Letter carriers plan 'informative picket'

Pampa letter carriers, angered over what they call disastrous policies and tactics of the U.S. Postal Service that are endangering quality mail delivery to homes and businesses, will join in a national day of picketing Wednesday, June 19, to Save the Postal Service.

Charlie Burke, president of Top O' Texas Branch 3094 of the National Association of Letter Carriers (AFL-CIO), announced that local mail carriers will be participating in what is being called "an informative picket" beginning around 5 p.m. Wednesday.

Burke said the purpose of the picket is to inform the public of management's shortsightedness in implementing policies that endanger the Postal Service as a viable service to the public.

"Pampa's letter carriers will be on the street at 120 E. Foster to deliver our message of truth to the public on June 19," he said.

Burke emphasized that the union's goal is not to harm the Postal Service, but rather to save it.

"Today, the long history of dedicated service by letter carriers to their postal customers is in jeopardy because of misguided policies that place profit above service," he said. "We know our customers in Pampa and they deserve the very best service possible."

Burke said there are approximately 26 letter carriers that work out of the Pampa Post Office. He noted that the picket will not begin until the letter carriers have completed their routes for the day, thus not interrupting mail service or taking place during work hours.

"Our main concern is to see that the public continues to get good service," he said of the participation in the picket.

As far as he knows, "this is the first time we've ever done an informative picket," Burke said, adding that the letter carriers will be providing handouts to the public who drop by during the picket.

Burke said poor management decisions governing the preparation of mail has caused carriers being delayed in starting on their routes, and that has resulted in many businesses which enjoyed morning delivery now receiving their mail later in the day. In addition, some homes are not being reached until dinner is on the table, he added.

Pampa's NALC branch is one of more than 3,000 union locals from across the nation that have been urged by NALC President Vincent R. Sombrotto to participate in the informational picketing to deliver a message to the public of what is happening inside their post offices.

The nationwide day of picketing on June 19 by the NALC was one of the principal recommendations by 1,700 carriers who attended the emergency National Conference of Save the Postal Service on May 23 in Washington, D.C.

The picketing is the beginning of a long-term campaign by NALC to block actions by Postmaster General Marvin Runyon that, the NALC claims, are destroying the Postal Service by poor management in a deterioration of service. Such actions are also intentionally ruining positive labor-management relations that has sunk employee morale to an all-time low, according to Sombrotto.

Sombrotto said he is hopeful the day of nationwide picketing will encourage the public to insist that their local postmasters maintain the highest levels of service to the public and not allow poor management decisions made in Washington to interfere with that objective.

"The autocratic, militaristic tactics of General Runyon and his management cadre, along with the senseless series of retrogressive policies, are inflicting a scar on the Postal Service that is tearing apart the fabric of one of America's greatest institutions," Sombrotto said.

"I know that Pampa letter carriers are strong in their resolve that the Postal Service is a great institution that must be maintained in order to provide continued good service to their customers," he added.

The 318,000-member NALC represents city delivery letter carriers throughout all 50 states, Puerto Rico, Guam, the Virgin Islands and the District of Columbia.

Mobeetie to revive 'Hide Town' on June 29

MOBEETIE — Hide Town in Old Mobeetie will be brought to life once again Saturday, June 29.

The old Hide Town Station will be open for one day only, June 29, at the Old Mobeetie Texas Association Jail Museum.

"The opening ceremonies begin at 9:30 a.m. and will continue through 5 p.m.," said Bobbye C. Hill, vice president of Old Mobeetie Texas Association.

Hide Town was a camp that served as a central meeting place in the Panhandle for buffalo hunters shipping hides to Dodge City, selling hides, or collecting provisions for their hunting trips.

The camp was established on the Sweetwater Creek in the early 1870s prior to the establishment of Fort Elliott. Often, as many as 150,000 hides were claimed to have been bought by Hide Town merchants. The buffalo hides were dried, baled and picked up by wagon freighters for shipping, or displayed by the merchants for others' who may need them.

Some early merchants were Robert Wright, Charles Rath, W.M.D. Lee and P.G. Reynolds, Dodge City entrepreneurs, who liked doing business in HideTown with the hunters.

"Living history groups portraying life in the 19th century will give 20th century guests a sample of life of the 'Old West' in the Panhandle, and it will take place at the Old Mobeetie Jail Museum," Hill said.

Reenactments include shows by the 4th Cavalry, Troop E, and old Fort Griffin Memorial Regiment; individuals acting as buffalo hunters, the black smith, fur trappers and sheepherders will set the camp in motion for the day. There will be a medicine show and musical entertainment by the Faldederal String Band.

"All activities and shows are free to visitors, except food and drinks," said Hill.

Pampa man celebrates victory over cancer with Indiana visitor

By SHERRY CROMARTIE
Staff Writer

A Pampa family and visitors from Indiana are celebrating a reunion this month. "We are two miracle cancer survivors," said Harlan Belt.

Belt of Pampa and Jason Frederick of Indianapolis, Ind., enjoy one another's company after a five-year separation. Their friendship is the result of both suffering lymphoma cancerous conditions.

Actually, the five-year survival period gave the incentive for their reunion this summer. Frederick and his mother, Cheryl Frederick, drove to Pampa to visit the Belts and celebrate the survival of their recovery from lymphoma.

"After we learned to say the word cancer, then we started to learn more about it, and want to work toward helping each other and our loved ones to get well," said Karen Belt, who is married to Harlan.

"Every person has a cancer cell and whatever might trigger the growth of that cell, whether it is some virus infection, or just an abnormal cell developing, we can't know who will be the next person to suffer the results," said Belt.

In one way or another, every person has felt the impact of cancer, he said.

The men became acquainted at the San Antonio Veterans Administration Hospital - Audie Murphy Unit. While receiving treatment elsewhere, both experienced extreme pain and illness from lymphoma and were receiving chemotherapy. Having qualified as bone marrow recipients meant the patients had to be in a hospital where the procedure is done.

Belt, an Army veteran, received follow up treatment in Amarillo's VA hospital after having surgery to remove tumors from his spine. The surgical procedure proved his lymphoma malignancy and he was then prescribed chemotherapy.

"I told my wife I would never go through that again. But a year and half has passed since I had to repeat the treatment a second time," he said.

Atheists criticize church loans

AUSTIN (AP) — The president of American Atheists on Saturday criticized a plan by President Clinton to provide $10 million in loan guarantees to rebuild black churches destroyed by a series of fires throughout the South.

Ellen Johnson, president of the Austin-based organization, said she was concerned about Clinton's plan to meet with state governors next week to discuss possible aid efforts to churches.

"It is clear that in proposing this taxpayer-funded program to aid churches, he (Clinton) is clearly promoting a religious agenda," Ms. Johnson said.

More than 30 black churches across the South have been burned in the past 18 months, including four in the past two weeks. Federal investigators have not established a link between any of the fires, but have speculated many could be copycat episodes.

The pain and difficulties of the treatment proved to be worthwhile, the Belts agreed — even having to endure it a second time.

"I was having pressure pains from the tumors pressing on the sciatica nerve, and three surgical procedures were necessary to remove the fast growing tumors before it was decided the bone marrow procedure might stop the cancer," said Belt.

He was 43 when he became ill.

Frederick was serving in the U.S. Army at age 21 and was on maneuvers in Balboa and Colon, in the jungles of the Panama, he said.

"I became ill after being exposed to a tropical virus, traced to the Epstein-Barr virus," Frederick said.

That virus is the cause of Burkett's lymphoma, and some form of it is identified in cases of mononucleosis, according to Frederick.

"About ten months after returning from Panama, I became violently ill with severe internal pain," Frederick said.

It was then physicians discovered he was in the late stages of the cancer.

"It had attacked the liver, kidneys and lungs, but not the heart. His immune system was completely shut down, and he became very weak," said Mrs. Frederick.

He was first hospitalized at Walter Reed Military Hospital and then the VA hospital in Ann Arbor, Mich.

Although both were candidates for bone marrow transplants, Belt and Frederick learned no suitable donors were available.

The men believe they are privileged to boast of their survivorship because of the choice of treatment. Each went through intense chemotherapy and then endured bone marrow implants, each using his own marrow.

"Using our own bone marrow gave us a 50-50 percent chance of survival," Belt said.

After tests proved there was no disease in the bone marrow, each had a sufficient amount removed for storage.

Belt said the survival rate of patients using their own reserved bone marrow is 80-20 percent, and they are two miracles to prove it.

The Belts said the prayer chain each family had in their support made a great deal of difference toward the men getting well.

Victory

"We still have that prayer chain going on. When we were all living on that oncology floor in San Antonio, all the families and patients became one family, and we are still in contact with each other - even with the families of those who did not survive," Mrs. Belt said.

"It makes us all believers, and more conscious of everything around us, after going through something like this," said Belt.

"We encourage people to take time to be tested often, for cancer, and to also have their bone marrow tested and registered for matching with others," Mrs. Frederick said.

"Bone marrow banks are ready to help with cancer patients."

"Regardless of whether a family is stricken with any kind of cancer, knowing there may be a match gives hope," said Mrs. Frederick.

"Doing things for selves and for others is much more important to all of us now, and prayer very definitely makes a difference to healing. Life is too short to be in a hurry," said Belt.

Bomb injures more than 200 in England

MANCHESTER, England (AP) — A bomb exploded in a van near a shopping center Saturday, injuring more than 200 people in a whirlwind of glass and debris. The prime ministers of Britain and Ireland blamed the IRA.

No one immediately claimed responsibility. But the attack, just six days after the opening of peace talks in Northern Ireland, shattered any hopes that the IRA's supporters would soon be allowed to join the negotiations.

Telephone warnings to news media and a hospital in the industrial city 180 miles northwest of London gave authorities 40 minutes advance notice of the explosion. Police were clearing the area around the Arndale Center and checking an illegally parked van next to the shopping mall when the bomb exploded.

The force of the explosion shattered glass a half-mile away, knocked shoppers off their feet, and raised a dense black cloud.

"I was thrown on to the floor and knocked my head against the wall. After that, everything seemed in slow motion," said Sylvia Glen, 44, a store security guard. The blast perforated her eardrum.

Manchester's ambulance service said it counted 206 injured people. Ambulances and private cars ferried the shocked and bleeding victims to hospitals.

A dozen people were seriously injured, including a woman in the last weeks of pregnancy who was thrown into the air. She and the baby survived the blast, said Richard Emmott, spokesman for Manchester Royal Infirmary.

Other people walked in for treatment, or lined up at telephone booths to let their families know they were all right.

"Some were crying, and a few were angry at these people who had been trying to kill them," said Jonathan Borrill, registrar at the infirmary.

The clinic treated 73 people, including a four-month-old boy whose hand was cut.

The size of the bomb made it impossible for police to remove everyone from danger in the time given, Deputy Chief Constable Malcolm Cairns said.

"The fact that we don't have anyone dead is not to the credit of the IRA," Cairns told a news conference. He said a number of nearby buildings were "quite severely damaged" but gave no details.

Authorities closed the two main railway stations in Manchester for several hours, and sealed off the center of the city. Hundreds of fans are in Manchester for the Euro 96 match Sunday between Germany and Russia. Officials said the match would go ahead.

"This explosion looks like the work of the IRA," Prime Minister John Major said in London. Police said a television station had received a warning call from a man with an Irish accent.

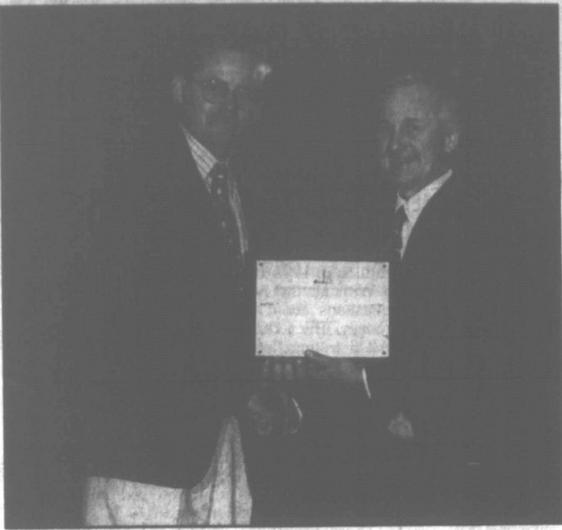

Major suggested the bomb was timed to spoil Saturday's Trooping the Color ceremony in London, the official celebration of Queen Elizabeth II's 70th birthday.

But Irish Prime Minister John Bruton said he believed the Irish Republican Army wanted to distract attention from its admission earlier Saturday that some of its members murdered an Irish police officer on June 7.

"The news management aspect of the Manchester bomb shows that the IRA are cynical and empty of any humanity," Bruton said.

"Such viciousness deserves universal condemnation," said President Clinton, who expressed support for people working for peace in Northern Ireland.

"The men of violence have once again tried to dash their hopes," Clinton said.

Roger R. Hemminghaus, right, National Petroleum Refiners Association chairman of the board, presents Hoechst Celanese representative Michael Morris with the NPRA Award for Meritorious Safety Performance.

