American 'doughboy' recalls era of 'the great war'

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Time has robbed Poppa Shook of many souvenirs, but his memories of the world war that shattered his isolated, peaceful farm life are crystal clear.

"Moths ate up my uniform a long time ago," the 85-year-old veteran said, running his fingers along a rusted helmet.

Shook quit school to follow the wheat harvests in Kansas and was working 40 acres on his father's Rising Star farm in the early days of World War I when he was called up.

"We worked from can till can't," he said during a recent recollection from his home here. "Then America got in the great war and I was drafted."

"We didn't care much about world affairs back then," he said. "And besides, we were too interested in making things grow off the land to worry about the Kaiser."

Evading the draft never entered young Shook's mind. "I thought if I had to go, I had to go. I sure wasn't a horsin' to go. But somebody had to fight for the country."

After seven months of training, Pfc. Jay M. Shook joined Company "B" of the 111th Engineers and was transported to France in the fall of 1917. His company supplied food and ammunition to the front lines and rebuilt bridges destroyed by the Germans.

"Why, we could put up a new bridge in three hours and have those horse-drawn wagons hauling supplies up to the front in no time," he said.

His battlefield recollections are more painful. "Sometimes, those bombs would make my hair stand up. I'd fall down on the ground or jump in a trench when I'd hear 'em whistling over."

"I saw pretty awful sights during those months," he said. "Some of our own boys were meaner than the dickens. When the bosch (Germans) were overrun, they put up their hands to surrender. But sometimes they got shot anyway."

"I'd go by the trenches where dead bosch were layin' with their hands up. Those boys should have taken 'em prisoner."

He said he learned of the armistice while marching through the ruins of a French village on Nov. 11, 1918.

"It was just after noon time when this big shot from headquarters came by and said the Germans signed the peace treaty at 11 a.m.," Shook said.

"We couldn't believe the war was over. We just stopped there and camped. That night, we saw great fires all around the forest. Somebody said soldiers were setting off bonfires to celebrate."

"We set there, all worn out, watching and rejoicing with them."

The elation of peace was surpassed only by the joy of coming home, Shook said.

"I'll tell you, when that old Statue of Liberty came into view, there wasn't nobody who could keep out boys from crowdin' to the front to get a good look at her," he said, smiling.

"That was a great day. We's comin' home."

The forecast calls for mostly fair skies today with warm afternoons. The high for today will be in the upper 70s with overnight lows in the upper 40s.

Christopher explains U.S. position to Algerians

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — The United States replied to Iran's terms for release of the 52 American hostages with a pledge not to interfere in Iranian affairs and an explanation of obstacles to meeting the other conditions set by Iran's revolutionary regime, U.S. officials say.

Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher delivered the American reply Monday to Algerian Foreign Minister Mohamed Benyahia for transmission to the Iranian government in Tehran. Christopher flew to Algiers with Deputy Treasury Secretary Robert Carswell and three other U.S. officials from Washington. They planned to remain in the Algerian capital to await Iran's response.

It was assumed that the text of the U.S. reply was forwarded to Tehran within hours of Christopher's one-hour meeting with Benyahia. But early today there had been no comment from Radio Tehran.

Although the contents of the U.S. message were kept secret, officials in Washington summed them up in general terms. They said along with the pledge to stay out of Iran's affairs, given repeatedly in recent months by President Carter and other U.S. spokesmen, the note explained the legal obstacles to meeting the Iranian demands for cancellation of all American claims against Iran and the return to Iran of all assets the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and close relatives transferred abroad.

The fourth condition called for the freeing of more than $8 billion in Iranian assets frozen by President Carter. U.S. officials have said there will be no difficulty in canceling the freeze order, but several billions of the assets are also blocked by legal claims by American firms and individuals against Iran.

"We would like to be as positive as possible, but they have to understand the legal and other complications," one official who asked not to be identified told The Associated Press.

"Generally, it's a positive response," he added. "It's hard to say what flexibility, if any, there is in the Iranian position. Also, how much will there be to end the thing."

Qualified sources said the U.S. reply was "long, detailed and complex."

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said Christopher delivered it in person "to explain to the government of Algeria several complex legal and financial aspects."

Bush names staff

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retired Adm. Daniel J. Murphy will become chief of staff to Vice President-elect George Bush after Bush takes office Jan. 20, it was announced today.

In other appointments, Peter E. Teeley, press secretary to Bush during the presidential campaign, will have the same post in the vice president's office and Jennifer A. Fitzgerald will be appointments secretary.

Bush made the announcements through the Reagan-Bush Committee campaign headquarters in suburban Arlington, Va.

Murphy is currently deputy undersecretary of defense, a post he has held since 1977 when he retired from the Navy. Earlier, he had served as deputy to the director of central intelligence when Bush was CIA director.

Teeley is a former director of communications and press secretary for the Republican National Committee and held similar posts for Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y. and former Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich.

Ms. Fitzgerald was special assistant to Bush when he was chief of the U.S. liaison office in China.

Horse project bypasses rift

BY ALETHA DAVIS
CITY EDITOR

Steps to heal a rift in the Horse Project Group of Gray County 4-H Club members were initiated Monday night in a meeting which was originally called by County Extension Agents Joe VanZandt and Carl Gibson to organize a second Horse Project group. The threatening split in the group follows a protested election of officers.

The faction attending the latest meeting appeared at the session to ply the agents to continue in efforts to keep the project, which involves approximately 40 4-H Club members, according to Gibson.

During the course of the meeting last night, a number of members and parents protested the election of officers of the project on Sept. 8, stating they had not been notified of the meeting.

Gibson said the Horse Project meeting announcement for September was omitted through error from a newsletter customarily mailed to club members on a monthly basis. "Tradition has been for the project to meet on the first Monday of the month, unless it's Labor Day," he said. "About 20" members attended the September meeting, Gibson added, saying this number represented about half of the membership based on last year's roll.

When and by whom the meeting was scheduled was not determined in the course of the meeting Monday night.

Reportedly a petition was circulated during the Oct. 6 meeting and presented to the membership along with a motion to re-elect officers and adult leaders.

A special meeting was called for Oct. 13, with a portion of the membership understanding a re-election would be conducted. At this meeting, VanZandt reportedly announced there would be no re-election of officers.

A second meeting of 4-H members is reported to have taken place at this point. However, minutes of proceedings were not kept on this portion of the meeting, officials said.

A group of club members contend the group once again voted to conduct a re-election.

After this session, a letter was mailed to the full membership, by extension agents, stating a second group would be formed to eliminate the misunderstanding. The second group was scheduled for organization and election of officers during the meeting last night.

Feelings of wrongdoing were expressed by a number of parents attending the meeting. After a lengthy discussion, the group came to agreement to offer suggestions to salvage the project on a one-group level for consideration by a reported opposing faction, composed of those who reportedly attended the Sept. 8 meeting where new officers were elected.

Carl Gibson has scheduled a meeting of members at the high school level for Wednesday at 11:30 a.m. to discuss the suggestions with members who were unable to attend the full session Monday night.

Agents will schedule a meeting with the other group in the near future.

Jack McAndrews was appointed spokesman and representative of the group attending the meeting last night.

"Enough little kids have been hurt. We just want to get our project together and all work together," high school 4-H member LaJonna Taylor said last night.

The group agreed to work from this standpoint in outlining possible courses of action to prevent a split in the project.

The Gray County Horse Project is comprised of 4-H'ers who are members of several clubs. A Horse Project is also active in McLean and participates in the Gray County 4-H Horse Show, the projects' largest annual endeavor.

The Horse Project has also seen parade activity, having been named winner for two consecutive years on the local level.

Following county participation, project members are eligible for advancement to the district and state levels in participation.

Gray County Commissioners invited to attend the session last night were not present.

A spokesman for the group said commissioners had been invited to attend the meeting.

Gray County commissioners were unavailable for comment this morning.

Bell telephone rates increase TODAY!

Increased rates for Southwestern Bell go into effect today, adding about 80 cents to the average customer's monthly bill.

The rate increases, under bond until a final decision on the rates is given by the Texas Public Utilities Commission (PUC), will total $152.8 million, about half the company's original request of $326.3 million. The PUC may order the company to refund to customers any or all of the bonded rate increase with interest.

The effect on the residential customers will be about 80 cents a month. According to Bell officials, under the temporary rate schedule, for a one-party flat rate residential customer with a standard rotary dial telephone, the total monthly increase will be 80 cents, based on a 30-cent increase for the access line and a 50-cent increase for the instrument.

Rates for two-, four- and eight-party basic residential service will increase in the range of 65 to 70 cents per month, based on access line increases varying from 15-20 cents and 50 cents for a standard rotary dial telephone.

A one-party flat business rate will increase in a range of 85 cents to $1.30 per month in most locations, based on access line increase of 35 to 80 cents and 50 cents for a standard rotary dial.

The monthly Touch Tone line rate will increase by 20 cents for residences and 25 cents for business. The additional Touch Tone line charge must be added to any monthly increases for access lines and instruments.

The bonded rates roughly parallel the PUC staff recommendation of $152.8 million made early in hearings on the rate increases.

The bonded rates will be in effect until the Texas Public Utilities Commission makes the final decision on the full rate request. Based on the commission's final ruling, the PUC could order the company to make customer refunds, with interest, on some or all the bonded rates.

A "continuing critical need for additional revenues" prompted the Southwestern Bell decision to put in rates under bond, according to Paul Roth, vice president of revenues and public affairs for Texas.

"We've documented a need for $326.3 million," Roth said. "In no way do we concede that we need any less. However, we feel that the staff recommendation is a good reference point for implementing temporary rates to provide some relief until a final decision is reached."

"The data on which this case is documented is seven months old, demonstrating we do not have the ability to gain prompt pricing relief as other businesses have. The situation is not improving. In the interests of continuing good telephone service in Texas, we simply cannot wait," Roth said.

"Naturally, we'd prefer to have a final decision before implementing any rates," Roth said. "However, a PUC determination apparently will not be made for several weeks. Meanwhile, our need for increased rates has not diminished. Inflation continues at high levels, offsetting our gains in expense savings and sales. Interest rates are above our earnings level. We still are investing huge sums to meet the needs of a growing Texas."

He said Southwestern Bell has never before implemented statewide rates under bond in Texas.

"We would prefer not to put in bonded rates now, but the unusual length of the hearings caused us to do so," Roth said.

Roth said the prolonged hearings resulted from introduction of some unusually complex issues. One of the most critical and complex issues, the cost study methodology to be used in pricing various services, is the subject of a separate docket pending before the PUC.

"It is our hope that the cost issue and other complex points will be resolved before we file another rate case. If so, future rate hearings should be handled in a much shorter time frame, just as our earlier cases," Roth said.

Southwestern Bell filed the $326.3 million request on July 7. Hearings began Sept. 15 and ended Oct. 27. Thousands of pages of testimony and exhibits were introduced by all parties in the case.

Hearing Examiner Philip Ricketts, who presided over the hearings, must first make his recommendation as to the outcome of the case. Then, the full Public Utility Commission must consider the examiner's recommendation and enter a final order on the rate request.

The final decision process will continue beyond the bonding date, Roth said.

Texas law provides for putting rates into effect under bond if the PUC has not reached a final decision within a specified time limit. The Southwestern Bell bonding date under the time frame is Nov. 11.

O.K. MOM, I'LL BE OFF IN A MINUTE! The cost of the modern and most vital line of human communications is going up today. The average residential customer will be asked to pay about 80 cents a month more. The telephone system is implementing rate increases to the tune of $152.8 million. Actually, the figure is a reduction. Southwestern Bell officials originally asked for $326.3 million.

Ambulance attendant dedicated to his job

Friends of Jay Kipling "Kip" Craft, 19, 1125 Terrace, say being an ambulance attendant was more than a job to him — it was a dedication.

Kip died Monday morning in St. Anthony's Hospital from injuries he suffered when the ambulance he was allegedly test-driving crashed with a Buick Riviera Saturday at the intersection of Loop 171 and Texas 60, a half mile east of Pampa.

The 6 foot, 4 inch blonde was two weeks short of his twentieth birthday.

A graduate of the Career Education Center in emergency medical training (EMT) in Denver, Kip had recently moved to Pampa and received his EMT training at St. Anthony's Hospital of Amarillo.

He was currently attending Clarendon College while working for Metropolitan Ambulance of Pampa as an attendant.

Paul Sublett, an employee of Metropolitan, said Kip had a special feeling for the Head Start program in Denver, driving a van for the children before moving to Pampa.

"He kept the clipping about the little girl (Jolee Burger, 6, injured in an accident on McCullough Nov. 2) in his pocket. When she was transferred to Amarillo for treatment, the little girl wanted him to put her in the car," Sublett said.

"He was really compassionate with little children. He would hold babies and talk to them all the way to Amarillo," he said.

Kip was good with all patients, though, he said. "I always felt at ease with him in the back of the ambulance."

stopped on the side of the road, working on the vehicle shortly before the wreck.

Two women from Wheeler, passengers in the Riviera, died that afternoon. They were identified as Ora Wood Stiles, 72, and Elizabeth Mackey Stiles, 77, both of Route 1, Wheeler. The women, dead on arrival at Highland General Hospital, were sisters-in-law.

