PAMPA — The Gray County Chapter of the American Red Cross will begin registration Monday morning for its summer swimming classes.

The I-PAP swim classes, with parents required to be in the water with their kids, begins June 17.

Classes for levels 1, 2, 3 and 4 will begin June 24.

Classes for levels 5, 6 and 7 will begin July 1, with another class for levels 5 and 6 scheduled for July 15.

For registration information, contact the Red Cross office at 108 N. Russell or call 669-7121.

PAMPA — Tralee Crisis Center will be providing group counseling sessions for battered and abused women.

Facilitating the group sessions will be Priscilla Klinepeter, LMFT.

The group sessions will be held on Mondays from 11 a.m. to noon. Space is limited, so those wanting to attend should call to reserve a seat.

For more information on the counseling sessions, call Ann Hamilton at 669-1131.

NEW YORK (AP) — Political and community leaders expressed shock at conservative commentator William F. Buckley's statements that some abortion rights activists consider abortion a means of limiting the black population.

"A lot of people think that abortion is a tactful way to limit the number of blacks who are born in the United States," Buckley said in his characteristic patrician tone during an interview broadcast Friday on Fox News on Channel 5.

"A lot of people say, 'Well, let's just not raise the subject,' but it's a good way to keep down the population, a lot of which is headed for the underclass."

Without naming names, he said: "I know a lot of WASPish people who won't bring this up, but that's what they're thinking."

New Jersey Gov. Christie Whitman, a moderate Republican and outspoken supporter of abortion rights, called the statements "outrageous" and "clearly untrue."

African-American community leaders also said they were stunned. The Rev. Al Sharpton characterized the statements as "startling."

Commissioners change Carruth Pavilion policies

By SHERRY CROMARTIE
Staff Writer

Gray County commissioners Friday adopted a plan to regulate use of its Clyde Carruth Pavilion aimed at keeping it safe, clean and in good repair.

The pavilion, also known as the Bull Barn will continue to be available to the public. However, new provisions in a lease agreement will make it worthwhile for renters to care for it properly.

Rental arrangements for the facility must be made through the office of Gray County Treasurer Scott Hahn.

Gray County residents may rent the Bull Barn, located on US 60 east of Pampa, for non-profit uses at $25 per day with a $100 deposit.

The $100 deposit is twice the prior deposit required.

Commercial users must pay $50 per day with a $200 deposit.

Out-of-county renters will be charged $50 with a $100 deposit for non commercial uses. Commercial users from out of the county will be charged $100 with a $200 deposit.

Concern for alcohol use prompted the court to require renters hire security personnel to monitor activities.

The lease agreement covers other requirements for cleaning, decorations, damages or injuries to the premises, and proper sponsorship or chaperoned functions for minors.

If alcohol is allowed, the lessee is required to contact Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission as to specific regulations regarding the event. The lessee is also responsible for obtaining permits if necessary.

Friday storms bring hail, funnels to area counties

Pampa received 0.1 inch of rain Friday from a storm cell which passed over south Gray County and worked its fury on Armstrong, Donley, Collingsworth and Wheeler Counties.

"All I can tell you, we just saw twisters and sand," said Aleta Thompson, wife of Donley County Sheriff Jimmy Thompson.

Rain was spotty in Donley County.

Some residents reported a quarter-inch in the rain gauge while others had two inches, Thompson said.

Hail was responsible for broken windows at two houses in Ashtola, 10 miles west of Clarendon.

Hail followed the Red River dropping golf ball-size hail, Thompson said, and finally overturned a trailer house at Howardwick.

"We was sure scared we was gonna get something," she said.

Armstrong County saw up to golf ball-size hail, as well, according to deputy sheriff Mike Duval.

Also, hail between nickel and dime sized was seen in Claude, as well as sporadic golf ball sized, he said. Cars and roofs showed some damage, though nothing serious.

Barry Sanders of Shamrock Volunteer Fire Department spotted a tornado on the ground about eight miles southeast of town between 10 and 10:30 p.m. Friday.

He said Shamrock experienced 60-mile-per-hour winds and golf ball size hail about 9:45 p.m. The county did not experience significant damage, he said.

A camper overturned on US 83, he said, and the accident has been attributed to high winds. Sanders estimated three inches of rain fell.

"The largest cell moved over us," he said.

Funnels were reported near Groom, Conway and Washburn, according to a dispatcher from the Carson County Sheriff's Office. No damage was reported in Carson County, though hail fell around White Deer, she said.

Gray County deputies reported pea size hail and heavy rain at the intersection of US 70 and Interstate 40.

Despite the welcome rains, they appear to be too little, too late to break a drought which has nearly decimated the dry land wheat crop.

"You can drive down the road and already see the dirt cropping back up. The damage is already done," Sanders said. "It is good for the yards in town. For the crops, it's too late."

Thunderstorms packing winds gusting as high as 100 mph lashed the Dallas-Fort Worth area Saturday, collapsing a hangar at Addison Airport and shattering windows in some high-rise office buildings.

The sheet-metal roof of the hangar fell as the raging storm moved through North Dallas around noon.

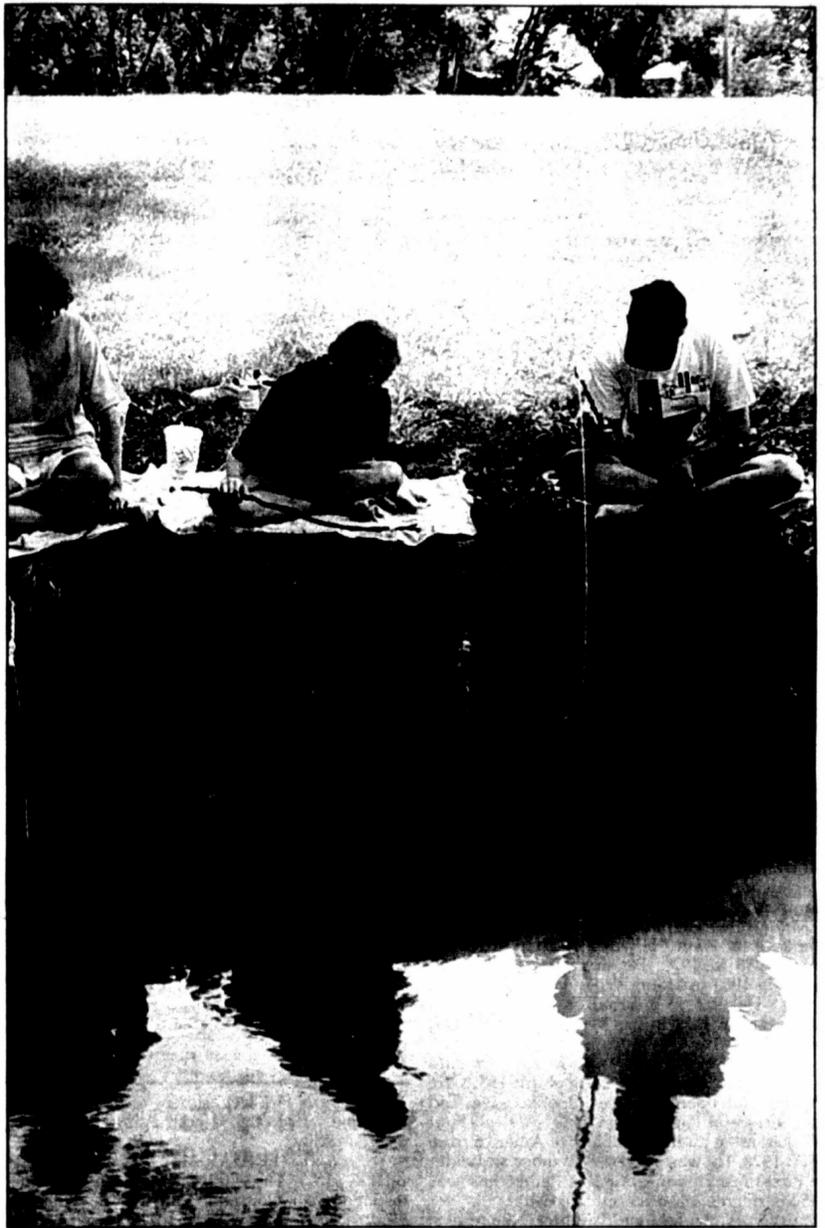

Windows were blown from several office buildings in the Addison and North Dallas areas. However, no injuries were reported, a police spokesman said.

About 57,000 customers lost power as the storm moved through the Dallas area, TU Electric officials said.

Numerous trees from Denton south were blown over or mangled by the gusty winds.

Shingles were blown from apartment roofs and flags were stripped from flagpoles in North Dallas. (The Associated Press contributed to this report)

Michelle Gomez, Amanda Youngblood and Matthew Gomez dangle bacon to attract crawdads in a rain-filled creek in Central Park Friday afternoon. The threesome had caught over two dozen of the crustaceans in a one-hour period. They say they hope to sell their catches to local fishermen at $1 per dozen. Rains Friday night added a little more water to the creek; Pampa officially received 0.1 inch of moisture, though area towns were rocked by severe thunderstorms.

Local farmers enrolling in new farm program

By CHERYL BERZANSKIS
News Editor

As of Thursday afternoon, 180 farms had been enrolled into a farm program enacted April 4 which signals a new era in American farm policy.

The Agriculture Transition Bill, signed by President Bill Clinton, is simpler to administer, is more predictable in size and scope and provides more producer flexibility, according to Matt Street, executive director of the Farm Service Agency.

It takes between 15 and 30 minutes to enroll in the program. Signup continues at his office in the Gray County Annex on US 60 east of Pampa.

Also called the Freedom to Farm Bill, the legislation established new policies on crop subsidies, conservation practices and rural development initiatives. The new program replaces the 1990 Farm Bill, said Street.

Fifty-four attended a meeting May 23 to learn about the bill.

"This particular program is real simple ... I think that's what caused so many questions," Street said.

Instead of receiving deficiency payments from the government when market prices fall below government target prices, farmers will sign contracts to receive fixed yearly payments which will be paid regardless of market prices.

"Each five years in the past, they've come out with a new farm bill," he said. "A man can plant any commodity he wishes in any amount with the exception of fruits and vegetables."

Street explained how the bill works: Farmers may enroll between now and July 12 at his office for the next seven years. It will be their only opportunity to enroll their land except for Conservation Reserve Program land which comes out of reserve.

Instead of market-based supports, the new bill provides for "production flexibility contracts" for farmers of wheat, corn, cotton, rice, sorghum, barley or oats. The contracts guarantee fixed, declining government payments based on 85 percent of a farmer's base acreage and program yield regardless of market conditions.

In 1996, $5.57 billion is allocated for farm payments.

Allocations through 2002 are:

- 1997 - $5.385 billion
- 1998 - $5.8 billion
- 1999 - $5.603 billion
- 2000 - $5.130 billion

The totals are allocated for crops:

- corn - 46.22 percent
- grain sorghum - 5.11 percent
- barley - 2.16 percent
- oats - 0.15 percent
- wheat - 26.26 percent
- upland cotton - 11.63 percent
- rice - 8.47 percent.

"I guess you might say this farm bill is not production oriented. The payments are not based on market prices," he said. "It is an entirely different philosophy."

It continues requirements for erosion, weed and rodent control, he said.

"To receive any USDA benefits, a producer must comply with these conservation provisions," he said.

Street also expects the bill will encourage conservation because there is no penalty for letting land lie fallow.

In 2002, farm conditions may be totally different than today, he said.

"The farmer may not need government assistance or he may need more government assistance," Street said.

The bill passed the House 318 to 89 and the Senate 74 to 26.

Operation Rescue leader arrested on months-old trespassing warrant

DALLAS (AP) — Anti-abortion activist Philip "Flip" Benham is free on bond after his arrest on a warrant issued in Waco earlier this year.

Benham, the leader of Operation Rescue, was arrested just after noon during a protest outside a Planned Parenthood clinic on Greenville Avenue.

He and another protester were detained for refusing to obey police orders, and a records check showed Benham was wanted on a Waco police department warrant for criminal trespassing, a Dallas police spokeswoman said.

Benham, who lives in Dallas, was released from the Lew Sterrett Justice Center in Dallas late Friday after posting $1,000 bond, a jail spokeswoman said.

At a press conference before his arrest, he said the group is declaring war on Planned Parenthood, particularly targeting "what he called new "child-killing centers" in Fort Worth, Dallas, Waco and Midland-Odessa.

James Roderick, president of Planned Parenthood for the nine-county Northeast Texas region, said the Northeast Texas chapter serves about 28,000 women a year, of whom about 800 receive abortions.

The Waco arrest warrant was issued Feb. 12 for Benham's alleged actions at Waco's Planned Parenthood clinic at 1927 Columbus Ave. on Dec. 7, 1995.

The protest was staged in front of the clinic during its annual open house.

"It wasn't a publicized open house. It was invitation-only," said Sue Havens-Drake, executive director of the Central Texas chapter of Planned Parenthood.

When Benham and three others walked onto the Waco Planned Parenthood property, a security guard asked them to leave, the arrest affidavit states. One of the protesters walked away, but the other three remained and were charged with criminal trespassing, based in part on a video tape of the incident, the affidavit states.

The other two men charged, Rene Navaraz and Mark Gabriel, had been arrested and released before Friday.

Benham gained national attention in August 1995 when he baptized Norma McCorvey, known as "Jane Roe" in the Roe vs. Wade Supreme Court case that legalized abortion in 1973. McCorvey had been an abortion-rights supporter before her conversion and has since appeared at numerous abortion clinic protests with Benham, including the Waco protest that resulted in Benham's arrest.

Grand jury indicts second suspect in bus shootings

By CONNIE FARROW
 Associated Press Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A pregnant 15-year-old was shot to death on a school bus by a hired killer because the father of her unborn child feared the baby would be retarded, and he didn't want another baby, police said Saturday.

The father, Mark Boyd, was arrested Friday after being indicted on murder charges.

Boyd, 29, paid an unknown sum of money for the killing of Kyunia Taylor, said police Capt. David Heath. Another man was arrested earlier and charged with being the gunman.

In addition to believing the baby would be retarded, Boyd has two other children and apparently did not want a third, Heath said. Kyunia attended some special education classes.

"We're still looking at all the corroborating evidence, but that appears to be the motive," he said. Kyunia was shot Feb. 29 when a man boarded her school bus and began firing. Her baby, named Diamond, was delivered by Caesarean section, three months premature, but she died 23 days later.

The bus driver was wounded.

