HIDE AMONG BODIES OF SLAIN TO ESCAPE BEING KILLED

NEW ORLEANS, April 18. (AP)—Thirty Americans, men, women and children, tragic and nerve-shattered, arrived in American waters aboard the steamship Cefalu today, refugees from the latest outbreak of banditry in Nicaragua.

Many of them were penniless and with nothing left save the clothes they wore. They docked at New Orleans tonight, bringing with them tales of massacre and guerrilla warfare.

Bodies on Ship

The bodies of two of the nine Americans killed in the Nicaraguan bush during the past week, lay in the hold of the Cefalu, whose pennants flew at half staff as she steamed up the Mississippi river.

These were Martin Coffin, H. C. Peley, Philadelphia, slain at the head of a detachment of Guardia Nacional trying to bear off a bandit attack on Puerto Cabezas, and William L. Selser, formerly of Jackson, Miss., and Hank A. Standa, of Fort Worth, who were slain by bandits who were killed from ambush. Bandit forces fell on a group of plantation overseers gathered at Logtown the same day and slaughtered four of Selser's co-workers.

Two Survivors

The only survivors of the Logtown attack, James Lloyd and Othey Wilson, both of Fayetteville, Tenn., also were among the Cefalu's refugees. They were under care of a physician for nerve-shock.

These two saved their lives by playing dead among the bodies of their co-workers while bandits looted and burned Logtown. When the bandits withdrew at dark, they made their way by separate routes through the jungle to reach the Wawa river and Puerto Cabezas, where they collapsed.

Flames renewed Sabinas raids came in word from Logtown that the commissary there was being raided and that one or more had been killed.

Goes Inland

W. L. Selser, Jackson, Miss., left Logtown, in a motor launch, and started into the interior with a detachment of Nicaraguan National guardsmen to investigate. From a distance, hiding in the brush, they saw the logging of Logtown and hastily returned to report to Captain Peley of the main force.

Peley and Selser and his party returned to Logtown on narrow gauge motor cars, the only means of heavy travel through the jungle.

The bandits, hiding along the tracks, opened a volley of fire, instantly killing the marine captain and mortally wounding Selser, who was rushed back to Puerto Cabezas by the guardsmen. Selser died aboard the Cefalu, which was standing by in the harbor on Tuesday.

With the national guard in retreat, news reached the port of general raising and looting of villages, and marine Lieutenant Clyde Derrah, aided by Ralph Beardsley, a civilian, prepared for another advance on the interior with reorganized guardsmen.

Sent Into Forest

The detachment, composed of 18 men, traveled on a flat car, piled with sand bags, behind which machine guns were set up to assure passage through the jungle snipers. As they left Puerto Cabezas, word was received that the raiding party numbered more than 500 men, equipped with the most modern machine guns and other arms. On the heels of these advances, the fruit companies hastily sent word to their overseers to abandon the great plantations in the interior and to bring all Americans to the coast.

But the move was not planned. Bandits not only cut off Lieut. Derrah's detachment by burning bridges behind him and tearing up railroad tracks, but a large force descended on Moss Park, near Logtown, where the plantation overseers had gathered to perfect plans for the evacuation. Four American plantation overseers—E. P. Davis, John Bryan, William Bond, and Robert Wilson—were killed in the surprise attack. Their bodies were mutilated beyond recognition.

STREET FIGHT DURING MADRID'S WILD SCENES

This picture, flown from Madrid to London in an NEA service airplane and transmitted across the Atlantic by radio, shows a street disturbance in Spain's capital during the wild demonstrations that followed the overthrow of King Alfonso. The men at the extreme left are fighting, while at the right are members of Civil guard, or police. Notice the steel awnings pulled down over the shop windows, these being typical of Spanish cities. After its transmission by radio to New York, this picture was speeded thence over the telephone wires of the American Telephone & Telegraph.

PARKER HELD FOR BIGAMY

WAIVES PRELIMINARY HEARING SATURDAY ON CHARGES

Dawson P. Parker, local linotype operator, is being held in the Gray county jail on a charge of bigamy in lieu of a $2,500 bond set by James Todd, Jr., yesterday afternoon when Parker waived preliminary hearing.

When placed under arrest, Friday noon, Parker was in the employ of the News-Post. He came to Pampa eight months ago as an employee of the Evening Times. He was placed in jail in the early afternoon, it is expected he will post bond today.