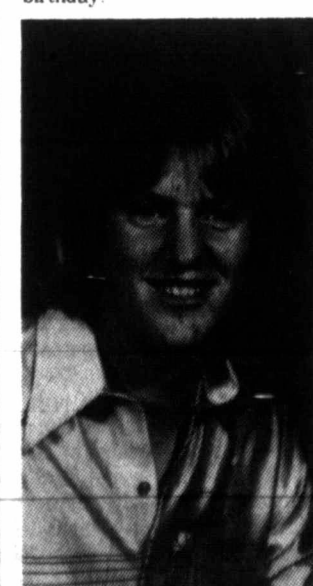

Officers, who investigated the fatal accident, could not be reached today for comment.

Services for Kip will be at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday in the chapel of the First United Methodist Church with the Rev. J. B. Fowler, pastor, officiating. Mr. Fowler will be assisted by the Rev. Van Boulware, pastor of the Community Christian Center. Cremation will be Thursday in Denver.

A second memorial service will be conducted at 10 a.m. Saturday in the Washington Park Methodist Church of Denver.

Survivors include his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Joe Craft of Denver; one sister, Dana Craft of Ft. Benning, Ga.; one brother, Jeremy Craft of Denver and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilson of Pampa and J. I. Craft of Andrews.

The family requests memorials be sent to the EMT Scholarship fund of the Career Education Center, 2650 Elliot, Denver, Colo.

SCREENING PROJECT IN LEFORS SCHOOLS

The National Kidney Foundation of West Texas will sponsor a urinalysis screening project in the Lefors School system Wednesday for grades Kindergarten - 12. This program is designed to detect kidney disease early among school age children at no cost to the child or the school.

Kidney and urinary tract diseases affect more than 13 million American men, women and children and continues to be one of the major causes of work loss and school absenteeism. Of these people, 43,000 need an artificial kidney just to stay alive, some of these are children. The mortality rate due to kidney disease is 54,000 annually, more people than are killed in traffic accidents each year. There are currently more than 200 people in the area who must sustain life on an artificial kidney machine because of renal failure. Dr. Miguel Rios, chief nephrologist at the Amarillo High Plains Dialysis Center, and president of the National Kidney Foundation of West Texas board of directors, states that thirty percent of all patients presently on dialysis could have avoided this costly, time-consuming treatment if diagnosis had been made in early childhood.

Iran threatened with destruction

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraqi President Saddam Hussein threatened Iran with destruction if it did not surrender its claim to the disputed waterway between the two countries, but Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr claimed his forces have "effectively stopped" the Iraqi invaders.

Good news for jail house lawyers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, providing good news for jailhouse lawyers, says prison inmates rarely, if ever, should be penalized financially for filing fruitless lawsuits.

By a 7-2 vote Monday, the justices reversed a ruling that would have forced Russell Hughes, a state prison inmate at Joliet, Ill., to reimburse the state attorney general's office the $400 it spent defending prison officials from Hughes' civil rights lawsuit.

"The fact that a prisoner's complaint, even when liberally construed, cannot survive a motion to dismiss does not, without more, entitle the defendant to attorneys' fees," the court ruled.

"An unrepresented litigant should not be punished for his failure to recognize subtle factual or legal deficiencies in his claims," the court said in its unsigned opinion.

Justice William H. Rehnquist dissented, and Chief Justice Warren E. Burger voted to hear Hughes' arguments rather than overturn the lower court's ruling.

Monday's action revived one portion of Hughes' lawsuit, which now will return to a federal court in Chicago.

Nursing home shootout claims one victim

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — A man who broke into a nursing home dispensary was shot to death Monday night after holding hostages for a brief time, then wounding a police officer with a shotgun blast.

The man, identified as Lyle Miller, 20, of Port Neches, entered Gaspard's Nursing Home in suburban Port Acres about 8:30 p.m. Monday and demanded drugs from the nursing home's dispensary, nursing home employees said.

One of the employees was able to summon police and when patrol units arrived, Miller locked himself inside the dispensary, along with several hostages, witnesses told police.

Officers said some policemen moved into the nursing home about the time Miller left the dispensary, apparently hoping to escape. However, Miller met Officer Patrick Queen in the hallway and shot him in the chest with a shotgun, said police.

Almost immediately an unidentified policeman fired one shot at Miller, striking him fatally in the heart, police officials said.

EPA warns Texas firms

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Post reported today the Environmental Protection Agency has warned seven Texas firms new regulations could subject them to sizable penalties for failure to comply with air pollution standards.

The penalties under the regulations that become effective Jan. 1 could equal the amount of money a company saves by not installing and operating pollution equipment that would meet the standards.

Carl Edlund, regional EPA air enforcement chief, said records indicate about 25 plants in Texas could face non-compliance penalties but the first round of letters gave priority to the "largest sources with the longest records of violation."

The seven plants were identified as Armco Steel in Houston, the Gulf Chemical & Metallurgical Corp. smelter in Texas City, the Temple-Eastex wood processing plant complex in Diboll, the American Smelting and Refining Co. in El Paso, the Lone Star Steel Co. plant at Lone Star, and two West Texas mineral processors, Southern Clay Products at Altamere and Milwhite Inc. at Van Horn.

Budget committee ready for Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats on the House Budget Committee want to give President-elect Ronald Reagan the opportunity — and the obligation — to live up to his campaign pledge of cutting federal spending.

Rep. Robert N. Giaino, D-Conn., the committee chairman, said he would introduce today an across-the-board 2 percent spending cut as part of the binding federal budget ceiling for fiscal 1981.

It would be up to Reagan to decide how to make the cuts after he takes office in January.

"Adoption of my amendment would allow the new president the opportunity to present his proposed cuts to the new Congress in January," Giaino said Monday. "If he were unable to achieve these cuts, presumably he would ask for an increase in the spending ceiling."

But Giaino said the action was not intended to embarrass Reagan, who pledged during his campaign to cut spending.

"I'm not interested in calling the president's bluff," Giaino said. "I'm interested in getting control of spending. I'm not trying to be vindictive."

Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla., a contender to replace the retiring Giaino as committee chairman in the next Congress, called the 2 percent cut "quite a chunk for the new administration to come in and meet."

But, Jones added, "they're (the Republicans) going to have to govern some now...they don't have a free ride anymore."

Jones was asked if the cut was aimed at "calling Reagan's bluff" on spending cuts or if it was just a response to the election results. "I'll take the latter," he said, laughing.

Although fiscal 1981 began Oct. 1, Congress has yet to approve a binding budget resolution, as required by its rules.

A draft of the budget resolution drawn up by the committee staff calls for a $648.7 billion budget with a deficit of $38.4 billion.

But Giaino called the projected deficit, based primarily on spending bills already passed by the House, clearly "unacceptable to many if not to most members of Congress."

He said his amendment would reduce the deficit $13 billion by cutting all federal spending — except defense — by 2 percent.

That staff projection is based on a tax cut of $30 billion to $32 billion, compared with the pending $39.8 billion reduction proposed by the Senate Finance Committee and endorsed by Reagan.

The committee met in advance of the post-election congressional session that begins Wednesday in order to have a budget resolution ready for quick action.

The Senate Budget Committee has drawn up a binding budget calling for spending $633 billion, with a deficit of $17.9 billion. It leaves no room for a tax cut.

The 1974 Budget Act calls for congressional passage of the binding budget resolution by mid-September, in anticipation of the Oct. 1 start of the federal government's fiscal year. But that timetable became bogged down in election-year politics.

Economic treadmill takes toll on sales

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Americans on an economic treadmill and purchasing power at a virtual standstill, rising interest rates and persistent double-digit inflation are taking a new toll on sales of houses and retail goods.

The Commerce Department reported Monday that new-home sales fell 14 percent in September, while October retail sales edged down for the first time in five months.

This overall downturn was attributed heavily to the recent upsurge in interest rates, a trend that was underlined Monday when 13-week Treasury bill rates rose to 13.514 percent, the highest level since early April.

Six-month Treasury bills dipped slightly, but they still stood at 13.231 percent. As a result, starting Thursday, banks will pay savers as much as 13.481 percent on popular six-month money market certificates.

That rate forces banks and thrifts to charge steeper interest rates for consumer loans.

"Rising interest rates are hurting retail sales," said Robert Gough, vice president of Data Resources Inc., the Massachusetts economic forecasting firm. "If rates continue to go up, we can expect further softening in sales...during the pre-Christmas season."

His department said new-home sales during September stood at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 554,000, compared with a 643,000 pace in August. The drop was most pronounced in the South and Midwest.

Sandra Shaber, a senior economist at Chase Econometrics Associates in suburban Philadelphia, said retail sales will continue to be sluggish because people's incomes, particularly their wages and salaries, are not keeping up with inflation.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

FCC gets a logical report

Once in a great while our thin supply of optimism and faith in human nature is reinforced. Despite some evidence to the contrary, the hope that people, regardless of position or immediate self-interest, can look at facts and draw logical conclusions from them is occasionally rewarded.

Three years ago the Federal Communications Commission expressed concern about the dominance of broadcasting by the three major networks. So the commission asked its staff to undertake a study to see why the three major networks are dominant and no fourth network has arisen to challenge them. The commission was also also concerned about the power of the networks over affiliate stations.

Earlier this month the commission's Network Inquiry Special Staff released a 600-page report. And the report concluded that the three-network dominance was because of federal regulation of communications by the FCC.

"Whatever economic power ABC, CBS and NBC possess is in large measure a result of commission policies that protected them from potential competitors. Consequently, the networks have had no need to resort to exclusionary practices to forestall competitors," said the report.

What's needed to encourage pay TV, cable and further competition, perhaps leading to the formation of a viable fourth network? Not government subsidies or government encouragement, but the relaxation or repeal of FCC rules and regulations.

We're not naive about some of the background of this report. It didn't arrive because some FCC staffers got religion and a big dose of courage. Congress has been studying the Communications Act of 1934, which gives the FCC its mandate, for several years now. Spurred on by outside economists and scholars, some of the Congressional staffers came to similar conclusions several years ago. There's even been talk of just abolishing the FCC, or cutting back its power so drastically as to leave it a pretty hollow shell.

Consequently the FCC itself has been doing a great deal of regulatory "reform" on its own, just as the Interstate Commerce Commission has been doing before and after Congress acted to "deregulate" airlines and trucking. By undertaking reforms on its own, the agency looks responsible and keeps Congressmen from entertaining nasty thoughts about abolishing it, which wouldn't be a bad idea in our view.

Nonetheless it is encouraging, and it should be encouraging to all those who often have the sinking feeling that their railings against bureaucratic abuse have gone for naught. Twenty years ago the idea of regulatory reform was considered a crazy notion, the domain of extremists. Fifteen years ago it was a glimmer in the eye of a few free market economists who had produced some persuasive studies. Today it is the pet of professional consumer advocates and progressives.

Now if only they'd extend that insight — that government regulation tends to create and perpetuate monopoly and oligopoly in the industries related — into other areas of the economy, we might start to make some progress.

Restore productivity through partnership

Is the United States to follow the example of Great Britain, paralyzed by crippling strikes, torn by a long history of antagonism between government and business, impoverished by a tax system designed to punish the rich — a third-class world power with a diminishing standard of living, sustained only by its memories of the vanished glory of its imperial past?

The tea leaves are in the cup. They could be read that way. We see declining productivity, deepening distrust between government and business, a standard of living that is stagnant or declining, a lessening of respect in the world community.

Or are we to follow other models — Japan and West Germany? These two countries, our enemies in World War II, have recovered so successfully from their defeat that their economies long ago overtook Britain's and are now challenging the United States in per capita gross national product.

In both Japan and West Germany, strikes are few and do little harm. There are only "company unions" — no industrywide unions — in Japan. That means each union identifies with its company — no company, no union. The unions are careful to do nothing that will damage the companies' ability to compete with other companies. The unions work to increase productivity and efficiency. They do not object to the introduction of labor-saving machinery.

Germany has a more conventional labor union movement, but its leaders are responsible and many of them sit on corporate boards of the firms for whom their members work. This system of "codetermination" is a product of more than a century of tradition in the German labor movement. Germany's history of inflation has made labor leaders conscious of the risks of escalating pay demands faster than productivity gains.

Whatever the approach, it needs to be made from both sides toward the center — from management toward labor and from labor toward management — in order to achieve what is good for both.

By the same token, we must moderate the mindless hostility between politicians and businessmen, between a populist public of consumers who are encouraged to harbor anti-business suspicions and resentment on the one hand, and on the other hand, a group of business leaders who refuse to consider anything but the bottom line on their ledger sheets.

Again, the hostile elements must come together. Both must move. Business must recognize its responsibilities to the public interest at the same time that government recognizes its responsibilities for helping to create a healthy climate for business.

Or we can just go along as we are, allowing state animosities to divide us, until we find ourselves in the pits with Britain, envying the people who trust each other, who respect each other and who can work together for the common good.

Once there was a Milton Friedman

By Oscar Cooley

During the Carter-Reagan campaign for the presidency, inflation was admitted to be a horrendous problem, but not once did I hear either candidate mention what many economists pretty much agree is the basic cause of inflation: an over-supply of money.

Milton Friedman has spent a large part of his professional life analyzing inflation. In his best-selling book, Freedom to Choose, he states on page 254: "Inflation occurs when the quantity of money rises appreciably more rapidly than output (of goods), and the more rapid the rise in the quantity of money per unit of output, the greater the inflation. There is probably no other proposition in economics that is so well established as this one."

On page 270, he says: "Just as an excessive increase in the quantity of money is the one and only important cause of inflation, so a reduction in the rate of monetary growth is the one and only cure for inflation."

Yet, neither leading candidate for the White House breathed a word about this cause and cure. Neither, apparently, had read Friedman. Indeed, had they ever heard of Milton Friedman?

