play," Griffin said. "Last year he'd carry the ball 25 or 30 times per game. I think it's going to work out if we continue blocking as well as we have."

Ward wasted no time in producing from his new position. In last week's 24-22 victory over Class 5A Vidor, Ward provided all 24 of his team's points.

Ward, 5-9, 180, rushed 26 times for 164 yards and touchdowns of one, one and 60 yards, kicked three extra points and booted the game-winning 27-yard field goal with seven seconds to play, which he set up with a 29-yard run on fourth down.

Although Newton lost to Orangefield 35-19 last week, credit for the loss couldn't be tagged on junior running back Anthony Byerly, who rushed 258 yards on 23 carries and scored on runs of 58 and 30 yards. Byerly gained over 1,000 yards rushing as a sophomore.

Corpus Christi Carroll running back Peevee Smoots was sparking in another losing effort. Carroll lost to 4A power Gregory-Portland 31-30 despite Smoots' 195 yards rushing on 13 carries and two touchdown runs.

Quarterback Grant Parker of No. 13A state ranked Breckenridge rushed 105 yards on 16 carries, completed five of 10 passes for 60 yards and had two touchdowns, one passing and one running, in a 21-7 victory over perennial Class 4A power Brownwood.

Rushmore sculptor has fear of heights

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent
MOUNT RUSHMORE, S.D. (AP) — A man with a fear of heights has no business dangling from a cable over Mount Rushmore, but Bob Crisman would not trade that duty with anyone.

"I've come to have very strong feelings about that sculpture," he was saying the other day, safe on the ground under the gaze of those four presidential faces.

"It's hard to put into words, but once you've been out there, touching it, moving over every square inch of it, you develop a certain attachment to it, a pride such as the men who actually carved it must have felt.

"It's a personal matter. I asked for the job, they let me have it, and I don't want anyone else to do it but me."

The National Park Service titles Bob Crisman's job

"sculpture maintenance," an accurate but juiceless description of what he actually does.

What he does is strap himself in a boson's chair and allow himself to be lowered over the face of the mountain, or rather the faces, by two trustworthy friends above operating a hand winch that was left for that purpose when the carvings were finished in 1941. Same old winch, same old cable.

From below, he looks like a tiny puppet on a string. Thus deployed, 300 feet above "impact level," as he puts it, he goes about filling hairline cracks in the granite so that water won't get in them, freeze, and possibly break off somebody's nose, or lip, or eyebrow.

"Don't worry," he said. "These are not cracks that have developed. They were always there. The rock is crazed, sort of like an old plate, with cracks from the size of a hair to the size of a pencil lead.

"When the sculptor, Gutzon Borglum, finished it, he filled all those cracks with a mixture of granite dust, white lead and linseed oil. I use the same thing. The cracks I fill are in the fillings. I have never seen any new cracks."

Bob Crisman's affection for the monument is apparent — he has read every word he can find about it — and also ironic.

He was born and raised on a ranch 13 miles from here and never troubled to go look at the sculpture, except a few times from a distance. When he got out of high school and then the Air Force, seven years ago, he took a job with the Park Service at age 24.

That was when he got his first close-up look at Mount Rushmore. "Once I saw it," he said, "I was really awed.

Ogallala Aquifer depletion poses serious water threat

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — State Engineer Steve Reynolds says initial research indicates that within the next 30 to 60 years, New Mexico will see serious adverse effects of depletion of the Ogallala Aquifer.

"Some irrigators in the Portales area, which is on the fringe of the aquifer, have already gone out of business," Reynolds said.

And, he said, the Ogallala Basin recharge "is very small in terms of the water presently in storage and the annual withdrawal."

possible courses of canals to import water into the area.

The cost of an import system has not yet been determined. And the volumes of water that might be available have not been established.

The Missouri River is the most likely source of import water, Reynolds said, "but there was no comment made on the likelihood of water being available from that source."

It will involve a complex and lengthy series of negotiations with other states on the diversion of water from the Missouri River, Reynolds said.

The contract study is scheduled for completion in July 1982, for presentation to Congress.

Congressional colleagues try out grits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. G.V. Montgomery, D-Miss., says he was just plain fishing for problems when he introduced some of his congressional colleagues to a favorite down-home Southern delicacy.

"We ran out of catfish and, boy, was I in trouble," said the congressman on Wednesday.

