AMARILLO, Mar. 21 (AP)—Madame Amelita Galli-Curci operatic soprano, boarded a Western Air Express plane at 3:30 p. m. for Albuquerque, N. M., on her first airplane flight. "I'm up in the air before I start," Madame Galli-Curci said as her plane came in. "I couldn't sleep last night. But I'm just excited; I know it isn't fright. Flying is safe now."

The famous artist embarked on what promised to be a rough flight. The plane was delayed several hours in leaving Kansas City this morning, and had fought a strong headwind all the way to Amarillo. Wallace Beery, noted movie star and licensed pilot, took off from Amarillo for Wichita, Kas., in a special plane only a few minutes before Madame Galli-Curci left in the opposite direction. PLENTY OF OIL LEFT IN GRAY COUNTY FIELDS

ATTENTION IS DRAWN BY BIG GUSHER OF MAGNOLIA

LOCATED IN NEW AREA

LOW PRICE OF CRUDE STILL PROBLEM TO BE SETTLED

Attention of Gray county operators was drawn from local legislative halls, proration and low crude prices to the local production situation last week. They were forcibly reminded that there is still more than plenty of oil in the Pampa fields—of, of course, it could be sold at otherwise depressed prices.

Big Magnolia Well

The biggest development of the week was the bringing-in of Magnolia Petroleum company's No. 4 Latham, section 153, block 3, for an initial potential of 15,000 barrels of oil and fifty million feet of gas. This well is in the area opened up by the Cree & Hoover well four miles southwest of Pampa. Tools were still in the hole. Oil is being placed in tank storage. The well is expected to cause extensive development in the area.

The Sun Oil Company's No. 2 Combs-Worley, section 35, block 3, was flowing 21 barrels per hour with nine million feet of gas from a total depth of 2,886 feet. Pay was found at 2,826-36 feet.

Mellroy Oil company's No. 1 Baer, section 125, block 3 had a thousand feet of oil in the hole from a total depth of 3,248 feet. Oil was struck from 3,234-48 feet. The casing is being set at 3,152 feet.

Kewanee Oil and Gas company struck oil at 2,896 feet and was drilling at 2,408 feet in its No. 1-D Morse, section 16, block A-9, and at 2,392 feet in its No. 1E Morse, section 19, block A-9 which was drilling at 2,409 feet.

Finston Trustee's No. 2 Morse, section 1 block 26, had a show of oil at 2,412 feet where it was drilling. Beck et al's No. 1 Sullivan, section 135, block 3, was spraying four barrels per hour from 3,032-36 feet. It was shut down at 3,056 feet for the five-inch.

Girl Baby Uninjured In Long Drop

Little Miss Waydene Thomas, 14 months old, isn't like a cat—when she falls she lands nearly neatly on her back, not on her feet. Yesterday she crawled upon a chair, then on a window ledge, and fell from the second floor to the ground, a distance of more than 14 feet. Fortunately the ground was moist and soft, and the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Thomas suffered not a scratch.

When examined by a physician, she showed only small bruises, and evidenced a desire to go to sleep. She left a depression in the ground where she landed. Had she fallen in any other position than the way she did, she might have suffered fractured limbs or even death.

HOLD YOUTH IN GIRL SHOOTING

FORMER SWEETHEART CHARGED WITH ASSAULT

HARRIMAN, Tenn., Mar. 21 (AP)—Physicians today held small hope for the recovery of Miss Anna Grace Gilliland, 21, who with Miss Virginia Morrow, 24, University of Tennessee co-ed and resident of Dallas, Texas, was shot and wounded at a high school party and dance here Friday at midnight.

Roy Chittwood, 25, whom officers said was the shooter, was arrested at Kingsport, Tenn., charged with felonious assault upon the two young women. He will be given a preliminary hearing Tuesday. Sheriff W. W. Roberts said he has the names of four witnesses who say they saw Chittwood fire at his former sweetheart.

The sheriff quoted the youth as saying "I drank a pint of liquor before going to the party; remember being there but remember nothing about the shooting."

Miss Gilliland was shot twice through the left side and once through the left arm. Miss Morrow, a University senior who came here from Southern Methodist University, Dallas, last fall to enter the University of Tennessee, was shot through the right leg.

Miss Morrow, the sheriff said, was apparently shot accidentally. She was standing beside Miss Gilliland. An automatic pistol was taken from the youth.

BOYCOTT SERVICES FOR CHANCELLOR MUELLER

BERLIN, March 21 (AP)—The gesture for which Hermann Mueller's political opponents never forgave him lived after him today as they nationalistic and communist boycotted a reichstag session, paying tribute to the memory of the chancellor who signed the Versailles treaty.

One communist attended and he refused to rise with the other members as a token of respect for the statesman whose creed was conciliation. There was a near riot and members loyal to Mueller's memory spat upon the offending communists.

GALLI CURCI SAYS SHE WILL NEVER RETIRE FROM SINGING

"JAZZ IS GROTESQUE—CUBAN INFLUENCE DOES NOT HELP" IS OPINION OF PRIMA DONNA; SAYS AMERICANS LIKE CHILDREN

By ARCHER FULGINIM It was not wholly a coincidence that Mme. Amelita Galli-Curci sang in Amarillo, Friday night, and the next morning was the first day of spring. The ancient, beauty-loving Greeks, it is said, printed the word "spring" on the lips of the goddess of love.

For Galli-Curci's voice is one with springtime—it has that sharp, aching beauty of bursting buds. Even if it had not been the evening before spring it would have been difficult to believe that spring would not arrive on the pampas as soon as the finished singing. "Lo, Here the gentle breeze and late obligato, with the sun, for the moment anyway, the brought Prosperine back to earth. She knows the Lark at Shakespeare, as John Keats as Edna St. Vincent Millay knew him.

Galli-Curci has been the world's favorite soprano for at least 15 years. Nowadays, lovers of beautiful music—people who haven't heard her for several years, wonder when her ineffably lovely voice will begin to lose its sheen; when she will begin to talk of retiring; when the crowds will stop filling her concert halls. Friday evening, Mrs. Samuels—for she is the wife of "Homer Sainuels when she is off the stage, told this writer that she would never retire. "An artist never retires—he keeps on singing even after he says 'I will retire. I will never stop singing as long as I have a voice for it. There will be no farewell tours.' Galli-Curci's voice has baffled the teachers and her imitators since it first burst upon a world that was ready to worship it. In the last three years, Mme. Galli-Curci has added a new quality to it—mellowness. The swift, piercing quality of the tones in the upper register has lost its cutting edge, but the voice still retains its contour, and as long as it has this symmetry, that speaks more of nature than of art, she will have no need to retire. Her old loveliness had gone Friday night but a new one had taken its place. Possibly she sang the shadow song from "Dinorah" with less effort, but then there was the added beauty.

"Cute Songs Galli-Curci has always had one fault and she still has it: she sings too many inconsequential songs in which her voice becomes nothing more than a vocal acrobat, a vocal gymnast. Does she believe that her American audiences like those little sentimental novelties? (See GALLI-CURCI, Page 5)

NEGRO GIVEN DEATH COUNT

ASSESSES EXTREME FOR SLAYING COWBOY IN AMARILLO

AMARILLO, Mar. 21 (AP)—Death in the electric chair was the penalty demanded by a Potter county jury today of Will Kadow, negro hotel porter, for the slaying of Mont (Pete) Moore, youthful cowboy, March 4.

The jury reported at 2:50 p. m. after a deliberation of two hours. It was the first time a Potter county jury had assessed the extreme penalty. A crowded courtroom received the verdict quietly. Spectators were instructed by Judge Henry S. Bishop to remain seated until officers had removed the prisoner. The negro extended his arms for handcuffs, apparently eager to escape the crowds.

Moore was indicted the day of the slaying, and his case was set for trial exactly two weeks from that date. The case opened Wednesday morning, as much time being spent in selecting a jury as in hearing testimony and argument of counsel.

The negro's testimony that he killed the youthful ranch employe after being attacked by four men, including Pete Moore, was uncorroborated. Two of the slain man's companions and two other eye-witnesses said the shooting was without provocation or warning.

The shooting occurred when the cowboys went to the hotel where the negro worked, at 2 a. m., to awake some friends that had registered there.

SEVEN BULLET HOLES PIERCE GENARO'S BODY

NOTED GANGSTER DEAD IN 'AUTOMOBILE ON SOUTH SIDE

KNOWN AS SUPERVISOR

WAS SUSPECTED FOR KILLING BROOKLYN GANG KLYN

CHICAGO, Mar. 21 (AP)—Garrland assassins caught up with Johnny Genaro tonight. Police found the body of the Capone south side henchman, shot seven times, in an automobile at 29th and Normal avenues. Genaro had been suspected of killing Frankie Yale, Brooklyn, gang leader, whose slaying in 1928 has proved a puzzle of New York police, and of shooting of James Belcastro, bomber and terrorist.

Eastern authorities investigating the Yale killing came to Chicago and questioned Genaro at length, but apparently had insufficient evidence to make a case against him, and he was released.

Yale once was associated with Capone, and underworld rumor had it the two had a falling out. Soon after, Yale was killed. Genaro was known as a supervisor of Capone's Calumet City beer business.

One theory was that Genaro might have been implicated in the slaying of "Wild Bill" Rooney, a west side labor leader, earlier this week. Police also said Genaro may have been slain by some surviving member of the old Moran-Alab-Zuka combine.

Genaro and Tony (Gloves) Volpe, Capone gunner awaiting deportation to Italy, had attempted to kidnap Zuta. He frustrated it, and soon after Genaro was ambushed and seriously wounded, ostensibly by members of the Zuta gang.

NEW YORK, March 21 (AP)—A skeleton in the attic across the golden floor of the Wendel estate today; tapped complement to flesh and blood's swelling claims against a hundred million.

In Providence, R. I., a woman with a yellowed slip of paper impaled a recent marriage, a secret birth; a Baltimore broker and press pressed their efforts to prove a distant relationship; a Wendel in Jeffersonville, Ind., reached by long lines in Germany for collateral connection.

The woman in Providence—Mrs. Mabel Hayward—claims she is the daughter of John Gottlieb Wendel, Jr., son of the man who founded the Wendel fortune in the fur business as contemporary of John Jacob Astor.

Mrs. Hayward, the will of Miss Ella Wendel, supposed last of the American's richest and most eccentric families, lay misty in the case of the family's lawyer. It is expected to be offered for probate shortly.