Hoechst Celanese gains NPRA award for safety performance

WASHINGTON - The exceptional record of safe operations of Hoechst Celanese's Pampa Plant was recently recognized by the National Petroleum Refiners Association during the trade group's Sixth Annual National Safety Conference in San Antonio.

At the Safety Awards Banquet on April 23, Roger R. Hemminghaus, NPRA chairman of the board, presented Michael Morris with the NPRA Award for Meritorious Safety Performance - 1.5.

This year, a record number of 435 NPRA safety awards were presented to 72 member companies recognizing the excellent safety records at 191 of their facilities, which included 92 refineries and 99 petrochemical plants.

The Award for Meritorious Safety Performance was presented to 113 facilities operated by NPRA-member companies for achieving a total recordable incidence rate of 2.0 or less for the 1995 calendar year.

Gold Award certificates were presented to 138 locations for achieving at least a 25 percent reduction in the total recordable incidence rate during the 1995 calendar year as compared to the average total recordable incidence rate for the three previous calendar years.

Recipients of the Award For Safety Achievement included 115 facilities for operating one or more years without a lost workday case involving days away from work. Sixty-nine facilities also received the award for operating 1,000,000 or more employee hours without a lost workday case involving days away from work.

The presentation of the NPRA safety awards is part of a comprehensive safety awards program which the Association's Fire and Accident Prevention Committee has developed to promote accident prevention in the petroleum refining and petrochemical manufacturing industries and to publicly recognize the excellent record of safety in operations which the industry has compiled.

GCAD authorizes dismissal in Dobson Fiber Co. lawsuit

The Gray County Appraisal District board of directors Friday authorized Chief Appraiser Pat Bagley and attorney L.W. "Rusty" Dean to sign an order of dismissal in a suit brought by Dobson Fiber Company.

Dobson had filed suit in 223rd District Court in January claiming GCAD put too great a value on fiber optic lines in the county.

Bagley said Dobson's attorneys are drawing up the order.

In other matters, insurance agent Bruce Courtney explained to the board why the district's monthly insurance premiums per employee had gone up $31.86 from their quoted price.

Courtney said unforeseen medical conditions of a few employees had caused the price increase.

Bagley also reviewed a preliminary 1997 budget with the board, a budget that includes increases in salaries and life and health insurance costs but is only three percent higher than the 1996 budget.

The board will consider adopting the budget at its next meeting.

In addition, the board passed an agreement to pay $85 to the county clerk's office for ease of access to deed information. The agreement must also be passed by the county commission.

Board members also heard an audit report from Tom Grantham of Grantham, Cory and Heare.

Grantham noted five areas that needed minor adjustments in matters mainly dealing with record keeping. Many of the problems were attributed to a change in accounting adopted by the district last year.

The board also passed a prohibition on concealed handguns in the district office.

People express desire for property tax relief

EL PASO (AP) — Since 1983, Socorro Ramos has been watching her carpenter husband labor to build a modest home for their family, but never finish.

Rising property taxes eats up construction funds, she said.

So she came Friday to plead for relief as a state school property tax study committee began a series of hearings to gauge public concern about growing tax burdens and take suggestions for funding alternatives for Texas schools.

The hearing was the first of 14 to be conducted statewide by the Citizens' Committee on Property Tax Relief, which Gov. George Bush has directed to report to him and the Legislature in September. Lawmakers return to session in 1997, and any changes could be made then.

She hopes committee members were listening.

"I certainly pray that they did," Mrs. Ramos said. "It is what they take back to Gov. Bush that will make a difference to us. I'm so glad that somebody has taken this up."

State Insurance Commissioner Elton Bomer, who heads the committee, said the panel will listen to all suggestions for replacing the school property tax.

The school levy now raises about $10 billion a year, and the latest round of tax appraisals indicates the total is going up.

"It's a crisis," said Bomer. "State property taxes are a crisis."

The committee seems to be focusing on three alternatives devised by a working group picked by Bush, who has ruled out a personal state income tax, and legislative leaders:

— Creating a new business activity tax. Business activity is "the sum of all its internal costs, including profit," and would be about 40 percent of a company's gross receipts.

— Imposing a gross receipts tax on all business and investment income.

— Making changes in the current 6.25 percent state sales tax, such as expanding it to items not now taxed.

The committee will not discuss property taxes levied by cities and counties, nor will it make any recommendations. It is more geared toward learning the public's mood.

Many of the roughly 100 speakers who addressed the committee's first-ever meeting found fault with at least one of the ideas.

Mrs. Ramos, a resident of Socorro, a small town just outside El Paso, said her family's economy, based on a $2,000 monthly income, is already very tight. She would be worse off if the state expanded or increased the sales tax, she said.

"A sales tax is not fair to lower- and middle-income citizens," Mrs. Ramos told the committee.

"Don't make us less fortunate by imposing higher sales taxes."

El Paso car dealer Robert Hoy said all the alternatives "run the gamut from being bad for small business to being catastrophic."

Hoy and other business owners argued that any additional taxes on businesses would stunt economic growth, strain financial resources, or cut sales because merchants would have to increase prices to meet new tax demands.

Business groups and industry representatives, many of whom enlisted the aid of consultants and public relations firms, accounted for the bulk of the early testimony.

Some of those attending remarked on that and complained the right people weren't being heard. They said that since the meeting began on a weekday morning, many of the people struggling with property taxes could not attend because of their jobs.

Fireworks merchants bracing for dud holiday sales

HOUSTON (AP) — Fireworks merchants in Texas are bracing for a drastic drop in sales during the usually lucrative July Fourth holiday because of an expected ban on some products.

Gov. George W. Bush might impose a ban this week on non-professional aerial fireworks, such as bottle rockets, in Harris County and 15 other parched counties because of fears the devices could trigger fires.

The proposed ban would hit the most costly items distributors sell during the New Year and Independence Day seasons.

"The larger (businesses) will survive, but the smaller ones won't," said Sam Broadway, 34, whose AA Quality Fireworks in Alvin is one of the largest operations in the Houston area.

Royce Trout of Fort Worth, secretary-treasurer of the 24-member Texas Pyrotechnic Association, said the industry has agreed not to sell any aerial firecrackers. The self-imposed measure would not apply to "ground-based" devices such as firecrackers.

But local fire marshals in some areas are urging a ban on all fireworks.

"We want to try and remove ignition sources in this highly combustible period," Harris County fire marshal's chief investigator, Bill Anders, told the Houston Chronicle. "We're in an extremely dry condition."

Bush had banned all fireworks in Gray County in the Panhandle and was preparing to do so in 15 other counties when his plan hit a snag.

On Friday, Bush signed an executive order banning the sale of aerial fireworks in Randall County.

Attorneys for the Texas Association of Counties said Bush could ban aerial fireworks that pose an imminent danger in dry spots, but not ground fireworks that are more controllable and may not represent such a danger.

Spokespersons in Bush's office said the original ban is expected to be scaled back to focus only on aerials. That will lead to a debate on what constitutes an "aerial" firework.

Zack Sterns, whose Bastrop operation stocks 12 fireworks stands in Harris County, said he hopes just to break even this year if he cannot sell more-expensive items, including bottle rockets.

Sterns and other merchants said their inventories were already full for the June 24-July 4 selling season when they learned about the possible bans. Now they're scrambling to locate more ground-based fireworks.

THE WORD OF THE CROSS

"For the word of the cross is to them that perish foolishness; but unto who are saved it is the power of God." (1 Cor. 1:18.) Many times the word "cross" is used to represent more than just the cross upon which our Lord was crucified. For example, Paul wrote: "But far be it for me to glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, through which the world hath been crucified unto me, and I unto the world." (Gal. 6:4.) Obviously, Paul had more in mind than just the cross of Christ.

The "word of the cross" would include everything accomplished in the death of Christ. His death upon the cross culminated His work as a man upon this earth. After Jesus' death, burial and resurrection all authority was given to Him and He commissioned His apostles to go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature (Mk. 16:15-16.) The gospel, then, is the word of the cross. Paul wrote to the Romans: "For I am not ashamed of the gospel: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek. For therein is revealed a righteousness of God from faith unto faith: as it is written, But the righteous shall live by faith." (Rom. 1:16-17.) Thus the word of the cross is the gospel of Christ, God's only power to save the soul.

But the word of the cross does not include anything other than the revealed word. Jesus told His disciples: "Howbeit when He the Spirit of truth, is come, He shall guide you into all the truth: for He shall not speak from Himself; but what things soever He shall hear, these shall He speak: and He shall declare unto you the things that are to come." (Jn. 16:13.) Since the apostles were to be guided into all the truth, then what they preached was all that was needed to free one from sin (Jn. 8:32.) In fact to add anything to or take anything from that truth which they preached, is sin (Gal. 1:6-10.)

The word of the cross will only save those who believe it. It has no power to save the unbeliever. The basic prerequisite to the gospel saving is that one believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God (Jn. 8:24; Acts 8:37; Mk. 16:16.) Upon one's believing the word of the cross, the next requirement is obedience to that word (Heb. 5:9.)

Opinion

Whitewater verdict a shot at credibility

Mrs. Clinton says that apart from the friendships involved the Whitewater jury verdicts - in which former James and Susan McDougal, the Clintons' business partners, and Arkansas Gov. Jim Guy Tucker, Mr. Clinton's handpicked successor, were found guilty of 24 of 30 counts of fraud and other wrongdoing - had little or nothing to do with her and the president. In a lawyerly sense, that's true.

Still, Mr. Clinton was subpoenaed as a defense witness, and he testified on videotape. The accused were former Clinton business partners and political allies. The defense rested after presenting only Mr. McDougal and Mr. Clinton's taped testimony, hoping for an acquittal on the strength of the president's firm denial that he pressured former judge and financier David Hale into making an improper loan to Madison Guaranty, an S&L Mr. McDougal controlled.

The jury returned guilty verdicts on most charges, including improper use of the funds proceeding from that $300,000 loan - part of which was channeled to Whitewater, the failed real-estate development in which the Clintons were partners with the McDougals. It isn't proven that Mr. Clinton (then governor of Arkansas) pressured Mr. Hale into making the loan or knew how it was used. But the jury found the transaction itself criminal.

As evidenced by the flurry of spinning from all sides - White House aides hurriedly produced an extract of comments from jurors who said they believed Mr. Clinton but found his testimony less relevant than the paper trail - the larger issue is not legal but political and ethical. Will a criminal conviction of three close associates damage the president's credibility in an election year?

Perhaps the American people have come to terms with the idea that the Clintons were part of a political machine in Arkansas that sometimes indulged in underhanded - and, according to this verdict, criminal activities. Perhaps Americans have decided that if Mr. Clinton has plausible deniability, he should remain in the White House.

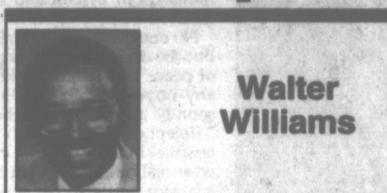

Even then, this verdict assures that Whitewater will not go away. A trial of Arkansas bankers accused of illegally diverting money to Mr. Clinton's 1990 gubernatorial campaign starts June 13 and New York Republican Sen. Alfonse D'Amato will reconvene Senate Whitewater hearings. The Clintons and the rest of us could be in for a rough Whitewater ride.

Government-sponsored lie

Last November, the Congressional Research Service, a non-partisan, independent research arm of Congress, released its findings in a report called "Environmental Tobacco Smoke and Lung Cancer Risk." In evaluating the Environmental Protection Agency's claim that environmental tobacco smoke was a class-A carcinogen, causing 3,000 deaths per year, the Congressional Research Service concluded, "It is possible that very few or even no deaths can be attributed to environmental tobacco smoke ... The statistical evidence does not appear to support a conclusion that there are substantial health effects of passive smoking."

Now comes the revelation of more government deceit and manipulation of the American people by way of the Centers for Disease Control. In a story titled "AIDS Fight Is Skewed by Federal Campaign Exaggerating Risks" in The Wall Street Journal (May 1, 1996), Amanda Bennett and Anita Sharpe report a woeful tale of government deceit.

The CDC's propaganda message is: Anyone could get AIDS! The fact of business is that for most heterosexuals, the risk of getting AIDS from a single act of sex is smaller than the risk of ever being struck by lightning. A recent major study concludes that the average risk from a one-time heterosexual encounter, with someone not in a high-risk group, is 1-in-5 million without a condom and 1-in-50 million for condom users. However, a single act of anal sex with an infected partner or a single injection with an AIDS-tainted needle carried a 1-in-50 chance of infection. Indeed, of all reported AIDS cases, 83 percent are homosexual and intravenous drug users.

Why the lie? Here's what was said by Dr. Walter Dowdle, a virologist who helped create the CDC's anti-AIDS office in the early 1980s: "As long as this was seen as a gay disease or, even worse, a disease of drug abusers, that pushed the disease way down the ladder (of people's priorities)." Dr. Dowdle and others thought there wouldn't be political support for AIDS prevention and research if the majority of heterosexuals believed they and their families were only minimally at risk. Thus, the CDC's public relations ploy was to deliberately create ads where the subjects wouldn't be identified as homosexual or intravenous drug users. CDC official John Ward said, "I don't see much downside in slightly exaggerating (AIDS risk)."