Montgomery had joined Mississippi catfish growers in sponsoring a dinner for members of Congress and their staffs. The dinner, held at a Capitol restaurant, featured catfish supplied by an Isola, Miss., producer, Montgomery explained.

"We had 120 pounds for the dinner and we gave each person a small filet, but it didn't last long," he said. "I guess you could say the fish went over too big."

Montgomery received praise for the dish from members of Congress who had never tried catfish and officials at the restaurant wanted to put catfish on the menu each week, he said.

"I had to tell them there simply wasn't a delivery service this far north," he said.

— A Whale of a Tale
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — William Vance has added a new page to those tall fishing tales about "the one that got away." Only in Vance's case, his Buick didn't.

As he was driving downtown Tuesday, the left front wheel of Vance's month-old Regal was hooked by a wind-whipped cable that was dangling from a scaffold on a 10-story office building.

The cable wrapped around the wheel and the eastbound car, traveling about 15 mph, was pulled up into the air like a fighting tuna.

"It was one hell of a catch," Vance joked later.

Jury selection underway in Pontiac trial

By SANDRA BALMER
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — A coalition's three-month campaign to find sympathetic jurors for a prison-riot murder trial faces the test today — after a newspaper ad asked prospective jurors who believe they oppose capital punishment to consider what they would do with an Adolf Hitler.

Jury selection is getting under way in the trial of 10 black inmates of the Pontiac Correctional Center charged with murder in the deaths of three white guards during a July 1978 riot.

The defendants are among 17 black inmates charged in the deaths, and all could face the death penalty if convicted.

The ad was sponsored by the Pontiac Prisoners Support Coalition, which in the last three months also has distributed some 50,000 leaflets explaining the case at 50 locations around Chicago, including train stations, shopping centers and factories and businesses where employees get time off to serve on juries.

The ad, which ran Wednesday in the Chicago

Tribune, said people who opposed the death penalty under any circumstance would automatically be excluded from serving on the jury. It added that studies indicated that people who oppose capital punishment also are less likely to return convictions than other jurors.

Exclusion of death-penalty opponents could thus reduce the number of sympathetic jurors in the Pontiac trial, the ad says.

It asked potential jurors to think about whether they really opposed capital punishment under any circumstances:

"If you could in any case impose a death sentence (for Hitler, for instance), you are legally entitled to serve."

Prosecutors could not be reached for comment on the advertisements.

The 8-by-14-inch advertisement cost the group $6,000 to run once. It was displayed on page 10 of the Tribune's financial section.

An identical advertisement was placed on a full page

Monday in the Chicago Daily Defender, a newspaper read largely by blacks.

David Saxner, a spokesman for the coalition, said the Chicago Sun-Times refused to run the ad, saying it violated the newspaper's policy against running material on the eve of a trial aimed at swaying a jury.

Some of the leaflets were handed out in areas of the city where the group said research showed that other jurors in death-penalty cases have lived — in working class neighborhoods, such as Gage Park and Marquette Park on the Southwest Side.

The defense believes the white residents of these areas have little information on the case and are undecided about it.

Saxner said the effort is a long shot. "Hopefully it will make a difference," he said, "but (we're) not optimistic it will."

The case stems from a riot at the crowded state prison at Pontiac on July 22, 1978, in which guards William Thomas, 49, Robert Conkie, 22, and Stanley Cole, 47, were slain.

Integration monitors call for district plan

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Public school officials were hustling today to comply with a state Supreme Court order that added thousands of students to a mandatory desegregation busing plan.

The Supreme Court's ruling adds 96 schools to the 57 previously contained in desegregation plan. The district, the nation's second largest public school system, has more than 700 schools serving 540,000 students.

The Los Angeles Board of Education was informed of the revamped plan Wednesday by Superior Court Judge Paul Egly, whose power to design the program was upheld by the high court.

In a letter to school board attorneys, Egly said his two special integration monitors must know by the close of business today how and when the board intends to include the schools in the program.

The 96 schools were among those axed from the plan by the board Monday night. An appeals court had granted the board authority to delete the schools Saturday, a decision later overruled by the Supreme Court.

School board attorneys sent a telegram Wednesday to the high court in San Francisco, demanding another hearing and threatening to take the matter again to the U.S. Supreme Court. Supreme Court Justice William Rehnquist last Friday refused to halt the dispute.

Merchants credit weather for cotton futures

BY KRISTIN GAZLAY
Associated Press Writer
A blistering hot and bone dry Texas summer coupled with the laws of supply and demand have pushed the price of cotton skyward.

