AMERICAN PETROLEUM INSTITUTE HOLDS 48 ANNUAL MEETING. L. Weldon Calahan, geologist and vice president of Exploration and Production with Texaco, left, is shown Fred Neslage, Pampa businessman, at the American Petroleum Institute 48 annual meeting. Calahan was the featured speaker for the banquet held Saturday in PamCel Hall. "I believe that the future will be a hard test of our national will and our industrial capabilities and Technology. But I have no doubts that we will pass the test," Calahan told API members. (Staff Photo)

Speaker urges cutback

Alternate energy was the subject of a speech given by L. Weldon Calahan, vice president of Texaco, Inc. at the 48th annual dinner meeting of the Pampa Chapter of the American Petroleum Institute (API) held Saturday at Pam Cel Hall. New chairman for the API is Dick Wall of Texaco. Pampa first chairman is Rayln Boudreaux. Phillips, second chairman is John Anderson of Getty. Pampa, third chairman is Don Mashburn of Arco. Pampa, secretary-treasurer is Martin Ludeman of WPRA-WOC. Pampa. On the advisory committee is Billie MacMillican of Diamond Shamrock, Pampa. "It was only a short time ago, we in the oil industry were spending a large part of our time trying to convince the public that the nation really does have a serious energy problem and that long term solutions do exist," Calahan said. "People were suspicious of the oil industry, but these attitudes are beginning to change," Calahan said. "We need OPEC oil and OPEC controls the world price of petroleum and determines how little or how much will be available. American consumers are realizing that they have been living on a high-energy diet. Conservation promises a healthy slimming down, but not starvation," Calahan said. "There is an alternate form of energy that is available now at a competitive cost which can help stretch out the Nation's petroleum supplies," Calahan said. "Naturally, I'm talking about gasohol." "We can look for important contributions for another form of alcohol during the next 20 years. Methyl alcohol, or methanol can be made from coal and oil shale. We at Texaco think it will be important as another alcohol fuel extender," Calahan said. "Consumers understand that a large part of the long term solution to our energy problems will involve using alternative sources of energy - fuels made from our nation's enormous reserves of coal and oil shale, and alcohol fuels from agricultural products," Calahan said. Calahan also brought out facts concerning Texaco's development of coal-based fuels. "Coal is one of this country's most plentiful energy resources. There are now several feasible projects under way to show how the coal gasification process can produce power from a wide variety of coals in an environmentally safe manner." However, problems with oil shale and coal development concerning environmental and waste disposal questions led Calahan to say "we cannot expect much from coal and oil shale in the near future, but we are working on them."

Dangerous waste dumps plague Texas industries

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Texas House committee says there are 57 dangerous or potentially dangerous industrial waste dump sites in the state. "The list is not intended to be a complete inventory of problem sites in Texas," said the report from the House Committee on Environmental Affairs. "The list shows the statewide nature of the problem." Some of the sites have been cleaned up, and others are inactive. The committee completed its study with a list of 13 recommendations, including the use of state money for medical research into industry-related health problems. "Fortunately, Texas apparently does not have any industrial waste facilities which pose environmental or health hazards the magnitude of the Love Canal. This statement cannot be taken to mean that Texas does not have any problem sites," said the report. Harris County tops the list of "problem disposal sites" with 12, including six active dumps. Dallas, Galveston, Jefferson and Nueces Counties have four each. A site near Crosby in Harris County was listed as "probably the worst known site in Texas." The site has 42 acres of waste with 20 acres of this resulting from overflow," the report said, adding that federal and state funds probably would be needed to close the site properly.

Another Harris County site listed is owned by Hercules, Inc., which is charged with dumping truckloads of pollutants on coastal land, the report said. "Such 'midnight dumping' resulted in the death of a Hercules employee when the truck he was unloading exploded," the committee said. Another case mentioned in the report occurred in Rains County in 1979 when Sam Hurst, who sprayed herbicides and defoliants along the inlets of Lake Tawakoni for five years, died at age 44. The death was initially attributed to arsenic poisoning. The autopsy, however, indicated he died of heart failure, the committee said. A Houston salvage yard owner was killed while using a cutting torch on an empty barrel. The barrel was contaminated with a residue that turned to mustard gas when heated by the torch. The report, prepared by a subcommittee headed by Rep. Jerry Clark, D-Buna, said the hazardous wastes pose long- and short-range hazards. "With short-range health hazards such as those cited above, the cause of the hazard is relatively obvious, respectively, the seeping waste, the explosive waste, and the contaminated barrel. In contrast, the general long-range health hazard has a much less obvious cause-and-effect relationship. The impact of the exposure can be so delayed (five to 40 years for carcinogenic substances) that few individuals even associate the cause with the effect," the report said. The committee said federal officials found 43 cases of brain cancer among Dow Chemical employees in Freeport and Union Carbide workers at Texas City. Much of the wastes are produced in Texas by large companies with big payrolls. During 1978, the Texas chemical industry produced 3.9 million tons of industrial solid waste, about 10 percent of the nation's total waste. "The potentially 'carcinogenic' petrochemical industry involves more than 30,000 workers in the Texas Gulf Coast region and brings in $3 billion annually," the report said. The committee suggested state-funded research to identify the health and environmental hazards of various chemicals so industry could take precautions and avoid "restrictive and unplanned for federal requirements." Otherwise, it said, there is a danger that chemical companies might migrate "to foreign countries where health and environmental standards are less strict." Previous Texas Department of Health requests for such funds were turned down. The committee recommends $114,180 for "health research into specific industry-related problems."

Interest grows in guess-the-cabinet game

WASHINGTON (AP) — When President-elect Ronald Reagan returns here this week, he'll find a political city anxious to have him end a frantic — and often confused — game of guess-the-cabinet. Chances are good he'll shed some light on the makeup of his new administration. As Reagan pondered his choices in California, aides on both coasts indicated announcement of at least several Cabinet appointees can be expected during his week-long trip to New York and Washington. At least two of Reagan's reported choices, retired Gen. Alexander Haig at the State Department and New York banker Walter Wriston at Treasury, apparently were still up in the air over the weekend. Haig's past connections with former President Richard M. Nixon and former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger were drawing fire from some quarters

Senate Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd declared Saturday that Senate scrutiny of any Haig nomination "will be intense." "It would be irresponsible of the Senate not to take a very close look at his Watergate role" in confirmation hearings, he said, adding that he would oppose a Haig nomination. Haig came to the White House as assistant to Kissinger, who is unpopular among some conservative Republicans. Haig took over as Nixon's chief of staff in the weeks leading to Nixon's resignation. Wriston, reportedly Reagan's top choice to head Treasury, is chairman of Citicorp, the nation's second-largest bank. A subsidiary, Citibank, is involved with claims on Iranian assets and with loan guarantees for New York City, raising possible conflict-of-interest problems because those issues are before the Treasury Department. He also reportedly faces complex questions about what to do with his substantial banking holdings if he should take the Cabinet post. Sources said possible candidates include Donald T. Regan, chairman of Merrill, Lynch and Co., the nation's largest brokerage firm, and Charles E. Walker, a deputy treasury secretary under Nixon. Last week the State and Treasury jobs, vital for Reagan in pursuing foreign policy and economic goals, were said to be going to former Treasury secretaries George Shultz and William Simon. Both withdrew. Other top appointments, such as Caspar Weinberger at Defense and William Casey at the CIA, were considered more settled. Those could be shuffled if Haig or Wriston are not named, several sources said.

Soviets protest 'Western interference'

MOSCOW (AP) — The official Soviet press on Saturday stepped up allegations of Western interference in Poland's internal strife. The media attacks came a day after the chiefs of Warsaw Pact nations issued a summit communique that Western observers saw as an attempt to quell Western fears of imminent military intervention in Poland. The Soviet army newspaper Red Star and the Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda said in dispatches from Washington that the AFL-CIO was accelerating what they called "interference" and acting as a "provocateur" in Poland by sending tens of thousands of dollars to independent Polish trade unionists. The story also said the giant American labor federation puts out a Polish-language news sheet for distribution in Poland. "In close connection with the CIA, the AFL-CIO has carried on active subversive activity for years against the progressive international workers' movement," the Soviet dispatch from Washington said. It said the union and the CIA are helping to provide funds "to finance the activity of anti-socialist elements in Poland." In a similar article, the daily Sovetskaya Rossiya published a long attack on the head of the AFL-CIO, headlined "Lane Kirkland the superhawk." Weather The forecast calls for cloudy and cold conditions today with a travelers advisory issued early this morning. There is a 20 percent probability of freezing rain tonight. The high for today will be in the mid 50s with overnight lows in the mid 30s. It will continue to be cold Monday with temperatures in the mid 40s. Index Daily Record ..... 2 Editorial ..... 4 Sports ..... 12 Gallery ..... 19 People ..... 20 Comics ..... 32 Entertainment ..... 33 Classified ..... 36

It said the word "detente" has the same effect on Kirkland as "the color red on a bull." "Kirkland has convinced the AFL-CIO executive committee to declare for the introduction of all the latest types of weapons," the article concluded. Kirkland, in a recent interview, said a special AFL-CIO fund has raised $150,000 for printing and office equipment for Solidarity, the 10 million-member Polish trade union in the vanguard of the August strikes that led to the unprecedented recognition of independent unions by a Soviet bloc country. The army newspaper Red Star printed a lengthy article by a Polish journalist accusing "reactionary political circles" and "hostile subversive radio stations" of "trying to sow hatred against" the Soviet Union.

Grand jury will review shooting

AMARILLO — The man who was allegedly shot and killed by Amarillo police officers Friday, Raymond Lee Johnson, 46, had a record of violence and had previously been in the Rusk State Hospital several times, one Amarillo source said. Johnson was shot to death by police officers after his vehicle was stopped and he allegedly attacked one of the officers with a tire tool and was attempting to reach another officer, the Amarillo Police Department reported. Police officers were attempting to stop Johnson after a auto chase had started because of reported traffic violations. When Johnson struck one Amarillo officer with the tire tool and had started toward the other officers the three men began firing, Amarillo Police officials said. Witnesses estimated that from six to a dozen shots were fired at the man, Amarillo reports say. The witnesses have collaborated the uninjured officers story of the shooting, Amarillo Detective Jimmy Davis said. Records of Johnson's past criminal activities in the Tyler area are being sent to Amarillo, officials said. Tyler Police Chief Willie Hardy told Amarillo officials, "Johnson has had a record of violence anytime my men have had to deal with him."

Persons thought to be criminal: insane are often sent to Rusk State Hospital, Amarillo sources said. Amarillo Police were unavailable Saturday for further comment on Johnson's history. The police department has released information that Johnson had previously been arrested in Amarillo and the officers did have trouble with him. How long Johnson had been in the Amarillo area is being investigated at this time, Amarillo police officers said. In a news conference Friday it was revealed that Johnson had been seen by a patrolman leaving a motel in the 2800 block of West Amarillo Boulevard. Johnson was speeding and driving erratically, said Sgt. H.R. Kelly, and officers thought he may be intoxicated. The patrolmen attempted to stop Johnson and the chase ensued. Two more Amarillo patrol units were sent to assist in the chase, Kelly said. When Johnson was finally stopped near Third and Hayden streets he emerged from the vehicle carrying the tire tool, Officer Kelly said. The incident is being sent to the grand jury. Incidents involving police shootings are normally handed over to the grand jury, according to Amarillo Police Chief Lee Spradlin.

Union proposes realignment of pro-labor candidate lobby

By OWEN ULLMANN
AP Labor Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — In the aftermath of demoralizing election setbacks last month, the AFL-CIO is considering an overhaul of its traditional political operation to create a machine that would recruit pro-labor candidates and make new overtures to the Republican Party.
Federation President Lane Kirkland said the 13.6 million-member labor organization should reconsider its long policy of remaining neutral in presidential and congressional contests until after the primaries. In an interview late last week with a group of reporters, Kirkland said the AFL-CIO also should consider active recruitment and promotion of pro-labor candidates from the start rather than waiting until forced to choose among contenders that may not be acceptable.
He said state and local AFL-CIO chapters should be strengthened, and emphasized the need of organized labor to reach out more to Republicans rather than remain identified as an adjunct of the Democratic Party and lose political leverage as a result.
"We are not the property and do not intend to be the captive of any political party," the 58-year-old labor leader said.
Asked what initiatives he had in mind to strengthen labor's ties to the GOP, Kirkland replied: "I haven't gotten there yet."
He noted, though, that the AFL-CIO endorses several Republican members of Congress with pro-labor voting records. He added that until a GOP-controlled Congress passed the anti-labor Taft-Hartley Act in 1947, a number of unions were closely linked with Republicans.

Kirkland's comments were his first since President Carter and liberal Democrats in Congress were voted out and Ronald Reagan was elected to the White House. The GOP took control of the Senate and an ideologically conservative majority took over the House.
Besides campaigning for Carter, the AFL-CIO had worked for a dozen Senate friends who lost re-election contests.
Under the 24-year stewardship of Kirkland's late predecessor, George Meany, the labor federation allowed unions to go their own political way but remained officially neutral until the start of the general election campaign in September. This year, the large AFL-CIO unions were divided in their support for Carter and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.
A number of young political activists in the labor movement are critical of the AFL-CIO's political arm, the Committee on Political Education (COPE), calling it a behind-the-scenes operation.
Kirkland suggested that the COPE approach is antiquated.
Kirkland said that despite Reagan's large victory, he was satisfied by polls saying a majority of union members voted for Carter, although not by the 2-1 margins Democratic candidates usually get.
In an interview held on the 25th anniversary of the merger of the American Federation of Labor with the Congress of Industrial Organizations, Kirkland said differences between the AFL-CIO and the new Reagan administration on economic issues and political philosophy "may lead us into conflict ... I don't want to anticipate that," he said. "We want to establish as decent and cooperative a relationship as is possible for the good of the country."

Brawler's heart gives another life

ST. LOUIS (AP) — In life, his family and police knew George J. Waeltermann as a barroom brawler, a glue-sniffer, and a petty thief. They say his finest moment may have been in death, when he became a heart donor so that another could live.
A 41-year-old woman, whose name was withheld, was in serious but stable condition Saturday, three days after she received Waeltermann's heart in a transplant operation at St. Louis University Hospital.
"I don't want to make George out to be a saint," said David Burford, a St. Louis County jailer who knew Waeltermann. "But what he did at the end nullified all the bad he did when he was alive. The slate was wiped clean."
Waeltermann, 27, died Wednesday night after he was shot in the head during a confrontation with Daniel Anthonis, 34, owner of J.W. Duke's, a country-western saloon in suburban Oakville.
Witnesses said Waeltermann had threatened Anthonis with a beer bottle. No charges have been filed against Anthonis, but police said an investigation was still under way.

It was the last in a long series of fights and rowdy incidents for Waeltermann, who had been arrested more than 80 times and confined more than 60 times in jails and mental hospitals.
"You name the place, and he was thrown out of it," St. Louis County police Sgt. John McCrady said. "He was in trouble all the time, but it was always petty stuff."
His mother, Theresa Waeltermann, traced her son's problems to a glue-sniffing habit that started when he was 16. She said George, the third of seven children, was an outstanding soccer player, a model Boy Scout and had won an award as a flutist in elementary school.
It was Mrs. Waeltermann who gave permission for the transplant after her son was shot Wednesday. His father refused to go to the hospital, she said.
"His father and I always figured the police would shoot him," she said. "But I'm glad he died like he did, and that somebody else is able to live with his heart."
"He had a good heart."

Portuguese prime minister mourned.

By PATRICK REYNA
Associated Press Writer
LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Thousands of weeping mourners lined the route of Prime Minister Francisco Sa Carneiro's funeral cortege on Saturday in an election-eve farewell to the political veteran whose death in a plane crash thrust the country into political uncertainty.
Portugal is observing five days of official mourning for Sa Carneiro, but presidential elections, the first since a 1974 revolution, will go on as scheduled. Sa Carneiro died en route to a campaign rally for Gen. Antonio Soares Carneiro, the prime minister's party's candidate. The cause of the crash has not yet been determined.

Sobbing women waved white handkerchiefs as the procession wound along the Tagus River and through 10 miles of streets from the 16th-century Jeronimos Monastery to Alto de Sao Joao Cemetery. Many of the estimated crowd of 100,000 fell in line behind the hearse and drivers brought up the rear honking a "v" for "victory" with their car horns in Morse code, an acknowledgement of the prime minister's parliamentary majority elected two months ago.

Retarded child strangles in harness

HOUSTON (AP) — A 7-year-old severely handicapped boy apparently caught his neck in a makeshift harness that held him in his wheelchair and strangled to death, authorities said.
The youngster, a patient at the Thomas Case Center in southwest Houston, was found dead in his room Friday, said Officer Troy Wilke of the Houston Police Department's juvenile division.
The home is licensed and regulated by the Texas Health Department to care for "the most profoundly retarded children there are," said Judy Hay, spokeswoman for the Harris County Child Welfare Unit.

Investigators withheld the boy's identity because he was a ward of the state. Wilke said there was no evidence of foul play.
The youngster was held upright in his "transport" chair — a modified wheelchair — by a seat belt and a harness that consisted of two diapers tied to the back of the chair, Wilke said.
The fastener on the seatbelt apparently came unlocked and the boy slipped down in the chair and caught his neck in the harness, the officer said. The boy's physical and mental handicap prevented him from calling for help or helping himself, Wilke said.

Hotel blaze: firefighter's story

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — The 26 people who perished Thursday in the White Plains, N.Y., fire were engulfed in a virtual explosion. Perhaps there was no saving them. Perhaps.

But Richard Kauffman believes he would have survived the Las Vegas, Nev., hotel fire. Because of him, I believe I would have survived it, too.

"I haven't been there and seen for myself where the 84 bodies were found," Kauffman said, "but from what I have learned from firemen and others who were there, I believe that as many as 70 or 80 percent of them could have saved themselves."

Richard Kauffman is a fireman in Los Angeles County, Calif. He has fought all manner of fires, but hotel fires were, to him, always the saddest. "So many people need not have died," he said.

Four years ago, on a vacation trip, he and his wife were assigned to a hotel room at the end of a hallway with no exit.

"It was a fire trap," he said. The desk clerk didn't want to argue the subject, not with all those people in the lobby, and willingly gave him another room.

His wife was a frequent traveler, an airline employee. He realized how ill-prepared she was to combat a hotel fire, and wrote out for her a few simple rules to follow in case, God forbid, she had to use them.

She showed her little survival manual to her boss. Soon it found its way into American Airlines' briefing book for all employees under the title: "Warning: Hotels Could Be Hazardous To Your Health."

There is, in America, a fraternity of frequent travelers, and I am one. We meet in airports. We compare notes. We share tips on how to make life easier, or less hazardous, much as hoboes used to scrawl messages for their brethren in freight yards.

Inevitably, a copy of Richard Kauffman's hotel survival rules found its way into my briefcase. I am never without it.

As a result, I have developed habits of behavior on checking into hotel rooms that have become as routine as knowing where the ice machine is, except that these might someday save my life.

I know where my room key is. It is on the bedside table. It is not on the dresser or the top of the TV or in my coat pocket. Every room has a bedside table and that is where my key is.

"Some of the victims in the Las Vegas fire were found in the hallways without their room keys," Kauffman said. "They couldn't have gotten back in their rooms if they had wanted to."

I know where the fire exit is. Not that it's somewhere down the hall to the left. I know there are precisely four doors down to the elevator, then five more doors, and the exit is on the opposite side. It is amazing how easy such a floor plan is to memorize.

I know how to combat the two elements of a fire far more lethal than flames: smoke and panic.

"If you are occupied with constructive thoughts — getting your key, remembering where the exit is, taking all the other precautions — you are not likely to panic, you are too busy," Kauffman said.

As for smoke, I know that my aim is to leave at the first sign of it. If I know where the fire exit is, I stand a better chance of getting out, on my belly (smoke rises), even with my eyes closed.

What other precautions? Here, summarized, are the Kauffman rules for hotel fire survival:

—If you smell smoke, call the fire department, not the desk. The desk might send a security guard. The fire department will send firemen. Tell the fire dispatcher what room you are in.

—Feel your door knob. If it is hot, don't open the door. If it isn't, peek outside. If it is not too smoky, go to the fire exit.

—Never use the elevator. Never.

—Always take your key with you. You might want to get back in your room, where it could be safer.

—If you go to the stairwell, walk, don't run, and close the door behind you. Smoke in stairwells is caused by people leaving the fire door open. If the stairwell is too smoky, going down, turn around and go up. A fireman will greet you on the roof.

If you are forced to stay in your room, do this:

—Open the window if there is fresh air outside. Do not break the window. If there is smoke outside, you will need to close the window.

—Fill the bathtub with water. Wet towels and sheets and stuff them around the door. If the bathroom vent has a motor, turn it on; if not, block it with wet towels, too. Block all vents.

—If the door and walls are hot, bail water on them with your ice bucket. Keep everything wet. Swing a wet towel around the room to clear the smoke. Put a wet cloth over your nose and mouth.

—Above all, keep fighting. Don't quit.

Arrests made in hijack plot

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Police have arrested 30-35 people in connection with the hijacking of a Venezuelan jetliner and recovered the $1.6 million in cash and bank notes stolen by the gang, police chief Jorge Sosa Chacin announced Saturday.