The CDC strategy paid off. Taxpayer funding for CDC's AIDS-related medical research soared from $341 million in 1987 to $1.65 billion today. CDC's AIDS-prevention dollars went from $136 million in 1987 to $584 million this year.

With all the lying about AIDS, we might ask questions about how the CDC is spending our money. The CDC's largest prevention program is AIDS testing. In 1994, it gave 2.4 million costly AIDS tests. Only 13 percent of those tests were given to the high-risk population: homosexual or bisexual men and intravenous drug users. But Washington doesn't have a monopoly of doing things completely backward. A California study found that 85 percent of AIDS cases were among men who had sex with men but prevention programs targeting this group received only 9 percent of state AIDS prevention dollars.

There are those in the medical profession who've tried to be honest. In the 1980s, Stephen C. Joseph, former New York City commissioner of public health, blasted the notion that AIDS was making inroads into the general population. Today, Dr. Joseph, assistant secretary of defense for health affairs at the Pentagon, says, "Political correctness has prevented us from looking at the issue (AIDS) squarely in the eye and dealing with it. It is the responsibility of the public-health department to tell the truth."

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today in History
Today is Sunday, June 16, the 168th day of 1996. There are 198 days left in the year. This is Father's Day.

Today's Highlight in History:
On June 16, 1963, the world's first female space traveler, Valentina Tereshkova, was launched into orbit by the Soviet Union aboard "Vostok 6."

On this date:
In 1567, Mary, Queen of Scots, was imprisoned in Lochleven Castle in Scotland.

In 1858, in a speech in Springfield, Ill., U.S. Senate candidate Abraham Lincoln said the slavery issue had to be resolved, declaring, "A house divided against itself cannot stand."

In 1896, 100 years ago, the Republican national convention opened in St. Louis.

In 1903, Ford Motor Co. was incorporated.

In 1933, the National Industrial Recovery Act became law. (It was later struck down by the U.S. Supreme Court.)

In 1955, Pope Pius XII excommunicated Argentine President Juan Domingo Peron - a ban that was lifted eight years later.

What's new in Michael New's life?

Here's a legal and political update on the case of Michael New, the principled young American soldier court-martialed for refusing to wear a United Nations uniform and serve under foreign command.

New's unit was transferred to Macedonia to serve under U.N. command. He requested a transfer, which was denied. Then he refused to don the U.N. uniform on the grounds that his loyalty and duty were to the United States, not to the United Nations, which legally is a foreign government.

For this he was court-martialed and sentenced to a bad-conduct discharge. In the military, however, the commanding officer must review the court-martial. He can uphold it, overturn it or modify the sentence. That's the present situation.

Maj. Gen. Montgomery Meigs, commander of the 1st Infantry Division, is reviewing New's case as of this writing. His decision could be announced any day. In the meantime, New continues to serve as an Army medic in Germany. If Meigs upholds the court-martial sentence, Michael New will come home a civilian - but to Americans who value the Constitution, a national hero.

In the meantime, retired Marine Col. Ron Ray, New's volunteer attorney, has appealed a decision in the federal courts, and a hearing is scheduled fairly soon. So that's the legal status.

On the political front, Republicans are blowing a chance to nail President William Clinton. Under the United Nations Participation Act of 1945, deployment of Americans in U.N. operations under Paragraph 7 of the U.N. charter requires prior congressional approval. Clinton falsely presented the Macedonia deployment as a Chapter 6 operation, which does not require prior approval. The U.N. record clearly shows it is a Paragraph 7 deployment. Thus, the president is, without defense or excuse, guilty of misleading Congress.

Charley Reese

If Clinton were a Republican, Democrats would be preparing impeachment papers. Remember what a stink there was over using money from Iranian arm sales to fund the Contras? Well this is more than the equivalent.

Clinton has illegally deployed American troops and placed them under foreign command in violation of U.S. law. Clinton has deliberately presented false information to Congress. That's a heck of a lot more serious than Whitewater.

But the Republican leadership, rather than upholding the Constitution, are trying to get Clinton off the hook. Can you believe that? If there were any doubt who the Republican leadership serves - the American people or the big-money internationalists - this should remove it.

On May 1, at the prompting of Newt Gingrich, the House National Security Committee reported HR 3308 to the floor by a 47-1 vote. This odious piece of legislation gets Clinton off the hook. It says a president has merely to certify that sending U.S. troops to serve under foreign command "is in the national interest."

National interest, of course, is the equivalent of a get-out-of-jail-free card. Anything is in the national interest the president says is in the national interest.

Typical of these Orwellian times, the GOP bill purports to do the opposite of what it claims to do. It is misleadingly called the "Armed Forces Protection Act."

There are only two heroes on the Hill. That one dissenting vote was from Rep. Roscoe G. Bartlett, R-Md. He has led the fight that has shown conclusively that Michael New is right and that Clinton and the Army are wrong. Bartlett has filed an amendment that would strike all the language from the bad bill and substitute language reaffirming that the United Nations Participation Act of 1945 governs all deployments.

Sen. Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., has also stepped up and written Gen. Meigs that "it is clear to me that SPC Michael New was well within his rights, and even his historic duty, to question the order to wear the U.N. uniform, insignia and badge." McConnell has scheduled hearings on the issue.

Nation's journalists out in left field

Having just spent the past two weeks in Europe, I find that the best way to ease my way back into America is to spend time with American journalists. Their knowledge of America is the knowledge of a foreign tourist on holiday. Chatting with them leaves me wondering what might be their country of origin. Certainly, their knowledge of the Clintons' problems is quite skimpy. They still think that Whitewater is about ancient charges dating back to the Clintons' Arkansas days, plus unwarranted journalistic intrusions into the president's sex life. The American press continues to miss the historic parallel that is looming larger every day for the Clintons: the unraveling of Richard Nixon's Watergate cover-up.

The American press' understanding of what is going on in the courts, in congressional hearings and in the American free press - that handful of independent newspapers and magazines that have remained focused on this stupendously corrupt administration - is about two years behind the times. The recent conviction of the Clintons' former business partners and Bill Clinton's successor in the "Arkansas political family," Gov. Jim Guy Tucker, was extremely significant. The convictions demonstrate that crimes have been committed, and contrary to the Clintonites' witticism, Whitewater is not "a cover-up without a crime."

Equally important, whatever the jury felt about President Clinton's testimony, the prosecutors apparently thought it so weak that they did not bother to refute it. Clinton said that he did not see or participate in pressuring David Hale to make an illegal loan. Hale was lying. The prosecution had at least one witness, perhaps more, who would have come forward and said that the president lied. As will eventually be proven, this President has lied a lot, as has his wife - occasionally under oath.

Much of the American press may think Whitewater is mere scandal-mongering, but it is actually a term covering a multitude of serious crimes now manifesting themselves not in tabloid headlines but in indictments, plea bargains and convictions. Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr already has 12 convictions, one more than Lawrence Walsh, and at a considerable savings. Walsh cost the government $38 million.

The collective term Whitewater covers a series of charges that are not trivial, just as Watergate extended to a series of charges that were not trivial. Boiled down to their essences, Watergate involved misuse of federal agencies, lying to federal investigators and obstruction of justice. The worst aspect of Watergate was the coverup orchestrated by the president. Whitewater has involved all of the above - plus bank fraud, election fraud, government fraud, real-estate fraud and witness tampering. Perhaps the worst aspect of Whitewater was the cover-up orchestrated from the White House, most probably not by the president but rather the first lady.

With Mrs. Clinton's Rose Law Firm billing records appearing miraculously in her living quarters almost two years after being subpoenaed - with her fingerprints on them - we are not unwarranted in concluding that she kept them from a federal investigation, which is obstruction of justice. Remembering her testimony that she had little to do with Whitewater or with Castle Grande, and now that documents make it clear that she did, charges of perjury become a possibility. More suggest themselves when we recall her different accounts of Travelgate and how they clash with, say, those of former White House aide David Watkins.

The indictments are going to keep coming in. Crimes have obviously been committed. During the unraveling of the Watergate cover-up, every minor figure fled for a lawyer and the cover of immunity. This is happening right now with Whitewater. But the truth will come out. Even if one good soldier could be found to take the blame, too many misdeeds had been committed. Once the cover-ups began, they involved too many far-flung individuals for any one figure - no matter how centrally situated - other than the chief perpetrator of the cover up to take the rap. In the case of Watergate, that was Richard Nixon. In the case of Whitewater, it looks like Mrs. Clinton. History might one day remember Hillary Clinton as Richard Nixon without the five o'clock shadow.

Letters to the editor

Compassionate help

To the editor:
I look back and wonder how I made it this far. Then I lift my eyes toward Heaven and begin to thank and praise God.

It all began May 31, 1995. The day I told God that I could not make this journey of heartaches and grief alone. I prayed and asked God to take my hand, so that he would lead and guide me through all of my pains and he did just that. He was there to comfort me when I thought that I couldn't make it. I've learned how to trust in God, because he promised me my day of deliverance will come. One day the pain, hurt, grief and the loneliness will be healed.

This letter is for the mothers and the fathers to endure in troublesome times and to commend the following people for their love and support. For one year you have been standing by with your arms open to receive us; to pray and listen to us. To all the pastors and members who never stopped praying and I know you are still praying. Thank God for you.

Hospice of the Pamhandle and Tralee Crisis Center are two wonderful organizations. These organizations are not for me only but it is here for Pampa as a whole. Whether you have lost a loved one or you just need help.

Hospice presented a seminar on grief and it was very helpful to me. Tralee Crisis Center presented a beautiful candlelight ceremony for victims of crime and all of Pampa should have been there.

To my co-workers Linda West, Ruth Jordan, LaRonda McCampbell and Vonzella Wyatt. You have really been there for me. I will never forget you. When I was down, you lifted me up and you felt my pain. There were days that I thought happiness wasn't for me but you made it possible and you all made me smile. Linda you are right, God is my shield of protection. Love you all.

A very special thanks goes to Beverly Clark, who has been an inspiration to me. She always tells me to pray and God will bring me out. She lets me know that God gave his only son Jesus Christ for me, and he will never leave me alone. I look at Beverly and see strength and hope. God is holding her hand and I know that he will hold my hand too. May God bless you, Beverly.

Let's put our trust in God. It takes a spiritual strength, faith, trust and obedience to God's word to bring us out. Mothers, Fathers, Sisters and Brothers, let us put a stop to crime, violence, drugs, stealing and alcohol. We can if we have the same mind and pray for the same things. I am one who is crying in the wilderness; save our young people. God is a very present help in time of trouble. If you've never lost a child, you don't know my hurt. One year to me is like it happened yesterday.

Peace in the Name of Jesus,
Ola Mae Kelley

Help provide shelter

Dear Citizens of Gray County,
We are concerned parents coming to you with a request for a donation to provide a storm shelter for Community Day Care Center, a non-profit organization here in Pampa.

This day care provides services for many of the community's children. It is a nice building with caring employees. However, the building has glass walls on the inside and no protection against storms.

As we are all aware, this is the prime time for tornado activities in the area. Whenever storms come up, there are two restrooms in the building and the workers try to get the children in these areas, but not all will fit. This leaves the older children to sit in the hall, surrounded by glass walls.

The tornado from last year hit within half a block from the day care and the majority of the children were still at the day care due to the time of day and the suddenness of the hit. A lot of the parents work out of town and the roads were blocked going into Pampa so they were not able to pick up their children. Please consider all of the young lives that you would be helping.

We have agreed on a storm shelter that is fully cemented, guaranteed, and is 14 feet x 20 feet, and would accommodate all of the children and workers at the day care. If you have any questions you may contact Susan Henderson at 665-6612, or Rhonda Sikes at 669-0735.

Please do consider a donation; it would be tax deductible, and would benefit many.

Please make checks payable to:

In memory of Trey

To the editor:
These poems were written from very loving people in memory of Trey Garrett Davis, born Jan. 23, 1987, deceased June 7, 1996.

To Come Upon Judgment Day
As the white light shined down
The Lord reached out his hand.
He said, Go with me, don't let go,
Up to the heavens above the land.

As the Lord took his soul
Everybody watched in fear
Hoping that they could save him
And keep him close and near.

But that didn't happen
It just couldn't be that way.
Trey went with the Lord
to come upon Judgment Day.

Nobody can stand the pain,
We just can't believe he's deceased.
But I guess I can pray and speak for everybody,
Trey - Rest In Peace!

One Life Lives in Another
Why did it have to be him?
I guess it was just a sign.
I don't know what that sign is
But a part of me keeps dying.

He was such a little boy
When God took him to save.
It's a lot of pain for us all,
But it's another life they gave.

Lord, please take care of him,
Don't let him suffer, or feel pain.
Just lay him down to rest.
Thanks to him, another life is to gain.

You took him away from us.
I guess it was just his time too.
I'm grateful that he felt no pain.
Thank God, that we have you!

We love you, Trey. We'll love and be with you.
Rest in peace.

A letter of thanks

To the editor:
This letter is to all the people who were there with me and my family during the passing of my mother. I don't know how I would have ever gotten through this without the wonderful people of Hospice of Pampa.