Cotton futures almost hit the dollar-per-pound mark last week and economists and merchants credit the dramatic price increase to the weather.

Tuesday's average price of 92.29 cents for the nine major Texas markets is "the highest price anyone can remember," said Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown.

Brown said economists have predicted the futures market will soon reach $1 per pound with even further increases ahead.

A ceiling is placed on cotton prices because of the relative cheapness of synthetic fibers, said Carl Anderson, an agricultural expert at Texas A&M.

"Texas mills are looking at using more polyester," he said, "so the cotton merchants have to watch their competitors. The price of cotton is almost 20 cents more than polyester. That takes the edge off the price going extremely high, like about $1.25 per pound."

Texas weather has contributed to both the shortage of cotton, and the spiraling price of the fiber.

The dry Texas summer with its record-breaking heat killed many of the cotton plants before they could grow, and Hurricane Allen destroyed about 50,000 to 100,000 bales, a Dallas merchant said.

Because Texas owns almost a third of the nation's cotton acreage, its weather problems have significance in the nation's marketplace.

"The basis of the increase is the short supply of American cotton," said Anderson. "We had tremendous exports in 1979 and pulled our carry-over stock down to 2.8 million bales, the lowest level in several years. Then we had a disastrous year of cotton production."

"Last year, we had an ideal crop-growing season and produced 5.5 million bales," he said, "but now we're looking at 3.6 million bales on essentially the same acreage."

"Consumers shouldn't expect to see sharp price increases for jeans and other cotton garments just because the market has improved," said Brown.

Man ejected from plane experienced fear of crash

By The Associated Press
Officials said an Air Force staff sergeant who ejected himself from a B-52 flying a training mission over central Arkansas did so because he thought the plane had gone into an uncontrolled dive and would crash.

Officials at Barksdale Air Force Base, La. said Wednesday that Sgt. Charles J. Johnson, 26, experienced a sensation of weightlessness and activated his ejector seat.

He floated to earth from an altitude of 29,000 feet, or about 5 1/2 miles, landing in remote woods in Grant County.

Johnson hiked about 10 miles through the rural area and along state Highway 46 until a passing motorist gave him a ride to Sheridan.

More people in Texas get eyewear at TSO than at any other place.

Here's why:

In 1935, we came up with a very simple idea. Give people the kind of fine quality prescription eyewear they need at very reasonable prices. That simple, fundamental idea is still our way of doing business; quality eyewear at reasonable cost.

Every type of prescription eyewear.

You'll discover the widest selection of frame styles and colors available almost anywhere at Texas State Optical. Hundreds of outstanding designs for men, women and children.

The selection includes designer frames by Givenchy, Von Furstenberg, St. Laurent, Faberge and others. Frame prices at TSO are most attractive.

Every type of lens.

Ask about the many types of lenses for your prescription eyewear at Texas State Optical.

Finest quality prescription lenses are made exactly to the doctor's prescription in one of the most modern lens laboratories in the country.

Contact lenses—regular and soft lenses.

For many years TSO has made contact lenses to the doctor's exact specifications. The exclusive TSO edge-beveling technique and multi-curve lens design helps you get comfortable with your contact lenses in the shortest possible time. TSO also offers soft contact lenses at reasonable cost.

Ecologists want more effective radioactive waste dump controls

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas should impose an immediate moratorium on selection of new radioactive disposal sites until a more effective state regulatory program can be established, a Sierra Club chapter says.

"Many people already view Texas as the next major site for the disposal of 'low level' radioactive wastes because of the vast quantities of out-of-state wastes currently stored and processed here," the club's Lone Star Chapter said Wednesday.

In a position paper, the outdoor recreation and environmentalist group warned that new state disposal laws could create more problems than they solve.

"Possibly the greatest problem would be the danger that new legislation might open the door ... to unlimited disposal in the state of wastes generated throughout the country," the chapter said.

The chapter said it could support a state low level waste management law only after determining disposal is "the only viable alternative to closing down medical research and other such facilities in the state."

And the chapter said low level waste disposal in Texas should be restricted to medical and similar wastes.

The group also stressed that high-priority attention should be given to the "human factor" in operating waste disposal sites.

"Experiences with the handling of radioactive materials have indicated that the 'human factor' is a critical one in ensuring that the public health and safety is protected," the chapter said.

