CLEAR SKIES RETURN TO STATE AFTER HARD BLIZZARD NEVADA LOWER HOUSE PASSES SIX WEEKS DIVORCE MEASURE

RENO WORRIED OVER MEASURE UP TO SENATE

NEW ADVANCES MADE BY OTHER STATES GETS ACTION WANTS TO KEEP TRADE

MARITAL UNRESTFUL MAY HAVE EASIER FREEDOM

RENO, Nev., March 7. (AP)—Faced with active competition from Hot Springs, Arkansas, and Boise, Idaho for the divorce business of New York and other eastern and southern cities, Reno's one hundred and thirty lawyers as well as many of its business men, hotel proprietors and resort owners are preparing to use all the influence necessary to see that the Nevada state senate passes the six weeks' divorce law which went through the lower house of the legislature by unanimous vote yesterday.

Reno does not expect that its divorce business will be increased to any extent by the six weeks residence law but it does think the new law will strike a blow at the threatened Hot Springs and Boise competition and keep the marriage-unrestful headed for Nevada.

High Value

Reno's divorce business is valued at from two to three million dollars a year according to attorneys and business men, which of course includes attorneys' fees that will probably average $500 per case. For the past two years there have been an average of two thousand divorce cases filed each year, indicating there are approximately 600 divorce seekers here at all times. It is estimated it costs six dollars, a day living expenses exclusive of attorneys' fees, indicating that Reno's transient divorce seekers here in Nevada is spending over $1,500,000 a year in the city.

Many Are Rich

Of course such rich and prominent divorce applicants as Mrs. Evelyn Marshall Field, 3rd, spend much more than the average $5 each day and there have been many rich and prominent divorce seekers here in recent years. Mrs. Margaret McKim Vanderbilt Baker secured a divorce here many years ago from McKim and another couple of years ago from Raymond T. Baker. Mrs. Delphine Dodge Cromwell got her divorce here and later married Raymond T. Baker. Mrs. Arthur McArthur, wife of the general, secured a Reno divorce, and Mrs. Elizabeth Dupont got a divorce here. Walker P. Inman, heir to part of the Duke millions, had a hard fight to secure his divorce and Ralph Elsmann, the Brooklyn utility magnate, spent plenty of money in court litigation and is a real resident of Reno now.

Many of New York's social elite took away $200,000 a year after spending three months here and there are scores of them here now "doing time" for three months.

Steal Car Of Sheriff For Escape

MULESHOE, Mar. 7. (AP)—Appropriating the automobile of Sheriff Howard Sterling, three prisoners early this morning made good their escape after saving their way out of Bailey county jail, and no trace of them had been found this afternoon.

Investigation revealed efforts were made to steal other cars, but none except the sheriff's could be started.

Three other inmates of the jail refused to flee.

Those who escaped were Flinn and Percy Hughes, charged with violation of the liquor laws, and A. T. Young, charged with automobile theft.

SMALL DAMAGE IS CAUSED BY SEVERE STORM

FRUIT AREA IN SOUTH PART OF STATE IS NOT INJURED

TEMPERATURES RAISE PANHANDLE WHEAT IS BENEFITED WITH MOISTURE

By The Associated Press

As clear skies and sunshine returned to Texas Saturday, after a sudden blizzard Thursday and Friday which swept across the state with snow, sleet, rain and cold winds, reports indicated that damage done to fruit crops in East Texas was offset in a degree by benefit to grain crops of snowfall in the Panhandle and West Texas.

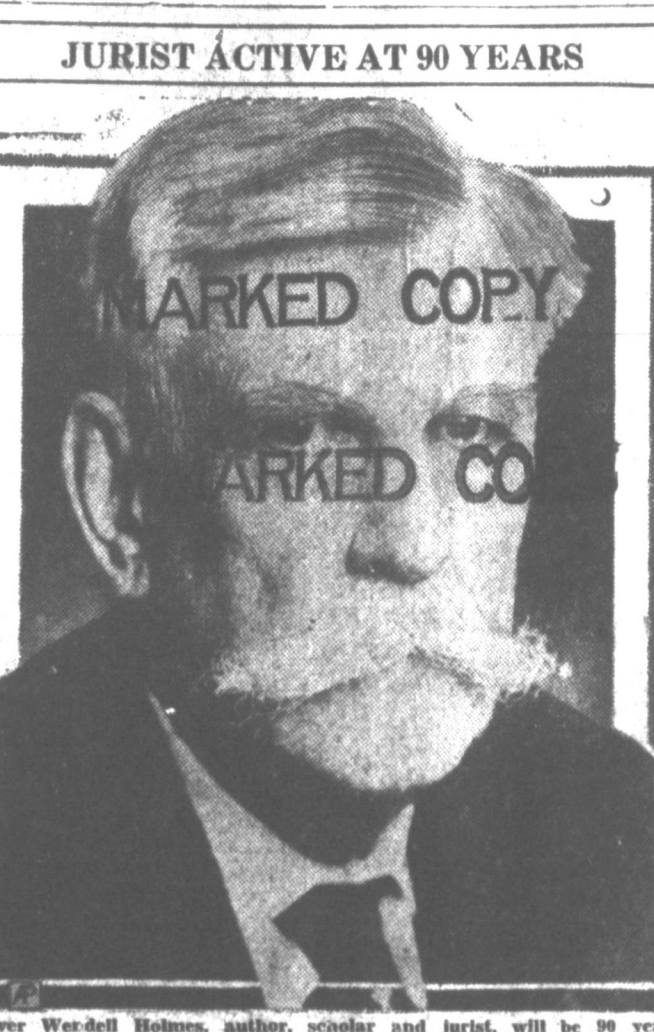

Jack-inville, in the heart of East Texas, reported that the peach crop was badly damaged and in some places, ruined. Loss to truck garden crops such as tomatoes was not regarded as serious, as most tomato plants still were in cold frames and had not been set out in fields. Tyler, advising there had been a light snow and a minimum temperature of 30 degrees, reported no loss was incurred. Marshall, with a minimum of 29, gave a similar report. Nacogdoches reports made no mention of any damage.

No Fruit Damage

County agents in Northeast Texas, near Texarkana, expressed the opinion that freezing weather Friday night failed to damage fruit crops in that section. However, they were apprehensive of the low temperature forecast for Saturday night. Orchardists declared fruit trees could endure a temperature of 26 degrees without material damage. The temperature Friday night was 28 at Texarkana and in the surrounding territory. Cloudy weather and high winds Saturday helped protect trees, county agents said, the wind blowing water from fruit tree blooms.

In the lower Rio Grande valley, near Brownsville, garden farmers looked favorably upon prospects for cloudy weather Saturday night which would protect their crops of tomatoes, beans and potatoes from frost.

OIL OPERATORS FIGHTING WITH BACKS TO WALL

INDEPENDENTS FAVOR GOVERNOR MURRAY'S OIL PROGRAM

LITTLE HOPE IN HOOVER

PANHANDLE OIL MEN OPTIMISTIC ON SITUATION

By ARCHER FILLINGIM News-Post Oil Editor

Fighting with their backs to the wall after months of retreating before court-sustained proration orders and the killing influence of foreign oil imports, independent operators of Texas and Oklahoma were looking to their legislators and governors last week for relief.

Little confidence was placed in President Hoover's after-congress move to obtain promises from big companies that they would curtail foreign oil shipments, by southwestern operators. "Why didn't he try to do something about it while Congress was in session?" is the cynical question hurled at those who view the president's action favorably.

Endorse Move

The independents, almost to a man, endorsed Governor Murray's plan to exclude from operating in Texas, Oklahoma and another southern state, all companies which are importing foreign oil. Texas independents, especially those from East Texas and the Panhandle, are hoping Governor Sterling will cooperate with the Sooner governor. Should East Texas, Oklahoma and another state drive out the importers of foreign oil, Shell, Gulf and several others, nor their subsidiaries could buy no more oil in the three states.

It is now the general belief that an embargo on foreign oil is the only cure for the oil situation. Proration has failed in that it has not kept up the price of oil. On the contrary, month by month, major companies have announced cuts until now producers are all but giving oil away. Independents are confident that when the Danziger injunction suit reaches the higher court, the decision of the lower court will be reversed. The result, they say, will be that proration will topple and the situation will be more muddled than ever.

Are Optimistic

That the future holds anything but good for the petroleum industry in Gray county has never been doubted by operators and close observers of the situation here. All fields, including the booming East Texas area, is feeling the pinch of proration, low prices, lack of a market and lack of transportation. The Panhandle suffers along with the rest of them. Gray county's 747

MURRAY PLANS OUTLAWING OF OIL IMPORTERS

REPRESENTATIVES TO MEET MONDAY AT TEXARKANA

STATUTE MORE DRASTIC

REVISES FIRST IDEA TO BRING ABOUT CONDITIONS

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., March 7. (AP)—Legislative plans to ban the importation of foreign oil into Oklahoma were shaped tonight as the oil region looked expectantly toward a relief conference Monday on the Texas-Arkansas border.

Governor W. H. Murray, who called the conference at Texarkana in continuing his effort to boost the oil industry out of its plight, announced late today a bill would be introduced in the Oklahoma senate by Al G. Nichols, Democrat, Wetoka, to make all products of domestic foreign corporations importing oil from foreign fields and engaged in ultra-state business contraband at the Oklahoma border.

More Drastic

The proposed statute, which the governor said was even more drastic than his original plans for fighting the surplus caused by cheap oil from abroad, would make dealing in the contraband oil or other products a felony. It would give the courts power of injunction to stop the traffic with or without notice on receipt of information from any citizen. In addition violations would be punished by revocation of defending companies.

It puts more teeth in the proposal of Murray, made at a Fort Worth governor's conference last weekend, for a tri-state bar on foreign oil imports. Indications were it would be a major issue at the Texarkana meeting of all state representatives who are expected to meet in Oklahoma City this week because of widespread and drastic price cuts on crude petroleum.

Rigid Enforcement

Meanwhile, the governor took steps to back the state corporation commission in rigid enforcement of the proration rules in the Oklahoma City field and the confusion attendant on recent proration orders. One well, he said, was wide open and others were being opened.

Either all must obey the orders or proration as well be lifted altogether, Walker said.

Six states, at the least: Oklahoma, Texas, Arkansas, California, Kansas and Louisiana—are scheduled to have delegates at Texarkana. Cicero Murray, the governor's cousin and special representative and a state legislator and oil man are due there. Cicero Murray today indicated some of the sessions might be secret.

MAYOR ISSUES PROCLAMATION

SPECIAL OBSERVANCE OF B. & P. WEEK PROCLAIMED

Mayor D. W. Osborne yesterday set aside the week beginning today for special observance of Business and Professional Women's week, taking note of the period designated by clubs of this country and other nations.

Today's issue of the NEWS-POST thoroughly explains what this week means. The Pampa club will have numerous activities, among which will be a style show on Wednesday.