I had never been in this sort of situation where someone so close to me was about to leave this life. I was lost for words and scared more than I had ever been in my entire life.

I want to let the people of Pampa know that if it wasn't for the wonderful and caring staff of Hospice, we wouldn't have known what to do or how to handle this.

I want to personally thank Jo Logue for being with my mom up until her passing. She kept telling Mom that the angels were coming and everything would be all right. I looked at her and thought to myself, There is one already here, helping us through this. I felt that it was her.

I would also like to thank Janet McCracken and the rest of the wonderful people of Hospice.
May God bless all of you.

All night party thanks

To the editor:
The PHS Class of '96 all night party was a great success. There were 158 seniors and 32 non-seniors in attendance. At 5 a.m. there were approximately 160 students still in attendance!

The party would not have been such a success without the generous donations from local merchants and individuals! The parents were able to provide a fun-filled night for our graduates with the help of so many of you who donated cash, gifts, food and drinks for our party. We truly could not have done this without local support!

We would like for this community to know that not one penny went outside the city limits to purchase gifts this year. We bought locally and gave lots of cash prizes. Please support this cause next year - it is worthwhile! Thank you all for helping us keep our graduates drug-free and alcohol-free on graduation night!

Shelly Watkins
Chairman, All Night Party 1996

Take a stand, Dole

To the editor:
George Will, in a column June 8, 1996, suggested Bob Dole be more specific in what he intends to do and how it will be done. Mr. Dole has failed, apparently, to evaluate his opposition. The use of clever remarks is not what the voters need.

There are issues that are being propounded by Clinton that are "ripe" for counter attack: Continuous lies by Bill Clinton, Gephardt and others, e.g., "The Republicans are going to reduce welfare payments to provide tax breaks for the wealthy." Apparently, Bob Dole's strategist believe these statements are so ridiculous they need not be countered. This is not so; it is axiomatic, if a lie is stated often enough it takes on the mark of truth. Mr. Dole needs to speak with authority and conviction. He should review why George Bush was defeated in 1992 and prevent making the same mistakes. At the present time the Democrats are out maneuvering Bob Dole.

Mr. Dole should make George Will his campaign strategist or "pirate" away from Bill Clinton his campaign strategist. With Ross Perot lurking in the background and Bob Dole's lackadaisical campaign program, the Republican candidates will surely go down to defeat. This need not happen.

Bob Dole needs to take a stand on programs the voters understand and have concerns for, such as the closing of accessibility to the nation's capital, immigration control, tax reform, importance of wealth, specifically what governmental spending is to be curtailed, the Clinton-botched foreign affairs and many other issues where Clinton has failed. There are many other national problems which the American Citizens are concerned.

I do not want to back another loser!
W.A. Morgan

First Lady of Song Ella Fitzgerald dies at 78

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) - Ella Fitzgerald, "the First Lady of Song," died at her home early today. She was 78.

She had been suffering complications of diabetes for several years. In 1993, she had both legs amputated below the knees.

Miss Fitzgerald died peacefully, surrounded by family and friends, said spokeswoman Andrea Hecht.

Neither she nor other colleagues would reveal the exact cause of death.

"She passed away during the night," said attorney Richard Rosman. "Her fans will remember her and love her, that's what's important."

Her fans knew her as just Ella. She recorded more than 250 albums. Her voice could shatter glass or bubble with nonsense syllables in the "scat" style that became her trademark.

Her prolific work prompted an industry joke: "Poor Ella, she can't play piano. All she can do is sing everything right on the first take."

Her biggest hit, "A-Tisket, A-Tasket," which she co-wrote, is in the Grammy Hall of Fame.

Critics hailed her voice as "an ecstatic soprano," "a pure, rich sound with a great range," "full of swinging energy," "possessing a smooth, clear, jazz-influenced style."

Well-known jazz critic Leonard Feather praised her "bell-like clarity of tone, range and rhythmic brilliance."

Rosemary Clooney once said: "She sounds like a tiny girl with innocence and a new approach each time she sings."

Miss Fitzgerald's voice could become an instrument in the band, or soar above it.

During a concert tour in August 1985, she was hospitalized briefly for treatment of fluid buildup in her lungs.

In July 1986, she was hospitalized again after suffering congestive heart failure, a weakening of the heart.

She underwent bypass surgery the following September.

In 1993, diabetes led to the double amputation.

Miss Fitzgerald was married twice, in 1941-43 to shipyard worker Benny Kornegay, and in 1948-52 to jazz bassist Ray Brown. They had a son, Ray Brown Jr., in 1950. Miss Fitzgerald also raised a niece.

A private funeral was planned, according to Hecht.

We wish to express our deepest gratitude and appreciation to Corporal Stephanie Raymond for her sincere escort and to Kathy Gardner of Health Star Medical for her generosity in our time of need.

Thank You,
The Family of Joyce Murphy

Daughter Who Quit Smoking Gave Dad Best Possible Gift

DEAR ABBY: Let me tell you about the best Father's Day gift I ever received:

In 1987, my daughter, "Joan," who was 27 years old at the time, told me that she was having a difficult time selecting a Father's Day gift. She said she wanted to give me something special, but felt that I had everything. So she asked me what I wanted.

I told her that she had something in her power that was very special — it was something that only she could give me.

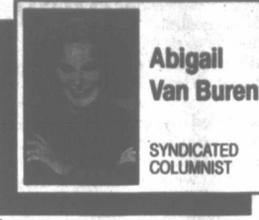

I said, "If you will quit smoking for Father's Day, it would be the greatest gift you could ever give me. I would cherish this gift and celebrate it every Father's Day for the rest of my life."

Well, she quit smoking as a special gift to me, and now I not only have a daughter who can expect greatly improved health, but last year, she presented me with a beautiful, healthy grandson who also will enjoy a smoke-free environment.

DICK BLANKENSHIP,
LONG BEACH, CALIF.

DEAR MR. BLANKENSHIP: Your daughter not only gave you a gift, she also gave your entire family a gift.

DEAR ABBY: Last year, before Father's Day, you suggested that children send a letter to their fathers telling them how much they loved them rather than the traditional Father's Day card.

I wrote my dad a letter and told him how much I admired him knowing that every morning he had to go to work to support a wife and eight children. We never went without a meal, we had the basic necessities, and we were always warm in the winter. And we had the love of two parents.

I remember in the seventh grade I sometimes spent the lunch money Dad gave me for candy and cigarettes instead of lunch. At the end of that year, Dad had to pay the school $16 for lunches I had charged. He never questioned the bill — he just paid it.

In my Father's Day letter to him, I explained why he was sent that bill and enclosed a check for $16. He read the letter, cashed the check, and never mentioned the incident.

Mom later told me that she didn't know what I had written in that letter, but whatever it was brought tears to Dad's eyes, and several times since, she saw him in his room rereading that letter.

Thank you very much for the idea. It certainly has brought peace of mind to me, and finally I have been honest with my dad.

MARY FUGATE,
WEST COLUMBIA, S.C.

DEAR MARY: Words of gratitude are wonderful to hear, but when they are expressed in writing, they can be cherished indefinitely. Trust me, I know.

DEAR ABBY: I've found that stopping the flow of junk mail is nearly impossible. I once telephoned a catalog company and asked that my name be deleted.

Disney unaffected by boycott, experts say

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Wall Street shrugged off the latest conservative Christian threat to boycott Disney, with experts saying that Southern Baptists would have to shun virtually all Hollywood to avoid links to R-rated movies and benefits for gay couples.

Leaders of the denomination urged its 16 million members to boycott Disney theme parks, merchandise, movies and TV. They denounced Disney's extension of benefits to same-sex partners of employees and said the company's toleration of gay nights at its parks promotes homosexuality.

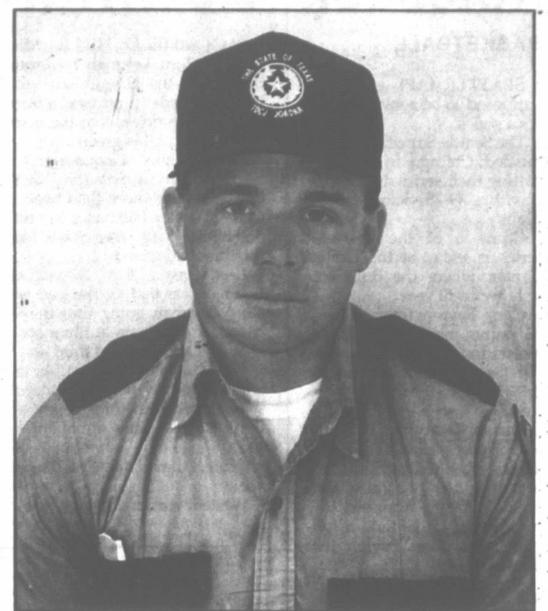

Analysts said repeated boycott threats against Disney, many stirred up by the gay-cleric film

"Priest" and other mature-themed offerings from its Miramax subsidiary, have had no discernible impact on the company's results.

Indeed, despite earlier boycott calls from groups like the American Family Association, Disney officials say demand for all their products is high, with surging attendance at the theme parks in Florida and California.

Disney limited comment Thursday to a statement saying, "We find it curious that a group that claims to espouse family values would vote to boycott the world's largest producer of wholesome family entertainment."

Minding your own Business

By Don Taylor

The growing challenge

Growing a small business into a highly successful and profitable venture is the dream of most entrepreneurs. What many fail to realize is that growth and success are not synonymous. In my opinion, a successful business is one that generates a good profit, is fun to manage and delivers quality products and services that delight customers.

Many small business owners believe they must get bigger to become successful. However, you should focus on getting better first. When you focus on improving your business, you often find that growth follows naturally. Here are some tips for getting better, then bigger.

Laying the Foundation

• Know what you do well. The first step in meeting the growing challenge is to understand your current success. Begin by listing the products or services that you deliver better than anyone else. You will find it easier to grow your business by capitalizing on your strengths.

• Know exactly where you are. The second step in laying a solid foundation for growth is to determine your current business condition.

Key factors in your assessment should include your financial condition, your market position and a thorough evaluation of both tangible and intangible assets. Let's look at each of these areas separately.

In evaluating your financial position there are three prerequisites to growth. These are: Profit, cash flow and equity. Use your current financials as a basis for financial projections. You will need to create both income statements and cash flow statements. You can grow with profit and still run out of cash on a short-term basis. Your business equity then becomes your financial safety net. You may borrow against your equity to support your short-term capital needs.

The second part of your assessment is to determine your market position. This step includes making a thorough analysis of the competition, and then assessing your own strengths and weaknesses.

You must base your assumptions for growth on the matchless benefits and unique advantages you offer your target customers. The stronger your market position, the more likely you are to achieve rapid growth. If you have no advantages and benefits that others aren't offering, you must compete on price alone. This usually diminishes your opportunities for profit.

The third portion of your "know-where-you-are" assessment, is evaluating your assets. Begin with your tangible assets. Are your buildings, facilities, equipment, technology and production capabilities sufficient for sustaining growth? How much growth?

Next, look at your intangible assets. Do you currently have the personnel to cover all aspects of growth? Growth will always require change. Is everyone on the team committed to your ideas for change? Have you provided incentives to keep them motivated?

• Know where you want to go. In this step, you must decide how you wish to grow. Will you grow by introducing new products or services? Or, will you grow by increasing volume with existing customers? Or, will you attract new customers from other industries or geographic areas? Or, will you steal customers from your competitors?

• Put your plan in writing. The final step in creating your foundation is to put your plans, goals and strategies in writing. You must not ignore this step or take it lightly. Once you begin to experience growth, you may lose sight of your goals and objectives. Sometimes when you're up to your elbows in alligators it's hard to remember that your objective was to drain the swamp.

Once you have your foundation in place, you're ready to grow. Next week we'll share some proven strategies for accelerating the pace. Don't miss "The Growing Challenge" Part Three.

Shawn Kemp had 22 points and Hersey Hawkins added 21, nine in the fourth quarter that included two on a fast-break layup off a missed try by Michael Jordan and a full-court pass from Payton that made it 82-69.

Lehman takes lead into Open's final round

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, Mich. (AP) — Tom Lehman has gotten this far in the U.S. Open before. Now he needs to get over a hump as big as the ridges that run across the Oakland Hills greens.

Lehman shot a course record-tying 65 on a Saturday when Oakland Hills more than lived up to its Monster nickname to take a one-stroke lead over Steve Jones into the final round.

Last year the 37-year-old Lehman was tied for the lead with Greg Norman going into the last round of the Open at Shinnecock, shot a 74 and finished third.

"It's kind of like deja vu," he said after his record round. "Hopefully I've learned something in a year. I think I got a little impatient last year and made some bogeys I shouldn't have made. I like my spot."

While it was an enviable spot, it was also a dangerous one. Fourteen players were within four strokes of the lead, including Ernie Els, Frank Nobilo, Davis Love, Colin Montgomerie and Tom Watson. And sometimes in a U.S. Open, it's better to play from behind.

"The last day, the pressure factor, two or three shots back is not a bad place to be," Lehman said before his round. "That's where Corey (Pavin) was last year when he won."

Jones, who missed 2 1/2 years on the tour because of an injury to his left ring finger, also will likely have a fitful sleep.