"Thus, employee training and development should receive high priority in the drafting and implementation of operations plans for waste management facilities."

The chapter said its position paper represented the opinions of several thousand members of the Sierra Club in Texas.

The paper recommended that any low level radioactive waste disposal site should be owned by a public entity. But it said the chapter could support private ownership of storage, transport and processing facilities.

The chapter also said any state agency regulating waste disposal should have the authority "to reject a proposed site if the site does not meet established criteria."

Federal judge reinstates cops

TYLER (AP) — Three Crockett police officers fired for insubordination earlier this year have been reinstated with back pay by a federal judge.

But the president of a police labor union the men belong to said the officers would not return to work in Crockett. The officers and their attorney could not be reached for comment.

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice Wednesday ordered the Crockett police department to reinstate the men with back pay. Sgt. David Lamb, Investigator William Clary and patrolman

James Saduske were fired June 20. The officers then filed a federal suit asking for reinstatement and pay from the time they were fired.

During a trial in early July, Chief L.D. Irvin said he dismissed the men because he learned they criticized him during an informal conversation with a city councilman.

The dismissed officers claimed they were fired because they had joined the Combined Law Enforcement Association of Texas, a police labor union, two weeks earlier.

Grand jury zeroes in on the Bandidos

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Federal grand jurors investigating the assassination of a federal judge and the ambush of an assistant U.S. attorney have focused their attention on members of the Bandidos Motorcycle Club.

The panel ordered seven Bandidos to appear in a police line-up observed by an undisclosed witness, then questioned a former prizefighter about his associations with club members.

Grand jurors, who have recessed until Oct. 15, are trying to identify who riddled the automobile of former Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr with 19 bullets on Nov. 21, 1978, and killed U.S. District Judge John Wood Jr. a mile away on May 29, 1979.

In recent actions regarding the investigation: —A secret witness peered at the line-up of Bandidos through a one-way mirror at the Bexar County Jail, then left under heavy guard last Wednesday. Assistant U.S. Attorney Wayne Speck said, "What transpired at the jail was part of the grand jury proceeding, and a report will be made to the grand jury about what took place."

—Former middleweight boxer Robert M. "Kid Death" Thomas, 33, appeared before the special 23-member grand jury and later told reporters he was questioned about his associations with Bandidos. "They asked me if we ever had any meetings, if we ever discussed killing Judge

Wood. I told them I never had any meetings and never discussed killing the judge."

—FBI Agent-in-Charge Jack C. Lawn said his agency again wants to question Charles V. Harrelson, who served a prison term for a 1969 hired killing. Harrelson was arrested on a bond-jumping charge at Van Horn earlier this month.

"We do anticipate our agents from the Houston office talking to Harrelson about the Wood case in the near future," Lawn said. Harrelson was called before the grand jury last November and told reporters he was in Dallas at the time Wood was slain.

—The FBI in Little Rock, Ark., was checking a rifle obtained in a raid on a Bandido hang-out to determine if it was used in the attack on Kerr, who escaped serious injury. This was the latest in a series of raids and weapons checks conducted by the FBI since the attacks.

Thomas, recovering from a gunshot wound suffered in a July 1 fight, said the grand jury was interested in allegations made by convicted murderer and drug dealer Robert F. "Comanche" Riojas that he (Thomas) and four other men were in the car with Wood's assassin outside the judge's apartment.

Deliberation continues

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — Jurors who reached one verdict in the perjury trial of former Hidalgo County District Attorney Oscar McInnis and co-defendant Patricia Parada have been told to deliberate until the fate of both defendants has been decided.

The federal court jury messaged it had reached one verdict Wednesday but it did not indicate whose fate was decided.

Jurors, who began deliberations Monday, were told by U.S. District Judge Filemon Vela to continue deliberating today until a verdict has been reached for both defendants.

McInnis has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity to the charge that he lied to a federal grand jury here in 1978 when he told the panel he knew nothing about a plot to kidnap and kill Ms. Parada's ex-husband.

She also is accused of lying by denying knowledge of the alleged scheme.

If convicted, the pair faces a maximum sentence of five years in prison and a $5,000 fine on each count. McInnis was indicted on five counts, while Ms. Parada faces one count.

Government prosecutors introduced as evidence tapes of recorded conversations between McInnis and a Hidalgo County jail inmate.

Author believes Somoza knew he was marked man

ABILENE (AP) — A biographer of Anastasio Somoza and a Texas congressman say the former Nicaraguan leader's assassination may make world leaders hesitant to be friendly to the United States.