Records in the Lubbock courthouse show Parker was wed in Lubbock county in 1928 to Mildred Chisum who in a letter to the sheriff's department claimed that a divorce had not been granted.

Parker was wed to the daughter of a prominent Pampa family early in February of this year.

The charge was filed before District Attorney Raymond Allred by Deputy Warren Belcher after he received the letter from the woman who calls herself Mildred Chisum Parker, and who lives at Baxter, Mo. Parker said he obtained a divorce from a previous wife before he married Mildred Chisum.

Before filing charges, Deputy Belcher had a telephone conversation with the district clerk of Lubbock county concerning a marriage license issued to Parker, Paul Owen, Slaton Jeweler, uncle of Mildred Chisum, arrived in Pampa Friday night and identified Parker.

Parker decided to waive preliminary hearing soon after his father, J. M. Parker of Gorman, an attorney, arrived yesterday afternoon by automobile. He said he would defend his son, the eldest of three children. He was making arrangements last night to set his son at liberty today. He declared that he knew nothing of his son's marriage here.

When questioned by officers soon after he was arrested, Parker asserted that he knew nothing about the author of the letter received by officers. Late yesterday afternoon, he requested that he be allowed to talk with his wife.

When arrested Parker had more than $200 in currency and $1,000 in postal savings certificates in his pockets, officers said.

SPAIN PLANS ELECTIONS FOR SELECTING NATIONAL CABINET

NEW REPUBLICAN CONSTITUTION TO BE WRITTEN TO CHANGE TENTATIVE GOVERNMENT FOR PERMANENT FORM OF DEMOCRACY

By CLARENCE DUBOSE
Associated Press Correspondent

MADRID, April 18. (AP)—The new republic of Spain is planning to hold its first elections early in May to set up a "national assembly" and establish a constitutional government to supplement the present provisional government.

The Associated Press learned from reliable sources today that present plans are to speed up the elections, scheduled for June by the former government, and to hold them at the latest within the first two weeks in May. Members of constitutional assembly will be selected, it was said, but senators and deputies to parliament will not be voted on.

Designed to be in operation by June, this assembly will write a new republican constitution and arrange for the transfer of power from the government of President Niceto Alcalá Zamora to a permanent one.

Presumably the monarchists, socialists, republicans and communists will advance candidates for these elections. The socialists, lately allied with the republicans, may give them a stiff fight in the balloting. The communists, of course, will fight all three groups. However the vote may be divided between republicans, socialists and communists, the total vote against the monarchy is expected by the republicans to give former King Alfonso the answer he is waiting for in Paris. He has said he would accept the verdict of the people as to his permanent exile.

After this program is completed, it will be the problem of the republicans, socialists and communists to work out their own rival claims for political power. The proposed national assembly may name a republican cabinet to succeed the provisional one, confirm the present cabinet or order future elections to select a permanent president by direct vote.

For the present, the republic will convert into public parks, playgrounds and schools the great landed estates of the royal family in Madrid and elsewhere in Spain. The government's decision does not mean confiscation of the private property of the nobility and gentry. That may come later, but there is no indication of such a move yet.

Steps to prevent the continued transfer abroad of money and securities by members of the aristocracy is being seriously considered by the government.

Provincial governors have been instructed by the government not to attend church services in their official capacities but they may go as citizens if they wish.

W. J. Rogers and George Stander of Shamrock were at the Kerley-Crossman post of the American Legion advertising the grand opening of the Legion's new 60 Shamrock, Thursday night. Attractions will include a street dance, bridge tournament and carnival shows. Many local legionnaires are making plans to attend.

The City Council of the P.-T. A. will meet at the high school at 9:30 o'clock Monday afternoon.

FORCE OFFICER TO TURN OVER ACCUSED NEGRO

CROWD IS QUIET AFTER LYNCHING DONE AT UNION CITY

SHERIFF SHOT IN BREAK

PRISONERS MADE DASH FOR FREEDOM AT CORPUS CHRISTI

UNION CITY, Tenn., April 18. (AP)—George Smith, 18-year-old negro accused of attempting to attack a white girl, was taken from jail here today by a crowd of men and hanged from a tree in the county courthouse yard while hundreds of persons thronged the grounds.