"I'll take even par right now, no doubt about it," Jones said after shooting a 69 to get to 1-under as only he and Lehman were below par through 54 holes.

"Sunday coming down the stretch, you can see what hap-pers," Jones said about the pressure of a major championship.

It's an especially trying ordeal at Oakland Hills, where golf is a game of "Don't."

Don't miss the fairway, the rough is too deep. Don't miss the green, the chips are too difficult. Don't put the approach shot on the wrong part of the green, the ridges that divide them are too steep. And don't putt too firmly, the ball will never stop rolling.

Does the word "intimidation" come to mind?

Lehman showed no signs of intimidation on Saturday.

His round included a 33 on the treacherous back nine and he played the fearsome final five holes 1 under par, making a great par save on No. 18 when he got up and down from a very difficult stance in the bunker.

That stretch was the difference as player after player faded on the brutal finishing holes, none more so than Ernie Els and second-round leader Payne Stewart.

Both had trouble with rough and rocks on No. 16, Els making a double bogey and Stewart a triple bogey.

Els, who was 3-under at one point, shot a 39 on the back nine for a 72 to be three strokes back at 211.

Stewart, who started the day 2-under, unraveled even worse, shooting a 41 on the back nine for a 76 to be six back at 214.

Greg Norman, who missed a 1-foot putt on 17, shot a 74 and was five back after starting the day just a stroke out of the lead.

Jones, who survived despite missing five fairways on the back nine, handled the difficult finishing holes almost as well as Lehman, playing them even par and finishing with a birdie on No. 18, the hardest hole on the course.

"That's the first day I hit that green," Jones said. "I'm real pleased with my position."

Lehman got going quickly when he hit a 4-wood to 20 feet on the par-5 second hole and two-putted for a birdie. He followed with a 5-iron to a foot on the next hole for a tap-in birdie.

He was magnificent on the back nine, where he escaped without a bogey and made a 6-foot birdie putt on No. 11 and a 30-footer on 16.

"It was just one of those days when the putter got going pretty well and the crowd got behind me," Lehman said.

"You can make some birdies here," he said, "but it's just so hard to hang onto your good round. I think a guy can get it going, but whether he can finish it off is another story."

Triangle, Enterprise post wins in Babe Ruth League

PAMPA — Friday night marked the end of the second-half of the Babe Ruth season, with two games being played, one between Boatmen's and Triangle, and one game between Enterprise and Foto Time. The game between Boatmen's and Triangle ended with a 9-8 victory by Triangle, while Enterprise won the second game by a score of 21-12.

The Triangle-Boatmen's game was of significant importance in the standings of the second half of the Babe Ruth season. If Boatmen's would have won the game, it would have forced a playoff between the two teams to determine the second half leader. But because of Triangle's win they held on to their championship spot. This game was close early until Triangle was able to grab a big lead about midway through the game. Boatmen's slowly battled back until they were within one run of a tie. But in the end Boatmen's was unable to capitalize and Triangle was able to hold on to victory.

In the game between Enterprise and Foto Time, Enterprise gained a huge lead early in a third inning that produced the majority of their 21 runs. Foto Time tried to battle back but the Enterprise lead proved to be too much for Foto Time. One memorable moment happened in the fourth inning when Courtney Lowrance nailed a two-run homer over the center-field fence in an attempt to narrow the then 12-run Enterprise lead.

With the second half of the Babe Ruth season officially finished, the Babe Ruth teams will have a tournament before all-stars, which starts on Monday.

David had plans on slaying Goliath, but Glo-Valve came up with six runs in the fourth inning to defeat Curtis Well Service, 9-3, Thursday in Optimist Major

OPTIMIST BASEBALL

Bambino League play.

Curtis Well Service played the league leaders even for three innings, thanks to outstanding defense which included throwing three baserunners out and a double play.

With two out in the first inning, Curtis took the lead on a single by Evan Miller, who advanced to second and third on a passed ball and a wild pitch. He scored on a single to left field by Schyler Danner. Glo-Valve tied the score in the second when Ryan Zemanek led off with a double. He scored on two wild pitches. Glo-Valve wasted four walks and a single by Zach Windhorst as Curtis alertly picked off two runners who tried to advance.

Curtis went back into the lead in the third inning and threatened to blow the game open. Jay Gerber walked and went to second on a single by Wayden Wade. Both runners moved up on a passed ball. After a strikeout, Danner got his second hit of the game to score Gerber. The relay throw from Zach Windhorst to Nathanael Hill was in time to get Wade at the plate. Glo-Valve catcher Tanner Dyer alertly threw to Hal Rogers at third to get Danner trying to advance on the throw, which ended the rally.

Glo-Valve tied the score at two in the bottom of the third inning. Justin Wagoner slammed a double to center, advanced to third on a wild pitch and scored on a ground-out by Matt Driscoll. Zemanek got the second of three successive doubles and stole third. The next two batters walked and Curtis made two fielding plays to get out of the inning without further scoring. Wade threw to Curtis catcher Zach Ferris to force Zemanek out at home on a ground ball. Gerber took care of the next batter by fielding a ground ball and forcing a runner at third.

Ten batters went to the plate in the Glo-Valve fourth inning as the winners broke the game open. Randy Tice led off with a single and Hill was safe on an error with Tice scampering home on the play. Hill went all the way to third after a throw to the plate was too late to get Tice. Wagoner, Driscoll and Zemanek slammed successive doubles to score three more runs. Erik Brown wound up at second on an error with Zemanek scoring on the play. He went to third on a wild pitch. Hal Rogers knocked in Brown with a groundout. John Braddock singled, stole second and went to third on a throwing error, but was left on base.

Glo-Valve stretched its lead in the fifth. Hill and Wagoner singled and moved up on an error. Driscoll hit a line shot at pitcher Evan Miller, who snagged the ball and alertly threw to Gerber at third for a double play. Zemanek followed with a single to score Wagoner, but was out at second trying for his fourth successive double.

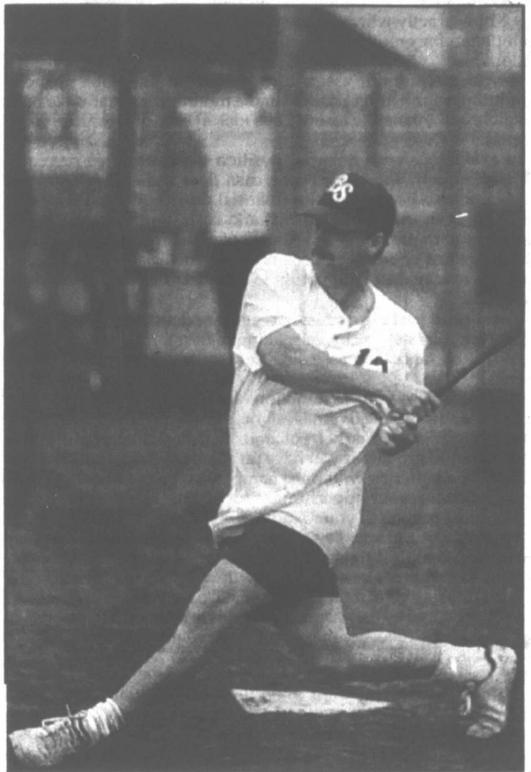

Curtis added a run in the sixth inning. Wade was safe on an error and Miller singled Wade to third, but was thrown out trying to advance on an overthrow. Wade scored on a sacrifice fly with a nice catch by Braddock in center field.

Zemanek led Glo-Valve in hitting with four hits, including three doubles. Miller and Danner had two hits each for Curtis.

Tice picked up his seventh win of the season against one loss. He allowed two runs and four hits in four innings pitched. He walked two and struck out two. Driscoll finished up for Glo-Valve, allowing one unearned run and one hit. He struck out two and walked none.

Glo-Valve maintained its hold on first place, improving to 12-1.

Arkansas angler captures bass fishing title

PINE BLUFF, Ark. — Stephen Browning of Hot Springs, Arkansas, is $100,000 richer after winning the Red Man All-American Bass Fishing Championship held earlier this month on the Arkansas River in Pine Bluff, Arkansas. Browning's two day total of 22 pounds, 15 ounces earned him the Red Man All-American Champion title and the $100,000 paycheck that went with it. A record setting purse of $276,750 was divided among the 50 qualifiers.

After one day of competition, Brownings five-bass-limit weighing 11 pounds, 4 ounces landed him the second place position. On day two he managed a second limit of bass weighing 11 pounds, 11 ounces - enough to take over the lead and earn the victory. While many of the anglers opted to make the long run to the Dumas area, Browning concentrated on a long sand bar drop within the harbor at Pine Bluff Regional Park. He caught fish on small crankbaits with a 14 pound-test Stren Easy Cast fishing line.

A tough start for Jackie

OLYMPIC TRIALS

ATLANTA (AP) — It was a troublesome first day for Jackie Joyner-Kersey at the Olympic track and field trials and a much better one for others in the big-name cast seeking spots on the 1996 team.

The high jump, she turned her ankle at 5 feet, 4 inches and left the track briefly to have it taped.

It was not an easy day. "Jackie was dehydrated and felt some spasms in her legs from the heat," said her brother, Al Joyner. "She's OK and will be ready."

Gail Devers and Gwen Torrence both advanced in the first two rounds of the women's 100, and the star-filled class of men's sprinters like Carl Lewis, Leroy Burrell, Jon Drummond, Michael Marsh and Jeff Williams put on a brilliant show to advance through two rounds of the men's 100.

Devers and Torrence swept through their first two races in the women's 100, each winning their heats in both the first and second rounds to move comfortably into the quarterfinals. Devers was timed in 10.96 for the first round and Torrence in 11:13. Both clocked 10.99 winning their second races of the day.

Mary Slaney, who hasn't been in an Olympic race since 1984, continued her comeback at age 37 by winning her heat in the semifinals of the women's 5,000 meters. NCAA champion Lawrence Johnson led the qualifiers in the pole vault.

Devers and Torrence swept through their first two races in the women's 100, each winning their heats in both the first and second rounds to move comfortably into the quarterfinals. Devers was timed in 10.96 for the first round and Torrence in 11:13. Both clocked 10.99 winning their second races of the day.

For Joyner-Kersey, however, things did not go as smoothly as usual in the heptathlon. Already battling a cold that had her on antibiotics, she turned her ankle on the high jump and suffered leg spasms in the 200-meter run.

Running against each other, Drummond was timed in 9.99 seconds in the first round and 10.0 in the second. Burrell improved from 10:18 to 10:01 and Lewis went from 10:10 to 10:04.

When she was done with the first four events, though, she was comfortably in first place with 3,916 points, well on the way to her fourth Olympics.

Drummond was timed in 9.99 seconds in the first round and 10.0 in the second. Burrell improved from 10:18 to 10:01 and Lewis went from 10:10 to 10:04.

At age 34, Joyner-Kersey is less concerned now with superlatives — she is the world record-holder in the event with 7,291 points at the 1988 Seoul Olympics — than she is with ending her career in Atlanta.

"The drama continues," said Burrell, who has struggled with injuries since setting the record of 9.85 in 1994. "The most important time to make a point is in the semifinals and final."

"My ultimate goal is to make the 1996 Olympic team and to finish my career on American soil," she said before the trials.

Marsh was timed in 10:17 in the first round and Williams in 10:02. Both did the second round in 10:07.

After Friday's troubles, she wasn't saying anything, rushing from the stadium following the 200.

"I think it will be super fast," Marsh said of today's semifinals and finals. "Everyone is running in the same range. It's a coin toss. We're almost equal in talent."

She had lurched halfway through the race, stumbling before regaining her stride. In

"The difference is in the head and that's unfathomable."

BRIEFS

GOLF
BROOKLYN PARK, Minn. (AP) — Dorra Andrews continued her comeback from a back injury with a 7-under-par 65, one shot off the tournament record, to take the first-round lead in the Edna Realty LPGA Classic. Andrews, wireless since 1994, had seven birdies and no bogeys to match the best round of her career and take a two-shot lead over Lislotte Neumann, who has finished first and tied for third the last two years here. Stephanie Maynor overcame a triple-bogey at No. 17 to finish three shots back at 68, tied with Jean Bartholomew and Jane Geddes. Nine players were four strokes back, including Nancy Lopez, whose round included one of two eagles on the day at the 467-yard 12th. Defending champion Julie Piers was at 5-over 77.

County commission to consider outdoor burning, fireworks bans

Gray County commissioners will consider extending a resolution authorizing the enforcement of outdoor burning regulations adopted by the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission during their regular meeting at 9 a.m. Monday.

Also during the meeting, to be held in the second floor courtroom of Gray County Courthouse, commissioners will discuss the fireworks ban in light of a decision by Gov. George Bush last week limiting the ban to aerial fireworks only.

Bush, at the request of the Gray County Commissioners Court earlier this month, had issued an executive order banning the sale and use of all fireworks for Gray County. Last week, however, Bush said he would limit the ban only to aerial fireworks for counties requesting the executive order.

On Thursday, Ray Sullivan, spokesman for the governor's general counsel Alberto Gonzales, said Bush had the authority to concur with Gray County's original request, adding that the executive order for the county still stands.