SAILORS GIVE CHEERS FOR PRESIDENT HOOVER

U. S. S. ARIZONA, March 21 (AP) Cheers for President Hoover reverberated today from the throats of 800 gobs in white, massed in the forecastle of the warship Arizona. The president, bound on the overhauled fighting vessel for Porto Rico and the Virgin Islands on an informal holiday, waved his Panama hat in a smiling response.

The sailors had been grouped for a picture after an inspection of the crew by President Hoover. Crowded into the forecastle they covered six 14 inch guns and their turrets. The band played "Anchors Aweigh" as the picture was taken.

Then Captain Freeman called for cheers for "our commander-in-chief" and from the sailors came three lusty hurrahs. Today was the busiest of Mr. Hoover's trip, which began Thursday morning and will be punctuated early Monday by a landing at Ponce, P. R.

SYNOPSIS: Dr. MacAdoo and his fellow in crime, Mr. James, want to "bump off" John Wayne, unwell patient at Dr. Charters' nursing home. But Charters fears Wayne, admitted to his home and provided with an alibi for the slaying of "Spider" Schitz. Wayne may know that he had stolen from "Spider" his share of the loot in an American diamond haul. The physician's aide, Mr. James, is knocked down when he draws a pistol on Wayne, and there is more trouble when Wayne's hints send MacAdoo to Charters to demand half of the $10,000 pounds promised for certain developments in the case of Marjorie Lauderdale. Charters, alarmed at the revelation of Wayne's knowledge, angrily consents. Miss Lauderdale tells Wayne the medicine she is taking makes her worse. Dr. Studley of the home casually tells Dr. Mathieson, Wayne's personal physician, that Dr. MacAdoo is an expert in deadly poisons.

Chapter 15 SCANDAL IN THE HOME

Dr. Charters and Mr. James came as near to a breach as was possible between two men whose lives were so bound together.

They sat in solemn conclave until Dr. Charters introduced the subject of John Wayne, and very quickly the doctor's patience was outworn by Mr. James' dull reiteration of his one specific, "bump him off," and the simple mind of Mr. James was irritated by Dr. Charters' ostentatious and vain speculation, "Who is this man Wayne?"

"He's got me guessing, all day and all night."

"Well, get him guessing," growled Mr. James.

"Guessing what?"

"How to nibble his way out from a hole in the ground, six feet deep. Bump him off, I say."

"I wish you could say something sensible. I've told you how he's got us fixed, and Mathieson's coming again. . . I'll get him in the end."

"If he doesn't get us first. Bump him off, I say."

"Would you mind not saying that again, but set your wits to work about him and Spider Schitz, and find out something about him. I can't do everything myself; my hands are full, and all you can do is to sit there and say 'Bump him off,' when I tell you that his life's absolutely precious to us, just as present. Watch him, I say."

"Yes, you say a lot, Boss. Now suppose you give yourself a rest and listen to me. Then perhaps you'll do something, too. Last night I was making my second round, and half turning a corner, what should I see but some one coming along to toward me. Coming soft, too. In black socks and a dark dressing gown. I faded flat into the wall, with half an eye around the corner, intending to follow him up."

"Good boy, Jimmy. And who was our Mysterious Mr. Wayne off to?"

"You wait and do some of that thinking you talk about," replied Mr. James sourly.

"Well," he continued, "I don't follow the guy at all. Before he reaches the end of the corridor he stops, squints at the number over a door, and flashes on a torch. I got half a glimpse of his face, and you do you think it was?"

"Wayne?"

"No, it wasn't. It was that old rumbound, Colonel Campbell. And what room do you think he'd go into?"

The Doctor stared in amazement.

"Not Wayne's?"

"You've got Wayne on the brain. No, it wasn't Wayne's. It was the sainted and sanctified room of that hard-boiled Miss Skinner! That's what."

"Well, I'm damned!" said the Doctor. "Anyhow, we'll soon put an end to that sort of thing."

"We've never had a scandal in The Monastery yet and we won't start now," he added virtuously.

"Colonel Campbell and Miss Skinner clear out of here tomorrow, ill or well, cured or not cured."

"And the Wayne guy?" sneered Mr. James.

"What's he got to do with this?" inquired the Doctor.

"Well, perhaps you can say," was the reply. "For I just sat me down comfortable in a recess in that corridor, waiting for that booby old guy to come out again and get the shock of his life, when lo, it wasn't so. It was me who got the shock."

"For ten minutes later, along comes another one, treadin' soft. 'Geel' thinks I 'Am I in The Monastery?' And believe me, Boss, this second wanderer stopped at the same door, too!"

"You could have knocked me down and up again with the tip end of a hummin'-bird's feather. . . ."

"This one doesn't div straight in as the other done; he just taps the handle gentle, then opens the door and slides in. There's a light in the room now, so I get a glimpse of this one's face, too."

"Who was it?" snapped the Doctor, his face expressing anger.

"Who was it?" growled Mr. James. "It was only your Mr. Precious Don't - Bump - Him - Off Wayne."

Speechless, the Doctor stared his amazement and incredulity.

"Couldn't you hear anything?" he asked. "Nope. The innocent old maid and the poor silly run-hound and His-Life-is-Precious-to-Us Mr. Wayne had plugged the keyhole, put the elderdown or something along the bottom of the door, and gone to the far side of the room to hold their meeting—in soundless whisper. . . ."

"I'll tell you something else," continued Mr. James. "Though it's a thing I wouldn't tell ordinarily, for I'm not proud of it."

"As slow as a dead tortoise crawlin' backwards, I turned the handle of that door, knowing that none of them have keys or bolts. Then I began opening the door. . . ."

"And do you think there was a sound out of that room or a glimmer of light in it? Not on your life. The three innocents had their stiff and silent, and put the light out long before that handle had finished turning."

"Did you go in?" asked the Doctor.

"You bet I did. I allowed I'd be liable to catch to hear what that old run-hound Campbell had got to say, and see how your Mr. Wayne would explain himself away. . . . I walked in like I was the great Dr. Charters, and said into the pitch darkness of that room."

"And so help me Hannah if that wicked old hen didn't bowl me out like I was a burglar. You'd bet 'n life she'd just bin woke up from her innocent slumbers and was squawkin' from under the bedclothes."

"Oh, it's a man!" she screamed. "Get out of here, you wicked wretch. Who are you? I'll call the Doctor. Oh, where's the light and the bell?"

"Right where they used to be, Marm," says I, reaching out my hand and switchin' on the light. "And what do you think I saw? Our Miss Skinner, squintin' out from under the bedclothes. And not another thing in that room! Did I feel a fool?"

The Doctor murmured something. "Oh, it's your Mr. James. Good me," says Miss Skinner. "Oh, what on earth's the matter?"

"Why, I thought I saw a man come in here, I said as soon as I could get my breath."

"Oh, she squawks," Mr. James. "Oh, look under the bed. And look in the wardrobe and behind the curtains."

"I'll say I did look. Two men? There's wasn't two mice."

"Oh, squawks the young iron-cent in the bed. I shall never sleep comfortable in this room again."

"I believe you've said something. I don't think you will," says I.

"Well, as you've given me a dreadful fright for nothing, suppose you send Nurse Wilson to me at once."

"Well, nothing else for it. But it was Nurse Jones I sent to her. And all that old fairy want to her soothin'-dirt light for her sleepin' mixture, or something. . . ."

Dr. Charters sat staring, all the while, as if such a word were applicable to such a man, aghast.

"You had a dream, Jimmy," he said at last.

"It's not me that does the dreamin' here," was the reply.

"Well, I hand it to them," concluded Mr. James. "That was the slickest getaway ever staged—and whether they went through the doorway before I switched the light on, or out of the window before I opened the door, I don't know, and ain't likely to."

"Now you do some thinkin', Boss."

But don't you bump Mr. Mysterious Wayne off, no, no!"

Reno Gambling Halls Wide Open

RENO, Mar. 21. (AP)—Reno, along with the rest of Nevada, has gone "Old West." In the flush of wide open gambling, a new 42-day divorce law virtually was forgotten.

At 2 o'clock in the morning the principal gambling hall in the heart of the city was thronged by hundreds who played or milled about the roulette wheels, faro table, mechanical dice throwing and other gambling games.

The hum and hubbub of gambling, the click-clack of machines and the clatter of poker chips partly was drowned by the staccato noise of a compressed air drill operated by a construction crew engaged in cutting through massive stone, brick and mortar walls to enlarge the gaming room.

By Percival Christopher Wren Author of BEAU GESTE BEAU IDEAL MYSTERIOUS WAYE

SYNOPSIS: Dr. MacAdoo and his fellow in crime, Mr. James, want to "bump off" John Wayne, unwell patient at Dr. Charters' nursing home. But Charters fears Wayne, admitted to his home and provided with an alibi for the slaying of "Spider" Schlitz. Wayne may know that he had stolen from "Spider" his share of the loot in an American diamond haul. The physician, Dr. James, is knocked down when he draws a pistol on Wayne, and there is more trouble when

Wayne's hints send MacAdoo to Charters to demand half of the 10,000 pounds promised for certain developments in the case of Marjorie Lauderdale. Charters, alarmed at the revelation of Wayne's knowledge, angrily consents. Miss Lauderdale tells Wayne the medicine she is taking makes her worse. Dr. Studley of the home casually tells Dr. Mathieson, Wayne's personal physician, that Dr. MacAdoo is an expert in deadly poisons.

Chapter 15 SCANDAL IN THE HOME

Dr. Charters and Mr. James came as near to a breach as was possible between two men whose lives were so bound together.

They sat in solemn conclave until Dr. Charters introduced the subject of John Wayne, and very quickly the doctor's patience was outworn by Mr. James' dull reiteration of his one specific, "bump him off," and the simple mind of Mr. James was irritated by Dr. Charters' oft-repeated and vain speculation, "What is this man Wayne?"

"He's got me guessing, all day and all night."

"Well, get him guessing," growled Mr. James.

"Guessing what?"

"How to nibble his way out from a hole in the ground, six feet deep. Bump him off, I say."

"I wish you could say something sensible. I've told you how he's got us fixed, and Mathieson's coming again. . . I'll get him in the end."

"If he doesn't get us first. Bump him off, I say."

"Would you mind not saying that again, but set your wits to work about him and Spider Schlitz, and find out something about him. I can't do everything myself; my hands are full, and all you can do is sit there and say 'Bump him off,' when I tell you that his life's absolutely precious to us, just at present. Watch him, I say."

"Yes, you say a lot, Boss. Now suppose you give yourself a rest and listen to me. Then perhaps you'll do some thinking, too. Last night I was making my second round, and half turning a corner, what should I see but some one coming along it toward me. Coming soft, too. In black socks and a dark dressing gown. I faded flat into the wall, with half an eye around the corner, intending to follow him up."

