Hostage release imminent, State Department: Nonsense!

The Associated Press

Iran's government radio said today a "just method" for releasing the 52 American hostages had been worked out, and a Swedish jetliner reportedly was put on standby for a flight to Tehran. But U.S. officials again cautioned against undue optimism over a possible end to the hostage crisis.

One State Department official in Washington called reports of an imminent breakthrough "nonsense."

President Carter, asked in Columbia, S.C., whether the captive Americans would be released soon, replied: "I hope so. I can't predict anything. I don't have any information leading to a time schedule."

The surprise broadcast by Tehran radio gave no detail of the reported method for resolving the crisis, nor did it attribute the statement to any Iranian official. But it appeared to be a reference to still-secret conditions for the Americans' release proposed by a special commission of the Iranian Parliament.

The broadcast seemed to be an attempt by some in power to help pave the way for the hostage release and to pressure hard liners within the Iranian Parliament who have blocked efforts to end the crisis.

The radio statement said Iran had already been "victorious" over the United States in the hostage confrontation, and said release of the Americans would be neither "unjust" nor "cowardly."

Iran's revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini has given the Parliament responsibility for the deciding the fate of the hostages, who today spent their 363rd day in captivity. But after three days of bitter debate behind closed doors, the hard-liners Thursday boycotted an open session of Parliament that was to have considered the commission's conditions for the hostages' release.

The session was postponed until Sunday because the boycott by 66 of the 228 deputies left the Parliament 17 members short of a quorum.

The hard-liners said they did not want any action on the hostages until after the U.S. elections and did not want to help Carter.

Knowledgeable sources in Tehran expressed some doubt today that the Parliament would discuss the hostage issue as scheduled Sunday.

Khomeini presumably could end the parliamentary impasse by instructing all deputies to attend the session.

In Stockholm, Sweden, officials of the airline Scanair said a 199-seat DC-8 airliner was on standby at the city's airport, possibly for a flight to Tehran on two hours' notice to take out the hostages. Scanair is a subsidiary of SAS, Scandinavian Airline System.

Scanair Managing Director George Olsson said a jet had been on standby since the beginning of this week for a flight to Tehran and back "to somewhere in Germany." U.S. contingency plans are believed to call for a stopover in West Germany by the released hostages.

"A broker in London contacted us last Friday (about the standby flight), but as usual in such cases we know nothing at this stage about who the client is," Olsson told The Associated Press.

In Washington, State Department spokesman John H. Trattner said the reports of the airplane arrangements were "rumors to us so far."

George Havens, a spokesman for the department's Iran Working Group, said said the United States is hoping that the Iranian Parliament will make a favorable decision Sunday on release of the hostages.

Three days of Parliament debate on the hostages ended in sharp disagreement Wednesday and a public session scheduled for Thursday was postponed because recalcitrant deputies staged a boycott and prevented a quorum. They said they did not want any action on the hostages until after the U.S. presidential elections and did not want to help President Carter.

Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai, in a separate statement, said Iran was not prepared to "accept becoming servants of the U.S.A." to obtain spare military parts it claims the Carter administration owes it.

"The spare parts which the arch Satan owes us we will drag out of his throat," he told a cheering crowd attending Friday prayers at Tehran University. Iran is believed to be in need of parts for the old U.S. military equipment it is using in its war with Iraq.

Tehran Radio did not describe the "just method" for a hostage release nor did it attribute the statement to any Iranian official. But it appeared to be a reference to conditions for the Americans' release proposed by a special commission planning to make its report to Parliament, the Majlis, if the assembly discusses the hostage issue at a meeting scheduled Sunday.

"The release of the spy hostages should not be interpreted as an unjust act, since they have spent a year of punishment under the peoples' control."

"Neither is their release as human beings a cowardly act if the aim behind this release is to bring the tyrannical USA to trial for its misdeeds against Iran over the past 30 years."

"Thus, from Iran's viewpoint, their release is the way to expose the long criminal history of the USA...." the radio commentary said.

It added: "If we thoroughly study the objectives underlying these demands we find that they relate to two points...they are Islamic objectives...and the seizure of the spy hostages was a bold human act by the heroic Iranian people."

Meanwhile, there were increasing doubts that Parliament will discuss the hostages as scheduled on Sunday following postponement of the first public session on the captives Thursday by hardliners.

Sixty-six of the 228 deputies boycotted the planned public debate Thursday — or 17 less than a quorum — claiming any move to free the 52 Americans would only help to re-elect President Carter on Tuesday, the first anniversary of the hostages' capture.

LONDON (AP) — Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr will hold a news conference Saturday to be broadcast on radio and television, Tehran radio said today. There was speculation the news conference might be connected with an earlier radio announcement that Iran has drafted a "just method" for release of the 52 American hostages.

A presidential press adviser requested all Iranian and foreign correspondents to report to his office at 11 a.m. (2:30 a.m. EST) Saturday to be issued with special passes for the conference, according to the radio broadcast, monitored here.

'Screaming Wells' - a habitat for goblins?

By VALERIE SWINDLE

Take any dirt road off a highway, and the scene may be similar. A dull-colored landscape dotted with here and there a few trees. A dusty trail flows behind the vehicle, and the bridge clatters as the car passes over it. In the distance is the riverbed, and farther away still is an abandoned oil refinery station.

At night with a full moon, the landscape is lighted in luminescent shades accented by eerie shadows on the hillsides. In the still of the night with the engine shut off, the only sounds are cattle lowing and an occasional coyote howling.

But one particular road will lead to a place that fits the above description with only one addition to the sounds: "the screaming wells."

Just the feel of the air can send cold chills racing through your body. There is no doubt that the place is scary, but on Halloween night, there are added bizarre sensations in the aura created by the screaming wells on a cold, crisp night. The intermittent silences echo through minds like winds through a canyon, bouncing from one scene of horror to another.

In the far distance, the devil worshippers can be heard possibly making sacrifices in the depths of the autumn evening.

Maybe the chants of the witch can be snatched from hanged another curious trespasser from one of the only trees in the area, which stands ready, a limp noose hanging from its limbs.

In the dim moonlight, with the sky a ultralucous black-blue, stars twinkle in distrust of the night and offer warnings whispered too softly to be heard over the silence.

Looking across the landscape unleashes the part of man that lets him become a prisoner of his own devices. Fantasies become nightmares; cheap thrills become dangerous exploits into the world of the unknown. At the "wells" there is no place to hide, nowhere to run, no one to change the rules of the game. It's impossible to tell where reality begins when a gunshot pierces the silence and echoes through the crevices of both the earth and the soul.

Where does reality end and legend begin? Until the legends enter one's memories on running footsteps of horror, reality is only a state of mind.

the air over the soft breezes as she scorns those who burned her house out of fear. The laughter induces terror in the hearts of many as it shatters the clear night with notes of revenge.

Scandinavian jetliner on standby

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — A Scandinavian DC-8 199-seat airliner is on standby to possibly fly the American hostages out of Tehran on two-hour notice, Scanair officials said today.

The officials of Scanair, a subsidiary of Scandinavian Airline System (SAS), told reporters an unidentified company in London, acting on behalf of an undisclosed client, asked Scanair to provide a craft for a flight to Tehran.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Erik Pierre said the foreign ministry had been notified by Scanair of the matter but denied reports the ministry had announced an airliner had been made available.

Foreign Minister Ola Ullsten, in a separate phone call to The Associated Press, said "the foreign ministry is not involved in this case."

In Washington, the State Department declined to comment on the report.

"We are pretty sure several other airlines (in the world) have also been contacted," the Swedish foreign ministry chief press spokesman said.

"We have offered a price and we are now awaiting a reply," Scanair managing director Georg Olsson was quoted as saying by the Dagens Nyheter morning newspaper.

"Although there may be competition on this assignment we deem our chances of getting it very high since Sweden is a neutral country," he said according to Dagens Nyheter.

Olsson was quoted as saying no word was given by the London agent on the destination of the plane after possibly picking up the 52 hostages in Iran, held since the seizing of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran Nov. 4 last year.

He said the plane, on standby for the past two days with a crew at Arlanda, 29 miles north of here, could take off with a two-hour notice, according to the newspaper.

He was quoted as saying "our plane is fitted for extra long-range flights and we could in principle fly wherever the client wishes."

"The only hint given to us is that it will not be Frankfurt," he added according to Dagens Nyheter.

Olsson was quoted as saying a London agent asked Scanair last Friday to provide an offer for a Tehran-bound flight.

"We still do not know who asked the London agent to ask us," he said in the interview, apparently conducted Thursday.

Scanair officials were not immediately available for further details Friday.

"We are absolutely sure that other airlines also get this proposal of providing an offer," Olsson was quoted as saying by the newspaper.

STUDENTS TO CHOOSE PRESIDENT. Tracy Lee, left, and Ronnie Ledbetter construct a voting booth at Pampa High School in preparation for a mock election at the high school today, patterned after Tuesday's national election. Students will go to the polls today to vote on their choice of a president and other elected officials. Also participating in mock elections today are students at Pampa Middle School.

Schools conduct elections

Students at Pampa High School and Pampa Middle School are participating in a mock election today.

The purpose of the elections is to involve students in the governmental system.

Procedures include registration and absentee voting. Voters use booths, and the ballots are actual sample ballots, provided by Gray County Clerk Wanda Carter. At the high school, the Social Studies Department is sponsoring the election and made copies of the sample ballots.

Members of the Key Club manned the voting booths, and the Art Department provided posters about registration and voting in Pampa High School.

Out of the 1,181 students at PHS, 48 percent registered to vote. Broken down by class, 44 percent of freshman registered, 34 percent of the sophomores, 60 percent of the juniors, and 57 percent of the seniors were registered.

Students will vote for certain candidates for a variety of reasons.

"Anderson, He's the lesser of three evils," one senior said. Another voter said she would vote a straight party ticket for Republicans in both elections because she didn't like what the Democrats stood for politically.

County officials get 15 percent salary increase

Gray County Commissioners today approved a motion to increase salaries of all Gray County elected officials by 15 percent.

Employees of elected officials will also receive pay raises. The employee raises will, however, not be "across the board" increases. Employee raises are to be based upon performance, with the elected official making the decision as to how much each employee will receive.

Commissioners were quick to explain that Gray County was not kept up with increasing salaries and needs to at least attempt to equal the current accepted pay scale.

"The 15 percent raise will add approximately $200,000 to the 1981 county budget," Judge Carl Kennedy said.

"We are competing for good employees just as business is," Kennedy said.

Commissioners noted the recent loss of employees including road workers from almost every precinct, the county clerk's office and other courthouse offices.

"Information was also recently released concerning the loss of several officers from the city police department. We are concerned, and we do not want to see an exodus from our Sheriff's Department," Kennedy said.

"We have all campaigned for law and order," Kennedy said, "and we as elected officials must see to it that our law enforcement department is in good condition."

Final approval of the 1981 budget will come from commissioners in the Nov. 14 regular meeting.

A draft from the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission (PRPC) concerning a Rural Rail Transportation District was discussed by the court. Commissioners took no action on the draft, and the item will be again placed on the agenda, when further information is available.

According to the draft, the PRPC is interested in purchasing some of the Rock Island rail lines, such as the line from Ft. Worth to Denver. The PRPC would hire qualified professionals to operate the lines.

To make the purchase and operation legal, the Texas State Legislature must pass a bill favoring the transaction. PRPC is working to get support for such a bill.

The Rural Rail Transportation draft reported that the district will have no authority to levy taxes but can issue bonds and notes. The Board of the Transportation District will have one representative from each participating county.

The PRPC is working to receive any federal funds that may be available to make the rail line purchase.

In other action, the court approved assistant election judges Jeff Anderson for Precinct 11 and Sarah Carmichael for Precinct 14.

United Way at 68 percent

Pampa United Way chalked up 68 percent of its 1980 goal of $193,900 at Thursday's report meeting at the Citizen's Bank and Trust Company and extended the final report until Thursday, Nov. 6.

With many contacts to complete, campaign leadership urged all volunteers to wind up their accounts in the four days of campaigning left. To date, $132,065 has been pledged in the four divisions of the drive.

The Major Gifts Division, under the leadership of Luther Robinson, has already raised $55,919 in the campaign, which is 70 percent of the goal.

The Employee Gifts Unit, headed up by Louise Fletcher, has attained a total of $47,549 for 65 percent of their quota.