In other matters, commissioners will consider adoption of the Gray County Personnel Policy Manual, hear a request on the paving of County Road A, discuss the legal description of the county barn in McLean, hear a request from Jeanne Roper of the Adult Probation Office to sell surplus equipment and recognize Tax Assessor/Collector Sammie Morris for successfully completing property tax assessment courses.

Commissioners also will consider usage of a house at Perry Lefors Air Field, requests regarding sale of delinquent tax properties, transfers as recommended by the county auditor, intrabudget transfer requests, county treasurer's report and payment of bills and salaries.

In an executive session, commissioners will consider a request by the district clerk and county clerk to realign jobs and respective budgets.

For the very best Dad in the world

Joe Martinez: One of the very best dads in Pampa

By TIFFANIE FRANKS
Staff Writer

'Honor thy father' is one of the easiest commandments for Michael and Danielle Martinez to obey.

That's because they say their father Joe is an example to them as well as many other people.

"To me, the best gift I could ever have is my kids. I love to spend all the time I can with them," Joe Martinez said.

Martinez was born to a family of 15 children and feels that it is important to talk to his kids and really listen to what they have to say.

"My father worked a lot and was not involved in my sports and activities. I don't want to be like that because I enjoy people so much. I am teaching my kids that everyone is God's child and that we should love them," he said.

When it comes to discipline, Martinez is every kid's dream father.

"Charlene and I share the discipline and we sit down and talk to the kids and always let them know what they have done wrong," he said.

Michael and Danielle both have had time outs and groundings as their punishments and seem to have learned from their mistakes.

The family has many special traditions on holidays as well as special days throughout the year.

"On Christmas we have a birthday party for Jesus. The kids and I bake a cake and we also go to midnight mass," Martinez said.

Martinez also dressed up as Santa Claus when the children were little, and the whole family would go deliver Christmas cards to their friends and neighbors.

There was a big celebration for the first birthdays of the children as well.

"We had a luau for Danielle's birthday and a carnival for Michael's. Everyone from the whole neighborhood came and we had so much fun," he said.

The whole family dresses up for Halloween, and Mr. and Mrs. Martinez go trick-or-treating with the kids.

"He really just wants to get all the candy," Mrs. Martinez said.

Martinez spends lots of quality time with his children that a lot of father's would not consider doing.

"You can't be afraid to act silly and play with them. I like to see things through my kid's eyes," he said.

He saves a week of his vacation time so that he can volunteer at the schools and go to his children's activities.

"Joe always likes to give the teachers a hard time because he is the one of the few homeroom father's, not a homeroom mother," Mrs. Martinez said.

The family also shares household duties and Martinez feels that dishes, cooking, and cleaning are not his wife's job.

"I try to teach the kids that we are a family not separate people. The weekends are my time to do everything, and Charlene had the weekends off," he said.

Mrs. Martinez says he was a very sensitive father even before the children were born.

"He had all the morning sickness and had all the sympathy pains that you sometimes hear about," she said.

Martinez says that his success as a father can be attributed to three things: God, wife Charlene and attention and love for the children.

Michael really thinks his dad is cool because of all the time he spends with him and all the things that his dad does for him.

"He helps me with my homework and all kinds of stuff,"

Michael said.

Danielle agrees with her brother whole heartedly.

"He's a really good dad because he spends a lot of time with me and helps me with my sports a lot," she said.

Mrs. Martinez thinks her husband is an outstanding father because he listens to his children and does so much with them.

"He does take the time to listen to them and he lets them talk instead of talking to them. A lot of parents don't do that," Mrs. Martinez said.

Martinez said one thing that really sums up how he feels about fatherhood.

"I thought it was the ultimate when I married my wife, but when my kids came around there was no comparison. Being a dad is really terrific," he said.

Why my dad is the 'very best' in the world

Mary Alice Warner

My dad Mark Warner is the very best dad ever because he takes me out to the country in his pick-up. There we gauge tanks, feed the horses, look for wildlife and check the windmills. Sometimes he even lets me drive the truck. I am learning to change gears. He is a patient teacher. He helps me to know when to put in the clutch. Someday soon he says we will fix up an old Jeep.

Dad supports me by coming to watch me in my activities like my soccer games, school programs and the church choir.

Every night before I go to sleep, my dad sings with me. We sing either "Texas, Our Texas" or "Dark Town Strutters Ball" or "I'm Henry the Eighth I Am." When I was little, he said math facts or the alphabet with me.

Caleb Barnes

My dad is very special to me because we are always doing something together. He takes me hunting every year and we go fishing all the time. He takes me swimming every chance he gets. On Friday nights, Dad and I stay up late and watch John Wayne movies.

But what makes him one of the best dads ever is that he sets a good example he always takes me to church. We are very close and I hope to follow in his footsteps and be just as hard working and helpful as he is.

Another thing I'll always love about my dad is that he never spoiled me. He punishes me when I need it and always encourages me to do my best. I'll always love my dad for caring so much about me.

You could be rubbing elbows with the likes of actress Sissy Spacek or football legend and sportscaster Don Meredith. They were once in Texas 4-H. Just like Spacek and Meredith, you can become a member of the 4-H Friends and Alumni Association of Texas. Former 4-H'ers, their parents and anyone else who wants to be involved is welcome to join.

Extension Director Zerle Carpenter was a 4-H'er in Oklahoma. He was the first to sign on as a lifetime charter member of the 4-H Friends and Alumni Association of Texas. A lifetime Bonnie McGee believes the association will strengthen Texas 4-H by organizing and expanding the support already in place in terms of contributions of money and time. Members will also get updates on 4-H programs. Even people who were in 4-H in another state can join.

It's a way to involve children and help them learn who in their community played a role in developing the 4-H club they are a part of today.

charter membership costs $500. A charter membership is $100. Regular memberships are $25 a year or $45 for a couple. College students pay $15.

Businesses can become corporate members for a contribution of more than $500. The membership drive begins with a heritage search as 4-H clubs in each county try to identify former members.

Homemakers' News Donna Brauchi

Now more than ever, the nutritional needs for macronutrients water, fiber, carbohydrate, protein and fats - are very important. Why worry about it now? Mainly because by the year 2000 there will be approximately 40 million people in the United States over the age of 65. Many will remain active and healthy. Others will suffer from one or more chronic diseases, live alone or have varied backgrounds and living situations. That's why knowledge about the micronutrient needs of the over 65 age group is important.

Not to be forgotten is the nutrient water. When it comes to the older adult, water consumption is of special concern since they have inadequate water intake. This is caused by a decrease in the antidiuretic hormone with aging and more water loss through their urine. Memory loss or physical incapacity may prevent the ability to satisfy their thirst or inability to express their need for fluids. For whatever reason, dehydration is common problem for the older adult. Dehydration can be prevented by consuming approximately 1 to 2 liters of fluid per day, or more if there is vomiting, diarrhea or other increased fluid loss.

For several reasons, fiber in our diet is important. Water holding fibers, such as found in wheat bran, along with adequate water intake, are helpful reducing constipation and in decreasing formation of diverticula in the colon. Soluble dietary fibers in oats, legumes, and fruits are reported to improve control of blood sugar in diabetes, lower total cholesterol, the "bad" cholesterol (LDL cholesterol), and triglycerides without changing HDL cholesterol (the "good" cholesterol). Both types of fiber are found in fruits and vegetables. Be cautious of more than two to four servings of fruits which can cause an increase in blood sugar, especially in diabetics.

High quality protein found in meats, poultry, fish, dry beans, eggs and nuts are of special interest for this age group for maintaining fitness since a wasting away of muscle each decade after age 45 occurs. Protein requirements remain constant as for other ages with the exception of stress from an illness or infection, requiring additional protein.

Energy intake needs to be enough to maintain a normal weight and prevent undesired weight loss. Overeating fats and carbohydrates results in protein used for energy draining necessary amino acids. Decreased muscle mass and less physical activity decreased in the older adult to about 25% to 30% of total calories. Protein, 10% to 15%, and carbohydrate, 55% to 60%, intakes are about the same as for others.

Moderation in eating and diet modification to reduce risk factors are good for anyone. Following a balanced meal plan like the USDA Food Guide Pyramid promotes good health without hardship.

All Dolled Up:

Five questions with Gloria Estefan

By The Associated Press

Gloria Estefan, approaching cigar status as one of Cuba's most treasured exports to the U.S., is preparing to take on the world ... in a tour, that is. The two-time Grammy award-winner kicks off the Olympics and her world tour next month when she performs her song, "Reach," from her latest CD, Destiny. Estefan's traces her own musical destiny to her partnership with her husband, Emilio (Estefan) recorded it. Andy Garcia, the actor, produced it (for Crescent Moon Records).

3. If there were a movie made of your life, who would you like to play you and why?
Estefan (who is 5'2"): Oh God... I don't know if there are any actresses short enough.

3 1/2: How about Madonna?
Estefan: Madonna would probably do a good job. At least who I root for. ... I get nervous for these teams. Competition makes me nervous. I hate that somebody has to lose at all.

2. If we were to walk into your house and turn on the CD player, who would we hear?
Estefan: Cachao. He is 78 years old. He's the creator and inventor of the mambo. It's a compilation called Master Sessions. He won a Grammy for it. He was playing in the Cuban symphony at the age of 12. Emilio (Estefan) recorded it. Andy Garcia, the actor, produced it (for Crescent Moon Records).

3. If there were a movie made of your life, who would you like to play you and why?
Estefan (who is 5'2"): Oh God... I don't know if there are any actresses short enough.

3 1/2: How about Madonna?
Estefan: Madonna would probably do a good job. At least

I think we'd have the same sense of humor more or less. Although it'd be a bit of a stretch. Can Madonna have her first and only boyfriend be her husband? I don't know if she could play that.

4. What would this movie be called?
Estefan: What would I want it to be called or what would they call it? You know they can do those things without you, which really makes me nervous. Well, I bet you anything if they made a movie about me, they'd call it, "Coming Out of the Dark," (one of her song titles) or something dramatic like that. I hate that melodrama.

5. What would you like it to be called?
Estefan: "It's Been Fun."

Celebrities immortalized in plastic

By JODI MAGHAKIAN
Associated Press Writer

At age 8, Mara Wilson is young enough to play with dolls. At age 8, Mara Wilson is famous enough to BE a doll.

In fact, the prepubescent Mara will soon face a unique identity crisis: When the child star of Miracle on 34th Street and Mrs. Doubtfire goes to Toys R Us, she will see a plastic version of herself on the shelves.

The doll is linked to her new movie, Matilda, in which she stars with Danny DeVito. But she's not alone in the toy chest.

A number of famous faces are having dolls made in their image, some complete with pithy little speaking parts. It may sound like the height of narcissism, but with the dolls measuring in at a mere 11 inches, it's definitely on the short end of the vanity scale.

Barbara Eden has a belated I Dream of Jeannie doll coming out this fall. It coincides with a remarketing of the show to a hipper, Gen-X audience and a film that's in the works about the last woman to wear harem pants and get away with it.

Other movies that are planning doll tie-ins are Space Jam, with a Michael Jordan doll, Independence Day, Flipper, Mission: Impossible, The Phantom, and Dragon Heart.

Many male stars have "action figures" made of themselves, such as Jim Carrey, Chris O'Donnell and Val Kilmer from Batman Forever and television's hunky Hercules, Kevin Sorbo.

Fran Drescher of TV's The Nanny has a talking doll on the market that spouts sage advice in her trademark New York nasal. Poke her in the back and you get: "Sweetie, never lose weight for a man, that's what control tops are for." Poke Drescher in the back in person, however, and you probably would get a different response.

Drescher took a keen interest in her doll to insure each detail was correct, then attended New York's big Toy Fair to proudly promote her likeness.

But not before sending the doll back for remodeling.

"It takes a little tweaking with hair and make-up to make everyone happy," explained Pamela Harris with Sony Signatures, the company's product licensing unit.

Movie stars lucky enough to have plastic molded in their own likeness can have plenty to say about the process, including the ultimate power — "kill rights."

Top celebrities can negotiate a contract that allows them to kill their doll project in its tiny tracks if they don't like the way the thing turned out, says Hollywood lawyer Bob Wyman.

"A lot depends on the level of celebrity," he said. "The higher you are in the business, the (more protective) a deal you will make."

Some celebrities refuse outright to have doll likenesses made of them. Lauren Hutton reportedly nixed several offers to make a little gapped-tooth model doll.

In the unauthorized biography, Forever Barbie, by M.G. Lord, Hutton cited her childhood aversion to baby dolls (she beheaded many of them to find out how their eyes opened and closed). More importantly, however, was that she didn't want young girls worshipping or emulating an individual, "rather than a generic idea of girlhood or womanhood."

Barbara Eden initially refused to become doll fodder. As a result, the toymakers had to give the Jeannie doll dark hair. But as the project progressed, Eden began to get more involved and she gave the rights to use her likeness. The doll's hair was switched back to blonde.

Bigtime dollmaker Mattel looks for celebrities who have a wholesome image. The Barbie-maker's VIP creations have included M.C. Hammer, Donny and Marie Osmond and the cast of Beverly Hills 90210. Clueless dolls debut this fall as the hit film is remade into a television show on ABC.