Jack Cox, an Abilene businessman and author of a book about Somoza, said the former dictator knew he was marked for death, but refused to live in fear.

"He had stated to me he knew the Marxists wanted him dead and exercised every precaution, and that he was not going to live in fear," said Cox, a former Texas legislator and the 1962 Republican gubernatorial nominee who lived in Nicaragua from 1972 to 1976.

"He was a symbol, more than anything else, of Western ideals. He was strongly pro-United States in all his thinking," Cox said, adding that Wednesday's assassination in Paraguay "might make people who are pro-United States more fearful of taking a stand with us."

Those sentiments were echoed by U.S. Rep. Charles Wilson in Washington.

"This is no time to be a friend of the United States," the Lufkin Democrat said. "I am saddened at the violent death of a lifelong friend of the United States as well as a personal friend."

Cox said he was shocked by

Hutton credits God in new life

By JAY SHARBUTT
 AP Drama Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Betty Hutton, the one-time "Blonde Blitz" of Hollywood, is a born-again performer now, praising God for what she calls "a miracle" — a new life on Broadway and off.

With tears of joy streaming down her cheeks Wednesday, the 50-year-old actress took her first show-biz bow in eight years at the end of the hit musical, "Annie," in which she co-stars for a three-week stint as Miss Hannigan, the mean, whiskey-swilling, larcenous orphanage-keeper.

She got a long, noisy, standing ovation at the matinee that marked her return to performing after her recovery from a 20-year battle with drugs and despair so deep she wanted to kill herself.

For Miss Hutton, who's filling in for vacationing Alice Ghostley, the Wednesday night performance was particularly meaningful.

In the audience were two of her three grown daughters — Lindsay, 33, and Candice, 32 — two grandchildren and the Catholic priest she credits with saving her life, the Rev. Peter Maguire. Her third daughter, Carrie, 18, is due in from California on Saturday.

The actress, married four times and survivor of a turbulent personal and professional life, says she first met the priest eight years ago when she had to leave a summer show and be hospitalized, a victim of drug abuse.

Miss Hutton, a Catholic convert, worked anonymously for a year as housekeeper at the priest's church in Portsmouth, R.I. She says he gave her the will to live that now has led her to Broadway.

"He didn't even know who I was, had never been to a movie. When he learned I'm Betty Hutton, he said, 'Who's that?'" she said recently.

Her Broadway debut was in 1940, in "Two for the Show," at the same 1,300-seat Alvin Theater where she's now playing in "Annie." Her return might have initially started her older film fans.

She was anything but the glamor gal of "The Fleet's In," the 1942 movie musical that launched her as a star.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

September 19, 1980

Contacts made socially this coming year will prove very helpful to you in other areas. Mingle with people who have good reputations in their particular fields.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) An unexpected invitation for a chance meeting today could develop into an exceptionally fortunate experience. Look for something promising to come of it. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Follow your instincts regarding a material opportunity that may suddenly fall in your lap. The rewards are quite large when you develop things your way.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't be hesitant to tackle big ideas today, especially if they include dealing with older or vastly experienced persons. Things should work out great.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today you will be compensated more handsomely than usual for well-directed efforts. Focus on projects that can mean the most to you financially or materially.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Mediocrity is something no one can accuse you of today. You're setting with ambition and big plans, and you're lucky with things large in scope.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're very adroit today at being able to pull rabbits out of the hat. Through resourcefulness you'll extricate yourself from sticky situations.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You function best today as a team player, rather than through individual effort. Pick the proper cohort to meet your particular needs.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Advancement or special benefits are within your reach today, so direct your efforts accordingly. Work and career areas are especially favored.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) The impression you make today is excellent and will have a long-lasting effect. Get out and mingle in the right circles or places.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A shared interest you're involved in looks exceptionally promising today because of the basic sincerity and good will of the parties concerned.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Any arrangements or agreements that you make today, either in verbal or written form, should stand the test of time. Lock things up now.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Work or service done well today will benefit you for a long time to come. Those who could do you good will be so pleased they won't easily forget.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Relinquishing his right to remain free on bond while appealing convictions, former Summit County Probate Judge James V. Barbuto turned himself over to authorities to begin serving a 15-year prison sentence.

Barbuto, 59, surrendered Wednesday to Summit County Sheriff David Troutman in Akron, authorities said.