"Good boy, Jimmy. And who's our mysterious Mr. Wayne off to?"

"You followed him, of course?"

"You wait and do some of that thinking you talk about," replied Mr. James sourly.

"Well," he continued, "I didn't follow the guy at all. Before he reaches the end of the corridor he stops, squints at the number over a door, and flashes on a torch. I got half a glimpse of his face, and who do you think it was?"

"Wayne?"

"No, it wasn't. It was that old rumbound, Colonel Campbell. And what room do you think he'd gone into?"

The doctor stared in amazement.

"Not Wayne's?"

"You've got Wayne on the brain. No, it wasn't Wayne's. It was the painted and sanctified room of that hard-boiled Miss Skinner! That's what."

"Well, I'm damned!" said the doctor. . . "Anyhow, we'll soon put an end to that sort of thing."

"We've never had a scandal in the Monastery yet and we won't start now," he added virtuously.

"Colonel Campbell and Miss Skinner clear out of here tomorrow, all or well, cured or not cured."

"And the Wayne guy?" sneered Mr. James.

"What's he got to do with this?" inquired the doctor.

"Well, perhaps you can't say," was the reply. "For I just sat me down comfortable in a recess in that corridor, waiting for that boozey old guy to come out again and get the shock of his life, when, lo, it wasn't so. It was me who got the shock."

"For, ten minutes later, along comes another one, 'treadin' soft. 'Geel' thinks I, 'Am I in The Monastery?' And believe me, Boss, this second wanderer stopped at the same door, too!"

"You could have knocked me down and up again with the tip end of a hummin'-bird's feather. . ."

"This one doesn't dive straight in as the other one; he just taps the handle gently, then opens the door and slides in. There's a light in the room now, so I get a glimpse of this one's face, too."

"Who was it?" snapped the doctor, his face expressing anger.

"Who was it?" growled Mr. James. "It was only your Mr. Precious Don't--Bump-Him-Off Wayne."

Speechless, the doctor stared his amazement and incredulity.

"Couldn't you hear anything?" he asked.

"Hope. The innocent old maid and the poor silly run-bound and His-Life-is-Precious-to-Us Mr. Wayne had plugged the keyhole, put the eiderdown or something along the bottom of the door, and gone to the far side of the room to hold their meetings—in soundless whispers. . ."

"I'll tell you something, eh?" continued Mr. James. "Though it's a thing I wouldn't tell ordinarily, for I'm not proud of it."

"As slow as a dead tortoise crawl' backwards, I turned the handle of that door, knowing that none of them have keys or bolts. Then I began opening the door. . ."

"And do you think there was a sound out of that room or a glimmer of light in it? Not on your life. Those three innocents had frown stiff and silent, and put the light on long before that handle had finished turning."

"Did you go in?" asked the doctor.

"You bet I did. I allowed I'd be tickled to death to hear what that old rumbound Campbell had got to say to those young Mr. Wayne."

"Well, I walked in like I was the great Dr. Charters, and said into the pitch darkness of that room: . . ."

"Evenin', Miss Skinner! . . ."

"And so help me Hannah if that wicked old hen didn't bawl me 'til like I was a burglar. 'You'd better life she'd just bin woke up from her innocent stumbers and was squawkin' from under the bedclothes. . ."

"Oh, it's a man!" she screamed. 'Get out of here, you wicked wretch. Who are you? I'll call the Doctor. Oh, where's the light and the bell?'"

"Right where they used to be. Marm," says I reaching out my hand and switchin' on the light. "And what do you think I saw? Our Miss Skinner, squinkin' out from under the bedclothes. And not another thing in that room! Did I feel a fool?"

The doctor murmured something.

"Oh it's you Mr. James. Good gracious, what a fright you gave me," says Miss Skinner. "Oh, what on earth's the matter?"

"Why, I thought I saw a man come in here, I said as soon as I could get my breath."

"Oh! she squawked, 'Mr. James. Oh! look under the bed. And look in the wardrobe and behind the curtains.'"

"I'll say I did look. Two men? There's wasn't two mice."

"Oh," squawks the young innocent in the bed. "I shall never sleep comfortable in this room again."

"I believe you've said something. I don't think you will," says I.

"Well, as you've given me a dreadful fright for nothing, suppose you send Nurse Wilson to me at once."

"Well, nothing else for it. But it was Nurse Jones I sent to her. And all that old fairy wants is her soothing-draught or her sleepin'-mixture, or something. . ."

Dr. Charters sat staring, at it, and, if such a word were applicable to such a man, aghast.

"You had a dream, Jimmy," he said at last.

"It's not me that does the dreamin' here," was the reply.

"Well, I hand it to them," concluded Mr. James. "That was the slycket getaway ever staged—and whether they went through the doorway before I switched the light on, or out of the window before I opened the door, I don't know, and ain't likely to."

"Now you do some thinkin', Boss."

But don't you bump Mr. Mysterius Wayne off, on, no!"

And, rising, Mr. James departed from the consulting-room.

Dr. Charters did some thinkin'. Among other things, he wondered whether Mr. James were as truthful as the original Truthful James.

Colonel Campbell and Miss Skinner received 24 hours' notice to quit The Monastery; and did so under indignant protest and obvious amusement. (Copyright, 1930, by Frederick A. Stokes Co.)

LEROY GROSS Scribe Troop 30

The Boy Scouts of Troop 30 met March 20 at the Methodist church. Our meeting was brief due to the fact that our scoutmaster, J. D. Sackett, assistant scoutmaster, Clarence Coffin, and senior patrol leader, Leon Robinson were absent.

However, we were together a little while and two new members were admitted: Charles Hill and Vernon Daniels. Edward Scott was put in the Flying Eagle patrol. Ten boys were present including Wilks Chapman and Edwy Sullivan, who came in last at the close of the meeting. We closed at 7:48 p.m. with the Lord's Prayer.

Reno Gambling Halls Wide Open

RENO, Mar. 21. (AP)—Reno, along with the rest of Nevada, has gone "Old West." In the flush of wide open gambling, a new 42-day divorce law virtually was forgotten.

At 2 o'clock in the morning the principal gambling hall in the heart of the city was thronged by hundreds who played or milled about the roulette wheels, faro tables, mechanical dice throwing and other gambling games.

The buzz and hubbub of gambling, the click-clack of machines and the clatter of poker chips partly was drowned by the staccato noise of a compressed air drill operated by a construction crew engaged in cutting through massive stone, brick and mortar walls to enlarge the gaming room.

CLARENDON, Mar. 21. (AP)—Members of the Clarendon high school band, fresh from a victory at Berger's birthday celebration where they took a $25 second prize, have been presented with new uniforms.

ing murder... well has convinced Superintendent Richmond that the confession found beside Green was a forgery, placed there by Miss Querding's murderer, Miss Querding's niece, Marjorie Blake, along with Captain Stirling, whose car had been seen near the scene of the spinster's murder. Richmond, despite Marjorie's frankness in telling Jimmie of her marriage, is still inclined to suspect the pair as plotters to gain her aunt's wealth through murder. Jimmie tells the superintendent to meet him at 10 p. m. sharp in the garden where Miss Querding was slain. Marjorie's sister, Evelyn, is amazed when Jimmie tells her that Green was murdered and a forged confession placed at his side.

Chapter 27
A FLOT NIPPED!
Evelyn's face went white. "Have you," she whispered, "told the policeman what you discovered?"

"Constable Roscoe?" Jimmie laughed. "No, I know and now you know. I'll get Richmond to meet me in the Dutch garden tonight and tell him."

There were six in the small party that assembled that evening at Merrow Craig, the same little group gathered together. The young couple had gone. Donald and Jimmie say it was Stirling at the inquest?" continued the major.

"Maybe she didn't want to drag her private affairs in public."

"Dye mean you knew it all along?" queried Greenham.

It appeared that Evelyn had kept her promise to Jimmie and had not told her friends about the case, since no one questioned when the major termed him a blackguard. Her self-control was wonderful. Except for an occasional glance at the clock there was nothing to suggest the secret.

"If Lionel and I play the first rubber, we will cut out after and leave you four while we have some music."

Nancy and Bill Netherton played against Evelyn and "Duckworth." Evelyn and her fiance were losing, but if she was in attentive, it was hardly surprising.

Once again Evelyn glanced at the clock. The hour was approaching when Jimmie was to meet the superintendent. What would happen after that?

"Your rubber," she said to Nancy. "Come along, Lionel. Leave the experts to fight it out together."

Evelyn and her lover went into the next room. The game proceeded to the sounds of music. Duckworth was singing and Evelyn playing. The clear powerful voice rang through the house, but it did not distract the players, though one of them would wander from the table when his partner played his hand.

All was still in the Dutch garden, where a figure sat motionless in the seat beside the stone steps.

Above it, the satyr stretched its arms in evil invitation.

The minutes passed without outward sound or movement. No light was visible from the music room, for that door was shut and the curtain drawn across it. The music continued. The song, "To the Desert," was begun.

Then silently, but quickly, a shadow moved from the shade of the house to the hedge-hidden path-way leading to the Dutch garden. The form crept nearer to the broad stone steps and crawled up to the level of the wall on which the satyr stood. Then it leapt up, gloved hands gave the stone image a swift, unhesitating thrust, and it fell, crashing on to the figure beneath.

No sound followed, but the shattering of woodwork and the breaking of the stone. The shadow stooped again and made to run. Then there was a sound! Two forms sprang from the shelter of the trees and seized the escaping criminal.

The startled villain was thrown to the ground, and it was but a matter of moments for cords to secure his trembling limbs.

"You hold him now, Don. I will be back soon."

With these words Jimmie sprang away—started to run to the house. As he did so the clock in the hall struck 10 and the strong voice in the music-room sang the opening lines of "September Roses."

Jimmie crossed the lawn and hastened to the drive in front. There, punctual to the second, he met Superintendent Richmond.

"This way!" he led Richmond through the open hall door and headed toward the music room.

"Roses of memory, roses of September"—came the words clearly enough. Silently he turned the handle, but the door was locked. Quickly they ran back, through the garden to the curtained doorway of the same room. Without a moment's hesitation Jimmie threw his weight against the door. It yielded, and he stumbled through the parting curtains, the bewildered Richmond following.

At first the room appeared to be empty. When they saw Evelyn standing alone, trembling, half hidden by the curtains they had so rudely thrust aside.