The mayor's proclamation follows: Proclamation

Whereas, in the building of the social structure of our great nation the sons of our democracy have been credited with many deeds of loyalty and valor while the daughters of this great republic, sharing alike in the responsibility of its progress, have received comparatively little attention, and

Whereas, the women of today not only bear the responsibility of guiding future good citizenship but contribute a major service in the advancement of art, science, and business enterprise, thereby rendering the principal service toward the advancement of our government and nation, and their importance can not be over emphasized.

Now, therefore, in recognition of these great achievements and relying upon the unrivaled integrity of the business and professional women of this city, state and nation, I, D. W. Osborne, mayor of the city of Pampa, do hereby proclaim the week of March 8 to 14, 1931, heretofore set aside by the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs, to be known as National Business Women's week and request that all citizens of Pampa recognize and observe this time to honor this great organization of the women of our nation.

In testimony whereof, I hereunto affix my official title as mayor of the city of Pampa and have caused to be impressed hereon the seal of the city of Pampa this 7th day of March A. D., 1931.

D. W. OSBORNE Mayor, City of Pampa.

SNOWFALL HERE MAY ASSURE FINE WHEAT CROP THIS YEAR

WILL HOLD GROWTH OF GRAIN BACK UNTIL ROOTS ARE FIRM

Wheat farmers, elevator men and the Gray county agent, believe the snow and heavy freeze will assure this section of the Panhandle an excellent wheat crop this year. Rain, followed by a heavy snow which melted in a few days, was followed by a freeze which will hold the growth of wheat back until the roots have a firm grip, they declare.

With the frost coming at this time probability of a late injuring frost has been lessened. Wheat taking a strong stance now will be less liable to blow with strong march winds which have proven disastrous in past years when rapid growth was not delayed by early frosts.

Most wheat growers in this section sow Kansas Red and Turkey Red wheat. Some plant a mixed wheat while some have been experimenting with a variety of Clarks Black Bull. There has been no indication that prices this year will be favorable to the farmer. Wheat reached a low level last week but indications later were favorable of a raise, reports say.

Little if any difference in acreage in this territory has been made this year a survey by elevator men reveals. Practically the only decrease in wheat acreage is directed west of Pampa where a heavy drilling campaign has been under way in good wheat land. Some counties have cut acreage but Gray county has not.

County Agent Ralph Thomas says that up to this time farmers

TREES OFFERED AT UNUSUAL BARGAINS BY CITY HOOD CLUB

Here's a call for aid that is really an opportunity for Pampa residents. The Hood club has about two hundred fine trees, mostly Chinese elms, for distribution at from 50 cents up. The prices are far below the market, the trees being sold at cost to encourage city beautification.

Now, following the snows, is regarded as an ideal time to plant trees. The Hood trees are from 5 to 10 feet in height. Any one of Pampa's lumber dealers can supply the trees.

The Hood club will meet at Master's cafe Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Poultry Show Plans Formed

MUCH INTEREST FOR COUNTY CLUBS IN CONTESTS

The stock and poultry contest to be held here next Saturday is going to be a more significant and a bigger event than most interested citizens are anticipating. This was indicated by the plans which were completed yesterday morning by County Agent Ralph R. Thomas, Prof. J. L. Lester and George W. Briggs.

The ultimate success of the show will depend upon the weather. It was announced at the meeting that Frank Phillips of West Texas State Teachers college will have charge of the dairy judging contests; R. B. Galloway, poultry contests and Frank Ford, county agent of Potter county, of the livestock judging contests. Mr. Thomas will be general superintendent of the contests. Judging teams from Clarks, Clarendon, Philadelphia, Wellington, McLean, White Deer, Conway, have already announced they will be here. About 20 teams have been invited to participate in the contests.

The contestants will meet at the city hall at 9 o'clock. From that place the boys will accompany the judges to farms nearby where poultry, dairy cattle and livestock will be judged. The livestock class includes, swine, horses and beef cattle. Cups and ribbons will be given to prize-winners.

was attributed mainly to dissatisfaction with the India settlement. The close was steady and at or near the best general market showing for the day.

Liverpool came in 11 penny points more than due and private cables stated that local traders, the continent and Bombay liquidated over disappointment with the settlement with India. Manchester indicated that the cloth market was unsettled and that the Shanghai futures were disappointing.

First trades here showed losses of 7 to 10 points which was not a full response to the lower cables. The market continued to ease off after the start on liquidation and selling by recent buyers and 34 1/2 finally traded down to 11.05 1/2 on October 11.59, or 14 points below the previous close.

The market rallied in the late trading on shorts covering for over the week end, the buying being also stimulated by an improvement in stocks. Active months made new highs with May at 11.15 and October at 11.07, or 10 points above the lows and closed at or near the top with May showing net gains of 4 points for the day and October gaining 7 points net.

ELEVEN NEGRO CONVICTS DIE IN PEN BLAZE

KILLED BY INTENSE HEAT INSIDE OF METAL CELLS

KENANSVILLE, N. C., March 7. (AP)—Eleven negro convicts trapped in a corrugated metal cell died today as flames destroyed the central building of the Duplin county prison stockade. Forty-one other prisoners in the stockade were unharmed.

The building housed the iron cell block of the stockade. The flames did not reach the victims who were killed by the intense heat generated within their metal cell as the fire raged through the wooden building around it.

Convict cooks were first aroused by the flames which originated in the kitchen in the early morning. Not being fastened to their quarters, as were other prisoners, they awakened guards in an adjoining building.

The guards ran into the center entrance of the blazing building and released the first stream of water into the cell blocks. These screaming and howling, maddened by terror, fought wildly in a stampede for the door.

Owen Basely, Jr., guard who released them, was three times knocked down in the rush and received head wounds.

When the guards sought to un-fetter the men in the second cell they found death had preceded them.

The county coroner, the county commissioner and state welfare and prisons commission launched inquiries.

This afternoon officials of the county road system advised no guards were on duty when the flames began their destructive work. They explained the state law did not require it.

Aged Man Is Found Dead In Hotel Room

CORSICANA, March 7. (AP)—E. S. North, 86, of Blooming Grove, was found dead today in a hotel here. A verdict of death by alcoholic poisoning was returned at an inquest.

A companion told officers he found North's body early today after having been unconscious most of the night from the effects of a drink.

Unidentified Man Is Found Dead

TEXARKANA, Texas, Mar. 7. (AP)—An unidentified man of middle age was found dead late today in a pool of water beside a street in the edge of the city. He apparently was a victim of the freezing weather or of drowning.

Coroner G. W. Ragland returned a verdict that the man died either of drowning or natural causes. He found no evidence of foul play. The man was discovered by A. J. Jordan, street car motorman, who saw the body about 75 feet from the car line.

The man was shabbily dressed and had no money on his person. Sheriff Henry Brooks advanced the theory he was a transient and that he probably stumbled and fell into the pool. He appeared about 50 years old and wore a red mustache. The man seemed to have been dead three or four days.

NEW ORCHESTRA IS SECURED AT PLA-MOR

Beginning next Wednesday, Harry R. Jones and his orchestra will play for dances each Wednesday and Saturday nights at the Pla-Mor. Frank Hunt, manager announced yesterday.

Mr. Jones and his well-known orchestra have just finished a three-month contract at the Nat in Amarillo. Each noon and evening the orchestra will play at the Harvester Cafe. The orchestra includes a trio of singers and entertainers. Before coming to Amarillo, the orchestra played at a leading cabaret and night club in Dallas. The music of the orchestra is personally known to many Pampa dance lovers, and Mr. Hunt was able to secure the musicians only through special inducements.

The Pla-Mor dances are catering to "quality folks," Frank Hunt said, and the new orchestra will provide "quality music." No rowdiness is permitted in the dance hall. Undignified dancing is not permitted. The new rules also compel men to wear coats.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dolan visited here a few days last week on their way from Berger to Colorado where Mr. Dolan has been transferred.

Dutch senior doe. The Pampa Rabbit and Fur Breeders' association will meet in regular session at the city hall on Wednesday night, to transact important business, it was announced yesterday by association officials.

HOLMES OBSERVING 90TH ANNIVERSARY

WASHINGTON, March 7. (AP)—Ninety years ago a young Boston physician experienced the usual fatherly reactions on the birth of a lusty baby boy.

That child, Oliver Wendell Holmes, assistant justice of the supreme court, in observing his 90th anniversary tomorrow, will deviate from his routine to make his first radio address.

It will be brief. The Columbia broadcasting system has set aside five minutes, beginning at 9:35 p.m. (CST), for his response to eulogies from Charles Evans Hughes, chief justice of the United States, Charles A. Boston, president of the American Bar Association, and Charles E. Clark, dean of the Yale Law school. Boston and Clark will speak from New York studios and Hughes from Washington.

Justice Holmes probably will not use all the time allotted to him, although he may have more if he wishes. A microphone has been installed in the home where he has lived many years and with it went the first receiving set the old house ever saw.

Justice Holmes ordinarily lets his birthdays pass without any outward sign but he broke a precedent to acknowledge publicly the eulogy from the chief justice.

A monument to Jaf Erikson, discoverer of North America, is to be erected in Grant Park, Chicago, near the Field Museum. The Norwegian National League is behind the project.

ST. LOUIS CARDINALS BEAT PHIL. ATHLETICS IN FIRST GAME

INITIAL BALL GAME PLAYED FOR PRACTICE

CARDS ARE VICTORS BY 5 TO 2 SCORE AT MIAMI

MIAMI, Fla., Mar. 7. (AP)—Action as though they didn't regard the proceedings as just a friendly exhibition for the benefit of the tourist customers, the St. Louis Cardinals jumped on the Philadelphia Athletics today and pounded out a 5 to 2 victory over the world's champions in very business-like fashion.

It was the first of a three-game winter "world's series" between the rival major league championship clubs. Several of the main casts of both machines, notably Frankie Frisch and Al Simmons, were missing but most of the familiar figures were there to entertain and perform for the benefit of an enthusiastic gathering of 1600 fans at Miami Field.

The Red Birds won by juggling all over the right offerings of Leroy Mahaffey in the seventh and eighth innings with a batting spread such as they would have enjoyed more had it taken place last October.

The Athletics lost because they didn't show anything like their punch of last season, except for one robust poke by Johnny Fox on the right field fence for a home run. The world's champions collected only four safe blows altogether.

For the honor was matched for the Cardinals by Charley Gelbert, another boy hero of the 1930 series, who pleased the customers by galloping all the way around the bases on a drive to the left fence in the fourth inning.

The score was tied at 2-2 when the Red Birds went to work on Mahaffey in the seventh, after having been held to five hits in the first six innings by Eddie Keener and Rube Walberg. The former Pacific Coast league star yielded two runs on a double by Adna, a single by old Mike Gonzales, which scored what proved the winning tally, and a double by "Pepper" Martin.

Joe Hunt, the Texas boy, collected his second straight hit and scored the first run in the eighth on Myers' single and a fly by Gonzales, which did not go down as a sacrifice, however, under the new rules for 1931.

ARKANSAS VOTES DOWN HORSE RACING BILL

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 7. (AP)—Disappointment again rewarded the biennial efforts of interests at Hot Springs to gain state approval for horse racing and pari-mutuel betting today. The house of representatives by an overwhelming vote of 55 to 9 defeated a bill to permit betting on races.