The Aeropostal DC-9 carrying 110 passengers and crew was hijacked Friday by four armed men and forced to land at a small airfield where other members of the ring were waiting with a pickup truck for the escape. None of the hijack victims were injured.

Sosa announced the arrests at a news conference where he unsealed two large ice chests and showed reporters a pistol and wads of bank notes he said had been found in one of the gang's hideouts.

He said the suspected hijackers and their accomplices were arrested in various locations in Caracas and in several apartments, a boat, construction site and mobile home in the port city of Puerto La Cruz. The chief did not identify the prisoners.

Some of the suspects possibly had been members of left-wing guerrilla groups that plagued Venezuela a decade ago, and that would explain the military precision with which they carried off the operation, Sosa said.

But he added, "We are convinced that this was simply a crime, with no political motives."

Police had organized a country-wide search after the Aeropostal jetliner was commandeered and the pilot ordered to land the big plane at the dangerously small and isolated airfield at Higuero, 70 miles northeast of Caracas.

The hijackers seized the craft shortly after it had taken off from Porlamar, Margarita, a Venezuelan island in the Caribbean, for the 35-minute flight to Caracas.

Sosa said the hijackers "knew a lot of aviation, because they practically guided the pilot" in the precarious landing at Higuero. The pilot, Francisco Silva, had called the landing "extremely dangerous" because the 1,200 yard runway was too short for a DC-9.

Sosa said more arrests were expected and legal procedures against those picked up would start next week.

Storied old bridge in jeopardy

By JAMES R. KING
Associated Press Writer

PRESDIDO, Texas (AP) — The rickety-looking toll bridge linking two nations at this remote Southwest Texas town was designated "temporary" when built — to last only as long as it took to build a bigger permanent bridge.

That was 54 years ago.

Since then, the one-lane, wooden bridge has been the source of demonstrations, court battles, political grudges and even shootings. County officials say truckers avoid the bridge routinely because they're afraid the weight of their cargo might cause it to collapse. Yet it remains today the only way motorists can cross the Rio Grande into Ojinaga, Mexico, and points south.

Now, at last, its storied days appeared numbered.

Presidio County officials say they intend to build that bigger, stronger bridge promised 54 years ago, and claim they have cleared most of the obstacles. But the controversy over who should build the new bridge goes on, despite a U.S. Supreme Court decision in October that has settled the matter for all practical purposes.

Frank Dupuy, loser in the October court decision, says he should be the one to erect a new bridge. He was a boy of 10 when his father, H.E. Dupuy, built the existing toll bridge in 1926. Today, he admits that what with all the trouble it has caused — including the shooting death of his father — he would have done something else with his life if he had it to do again.

"My dad was shot at three times in controversies over the bridge," Dupuy recalls. The first two attempts, which both came shortly after the span was completed, missed. The third attempt was successful.

"Dad was killed in 1958 in a controversy with a commissioner who wanted the county to build a new bridge," Dupuy said.

The commissioner who was accused of firing the fatal rifle shot, Clyde "Doc" Vaught, pleaded self defense in his trial and was acquitted.

Dupuy said his 74-year-old father was unarmed when he was slain, but he said he held no grudges.

"Life's too short," he said.

Vaught, now in his 80s, doesn't like to talk about it.

"He called me up and threatened me and that's all I care to say about it," said the white-haired, semi-retired doctor who still delivers babies in this mostly Hispanic farming town of about 1,600 people.

Vaught and Dupuy now live in peace here, but the argument that led to the 1958 shooting still separates them.

Dupuy, who says a new bridge would put him out of business, said he has offered without success to sell the county his bridge for $250,000 or build a new one.

"I've got all the permits. I could start tomorrow to build a new bridge if the Mexicans so desired," he said, but the Mexicans won't cooperate with him because "of interference of the county."

"The Mexicans have backed off to wait and see what the county would do," he said. "Now I'm about to be put out of business by political maneuvering. Yes, I feel bitter about it."

The Mexicans, who blocked their side of the bridge in 1976 in a demonstration against Dupuy's tolls and the aging condition of the structure, have already announced they will close their side of Dupuy's bridge when the county opens a new one.

That would mean the end of an estimated annual gross income of $150,000 from tolls for Dupuy. But the income was not always so great.

"The bridge was run for many years at a loss because traffic was so sparse. We finally got into the black about 1950," he said. Dupuy argues that as soon as the bridge started making money the county government wanted into the act.

In Marfa, 60 miles to the north, County Judge Charlie Henderson declines to speculate on when construction could start on the new bridge, planned about 100 yards upriver from Dupuy's bridge.

"We still have a few points on the contract with Mexico that have to be clarified," Henderson said. He said the Mexicans had agreed to pay half the cost of the proposed $1.3 million, two-lane bridge.

"I feel like we have a tremendous amount of traffic from the interior of Mexico that has to bypass us now," Henderson said. He declined to speculate on new toll charges.

For years, both sides have complained Dupuy's tolls are too high, and many Americans are miffed by his policy of charging more for their cars. Dupuy said the 60 cents for an American car and driver has not changed since the bridge first opened, and said Mexicans are charged 20 cents less because "they come here to trade ... and their standard of living is lower."

He said parts of his bridge have been reinforced with steel and concrete over the years, but about 30 percent of the 600-foot structure is wood.

"It does look like it's going to fall in," he conceded. "But you can't tell by looking how much a bridge will hold. Big butane trucks still cross on it — its load limit is the same as that for state highways — 83,000 pounds," he said.

Dupuy nevertheless sounded like a man who knew the end for the old bridge was indeed near.

"If they open up a new bridge maybe I'll plant flowers on mine," he said, smiling at the hunting dog leaning against his leg. "I could make it a thing of beauty."

Klansmen visit governor

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Robed Ku Klux Klan members went to the Tennessee Executive Residence Saturday demanding to see Gov. Lamar Alexander but were told he was out of state, the governor's spokesman said.

John Parish, the governor's press secretary, said about a dozen klansmen were at Alexander's residence shortly before noon after first appearing at the home of Nashville Mayor Richard Fulton.

"They said they wanted to talk to the governor and were told the governor was out of the state for this weekend," Parish said.

The klansmen, who were orderly, said they planned to remain at the governor's residence until Alexander saw them, Parish said. Security personnel told them who to contact for an appointment, he said.

Striking hospital workers rally, negotiations stall

BALTIMORE (AP) — Striking hospital workers and their supporters staged a peaceful rally outside Johns Hopkins Hospital on Saturday as talks to settle walkouts at two city hospitals remained stalled.

Police estimated about 750 people attended the two-hour rally, but David Fair, a spokesman for the National Union of Hospital and Health Care Employees, Local 1199-E, said it attracted "at least 1,500."

The strike, involving cooks, housekeepers, nurse assistants and maintenance workers, began Monday at Johns Hopkins and spread Tuesday to Sinai Hospital. Spokesmen for both sides reported that no new contract talks had been scheduled.

Although there has been no serious violence during the strike, at least 22 people have been arrested on the picket lines so far.

Strikes had been set last week for some 1,600 workers at other hospitals in the city, but workers voted to postpone walkouts.

The main issue is the workers' health plan. Some Baltimore-area hospitals want to stop paying into the plan and provide workers with the same health plan they extend non-union employees.

The union said the health plan is central to their existence.

Providence garbage is piling up

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — As uncollected garbage piled higher on city streets, Mayor Vincent A. Cianci Jr. threatened Saturday to seek a back-to-work order in court unless a dispute with 1,800 striking municipal workers is settled over the weekend.

Cianci talks with Local 1033 of the Public Service Employees Union have been unproductive.

Meanwhile, Union

work force joined striking sanitation workers on Friday to protest last month's layoff of 300 city workers. Union officials have complained the layoffs were not based on seniority.

DALLAS (AP) — The pastor of the world's largest Southern Baptist Church says a "garage sale" designed to help the church pay off a $7.5 million parking facility has resulted in contributions from young and old alike.

"The response has been so heartening," said Dr. W.A. Criswell, who recently asked the 21,000-member congregation to buy part or all of each of the 1,100 parking spaces in the multi-story garage at a price of $7,000 per space.

AAFES slated for change

DALLAS (AP) — The General Accounting Office is recommending vast changes in the corruption-riddled Army and Air Force Exchange Service, the military exchange system's $3.5 billion purchasing agency, the Dallas Morning News said Saturday in a copyright story.

Quoting unnamed sources and documents that reportedly will be made public before the end of the year, the newspaper said the GAO report will be extremely critical of the Dallas-based exchange system which is the nation's seventh-largest retailer.

AAFES makes purchases for post exchanges at U.S. military installations around the world. A federal grand jury is investigating allegations of widespread bribes and kickbacks within the exchange system, and so is a task force of federal investigating officers, including agents of the FBI, the newspaper said.

Thomas Eickmeyer, GAO group director, met with the AAFES board in September to discuss his office's preliminary findings and "put the finger in the dike."

Since then, Eickmeyer said, "we are very pleased with the numerous actions taken to strengthen controls."

They included orders to Maj. Gen. Duane H. Stubbs, system commander, to revise the system's administrative controls.

provide a report on white-collar crime, devise a system to prevent crime and assure compliance with already-established policies.

The GAO report expected later this month says the exchange system accounted for 60 percent of the potential fraud cases the U.S. Defense Department referred for investigation in the first half of fiscal year 1980, according to the newspaper.

In addition, the report charges that AAFES officials were slow to spot bribery and kickbacks within the exchange system and slow to act when such abuses became known, said the newspaper.

Quoting unidentified sources, the newspaper said the unpublished GAO report shows that 86 of the exchange system's 373 employees authorized to make purchases have been involved in irregularities ranging from taking small gratuities to soliciting huge bribes and kickbacks from companies doing business with them.

The GAO recommendations include better documentation and closer monitoring of markdowns, changing the process for selecting buyers, better identification of items that could be bought through competitive bidding and better training for procurement personnel.

In related developments, U.S. District Judge Sarah T. Hughes has ordered an AAFES buyer to testify before a Dallas federal grand jury investigating the system. The buyer, Moya Wayne Woolard, invoked Fifth Amendment protection when subpoenaed for a Sept. 16 appearance, but prosecutors said the statute of limitations had expired on the activities about which Woolard was to testify.

And attorneys for a company suspended from doing business with the AAFES — Martin A. Taylor Co. of Philadelphia — said Friday they will seek a court order to halt that suspension.

Dog keeps vigil over boy's body

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The body of a 2-year-old boy who disappeared from his mobile home three days ago with two pet dogs was discovered in heavy underbrush Saturday, his black puppy "Fluffy" sitting obediently nearby.

Sheriff John H. Baker Jr. said a searcher found Danny Hicks — wearing light-brown corduroy pants, shoes, a long-sleeved jersey and no jacket — in a wooded area about 1 1/2 miles from his mobile home.

Authorities refused to speculate on the cause of death but said they expected an examination by the medical examiner's office to be "routine."

After the boy disappeared Wednesday while playing outside his home with "Fluffy" and another dog called "Honky," temperatures on two nights had dipped into the 20s.

About 700 searchers combed the woods for the boy on Wednesday and Thursday before Baker called off the hunt. It was resumed Saturday with 1,500 volunteers and other searchers after "Honky" returned home, hungry, covered in briars, leaves and debris.

The dog led searchers to a muddy, shallow creek where they found a small footprint, never confirmed to have been made by Danny.

An unidentified searcher found the boy's body. "Fluffy" was sitting nearby, never even barking when the searcher approached.

Pension hikes recommended

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The state should spend $580 million over the next two years to raise college faculty salaries and increase pensions for retired school teachers and state employees, the Legislative Budget Board said Saturday.

College faculty would receive an 18.6 percent pay raise in September 1981 and another 8.7 percent a year later, at a cost of $196.7 million, under the spending pattern approved by the board.

The raises would be considerably less than the two-year, 41.3 percent increases recommended by a special committee on higher education finance headed by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, who also chairs the budget board.

Board members recommended $17 million over 1982-83 for organized research at the 33 state universities, well below the current appropriation of almost $22 million.

The Hobby committee had said the state should spend $57.7 million on research in 1982-83.

"I'm convinced not much research is going on, and it (the research money) is used mostly as a salary supplement," said House Speaker Bill Clayton.

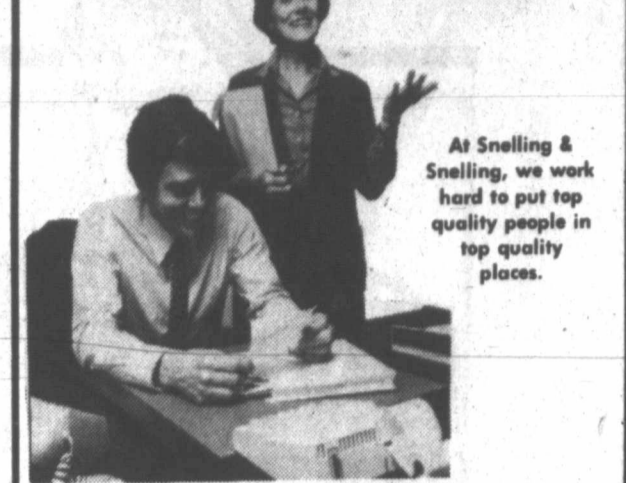

"I don't mind research. But I do despise giving them money to take their wives to Europe or Australia for a month, or to do a paper on the sex life of a cockroach. It was two pages long. I saw it," said Rep. Bill Heatly, D-Paducah.

"Somebody researched the sex life of the screwworm and discovered the greatest thing that ever happened to the livestock industry in Texas," replied Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls. He referred to the discovery that the destructive screwworm fly can be controlled by sterilizing males.

The board said the state should spend $382.6 million from general tax funds over 1982-83 to raise pensions for retired teachers and state employees.

The board's staff proposed a 10 percent increase, costing $37.6 million, on Sept. 1, 1981, for state employees who retired before Sept. 1, 1979.

Former AP president dead at 89

MONTECITO, Calif. (AP) — Former Associated Press President Robert McLean will be buried in his native Philadelphia where he began his newspaper career 67 years ago, a family spokesman said Saturday.

He said a memorial service would be held in Santa Barbara, but other arrangements still were incomplete. McLean, who died Friday of congestive heart failure at his home, was 89.

His wife, Clare, was at his side, said his nephew, Stuart Taylor, publisher and editor of the Santa Barbara News-Press. McLean bought the Santa Barbara paper in 1964 and was its chairman.

Keith Fuller, president and general manager of the AP, said on learning of McLean's death: "Major McLean's name and reputation were synonymous with integrity in journalism. He belonged to that breed of untouchables that was an inspiration to us all."

An antler is more than an antler to any deer

NATIONAL WILDLIFE FEDERATION—They may look like excess baggage, but nature has adorned most male deer with antlers for some very good reasons. They're handy as weapons in the mating season, serve as "air conditioners" in hot weather and provide nourishment for other animals after they're shed.

Antlers begin to grow in early spring, starting as soft, swollen pads on the skull, and lengthening into club-like structures, the National Wildlife Federation (NWF) monthly publication reports.

While growing, antlers are covered with a soft brown-haired skin called "velvet." Right under this skin are many tiny blood vessels that carry food and minerals to the growing antlers.

While the antlers are in velvet, they can be hurt very easily. A male deer in velvet is careful to jump out of the way of low-hanging branches. If an antler is knocked against a tree during the velvet stage, it will bleed.

Within four and a half months or so, the antlers are full-sized. On the moose, full-sized can mean more than seven feet wide from tip to tip, and a weight of more than 45 pounds, according to the NWF report.

They attain these impressive proportions in just three to four months, making them the fastest growing tissue known.

During mating, or rutting season, a buck uses his antlers to fight other males. With a quick lunge one male will attack a rival, head on, and lock antlers. After a few minutes of shoving and pushing, during which pieces of antler may be broken, the weaker male will usually retreat, leaving the victor to mate with the female deer in his territory.

Heavy as they are, antlers are helpful during hot weather. "During the summer when a buck's antlers are growing, they act as an air conditioner to help get rid of extra body heat."

At full size antlers harden beneath their velvet and the blood supply stops. The dead and dry velvet peels off in strips, aided by the buck's vigorous rubbing against trees and bushes. The antlers are now bone-hard, with furrowed bases and pointed tines, ready for the challenges of the rutting season.

When the mating is over, the antlers suddenly drop from the buck's head, leaving only a pair of bony bases from which next year's set will grow.

"This cycle is the same with all of the more than 50 kinds of deer in the world except the Himalayan musk deer, which have long curved teeth to protect them from their enemies, and the Chinese water deer, which have long, sharp tusks. The female caribou and reindeer are the only female deer that grow antlers."

Shed antlers no longer serve the deer, but they are a welcome sight to other forest dwellers. Because they are made of calcium, salt, and other minerals important in the diet of many animals, such creatures as mice, chipmunks, squirrels, and porcupines gnaw away at them. What's left decays and is enriching addition to the soil, so even plants and trees benefit from antlers.

Bus skids on icy road

SKYKOMISH, Wash. (AP)—A chartered Greyhound bus heading for a Christmas pageant in the Cascade Mountains skidded off an icy highway and flipped in the air before landing on its wheels 50 feet down an embankment Saturday, officials said. Remarkably, no one was killed, they said, but more than a dozen people were injured.

There were 40 people aboard when the bus went out of control two miles west of Skykomish shortly before 10 a.m., officials said.

Vicki Donovan, spokeswoman for Valley General Hospital in Monroe, said her facility received 23 patients and admitted six.

I have become aware of the increasing number of strays and household pets with unwanted pregnancies and subsequent surplus of puppies and kittens. Many people would like to have their pets neutered, but feel they can not afford the increasingly higher cost of veterinary care.

If I can provide a service to our community at a lower cost and if the public will take advantage of it, I feel that it will benefit the general public and will help secure the health of our pets. # Nancy Reagan joins best-dressed

PARIS (AP)—Nancy Reagan headed the 1980 list of the world's 10 most elegantly dressed women, announced by the French and Italian couture syndicates — winning a prize called "The Best."

The wife of President-elect Ronald Reagan was not at the award ceremony here Friday night to receive her prize — a gold Bulgari watch. Neither was King Hassan II of Morocco, who topped the list for men. The annual "Best" list originated in Italy five years ago. This year, it was announced in Paris at a party in an 18-century town house in the historic Marais district.

The top women this year, after Mrs. Reagan: French actress Francoise Fabian; American model Margaux Hemingway; Italian actress Elsa Martinelli; Manuela Papatakis, daughter of French actress Anouk Aimee; Mexican Maria Reyero; French Vicomtesse Jacqueline de Ribes; French designer Sonia Rykiel; Argentine businesswoman Liu Terracini and French ballerina Ghislaine Thiersmar.

The male list, after King Hassan II: French actor Jean-Pierre Aumont; Italian designer Enrico Coveri; French designer Hubert de Givenchy; Italian designer Pino Lancellotti; French designer Claude Montana; Frenchman Alexis de Rede; French banker Guy de Rothschild; Italian designer Carlo Tivoli and Italian actor Raf Vallone.

NAMES IN THE NEWS

NEW YORK (AP)—Friends of the National Review celebrated the conservative journal's 25th anniversary, but because of the whimsy of editor William F. Buckley Jr., President-elect Ronald Reagan missed the bash.

Buckley said Reagan had promised last spring to attend the anniversary dinner, but had asked to be sent a reminder.

Buckley dutifully sent a telegram to Reagan telling him of the Friday night party, but he signed it, "Cinderella."

That bit of whimsy caused Reagan's aides to route the telegram to either the wastebasket or security people — it wasn't clear which — instead of to the president-elect's scheduling office. By the time the mixup was discovered, Reagan was already booked for the night.

OLDSMAR, Fla. (AP)—George Steinbrenner doesn't just have problems with baseball managers — he has run-ins with race track bosses, too.

Steinbrenner's latest sporting controversy arose when a foulup with the racing program left bettors wondering which horse was which as post time neared for the season's inaugural race at his Tampa Bay Downs.

Eddie McKinsey, who had been lured away from Hialeah Race Track to be general manager of Tampa Bay Downs, resigned when he saw how angry Steinbrenner was with a late delivery of the programs that caused post time to be delayed 15 minutes Thursday. Rather than being sold, the programs were given away with apologies.

Steinbrenner, a millionaire shipping magnate who has gone through seven managers in eight seasons with his New York Yankees, was asked if he fired McKinsey.

"I didn't have to," he replied.

CALCUTTA, India (AP)—Britain's Prince Charles closed out his 12-day visit to India by meeting Saturday with Mother Teresa, Calcutta's "saint of the gutters."

"I told him that I cannot do what he can do and he cannot do what I can do, but the two of us together can do something beautiful for God," Mother Teresa told reporters after the heir to the British throne left her home for abandoned and malnourished children.

"We did not talk of the poor," added the 1979 winner of the Nobel Peace Prize. She also runs two homes for the dying in Calcutta.

Earlier, the 32-year-old prince toured the Victoria Memorial, the huge museum-monument to his great-great-grandmother, Queen Victoria.

Charles left Calcutta for the Himalayan kingdom of Nepal. He planned to visit camps housing the famed Gurkha soldiers before making a four-day trek in the rugged Himalayan mountains.

He is scheduled to return home Dec. 13.

Bald eagles return to lake

LAKE MEREDITH—Around the middle of November, bald eagles begin arriving on Lake Meredith and other Texas lakes. These majestic birds spend the coldest part of the winter here and then depart in early spring to nest in the northern United States and Canada.