PAMPA WINS FIRST IN COUNTY MEET EVENTS SATURDAY

McLEAN TRAILS CLOSE BEHIND IN TRACK VIE

AYRES IS PAMPA STAR, MERTEL, HEASLEY, FOR McLEAN

The Pampa high school track and field team won first place in the Gray county interscholastic meet yesterday at McLean despite the fact that McLean entered junior high teams in practically every event while the Pampa schools failed to participate. Pampa made a total of 86 points to 91 scored by McLean.

The Harvester squad scored 13 first places out of a possible 14. The only event the Harvesters failed to register a first was the 500-yard run which the McLean team won.

The meet was held in a strong wind which proved to be bothersome to entrants in every event. The track was rolling and hindered track men in their dashes, especially where the finish was on a grade.

Jim Ayres, stellar all-around athlete of Coon Oduis Mitchell's squad, was the hero of the day. Entered in five events, the tall Harvester took first honors in each, and scored 25 points for his team. Albert Lard, great dash star, took three first places to be second high man of the meet.

Lard shattered a county and district record it is believed when he ran the 40-yard dash in 51 seconds. He had to buck a strong wind and an up-grade finish. Ayres broke the other record when he jumped 6 feet 1 inch in the high jump event.

Mertel, Heasley, and Grogan were the pick of the McLean team. The first two tied for high honors on their team. They gave the Harvester track and field men tough competition from the opening event.

The meet opened with Jim Ayres leading in the high hurdles. Lard followed with a win in the 100-yard dash. Leon Robinson sprouted the last five yards to beat Kahl in the 200-yard event. The 440 was a cinch for Lard who set a new record. Ayres also copied the low hurdles and James romped home an easy winner in the mile run. Carpenter and Switzer outdistanced Kennedy to place first and second in the half mile.

Ayres won the pole vault and followed with a win in the broad jump where he set his new record. Lard took the only Harvester place in the discus when he took a first. James threw the javelin into the wind for a cinch win. Moore took the shot put event with ease. With Kahl, Robinson and Lard competing, Pampa won the 100-yard race with 50 yards to spare. Carpenter of McLean copped the half mile by keeping up a killing pace.

Members of the Harvester squad would no doubt have scored more points except for sickness in the ranks. Joe Kahl, Ray Woodman and Floyd Collins participated with severe colds which hampered their speed.

McLean's junior high entries ran against time and scored points for their school. Coach Oduis Mitchell stated after the meet that he was unaware that junior high events were counted on school results. The Pampa junior high could have entered many contestants, the coach said.

Results of track and field events: 100-yard high hurdles—Ayres, Pampa, first; Marquette, Pampa, second; Waters, McLean, third; Kennedy, Pampa, fourth. Time: 17.2 seconds.

100-yard dash—Lard, Pampa, first; Kahl, Pampa, second; Kahl, Pampa, third; Grogan, McLean, fourth. Time: 10.6 seconds.

200-yard dash—Robinson, Pampa, first; Kahl, Pampa, second; Mertel, McLean, third; Howard, McLean, fourth. Time: 2:4.

200-yard low hurdles—Ayres, Pampa, first; Waters, McLean, second; Collins, Pampa, third; Grogan, McLean, fourth. Time: 3:5.

400-yard dash—Lard, Pampa, first; Mertel, McLean, second; Kahl, Pampa, third; Howard, McLean, fourth. Time: 5:10. New record.

1 mile run—James, Pampa, first; McCombs, McLean, second; Hunt, McLean, third; Poe, Pampa, fourth. Time: 50:52.1.

1/2 mile—Pampa, first; Kahl, Robinson, Lard; McLean, second; Mertel, Howard, Waters, Grogan; Pampa, third. Time: 5:45.

1/4 mile—Ayres, Pampa, first; Switzer, Pampa, and Hulse, McLean, second; Kennedy, Pampa, third; Height, 10:10 feet. Second jump—Ayres, Pampa, first; Marquette, Pampa, second; Moore, Pampa, third; Grogan, McLean, fourth. Distance: 19.8 feet.

Discus—Lard, Pampa, first; Waters, McLean, second; Howard, McLean, third; Heasley, McLean, fourth. Distance: 95.6 feet.

High jump—Ayres, Pampa, first; Marquette, Pampa, second; Moore, Pampa, and Grogan, McLean, tied for third. Distance: 6.1 feet. New record.

Pole vault—James, Pampa, first; Switzer, McLean, and Gills, McLean, tied for second; Heasley, McLean, third. Distance: 12:6 feet.

Shot put—Moore, Pampa, first; Lard, Pampa, second; Poe, Pampa, third. Distance: 38.5 feet.

BASEBALL RESULTS

HAVANA, Mar. 21. (AP)—The Dodgers were labeled the "second team" but they defeated an aggregation of first team players called the Robins 3 to 3 today as Brooklyn invaded Havana for the first of a five game series.

Fifteen thousand Cubans were on hand to welcome the club that boast of two island players—Adolfo Luque and Al Lopez. Neither appeared in the lineup today.

Score: Brooklyn (2nd) 003 203 000—3 11 1 Brooklyn (1st) 100 200 000—3 11 2 Phelps, Day and Lombardi; Greene, Munigo, Shaute and Pictinich.

BEAUMONT, Mar. 21. (AP)—The Exporters greeted their old team mate, Carl Hubbell, with ten hits in five innings today and the locals took the first of a two-game series from the New York Giants' second team, 6 to 5. Three kid hurlers scattered five hits among the visitors, including a homer by Pickering, but the star Giant southpaw was not nearly as successful.

Score: New York 011 000 300—5 5 2 Beaumont 102 030 000—6 10 1 Hubbell, Heving and Healy; Cox, Sackett, Pate and Lorbeer, Wise.

GALVESTON, Mar. 21. (AP)—With both clubs getting remarkably tight pitching for a March exhibition contest, the Galveston Buccaneers dropped the opening of a two-game series to the Kansas City Blues, 3 to 1. The cool weather kept both clubs hustling.

Two of Del Pratt's younger moundmen, Russell Brancheau and Wayne Sweet had lots of stuff, limiting the association slugger to five scattered hits.

Score: Kansas City 100 110 000—3 Galveston 100 000 000—1 Sheehan, Austin and Peters, Susee; Brancheau, Sweet and Garrison, Bogges.

SAN FRANCISCO, Mar. 21. (AP)—Chicago's Cubs put on a ninth inning rally to score three runs off three hits, two walks and an error to defeat Pittsburgh's Pirates 6 to 4 here today in an exhibition game.

Rogers Hornsby, manager and second sacker for Chicago, hit a home run over left field fence in the third.

Score: Chicago (Nat) 102 000 000—5 13 4 Pittsburgh (Nat) 000 201 100—4 7 2 Smith and Hartnett, Taylor; Brane, Wood and Henesey.

PORT WORTH, Mar. 21. (AP)—One bad inning and better pitching than they have been looking at in training, tumbled the Port Worth Cats into defeat here Saturday afternoon, when the St. Paul Saints journeyed from their camp in St. Paul, Minn., to open the exhibition season. The score was 6 to 2. It was the first game of the year for both teams.

Score: Port Worth 100 000 001—2 St. Paul 000 010—6 Ryan, Terry, Krause, White, McPaul, Warren, Buckley, Yaryan; Munns, Vanatia, Murphy, Snyder, Fenner.

DALLAS, Mar. 21. (AP)—The Steers got to Doyle Taylor, rookie southpaw, for eight runs in the fourth inning today, added another in the eighth, and beat out the Spaders 9 to 1. Taylor issued six passes in the fourth, the first inning he pitched, but held the Steers hitless in the next sessions besides striking out three men.

Except for Taylor's performance in the fourth, hurling was excellent on both sides.

Score: Wichita Falls 000 100 000—1 4 3 Dallas 000 800 010—9 5 3 Hillin, D. Taylor, H. Taylor and Bryant, Ratliff; Garland, Main and Tobin.

MIAMI, Fla., Mar. 21. (AP)—Dick Coffman proved easy pickings for Casey Stengel's Toledo Mudhens here today and the St. Louis Browns winning streak of six games was cleanly clipped by a 9 to 6 victory for the minor leaguers.

Score: St. Louis 100 000 002—6 10 1 Toledo 504 000 000—9 11 0 Coffman, Kimesy, Gray and Young, Stanton, Mondino; Conroy, Van Older and DeVormer, Kies.

BUILDERS DESIGN AIRPLANES FOR NATIONAL SPEED CLASSIC

CLEVELAND, O., Mar. 21. (AP)—Speed of the 300 to 400-mile-an-hour variety—that is the ambition of manufacturers as they design aircraft for participation in the National air races here August 29 to September 7.

Clifford Henderson, managing director of the races, announced this tonight after an observation trip to some of the principal manufacturing plants. He also told of his plans for innovations at the races to create new speed dash records and to imprint the meaning of rapid flight more strongly on the consciousness of the spectator.

One of the leaders in the competition for miles an hour will be Alford J. Williams, former United States navy lieutenant, who is developing a new motor of 1,000 to 1,500 horsepower, to which he can add a pound for each horsepower, Henderson said.

Besides developing lighter and more powerful engines to beat the world speed mark of 268.9 miles an hour for land planes and approach nearer the 345.4 mark set by seaplanes, the manufacturers are running their craft through a "smoothing out process" doing everything they can to cut down wind resistance, Henderson said.

He said there is a great amount of work being done on retractable landing gear to cut down something like 20 per cent of the resistance. There are to be many wing modifications and more stream-lining.

ATHLETICS WILL WIN AGAIN, SAYS HOWLEY

FORT MYERS, Fla., Mar. 21. (AP)—After seeing the World champions in action against his own outfit, Smiling Dan Howley, manager of the Cincinnati Reds, picks the Athletics to win another pennant this year. But there is a big if in the prediction—if nothing happens to Grove and Earnshaw.

"The two greatest in the business," says Howley, "Greatest because they are hard to beat and work in so many games. They worked in nearly 100 games last year. Grove won three games in four days. He likes to work. The more Earnshaw is worked, the better he is. The World series proved that. Those two will decide the pennant."

BEARD TO CAPTAIN AGGIE CASE TEAM

COLLEGE STATION, Mar. 21. (Special)—Charlie Beard, Fort Worth, diminutive cager on Texas Aggie basketball teams of the past two seasons, has been elected by letterman of the 1931 quintet to captain the A. & M. cagers in 1932.

Beard was one of the mainstays of Coach John Reid's strong defensive aggregation in the season just closed. His clever floorwork and deceptive passing and dribbling fitting in well with the cautious style used by the team. Although most of his cage experience has been as a guard, he showed up equally as well in several games at forward during the past season, and it is possible he will fill a forward berth regularly next season.