The half-million dollar idle racing plant at the resort city appeared destined to remain unused at least two years longer.

Similar bills have come up at every session of the legislature for several years, all of them meeting defeat in one way or another. In 1929, when both houses passed one, Governor Farnell vetoed it.

CHIEF Professor BENDER THE GRAND OLD INDIAN WHO PITCHED GREAT BALL FOR THE ATHLETICS YEARS AGO IS NOW TUTORING THE ROOKIE PITCHERS OF THE GIANTS

—By Pap

Sport Slants by ALAN GOULD ASSOCIATED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

The boys are beginning to wonder if the old days of the fight game are coming back, the days of the run-around, when all you needed was a pen, a camera, and a half dozen quarts of champagne to sign up a heavyweight championship fight.

Remember how Jack Dempsey and his predecessors before the days of the late Tex Rickard dropped in here and there to agree to defend their titles, moved on and promptly forgot all about it?

At one time Jack had contracts to fight Harry Wills for three different promoters in various sections of the country and at the same time he had the Tom Gibbons bout first in his mind.

Rickard changed all that. When he dragged out the papers he meant it. They agreed to fight, the money posted in banks, and they fought. Careless penmanship went out of style.

The influx of foreign fighters and the desire of most of the American managers to horn in on their popularity brought back the custom of carrying fountain pens on coat laps.

Arthur Huelow wrote Max Schmeling into such entanglements that the lawyers still have years of work ahead.

Now the heavyweights are entangled in a round robin of contracts that are gradually taking on the appearance of the documents that guaranteed Harry Wills a title shot in so many places.

Schmeling will defend his heavyweight crown against Young Stribling, but the contracts say and the winner will give Primo Carnera his title chance some time next fall.

The papers might just as well be torn up, however, if some place to stage the matches isn't found rather soon.

Chicago or Cleveland probably will get the first one but there is still much conferring and compromising to be done. The New York milk fund promoters, raising funds for metropolitan babies, can't seem to get past the Chicago reasoning that babies drink milk in the Midwest.

Chicago could stage the Schmeling-Stribling fight in June and the profits, if any, could go toward buying milk for Chicago babies. The winner could fight Primo Carnera, if that still is considered necessary, or Jack Sharkey if it isn't in New York in the fall.

The New York babies could drink milk from the profits of this one. Everyone would have a fight and there would be milk for all the babies.

There is one great bar, however, to such logical reasoning, as far as New York is concerned, the commission has ruled that Schmeling will fight Sharkey here or no one. And when the commission says Sharkey it doesn't mean Carnera. As a commission it is not even funny that way.

TEXAS LEAGUE WILL USE NEW FANGLED BALL

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Mar. 7. (AP)—Eleven three year olds, the cream of the racers in training at the Agua Caliente jockey club here, have been entered in the second annual renewal of the Agua Caliente derby, $10,000 added, at the border track tomorrow.

The distance is a mile and one-sixteenth. Buling today as favorite was Marvin Allen's Schooner, at odds of 5 to 2 to win. James F. Crutcher's Up was second choice at 3 to 1 and Al Johnson's Concord was rated third at 4 to 1.

Joining the singer, now in Baltimore, has telegraphed a wager of $10,000 to the head of the betting ring here, his Concord will win the event. It was stated today the bet would be accepted.

The fast ball pitcher. A comparison of the old Texas league ball with it readily discloses the difference, though the change might not be noted by the layman unless the two balls are placed side by side.

The stichings of the new ball is a trifle heavier than that of the old and is not drawn as tightly into the cover.

At least a dozen other entries are expected to make a full bracket. Grady Shipp, secretary of the Plainview Chamber of Commerce, who is in charge of registrations, said. Ten of these have announced they would enter, but their registration fees have not been received, he said.

HASKELL INSTITUTE BEATS MOBERLY TEAM

KANSAS CITY, March 7. (AP)—Tournament play to determine the National A. A. U. basketball champion for 1931 began here tonight, Haskell Institute, Lawrence, Kan., defeating the Moberly team, Kansas City, 44 to 27.

Two other games, scheduled for tonight, were not played because of inclement weather. A heavy snow fall caused such scant attendance officials decided to play the games at a later date.

One of the postponed games, between Rockhurst college, Kansas City, and the Linn, Packer, Linn, Kas., will be played tomorrow afternoon. The other postponed game between Nebraska Wesleyan university and the Kansas City, Kas., junior college was re-scheduled for Monday night.

ATHENS WINS STATE BASKET TOURNEY CUP

AUSTIN, March 7. (AP)—The National champion Athens quintet tonight won the state high school basketball tournament by beating San Jacinto of Houston 25 to 23 in an overtime contest. The teams were doubleoaked 19 to 19 at the end of the regular period of play.

Into the extra period, the Hornets sent Eskin Ware, midget forward, in under the basket to slink long leaders fired to him by the rangy Tompkins and Henderson. Ware sank three quick shots, his only field goals of the night. Before Ware broke loose with his rapid firing, Henderson had been the Hercules to consistently hit the hoops. Henderson sank six shots from the field during the evening and outshone Fred Tompkins with his floor play.

Harry Journey, Golden Bear forward, kept his team in the running with his accurate shooting from the foul line. It was his shot in the closing seconds of play which tied the score at 19 all and sent the teams into an overtime period. Journey was high point man for his team with eight.

The overtime period was away with a bang as Ware, getting the range on his basket, sank baskets on two successive plays. Henderson then fouled Eaton. It was his fourth. He was replaced by Brown. Eaton sank a field goal and was fouled but failed to tally on the free pitch. Ware slipped under for his third basket in almost as many minutes. Tompkins sank a free shot to end the Golden Bear scoring.

Frank Jordan, special officer, is visiting with his parents in Wichita Falls this week-end.

SLIM ITALIAN WOMAN IS ONE OF BEST KNOWN SCULPTORS OF THIS AGE—STRUGGLED BRAVELY

FAUSTA MENGARINI IS EXAMPLE MUCH ADMIRER

Slim, dark, with the fire of the artist burning in her clear eyes, Fausta Vittoria Mengarini, youngest and most distinguished of Italian woman sculptors, is probably the only woman in the world who has ever designed a lighthouse by government commission.

As this little woman from Rome sat in her New York studio recently she recalled the days when she was an almost unknown artist struggling for recognition in a country which refused to entrust important work to women and contenting herself because she must deal with small figures, terra cotta, majolica and portrait busts. But one day her chance came. The royal government invited the sculptors of Italy to send in designs for the Victor Emmanuel monument in Rome, using fictitious names to avoid favoritism. Signing her pseudonym with a masculine flourish, Mme. Mengarini sent in her design and waited, bedridden at the time as the result of an accident.

Women were barred from the competition and the judges overlooked over the designs and noted the vigor of Mme. Mengarini's. But when they opened the envelope containing her real name and age, they discovered that the artist was a woman, a mere girl in her early twenties. And they would not give the work to a woman! Although the judges agreed that Mme. Mengarini's sketch was the best of those submitted, they gave the award to a man.

But the director of the competition could not forget her work, and could the architect who constructed the monument. One day he sent for her. Would she, could she, although only a woman, design some heads for the facade of the new Palace of Justice? She could but she wouldn't. . . . The architect hesitated; but Mme. Mengarini would not give up her ideas for the sake of even so great an opportunity as this. At last she won. She was given permission to go ahead and make four large medallions, representing Penal and Civil Justice. Whoever passes by the Palace of Justice in Rome today will see on its facade the first medallions ever designed by a woman sculptor for a public monument in Italy.

Honored by King
Her career was established, and she subsequently was honored by the king and by Mussolini, who sat for his portrait for two months. But the most unique of her achievements was the lighthouse she designed by government commission. At the entrance to the port of Massaua, illuminating the dark sea, it will stand as a memorial to the Italian conquest of Eritrea, symbolizing the power and prestige of Rome and symbolizing, too, the summit of Mme. Mengarini's work as an artist.

"It was a long, hard struggle," confessed Mme. Mengarini frankly, "for it was very difficult for a woman in Europe to gain the necessary artistic training. I was the only woman among the six thousand students in the high school of the Fine Arts academy.

Education Refused
"In my mother's day the prejudice against women students also existed but it was a milder degree. My mother, extremely interested in natural science, pleaded for an opportunity to enter the university. Finally the university authorities said that she might listen to the lectures but only on condition that she hid behind a certain enclosure, so that none of the other students might know that a woman was there.

"Today there are probably as many women as men attending the universities in Europe—a few studying engineering, a great many concentrating on literature, a number almost equal to men in medicine, and so on through the professions. Thus in the course of time prejudices gradually disappear. Each wearing down of prejudice enables women to accomplish something in a new field; each time a woman achieves anything noteworthy, she helps to undermine another outworn prejudice."

Butterflies Dance On New Chiffons
PARIS, March 7. (AP)—Butterfly chiffons are a new fabric for the dancing frocks of butterfly dupontes. The chiffons are of cobwebby texture with bright-hued butterflies dancing over a light ground. They make one of the gayest fabrics which Paris has launched in several seasons, and are used for demure ruffled party gowns, made in the bouffant silhouette.

Baseball Briefs

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., Mar. 7. (AP)—For the second straight day the Phillies regulars trounced the Yankees today, 7 to 4, in six innings. One big inning was all the regulars needed and they hammered in six runs in the third. Jumbo Jim Elliott was the losing pitcher and all the runs were scored off him. Frank Watt pitched for the rookies the last three innings and held the regulars runless.

SACRAMENTO, Calif., March 7. (AP)—Manager Stanley R. Harris of the Detroit Tigers is embarrassed by a wealth of promising outfield material and there are indications he will carry six fielders after the squad is reduced to 25 men June 15. If he does, the quota for some other positions must be cut and present prospects are the pitching staff will not exceed nine men.

Hoyt, Whitehill, Uhle and Sorrell are to take turns as regulars while the relief squad probably will embrace Wyatt, Bridges, Hogsett and either Sullivan or Cantrell, or both.

HOUSTON, March 7. (AP)—The boys had to keep moving, this afternoon at Buffalo Stadium to keep warm. For the visitors, the Houston Buffs defeating the Chicago White Sox, 13 to 11. Ray Starr, tall right hander from Danville, and Clarence Hesse, stocky southpaw from Scotland, divided twirling duties for the visitors and each exhibited promise. Both are rookies.

Selph led the hitters with two triples and two singles in four official trips. Joe Medwich, rookie outfielder from Scotland, connected with a double and a triple, his first two times at bat.

The Chixox and Buffs will play again tomorrow.

PASO ROBLES, Calif., March 7. (AP)—The regulars beat the Yankees 5 to 1 in the first baseball game of the spring training season at the Pittsburgh Pirate camp today. Grant, Higgins and Wood pitched for the regulars in the seven inning game allowed four hits. The regulars gathered nine swats.

COBISCANA, March 7. (AP)—Joe Klingler, property of the Chicago White Sox, formerly an outfielder in the Three-I league, reported to the Dallas Steers' training camp here today.