"Only a few people who live and work near Texas lakes are aware of the rather large eagle population that spends the winter here," says Robert Benson, Director for the Texas Center for the Advancement of Science and Technology (TCAST). Benson reports that last year during the Second Annual Midwinter Bald Eagle Survey 12,199 eagles were counted in the lower 48 states. In Texas there were 491 and the count on Lake Meredith was 56.

The eagle survey is done mostly by light plane and Benson believes that the survey teams count at least 85 percent of the eagles spending the winter on the lakes. "Bald eagles feed on fish and waterfowl," Benson says. "You almost never find them far from water."

Besides supporting this important field work, Benson says TCAST feels a strong responsibility to inform the public about the plight of our national bird. "It's hard to believe that in 1980 anyone could be so ill informed as to make light of shooting eagles. There are severe penalties for killing these beautiful birds and there is absolutely no justification for it," he says. "We think the first priority is to let the public know the eagles are here."

Benson says that the eagles are fairly easy to identify. Bald eagles are very large hawk-like birds that can have wing spans of 7 1/2 feet. They can be seen perched on dead limbs or in the tops of tall pine trees around the lakes. The snow-white head and tail are a sure mark of the adults, but the immatures are brown with irregular white patches over their bodies. The young eagles don't have the white head until they are four years old. Benson explains that no one is likely to mistake the adults but that the immatures can be mistaken for large hawks.

"One of the things we are going to try to do this year is to enlist the aid of the public in counting the eagles," says Benson. "Last year we had the help of a few small groups, but it would be very helpful if the people who live around or visit the lakes would report sightings. If you spot an eagle, please jot down the date, time, whether it's adult or immature, and as closely as possible, the geographical coordinates." The survey period is between January 2nd and 18th.

Benson says the public can also help by becoming a member of TCAST. The center not only supports the eagle survey, but supports projects in fields like physics, computer technology, and energy research. The membership fee is $10.00 and, as a member, you receive the TCAST newsletter as well as a copy of the final report on the 1981 Midwinter Bald Eagle Survey.

"Texas is the only state in the union that does not grant state funds for this eagle survey," Benson says. "We really need the support of the public through memberships this year so that Texas can make a respectable showing."

TCAST is a non-profit Texas corporation. Reports of sightings and membership fees should be sent to: TCAST, Box 10111, College Station, Tx. 77840.

Insurance available again

People who failed to sign up for medical insurance under Medicare, or who once had this protection but dropped it, will have a chance to obtain medical insurance during the 1981 general enrollment period, January through March, Howard L. Weatherly, social security manager in Pampa, said recently.

People who sign up during a general enrollment period may pay a higher premium. This is because the premium is increased by 10 percent for each full year a person could have had this protection but did not.

More information about the medical insurance general enrollment period can be obtained at the Pampa social security office located at 125 S. Gillespie. The telephone number is 669-3381 (area code 806). The toll free number is 1-800-391-1603.

Tinkerers losing to technology tyranny

By ROBERT LOCKE
AP Science Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A few decades ago, Earl Alluisi got his first car. Spurred by necessity and curiosity, he regularly took that old car apart, put it back together and somehow kept it running for years.

"There wasn't anything about that 1934 Ford that I didn't know and couldn't fix," Alluisi says. Now he drives a shiny, late-model car. "but when I look under the hood, there's not a darn thing I can do by myself."

So it goes throughout much of modern life. Technology, from computers to anti-smog devices, is becoming ever more complex — too complex for most backyard tinkerers and, many fear, too complex for man to control.

And as our machines grow more sophisticated, many once-cherished skills are falling victim to the cold efficiency of plastic, steel and printed circuits.

"I think we've lost something that at least those of us who practiced it are going to miss," says Alluisi, a psychologist from Virginia's Old Dominion College who's on loan as chief scientist of the U.S. Air Force Human Resources Laboratories.

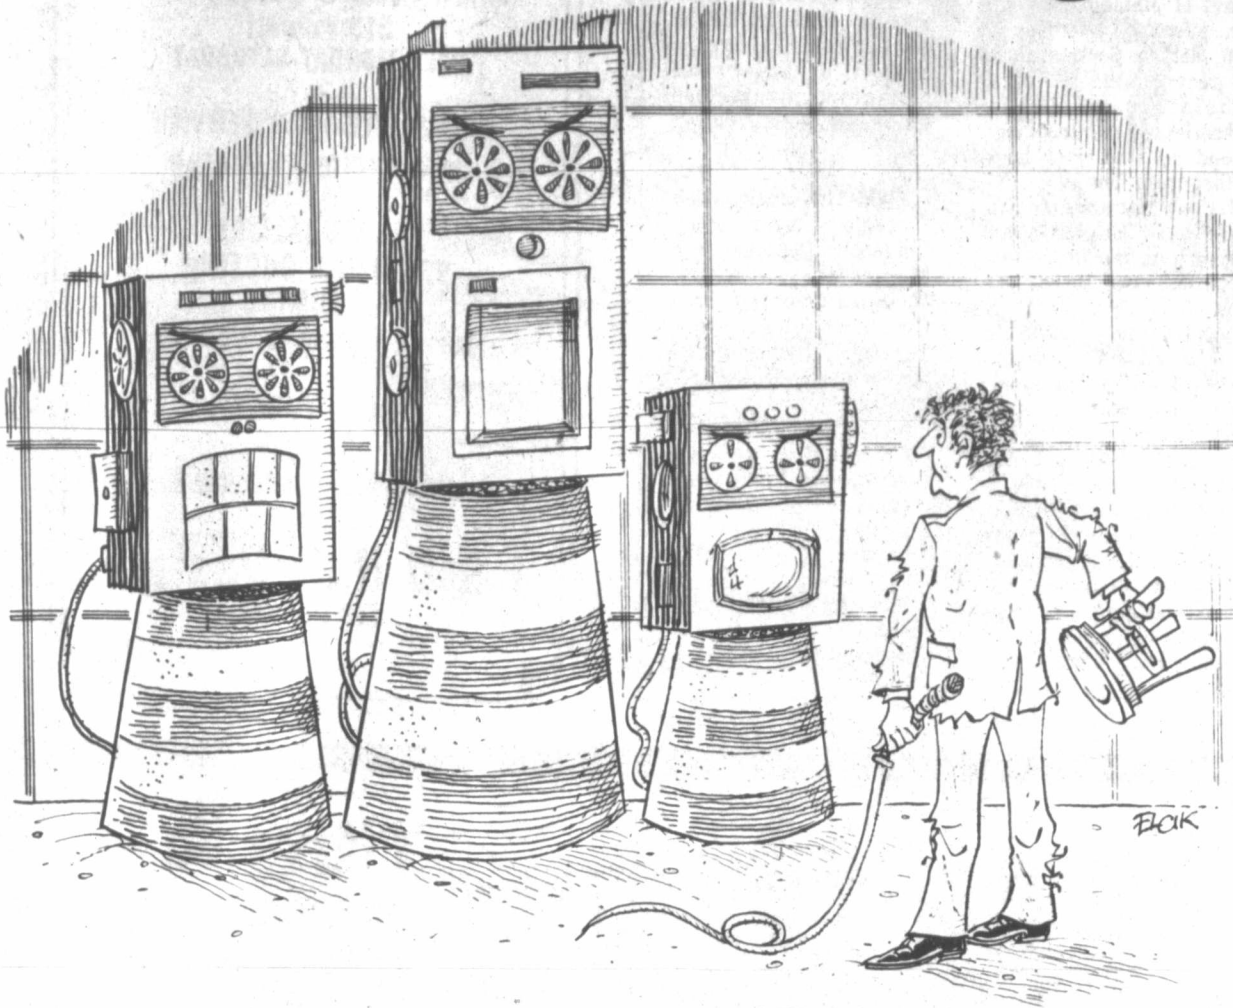

He says part of being human seems to include a reverence for personal craftsmanship and "we ought to protect that, even if the only way we can preserve it is as hobbies."

Alluisi is the new chairman of the Human Factors Society, an organization of 2,300 social scientists, engineers and others trying to blend humans and machines into a productive and reliable partnership.

The goal of such specialists, Alluisi says, is to keep humanity in technology — to insure that machines remain useful servants rather than tyrannical adversaries.

Alluisi's predecessor, engineer Harry L. Snyder of Virginia Polytechnic Institute, says that since the pace of technological innovation exploded after World War II, "We have often asked, 'Is this a technology that is possible?' or 'Is this a technology that will sell?' But we haven't asked, 'Is this a technology that is good for society?'"

He says the technological era is not yet out of control and "I'm optimistic that we can do some good things. But we truly need more people who are sensitive to the human issues."

Laboratory animals liberated by zealots

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — An organization called the International Animal Liberation Group has taken responsibility for an overnight raid on a university psychology lab in which 61 rats and gerbils were given their freedom.

An anonymous caller to an area radio station on Friday said the raid was intended as a protest against cruelty to animals in scientific experiments. But the scientist who was working with the rats and gerbils said the raid meant death for the animals rather than liberation because they can't survive outside the laboratory.

Professor Paschal Strong, a specialist in neuro-psychology at the University of South Florida, said he arrived at his laboratory on Friday to find empty, open cages and 31 rats and 30 Mongolian gerbils missing.

"Somehow some people got into the laboratory overnight," Strong said. "They just took them and let them go," he said. Strong said the building was locked, but not the laboratory itself because students often worked there at night.

The anonymous telephone caller told radio station WLCY that an organization called the International Animal Liberation Group was responsible for the incident. The caller said the raid was undertaken to dramatize the group's belief that such experimental work constitutes cruelty to animals.

Spokesmen for the Tampa Police and the Hillsborough County Sheriff's Department said they had never heard of the animal liberation group.

Strong said that if preventing cruelty was the group's aim, it had failed.

"Essentially, they killed these animals more effectively than I could have," Strong said.

He explained that many of the animals had parts of their brain removed in research, affecting their ability to cope with life outside the laboratory.

"It's four months of research down the tube, a year-long setback and some 5,000 to 6,000 man-hours lost," Strong said. "I'm really depressed and angry."

The rats were part of an experiment on a brain system that controls some types of learning.

"We had raised our own stock, done the surgery, the pre-training and had moved into the final phase. We were just to the point where we were starting to collect results," Strong said.

The gerbils had inherited epilepsy and were being used for research on that disorder, he said.

One rat was found stumbling along campus grounds Friday by a student, Strong said. But even if all the creatures were found the experiment couldn't be saved, because researchers wouldn't be able to tell which rat was which and which gerbil was which. Only the cages differentiated them.

TV station called about killings

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — A man who telephoned police to claim responsibility for the slayings of seven hikers has now contacted a San Francisco television station, authorities said Saturday.

A spokesman for KRON said a man claiming to be the killer phoned the station four times in a three-hour period Friday beginning around 7 p.m.

"I'm trying to get some help, OK? But they just want to lock me up," the caller said in a tape broadcast Friday night. Police have appealed to the killer to contact them for psychological treatment.

KRON assignment editor George Ramirez said Marin County officials confirmed that the man was the same who called a police hotline three times within 25 minutes Thursday night to say he was the murderer in Marin County, an affluent suburb, just north of the Golden Gate Bridge.

"They were able to identify him through a clue he gave them that he also gave us," Ramirez said, adding that he could not divulge the clue. "We played the tape for them, and they also said the voice was the same."

Since August 1979, three hikers have been slain on Mount Tamalpais and four people have been killed at Point Reyes National Seashore. The bodies of three women and a man, all hikers, were found last week in the National Park preserve about 25 miles north of San Francisco.

Transit shutdown cripples Boston

BOSTON (AP) — The city struggled Saturday through its first day of a transit shutdown that cut off rail and bus service to 200,000 weekend riders and sent holiday sales plummeting. A legislative group reached a compromise that could get the system running again by Sunday.

Some 100 National Guardsmen, called up by Gov. Edward J. King, patrolled train yards as officials in the suburbs planned for getting workers into the city Monday if the system was still shut down.

The 1,500 buses, trains and subway cars run by the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority stopped at midnight Friday when the Legislature was unable to meet a court deadline for additional funding to keep the nation's fifth largest transit system afloat.

Rep. John J. Finnegan, co-chairman of the legislative conference committee, said early Saturday that a compromise had been reached between conflicting House and Senate plans to supply the MBTA with the $41 million needed to make it through the end of the year.

Finnegan said a vote on the plan was scheduled for late Saturday.

MBTA spokesman Paul DiNatale said the transit system could resume full operation within six hours of final approval of a bailout plan.

Downtown merchants estimated they could lose $6 million daily in revenue from the shutdown. Several shopkeepers, eyeing empty stores, listened to the radio Saturday for news of a settlement.

Bright and brief

LOLLIPOP WITH PIZZAZZ
VALPARAISO, Ind. (AP) — Alvin Kreske Jr. says he's come up with a lollipop with real pizzazz — but it's off limits to children and costs $12. Kreske's lollipops are filled with liquor.

The flavors are blackberry brandy, peach brandy and peppermint schnapps. "But the possible flavors are limitless," he says.

Kreske, 35, has obtained a patent for the lollipop and wants to sell his license to a candy manufacturer. He thinks mass production could reduce the retail cost to 50 or 60 cents each.

A liquor lollipop is a practical product for any candy maker, he says. "You could use it as an after-dinner treat, while playing pool, or as a basic conversation piece," he said.

Of course, he notes, his lollipop would have to be sold in liquor stores.

Kreske says the lollipop consists of a candy shell around a plastic bubble containing liquor. When the lollipop is put in the mouth, the bubble expands until it breaks and the liquor is released. After the lollipop is consumed, the bubble is thrown away with the stick.

RED HANDED BURGLAR GOES AWAY CLEAN

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Police said the burglar was caught rehanding, but he did go away clean.

Officer Larry Triplett said Lawrence Miller, 34, "had made himself completely at home in the victim's residence and was casually bathing in the bathtub when he was apprehended" Friday night.

Triplett said that after Miller was arrested, the victim offered the suspect a towel but the police officer rejected the towel "and the intruder sort of drip-dried en route to the county jail."

School centers on individual

By DEAN GOLEMBESKI
Associated Press Writer

WESTBROOK, Conn. (AP) — Despite a $12,650 annual tuition that would make most universities blanch, tiny Oxford Academy is no longer listed in the Guinness Book of World Records as the "World's Most Expensive School."

But the prep school's headmaster shrugs off loss of the "title," saying Oxford's unique program still puts each student in a class by himself, literally.

"What we have that no one else has is one-to-one teaching," said Jonathan Woodhall, explaining that Oxford's one-student classrooms for boys with "academic deficiencies" are not duplicated anywhere in the world.

The distinction of being the world's most expensive school, according to Guinness, now belongs to L'Institut Le Rosey in Rolle, Switzerland, which charges about $15,000 for a 12-month academic year.

Oxford charges each of its 40 boys $12,650 for eight months, or about $1,581 a month. Costs at the Swiss school would break down to about $1,250 a month.

The school is rather dreary-looking considering its tuition and clientele. The entire campus consists of three one-story brick buildings tucked on a two-acre lot in a residential neighborhood overlooking Long Island Sound. A soccer field behind one of the buildings is all that distinguishes the school from a motel.

Nevertheless, this year's students come from all over the United States, as well as China, Japan, Nigeria, Iran, West Germany and Mexico, Woodhall said. And there is a waiting list.

Oxford calls its teaching program the Oxford Method of Individualized Education. It puts each student on a program that has been tailored to meet his individual needs.

Tax questions answered

AUSTIN — State Comptroller Bob Bullock announced he is sending a representative from his Amarillo office to Pampa on Dec. 17, to assist local taxpayers and answer questions about state taxes.

Bullock said Enforcement Officer J.D. Caproni will meet with local taxpayers at the Gray County Courthouse from 2 p.m. - 4 p.m.

"If Pampa and area merchants, or anyone else for that matter, have any questions about state taxes or need help in preparing tax forms, Caproni will be there to assist them," Bullock said.

"We're trying to cut the red tape in this office and we believe these face-to-face sessions with taxpayers help do just that," Bullock added.

Bullock reminded those taxpayers who are unable to meet with his representative on Dec. 17, they can still get their questions answered quickly by calling his TOLL-FREE tax information number in Austin. That number is 1-800-252-5555.

The Amarillo office, headed by Claudia Stravato, serves the 21 counties of the Texas Panhandle.

WT professor speaks today

The Carson County Square House Museum has re-scheduled the November 19 lecture, "Women Between the Wars," to 3 p.m. today in the War Memorial Building on Main Street, Panhandle. The lecture is open to the public and free admission.

Featured speaker will be Mrs. Elizabeth Davidson, assistant professor of History at West Texas State University and instructor of women's study courses.

Mrs. Davidson will discuss the 19th amendment, the era of the 20's, the Great Depression and World War II and the effect each of these had on women, at home, in the work force and in politics.

The lecture series is made possible by matching grants from the National Endowment for the Humanities and the Texas Commission for the Humanities.

The Carson County Square House Museum is located at 5th and Elsie Streets, Panhandle, and is open 9:00 - 5:30 Monday through Saturday, 1:30 - 5:30 Sunday. There is no charge for admission.

Ledbetter is chairman-elect

Elaire W. Ledbetter has been elected Chairman - elect of the Education Section of the American Association for the Advancement of Science (AAAS).

AAAS is the world's largest federation of scientific societies. It was organized in 1848 and is now composed of 21 sections which cover all the scientific disciplines.

Despite its size and complexity, members may take a strong personal part in the affairs of the Association by enrolling in the section which serves their interest.

The affairs of each section are managed by a section committee composed of the Retiring Chairman, Chairman, Chairman - elect and Secretary.

Mrs. Ledbetter will assume her official duties at the close of the annual meeting in Toronto, Canada, on January 8, 1981.

A renowned chemistry teacher, Mrs. Ledbetter received her Bachelor of Science degree from the University of Oklahoma, her Master of Education degree from North State University and special studies at University of California, University of Arizona and the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Science. She has taught science in Pampa since 1951 and has received numerous awards, including:

1965. Outstanding Chemistry Teacher in Texas.

1966 Texas Teacher of the year and National Teacher Honor Roll.

1967 Recipient of the James B.

Conant Award by the American Chemical Society.

1969 Star Teacher Award of the National Science Teachers and Pampa's Woman of the Year.

Angel of Bataan, Corregidor putters in petunias

By TAD BARTIMUS
Associated Press Writer
TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — To her neighbors, she is Dorothy Arnold. A gray-haired retired maternally room nurse who likes to putter with petunias, play cards occasionally, and enjoy her grown children.

But 35 years ago Dorothy Arnold was Dorothy Scholl. She was hailed as a heroine of the free world, showered with medals and honors in a brief burst of glory.

The clerk at the dry cleaners and the girl at the grocery store don't know that today's Dorothy Arnold was yesterday's "Angel of Bataan and Corregidor." As Dorothy Scholl, she was one of 67 Army nurses who waved goodbye to Gen. Douglas MacArthur and stayed behind in the Philippines to care for the wounded as Japanese forces tightened the noose around the Pacific in the early days of World War II.

That footnote in history happened two generations ago. Only old soldiers who haven't yet faded away now remember the women in white they passed in the jungle those decades ago.

But the Angels never forgot what they endured. This spring they, too, returned to Bataan and Corregidor.

Along with 51 other nurses, their relatives, and nearly 200 Army veterans, Mrs. Arnold and her daughter Carolyn and son-in-law Richard Torrence of Wetherford, Okla., flew to the Philippines by jumbo jet. Within a few hours, she'd gone back 39 years in time.

In August 1941 it took Army nurse Scholl, an unmarried 27, 19 days to cross the Pacific on a troop transport. By the time she'd docked in the Philippines, she was smitten with a soldier named Harold Arnold who also was on the ship.

In the next five months they saw a lot of one another when Dorothy got away from Sternberg Hospital and Harold escaped his duties on Bataan for a few hours.

But on Dec. 8, leisurely dinner at the posh Army-Navy Club and evening strolls through gardenia-scented Manila came to a thundering end for the adventurous young nurse from Independence, Mo.

On Christmas Eve the nurses were evacuated from Manila to Bataan. Casualties poured into field hospitals at Limay and Cabacben. Surgeons operated in huts and under trees as the bombs fell. Nurses dug foxholes, dodged snakes flushed out of the jungle by battles, and rigged up pressure-pumped Bunsen burners to fuel pressure cookers that were the only means of sterilizing operating instruments. The Japanese weren't the only enemies. The young women wearing surplus World War I helmets also fought heat, flies, dust and monkeys that attacked them for the dwindling food supplies.

On April 9 the nurses were ordered to withdraw to Corregidor.

They reached Corregidor at dawn. By noon, Bataan had surrendered. Harold Arnold was still there. The Death March that would weaken but not kill him was soon to begin.

"But then we knew we were completely cut off, with no way of getting any help," says Mrs. Arnold, her voice calm and cool after all those years. "We set about coping as best we could. There was little food, almost no medicine, and bad water. Bloody dressings had to be reused. We were under constant bombardment and went days without ever seeing sunlight or smelling fresh air."

The Japanese arrived on May 6.

They kept the women and wounded in the tunnel until June 25, then brought them to topside buildings for four days.