On April 11, a laboratory report showed that a 9 mm pistol confiscated by a police officer after a shooting in suburban Pagedale was the weapon that killed Kyunia.

The gun was traced to Malik J. Nettles, 21, of Hillsdale, and he was charged May 1 after being identified by two other teen-agers who also were on the bus but were unharmed.

Boyd's name surfaced after investigators began working on a link between Nettles and Kyunia, and learned that Boyd was believed to have been Diamond's father, Heath said.

"The nature of how they devised the conspiracy is still being worked out," Heath said. He would not say if Nettles implicated Boyd.

Boyd was indicted Thursday on charges of first-degree murder in the killing of Kyunia and second-degree murder in the killing of Diamond. He also was charged with first-degree assault on the bus driver and armed criminal action.

Nettles faces the same charges, plus two counts of armed criminal action. Both remained jailed.

Russia moves to full ruble convertibility

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia's ruble — whose value has been strictly controlled by the Kremlin since the 1920s — will now trade freely on world currency markets, the Russian government said Saturday.

The Central Bank announced it was lifting all remaining barriers to buying and selling rubles both inside and outside Russia, making it a fully convertible currency. The changes take effect immediately.

The value of the ruble was long set by the Soviet and Russian governments and it had no value outside the country. Russia has taken a series of steps to ease currency regulations since it began to liberalize its economy in the late 1980s.

In recent months, the value of the ruble has been relatively stable at around 5,000 to the dollar.

The Central Bank announcement, which was expected, brings Russia fully into compliance with requirements set by the International Monetary Fund as a condition for loans and other economic assistance. A freely traded currency is critical to the functioning of a free market economy.

Previously, the Russian government required exporters to convert half their foreign-exchange earnings back into rubles. Importers had to show signed import contracts demonstrating that they needed to buy foreign currency to do business. Those restrictions, which primarily affected Russian businesses, are now lifted.

New Mexico officials report poisonous cream

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — The New Mexico Health Department has identified new cases of mercury poisoning stemming from the use of a Mexican-made face cream, Crema de Belleza Manning.

In one case, elevated mercury levels were found in the 5-year-old son of a 35-year-old woman, confirmed as a mercury poisoning victim, who reported using the cream for 10 years.

The woman experienced numbness in her arm, leg and ear as well as irritability and sleeplessness.

The department said Friday in a news release that it has become aware of four other women, from Albuquerque, Alamogordo, Silver City and Deming, who have reported various symptoms after using the cream.

New Mexico health officials said the cream poses a health hazard and advised anyone using it to stop doing so immediately. The cream is not licensed for sale in the United States but has been observed for sale at an Albuquerque flea market, health officials said.

The cream contains calomel — mercurous chloride — and tests showed the cream included 6 percent to 8 percent mercury by weight, the agency said.

Twentieth Century scholarships

The 20th Century Forum Study Club recently honored their 1996 scholarship recipients: Pampa High School graduates Edith Osborne, $1,000 scholarship, and Misty Ferrell, $500. At the club's installation luncheon on May 14 are, from left, President Jaimie White, mother Janyce Osborne, recipients Edith Osborne and Misty Ferrell and mother Deborah Ferrell. Fathers of the scholarship recipients are David C. Osborne and Jerry Ferrell.

Nation briefs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Once he complained his record was being lied about. Now he says his ideas are being swiped.

GOP presidential candidate Bob Dole rallied state party chairmen Saturday by portraying President Clinton as a plagiarist determined to "talk conservative, govern liberal and hope nobody notices."

Returning to Washington after a five-state swing, Dole made clear that while Congress may soon be gone from his life, it won't be forgotten. He vowed to remind voters "time and time and time again" how taxes, malaise and liberalism were on the march until the GOP majority came to town.

"Just think where Bill Clinton would have taken America if we had not had a Republican Congress," he said. State chairmen, in their first national meeting since the primaries and the last until the nominating convention, pronounced themselves charged up by Dole's decision to quit the Senate and by stumbles in the Clinton campaign.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal regulators are inching closer to compromise on a children's television dispute that threatens to hold up thousands of TV station license renewals.

For a year, the Federal Communications Commission has deadlocked over possible changes to rules designed to improve the amount and quality of children's educational shows.

But last week's reversal by FCC Commissioner James Quello — who announced support for the idea of setting a standard amount of educational programs that TV stations should air each week — marked a breakthrough and has restarted negotiations among commissioners. The matter has divided the four-member commission.

"Our staffs are sitting down and starting to bang out the words now," said FCC Chairman Reed Hundt. "I'm hopeful."

In fact, Hundt now predicts the FCC will be able to resolve the matter before November — something he had called unthinkable just a few months ago.

MISSION, Texas (AP) — U.S. Rep. Kika de la Garza missed his high school graduation 50 years ago because he was fighting the last engagements of World War II.

Since joining Congress in 1964, he had attended plenty of other high school commencements. On Friday, he got one of his own.

Wearing a maroon cap and gown, de la Garza joined about 600 graduating seniors at the celebration at Tom Landry Stadium.

"I'm as excited as the real graduates," de la Garza said before attending the ceremony. "For 40 years, I've spoken at graduation exercises and I tell them my story about not being able to march with class."

De la Garza, who later attended Edinburg Junior College and St. Mary's University, received his parchment from Superintendent Lupe Gonzalez.

De la Garza also was named a "Friend of Education" by the district's school board and the Mission High Class of '96. He also received a standing ovation.

"Don't forget me when you have your class reunion," de la Garza told the graduating seniors.

The Mission Democrat enlisted in the Navy at age 17. He said he was preparing to see duty in the Pacific when the war ended. He completed his high school requirements after leaving the Navy.

In 1964, he joined Congress and has been there ever since. He announced his retirement in December.

Rally attracts children's advocates to DC

By DEB RIECHMANN
AP Education Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's children got a symbolic hug Saturday from 200,000 people who rallied here to reaffirm their belief that in a nation with "the biggest wallet in the industrialized world," no child should be left behind.

The Stand for Children rally was billed as a national day of community renewal and commitment to the nation's young. Conservative groups criticized the event as little more than a party for liberals who want to increase government spending.

"We stand today at the Lincoln Memorial as American families and as an American community to commit ourselves to putting our children first," said rally organizer Marian Wright Edelman, founder of the Children's Defense Fund.

"We commit ourselves to building a just America that leaves no child behind and we commit ourselves to insuring all our children have a healthy and a safe passage to adulthood."

The rally was not about partisan politics, she said, and no politician spoke. And it was not, she said, about inflating government.

"We do not stand here advocating big government," she told the crowd. "We stand here advocating just government."

People of all ages lined both sides of the Reflecting Pool in front of the memorial and stretched toward the Washington Monument. Carrying state flags and clapping their hands, thousands of children and adults began the rally by marching shoulder-to-shoulder across the Memorial Bridge, which spans the Potomac River.

They carried signs that said "Politicians Were Children Once Too" and "Kids Rule" and "Education Is Not a Privilege, it's a right."

U.S. Park Police estimated the crowd at 200,000.

"People need to realize children are our future, and if we don't pay attention to them we won't have a future," said Jessica Micinski, 12, of Beulah, Mich., a Girl Scout who marched across the bridge.

Edelman picked up the theme in her speech: "Some of our children are tracked for Princeton and Yale and some of our children are tracked for prison and jail — for about the same cost."

Celebrities, including "Stand and Deliver" star Edward James Olmos, "NYPD Blue's" Kim

Delaney, actress Rosie O'Donnell and fashion model Iman, also joined the rally.

Participants said the rally was not so much about outlining a political agenda as it was about creating a movement that would spark more public debate about who should have first dibs on tax dollars.

"If we're not taking the time to say that this is a priority, then the leaders aren't going to recognize the needs," said Jennifer Sullivan, a 24-year-old social worker in Long Island, N.Y. "The laws are being made by people who have no idea what's going on. I don't think people really believe that there are kids who are hungry."

Edelman said the event was a day about unity and community, not controversy.

"We have the biggest wallet in the industrialized world," she said. "But we have a far smaller will to share it with our children. Is America so afflicted that we are unable to strike a better balance between the few at the top and the needs of the many in the middle and the bottom?"

Susan Pugliese, who administers nine Head Start centers in and around Painesville, Ohio, said she came to Washington because the "cause is right."

'TEXAS' to open 31st season this month

CANYON — The majestic Palo Duro Canyon State Park near Amarillo will explode with new sound and lights when the world famous TEXAS musical drama opens its 31st season. The outdoor drama, already known for its spectacular special effects, will debut new audio equipment and dynamic new fireworks.

From June through August, visitors travel from every state in the nation and more than 100 foreign countries to see this adventurous tale of settlement on the Texas high plains. In 1996, new digital technology will captivate audiences.

TEXAS sound designer D. Scott Linder chose the Akai DR-8 Digital Recorder. In addition to the playback of music, the new system will also cue special effects to dialogue in the show.

Three instant replay digital recorders from 360 systems make this possible. "The first time I used instant replay for television, I knew it was a perfect solution for live shows," Linder said.

TEXAS General Manager Patty Bryant agrees. "This technology, combined with ten huge speakers strategically placed behind the stage, and the Canyon's natural acoustics promise a clarity that will bring our audience to its feet."

An already "Texas-sized" fireworks finale will also shoot to a higher level of excellence this season. Proo Spectaculars of Rialto, Calif., contracted with TEXAS to supply and operate the electrifying finale. TEXAS special effects designer Lynn Hart designed the new finale spectacular. According to General Manager Bryant, "Additional fireworks and a higher product quality promise a bigger bang each night."

While enjoying the sensational technological additions, audience members will sit in the comfort of new chairs in the Pioneer Amphitheater where TEXAS plays. More than 1,700 stadium style seats were purchased by generous fans and donated to the show. The seats offer more space, an arm rest and an engraved plaque bearing the donor's name.

Showtime is at 8:30 p.m., time to sit back and enjoy what has become an internationally acclaimed musical drama. It all begins with the stirring sounds of a lone bugle from high atop the canyon wall. Nature slowly brings down the lights. Two horsemen, bearing American and Texas flags, appear on the canyon rim, and a cast of 80 performers bursts onto the stage to open the 31st season of TEXAS.

During the next two and a half hours, spectators will watch a spellbinding tale complete with conflict, romance and humor. Farmers and ranchers battle Mother Nature, each other and the inevitable changes created by the railroad.

The characters are "Texas-tough." Each must struggle to tame the land and his own dreams of life on the High Plains. Cowboys ride the range, and Indians appear on the canyon rocks. Professional dancers and actors utilize thousands of props, realistic sets and colorful costumes to tell this story.

Finally, rivalries give way to cooperation, and friendship paves the way toward a new town and schools. An authentic steam train finally rumbles across the plains, symbolically bringing together the dreams of both cattlemen and farmers. Prosperity follows population to the vast wilderness of the Panhandle.

A fifty voice choir and a small orchestra provide the background for many scenes. The company also includes technicians, costumers and hospitality workers, as well as horses, a dog, a turkey, sheep, chickens and the occasional tarantula that wanders across the stage.

To date, more than two and a half million people have seen TEXAS. It is recognized by the Institute of Outdoor Drama in Chapel Hill, N.C., as the best attended outdoor drama in the nation.

For reservations to TEXAS, write P.O. Box 268, Canyon, TX 79015, or call (806) 655-2181. Tickets range in price from $3.50 for kids under 12, to $16. Group discounts are available.

An optional barbecue dinner is served prior to every performance by Sutphen's of Amarillo for an additional $6.50 per person, and pre-show entertainment is provided, free of charge on the patio.

U.S. envoy has no guarantee of Karadzic ouster

By TOM COHEN
Associated Press Writer

SARAJEVO-Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Heading to a crucial summit on the Bosnian peace plan, a top U.S. envoy said Saturday he was seeking a guarantee that Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic was out of power.

Sources close to Karadzic, who has been accused of war crimes, said Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic would present a document showing Karadzic's effective removal when he meets in Geneva on Sunday with U.S. Secretary of State Warren Christopher and the presidents of Bosnia and Croatia.

Karadzic's ouster, a requirement of the Bosnia peace agreement, has been a key demand of the United States and Western allies who sent NATO-led foreign troops to Bosnia to implement the peace plan.

In a possible sign that moves were afoot to sideline Karadzic, at least formally, the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported that Biljana Plavsic, Karadzic's designated deputy, would attend the Geneva meeting.

Belgrade's independent Beta news agency reported Karadzic agreed to sign a letter of resignation. The report could not be confirmed.

Assistant U.S. Secretary of State John Kornblum told a news conference he was unaware of any plans for Milosevic to announce his former protegee's resignation. He described a fiery meeting with Milosevic on Friday that produced little agreement.

"I didn't have any indication of this from Mr. Milosevic yesterday," Kornblum said. "The proof will come in the doing. The proof will come if Karadzic is clearly not in the vicinity of power."

Karadzic and his senior military commander, Gen. Ratko Mladic, have been indicted by a U.N. war crimes tribunal for alleged atrocities during the 43-month Bosnian war.

Their removal, and the arrest of dozens of other indicted war criminals, is a key provision of the peace agreement signed by Milosevic in the name of Bosnia's rebel Serbs.

Last month Karadzic handed much of his duties to Plavsic. But she is considered an even more hard-line nationalist and the international community has shunned her.

Before departing for Geneva, however, she made conciliatory comments and conspicuously avoided mentioning Karadzic's name at all, Tanjug reported.

Kornblum noted Saturday a statement from Plavsic pledging full cooperation with Dayton's provisions, which he called a positive step.

The U.S. envoy said he told Milosevic that Serb-led Yugoslavia would face renewed economic sanctions unless the accord was upheld. In addition, the United States would block international financial institutions from working with Yugoslavia.

Milosevic had replied that "he would continue his policies and he believed that he was fully implementing Dayton," said Kornblum.

THE ALL-SUFFICIENT WORD

"Every scripture inspired of God is also profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, for instruction which is in righteousness: that the man of God may be complete, furnished completely unto every good work." (2 Tim. 3:16-17.) Peter affirms that no prophecy of scripture ever came separate and apart from the direction of the Holy Spirit (2 Pet. 1:20-21.) Paul states that what he wrote was the commandment of the Lord (1 Cor. 14:37.) Over and over again, the Bible claims to be the word of God, His power to save the soul (1 Thess. 2:13; Gal. 1:6-10; Acts 20:32; Jas. 1:18; 21; Rom. 1:16-17.)