Small businesses and residential donors have subscribed $8,408 on their goal of $11,504, a percentage of 73 percent. Many calls are still to be made in this geographic solicitation, according to Reed Echols.

A major "blitz" in contacting prospects in the Special Division is headed by Gary Stevens as the drive enters the last four days.

United Way headquarters at City Hall will remain open all week from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. to receive contributions. If anyone wishes, their donations will be picked up.

All workers will be bending their efforts to wind up the drive by Thursday and when all the cards are in, it is anticipated that another victory celebration can be realized at 4 p.m. Thursday at the board room of Citizen's Bank and Trust Company.

Telephone outage under repair

Southwestern Bell Telephone spokesman David Ortiz said early today service outage to residential customers in the South Cuyler residential area was due to a broken pole.

Service to the area was interrupted some time during Thursday night when a pole supporting two hundred pairs snapped.

The telephone company official said crews were working to restore service early today.

The repair would be completed around 6 p.m. today, according to a company projection.

CLEAR

Weather

The forecast calls for clear conditions through Saturday with a warming trend. The high for today will be in the upper 70s with overnight temperatures in the lower 80s. The high for Saturday will be in the low 80s. Winds will be 10-15 mph today and Saturday.

Court news

Municipal Judge Phil Vanderpool heard 23 misdemeanor cases during Pampa Municipal Court proceedings in city hall Thursday, including eight criminal charges of public intoxication, disorderly conduct, and simple assault and 15 traffic violations.

Seven violators forfeited bond by not appearing at their hearings, Judge Vanderpool said.

Two persons were found not guilty by the jury, one on a traffic violation and one charged with public intoxication. A third party was found not guilty by Judge Vanderpool.

One person pleaded guilty to public intoxication and was fined $103.50 by the court. The jury found another guilty of a traffic violation and fined the person $1 plus court costs.

Seven cases were set to be continued at a later date.

Only 10 prospective jurors of the 30 called showed for jury duty Thursday, Vanderpool said. Because of the small turnout the city prosecutor had to waive two strikes and the cases were heard by only 10 jurors, he said.

The next municipal court hearing is set for Nov. 13 at 9 a.m. in the city court room of city hall.

Texas weather

Forecasters today predicted a weekend of beautiful football weather for Texas, as temperatures warmed and clear skies prevailed across the state.

It was still frosty in the west. Marfa had the early morning low of 27 degrees, and on the other side of the state, Longview was a brisk 31. Readings around the rest of Texas were mostly in the high 30s and lower 40s.

The dry, cool weather is expected to continue, as the large high pressure system covering the state remains stationary. The system is expected to warm slowly over the next few days.

Texas forecasts

North Texas: Mostly clear and warmer tonight and Saturday. Lows tonight in the 40s. Highs Saturday 74 to 82.

South Texas: Sunny and a little warmer Saturday. Clear and cold tonight. Lows tonight low 50s along the coast to mid 30s Hill Country. Highs Saturday near 70 along the coast to near 80 northwest.

West Texas: Clear through Saturday with a warming trend. Lows tonight in the 40s except low 30s mountains. Highs Saturday mostly in the low 80s.

Coastal Marine: A surface ridge of high pressure over the Texas coastal waters will weaken slowly through Friday.

Port Arthur to Port O'Connor out 50 miles: Northeasterly winds 5 to 10 knots tonight becoming southeasterly 5 to 10 knots Saturday. Seas 2 to 3 feet tonight. Fair weather.

Port O'Connor to Brownsville out 50 miles: Northerly winds 5 to 10 knots tonight becoming southeasterly near 10 knots Saturday. Seas 2 to 3 feet tonight. Fair weather.

Extended

Sunday Through Tuesday

North Texas: Fair skies and little change in day-to-day temperatures. Highest temperatures in the 60s and lows in the 40s.

South Texas: Partly cloudy with mild days and cool nights. Highs in the 70s north to low 80s south. Lows in the 50s north to 60s south.

West Texas: Fair with warm afternoons and cool at night except not as warm north Tuesday. Highs upper 70s north to mid 80s southwest except dipping to near 70 upper Panhandle Tuesday. Lows lower 40s north to mid 50s south.

Fear dampens Halloween fun from coast to coast in U.S.

Associated Press Writer

In cities stalked by a rapist or a killer, Halloween is no treat. It's a night officials in crime-troubled cities like Atlanta or Miami would rather forgo, and even towns like Fife, Wash., or Amherst, Mass., aren't immune.

"We can't go trick or treating because of that man that's hurting people," said 6-year-old Trisha Ann Rose of Fife, "because of the raper."

In other places — Detroit, for one — police are readying metal detectors to check candy, cookies and treats for metal, pins, razors or other suspicious objects.

Halloween 1980 also saw an end to a 40-year tradition in San Francisco — there will be no children's party because thousands of anti-gay rowdies and vandals broke up the festival last year in the predominantly gay Castro district.

"There were 30,000 people jammed into those two blocks," recalled store owner Ernest Asten. "It was certainly no place for kids."

Witches will gather for a party in Salem, Mass., site of the 17th Century witchcraft trials, and up to 70,000 people were expected to turn out in Independence, Kan., for a party capping a week-long tribute to Halloween. But many communities will substitute supervised parties for the night of running in the dark in pursuit of goodies that was once part of growing up in America.

In other towns, like Amherst, Mass., home to the 23,000-student University of Massachusetts, some buildings will be shut and extra police will be on duty as the college administration moves to "stamp out the Halloween tradition."

Last year, the sprawling campus was plagued by roving gangs of young people tossing bottles and yelling "Toga! Toga!"

The campus is in an area that is home to many smaller schools, and officials believe people who were not UMass students were responsible for last year's trouble.

'Cline' realizes he is 'Stafford': returns to family after amnesia

SONORA, Calif. (AP) — A Sierra Mountain recluse who lived on a wilderness diet of fried porcupine and squirrel for 18 months calls himself Roger Cline.

But the sheriff's department and the Stafford family all call him Dale Stafford, reported missing in April 1979 and apparently the victim of amnesia.

And when Stafford's mother, Esther, and brother, Charles, walked into the Tuolumne County Sheriff's office Thursday, they were greeted with a smile of recognition from the man, who immediately said, "Hello, Chuck. Hello, Mom."

What the tall, lean 41-year-old man remembers about his past fits Stafford's existence. But even after the reunion, he said, "I'm Roger Cline. That's me. And everybody's calling me this other guy's name."

"I don't even know how I got up in the mountains. But I've enjoyed myself immensely. I've been very happy all this time — I loved it," he said.

"I was extremely pleased to be able to tell his family he is alive," sheriff's investigator Jim Murphy said. "But we've messed up his life to the point we wished we had left him alone."

Forest regulations, however, forbid living in the Stanislaus National Forest, he said, he hunted, fished, walked the trails, befriended rangers and sportsmen and huddled near his garbage-can stove when storms dumped 6 feet of snow in the mountains near Yosemite National Park, 110 miles east of San Francisco.

But on Wednesday, Tuolumne County sheriff's deputies took him down to the county jail for questioning.

Calling himself Cline, he said he was divorced, had two children and worked 14 years as a welding foreman at the FMC Corp. in Milpitas, where he had a friend named Milt. He said his mother, Esther, lived in southern California. And he said he used to play cards at a Milpitas cardroom where he cashed paychecks.

That was when Murphy realized the list of facts fit Stafford, who had cashed a $1,517 vacation paycheck on April 18, 1979, in that cardroom. Stafford hadn't been heard from since.

Murphy speculated the man was robbed after being hit on the Attorney general rules on public record question

Smokers could get burned buying mail order cigarettes

AUSTIN — Texas smokers who try to stretch their tobacco dollars by purchasing mail order cigarettes may end up getting burned, State Comptroller Bob Bullock says.

Bullock says advertisements have appeared in the state recently offering mail order cigarettes that do not carry the state's tax stamp.

"Cigarette bargains can go up in smoke quicker than a cheap cigar in a hurricane if the tobacco taxes aren't paid," Bullock said.

He said purchases are required to pay his office $1.85 a carton on cigarettes they order from out-of-state and may be liable for a $1.85

District, and Robert Nordhaus, city attorney of Plano.

His opinion reversed a previous holding that names of unsuccessful applicants could be withheld from the public if they could show disclosure would jeopardize their present jobs.

White responded to inquiries from William Bingham, lawyer for the Austin Independent School District, and Robert Nordhaus, city attorney of Plano.

White said he based the original opinion on a 1978 Florida court decision.

Two firms — which Bullock did not name — have been advertising cigarettes for $4.75 a carton, he said. This price does not include the $1.85 a carton tax, he added.

According to Federal laws, out-of-state firms are required to provide the Comptroller's office with a list of Texas residents who purchase cigarettes outside the state.

State law makes possession of more than $10,000 untaxed cigarettes — 50 cartons — a felony offense.

Houston attorney wants no part in shooting case

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston attorney Jim Tatum says the attempted murder of a 27-year-old California model has "all the ingredients of a real sizzler" but he wants no part of the bizarre mystery.

Tatum recently was hired to defend Tony Patrick Steen, 21, and Nathaniel Ivery, 26, both of Riverside, Calif. The two men are accused of shooting Barbra Piotrowsky, a petite, blond model named in a 1978 divorce suit as the former mistress of Houston millionaire Richard Minns.

Ms Piotrowsky was shot four times in the back Oct. 20 as she left a Houston doughnut shop. Doctors said the young woman, who is recuperating at a Houston hospital under an assumed name, is paralyzed from the waist down.

Steen and Ivery were arrested shortly after the shooting by two officers who claim they witnessed the incident. The suspects remain in the Harris County jail in lieu of $100,000 bond each.

Houston homicide detectives, who labeled the shooting a "botched hit job," say the two suspects have made statements but police refused to disclose the contents.

Tatum was asked to defend the two men, but now says he wants to withdraw because he was hired by "people who are now being named as suspects."

"This whole thing smells," Tatum said. "It's all too spooky. And I'm not going to stay in a case where I'm in the fog. I simply am not going to fly blind."

Tatum said he plans to file a motion today, asking he be taken off the case.

He said he decided to wash his hands of the case after a brown envelope stuffed with $10,000 in cash was dropped through the front door mail slot at his home Wednesday morning, the attorney said.

"I presume it was my retainer," he said. "There's no other reasonable source for this payment. And the tooth fairy doesn't usually leave amounts like that."

Tatum said the envelope apparently was dropped sometime between midnight and 6 a.m.

"That's when I got up to jog. I poked the envelope at first with a cane. I thought it might be an envelope bomb or something. There was crude writing on the envelope... that said 'Private, Mr. Tatum.' Nothing else," he said.

Tatum said he met Wednesday night with a California man who asked him to defend the two suspects, but the man denied any knowledge of the money.

"When the man couldn't explain the mysterious money, I really got suspicious. What the hell is really going on?" he asked.

"This case has all the ingredients of a real sizzler — sex, money, mystery, shadowy background figures. I want no part of it," Tatum said.

Ms. Piotrowsky, who told authorities she was a "California native," was named in a 1978 divorce suit as the mistress of Minns, 51, founder of President's First Lady health spas.

Minns' former wife, Mimi, said her husband squandered more than $100,000 in community property on Ms. Piotrowsky. The divorce decree and division of about $10 million in community property were issued by a federal judge here last month.

Minns, whose three-year romance with Ms. Piotrowsky ended last March, was unavailable for comment.

Several months ago, the millionaire filed theft charges against the young woman, claiming she took furniture and jewelry from his Houston townhouse where they had lived, authorities said.

Vatican screening requests of priests wanting to quit

VATICAN CITY (AP) — For the first time in two years, the Vatican is considering nearly 5,000 applications of priests who want to leave the priesthood, but Vatican sources say it is too soon to tell whether new papal guidelines will make it easier or harder to get dispensations.

Pope John Paul II has issued a secret set of norms which strongly reaffirm the 1,500-year-old ban on priests marrying but which some Vatican experts say will help priests who want to marry be released from their vows and still remain part of the church.

"This shows a great sensitivity toward a priest in trouble," said a high-ranking, Rome-based priest who asked not to be identified by name.

The new regulations require a longer application process and outline specific cases in which priests may be released from their vows, sources said.

The longer application process could discourage some priests from asking for dispensation, but others, whose situations fall under the specific cases, may be encouraged by the new document, said a Vatican official who asked not to be identified.

"We will have to see how it works out in practice," he said.