"The night before they shipped us out to Manila, they separated us from the boys," says Mrs. Arnold. "We called them 'our boys' because most of us nurses were in our late 20s or early 30s, and the wounded were mostly kids. They put the boys on ships and left them there alone, in the heat and the dark without food or water, all night. We could hear them crying for help. It was the worst night during the whole experience."

"Then, when we got to Manila, they separated us again and sent the boys to a prisoner of war camp where many of them died. They had it much worse than we did. We went to Santa Tomas."

Casual dealing gets ABC in hot water

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — In the world of Hollywood business, millions are often committed by memos of agreement, handshakes and lots of faith — even as the cameras roll and before any contracts are drawn up.

Los Angeles County District Attorney Joseph Van de Kamp criticized such practices last week as "shoddy," but industry spokesmen defend them as "necessary" to the "unique" business of entertainment.

Van de Kamp spoke after he announced that a long investigation did not turn up evidence Spelling-Goldberg Productions tried to defraud its partners on the ABC-TV series "Charlie's Angels."

A former ABC contracts attorney, citing verbal agreements and payments without adequate authorization, had accused the producers of diverting up to $1 million in payments intended for "Angels" to another Spelling-Goldberg series, "Starsky & Hutch."

"The investigation raised serious questions of impropriety which have been partially resolved," said Van de Kamp. He said Spelling-Goldberg and ABC brought the "shady dealings" charges on themselves.

"When you deal in large sums of moneys in an almost casual way with little documentation or record-keeping to detail major decisions," he said, "it seems almost inevitable that, in the least, misunderstandings will occur, or suspicions will be aroused."

Attorney Tom Pollock, whose firm represents such stars as Sylvester Stallone and George Lucas, said "casual" practices were the nature of the industry.

"This is a business where some agent brings a script and a director and star to a studio on Friday and the studio says, yes, they want to start shooting two weeks later," Pollock said. "So the money has to start flowing, you have to go immediately, there's no time to plan."

"There's just so many deals (being) talked about that there is no way to get everything signed until the movie goes forward," he said. "It is not really in anybody's interest to have that, yet that's how the industry functions. It functions a lot on handshakes."

"Those are really the shoddy business practices that I think are being referred to, and I don't see it as shoddy. I see it as necessary by this industry. It is unique to this business."

The allegations against Spelling-Goldberg by attorney Jennifer Martin said that so-called relief payments, or increases in licensing fees because of cost overruns, to "Starsky" for 1976-79, were really meant to defraud "Angels" husband-wife profit participants Natalie Wood and Robert Wagner and others.

The producers said the extra "Starsky" money was paid back through increased licensing fees ABC paid on the "Angels" show.

Pollock said a source of misunderstanding in film and TV projects is that the definition of "profits" favors the studios and networks.

Gordon Stulberg, chief operating officer of Polygram Pictures and a former president of 20th Century-Fox, said the studios are honest but calculating. Unless a star has the clout to demand a percentage of the gross deal, he says, the star in his haste to strike a deal at any cost, will get the studio's standard definition of profits.

WASHINGTON BRIEFS

FIRST SELECTIVE SUMMIT MEETING SET
WASHINGTON (AP) — Former German Chancellor Willy Brandt says the first of a series of "selective summits" of leaders from industrial and developing nations is to take place next June in Mexico City.

Brandt told the ruling council of the Organization of American States the aim of these meetings is "to loosen up the rigid fronts on either side and point the way ahead in solving the social and economic challenge of our epoch."

As he arrived for a weekend conference here, the German leader said Latin America "has a substantial role to play in the North-South dialogue for while it is still a developing area it has reached a certain measure of industrialization."

The Texas Democrat said there is evidence that drug abuse is increasing in the state, resembling the 1970 situation that was followed by a crackdown on the part of the DEA.

In an interview prepared for broadcast on Texas television stations, Bentsen said drug-related arrests and the number of DEA agents in the state are declining at the same time that more drugs are appearing on the streets.

SCABIES OUTBREAK RECORDED
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says there's an outbreak of scabies in cattle on the Navajo Indian reservation in northwestern New Mexico.

The tribe officials estimate that 10,000 to 15,000 cattle in herds belonging to as many as 400 owners may be involved.

Scabies is caused by tiny mites and the disease is cured by dipping infected cattle twice in pesticide. Exposed animals are dipped in the solution once to prevent infection.

The affected herds will be placed under quarantine until the treatment is successful.

Scabies does not affect the meat of infested cattle. But the intense itching causes weight loss and therefore heavy economic losses for cattle producers.

MEDICARE BENEFIT AREA INCREASES
WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation to include an anti-pneumonia vaccine as a Medicare benefit has been passed on voice vote by the House and sent to the Senate.

Coverage would be effective for services furnished on or after July 1, 1981. Medicare is a federal health program for older citizens.

Proponents said pneumonia vaccine shots cost about $11 a person. They said the program would pay for itself over the years by preventing pneumonia in those covered by Medicare.

The Congressional Budget Office estimates the vaccine program will cost $91 million over five years.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

ROCK FAN RAMPAGE
MALDEN, Mass. (AP) — Hundreds of young people rampaged early Saturday during a midnight showing of a film starring the rock group Led Zeppelin, destroying seats and slashing the movie screen.

"They just went wacky," said Police Sgt. John McCallan. "They wanted to raise some hell, and they sure did."

Four people were arrested on disorderly conduct charges after the showing of "The Song Remains the Same" at the Granada Theater, McCallan said. He said damage would come to several thousand dollars.

The rock group announced Thursday it was breaking up, but McCallan said it was not clear whether that news prompted the disturbance.

CREWMEN RESCUED
HONOLULU (AP) — A cargo vessel picked up all 28 crewmen from the sinking 662-foot Peruvian freighter Capirona on Saturday in the northwest Pacific Ocean, the Coast Guard said.

Lifeboats were used to transfer the crew to the 544-foot cargo vessel New Sulu Sea, which was alerted to the plight of the Capirona by a Coast Guard C-130 rescue plane, the Coast Guard said.

After making the rescue 400 miles northwest of Wake Island and about 650 miles southwest of Midway Island, the New Sulu Sea continued on its way to China, the spokesman said.

He said the Capirona was headed to Japan from Peru with a load of lead concentrate when it started sinking because of holes in its bow.

HYSTERIA BLAMED IN CHURCH INCIDENT
OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Finding no evidence of fumes at a church where 36 children and a teacher became ill, officials say the affliction may have been partly caused by mass hysteria.

The pupils of Our Lady of Lourdes grade school were bundled up against the morning cold Friday when they entered the hot church for Mass, officials said. One little boy fainted and officials say it was then that hysteria may have taken over.

The children and teacher complained of headaches, dizziness, nausea and stomach cramps, officials said. They were taken to hospitals.

Illegal drug deals prompt new requests

By SOLL SUSSMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen said Saturday that reports of increasing illegal drug traffic in Texas have prompted him to ask the Drug Enforcement Administration for a complete update.

The Texas Democrat said there is evidence that drug abuse is increasing in the state, resembling the 1970 situation that was followed by a crackdown on the part of the DEA.

In an interview prepared for broadcast over Texas television stations, Bentsen said drug-related arrests and the number of DEA agents in the state are declining at the same time that more drugs are appearing on the streets.

"So I have called on Peter Bensing, who heads the Drug Enforcement Administration, to give me a full and complete report immediately as to what he is going to do to try to turn this situation around, to help stop the increase in a substantial amount of drugs flowing into Texas and seeing our kids being subjected to the utilization of it," the senator said.

"I am concerned about reports I have received that there has been an alarming increase in the amount and strength of drugs, particularly brown heroin, coming into Texas from Mexico and around the world," Bentsen wrote in his letter to Bensing.

"We must take positive action to stop these illegal drugs from reaching the streets of American cities," Bentsen wrote.

Schoolboy football roundup

By ALAN SAYRE
Associated Press Writer

Huntsville then attempted an onside kick, which rolled slowly toward the 50-yard line and, when it nearly stopped, barely crossed the midfield stripe and was recovered by Huntsville's Larry King.

On a fourth-and-18 play with a minute remaining, Reynolds found Bryant wide open in the end zone on a 41-yard TD pass that stunned the crowd of 18,000 and knocked off Bay City, which had made the state semifinals for the third straight year.

The comeback sets up a 4A championship match between Huntsville and the winner of Saturday afternoon's clash between Lubbock Estacado and Paris at Wichita Falls.

Quarterback Alan Kassen scored the tying touchdown on a 5-yard run in the third quarter for Valley View.

Trailing 10-0 with less than five minutes to play, the Huntsville quarterback completed six passes on a 75-yard drive that ended on a 3-yard scoring strike to Bryant with 2:16 to play.

Huntsville then attempted an onside kick, which rolled slowly toward the 50-yard line and, when it nearly stopped, barely crossed the midfield stripe and was recovered by Huntsville's Larry King.

Holmes tangles with the winner of Saturday's quarterfinal clash in the Astrodome between Port Arthur Jefferson and Houston Stratford.

Other quarterfinal games Saturday included the important Highland Park-Plano war at Texas Stadium in Irving and a matchup between Odessa Permian and Amarillo in Lubbock.

Essie Woodard and Edward Gardner rushed for crucial second-half touchdowns and Stamford held off a last-second Littlefield drive to post a 26-18 Class 3A quarterfinal victory Friday night.

Valley View will meet Rankin, a 19-8 winner over Valley, for the Class A state championship.

Rankin's Dennis Black raced for 187 yards, including a 30-yard touchdown, and quarterback Bo Rose tossed a 26-yard scoring pass to Naldo Esparza.

In a 5A quarterfinal battle, Keith Lawson rushed for three touchdowns to lead San Antonio Holmes to a 23-14 win over Alice at Austin's Memorial Stadium.

Harper, a sophomore helping to fill in for the injured Marcus Allen, put the Trojans ahead to stay when he raced 6 yards for a touchdown with 8:23 remaining in the second period. The defeat almost certainly ended Notre Dame's hopes for a national championship as the Irish fell to 9-1-1.

Notre Dame meets top-ranked Georgia in the Sugar Bowl Jan. 1.

Harper's second touchdown came on a 10-yard jaunt that climaxed a 70-yard drive with 1:09 remaining in the game.

The nationally televised contest played before a crowd of 82,663 at the Los Angeles Coliseum marked the final regular-season game as Irish coach Dan Devine, who announced earlier he was retiring at the end of the campaign.

Hipp added a 22-yard field goal later in the second quarter to give Southern Cal, which finished its season with an 8-2-1 record and

Foul line dooms Harvesters in 52-49 setback to Altus

The foul line. It has been a curse or a blessing to many a team.

Friday night here, the charity stripe threw a devastating hex on the Pampa Harvesters, who dropped a 52-49 thriller to the Altus, (Okla.) Bulldogs. On the other hand, Altus found good fortune at the line.

Altus' cat-quick zone defense did force the Harvesters into 28 turnovers, but it was errant foul shots in the fourth quarter that created Pampa's first loss after four consecutive victories.

The Bulldogs had 16 turnovers of their own which helped Pampa get back into the fray after trailing by 14 points in the first half.

Behind by three, 37-34, after three quarters, Charles Nelson's jumper tied the score at 39-all with six minutes to go.

Buckets by Dennis Neal and Carl West put Altus up, 43-39, before going into its delay game at the three-minute mark.

Mike Nelson's rebound of teammate Terry Faggins' missed shot made it 50-49, Altus' favor, with 27 seconds left.

Altus guard Ronnie Childers was fouled by Faggins and sank two foul shots to salt the game away.

While Altus feasted, Pampa starved, from the foul line in the fourth period. The Bulldogs hit six of their last seven shots and the Harvesters missed three of their final four attempts.

Pampa downed only two of nine free shots the second half, finishing seven of 16 for the game. Altus canned 12 of 19 freebies for the night.

Just how important the foul line proved to be in the winning margin is projected in the lopsided field goal statistics.

Pampa drilled in 55 percent (21-39) of its shots while Altus shot a dismal 35.5 percent on 20 of 57 shots.

Pampa never led, but tied the score at 29-all for the first time early in the third quarter on Faggins' jumper.

Altus, now 4-0, threatened to make it a runaway by jumping ahead, 23-9, in the second quarter, but Pampa outscored the visitors, 18-6, including eight consecutive points, to draw within two, 29-27, at halftime.

Charles Nelson was the only double-digit scorer for Pampa with 21 points. The 6-2 junior hit 10 of 16 foul shots and was one of one from the foul line.

Kirt Crouch and Jimmy Barker added six points apiece, followed by Mike Nelson and Ray Condo, four apiece; Ed Guerra and Jay Henson, one apiece. Charles Nelson pulled off eight rebounds while Mike Nelson had five.

West and Richard Fields paced Altus with 14 points. Childers followed with 10.

The Pampa Shockers also fall by a three-point deficit, 42-39, to Altus JV in the preliminary game.

Grady Norris and Coyle Winborn had 14 and 12 points respectively for the Pampa JV.

Pampa took the lead, 39-38, on Winborn's bucket with 1:34 to go, but failed to score again while Altus tallied the next four points.

The Shockers were outscored, 12-0, in the third quarter.

Pampa plays Clovis, New Mexico there Monday night in a re-scheduled game.

Tar Heels nudge Duke, 78-76

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The North Carolina Tar Heels have been all-winning — but not getting any high grades from Coach Dean Smith.

"I think we need a little work," Smith said after his 10th-ranked basketball team squeezed by Duke 78-76 in the Big Four tourney at Greensboro, N.C., Friday night.

Smith was particularly unhappy with his team's execution of the Four Corners offense won the Great Alaska Shootout tournament in a field studded with Top 20 teams, and have taken their first five games.

North Carolina's victory put them into tonight's Big Four finals against Wake Forest, which defeated North Carolina State 87-57 in the other first-round game, 96-73 and No. 18 Syracuse whipped Kent State 81-65 in the first round of the Carrier Classic at Syracuse; 12th-ranked Iowa nipped Cincinnati 69-64 and Arizona State stopped Montana State 92-71 in the Fiesta Classic at Tempe, Ariz., and No. 17 Missouri stopped West Texas State 88-70 and Lamar tripped Pitt 67-65 in the Show-Me Classic in Columbia, Mo.

Freshman Matt Doherty hit a crucial free throw with 12 seconds left to help the Tar Heels pull out their victory over Duke. James Worthy led North Carolina with 26 points, while Kenny Dennard paced Duke with 18.

"The victory meant a great deal and it had to be a disappointing loss for Duke," said Smith. "But if you don't like this sort of game, you ought not to coach."

Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski was disappointed, but only that Vince Taylor's shot with four seconds left did not fall and Dennard was called for offensive goaltending trying to tap it in.

"It was a shot that I wouldn't mind having," Krzyzewski said of Taylor's short jump shot. "But we could have had a little more patience. But we cannot do anything about what's in the past."

Alvis Rogers scored 15 points in the night's second game to pace Wake Forest's easy victory over North Carolina State. The Deacons had a 50-38 lead at the half and later built on their advantage as Coach Carl Tacy freely substituted in the final 10 minutes.

Greg Manning scored 29 points as Maryland overcame a shaky start and beat Wagner. The Terps led 41-32 at the half and shut out Wagner in the first four minutes of the second half to pull away.

Leo Rautins, Dan Schayes and Marty Headd each scored 12 points and Eddie Moss played a sparkling defensive game to lead Syracuse past Kent State. Robert Kitchens' 18 points led the losers.

Eagles favored over Falcons

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Give the Atlanta Falcons an inch and they'll take a yard — or as many yards as they need to win.

The Falcons are this year's Cinderella team with seven straight victories and they are in position to nail down a National Football League playoff berth when they play Philadelphia Sunday.

But Atlanta will need more than a glass slipper against the Eagles, who are already in the playoffs. Philadelphia has football's best record and wants to maintain that distinction. The Pro Picker thinks they will, too.

Last week's 7-5 straight up (3-9 with those dread points) left the season's record at 107-70-1 with winners and losers and 69-109 against the points. The picks:

Eagles 17, Falcons 13
Atlanta just did make it against have-not Washington last week and it will be a lot tougher against the Eagles. Philadelphia favored by 6 points.

Colts 27, Bengals 10
The Colts are still in the AFC chase. The Bengals are not. That makes a big difference. Baltimore favored by 2.

Rams 27, Bills 14
Los Angeles is simply too deep and too talented for the Bills, who have spent this season on a roller-coaster. Game is listed as even.

Cowboys 31, Raiders 17
Dallas will be working with nine days rest and Oakland with just six. That's a big edge. Dallas favored by 2.

Chiefs 14, Broncos 10
Improving Kansas City bounces back at home after last week's disappointment against Cincinnati. Game is listed as even.

Lions 21, Cardinals 17
Mini-upset. Extra rest and the incentive of a division race gives Detroit the edge here. St. Louis favored by 2.

Bears 20, Packers 13
Chicago still on Cloud Nine after its last second-over-time win over Detroit on Thanksgiving. Chicago favored by 6½.

Bucs 16, Vikings 14
Tampa Bay always plays Minnesota tough and beating the Vikes could scramble the NFC Central race even more. Tampa Bay favored by 2½.

Saints 17, 49ers 16
That's no misprint. New Orleans almost caught Minnesota napping last week. San Francisco Saints' first victim. San Francisco favored by 7.

Seahawks 28, Giants 7
If ever a team needed the Blue Cross Giants across the field, it's Seattle, which hasn't won at home all season. That streak ends. Seattle favored by 7.

Browns 31, Jets 13
Cleveland's in high gear now and New York has been in low gear all season long. Cleveland favored by 9½.

Chargers 34, Redskins 14
It's time for San Diego to tidy up its act now that the playoffs are just down the road. San Diego favored by 6½.

Dolphins 21, New England 17
An out Monday night at the worst possible time for the in-and-out Patriots, who can hardly afford it now. New England favored by 3½.

Outland Trophy winner says Heisman is obsolete

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Mark May is 6 feet, 6 inches tall, weighs 275 pounds, wears a size 17 shoe and has muscles on top of muscles, but the monstrous University of Pittsburgh football lineman wasn't hiding behind a door when God was parceling out brains.

"The Heisman Trophy is no longer meaningful," he says. "It no longer truly represents the best player in college football. The game has passed it by."

"What we need are several trophies to be awarded to the various specialists — the ball carriers, the quarterbacks, the pass catchers, the offensive and defensive linemen and even the kickers."

"Then we should pick the year's Most Valuable Player, just as they do in baseball, without the emphasis now on the glamorous backfield performers."

"Let that be the Heisman Trophy." If May's suggestion was carried to fruition, the Downtown Athletic Club, which has sponsored the Heisman for 45 years, would have to call in its sculptors to produce a more modern and fitting prize.

The present Heisman is a 25-pound hunk of bronze portraying a football halfback of the pre-World War II era, attired in a leather headgear and baggy pants, making a sharp cut. A balloon-shaped football is tucked under one arm and he is stiff-arming an imaginary tackler with the other.

The trophy is as archaic as its premise. It is a den wall treasure for the football headline hogger, the flashy or hard-running ball carrier who keeps the computers buzzing with mind-boggling statistics of yards run and touchdowns scored with occasionally a crumb or two for the strong-armed quarterback.

Thirty-two of the 46 winners have been ball carriers, the last nine in a row. Only 12 were quarterbacks although long ago the game moved into the era of the aerial bomb.

May, a crunching offensive tackle from Oneonta, N.Y., can speak of multiple awards for multiple skills from a personal standpoint. He has just won one of the more coveted prizes open to the obscure inner lineman, the Outland Trophy, and his teammate, defensive end Hugh Green, is a sure bet for the Lombardi Trophy, a block of granite which goes to the top defensive performer.

Singletary a finalist for Lombardi Award

HOUSTON (AP) — One of four finalists, Hugh Green of Pittsburgh, E.J. Junior of Alabama, Mike Singletary of Baylor, all first team Associated Press All-Americans, or Ron Simmons of Florida State will be named winner this week of the 11th annual Lombardi Award.

The award, named in honor of Vince Lombardi, the former Green Bay and Washington Redskins coach who died of cancer in 1970, is presented annually to the nation's top lineman.

The winner of the award, a 45-pound granite trophy, will be presented Friday at a benefit dinner with proceeds going to the American Cancer Society.

Green is the most decorated of the four finalists. The 6-2, 222 senior from Natchez, Miss., earlier was named the Outland Trophy winner, also symbolic of the nation's top lineman and was a Lombardi Award finalist last year.

Green also was the runnerup in last week's Heisman Trophy voting, the highest finish ever for a lineman in voting for the award, which names the nation's outstanding collegiate player.

Junior, a 6-3, 237-pound senior from Nashville, Tenn., was a second team AP All-American last year and moved up to the first team in 1980.

Simmons was one of 12 Lombardi Award semifinalists last year and finished in the top 10 of the Heisman Trophy voting.

It will be a homecoming for Singletary, who played high school football in Houston. The 6-1, 225-pound All-American linebacker led the Bears to the Southwest Conference championship.

In addition to competing for the Lombardi Award, Singletary and Junior will also battle each other again Jan. 1 when their teams play in the Cotton Bowl.

THE BOTTOM LINE
FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Defensive coordinator Fritz Shurmur of the New England Patriots believes the only thing that counts in pro football is the bottom line — the final score.

"I'm not a statistics man," Shurmur said. "To me, the only thing that counts is the final number on the scoreboard. Our main goal this entire season will be reducing the number of points we allow the opposition to score."