If the Bible is what it claims to be, the all-sufficient supplier of everything needed for salvation, then it is the most important book ever known to mankind. If it is not what it claims to be, it is the most flagrant volume of falsehoods and fabrications ever perpetrated upon the world. If it is not the word of Almighty God, why hasn't it been absolutely and forever disproven? Surely it has been under attack for centuries, yet it remains, consistently the world's best-selling book. The simple message of the gospel offers unto man the hope of eternal salvation through faith in Jesus Christ and obedience to His gospel (Rom. 1:16-17; Heb. 5:9.) Paul wrote, concerning the wisdom of man: "For seeing that in the wisdom of God the world through its wisdom knew not God, it was God's good pleasure through the foolishness of the preaching to save them that believe." (1 Cor. 1:21.) Thus the skeptic and the rejecter of His word are forever answered. The scriptures, inspired of God, still stand as the all-sufficient guide for man from this life to eternal life with God.

Although many give lip-service to the all-sufficiency of the scriptures, it is evident that they do not really believe that which they profess. The very fact that denominations exist upon man-made creeds, which give instruction regarding salvation shows that they do not really believe in the all-sufficiency of the scriptures. The gospel, and the gospel alone, is God's power to save (Rom. 1:16).

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Supreme Court's decision prudent

On the one hand, it's nice to see some acknowledgment that punitive damages can be excessive, as the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in a 5-4 decision regarding the notorious Alabama "$2 million BMW paint job" case.

On the other hand, it's difficult not to have some residual concern about federal abrogation of the rights and responsibilities of state governments and state court systems.

The case involved an Alabama doctor who purchased a 1990 BMW for $40,000, then later discovered from an auto dealer that there was some touch up work in the original paint job (virtually invisible except to an expert), probably because of minor damage during shipping.

The doctor sued, claiming that the auto company had an obligation to inform him that the original paint job had been touched up and that the value of the car had been damaged. An Alabama jury awarded him $4,000 in compensation - 10 percent of the car's value, arguably reasonable - and a whopping $4 million in punitive damages.

The Alabama Supreme Court later reduced the punitive damages to $2 million.

Punitive damages are designed to send a message to a company that certain practices are not to be tolerated, and this award certainly sent a message. It also highlighted a fact long known to legal insiders, that the court system in Alabama is notorious for permitting, even encouraging, outlandish punitive damages.

Outlandish the award might have been, but a strange-bedfellows minority consisting of Justices Rehnquist, Scalia, Thomas and Ginsburg warned that this decision infringes on legitimate state powers.

Many states are moving or have moved to limit punitive-damage awards, and Congress recently tried to do so on a federal level but met a veto from President Clinton.

Why not let this issue be handled by the political process rather than with a bare-majority mandate by the Supreme Court?

On the other hand, as Justice John Paul Stevens pointed out in his majority opinion, "While each state has ample power to protect its own consumers, none may use the punitive damages deterrent as a means of imposing its regulatory policies on the entire nation." An award this large was obviously intended to have an impact beyond Alabama.

That seems obvious. Does a state court have the right to haul a multinational company before a local jury for the purpose, in essence, of punishing activities outside the state's borders, even activities that (as in the BMW case) are not illegal in other states?

Tough question.

The court properly limited its grounds for reversing this award to questions of interstate impact, avoiding an outright federal takeover of state courts.

It didn't provide a "bright-line" test for what makes a punitive-damage award so excessive as to be unconstitutional, but it gave notice that it's concerned about outlandish punitive damages.

Not a perfect decision, perhaps. But not a bad one.

How Texas handles crime ...

The Federal Bureau of Investigation released its 1995 preliminary crime statistics recently. Nationally, serious crime dropped by 2 percent. The violent crime category showing the steepest decline, 8 percent, was murder. Decreases in other violent offenses were 7 percent for robbery, 6 percent for forcible rape and 3 percent for assault. Property crimes were down, too: Car theft and burglary were down 6 percent and 5 percent respectively.

For decades now, we've listened to judges, social workers and psychobabblers who've counseled us that the way to deal with crime is to find the original causes of crime and then have government programs to eliminate those causes. As the elite went about this fool's errand, from the safety of their high-rent neighborhoods, fear became the order of the day. Sales of protective devices such as bars for our windows, car alarms and pepper sprays skyrocketed. Now that we're finally beginning to turn the corner on crime, we might ask: Did judges, welfare workers and psychobabblers discover crime's original causes unbeknownst to us?

I think not. What has happened is we've become more sensible about crime and criminals. What Texans are doing is just one example of our increasing sensibility. Earlier this year, Texas A&M's economics professor Morgan Reynolds wrote a report titled "Crime and Punishment in Texas" that was published by the

Walter Williams

Dallas-based National Center for Policy Analysis.

Texas experienced a 29 percent increase in serious crime during the 1980s. However, since the beginning of the 1990s, Texas' overall rate of serious crime has been cut by 35 percent - the lowest since 1973. Burglary is the lowest since 1968. The murder rate is the lowest since 1966. Compared to 1991, this lower crime rate means that 1,140 fewer Texans will be murdered in 1996 and there'll be 450,000 fewer crimes reported to the police.

I searched through Professor Reynolds' report with a fine-tooth comb, looking to see whether Texans had discovered the original causes of crime. My search was in vain. All I found was that Texans have implemented some old-fashioned, archaic notions about criminals and crime. Over the last four years, Texas has increased its prison capacity from 49,000 to 150,000. The number of prisoners per 100,000 of the population has increased from close to the national average to 64 percent above the national average, giving it the highest incarceration rate in the nation. The average time convicts spend behind bars for serious crimes was 1.9 years in 1990; today, it's three years.

One of the reasons convicts are spending more time in jail is that fewer are paroled. In 1990, 80 percent of prisoners who petitioned for parole received approval; in 1994, only 22 percent of those petitioning received approval. The fact that prisoners are spending more time in jail has raised what statisticians call the expected punishment for crimes. During the 1980s, if you murdered someone in Texas, the odds were that you could expect to be in jail for two years; today, it's over nine years. For rape, the expected punishment was five months; today, it's 19 months.

More than 250,000 Texans are still victims of violent crimes each year, and more than 2 million are victims of property crimes. While we can be proud of Texans for having led the nation away from the reckless ideas about criminals, they have a long way to go. I'd like to see the Texas Legislature pass a law whereby any law-abiding adult has the right to walk into a sheriff's office and be sworn in as a deputy and issued a permit to carry a deadly concealed weapon.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Sunday, June 2, the 154th day of 1996. There are 212 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On June 2, 1953, Queen Elizabeth II of Britain was crowned in Westminster Abbey, 16 months after the death of her father, King George VI.

On this date:
In 1851, Maine became the first state to enact a law prohibiting alcohol.

In 1883, the first non-league baseball game to be played under electric lights took place, in Fort Wayne, Ind.

In 1886, President Cleveland married Frances Folsom in a White House ceremony. (To date, Cleveland is the only president to marry in the executive mansion while in office.)

In 1924, Congress granted U.S. citizenship to all American Indians.

In 1941, baseball's Iron Horse, Lou Gehrig, died in New York of a degenerative disease, amyotrophic lateral sclerosis.

In 1946, 50 years ago, the Italian monarchy was abolished in favor of a republic.

Clinton administration is unlucky

Charley Reese

The Clinton administration is unlucky. I don't recall any previous administration with four top-level fatalities. Les Aspin resigned as secretary of defense and died of a heart attack. Commerce Secretary Ron Brown died in a plane crash. Deputy White House Counsel Vince Foster committed suicide, or so they say, and now Adm. Jeremy Boorda, chief of naval operations, kills himself.

Still, I don't think Boorda killed himself just because a couple of magazine reporters wanted to talk about two medals. If Boorda had not been entitled to wear them, I'm sure he thought he was. After all, this was no tavern drunk trying to impress his poker buddies. This was a career officer with a very successful record and plenty of honors.

So I figure there had to be more than was bugging Boorda than the medal business. We may never know for sure, but my guess is that being the hatchet man for such an anti-military administration as that of Clinton and his crowd of 1960s anti-Vietnam War retreats finally got to him.

The Clinton administration, with help from feminist fanatics and cowardly senators, has practically wrecked naval aviation. It has ruined the careers of distinguished officers right and left on the flimsiest grounds without due process, without any attempt at fairness.

One admiral was sacked because he correctly rated a female aviator as unfit to fly. Another was fired because, after condemning the rape of a girl in Okinawa, he added that the men were stupid as well. Still others, like Bob Stumpf, former Blue Angels commander, have been denied promotion because they were at the Tailhook convention even though they had been cleared of any wrongdoing.

And other than rowdy bad manners with a few hookers, I don't think any wrong was done at the Tailhook convention, except to the Navy by Navy critics.

The criticism I've had of Boorda and others at the Pentagon is that they were not standing up for the officers under them. Loyalty in the military has to go two ways - from bottom up, but also from top down. No superior officer should allow good men under him to be thrown to the political wolves. But Boorda did it. My guess is, that's what got to him.

Of course, he had to obey that bum appointed as secretary of the Navy, but Boorda could have raised hell and resigned with a public blast. Instead, he did what the Clinton gang told him.

I have no desire to speak ill of the dead, least of all of the distinguished dead who served their country for 40 years. But Boorda had a choice: justice for the officers under him or his job. He chose his job. In the end, God knows, Boorda was harder on himself than any critic.

I'm sorry it turned out that way. I'm sorry he's dead. But the real story in Washington is not Boorda and certainly not some nit-pick about medals. The real story is what the Clinton administration is doing to the armed forces - killing the morale, misusing them in international missions, gutting them of the weapons and training money they need.

Clinton is a man with no conscience. He wraps himself in the flag and then slyly insults the military every chance he gets. He sent U.S. soldiers to Haiti to dig ditches and carry garbage while unemployed Haitians stood around and watched. He's sending U.S. soldiers to the Olympics to chauffeur athletes and wet down soccer fields. When he visited on a U.S. carrier, his White House aides stole the towels. What a bunch of petty lowlives.

Clinton is so good at lying and pretending, he makes the Nazi propaganda chief, Joseph Goebbels, seem like a guy addicted to truth serum. Yeah, the Clinton administration is unlucky, but not nearly as unlucky as the country is to be stuck with him as commander in chief.

Virtue campaign isn't good strategy

Mona Charen

Leaving the United States Senate was a turning point in Robert Dole's pursuit of the presidency. It was significant not just because it was smart to shed the image of the crabby legislator barking at Tom Daschle and horse-trading with Al D'Amato, but because it revealed a most important fact about Dole himself - the 72-year-old man can change.

For months, Dole's friends and well-wishers have been urging him to at least relinquish his duties as Senate majority leader and devote full-time to the presidential campaign full-time. But Dole is not, or traditionally was not, a man who took advice readily. He loved the Senate and maintained that he could be both leader and candidate simultaneously.

That he was willing to alter his course displays a new flexibility, to say nothing of boldness and courage, that bodes well for his prospects in November. Presidential campaigns are like car races. Rapid reflexes are essential to success.

But while Dole has seized the initiative by dramatically stripping himself of position and titles, a potentially fatal error may be in the making. Around the Dole speeches and interviews of the past six months, there hovers a whiff of unseemly self-congratulation and boasting.

Dole aides have put out the word that the fall campaign will be about "character," an issue they feel sure their man can dominate.

It is beyond peradventure that Dole is a man of substance. Character is often measured by one's response to adversity, and Dole clearly displayed both courage and fortitude in the struggle to overcome his war injuries and to excel despite his disabilities. Further, he is known in the Senate to be a man of his word. Honesty is a virtue the White House has been notably short of these past three years. Dole has also resorted, at trying moments, to a ready - and frequently self-deprecating - wit, perhaps the surest evidence of a robust spirit.

Now comes the "but." The president is the ceremonial and symbolic head of the nation. But he is more than that. He is also the political leader and chief administrator. If this were a parliamentary democracy, like Israel's, with a prime minister for political leadership and a president for ceremonial roles, a campaign for the latter position based on personal virtue alone might carry more weight.

But the country asks first of a leader, "Where will you take us?" and only second, "How well do you exemplify our aspirations?" Moreover, claims to personal integrity and laudability are inevitably in poor taste. In fact, the very act of claiming it tends to undermine it since it demonstrates one's pointed lack of modesty and discretion.

Not that virtue is irrelevant to a campaign for president. But it must be done right.

In 1992, President George Bush badly mishandled the "family values" issue by assuming that the phrase implied a comparison between the happy Bush clan and the troubled Clintons. Bush paraded his children and grandchildren to the podium at Houston in hopes of capitalizing on the theme.

Dole should beware of the same mistake. He should speak about virtue - about the need to teach right from wrong in the schools, about cultural renewal, about choice in education, about abortion, about out-of-wedlock childbearing, about crime and our anemic criminal-justice system, and about equal opportunity. All of those issues are about virtue because they are all deeply moral questions.

A great deal of attention has been paid to the economic insecurity so deftly tapped by the Pat Buchanan nationalist/protectionist campaign: But not enough weight has been given to other part of Buchanan's appeal - his forthright moral stands on abortion, pornography and family breakdown. Alan Keyes, an unknown former United Nations ambassador, was able to galvanize remarkable numbers of the Republican rank and file with an eloquent appeal for restoring the nuclear family.

Sure there is economic uncertainty in the country (arguably, there always will be in a capitalist country). But there is also deep-seated and well-deserved anxiety about the health of our social institutions.

The new Bob Dole should address those anxieties and leave the matter of his own personal rectitude implicit.

Canadian groups to sponsor genealogy workshop June 8

CANADIAN — The Comancheria Chapter DAR and the Hemphill County Historical and Genealogical Society will be sponsoring a beginning genealogy workshop this month.

The workshop will be held in the basement of the WCTU Building, 500 Main, in Canadian from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday, June 15. Lunch will be brown bag or on your own from 11:45 a.m. to 12:45 p.m., with attendees invited to eat in the meeting room and compare notes with other researchers.

Guest speaker will be Sylvia Murray, an accredited genealogist from Brigham Young University in Utah. She has 16 years of teaching experience at Amarillo College. She is also a columnist for different historical and genealogical societies with her column titled "Searching with Sylvia."

Murray and her husband conduct lectures in a four-state area. They take two trips a year researching alternately between families. She is also the director over three Family History Centers located in the Latter-Day Saint churches.

Pre-registration is requested by Monday, June 10, for $10. Registration at the door will be $12.

Early registration may be done by sending name, address, city, state, ZIP code and telephone number, along with the $10 fee, to Hemphill County Historical and Genealogical Society, c/o Jeri Pundt, HCR3, Box 43, Canadian, TX 79014.