He earned his freshman numeral at A. & M. in 1929 and was a varsity letterman in 1930 and 1931.

DROP TWO FITCHERS

DALLAS, Mar. 21. (AP)—Manager Hupp Morse today dropped pitchers Fred Melton and Aubrey Johnson from the Steer squad. Both are rookie righthanders.

SARAZEN WINS PRIZE TROPHY IN GOLF OPEN

SINKS BIRDIES AT ALL POINTS TO NOSE OUT TOMMY ARMOUR

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Mar. 21. (AP)—Gene Sarazen sank birdies at all points on this well-trapped course today to win the $15,000 La Gorce and open, one of gold's richest purses, with a sterling 282 after it looked as if he could do no better than tie Tommy Armour, Detroit, with 285.

Breaking a tie that ran up to the 68th hole, the shining faced Gene picked up a stroke a hole on the last three of the 72 holes to win the match and his $5,000 first money after leading the field thru the first two days of play.

Gene sank eight birdies in the last 18 holes, calling upon his putter and short iron clubs to place him three strokes in the lead of Armour. His last 15 holes were accomplished to the tune of a brilliant 32-34-65, within one stroke of the record established last year.

Gene's score for the tournament was 68-71-77-65—281.

Armour's 285, worth $2,500 second place money, was followed at a three-stroke interval by the 283 of Light Horse Harry Cooper of Chicago.

Johnny Farrell, winner of the event in 1928, was in fourth place.

Please someone tell her that they do not! She does not sing such things in South America, Cuba, and Europe. There was no reason at all why she should have sung those encores that certain horrified people call "clever" and even worse people call "cute." One of the songs which we had no use for was "The Second Minute" which elaborated upon the occasion when "grand-pa asked grand-ma-ma." It is an insult to her voice to sing such trivialities—it could not have been worse if she had sung, "Springtime in the Rockies."

Old Sweet Song, "Old Kentucky Home," "La Paloma," "Home Sweet Home," for encores. We have her word for it, too, that she was not "baiting the common herd." However, her voice burning in perfumed sounds from her throat would cost the halo of beauty around any singer. "I like the old ones (composers). The songs of Stephen Foster deal with the inside," she explained. "Modern painting and sculpture are not for the inside. They reflect the outside... the hurry, the machine—they have nothing for the inside of man. Your dollar civilization has to do with externalities. The inside of man is forgotten." Unless the American goes back to Nature, takes to the mountains, the fields, forests, the farms, there is not much hope for him, the prima donna believes. "Your American must learn to love to watch a rose bud open. He must remember Nature once in a while—why Americans think of Nature as something that lived a long time ago. They must become aware that in Nature lies all the truth and beauty in the world... Of course, I like the crowds once in a while. I like to go to New York and be in the Big Hurry for two or three days. Then I like to go to my home in the Catskills and watch a flower bloom, a bird sing, the leaves on a tree move. Jazz "grotesque" is a caricature, she said. "Oh, I like to dance to jazz—but it is not music. Beauty is in it? There is not any beauty in jazz for me." Even the Cuban influence has not helped jazz, is her opinion. However, she frankly said that she would have to study about it awhile before she decided whether George Gershwin and his "Rhapsody in Blue" is more American than Stephen Foster. The famed "St. Louis Blues" of Handy is also nothing but a "grotesque caricature," to madame. Americans who would have it that jazz is the only American music frighten Mrs. Samuels. "Where there is no beauty there is not truth, no art," was her final resume of the subject. It was not surprising that Mrs. Galli-Curci had her own ideas of religion. Her spiritual attitude is both strangely modern and old-fashioned. "You cannot worship the Supreme Beauty within the four walls of a church," she declared. "I say again the American must go back to Nature; he must seek for beauty if he would get away from the big hurry, the machine, the dollar." And then the singer said that the worship of beauty is her religion, her life. "God is in beautiful music, poetry, the sunset, the plant, the flower," she said. However, she insists that she is no poetess, nor a subscriber to the beliefs of any cult, past or present. While talking the great soprano almost bubbled—her enthusiasm is not unlike that of a person who lives all the time in a joyous ecstasy. She looks straight at one with wide-open eyes like a child—eyes which are so bright they might have been dipped in oil. Her accent is faint. Her English is perfect. It is well-known that the singer is master of five European languages, and is a student of religions, philosophy, metaphysics and literature. She is familiar with the nine muses—all forms of art. In Fine Mood Mrs. Galli-Curci made it clear that she does not condemn jazz except as music; the machine and the dollar except as gods. She liked America and Americans so well that she married Homer Samuels and became a naturalized citizen. "Americans are like little children. That's why I like them so much," she said. It has occurred to her that she also is like a child in her appreciation of what she loves and in her enthusiasm for it. Back-stage, the singer tirelessly autographed scores of programs, and to each person her eyes said, "I am doing this for you because I like you; because you like me. I would like to talk to you and sing to you for hours, but the public demands so much of my time... just forgive me." Meanwhile, her husband, who is also her accompanist, talks too and shakes the hands of those who stand in line. Galli-Curci was in an exceptionally fine mood Friday night, although the house was only half full. She felt so splendid that she wore her diamonds—a dazzling rope around her neck, pendants, from her ears, stones like stars on her fingers, diamonds in her hair. Diamonds to her do not represent wealth but beauty, and that's why she likes them. Usually she wears emeralds. She flattered her Panhandle audience by wearing diamonds. Then too, she gave almost a dozen encores—showers of ultimate beauty. One sentence in the interview would be good to close this article with: "O we must not be so impressed with the outside! Look to the inside. Art that reflects externalities is not for you."

OUTSTANDING ADVANTAGES OF THE NEW DEXTER

- 1 Completely rubber-cushioned tub of finest porcelain obtainable. Many of the highest-priced washers have less expensive tubs adequately protected. (Dexter Speedex is also available with copper tub nicked both outside and inside.)
2 Forever Knock-Proof. There are four points in the mechanism of any washer where normal wear must occur, and such wear must result in a knock—unless, as in Dexter washers, a simple set of "take-ups" provide for complete elimination of this "play" which develops from year to year. These ingenious "take-ups" are an exclusive Dexter feature.
3 Balloon Rolls. Full 2 1/4" soft balloon rolls protect buttons and fingers. No other type of wringer on the market provides so much soft rubber cushioning as do these Dexter rolls.
4 Absolute safety for garments. Agitator-flange cupped down over base rim eliminates usual open crack around agitator. No chance for delicate fabrics and buttons to get under agitator, as in other washers—especially since Dexter agitator is locked down in place by lock-cap on top.
5 Super-fast washing action due to high-winged Dexter agitator. A comparative washing test will convince you that Dexter Speedex actually will out-wash the highest priced machines on the market—and with greater safety to clothes.
6 No washer made requires less oiling than Dexter Speedex.
7 Oversize 1-4-H. P. Westinghouse motor—always a surplus of power.
8 Much expensive bronze used throughout. Durex oilless bronze bearings on all moving parts.
9 Control levers easy turning, noiseless.
10 Waterproof, kink-proof rubber-surfaced cord with unbreakable all-rubber plug that can't be pulled apart.
11 Steel surfaces all cadmium-plated under Duco, to insure against rust.
12 Snug-fitting, indestructible lid hangs on edge of tub by knob when not in use.

You Can't Ride On A Horse Shoe! Neither Can You RIDE In A Worn Out Automobile

Auto Repairing By Experts Who Knows Your Car

Perhaps you wanted to buy a new car this spring, but economic conditions prevented that. Well the next best thing to do is to bring your car to the dealer who sells that make of car, let him give it the "expert" once-over and then he will estimate on any repair work that may be necessary. This work will be done by expert workmen... and that, of course, means a quality job from whatever angle you look at it. With their ability to handle your car expertly you'll be agreeably surprised to learn how cheaply a good job can be done within a reasonable time...

EXPERT REPAIRING

When you start on your vacation this summer do you expect to have car trouble? Then you had better bring your car in and let the dealer that sells that make of car look it over. He will be glad to tell you if the car is in good condition or not... and will not tell you that it needs work unless it does.

Do you know that the dealer that sells you your make of car wants you to get the most out of it... How many times has some dealer told this story: "John drove his car in the other day for us to look it over for the first time, and he has had the car for over a year and has put over 26,000 miles on it with no upkeep." That dealer is proud of the fact that this car has run that long with no trouble.

But you know that you should not drive your car that long without letting the dealer look it over and service the car as it should be serviced. Stop and think... Would you drive a horse 26,000 miles day or night without food? NO... Then why drive your car that distance without giving it the same care you would your horse?

These dealers, have factory trained men who know every detail of your car... They will do their very best to give you satisfaction. Come in today and get ready for that vacation.

Approval Of Proposed Bond Issue Is Vital To Future Of This County

FEDERAL AND STATE AGENCIES READY TO HELP BY ALLOCATING OVER MILLION FOR USE IN AREA

IMPORTANT LATERAL AND TRANSCONTINENTAL ROADS WOULD BE PAVED IF PROJECT APPROVED NEXT SATURDAY

Gray county citizens will be called to the polls next Saturday to vote upon a proposed $2,250,000 road bond issue—a project designed to solve the county's highway problem and to make a very substantial contribution to the progress of the affected communities and to the relief of unemployed men. Favorable action on the issue would release $2,000,000 for labor alone, and nearly as much for materials with the state and federal governments giving the county many thousands of thousands of dollars.

Pampa, like other communities in Gray county, has much to gain from the highway work. To develop a thriving city, highways are as important as railroads as population increases. Pampa's future growth will be in a large measure dependent upon her status as a trade center, with a network of good roads.

The value of U. S. highway 60 will mean much to this community. The transcontinental road will bring tourist trade such as Pampa has never enjoyed. Hundreds of thousands of motorists will travel this road, spending an average of $10 per day in the territory through which they pass. Hotels, restaurants, tourist camps, drug stores, garages, filling stations, and many other kinds of businesses will benefit.

is desired in connection with a proposed and already projected highway from Old Mexico through Sweetwater, Pampa and northward across the river. Some day this road will be very important.

The Borger road west from Pampa to the Garson county line is an extension of state highway 152, thence to Borger and on northwestward. This is the important project the Oil Field Highway association is working on. The proposed bond issue would complete Gray county's part of the project.

It is very essential to complete paving of U. S. highway 66 in the southern part of the county. This is an important national highway with vital connections with state and county roads.