He was convicted June 12 on felony counts of intimidation and gross sexual imposition involving female witnesses. Barbuto also has pleaded guilty to two misdemeanor counts stemming from a weapons possession investigation.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Patrons at the lavish new $27.5 million Louise B. Davies Symphony Hall greeted the end of the facility's premiere performance with a blizzard of confetti, but critics welcomed the symphony hall's debut with mixed reviews.

More than 3,000 patrons paid up to $1,000 each to attend Tuesday's opening at the auditorium, the passion of Ms. Davies, 80, who contributed nearly $5 million for the 200,000-square-foot building.

Critics were divided on the effectiveness of the hall's acoustics controls, with one reviewer describing the sound in the "raw, unconditioned, new hall" as "brash and over-optimistic as can be."

Carefully researched publication nears marketing stage

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — In her 50th year, The Reader's Digest, self-described as "that worldly lady with the common touch," has given birth. Her first, it's a test-tube creation, conceived after long deliberation.

The new publication, named Families and carrying a Sept. 23 date, is probably the most carefully marketed product to reach the newsstands in years, having been pretested, tested, retested. It is, itself, a test.

In some markets, for example, it will cost $1.25, in others the price will be $1.95, and in still others it will cost $2.49 and contain 48 additional editorial pages. Sales to price-size ratios will be studied.

Some markets will be supported by newspaper advertisements, others by television, and some by radio. In certain markets no advertising at all is planned. Sales-ad ratios will be scrutinized for promotion guidance.

Readers are expected to help. In every 15th issue of the 400,000 print run a questionnaire will solicit reader responses, and future issues conceivably could be changed because of recommendations or criticisms.

In fact, the first issue of Families will probably produce as much information for the Reader's Digest people as it will for readers, and they will ponder and digest that information for many months.

Though the new publication is destined to be a monthly, the next issue won't be until April, a "confirmation" issue, and the regular monthly schedule isn't likely to begin until October of next year.

"We are more conservative than other publications about this," says Richard McLoughlin, publisher of both the Digest and Families. "We are approaching it prudently." The Digest, he reminds you, has never done anything of the sort before; it never published another magazine.

"Maybe a million people want this magazine, maybe five million," said McLoughlin. "We don't really know until we put it out." But, he said, "we have an awful lot of hope."

"diversifying," said McLoughlin, father of five. "Mine is a conventional family, but we have divorced mothers, single fathers, step-parents, working mothers..." In short, diversity.

And the magazine will have a diverse subject matter: acne, puberty, bed-wetting, pot, family backpacking, the value of the dollar, communicating, custody, dating, school marks, college, careers, emotional disturbance. Almost endless.

To find its stories the Digest will read everything available in newspapers, magazines and books, and probably will search through the contents of speeches and seminar discussions. Then it will condense.

Academy Street undertakers

HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — That poignant sports page picture of a million-dollar draft baby tenderly immersing a bruised flipper in a Jacuzzi takes me back to the days when men were men, not persons, and a fullback marinated an aching biceps in an ice bucket already populated with beer bottles.

The gridiron heroes of my youth were the Academy Street Undertakers, who only became draft choices when a postcard arrived from the president.

The Undertakers played sandlot football every fall Sunday if another team showed up, on a vacant lot in Long Island City, the grungy industrial community across the East River from the towers of Manhattan where I passed my formative years.

The Undertakers took their name not from any killer instinct among the squad members or the deadly nature of their attack, although both elements might be present if a brawl erupted, but because they were sponsored by Francis X. Dolan, the local mortician. By way of advertising his services, the Undertakers wore black jerseys emblazoned with a large white coffin.

The Undertakers, amateurs in the purest sense (not counting the $10 Dolan offered for a touchdown or an interception), resorted to pseudonyms only in cases of intense police surveillance. Our seven blocks of Jello were never mistaken for the Seven Blocks of Granite.

The Dolan Funeral Parlor, which hosted rare victory parties in the embalmer's chambers in the basement where the fold-up chairs and empty coffins were stacked, was located at the other end of the street, across from St. Patrick's Church. When the big bass funeral bell boomed its slow lament, we would rush to the church steps for a glimpse of our gridiron favorites. Some days you could catch both ends and the entire backfield doing a little stutter step beneath a casket. The boys of autumn doubled as Dolan's pallbearers. Rudy, the massive black wingback who looked like Too Tall Jones' taller brother, drove the hearse.