It is true some economists think that

Friedman's "one - and - only" dictum oversimplifies the inflation phenomenon, but none, so far as I am informed, have successfully challenged his major premise: inflation is too much money chasing too few goods and services.

Control of the money supply is in the hands of the Federal Reserve system's Board of Governors, seven persons appointed by the President for terms of 14 years. The 12 Federal Reserve banks constitute a public system; its profits, which are substantial, go into the U.S. Treasury. Who, then, is responsible for the inflation? Who but the United States government?

Friedman in no uncertain words pins the responsibility on the government — on the government's Federal Reserve board in particular. He says Washington generates the inflation and does so purposely and deliberately, because inflation makes it easier for the officeholders to spend in ever-increasing amounts, do good to ever-multiplying numbers, and thus keep themselves in office and their party in power. Inflation is a way of taxing the people without raising their taxes. Could that be why the politicians ignore Friedman and scarcely mention the monetary theory?

John Maynard Keynes, the English economist, said: "There is no subtler, no surer means of overturning the existing basis of society than to debauch the currency. The process engages all the hidden forces of economic law on the side of destruction, and does it in a manner which not one man in a million is able to diagnose."

The federal government in the last year spent $59 billion more than it took in. The $59 billion had to be borrowed. But it did not borrow the goods and services which that $59 billion paid for; it took them out of the economy and consumed them, making us all $59 billion poorer.

To pay for these goods, new money had to be created by the nation's banks under the control of the government's own bank, the Federal Reserve. No "one in a million" can figure how that is done, said Keynes. Maybe Carter is not that one. Nor Reagan. Maybe they did not broach the cause of inflation because they don't understand it.

But the President, whoever he is, makes appointments to the Federal Reserve board, and that board has the power and the responsibility to regulate the money supply. The terms of several board members will expire during the next four years. Will the President call in his prospective appointees in each case and find out if he or she is that "one in a million"? And will he direct each appointee to do what is necessary to quell the inflation?

"Inflation," writes the editor of the Wall Street Journal, "is cured by appointing tight-money men to the Federal Reserve board and backing them up, rather than stamping for printing money every time there's a slip in interest rates." Interest rates will take care of themselves if inflation is halted.

Paul Volcker, present chairman of the Federal Reserve board, is known as a tight-money man. However, the money supply has risen sharply and erratically at times in 1980, practically insuring that inflation will continue and maybe get worse in 1981. One wonders if Volcker is being overruled by others on the board. If so, it is to be hoped that future appointees will be, like Volcker, people who hold that keeping the dollar stable in purchasing power is more essential than enabling Washington to go on spending dollars it does not have.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Tuesday, Nov. 11, the 316th day of 1980. There are 50 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Nov. 11, 1918, World War I ended with the signing of an armistice between the Allies and Germany.

On this date:

In 1620, the Pilgrims signed the Mayflower Compact, setting basic rules for their new settlement in Massachusetts.

In 1933, the first of the great dust storms of the 1930s swept across North Dakota.

In 1942, Nazi Germany completed its occupation of France during World War II. And in 1965, Ian Smith declared Rhodesia's independence, despite British claims that his regime was illegal.

Ten years ago, the Soviet Union launched a spacecraft on a voyage to the moon.

Five years ago, the U.S. Congress voted to reassess America's relationship with the United Nations after a General Assembly vote equating Zionism with racism.

One year ago, Abolhassan Bani Sadr, Iran's new top man at the foreign ministry, said there'd be "no compromise and no negotiation" over Iran's demand that the U.S. extradite the ousted Shah in exchange for the American hostages.

Today's birthdays: Comedian Jonathan Winters is 55 years old. Former movie star Pat O'Brien is 81.

Thought for today: The world war after the next one will be fought with rocks — Albert Einstein, German-born physicist (1879-1955).

Three cheers for the candidates

by ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — I am writing this before the election results are in. And I'm going to say something very strange: Three cheers for everyone who ran for political office this year, from the presidential candidates down to those who tried to get elected to the local school boards!

While the majority of us sat on the sidelines booing, cheering and eating popcorn, a few brave men and women decided to put their reputations on the line, open up their private lives, humiliate themselves by begging for money and support, and compromise their ideals to serve the public in some political capacity.

Some did it for glory, some for power, and some because they believed they could change the system. Few, if any of them, whether they win or lose, will be the same people they were before they got into the race.

Selfridge is one of them. I stopped in to see him a few days ago. He looked 20 years older than when I had seen him before he decided to run for political office.

"Where's your wife?" I asked him. "I think she left. I haven't seen her around for days. She said she couldn't keep smiling anymore no matter how many votes it would get me. I guess politics isn't her bag."

Selfridge took a swig from a bottle of Pepto-Bismol.

"You have stomach trouble?" I asked. "I've eaten every ethnic food known to man, not to mention attending four hotel banquets a day. I think it got to my stomach."

"It's been a rough campaign?"

"You could say that. My opponent revealed my brother was in a mental hospital, my kid has been booked on pot charges, my sister once had an abortion, and my law partners were defending a murderer. He also said I was a crook, and there was some question whether my parents were married at the time I was born."

"What's that big lump on your head?" "Some television reporter tried to stick a microphone down my throat and hit me in the head instead. The media have been good to me. They called me up at all hours of the day and night wanting to know when I beat my wife."

"I guess you lose your privacy when you decide to run for public office."

"I believe you do. Everyone now knows how much money I have in the bank, how many outstanding debts I have and how much income tax I paid last year. My life is an open book."

As we were talking some men were carrying furniture out the door.

"What's going on?"

"My printer attached my furniture because I couldn't pay the bill. We ran out of money three weeks ago. I think the advertising agency is going to take the car this afternoon."

"Let me ask you a question, Selfridge. Why did you do it?"

"I've been asking myself the same question for months. All my friends talked me into it. They said the country needed me and it was my duty to serve the people."

"Do you think they were serious?" "I don't know. I haven't heard from any of them since the polls showed I was going to lose."

"Well, I don't care about anybody else. I want you to know that I admire you for getting into the fray. There aren't many people in this country willing to put up with what you have to represent your fellow men. I'll call you after the election."

"You can't."

"Why not?"

"The telephone company is taking the phone out. I owe them $2,000 and they want their money today."

Local hero missing from phone book cover

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — If folks in this border city want a picture of their most famous historical figures, they have only to check the phone book.

The phone book in any Texas city but Laredo. Santos Benavides, the highest-ranking Mexican-American in the Confederate Army, was one of the figures in a montage-like painting by Austin artist and historian Bruce Marshall chosen for the 1980 Southwestern Bell Telephone Directory.

He was a merchant who gained fame during the Civil War when he rose to the rank of Confederate brigadier-general, and who later served as mayor and a state representative.

A local reporter called Benavides "the only real hero the city has."

But a different cover was used for Laredo's directory, and local residents are miffed.

Local Bell office manager Ted Moreno said the apparent mixup was the result of a decision made by the directory publications staff in Dallas.

"The Laredo directory has, in the past, been one of the last directories (in Texas) to use a particular cover," Moreno said.

"Our directory publications staff in Dallas, when they were preparing the Laredo directory, decided this would be a good time to give Laredo a new format. That, in turn, necessitated a change in covers, and they used a cover done by (Western artist) Charles Russell."

The Dallas workers did not know the people of Laredo were eagerly awaiting phone books with the old covers, especially since the Marshall painting has been on the cover of phone books in other Texas towns since late March.

Moreno said even some of his own staff members are disappointed.

"I know a lot of people here in the company were looking forward to it," he said.

The artist said he also regrets that Laredo telephone customers will not see his rendition of their local hero.

"I drew out of Texas history figures who have been ignored or overshadowed by the stock characters of Sam Houston, Jim Bowie, William Travis and others," Marshall said.

"Certainly one of my favorite heroes is Santos Benavides," he continued. "He played such a large part in the history of Texas before, during and after the Civil War."

Evangelist continues in trend to politics

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — TV evangelist Jerry Falwell expects the president-elect to "produce" for the Moral Majority and calls Election Day a "mandate" for the conservative principles of his fundamentalist group.

The Moral Majority movement will be "discredited" if Ronald Reagan fails to espouse its conservative principles, Falwell said Monday. "The burden is on Mr. Reagan's shoulders now. If he doesn't produce, all of us will be discredited."

Once in office, Reagan's primary concerns should be dealing with reviving the economy, preserving Israel, dealing with the nation's "military unpreparedness" and passing an anti-abortion "human life amendment," he said.

Falwell appeared here with his "I Love America" college singing group, which ended a 33-state tour with patriotic songs and imprecations against sexual permissiveness, abortion and homosexuality.

He told a rally of some 1,500 people that he wants to enlist 1,000 New Jersey pastors as members of his fundamentalist Christian movement within the next year. The state is one of 17 where Moral Majority movements were to be set up in the coming year.

Sign-carrying protesters from gay rights groups and local religious organizations lined the rear of the rally held at the Statehouse.

Washington briefs

FOREIGN STUDENTS IN U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 300,000 foreign students are studying in the United States and that number may swell to half a million by the end of this decade, says the president of the American Council on Education.

The council announced Monday the formation of a Committee on Foreign Students and Institutional Policy to study the impact of foreign students on U.S. campuses and to offer guidelines on accepting and educating them. Richard Berendzen, panel chairman and president of American University, said that despite some "shocking" instances, abuses in the recruiting of foreign students are rare.

AG DEPARTMENT CUTS PROJECTIONS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has cut its projection of worldwide grain production for 1980 by 24 million metric tons, mostly to reflect a smaller crop in the Soviet Union.

The department said Monday its latest estimate for the Soviet grain crop is down 20 million metric tons from October's estimate of 185 million metric tons. If the estimate is correct, the grain crop will be 54 million metric tons lower than the Soviet government had hoped for and 14 million metric tons below last year's drought-withered grain production. The Soviet crop has been hurt this year by persistent cool, wet weather. The department predicted worldwide grain production will be 1.52 billion metric tons, about the same as last year.

Vietnam Memorial Design Underway WASHINGTON (AP) — A nationwide contest is under way to design a memorial to Americans who served in Vietnam.

The memorial will be near the Washington and Lincoln monuments. The Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund, a non-profit corporation authorized by Congress to erect the memorial, expects to raise $3 million in private gifts for the project.

Top prize in the contest is $20,000. Also, the winner will be retained as design consultant while the memorial is being built.

Crime victim fund nears depletion

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A new fund to help crime victims get back on their feet — physically and financially — will run out of money by the end of the week, says the fund director.

Jerry Belcher said the 14½-month-old Crime Victims Compensation Fund had a balance of $4,000 Friday, and he had five approved applications totaling $18,000 on his desk.

"We're paying out more than we're collecting, and the fund will be depleted by the end of the week," Belcher told the House Committee on Employment Practices on Monday.

The committee recommended that persons convicted of Class C misdemeanors such as assault and battery and driving while intoxicated pay $10 fines, which would be deposited in the fund.

The committee vote was 4-0, one short of a quorum, so another member needs to approve the recommendation to send it to the 1981 Legislature.

Voyager I nearing Saturn's moon

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — After a 38-month, billion-mile journey, Voyager I was hurtling just 2,500 miles above Saturn's moon Titan today, snapping photographs of its dense orange atmosphere as the unmanned probe sped toward the golden planet's shimmering rings.

"Titan is getting a little bit better (in Voyager's cameras) every day," Bradford Smith, head of the Voyager camera team, said Monday as photographs revealed an orangish ball with a dark cap over the north pole.

The photographs also showed a rather sharp boundary near the moon's equator and a uniformly brighter surface in its southern hemisphere.

On Wednesday, the ship will reach the climax of its voyage, sailing under Saturn's rings to explore the planet's churning clouds from less than 80,000 miles away.

Its cameras, radios and other scientific instruments also will probe the complexity of the rings and the mysteries of Tethys, Mimas, Enceladus, Dione and Rhea, five of the planet's 15 moons.

One of the biggest hurdles for Voyager's radio signals is not its distance from home, but the weather on Earth. Some five hours of data were lost Saturday when a rainstorm inundated a tracking station in Spain.

During critical close encounters today and Wednesday, the robot ship will store its data collection on tape recorders.

Voyager's discoveries already have scientists happily puzzled.

Photographs Monday showed a gigantic cloud of hydrogen gas swirling around the ringed planet. The cloud is shaped like a flattened doughnut several hundred thousand miles thick, William Sandel of the University of Southern California said at a news conference.

"The presence of hydrogen in the atmosphere of Saturn has been known for some time...but the shape (of the huge cloud) doesn't conform well at all to what was expected," Sandel said.

The size of the hydrogen ring "means some mechanism, which we don't know, is operating to spread the hydrogen over a much larger region of space than we thought."

Beside providing close-ups of never-before-seen details of Saturn's cloudy surface, Voyager's photographs also showed unsuspected complexities in the rings, frozen debris only a mile or so thick but stretching nearly 300,000 miles from the planet. What most astronomers had considered six broad rings actually are filled by dozens, perhaps hundreds, of small but distinct ringlets.

And Voyager has revealed new Saturnian moons and glimpses of their surfaces.

Rookie politicians will find Golden Dome

BOSTON (AP) — The location is an old coal cellar in what was once a residential hotel where John F. Kennedy kept an apartment. "The place still is fueled by hot air," says John Curran, who tends bar every night at the Golden Dome pub.