Twenty-two players will entertain tomorrow for Dallas, where they meet the New York Giants in an exhibition game.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Mar. 7. (AP)—Coach Bill Killefer's 1931 edition of Brownsies will meet their first competition tomorrow when they face the bewhiskered team of players from the house of David here.

AVALON, Calif., March 7. (AP)—Rogers Hornsby's notion of having the Chicago Cubs sweep their exhibition series this spring got off to a bad start today when the National leaguers lost to Los Angeles of the Pacific Coast league, 8 to 4.

A bad first inning by Pat Malone and a poor start by Guy Bush who replaced him in the sixth gave the Angels more than enough runs to win. Malone was charged with the defeat, while Al Shealy, a former Cub, was credited with the victory.

NEW ORLEANS, March 7. (AP)—The Cleveland Indians, playing their first real baseball game of the season, today, spotted New Orleans to a six run lead and then beat them 7-6. The Pelicans made five hits, three walks and a wild pitch count for six runs at the expense of Thornton Lee, recruit southpaw in the third inning. Roxie Lawson and Innes Bean pitcher there shut-out Belva each thereafter, while his mates pounded Denton and Rhodes for 14 of their hits and all their runs.

PENSACOLA, Fla., March 7. (AP)—Several socks that would have cleared the Fenway Park clock by many feet were walloped out by the first team during a real nine inning set in the Red Sox camp here today. The tune of victory was 13 to 9 for team A and there were plenty of hits for everybody.

Bill Sweeney, Earl Webb and Danny MacFadden all registered circuit clouts, the latter's being the sixth over the left field wall in a week.

SAN ANTONIO, March 7. (AP)—The continued absence of Bill Terry hold-out first baseman, makes Samuel Andrew Leslie of Moss Point, Miss., a more important figure in the New York Giants' training camp than he otherwise might be.

Sam is the best first baseman in camp right now and should see plenty of service with the Giants no matter whether Terry signs his contract.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Mar. 7. (AP)—Fred Walker, son of the old minor league pitcher, Dixie Walker, has caught the eye of the veteran players in the New York Yankees training camp. Walker, an outfielder, has impressed many observers with the way he hits, his strong arm and fly-chasing ability. He may not stick this time, but says that "no matter where they send me I'll work my head off to get back."

The Yankees exhibition game with the Boston Braves was postponed today because of bad weather.

CLEARWATER, Fla., Mar. 7. (AP)—The Brooklyn Robins are blessed with an abundance of this-rate material this year, but perhaps the rookie with the hardest row to hoe is Paul Richards, a young and likely looking catcher.

Richards, under ordinary circumstances, would stay up with the club, but Wilbert Robinson already is equipped with three able-bodied receivers, Al Lopez and Val Pichnik, regulars, and Ernie Lombardo, the giant from the Oakland club of the

PENN RELAY TEAM ESTABLISHES RECORD

NEW YORK, March 7. (AP)—The University of Pennsylvania's great one-mile relay team of John K. Edwards, Horace W. Steele, James Healy and Bill Carr won the one-mile relay in the Intercollegiate indoor championships tonight in the world record time of 3 minutes, 17 8-10 seconds. Holy Cross was second.

The mark was almost three seconds better than the old world standard of 3:20 6-10 set last year by Harvard.

Carr's team mates gave him a lead of 15 yards on the bell lap and needed all but a yard of it to beat out the favorite, C. H. Knebelkamp's Spanish Play, the pride of New Orleans. Another scant nose back followed W. E. Caskey, jr.'s Myntner to take third money.

EARLY MUSICAL EXPERIENCES
By Alice Judson Peale
Children vary a great deal in their native sensitiveness to musical sounds, but nearly all children take pleasure in melody and rhythm if they have an opportunity to develop it.

The songs which are sung for children and taught to them should be short, and strongly rhythmic. The tunes should be simple. Lucky is a child in the family which not only has a piano but someone who enjoys playing it for his benefit.

Children who are much too young to be learning to play so complicated an instrument as a piano or a violin take great delight in drums and clear-voiced bells. The child of five or six enjoys playing on a little wooden xylophone, an instrument which has the advantage of making only soft sounds, guaranteed not to grate upon the adult ear.

If there is a piano in the living room, it is a pity if it is considered too good for the child to play on, for even a two-year-old gets great pleasure from striking first the deep notes at one end of the scale, then the high ones at the other.

One three-year-old who was allowed to play the piano freely, provided his hands were clean, took great delight in making what he called "dark noises" and "light noises."

The very little child enjoys such homelike sounds as the clucking of a hen or the singing of the canary bird in the nursery window. The child in a big city enjoys having his attention drawn to the boats calling to each other on the Charlie Kurtsinger, leading rider of the Miami meeting, swept past the Pagoda pole astride the Whitney ace with a nose advantage over the favorite, C. H. Knebelkamp's Spanish Play, the pride of New Orleans. Another scant nose back followed W. E. Caskey, jr.'s Myntner to take third money.

TEXAN WINS LARINED CHAMPIONSHIP AWARD
ITHACA, N. Y., Mar. 7. (AP)—A rangy hard hitting Texan, Robert Ryan, a Yale senior, won the Larined cup, emblem of the inter-collegiate indoor tennis championship today and led a clean sweep for the Eds. Ryan trounced Harold Blauer, Pennsylvania sophomore, 6-3, 6-3, 6-2, to win the singles crown, then paired with William Bascom of St. Louis to win the doubles title and to give Yale the team trophy with a record total of 28 points.

Ryan and Bascom won a hard fought doubles final from Blauer and Jose Case, another Penn sophomore, 6-3, 6-2, 2-6, 7-5.

BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL WOMEN'S GROUP IS LARGEST OF ITS KIND IN THE WORLD

IDEA ORIGINATED IN TIME OF WORLD WAR

The Business and Professional Women's club, under whose auspices National Business Women's week is to be observed March 8-14, is the largest organization of business and professional women in the world.

During the world war, the 1924 organization of business women of the United States federated groups. It was found that in practically all business and professional clubs, a greater degree of intellectual growth, a sounder and more practical approach to business problems, seeking better educational standards for the young business woman, the federation has encouraged the establishment of scholarship funds in individual clubs throughout the United States, by means of which prospective business girls have been enabled to complete their high school training or to take up college or university studies.

Judge Nellie Taylor Ross, first of our women governors, Mrs. Bertina K. Landers, who was the first woman to be mayor of a large American city; Mary Anderson, head of the Women's bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor and prominent in the U. S. Government service; Dr. Lillian M. Gilbreth, who is in the forefront of the engineering profession of the United States; these are a few of the outstanding members who have been on its roster.

The club's rounded program seeks for the business woman finer health standards, a greater degree of intellectual growth, a sounder and more practical approach to business problems, seeking better educational standards for the young business woman; the federation has encouraged the establishment of scholarship funds in individual clubs throughout the United States, by means of which prospective business girls have been enabled to complete their high school training or to take up college or university studies.

To enable the mature business woman better to cope with her problems, the organization has carried on an extensive program of research. The first concrete facts ever assembled about business women en masse are contained in a survey which was a cooperative effort of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs and the University of Michigan. These facts, which are to appear in three printed volumes, furnish the business woman with an accurate gauge of the field, which offers her greatest opportunity for development, as well as financial remuneration, and should be of inestimable value to her.

In the international field, the federation has been one of the most forward-looking of American women's organizations. Through its good will tours, conducted through three successive summers, its members have had first hand contact with business and professional women of sixteen European countries, and have gained an invaluable knowledge of political, economic and social conditions abroad, which must eventually have its reflection in a more intelligent handling of American business problems.

DAN CUPID KEPT BUSY IN CLUB OF BUSINESS WOMEN OF THIS CITY

The Pampa Business and Professional Women's club has not, as yet, "set up" as a matrimonial bureau, but any time it might choose to do so, it could point to a record of past success as a most potent advertisement for such a department.

In the two short years of the club's existence, at least, fifteen young women, a rather large percentage of its unmarried members, have changed their names by the "for better, for worse" route.

Members of the local club think it doubtful that any other organization in the city can claim such a record, and they feel, confidently, almost without challenging, in claiming the championship among the B. and P. W. clubs of their own size, no matter where.

Among the first to desert the bachelor girl contingent of the club were: Des Breeding, who became Mrs. J. H. Patterson, and Jewel Flanagan, who became Mrs. E. McDonald; Mrs. Elizabeth Ferguson, was a member of the club only a short time before she became the bride of K. G. Manning.

Then Alice Rittenhouse married Earle Schele, popular local bachelor, and Bonnie Jo Pool not only deserted the Misses of the organization, but she also, as Mrs. Lewis R. Mills.

The Only Pot of Gold

The only pot of gold you'll find at the foot of the rainbow is the one you have placed there yourself. At age 25 fewer men have $100 than at age 45, chiefly because they lack a working plan for systematic saving. Years do not make fortunes, they only make old men and women.

Save Systematically with Western Bldg. & Loan PAMPA

Lucille Kelm has become Mrs. Clayton Husted; Joyce Darnell, Mrs. E. E. Hickman; Wilma Behrerd, Mrs. Harry E. Hoare; and Willette Cole, Mrs. E. H. Williams.

Miss Grace Higgins, first president of the local club, and distinguished as one of the two Texas members of the 1930 International good will party to the national B. and P. W. not only became a bride a fortnight ago, but on her honeymoon had her share toward landing a million dollar worth of highway paving work for the Stuckey Construction company, of which she is secretary-treasurer.

The speed record claimed by the club, however, was in the marriage of Helyce Seltzer, hardly more than a week after she enrolled in the organization. She is now Mrs. Olin E. Hinkle.

And as a happy ending to a happy story, the problem of the club and whispering with more truth than poetry that other weddings are in the offing, and not so far in the future at that, among the B. and P. W. members. Yes, the membership of the club is limited.

London's lord mayor gets 50,000 pounds a year and spends 20,000 pounds on his annual banquet. Expenses of the office are estimated to be at least double the salary.

More than 32,000,000 tons of coal were mined in Kentucky during 1930.

Deaths from diphtheria were reduced 27 per cent in 1930 as compared to 1929.

WOMEN FROM OFFICES MAKE GOOD MATES

By MARY JACOBS.

"Do business and professional women make good wives—better wives than women who lack these outside interests?" "Decidedly yes!" says Will Irwin, author of "Youth Rides West" and many other popular books of fiction, biography and general literature. And he should know—for Mr. Irwin is the husband of Inez Haynes Irwin, equally well known author.

He settles himself comfortably in a cigarette, nonchalantly and contentedly. "Professional and business women make better wives in every respect—in their personal relations with their husbands, and in the management of their homes, and in the training of their children."

Mr. Irwin believes that women who have outside interests are more intelligent companions to their husbands. Instead of their former sheltered lives, these women now encounter the same problems as their husbands in the economic field. As a result, they are able to meet men on the same plane, to be more sympathetic and understanding.