At halftime — sometimes earlier if the Undertakers were too far behind to hold the crowd — the hat was passed among the spectators for the "equipment fund," which was synonymous with the post-game keg of beer.

I can't recall a game ever being called because of snow, ice, rain or riot. But they called one once on account of cars. Cars ran over all five footballs held by the two teams, and the kid on the stoop across the street refused to lend his. Through some misunderstanding the sanitation men ground up the kid's bike in the garbage compactor at the back of the truck about a week later.

Who ever heard of a Jacuzzi back then? Who needed one?

Besides, Dolan had some sinks down in the basement big enough to handle fallen gladiators stiff in every muscle.

A PREPARED MIND
BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (AP) — Scientist Henry Hsieh, holder of 86 patents over the past 23 years, says a discovery is "really a series of accidents," and that "it just takes someone with a prepared mind to accept and catch that accident."

Hsieh, a senior research associate, has worked in polyolefins and plastics for Phillips Petroleum. He recently received a cash award of $12,500 from his employer under a new patent payment plan.

China's 'gang of four' goes to trial Friday

PEKING (AP) — Mao Tse-tung's widow and the other members of China's infamous Gang of Four will go on trial Friday before the supreme court on charges of trying to usurp state power, diplomatic sources said.

Chinese authorities did not confirm the date. But they have said the trial will begin soon, be closed, that there will be no announcement until after a verdict is reached, and that the four will not be sentenced to death.

The trial is expected to be politically explosive. Some of the defendants are expected to name names, possibly accuse

Mao himself and set the stage for the ultimate downgrading of the late Communist Party chairman.

The four were arrested Oct. 22, 1976, three weeks after Mao's death and have been imprisoned since that time.

Besides Mao's widow, Jiang Qing, who has been dubbed the ringleader, the Gang includes former Politburo members Zhang Chungqiao, Yao Wen Yuan, and Wang Hungwen.

The four have been accused of responsibility for the worst excesses of the 1966-76 Cultural Revolution in which thousands were persecuted and died.

Deng Xiaoping, mainspring of the modernization drive and current party vice chairman, was purged by the gang which claimed to be carrying out the orders of Mao himself, who was ailing.

Earlier this month Deng said of Mao's widow: "She is a very, very evil woman. She is so evil that any evil thing you say about her isn't evil enough."

Asked to rate her wickedness, Deng replied, "She is a thousand times a thousand below zero."

Pharmacists occupational hazards grow with crime

Pharmacists may find their profession listed as one of the most dangerous if the current trend of fatal, armed drugstore robberies continues.

In an effort to stop the theft of dangerous drugs and their diversion to illicit channels, legislation is being introduced to the United States Congress making crimes of violence against pharmacists a federal offense.

Senate criminal justice bill S.1722 has been presented for consideration by Congress.

The action was stimulated by the findings in a recent national survey conducted by a well-known druggist magazine which said 50 pharmacists have been killed in recent months during drugstore robberies.

The current issue of "American Druggist Magazine" reports the pharmacists were murdered by armed intruders seeking drugs and cash.

"Pharmacists deserve the protection of the federal government," the magazine's editor-in-chief Stanley Siegelman said. "State and local authorities have proved inadequate in dealing with this particularly vicious iniquity."

Three states — California, New York and Louisiana — reported four murdered pharmacists. Massachusetts, Arkansas, Georgia and Indiana each have had three pharmacy murders recently.

Four states reported two druggist killings each. They are Kentucky, Washington, Florida and New Mexico.

South Carolina, North Carolina, Minnesota, Delaware, Tennessee, Maryland, Oregon, Utah and Missouri each had one pharmacist murdered in a drugstore robbery.

Philadelphia, Penn. reported the highest amount of pharmacy murders with nine druggists dying in hold-ups. Texas has not had a pharmacist killed in a robbery recently.

Gang of four to go on trial

PEKING (AP) — China's notorious "gang of four," including the widow of the late Chairman Mao Tse-tung, will go on trial Friday at a closed session of the Supreme Court, Western diplomatic sources reported today.

The sources said the date of the long-awaited trial was reported by a vice minister of justice to a visiting parliamentary delegation from Luxembourg this week. Diplomatic sources said the effects of the trial will be far reaching and during the proceedings dozens of others could be accused and hundreds could be implicated. Party Vice Chairman Deng Xiaoping told a visiting Japanese delegation last week the trial would be held "very soon."