The Golden Dome is the political hotspot in Boston, a few yards from the Statehouse and named for the gold-leaf crown atop that building.

Statehouse newcomers elected last Tuesday will find the Dome a home away from home come January when they take office. Thousands of politicians and their cronies have spent many happy hours in the little bar-and-restaurant on Bowdoin Street.

"It's a good business, a very good business," says Leo Higgins who, with his brother Jim, bought the pub 4½ years ago. "Jim says his grandchildren will have this place."

The Dome's managers may change but the clientele won't.

The Dome is a cozy den that serves food and drink, including cups of "coffee" when the Legislature works late. It's really a political clubhouse.

"It's a neighborhood bar that caters to politicians," says Curran. "It's no-man's land, neutral territory, a political melting pot. It's where they can talk shop."

When Higgins bought the Dome from an absentee owner, he asked old high school chum Curran to come along and tend bar.

Both men are 39. Unlike many of their politician customers, both men also have an aversion to being photographed.

"It's turned out to be easier to run this business than I thought it would be," says Higgins. "It's a pleasure."

The pals were surprised by the polit.

"These are good people, a beer crowd, nothing fancy," says Curran. "and very good tipplers. To be elected, a guy has to be decent. Then it's a question of how he handles power."

"This is their back yard; if they're going to foul up, they go out of their territory."

"Neither of us had done much work with political people," says Higgins. "We met these guys and said, 'Hey, he's not the bum I thought.' It was a shock."

"I expected a smoky back room," Higgins says. He found one in the Dome but removed a sliding screen that had given the polit special privacy.

"Guys with $10 bills falling out of their pockets and women hanging around — that's part of Boston political history," he says. "It's a far cry from reality these days."

The reality is that the Dome is a political place. Curran is phoned by legislative clerks when a roll call is in progress. Tipplers need time to return to their legislative chambers.

Higgins concedes some of the politicians drink too much, but not

"If a guy has a problem, he's not going to throw his anchor out in one place. He'll have one here, another there, two more somewhere else."

"They're just representative of the people who vote for them. People hate that 'pack of legislators' but they like their own guy."

"We see them in human terms. Across the street, it's 'Mr. Chairman'. Here it's 'Hey you!'"

Soldier killed in demonstration

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A Fort Bliss soldier was killed Monday when the Soviet-made grenade launcher he was demonstrating exploded.

Pvt. Carl Roberts McCuan, 20, of Lavonia, Mich., died instantly when the launcher exploded as it was fired at Dona Ana Range 43, on Fort Bliss property near the White Sands Missile Range.

McCuan had volunteered to fire the shoulder antitank weapon before about 60 soldiers of the Third Armored Cavalry Regiment, said Lt. Col. Edward McDonald.

The demonstration, about 2 p.m., was part of a training program for U.S. soldiers to become familiar with weapons of Soviet bloc countries in Eastern Europe, McDonald said.

Leftist at helm of Labor Party

LONDON (AP) — Leftist Michael Foot has taken the helm of Britain's divided Labor Party with pledges to fight the stationing of U.S. nuclear weapons in Britain, the international arms race and Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's austerity policies.

The opposition party's 268 members of the House of Commons broke a tradition of moderate leadership more than half a century old Monday when they elected the 67-year-old former radical socialist the party's new leader. Foot, who favors Britain's gradual withdrawal from the European Common Market but says he would not pull the country out of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, defeated centrist Denis Healey by 10 votes in a runoff ballot.

Left-wing Laborites, jubilant over their victory, said the election of the popular Foot would unify the party. Other leaders of the party's right wing joined Healey in accepting the outcome, and Healey said he would run for deputy party leader, the post Foot held under his predecessor, former Prime Minister James Callaghan.

But there was speculation that Foot's time in office would be short because former Energy Secretary Tony Benn, the firebrand of the party's left wing, will try to unseat him next year when a new election procedure is adopted. It will replace the parliamentary caucus, which the moderates have dominated, by an electoral college in which Benn's supporters in the trade unions and the local party organizations will be represented.

There was speculation also that Foot's victory and the possibility of his replacement by Benn would give impetus to former Laborite Roy Jenkins' ambition to lead a new centrist party. He returns home in January after a three-year term as president of the Common Market's executive commission in Brussels.

The independent Times of London said Foot's election was a "terrible mistake" that would probably cost Labor the next general election in early 1984. The conservative Daily Telegraph said the party rejected all "prudence, caution...and the hampering raiment of apparent moderation."

Callaghan, 68, had been on his way out since the party's loss to Mrs. Thatcher's Conservatives in the 1979 election. After an annual party convention in which the left and right wings of the party battled even more than usual, he resigned last month in the hope of securing the party leadership for another moderate before adoption of the new election procedure favoring the left wing.

Healey led Foot and two other leftists in the voting in the first round last week and was the pre-vote favorite Monday. But some moderates apparently switched their support to the personally popular Foot because they believed his chances of holding the badly split party together were better than Healey's.

Auto union to appeal to Carter on import decision

DETROIT (AP) — A "bitterly disappointed" United Auto Workers president says the union will ask President Carter to override a federal decision not to limit auto imports — a decision he says could cost more than 100,000 American jobs.

Though conceding such predictions were "awfully hazy," Douglas Fraser said, "You're talking about well over 100,000, minimal" lost jobs.

The International Trade Commission announced Monday it would not propose a tariff increase or quotas on imports of foreign cars or trucks.

Commissioners agreed the rising tide of imports, particularly from Japan, has seriously damaged U.S. automakers, but by a 3-2 vote it ruled that imports were not the sole cause of the domestic auto industry's woes and did not justify the protections sought by the UAW and Ford Motor Co.

Ford Chairman Philip Caldwell criticized the ITC decision, saying, "This country cannot afford the continuing exploitation of our automotive market by the Japanese."

Imports currently have a 26 percent share of the U.S. market, up from about 15 percent in 1975, according to industry figures. Four out of five imports are Japanese-made.

Ford and the UAW asked the ITC to recommend country-by-country quotas on imports at about the 1977-78 level — roughly 1.7 million cars and trucks a year — for three years, with small increases in the following two years. The UAW also asked an increase in the tariff on cars from 2.9 percent to 20 percent.

In its decision, the ITC held that the domestic auto industry had been harmed in part by its own "inefficiency" in converting to smaller cars.

"I certainly can't agree with that," Caldwell said. "The United States has been hurt by a combined unwillingness to face the realities."

Fraser said he would ask Carter to act, but the president's spokesmen have said Carter cannot negotiate a limitation agreement without a recommendation from the ITC.

Names in the news

NEW YORK — Actor Dean Paul Martin has reported for military service. But don't despair, fans. When he finishes training as a jet fighter pilot, he'll be doing a series pilot for ABC.

Martin, son of entertainer Dean Martin, reported for military service Monday at McGhee Tyson Air National Guard Base near Knoxville, Tenn., where he'll complete six-week officer candidate school leading to a commission as a second lieutenant in the Air Force Reserve. Then he'll attend USAF jet pilot training in Phoenix, Ariz., and will serve with the California Air Guard's 163rd Tactical Air Support Group.

Acting will always be his "true occupation," he said in a statement released through a public relations agency. But "the chance to go through Air Force pilot training and fly high performance supersonic aircraft is a bit like being a semi-pro football player and winning a trip to the Super Bowl," Martin said.

Martin made his acting debut in the film "Players" last year, and was in the 1960s teen pop group Dino, Desi and Billy. He is working toward a degree in aerospace engineering at the University of Southern California.

SELMA: Ala. (AP) — Anita Bryant says she and industrialist Larry Striplin are "close friends" but they have no immediate plans for marriage.

Striplin echoed that sentiment Monday at an impromptu news conference outside Miss Bryant's Protect America's Children organization headquarters in this central Alabama city.

Striplin, 50, president of DISCO Inc., a manufacturer and worldwide distributor of aluminum window framing, also said he resented the intrusion of media into his and Miss Bryant's private lives.

Miss Bryant moved her organization's headquarters to Selma from Florida after she and her husband of 20 years, Bob Green, split up.

The singer said Green, who also was her manager, had violated her "most precious asset, my very conscience." Green said last week that he believed she still was his lawful wife despite a civil court divorce.

"My primary goal in life still is to win Anita back. I still love her with all my heart," Green said Thursday.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Col. Harland Sanders remains hospitalized here in critical condition, but there are signs his condition is improving, a company spokesman said.

Sanders, the man who made Kentucky Fried Chicken famous, entered the hospital Friday for treatment of an infection of the kidney and bladder.

"He is responding to antibiotics and his appetite is returning," John Cox of Kentucky Fried Chicken said Monday. "When his appetite returns, we know he is feeling better."

Sanders, 90, also has leukemia, but it is in remission, Cox said.

Sex charge costs officer patrol job

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas policeman who led a law enforcement Explorer program for teen-agers has been fired for having sexual relations with a 17-year-old girl enrolled in the program, department officials said.

placed on suspension after the girl said she had sexual encounters with them, said police public information officer Bob Shaw.

After a month-long investigation into the allegations, Police Chief Glen King fired Robert Chanslor, 38, for violating a position of public trust in his role as advisor to the Explorer group by having sexual relations with the girl in off-duty hours, Shaw said.

Two other officers said they engaged in "heavy petting" with the girl when she accompanied them on patrol as an Explorer observer, police said.

Jerry Rhodes, 29, a 7-year veteran of the force was suspended for five days and Brian McGuire, 28, an 18-month member, was suspended for three days, police said.

Cabbie takes newsman for ride, off-duty officer stops auto

CHICAGO (AP) — CBS newsman Dan Rather has "been in and out of Chicago taxicabs" plenty of times, but this time he says he had some trouble getting out.

Rather than take the veteran reporter where he wanted to go, a cabbie allegedly refused to let him out and raced south on Lake Shore Drive at speeds up to 75 mph until an off-duty corrections officer forced him to the curb.

The driver, identified as Eugene Phillips, 38, of Chicago, was charged Monday with disorderly conduct and refusing to let a passenger out. He was released on $35 bond, police said.

Phillips said later he hadn't recognized Rather, who will succeed Walter Cronkite as CBS News anchorman next year, and refused to let the newsman out because Rather wouldn't pay his fare. In a television interview, he said keeping a non-paying customer in the cab was "standard procedure."

But it looked out of the ordinary to the off-duty Cook County Corrections Department officer who saw Rather "screaming and waving" and pursued the speeding cab.

Rather called the incident "a very minor thing."

"I've been in and out of Chicago taxicabs seemingly most of my life. Most of the time it's not a problem," he said in an interview with WBBM-TV, a CBS-owned station.

The incident began when Rather caught a cab at O'Hare International Airport and asked to go to the home of author Studs Terkel near Lake Shore Drive. Rather was to interview Terkel for a segment of the "60 Minutes" news program, said Jack Smith, Midwest bureau chief for CBS News.

Smith quoted Rather as saying the driver became "verbally abusive" during the ride and refused to turn off Lake Shore Drive when Rather pointed out his destination.

Corrections officer Marthie Lee was driving to work at the Cook County jail complex when she saw the taxi racing south.

"The passenger seemed extremely agitated," said Miss Lee, 30.

Fire levels middle school

ALVARADO (AP) — More than 300 firefighters had to stand by and watch as flames raged out of control when a water main broke as they battled a night-time blaze at the Alvarado Middle School.

"It's still burning, but it's pretty well under control," Fire Chief C.T. Richardson said late Monday.

Early estimates placed damages between $1.5 and $2 million.

No one was injured in the fire, which broke out about 7 p.m. Firefighters from about a dozen communities watched the flames blaze out of control after a water main broke about 8 p.m.

Pressure was restored in about 20 minutes, but

Richardson said the temporary lack of water "made a big difference" in firefighting efforts.

The destroyed building contained all 6th- through 8th-grade classrooms, administrative offices, the library and cafeteria.

Fires rage in drought stricken area

Facing dozens of forest fires and at least four more days without rain, National Guardsmen, state employees and Army soldiers from Fort Knox were battling blazes in eastern Kentucky and West Virginia today.

More than 35,000 acres — 55 square miles — has burned since Friday, officials said.

Arsonists were believed responsible for most of the fires. Officials said deer hunters and squirrel hunters often burn brush to flush out their quarry. Ralph Glover of the West Virginia Department of Natural Resources also blamed "people mad at landowners or people who just like to see fire burn."

The fires include five uncontrolled blazes in the Daniel Boone National Forest in eastern Kentucky, and two in West Virginia that consumed more than 9,000 acres of mountain timber.

"We've got them popping up all over," said Chuck Hedgelin of the Kentucky Forestry Division.

Other than a few "sprains and strains" among the firefighters, no injuries have been reported from the fires and no evacuations have been needed, said Charles Prather at the Forestry Division Office in Frankfort.

State foresters from western Kentucky led National Guard troops and state Transportation Department employees from regional offices in eastern Kentucky.

"They're getting their people lined up, getting the fires located and the crews equipped and getting lined out on their fires," Prather said.

And soldiers at Fort Knox, about 30 miles southeast of Louisville, continued fighting a fire that has burned on the northeastern edge of the installation for about a week.

Not illegal to terrify Texans?

War games have citizens riled

By Tom Tiede

BRISTOL, Tex. (NEA) - Nothing much happens during the week in this tiny community to the south of Dallas. A few shops open doors on the main street, most of the men-folk travel to jobs in neighboring places, and the cattle chew over the fields while slapping black flies with their tails.

But on the weekend, things change.