Dumas Dogie Days begin June 5

DUMAS — The 50th Annual Dumas Dogie Days Celebration will be held Wednesday through Saturday, June 5-8, according to Bart Woodman, head wrangler for the celebration.

Dumas Dogie Days is sponsored annually by members of the Dumas Noon Lions Club, with proceeds from the event financing a host of local and area charity projects.

All events, with the exception of the parade, will take place at McDade Park, located between 14th Street and Dumas Demon Drive (16th Street) in the southwest portion of Dumas.

Activities include a carnival midway from 6-10 p.m. Wednesday through Friday and from 12 noon to 6 p.m. Saturday.

On Thursday, the Dogie Days Barbecue will be served from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. At 9 p.m. a teen dance will be held at the Community Building.

On Saturday, there will be a downtown parade at 11 a.m. Other Saturday events include a chuckwagon competition, with judging taking place at noon. At 9 p.m. there will be a western dance for adults at the Community Building.

For more information or to enter the chuckwagon competition, contact the Dumas & Moore County Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Box 735, Dumas, TX 79029, or call (806) 935-2123.

Crime of the Week

Crime Stoppers need help in solving a burglary in which an oilfield business was relieved of $54,000 in tools and equipment.

Burglars entered Down Hole Tool, 601 S. Russell, by prying open an overhead door sometime in the evening or late night hours of May 25.

Thieves stole bridge plugs, retrieving heads, unloaders, tension packers and more.

Mexican teachers seeking pay raise

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Thousands of teachers demanding higher pay withstood a pouring rain outside the presidential residence Friday evening, jeering at a government offer to meet next week to resolve their labor dispute.

"The fault of the strike is the government's," teachers chanted after having waited hours outside the Los Pinos presidential residence in Chapultepec Park.

After two conferences with officials inside Los Pinos, teacher representatives reported that the government was offering to negotiate on Monday.

The teachers, however, demanded an immediate audience with high government officials — including President Ernesto Zedillo, who was out of town.

The crowd was the stubborn remainder of tens of thousands who had marched earlier Friday from the city center to Los Pinos, snarling traffic in much of the city.

Friday's peaceful march came eight days after a smaller march ended in a violent clash with police.

Security was unusually light along the march route, but well over 100 riot police standing behind portable steel fences protected the presidential compound. They were backed by soldiers.

Officials allowed a delegation inside Los Pinos to present demands.

The march was organized by dissident wings of Mexico's national teachers union, the largest labor union in Latin America, which had negotiated a 10 percent pay raise in January and another 12 percent this month.

Many teachers, who currently average about $150 a month, balked at the raises and are demanding a 100-percent increase after years of seeing their paychecks fall behind inflation.

Summer care for pets

To the editor:

As summer officially arrives and the weather heats up, The Humane Society of the United States (HSUS) reminds readers that pets, like people, can suffer from the heat — especially when left in parked cars. Since the temperature inside a car can reach 160 degrees in a matter of minutes, even a short car trip can prove deadly to your pet. WHEN IT'S HOT, LEAVE YOUR PET AT HOME! And if you see an animal or child in a potentially dangerous situation, notify the police, local animal control or humane society immediately.

With only hot air to breathe inside a car, a pet can quickly suffer brain damage or die from heatstroke. Partially opened windows, shaded parking areas or air conditioned cars with the motor off will not save your pet from the devastating effects of hot weather.

If your pet shows any signs of heat stress such as heavy panting, glazed eyes, rapid pulse rate, dizziness, vomiting, or a deep red or purple tongue, contact a veterinarian immediately. Interim emergency care can be giving your pet a limited amount of cold water. Let him lick ice cubes or even ice cream. Following these steps could save your pet's life.

You can educate others about the hazards of leaving pets in hot cars by obtaining flyers from The HSUS. These flyers can be placed on car or store windows or on bulletin boards. Please send a business size, self-addressed stamped envelope with your request for flyers to: "Hot Car," The Humane Society of the United States, 2100 L Street, N.W. Washington, DC 20037.

A little common sense and a few simple precautions can ensure that you and your pet have a safe and happy summer.

Dennis White
Director, HSUS

How do you explain it?

To the editor:

On Thursday afternoon before Memorial Day my six-year-old granddaughter and I went to Fairview Cemetery to put flowers and a flag on her Papa's grave. She worked hard and was so proud of the arrangement in his vase. Because of the winds, we went back out Sunday afternoon and the flowers and flag were just fine as they were put in the base with wire.

Then on Memorial Day she and I drove out so she could see the large flags. As we turned down the road to my husband's grave, she said, "I don't see Papa's flag," and I told her she must be looking at the wrong one.

Then she said, "I don't see his flowers either." She began to cry and as we stopped and got out I could see that someone had taken the arrangement with the flag in the center.

You may have needed this particular arrangement, but it broke a little girl's heart that her Papa's flowers and flag were gone. How do you explain something like this to a child?

Thanks to Lamar teachers

To the editor:

We want to take this opportunity to publicly thank the teachers at Lamar Elementary School for their wonderful examples of professionalism, and their dedication to teaching. We know that these teachers have been very unjustly criticized by the media and other unfortunate individuals who do not appreciate the outstanding job that these teachers are doing.

We applaud the Lamar faculty and staff for their commitment to education and to the students they serve. You have earned our admiration and respect for your jobs well done.

We thank you.

Be careful of donations

To Pampa News Readers:

I recently received correspondence from "1996 Gray County Area Cancer Drive" asking for a donation and requesting I become a volunteer. Should other Pampa residents be recipients of the same "business" — please DO NOT donate, nor offer time. It is not legitimate, as far as I know.

The American Cancer Society is the only one to donate to — all drives are locally run and all monies stay in local areas (not Topeka, Kan.)

I worked Donley County cancer drives for several years (I cannot do so here in Pampa, but maybe some time in the future), and although the money went to Amarillo, Donley County received its share of remuneration.

Searching for classmate

To the editor:

We are trying to find Jere Ann Weidner (father, Jack C. Weidner; mother, Lorene V. Bonner) for the Class of 1949 reunion of North Charleston High School in Charleston, S.C.

She was born in Pampa, Texas, on Jan. 19, 1930 and went into the military service as a WAC. I do not know if she married or even if she is still living.

Anyone who can give us any information on how to contact her may call me at (803) 899-7113 or write me at Box 55, Pinopolis, SC 29469.

Wants word on cousins

To the editor:

I would appreciate it if you could publish this letter.

I am searching for my lost family — Fred D. Gunsallus, son of Frank Henry Gunsallus and Sahara Isabel Fitzpatrick. Fred died Jan. 17, 1952, in Pampa.

What happened to his children? They are my cousins and I desperately would like to contact them.

Can anyone help?

Here's One Nice Guy Who Is Tired Of Finishing Last

DEAR ABBY: This letter is in regard to "David's Wife in Tennessee," who really appreciates her thoughtful husband. That woman is just as valuable as her husband. She recognized a "nice guy" when she saw one.

Abby, you really hit the nail on the head when you said that many men who treat women with respect end up with nothing but rejection. It's mind-boggling how many women will disregard me because I'm not drop-dead handsome and don't drive a Jaguar. (I'm a single professional in my mid-30s with a master's degree.)

"So, ladies, please get to know me on the inside before you pass judgment. You cannot know what I'm capable of until after you know me. For example:

1. If your car dies 100 miles away at 1:00 a.m., I'll be there at the drop of a hat.
2. I'll work with you to create the best possible relationship, including a great sex life.
3. I'll take the kids away once in a while so you can have a "sanity day" by yourself.
4. I'll listen to you talk about your lousy day at work while I'm massaging your back.
5. I'll say things like, "Is it lovely outside, or is it just you?"
6. I'll help with the cooking, cleaning and ironing.
7. I'll treat you like you're No. 1 because you are the one I cherish the most.
8. I'll always be there for you when times get rough.

9. I'll hide cute little gifts so I can put a smile on your beautiful face.
Why go out with a good-looking guy who is boring when you can go out with a guy who will knock himself out to please you? (That's me!)
AVAILABLE IN MAINE

DEAR AVAILABLE: If the reaction of the single women on my staff who saw your letter is any example, I'm certain that were I to disclose your name and address, you'd need police protection! Your letter is sure to lift the hearts of countless women who are wondering if there are any "nice guys" left out there.

Consumer spending up for first time in two years

WASHINGTON (AP) — The economy was expanding at an annual rate of 2.3 percent at the beginning of the year, with growth propelled by the biggest jump in consumer spending in more than two years.

The new estimate of January-March growth in the gross domestic product, the country's total output of goods and services, revised downward a 2.8 percent initial estimate that had shocked financial markets with worries that the Federal Reserve might begin raising interest rates.

Visa loses in bid to create monopoly in Europe

NEW YORK (AP) — The European Union's competition commissioner said that Visa can't require European banks to issue only its cards, giving rival American Express a boost in its effort to sign up new issuers.

Visa has said it would give the EU's position "due consideration."

Former boss of rogue trader testifies in trial

NEW YORK (AP) — A former boss of accused rogue trader Joseph Jett testified he was unaware of Jett's suspect trades until weeks before the Kidder Peabody scandal was disclosed publicly.

Under cross-examination by Jett's attorney, Edward Cerullo acknowledged that he attended meetings two months earlier at which, according to records, the type of trades blamed for the phony profits was discussed. But Cerullo said he still couldn't remember the topic being discussed.

AIDS activists, drug companies co-exist at consumer fair

NEW YORK (AP) — AIDS activists who once hurled scorn at drug companies will share space with them at the first AIDS consumer fair, an event that shows how thoroughly the disease has moved into the mainstream.

In a convention hall used for boat and car shows, the Poz Life Expo starting Friday will feature 80 corporate marketers plugging medicines, mineral water, vitamins and veggie burgers while an HIV-positive band plays country & western tunes.

Russia steps up effort to join World Trade Organization

GENEVA (AP) — Forging ahead despite uncertainty about next month's elections, Russia stepped up efforts to join the World Trade Organization.

A senior Russian official told a WTO meeting Thursday that government reforms are on track to achieve the open market conditions demanded by the trade body before granting membership.

Therassage professional completes myofascial workshop at Lubbock

Blaine Going, a registered massage therapist at Therassage Bodywork Professionals in Pampa, recently completed a workshop in myofascial release for the head, neck and TMJ.

This type of therapy is used to alleviate migraine headaches, muscle aches in the neck and symptoms brought on by TMJ (lock jaw), and to increase flexibility and range of motion as well.

Going traveled to Lubbock to attend an 18-hour advanced training workshop in myofascial release as part of his post graduate education and hands-on training. The certification program consists of a total of 250 hours.

This is the first of a four-part series in the myofascial release certification program that Going has attended and completed. His training in Lubbock focused on head, neck and TMJ pain and dysfunction. Some of the techniques involve fascial stretching, trigger point technique, range of motion, stretching, structural release and re-education of muscles.

Neuromuscular therapy is a "specialized" practice of massage therapy which focuses on pain relief and injury rehabilitation. Having a different goal than that of the standard Blaine Going of Therassage Bodywork Professionals recently completed a workshop in myofascial release in Lubbock.

Swedish or relaxation massage, neuromuscular therapy deals with assessing the problem area with the modalities needed. This approach gives the client a much quicker result to alleviating the pain. This training, along with his Swedish massage background, gives him a broader range of therapeutic skills to better benefit his client, Going said.

Minding your own Business

More business myths

Three years ago, I wrote a column about common business myths. Myths are not outright lies. Rather, myths often contain some truth, at least enough to convince most of us that they are true. However, they are false even if you see them written as fact.

I shared four common business myths in the previous column. The first was: "The customer is always right." This myth is well known and some have carved it in stone. The fact is, customers are wrong sometimes. However, customers are the only reason your business exists, so treat them right even if they're wrong.

The second myth was: "Customers always buy the lowest price." They don't. Customers want value. A fair exchange for the money they spend. Give them high quality and great service and you can sell Rolex watches, Cadillac cars and ten-topping pizzas.

The third myth was: "Discounters don't offer customer service." They do, but they have lowered customers' expectations for service in the process. They created a market position based on price, not service as we think of it. Some of the great services they do offer include convenient hours, clean restrooms, a wide selection of merchandise and great return policies.

The fourth myth was: "Everyone is my target customer." All too often businesses try to be "everything to everybody" and end up being "nothing special to anybody." Find a market segment you can serve better than anyone else and watch your business grow.

Six More Myths
• A business loan would solve my problems. While a business loan may lower your stress level for the short-term, it will not solve your problems. In fact, cash shortages in a business are usually a sign of deeper problems. Sometimes adding debt to a troubled business is like pouring water on a drowning man. Get help to find the cause of cash shortages and then work on those problems.

• When I get my patent, someone will give me a lot of money for my invention. This is a common belief, but unfortunately another myth. It is true that a strong, well-written patent can add value to a marketable invention. However, the key word is marketable. There are millions of patented inventions that never sold in the market place.

• When my business grows, it will get better. The words of the true statement are nearly the same as the myth - if you rearrange the order. When my business gets better, it will grow. If you wish to grow your business, don't miss next week's column. I'll be starting a three-part series titled "The Growing Challenge." It will show you how to get better and bigger.

• I don't have time to write a business plan. The truth is we always have time to do what we want to do. If you don't want to write a business plan, it won't write itself. However, the business plan can be a great tool for gathering information, answering questions, eliminating mistakes, organizing details and acquiring money. It is essential in helping existing firms improve and become more profitable.

• I can become very successful working eight-to-five, Monday through Friday. I suppose it could happen. However, I'm never surprised when I find someone I look up to professionally, who is working early in the morning, late in the evening or on the weekends. Success has its price and its rewards.

• We will work on that tomorrow. For most of us, tomorrow never comes. Today is only followed by another today. Only those tasks we take care of today will be completed today. Procrastination is a destroyer of careers and businesses. Learn to be a "do it now, finish it today, person."

Volunteers help South Texas town

By JEANNE RUSSELL
The (McAllen) Monitor

PROGRESO, Texas — Jack Parmenter may wear blue jeans and a pale blue guayabera, but he still carries a briefcase.

"I haven't worn short sleeves since I was 11 years old," the retired bank executive said, leaning back in a chair at his office in Progreso's City Hall.

On March 19, Parmenter volunteered three months worth of his services to the city of Progreso. Since then, he has shown up at city hall at eight in the morning three days a week, ready to dive into boxes of unsorted receipts and bank statements.