Is J.J. tops?

How soaring WRs lure NFL fans

By Murray Olderman

SAN DIEGO (NEA) - The movement is the most graceful and artistic in an arena where the stress generally is on violent contact and brute force.

John Larry Jefferson, also known in the NFL simply as J.J., strides smoothly and swiftly into the open spaces beyond the line of scrimmage, his arms flapping birdlike in flight. He veers abruptly left, spins in a virtual pirouette to the right. Then he looks back to focus on the spiraling football arching darkly against the sky.

Just before he intercepts its orbit, he soars into a leap, his arms thrust forward. When it seems the ball still must elude him, he lunges into a horizontal plane. As both J.J. and the football are about to touch down, his extended fingers reach out dramatically, grasp the ball and cradle it to absorb the shock of landing.

All this has been performed with total concentration, oblivious to any defending player. This quality of complete absorption with his art has made Jefferson the outstanding pass catcher in the world of football. And with it a realization that his specialized, speedy wide receiver accounts for the most exciting cameos in any game. Just a generation ago, his type didn't exist. Even Don Hutson, the Green Bay immortal who would have been the prototypical wide receiver, spent most of his career lined up virtually shoulder to shoulder with an offensive tackle.

Raymond Berry, the first genuine wide receiver to be elected to the Pro Football Hall of Fame, played his college ball at SMU as an end lined up in the straight T-formation.

Now pro football displays a seemingly endless array of brilliant wide receivers, men who spend their careers split apart from the rest of the pack, eluding defenders with speed and guile and imparting genuine creativity to their work.

There are the Pittsburgh pair of Lynn Swann and John Stallworth; the Dallas duo of Drew Pearson and Tony Hill; world class sprinters Lam Jones and Wes Walker of the New York Jets; the New England combination of Stanley Morgan and Harold Jackson; Minnesota's Ahmad Rashad and Sammy White.

Add to them James Lofton of Green Bay, Roger Carr of Baltimore, Jerry Butler of Buffalo, Wes Chandler of New Orleans, Cliff Branch of Oakland, Harold Carmichael of Philadelphia, Mel Gray of St. Louis and Steve Largent of Seattle. And you still haven't named all the exceptional ones.

Why are there suddenly so many?

"I think the influence of television on young people and young coaches has been considerable," says Berry, a studious, astute man who is now an assistant coach in charge of New England's receivers. "When you see the wide receivers and the passing game on TV, it's a big motivating factor in a youngster wanting to play that position or a coach wanting to use that type of offense."

And professional football has legislated a more wide-open offense to give greater range to the wide receiver's skills. He has become an untouchable under today's rules.

In the 1950's, a defensive back named Jimmy Hill of the Cardinals was among the first to realize that the best way to keep a wide receiver from roaming his range was to hit him as he came off the line of scrimmage and to keep hitting him as he went down field — both to intimidate the receiver and to knock him off his stride.

It became known as bump-and-run, and the Oakland Raiders made it a way of life in the early days of the American Football League with Willie Brown, who had linebacker size and sprinter's speed, literally squashing receivers.

But two years ago, the TV-minded NFL — seeking to lure fans with offense — decreed that once a receiver proceeds 5 yards past the line of scrimmage he cannot be touched (under penalty of pass interference).

And so you have the emergence of such as John Jefferson on the spectacular artisan of offense. He came into pro ball in 1978 — when the bump-and-run was cut down to one nudge in the 5-yard zone — and scored 13 touchdowns on passes, tying the rookie record. He caught 61 passes last year. And 1980 will provide his biggest bonanza.

The Steelers' Swann and Stallworth introduced an extra dimension to the technique of pass catching that produced spectacular results.

Lady Harvesters win first game

HEREFORD-Pampa's Lady Harvesters rallied to defeat El Paso Jefferson, 52-49, Saturday for seventh place in the Deaf Smith County Basketball Tournament.

It was the season's first win for the Pampa girls. Pampa had to come from behind to win after trailing by four points with a minute to go.

"It was a good game for us," said Pampa coach Jerry Johnson. "The girls were under a lot of pressure to come back and win and they did."

The Lady Harvesters had led by 17 points, 31-14, at halftime. Jeanette Britt poured in 26 points for the Harvesters while Bobbi Skaggs added 12.

In Thursday's consolation round, Pampa fell to Amarillo Tascosa, 68-49.

"That was probably our best game to date," Johnson said. "Tascosa was the best team we've played so far."

Britt and Skaggs scored 11 and eight points respectively. Sharon Mack drilled 32 points for the winners.

"Lena Young did a good job of rebounding for us all through the tournament," Johnson added.

Pampa hosts Lubbock High at 7:45 p.m. Tuesday night. Junior varsity action starts at 6 p.m.

Highland Park edges Plano

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Quarterback Rob Moerschell hit tight end Glenn Watson on a 28-yard touchdown pass with 28 seconds left in the game as Highland Park scored an amazing 23-21 comeback win over Plano Saturday in a Class 5A schoolboy football quarterfinal clash.

Trailing 14-3 at halftime, Highland Park stunned a Texas Stadium crowd of 38,374 with three second half touchdown drives that averaged Plano's 29-28 quarterfinal win over the Scots in 1977.

Highland Park, now 13-0, advances to the 5A semifinals this weekend against Odessa Permian, a 27-0 quarterfinal victor over Amarillo. Plano ends its season with an 11-2 mark.

With only nine seconds left in the third quarter, Moerschell connected with Nobel Nash on a 59-yard scoring pass. But a two-point conversion try failed, leaving the Scots on the short end of a 21-9 tally.

Moerschell hit flanker Cullen Davis with a crucial 57-yard pass midway in the fourth quarter to set up the Scots' second touchdown. Two plays later, Brian Glasscock plowed in from the 1.

Plano recovered an onside kick at the 50, but went nowhere against a fired-up Scot defensive line and was forced to punt.

On fourth and three at the Highland Park 21, Moerschell completed a 10-yard pass to Davis. An interference call five plays later against Plano cornerback Mike Miller gave Highland Park a first down at the Plano 30.

Two plays later, Moerschell completed the 28-yard scoring pass to Watson.

Plano's last-gasp drive ended on a leaping interception by Murphy Martin near midfield.

Diminutive speedster quarterback Butch Fifeled ran for two Plano touchdowns in the first half and set up the Wildcats final score in the third quarter with a 66-yard jaunt.

Highland Park drew first blood on a 34-yard field goal by Mike Crow — just minutes after Plano had recovered a Highland Park fumble on the Scots' 11.

Punter Steve McCoy bobbled the snap on fourth and 7, but the Wildcats' recovery was nullified by a 15-yard face mask penalty. A 15-yard unsportsmanlike conduct call was then charged against Plano moved the ball to the Scots' 39.

Crow's field goal came eight plays later with 2:24 left in the first quarter.

Plano's offense totally dominated the second quarter, with Highland Park running only five plays from scrimmage.

Fifeled, who rushed for 126 yards, scored on runs of 1 and 6 yards before the half.

Dallas squares off with Oakland

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Raiders' 16th consecutive winning season, a National Football League record, is assured but they can't say the same about a 1980 playoff berth.

A victory Sunday over the Dallas Cowboys, who are 10-3 in their 15th straight winning season, would be a giant step toward the playoffs, which the Raiders missed the last two seasons by finishing 9-7. Coach Tom Flores' team is 9-4 and has won seven of its last eight games.

This will be the Raiders' final home game of the season — possibly their final home game ever if they miss the playoffs this season and move, as is possible, to Los Angeles next year.

The Raiders finish the season with road games against the Denver Broncos and New York Giants. The San Diego Chargers, tied with Oakland for the AFC West lead, are at Washington this Sunday and home against Seattle and Pittsburgh the final two weekends.

Defense has been carrying the Raiders lately, and the offensive players were almost apologetic following last Monday night's 9-3 victory over Denver.

"Fortunately, our defense is playing exceptionally well," said quarterback Jim Plunkett. "They gave us the ball a whole mess of times, but we couldn't do anything with it."

East Texas downs Central Arkansas, 27-21

CONWAY, Ark. (AP) — Tailback Cary Noel's fourth-quarter touchdown run snapped a 21-21 tie and carried East Texas State to a 27-21 football victory over University of Central Arkansas in a National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics first-round playoff game Saturday.

A bad punt and a 15-yard unsportsmanlike conduct call against the Central Arkansas Bears put the ball at the Bears' 31-yard line late in the fourth quarter. Noel scored the winning touchdown with 5:39 to play and James Porter kicked the extra point.

East Texas State — which entered the game ranked No. 8 in the NAIA Division I poll — raised its season record to 8-2-1 and advances to the second round of the playoffs. UCA was ranked No. 1 in the NAIA and ended its season at 9-1.

UCA trailed 21-14 at halftime but tied the score early in the fourth quarter. Quarterback Randy Huffstickler dumped the ball off to Nakita Robertson who raced 49 yards for a touchdown. Tony Nassar's kick made the score 21-21.

The Lions took the opening kickoff and drove 80 yards for a score. Quarterback Wade Wilson ran in from the 1, but the extra point failed.

UCA scored moments later after a fake field goal from the Lions' 33-yard line. Mark Taylor picked up the ball and fired a pass to Robertson, who carried to the 5. Phil Caldwell scored from that distance four plays later.

East Texas regained the lead in the second quarter on a 1-yard run by Noel, who also ran in a two-point conversion to make the score 14-7.

Moments later, Robertson fumbled a' the UCA 38. Wilson fired a 38-yard touchdown pass to Randy Smith on the next play.

UCA closed the gap to 21-14 late in the quarter when Huffstickler lofted a 9-yard touchdown pass to Lou Ron Mallett.

Sandies fall to Odessa

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Safety Mark Glasscock intercepted two passes, returning one for a touchdown, and tailback Kent Sager ran for two other touchdowns as Odessa Permian crushed Amarillo 27-0 in a class 5A schoolboy football quarterfinal game here Saturday afternoon.

Glasscock returned his first interception 36 yards for a touchdown to stake Permian to a 7-0 first quarter lead.

Permian, which is now 10-0-2 on the season, forced six Amarillo turnovers en route to recording its ninth shutout of the season. The stingy Panther defense allowed Amarillo, which closed out its season 7-6, to cross the midfield stripe only once.

Sager scored on runs of 4 and 18 yards in the second and third periods and reserve quarterback Coy Brown dived over from the one for the Panthers' final tally.

Permian will play Highland Park, a 23-21 winner over Plano, in a semifinal game next week.

Baseball's wheeler dealers meet today

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Baseball's winter meetings, traditionally the site of player trades and sales, begin Sunday with some of the wheeler dealers predicting plenty of action as teams try to improve their 1981 prospects.

The free agent re-entry draft offering veteran players — for a price — and complicated multi-year contracts, some of them containing no-trade clauses or requiring player approval, have reduced the number of trades made at these meetings recently. But the feeling is that some clubs have tired of the free agent auction and will return to the trading marketplace, the traditional route to roster re-shuffling.

"There will be plenty of deals," said one National League front office man. "The teams are ready to do business."

Much of the groundwork for deals at these meetings was laid at the October general managers' meetings in Miami where the most prominent names being kicked around were reliever Rollie Fingers of the San Diego Padres and center fielder Fred Lynn of the Boston Red Sox.

Fingers was rumored moving to St. Louis in a multi-player swap which also involved Padre catcher Terry Kennedy. Last spring, the Cards and Chicago Cubs were talking about a Kennedy-for-reliever Bruce Sutter trade which never materialized.

The Cards, with one of baseball's highest payrolls were disappointed by last season's fourth place finish in the National League East and Whitey Herzog, who doubles as manager and general manager for St. Louis, is determined to shake up his team. Herzog has said the Cards' only untouchable is shortstop Garry Templeton. That could mean new addresses for first baseman Keith Hernandez, the 1979 batting champion or catcher Ted Simmons. The New York Mets earlier rejected an offer of Hernandez for three players including reliever Neil Allen.

"We're going to make a trade," said Herzog. "and I'd give up either Simmons or Hernandez to get pitching. That's what we have to have to be a contender."

Lynn had been rumored headed for Los Angeles in exchange for four young Dodgers including Rookie of the Year reliever Steve Howe. But the Red Sox and Dodgers were bickering over the fourth player heading for Boston and the deal cooled, especially after Los Angeles re-signed Dusty Baker, pulling him back from the free agent draft at the last possible moment.

Had Baker left Los Angeles for the free agent auction, the Dodgers might have pressed for completion of the Lynn trade. Now their need for an outfielder is not so great and Boston may offer him elsewhere. Of course, the Lynn talks began before Ralph Houk was named Boston manager and with him on the scene, the Red Sox' trading priorities could change.

Besides Herzog and Houk, other new managers at these meetings will be Don Zimmer, formerly with Boston and now at Texas, Frank Howard with San Diego, and Gene Michael, who has moved from the general manager's chair to bench boss with the New York Yankees.

Most teams had hoped to get their free agent shopping over before the meetings so that trade needs would be more clearly defined. But there have been only a trickle of signings so far and it seems certain that the biggest name in the re-entry draft, outfielder Dave Winfield, won't make his move until the meetings are well underway.

The first official business for the 1,800 major and minor league executives at the meetings will be Monday's annual draft. All unprotected players are available in the grab bag at $25,000 apiece and occasionally, teams come up with major bargains there.

Ten players were selected in the draft a year ago including reliever Doug Corbett of the Minnesota Twins. Corbett appeared in 93 games, compiling an 8-6 record with 23 saves and a 1.98 earned run average for the Twins, making him a major draft steal.

After the draft, clubs will start talking trade. Last year 11 trades involving 30 players were completed with stars like Ron LeFlore, Al Cowens, Willie Aikens and Chris Chambliss changing teams.

The business agenda includes changes in option rules, disabled list designations and suspended players. All will require approval of the Major League Players Association before they are officially adopted.

San Angelo falls to Northeastern

TAHLEQUAH, Okla. (AP) — A three-yard pass from Eugene Simmons to Jerry Wichert in the second quarter gave Northeastern State a lead it never lost in a 10-3 victory over San Angelo State of Texas during Saturday's NAIA quarter-finals competition.

The pass came with :28 left in the second quarter when the score was tied 3-3 on first-quarter field goals by Northeastern's Arthur Garcia (43 yards) and Angelo State's Mike Thomas (35 yards). Garcia kicked the extra point.

The victory sends Northeastern to the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics semi-finals with a 10-1 record and closed Angelo State's season at 8-2-1.

Angelo State outpassed Northeastern, 194 yards to 70 yards, and came out on top in first downs with 16 to Northeastern's 9. On the ground, too, Northeastern's 113 yards barely edged out San Angelo's 86 yards.

Northeastern will meet semi-finals opponent Kearney of Nebraska in Tahlequah next Saturday.

Florida State wins thriller

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Rick Stockstill threw second-half touchdown passes of 19 and 20 yards to Hardis Johnson, lifting third-ranked Florida State from a 10-point deficit to a 17-13 victory over Florida Saturday in a bitter intra-state rivalry that ended the regular season for both bowl-bound teams.

While Stockstill generated some life into the Seminoles' offense, which was limited to 89 yards in the first half, the rugged Florida State defense, which surrendered 226 yards in the first two periods, held Florida's Gators to just 31 in the final 30 minutes and preserved its brilliant record of not yielding a point in the fourth period all season.

Tangerine Bowl-bound Florida, a two-touchdown underdog, stunned a record Doak Campbell Stadium crowd of 53,772, along with a national television audience, by taking a 13-3 halftime lead on a 53-yard pass play from Wayne Peace to Tyrone Young in the opening period and second-quarter field goals of 38 and 36 yards by Brian Clark.

But the Orange Bowl-bound Seminoles, who finished the regular season with a 10-1 record to Florida's 7-4, came out storming in the second half behind the passing of Stockstill, the clutch receiving of Johnson and the running of second-string tailback Ricky Williams.

They drove 82 yards in 11 plays following the second-half kickoff with Williams carrying seven times for 35 yards and Stockstill completing three passes for 42.

The touchdown, at 4:48 of the third period, came when Johnson grabbed Stockstill's 19-yard pass at the goal line.

I-35 murders continue to baffle law officers

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The first clue that a sociopathic killer or killers might be on the loose came Aug. 23, 1976, when the body of Lesa Haley was found two miles north of Waxahachie on Interstate 35, an awl buried in her neck.

The 21-year-old victim had been hitchhiking to Oklahoma City and was last seen climbing into a van in Waco.

Her death was the first of 21 unsolved murders that have been reported on or near a 300-mile stretch of I-35 from the Oklahoma border to near San Antonio in the last four years.

Investigators are convinced there is not a lone I-35 murderer on the loose. However, the alternative — perhaps more frightening — is that several robber-killers or rapist-killers are at large.

The fear that there is a link between some — perhaps all — of the deaths caused the Texas Department of Public Safety to hold a three-day seminar in late October with the ominous title "The Interstate Highway 35 Homicide Workshop."

About 30 law officers from cities stretching from North Texas to the Mexican border gathered here for the workshop.

Larry Todd, DPS public information officer, stressed there is not "just one nut out there roaming around. There are several nuts."

Williamson County Sheriff Jim Boutwell, who led the workshop, agreed.

"Some of these are what you would call sociopaths. Some of them have no conscience," he said. "We definitely feel some of them are still out there and are still dangerous."

Boutwell said many of the victims were "targets of opportunity, at the wrong place at the wrong time."

One couple in the wrong place at the wrong time was Frank Key, 19, and his girlfriend Rita Salazar, 18.

They were heading south on I-35 near Georgetown during the early morning hours of Nov. 6, 1978, when his car ran out of gas. They parked the car, locked it and started walking for help.

Key's body, shot nine times in the head and upper body, was found in a ditch along the highway. His girlfriend's body was found on the I-35 access road south of Waco. She had been shot six to 10 times.

Boutwell said the number of murders is alarming, but similar figures might turn up if an intensive look was taken at any interstate highway.

"It seems like a whole bunch, but it might be because this is the first time this has been done," he said of the Austin workshop. "But we speculate I-35 is special because it's believed to be a heavily used drug route."

Several of the cases, however, have no obvious motive. Sandra Mae Dubbs, 34, was driving from San Antonio to Missouri when her car developed problems on I-35 in Austin shortly before midnight on Oct. 2, 1979.

A witness said a man stopped to help Ms. Dubbs. Six days later her body was found in a field near the highway. She had been stabbed 35 times.

Investigators at the workshop compared notes and many went home with new ideas or leads on unsolved killings in their area, Boutwell said. Some noticed similarities in what at first appeared to be unrelated cases.

"Fourteen of them said as a result of the meeting they got leads they didn't have before," the sheriff said.

The leads might prove helpful in cases where investigators have not been able to identify the victims.

One such case was uncovered during the first hours of April 10, 1978, when an unidentified white woman's body was found on a creek bank a mile south of I-35 near Krum in Denton County. She had been shot seven times, four times in the back as if she was fleeing her attacker. She was 18- to 30-years-old and had red hair, dyed black.

Boutwell said several of the victims fell prey to offers of help: a ride for a hitchhiker or some mechanical know-how for a female with car trouble.

"The best thing to do is stay with the car, keep it locked," he said.

What if someone offers help?

"You just have to make a judgment on sizing him up. The best thing is to ask him to send help," he said.

The cases also include some in which the interstate apparently was merely a convenient dumping point.

Sheep seminar opens sign-up

4-H SHEEP PROJECT WORKSHOP

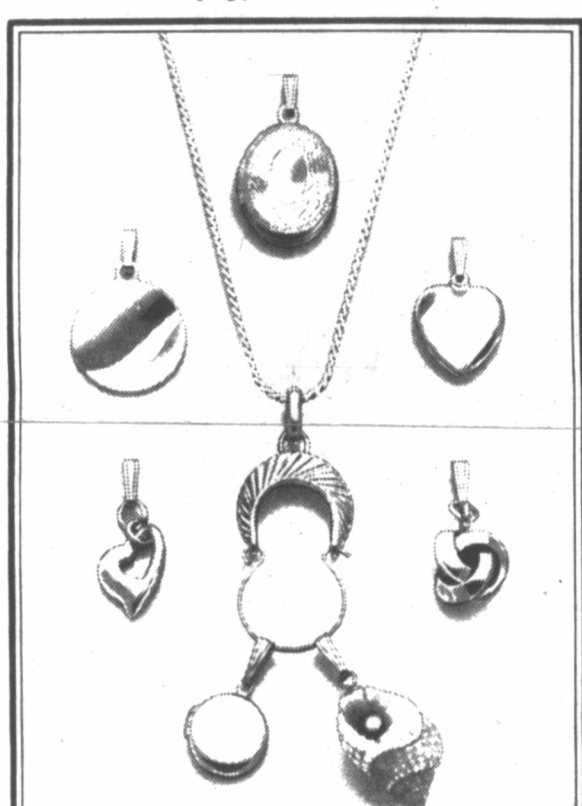

Individuals wishing to participate in the 4-H Sheep Project Workshop scheduled for Dec. 13-14 at the Texas 4-H Center near Brownwood should pre-register at the Gray County Extension Office no later than Dec. 9.

This workshop will cover all phases of the lamb industry, including breeding and feeding, selection and classification, fitting and showing, and judging market lambs. Judges for the 1981 lamb shows at Fort Worth, San Antonio, and Houston will be on hand to discuss lamb judging as well as evaluating and comment on a group of market lambs.