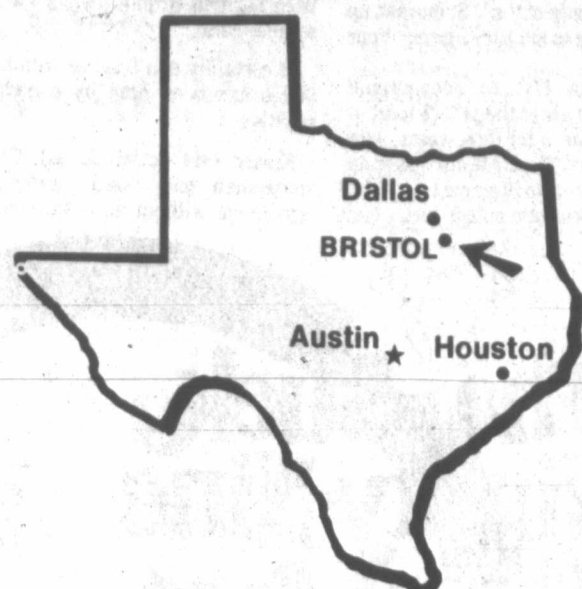

That's when the out-of-town hordes ride in to shoot it up. They gather just outside Bristol, break out an arsenal of weapons and ammunition, and proceed indirectly to harass, intimidate and scare the stuffings out of the residents.

No, it's not 1880, and the bad guys are not marauding cowboys. It's the late 20th century, and the gentlemen with the guns belong to a quite modern private army. They call themselves the Special Combat Operations Team, "SCOT" for short, but they will not say precisely what they're doing.

Locals note with trepidation that the weekend warriors are mostly Hispanic, and the fear is that they are preparing for some kind of revolution. One rumor is that the men are allied with other militant organizations who want Texas given over to the increasingly prolific Mexican-American population.

That, of course, may be far-fetched.

The thing is, nobody knows. Whatever the invaders are doing, however, they are going about it loudly, and with gusto. Residents say they come in on Thursday nights, or Friday mornings, and meet on 250 acres of private land northeast of town. Then they conduct war games, often well into the darkness, until Sunday afternoon.

And it's not just pretend. SCOT soldiers are armed with sidearms, rifles and modern automatic weapons. Locals have seen at least one jeep, dozens of machine guns, and perhaps bazookas as well.

It's like World War II out there, a merchant says, "and most people here don't like it at all."

One of the primary critics is Elizabeth Beesley, who operates a breeding ranch across the road from the SCOT reservation. She says the weekenders take target practice at a nearby gravel pit, "and when they miss the bank, the bullets come my way. They even have tracer rounds. It's ridiculous."

Mrs. Beesley thinks it's also dangerous, and she has complained to law enforcement officers on several occasions. Alas, in vain. Says she: "They are shooting across public roads, they are endangering the lives of people in this area, but the police haven't been able to do anything to stop it."

Mrs. Beesley says one problem is that the army monitors the police network. "If I call the sheriff to say they are shooting at my barn, they pick it up on their scanner. Then they just get in their cars and ride across the county line. The sheriff may find them, but he has no jurisdiction there."

And even when the sheriff does have jurisdiction, he is thwarted. Some months ago police swept down on the SCOT reservation to challenge the kinds of weapons being used, but they found everything in order. The army produced papers to indicate they had U.S. permission to use the guns.

To be sure, the police are confused by the federal permission. Texas forbids private ownership of automatic weapons, and the United States is not supposed to license users in states with such laws. But sheriff's Lt. Virgil Crow says the SCOT papers are nonetheless valid, "therefore our hands are tied."

Lt. Crow adds that law officers are not even allowed to keep watch on the private army. The FBI used to maintain files on groups of this sort, but legislative controls now prevent it. As for state authorities, a spokesman for the Texas Rangers says he's never heard of the SCOT soldiers.

And so the weekend force is free to continue invading this community, and to frighten its inhabitants. The unit's leader is a Dallas gun dealer named Ricardo Lopez, and he says his men are merely seeking "some outdoor relaxation"; but the locals who hear the gunfire say it is more than this.

Some residents insist cows have been shot. Others say they have been personally threatened by the gunmen for going too close to the reservation. Mrs. Beesley claims she hears bullets fly by her house on some evenings, and when she's out riding horses the soldiers "pop up from everywhere."

One man in Bristol has written the president for help. Another has tried to get a petition started. "This is not fun and games," Mrs. Beesley says. "These people wear uniforms, they have insignias, and they are all over the place. Every time I go outside these days, I feel I'm a walking target."

Yet relief is nowhere in sight. In this case, it's just not illegal to terrify citizens in Texas. If somebody gets killed, Mrs. Beesley says, or if the army really does decide to start a war, the police can act; until then, apparently, everyone must hope for the best and wait for whatever.

Governor predicts population boom

DALLAS (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements predicts Texas' population will increase 50 percent in the next 20 years and warned the Texas Municipal League to prepare for the people boom.

"Are we going to have enough schools, water systems, public utility systems, roads for these people?" Clements asked the group Monday. "How can we meet that challenge and still maintain the same quality of life we're used to now?"

The first long-range plan for state development, "Texas 2000," will be a major consideration for the 1981 Legislature, Clements said during the opening day of the group's 68th annual conference here.

"The only plan we've had up to now is the two-year budget," the governor said. "I've felt it's terribly important that we have a longer-range plan."

The plan, formulated by experts in various fields 15 months ago, should "guide the state in the right direction," Clements said.

"This way, we're not just falling out of bed and saying, 'What's the issue today?'" he said, noting the state's population is expected to increase from 13.4 million to 21 million by the year 2000.

Education, however, will remain the "No. 1 priority" for next year's Legislature, Clements added.

"We need to restore a sense of discipline to the classroom. We need better communication, coordination and cooperation between teachers, administrators and school boards," he said.

The governor also said his staff is working with law enforcement officials to form a "crime package" to combat the growing crime rate.

Allocation suit under advisement

DALLAS (AP) — A federal judge says he will decide later if the U.S. Department of Energy exceeded its authority when it ruled that Oasis Petroleum Corp. did not have all the allocation rights to gasoline supply contracts purchased from a Houston oil company.

Attorneys for Los Angeles-based Oasis argued Monday that the DOE retroactively applied regulations in an "arrogant and capricious" manner, interfering with contractual rights to the company's gasoline supply.

However, DOE lawyer Gary Conrad told U.S. District Judge Robert W. Porter that the agency properly followed clearly defined regulations that controlled the flow of gasoline during the critical shortage of 1979.

Attorneys for both sides asked Porter for a summary judgment in a suit filed by Oasis against the DOE and Research Fuels Inc. of Houston. But the judge delayed his decision until an unspecified date.

A ruling in the case could clear the way for RFI to pursue a $33 million cross-action against Oasis, which had been stayed. The controversy surrounds Oasis' October of 1978 purchase of 84 RFI gasoline stations and two supply contracts, and the allocations tied to those contracts following adoptions of a new DOE base period just over four months later.

RFI, in its pleadings, contends Oasis drove it into financial ruin during the shortage of 1979 by bribery, conspiracy, back-room deals and a disregard of federal regulations controlling the flow of gasoline.

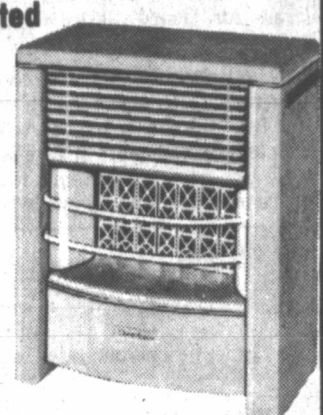

Oasis attorney Tariq Kadri called the allegations "ridiculous" and said the charges were a tactic of desperation by a failed company.

Allegations contained in the RFI cross-action have prompted inquiries by the Justice Department, the FBI, the DOE and the Senate anti-trust committee, sources told The Associated Press.

Kadri maintained earlier that Oasis was unaware of any investigations and that Oasis had done "nothing illegal unethical or anything else in regard to the acquisition of the RFI stations."

Football player killed

SMITHVILLE (AP) — Students at Smithville High School were excused from class today for the funeral of a football player electrocuted on a weekend job he took to help support his young family.

Bryan Campion, 17, worked at a dairy to bring home money for his wife and three-week-old son. He died Sunday while he, a brother, and a friend, tried to chase a skunk from an irrigation pipe.

"Bryan and Darrell (his 14-year-old brother) were both holding onto the pipe, lifting it," said Mrs. W.L. Dawson, an owner of the dairy.

She said her 12-year-old son Steve was ready to shoot the skunk when it fell out.

When the brothers stood the pipe up it hit a powerline and, "Steve said he saw this big shower of sparks. The next thing he knew, Bryan was lying there on the ground and Darrell was saying, 'We've got to get him to the hospital quick'."

The two boys dragged the third youth to a pickup truck. Darrell, his hands and feet blistered by the shock, drove to Smithville Hospital, where Bryan was declared dead on arrival.

Campion was a defensive tackle for the Smithville Tigers. He and his wife Peggy Sue lived with his parents until the birth of the baby drew near. Then they moved in with his in-laws.

"Bryan was so excited with that baby (Bryan Jr.)," said Peggy Wallace, his mother-in-law. "He headed for the bassinet every time he came through that door."

Steel worker falls to death

BEAUMONT (AP) — A 29-year-old steelworker plunged 45 feet to his death when his safety rope was burned through as he worked on the fourth floor of a building under construction, officials said.

Lanny Carroll Dykes of Orange was welding Monday on the northern face of the Edison Plaza building, being built for Gulf States Utilities Co., said project supervisor Jeff Evans.

Witnesses working nearby said Dykes had cut a hole through a steel beam and tied his security rope through the hole.

"Unbeknownst to him, the hole was still hot," said Evans, and the heated metal burned through the rope.

Dykes suffered massive head injuries in the fall and was dead on arrival at a Beaumont hospital, officials said.

An employee of Lafayette Steel Co., Dykes was the third worker to be injured since construction began on the site.

Economic instability produces many woes

NEW YORK (AP) — Uncertainty, indecision and insecurity are the offspring of economic instability. They are found, as you would expect, whenever lenders are asked for long commitments.

In housing, for example: "Yes, we have mortgage money to lend," said the banker to the young couple. "We'd like to do business with you."

The couple was elated. "The interest rate will begin at 14 percent, plus three points (three percent of the mortgage, paid in advance)," said the banker. "And there'll be a $150 application fee."

Though shocked, the couple remained seated. The banker continued: "We are now offering the rollover mortgage." A pause. "That is, the interest rate is subject to adjustment." Pause. "Each year."

The couple was appalled. They saw buying a house as the only way to get ahead, since inflation grew faster than their income — and they were expecting. With a house, they thought, they could at least nail down one expense, the monthly interest charge. But now, they found, that too was impossible, because the lender could adjust the rates.

They took the application form, but after leaving the bank they told a friend they wouldn't fill it out. They were confused and bitter. In one five-minute conversation their long-range plan evaporated.

Shortly afterward, the friend returned to the bank, in a very small Connecticut town, where an officer said the bank had dropped the long-term, fixed-rate mortgage without any announcement.

PTA delegates plan El Paso convention

Over 2,000 parents, teachers, and school administrators throughout Texas will be traveling to El Paso Nov. 17-19, to attend Texas Parent Teachers Association's 71st annual convention at the El Paso Civic Center convention site.

The theme, "Participate," will be highlighted with impressive speakers, outstanding workshops, and award presentations. Association business will also be conducted during this time.

Robert Goralski, former NBC news correspondent and current director of information for Gulf Oil Corporation in Washington, D.C., will be keynote speaker at the first general meeting.

Others slated to address the convention are H. Ross Perot, Alton Bowen and Joan Burnside.

Workshops on 33 subjects will be conducted and PTA delegates will elect new officers and vote on bylaw amendments and resolutions.

"We had to drop it," he said. "We don't see stability returning to the mortgage market for years to come; so we cannot make long-term commitments any more. Hereafter we just float with the times."

In the bond markets: "Bonds are now bought for price appreciation potential and not for income protection," said Henry Kaufman, a Salomon Brothers partner and, in the eyes of many, the high priest of the bond market.

The whole world of debt investments has changed, Kaufman declared a few weeks. The audience was aware of Kaufman's concern. Some of them had sought to raise long-term funds and found little investor interest. And investors seeking safety couldn't find it. That's not the way it used to be. In the past, the bond markets were so stable that a wealthy investor could buy highly rated issues and simply put them away in a vault while the interest accumulated.

Now, of course, inflation might exceed the interest earned, so investors don't like to tie up their money for 15 or 20 years. And why should they, when short-term rates are sometimes higher?

"A few decades ago, a speaker on this subject would have stressed ... interest rate stability, the merits of call protection, the value of contractual interest payments, the high quality of private debt and historical interest rate relationships," said Kaufman.

IT'S NOT AN ICE CREAM TRUCK despite its appearance, the big white truck with silver doors, modeled by Warden Verlene Colburn, is the new animal control vehicle recently acquired by the city. The fiberglass body is designed for ease in cleaning and comfort to the animal. On hot summer days, it even has a fan to keep animals from overheating.

TSTA pledges support

AUSTIN - Texas State Teachers Association President Dora Scott congratulated Republicans Ronald Reagan and George Bush in spite of Texas State Teachers Association backing of their Democratic counterparts. She said she felt the association could work with the Republican administration in bringing about better working conditions for teachers around the country and educational improvements to benefit students.