Waiting Unnecessary
It is impractical to wait for the outcome of the statewide bond issue, which seems doubtful of approval, but which if voted would reimburse Gray county for the money she now proposes to spend on state roads. Two years would be required to get action under the statewide plan, while the county-wide plan would give almost immediate results. The latter has the full approval of the state highway department, hence no delay would be necessary. Moreover, the state plan would not affect the county roads, than which there are no more important in this area.

Taps Rich Area
Among the projects in the bond issue is the finishing of the paving north from Pampa to the Roberts county line, a distance of about 11-1/2 miles. Roberts county already has voted bonds for paving to serve this rich agricultural territory. The concrete will connect with a territory reaching to the Oklahoma line, paved all the way.

State highway 33, or U. S. 60, will be paved from the Gray county line to the Oklahoma line under issues already approved in Roberts, Hemphill, and Lipscomb counties. The Oklahoma highway commission went on record at Enid, Okla., March 9, as agreeing that this road would be paved all the way across that state in the near future. Settling back of fences for widening the right-of-way already has begun. This road soon will be paved from Pampa, west to Canon, and extended southwestward soon. Gray county must not have a muddy gap from this city to the Roberts county line.

State highway 152, formerly 23-A, when completed east to Wheeler county will be paved through Mobeetle, Wheeler, and Sherman. This is an important route to Oklahoma and through Pampa to Colorado and other western points.

The state highway commission puts into the road contracts the stipulation that all common labor must be local. Since 60 to 75 per cent of each contract is for labor, it may be seen that the bond issue would be of huge value in relieving the unemployment situation. Some of the county roads are ready for the concrete and others could be made ready within a short time. The state roads would be graded in early summer.

There are many advantages in the county-wide bond plan. The bonds would sell more easily and for more money. The entire southwest is looking to Gray county to approve this bond issue. Many poorer counties have voted bonds, and with her rich oil resources Gray county can easily afford to do likewise.

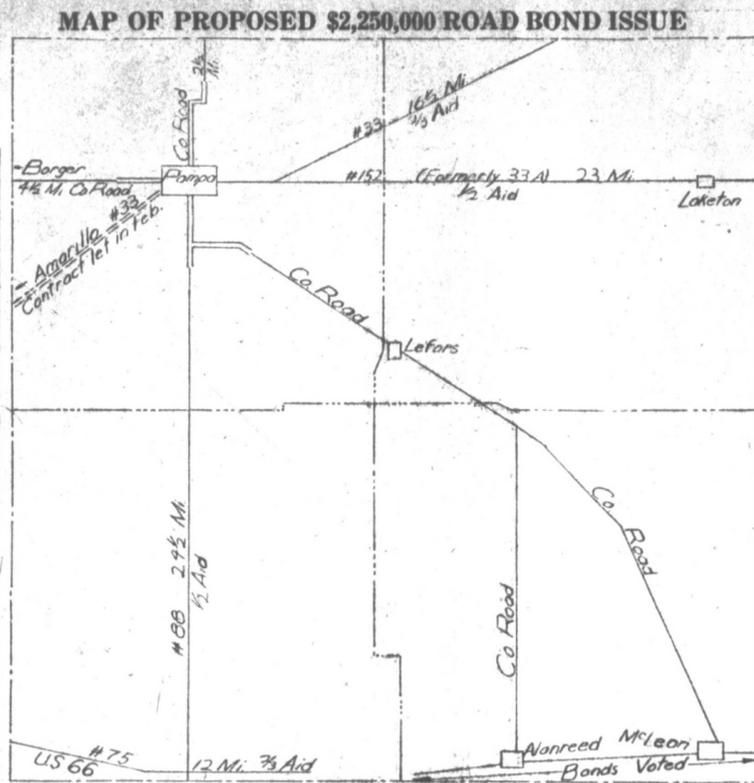

County Needs Unity
Natural topographical differences in Gray county would be overcome by the proposed county road from Pampa through Lefors to McLean and to Alameda. Better relations and easier travel between the cities of the county are much desired. The paving would make the county seat more accessible and would be a boon to the oil industry, which affects nearly every resident in the county.

State highway 88 goes through a fine agricultural section with good trade possibilities. A north-south road through western Gray county

Valuations of each precinct in round numbers: Precinct 1, $3,974,900; precinct 2, $20,074,900; precinct 3, $1,180,000; precinct 4, $2,458,000; total $27,688,900.

Total amount to be voted upon $2,250,000 to be divided as follows: $627,000 to retire bonds in Precincts 2 and 4, $800,000 for the purpose of paving county's share of state highways Nos. 33, 152 (33A), 88, and U. S. 66; $823,000 for the purpose of paving the following county roads—Completion of what is known as the Borger road west, completion of the Miami road north from Pampa, building of road from McLean and Alameda through Lefors to Pampa. Highway 33 from Pampa to Kingsmill will be paved by the state this spring.

At the present valuation of $27,688,900 the rate will be approximately 68c. To show the approximate rate at a lower valuation, at $25,000,000 the rate would be about 70 cents.

The passing of this issue will give every town and community hard surfaced roads to all parts of the county, besides connections with other cities. State and federal governments will contribute more than $900,000 towards building these roads.

A total of $2,587,900 would be spent for the roads, of which, according to Division Engineer P. S. Baily, from 60 per cent to 75 per cent will be spent for labor. This means that from $1,550,000 to $1,940,000 will be spent for labor. The state puts in all its contracts a clause compelling the contractor to use local common labor.

Contracts for state roads will be let just as soon as possible after election. The county is in position to start work within a short time after election.

The carrying of these bonds would mean much to the unemployment situation in this county, this summer.

About the proposed state-wide bond issue: It would take at least two years to get such a proposition through, if started in present legislation. If it goes through, there is no question but that the state will pave the main through highway first. This means that Gray county would get little paving for several years through state-wide bond issue plans. And then none of the money would be used on county roads. When this issue does pass, Gray county will receive back the money it has paid for all state highways. This will reduce the final cost to the taxpayer.

Many miles of road could be built in Gray county this year, and the entire program should be completed by the end of 1932.

AMARILLO GAS SYSTEM TO BE READY APRIL 1

INDUSTRIAL DISTRICTS TO BE FIRST GIVEN SERVICE

AMARILLO, March 21. (AP)—Many large consumers will be using natural gas from the city's new mains by April 1, and the system will be completed by the middle of September, it was announced by City Engineer E. N. Stanley.

The city decided to go into the gas business in February after the Amarillo Gas company refused a proposal of the city commission to lower gas rates. Construction of the mains began at once, and the industrial districts will be served by April 1.

More than two-thirds of all the consumers in Amarillo have signed contracts with the city, a 40 per cent reduction having been promised by the city commission. Plans are under way now to lay 246 miles of 10-inch mains, Mayor Ernest O. Thompson announcing that enough contracts had been signed already to take the gas to every section of the city.

Mayor Thompson has announced that the new system will pay its own way, and that a bond issue will not be necessary to finance the undertaking. If it is necessary to borrow money to carry on the work, only the gas system will be mortgaged, he said.

The city is buying gas delivered at the city limits for cents a thousand cubic feet.

Bids for construction of the main distribution system, however, will be received by the city commission March 31. They will cover the laying of 246 miles of pipe, complete with 10,000 meters. The estimated cost of the work and equipment is $1,000,000.

The cost of materials, pipe laying, installation of regulators, meters and other appurtenances will be met by issuing revenue bonds against the materials used, with the revenues of the gas system pledged as sole security. The bonds will bear 6 per cent interest, will run 10 years from date, maturing serially

TO BEAUTIFY ROADS
M'ALLEN, Mar. 21. (AP)—E. M. Card of McAllen, Hidalgo county engineer, will seek to organize residents to cooperate in removing weed and rubbish from Hidalgo county's 500 miles of paved highway.

Not only will the matter of beautification be considered; removal of blind corner obstacles, wherever feasible, also will be urged.

IS PRETTY WOMAN MENACE TO EMPLOYER AND TO HIS HOME?

Does the fact that the girl is sympathetic and pretty constitute a menace to the wife's domestic happiness?

This is the subject that has bothered married women for years and has made her increasingly jealous of the hours her husband necessarily spends with his private secretary.

The screen has at last solved this hitherto unsolvable "peril to the home" in an entertaining drama opening today at the State theatre—Radio Pictures' "Behind Office Doors," which co-features Mary Astor and Robert Ames.

In this unusual film of office romance, a private secretary is discharged primarily because of her good looks and because her fiancé is jealous. In discharging this girl did the fiancé overstep her rights? Was she carrying her jealousy too far?

"Behind Office Doors" clears up this problem to the satisfaction of all wives and fiancées and to the relief of husbands and husbands-to-be who have a private secretary problem all their own.

In addition to Miss Astor and Ames, "Behind Office Doors" boasts a cast of unusually talented players including Ricardo Cortez, Catherine Dale Owen, and Edna Murphy.

T. M. Wolfe and son, Glenn, accompanied by Andrew Wilson, of McLean, are on a business trip to Pagan Springs, Colo.

INSPECTION OF CAVERNS NEAR CARLSBAD IS VERY IMPRESSIVE

NEWSPAPER MEN PLAN SPECIAL TRIP IN SUMMER

By DAVID M. WARREN
A trip through Carlsbad caverns makes one appreciate the greatness of the Southwest. The writer had been in Carlsbad seven or eight times during the last 15 months, and it was only a few days ago that this was taken to inspect the world's greatest cavern.

Few persons are so fortunate in having a personal guide. A. W. (Pete) Anderson, editor and manager of the Carlsbad Daily Current-Argus, a Nunn-Warren newspaper, gave this visitor many special pointers about the cavern. Pete has made the trip about 200 times, although he said that the quiet counting accurately after the 15th trip. These trips have been made during a period of eight years as a resident of Carlsbad.

The trip, which includes 7 miles of walking, with a descent of 765 feet and return, is leisurely made with plenty of rest and time for lunch 750 feet below the surface.

Several months ago the writer received an invitation to be the guest of Supt. Thomas E. Boles for the Cavern trip. The sole thought of Mr. Boles is to improve the cavern and get information to the public about it. He wants the people of the United States and other nations to learn about the cavern.

The people of Carlsbad gave a lot for a home for the superintendent. The National Park service has built a commodious stone home, and many of the interesting visitors to Carlsbad are taken there.

The recent trip through the caverns included a small party, July 40 or 50 for the day. But it was a friendly group with Texas, Arizona, New Mexico, Illinois, California, Canada and India represented. A San Antonio woman, more than 60 years old, said that she had made many trips to foreign nations and was amazed that she had put off for so long a time a visit to the cavern.