This will be a very interesting workshop for everyone feeding a lamb for show.

All Gray County 4-H and FFA lamb feeders should remember the Lamb Clinic scheduled for Dec. 15 at 7 p.m. at the Clyde Carruth Livestock Pavilion located north of the Top O' Texas Rodeo Arena in Pampa.

This clinic will be of interest to all lamb feeders with questions concerning the feeding, care and grooming of show lambs?

Water heaters recalled

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 600,000 liquid propane-fired water heaters are being recalled because the Consumer Product Safety Commission thinks they may explode.

The commission also announced Thursday that the White-Rogers division of Emerson Electric Co. of St. Louis, manufacturer of thermostats for the water heaters, will pay a $420,000 penalty. The commission said the company had failed to report the explosions promptly to the agency, as required by law.

The penalty, the largest in the commission's seven-year history, comes after reports of 23 explosions, five deaths and 16 serious injuries involving the heaters.

The recall program is expected to cost the manufacturer and retailers between $5 million and $9 million.

The recalled water heaters were sold since 1961, usually to rural homeowners, the commission said.

The commission said the pilot gas control knob of the thermostat could become damaged, causing the safety valve to stick in the "open" position and allowing LP gas to escape. Then, an electric spark can set off an explosion, it said.

Longtime pilot began career in flight with "Lindy"

Deborah Hendrick

A longtime Skellytown resident and pilot has circled the Statue of Liberty by air, followed the meandering Hudson River and flown as far north as La Ronge, Saskatchewan in Canada.

He has been flying since 1945 and has flown in 46 of the continental states and hopes to make it 49 with a trip to Alaska this coming summer.

Flying has been a constant interest in the life of Everett Crawford, which began with his first airplane flight in 1924.

Crawford was 21 at the time and a mechanic in a Bird City, Kan., Ford dealership.

Crawford recalls receiving a casual invitation from a young man whose truck he had repaired. The flight was a short uneventful trip in a Curtiss JN-4, a popular World War I biplane trainer, more affectionately known as a 'Jenny.'

It was years later, in May 1927, Crawford realized just how special that initial flight was — the youthful aviator who had treated him to that airplane ride — Charles Lindbergh — flew alone across the Atlantic Ocean and into annals of history.

Crawford is 77 now and has been operating his garage and service station in Skellytown for 51 years.

He was licensed to fly in 1945 after he and three friends bought a used Army trainer, a PT-19 Fairchild. Crawford leased a narrow strip of land from the railroad, bulldozed a dirt landing strip, and installed a windsock. Crawford and the Skellytown American Flyers still use this landing strip today, totally accustomed to the hazards — FFA hog pens and power lines at the north end of the strip.

He has landed his planes on that small field in all kinds of weather — day and night. Many times the only light he had to see by was the single bulb, located in the FFA hog pens.

Years later, the Texas Aeronautics Commission installed bright orange plastic balls on power lines in hopes of increasing visibility and make landings safer to the occasional out of town pilot.

Everett Crawford is a quiet pilot.

He enjoys taking his friends and family on weekend trips.

While most families may take a Sunday afternoon stroll or leisurely Sunday drive, Crawford and his wife will occasionally leave Skellytown after Sunday church services and fly to Garden City, Kan., where they dine in the airport restaurant before the leisurely flight home.

All of his grandchildren have flown with him, and one of his sons is a licensed pilot. He has had passengers ranging in age from six months old to 88 years old.

He no longer logs his personal hours of flying time and gave up tracking his miles flown years ago — there were just too many.

His career as a pilot was interrupted only once when he had an operation on eyes, causing him to miss the Skellytown American Flyers' flight along the Lewis and Clark Trail. To fulfill FAA requirements, he now is required to have annual eye examinations.

His advanced years are no problem, Crawford, like every other pilot in the nation, gets a biannual medical certificate.

The owner of four planes throughout his life, he now flies a 1969 Piper Cherokee.

The only time Crawford had any trouble in flight was on a trip to the East Coast with the Skellytown American Flyers when his plane's engine began to sputter and cough. At the instruction of air traffic controllers, he safely landed his aircraft at a Navy airfield near Philadelphia. A Marine mechanic found the source of his trouble and sent them on their way.

His wife Ethyl was along and Crawford says, "She wasn't worried at all until she saw the two fire trucks on the runway."

His only comment is, "You have to respect your airplane."

Crawford appreciates the better equipment and more reliable aircraft the aviation industry has produced through the years he's been flying and says he will keep on flying as long as his eyes hold out and the FAA will grant his medical certificate.

MENDING MATURE MARRIAGE By Louise Pierce

Somebody once told me that even a good marriage can have its bad moments when the couple moves to another house in the same town. I'm happy to tell you that it doesn't have to. Otis and I just moved — and we're still speaking. In fact, we're still in love. When you're over 60 and that happens, you're Cupid's kids for sure. Just before we moved, a correspondent wrote: "DEAR LOUISE: Moving our home, or not moving it, is about to break up our marriage. "First place. I didn't want to move. Old house suited me fine. Sure, the windows need caulking, the floors creak a little, and the windows rattle when the wind blows. But the place is home to me. We've lived here 29 years and that little bit of noise don't bother me. "Well, my wife had a brother who never married and he died and left her his big fancy house on a hill on the edge of town. Right away she started moving stuff over there, without even asking me did I want to go. And I didn't. "I said we could sell that big house up there and have money for trips and luxuries in the old place. I said there wasn't any workshop there and we'd have to build one because I love my woodworking. A new one would cost a lot of money. "I said we didn't know that neighborhood up there and would be out of place with all those stuck-up rich folks. I used every argument I could think of, but she kept moving little stuff up the hill. Every day she'd take a few plates or glasses or pictures. "The climax came when I asked her what she wanted to do with the old house in case I came up there with her. She said sell it, give it away, she never wanted to see it again. "She said I bought a new car a few months ago without asking her — and that she never interfered with my business decisions. But my business is our living. And my new car was something I needed. "So I'm sitting here putting in our old place — and she's up on the hill, putting on airs. I'm sure. We've got half our furniture each place. She swears she'll never move back here. "Wouldn't I lose all my pride, along with my personal contentment, if I moved up there? MAD AND STUBBORN. "Dear M and S: Stubborn is what you both are. But I believe you can resolve your differences and stay together, as you certainly should after your 29 years together. I think your wife should join you in treasuring the old house enough to want to dispose of it lovingly and profitably. Some young couple might find it exactly to their liking and would enjoy repairing the small deteriorations. You might make a bit of money on the sale. But you need to make a far bigger turnabout than your wife does. You need to start swallowing your "pride" (By your own definition, it's really stubbornness) and go up to the hill with your wife.

To a woman, her home is the most treasured possession she has. A man tends to prize his car and his business above all other interests except his love for his wife. You say you run your business without a word of objection or suggestion from your wife. And you bought a new car without consulting her. So isn't she entitled to the choosing of your home? You can always drive to your old neighborhood and visit your friends of long standing there. Besides, how do you know the people up on the hill are stuck-up? In my experience, I have found people to be understandable and likable, rich or poor. Give them a chance. "DEAR LOUISE: My wife and I were both widowed and married each other a few weeks ago. We're in a motel now. But I want to live in my house and she wants to live in hers. Now don't tell us to find a third place because we both like what we've got. T.W. "Dear T.W.: That's exactly what I'm going to tell you. You can never be happy if you don't live in a house that holds no memories for either of you. Don't spoil it by continuing to quarrel over a house. Tell yourselves, and each other, that a house is not a home, as Edgar Guest once said. It's the people inside who account for the love and the compatibility, especially couples who are beginning their second round of marital happiness. Write problems to DEAR LOUISE, Box 616, Pampa, Texas 79065.

By Judy Love

Remember the sweater girl? She's back! From cardigans and pullovers to camisoles, vests, sweater dresses and two-piece sweater sets, this fall and winter, the '80's sweater girl is wearing knits in all shapes and sizes. Although knits returned as big fashion items last fall, this year they've gained more acceptance and more manufacturers are cashing in on the trend. Hand knits are especially popular, but unfortunately most bear a hefty price tag. Needleworkers, you're in luck! You can knit your own sweaters, avoid the high cost of buying them ready-made and have a bundle of the latest looks. For starters, here's a marvelous oversized turtleneck in a colorful striped pattern. Bright orange, fire red and hot pink yarns are worked in with buttercream and green, the season's most popular colors. The instructions call for Columbia-Minerva yarn. Wear-Dated by Monsanto, and one pair of No. 7 and No. 10 knitting needles. Because of the magnificent colors, the sweater is likely to coordinate with a variety of wardrobe staples. Try it with a fun, "split-skirt," or if you're on the conservative side, pair the pullover with classic straight leg trousers in wool or flannel. If you're really daring, and have the knack for altering instructions, you can work additional rows and make the sweater into a tunic, for a new kind of "sweater girl" look. For easy-to-follow instructions, send 50 cents to Stitchin' Time, P.O. Box 503, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Ask for leaflet S563 and don't forget to include your name, address and zip code.

KNIT KNACKS
Dear Judy Love: I recently knitted a lovely cardigan to wear with almost everything in my wardrobe. Unfortunately, there were no instructions for pockets, but I can't seem to do without them! Do you know of an easy way to work plain patch pockets onto my stockinette cardigan? Your information will be greatly appreciated. — V.K., Missouri.

Dear V.K.: I happen to love pockets, too, and have added them on several of my favorite sweaters. Here's an easy way to work patch pockets. I hope you have some of the same wool you worked your sweater in, but if you don't, your local store may still have the same dye lot in stock (or they may order it for you). If not, you could use a complementary color. To make the first pocket, set up enough stitches to measure 4 inches wide or wider for larger pockets. Rib 1 inch deep by knitting 1 purling 1, and then knit stockinette until the pocket is 4 1/2 inches deep. Bind off. Make another one the same way, then sew both pockets in place. Happy knitting, Judy Love.

More organic gardeners

EMMAUS, Pa. (AP) — A survey by a national publication dedicated to organic gardening has shown that more American home owners than ever before are returning to the "old-fashioned way" of growing vegetables.

Organic Gardening based this conclusion on a poll of its nearly 1.5 million subscribers. It says they indicated a preference for natural fertilizers and mulches.

District Eastern Star school slated

Eleven area chapters of The Order of the Eastern Star will host the "Stepping Stones to Eternal Life" Eastern Star School of Instruction Tuesday in Pampa. More than 200 members from around the state are expected to register for the District II Section I school at the Top O' Texas Masonic Hall No. 1381 on W. Kentucky.

Hosting the event will be chapters from Pampa, Boger, Canadian, Darrouzett, Higgins, Miami, Perryton, Shamrock, Spearman, Stinnett and Wheeler.

Honored guests and keynote speakers for the evening program will be Mrs. Lena Maye-Cook of Houston, Worthy Grand Matron, and Thurman Perry, Worthy Grand Patron Grand Chapter of Texas.

Other dignitaries will attend a pre-school covered dish dinner Monday evening at the Pampa Masonic Lodge Hall No. 966, 420 W. Kingsmill.

The theme of the school is eternal life. Registration will begin at 8 a.m. Tuesday. Mrs. Geneva Dalton, Deputy Grand Matron of Pampa, will call the session to order at 9 a.m. Worthy Matrons, Associate Matrons and Personal Pages from District II Section I will participate in the "Plight of the Butterflies" and the "Cross Within the Triangle" drills.

Spearheading the school will be Mrs. Cook and Mrs. Frances Reedy, District Deputy Grand Matron of Odessa. Examinations will be directed by Mrs. Betty Phillips of Darrouzett, Grand Examiner of District II. Mrs. Aileen Ruddick, Past Matron of Pampa, is vice-chairman of the event. Mrs. Laverne Coombes of Pampa is in charge of the luncheon to take place at the Top O' Texas Masonic Lodge dining hall. Mrs. Pat Winkleblack of Pampa is chairman of the banquet slated for 6 p.m. at the Pampa Shrine Club, Lefors Highway.

Mrs. Ina Reading, Past Matron of the Top O' Texas chapter, will present the humanitarian program and drill by the Worthy Matron of District II prior to the fraternal visit of the Worth Grand Matron.

Following the evening session, a farewell reception will conclude the day's events. Mrs. Margaret Washington of Pampa is chairman of the reception.

Down garments for city days and nights

NEW YORK (NEA) — There are down-filled garments, and then there's fashion down. Fashion down happens when fashion designers use it for city days and nights. Gil Alimbez does a three-quarter poplin coat in chevron-quilted burgundy piped in gray, with a drawstring hem, industrial zipper and ribbed collar. Norma Kamali goes space-age in black nylon cire puffed way out with down and quilted vertically and in spirals.

Bill Blass, however, has revolutionized the down fashion garment. When he quilts he avoids the standard channel, chicken wire or band quilting. He quilts in free-form curves or big rectangles or harlequin diamonds. Then he fills the curve with three fashion colors (mauve, cream and pewter), and splashes the diamonds with random red, white and black.

Blass sees quilted garments being used far beyond the rod-and-gun scene. For the lover of sportswear separates, he creates a blazer in down-filled poplin tattersall check of camel and navy or pewter and wine, then gives it a tunic-length, down-filled buttoned vest in solid color piped in the tattersall. With a wool box-pleated skirt, it looks great as a fall-into-winter outfit for campus or city.

For dressier hours, he puff-quits in oversize rectangles on silky mauve iridescent nylon for an A-line coat closed with three bow ties.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Twenty years ago, at the age of 40, I became totally disabled due to a brain tumor. I wasn't able to get out of bed, but by the grace of God and a surgeon's skill, I made it. At times I was so despondent I prayed it would all end, then a friend gave me the enclosed inspirational piece, which I must have read 1,000 times. I had moments when my vision clouded, and I thought, "This is it; this is the end." Then I'd read that message again, and it pulled me through.

Abby, some of the greatest men and women of our times have been saddled with disabilities and adversities but have managed to overcome them.

Perhaps somewhere amongst your readers there is someone who is at the end of his or her rope and needs encouragement. Pass this along. It may save a life. It saved mine.

HERMAN ENDLER, ENCINO, CALIF.

WINNING AGAINST THE ODDS

"Cripple him, and you have a Sir Walter Scott.

"Lock him in a prison cell, and you have a John Bunyan.

"Bury him in the snows of Valley Forge, and you have a George Washington.

"Raise him in abject poverty, and you have an Abraham Lincoln.

"Subject him to bitter religious prejudice, and you have a Disraeli.

"Afflict him with asthma as a child, and you have a Theodore Roosevelt.

"Stab him with rheumatic pains until he can't sleep without an opiate, and you have a Steinmetz.

"Put him in a grease pit of a locomotive roundhouse, and you have a Walter P. Chrysler.

"Make him second fiddle in an obscure South American orchestra, and you have a Toscanini."

DEAR HERMAN: Thank you for the above. It is indeed inspirational, but I would like to add another winner to the list:

"At birth, deny a child the ability to see, hear and speak, and you have a Helen Keller."

Readers, if you know of other famous people to add to this list, please send their names to Abby, 132

Laaky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I disagree. He has forbidden our 16-year-old daughter to associate with a longtime friend of hers because he says the girl has a bad reputation.

But he plays cards regularly with two men who have left their wives for younger women!

I ask, how can he justify the discipline of his daughter when he himself associates with people like that?

We need another opinion.

ALLENTOWN, PA.

DEAR ALLENTOWN: I would have to know how the longtime friend earned a "bad" reputation. (Is she promiscuous, on drugs, or could she be an innocent victim of gossip?) And I'd also have to know more about your husband's card-playing cronies — and the wives they left.

DEAR ABBY: My brother is getting married soon. As far as I know we have been on good terms, so I was hurt and disappointed when he didn't ask me to be his best man. When I found out he had asked his fiancée's brother (whom he hardly knows) to be his best man, I was furious!

I told my brother exactly how I felt, then he had the nerve to ask me to be an usher! I told him no thanks. I didn't plan on attending his wedding at all.

Now that I am not going, there will be no member of his family there. Do you think I made the right decision in refusing to go?

DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: Feeling as you do, you were wise to decline. A hurt, disappointed and disgusted brother would have made a very poor sole representative for the groom's family.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 132 Laaky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Shoemaking career lasts 60 years

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — July celebration. She was living with her Aunt Sarah, a dressmaker, at the time, and thought she had learned a lot about dressmaking just from watching her guardian.

"Aunt Sarah said, 'Go ahead if you want. You can use your undershirt as a pattern for the top.' When she saw the finished product, she made me tear it all out. I had sewn everything inside out. I think with every stitch I tore out, I shed a tear."

Leather was a different story from the beginning, she said.

"I really took to it. When I came to Portland, I even had my own baby shoe business for awhile."

Mrs. Roberts recalls the days when shoe manufacturers were so fussy "the Brown Shoe Co. once refused to accept a freight carload of leather." One of her more interesting assignments, she says, was making shoes at that company for the Russian army during World War II.

That experience, plus a follow-up job interview with two men "whose looks I didn't like," confirmed the 18-year-old's suspicions that she didn't want to be a stenographer the rest of her life.

Instead, she took a job in Pittsfield, Ill., with the International Shoe Factory, where she discovered she had an aptitude for shoemaking.

Six decades and thousands of slippers, casual shoes, loggers' boots and white shoes for doctors later, she is still making shoes — and is grateful for that long-ago decision to spurn office work.

For the past 33 years, Mrs. Roberts has made her home in Portland, and for all but three of those years she has sewn shoes and slippers at home for the Multnomah Leather Shop, working at a table and giant Singer "closing" machine in the dining room at her home.

Before she left the Midwest, she spent 13 years as a supervising "floor lady" at another Pittsfield firm, the Brown Shoe Co. The 78-year-old woman recently marked the 60th anniversary of her first day of work as a shoemaker by assembling a few pairs of suede shoes and, as she has since 1920, "trying to do the work so I'll be proud of it."

Mrs. Roberts, long divorced, is nearly as proud of her triumph over a number of physical adversities as she is of her longevity in the shoemaking field. Stricken with polio as a child, she walked with crutches until the age of 12. In 1961, she fell leaving a bus and was in a body cast for five months.

Today, there is a comfortable cadence to her life, a few hours of work daily, frequent visits from the neighborhood children who call her "Grandma Roberta," and correspondence with her only son, who lives in Illinois, and his family.

The sewing machine she uses belongs to the Multnomah Leather Shop, which delivers the pre-cut shoe pieces to her for sewing, but Mrs. Roberts also has a standard sewing machine of her own for home sewing.

She makes her own dresses with ease today, but remembers the first dress she created, while she was still a youngster on crutches, for a Fourth of Noticed the Christmas lights outlining the roof of the M.K. Brown Auditorium? If not, better drive down (or up) Hobart Street and have a look. It's a gorgeous sight.

The park below the auditorium is already graced with the lighted religious pictures that the City of Pampa puts up each year. They're located just south of London Bridge. How these beautiful pictures have been preserved all these years is a mystery to me. Must have had meticulous care. They draw crowds every night.

The scenes include The Annunciation, the angel with the shepherds, the manger scene, the wise men before King Herod, the Wise Men on their way to the manger, and the flight of Mary and Joseph and the Baby Jesus to Egypt.

Heard some visitors over at the Coronado Inn from Kansas and Connecticut (didn't get their names) talking about how much they liked our area. Praised the Inn highly. Said they drove to Palo Duro Canyon, wishing they could hear a talk about it or see it more fully than just driving the one road through the park.

To their surprise, the Sad Monkey Station engineer said he took as few as four people on his little train, so the eight visitors got the full treatment, trip and lecture and smiling hospitality on the little train. That's the Texas Panhandle for you!

Congratulations to Pampa's Family of the Year, Don and Linda Bigham and their children, Derek and Delinda.

PEEKING at PAMPA

were chosen over 17 other finalists. Good to see happy family life recognized this way.

Speaking of families, I think the Curt Becks are outstanding in stately looks. Curt is surely one of the tallest men in town, and his wife, beloved "Doctor Will," is a physician. Their children are tall like Curt and all walk confidently and straight. Fine looking group. Take up a good share of a pew at the Presbyterian Church every Sunday morning.

Most unusual hairdos are appearing this season. Saw Marian Stroup with a distinctive one the other day. She always looks so pretty and happy, is always so full of fun. Said her husband, Jack, had a tumble on the ice, so bad that he said even his teeth hurt. Watch those patches of ice in parking lots, Jack!

Christmas parties are already starting, so many that people are having to choose among three or four the same night.

Heard that Roy Brown, the celebrated pianist from Canyon who plays for many parties here and usually packs the place, had his crowd cut because of other events going on at the same time. But Roy is a good sport — and he played as wonderfully as always, inviting the last two couples on the floor to sing with him on the final number, which they did.

Owen and Cinda Lafferty of White Deer are often seen at social functions in Pampa. He's a friendly man, and she's got a flawless complexion in a million. Understand they have a marvelous home, ingeniously remodeled from a school house. Takes real talent to make this kind of accomplishment — and come up with something straight out of House and Garden, which their friends say they did.

Phil and Gladys Vanderpool are good people to know. Remember when his twin brother, Pat, lived here? And his folks, the Rev. Harry and Barbara, who served a church here not long ago? Heard that Harry is in demand as a speaker in Albuquerque, where they, now reside, as well as in other areas.