Parmenter functions as finance manager for the city, reconstructing records and creating a financial ledger for a city that had not kept books since it incorporated five years ago.

Progreso, plagued by political infighting and fiscal folly, has had a troubled childhood. Its former mayor pro-tem was arrested on theft charges for holding money earmarked for colonies in her private bank account. The fledgling police department struggled financially and could not pay some of its officers. Amid rumor, scandal and debt, the department shut its doors for good. When an independent auditor came in to check the city's financial status, he could not conduct the audit because no receipts or records had been kept.

In the space of just two months, though, Parmenter has made agreements with debtors and helped edge the city back toward the black. "I've constructed a general ledger, which to my knowledge they've never had before," Parmenter said. "By the end of this fiscal year, the city will be in good financial shape."

With the help of Parmenter and some federal grants, a group of aldermen elected in the past two years has bold plans, including paving Progreso's streets and creating a permanent police force.

CD's may not be as safe as they seem

DENVER (AP) — Certificates of deposit (CDs) are a popular investment among older Americans — and with good reason. They are federally insured up to $100,000, their principal doesn't fluctuate, and they generate a steady, though often modest, income.

Investors with CDs sleep well, which explains why many retirees and some approaching retirement have nearly their entire nest egg in these savings vehicles.

But CDs are not quite as "safe" as you may think. It may be risky to have a portfolio composed of nothing but CDs, warns Don Johnson, senior academic associate at the College for Financial Planning, a division of the National Endowment for Financial Education (NEFE). "All investments have risk, even CDs," he says.

CDs are risky? How? If the U.S. government guarantees them, their principal doesn't fluctuate. They generate a steady income. So what is there to worry about?

"The problem is that CDs don't protect you against inflation, or what's known as purchasing power risk," says Johnson. "CDs may be nice and comfortable, but after you subtract taxes from earned interest and then take into account inflation what purchasing power is left is quite low."

Johnson views risk in two broad categories: short term, or market volatility risk, and long term, or purchasing power risk. Volatility risk is what most people think of when they think of investment risk: the risk that their investment could drop in value and that they could lose some, or even all, of their principal.

Stocks and to an increasing degree bonds face volatility risk. Johnson points out that in a bear market the value of stocks could drop precipitously, which is certainly a worry for those investors in their later years who have less time to recover from such a significant drop.

But with people living 20, 30 and even 40 years after retirement, long-term risk should be taken into account as well, cautions Johnson. "Even mild inflation, such as we are experiencing today, can slowly eat away at your purchasing power. You'll be stretching your budget more and more over time."

GOLF

PAMPA — The Pampa Lion's Club will be holding a Day/Night Golf Scramble on Saturday, June 8, at the Hidden Hills Golf Course in Pampa.

Proceeds from the tournament will benefit the Lions eyeglass program for children in the Pampa schools.

The four-person team scramble will begin with a shotgun start at 6 p.m., with nine holes played in the daylight.

A meal of sandwiches and drinks will be provided, with the final nine holes played at night with lighted "glow balls."

Only one player per team with 10 or less handicap will be allowed for each team.

Entry fee is $36 a person, which includes cart, green fees and "glow ball."

To register, contact David at Hidden Hills, (806) 669-5866.

BASEBALL

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Clemson pitcher Kris Benson, Cal State Fullerton outfielder-pitcher Mark Kotsay and Texas Tech third baseman Clint Bryant are the finalists for the Smith Award.

The Smith Award, college baseball's version of the Heisman Trophy in football, goes to the nation's top player.

The honor is presented by the National Collegiate Baseball Writers Association and Rotary Club of Houston.

Bryant is the two-time Southwest Conference most valuable player and has had 193 RBIs in 130 Tech games.

Kotsay, the two-time Big West Conference player of the year, was the winner of the Smith honor a year ago when he led his team to the College World Series championship in Omaha.

Benson is the nation's earned run average leader at 1.40 in a 14-0 season with 178 strikeouts in 142 innings. He helped his Tigers qualify for this year's CWS, which began Friday in Omaha. The winner will be named June 27 in Houston.

GENERAL

RED RIVER, N.M. — The Red River Chamber of Commerce will present their 3rd Annual Sportsman's Weekend on June 8-9, 1996. Events include a 3-D Archery Tournament, a Fishing Contest & Flyfishing Demonstration, and an Elk Bugling Contest. Other activities include an archery fun shoot and lots of door prizes.

Prizes include an elk hunt, turkey hunt, buck antelope hunt, a Horizon Firehawk Bow (valued at $600), plus trophies and other donated prizes. For entry information, call the Red River Chamber of Commerce at (800) 348-6444 or (505) 754-2366.

AUTO RACING

DOVER, Del. (AP) — Randy Lajoie, who learned patience through nine years of defeat, put it to good use Saturday and won a stirring late-race duel with Ricky Craven for his second Busch Grand National career victory in three weeks.

Lajoie overcame a disadvantage in the pits by hounding Craven through the last 20 laps and held on to win the crash-filled GM Goodwrench-Delco Battery 200 by two car-lengths at Dover Downs International Speedway.

"I was watching where I could get under him and he gave me a little too much room one time and I took it," Lajoie said of Craven. "He had the preferred line. I needed to get in that line."

The winning pass came on the 193rd of 200 laps, when Craven drifted from the bottom of the 24-degree banking in the first turn.

Game of the Decade was free for all of fun

By JERRY HEASLEY
Pampa News correspondent

PAMPA — Although it was billed as the "Game of the Decade", the roundball match-up last weekend between the Class 4A state champions of 1996 and a group of 1990, 1991 and 1992 district Harvester champs, turned into a free for all of fun.

In what other game does the scorekeeper (assistant coach John Darnell) add seven points and two minutes, of playing time to the final quarter, fudging to make the outcome more interesting?

We have to wonder if the fans in the stands were watching the scoreboard that closely, they were screaming so hard. They would have applauded overtime.

Imagine this. It's the day after graduation, and Pampan have packed half the gym (one side was closed) and suddenly it's fall again. This shows how difficult it has been to leave the basketball season behind after winning the state championship.

The Harvesters went through the playoffs without a loss and it became apparent, at least to the 1990-91-92 teams who missed winning the state championship by "that much", that they were the ones to beat the '96 team.

Those optimists included a who's who of some of the finest basketball players to ever wear the green and gold, including Cederick Wilbon (a star player for West Texas A&M), Dwight Nickelberry (who will attend college in Monterey this fall on a basketball scholarship), Jeff Young, David Johnson, Jason

Williams, Quincy Williams, Randy Nichols, Lamont Nickelberry, Paul Brown, Brent Skaggs, Sammy Laury and Daniel Trejo.

These 12 men took on a team led by exiting seniors Rayford Young, Coy Laury and Jason Weatherbee, and returning underclassmen Devin Lemons, Gabe Wilbon, August Larson, Tyson Alexander, Lynn Brown and Matt Harp.

Despite the fun attitude of the game, there was a definite rivalry, and at the outset, quite a difference of opinion on who would win. Even the champion Harvesters wondered out loud about beating what was arguably the best of the older teams. Of course, ballhandler supreme Cederick Wilbon, alone, is a threat. Who can forget the likes of Jeff Young, who posted up a 6-8 all-stater at Brownwood a few years ago and then either shot over him or went around him to score at will?

At halftime, the score was 41-40 in favor of the '96 state champions, who were, strangely, billed as the "Visitors". Noah Davis, Sr. of Macedonia Baptist Church gave a memorial tribute to Cederick Wilbon's mother, Ruby Renell Landers, who recently passed away. The game was dedicated to her memory.

As the second half opened, the '96 Harvesters were confident. Rayford Young told us they would pull ahead in the third quarter, and they did, led by his unknown number of high points. We say unknown because there was no official scorekeeper to tally stats, but Young was definitely in the 30-35 point range.

Jason Weatherbee also had a great game, hitting three, three-pointers in a row in the first quarter. Coy Laury was the outstanding rebounder, if there was any question about who would dominate inside. Tyson Alexander of the junior varsity was a surprise, playing tough defense. Could he be the next "Zeke" for the Harvesters? Matt Harp, also of the junior varsity, played aggressively on offense.

Dwight Nickelberry kept his team in it the first half with three pointers and hard drives. Daniel Trejo pulled down "lots of rebounds and put in "lots" of layups.

It was a little hard to discern one team from the other because by UIL rules the Harvesters were also not allowed to wear their green and gold uniforms.

The Game of the Decade turned out to be one more chance to see the state champions play at McNeely Fieldhouse. Hopefully, next year we can watch returning seniors play a 1997 state champion team.

Sorenstam takes three-stroke lead into final round

SOUTHERN PINES, N.C. (AP) — Annika Sorenstam proved she could win at last year's U.S. Women's Open. Now she gets to prove she can handle winning.

Last time, Sorenstam came from out of nowhere, picking up five strokes in the final round to win for the first time in the United States.

This time, it will be a very different situation.

Sorenstam's 69 on Saturday at Pine Needles put the 25-year-old Swede at 4-under-par 206 for 54 holes, three strokes ahead of Brandie Burton and four in front of Jane Geddes.

"Fortunately, this is not a golf course that someone can kill," Sorenstam said. "Someone has to play well and I have to play badly tomorrow" to lose, she said.

Last year, Sorenstam was able to sneak up on the field. Now she is the marked woman, put in a very

WOMEN'S OPEN

Greg Norman-like situation. The tournament is hers to win — or lose.

"I'm not chasing Annika," Geddes said after Sorenstam's flawed round in which she made two bogeys and a double-bogey when she three-putted from 15 feet on No. 14, missing a 4-footer.

"She proved today she is not the iron woman," Geddes said. "I think there is a lot of golf to go."

There are enough big names around to put the kind of pressure on Sorenstam to make Sunday at the U.S. Open the kind of tension test it is meant to be.

Pat Bradley, who won the Open in 1981 when Sorenstam was 10 years old, was five strokes back along with Tammie Green after a strong 67, matching Sorenstam's round Friday as the lowest of the tournament.

Laura Davies, whose length and solid short game makes her always a threat to put up a very low score, was six back with four others after shooting a 70.

Certainly after Norman's Masters experience, being six back will never again be considered out of contention.

"Nothing is safe," Bradley said. "I don't see Annika backing down really. But with five or six people right behind her it might get her attention if someone makes a move."

Sorenstam stuck with her strength, keeping the ball in play, as she hit 13 of the 14 driving fairways Saturday and has hit 39 of 42 in the tournament.

"That's my game," Sorenstam said. "Hitting fairways and hitting greens."

She did show a little drop off on the greens, however, needing 32 putts on the fast, sharply contoured putting surfaces after using 29 and 28 in the first two rounds.

Sorenstam was at her best from long range. Four of her five birdies came on putts of 15 feet or longer. Twice she bogeyed when she hit greenside bunkers and couldn't get up-and-down.

The double-bogey on No. 14 came when her 6-iron from 161 yards ran through the green into the rough. After a drop because a cameraman had kicked her ball, she chipped to 15 feet and three-putted, dropping into a tie with Burton at the time.

Burton, however, bogeyed Nos. 16 and 17 and when Sorenstam rolled in a 30-footer for birdie on 17 the lead was back to three strokes.

"I felt the momentum was back and everything was under control," Sorenstam said.

Burton, who grew a little testy when asked about Sorenstam's consistency, will play in the final group with her Sunday.

"I'm not worried about Annika," said Burton, who was paired with Sorenstam on Saturday and matched her 69. "I'm worried about the golf course."

Bradley put on a display of golf Saturday that indicated she just might be able to make a run at Sorenstam. Feeding off the energy of a wildly supportive gallery, the 45-year-old Bradley punctuated birdie putts with a pumped fist or a wave of the club over her head and reacted to near misses by sinking to her knees or staggering in a drunken circle of disbelief.

She started with birdies on the first two holes and was four under par for the day when she nearly holed her 4-iron approach on No. 14 for an eagle.

The crowd responded with a chant of "Bradley, Bradley" and shouts of "Pat, Pat, Pat."

Glo-Valve downs Cabot Corporation

PAMPA — Randy Tice won his fifth game of the year as Glo-Valve Service bested Cabot Corporation, 18-2, Thursday in the second half of Optimist Major Bambino play.

With Matt Driscoll leading the way with three hits, including two triples, three runs scored and two RBI, Glo-Valve banged out 13 hits. Tice, Justin Waggoner and Ryan Zemanek had two hits each for Glo-Valve. Both of Waggoner's hits were doubles. Zemanek and Tice each had one double. Erik Brown also doubled for Glo-Valve.

Nathanael Hill hit his second inside-the-park home run of the year. Zach Windhorst and Hal Rogers rounded out Glo-Valve hitting with one each.

Willie Hathaway, Matt Crow and Michael Cochran had hits for Cabot. Cochran also had an RBI to score Josh Smith, who walked.

Reds trim Braves

CINCINNATI (AP) — Mark Portugal pitched seven innings Saturday for his first win and the Cincinnati Reds turned a fortunate first inning off Greg Maddux into a 3-2 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Cincinnati broke a streak of 12 consecutive losses to the Braves, including a sweep in the NL championship series last October. The Reds' last win also was over Maddux, last Aug. 9 in Atlanta.

The four-time Cy Young winner is just 10-11 career against the Reds.

Crow scored on a wild pitch.

Tice was perfect, pitching to only six batters in two innings and striking out five of them. Waggoner allowed one hit and no runs while striking out two in one inning of work. John Braddock finished up for Glo-Valve. He gave up two runs on two hits. He struck out two and walked two.

Cabot's Jimmy Story made the defensive play of the game, picking off a low line drive off the bat of Braddock. Rogers caught a runner trying to steal second for the outstanding defensive play for Glo-Valve.

DALHART — Rusty Slavin went into the Tri-State High School Rodeo Finals with the regular-season lead in calf roping. He strengthened his lead Friday night by winning the first go-round with a time of 11.350 seconds.

Slavin, a Higgins High School graduate competing out of Canadian, earned eight points with the win and had 81 points entering Saturday's second go-round.

Randall's T. J. Good took second, and Swisher County's Matt Cox took third and Wheeler's Matt Carlson took fourth in calf roping. In the overall race, Carlson is second with 68 points, followed by Good with 62.

Stratford's Clint McAdams added to his lead for the overall saddle bronc title by winning the first go-round with a score of 66. The win gave McAdams 64 points for the season. Gruver's Clint Talcott took second and has 53 points this season.

Wheeler's Reid Green captured the ribbon roping first go-round in a time of 9.501.