Pope Paul VI toward the end of his papacy blocked virtually all requests for priests who wanted to leave the priesthood to marry and the Vatican even stopped sending such requests to the pope for approval, the Rome-based priest said.

From the time he took office in October 1978 until the new directive was issued this month, Pope John Paul II had refused to consider any applications for dispensation on file.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

(Permission is hereby granted to reproduce in whole or in part any editorials originated by The News and appearing in these columns, providing proper credit is given.)

Let's stick together, press AND public

This newspaper makes mistakes. It is published by people who are not infallible. Because they are human and because of the hundreds of thousands of words that are processed under deadline pressures day after day, week after week, there are bound to be errors in some stories or headlines.

News people sometimes become callous and forget the sensitivity of the reader who has been wronged. And the reader often times over-reacts to small inconsistencies in stories or perhaps reads into the story things that are not really there. In either case, the solution is usually a heart-to-heart talk with the reporter or an editor.

You should feel, as a newspaper reader, every right to contact this newspaper whenever you feel errors have occurred. Sometimes a phone call will suffice to straighten out the problem. Sometimes a personal meeting is in order. But in any case, we invite constructive comments because we strive to be as accurate and factual as possible.

Without the understanding and cooperation of the public, the First Amendment, upon which press freedom is built, is in serious jeopardy.

Some people feel reporters should be licensed. They argue that if a reporter then steps out of line his license could be revoked, as is the case with doctors, lawyers and other professionals. But who is to do the licensing? Licensing brings with it many dangers of censorship through pressure from licensing boards and other elements of government.

No, with all our faults, the freedoms which are expressed through this newspaper and others in the United States are too dear to risk. The very foundation upon which our democracy operates is built upon a free and unfettered press. A free press is one of the main factors in America remaining a free country for its citizens.

But the press is impotent without support of the people. We need your understanding, your support, your cooperation and your help. We assure you, our friends and neighbors, that the next issue of this newspaper will be as free from government censorship as this one has been.

Reporting has come a long way

Killing the messenger was a popular pastime of olden monarchs who found their daily news distasteful. For the fated messenger, freedom of information had become a death sentence.

We have come a long way from those days. Our news comes to us more quickly and in greater quantity.

Each day we report as least as much bad news as good. Certainly in the old days reporters would have met a very untimely end.

Indeed, in these days of oil cartels, dollars worth cents, unfriendly nations, environmental concerns, rising crime, unemployment and other difficulties, the desire to "kill the messenger" still exists in the hearts of some readers, viewers and listeners. For them, the press is a bearer of bad news, and is considered responsible for all that is rotten in our lives and world. It is an unthinking reaction.

The media have suffered the slings and arrows of legislators, judges and bureaucrats who also seek to "kill the messenger" by limiting their ability to gather, process and distribute the news.

This perceived intrusion on the sensibilities of Americans is not an intrusion at all, but an obligation of our press to maintain the free flow of information, good and bad. We must learn, as the olden monarch did, that killing our messengers will not stem the flow of bad news: to sever our freedoms of speech and information is to drain our country's lifeblood.

The freedom of the press to relate the news, good or bad, safeguards every other freedom Americans enjoy.

Newsroom search to be more difficult

The Founding Fathers decided federal judges would not be answerable to their electorate for their decisions. This has made the judicial error difficult to correct, but the federal court is not quite a black-robed politburo, because the people can ultimately seek legislative remedy through their representatives in Congress.

This is precisely what happened when Congress sent legislation to the White House overturning the U.S. Supreme Court's wretched decision in the now-famous case entitled Zurcher vs. Stanford Daily. In that decision, the deeply divided court decreed that law enforcement officers may search a newspaper office without advance notice or court hearing and seize documents specified in a warrant. The amazing new police authority to conduct surprise searches and seizures has been held to apply as well against attorneys, physicians, merchants and just plain citizens.

Under the bill, overwhelmingly approved by both houses, local, state and federal law enforcement officers could not use a search warrant to obtain notes, film, tapes or other documentary materials used by those engaged in publishing or broadcasting. There are some exceptions: A warrant may be issued for materials when the person holding them is suspected of being criminally involved, or when necessary to prevent death or serious bodily injury, or when all other appellate remedies have been exhausted.

But a fourth exception appears to be a loophole large enough to compromise the broad intent of the legislation: Surprise search and seizure may be conducted if there is reason to believe the material would be destroyed, concealed or altered if advance notice were given through the normal procedure, namely a subpoena. This suspicion, indeed, was the very rationalization voiced in the court's majority opinion justifying surprise searches and it could be a handy excuse for law enforcement officers to continue their swooping raids for confidential files.

Nevertheless, the law has teeth that should discourage arrogant disregard for the First Amendment free press rights. Those engaged in First Amendment activities who are subjected to an unlawful search may sue the federal government and state governments that have waived immunity, as well as their agents, for damages — but not punitive damages.

Unfortunately, Congress did not in this legislation limit surprise searches against those not specifically covered by the First Amendment. But it did direct the attorney general to develop within six months guidelines to extend similar protection to all citizens.

Although this legislation is not as complete and categorical as it might have been, still it is a step toward remedying a gross judicial error. Moreover, it is a rebuke by Congress to the U.S. Supreme Court for trifling with First Amendment safeguards of personal liberty.

Whose side is this government on, anyway?

By Richard L. Leshner
President, Chamber of Commerce of the United States

WASHINGTON — Back in school, we learned that the Founding Fathers added the Bill of Rights to the Constitution to protect the individual liberties of the American people. Just imagine then how stunned these men would be if they returned today and saw how federal bureaucrats abuse the Constitution. They would witness an incredible spectacle: Our own government trying to harass Americans and violate their Constitutional rights, even as it protects the "rights" of Iranian demonstrators intent only on disrupting our country. It sounds like a bad dream, but it's actually happening.

Five years ago, a gutsy small businessman from Pocatello, Idaho, Bill Barlow, turned away a federal inspector who tried to enter his plumbing and heating plant without a search warrant. Barlow felt the inspector who worked for OSHA, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, would have violated his rights as spelled out by the Fourth Amendment which reads: "The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no Warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by Oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized."

Barlow battled the federal government all the way to the Supreme Court. Incidentally, we were proud to take part in that case on Barlow's side, and to see the Supreme Court finally uphold him in 1978 when it ruled that a warrant is required for OSHA inspections when the employer demands it. Through its decision, the Court made an important statement that all employers have Constitutional rights which must be protected.

Almost immediately, however, the Department of Labor went to work to undermine the Barlow decision. Now it has proposed a new rule which would allow OSHA inspectors to obtain warrants from local magistrates before even attempting to inspect workplaces, and without the opportunity for employers to have notice or respond.

So doesn't it seem just a bit ironic that this same government, which does not hesitate to trample over the rights of its own citizens, now allows Iranians, literally, to walk all over us? Some people maintain, of course, that our government must submit to the Iranian antics, because the First Amendment provides for freedom of speech and for the right of people to peaceably assemble.

I disagree. Although we must be as vigilant protecting the First Amendment as all others, that is not at issue here. What is at issue is whether a foreign power can pay aliens to demonstrate in and disrupt American cities while that same foreign power holds innocent Americans hostage at gunpoint.

The 191 Iranians who were arrested in Washington, D.C., July 27, following violent demonstrations on behalf of the Ayatollah Khomeini, were held in custody for only six days. Then, under pressure from our own Justice Department, all were released. Not one was deported. Adding insult to injury, they returned to the streets to demonstrate again. No one will ever convince me that all the people who demonstrated did so voluntarily, without any coercion, that all of them did so without pay and without being given transportation, food and shelter, or that all of them are here legally.

What has become of this great country? Isn't it time we restore our self-dignity by treating our own citizens at least as well as we do the scavengers who roam our streets denigrating America? Isn't it time we restore the strength of America and our leadership around the world by making those in Washington understand that we MUST have a government of the people, by the people and for the people?

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Friday, Oct. 31, the 305th day of 1980. There are 61 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On Oct. 31, 1517, Martin Luther nailed up his 95 theses at Wittenberg Palace church, marking the beginning of the Protestant Reformation in Germany.

On this date, in 1731 the expulsion of Protestants from Salzburg, Austria, began.

In 1956, the British and French bombed Egyptian airfields in the Suez War.

In 1961, a cloud of radioactive debris moved across central Siberia after the Soviet Union exploded the biggest man-made nuclear bomb.

In 1973, the United States ended the worldwide military alert that was called during hostilities in Middle East.

Ten years ago, at least 145 people between the ages of 17 and 25 were burned to death when a fire broke out in a dance hall in Saint Laurent-du-Pont, France.

Today's birthdays: Newsman Dan Rafter is 49. Actress Barbara Bel Geddes is 58. Former Attorney General Griffin Bell is 62.

Thought for today: Democracy is the last refuge of cheap mis-government — George Bernard Shaw, Irish-born playwright (1856-1950).

Happy Halloween!

Dirty air

by ...

There was another kind of air pollution during the recent political campaign.

One of the fringe candidates focused attention on himself by including dirty words in his radio and TV commercials.

And before you ask, "Who says the words are 'dirty'?" — I do.

I am not unaware of what's being called "the language of the streets."

I was long enough in the Air Force to have heard all those words; the bedroom words; the bathroom words; the gutter words.

And I am aware that there is an inevitable evolution in patterns of propriety.

Anybody three decades in broadcasting can remember when we never used the word "cancer"; we said "malignancy." We never ever used such words as syphilis and gonorrhea; we said "social disease."

We accepted no advertising for toilet tissue, feminine hygiene items. I can recall a time when Kotex was unofficially offering a million dollars to any ad man who could get their product past the network censors.

It would have been inconceivable for the electronic media to advertise hemorrhoid remedies.

The change came rather abruptly. When President Eisenhower was hospitalized with ileitis he left instructions that the "people should be kept precisely advised" of his condition.

So the six o'clock news began reciting publicly a daily tally of his bowel movements.

During the recent World Series, the discomfort of George Brett was described in unnecessary detail.

Now self-examination for mammary cancer is demonstrated on TV with live human breasts.

During the government's indictment of Tampons, the specific function of that device was demonstrated during TV interviews.

And now we come to the use by a pipsqueak presidential candidate of barnyard vulgarisms in his campaign oratory which the networks and stations, by law, are not allowed to excise.

Congress, intending to prevent media censorship of a politician's opinions, has mandated a degree of air pollution it never intended.

In this campaign there were 14 legally qualified presidential candidates — Libertarians, Citizens, Labor, Communist, Socialist, whatnot ... The potential for further and even more flagrant air pollution is obvious.

Historically our country, by law, has confined to sewers what some countries allow to run in open gutters for reasons of health and to stifle the stink.

That may violate the rights of some stinkers, but so what?

Press under pressure

By Don Graff

It is not easy defining precisely what constitutes press freedom, but it's frequently very easy spotting an attempt to curtail it.

The observation is currently applicable both to the United States, a portion of which has been observing National Newspaper Week and to certain events taking place 5,000 miles from American shores.

These events are being reported occasionally in American newspapers under the dateline of Belgrade, Yugoslavia, where the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization has been in session.

The news is in some unfinished business on the agenda, a study undertaken by a special commission of international communications. The stated purpose is to achieve a better balance of information gathering and distribution throughout the world. And for this purpose, it is being proposed that UNESCO adopt a package of programs outlining the responsibilities and privileges of news organizations and news people and, in particular, giving less-developed countries greater access to channels of communication and greater control over what is communicated about themselves.

The issue has divided UNESCO. One side are the United States, Canada, Western Europe and Japan with scattered support from Latin America. On the other, the overwhelming majority of UNESCO's 146-nation membership.

For the first group the problem is not so much the principle as the means proposed for its realization. These call for expansion of UNESCO's involvement in the operations of news media, a sanctioning of the right of nations to control news content and an international code of ethics and of the rights and responsibilities of journalists. The democracies see these as an attack on their concept of a free press, a step not toward improvement of news gathering and distribution but toward its restriction and manipulation for national political purposes.

The issue, which has been warming up for five years, originated with the Soviets and was eagerly embraced by underdeveloped nations resentful of Western domination of worldwide news operations. Given the unbalanced UNESCO membership, the democracies have been on the defensive and remain so in Belgrade. It is not yet a losing battle, although it could be in an indirect way should the majority prevail and UNESCO sanction press control on an international basis.

Actions of UNESCO, as those of any United Nations agency, are not binding upon member nations. The democracies could ignore the measures within their own borders.