The Orrs, Darville and Myrna, are a personable duo. He's a business man and a member of the Rotary Club Board. She is an organist of note in our town.

Was surprised to see such a big crowd on a pre-blizzard night at the Wonderful World of Travel film-lecture last week. An appreciative group too, enjoying the delightful humor of Dennis Cooper in his travels through Western Canada, which many Pampans have seen.

Ruth Ann and Art Holland were there, as charming as always... Also was Owen and Charley Neal Gee... And the McCunes, Hazel and Jimmie. Isn't Jimmie's curly hair something? And his smile is so friendly... Watched Bob Williams putting his adorable little daughter, Laura, into her coat.

Nearly everybody stopped to spend some time viewing "Coming Through the Rye," the magnificent Remington bronze presented to the city by "Aunt Nona" Payne a few weeks ago. Anybody who hasn't seen it, should stop by the lobby of the auditorium. It's a special treasure and a splendid gift to Pampa. Our thanks to our revered Aunt Nona.

HOMEMAKER'S NEWS

By Elaine Houston

EXTENSION OFFICE TO HOST "OPEN HOUSE"

Everyone is invited to come by the Gray County Extension Office located in the courthouse annex (Highway 60-east) on Dec. 8 from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. The county extension staff will be hosting an "open house" so that the public can get acquainted with services available through the extension service. We will also be serving refreshments. This is being sponsored by the Gray County Program Building Committee.

HOMEMAKER COUNCIL CHRISTMAS PROGRAM

The Gray County Extension Homemaker Council will have its annual Christmas program Dec. 8 at 1 p.m. in the annex meeting room. The program will feature special Christmas music by the First Baptist Church Hand Bell Choir. The 1981 Council officers will be installed. The program will also feature a tasting tea of favorite recipes. Recipe booklets will be available for those attending. Everyone is invited to come to our special Christmas program. Bring your favorite recipe and join us for fun and fellowship.

MICROWAVE CANDY RECIPES

We have a good collection of microwave recipes. Here are a few of our favorite candy recipes:

No-Fail Divinity

4 cups sugar
1 cup light corn syrup
3/4 cup water
Mix sugar, corn syrup, water and salt in a 2-quart casserole. Cook in microwave oven for 19 minutes, stirring every 5 minutes. Candy thermometer should read 260 degrees F.; if not, cook 1 or 2 minutes longer. While syrup cooks, beat egg whites very stiff in a large bowl. Gradually pour hot syrup over egg whites and continue beating at a high speed until thick and candy starts to lose its gloss. Beating may require about 12 minutes. Add vanilla and nuts to beaten mixture. Drop by teaspoon onto waxed paper.

MICRO TIP: Candy may be tinted with food coloring for special occasions. Makes 7 dozen pieces.

Micro-Brittle

1 cup raw peanuts, pecan halves or almonds
1 cup granulated sugar

Czechs make unusual doors

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — A special enterprise to produce non-standard doors for Prague's historical buildings was established when an inquiry showed 5,000 such doors needed to be replaced.

The business has 25 employees and owns a smithy, a casting plant, a locksmith workshop and a paint shop.

1/2 cup white corn syrup
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon vanilla

Stir together nuts, sugar, syrup and salt in 1 1/2 quart casserole. Place in microwave oven and cook 7 to 8 minutes, stirring well after 4 minutes. Add butter and blend well. Return to oven and cook 2 to 3 minutes more or until nuts are golden brown. Add baking soda and vanilla and gently stir until light and foamy. Pour onto greased cookie sheet and let cool. When cool, break into pieces and store in an airtight container.

Peanut Patties

2 cups sugar

1/2 cup water
dash of salt
1/4 cup light corn syrup
1 1/2 cups raw peanuts

2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
2-3 drops of red food coloring

Combine sugar, water, salt and light corn syrup in a 2-quart glass measuring cup. Bring to a boil in the microwave oven (approximately 3 minutes); stir and add peanuts. Return to microwave oven and cook approximately 7-9 minutes or until a soft ball stage (234 degrees F.) is reached. Remove from oven; add butter, vanilla and red food coloring. Cool and beat until creamy. Drop by tablespoon onto greased cookie sheet or make into large patties.

Buttermilk Pralines

2 cups sugar
1 teaspoon soda
1 cup butter milk
3/4 cup butter or margarine
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups pecan halves

Combine all ingredients, except vanilla and pecans in butter large glass mixing bowl. Cover with plastic wrap. Microwave on roast for 14 minutes. Stir and continue cooking on roast for 13-15 minutes or until a soft ball forms in cold water. Add vanilla and heat until mixture forms soft peaks. Stir in pecans. Pour into buttered 2-quart (12 x 7) glass baking dish. Cool until firm; cut into pieces or drop by teaspoons onto waxed paper. Makes 40-48 pieces.

Hibernating golfers should take heart

Liz Mitchell
American Library Assn.

When it's too wintry to get out on the fairway, many golfers will look for a book about a sport to read by the fire.

Dick Miller's "Triumphant Journey" (Holt, Rinehart & Winston, $13.95, 258 pages), written to celebrate the 50th anniversary of Bobby Jones' legendary Grand Slam of golf, is an apt choice.

Jones, one of the greatest competitive golfers of all time, won the U.S. Open four times and finished second four times, twice losing in playoffs. He won the U.S. Amateur four times and was runner-up twice. He won the British Open three times out of the four he entered, and he won the British Amateur once. He retired from competitive golf in 1930, after winning the Grand Slam — the U.S. Open, the U.S. Amateur, the British Open and the British Amateur. Jones, only 28 at the time, had been playing competitively since he was 15.

Although he made the game look effortless, Jones was tremendously pressured by tournament golf. During his second try for the U.S. Open, "There was no outward sign when he played that before each shot he had to consciously quiet his nerves... or that later, with the combat over, he would end up crying in a hotel room."

On the other hand, he knew the delights of recreational golf. A successful lawyer and businessman, Jones once explained the game's "very great and sometimes mystifying appeal to busy men... Golfers know, and have for a long time, that when playing golf, it is almost impossible to think of anything else."

Miller presents Jones as a complex person, both man and boy. Perilously ill as a child, he was solitary and shy. During his early years of competition his temper sometimes got the best of him, even to the point where he threw his clubs — once almost injuring a spectator.

In the few passages about Jones' marriage, it is clear he was devoted to his wife, and that his wife was not devoted to golf. "That day in 1930 when Jones retired from competitive golf was one of the happiest days of their married life," Miller writes.

Among Jones' great legacies to the game was his hand in creating the Augusta National course. "Jones always harbored a terrible fear of looking foolish playing golf," Miller explains. "He felt the average golfer, in some ways, felt the same. Consequently, he and (Dr. Alister) MacKenzie (the architect) designed a course that would bring the most enjoyment for the greatest number of people. Of all the great courses in the United States, Augusta National is one of the fairest to the average golfer."

Perhaps his very human understanding of the game was one reason Bobby Jones was not only respected for his winning accomplishments but also loved by golf fans the world over. "For all his genius," Miller writes, "Jones suffered and agonized over many of the same problems as the average golfer."

In "Down the Fairways" (1927) by Jones and O.B. Keeler, the latter wrote, "The terrible thing about a missed shot in golf is that the thing is done, irrevocably, irremediably. Perhaps that is why golf is so great a game; it is so much like the game of life. We don't have the shots over in either."

The game of life dealt Bobby Jones a cruel blow when in 1956 he discovered he was suffering from syringomyelia, a degenerative nerve disease. His comment to the press when they guessed his bleak prognosis was simply, "Remember, we play the ball as it lies."

Later, Jones admitted, "When it first happened to me I was pretty bitter, and there were times when I didn't want to go on living. But I did go on living, so I had to face the problem of how I was going to live. I decided I'd just do the very best I could."

When he died in 1972, a service was held in St. Andrews, Scotland. Roger Wethered, whom Jones had beaten in the finals of the 1930 British Open, eulogized, "To have won through at golf... was an epic victory in itself, but the second victory — the one in which he was reduced to walking with difficulty with a cane and finally to a wheelchair — was a victory of the spirit that will also live as long as his name is remembered."

BOBBY JONES, one of the greatest competitive golfers of all times, is remembered for his spirit, as well as his legendary Grand Slam of golf, in Dick Miller's "Triumphant Journey."

Beauty Digest

By Diane Robbins, editor
Beauty Digest magazine

Fresh air cure

Marie Osmond told Beauty Digest magazine her remedy for those not-feeling-up-to-par days. "If I feel down or blue or edgy, I go for a walk outside. It doesn't matter where — the beach, garden, street, anywhere — as long as I'm in the fresh air."

Eye bright

This fall, mascara comes in glorious colors. You'll find shades of blue, violet and green, with eyeliners to match or not. Colored mascara is applied over your usual black or brown. Put it just on the tips or along the entire lash for a more dramatic effect. If you have green eyes, you can choose a pine mascara (to deepen them) or a contrasting violet (to enhance them). The darker mascara shades are for daytime, the really bright ones are fun for evening.

Peachy keen

Here's a luscious frozen dessert that's kind to your diet at only 139 calories a serving. Beat at high speed in an electric mixer until thick and smooth: one and one-half cups nonfat dry milk, one-fourth cup water, 2 tablespoons lemon juice and 2 tablespoons granulated sugar substitute. Puree one 8-ounce can of sliced peaches in an electric blender and add to the milk mixture. Beat in the mixer until fluffy. Pour into an 8x8x2-inch metal pan and freeze 3 hours. Spoon into 4 parfait glasses.

Body wave

If your hair could use some bounce, a home body wave will make it fuller-looking and more manageable for about two months. Don't expect curl, though, and if you have very fine, hard-to-hold hair, this type of perm may not be enough. However, if you're disappointed with your body wave, don't quickly follow it with a regular perm. This would overprocess the hair and it could actually end up limper than ever.

Oil press

If you have very dry skin, try this special before-bedtime treatment. Cut a roll of surgical cotton into thin layers. Each piece should be twice the length of the dry area on your face where it will be placed. Saturate half of each piece in a light oil, then fold over the dry half. Press pieces on chin, neck, cheeks, etc. Leave on for 15 minutes, then blot up the excess oil with cotton balls.

CATTLE LICE CONTROL:
It's the time of year when cattlemen need to put up their guard against a pest that annually pilfers their pocketbooks of $100 million. Lice are the culprits, and they begin to reproduce rapidly with the onset of cool weather. They reach peak populations in late winter and early spring.

Uncontrolled, lice can soon infest a whole herd, because with cold weather, cattle tend to bunch up more and the pests can easily move from one animal to another. Heavy hair coats on animals during cold weather also afford protection for the parasites and allow increased reproduction.

Costs to the cattlemen -- both in control efforts and production losses -- increase as lice populations build.

There are two types of lice -- bloodsucking and biting -- and both infest cattle. Sucking lice pierce the animal's skin and suck blood. Biting lice feed on particles of hair, scale, scab and skin exudation.

Lice infestations irritate animals, causing itching, scratching and rubbing on fences or anything else available. This produces denuded areas, bruises and lacerations on the affected animal. Heavily infested animals will have an unthrifty appearance and will suffer weight reduction, decreased milk production, anemia or even death.

Lice infested animals may also be more subject to respiratory diseases such as pneumonia. Heavy lice infestations often stunt calves. Undernourished cattle of any age usually have the heaviest infestation.

Some cattle appear to be physiologically more susceptible to lice than others and thus, have higher pest populations. Such animals are called "chronics" or "carriers" and are usually instrumental in reinfesting the herd annually in spite of repeated insecticide treatments: Culling "carrier" animals is a helpful management practice in reducing lice problems.

Insecticide control of lice is not difficult to achieve, but there are some problems. Most insecticides don't kill eggs; therefore, retreatment is required in two to three weeks to prevent another buildup. However, if the initial treatment comes late enough in the season, there may not be enough time for the lice to build to economic levels again before warm spring weather.

Spraying and dipping infested animals with the proper insecticides is a very effective means of controlling lice, but the control measures are usually required when winter conditions are most harsh -- a time when cold stress is a good possibility and respiratory diseases prevalent. Some of this problem can be prevented by treating animals on a day when they can be dry before sundown.

Pour-on and spot-on grubicides labeled for lice are effective and considerably reduce the problem of cold stress associated with dips and sprays. However, the possibility of a host-parasite reaction is always a threat if the material is applied after the cut-off date for grub control. But this should be only a minor consideration, since most feedlots in the Texas Panhandle dip cattle year-round in dip vats charged with systemic grubicides and experience very little host-parasite reaction. Systemics that are labeled for lice control usually recommend a lower rate than that to control grubs, which would help reduce the host-parasite reaction.

The use of nonsystemic dust applied by hand or in dust bags would eliminate the possibility of host-parasite reaction. But, because of a lack of penetration of heavy coat hairs, dusts do provide an effective lice control as dips or sprays.

However, when used in preventative program, properly placed and maintained cages offer very effective control of lice. Bags should be hung in areas that cattle frequently or hung in such a manner that cattle are forced to use their dust bag station should be about thirty head.

The spot-on formulation chlorpyrifos is a new product that has been very effective against lice. The product kills all stages of lice -- eggs, nymphs and adults. One application adequate for season-long control if the entire herd treated and no untreated animals are later introduced into the herd.

Only a small amount of insecticide is required, so stress from soaking the animal with sprays and dips eliminated. The insecticide is not a grubicide, so it can be used anytime without fear of a host-parasite reaction. This product is not labeled for dairy animals.

Whichever lice control program is used, cattlemen should be certain to read label directions and pay particular attention to warning restrictions and pre-slaught intervals.

Additional information control of lice and other external parasites of cattle available by obtaining a copy, "Suggestions for Controlling External Parasites of Livestock and Poultry" from your County Extension Office.

TIPS ON BUYING FIREWOOD:

Since firewood purchases are not covered by consumer protection laws, it's the responsibility of the buyer to choose the right type of wood. Price comparison may be difficult since firewood may be sold by the standard cord, the face cord, or the truck load.

A standard cord is 8 feet long, 4 feet wide and 4 feet high, or 128 cubic feet. On the other hand, a face cord measures 8 by 4 feet on the face of the stack, with the wood cut into smaller pieces. The face cord measures about 1-3rd to 1/2 of a standard cord.

The best way to compare prices is to calculate the cubic feet of wood. Measure the stack and multiply the length by the width and by the height. Following this advice will help keep the unwary buyer from making a mistake out of what appears to be a bargain. Cubic feet measurements should always be used on truck loads of firewood.

After the truck is unloaded and the wood stacked, multiply the length, width and height of the stack in feet and divide by 128 to obtain the portion of cord you have. For example: feet x 2 feet x 4 feet equals 4 cubic feet; 48 divided by 128 equals .38 or about 1-3rd of a standard cord. A good rule of thumb is that a standard 1/2 to pickup without heavy duty springs can carry about 1-3rd cord.

Certain types of firewood also burn better than others. Live oak, hickory, white oak, post oak, red oak and pecan are excellent, long-burning wood with a high heat output. However, pine and cedar are softwoods that make excellent kindling but produce only short-burning fires. A combination of softwood for kindling, hardwood for heat and fruit or nut wood for aroma will make shopping around worthwhile.

Always choose dry, lightweight wood over green wood. Drier wood can give up to 20 percent more heat and is much easier to kindle than moist green wood.

Additional information about various types of firewood is provided in a publication "Buying and Using Firewood," available at the County Extension Office.

Personnel changes okay

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas Southern University's Board of Regents has approved personnel changes recommended by the school's newly-appointed president.

Last month, Spearman acknowledged he had accepted the resignations of three deans, the athletic director and the director of the Weekend College.

However, Otis King argued Spearman must have the board's consent to remove him. The regents agreed Thursday with King's interpretation and then voted to remove him as dean of the School of Law.

Walter J. McCoy, dean of the School of Public Affairs; James B. Jones, dean of the School of Education; Rod Paige, athletic director; and Thomas F. Freeman, director of the Weekend College, also were demoted.

Eight Gray County youth will match their foods and nutrition "How" against that of youth from surrounding counties at District 4-H Food Show on December 13 in Amarillo. The Foods Program will be held at 1:15 p.m. at Bonham Junior High school.

Competing in four classes for a senior division top place will be Amy Miller - Main Dish; Amy Brainard - Side Dish; Patrick Stepiace - Breads and Desserts; Shelly Cochran - Snacks and Beverages.

Congressman urges farmers to plan

VERNON -- If the Rolling and High Plains of Texas are to continue to be a strong agricultural area, helping meet the food and fiber needs of the world, we have to plan ahead and make the most of what is here, U.S. Rep. Jack Hightower told farmers and educators attending the annual meeting of the Rolling Plains Economic Program here.

And if farming is to be profitable enough for the family farm to survive, the farmer must play a greater role in the marketing process, including exports, Rep. Charles Stenholm told the group. Research and education, coupled with participation in the legislative processes to help Congress shape the 1981 farm bill and port policies, hold the key, the congressmen said.

Hightower, D-13th District, and Stenholm, D-17th District, were keynote speakers for the regional organization. It is sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service to promote Economic Growth and development in 30 counties of the Rolling Plains. The meeting at the Vernon Regional Junior College came two days after 11th speakers won reelection to Congress.

Hightower was presented the Knapp - Porter Award, the highest honor bestowed on citizens of the state by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, for his outstanding service to agriculture and family living. The award is named for Dr. Seaman A. Knapp, father of Extension education, and Walter B. Porter of Terrell, first farm demonstrator. Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, state Extension director, made the presentation.

Citing the limited amount of available farm land, Hightower said America must preserve that land and its quality. We also must consider using land we'd rather not use, he added.

"I'm very proud of the work being done by Texas A&M University and Texas Tech University and others on the utilization of arid land," he said.

Efficient use of water resources also must be planned, he stressed. Noting the "recent vogue of some environmentalists" to oppose any kind of water project, he decried their "demagogic approach" of labeling all such bills as "pork barrel projects."

Energy development, including nuclear, is another necessity for agriculture and the nation, he said. He cited research on wind energy being conducted at the U.S. Department of Agriculture research center at Bushland as an example of forward-thinking efforts which are needed.

Aquaculture is another area in which research and planning are needed, he said. "We cannot wait until we run out of time."

Stenholm emphasized that agriculture is an integral part of the foreign policy of America.

"Over half of what we are raising agriculturally today in America, we sell into the export market," the Stamford farmer-congressman said.

Seventy-five percent of the people live in the developing countries, but they have only 30 percent of the world's food supply, he noted.

In the junior division will be Michelle Houston - Main Dish; Johnnie Whinery - Side Dish; Robin Rohde - Breads and Desserts; and Sarah Miller - Snacks and Beverages.

All contestants earned the right to enter the district contest when they won top honors in county competition in November.

GRAY COUNTY 4-H CHRISTMAS PARTY

Everyone make plans to attend the 1980 Gray County 4-H Christmas Party. It will be held Thursday, Dec. 11 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Clyde Carruth Livestock Barn (Highway 60-East). The evening's activities will consist of: recreation, refreshments, opening of gifts and maybe even a few surprises.

HORSE JUDGING MEETING

All 4-H members interested in learning to evaluate and judge horses are encouraged to attend a horse judging meeting on Wednesday, Dec. 10 at 7 p.m. in the County Show Barn in Pampa. Jim Reeves of Pampa will be the coordinator and instructor for this meeting.

Our 4-H horse judging teams will be selected from members participating in this meeting and regularly scheduled meetings to be held throughout the next five or six months. Individuals not interested in being on the judging teams are welcome to participate in these meetings and learn to evaluate horses. This would help anyone make important decisions when buying horses in the future.

Listen To The Hum

It's the sound of growth, prosperity and progress in the Southwest. It's the sound of the Southwest making a bigger and bigger contribution to our nation's economy. It's the sound of electricity. Electricity that surrounds us with opportunities and jobs, pride and security. And with proper use of our resources, and new power plants using efficient, reliable fuels like coal, that sound is going to keep right on humming.

SOUTHWESTERN PUBLIC SERVICE

Technology chipping away foundation of unions

By ROGER GILLOTT
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — With the relentlessness of assembly-line machinery, time and technology are grinding away at labor unions' foothold on the nation's work force.

And those unions which survive into the 21st century will bear only a vague resemblance to those of today as they try to meet the needs of a post-industrial society, according to futurists, academicians and labor leaders.

As manufacturing moves increasingly overseas, unions will lose their traditional mainstay — blue-collar industrial workers — and be forced to turn their attention to the service sector, women and minorities if they hope to survive.

Traditional bread-and-butter contract concerns are likely to take a backseat to more amorphous issues that fall generally under the heading of humanism — flextime, boredom on the job, professional autonomy.

And the strike — labor's ultimate weapon — will become less viable as industries automate to the point that they can continue running without workers, at least until the machines break down.

"As automation occurs, the longterm trend may be toward fewer strikes but more longer strikes," notes Dr. Charles Maxey of the University of Southern California School of Business. "But the transitional stage will really be a crisis situation for unions, and the strikes that occur in that period will be very bitter because crafts will be fighting for their very existence."

Hank E. Koehn, the futurist for Los Angeles-based Security Pacific National Bank, sees the same trend, but warns, "There is no way they can stop automation."

Contending that unions' power will continue to wane as the nation's manufacturing base dwindles, Koehn insists, "In the 21st century, the strike simply will not be an option."