Wheeler's Lana Keathley won the pole bending first go-round in a time of 21.518 seconds. Randall's Sequin Downey, securing her lead on the all-around cowgirl title, was second, followed by the Pampa duo of Nickie Leggett and Kembra Malberg.

Curtis Atwood of Pampa won the first go-round in bull riding with 72 points.

Florida advances to second round of CWS

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Brad Wilkerson gave himself a 19th birthday present with a seventh-inning grand slam, then took to the pitcher's mound for a save to lead Florida to a 5-2 win over Florida State in the College World Series.

Wilkerson's ninth homer of the season gave the second-seeded Gators (49-16) their 25th come-from-behind win this season and third win over Florida State in four meetings.

Seminole starter Randy Choate

(15-4), held Florida to four hits in 6 2-3 innings but made his own trouble with a pair of two-out walks in the seventh with Florida State leading 2-1.

Reliever Chuck Howell walked Mark Ellis to load the bases and was lifted for freshman Zach Diaz, who surrendered Wilkerson's homer over the right field fence.

The win advances Florida to a second-round game Monday against the winner of Saturday night's Louisiana State-Wichita State game.

Lott resigns at Groom High

GROOM — Steve Lott has resigned his position as Groom High School football coach to become an assistant coach at Amarillo Caprock High School. Lott will also be the head 9th grade coach at Caprock.

Lott coached the Tigers the past two years when the school went from 6-man to 11-man football. The Tigers, who were 5-15 in those two years, return to 6-man next season. The Tigers had advanced to the playoffs three straight years (1991, '92 and '93) as a 6-man team.

Lott, a Kaufman, Tex. native, is a 16-year coaching veteran.

Oilers sign Roby

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers have agreed to terms with veteran punter Reggie Roby on a four-year contract worth $2.7 million.

Roby, beginning his 14th NFL season, averaged a club record 42.8 yards per punt last season for Tampa Bay.

"They (Oilers) have a very strong team coming in this year," Roby told KRIV-TV of Houston. "Just to be able to play with a team that has a great chance to get to the playoffs is very exciting."

Former Colorado governor floating idea of being Reform Party's candidate

By TOM RAUM
 Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former Colorado Gov. Richard D. Lamm emerged Saturday as a possible presidential candidate for Ross Perot's new Reform Party, saying he would consider such a run "under the right circumstances."

Lamm, a featured speaker at a California convention of the party, told Perot loyalists they should not be afraid to take politically unpopular stands such as favoring cuts in both Social Security and Medicare.

"We must touch that third rail," Lamm said in a speech to the Reform Party of California. Democrats and Republicans have long suggested cutting Social Security would be tantamount to political electrocution, as in touching a subway's third rail.

Lamm has been mentioned as a possible candidate, but in the past has brushed off such suggestions.

For the first time, he told reporters that such a campaign would definitely interest him, so long as Perot himself chose not to run.

Perot, who ran in 1992 and was to speak at the two-day conference, has said he had no strong desires to run again himself but would accept his party's draft if no one else stepped forward.

Asked if he was prepared to step forward and be that candidate, Lamm said, "Yes, under the right circumstances, if somebody showed me it would not embarrass the Reform Party."

Lamm's hourlong speech to about 800 Reform Party members was well-received. He was interrupted frequently with applause.

"He was terrific. He did very good. He had an extraordinarily attentive audience," said Russell Verney, national Reform Party coordinator.

Lamm said that, without scaling back both programs of aid to the elderly, the nation will be virtually bankrupt within a generation. Speaking in advance of Perot, he praised the Texas billionaire and made it clear he would be interested in a possible run as Reform's presidential candidate, although he didn't know where the money would come from.

Lamm has said he was approached by some Reform members about such a bid but Perot himself had not asked him.

"This is a new world of politics that needs new voices," Lamm told an audience of about 800 Reform members. "I appreciate Ross Perot going around the country raising some of the tougher issues."

Perot formed the party in September and is bankrolling an effort to get it on ballots for the November presidential election nationwide.

Organizing difficulties and state-law barriers are plaguing efforts by Perot's lieutenants to get the party on the ballot in most states.

SHAMROCK

This is a land settled by a hearty people - a tough, tenacious bunch who saw promise in the Plains.

And for their efforts, they left a legacy of hard work and romance to their children and the settlers who followed.

Area museums have collected and preserved the Panhandle heritage which gives the region its flavor and charm. They are within an hour's drive of Pampa and offer a glimpse of history through appreciative eyes.

White Deer Land Museum

The White Deer Land Museum is located at 116 S. Cuyler in Pampa. The visiting hours are Tuesday through Sunday, 1-4 p.m., closed on national holidays. There are no fees, and all tours are guided.

It is a two story, mostly oak interior with glass doors and transoms. The original tin ceilings and tile floors, and light fixtures are still in tact. It contains approximately 20 rooms containing history of the early settlers of this area.

The museum exhibits a pioneer kitchen and school room, an early day bedroom and tack room, with a hand painted time line in the main office.

Freedom Museum

Freedom Museum, 600 N. Hobart in Pampa, continues to display exhibits from all branches of military service and from all wars.

Regular exhibits include uniforms from all military branches spanning a number of decades, miniature airplanes and an exhibit honoring the Pampa Army Air Field.

This summer, patrons will see a special exhibit of enlarged postage stamps reflecting military themes and branches. During the week of August 14, an exhibit will feature VJ Day, celebrating its 51st anniversary.

Hours are noon to 4 p.m. Tuesdays through Sundays, as well as times by appointment.

Devil's Rope Museum

Devil's Rope Museum in McLean is home of one of the largest Old Route 66 Highway exhibits, consisting of over 300 artifacts of the "Old 66." Displays include historical exhibits of the early settlers of the area, with a research library on barbed wire history; historical displays of area ranches; historical fencing tools; railroad history and numerous other displays. The newest exhibit installed is a large map of Texas with transparent boxes of dirt samples from each county affixed to their proper area.

Reservations must be made for special tours or for large groups. Hours are 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday-Friday, and 1-4 p.m. Sunday. The museum sits on Old Route 66 in McLean.

Alanreed-McLean Historical Museum

The Alanreed-McLean Historical Museum of model exhibits depicting history of early settlers of the communities; old businesses of the early towns, showing tools of the trades; and many other artifacts.

Reservations must be made for special tours or large groups. The museum is located at 117 N. Main. Hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesdays through Sundays.

Pioneer West Museum

Shamrock's Pioneer West Museum is housed in the old Marion Reynolds Hotel, built in 1925. Twenty eight rooms are open, each displaying historical reminders of the early history of Wheeler County.

Exhibits are shown in framed windows inside hallways or in small cubicles exhibit Indian relics and historical items from tribes of Cherokee, including Kiawana (Quanah) Parker and his Indian braves of the area in the 1800s to early 1900s. Other historic relics include items from World War I and World War II, to the more recent battles involving the United States, and collectibles from early ranches are displayed in the brands room.

The museum, located at 204 N. Madden, is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays and weekends by appointment or for special tours.

River Valley Pioneer Museum

River Valley Pioneer Museum, 118 N. Second Street in Canadian will feature "Hmong Artistry," an exhibit organized by the Kansas City, Kan., Hmong Refugees. The exhibit showcases cloth squares with elaborate needleworking designs by the Chinese immigrants. The work will be on display from June 9 to July 5.

Following the Hmong exhibit, Louise Daniel will show her panoramic photography of the Texas Panhandle. This exhibit runs from August 10 through the end of the month.

In addition, the museum is temporarily housing a photographic exhibit from the Panhandle Plains Museum in Canyon: "The New Deal on the Texas Plains." Showcases are a number of buildings around the Panhandle built during the Great Depression by the Works Progress Administration, Civilian Conservation Corps and others.

Also on tap for the summer is the annual Fourth of July celebration and Old Timers' Reunion Barbecue. Hemphill County residents of over 40 years are invited to the free lunch, featuring readings of cowboy poetry.

The museum will also host a children's art program from July 16-19 for local children ages nine to 13. Several local artists will teach workshops throughout the week, with daily sessions lasting from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Hours of the museum are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesdays through Fridays, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturdays and 2-4 p.m. Sundays.

Old Mobeetie Jail Museum

The Old Mobeetie Jail Museum, located about a mile south of Texas 152, celebrates the oldest town in the Texas Panhandle. The museum is housed in the town's original limestone jail, built around 1885 from local stones. Also prominently displayed are the original flagpole and bell from Ft. Elliott, "established in 1875 to protect the Texas Panhandle from the Indians," according to an accompanying Texas historical marker.

The oldest cemetery in the Panhandle, dating back to 1876, is also a short drive from the museum. Buried there are Mollie Brennan, a local dance hall girl killed in a fight between Bat Masterson and Melvin A. King, and Louise Houston, infant daughter of Temple Houston and granddaughter of General Sam Houston. Temple Houston was prosecuting attorney during the district's early days.

On tap for the summer are Heritage Days June 29 and the annual bluegrass festival July 26-28. Museum hours are 1-5 p.m. weekly, closed Wednesdays. Special tours are available by appointment.

Roberts County Museum

Roberts County Museum, housed in Miami's Santa Fe depot on US 60, will continue to display the work of area sculptor Lightnin' McDuff through mid June.

The depot, recognized as a Texas historical site, has housed the museum since 1979, and three large additions have been built in recent years.

Most recently, the museum built - with volunteer help from townspeople - a replica of Old Miami. Located on the second floor of the back building, the replica town includes a general mercantile store, the original Miami Chief office, an old church, the local bank and the Hotel Fitch.

Also added was an art gallery on the second floor that doubles as a meeting room.

Museum hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, as well as Sunday times by appointment.

Carson County Square House Museum

The Carson County Square House Museum is located in Panhandle 27 miles northeast of Amarillo on U.S. 60. The hours are Monday through Saturday 9 a.m.-5:30 p.m. and Sunday 1-5:30 p.m. It is equipped with ramps and facilities for the handicapped.

The museum features a complex of fourteen structures with exhibits in history, natural history, and art. These include the square house, the Opal Weatherly Purvines annex, a pioneer dugout, the Santa Fe caboose and depot, the general store, the First State Bank of Panhandle, branding beams, a blacksmith shop, a print shop, Freedom Hall, Moody Wildlife Hall, farm and ranch, the Hazlewood Arts and Education Building, the Conway community church and the first enclosed mobile library in the state of Texas.

Armstrong County Museum

Armstrong County Museum in Claude features many displays of the early days of the county built for the museum by local senior citizens. Items of historical interest were donated or loaned from local families of the pioneer settlers.

Claude is located at the intersection of Texas 287 and Texas

207. Exhibits include the JA Ranch exhibit, a showcase of ranch records and tools of early day ranching. The famed Col. Charles Goodnight founded the ranch and invented the ranch chuck wagon. Also on site is the Gem Theater, built around 1915 and refurbished in 1994, which currently features a number of regular and special musical and vaudeville acts. For show information and reservations, call (806) 226-2187 or 226-2451.

Special summer shows include art exhibits by Don Ray and Jill Wyatt. Ray's show, consisting of western oil paintings and sculpture, runs through June 30. Wyatt, a Tulsa artist, will exhibit throughout July.

Museum hours are 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, noon to 4 p.m. Saturday and 1-5 p.m. Sunday. The museum is available for group tours on Mondays.

Saint's Roost Museum

Saint's Roost Museum, located in the old Adair Hospital building, can be found in Clarendon on US 70. Summer hours are Thursday through Sunday from 2-5 p.m. Other times are available by appointment.

Exhibits set up in many of the rooms depict the early historical days of Clarendon's and Donley County's pioneers. Special exhibits feature the J-A Ranch, which played a major part in the early settlement of Donley County.

In May, Clarendon's old Fort Worth and Denver Railroad Depot Station was moved from its original site and placed on a permanent foundation adjacent to the county museum building. The depot will be refurbished, to be the future museum home of early railroad artifacts of FW&D, featuring local memorabilia and historical information on how instrumental the railroad was in the establishment of the area.

Bryan White: a matter of focus

By ROBYN HOFFMAN
Guest Writer

It's all a matter of focus. His life could have been turned upside down after signing a record deal with Asylum Records, but it wasn't. He could have been overcome by the success of his number-one single "Someone Else's Star," but he wasn't. He could have gotten complacent after recently winning an award for newcomer of the year at the Academy of Country Music awards show, but he wasn't.

His status as a country music singer could have altered his life forever, but the Oklahoma City boy says things haven't changed that much.

Bryan White, who performs at the Amarillo Civic Center tonight with Tracy Lawrence, has made his mark in country music, but says he feels his life is not that much different from the way it was when he was a child.

In his support network of family and friends, he has found that everything is the same. Because of these people, the 21-year-old singer doesn't feel changed from the status he has gained.

"I wondered if my friends would look at me in a different light," he said of his recent path to stardom. "They were the ones that surprised me. They don't even act any different than they did when I didn't have a record deal."

They may not treat him any differently, but their loyalty has increased. His grandmother proved her loyalty as a fan when she called one of his hometown radio stations and requested one of his songs. When she was given the opportunity to speak on the air, she couldn't resist the grandmotherly temptation to brag about her grandson.

"I told her not to do that, but she does it anyway," the singer said, chuckling.

In short, the family and friends of the Asylum recording artist have always helped feed his dream of someday becoming a successful country music singer. White appreciates that fact.

"I never had friends or family that discouraged me from doing what I wanted to do," he said. "They always actually encouraged me more, because at certain times, if they didn't think I was doing enough to further my music, they would always prod me."

One of those friends, Kristel Jennings, saw the potential in White early. Jennings met White at a church camp during high school. Since that time, the two have become fast friends. Through this friendship, she became a believer in his talents.

"There was never any doubt in my mind that he would be successful," Jennings said.

The successful life that Jennings speaks of is one that is not foreign to her friend.

"It's so strange, because I feel like I've been here before," White said. "It's almost like deja vu for me. Everything that's happened ... everything that we've achieved ... I've adapted to it so quick that it's scary. I'm just so willing and ready all the time to go to the next level that I think I mentally and psychologically prepare myself before I even get there."

In 1993, he signed a record deal and, a short time later, Asylum Records released his first single, "Eugene, You Genius."

Last September, White rose to the top of the charts with "Someone Else's Star," his first number-one hit. The song not only opened some doorways for him, but it also helped boost his confidence level.

"It naturally gained us some respect and took us to a different plateau," he said. "Having a number-one record is probably my greatest accomplishment as an artist."

Although White continues to experience some thrills of a lifetime, he is not letting that destroy his focus. His focus helps him remain grounded.