What difference then, Americans may ask, would control of information in Central Africa, the Mideast or Southeast Asia make to them?

It would mean less information — most certainly less reliable information — reaching them from those areas. And to the extent that its coverage was thereby curtailed, their own press would be less free.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Steve McQueen is back at his California ranch after checking out of a Mexican clinic where he underwent cancer treatments in August.

Warren Cowan, a spokesman for the actor, said he had not been in touch with McQueen other than to confirm that the star of such movies as "Bullitt" was back at his Santa Paula ranch. Cowan said he did not know if McQueen would return soon to Plaza Santa Maria Hospital in Baja California.

Asked about McQueen's condition, Cowan said Thursday, "I'm told he's stable, but I'm not sure how accurate that is."

McQueen left the hospital earlier this week, Cowan said. Two weeks ago, the doctor in charge of McQueen's care said he expected the actor to stay at the clinic for another two months. Dr. Rodrigo Rodriguez said McQueen's cancer apparently had been halted.

Rodriguez could not be reached for comment Thursday.

McQueen was on a program that included Laetrile — a substance that has not won acceptance in the U.S. medical community. He also received a vegetarian diet of unprocessed foods, vitamins, minerals and enzymes.

NEW YORK (AP) — Kermit

So the Muppet has signed on as the national chairman — he would say chairfrog — for UNICEF's Halloween 1980 campaign.

"When I was just a little tadpole," says Kermit, "I used to-trick or treat for UNICEF every Halloween."

Since 1950, the Halloween fund drive and other activities have raised nearly $60 million to help children in the developing world.

"I'm beating last year's record for $3 million in fund-raising," said Kermit. "I've never done anything this serious before."

Moderates, conservatives claim victory as Baptist conclave ends

HOUSTON (AP) — Moderates managed to keep the lid on a theological dispute simmering in the Baptist General Convention of Texas, but conservative hardliners say their battle is not over.

"The overt political activity of the people who say they don't believe in overt political activity was eminently successful," said fundamentalist leader Paige Patterson, of Dallas.

Delegates to the three-day conference adjourned Thursday by turning back attempts to criticize the denomination's weekly newspaper, "The Baptist Standard."

The convention instead commended the publication for a responsible attempt to interpret events and movements fairly and encouraged the editor "to continue to seek the highest levels of objectivity and fairness in reporting."

On Wednesday, a major confrontation between moderates and conservative hardliners about the chairmanship of Baylor University's religion department was avoided.

Delegates received from Baylor trustees a report leaving the Rev. H.J. Flanders as a department chairman but reduced a textbook he co-authored to a reference book status.

The Rev. Russell Dilday, president of Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth, said the convention's rejection of fundamentalist philosophy reflected the mainstream thinking of Southern Baptists in Texas.

Patterson acknowledged conservatives had been outgunned, but warned they had not been silenced.

"They (the moderates) are going to have to live with us a long time," Patterson said.

Before adjourning, delegates also rejected an amended resolution calling for prayers in support of the Rev. Bailey Smith, a Del City, Okla., minister and president of the Southern Baptist Convention. Smith became the target of nationwide criticism recently after he said God does not hear the prayers of Jews.

The resolution, however, called for prayers for all Baptist leaders, saying the convention had suffered "much pain and distress in recent days because of widespread and repeated airing of various statements made by some of our Baptist leaders."

Banker indicted

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted a former Lampasas bank executive for allegedly using $35,000 from his bank to support University of Texas teams, and for personal expenses.

Lloyd Davis, former chief executive officer of the People's National Bank of Lampasas, allegedly used $16,686 from the bank to lease a Lincoln Continental for UT basketball Coach Abe Lemons.

Shootout leaves two dead

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — Investigators were attempting to determine what ignited a gun battle that killed two men and left a policeman wounded after an undercover investigation of a gang suspected of mugging illegal aliens in this border city.

Police said the shootout occurred about 9 p.m. Thursday when undercover police and Webb County sheriff's deputies encountered the men near a railroad line in a largely Hispanic section of the city. Authorities suspected the gang of robbing Mexicans crossing the Rio Grande into the United States.

The identities of the dead men were being withheld pending notification of relatives. Police officer Tony Reyes was in good condition in Mercy Hospital with a bullet wound in the leg, authorities said.

Police Chief Victor Garcia said it had not been determined which group opened fire.

More planes join search for downed private craft

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP)—Civil Air Patrol craft from Laredo and Corpus Christi have joined in a search across across South Texas for a California single-engine plane missing since Oct. 22.

"For now we are just planning one day at a time," said CAP Capt. Gary Barber. "We do intend to search into (today)."

Ten CAP aircraft from San Antonio Thursday carried out their third day of a search for the plane piloted by E.F. Tettyplace Sr., 55, of Santa Cruz, Calif., on Thursday.

Barber said the operation also was expanded Thursday to include one CAP craft from Laredo and two from Corpus Christi searching in their areas.

"We expanded to the new areas based on some leads we got," the CAP spokesman said.

Kremlin supports Polish leaders

WARSAW, Poland (AP)—After receiving an apparent Kremlin vote of confidence in a lightning trip to Moscow, Polish leaders faced a critical meeting today with independent trade union leaders threatening new strikes to protest what they see as government interference in their fledgling labor movement.

Premier Jozef Pinkowski, who accompanied Communist Party chief Stanislaw Kania on Thursday's visit to Moscow, is to meet with Lech Walesa and other leaders of Solidarity, Poland's largest independent trade union movement. They are to discuss a court-ordered change in the union charter declaring Communist Party supremacy in state affairs.

Leaders of the two-month-old union, which claims seven million members, have threatened a new wave of strikes for Nov. 12 unless their charter is approved as it was submitted and other differences are worked out over the Aug. 31 agreement that ended Poland's nationwide labor rebellion.

Last week, a Warsaw court added a clause to Solidarity's charter pledging union recognition of the "leading role" of the Communist Party in state affairs. Polish strikers agreed to recognize party supremacy in the strike-ending Aug. 31 agreement, but union leaders are opposed to including that declaration in their charter. There was speculation, meanwhile, that the Polish leaders' trip to Moscow was aimed at strengthening the Polish government's hand prior to the talks with labor leaders.

In the hastily scheduled Kremlin meeting, Kania and Pinkowski reported directly to Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev on their attempts "to stabilize life in the country."

"Comrade Brezhnev expressed the conviction of all Soviet communists, the whole Soviet society, that the Polish working people are able to solve the urgent problems facing them in political and economic development," the evening news broadcast said.

It said both sides "firmly condemned attempts to interfere in the internal affairs of Poland" by some "imperialist circles," an apparent reference to support for the Polish unions from labor organizations in the United States and other Western nations.

The first meeting between Soviet leaders and the new Polish hierarchy that took power as a result of this summer's labor rebellion was held in "an atmosphere of cordiality and an identity of views," the official Soviet news agency Tass said.

Man lifts 1800 pound pipe to save pinned child

SOUTHGATE, Mich. (AP)—Arnold Lemerand says he avoided picking up heavy things after a heart attack six years ago. But he didn't stop to think before picking up an 1,800-pound cast iron pipe to save 5-year-old Philip Toth, officials say.

According to Philip's mother, Patricia Toth, and Southgate Police, the child was playing on one of several 18-foot lengths of pipe near their kinder garden when one of the pipes rolled slightly.

"Philip fell under it. 'I was getting out of my car when I heard these teenage girls screaming,'" Lemerand, 56, said Thursday of the incident the day before. "The pipe was on his head. He couldn't make any noise."

"I just walked over, picked it up, and the girls dragged him out of there. When I picked it up I thought it must weigh 300 or 400 pounds."

When Lemerand went back later, he could not budge the pipe. Neither could his grown sons, 33-year-old police officer John Tiquard or newspaper reporters and photographers.

"God just had to have given him a surge of strength, that's why my son is still here," said Mrs. Toth.

Philip was undergoing tests at a Lincoln Park hospital, she said, it could be released today.

Major fire damages American Bridge Co.

ORANGE, Texas (AP)—A "major fire" swept through the American Bridge Co. plant here early today, destroying the administration building and igniting at least one other structure, authorities said.

About 100 firefighters from four cities responded to the construction company blaze, which broke out about 2 a.m., said Orange Fire Department Lt. Don Blanchette.

Orange firefighter Kim Lejune was slightly injured while battling the blaze, he said.

The buildings were unoccupied when the fire broke out, Blanchette said, adding the cause was not yet known.

The blaze "appears to be under control at present," he said, but firefighters were expected to remain on the scene "most of the day."

Firefighters from Beaumont, Port Arthur and Groves rushed to the old Navy base, where the plant is located, he said.

Company officials were not immediately available for comment.

Experience is the issue.

The 80's. As we enter a new decade, we face serious and growing challenges in the economy, energy, agriculture, education. To solve these problems—to make the important decisions which will affect all our lives for years to come—will take more than just good intentions. It'll take experience and leadership.

The kind of experience and leadership we have in Bob Price. Bob Price. Farmer, rancher, businessman. Experienced as our former congressman for eight years. Effective as our state senator for the last three years. A leader in Austin.

Energy

Bob Price knows we must fully and rapidly develop alternate sources of energy to help control inflation and expand the area's economy. As a member of the Senate Natural Resources Committee, he passed bills to encourage production and sale of gasohol utilizing Texas grain crops (S.B. 988) and to promote solar and wind-powered energy production (S.B. 204).

The Economy

As our congressman for eight years, Bob Price worked for policies to promote more jobs and better wages for our area's working men and women. As our State Senator, Bob continues to reach these goals through legislation which encourages new industry; through tax and budget reform and through elimination of governmental interference and over-regulation of business.

Education

Bob Price is committed to quality public education and fair wages for teachers, and feels these goals can be accomplished without increasing taxes. Bob knows that we must properly train the future leaders of Texas in the schools of today.

Agriculture

As a working farmer and rancher, Bob Price knows the problems facing this vital industry and those who provide services and products to the agricultural community. In the last session, Bob's version of S.B. 1321—a landmark piece of legislation—provided authority for the Ogallala Water Import Authority which will allow planning for desperately needed water for the area. Bob also passed the Family Farm Security Act which was overwhelmingly approved by voters in November, 1979.

We face one of the most important peacetime elections in years. On November 4th, remember:

Experience is the issue.

Bob Price is the answer.

Mother claims she thought child was devil

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — A woman accused of cutting her daughter's heart out with a butcher knife believed the child was the devil and her heart "was full of grass," a psychologist has testified.

Patricia Ann Frazier is charged with murder in the Feb. 22 mutilation death of her 4-year-old daughter, Kunji. The 25-year-old woman has acknowledged killing the little girl, but pleaded innocent by reason of insanity.

"I believed that she was the devil and the heart was full of grass," she said during an examination after the slaying, psychologist Marvin Leon Morris told a state district court jury Thursday.

It was the third day of testimony in the case. Lawyers said it could go the jury today.

Morris, testifying as a defense witness, quoted her as telling him, "I thought (the) plant had grown on her heart and the only way to save everybody, myself mainly, was to cut her heart out."

The child's body was found lying on a car seat with her heart, wrapped in a blood-soaked rag, lying next to her.

Morris said Mrs. Frazier had told him that the child had urged her to commit suicide.

The woman told him of a 1976 incident in California when "Kunji looked up in the closet at my boyfriend's gun and touched her finger to her temple and looked at me.

"That meant she wanted me to kill myself. That's when I decided she wasn't my baby," Morris quoted the woman as saying.

"Spirits" told her what to do with her daughter "by touching my body all over," she reportedly told Morris. "My muscles would twitch. At times, the spirits were telling me the baby wasn't really mine, that she was the devil.

"I was afraid she would grow up to kill people with her eyes — destroy the world," Morris said Mrs. Frazier told him.

He also told the jury Mrs. Frazier said her daughter's "eyes changed all the time. They looked like they were cold black. One time, she was darker — her complexion.

"I loved her sometimes," Morris quoted her as saying. Mrs. Frazier also told him, "I wish I had never had her."

Dr. Jack Omlinson, a psychiatrist who also testified for the defense, said Mrs. Frazier told him she thought someone had put a curse on her and something "in her apartment was looking at her."

The woman has been diagnosed as a paranoid schizophrenic who did not have control her of her actions when the girl was slain, a psychiatrist at Rusk State Hospital testified.

Twins critical after surgery

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Siamese twins Valerie and Natalie Wackler were in critical condition today after the first of three operations aimed at separating them, doctors said.