Sheriff F. Jack Hubbs and Deputy Sheriff J. P. Holloway said "a great big crowd" assembled in front of the jail about mid-afternoon, forced their way in an dragged Smith out after smashing the lock on the jail door.

"We did all we could to protect the negro," Holloway said, "but we didn't want to take his place." He added he saw no guns in the crowd. The lynching was accomplished quickly and most of the crowd dispersed in orderly manner. The negro's body was cut down 45 minutes later and taken to a mortuary. The men had not been identified definitely as the attacker.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Luther Johnson, of Union City, said he "doubted" any arrests would be made.

CORPUS CHRISTI, April 18. (AP)—County Jailor W. J. Bennett was shot and seriously wounded tonight when two prisoners made a break for liberty. Leo Cody, held on a burglary charge, was captured before he got clear of the building, but M. E. Tennyson, held on a forgery charge, made good his escape.

Joe White, night guard, was locking the prisoners in their cells for the night when he was felled with a milk bottle. The men took his pistol and keys and started for the outside door, where they were met by the jailer, who drew his gun. They opened fire and Bennett fell, taking a shot at Tennyson, who was unlocking the door. Other officers appeared and seized Cody, but Tennyson made his escape. The men made no effort to release other prisoners.

JONES SPEAKS TO STUDENTS

GRAY COUNTY'S RURAL SCHOOL PUPILS GET CERTIFICATES

Congressman Marvin Jones of the Panhandle district last night urged seventh-grade graduates of Gray county rural schools to be open minded and tolerant, "to be anxious to know the real truth about science religion and life."

After the address, Supt. John B. Hesseby handed diplomas to 53 graduates from every common school in the county. The school children were guests in the afternoon of C. B. Akers, manager of the Rex and La Nora theaters, at the La Nora where "Body and Soul" was screened.

The congressman discussed the qualities of an ideal citizen. Most people who think they are tolerant, he suggested, are anxious to prove their own convictions or preconceived ideas. A tolerant man is anxious to change a lifetime conviction for a truth if necessary, he said. Courage and optimism were mentioned as qualities of a good citizen. He deplored the "blind foolish optimism that refuses to face facts."

The Coca Cola and Dr. Pepper bottling works furnished drinks for the children in the afternoon. Mr. Jones was introduced by Ivy Duncan. Rev. A. A. Hyde delivered the invocation.

The association is the largest and oldest in the United States.

AMARILLO MISSING GIRL IS DISCOVERED BY PAMPA MAN

After eluding officers and her parents for two weeks, Gertrude "Babe" Kysar, 12, of Amarillo, was recognized here yesterday by a local filling station attendant and was later arrested and brought to police headquarters by L. L. Renner, traffic officer.

Gertrude told officers that she was "sick and tired of being treated like a 12-year-old." She said her parents had the attitude that she was "a mere child."

She was asleep in bed with a girl friend at a cottage court when the officers knocked on the door. Until confronted by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kysar of Amarillo, the girl maintained that her name was "Babe" Hurley and that she came to Pampa from Chicago. The filling station youth said that he used to keep company with the girl's sister while he lived in Amarillo and that he recognized Gertrude by her resemblance to her sister.

Officer Renner said that although some of the girl's answers to his questions were inconsistent, she might have concealed her identity if the youth had not been positive in his identification. The girl said she was 18 years old and "some might have thought she was that old," officers declared.

Gertrude said she had been in Pampa since she disappeared two weeks ago in Amarillo when she was sent to a grocery store by her mother. She was the object of a wide search by officers. The girl accompanied her parents back to Amarillo yesterday afternoon.

BARRYMORE WOMAN'S ART MORE THAN SUBTLE IN "LOVE DUEL."

WRITER BELIEVES IT IS DIFFICULT FOR PEOPLE OF AMERICA TO UNDERSTAND CONTINENTAL ATTITUDE TOWARD LOVE AND SEX

By ARCHER FULLINGIM

Many of the best seats down at the front were filled with dramatic-loving Pampans, Friday night when Ethel Barrymore, greatest American actress, moved with stately grandeur over the stage in the Amarillo auditorium. Indeed, if it had not been for the big trek from the Gray county capital somebody might have been left holding an empty sack for the crowd was none too large. As usual, the crowd was about half Amarillians.