White concentrates on the direction of his future. He says he hopes other people will follow his example, readily offering advice to those who have their dreams staked on something big.

"If you love something enough ... if you find that one thing that you know you can't do without, and you know that's going to take you the farthest - don't stop, just do it," he said. "When you wake up, always think what you can do to further yourself, to make it better, and become the best."

"That's the thing I've lived by for the last 15 years, and it's really paid off for me. There are so many things that happen for a reason, and if you just put your mind to it, it will always happen."

It's all a matter of focus.

Moody Blues in concert

Moody Blues frontmen Justin Hayward and John Lodge riff through an instrumental break of their hit "Tuesday Afternoon" at the start of their Wednesday concert in the Amarillo Civic Center. The rockers played to a packed house, accompanied by members of the Amarillo Symphony. Pampa assistant high school band director Brad Bledsoe was in the symphony's percussion section.

Cable network purchases Whitewater land tract

FLIPPIN, Ark. (AP) — Just for laughs, cable TV's Comedy Central has bought a two-acre plot in Arkansas' Whitewater land development.

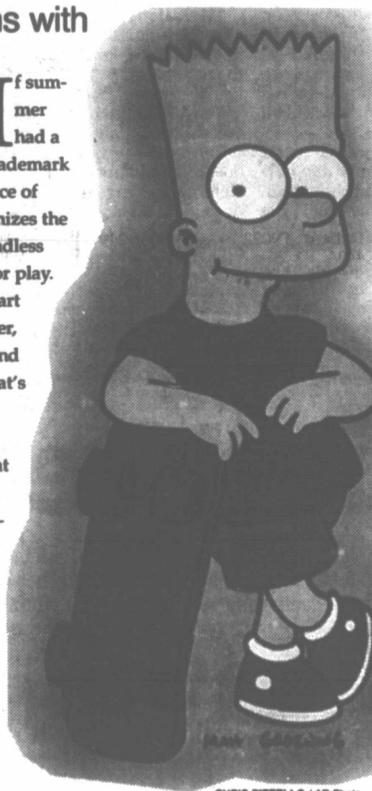

"Although it's not Boardwalk or Park Place, it's got a decent river view," said Doug Herzog, president and CEO of the cable channel.

The site, near Flippin, Ark., will be homesteaded by comedian Lizz Winstead in a rented U-Haul — decorated New York loft-style, with draperies and scented candles.

Five questions with

If summer had a trademark it would likely be the face of Bart Simpson: he epitomizes the ethos of inertia — that endless angling to shirk work for play. You'd even think that Bart would smell like summer, which is kind of ripe. And he's made a career, if that's possible at his age, of finagling those kind of mad-cap adventures that seem synonymous with the season. So we decided to ask the dimensionally challenged standard-bearer of summer a few questions about this, the season of sloth and idle.

1. Any plans for the summer, besides trying not to get arrested?
Bart: Get one of those "Mission: Impossible" rope things, then drop down into Carvel for a little "Mission Free Cookiepudding."
2. If you could be a live-action person, who would it be?
Bart: That freaky tall guy who used to live in the olden days. So when Mrs. Krabapple puts my slingshot on top of the bookshelf ...

well you figure it out Einstein. Plus just think of all those giant shoes!

3. How does it feel to have your face on T-shirts worn by so many unattractive people?
Bart: You know what, if I can make one dorky looking nerd look even the slightest bit cooler, then it's worth it. But if they buy one of those rip-off shirts, I'll come after 'em — just cause I'm a kid doesn't mean I don't have lawyers.

4. If you actually got hold of a nuclear weapon, what would you do with it?
Bart: Second stall, third floor bathrooms, Springfield Elementary School.

5. What does it say under your picture in your school yearbook?
Bart: Short white male seeks somewhat stupid, but very wealthy kid to spend long summer of movies, water rides, and fireworks. Must have access to credit card — moped a plus.

The Market Forecaster

By George Kleinman

WHEAT - (BULL)
OUTLOOK: A few words this week about the spreads.

Firstly, for those of you not familiar with the term spread, here are the definitions: A spread can be considered the difference between two related markets, or the difference between two distinct time periods in the same market. When a futures trader places a spread he is looking for two prices which he or she feels are "out of line." By placing the spread in this condition they hope to profit as the prices move back into line.

Spreads can produce profits (and losses) in both an up or down market. In most cases, not always, both sides will move in the same direction, but at different speeds. This is what offers the profit opportunity.

My opinion on the following spreads: at over 85 cents Kansas City premium Chicago, the KC wheat is too high. It fully discounts problems with the TX/OK/KS crop. Mpls. will gain on KC & Cgo. [and trade higher than KC within the next six weeks], due to spring wheat planting delays. The wheat/corn spread favors wheat, due to high old crop corn prices & higher new crop acreage. Happy spreading.

STRATEGY: Hedgers: Winter wheat farmers now own July Chicago 560 puts at 30 cents or less to hedge 75 percent of anticipated production. We continue to gamble on the remaining 25 percent. Remember, the hope is these puts expire worthless since this would mean prices remain above 560 at harvest time. Spring wheat farmers own the $6 September puts to hedge a portion of anticipated new crop production.

Traders: Based on last week's recommendation, you bought July Minneapolis at 645. This is spring wheat which is experiencing planting problems in some areas. The risk is a close under 630 for an objective of 675.

CORN - (BULL)
OUTLOOK: Let's face it, the corn market is anything but cheap. Prices at all time highs, above $5 in many locations, should ration demand. Right? Well, yes, logically demand should start to fall at these lofty levels and there are some signs it is.

The recent Cattle on Feed report indicated placements of new cattle into feedlots is down a whopping 18 percent. Makes sense. Who wants to place cattle with corn prices this high and no sign of breaking? Yet, exports remain robust with no sign of letting up. Supplies are scarce. How many farmers still own $5 old crop corn in the bin? Damn few.

On balance, the argument favors short price drops, although at times possibly severe, and high prices yet likely into summer.

STRATEGY: Hedgers: Old Crop: Once again, last week, our hedging strategy worked like a charm. We advocated rolling our July 450 calls up to the 500s should July trade above this level. It did and I estimate you should have been able to lock in at least another 25 cents net profit on the 450s. This should be added to previous "paper profits" this year, now amounting to over $1.55. Add these profits to your cash sale price to determine your ultimate selling price. The 500 calls cost about 15 cents. This figure now represents your maximum downside risk.

New crop: We're currently 50 percent hedged in the December with an average price above

$3.20, but a bit concerned about planting delays. If these delays continue, we may look to roll out of futures into put options. The balance remains un-hedged.

Traders: Last week you were able to cash in at our recommended profit objective in the July, which was 510. The entry point on this trade was 469, for a $2450 gross profit per contract not counting commissions. Now look to repurchase the July under $4.80, risking to $4.69 for an objective of $5.25.

CATTLE - (BULL)
OUTLOOK: Cattle prices appear to be climbing a "wall of worry." Nobody seems to believe this one, but I think the reason is demand. As pointed out last week, retail beef prices are at their lowest levels in about 5 years. Retail pork prices are at about their highest prices ever. This alone is a demand booster for beef.

The time of year is right for barbecue demand and a recent Wall Street Journal article pointed out beef consumption in the U.S. is showing its first sustained uptick since the early seventies. Better demand is surfacing just as the market ready cattle numbers are starting to decline. High feed costs will discourage feedlot placements this summer and produce a real shortage in the September-beyond time frame. My best guess is the cattle market has already scored its low prices for the year.

STRATEGY: Hedgers: Feeders own the June 64 puts and August 63 puts for longer term protection. Take profits in these simultaneously as you sell your cattle. No additional hedge protection is recommended at this time.

Cow/calf operators: Use puts, not futures to hedge current inventory. The reason for this has to do with the real uncertainty for new crop corn prices. New crop corn prices may have topped, indicating a bottom in the feeder market, or weather problems could push them much higher, which would necessitate the need for price insurance [put options].

Traders: Look to buy December futures at under 62 for a longer term trade. Risk to a close under 6000 and leave the upside open.

Foreign ag professionals to attend dryland training workshop at WT

CANYON - Approximately 20 agriculture professionals from dry climates around the world will meet at West Texas A&M University in June for a three-week Training Workshop on Sustainable Agroecosystems and Environmental Issues.

The third annual workshop, sponsored by WTAMU's Dryland Agriculture Institute, runs June 3-21 and will present information about sustainable agricultural systems and environmental issues.

Those attending include researchers, program managers and policymakers, most of whom work for provincial or national governments, according to Dr. B.A. Stewart, director of the Dryland Agriculture Institute and professor of agriculture.

Nations represented will include Argentina, China, Ethiopia, Indonesia, Pakistan and Uganda.

"Most of these people who attend our workshop come from areas where resources are limited and climates are harsh," Stewart said. "As our world population continues to increase, the demand for food and fiber increases, so that makes the development and stability of marginal areas more important than ever."

Stewart and Dr. Clay Robinson, assistant professor of plant science at WTAMU, will lead the workshop.

Participants will meet on campus the first week and see presentations about soil and water resources of the Great Plains and the history of agriculture development in the region. They will visit the United States Department of Agriculture Conservation and Production Research Laboratory, Agricultural Research Service at Bushland and with local farmers.

The second and third weeks of the workshop will consist of two tours - the first of the southern Great Plains and the second of the central Great Plains. The southern tour will include stops at Temple, where both USDA and Texas A&M University have research programs; the Texas A&M Research and Extension Center at San Angelo; the Conservation Systems Research Laboratory at Big Spring; and A&M, Texas Tech University and USDA research programs in Lubbock.

The central Great Plains tour will include visits to the Southern Plains Range Research Station, the USDA Agricultural Research Service at Woodward, Okla.; the Kansas State University Research and Extension Center at Garden City, Kan.; and the Central Great Plains Research Station, USDA Agricultural Research Service at Akron, Colo.

The Great Plains is one of the largest dryland agriculture regions in the world, and its development has had both positive and negative impacts on crop production and the environment, according to Stewart.

"The dust bowl is something we didn't try to create, but we did. We created the dust bowl not on purpose but from the lack of understanding of this environment," Stewart said. "What we did never should be done again here or elsewhere. One of the things we talk about is drawing on the past to understand the past and to try to build on that."

The workshop began in 1994, and Stewart said his main emphasis in conducting the program has been to try to enhance WTAMU's graduate program in agriculture and its research facilities and capabilities.

"We need to strengthen our research and graduate training," he said. "This workshop has been the catalyst in making that happen. I strongly feel that we really have an opportunity to learn from the people who come here as well as hopefully they have a chance to learn from us. It's a two-way street."

For more information about the workshop or the Dryland Agriculture Institute, call Stewart at (806) 656-2292.

Goat producers invited to summer conference

JUNCTION - Meat goat producers should mark their calendars for June 21 and 22, the dates of the American Meat Goat Association's (AMGA) Fifth Annual Premier Meat Goat Buck and Doe Sale and Summer Conference to be held in Junction.

Activities start June 21 with a membership meeting from 4-6 p.m. in Junction's Coke Stevenson Memorial Building on Highway 83N. A social mixer with music and refreshments will follow at 7:30 p.m. The conference runs from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. June 22 in the Coke Stevenson Memorial Building. The sale starts at 2:20 p.m. at the Hill Country Fairgrounds.

Robert Kensing, conference chairman and AMGA vice president from Menard, said the purpose of the two-day event is to bring producers up-to-date on the latest news affecting the meat goat industry and to allow them to buy some of the best goats in the business.

Conference speakers and their topics include: "Meat Goat Youth Clinics and Jackpot Shows," Brian Hickman, Beeville; "The Role of Animal Damage Control in Meat Goat Production on Non-Range Settings," Gary Nunley, state ADC director, San Antonio; "National Study on Consumer Goat Meat Preferences," Dr. Ernie Davis, professor and Extension economist, College Station; "Report from the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers Associations' Meat Goat Committee," Zane Willard, TS&GRA executive secretary, San Angelo; and "Selecting Show Goats."

"The sale features a superior string of animals," said Kensing. "The offering includes top animals from the most progressive meat goat breeders in the nation. Goats picked with care through this particular sale will improve any flock."

Kensing said the auction is open to all meat goat breeds. Percentage bloodlines will also be offered.

Consignors must be AMGA members. Bucks and does offered must have two or more permanent teeth. Sellers are limited to three bucks and three does. Sale animals must be in the barn by noon, June 21. Auctioneer will be Mark Tillman of Junction.

Conference cost is $35 per person and $50 per couple. There is no charge for children under 12.

For further information, contact Anita Jones, (915) 853-2312 after 7 p.m. or write P.O. Box 551, Eldorado, TX 76946.

Ag briefs

WASHINGTON (AP) - Growers of cigar-filler and binder tobacco will be subject to marketing quotas over the next three years.

The Agriculture Department says 78.7 percent of growers who took part in a special referendum endorsed the quotas.

The referendum involved growers of types 42-44 and 54-55, which is grown mostly in Wisconsin but also in Ohio and Minnesota.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Imports are accounting for one-third of winter fresh vegetables consumed in the United States.

The Agriculture Department says the share claimed by imports grew from 17 percent in 1992 to 32 percent last year. Mexico provides 95 percent of imported vegetables while Florida growers stand to lose most from the competition.

USDA says Mexico has increased its competitiveness with new varieties and more-efficient irrigation and has been aided recently by weather and favorable exchange rates.

WASHINGTON (AP) - U.S. farm exports generated 950,000 jobs in the United States last year and stimulated an additional $76.6 billion in economic activity, the Agriculture Department says.

Of those export-related jobs, 365,300 were in the farm sector. Farm exports were valued at $55.8 billion.

USDA estimates that about three-quarters of the "spinoff" economic activity went to the nonfarm sector.

Corn Growers Assn. to meet in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The federal government expects U.S. farmers to plant more than 80 million acres of corn this year. If this projection holds, farmers could harvest ten million more corn acres this year than in 1995.

The National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) hosts the Corn Utilization Conference (CUC) VI June 4-6 at the Hyatt Regency-Union Station at St. Louis. The organization expects over 200 scientists from U.S. and foreign universities, companies, private research institutions and government laboratories to attend CUC and exchange the latest information on the many uses for the nation's top crop.

The scientists plan to discuss technological and economic challenges of commercializing corn products. The topics range from specialty corn uses to ethanol and its co-products to chemicals produced from corn.