"Nowadays we men are fortunate," said Mr. Irwin. "No longer need we go outside our homes for advice, we can confide in our wives. No longer are we treated to a stiff dose of petty gossip, retailed from neighbor to neighbor. Outside work has provided the proper perspective to women; they think clearly and do not exaggerate the importance of domestic trifles. Moreover, this has made them more interesting and entertaining companions."

Because of the similarity in their daily experiences, though not necessarily in the same field, the home is likely to be more harmonious when both husband and wife work. The wife has mingled with people all day long; she does not insist that her tired husband go out every night for her relaxation. She will be just as tired as he, and often, they will prefer to stay at home instead of "stepping out."

The home itself has greatly improved by the wife's entrance into the economic world. The same intelligence she exercises in her work she brings to bear in the management of her home. The same system and economy which she must use downtown pervades her household activities. She realizes that to maintain her home the important work can not be delegated to others.

As Mr. Irwin put it, "While sweeping and dusting may be entrusted to a maid, it is the mistress who watches the bills, attends to marketing, and sees that the house runs smoothly. A business woman appreciates the value of a dollar—makes sure she gets in value one hundred cents in every dollar expended."

The same efficiency which directs the supervision of the home functions in the training of the children, according to Mr. Irwin. Surely the mother whose knowledge of the world is based on actual experience, is a better spiritual and intellectual guide for her children than the sheltered woman whose ideas are based on books and theories, the old-fashioned type of mother.

"You know, there was still a lot of bunk connected with the institution of motherhood and this old-fashioned type of mother. She worked her job too hard; the law of diminishing returns operated here as surely as it does in economics. Time was wasted in doing jobs at home that could be better done outside. Mother made soap at home, brewed beer (before prohibition stepped in), regardless of her aptitude for these tasks. Why, when I was a boy, the neighbors

THEY'RE IN B. & P. W. CLUB

MRS. M. P. DOWNS

MISS CHRISTINE SMITH

FIRST WOMAN IN BUSINESS PUBLISHED AND SOLD VOLUMES

As early as the year 1838 one Jane Aitken was printing books in Philadelphia, according to a letter from Mrs. R. B. Edwards, of West Point, Virginia.

This is to controvert the claim that Mrs. Elizabeth Timothy, of Charleston, South Carolina, who took over her husband's printing establishment in 1838, or that Hannah Cole, who operated a ferry across the Missouri river in 1814, were the first business women in the United States. Mrs. Edwards expresses a hope that someone — perhaps a Philadelphian — who is familiar with the history of Jane Aitken will write us more of her. Or perhaps some of our members have other claimants for the title of "Earliest American Business Woman."

It cost about 2,000 pounds to clean the column and statue of Nelson in Trafalgar square, London, and it's done about once in 20 years.

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

There is a longing in every normal human heart to be something above the ordinary. Some try to accomplish that by telling "fish stories," thus proving their would-be skill as a fisherman. Others think they make themselves feel exalted by holding their noses up where their foreheads ought to be.

Christ set this rule for His kingdom, the greatest would-be servant of all. How different from the world.

Our message Sunday morning will present this subject and we invite you to hear and to worship with our friendly congregation.

"And Spider Schlitz has got his, has he? And you want an alibi and an asylum?"
"You've grasped it, Simon. You've got to prove that I've been here somewhat longer than I have; and alternatively you've got to prove that, in any case, I'm much too outrageous, far too mad to have known what I was doing, or to be held responsible. A mental alibi in fact."
"And how should the second arise, if the first one is good?" inquired the doctor, humoring the self-declared lunatic.

"Why, now, Simon, suppose that, in spite of your proofs and protestations, I'd been seen at Spider Schlitz's place. — Identifications, footprints, finger-marks — and I was for it — that's where the lunacy-dope would get me off. . . . Get me sent-up instead of strung-up, anyhow, if not acquitted."

"And where should I be, if I swore you were there and it was proved you were there?" asked the doctor.

"Why wouldn't that only be a further proof of the cunning of the madman? I must have slipped away from here and done it, and got back in charge, without being missed. If I were seen and they track me down and try to prove it on me, that is."

"And why, exactly, did you do it?" asked the doctor.

"Now, you're asking questions, Simon, and the madman with an ugly leering grin, playfully shook his finger in the doctor's face.

"Did you come straight here from Witherby End?"

"Ah! Got you! . . . How does the innocent Dr. Charters happen to know that Spider Schlitz's place is the Witherby End, of the well-known racehorse owner and sportsman, Mr. Theophilus Webb?"

And, with a thoroughly ugly laugh, the madman picked up an ebony ruler and poked the unsmiling doctor in the ribs.

"Who said Mr. Theophilus Webb of Witherby End was Spider Schlitz of the old gang?" the madman repeated.

Slowly nodding his head, Dr. Charters tacitly admitted that the time had come to change his ground. Taking that gentleman's advice, he metaphorically put his cards on the table and his hands up.

"And why did you go after Spider Schlitz?" he asked again.

A twisted, cruel smile was the only reply.

"Well, who are you, anyway?" pursued the doctor.

"Still inquisitive! I'll tell you who I am, all in good time, Simon. Meantime I'll tell you what I am."

"I'm the most valuable and invaluable patient in your nursing-home. I'm the man you've got to take the

PAINTING WILL BE GIVEN TO CHURCH BY MISSIONARY BODY

The Methodist church will be presented with a beautiful painting next Sunday evening. Rev. Tom Brabham will give the evening service hour to the Womens Missionary society which is giving the picture to the church. A special service will be held for the unveiling.

Four months ago a committee of ladies from the W. M. S. called on Rev. D. D. McKimling, North Frost street, and contracted with him to paint a suitable picture for the church. He was given no script to follow but asked to paint a picture from imagination.

Now, after four months of study, dreaming, and painting, the beautiful picture has been completed and framed ready for presentation. There is a long story to the picture which Rev. McKimling will tell during the service next Sunday night. Songs will play an important part in the presentation. Rev. McKimling revealed yesterday.

The painting has been named the "Story of Life." It carries the utmost care of you've got to keep me very happy. Keep me from brooding on the past — your past, Soupy! And, above all, you've got to keep me safe from the long arm of the law; for, if they get me, how I shall speak and squawk and squeal, Simmy! And what a tale I shall have to tell!

"So you'll take the greatest care of me, won't you? And if anybody wants to know, I've been here for a week, in bed. I'm going to bed now, and I think I'll get up tomorrow and let everybody see how dotty — though harmless — I am."

MYSTERIOUS WAY

SYNOPSIS: The oddly familiar face of a man who confronts Dr. Charters in his consultation room and addresses him as "Half-hung Simon" stirs the doctor's memories. Charters, a medical graduate in England, a Christian and finally a gangster in America, has left Spider Schlitz and Chink Dawson in jail there and returned to England with their, as well as his own, shares of the St. Clair diamond bank. Now he is the proprietor of a fashionable evening home, one of his patients being witty Marjorie Lauderdale, who protests that the medicine of Dr. MacAdoo, on his staff, is making her worse. She declares that she was not ill until she moved to the home of her uncle, Mr. Lauderdale. Her aunt, whom Charters remembers as Miss "evil genius" of his American days, hands him a note and tells him that Marjorie's twenty-first birthday is September 1.

ASTYLE AND ALIBI

Within a couple of seconds of the intruder's question, "Well, and how are things going with Half-hung Simon?" Dr. Charters replied coolly.

"Is it possible that you are addressing me?"

"Possible, and in fact, certain, since there is nobody else in the room," answered the other.

"Then I have no option but to suppose you're mad," observed the Doctor coldly, his piercing eyes searching those of the newcomer, and failing to detect them.

"Right, Simon, first name, Mad on a hammer. And what fitter place or person, for a dangerous homicidal lunatic to come to?"

"How and what did you get in here?" asked Dr. Charters.

"Through that invitingly open window, a second ago, Simon."

"How did you get into the grounds?" pursued the doctor.

THE CRIME IN THE DUTCH GARDEN

SYNOPSIS: At the inquest into the death of Annabelle Querdling, murdered when a stone image is toppled on her in her garden, Superintendent Richmond and Jimmie Haswell, amateur detective, learn that the culprit had recently drawn up a will disinheriting her two nieces, Marjorie and Evelyn Blake, should they wed, and leaving a substantial legacy to a friend, Major Gresham. Marjorie and Dr. Netherton testify that Miss Querdling had made this same threat to them and that a few moments later she had found her aunt dead and had summoned her sister, Evelyn Blake, and her fiancé, Lionel Duckworth, who had been singing in the nearby house. The embarrassed major has apparently explained his presence near the murder scene and other witnesses have been heard. As the jurors deliberate Constable Roscoe rushes up and says that the strange man he had seen in a car near the house on the fatal night has reappeared.

Chapter 15
WAS IT VINCENT?

Superintendent Richmond's exclamation indicated that Roscoe's information was startlingly important.

"You mean the man who was out in front with the car?" he said with mounting interest. "Where is he?"

"He's just come," the constable said. "He's talking to the two sisters now."

The man he addressed moved nearer the hall door and looked in the direction he indicated. "Why, that's Vincent Blake!" exclaimed Miss Querdling's lawyer, Morgan.

Richmond was puzzled as he recalled that the girls had said he had not been near the place for months and that Ben Acres had sworn there had been no eelers. Were they lying, or had this visit been without their knowledge? In his perplexity the superintendent did not know whether to recall the jurors and examine Blake or let them complete their deliberations and declare their verdict, expect-a-son. If Blake had nothing to tell Richmond foresaw that he would look foolish to interrupt the proceedings. Likely the jurors would lay the crime to persons unknown, but suppose they declared the doctor or the chauffeur guilty—and this new witness had not been heard?

Roscoe told him he was certain Blake was the man he had seen cranking his car near the tradesman's gate. If that were so, Blake might have entered through Ben Acres seeing him. Using the side entrance, he could have worked through the shrubbery to the Dutch garden, thus avoiding the lodge, the garage and kitchen quarters, where the chauffeur and maids were on duty. Had Marjorie seen him? Did that account for her nervousness?

Before he could decide, the jurors were filing back into their box. He whispered to Roscoe to keep Blake near for questioning. The foreman was reading the verdict.

"We are unanimously agreed that Miss Annabelle Querdling was fully murdered. The evidence is at present inadequate to prove the guilt of the person or persons concerned."

The verdict did not quite follow the stereotyped form. Did the jury wish to hint that the persons were not unknown?

Jimmie Haswell took special note of Vincent Blake as Captain Stirling greeted him, his sisters and Duckworth, while Audrey, Nancy and Mr. Morgan joined the little group. His likeness to his sisters was not notable, since he was dark and they were fair and several years younger. But the broken bridge to his large nose suggested to Jimmie that Roscoe had correctly identified him.

Constable Roscoe pushed through the crowd and told Blake that the superintendent wished to speak with him. He seemed surprised and Stirling explained, "He's inquisitive. We all have to go through it."

Jimmie and Morgan followed the nephew into a small side room, where Richmond was waiting with an abrupt question. "Where were you on the night of Thursday last, when your aunt died?"

Taken aback, Blake looked uncomfortable, but answered, "In Bradford."