Of course, Miss Barrymore is without an equal on the British or American stage. Her art is as subtle and beautiful as Paderewski's and Gull-Curi's. The play she brought to Amarillo was something new on the stage for the Panhandle. It exuded old-world sophistication. It dealt with what are unmentionables to good Methodists and Baptists. Indeed, if one had listened to the comments as the crowd left the auditorium he would have heard, "Why does she waste her time on trashy plays? Why doesn't she appear in a play that is uplifting?" The play was "The Love Duel."

It is always difficult for Americans to understand the Continental attitude toward love and sex, as distinguished from one another. Your sophisticated European regards them as separate emotions and thinks nothing of it. Your American regards them as inseparable, and if they are not, he thinks they should be. It was difficult for the average spectator Friday night, to understand how Miss Barrymore could battle so resourcefully and successfully to conceal her love for her lover from him in their "love duel," and then in the last act say with a bias nonchalance, "an illegitimate child has such a trick of looking like his father!" It was probably mere startling when she presented hers to his father. Hard to understand —yes. But need we condemn attitudes because we do not understand them?

Did Miss Barrymore need such a play to express her love? At any rate she used it to portray lovely emotions, moods, passions—beauty—with her voice, hands and body. Where has anyone ever seen such hands? Certainly not on any stage in the Panhandle. And the voice: cool and sophisticated and languidly bored in the first act; cynical and hysterical in the second act, and

NITRO BLAST IS FATAL TO TONKAWA MEN

THREE ARE DEAD FROM BURNS IN FIRE AT KILGORE POOL

TWELVE DIE IN REFINERY

MANY BLAZES IN OIL AREAS WITHIN 60 HOURS TIME

(By the associated Press)

Oklahoma and Texas oil field fires and explosions killed and burned to death 15 persons over a period of 60 hours, ending with a blast in the Thomas oil field, southeast of Tonkawa, Okla., Saturday, when three men died in a nitroglycerin "shot" blast.

Twelve of the fatalities were caused by an explosion in a Wichita Falls, Texas, refinery, and two fires in the Kilgore, Texas, area.

Homer Wycosay of Tonkawa, Okla., Albert Versheer, of Enid, Okla., and William Knode, home unknown, perished in the Tonkawa field explosion early yesterday.

Claude Upchurch, J. W. Smith and R. C. Holcomb were fatally burned Friday night in the Kilgore fire, the flames lapping up the premises of the Upchurch and Allen No. 2 Brightwell well caught fire, probably from a lighted match in the hands of a cigaret smoker.

Upchurch was part owner of the well. Smith and Holcomb were pipe line workers.

Mrs. Kate Dodson, her two sons, J. D. Howell and J. B. Howell, and her step-son, Burt Bishop, were burned to death in their tent home near Kilgore Thursday morning when a leaking oil pipe line caught fire, the flames lapping up the tent while the quartet slept.

R. K. Krull, G. R. Walker and J. A. Horne were victims of an explosion and fire in a refinery at Wichita Falls Thursday, and Joe Lamb and M. H. Pettaway were burned to death in the same way near Kilgore when the backfire of an automobile ignited a gas pocket adjacent to a battery of oil tanks.

County Engineer Will Be Named

Engineers of the Panhandle are invited to discuss building road and various road problems with the county commissioners next Saturday.

Gray County Yield Gains

NO LOCATIONS MADE FOR PAST WEEK IN FIELD

Last week was one of those weeks in which the production of oil increases, and apparently for no reason known to the probation advisory committee whose job it is to keep production in the Panhandle down to 37,000 barrels, and, incidentally, to discourage drilling operations as much as possible.

The production of Gray county for the week was 42,644 barrels, an increase of 4,184 barrels over that of the preceding week. The output of the five oil-producing counties of the Panhandle was 55,324 barrels.

There were no locations in the county. In the two weeks preceding April 11 Gray county had no locations nor completions. Last week there were three completions as follows:

Beck et al's No. 1 Sullivan, section 135, block 3, total depth, 3,058 feet; completed for 72 barrels of oil and eight million feet of gas.

Operators: Royalty & Producers' No. 8 Harrah, section 150, block 3, total depth, 3,216 feet; completed for 400 barrels on the swab.