"We will continue to work for the things we believe in," Scott said.

Optimists honor 16 Pampa youths

AMONG THOSE to be honored by the Pampa Optimists Club during Youth Appreciation Week Nov. 10-14 are these six outstanding young Pampans.

The Pampa Optimists Club is honoring 16 outstanding young Pampans during Youth Appreciation Week Nov. 10-14. The observance has as its objective to publicize the fact that the majority of youth is well informed, concerned, willing and interested in becoming involved in efforts to improve our society.

Among those being honored is Lisa Raymond, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vic Raymond, 1912 Charles. Miss Raymond is secretary of the Key Club, vice-president of the Spanish Club and is a member of the National Honor Society. A senior at Pampa High School, she is co-captain of the PHS swim team. She is a former Most Valuable Player; last year she was a regional finalist and a tag qualifier at the AAU State Championship Swim Meet.

As a freshman, she was first place winner in the local Optimist oratorical contest. She won first place in art in the Northwestern Texas Regional Exhibition Preliminaries Contest and won second place in last year's PHS typing contest. She was a member of the Concert Choir and participated in two school musicals.

Patricia Reynolds is secretary-treasurer of the HECE-HERO chapter at Pampa High School. The daughter of Wiley (Butch) Reynolds Jr. and Mrs. Susie Reynolds, Miss Reynolds approaches each task with drive and determination. According to her sponsor, Home Economics Cooperative Education, Miss Reynolds keeps the class lively and is a major force behind the success of the HERO organization.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Crow, 213 Tignor, Billy Burke is president of the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America for the industrial cooperative training class at Pampa High School. He is a second year student and is employed by Honda of Pampa. His future plans include college, although he has not yet decided where.

Richard Hutchinson, a freshman at Pampa High School, is one of the leaders of his general mechanical repair shop class. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Hutchinson, 418 N. Sumner. Hutchinson is treasurer of Chapter No. 563, Vocational Opportunities Clubs of Texas, and will represent the chapter at district contests in the prepared speech competition. He is active in the Youth Leadership Organization and is a member of the 9th grade football team. His hobbies include rodeo and bird hunting. He plans to eventually travel on the rodeo circuit.

A junior at Pampa High School, Crispin Bradsher is an excellent band student. He is an outstanding trombone player in the concert and stage bands. During the marching season, he plays the tri-toms in the percussion section.

Bradsher, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Bradsher, 1216 S. Faulkner, is described as an excellent leader and a fine young citizen of Pampa.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: Please continue to emphasize the fact that charities should not waste money. When I give blood to the Red Cross, I don't want a thank-you letter. When I walk door-to-door collecting for another charity, I don't need to be invited to a formal ball for dinner and dancing to be officially thanked for my help. If the public knew of this kind of waste they would be up in arms.

Those of us who work hard for charities want all the money to go where it can help the cause.

HELEN IN SAN PEDRO

DEAR HELEN: Right on! The best example of using every cent to "help the cause" reminds me of a wonderful fund-raising idea used by Goodwill Industries of South Florida a few years ago. They sent invitations that read:

"The annual Goodwill Industries dinner will not be held this year at the Americana Hotel. No cocktails will be served at 7 p.m. No dinner will be served at 8 p.m. The master of ceremonies will not be Jackie Gleason. The invocation will not be read by the Rev. Norman Vincent Peale, and the guest speaker will not be Dear Abby."

"Stay home and have a restful evening, but please send $50 per person or $100 per couple."

Needless to say, it was hugely successful.

P.S. The moral to that story is: Many people are so bored with fancy fund-raising bashes, they'd cheerfully pay to stay home!

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my husband's family. We get along for the most part, but when it comes to politics and related social issues, we disagree violently. In order to keep every family get-together from erupting into a noisy battle, I just keep my mouth shut.

However, my children are now old enough to understand the talk, and I don't want some of the erroneous, bigoted statements made by my husband's family to go unchallenged. (They are the kind of people with whom one cannot have an intelligent, quiet discussion; they just yell a lot.)

My husband's family always initiates these political discussions. How in the world can I remain silent without destroying my children's belief in my ideals?

KEEPING THE PEACE

DEAR KEEPING: A noisy battle involving politics and related social issues is much healthier for children than the choked-off silence you're maintaining in the interest of peace and quiet. Speak up. Silence implies agreement.

DEAR ABBY: My 15-year-old daughter wants to wear a chain around her ankle. We decided to go with whatever you said.

When I was growing up (I'm 37), only females of ill-repute wore them. "Nice" girls didn't wear ankle bracelets — as we called them back in those days. Is this still true?

By Abigail Van Buren

SEEKING INFORMATION

DEAR SEEKING: It wasn't true then, and it still isn't.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Convenience foods make hearty soup

A hearty soup takes on a special chicken flavor when it's enlivened with a can of chunk white chicken.

For a quick evening dinner combine some of your canned specials that you keep stocked on the shelf all the time for a filling meal that takes only heating time to prepare.

SO-CALLED CHICKEN SOUP

- 1 can (16 ounces) pork and beans in tomato sauce

- 1 can (about 8 ounces) whole kernel golden corn, undrained
- 1/2 soup can water

- 1/8 teaspoon onion salt
- 1 can (5 ounces) chunk white chicken

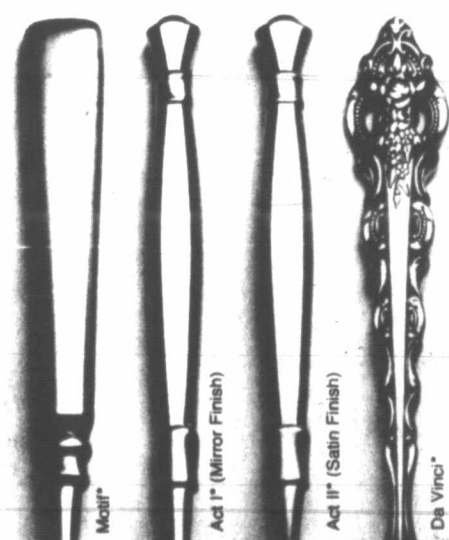

In large saucepan, combine all ingredients except chicken. Heat; stir occasionally. Add chicken; heat. This kitchen-tested recipe makes about 5 cups, 3 to 4 servings.

AT WIT'S END

By Erma Bombeck

I don't cheat on my income tax.
I don't lie about my age on my driver's license.
I don't tell my dentist I floss when I don't.
So how come I have trouble looking honest?
Ever see me going through customs? You can't miss me. I always look like a poodle who has just missed the paper.
I contend you can always tell when a person is lying. He looks you directly in the eyes and with a sincerity that belongs in the pulpit says, "You can believe me." Maybe it's because people have more riding on a lie than they do on the truth.
I try too hard with the truth... especially when I bear the burden of it.

When my husband asks, "How did that dent get in the car door?" I approach the car like a bullfighter with irregularities... a little stiff-legged, a little hesitant. Don't be too quick to find the spot... nor too dumb to recognize it when you see it. Now, run fingers over it slowly, clear throat, and say in an even voice, "I don't know. This is the first time I've noticed it. Who could have done such a thing? I didn't do it! I certainly would have remembered. Did someone say I did it? They lie!"

Don't talk too much. Go for more indignation. "That's a terrible thing to do and then run." Look him in the eyes. He's getting suspicious. "I suppose I could have done it, but..." Ten minutes later, I am making a full confession for something I didn't do.

I've seen honest people wrestle with the problem for years — people who feel like Jack the Ripper because they mistook a $1 for a $5 when they paid their bill, or who were stopped going through airport security for a piece of foil wrapped around their gum.

My Armageddon occurs when my charge is called in for verification. It only takes three or four hours, but it seems longer. First, I try to look bored like it's just a formality. Then in a move of self-assuredness I begin arranging the package under my arm like it's only a matter of seconds. When the salesperson is not looking at me, I search her eyes for some sign of panic or mistrust. My eyes lack coordination (like Marty Feldman) and my throat becomes dry. Sometimes I hum. If I have to go to the credit office, will I make a joke out of it or pass out?

Honestly... it's painful. Trust me. You have to believe that...

DR. LAMB

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I used to sleep like a baby. Now I'm lucky to get six hours a night. Often I only get four or five. I realize that at 62 I can't expect to sleep like I did when I was 18 but isn't it necessary to get eight hours of sleep a night? I just don't seem to be able to get to sleep but am still mulling things at midnight. Should I take a sleeping pill? I see these ads on TV that tell you how much better you feel if you use something.

DEAR READER — In my opinion many of the ads on TV are really harmful to the public because they are misleading. Those ads are worse than many of the other things TV has been faulted for. No, you may not need eight hours of sleep. And no, you should not get in the habit of taking those advertised "sleep aids." Most of them are harmful if taken on a regular basis.

A large percentage of sleep aids you can buy, and some doctors prescribe, lose their effectiveness in a few weeks. Then the victim increases the dose — to levels that are often not safe. Soon the person has an addiction as well as a problem sleeping.

Eight hours of sleep for young adults is about average and the sleep time does decrease with age. Many normal people sleep only six hours. It is the quality of sleep that makes the difference. Many short-sleepers have as much deep sleep as people who sleep eight hours.

The different stages of sleep are discussed in The Health Letter number 10-6, Sleep and Insomnia, that I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

You may need to adjust your life style so that you are ready for sleep. A regular habit is important. Unwind and slow down as the sleep hour approaches. Habits that help you sleep are discussed in The Health Letter that I am sending you.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Regarding bad fingernails, I'm a lay hypnotist with 10 years of practice. Of the dozens and dozens of ex-smokers I have to my credit, some had bad nails. Stopping smoking in some cases seems to have been linked to improved nail

'Decision' loaded with violence

THE FRENCH DECISION. By David Osborn. Doubleday. 252 Pages. $10.

"The French Decision" has been billed as a thriller of international intrigue and political duplicity. They might have added of virtually unprecedented violence.

Seldom has a novel been packed with so much mayhem carried out by bona fide intelligence officials in the name of security. It's all done with the blessings of the fictitious Dallas Research Foundation, founded by certain American oil interests with the ostensible aim of advising on joint American-European Common Market action against the energy drain.

The organization, known as Dallas, is actually the front for an intricate scheme to gain an international power foothold, beginning with control of France's petroleum reserves and oil refining.

Dallas officials who have support of the top echelons of U.S. government see their mission threatened by French infiltration of U.S. intelligence.

Book cites causes of allergies

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) — Some people can drink wine only when no cats are present. At least, that's what allergist Dr. Alfred Zamm and Robert Gannon, associated professor of English at Penn State, claims in their book, "Why Your House May Endanger Your Health."

The reason: a person allergic to cats may react only when "triggered" by a mold-based beverage, like wine or beer.

Among other possibly unsuspected situations that could cause allergies they discuss:

Allergic to housedust? The tiny housedust mite may be the thing that's giving you trouble. The dust in most homes contains the microscopic arthropod, and it's often the culprit in causing allergic sniffles.

You may be suffering from the "moody mother syndrome" and not even know it. That's a sensitivity to gas from a cooking range which, say the authors, often causes kitchen-air pollution worse than a California smog.

Some people should bake their newspapers before reading them, they point out. Newspaper ink may make chemically sensitive people sick; baking diminishes the fumes.

Feel tired after a day at the office? Zamm and Gannon claim that the cause is more likely to be a lack of negative ions in the office air than a heavy workload.

Something new to worry about: a heavily insulated house may cut air circulation so drastically that pollution can exceed that of downtown Los Angeles.

GRAY COUNTY 4-H COUNCIL
The Gray County 4-H Council will meet at the Pizza Inn in Pampa on Thursday, Nov. 13 at 6:30 p.m. Following a dutch treat meal, the Council will discuss plans for the 1980, 4-H Christmas Party.

The president and council delegate from each club should plan to attend this meeting and bring a few ideas for activities, decorations, and refreshments. Council delegates should bring a report on the activities of their club to present to the Council meeting.

4-H'ERS IN AGRICULTURE PREPARE FOR FUTURE
Between now and the year 2,000, the world must learn to produce as much food as it has learned to produce since the beginning of time. By the turn of the century there will be an estimated two mouths to feed for every one mouth being fed today.

Supplying enough food and fiber to meet future needs will not be an easy job. It will require more and better research and technology, more efficient use of land and energy, and improved crop protection methods.

Young people in the National 4-H Agricultural Program supported by international Harvester Company may one day play a key role in helping to feed the world of the 21st Century. Many of these 4-H members may decide to apply their 4-H training and experience in choosing careers in agriculture, a broad and dynamic industry that employs directly or indirectly almost a third of the U.S. labor force.

The 4-H Agriculture Program is conducted by the Extension Service for boys and girls, ages 9-19. The program encourages 4-H'ers to "learn by doing" the skills and practices that make for more efficient, profitable farming and ranching.

4-H Agricultural Projects and activities range from animals and poultry to plants and soils; energy, machines, and equipment; and ecology and natural resources. Young people enroll in one or more of these areas to gain experience and keep up to date on new and improved practices. They also share their knowledge with family members and their community.

Prisoner of suspended sex spends time in jail

SMYRNA, Del. (AP) — "I feel like a piece of raw meat," says Anthony "Diane" Cannon. "There's a lot of men in this jail who haven't had a woman in a long time."

The jail is the Delaware Correctional Center, a collection of sand-colored buildings that squat in an open field ringed with barbed-wire fence.

Inside the maximum-security facility there are 900 men. And Cannon — a man turning woman, with large breasts and facial dimples, wearing mascara, lipstick and rouge, sashaying down the prison corridors, sometimes with sex for sale.