"Presently we find some of the lowest corn stocks in many years. Yet demand for our crop remains strong. This shows that markets we helped develop continue to use corn during times of better market prices," said National Corn Development Foundation (NCDF) President Everett Nardine, a corn grower from Albert City, IA. "We continue to develop markets in order to provide the potential for a profitable return for U.S. corn farmers."

The NCGA, NCDE (the funding arm of the NCGA) and its 25 state affiliated associations and check-off boards seek the most cost effective way to find large, new uses of corn. The organization invests farmer check-off dollars in research to grow new markets.

Corn growers currently invest in fermentation and recovery of organic acids (succinic and acetic acid); fermentation and recovery of butanol; the direct conversion of glucose to ethylene and propylene glycol; the fermentation of corn gluten feed to produce ethanol; and application of polylactic acid. These processes yield such items as renewable plastics, antifreeze, food ingredients and flavorings, lacquers and brake fluids.

"Each of these broad markets have the potential to use over 100 million bushels of corn each year. What we're trying to do is focus on things that make economic sense ... and bring them to commercialization," said Todd Wery, NCGA's director of research and business development.

The CUC also features poster presentations where researchers and entrepreneurs present business plans and samples of their latest processes and products.

Among the topics to be exhibited:

- Corn use as a decontaminant on beef carcasses
- Corn-based lubricants
- Dry milling properties of yellow and white dent corn.

For more information on CUC conference topics or registration, call the NCGA at (314) 275-9915.

Texas remains too dry, Oregon too wet

WASHINGTON (AP) — While Texas farmers and ranchers look to Washington for financial relief from a long drought, their Oregon counterparts are looking to the skies and praying for a little less rain.

After a decade of unusually low rainfall, so much has fallen in Oregon this spring that the planting of many vegetables has been delayed and the growth of the strawberry crop has been slowed.

And it's been so damp that a bumper crop of wheat could be hurt by moisture-driven diseases.

"If we get into June and the weather hasn't cleared up, we can expect to suffer some crop losses," said Daren Coppock, administrator of the Oregon Grains Commission. "We're starting to hear a little about diseases and high-moisture conditions."

Matt Unger of Cornelius, Ore., usually starts harvesting his strawberries about June 5, but this year he figures it will be June 10 or later.

"We've had so much wet weather in the last six months, we've had a lot of root rot," he said. "Our main concern now is fruit rot."

The Oregon Strawberry Commission is predicting a crop of 44 million pounds, down from 55 million last year.

Under normal weather and conditions, Oregon's wheat growers were looking forward to possibly their highest yield ever, said Homer K. Rowley, director of the Oregon Agricultural Statistics Service.

But some stripe rust has begun appearing on Willamette Valley wheat.

"It isn't serious yet, but the same thing could happen in Eastern Oregon if the rain continues," said Tom Winn, director of the Oregon Wheat Commission.

Having disabling illness doesn't have to be career-ending, farmer discovers

By FRANK FISHER
 Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Ralph Hass is a third-generation farmer with an independent streak common to many who work the land.

But after the 66-year-old was diagnosed with Lou Gehrig's disease last summer, he sought help. A big man who used to easily lift 100-pound sacks, Hass was so weak he couldn't even pick up a 20-pound ham at the store.

AgrAbility Unlimited of Illinois was one of those who responded. The 5-year-old organization, created to assist farmers with disabilities, offered to help Hass modify some of his equipment, such as a lift to help him get into his tractor.

Ralph Hass has decided he'll probably sell his 130-acre farm this year, so the aids won't be necessary. But the counseling and the interest still made a big difference.

"They talked to you and listened to you," he said.

Duane Brusnighan, AgrAbility's project manager in Springfield, has seen lots of people like Hass. He estimates he's worked directly with about 230 farmers or family members.

Some of the cases are unusual, like that of a farmer who lost a hand in an accident. He had a pile of unused gloves for that hand, and was hooked up with a farmer who had lost the opposite hand.

A 13-year-old Wabash County boy suffered permanent lung damage when he inhaled poisonous fumes in a farm accident. AgrAbility got him in touch with agencies that bought him a $350 helmet and mask that screen out dust, letting the youth stay on the farm.

AgrAbility is active in 18 other states. It is administered and funded by the U.S. Agriculture Department through local cooperative extension services, with support from the National Easter Seal Society. Services are free and confidential.

The National Agricultural Statistics Service estimates more than 200,000 farmers, ranchers and other agricultural workers get injured or fall ill annually. Tens of thousands more suffer off-the-farm accidents, or from heart disease, arthritis or cancer.

Bob Yeagle, 35, of Farmer City was paralyzed from the chest down after he fell off a horse in 1991. AgrAbility helped Yeagle get a $6,500 lift so he could get inside a tractor. He continued his job and was able to adopt a couple of children, be a foster parent to four more, become township clerk and start an investment club.

"When I first saw that tractor, it was in my wheelchair and that thing was huge and I never would've thought that I could've been up inside and running it," Yeagle said. "Now, there's nothing to it."

Not everyone AgrAbility helps can stay in farming. Sometimes injuries are too severe and retraining for another occupation is better.

"The first hurdle I guess for us is to let them know we're not trying to offer charity," Brusnighan said.

Del Reed, 40, of West York used to drive a truck for an agricultural company. But surgery to fix his back damaged a nerve and he lost feeling to his feet. Later one of his heels got infected, causing a painful ulcer.

Reed quit his job, and then had to find $350 to pay for a specially designed pair of shoes. AgrAbility convinced a doubting Reed to file a claim with his insurance company, and to his surprise, the company paid 80 percent.

House Republicans plan to test Clinton on support of welfare reform plan

WASHINGTON (AP) - In the latest election-year salvo against President Clinton, House Republicans intend to pass legislation this week approving Wisconsin's request for federal waivers needed to implement its welfare reform program.

Clinton praised the state plan in a radio address earlier this month, and Republicans said they want to test his word. "We're asking the president to make good on what he already said," said Rep. Mark Neumann, R-Wis.

Countered Wisconsin Democratic Rep. David Obey: "It's clearly a political exercise, period." Obey said lawmakers haven't been apprised of the details in the plan yet. In a reference to the state's GOP governor, he added, "We're not elected just to be Tommy Thompson's tax collector."

The Wisconsin plan seeks to end welfare by 2000. In addition to requiring recipients to work or get training if they are able, it caps benefits at two consecutive years or five years in a lifetime.

Child care and health care benefits would be provided depending on income, with co-payments required of some recipients.

Customarily, waivers are issued at the prerogative of the White House, and Thompson delivered the state's request to the Clinton administration on Wednesday. He issued a written statement at the time challenging the president to act.

"He endorsed (the plan) in his weekly radio address on May 18. Now he is getting what he asked for: an opportunity to sign it," Thompson said. One White House official said Thursday that Clinton favors Wisconsin's plan, and is particularly pleased that it provides child care and health care to "move people from welfare to work."

This official, speaking on condition of anonymity, also said the law requires a 30-day period for public comment before the administration can act on the state's request.

Details of the GOP legislation were not available late last week, and it was not clear how the House GOP leadership would deal with the 30-day issue.

In a letter to Clinton Friday, Speaker Newt Gingrich, Majority Leader Richard Armitage and other lawmakers noted it had been 48 hours since the waiver request had been submitted.

"We strongly urge you to sign the Wisconsin waiver without further delay," they wrote. "If you do not, the House will proceed to send you the Wisconsin waiver in the form of legislation."

Having Congress vote on a state's pending request for a waiver essentially would pre-empt Clinton, and it shapes up as the latest Republican move in a political struggle over one of the core issues of the 1996 campaign.

Clinton, who campaigned in 1992 on a veto to "end welfare as we know it," twice last year vetoed GOP welfare reform proposals, saying they were too harsh on children and didn't do enough to aid the transition from welfare to work. His radio address on May 18 in praise of Wisconsin's plan was seen as an attempt to pre-empt Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, the GOP presidential nominee-to-be, who was scheduled to visit Wisconsin a few days later.

Dole's visit featured a speech on welfare reform, and Clinton immediately responded by challenging Dole to move his plan through Congress. "I will sign it," as long as it contained no "poison pills." "My attitude is: 'Let's let her rip.'"

Administration officials defined poison pills as linking Medicaid changes to the welfare bill, which House and Senate Republicans want to do.

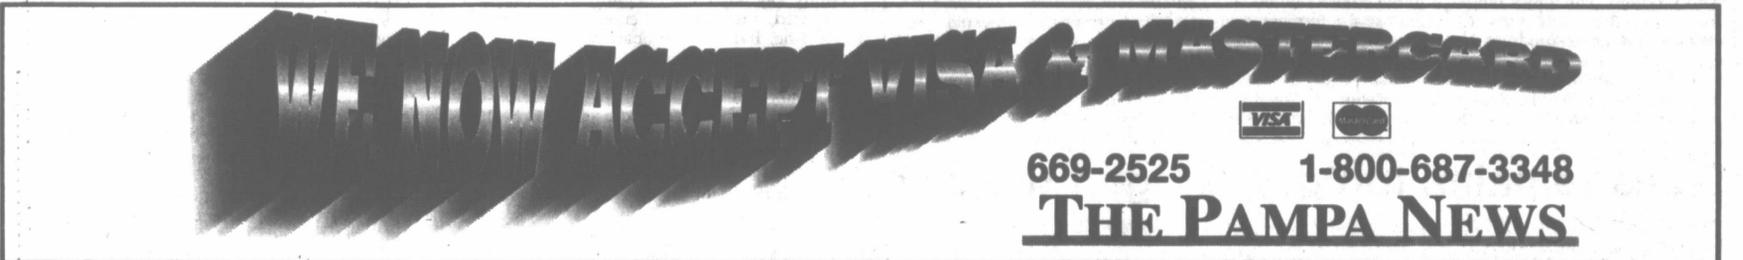

A few days later, Dole sought to bring the welfare measure up for a vote - only to be thwarted by Senate Democrats.

Against that backdrop, Republican officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, expressed the hope that could cause political discomfort not only for Clinton on the issue, but also for congressional Democrats.

Clinton has been under pressure from some in Wisconsin to soften of the features of the plan.

The Wisconsin Catholic Conference has asked federal officials to work the requirement that women return to work 13 weeks after giving birth, for example, and to change the program so all participants qualify for the earned income tax credit, a tax break for low-income people.

The provision capping lifetime eligibility is also certain to draw objections from some in Congress who oppose ending the decades-long entitlement of government aid to the poor.

Luxury cross-country train provides pampering aplenty for travelers

By DEBORAH BAKER
Associated Press Writer

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Had it with hotels? Done with dude ranches? Cruises make you crazy? So ride the rails, darling.

Board the sleek, blue-and-white cars of the American Orient Express for a transcontinental tour — plus plenty of pampering.

Watch the landscape unfold from a comfy sofa in the leather-walled, brass-appointed club car.

Listen to the pianist tickle the ivories on one of two baby grands. Order a drink from the marble-topped bar.

Ponder whether it will be the loin of lamb with fresh herbs and apricot-and-fig chutney, or the chicken breast with artichoke hearts, grapes and oranges.

OK, so train toilets are still tiny; the handsome tile-and-faux marble decorating scheme will divert you.

And the shower may be down the hall — but it already will be steamy when the porter greets you at your sleeping cabin door with a fluffy robe.

"It's a pretty comfortable train," said Gregory

Mueller, president of the American Orient Express. "It's like being in a rolling five-star hotel."

An expensive one: An eight-day trip from Los Angeles to Washington, D.C. — via the Grand Canyon, Santa Fe, San Antonio, New Orleans and Charlottesville, Va. — starts at $4,990 per person, double occupancy. For $7,450 per person, there's a double-size cabin with a private shower.

The American Orient Express also offers a 10-day tour of some of the West's national parks — a Denver-to-Santa Fe run that starts at $3,990 — and a five-day, Los Angeles-to-Santa Fe trip that begins at $1,990.

And there's an opera tour, a nine-day round trip from Los Angeles that features stops at Colorado's Aspen Music Festival and the Santa Fe Opera, starting at $3,850.

All the tours feature experts who ride the train and give lectures and slide shows on historical, cultural and railroad-related topics. There's also organized sightseeing at each stop.

Mueller said there has been little problem filling the train, which sleeps 100, for the 30 one-way trips scheduled this year.

"There's a huge, pent-up demand for luxury rail travel because you haven't had it for 50 years," he said.

Demand from whom? For starters, from the affluent, just-turning-50 baby-boomers, Mueller said.

"A lot of them never saw the United States — they went to Europe and backpacked. And a lot of them never rode trains," Mueller said. "They've been everywhere else, and this is one of the last trips left to do."

Railroad buffs, of course, account for some of the travelers, as do foreign visitors; a Japanese tour company has booked it for a transcontinental trip in July.

"This is something that is, frankly, a once-in-a-lifetime sort of trip. It's been grand," said Ira Kulbersh of Chicago, as he boarded the Los Angeles-bound train in Santa Fe recently after a day of sightseeing.

Kulbersh said the cross-country trip was a "busman's holiday" for him and his wife.

He spent 30 years working for railroads, retiring in 1989 as chief mechanical engineer for Chicago and North Western Transportation Co.

The trip gave him the fun of railroading and a chance to show off his expertise — "I have had a ball with people asking me questions" — without any of the worry, Kulbersh said.

"This is as good as it gets," he said. Marion Wilson and her husband were riding the American Orient Express back to their Los Angeles home from a business trip to the East Coast.

"It really is just a wonderful way to travel," she said.

The Wilsons have taken a similar luxury train in Europe, but this was more fun, she said.

"This is very casual. They don't expect you to dress up at night."

The train was put together in 1989, a $16 million project that involved refurbishing, inside and out, rail cars from the 1940s and 1950s that had been owned by various companies, Mueller said.

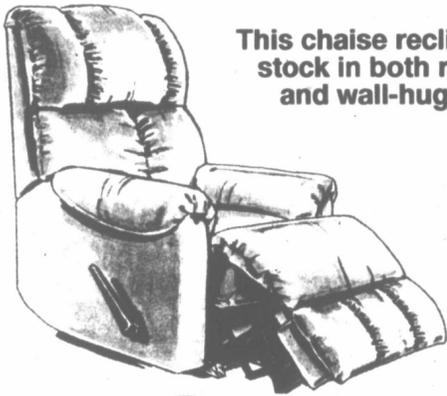

The elegant observation car, with its curved bay windows, served 20 years on the New York Central's 20th Century Limited.

Other cars in the 14-car train include seven sleepers, two dining cars — their tables set with linen and crystal — and two club cars. There's even an on-board laundry.

A staff of 30 serves the passengers.