Texas company's No. 1 Webb, section 12, block A-9, total depth 2,798 feet; 56 barrels on the swab.

Production of the counties compares with that of the previous week:

Carson—244 wells, producing 3,607 barrels, a loss of 52 barrels.

Gray—757 wells, producing 42,644 barrels, a gain of 4,184 barrels.

Hutchinson—507 wells, producing 8,600 barrels, a gain of 1,355 barrels.

Moore—34 wells, producing 221 barrels, a loss of 31 barrels.

Wheeler—48 wells, producing 253 barrels, a decrease of 97 barrels.

WHEAT PRIZE UP By JOHN F. BOUGHAN Associated Press Market Editor CHICAGO, April 18. (P)—Despite a handicap from weakness shown at times in stocks, wheat soared today to above the season's previous price level. Active buying of wheat for Europe, about 2,000,000 bushels from North America, including some United States wheat acted as a stimulus, and so too did announcement that France had enlarged the quota of foreign wheat that millers would be permitted to use. In addition, drought continued over the spring wheat belt both in this country and Canada, with dust storms in Canada reported as the worst that so far have prevailed.

Wheat closed strong, 1/2 cent off to 1/2 up, corn 1/2 lower to 1/2 higher, and provisions unchanged to 5 cents decline.

Increasing the order of speculative buyers of wheat was the fact that the official weather forecast gave little hope of important moisture next week in United States grain territory. The chief immediate strengthening factor at the outset, however, was word that the French government had increased by 5 per cent the amount of imported wheat allowed for mixture with French wheat. This was generally regarded by traders as implying that French home grown supplies had been reduced to a point where necessarily forced foreign buying.

Increasing receipts of corn made feed grains relatively weak. Provisions were easy, affected by downturns in hog values.

Closing Indentments: Wheat, July 67 1/2, 68 1/2, Sept. 67 1/2, 68 1/2; Dec. 67 1/2, 68 1/2.

CATTLE TRADE BETTER KANSAS CITY, April 18. (P)—Receipts of cattle around the eleven market circuit this week numbered 185,173 as compared with 176,896 last week. Excessive receipts at most markets together with an unstable condition at eastern dressed markets caused values on fed steers, yearlings, heifers and mixed yearlings to decline 6-100 below prevailing levels of a week ago. Chicago reports that values have dropped back to a par with those of 1928. A few Texas grassers sold at 4.75-6.15 at Kansas City and St. Joseph. Stockers and feeders declined in sympathy with killing cattle and values are mostly 50-75 lower. The bulk fed selling at 5.75-6.50.

Aggregate number of hogs totaled 430,882 against 397,853 last week. Most points around the circuit show declines of 15-35 on offerings scaling 250 lbs. and down while heavier weights are 10-25 lower.

Values on lambs took a rather uneven turn this week with woolled lambs closing on a steady to 50 higher bids, clippers strong to 25 higher while springers were strong to 50 higher. However, at St. Joseph spring lambs were quoted as fully 1.00 lower. Receipts totaled 431,483 for the week against 357,288 last week.

not for unsettled weather in the belt. Liverpool was slightly worse than late and prices opened 1 to 3 points down. As the weather map indicated unsettled weather and the long distance weather forecast was regarded as unfavorable the market promptly rallied due to covering by shorts and more or less trade buying and prices advanced 10 to 12 points from the lows.

PUBLIC NOTICE!

Montgomery Ward & Co. has filed a complaint with the Federal Trade Commission against Unfair Tire Advertising.

... Newspaper and magazine advertisements are being published throughout the country in which nationally advertised tires are compared with a "mail order" tire . . . We have been asked if the "mail order" tire referred to is our RIVERSIDE. The reason for this is obvious. Ward's is the oldest mail order house in America. So, when anyone says "mail order," most people naturally think first of Montgomery Ward & Co. No! the tire referred to is not Ward's Riverside!

RIVERSIDES

Are Equal to or Better Than ANY Tires Made Regardless of Name or Price!

Montgomery Ward & Co. is one of the largest distributors of automobile tires in the world. And for 19 years, Riversides have been one of the best known tires in the industry. Millions have been sold. They are made by one of the largest rubber companies in America. They are built to the most rigid tire specifications known. They are the finest quality it is possible to produce. They are backed by the fairest, squarest guarantee ever written, and they sell for less than other nationally known tires of equal quality. These sound like extraordinary claims. But they are facts. And Montgomery Ward & Co. stands behind every word.