Before prison, the 26-year-old inmate had a partial sex change operation (the removal of testicles) and was on heavy doses of female hormones.

Today, Cannon is trapped in a cinderblock cocoon; the metamorphosis has been suspended until society's debt is paid.

"The said they wouldn't send me to the women's prison because I still had my sex organ," Cannon, an admitted prostitute, told a reporter. "I'm caught in between."

Prison officials say they made the right decision, albeit a tough one, to incarcerate Cannon in the all-male institution.

"Sure, she belongs right here," insists George Pippin, the prison's chief of security. "I've known Cannon for a long time. She's a male."

"No, there are no special problems as far as I'm concerned. She doesn't get into any trouble that I know of. She has a few protectors, I'm sure, who keep tabs on her. I shouldn't say 'her' — 'him.' She's in an open custody unit."

Aren't there problems with sexual assaults, gang rapes?
"Why gang rape someone when for a price you can have her without a fight?" he replies.

"In here," says Cannon, "I do the same thing as I did on the outside if I have to, because, my mother only has so much income; I do whatever is necessary. I think it's something I have in my blood."

It was gay prostitution that got Cannon in trouble in the first place. He is serving 2½ years for escape, from a halfway house in Wilmington, assault and theft. His term ends Dec. 3, 1981.

"I guess I was about 18 when I first started," Cannon says. "This man picked me up. I didn't know what to do with him or nothing like that. So I took him to the apartment where the rest of the gays was, and they told me how to do this, how to do that."

Cannon has a woman's voice, soft and sultry. He wears the regular prison garb, but ties the tails of the unbuttoned blue denim shirt tightly at the waist. Breasts, developed from hormone treatments that began about two years ago, swell a white V-neck T-shirt.

Two necklaces, gifts from fellow prisoners, encircle a muscular neck. On his nose is a tiny gold butterfly. And he says he carries a shank — a hunk of sharpened metal fashioned in the prison.

"If I have to, I'll use it," he says.

"I've seen other men gang-raped," Cannon says, "but I guess I've just been fortunate. None has ever approached me that way. I just walk all over the jail and they just look and say, 'Hello. Hi, Diane.'"

And the guards?
"Some treat me lousy," he says, "and some of them feel sorry for me — that I am the way I am and have to be in a place like this."

"My mother, she goes to church all the time. She says that she believes that I'm going to change. She keeps telling me I'm not her daughter, I'm her son."

New process system speeds up VA claims

Administrator of Veterans Affairs Max Cleland, Veterans Regional Office, Waco, has announced completion of a three-year development program to bring the advantages of computer technology to processing claims for Veterans Administration compensation, pension and education benefits.

The new system — known as Target — will reduce claims processing time significantly and speed payment of checks totaling $14 billion annually to veterans and their families, according to Cleland.

Target replaces many manual operations that were used in handling inquiries and claims. VA's 57 regional offices in the United States and Puerto Rico are now able to enter, modify and retrieve data via a sophisticated computer system that is currently capable of handling some 160,000 transactions daily. Part of the hardware used by the agency includes 3,000 video display terminals and 800 remote printers installed in the regional offices.

Service improvements offered by Target are many and the agency expects to realize operating savings up to $200 million over the next 10 years, Cleland said. The system will provide faster adjustments to active claims payments and quicker action on new claims. Status inquiries from beneficiaries which previously required days and weeks to answer can now often be resolved in seconds.

The Target network is supported by nine large computers and 100 mini-computers that function in regional processing centers. A central payment system in Chicago is linked directly with the Treasury Department check production facilities and VA's huge data processing center in Austin maintains a computer index of basic beneficiary information.

Schmidt named NL's top player

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Schmidt, the slugging third baseman who led the Philadelphia Phillies to their first world championship in 97 years, was named National League Player of the Year by the Associated Press today.

Schmidt easily outdistanced the field, leading a Philadelphia sweep of the first four places in the balloting by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

He received 368½ votes, finishing far ahead of Philadelphia pitcher Steve Carlton, who last week won the National League Cy Young Award. Carlton received 81½ votes. Phillies bullpen ace Tug McGraw was third in the balloting with 13, followed by peppercorn first baseman Pete Rose, who had nine.

Schmidt set a major league record for third basemen with 48 home runs, breaking the mark of 47 set by Hall of Famer Eddie Mathews in 1953. It was the fourth time in the last seven seasons that Schmidt has led the NL in homers.

He also won the National League runs batted in crown with 121.

A perennial Gold Glove third baseman, Schmidt was selected to the All Star team for the fifth time last season and either led or was among the NL leaders in several other batting categories, including total bases, sacrifice flies, slugging percentage and runs scored.

Schmidt was the driving force in the Phillies' pulsating race to the National League East Division crown and had the game-winning RBI in each of his team's last five regular-season victories. It was his home run in the 11th inning on the next to the last day of the season in Montreal that ended the Expos' chances and clinched the division title for the Phillies.

Schmidt was named Most Valuable Player in the World Series after batting .381 with two home runs, seven runs batted in and six runs scored against Kansas City.

The 31-year-old Schmidt is a favorite to be named National League Most Valuable Player when the Baseball Writers Association of America announces its selection later this month.

Other players receiving more than one vote were Dale Murphy, Joe Morgan, Garry Templeton, Keith Hernandez, Bill Buckner, Steve Garvey, Jose Cruz, Dave Parker, Ron LeFlore, Gary Carter, Andre Dawson, Dusty Baker and George Hendrick.

The AP American League Player of the year will be announced Wednesday night.

How Bear Bryant faces his legend

NEW YORK (NEA) — Sixty-seven-year-old Paul "Bear" Bryant is learning what it's like to be called the top legend in the history of college football.

To Bryant, who needs just one more good season by Alabama next year to become the winningest U.S. football coach ever, his glory is a mixed blessing.

"It's embarrassing for me really," Bryant says. "I mean to have to talk about my records." He admits, "It's been a distraction to me."

Guiding his 1980 Alabama squad toward an unprecedented third-straight national title, Bryant has passed the career milestone of 300 victories.

"Coaches don't win games, players do," claims Bryant, who has led Alabama to national championships in 1961, 1964, 1965, 1973, 1978 and 1979.

Now he is trying to keep his own publicity from burdening his players.

"It's difficult, really," Bryant says. "I've talked to the team about it. They're not playing for me... That was worrying me to death. I didn't want our team to think I wanted them to go out and win 300 games just for me."

Bryant, who speaks in a raspy Southern drawl, claims the game of college football ("I love it") is still more important to him than chasing records.

"I get a kick out of going to practice every day," Bryant explains. "That's where the fun is — when you're preparing. And playing."

A head coach for 35 years, Bryant, who is 6-foot-3, has evolved from a rugged disciplinarian into a homespun figurehead. But he isn't yet ready to turn in his trademark houndstooth hat. Not before the end of 1982.

Still, the boss of the Crimson Tide is reluctant to compare himself to Hall of Famer Amos Alonzo Stagg, the pioneer coach who won a record 314 games — most of them at the University of Chicago from 1892 through 1932.

Says Bryant: "I think that if you're talking about the record... talking about Mr. Stagg's record... I think that should be set aside from anything else. I think that should be on a pedestal that no one could ever break."

During a 57-year career, Stagg introduced the huddle to college football along with such basic plays as the man-in-motion and the end-around. "To me, he's a Huckleberry Finn," says Bryant of Stagg.

"To me, there's no comparison." Why not? Well, Bryant points to the modernization of football.

"Four or five decades ago, what would we have in common?" asks Bryant. "Any coach now has a great coaching staff, we have a great recruiting staff... Mr. Stagg, back there, I don't know if he had anybody. He had his wife."

"Now it's highly commercialized, it's a big business. Then, as I understand it, you'd go on picnics, sing together, have a candy pull."

Would Bryant have enjoyed being a head coach in that kind of relaxed atmosphere? He smiles. "I think anybody would," Bryant admits.

A farmboy out of Moro Bottom, Ark., Bryant got his nickname as a youth by wrestling a carnival bear in a $1-a-minute bout — to impress a girlfriend. (He eventually married his college beau, Mary Harmon Black.)

Bryant played in the first football game he ever saw, became an All-State tackle for Fordyce (Ark.) High School, and was recruited by Alabama.

As a blocker for the Crimson Tide (1933-35), Bryant was "the other end" to pass catcher Don Hutson. Under coach Frank Thomas, Alabama was 23-3-2 during Bryant's playing career — including a 1935 Rose Bowl victory over Stanford.

Talking about Thomas, Bryant recalls his own start in coaching: "He gave me a job at Alabama. It was $1,250 a year. That was more than I was worth. More than I could get trying to play pro. And I wasn't good enough to play pro."

Did Bryant ever consider a future other than coaching? "No," he says. "I didn't know anything I could do. Plowing... Something like that."

Now a self-made millionaire, Bryant — who is paid $54,000 a year by Alabama — has profited through dealings in lumber, real estate and meat packing. His TV work and commercial endorsements are lucrative, too.

The key, of course, is his successful record in football:

Assistant coach — Alabama, 1936-39, and Vanderbilt, 1940-41; U.S. Navy recreation officer — 1941-45; head coach — Maryland, 1945; head coach — Texas A&M, 1954-57, and Alabama, 1958-.

Leonard prepares for Duran

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Former champion Sugar Ray Leonard begins his workouts here today, preparing for his Nov. 25 rematch with welterweight champion Roberto Duran.

Both fighters will be working out daily at the Superdome, but Leonard begins his training sessions about two hours later than Duran.

Duran zipped through his first on-site workout Monday, toying with three sparring partners through six rounds of boxing.

He took the World Boxing Council crown from Leonard by unanimous, though close, decision in June in Montreal. The rematch is scheduled for the Superdome, and promoters say they expect a live gate of around $8 million.

Duran repeated his prediction that the fight will not go the 15-round distance.

"I'm better prepared than I was last time," he said through manager Luis Henriquez, who acted as interpreter for the Panamanian fighter. Duran said Leonard gave him only a mediocre fight in June.

"I don't have any respect for him," he said.

"When he was champion, he became the champion by fighting nobodies."

Leonard won his title by stopping Wilfred Benitez in the 15th round of their fight.

Duran held the undisputed lightweight title before running out of opponents and tiring of making the 135-pound limit.

He said Monday that he is much stronger at the 147-pound weight, and he appeared to be close to that weight on Monday.

But he said he has no plans to move up to the middleweight division, should he eventually win both halves of the welterweight crown.

"I don't want to go coo-coo," he said, a smile breaking through his scowl he wore through most of the post-practice interview.

Trainer Freddie Brown would not say what sort of regimen Duran will follow in the final two weeks of preparation.

But Duran said he won't be distracted by the nightlife of New Orleans.

"I came to fight," he said. "Anything else will have to wait until after the fight."

Jazz nips Pacers, 108-106

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Utah Coach Tom Nisalke was happy with his team's 108-106 win over Indiana, its 10th in the young National Basketball Association season.

But he said he wasn't pleased with the way the Jazz turned the game over to Indiana in the final minutes of play Monday night.

"The Pacers did a great job with the press," Nisalke said. "They didn't use it until late in the game, but when they did, we didn't react to it well at all."

The Indiana-Utah contest was the only NBA game Monday night.

Leading 93-82 midway in the final period, Utah fell into a spell of sloppy ball handling, thanks to the Pacers' press. The Jazz turned the ball over 11 times in the quarter. At one point, they suffered through five straight possessions without getting a shot off.

Meanwhile, Indiana's Billy Knight scored 18 of his game-high 36 points in the final period as the Pacers overtook the Jazz at 103-102 with a minute and a half to play.

But Allan Bristow and Billy McKinney converted a pair of free throws each in the final 30 seconds, and Utah grabbed a squeaker.

Adrian Dantley led the winners with 33 points and rookie Darrell Griffith came through with 29. Bristow finished with 15.

James Edwards, the 7-foot-1 Indiana center, scored 19 for the losers, and Mike Bantom came through with 16.

"We played fairly well with a depleted corps of starters," McKinney said. "But we played badly enough to lose by letting Utah get the shots."

Pampa girls win rodeo team title

Pampa girls, led by Jo Linda Lowrey, won the team trophy during the Childress High School Rodeo held recently.

Lowrey, who tied for all-around honors, took first in goat tying and first in breakaway roping. She was awarded the first-place saddle after a tiebreaking coin flip.

Lena Stewart won sixth in goat tying.

In the boys division, Monte Hopkins tied for third in bareback riding and Wendell Shultz took sixth in ribbon roping.

Pampa is entered in rodeos at Dumas Nov. 15-16 and Amarillo Nov. 22-23.

Rangers still seeking manager

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Principal owner Eddie Chiles says he is bowing out of the search for a Texas Rangers manager and apparently has erased Yankee skipper Dick Howser from the Texas script.

Chiles said he had made four attempts to contact New York owner George Steinbrenner for permission to talk to Howser about the Rangers post, after published reports of friction between the Yankee owner and his manager.