Koehn predicts, the unions' main alternative to the strike will be to make life uncomfortable for managers by staging slowdowns.

But Jack C. Blackburn, head of the Labor Center at the University of California at Los Angeles, and Rosemarie Short, a business economist with SRI International in Palo Alto, see a more basic change in the structure of labor-management relations, with unions seeking to participate in corporate decision-making.

Earlier this year, Douglas Fraser, president of the United Auto Workers, was given a seat on the board of financially troubled Chrysler Corp. in exchange for union concessions at the bargaining table.

But Blackburn insists, "I'm talking about more than a seat on the board. That only gives you a voice. I am talking about a more effective role, in decision-making, in planning the kinds of things that will be produced."

For Blackburn, an inescapable era of limits is just over the horizon.

He explains that hard choices in production lie not too far down the road, and workers are going to demand a say in those decisions.

Unions' biggest challenge, says Security Pacific's Koehn, will be adapting to a radically different kind of world.

"Their role came into existence with the Industrial Revolution," the futurist says. "Now they have to learn to adapt to a post-industrial society if they hope to survive."

But for the past three decades, as more and more manufacturing has fled overseas in search of cheaper labor, the nation has been edging further and further into its next stage — the service economy.

Taken broadly, the service sector encompasses workers from waitresses to computer programmers, from doctors to bankers, none of whom have provided fertile ground for unionism.

Since 1950, manufacturing has declined from 30 percent of the nation's Gross National Product to just over 23 percent.

PSYCHOLOGY TODAY

Remembrance of rooms past

By the Editors of Psychology Today

Students taking their finals at the end of the fall term may be able to profit from the findings of a recent experiment. If they are tested in unfamiliar classrooms, they might improve their performance by pausing for a minute or two before they start work and visualizing their own classroom.

That trick, according to experiments by Steven Smith, a psychologist at Texas A&M University, can overcome an effect that was discovered several years ago: it is harder to remember lists of words in a strange room than in the room where they were originally learned.

Smith assembled five groups of 10 students each in a basement lounge where 90 one-syllable words were read aloud to them from a tape recorder. The next day they returned for a recall test. One group took it in the same lounge; the other four groups took it in a fifth-floor room where they had not been before. In the unfamiliar surroundings, one group received no special instructions, and the rest got instructions designed to overcome the difficulties of remembering in strange circumstances.

Some were told to think of a room at home for three minutes before starting the test. Another group was told to think for three minutes about the downstairs lounge, writing down a list of its sights, sounds and smells. A third group received the same instructions as the third and saw slides of the lounge as well.

The students tested in the lounge recalled an average of 18 words correctly out of the original. Upstairs, the students who got no instructions averaged only 12 correct. Those who thought about home did even worse, getting an average of 9.6 words right.

But the students who were asked to think first about the lounge and the group who also saw slides of it got 17.2 and 18.8 items correct, respectively, doing as well or better than the students whose recall was tested in the place where they did their learning originally.

Smith is not sure whether students used particulars of the lounge as mnemonic "hooks" to associate with the words they wanted to recall or whether remembering details of the original room simply increased their feeling of comfort.

In any case, Smith is now seeing how this memory effect works out in practice by looking at the exam marks of students in classes that have been tested in familiar and unfamiliar classrooms. (This is often done in order to leave vacant seats between the test-takers.)

Smith's preliminary conclusions are that the environment seems to affect memory most strongly on essay tests which require people to retrieve information in the same way the free-recall word tests do. The environmental effect virtually disappears in multiple-choice or true-false tests, which call for recognition and not retrieval to get correct answers.

Smith is intrigued by another possible application of his study — in the courts. On trial for the assassination of Robert Kennedy, Sirhan Sirhan claimed that his memory of the events was fading and asked to be returned to the scene for a refresher.

The judge refused, saying that he knew of no scientific evidence linking memory to location and that he wasn't about to run his court on "old wives' tales." Smith's findings suggest that the judge had an alternative: he might have improved Sirhan's memory by having him think carefully about the assassination location or showing him slides of it.

GROWING OLDER

Harold Blumenfeld

'Tis the season to be wary

By Harold Blumenfeld

This can be the season for fraud as well as for holiday festivities.

For example, your mailbox may be stuffed with odds and ends of merchandise that you did not order. You do not have to pay for these unsolicited items or for the postage to return them to the sender.

Keep them. Give them away as gifts. Or throw them into the garbage can.

And do not pay for a C.O.D. package unless you are sure it is something you ordered.

If you are harassed to pay for unordered merchandise, write to the Consumer Advocate, U.S. Postal Service, Washington, D.C. 20260.

Of course, we should be extra cautious about opening the door to anyone at this time of year.

But if a door-to-door salesperson has been recommended to you, listen attentively to his or her offer. Then get a written statement or guarantee.

You can cancel an order of $25 or more within three days of purchase. Your reimbursement should include any sales tax.

Be especially wary about accepting merchandise from the sweet-talking voice on the telephone. The goods may be shoddy or defective.

Although you did not sign a sales agreement, you still have a responsibility to pay for these items. And the chances are good that the seller recorded your purchase agreement at his or her end of the phone line.

Those empty stores in your neighborhood may be occupied during the weeks before Christmas by fly-by-night operators offering merchandise ranging from dolls, toys and clothing to large and small appliances.

Will these stores become empty again after Christmas, with no one there to replace defective merchandise or make minor repairs?

It's better to do your shopping with reputable merchants who have been around for some time. Usually they will offer exchanges, repairs, cash refunds or credits toward other purchases.

If you have problems with shoddy merchandise or questionable sales techniques, take your complaint to your local Better Business Bureau.

By all means avoid the person who stops you on the street to offer an expensive product at a once-in-a-lifetime bargain price. When you uncork that bottle of imported perfume, it may smell like rancid water. And that fur stole could have been tailored from the hides of mangy cats.

Well into the new year, you can anticipate solicitations for charitable contributions.

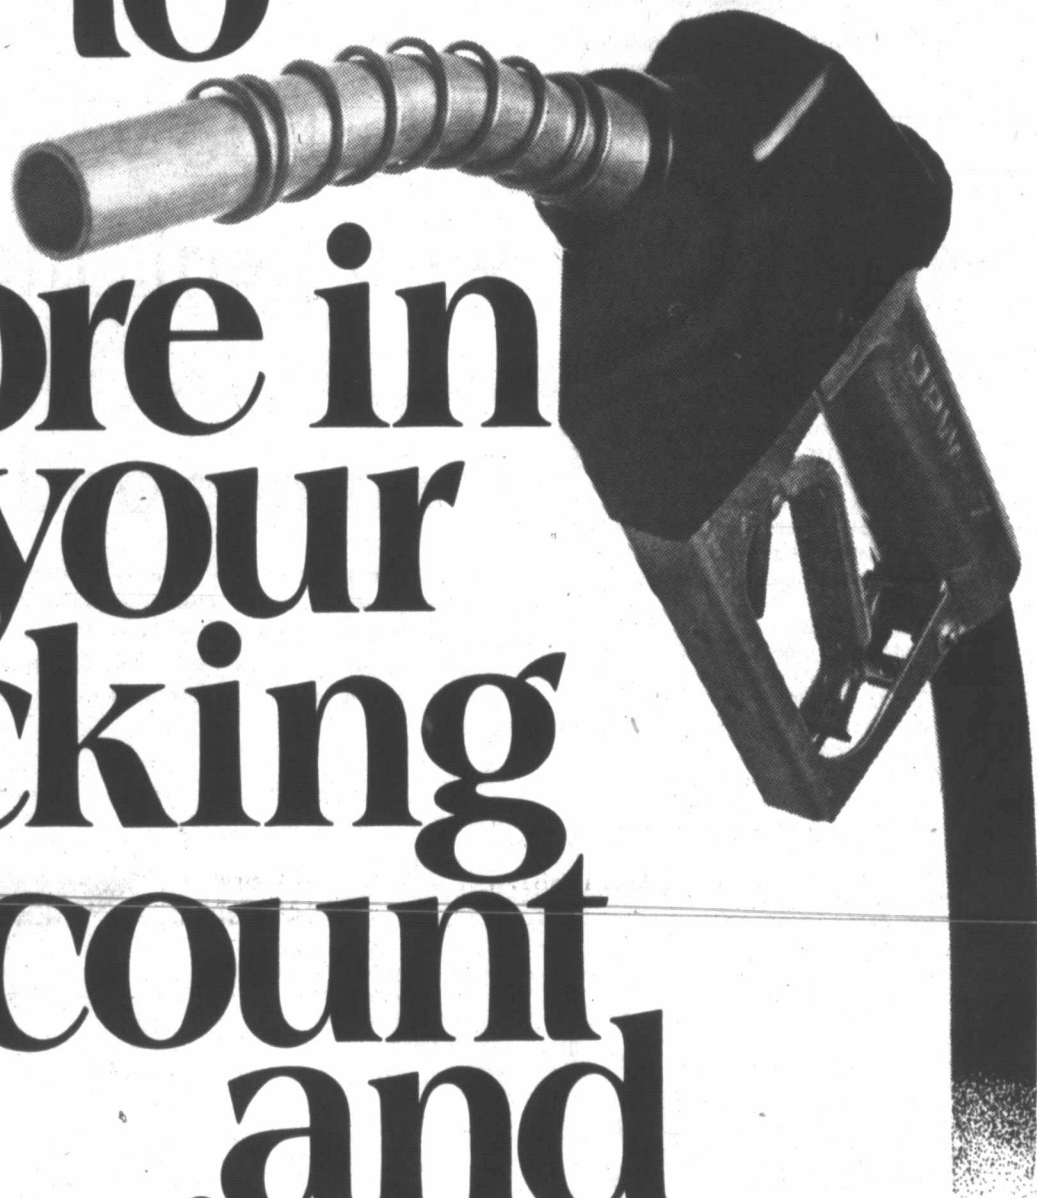

Of course, you know about the local charity drives to which you have contributed. But you might also wish to send money to some national charities.

Be aware that some of these organizations are reported to spend 80 percent of the money they collect for salaries and administrative expenses with little left over for Sweet Charity.

For information to guide you with your charity donations, write to the Philanthropic Advisory Council of the Better Business Bureaus, 1150 17th St., Washington, D.C. 20036, or to the National Information Bureau Inc., 419 Park Ave., New York, N.Y. 10016.

Preview 12/8 - 12/12

AS THE WORLD TURNS - Nick and Steve keep a close eye on one another. Joyce is having medical problems. Kim puts some hard questions to Nick.

THE GUIDING LIGHT - Ross is involved in a female tug of war. Andy has all he can do to appease Vanessa. Eve decides she'd rather fight than switch.

SEARCH FOR TOMORROW - Janet can't seem to compete with Jamie, and Ted is not helping matters. Politics may be Janet's undoing with Ted.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS - Victor keeps a watchful eye on Julia as he tries to trip her up. Kay is having medical problems. Nikki pulls the wool over Greg's eyes.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES - As she tries to become more independent, Liz goes to work for Doug. Todd, on the other hand, begins to work for Julie. Marie gets nervous when Tom begins to ask a lot of questions about her relationship with Alex. Lee begins to exert more pressure on Doug to return to her. Neil learns that borrowing from a loan shark is a risky business and tries to get out from under his thumb.

EDGE OF NIGHT - April loses patience with Draper and demands that he choose between her and Emily. Logan sides with Deborah in her theory that Raven may have something to do with the murders of Nadine and Eliot. Cliff finds out Raven's motive for wanting Jamie. Gavin is deeply upset when Jody leaves. Calvin upsets him further by bringing up the past.

THIS WEEK: Draper struggles with a decision that could ruin his life. Logan puts pressure on Raven.

RYAN'S HOPE - Kim is spreading lies. Seneca apologizes to Elliott for hitting him. Claudius implicates Barry to help clear Jill. Jill fires him for this. Elliott calls things off with Kim for business reasons. Rose and Ryan grow closer. Michael takes Kim to his houseboat to make love.

THIS WEEK: Jill is in deep trouble as her trial goes badly. Jack and Rose are in for more bad times.

ALL MY CHILDREN - Though Nina still loves him she will call it quits with Cliff. Palmer supports Nina in her decision. Donna and Palmer go skiing in Vermont. Estelle reveals she was raped by Billy Clyde. Estelle is pregnant but can't risk abortion without danger of becoming sterile. Estelle admits to Donna she wants to marry Benny.

THIS WEEK: Leora clings to Joe as her lifesaver. Erica decides to take matters into her own hands.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE - Vicki brings ransom money. Tina is nearly seduced by one of her abductors. She escapes briefly but is recaptured. They give her ether. Melinda returns from the mental hospital and stays with Peter but they do not sleep together. Peter and Jenny cool it until their divorces are final.

THIS WEEK: Vicki is terrified about Tina's experience. Katrina reacts badly to her break-up with Marcello.

GENERAL HOSPITAL - Heather makes her second escape, promising Sarah she'll get back before bed check. Heather, trapped in Diana's kitchen, finally gets a chance to escape. Luke's plot to use Corky as a cover to smoke out the Cassidine Afghans almost works, but the Cassidines are too shrude for him. Luke and Alex suspect that they are being followed, and with the ruse of new information about the Cassidine deal, Alex gets Luke to drive her home.

THIS WEEK: Heather will fight to get Jeff back at all costs. Burt is the thorn in Rick's side.

THE DOCTORS - Brad tells Greta that it's all over between them. Darcy urges Brad to tell Greta what he really thinks of her. Garner asks Ashley to see him so they can sort out her confusion together. Greta decides to tell Brad the whole truth. Darcy makes a move on Brad that is rejected. Natalie overhears a slightly tipsy Darcy tell Greta that Brad already knows she slept with Billy.

THIS WEEK: Katherine vamps Jason but Nola fights back. Billy has to move faster than he planned.

TEXAS - Alex is in a coma but Ryan tells Iris that Alex is dead. Justin is arrested for Alex's murder and Iris becomes vengeful. Alex's will is read and Dennis is surprised to find that he will get one-third of the estate. Sam tells Elliott she suspects that Clipper and Billy Joe were somehow involved in Alex's murder.

THIS WEEK: Justin tries to clear himself with those around him. Iris leans on Elliott.

ANOTHER WORLD - Rachel is convicted of second-degree murder and is sentenced to five to eight years in prison. Rachel gives the baby to Russ and Tracy because she doesn't want to burden Mac with raising Mitch's baby. Miranda makes herself available to Mac, and Cecile is having the same thoughts. Amy tells Kit about Brad's mental breakdown and violent tendencies.

THIS WEEK: Things are falling apart for Rachel. Mac can't deal with the hurt the situation has caused him.

Handicapped by wreck, producer begins anew

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Jim Stacy says, "I wanted to do something without a bunch of people telling me what to do."

Stacy, who lost his left arm and leg in a motorcycle accident in 1973, stars in the NBC movie "My Kidnapper, My Love," a film he also produced. In fact, he put the whole package together.

"I have quite a bit of creative control," he said, "but it didn't start out that way." Freedom means a great deal to Stacy, who in his youth played football and knocked about Europe teaching beautiful women to ski. During his rehabilitation, he refused artificial limbs because he felt they are too confining. Instead, he gets about nimbly with one crutch.

He optioned the novel "Dark Side of Love" by Oscar Saul, and put up his own money for a story treatment.

The two-hour movie, which also stars Mickey Rooney and Glynnis O'Conner, will be broadcast Monday night.

It is an offbeat romance between a hustling newspaper vendor and the troubled rich girl he kidnaps. The movie, which has a surprise ending, was filmed entirely in New Orleans.

The movie was made more than a year ago, but the network didn't schedule it until recently. Stacy said the title was changed to "My Kidnapper, My Love," because NBC's president, Fred Silverman, thought "Dark Side of Love" was too down.

"I chose Mickey Rooney to play my partner and brother because I wanted a brighter image," said Stacy. "Because of his lovability it takes the edge off the dark side. I had to fight them to get Mickey."

"He brings a touch of unreality to the mainstream of the dark side of the kidnapping. People know Mickey Rooney. If you get somebody else it becomes threatening."

Stacy, who starred last year in "Just a Little Inconvenience," said, "You have a handicapped person hopping around doing things that will surprise the audience. He does things you've never seen before in a film. How I move is different from 'Just a Little Inconvenience.' What we do is pick up a guy in a working situation. We don't explain his handicap at all."

He said he would like to spend more time in the future producing movies than acting in them.

"I've moved in a different direction," said Stacy.

Marie going to make it on her own

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - A lot of people are talking about the "new" Marie Osmond. She asks, "What's wrong with the old Marie?"

It's natural that people would talk. Marie Osmond, who fascinated millions as a teen-age performer with her brother Donny, has grown up. She's just turned 21. She's moved away from the family in Utah to her own place near the NBC studio. She's broken off her engagement and is dating a number of different men.

And, minus Donny, she's going solo with her own musical-comedy series premiering Friday, Dec. 12 - "Marie."

"I'm a little afraid of the word 'new Marie,'" she says. "But as someone said, now that you're 21 people seem to allow you to do more than when you were 16. People listen to your opinions now."

While insisting that there's "no new Marie," she also says, "I think people will see a side of me they haven't seen before."

She stresses that she's her own person, makes her own decisions. "You know, people have this thing about Marie Osmond, who decides what I do," she says. "Like I have no brains, and that I don't make my own decisions."

She pokes gentle fun at her own image, but reminds you that "I'm an old-fashioned person" with all the tested virtues and deep religious beliefs.

Miss Osmond agrees that she is now a sex symbol, but certainly a chaste one who remains buttoned up. Despite her maturity, she will display no décolletage or bare legs. In the opening number of her premiere show, she sings "I'm Coming Out" wearing a slit dress - but beneath it she has on tailored red leotards.

Miss Osmond, who made her debut at the age of 3 on the Andy Williams show, was given carte blanche when she signed with NBC. She decided the field of situation comedy was overcrowded, but variety was wide open. She has her own philosophy for venturing into such a risky area.

"When we did 'Donny and Marie' for four years it was just two kids," she says. "We did a lot of things live and it was a lot of fun. Then variety became so plastic and so perfect it wasn't fun to watch. One of the things we're going to do, which I think will be a real benefit to variety, is that we'll be 75-80 percent live on tape. If you fall on your face or don't make a costume change in time people get a kick out of seeing you make mistakes."

Her show will stress comedy, but guest stars who don't feel comfortable in comedy will not be dragged into doing sketches. Similarly, non-singing guests will not be forced into attempting a tune.

"We have a commitment for seven shows," she says, "and with seven shows you like to play it safe. But the feeling upstairs is that maybe it's not so good to play safe. Maybe it's better to try to stretch yourself. To try to give variety a new approach."

For one thing, her shows will be directed by Terry Hughes, formerly of "The Monty Python Show." She says, "He has a very off-the-wall approach, but one thing Terry says he's not going to do is make Marie Osmond into Monty Python."

Her NBC contract also calls for TV movies.

Ups and downs plague ballet

NEW YORK (AP) - "We've had our phoenixes and our ups and downs," says Robert Joffrey about the Joffrey Ballet. Right now the company is "having a phoenix." It's rising from the ashes of a September-to-February shutdown, and is in the midst of a four-week New York season, with three revivals and 11 premieres.

The reason for last year's shutdown is a common one in the arts - lack of money. There were six weeks of working capital left and $600,000 in bank loans. The board hired a fund-raiser. The National Council on the Arts made a 3-to-1 matching grant of $200,000, which was done, so the company was eligible for another grant of $50,000.

The Joffrey Ballet, Joffrey says, "is a contemporary ballet company. One of our most important things is to commission new ballets and, when financially possible, new scores. Also, we revive certain ballets from the past, mainly from the Diaghilev era - since 1910, basically."

Live music, as well as new works, is important to Joffrey.

New Saturday Night Live

is old show with new faces

LOS-ANGELES (AP) — As could be expected, the new "Saturday Night Live" has been undergoing a sort of national purity test, a verification of its worthiness to the "SNL" tradition.

Is the new "Saturday Night Live" with its all-new cast and crew, up to the standards of the Radner-Belushi-Aykroyd original? Will it rely too much on format ties to the old "SNL," thus stifling new comedic growth? Does the new "SNL" continue the institutionalization (and the parallel dissipation) of the latter-day "SNL," or will it retrieve the adventurous attitude of the early "SNL?"

Well, it's like this. The new "Saturday Night Live" is essentially crude, sophomoric and most of all, self-consciously "cool." It is occasionally funny. It is, in other words, the old "Saturday Night Live" with new folks.

The TV-comedy-troupe path is pretty thick with travelers these days, so the new "SNL" crew can't be expected to benefit from that underground image so lucratively exploited by the original "Not Ready for Prime Time Players."

And, it's pretty clear that "SNL '80" doesn't intend to carve out its own comedy hatched on the TV prairie. Under producer Jean Doumanian, "Saturday Night Live" will define "risk-taking" as being a little bit naughtier, perhaps a little raunchier; it won't wander too far off the beaten path.

Thus, when the new "Saturday Night Live," which made its debut Nov. 15, turned to politics, it came up with this: "Rosalyn Carter: 'Jimmy, we didn't want to win that silly of election anyway... Now you can release all those lustful thoughts.'"

Jimmy: "I want to be naked."

"...in the Oval Office!"

"Talk dirty to me, Jimmah!"

And so on.