The big tire companies have found it impossible to meet Riverside quality at Riverside prices—so most of them now sell what are known as "second quality" tires at the same prices as we charge for Riversides, a first-quality tire! Furthermore, a recent check disclosed that nearly 90% of all the newspaper advertising of the leading tire companies is being devoted to their second quality tires. Why? Evidently to confuse the reader. The reader notes that the prices are the same as Riversides, and assumes that the quality is the same. But the nationally advertised tires offered at Riverside prices are not equal to Riversides in quality. Always compare QUALITIES as well as PRICES. The table at the right lists some of the best-known first-quality tires that do compare with Riversides in quality—YOU compare the prices!

GOVERNMENT TAKES NEW STEPS TO CUT SMUGGLING ON BORDER

MEXICAN OFFICIALS TO EFFECT GOOD WILL OF NATION

EL PASO, April 18. (AP)—For the welfare of its people and to further good relations between the United States and Mexico, the Mexican government has taken new steps to prevent smuggling into the United States.

Javier Larrea, representative of the treasury department of Mexico, conferred here today with Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary to the treasury, on problems confronting customs services of both countries.

He announced Mexican authorities would place soldiers at strategic points in the El Paso territory to assist in stopping smuggling into the United States. The closing recently of a resort opposite Fabens, Texas, and 30 miles south of El Paso, was described as part of the new program.

"This is being done," Larrea said, "for the welfare of the Mexican people and for the good of relations between Mexico and the United States."

Mr. Lowman said his visit to El Paso was for the sole purpose of inspecting customs work in this territory and to talk to the Mexican official, and had no connection with the opening of certain Texas ports along the lower boundary for 24 hours daily.

"Only the ports at Brownsville, Hidalgo, Laredo, Del Rio and Eagle Pass will be allowed to hold open 24 hours daily," he said. "All other ports on the United States-Mexico border will retain the hours they now have."

Permission for the five Texas ports to adopt the 24-hour basis was granted for reasons of "public necessity and convenience," he said. Pointing out that roads development in Mexico had resulted in a heavy increase in automobile traffic into Mexico in the vicinity of the five cities and demand for new hours on the bridges.

"This problem does not exist elsewhere on the boundary," he said.

FLORENZ ZIEGFELD TO BE ONE OF JUDGES IN NAMING MISS UNIVERSE

GALVESTON, April 18.—(Special)—Florenz Ziegfeld, famous gloriator of the American girl and noted expert of adolescent psychology, has definitely signed with the International Beauty Pageant to come to Galveston, Texas, June 13 to 17, and sit in on the judgement of Miss Universe.

This marks a departure for the professor of the Follies, in whose shows appeared the world's most beautiful girls. Mr. Ziegfeld never before ventured out of New York to such an event. That the sincere editorial principles of the campaign caused this noted beauty expert to accept the appointment there can be no doubt, for time and again Mr. Ziegfeld bitterly opposed, so-called national beauty contests.

Already the ace of directorial geniuses of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot, King Vidor, agreed to be a member of the tribunal. Recently the committee was augmented by one of America's noted front cover artists, John Held, Jr. There will be four nationally known personalities who will make up the committee of judges whose task it will be to hand out over $4,800 in prizes beginning with the major award of $2,500 which will go to Miss Universe.

Many metropolitan newspapers have begun launching their respective campaigns to locate the finest types of vital, American girls.

MARLIN PLAYS HOST TO EAST TEXANS TODAY

REGIONAL MEETING OF C. OF C. TO BEGIN ON SUNDAY

MARLIN, April 18. (AP)—East Texans were flocking here tonight for the fifth annual convention of that region's chamber of commerce.

hood who will rally forth to Galveston in quest of the prizes, fame and stage awards that await them. The foreign girls are being selected, several of which will soon be on their way to America.

The drastic move to discourage the flat-chested, hipless, flapper type of girls from entering this national event has brought forth a wave of criticism from such girls and their followers, who stress laid on naturalness of beauty, abstinence from smoking and drinking, and the avoidance of too much cosmetics on the part of contestants has aroused favorable comment from a vast army of the robust, healthy types of girlhood and their supporters.