Doctors at the Children's Medical Center in Dayton said Thursday's 50-minute operation was a success. The 4½-month-old twins are joined at the base of the spine.

The operation was a temporary measure in which part of each girl's large intestine was drawn outside the body and attached to a sack that would allow elimination of solid wastes, doctors said.

"Everything went like clockwork," said Dr. Charles Goodwin, head of the surgical team. "If they get a few days down the road, two or three days, we'll be OK," he said.

The twins were listed as critical because of other medical problems, Goodwin said. It could be several months before the separation is completed, he said. "Only a handful (of such operations) have been done, and most of them were in the 1950s," he said. "We have read everything that's available, and I've seen a movie on the subject. We have specialists in every area involved."

According to a hospital spokesman, about one of each 50,000 sets of twins is born joined. Of those, about one pair out of five is joined at the base of the spine.

"The babies have extremely complicated medical problems," Goodwin said. "They would have problems even if they were not joined together."

The second operation, which could be performed in late November, would separate the girls, Goodwin said. The final operation would involve closing the openings in their intestines, he said.

The twins' parents, Randy and Rebecca Wackler of Piqua, said they were relieved the operation appeared successful.

Unsolved highway murders remain lawmen's puzzle

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A four-year string of about 20 unsolved murders along a stretch of Interstate 35 brought Texas law enforcement officials together here for an unprecedented brainstorming session this week.

The puzzling murders go back to Aug. 23, 1976, when Lesa Rhea Haley's body was found on I-35 just north of Waxahachie, about 25 miles south of Dallas. The 20-year-old woman was stabbed in the neck with an awl. Like several of the victims, she was a hitchhiker.

"We have run out of leads, out of ideas and we are calling on the assistance of every citizen and every investigator who may have information on these cases," said Williamson County Sheriff Jim Boutwell, whose county straddles the interstate in the state's center. "Our main link to some 20 murders is Interstate 35 on which nearly all the murders were committed."

The most recent slaying was June 23, when Rodney Bruce

Massey was shot four times. His body was dumped in a grassy field near Temple, 70 miles north of Austin.

In between there have been numerous murder-rapes and murder-robberies that have left a trail of bodies along the 285-mile stretch between Dallas and San Antonio.

In March of 1979, the body of a 20-year-old man, stabbed more than 60 times with an ice pick, was found near Killeen, just east of Temple. A year later, the an 8-year-old girl was found dead in a shack near her San Marcos home about 35 miles north of San Antonio.

Some female victims never were identified and were buried as Jane Does.

City policemen, sheriffs' deputies, state police, medical examiners, firearms experts and other investigators were on hand for the three-day meeting here.

A Look at Texas

By The Associated Press
WHITE INTERPRETATION OF OPEN RECORDS ACT
AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Mark White held Thursday that reports of runs by city-owned ambulances must be open to the public unless they invade certain "zones of privacy."

White's interpretation of the Open Records Act went to Brent Burford, assistant city attorney of Irving.

"A constitutional right of privacy will ordinarily exist if the information relates to marriage, procreation, contraception, family relationships and child rearing and education," Whitesaid.

He said the ambulance reports generally should be made public unless city officials determine they contain such information as "reports of treatment for childbirth, venereal disease, female complaints, psychiatric conditions or suicide attempts."

SCIENTISTS, SCHOLARS NUMBERS DECLINE

AUSTIN (AP) — A national commission on research predicts the United States may not be able to train enough scientists and other scholars to supply a sufficient number of teachers for the beginning of the 21st century.

University of Texas professor Irwin Lieb, chairman of the National Commission on research Subcommittee, said federal research facilities already are getting one-third of the basic federal research budget.

The commission's report said Argonne National Laboratory, near Chicago; Brookhaven National Laboratory, near New York City; Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory in New Mexico; and Lawrence Livermore in Berkeley, Calif., each spent from $200 million to $300 million in 1978.

"They will get more (money) and the universities will get less," said Lieb. "We are not going to be able to stop it."

Also, the report said, there will be fewer 18-year-olds entering colleges in the next 15 years and far fewer students entering graduate schools in engineering and arts and sciences.

The report said this will result in declining enrollments and smaller faculties.

TEXAS GOP LOOKS AT DEMOCRAT CONTRIBUTIONS

AUSTIN (AP) — The executive director of the Texas Republican Party says more than 37 percent of recent contributions to the Texas

Democratic Party have come from one out-of-state union. Wayne J. Thorburn said records in the secretary of state's office show $30,000 was received by the Texas Democratic Party from the United Auto Workers, 8,000 East Jefferson Ave., Detroit, Mich. He said Democrats raised a total of $80,696 in that period.

"I think the voters of Texas need to know that this Michigan labor union is sending huge sums of money down here to influence Texas elections," Thorburn said in a statement.

Thorburn said the state Republican party received $73,000 in the same period but only one contribution was from out-of-state — "and that was from the sister of the state chairman."

MIXED DRINK TAXES REPORTED FOR THIRD QUARTER

AUSTIN (AP) — State Comptroller Bob Bullock said Thursday mixed drink taxes collected during July, August and September totaled $24.2 million.

The 10 percent gross receipts tax brought in $22.1 million in the first three months of the year and $23.6 million in the second quarter.

Texas cities and counties get a 15 percent rebate on mixed drink taxes collected within their boundaries.

STEPS OUTLINED FOR SCHOOL DISCIPLINE

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Mark White says classroom disruption is "primarily an urban problem" and has suggested three steps to improve school discipline.

White told about 80 educators Wednesday he favors student codes of conduct, a criminal law education program for elementary students and a standardized teacher-training program on classroom discipline.

White said his office, working with the Texas Education Agency, would release a sample code of conduct for school districts. Adoption of the code would be voluntary.

White said, however, the legislation might be introduced in 1981 to require public school systems to adopt a formal discipline policy.

He addressed a workshop sponsored by the University of Texas.

SNAKE SHARES APARTMENT

AUSTIN (AP) — Pete Peterson says he bought a bottle of whiskey for "moral support" after learning a 3½-foot boa constrictor had been sharing his apartment with him for the past three months.

For two of those months, Peterson said, he had slept on the floor, and occasionally his 1-year-old son stayed with him.

"I had a little trouble sleeping last night," said Peterson, an IBM production operator. "I knew that the woman who used to live here had a snake. But I thought she had taken it with her."

Gas company employee Wayne Priestly discovered the snake when he pulled the stove out from the wall to fix the pilot light. "Apparently he left in a big hurry," said Peterson.

Snake fancier Neal Turner was contacted and took the boa home. Asked if it was dangerous, he said, "Nah. All it could do if it bit you was cause little bitty pin-prick holes. ... It might scare the hell out of someone, though."

PRISON LOBBY GROUP ENDORSES AMENDMENT
AUSTIN (AP) — The board of directors of CURE, a prisoners' lobby group, has voted unanimously to endorse a proposed constitutional amendment that would allow courts of civil appeals to review criminal cases.

Citizens United for Rehabilitation of Errants said the proposal — Amendment No. 8 on Tuesday's ballot — would reduce substantially the length of time for criminal appeals to be heard.

CURE said the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals is now about two years behind on its docket.

Sacred Heart Polish sausage dinner Sunday

WHITE DEER— John Kotara, chairman of the Polish Sausage Dinner conducted by Sacred Heart Parish has announced the festival this year will be held Sunday at Parish Hall.

The chairman of the event, which dates back to 1937, said 4500 pounds of sausage is being prepared for the dinner this year.

Polish sausage and all the trimmings will be served from 11:30 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Baptist Revival slated

Dr. Charles R. Wade, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Arlington, will be the evangelist for the "Alive in Christ" revival at Hobart Baptist Church.

The revival is scheduled for Nov. 2-7. Services on Sunday are at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Week night services are at 7:30 p.m.

There will also be a noonday service with a covered dish meal and brief message, Monday through Friday at noon.

Adrian Jones, minister of music and youth at Hampton Place Baptist Church, Dallas, will lead the music for the special week of services.

Born in Brownwood, Wade completed high school at Woodward, Oklahoma, and graduated from Oklahoma Baptist University, Shawnee, in 1962 with a bachelor of arts degree. He earned his master's and doctoral degrees at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, Fort Worth. Dr. Wade has served churches in Oklahoma, Baumholder, West Germany, and Texas.

Jones is a graduate of North Texas State University at Denton and Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, Fort Worth. His ministry with music and youth has included staff positions in churches in both Texas and Oklahoma. Mr. Jones is originally from Irving.

Dennis Barton, pastor of Hobart Baptist Church, at Crawford and Banks, invites the entire community to participate in these meaningful services.

A nursery will be provided.

International Conference includes Pampa residents

About 1,000 delegates from more than 23 countries will be in Jerusalem Nov. 3-6 for the Seventh Annual Conference of Women's Aglow Fellowship International.

Theme for Aglow's first international conference overseas will be "Prepare ye the way if the Lord," based on Isaiah 40:3 in the King James Bible.

Women's Aglow, with headquarters in the United States, is a 13-year-old Christian women's ministry. It has grown from a handful of women to a membership of 30,000 in 27 different countries.

Speaker at the evening sessions will be Mary Ann Brown, of Henderson, Texas.

Those from Pampa who will be attending the Conference are Carol Peet, Maxine Smith, Jerry Bruce, Barbara Bruce, and Evelyn Cook.

Aglow has its roots in the charismatic renewal, a Christian movement that emphasizes the enabling power of the Holy Spirit and the use of the nine gifts of the Holy Spirit, including healing, prophecy and speaking in tongues, as listed in Cor. 12:7-11 in the New Testament. The renewal is recognized by most of the main line denomination.

Aglow was founded in 1967. It began with a meeting of four women in Seattle, Wash., who were seeking charismatic fellowship and has grown to 1,558 Fellowships in 27 different countries in North America, Europe, Asia, South America, Central America and the Pacific.

Religion roundup

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The president of the United Methodist Council of Bishops has challenged a Maryland layman's accusation that church monies are being siphoned off for pro-Marxist causes.

In a statement discounting the charges, Bishop Roy C. Nichols said the church's policy required full financial accountability at every point and that "nothing is done in secret."

The charges were made in a document by David C. Jessup of Silver Springs, Md., first circulated at the church's general conference last spring and since published elsewhere.

"By Mr. Jessup's own admission, the facts and figures included in his paper were provided by the very agencies he accuses of subversion," Nichols said. He said the items represent an "extremely small portion" of the church's mission activities, and added:

"When the church commits itself to identification with the poor and the oppressed, we may sometimes become involved with people whose blend of Marxist interpretation and Christian theology may be different from our own."

"Furthermore, with millions of professing Christians in the Marxist orbit in other parts of the world, contemporary Christians must risk association with those labeled 'sinners' in order to convince and convert."

CHICAGO (AP) — Americans need to put the teeth back in those beaming "toothless pumpkins" lit up for Halloween, says a professor of religion.

Thomas Sinclair-Faulkner of Canada's Dalhousie University writes in the current Christian Century that the teeth had a purpose in the ancient, original celebrations of the evening before All-Saints Day.

He says the evening was observed as a time when evil spirits—hobgoblins—supposedly were on the loose, symbolized by the teeth, and people lit fires to drive them away and get rid of the fears of death, before the next day's celebration of religious renewal.

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — One of the American hostages held for nearly a year in Iran says his "religious faith" has helped sustain him.

Bruce Laingen, U.S. charge d'affaires to Iran, makes that observation in a handwritten note to Terri Finley of St. Paul who has maintained correspondence with him. Laingen writes that his "strong sense of religious faith" is best expressed in Hebrews 11, which says in part:

"Now faith is the assurance of things hoped for, the conviction of things not seen."

"Thou wilt shew me the path of life: in thy presence is fulness of joy..."
PSALM 16-11

HERE IS THE PATH

The GOOD BOOK

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH
THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

America in its early days depended on the "GOOD BOOK" for its guide in ethics, worship, and pursuit of freedom. These early gains are now in danger of falling and we need to turn all America once again to God and His word. America can be strong only when each individual looks to God for strength.

Federation of Women's Clubs meets

president; Teresa Reed, vice-president; Mrs. Abel Wood and Mrs. A.B. Cross. Bottom row, from left are Lena Mohon, Mrs. W. Ewing Cobb, Mrs. S.T. Holding and Mrs. D.A. Rife.