If Richmond was surprised by the nephew's immediate admission of presence in the neighborhood, he did not comment. "Where do you live?" he asked.

"In Wimbledon, just outside London."

"Why were you in Bradford that night?" asked the constable.

Blake looked at him. "I wanted to see my aunt," he said slowly.

"Did you see her?"

"No, she did not know that I had come."

Richmond regarded him sternly. "Do you mean to suggest that you came from London to Bradford, specially to see your aunt and went away without doing so?"

Vincent gave a weak sort of laugh. "It may sound odd, foolish perhaps, but it is true."

Morgan interposed that Vincent was not on good terms with his aunt and might explain why he had changed his mind. His tone was encouraging and Vincent appreciated it.

"We were not on bad terms," he said. "Recently a man I know gave me an option on some choice property between Wimbledon and Kingston. The price was reasonable and I decided to ask my aunt to finance me, take most of the profit, but she gave me a good start on my own account."

"What did she say?"

"I didn't see her. When I drove over from Bradford I found I'd left the plans behind. Then I figured that if I told her I'd come without the papers she'd call me a fool and refused to help me."

Morgan agreed, but Richmond continued, "Did you see your sisters?"

"No, if I'd seen anyone, my aunt would have inquired why I'd come and I would have had to explain my mistake. When I got back to Bradford, I concluded I'd started wrong. Knowing my aunt, I reflected it would be better to write first and show her the proposition was

WASHINGTON—Royalty is coming to Washington in April and Uncle Sam has his hands full to see that everything is executed according to protocol during the visit.

"According to protocol" is the diplomatic expression for making sure that the correct thing is done at the correct time and by the correct person. No more, no less.

The royal visitor this time is the King of Siam. Already the state department is scratching its head trying to find a solution to a difficulty attending His Majesty's visit. Here's the situation:

The king will land at Vancouver. From there he will proceed to the United States by rail. According to protocol, the minute he crosses the soil of the United States, the royal salute must be fired.

Where To Shoot

Just how this royal salute can be arranged is what worries the state department. The party will cross into the United States somewhere in North Dakota. The exact spot of crossing is a remote section of the state, removed from the necessary facilities for such a salute.

What is to be done? Shall a detachment of troops and a cannon be dispatched to the point where His Majesty first touches this country, to blaze away when he reaches the border, or shall the salute be delayed until he reaches Washington and be fired on the Union Station plaza?

That's what must be decided. However, those who must make the decision see no ray of hope. The king has asked that his reception be kept as informal as possible. Until he gets to Washington he will travel incognito, but then a king is a king and must be received according to protocol.

At any rate, the state department regards the situation as a matter of real concern, and will consider the question from every angle before a final decision is made.

Advanced Etiquette

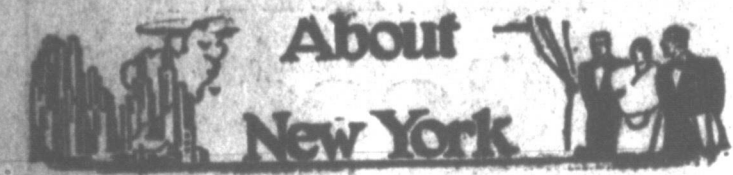

The average person might think it a matter of little consequence where the salute should be fired, or whether it is fired at all. But not official Washington.

The utmost care is taken on such questions. International feelings are quite sensitive. A slight—no matter how small—may have unpleasant or even disastrous results.

The most minute details are worked out beforehand, and executed with meticulous precision. The government employs experts for this very thing. Of course, not everything can be anticipated.

Familiar is the story of the recent visit of a South American president to Washington. He was placed in the private residence of a high government official during his stay. His valet was instructed that the president's every want was to be communicated to the state department. One morning the valet called and asked about having some suits pressed.

He was told to give them to the butler. Soon the butler was phoning the state department in a panic: "His excellency has sent 42 suits down to be pressed!" A tailoring establishment was hired for the day.

NEW YORK—New Yorkers are accused of being inhospitable.

"You New Yorkers are so inhospitable," a visitor says.

He means that when he landed for the first time in the Big Town he changed his shirt and telephoned dear old Bill, whom he knew out in Henpeck, Ill.

Gee, won't dear old Bill be surprised—and tickled to see somebody from the old home town. Probably invite him to lunch. Or put him up in his home.

He doesn't know that Bill has only one bed in his apartment, and that doubles for a divan by day.

Can't Be Bothered

That's the last Eddie hears from his old pal Bill. He asks at the hotel if there's any message for him when he comes in. There isn't any.

He waits around for Bill's call until it's way past the Henpeck supper hour. Then he goes out to dine at a mediocre restaurant, because he doesn't know a good one. He has to explore Broadway alone.

He's sure that Bill will call the next day. But Bill doesn't. Eddie probably is induced to see a poor show with a fellow convention delegate by a broker who is stuck with a rackful of tickets. Then maybe they are steered to a "gyp joint" by a taxi driver, who gets a commission on their outrageous check.

Finally, Eddie returns home, sore at New York. It's a bum place.

The one who disillusioned him is Bill, the home town boy. But all New York gets the blame.

Maybe the Eddies are right. New York does that to people who come here to live. Why it is, I can't exactly analyze. Not in this space.

Perhaps the Bills have formed new interests. They have become New Yorkers, even if that merely means they prefer to sit at home beside the radio.

Of course, some Bills are really glad to see the Eddies, and try to be adequate hosts. But that will have to wait for another column.

Meanwhile, New Yorkers are so inhospitable.

A group of physicians gave an annual art exhibition in New York recently. Did the admiring spectators open their mouths instinctively and say "Ah?"

Silver is said to be at its lowest value in years. This seems the right time to refine those clouds.

Jim and Betty Farley, Gray county club members, have the Pampa's hearty congratulations.

Jim and Betty prove that belonging to clubs and raising fine livestock pays in cool cash. They took four calves to Amarillo and returned from the Fat Stock show with $4,106 received from sale of 114 animals and from many cash prizes.

Children with such interests have wholesome things to employ their time and attention. They are learning how to make money and how to use it. The thrift instinct and the desire to produce wealth is their heritage. Happy is the boy with live, growing things to call his own. And the girls are just as busy when given the same opportunities. Many a farmer has had to congratulate son or daughter upon winning prizes he had long sought himself.

Gymnasium stunts viewed by the Lions club last week illustrated Pampa's first venture into such training for her boys and girls. The lads, of all sizes and shapes, went through their paces gamely. They showed themselves to be apt pupils of the gentle art of falling without injury and of controlling their movements gracefully. This work is much worthwhile, and should be a compulsory feature of school curricula.

Custodians of students' bodies as well as minds, the schools should give close attention to both. Over-emphasis upon athletics rarely exists where there is a physical education program affecting all pupils. Under-emphasis upon physical health has long been the rule in the American school system.

Texas has an ad valorem tax of 60 cents on the $100 valuation. Some legislators would remove this entirely. To do so abruptly and entirely would be dangerous. The tax is not large, compared with local and county levies. It serves as a check upon reckless public spending. It shows to each property owner a reflection of the financial policy concerning him. It is admittedly unequal, but no more so than proposed remedies.

Should this ad valorem tax be abolished, foreign property owners could hold their lands and buildings for speculative purposes indefinitely and without any levy upon them. Such speculation is already a widespread evil. The taxes it is proposed to substitute for the ad valorem tax include the sales tax, license tax, and other intangible taxes which would be difficult of collection and would, in many cases, be unjustly discriminatory. Passing the tax back would result for years and make necessary a complete revision of our commercial system. The ad valorem tax can be reduced, it is doubtful that it can be abolished. One proposed measure would place state levies at 40 per cent of actual valuation. The property tax makes like state income rather easily figured; the intangible levies would be extremely hard to predict, since earning capacity would be involved.

Before the ad valorem tax is abolished, a commission of expert economists and business men should work out a new system. The present one has its faults but remember that it has been working a long time and that to change it abruptly would play havoc with state affairs. Under it, ranch, farm, and similar property pays 60 cents on the $100. This may seem a burden in depressed times, but business men of the cities pay, on the average, $2.18 on their assessed valuations. To assume that business and industry, burdened by head, county, school, and state taxes, are less hard hit than the farmer is to assume, in many instances, an untruth.

"The columnist who says anything in favor of the opposite is not living up to the ideals of his profession,"—Borger Herald. Adds the Childless Index: "I have no criticism for the man who is honest enough to admit publicly that he is hen-pecked, for don't the good book say something about 'thou shalt not bear false witness'?"

"But I am surprised at the advice the Wasp gave our fellow columnist, Olin Hinkle, editor of the Pampa News-Post. Olin has just taken the fatal leap in the dayness and here's the advice the Wasp gives him: 'Let her know from the start you are the boss, you can't convince her but let her know it anyway. Make her cook from the beginning. Especially breakfast. Then you'll turn dumber at a heat-house. Don't let her talk back to you. Assert your authority. Be master of your household. Quarrel with her at the start, then she can't say later on, 'You're like you used to be.'"

"I think that's all wrong. If she cooks from the beginning, Hinkle's got to help her eat it, or he's in bad to begin with. If he does eat it, the chances are he'll have indigestion. And the idea of letting a woman talk back to you? She's a woman, ain't she, and ain't Hinkle a man?"

"The Tattler's advice is to show your love and affection on her. Tell her how pretty and sweet and perfectly adorable she is. Whatever she does is right, whether you like it or not. Then when the inevitable quarrel comes you can remind her of how good you were to her and possibly convince her that you had been driven to your present state."

WHAT OTHER EDITORS THINK

JOB INSURANCE

A great deal has been said of recent months about job insurance, the duty of industry and government to see to it that every workman is given the enjoyment of a ripe old age free of want and the helplessness of dependence.

The Saturday Evening Post took the question as the subject for an editorial in its issue of February 28, and handled the subject very well indeed. Speaking of governmental job insurance, the Post inquires "Just who on the government pay roll could be expected to take as much interest in our jobs and their future, and our well-being between jobs, as ourselves? Whom can we trust to provide for our old age and for our children as diligently and as faithfully as we are doing ourselves?"

The Post then answers these questions: "Most of us have a certain amount of job insurance even now, and no one to thank for it but ourselves. Already it runs into billions. It is in farms and homesteads, in savings banks, life-insurance policies, building and loan associations; in stocks, bonds, professional equipment, stocks of merchandise and interests in small businesses. Some of us are too young to have surrounded ourselves with such defenses against want; others, who are older, have tried and failed. Some lack job insurance as the result of ill health or incomplete training; others through shiftlessness and sheer incompetence; and a certain percentage of lame ducks we have always with us."

There isn't any argument about the need for job insurance of some kind; the only disagreement is over method. Unemployment, whether it reaches the proportions of the 1930 debacle, or is purely seasonal or occasional, constitutes a terrific drag on the nation's resources and productive capacity. But there is a sane view expressed by The Post, which concludes with this paragraph: "The outstanding national trait which has made America what it is today is self-reliance. It is to the wise and manful exercise of this trait that we must look for the most liberal and the most effective job insurance."—Abilene Reporter.