When asked why Mattel decided to create a Bay Watch Barbie, rather than a likeness of cast member Pamela Anderson, marketing director Lisa McKendall put it delicately: "We wanted to be noted for the positive images rather than for the physical features that are usually noted from characters from that show."

The Market Forecaster

By George Kleinman

WHEAT - (BULL)

Outlook: The theme of this week's column will be "Blood in the Pits at the Chicago Board of Trade." Massive fund and speculative selling has permeated the trade over the past few weeks. Nowhere is this more apparent than in the wheat pit. This market has now collapsed about $1.50 from the top.

If any market has overreacted, it's probably wheat. Of course, wheat prices generally do break this time of year, and the old rule of thumb is the bottom comes when the harvest is half over. I would venture to guess this year it will be sooner.

The supply/demand balance sheet points to an exceedingly tight wheat supply. Spring wheat will not be available for months. Very soon, additional demand will surface from Iraq. They've just been granted the right to purchase $1 billion of food [will mostly be wheat] based on the U.N. brokered food for oil arrangement. Whether they buy from us or not, there exists a delicate global balance. Additional downside price risks should now be limited.

Strategy: Hedgers: Based on a previous recommendation, winter wheat farmers were urged to buy July $5.60 puts to hedge anticipated new crop production. Selective hedgers can now look to cash in on these and in effect once again assume the risk of the marketplace. Traditional hedgers, hold onto your options till you sell your crop. Spring wheat farmers are partially hedged using the September $6 puts and should hold.

Traders: Gamblers can look to buy July Chicago under $5, or July Minneapolis under $5.50. I would use a fairly wide stop (at least 30¢/bu.) The potential is for a move back up of at least 70¢.

CORN - (BULL/BEAR)

Outlook: Blood is running in the corn pits, especially old crop July. It was just a few weeks ago the May went off the board at $5.25. Is it possible the fundamentals could have changed so dramatically in such a short time span to account for an 80 cents price top?

The bears say: 1) old crop sales are being canceled; 2) the government, in an attempt to relieve livestock people, will release some supply from the strategic reserves; 3) China is once again a corn exporter in Asia.

These are all valid points, but not as important as the ultimate fundamental — money. This market is plagued by massive speculative liquidation. It was the speculators who pushed the market to levels never seen before and when they bail out, watch out! Markets do overreact, and it's my feeling this is what we're seeing now. No matter how you measure it, U.S. corn supplies are disappearing at an unsustainable rate. Lower prices will not ration demand. Additional downside risk in the old crop is limited, my opinion.

Strategy: Hedgers: Old crop: It was just as much luck as foresight that had us rolling out of our in the money calls into the July $5 calls (at the top). This maneuver virtually assured large profits from previous strategies. All year we've used calls as a replacement for old crop sales to open upside potential. Thus far, we've been able to lock in over $1.30 per bushel in additional profits. Our risk is always limited to the cost of the most recent option.

New crop: If weather conditions are favorable this growing season it is quite possible the new crop futures have already scored their annual highs. We are already partially hedged and recommend maintaining these positions. However, at this stage in the crop year no additional coverage is recommended.

Traders: We are out of the market now. The market is too cheap to sell, but too volatile to trade. Prudence dictates a stand aside stance at present!

CATTLE - (BULL)

Outlook: With feedlot placements down 15 percent or more, the supply of cattle looks to be tight longer term. It also could be tight shorter term. When corn had a "5" in from of its price, cattle were marketed as fast and furious as humanly possible to stop the bleeding from sky-high feed bills. So the key here now is demand.

With the barbecue season ahead of us, and with the relative price advantage beef has over pork, demand should be good. Prices should be well supported on breaks and are projected to trend higher through the balance of the year.

Strategy: Feeders: Our June puts did their job. They gave you the security of knowing you had a price floor. You were essentially insured under 64 for a modest cost. We are now cashed out of those, but still own the August puts. No additional hedge protection is advocated at this time.

Cow/calf operators: With feeder futures now about $10 off the bottom, and with much of the price risk taken out of corn prices, it looks to me like the time is right to reinstate hedges. Buy at the money put options or sell futures [whichever you're most comfortable with] at $60 or above.

Traders: Thus far, we've been unable to purchase the December futures at 62 or less. Raise this objective to 6250. This will be longer term, hopefully high potential trade. If filled, be prepared to risk to a close under 6000.

Grain shortage puts livestock on junk food diet

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A lot of livestock are on a junk food diet this spring because of a grain shortage.

Cattle and hogs are eating undersized cornflakes and stale cookies. Some may even get a dose of Gummi Bears.

Feed companies have bid up prices for leftovers and byproducts of the food and beverage industries as they seek substitutes for grains that have hit record high prices this spring.

"It's been red hot the last six to eight months," said Jim Tofilon, a Chicago broker for the odd lot of alternative feeds known as tailings, floor sweepings or grain middlings.

They include spent grain from distilleries and breweries; cotton seeds and hulls; off-grade cheese; bone and bloodmeal from meat and rendering plants; and foods that have gone stale or are mixed or cooked the wrong way.

"There's always a truckload of something strange around," said Jerry Bratton, president of Mid-Central Products of Zionville, a reseller of alternative feeds.

Bratton recently rejected an offer to buy a bad batch of Gummi Bears because the candy would literally gum up feed grinders. "I try to stay clear of that," he said.

But Tofilon says he would like to broker Gummi Bears to his farmer clients to add to feed rations as a sugar.

"Have 'em call me. Let's trade," said the executive vice president of Cereal Byproducts of Chicago, the nation's largest such brokerage.

Tofilon acknowledged some items are tough sells even now. For example, many farmers won't buy cereal byproduct containing Lucky Charms because the pastel-dyed marshmallows in it turn the feed strange colors.

Corn growers want check-off results

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Leaders of the farm organization representing growers of the nation's top commodity told leading scientists that farmers expect a greater return on investment from the check-off dollars they contribute toward research conducted on their behalf.

"Corn growers want significant growth and meaningful results," said Russell Williams, chairman of the National Corn Growers Association Research and Commercialization Committee. "We've created a new research and corn usage portfolio that contains a realistic agenda for specific, large uses of corn. We expect each one of our research priorities to lead to commercialization and the utilization of up to 100 million bushels of corn," he said.

The Leaf River, Ill., farmer made his remarks before more than 300 scientists, farmers, chemical and industrial engineers attending the sixth biennial Corn Utilization Conference (CUC VI), sponsored by the NCGA and the National Corn Development Foundation.

"A significant number of corn grower dollars has been invested in the past, which has built a well prepared seed bed of basic research," Williams told the group. "Corn growers now want significant growth and meaningful results."

Williams joined the president of the NCDF, Everett Nordine, who reviewed new criteria used by the organization to evaluate research for potential new products developed from corn.

"We evaluate projects based on the overall potential for commercial and technical success, the potential impact on corn usage, the length of time to commercialization and overall total cost," Nordine said.

One of the most promising new products derived from corn is polylactic acid, which can be used to make 100 percent biodegradable plastics. Similar products in the past used petroleum-based plastics mixed with corn starch. Other products include antifreeze, detergents, pharmaceuticals and cosmetics made with glucose from corn. Corn growers also fund research to identify a cheaper way to make butanol from corn. Manufacturers use butanol in items such as lacquers and brake fluid.

Ethanol production is one of the largest industrial uses of corn. The NCGA/NCDF funds research to reduce the cost of ethanol by converting corn gluten feed to the renewable fuel.

Nordine also noted corn growers are working in the appropriations process in Congress this year to secure $7 million to map genes.

"To expand our ability to grow, process and export corn, we must expand our knowledge about the structure, organization and functions of corn genes," Nordine said. "With this information, solutions may be found to long standing constraints on the corn industry, such as the second generation corn borer, corn rootworm and grain quality at harvest."

"We all know corn farmers can quickly rebuild stocks," said the Iowa farm leader. "The NCGA and NCDF will continue to work in many areas to increase corn usage. This CUC is just one way the organizations can help drive new corn products to market," he said.

Oklahoma's wheat harvest quality exceeds expectations

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The quality of Oklahoma wheat harvested so far this season has been better than expected and the yield has been a little higher, prompting a drop in the price.

"My experience is the one reason the price has fallen is the yield is a little better than expected in Oklahoma," said Kim Anderson, a marketing economist with the Oklahoma State University cooperative extension service.

"But more importantly, the quality of the wheat being harvested is better than expected."

Anderson said a large portion of the 86 million bushels predicted for harvesting in the state was expected to be nonmilling-quality wheat.

"What we're finding out is we have relatively good test weights, better than 58 pounds (per bushel), which is No. 2 wheat, and which is about the minimum you need for the flour mill," Anderson said.

"So you've got better quantity and better quality than expected, and I think that's one reason we've seen the price go down."

The per-bushel price dropped nearly $1.50 in four weeks.

Local agents say Farm Bill sets up cost efficient programs, helps conservation

The conservation provisions of the 1996 Farm Bill establish cost efficient programs that will direct conservation gains into the next century, according to local conservationists.

"The conservation provisions demonstrate a renewed commitment by the agricultural community and the public to environmental protection," said Lee McDonald, district conservationist with the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service in Pampa.

McDonald said the bill reauthorizes a number of popular programs and creates new programs that will help local landowners. "The Conservation Reserve, Wetlands Reserve, Resource Conservation and Development, and the Forestry Incentives programs will continue," he said.

The bill also creates a new program called the Environmental Quality Incentives Program that combines the functions of four existing cost-sharing programs into one that focuses federal funding into conservation priority areas, McDonald said. In addition, the 1996 Farm Bill creates a wildlife habitat incentive program, a non-profit national natural resources conservation foundation, a grazing lands initiative and a farmland protection program.

Matt Street, with the USDA Farm Service Agency, said the new farm bill's focus is on providing voluntary incentives to landowners to protect and improve natural resources. "There has been some tremendous progress made in the past ten years in resource protection, and we intend to use this farm bill to build on that progress," Street said.

The Conservation Reserve Program will extend through 2002. The program encourages landowners to leave highly erodible and environmentally sensitive lands in grass, trees or other conservation cover.

The 1996 Farm Bill provides that up to 36.4 million acres may be enrolled in the programs at any one time and allows new enrollments to replace expired or terminated contracts to maintain the total authorized level.

Contracts in existence before Jan. 1, 1995, may be terminated after they have been in effect for at least five years and if the land meets other early release requirements, Street said.

The Environmental Quality Incentives Program combined the functions of the Agricultural Conservation Program, Water Quality Incentives Program, the Great Plains Conservation Program and the Colorado River Basin Salinity Control Program. EQIP is to be funded at $130 million in fiscal year 1996 and $200 million annually after that until 2002. Conservation practices related to livestock will receive half of program funding.

Under EQIP, five to ten year contracts will be established with landowners to provide cost-share and incentive payments for up to 75 percent of the cost of conservation practices. Total cost-share and incentive payments to any person are limited to $10,000 annually and $50,000 for the life of the contract.

The Wetlands Reserve Program is extended through 2002 with an enrollment cap of 975,000 acres. The WRP focuses on restoring and protecting wetlands to enhance water quality and improve wildlife benefits. After Oct. 1, 1996, the program will start enrolling one-third of total program acres in permanent easements, one-third in 30-year easements and one-third in restoration only cost-share agreements.

The 1996 Farm Bill also establishes the National Natural Resources Conservation Foundation. It will be a non-profit corporation which funds research and educational activities relating to conservation on private lands.

A new Conservation on Private Grazing Land Initiative is designed to provide technical, educational and related assistance to landowners on the nation's 642 million acres of private grazing lands. According to the latest National Resources Inventory, about 64 percent of the nation's grazing lands would benefit from conservation treatment.

There is also a new incentive program in the 1996 Farm Bill designed to help states with farmland conservation programs purchase conservation easements. The Farmland Protection Program provides up to $35 million to help farmers preserve their land in agriculture.

Another new provision, the Wildlife Habitat Incentives Program provides $50 million over the life of the Farm Bill for wildlife habitat improvement on private lands.

McDonald said that the 1996 Farm Bill makes several policy changes to the Swampbuster and wetland conservation provisions. "The changes will provide us with the flexibility to work with farmers for common sense solutions that still protect natural resources," McDonald said.

"We expect that over time, these changes will make this program more successful, with productive farmland made more productive while achieving a net gain in the functions and values of these valuable resources."

Regarding Conservation Compliance, Street said the 1996 Farm Bill was also changed to allow USDA employees who are providing on-site technical assistance to notify landowners if they observe potential compliance problems. Landowners will have up to one year to take corrective action. In addition, county committees are authorized to provide relief in cases of economic hardship.

Street said that there are a number of other details in the new Farm Bill, and encouraged anyone with questions to visit the USDA Service Center or conservation district office in Pampa.

Montana Freemen take their battle to the courtroom after surrendering

JORDAN, Mont. (AP) — A federal courtroom became the latest forum for the Freemen to recite their complaints about the American legal system.

Rodney Skurdal, 43, one of the first 14 members of the group brought to appear before U.S. Magistrate Robert Holter on Friday, objected to the proceedings, renouncing U.S. government authority and claiming common-law rights.