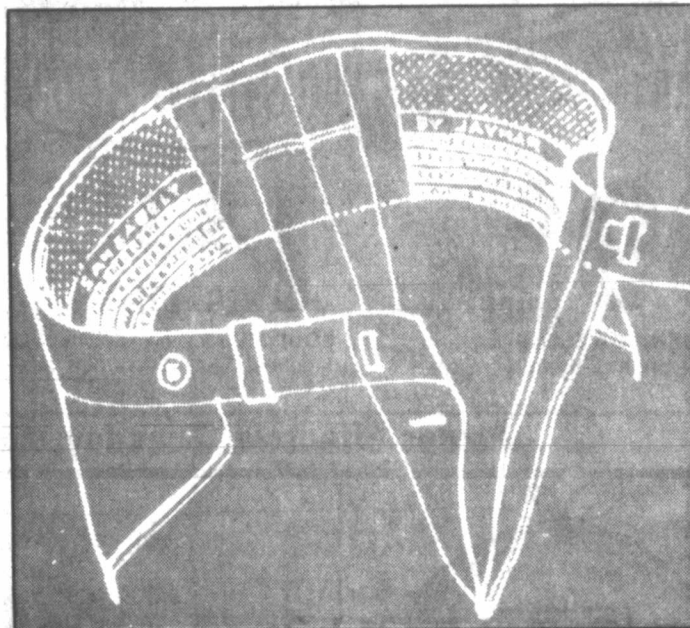

But, he said, Steinbrenner refused to return the calls and Chiles said he has now handed the hunt back over to vice president Eddie Robinson.

"I've turned everything back over to Eddie and told him to get us a manager as quick as he could," Chiles said Monday. "I certainly hope we have a manager by this week, and I don't see how we can wait around another minute on Dick Howser."

"I want to do something this week, but I don't know if I can," said Robinson, who will be in New York on Thursday for baseball's annual winter free-agent draft.

Oilers win 38-34 thriller

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers almost forgot who they were Monday night when they jumped to a 24-6 halftime lead against the New England Patriots.

But the Oilers, who prefer a good cliffhanger to a blowout, quickly got back in character in the second half when they almost blew the lead and treated fans to their weekly chamber of horrors before pulling out a 38-34 thriller.

It wasn't decided until cornerback Greg Stremick intercepted a Steve Grogan pass in the end zone with 20 seconds left to play.

And it took a couple of Monday night specialists, quarterback Ken Stabler and running back Earl Campbell, to lead the Oilers through.

Stabler, who has posted a 10-1 record in Monday night games, completed 15 of 17 passes for 258 yards and three touchdowns.

Campbell, in his fifth consecutive 100-yard performance in Monday night games, gained 130 yards on 30 carries and scored on runs of three and seven yards.

"It's not a matter of 'I' but 'We,'" said Stabler when asked about his Monday night success. "We've got an outstanding offensive team with a lot of talent."

Campbell, who had only 46 yards rushing in the first half, said he was trying too hard. "A lot of the problem in the first half was my fault," Campbell said. "I was trying to push things too much. In the second half I just slowed and let the offensive line do their work. Their defense came at us very hard. They've got a great club. There's nothing you can say bad about them."

The Oilers took an unaccustomed 24-6 halftime lead on a 45-yard field goal by Toni Fritsch. Stabler's touchdown passes of 79 yards to tight end Mike Barber and four yards to tight end Dave Kasper and Campbell's three-yard run.

New England could muster only field goals of 45 and 26 yards by rookie John Smith.

But Grogan, who finished with 25 completions on 39 attempts for 374 yards, brought the Patriots to life in the third quarter with a 39-yard touchdown pass to Harold Jackson and Don Calhoun's one-yard run.

The race really heated up in the fourth quarter with Campbell scoring on a seven-yard run and Grogan matching it with a 21-yard touchdown pass to tight end Russ Francis.

Stabler came back with a 16-yard touchdown pass to wide receiver Mike Renfro, but Grogan had one more shot, a 15-yard scoring pass to Francis with 1:28 left in the game.

But it still wasn't over. New England's Motti Tatupu recovered an onside kick and the Patriots reached Houston's 19-yard line before Grogan threw into the end zone and Stremick ended the game with his interception.

"I was looking for the corner on the interception," Stremick said of his first interception of the year. "I was taking a chance on thinking corner, but I acted like a receiver and I went up and shielded him from the ball."

New England coach Ron Earhardt, who saw his team drop to a 7-3 record, was disappointed at his team's missed scoring chances.

"We had plenty of chances to win tonight, but the best team did not win," he said. "We're just as good as they are and we had plenty of opportunities to prove it. I feel very proud of our football team."

Oiler coach Bum Phillips was equally proud of his team. "We played as good offensively as we possibly could have," Phillips said. "You all may not think our defense played well, but I'm telling you those people have put points on the board against everybody."

Oiler defensive coordinator Ed Biles gave credit to Grogan.

"I'm sure when you look at the films I'm sure you'll see we didn't play all that bad. Grogan just drilled the ball in there where they could catch it. They were just good passes."

Lomax compared to Staubach

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — If you rate a college football quarterback by sheer statistics, then Neil Lomax might be the one of the best who ever played.

Dallas Cowboys scout Gil Brandt compares Lomax with Roger Staubach, who now is retired.

It is not unusual for Lomax to throw 50 to 60 passes a game for Portland State, a NCAA Division I-AA school.

He holds 42 NCAA offensive records and has passed for more than seven miles in his college career.

He threw seven touchdown passes in the first quarter of Portland State's 105-0 victory over Delaware State last weekend.

No other quarterback has ever thrown for more than four touchdowns in one quarter.

Two weeks earlier, Lomax led Portland State, now 6-3 for the season, to a 93-7 victory over Cal Poly-Pomona.

"Neil Lomax will have an impact in the National Football League," Brandt said after a recent trip to Portland to see Lomax in action. "Unless I'm completely off base, this is the kind of guy you can go with into the playoffs in three or four years."

Brandt says Lomax will be a first-round draft choice — possibly the second or third quarterback chosen.

That's heady praise for a youngster who wasn't recruited by a single major college team when he was a quarterback who almost never threw the ball at Lake Oswego High School in suburban south Portland.

At the last minute, Coach Darrell "Mouse" Davis of Portland State offered Lomax a scholarship.

With two games left in his collegiate career, the 6-foot-3, 212-pound Lomax has thrown for 12,298 yards. By comparison, Mark Hermann of Purdue holds the major college record of 9,205 yards.

Lomax has completed 58 percent of his 1,506 passes and has thrown an NCAA record 98 touchdown passes, breaking the old mark of 93 by Doug Williams of Grambling.

You would think his arm would get tired, but not so.

"During twice-a-day practices, I probably throw 500 or 600 passes a day," Lomax said. "I could keep throwing it all night."

Lomax has been trying to keep all of this in perspective, at the same time dodging an onslaught of agents begging to represent him in contract negotiations.

"They've been around a lot," Lomax said of the agents. "Mouse has done a good job of screening a lot of them before they get to me."

"It's really been difficult," Lomax said. "People have been trying to make me think about after-season things, like what team do you want to play for? I've got to concentrate on these last two games."

"You talk about size or arm strength or anything you want. This guy is a player," Brandt said. "He throws 40-yard deep outs that are something to behold."

Lomax operates the pass-oriented "run-and-shoot" offense invented by Davis. The quarterback is usually on the move in the offense and some scouts have wondered about Lomax's ability to drop directly back into a pocket as most NFL teams require.

But Brandt viewed Lomax's foot speed and mobility and said he wasn't worried anymore.

Georgia jumps to No. 1

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Georgia's football team is No. 1 in the nation in the Associated Press poll, but Coach Vince Dooley, cautious as ever, points out that that's certain only for this week.

"As a football fan and particularly as a Georgia fan I am very excited about it," he said. "The polls are great for the game of football and great for the fans and really great for the Georgia fans today."

"But, as a football coach and particularly as the Georgia football coach I don't like weekly polls, particularly because of the history of the last two weekly No. 1's," he said, pointing out that Alabama lost to Mississippi State 6-3 two weeks ago and last week's leader Notre Dame was tied 3-3 by Georgia Tech on Saturday.

"The significant thing about us being No. 1 is that we have not lost yet," Dooley said. "The only poll I'm really concerned with is the one in January. That's what it's all about." He was referring to the final poll after the bowl games in January.

The Bulldogs face Auburn on Saturday and another point perhaps concerning Dooley is the last time Georgia was No. 1, in 1942, the team lost 27-13 to Auburn in a game at Columbus, Ga., knocking the Bulldogs from the top spot.

Georgia finished second in the nation that year and went to the Rose Bowl after beating Georgia Tech 34-0.

The last time Georgia finished unbeaten was 1946, when the Bulldogs ranked No. 3.

Auburn has had problems all season but beat Southern Mississippi 31-0 last Saturday. "I think the real Auburn team stood up Saturday," Dooley said. "They're good enough to beat anybody."

Georgia's march to the top spot this year culminated last Saturday when the Bulldogs scored on a 93-yard pass play from quarterback Buck Belue to receiver Lindsay Scott with just over a minute remaining to beat Florida 26-21 as arch-rival Georgia Tech was tying Notre Dame.

The campus went wild. One coed,

21-year-old education major Carol Fulghum, had driven to her family's home in Sandy Springs to watch the game on the television set in the den.

"I was hollering so much, they locked me up in the room," she said. "They were really getting mad — I was screaming at the top of my lungs."

The rest of the day she answered the telephone by saying, "How about them Dawgs?"

Even one wrong number responded, "They're great!"

"The town went absolutely berserk," said Frank Willcox, a geology major who was watching TV at a bar.

Signs were out saying, "Honk if you love the Bulldogs," and posters of Dooley were being sold for $65 at a newsstand. Bumper stickers said, "Me and you and a dog named Belue," while others said, "Go, you hairy dogs!"

And a local newspaper jumped the gun, proclaiming in a headline more than a day before the poll, "Oh, Great Scott, Georgia's No. 1!"

Zimbabwe civilians shot in guerilla crossfire

BULAWAYO, Zimbabwe (AP) — The casualty toll rose to dead and at least 300 injured in the aftermath of clashes between thousands of guerrillas in Bulawayo, Zimbabwe's second largest city, hospital sources said.

They said most of the dead and wounded were black civilians caught in the crossfire of Monday's fierce battles with guerrillas, rocket launchers, machine guns and automatic rifles.

About 3,000 former guerrillas are housed in transit camps in Bulawayo and other parts of Zimbabwe now that the country, formerly called Rhodesia, has a black-majority government. It became independent from Britain last April. The guerrillas had fought for seven years against the break-away white-minority government of former Prime Minister Ian Smith.

Since the end of the war, black Prime Minister Robert Mugabe — leader of one of the guerrilla groups — has tried to find jobs for the former insurgents, who still have their weapons. His task has been complicated by rivalry between his organization and another nationalist band loyal to Joshua Nkomo, now minister of home affairs in the coalition government.

An uneasy peace followed threats and appeals by Mugabe on nationwide television and radio Monday night to both groups.

The rival bands, camped in compounds of small tin-roofed houses a few blocks apart in the black township of Entumbane, first clashed Sunday. They also fought fierce battles throughout most of Monday until guerrilla commanders from the capital of Salisbury crossed police and army cordons to urge them to stop.

In his address, Mugabe appealed for peace and warned: "I cannot allow hooliganism and lawlessness to establish a reign of terror in this country. The war is over."

Mugabe said Nkomo's loyalists started the trouble. Nkomo blamed the violence on three of Mugabe's Cabinet ministers, he said addressed a weekend rally in Bulawayo — heartland of Nkomo's tribal support — and said a one-party state might be proclaimed, the coalition government dissolved and all other political movements banned.

Mugabe announced he was reinforcing the army in the area, imposing a dusk-to-dawn curfew in the township and sending the top commanders of both guerrilla armies to talk to their men later today.

He refused to disclose the names of the owners. Charles Coates, who owns 140 acres adjacent to the site, opposed the choice and told the board the location of prison in Grimes County would inhibit growth and take valuable land off the tax rolls.

"It's not real comfortable living next to a prison farm because the people there are not first-class citizens," Coates said.

The site had not figured in speculation over possible locations for the farm until it was mentioned Saturday by Ruben Montemayor, TDC board member from San Antonio.

The board began the frustrating search two years ago, targeting the lower Rio Grande Valley because of its long growing season. Only last month, negotiations for a tract in Walker County — which borders Grimes County — fell through when the owner withdrew the offer.

The Grimes County site came under fire two weeks ago from residents after advertisements protesting the proposal were printed in a local newspaper.

Prison site approval lies with Valley panel

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Approval of a 5,968-acre tract of Grimes County land as a prison farm site now rests with a three-member panel that may ask Brazos Valley residents for their opinion of the selection.

The Texas Department of Corrections Board voted Monday to purchase the land for about $6.7 million. Two previous selections in the fertile Rio Grande Valley — the board's first preference for a new farm — were scuttled during the 2-year search.

Earlier this year, the proposed purchase of the 5,300-acre La Casita Farms near Rio Grande City went down the drain after heated public outcry in Starr County.

The selection must be endorsed by a three-member panel of Gov. Bill Clements, Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong and TDC Board Chairman James Windham.

After the heated protests from Starr County residents over La Casita Farms, Clements promised he would hold public hearings on further selections.

T.L. Roach of Amarillo, chairman of the selection committee, said the site 75 miles northwest of Houston has ample supplies of surface water and adequate rainfall and is excellent for agriculture. "It meets all the criteria," he said.

Veterans Day

11 NOV. '80

On the occasion of the remembrance of the ending of that war... "to end all wars," we offer tribute to those valiant men and women who endured, suffered and died in that great conflict.

In dedication to those noble warriors, and in the hope for fulfillment of that universal quest for world peace, let us give silent pause this day, November 11th.