Top of Texas District of Federation of Women's Clubs recently conducted its fall board meeting and workshop in the Perryton Methodist Church. Hostess clubs from Perryton were Serendipity, Jennie June, Perryton Sorosis, Pollyanna Club and Home Economics Club.

Mrs. Vester Smith of Higgins, president of the Top of Texas District, presided at the opening session. R.J. Rizley, mayor of Perryton, presented the welcome address. The Rev. Jack Pearce, pastor of the Perryton First Baptist Church, gave the invocation.

Departmental workshops were in conservation, education, home life, public affairs, international affairs, arts and Texas heritage.

Featured were overall workshops on program and project ideas and Federation membership. Conducting the workshops were Mrs. Coy Palmer of Spearman and Mrs. Wood Craig and Mrs. Don Graham, both of Sunray.

One hundred fifty-two members from clubs in Borger, Amarillo, Pampa, Canadian, Dalhart, Dodson, Dumas, Shamrock, Canyon, Perryton, Lefors, Hereford, Wheeler, Stratford, Summerfield and Sunray registered for the workshop.

Plan for a safe Halloween

AUSTIN — Don't let Halloween haunt your children this year — use some health and safety precautions to prevent their trick or treating from turning into tragedy.

"Put a lot of youngsters on the streets in dark neighborhood areas and accidents can happen," says Harold R. Ray, director of the Product Safety Division of the Texas Department of Health.

"But planning the Halloween excursion can resolve some of the pitfalls which may befall children. The best idea is for parents to go with their children. And parents, or the children themselves, will be spotted easier if they carry flashlights."

In addition, Ray says, flashlights provide better vision and perhaps save falls which could happen on uneven ground or while going down curbs. Lights are also helpful in spotting and keeping unfriendly dogs at bay.

For most children, Halloween is a time for dressing up in a costume or mask in order to put fear into the homes they visit. The mask and costume can cause trouble.

For one thing, says Ray, a mask will limit vision considerably unless the eye holes are large. Many of the costumes are dark, which may hamper motorists or other revelers from seeing the wearers in the dark.

"It's not too impractical to sew reflector strips onto arms and legs of costumes," Ray says. "This adds to the probability of a child being seen by a motorist or others on the street. Also, bags shouldn't be so large as to block the child's vision and clothing shouldn't be loose."

"Many children borrow their mother's wigs and care should be taken to see that these are fireproof. "Many of the costumes made at home are not fireproof, and this can be dangerous," Ray said.

Steve Garza, a senior patrol officer with the Austin Police Department, also had some advice for Halloween merry makers. "It's better to eat the traditional treats that are individually wrapped by the manufacturer. Unwrapped items or those in torn wrappings should be inspected very carefully. Also, fruits should be washed and then cut into small portions," he advised.

Garza said children and parents should cross streets at cross walks, watch for turning at intersections, stay on the sidewalks, walk facing the traffic, and shouldn't cross the street between parked cars.

"Stay away from houses where the lights are off, and children should be warned not to accept rides from strangers," he warned.

A good plan may be to have a neighborhood party for children in the same age groups or perhaps church or school parties. This way the children will be able to dress appropriately in costume and have a well-chaperoned event in safe surroundings.

Halloween comes on the eve of All Saints Day, which is celebrated on Nov. 1, and was known as Hallow even (evening). Robert Burns in "Hallow'en," presented an imaginative and humorous version of the ceremonies as practiced in the rural Scottish districts of his day.

Halloween has been associated in the popular imagination with the prevalence of supernatural influences; hence, the carryover of witches, skeletons and other frightening things in costumes and decorations.

DEAR ABBY

Son's choice: a difference in degree

DEAR ABBY: Our middle son, Greg (made-up name), is our problem. He is a very intelligent young man of 19 who went to college for one year just to please us, then he quit. "Why waste your money and my time?" he asked.

His grades were above average and he could have continued. His reason for quitting? He likes to work with his hands. He is now going to trade school, and we are so disappointed in him.

I'm not putting down people who work with their hands, but it seems to me that a man works with his hands only because he isn't smart enough to work with his mind. Greg's father and grandfather are physicians, and both Greg's brothers are lawyers.

Please put something in your column stating that a college degree is absolutely necessary these days. After Greg graduates from college, he can do anything he chooses, but we want him to finish college first. Thank you.

GREG'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: College is not for everybody. If Greg likes to work with his hands, that's what he should do. It's not true that those who work with their hands aren't smart enough to work with their minds. Handwork done well requires as much skill, talent and brains as a profession.

...

DEAR ABBY: What do you think it means when your partner makes love with his sox on?

MINE DOES

DEAR MINE: He could be in a hurry, suffering from athlete's foot, or maybe he just has cold feet.

...

DEAR ABBY: I'm a night person. I love to stay up late and sleep until noon. My wife of 40 years is a day person.

Singer helps preserve Southern folk culture

By PHILLIP RAWLS
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — When country singer Anne Romaine was growing up in Gastonia, N.C., she quit going to her parents' rural Baptist church and started worshipping with the Presbyterians in town. She said her mother stopped by once and "sang out in her screechy Baptist voice. I said something awful to her and she never sang out again."

"I stifled her," Ms. Romaine said, "and I never want to do that again."

Two decades later, Ms. Romaine spends most of her time not on her career but on the preservation of screechy Baptist voices, rural blues belters, mountain cloggers and other Southern treasures.

Ms. Romaine and Bernice Reagan, director of the Smithsonian Institution's black American culture program, founded the Southern Folk Cultural Revival Project in Atlanta in 1966 as an offspring of student involvement in the civil-rights movement.

"It was an effort to show black and white performers together and show the positive aspects of both musics," she said.

The organization has grown into the Southern Grassroots Revival Project, with Ms. Romaine as its one full-time employee. A host of volunteers help her organize prison performances, public-school classes, semiannual concert tours and outdoor festivals in St. Simon's Island, Ga.; Eutaw, Ala.; and Nashville.

At 37, Ms. Romaine says she is different from the former missionary and mill-town girl who planned the first concert.

"I had this mentality about changing the world, but that has definitely changed," she said.

The revival project has become so successful that cities often call on Ms. Romaine for help in planning special celebrations.

She is up at the crack of dawn and goes to bed with the chickens.

Before I retired this was not a problem. Now that I no longer have a job, I would like to have fun and do the things I enjoy. I feel my wife should be willing to make the necessary adjustment. She refuses to cooperate, so I have been escorting a neighbor lady who likes to go out in the evening.

My wife is throwing a fit. She reads "Dear Abby" faithfully. Please tell her if she doesn't want to wind up sleeping alone, she'd better wake up.

NIGHT OWL

DEAR NIGHT OWL: If you're out at night and your wife goes to bed with the chickens and is up at the crack of dawn, she's sleeping alone most of the night anyway. Biological clocks are hard, but not impossible, to reset. A compromise is in order for both of you. Escorting your neighbor could be injurious to your marriage.

...

CONFIDENTIAL TO YOU: The person who says he isn't interested in politics is like the drowning person who says he isn't interested in water. Book tells of early TV

A THOUSAND SUNDAYS. By Jerry Bowles. Putnam. 229 Pages. $9.95.

Anyone who grew up with television in the 1950s and 1960s, could hardly be blamed for believing "The Ed Sullivan Show" had been on the air since the beginning of time and would remain so forever.

The show premiered in the summer of 1948 and it ran and ran — appearing nearly every Sunday night for the next 1,000 weeks or so.

"A Thousand Sundays" is the story of "The Ed Sullivan Show" (also known as "Toast of the Town") and of its host, a somewhat accidental star who nevertheless achieved great fame.

Sullivan had already made a name for himself as a successful newspaper columnist when he was launched into television.

Although he had always wanted to be a show-business star, his stiff mannerisms and speech hardly made him a candidate for a career on the stage.

But once Sullivan landed his show, he managed to take it far beyond anyone's expectations. During its 1,000 Sundays, Sullivan's stage played host to some of the world's greatest stars, introduced TV audiences to such cultural events as opera, ballet and the Broadway theater, and gave widespread exposure to such legends-to-be as the Beatles and Elvis Presley.

CHEROKEE OF CALIFORNIA

Rich pecan puffs

Attractive to look at, rich and delightful to eat.

10 3/4-ounce frozen all-butter pound cake, thawed
 1/4 cup butter
 2 tablespoons firmly packed light brown sugar
 1 large egg white
 1/8 teaspoon vanilla
 1/4 cup superfine white sugar
 1/4 cup coarsely chopped pecans

Shave crust from one end of cake; starting at the shaved end, cut eight 1/2-inch wide crosswise slices. (Store remaining cake to serve as desired.)

Cream butter and brown sugar; spread cake slices with mixture up to 1/4 inch from edges. Beat egg white and vanilla until soft peaks form; gradually beat in white sugar until egg whites holds stiff straight peaks; fold in pecans. Spread this meringue over cake slices, covering edges. Place well apart on a foil-lined cookie sheet. Bake in a preheated 500-degree oven until meringue browns lightly — 3 to 5 minutes. Serve warm or cold. To store overnight, cover loosely with saran. Makes 8.

CLEO STILES BRYAN is the author of a country cookbook, "Seems Like I Done It This-A-Way," now in its second printing. She wrote the book to preserve the roots and heritage of American family life and cookery. Mrs. Bryan was an extension home economist for 35 years and served as national president of extension economists. She is one of the Strawberry Junction craftsmen appearing at the Pampa Mall through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Mrs. Bryan will be available to autograph each cookbook sold.

SCRIMSHAW (etchings in ivory) is a true heritage folk art originally practiced aboard whaling ships. This piece was produced by Rudy Waldrop, a scrimshaw artist from Tahlequah, Okla. Other examples of Waldrop's work may be seen through Saturday during the Strawberry Junction Craft Show at the Pampa Mall.

 MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Once upon a time, Sammie Moore entertained thoughts of being a great inventor. Nowadays he dreams of starting a new wave in music.

Moore — "Ironin' Board Sam" to his fans — wants to be the world's first musician to sing and play the electric piano while submerged in the Atlantic Ocean.

Why?

"I wanted to find something unique. You find many, many singers that are good; many, many keyboard players that are good or maybe a good singer and piano player," Ironin' Board said in an interview. "I wanted to stand away from the bunch. I wanted to go in my own direction."

Moore, 41, first arrived in Memphis at age 20, his 65-pound, homemade keyboard suspended from his neck with a makeshift strap while he played on a corner of Beale

Street, birthplace of the blues.

He got his nickname when a sympathetic old lady showed up one day with an ironing board and told him to put his keyboard on it.

In recent months, Moore has been performing in Memphis nightclubs and in W. C. Handy Park on Beale Street, where he gives noontime concerts. In the past, he has also appeared in nightclubs in New Orleans and other cities.

He said he had already perfected his underwater act.

As part of his nightclub performances, Ironin' Board places himself in a homemade, 800-gallon aquarium, then lowers his homemade keyboard into the structure.

It cost him $2,900 and a year of labor to build the aquarium. He even made his own glue when he was unable to find a commercial brand strong enough for the project.

"After I built the aquarium where it would hold water, the other idea was how was I going to survive?" he said. "So I had to build a special helmet for myself. I didn't want to use an oxygen tank. I felt like I would have been cheating."

The helmet, made of the same thermoplastic material as the tank, is held in place by a harness which fits around Ironin' Board's waist and contains his amplifier and microphone. He uses a special cable to bring the sound out of the water.

But will it work in the Atlantic Ocean?

Isn't all this a little far-fetched?

Not for a man who lists a gasoline-powered air-conditioner, lighted jewelry and a "non-action" keyboard among his inventions. Or a man who once wailed out tunes while strolling across parallel cables with a 65-pound keyboard hung around his neck, 20 feet above the ground.

But Ironin' Board has given up the high-wire act.

"It wasn't exciting enough for me," he said.

THE WEEDER'S GUIDE

By EARL ARONSON
 AP Newsfeatures

Sex is being used to lure the destructive Japanese beetle into a trap that is non-poisonous and non-polluting.

The beetles, natives of Japan, were first reported in this country in 1916 near Riverton, N.J., and have spread from Maine southward to South Carolina and Georgia westward to the Mississippi River.

The new product is Bag-a-Bug, made by the J.T. Baker Chemical Co. The device, easily assembled, uses a sex attractor known as pheromone. Pheromones are substances that affect the behavior of other members of the same species and the attractor secreted by female insects can entice males from considerable distances.