At one point, Skurdal rose from his seat and pointed at the bench in voicing his objections. Five U.S. marshals surrounded him and restrained him. Holter overruled his objections.

Emmett Clark, 67, did not respond when told of the charges against him, but did agree to a request by federal prosecutors that he undergo a medical examination in his jail cell. Assistant U.S. Attorney James Seykora did not explain the request.

The magistrate scheduled arraignments for Clark and Skurdal to enter pleas Thursday and set their bond hearings for Tuesday. Both men refused court-appointed attorneys.

All of the group's 16 remaining members surrendered to the FBI and left their ranch Thursday night, ending the longest armed siege in modern U.S. history and avoiding the bloodshed of Waco and Ruby Ridge. The siege at the remote ranch the group called Justus Township lasted 81 days.

They came out in their own vehicles, meeting the FBI at the compound entrance. Some hugged before being patted down and escorted, unhandcuffed, to transport vans. Others formed a circle holding hands and bowed their heads in prayer.

As two vans and a sedan carrying the Freemen left the 960-acre ranch for Billings and the Yellowstone County Jail, an FBI agent in a following vehicle waved an American flag out the window, an apparent gesture of triumph.

And a few minutes later, a half dozen FBI agents drove to "sentry hill," where Freemen lookouts had peered at them for more than 11 weeks. One of the agents climbed onto the trailer parked there and hauled down a Confederate battle flag the extremists had hoisted earlier in the day.

Those arrested on outstanding warrants from earlier indictments were: Ralph Edwin Clark, 65; his brother Emmett Bryan Clark, 67; Dale Martin Jacobi, 54; Cheryl Petersen, 51; and Rodney Owen Skurdal, 43, Matteucci said.

Those arrested on federal charges related to their actions since the standoff began were: Casey Martin Clark, 21; Russell Dean Landers, 45; his wife, Dana Dudley Landers, 44; Steven Charles Hance, 46; his sons James Edward Hance, 24, and John Richard Hance, 19; and Jon Barry Nelson, 40, Matteucci said.

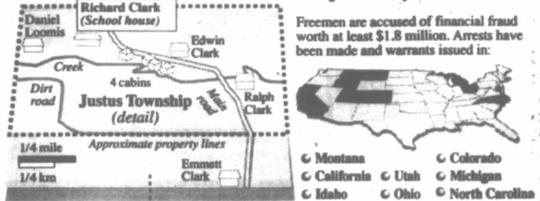

Two others not named in the original indictments, Edwin Clark, 45, and Cornelius John "Casey" Veldhulzen, 49, were arrested on charges related to a fraudulent financial instruments scheme. Edwin Clark is Ralph's son and Casey's father.

The 14 Freemen who spent the night in jail and were brought to court Friday face charges including circulating millions of dollars in bogus checks and threatening to kill a federal judge.

The two people not facing charges, wives of Freemen members, accompanied the group on the 3 1/2-hour trip to Billings. It was not clear where the women

Freemen surrender

The remaining members of the Freemen group surrendered Thursday, ending the 81-day standoff.

Freemen are accused of financial fraud worth at least $1.8 million. Arrests have been made and warrants issued in:

- Montana
- California
- Utah
- Michigan
- Idaho
- Ohio
- North Carolina

Chronology

- Jan. 27, 1994: Self-described Freemen take over the Garfield County courthouse in Jordan, Mont.
- Over the next few months, they set up their own court system and their own compound, dubbed Justus Township. They appoint officers and declare elected officials criminals.
- Oct. 17, 1994: Freeman William L. Stanton arrested in Billings, charged with felony criminal syndicalism and issuing a bad check. Four months later, he's convicted. The federal government alleges other Freemen circulated millions of dollars in worthless checks and threatened to kill a federal judge.
- April 8, 1996: The Freemen nail a defiant declaration of independence to a post near their compound gate, branding the U.S. government a "corporate prostitute."
- April 13: FBI agent Kevin J. Kramer, 34, of Sioux City, Iowa, is killed when his truck slides off a road near Jordan and overturns.
- April 24: James "Bo" Griz, who helped end Idaho's bloody Ruby Ridge siege, announces that he and Randy Weaver will urge the Freemen to surrender. Griz negotiates on and off for about a week before emerging, saying the Freemen have taken an "oath to God" not to leave their compound until their demands are met.
- May 2: The FBI calls on Freemen to meet under a flag of truce to discuss ending the standoff. The militants reject the request.
- May 31: FBI moves three armored cars and a helicopter to its staging area just outside Jordan.
- June 2: The FBI moves three armored vehicles closer to the Freemen ranch Sunday and establishes additional checkpoints. The next day, the FBI shuts off electricity.
- June 7: Negotiations between the Freemen and FBI resume for the first time since May 21.
- June 12: FBI strikes the negotiating tent and parks vans nearby in apparent preparation for a Freemen surrender.
- June 13: Remaining 16 Freemen surrendered after peaceful negotiations and were taken to Billings, Montana by FBI agents and law enforcement officials.

went after arriving at the jail. Since March, a total of 633 federal agents rotated in and out of the standoff, working 12-hour shifts, said FBI Agent Thomas T. Kubic, the local FBI commander. There were up to 150 in the Jordan area at any one time.

FBI Director Louis J. Freeh lauded the policy of "patience and resoluteness" that he credited for the outcome.

"The message that comes out of this is very clear to everybody — if you break the law, the United States government will enforce the law. It will do it fairly but firmly," Freeh said this morning on NBC's Today show.

"Nobody got any deals on any charges," he said. President Clinton told a state dinner: "We will all say a little prayer tonight for this peaceful settlement of a difficult situation."

The final surrender negotiations began early in the morning, but dragged on until evening. Kubic said the delay was because the Freemen were cataloging the "evidence" they say proves their grievances against the government, which they have called a "corporate prostitute."

The agreement called for the Freemen documents to be handed over to Karl Ohs, a state legislator who has acted as a mediator, for safekeeping. A sticking point in negotiations had been Freemen fears that the FBI would destroy the material otherwise.

A Ryder rental truck entered the ranch, apparently to take away the documents, which the group says contain evidence of government wrongdoing.

"It's a huge amount of stuff," a source said. "People all over the country have been sending them information they consider evidence."

Kubic appeared unimpressed, however, saying the documents were "not evidence in the traditional sense that would be admitted in court" and included such things as old law books. Some of the evidence may even incriminate the Freemen, he said.

It was clear, however, that the Freemen plan to continue their battle in the courtroom.

The outside mediators who helped end the standoff included lawyers Kirk Lyons and David Hollaway of The CAUSE Foundation of North Carolina, which bills itself as a civil rights organization for right-wing activists.

The group is representing Waco survivors and also has represented a former Texas Grand Dragon of the Ku Klux Klan. Associate Director Neill Payne has said CAUSE was interested only in helping to end the standoff.

But Dave Trochmann of the Militia of Montana, which is sympathetic to at least parts of the Freemen philosophy, suggested CAUSE would help the Freemen turn their criminal trials into political forums.

There will be no shortage of cases.

SBA has economic injury disaster loans

LUBBOCK — Businesses depending on farmers and ranchers in some Texas counties can now apply for low interest Economic Injury Disaster Loans from the U.S. Small Business Administration.

These loans are available to help businesses meet normal operating expenses that cannot be met due to the effects of a disaster. Excessive high temperatures, drought conditions, unseasonably cool temperatures and an early freeze — occurring from Aug. 1 to Dec. 31, 1995, and continuing — caused many farmers and ranchers to experience reduced incomes which may have had an adverse economic effect on businesses depending upon these producers. Farmers and ranchers are not eligible for this loan program but may be eligible for disaster assistance through other federal agencies.

Businesses in the following counties are eligible to apply: Childress, Collingsworth, Dallam, Hansford, Hardeman, Hemphill, Lipscomb, Ochiltree and Wheeler.

To obtain an application or receive additional information, interested business owners may call the SBA toll-free at 1-800-366-6303 or TDD 817-267-4688 for the learning impaired. The deadline for filing applications is Jan. 6, 1997.

Due to the weather, many producers experienced crop losses and were not able to purchase goods and services at normal levels. Businesses that are dependent upon these producers may have experienced decreased sales, reduced gross profit margins, increased accounts receivable or difficulty in moving inventories at normal levels. To the extent these problems have caused the business difficulty in meeting its normal obligations, these loans may be of assistance.

The loan can help a business meet installments on long-term debt, accounts payable and overhead expenses that would have been met had the disaster not occurred. Refinancing of long-term debt, however, is not eligible under this program. The loan is designed for those businesses with substantial disaster-related needs and is intended to supplement monies the business owner can provide from other sources.

Businesses which can meet their financial needs through other sources are not eligible.

Loans may be approved for up to $1.5 million for actual disaster-related financial needs of the business. Interest rates are 4 percent and terms may extend to 30 years, depending upon the repayment ability of the individual applicant. To qualify, businesses must be small by SBA's size standard.

Pampa Realty puts homes for sale on the Internet

Pampa Realty Inc., one of the areas leading real estate companies has joined HomeWEB, the real estate industry's leading on-line Internet information network.

"Our company is proud to be one of the first in the area to place all of our homes-for-sale on the HomeWEB Internet service. Potential home buyers can now shop for a home or property 24 hours-a-day, seven days-a-week," said Jim Davidson, Pampa Realty.

HomeWEB is free. "We offer the public great value by putting all of our homes-for-sale on the Internet for interested buyers to see. There are no additional costs for this on-line service and consumers can view this information at no charge," Davidson says.

Using the Web site provides unparalleled exposure for homes on the market, Davidson said. "Educated consumers make great customers. Today, millions of on-line users are previewing properties on HomeWEB from the privacy of their homes and offices, even properties outside their local area," he explained.

HomeWEB offers consumers and businesses access to a vast library of homes and property for sale. Other real estate information on-line includes detailed profiles of professionals and services to use, published articles on all aspects of home ownership, relocation, financing and much more.

Each listing contains a color photograph and 30 categories of information including price; number of rooms and baths; architectural style; amenities; acreage/lot size; and a short profile of the agent/broker handling the property for sale. Each property can be searched on by numerous criteria including price, zip code, city and state, number of bedrooms, and baths and more, Davidson said.

More than 32 million consumers use the Internet and World Wide Web, as reported in Business Week in March 1995. The Internet market is expected to grow to 60 million users by the end of 1995, with two-thirds of the users within the United States.

To view properties on-line, simply connect to: <http://www.usdigital.com/homeweb>

Woman kills tradition as matador in macho field

by MAR ROMAN
Associated Press Writer

MADRID, Spain (AP) — When Cristina Sanchez first ventured into bullrings with cape and sword, fans anticipated a bloody spectacle. They were sure the blood shed would be hers, not the bull's.

She proved them wrong. After slaying the required minimum of 60 small- and medium-size bulls as a novice, the 5 1/2-foot blonde was promoted to the rank of matador in Nîmes, France, last month, becoming the first woman to achieve that status in Europe.

For an extraordinary performance, the crowd awarded Sanchez an ear from each of the two full-grown bulls she killed in her graduation fight May 25. She was triumphantly carried from the bullring on the shoulders of her entourage.

Even before she became a matador, Sanchez had started building an international reputation. Last July, she fought as a novice in Mexico City's Plaza Mexico, the world's largest bullring.

Critics said Sanchez impressed the raucous crowd of 40,000 with her skill.

Sanchez appeared hooked on the adrenaline rush.

"I need this in order to live," she said. "The bull, the danger, death, it's all that I need. When you enjoy bullfighting, you become addicted to it."

Sanchez's initiation in Nîmes paves the way for fights in the world's most prestigious bullrings as a full-level matador against full-grown bulls. The last female matador was Maribel Atienzar of Spain, who gained the rank in 1981 in Mexico and fought bulls mainly in Latin America.

Fernando Fernandez, a TV bullfighting critic, said there is nothing, aside from macho attitudes among some men, that would prevent women from excelling in the bullring.

"Bullfighting doesn't require physical strength," Fernandez said, noting that a bullfighter tries to execute a ballet of graceful moves with a deadly animal.

Sanchez, 24, said her gender makes little difference in the ring.

"I have to fight bulls the same as any other bullfighter, because bulls don't care if you are a man or a woman," she said in an interview.

Following the death of dictator Francisco Franco in 1975, laws prohibiting women from becoming matadors in Spain were abolished as society grew more liberal.

Changing macho mentalities is another matter. Up until the early 1980s, the owners of bullrings in Madrid and Sevilla opposed female matadors and barred them from performing in their arenas.

Even today, one of Spain's most popular young bullfighters, Jesulin de Ubrique, says he won't fight in the same ring with Sanchez.

Manuel Alonso, director of the Bullfighting Museum of Madrid, also questions whether women have the skills to fight bulls.

"Women lack reflexes and physical training when they fight a bull," Alonso said.

"At first, the real aficionados went to see me only because they wanted to see a woman get gored," Sanchez said. "Now they tell me: 'We came to see a woman, and we have seen a bullfighter.'"

Encouraged by her success, eight young women are training to become matadors at the Marcial Lalanda Bullfighting School in Madrid where Sanchez trained.