PREPARING

The Boy Scout motto "Be Prepared," is becoming the battle cry of their elders with the beginning of spring weather. The word spring to most people is synonymous with green and living life which in turn is best illustrated by flowers, shrubs and trees, and those who are preparing for summer have begun a semi-annual study of seed catalogs.

Shamrock is a town large enough for its citizens to realize the necessity for a beautiful exterior. First impressions always count for most, and tourists who carry that first glimpse with them to other towns are the ones who will either boost or ban your town. To travelers by train from either directions, Shamrock gives an unfavorable view, but it has every opportunity to impress those who come into town by any of the highways. Well-kept lawns, trees and flowers are the first things a tourist, tired from a day on the highway looks for, and if a city lacks that green life, he bans it as a place whose citizens are indifferent.

Shamrock has always had some of the best kept yards of a town its size in the Panhandle, but this year it must have still more for an unattractive lawn beside a beautiful one, looks worse than ever. Those who prepared last year for this spring have to wait only until their bulbs come up and trees and shrubs began to bud; the ones who waited until spring is almost here should begin a seed study now and get ready for summer blooming.—Shamrock Texan.

last to offer advice. That should be left for bachelors and maids and I'll admit right here, Olin, that if you follow the advice of either the Wasp or the Tattler, you'll get in bad, and the chances are good you will anyway.

"What's wrong?" he says to that Lyman Robbins of the Memphis Democrat will be the whole show with the girls at the Panhandle Press meeting this spring. Last summer Hinkle contended him for honors. "Just now Lyman's the only one who is 'in and forty and up attached." And Lyman's doubtless looking forward right now to entertaining the Panhandle Press song-bird at the next meeting. Olin, why did you do it?"

"Temporarily the Panman will light the gas and possibly dry a dish or two, occasionally," this column.

Answer in Wasp column, Borger Herald: "The old husbands will laugh at these words 'temporarily' and 'occasionally'."

TIPTOEING THROUGH THE JULEPS!

OF NEW BOOKS

NEW YORK—Underdogs of different sorts, with violent tales to be told, are heard from in a couple of recent books.

A former worker, Louis Adamic, has taken as his book's title "Dynamite," a weapon that symbolizes class violence in America.

A former German sailor, Theodor Plivier, describes the narrowing experience of his country's navy in "The Kaiser's Cooler."

Fighting Men

Plivier's story is a better picture of the common sailor's brutal life through the four years of the war.

A group of sailors were shanghaied for the German navy by the Hamburg police. They were like galley slaves, hungry and oppressed, until they turned in mutiny on their officers and finally hoisted the red flag of revolution.

The story is supposed to be the navy's counterpart of Erich Remarque's "All-Quiet," and there are scenes of horror. Men unable to open a bolted door die drowned, others are killed by the heat in gun turrets and a delicious shipwrecked sailor makes love to a floating mine until his caressing touch the detonator.

"Dynamite" is an equally bloody record of peace-time struggle between labor and capital, beginning with the killing of Pennsylvania mine bosses by the Molly Maguires in the 1870's.

The book figures prominently, as employed in the Haymarket riot of 1886, later by the I. W. W. and in the drama of the Meltemaras, down to the present-day racket.

Scattered throughout are first-hand narratives of fights on both sides, the employers' and the workers'.

Gas Bags and Fictives

The plight of submarine sailors under fire is described graphically by Commander Edward Ellsberg in a novel, "Egghoats," which gives fiction a credence to Plivier's account of naval stress.

Discipline is apt to blow up entirely when men are trapped on the bottom in a disabled submarine. At any rate, that is what happens in Ellsberg's novel.

The plot of a disgraced American commander, slipping as a petty officer to get revenge on the U-boat captain who brought about his ruin and finally emerging as a naval hero, is a rather ordinary fiction. But it serves to carry out terse scenes of attack and the feeling of being among cramped, cold men, trapped undersea by a pursuing enemy dropping deadly bombs.

In contrast with these various narratives, Margaret Goldsmith's biography "Zepplin" is less exciting, but nevertheless a stirring story of the count who developed the dirigible.

Count Zepplin came to this country, met President Lincoln and was allowed to accompany the United States in the civil war as an observer. A balloon ascension near St. Paul interested him in aircraft and he returned to Germany, but he found a patron in the King of Wurtemberg and tried to see his ships become prominent raiders in the world war.

WOMEN WILL RAGS

Two members of the Business and Professional Women's club of Sullivan, Pa., came in prominence through the elections last fall. Marie Ward Yaw, who in the spring primary won the nomination for county auditor over eight men, is now the auditing niece of Sullivan county, while Tullie C. Haines, who won out in the spring over four men, will go to the state legislature as representative from Sullivan county and will be the only woman member of the 1931 Indiana legislature. Miss Haines is a member of the legislative committee of the state federation. Sullivan is certainly to be congratulated on having such popular members on its roster.

CONGRATULATIONS TO B. & P. W. CLUB

Today the NEWS-POST is privileged to present many facts concerning the Pampa Business and Professional Women's club, with data concerning the big style show to be held under the club's direction Wednesday.

The NEWS-POST is always glad to be of service to the clubs of Pampa, and it has never worked with a more capable and willing group than that which participated in this issue. Congratulations are extended to the business women of Pampa.

The Business and Professional Women's club ranks with Lions, Kiwanis, Rotary and other civic clubs in its scope and in the work it is doing. It is organized along similar lines, and has a well defined program. It is an international organization, with ramifications in the leading countries.

The club typifies the NEW WOMAN of this age—a woman as capable in most lines of endeavor as man. Woman's place in business is well established, and it is no longer an accepted assumption that this place is only behind a counter or typewriter. Women are, in many executive positions, where they are using their natural talent for details while submerging the non-essential part of their complex feminine characteristics. It is now fully recognized that charm is no detriment in business nor yet an essential to success. Personality and ability determine women's success just as they do that of man.

Women's place in the professions and in business often seems to be rightly filled only by themselves. In certain lines of merchandising, women are essential, and many a board of directors seeks "the women's angle" from a valued female associate. With women doing more than half of the nation's purchasing, it is important that their ideas be considered by manufacturers at all times.

Women's clubs face the same problems that men's organizations do, such as raising professional standards, business ethics, cultural interests, voting instincts, and the like.

Pampa is indeed fortunate to have a large, active body dedicated to the betterment of her business and professional women.

ABOUT HOME PRINTING

Country newspaper men usually take pride in not soliciting printing orders from other towns, but evidently the hard times is affecting some of them as a local business man handed us a letter this week from a neighboring town soliciting letterheads and envelopes on price basis. This is from a firm that The News editor has had occasion to befriend in the past, in turning down printing that rightfully belonged to them. Of course there is no law against soliciting work wherever one pleases, but dealing with printing peddlers does not add anything to a town's growth and does not help the business man in the long run, as better service can always be given by the home printer. This statement will apply to out-of-town orders of any kind. There are very few cases where one cannot get better service of the home merchant—certainly none where merchants are progressive—and very few of any other kind are able to survive long in any town.—McLennan News.

PUT AD IN NEWSPAPER

Put your ad in the newspaper. Not on a bill board. The old bill board method is out of date. In the good old days of horse and buggy travel, people had time to see the ad on the bill board. Now cars go so fast that nobody sees the ad on the board. In fact, the board is not even seen. When the ox team meandered along the road the ad was read because the time of passing the sign was slow and the ad was visible to the eye. But in this day of cars and airplanes, the speed is so great that road signs are never seen. But the newspaper is read in the home, and the ads are bill boards on paper that attract attention and bring results. The story is told of a merchant who got so used to looking at his bill board by the side of the road that he whizzed past in his car week after week and did not know that the wind had blown the board down until a sign painter wanted the job of putting a new one up. Then the merchant thought that was a poor way to advertise and patronized the newspaper.—Higgins News.

Are You Overlooking Anything?

It is embarrassing for a merchant to have to refuse anyone credit . . . to require cash payment for every purchase. It should be more embarrassing to the applicant for a charge account to realize that his promise to pay cannot be trusted by his fellow townsmen.

Tuesday Is The 10th

There would be much fewer instances of refusal of credit if those who enjoy charge account privileges would understand that such a privilege incurs an obligation no less binding than a promissory note at the bank. It is seldom that a merchant actually takes legal steps to secure the amount owed him. It is often difficult for him to make certain that there are no extenuating circumstances . . . and he has his customer's good-will to consider.

Tuesday Is The 10th

It is therefore all the more important for a "charge customer" to live up to the trust placed in him by the merchant, to fulfill his estimate of good character and trustworthiness by paying bills on the date specified . . . usually the tenth of the month.

EDUCATOR SHOWS HOW OPPORTUNITIES ABOUND

Worship of business is the keynote of the age. The business woman, as well as the business man, shares in this general adoration. Whether rightly or not, the woman who is able to conduct a business of her own, to be a manager, or a saleswoman in the world of business, seems to have larger influence and more direct appeal than the woman in the home. This increase in power and prestige brings with it increase in responsibility as well.

The modern business woman is not loath to assume this responsibility—to take advantage of the countless opportunities which come her way to raise the general standard of culture. In the field of education she has become a potent factor. Always the friend of children, women have from time immemorial insisted on the rights of youth. Now in the business world they have increased opportunity to impress upon business men that money best spent is money which goes for the support of the public schools and colleges of the nation. The business man of today is apt to forget that education, by raising the standard of living, is a creator of business. It is the duty and the privilege of the business woman to remind him of this fact, and to impress it indelibly upon his mind.

Indeed, the ways are innumerable in which the business woman may convince her associates that education is the foundation stone of American business. If she is in an insurance office, she may broadcast the fact that the basis of the insurance business is the intelligence of the people. If she deals in real estate, she may say with truth that love for music and art will create a demand for the very thing her company has for sale. If her work is in real estate, it is easy for her to prove that schools, churches, and social service in any particular community are directly related to the real estate values in that community.

Above all, possessing that personality and culture which come from educational advantages, the business

WOMEN ARE URGED TO PAY POLL TAX

By MARY MAUDE POMEROY
For so many years woman was denied her citizenship rights that she lived surrounded as it were by thousands of cobwebs. But as years rolled by, one by one she broke through these webs until she finally stepped forth in the full light of her freedom.

The brilliance of this light for a time dazzled her. Then she was inspired with a desire to grasp her opportunities with a tremendous determination to succeed. In this determination, however, in many instances she failed to realize that with opportunity comes responsibility.

If woman is to take her place in making the world a better place in which to live and to work, she must take her rightful place first in exercising her right to help govern and make laws for her country. (In Texas, to do this she must pay a small poll tax.) No woman is living up to her high type of citizenship until she exercises her right to vote on all the issues affecting municipal, state and national government. No woman is living up to her loyalty woman should be in herself an example of what education can do for the world through business. In the last analysis, the personal exemplification of any great principle is its most lasting and effective expression.