An entire season's supply of sex attractor, reportedly equal to about 80,000 virgin female beetles, can be packed into a one-inch-square adhesive strip. The pheromone was first isolated and synthesized by U.S. Department of Agriculture researchers, who worked five seasons to synthesize it.

To draw females as well as males to the trap, the manufacturer uses a floral lure to appeal to both sexes' hunger instinct. The aromas released by the lure resemble those of the beetles' favorite plants and flowers. The floral lure comes in two small packets, each of which is formulated to last at least five weeks under normal weather conditions.

The baits, named Integrature, are the chemical equivalents of naturally occurring substances and will not attract animals, birds, bees or other beneficial insects, we were told.

The trap consists simply of two pieces of yellow plastic that interlock to form a cross-shaped vane, plus a disposable and replaceable Bag-a-Bug plastic bag. A galvanized steel stand has been designed for suspending the trap. The lures attach to the cross.

Instructions are to suspend the trap in full sun in the prevailing downwind direction about 30 feet from any plants or flower beds that need protection. The beetles should fly into the vane and fall into the bag where they will die. You don't have to touch them. Just knot the bag and dispose of it.

Traps should be placed well away from plants beetles normally infest. Large areas may be protected by traps placed around the perimeter at 150- to 200-foot intervals so there will always be traps downwind. They are available at garden shops.

The beetles spend about 10 months in the ground as white grubs. The adults emerge in late spring or early summer.

Periodically the females leave the plants to burrow into the ground to lay eggs from which grubs will hatch, then resume feeding. Adult beetles are quite active for 4-6 weeks, then disappear — in North Carolina by early August and in New England often not until frost. Traps should be in position from the time adults emerge, through the season.

The beetles will feed on more than 275 plants — flowers and vegetables, fruits and trees. They'll eat practically anything if their preferred foods aren't available. Grubs will eat lawngrass roots.

One Ohio trap user estimated that four traps collected 200,000 beetles in three weeks, based on an electronic counting scale. (Any queries about gardening problems must be accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Success in your endeavors is likely this coming year because you will base your hope and wishes upon realistic premises. That which you envision you can industriously attain.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) The type of associations you're apt to enjoy the most today are with friends who are tuned-in to your practical and industrious wave length. Idlers will bug you. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Being No. 1 is likely to be a bit more important today than usual. Your competitive drive will gain you the desired laurels.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It behoves you today to treat whatever occurs philosophically. You'll come through with flying colors by overlooking petty annoyances.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Something advantageous or even profitable could happen to you today through a situation where someone else has already done most of the spade work.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Harmonious conditions should prevail today in one-to-one relationships which are important to you. You know how to win allies.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Take advantage of being in the mood to clear up projects today. You should be able to get things done easily because you won't view them as tedious.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) This is a good day to entertain friends, but select those who are not too demanding. Keep the group small and the fare simple.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Give domestic and family matters priority today so that you can take care of demanding needs now and be free to pursue outside interests later.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're more adroit today at doing things of a mental nature rather than physical ones. Put your ledger work in order, or catch up on neglected correspondence.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In business or financial dealing you have considerable common sense to draw upon today. If you follow your practical instincts, a tide of profit is likely.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It will be difficult to behave passively today. Your take-charge urges will surface and you and others will be glad they did.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This is one of those days when your function better when left to your own devices. If at all possible, spend time free from outside influences when working on important projects.

Vikings, Redskins trailing with 3-5

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

They're a couple of 3-5 teams — but in these days of parity, of competitive balance and of multiple wild cards, the Minnesota Vikings and Washington Redskins aren't in such bad shape.

"Three and five is nothing to smile about," says Coach Bud Grant, whose Vikings, trailing first-place Detroit by two games in the National Conference's Central Division, visit Washington on Sunday. "To be a coach, you've got to be optimistic... If you're not, you're in tough shape."

The Redskins, meanwhile, are a distant four games behind Philadelphia in the NFC East. "We got ourselves in a hole losing five of our first six games," Redskins Coach Jack Pardee said. "We know you have to win the second half of the season if you have any playoff aspirations. But you have to be next to insane, with a 3-5 record, to talk about the playoffs. If we can work our way back to a contending position, then we'll worry about it."

Also on Sunday it's Philadelphia at Seattle, Dallas at St. Louis, San Francisco at Detroit, Atlanta at Buffalo, Baltimore at Kansas City, Green Bay at Pittsburgh, the New York Giants at Tampa Bay, San Diego at Cincinnati, Houston at Denver, Miami at Oakland, New Orleans at Los Angeles and the New York Jets at New England. On Monday it's Chicago at Cleveland.

The Vikings have lost four of their last five games to share last place with Chicago and has been limited to just one field goal in the past two games. Two of Minnesota's victories have come against Chicago.

Quarterback Tommy Kramer, a hot passer earlier this year, has a jammed thumb and dislocated fourth finger, both in his right hand — his throwing hand — and may not start. If he's benched, untested Steve Dils will get the call.

The Eagles own a 7-1 record, the best in the league, and will be trying to improve on that against a Seattle team still trying to win its first home game of the year. The Seahawks are 0-3 in the Kingdome and 3-1 on the road. Philadelphia quarterback Ron Jaworski, knocked out of last Sunday's narrow victory over Chicago, is expected to start.

Dallas, meanwhile, trails the Eagles by one game and will be out to stay in shooting distance of first place. The Cardinals probably will be going after Cowboys quarterback Danny White the way they went after Bert Jones a week ago, when they sacked the Baltimore passer a dozen times.

San Francisco, in a five-game skid, hopes to snap out of it in the Silverdome, where Detroit, too, is trying to right itself. The Lions, 1½-game leaders in the NFC Central Division, have lost three of four games.

Atlanta, 5-3, and Buffalo, 6-2, playing in the Bills' windy Rich Stadium, each share first place in their division, the Falcons with Los Angeles in the NFC West, the Bills with New England in the American Conference East.

Chicago Cub player learns he has cancer

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The closest Joe Macko ever came to the major leagues was spring training with the Cleveland Indians. And now his son Steve's shot at the big leagues may be spoiled by cancer.

But Steve Macko says not even the cancerous tumor doctors discovered last week will keep him from the Chicago Cubs' spring training in February.

The younger Macko says he had wanted to go back to the Cubs for the last few weeks of this season, but decided to wait.

"If the Cubs had been battling for first or second place, it would have been one thing," he said, "but we were last. I didn't want to wreck my career or do anything stupid."

"It really hasn't hit me yet. It hasn't hurt me," he said. "At least I really believe I can get rid of this. I just hope the Cubs don't hold anything against me... the doctors tell me there's an 80 to 90 percent chance I'll respond to this therapy."

Macko, who will be 26 next week, checked into the Arlington Memorial Hospital last Friday, bothered by an enlarged testicle. He assumed his problem was due to a brutal second-base collision with Pittsburgh Pirate Bill Madlock.

The August 5 collision already had damaged Macko's knee.

"They found a malignant, cancerous tumor," the young ballplayer said Wednesday. "It has spread to certain lymph areas in my chest and the doctors have all told me the cure rate is between 15 and 25 percent."

He was scheduled to begin chemotherapy Thursday.

Steve's father is currently equipment manager for the Texas Rangers, but behind him in his more than 15-year career are stints as a minor league player, player-manager and manager.

"Next year was the year Steve was going to get his chance," he says. "I always figured that since I didn't make it, at least I had brought someone up who would play in the big leagues."

Borger pounces Pampa ninth grade

Borger pounced Pampa 22-6 in Thursday night's ninth grade football game conducted in Borger.

On the first play of the game, Dennis Kuempel ran 58 yards for an apparent score, but it was called back on a holding penalty. The two teams battled to a 0-0 score to end the first quarter.

Borger scored to take the lead 6-0 in the second quarter.

Seconds before the half, David Fatheree caught a Deven Cross pass and ran it down to the 15-yard line before time ran out in the half.

Borger scored 8 points in the third quarter and another 8 in the fourth quarter to round out the scoring for them.

Danny Sebastian got Pampa on the scoreboard with a 62-yard scoring run, giving Pampa its only 6 point.

Harvester Coach Dick Crockett said, "Our offense just couldn't put together a sustained drive, and Borger did."

Pampa is now 3-1 in district play and hopes to rebound next week against Dumas.

Russell named top player

NEW YORK (AP) — For once, Red Auerbach agreed with the media.

Auerbach, who often has had his differences with the working press during his lengthy tenure in Boston, heartily endorsed the selection of Bill Russell as the greatest player in the 35-year history of the National Basketball Association.

"I don't care how strong your guards or forwards are, you have to build from the middle," said Auerbach, who was Russell's coach on the Celtics and now is the club's president. "If I was starting a team, there's only one player I'd pick: Bill Russell."

Russell edged archrival Wilt Chamberlain in the voting among members of the Pro Basketball Writers Association of America, conducted in conjunction with the NBA's 35th anniversary. Auerbach was voted the league's greatest coach, while the 1966-67 Philadelphia 76ers — led by Chamberlain — were named the league's greatest team.

Russell and Chamberlain headed the 11-member all-time team announced Thursday. Also selected were centers George Mikan and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, forwards Elgin Baylor, Bob Pettit, Julius Erving and John Havlicek and guards Oscar Robertson, Jerry West and Bob Cousy.

Auerbach praised Russell as "one of the brightest, smartest players ever. You might fool him once, but you could never fool him twice — never. He always made the big play. He made the blocked shot into an art form. And he was team oriented — all he wanted to do was win."

Russell and the Celtics won with greater regularity than any other team in NBA history. After leaving the University of San Francisco in 1956, Russell led Boston to 11 championships in 13 pro seasons. That included a streak of eight in a row that was ended by the 1967 Philadelphia club.

"When I signed my first pro contract," Russell recalled, "Red (Auerbach) asked me whether I was concerned about my scoring. I had a reputation as not being much of a scorer in college, and I said I was a little worried. So he told me, 'From this day on, every time we talk about contracts we will never discuss statistics. I want you to think about winning, not about scoring.' That took a lot of the pressure off me."

"I always played to win. And I found out the best way was to play in a style that would make my teammates play better. I was fortunate to play with teammates like Cousy and Havlicek, who were winners; for a coach like Auerbach, who knew how to mold a winner; and for an owner like Walter Brown, who knew what it took to build a winner."

Russell, a five-time winner of the NBA's Most Valuable Player award, is the game's second leading career rebounder, behind Chamberlain. Chamberlain also is the all-time top scorer, while Robertson heads the assists list.

Members of the PBWAA were given a ballot of 50 names chosen by the NBA and asked to vote for 10. The only active players on the ballot were Abdul-Jabbar and Erving, and both made the all-time team.

Mikan, 56, is the senior member of the team. The league's first dominant big man, he played on five title teams during his nine years as a pro in the late 1940s and early 1950s. Some have questioned how well he would do in the NBA today, but not Auerbach.

"If he played in the NBA today, or tomorrow, he would be a great player," contended Auerbach. "He had the competitive drive you need to be a great player. He was a tough guy then and he would be a tough guy now."

Auerbach was asked whether he would like to have coached the all-time team.

"To be perfectly frank, I wouldn't," he replied. "I think it would be a lousy ballclub. There are too many great stars. You'd have all kinds of internal problems, chemistry problems. I'd only want three or four of these guys — keep the rest."

To which Baylor responded, "Red might not want to coach it, but I'd hate to have to play against this team."

Astros partners move to reverse firing

HOUSTON (AP) — Limited partners controlling 66 percent interest in the Houston Astros say they are moving cautiously to try to reverse the firing of Tal Smith, the general manager who moved the club from the National League cellar to first place in the West division.

"Everybody is busy working on it," said Don Sanders, a Houston investments executive who holds 2 percent interest in the franchise. "We don't want to rush into something and harm our case. We don't want our efforts to boomerang."

According to legal documents, 20 Houston residents invested $3.36 million for a 56 percent interest in the limited partnership under which the Astros have operated the past 15 months.

Many of the limited partners expressed outrage Monday when General Partner John McMullen fired Smith.

Dave LeFevre, a New York attorney who paid $600,000 for a 10 percent interest, said he and other partners were studying possible ways of reversing McMullen's actions. He said one possible method was to dissolve the limited partnership.

"We will go about it in a most thorough and professional manner and we won't rule out any options," LeFevre said. "That is subject to the partnership agreement and the laws of the land."