In addition, good-will delegations from the South Texas and West Texas Chambers of Commerce were registering, hoping to get a few pointers from their neighbors they could take home for local application.

The staff of the East Texas organization, including Guy A. Blount of Nacogdoches, president, and Hubert M. Harrison of Longview, general manager, had set up headquarters, and the Marlin Chamber of Commerce, convention host, had completed its entertainment arrangements.

Tomorrow will be given up to special religious services in the churches, a co-mingling of the delegates and an address by United States Senator Morris Sheppard. Texas' senior senator will speak before a mass meeting in the First Methodist church on "Religion, The Basis of Society and Government". Directors of the regional chamber and their wives will be guests at a dinner.

Houston and Dallas had laid elaborate ground work for their campaign for the next convention, and Lufkin, a last-minute bidder for the 1931 meeting, was prepared to make an effort to wrest the honor from the two other contenders. The next convention site will be named Monday afternoon.

Special trains bearing boosters from Texas' two largest cities will arrive in time to live up to the campaign for the next convention.

Governor Ross S. Sterling will deliver an address Monday afternoon. United States Senator Tom Connally, citizen of Marlin, will speak Monday morning.

Oil Field Noise Closes School

LONGVIEW, April 18. (AP)—Not content with infringing upon church lots, the Gregg county oil boom is extending its scope to schools as well.

Because the noise of drilling machinery of eight nearby wells drowned out the voices of teachers, a Gregg county school has closed its doors.

The school is the Spring Hill school seven miles northwest of Longview. The principal of the school is Roy Newman.

For several days classes were held with difficulty. Then the principal told the pupils to gather books and go home. That school was over for this term.

"Perhaps by fall we can resume our work," he said.

Sale of his lease on the Davis hotel was announced yesterday by Tex Kelly. Purchaser was O. V. Rose of Abilene, brother of Tom and B. W. Rose.

Amarillo Fights Dandelion Pest

AMARILLO, April 18. (AP)—Home owners of this city, supported by inspectors and the police department, have renewed their fight against dandelions.

Squirt cans and pure creosote are the weapons of the renewed attack. The city forestry department has tried the new method with success, and now wisanders of the oil cans can be seen on every lawn. A few drops of creosote in the crown of the plant does the work.

A city ordinance making it a finable offense to allow the dandelions to grow was passed a year ago and city officials have announced that it will be enforced more vigorously than ever since discovery of the new method of destruction.

CHRYSLER STRAIGHT EIGHTS

DUAL HIGH GEARS

Enjoy the Difference

There certainly is a difference, a vital and thrilling difference, between Chrysler cars and other motor cars.

For one thing, design is different—and motor. The Chrysler Eights have an extremely low center of gravity. Low-slung lines create refreshing grace and beauty—low-slung weight gives perfect balance and greater safety.

Engineering is different—more advanced. The Chrysler Eights have the exclusive Multi-Range 4-speed transmission with Dual High gears and a quick, easy gear shift. One high gear for flashing pick-up in traffic springs—another high gear for the open road—both internal-mesh type gears.

Performance is different—more fascinating. Only a Chrysler will give you Chrysler speed, Chrysler acceleration and Chrysler smoothness.

Chrysler performance speaks for itself. The Chrysler Imperial Eight, for instance, now holds twelve A. A. A. Coaches Road Speed car speed records for one to five miles.

Drive a Chrysler—any Chrysler—and learn for yourself the differences that make Chrysler cars so completely outstanding on the road, the masters of every situation.

CHICAGO BROKER WILL TRY SOLO FLIGHT TO PARIS IN THREE WEEKS

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., April 18. (AP)—Capt. Roy W. Ammel, Chicago broker, who waited almost 10 years until he thought he could afford to attempt a solo flight to Paris and then was prevented from taking off last fall by weeks of bad weather, will try again next month, officials at Roosevelt Field heard today.

After he was finally forced to abandon the Trans-Atlantic venture last November, Captain Ammel made a non-stop solo flight to the Panama Canal Zone from New York. Subsequently he cracked up in Panama and was badly injured.

While his Lockheed low-wing monoplane was being rebuilt at the factory at Burbank, Cal., Captain Ammel, recovering from his injuries, was studying navigation. He was expected here with his airplane in about three weeks, ready to take off for Paris. He plans to start about May 15.