EVENTFUL TWO YEARS ARE ENJOYED BY LOCAL B. & P. W. GROUP

PURPOSE AND AIMS OF CLUB ARE DESCRIBED

BUSINESS AND SOCIAL MEETINGS ARE HELD

Formation of the Pampa Business and Professional Women's club took place on April 23, 1929, at the home of Mrs. P. C. Mitchell with Mrs. Ercell Middaugh, president of the Amarillo club, and three other members of her unit assisting in the organization.

The club was organized for a period up to July 1, when the new year begins for the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs. Mrs. Elms Jordan was elected chairman and Miss Alta Lagow, temporary secretary. Mrs. Neva Schmeizer, Mrs. Florence Way and Mrs. Ralph Butterfield, were appointed to submit a constitution at the next meeting.

Officers Named
Organization of the club was completed on April 30, 1929, with 36 charter members. A charter and by-laws were adopted and election of officers was held. Mrs. Grace Higgins was elected president; Mrs. Bobbie Butterfield, vice-president; Miss Alta Lagow, secretary; Miss Mable Davis, treasurer; Mrs. Elms Jordan, parliamentarian and corresponding secretary.

A constitution which incorporated much of the constitution of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs was presented by Mrs. Butterfield. Its adoption was the first step toward federation with the state and national organizations.

Object Stated
Several salient points of the new constitution and by-laws adopted were:

Art. 2—(Object) Shall be to promote the interest of business and professional women; to secure combined action by them; to stimulate local organization and cooperation among the business and professional women.

Art. 3—The policy of this club shall be non-partisan; non-sectarian; self governing and self supporting.

Art. 4—Provides for three types of members—active, associate, and honorary. The clause on active membership is as follows: Only women who are actively and primarily engaged in a profession or in the management or pursuit of a business, or who are fulfilling public or private positions under salary, shall be received as active members.

Art. 7—The club shall be governed by board of directors composed of the executive officers and the chairman of the standing committees.

The by-laws provides for two meetings each month—one business and one social.

In May the council of clubs including the B. and P. W. club to affiliate with its organization and Miss Dabney Davis, Miss Wilhelmina Cole and Mrs. Grace Higgins were elected to serve as council representatives.

Since organization the club has worked with all of the civic and service clubs of the city and has made donations to the Salvation Army, Library association, Federated clubs, Community Chest, and etc.

The national federation is planning to build a building in Washington as their national headquarters and the local club has also donated to this fund.

One of Pampa's prominent citizens donated a lot to be used as a building site for a clubhouse and 25 per cent of all proceeds made by the club goes into our building fund except special benefit affairs. A piano already has been bought.

The club sent delegates to three conventions. Miss Mable Davis and Mrs. Grace Higgins were delegates to the district conference at Childress April, 1929; Mrs. Mable Cole, Lillian McNutt, Miss Noel Thompson, and Miss Bertha Chisum were delegates to the state convention at Harlingen in June, 1929; Miss Gladys Payne went to south central regional conference at Hot Springs, Ark., in October, 1930. The state convention this year will be held in Amarillo in May and local members are making plans to entertain the delegates here during that time.

At the present time completing plans to sponsor a club known as the Boknot club which is composed of sixth and seventh grade girls and is a companion club to the Rotary Knothole club for boys, which is being sponsored by the Rotarians.

Public relations banquet was held Feb. 24 for the purpose of getting acquainted with the other civic and service clubs of the city. Outstanding Pampans in practically every field of activity were our guests for this affair.

Following is the club collect:

Let us be done with fault-finding and leave off self-seeking.

May we put away all pretense and meet each other face to face without self-pity and without self-prejudice.

May we never be hasty in judgment and always generous.

Let us take time for all things; Make us to grow calm, serene, gentle.

Teach us to put into action our better impulses, straightforward, unafraid.

Grant that we may realize it is the little things that create differences.

That in the big things of life we are as one.

And may we strive to touch and to know the great, common woman's heart of us all.

Oh, Lord God, let us not forget to be kind.

Let us be large in thought, in word, in deed.

one of the most interesting spots their achievements. I felt that we saw. The old fighting school legs were so interesting. I could spend hours telling of its interesting places, but we were all quite interested in the beer garden about which the scenes in the Student Prince were laid and the fighting schools where the original prince fought his duels.

Saw Fashion Play

We went to Abernethy where we saw the wonderful fashion play. It was starting to be met at the train by members of the cast with their long hair and short trousers. Imagine David or John meeting you at the train and carrying your baggage. Though it was cold and raining, we sat all day enraptured with the wonderful acting, the beautiful costumes, the glorious music, and the large number participating in the play. At one time there were 400 people on the stage and in their tableaux they used sheep and dogs who were as good actors as the people. The coloring was beautiful, just like you see in the colored glasses in churches. When it was all over we were loath to leave.

If there was ever a woman's paradise for shopping it is Florence, and if you go abroad do not spend all your money in Paris, save most of it for Florence. I have never seen such beautiful things, and rushed madly from shop to shop when we were not sightseeing. We visited the Uffizi art gallery which is almost as wonderful as the Louvre in Paris. I cannot begin to tell you of the wonderful paintings and statues we saw in the Louvre, but of course you know Venus de Milo is there also Mona Lisa and paintings too numerous to mention.

In Rome we were also showered with attentions. There is a federated club in Italy composed of the most active clubs outside the United States.

Attended Reception

There was a reception for us at one of the Fascist club rooms, attended by both women and men, which was most interesting. Very few of the hosts spoke English, especially the men, but we got along very nicely. One of them gave me a rose and his card. They served wines, teas, lovely cakes, and ice. The speeches were translated. We were also guests of Mrs. Garritt, wife of the American ambassador to Italy.

We were quite impressed with Rome and to me it was the most interesting city of the trip. The catacombs, the Appian way, the Coliseum, the Forum, the memorial built to Emanuel II, and other interesting places too numerous to mention, including the beautiful St. Peter's, the Vatican.

We also visited beautiful Lugano with its lovely blue lake and Lucerne, the most beautiful city of the trip. I sat and dreamed by the side of the beautiful lake at Lucerne and if I could go back to Switzerland and enjoy its beauties again I would count it my greatest joy.

We visited Cannes, Nice, and Monte Carlo and saw the beautiful Mediterranean. Words can never describe the wonderful blue of the Mediterranean and the beauties of the cities on its shores.

national conference at Geneva. We had delegates from 15 countries. Our own Lena Madsen Phillips, one of the dearest women I have ever met, was elected president of the international federation, which was formed while we were in Geneva. The Indian woman with her white turban and the flowing white robes, the Chinese woman in her quaint costume and the other representatives all made talks.

Most of the representatives stayed at the Carlton Park hotel. How lovely it was to have our meals served on a piazza overlooking the beautiful Geneva, with the stately Alps and the snow capped Mont Blanc in the distance. There we mingled with the clever women from the various countries and discussed our problems together. I was most impressed with the quiet, serene, and most capable Madame Both of Berlin.

Our primary object in forming the international federation is to promote peace among all nations and as we sat there that evening we all prayed that nothing would ever make us enemies but that we would always love and cherish all of our sisters.

Congratulations to the Business & Professional Women of Pampa

MARGARET INGALS IS ONE OF FEW WOMEN ENGINEERS—HAS WON BRILLIANT DISTINCTION

SHE POINTS OUT WAY TO OTHERS WHO ARE AMBITIOUS

Mechanical engineers of the feminine gender are few and far between in the United States, but Margaret Ingals is one of them. And one that holds a unique distinction as the first of her sex to win recognition in the engineering field as an authority on air-conditioning.

She doesn't look like an engineer—this slim, quiet little person with fluffy curls crimping rebelliously around her head. She looks more like a school girl as she sits and swings trim beige and brown pumps which barely touch the floor when she sits well back in a big desk chair.

She doesn't like to talk about herself, either. "It really just happened, for no special reason," her soft southern voice explains modestly when you ask how she attained her present authoritative position in her chosen profession.

Pressed for further details as to the reasons for her choice of engineering as a career, she will tell you that from the time she was a little girl in Lexington, Ky., she always "liked houses."

"I used to say that when I grew up I was going to be an architect, but when it came time for college, they didn't teach architecture there. So I took mechanical engineering instead as being the next thing to it."

Then I got my M. E. and after that, one thing just led to another, as things do.

The Carrier Engineering corporation, which installed the air-conditioning system in the capitol at Washington and many other large buildings, such as theatres, department stores, and various industrial plants. More recently, as research engineer with the New York Commission on Ventilation, she spent the two years from 1927 to 1929 in Syracuse, N. Y., where she carried on extensive field studies on the effect of indoor atmospheric conditions on the health of children in the public schools of that city.

Weather conditions will be literally "made to order" in the dwellings of the future, Miss Ingals predicts. She bases her belief on the rapidly growing recognition of the importance of proper air conditions as a health factor.

An enthusiastic advocate of professional work for women, Miss Ingals emphasizes the fact that education and experience should be concentrated on a definite end. To have one specialized interest and consistently to perfect one's self in it, she considers the most valuable asset for success.

In her opinion, an increasing number of women will enter the engineering field with an increasing realization of the opportunities it offers, not to supplant men but to complement them in those matters of community interest in which feminine aptitudes and interests find natural scope.

Services are being held each Friday evening during Lent at the Holy Souls church. On last Friday, the sermon subject was "The Extremes of the Church."

In addition to the sermon, stations of the cross and benediction are held at each service.

SLEEP FACTS

Sleep, apparently a periodic phase in the life of all living things, has been subjected to many studies and interesting facts bearing upon it have been revealed.

Sleep varies in depth. A normal

WATCH WILDCAT

LONGVIEW, Mar. 6. (AP)—Despite a heavy downpour of rain and increasingly cold weather, drifting crews on the Mamie Hammock-Hamby No. 1 well near here redoubled their efforts tonight to obtain another core from the closely watched wildcat.

Quest for the Woodbine sand, believed to be approximately 10 feet lower than the depth announced yesterday, 3,542 feet, has been claiming the interest of the East Texas oil fraternity since the outcome of the test will largely determine the boundary lines of the field westward of the Lathrop and Fisher areas.

perch falling asleep usually reaches the greatest depth in the first hour. Subsequently the soundness of his sleep will decline until he awakes.

In the light sleeper the maximum depth is reached more slowly. There is some experimental evidence showing that a person retiring after midnight reaches the maximum depth of sleep more slowly than one who retires earlier.

Children, according to Czerny, have two periods of profound sleep, the first reached during the first or second hour, the second during the seventh hour.

Among adults there appear to be two types of sleepers, evening and morning. In the evening type the greatest depth of sleep is quickly reached. This type of person usually awakes fresh and energetic.

The morning type of sleeper reaches the maximum depth later and is said to do his best work in the evening.

The consequences of prolonged periods of ordinary sleeplessness are considered by many to be disastrous.

While the victim, in doubt, suffers a great deal, his sufferings are of a subjective type and none of the disastrous results which the layman commonly fears has been experienced clinically.

Scientists experimenting upon themselves have gone without sleep for as many as 115 consecutive hours. Their subjective suffering was great but constitutionally they suffered little.

Not only did they survive these periods of sleeplessness intact, but recovered rapidly after an appropriate number of hours of sleep.