Every one should make a trip to Carlsbad and the cavern as soon as possible. Visitors to the cavern show a substantial increase over a year ago. Children under 16 are admitted free of charge. Of course, the largest number of visitors make the trip in the summer months. Don't put off another season in making the Carlsbad trip.

It is probable that the Nunn-Warren newspapers will sponsor a railroad trip to the cavern this spring. Reduced railroad rates will be given and only a limited time will be required to make the round trip. In order to learn whether there would be a good response for such a trip, we would be pleased to have our readers notify the various newspaper offices.

Carlsbad is a thoroughly modern city with about 4,000 population in the last census. Most of the streets are paved. The city has just completed a splendid library, which will also have space for historical exhibits. It would be a good idea for every city to start gathering interesting relics for a museum.

Few cities as small as Carlsbad

DUMAS WILL ELECT

DUMAS, Mar. 21. (AP)—This city will hold its first regular city election April 7, voters casting their ballots for a mayor and two commissioners. Present officials were elected last fall soon after the city was incorporated.
The voters also will decide a $70,000 bond issue for a sewer system.

NANCY CARROLL HAS DRAMATIC ROLE IN HER LATEST PICTURE

A new Nancy Carroll, more dramatically real than ever before, is revealed to moving picture audiences by the red-headed star's latest dramatic portrayal, in "Stolen Heaven," the La Nora theater attraction today. The versatility which "The Devil's Holiday" and "Laughing" promised is realized in "Stolen Heaven." Here again she is seen opposite the blond Phillips Holmes, her leading man of "The Devil's Holiday."

The musical comedy and light romantic roles which introduced the vivacious young woman to motion picture audiences have been left far behind, and Miss Carroll takes her place with the true dramatic artists of the screen. In "Stolen Heaven" she gives deep meaning to a role actually taken from life. She reveals hidden resources for interpretation heretofore only hinted at. A small town girl, loose in the city without money or friends, haunted by fear, with death seeming her only outlet, she meets Phillips Holmes, a man gone wrong, hunted by police, and with the proceeds of his first robbery in his pocket. Together they make a pact. They will take their final fling at life in the grand manner until their money is gone and then face death together. Florida opens its gayety and pleasures to them. They dance, dine and gamble away the money Holmes has stolen, and all that remains for them is death. But they have now discovered they love each other. Life has meaning after all. Nancy, in a desperate effort to save Holmes asks a wealthy admirer to gamble their remaining dollars. The admirer loses but, hoping to marry Nancy, he pretends to have won. Nancy asks him to repeat, and again he supplies "winnings" from his own funds. Equipped with the money, Nancy persuades Holmes that they can now return the stolen money, and together, begin life again.

But their hide-away has been discovered by the police. They are arrested, escape by a ruse and flee to Cuba. Nancy's wealthy admirer asks her to marry him and desert Holmes, but Nancy sees a way clear. She persuades Holmes to return, and face the law, promising to wait for him and a new life together.

(By Rodney Dutcher, NEA Service Writer)

WASHINGTON—There is no secretarial job as big as that of being secretary to the president of the United States. There is so much importance and responsibility to the work that Mr. Hoover has made four secretaryships out of it, the most conspicuous one being that soon to be taken over by Theodore G. Joslin, correspondent of the Boston Transcript.

Mr. Joslin falls heir to the big main outside office vacated when George Akerson left to join a motion picture concern. And to the huge monogrammed limousine.

But he will also find grief, for he will have to handle at the same time the great numbers of people who are always trying to get in to see the president and the squad of correspondents which parks at the White House, always demanding news.

To Greet Visitors

He will have to tell a lot of callers why they can't see Mr. Hoover and he will have to tell the reporters what his chief is doing and thinking. Both tasks are very important, call for a great deal of tactful skill and often turn out to be thankless jobs.

To sort the visitors, day in and day out, and see that no one of importance is disappointed is almost impossible, but the president must be protected and his time is valuable.

As a press contact man, the secretary in the outside office must attempt to see to it that publicity advantageous to his boss goes out of the White House and over the country. He has a great opportunity to do the president a lot of good and also the capacity for considerable harm if he makes a mistake at any of his twice-daily conferences with the correspondents.

Callers who aren't important enough to see Hoover himself are often important enough to see a secretary and in such cases the secretary frequently acts as a direct spokesman. Correspondence, it goes without saying, also falls to the secretaries in large gobs.

Secretaries Advise Hoover

To some extent Hoover's secretaries are also his advisers. Lawrence Richey is the most trusted and has a more confidential and personal relationship to the president and his affairs than any of the others. Walter Newton, the former congressman from Minnesota, has most to do with politics, patronage and departmental matters. French Strother is the president's literary secretary and is supposed to write most of his speeches.

As in any appointment, there is considerable guessing as to the political implications of Joslin's appointment and the most common guess is that Mr. Hoover didn't forget Joslin's long associations with republican politicians in New England, who will be expected to deliver plenty of Hoover delegates at the next G. O. P. convention.

Joslin is a good friend of Senator Walcott of Connecticut, an intimate of the president, and also of Executive Director Robert V. Lucas of the republican national committee.

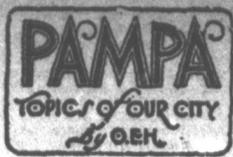

But Joslin's most important job, whether or not the thought of it figured in his selection, will be to keep "selling" Hoover to the country in anticipation of the 1932 election. Hoover, incidentally, has always had a newspaperman close by in his entourage since he entered public life. Akerson had been managing editor and Washington correspondent of the Minneapolis Tribune, and before him there were other journalists.

Joslin Is 41

The new secretary is 41 years old, short, stocky and pleasant. He graduated from his home town high school at Leominster, Mass., in 1908 and at once went to work as a copy boy at the Associated Press bureau in Boston, rising into editorial work and later covering some of the big New England stories of the period.

In 1913 he joined the staff of the Boston Transcript, sometimes called "the New England Bible." The Transcript is read by—and printed primarily for—conservative New England republicans. It sent Joslin up on Beacon Hill to cover the legislature at about the time Calvin Coolidge was president of the Massachusetts senate.

In 1916 Joslin was assigned to Washington and in 1921 he found his old friend Coolidge vice-president of the United States and president of a more important senate. Few other correspondents paid much attention to Coolidge then and after Harding died Joslin had a reader entree to the White House than almost any other Washington reporter. He became more and more closely acquainted with Hoover, so the entree has been maintained in the last two years.

It pays to go to church—but that does not always pay the preacher.

Legislators are hard put to know just which way to jump on some legislation. One solon, in answer to a query from the Pampa-an, replied that he had not studied the bill thoroughly but that he could be sure it would have his most thoughtful consideration. And that's that. . . . If solons find it hard to judge measures before them, no wonder the public at large is confused.

The good old days are not gone forever—singing conventions seem to be as popular as ever in the rural districts.

Trees are blooming, and that shows what nature will do on these plains if given the cooperation of the rest of us.

There is over-production and under-consumption, but try to tell that to a man with an empty stomach. Uncle Sam has nearly half of the world's gold, but merely having gold in the bank does not make for prosperity.

Churches of Pampa are holding study courses. Knowledge and true religion are not antagonistic. Religion is not religion that rules out knowledge, and knowledge is not learning which excludes religion. Man's nature is in need of both.

Visualize the Denver railroad coming into Pampa and you will see a greater Pampa. And visualize a concrete network of all-weather roads and you will see a greater Pampa and Gray county. Work for Pampa by voting for the bonds next Saturday.

A citizen says he wonders why the Irish, who have been in America several generations, can remember they are Irish. He isn't Irish. . . . It is true that the older American families have Irish, English, German, French, and other bloods in their midst. They lose their blood-line nationalities, and we call them Americans.

The Pampa's household has a cook book three inches thick and its gustatory status should be greatly improved. . . . To make a confession, this writer tried his hand at biscuit making again the other night—just as an experiment. In order to get as many biscuits as possible on one pan, he filled all available space. And what he got out of that pan some few minutes later wasn't a phel. But THE biscuit tasted fine, which is progress.

Nevada, racing with other money-minded states for the divorce business, goes them one better by licensing wide-open gambling. In other words, the state is a partner in the business.

Nevada will repeat at leisure. No city, county, or state can profit in this day by being wide-open. Every community has just so much income. Gambling does not add to it, and drinking does not. Gambling takes from a man and gives to the gambler's money that otherwise would go to the grocer, the lumber dealer, and the radio salesman. It is a false assumption to believe that wide-open practices add to a community's prosperity. The loose law enforcement gives prosperity for the lawless by taking it away from respectable merchants.

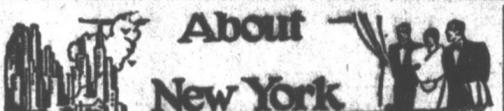

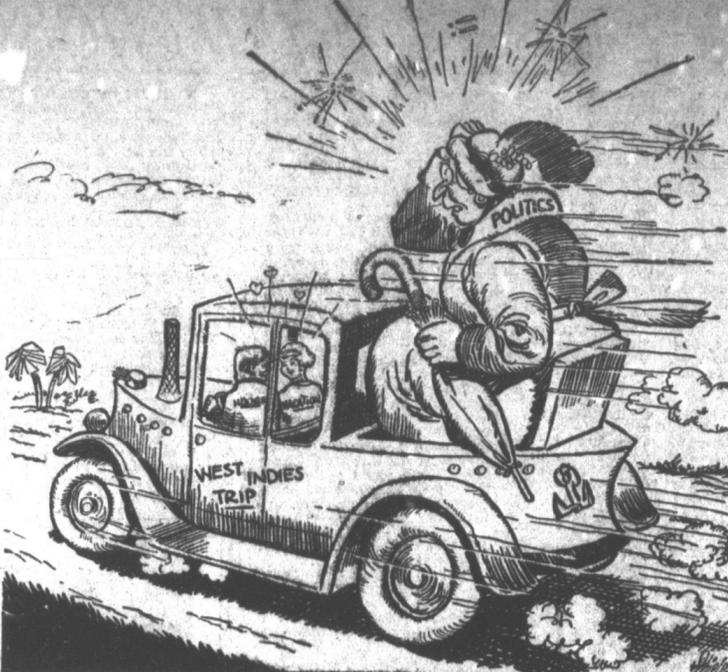

It is somewhat different in Nevada, but that state in catering to the stum population and home wreckers of other states is not adding anything to the prospect of permanent growth in that state. Easy divorces will be a boon to Nevada's homes broken by gambling and its attendant vices, but the victims will be the citizens who so blindly throw down the bars of law, order, and decency.