Documents filed when the partnership was formed in July 1979 showed McMullen, a New York industrialist, holds 25 percent interest. Another 8 percent is held within his family and 1 percent by a New Jersey neighbor.

The Certificate of Limited Partnership indicates holders of interests totaling 60 percent or more could dissolve the arrangement.

The document lists the terms of the partnership as continuing to Dec. 21, 2029, "subject to the earlier dissolution thereof in the event of the death, retirement, legal incompetency, bankruptcy or general assignment for the benefits of the creditors of the general partner; or of an agreement to dissolve in writing signed by partners having partnership interest aggregating 60 percent ..."

Some of the limited partners met Wednesday in New York with LeFevre.

Scottish jabber takes on O'Grady tonight

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP) — Jim Watt, the World Boxing Council lightweight champion, has a special motivation for his meeting with American challenger Sean O'Grady.

Watt, who fights 21-year-old O'Grady at the Kelvin Hall Arena here before dawn Saturday, will be bidding for a record number of world title fight wins by a Scottish boxer.

The fight will be televised live in the United States tonight at 9 p.m. EST by ABC.

Watt, who jabs with clinical precision, will be making his fourth defense of the title he won by defeating Alfredo Pitalua of Colombia in April last year.

The 32-year-old champion will be facing a challenger

11 years his junior who has lost only one of his 74 professional fights.

But those statistics don't scare Watt, who is unbeaten since 1976, when manager Terry Lawless saved his flagging career.

"O'Grady seems to stand and take punishment," said the champion. "I haven't been impressed by what I have seen of him on film."

"The kid makes a lot of mistakes. He tends to take a punch then leave his jaw hanging out. He gets in some bad positions and he's not been punished for that."

Watt, a rich and successful businessman, can have few title fights left in him, but he has psyched himself up for his contest with the 21-year-old "bubble gum kid," as O'Grady has been dubbed.

According to Watt, O'Grady has followed the wrong training program, training at the night, while Watt has eased off on his midnight runs.

"It's crazy what he has been doing," said Watt. "Any fighter, whatever his age, hates to sit around and wait before sparring."

"It makes you tense and bad tempered. Because of the schedule they have worked out for him, Sean has had no time to relax — and that is extremely bad."

Both fighters have had to change their normal pre-fight routines because of the scheduling of the fight for American television.

"It doesn't worry me. I'm told there are a lot of people in Glasgow fighting at that time of the morning," joked Watt.

Writer picks Dallas, says boo! to Houston

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

On a night when ghosts and goblins gallop over the countryside, it seems perfectly appropriate to deliver a long, loud "Boo!" — not for Halloween, but for the Pro Picker.

This week's recovery recommendations include Denver over Houston and Baltimore over Kansas City. Proceed at your own risk.

The picks:

Steelers 31, Packers 7
Powerhouse Pittsburgh has lost three in a row because injuries are football's great equalizer. It's time to get well. Pittsburgh is favored in the spread by 13½ points.

Browns 24, Bears 16
Cleveland, tied for the AFC Central lead, needs a big game from Brian Sipe to solve a tough Chicago defense. Cleveland favored by 6.

Rams 27, Saints 14
Another step up the draft ladder for winless New Orleans. Every minus begins to become a plus at this stage. Los Angeles favored by 14.

Redskins 24, Vikings 7
The pumpkin shows a third straight win for the rebounding Redskins and another loss for the Vikes, who've dropped four of their last five. Washington favored by 7.

Raiders 28, Dolphins 10
Jim Plunkett, filling in for injured Dan Pastorini, has been simply sensational for the Raiders. The bottom is dropping out for Miami. Oakland favored by 7½.

Patriots 31, Jets 14
New England must recover fast from last week's blowout at Buffalo. The Jets will cooperate. New England favored by 10.

Eagles 24, Seahawks 17
Ron Jaworski is hurting but Philadelphia is proud of the NFL's best record and will battle to keep it going. Philadelphia favored by 3.

Chargers 30, Bengals 17
Sometimes, it seems San Diego can score at will. Problem is sometimes the other guys do the same thing. San Diego favored by 3½.

Bucs 17, Giants 13
Three rookies in the New York secondary give Doug Williams an inviting opportunity to put some points up for the Bucs. Tampa Bay favored by 7.

Lions 30, 49ers 24
A bounce-back week for Detroit, still 1½ games in front in the NFC Central Division. San Francisco is in a five-game slide. Detroit favored by 9.

Cowboys 31, Cardinals 13
Dallas survived the San Diego Bombers very nicely and should have no trouble with Cardinals. Dallas favored by 5.

Broncos 17, Oilers 14
No runner has ever gained 200 or more yards three straight weeks. Earl Campbell gets his shot against Denver. Houston favored by 3½.

Players awarded one year eligibility

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Four Texas football players — including starting offensive tackle John Tobolka and injured co-captain Vance Bedford — have been awarded an extra year of eligibility under the Southwest Conference's hardship rule.

Bedford, a senior cornerback, hurt his knee in the first game of the season against Arkansas and is out for the year. Tobolka will be back for his senior year in 1981, and running back Terry Orr, who had shoulder surgery, will have four years of eligibility remaining.

Also given an extra year was sophomore Mike Kelly.

Salem's "real" witches promise quiet Halloween

SALEM, Mass. (AP) — Warty creatures with black hats and broomsticks are haunting "Witch City" tonight. But they're just trick-or-treaters — the city's "real" witches have no intention of doing anything scary on Halloween.

Instead, there'll be a "calm and quiet" ritual for the 450 self-proclaimed witches of Salem — the town where 19 people accused of witchcraft in 1692 were hanged and one was pressed to death.

Halloween — the word comes from "All Hallows' Even" or the night before All Saints' Day — is their traditional New Year's Eve. Robed in black, the color they believe absorbs all energy and makes them powerful, they planned to dance in the traditional "magic circle" that helps them meditate and project health and prosperity for the coming months.

"It will be calm and quiet. Then we'll party," said Eddie Kuva, 31, a teacher at the Fernald State School in Waltham. Kuva is a Catholic who says he uses witchcraft as a science to augment his religion.

This Halloween's ritual won't be open to the public as it was for the past nine years. "We found that it got too big and commercial the past couple years," Kuva said.

"It got so people who didn't understand were showing up in Dracula suits," said Laurie

Cabot, another practicing witch who formed a coven with 12 other women.

Proclaimed "Official Witch of Salem" in 1977 by then Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, she's listed under "Witch" in the chamber of commerce directory and once was called on to help the Boston Red Sox out of a 10-game losing streak. She appeared in Fenway Park to shake spells into the bats, and the team won its next game.

Ms. Cabot, 48, is the mother of two teen-age daughters and works with dyslexic children at the Salem Research Center. She also lectures regularly on witchcraft, hoping to dispel some misconceptions that have abounded for centuries as well as the storybook stereotypes that appear every Oct. 31.

As religions became organized, she said they co-opted the circle, chalice, incense, staff and vestments of witchcraft and found it "collectively OK to persecute witches."

"A witch originally meant a wise person, a seeker of knowledge," she has said. But now, people think of witches as satanic or silly. "We've been so demeaned that even our laugh is a 'cackle,'" she said.

Although Salem has capitalized on its witch trial history — from its museum to such things as "Witch City Auto Body" — Ms. Cabot says the community is only mildly tolerant of those who engage in witchcraft.

"If we ever became terribly obvious as a religion, I'm sure they'd burn us again," she said.

Shah's son proclaims self king

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Reza Pahlavi, 20-year-old son of the late shah, today proclaimed himself "Reza Shah II," the king of Iran, from his exile in Egypt and called on patriotic Iranians to join forces in ending "the nightmare" wrought by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's revolution in their homeland.

Pahlavi, a six-footer, wore a dark blue suit and tie and sat on a chair in Kubbeh Palace behind a marble-topped table as he read his 11-minute address. When he finished, he said, "Long Live Iran. May God protect its people." He leaned forward and kissed a copy of the Koran lying on the table, then stood at attention while the imperial Iranian anthem boomed out in the 400-room palace from a tape recorder turned on by a palace worker six feet away.

At the outset of his speech, Pahlavi also kissed the Koran, the holy book of Islam, said he was the rightful successor to the Peacock Throne and swore to defend Iran's "independence, national sovereignty, and the legitimate rights of its people" as the "lawful king of Iran."

Pahlavi, whose speech coincided with his 20th birthday, told his countrymen, "We must unite in love" to rebuild Iran and "construct a compassionate society" based on "the civilized values of justice, freedom, order and the rule of law."

"I can understand and sympathize with your sufferings and your inner torment," Pahlavi said to the Iranian people more than 1,000 miles away. "I share your misery and frustration. I shed the tears which you must hide."

Two trains of thought revealed in sex survey

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three-quarters of college students questioned in an unscientific survey say they expect to be happily married and sexually faithful, though many say they expect the divorce rate to continue to climb.

"What you find is a tremendous consensus for monogamy and fidelity," said Harris Goldstein of a Beverly Hills sex education group called Seminars on Sexuality.

"Fully three-quarters of the people (surveyed) feel they are going to be happily married and remain faithful to only one person," Goldstein said Wednesday.

But at the same time, he said, 70 percent of the 600 students questioned at the University of California at Los Angeles said they expected the divorce rate to remain the same or increase in the next 10 years.

Goldstein, a former market research analyst, cautioned that the sample of 350 men and 250 women surveyed was not scientifically selected. Questionnaires were distributed among 1,400 people who attended a free campus showing of "A Change of Seasons," a movie billed as a study of sexual relationships.

HARD TO BEAR. A popular stuffed animal, the "Pot Bellied Bear" is being pulled off the shelves of department stores because it may have virus in it that could injure a child. A spokesman for the federal Consumer Product Safety Commission said hundreds of thousands of the bears have already been sold.

BE A CARRIER: The Big Job you can handle.

In recent weeks, we've been telling you what it takes to be a carrier... and what you get out of being one.

Having a newspaper route is like running your own business. You buy newspapers wholesale from us and deliver them to subscribers for a profit. The success of your newspaper route business depends on whether you collect and pay bills on time and keep accurate records of these transactions... on how well you organize your time, get along with people, solve problems and handle yourself in tough situations... on whether you give courteous, reliable service... even in bad weather!

Having a route is a learning experience one that can help you do better in school; one that gives you valuable job skills and references for the future. But, you get a lot more than an education out of being a carrier — benefits that you won't find in most jobs open to young people.

You have a steady income, one you can depend upon every week. You can increase these regular earnings with tips, and by adding new customers to your route. With carrier profits, you can buy the things you want like a bicycle, stereo equipment and clothes. Or you can save for college, or a car. It's your money, so you make the decisions.

Delivering newspapers is fun, not "drudge" work. You get to meet people and make new friends!

Being a carrier is a challenging and satisfying experience: one you and your parents can be proud of, one you can have without giving up much of your free time.

So, if you're ready to handle the Big Job, phone 669-2525 or send this coupon to find out if there is a route available in your neighborhood.

73rd ANNIVERSARY SALE

Shop now and save!

Our 73rd year! It's really been a big one! And there's more great things to come! We made a lot of changes this year to better serve you: a new store in Pampa, expanded and improved selection, a re-dedication to personal service, and hundreds of other little things that, by themselves are hard to detect, but together make a store a much nicer place for you to shop! As you can tell from the excerpt from the 1938 Golden Anniversary Edition of the Globe-News at right, the Hub had already come a long way then since its pioneer birth in 1907. With a heritage like that, we couldn't resist making this year's birthday celebration something more special than it has been. The 73rd Anniversary Sale begins Friday, October 30, at all three Hub stores in all departments! Come help us celebrate and save!

From the August 14, 1938, Golden Anniversary Edition of the Amarillo Globe-News.

Suits in Glass

The Hub Clothiers of today is a continuation of a pioneer Amarillo clothing store established more than 31 years ago by O. M. Saylor and Frederick Kendall. The store, known at first as Saylor and Kendall, was located at 414 Polk Street, and was noted among early Amarilloans as the originator of a new idea in clothing display when it put all suits on hangers in cabinets with glass doors. This was a new thing in this section of the country, since up to that time the suits had merely been piled on the counters. Several years after the firm was opened, it was incorporated with Saylor, Kendall, and W. O. Allen as incorporators. The store continued to expand until it had built a Panhandle-wide business and forced to move to larger quarters at 412 Polk Street. In 1917 the firm of Saylor and Kendall dissolved when Allen and Kendall interests to Kendall.