Clarence Darrow says Texas is too "religious" for him. As one who has heard Mr. Darrow and interviewed him, the Pampa-an says that this can be interpreted as a compliment without straining the imagination. Mr. Darrow's ethical code is so inapplicable to anyone not tuned into Darrow philosophy that society would end in chaos under his system. The agnostic has admirable qualities but his ideas call for destruction of non-thinkers, whom he has no place for in his scheme of things.

The nation should preserve, as far as possible, the right of free thinking. Liberty loving Americans will stand for little abridgment of this right. But Communism goes further and claims the right of sabotage and destruction. That is why it deserves little sympathy in America. The plot to destroy the dignified hearing completion at Akron, O., is an example of what misguided aliens think to be their privilege. It is strange that many of those demanding equitable distribution of property and common enjoyment of assets have such little regard for property rights and governmental privilege. There are many so-called free thinkers whose scheme is to enthrone a theoretical form of government by destruction of institutions and machinery of commerce valued at billions of dollars. Such wanton disregard of created values typifies the radical.

When We Think the Rumble Seat Really Justifies Itself!

About New York

(By Richard Massock)

NEW YORK—Broadcasting companies, feeling their cultural responsibility to radio listeners, are at work on a pronunciation program.

Their aim is to make every announcer a fluent example of good speech. They would teach their worthy spokesmen to clear up the consonant and vowel situation and foster a standard of American English.

They might well begin working on the dialects of New York.

Manhattan Tongues

We don't mean the dese and dese dialect, either. Those who pronounce it "foist" and "Voity toid" offend nobody much because they speak among themselves. At least, their lingo never invades the town drawing-rooms as does the current plague, for us, of "profeel."

That pronunciation of profile is quite correct and indisputable. But suppose we get together on one sound. Now there are profeelers and profflers.

The French influence seems to be responsible. Much has been written about the British pronunciation. But it's the continental manner that is aped by the shop girls who call every woman "modoin."

It took the radio, incidentally, to teach a lot of people that "ensemble" should be spoken "onsomb," with a sort of gasp at the end.

There's a prominent auctioneer in town whose name is Silo. A lady from Iowa thought it was pronounced like the name of the tubular ensilage tanks on her home soil because both are spelled the same. But not so, she learned when she attended one of his sales. His helper called it "See-lo."

The English pronunciation we have mentioned. It is still strange to us why Cholmondeley should sound like "Chumley" and the Admirable Crichton of J. M. Barrie's play, recently revived, should be called "Cryton." We are glad that Lee Chumley, the Greenwich Village restaurateur, spells his name that way.

But what are you going to do with a girl from Kansas who assumes that British "bean" for "been"? All we know is what one of her old Kansas acquaintances did. The two young women had shared childhood's troubles. They met in a Fifth Avenue tearoom after a separation of several years, during which the bean-sayer had gone British.

"Oh, I say there! How have you bean?" the fancy one exclaimed.

"Me?" said her old friend. "I'm okay, thanks. And how's your seven-year-itch?"

Idiosyncrasies

The Brooklyn dialect is beyond our control. Although the expression "Nerts!" has about died off—and high time—we once interviewed a millionaire who said he had just bought an office building from a "big erl man" in Wall street.

And certain people have their own favorite words. J. B. Priestly, the English author, uses "spate" a lot. He commented on the spate of war novels, the spate of magazines, the spate of this and that. Eventually America had a spate of John B. Priestly.

While they are about it, the broadcasting companies can rub "flair" out of the dictionary, for all we care. We've heard and seen it too often.

Succinct, perspicacity and forrage are words we seldom hear. Why not give them a work-out?

Dorothy thinks that "plug" tobacco is the kind an old horse chews on.

The butcher wouldn't complain if the average customer came in like a lion and went out with some lamb.

The pastor of a New York church has engaged a jazz band to play in the church. For heaven's sake!

OF NEW BOOKS

By RICHARD MASSOCK

NEW YORK—Keeping up with the good novels is in itself a task at the moment. "When the flood of new books seems about to overwhelm you," a publisher admits, "you must relax, or be lost."

But suppose you do relax. So what? You are apt to miss a book like "The Dogs," or "The Forge," or "The Squire's Daughter."

"The Dogs" is a novel of the Russian revolution by Ivan Nashvin, a former anarchist who gets along no better with the soviet and now is living in Belgium.

It is a dog's-eye view of the Russian upheaval. A prince's favorite pointers, Dobrynia and Svetlana, fine aristocrats, and a shaggy proletarian hound are the principal characters.

They see terrifying things. First life is good and the beautiful Svetlana has pups out of the piebald Siedol's moment of unexpected ecstasy.

They see a hunt and see a grand duke flick an eye from one of his hounds with a whip. Siedol goes to war, is taken prisoner, lives a while in Germany and steals back to Russia.

He feels starvation and sees his fellow dogs quarreling at dump heaps until they are shot down, sees the uprising of the villagers, the hanging of the prince's dogs, the slaughter and looting of the revolution.

Nashvin's meaning is not difficult to comprehend.

The Wardrobe Season

T. S. Scribbling, author of "Best-tailors" and other novels of the south, turns his hand to one of the most glamorous periods in the south's history in "The Forge."

It is a story of a middle class, Alabama family during the period which saw the development, the loss, and the reconstruction after the war between the states.

"Old Pap" Valdeen, a blacksmith, and his brood of children and slaves are full of family pride, although their poverty cannot be ignored. Scribbling takes his group through love affairs, brawls, battles, good and bad fortunes, with a thoroughness and unity which demonstrates his capable skill.

Post-War England

"The Squire's Daughter" is by F. M. Mayor, author of "The Rector's Daughter." Here we are back in the old familiar setting of gentle England—English social structure in the World War.

Scenes and characters are done deftly to bring out the conflict, tempered by conventions, between the quiet traditions of the landed gentry and the manners of the American bourgeoisie. It shows a family fortune crumbling after the war and the marriage of one of Sir Geoffrey de Lacey's children to a rich American.

But more than that, it shows the restlessness of post-war youth, as expressed by Ron, the squire's daughter, who finds it difficult to settle her affections on the one man.

Opera Singer Too Tired for Talk

HOLLYWOOD, March 21. (AP)—Mary McCormack, grand opera singer, arrived here today after an automobile trip from Chicago and went directly to the home of Mae Murray, screen actress.

The Diva said she was too tired to talk and "everything about our marriage plans has been said anyway," when asked just when she would marry Prince Serge McDvoni, whom Polo Negri is suing for divorce in Paris.

PRESENT OIL BOOKS

AUSTIN, Mar. 21.—Petroleum legislation in Mexico is the subject with which a collection of books and pamphlets recently presented to the University of Texas library deals, according to C. E. Castaneda, Latin-American librarian. This collection, sent to the university by the secretary of industry of Mexico, consists of nine volumes of laws concerning the exploitation of oil, and three documents relating to these laws.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS THINK

LIBERAL TO A FAULT

Is there such a thing as a city being too liberal? In this way: That it will allow other cities or towns to take business that could be brought to it.

There are two schools of thought on this subject. One contends, and with ample justification, that no city can grow beyond a certain size unless the neighboring cities and towns grow with it. In other words a big territory must develop as a whole before all the units in it can develop. All of which is as true as that a pile of corn can be stacked only so high with a given base.

The other school contends that in this day of sharp community competition no city can afford to pass up the opportunity of getting all business possible—business that can be obtained fairly, squarely, honestly and in such a way as to give the patron of the city and its business real service.

These are problems that confront every city. A city cannot afford to be too grasping. It damages itself when it is. On the other hand it can hardly afford to be too liberal. Those are problems for level-headed straight-thinking men and provide one of many excellent reasons why a city should have a number of organizations which can serve as open forums for the ideas of everyone.—Dalhart Texan.

PAYING FOR OUR MISTAKES

Sometimes we pay dearly for our mistakes. Yesterday The Herald editor saw three men engaged in the task of sinking a shaft six feet in diameter and 12 feet or more in depth into the hard earth of a street within five blocks of the business district. It had become necessary to put a manhole in the street leading to the sanitary sewer. Digging that shaft earth was removed from the original ditch that had been dug for the sewer.

This was one of the first sanitary sewers laid in Plainview. Manholes could have been provided at the time the sewer was laid at little cost, compared with the expense now entailed to install the safety feature.

Much of the earlier water mains were installed with a view to giving merely water service to domestic users. Small mains suffice for this, but for fire protection larger mains are required and there is enough credit given on insurance rates to pay for the difference in cost of installation, to say nothing of the margin of safety to life and property.

Some of the ills of our cities have come from errors of judgment, from cramped financial ability, from inadequate technical information and are traceable to mistakes of our early city dads. Other ills are apparent because of the progress that has been made in sanitation, fire control, construction methods and materials. What was the best in its day is obsolete if not antiquated today.

It pays to have tomorrow in mind as we work today.—Plainview News.

TREES

Trees are the arms of Mother Earth lifted up in worship of her Maker. Where they are, beauty dwells; where they are not, the land is ugly though it be rich, for its richness is but greasy fatness and its gaudy raiment is but cheap imitation of forest finery.

Trees are the shelter of man and beast and bird; they furnish the roof above us, the shade about us and the nesting places of love and song. They call children out to play; they entice sweethearts into leafy coverts to seal their vows with fond caresses; they console and gratefully reward old age. They are the fittest ornaments of wealth and the inalienable possessions of the poor who can enjoy them without having title to them. They are the masts that fly the flags of all nations and the sails of all the seas; they are the timbers that bridge forbidding streams; they bear the wires of the world's intelligence; they hold the rails that carry the traffic of the continents; they are the carved and polished furnishings of the home; they cradle the young and coffin the dead.

Trees are nature's prime sources of food; their fruits and nuts gave sustenance to the first tribes of men and are the sweetest and most nourishing of the earth's products.

Trees herald the spring with glorious banners of leaf and bloom; they clothe the autumn in garments of gold and royal purple; bared to the winter's cold they are the harp of the winds and they whisper the music of the infinite spaces.

Before the earth could be peopled, it was set thick with trees; and when man has run his course and the race we know has disappeared in the completeness of its mission, or perishes in the destruction of its trees, the earth will spring up again with new forests to shelter and sustain a new race of men and beasts and birds to work out a greater destiny. Perhaps if we are wise enough to replenish our wasting forests and to make ourselves worthy of the gift of trees we may be permitted to accomplish that greater destiny which the Mighty Forester, the Perfect Orchardist, the Loving Father, requires in the fulfillment of His sublime purpose.—Clarence Oasley.