His monoplane has been equipped with a retractable landing gear, which will increase its cruising speed from about 180 miles an hour to more than 200. It has a 425-horsepower Wasp motor and will carry between 550 and 600 gallons of fuel.

One of Mr. Wrigley's best customers remarks: "Kissing is about to be carried so far that ladies will get tired of it and it will utterly go out of fashion."

It is about out of fashion, but we might pause for just a moment on the 58th anniversary of the battle of San Jacinto, establishing the independence of Texas. It is easy for us to forget what we owe to those who have gone before, and even in more recent times.

Long faces or smiling ones make all the difference in the world in the spirit of a community. Let's SMILE.

We fret because business is not so good. If a hardware store in Pampa, ten years ago, should have done the business we have done this month, they would have thought there was a boom on. Good or bad times are relative matter.

KID STUFF DOESN'T APPEAL TO MITZI

Little Mitzi Green, 10-year-old talkie star, objects to being a "green kid." She is a "character actress" and takes her work seriously. At the left you see her in character.

HOLLYWOOD, April 18. (AP)—A character actress at the age of 10—that's what Mitzi Green is and what she prefers to be.

She doesn't want to be just a child in motion pictures; she says there are plenty of them.

In appearances Mitzi is 10 years old, but she discusses such topics as the parts she plays, measles, other children, bicycle riding and Hollywood like one of twice her age.

"I don't ever want to be just a regular kid in pictures," she says. "I've never been a real sweet child but once and that was in 'Tom Sawyer' when I was playing Becky Thatcher."

"But even then, Becky wasn't just an ordinary sweet girl. She was smart and had a lot of character."

The only daughter of a former vaudeville team, Joe Kono and Rosy Green, Mitzi grew up in the theatre, almost constantly in contact with grown-ups.

At the age of three she began impersonating actors and actresses she met. About a year later her parents allowed her to make a public appearance. And at six she was a vaudeville headliner.

While Mitzi was appearing in a Los Angeles theatre a year and a half ago, a director who was looking for a precocious young lady for a picture saw her and hired her.

Her contract was renewed the other day at a big salary increase—Mitzi gets $750 a week now.

"Kid stuff," in films or in real life, doesn't appeal to Mitzi, who was named after the Hungarian star, Mitzi Hojcs.

"Oh, yes, there are some children living at the hotel here," she says, "but I really don't have time to see them much. You see, they are busy with school, dolls and one thing and another, while I have to spend a great deal of time learning my parts."

In Seventh Grade

"I go to school three hours a day, which may seem like a short time, but our work in class is really very complete. I'm in the seventh grade now, but soon I expect to be in eighth."

"I have heavy ideas on impersonations, and a theory that people have to have apparent peculiarities before you can mimic them. That's why some actors are hard to impersonate. It sounds like a slam, but it isn't."

"Some stars are great actors, but they just don't do obvious things an impersonator can overemphasize."

LEFORS CITIZENS PROUD OF FINE PLANT AND SCHOOL OF MOST MODERN APPOINTMENTS

BUILDING IS IN SHARP CONTRAST TO AREA

LEFORS, April 18. (Special)—Citizens of Lefors are proud of their school building and school system. Probably no other school in the Panhandle has been praised as highly by the public as has the Lefors school.

To the passerby, the buildings present a contrast to the surroundings: A forest of oil derricks and a maze of roads, shacks, and plants. It is a modern plant in a city of temporary buildings. The building is not only attractive from outside, but the interior arrangement and equipment are even more pleasing to the eyes of trained teachers and school officials. When constructing the building, the board did not make the mistake so common in the construction of school buildings and other institutions: They did not use all the funds in the construction of the building, but considered the complete equipment of every department in the most approved modern manner.

Occupies Half Block

The building is of the one-story unit type, measuring 125 by 250 feet, and occupies almost a half block. Ample provision has been made for the science, home economics, commerce, and industrial education departments, and the classrooms, library, study rooms, and gymnasium.

The auditorium and gymnasium are the best that good construction and equipment can produce. In constructing the building, $175,000 in bonds were used.

Salient features of the building are the auditorium and gymnasium. The latter is sufficient for a standard basketball court, and will seat several hundred spectators. Adjoining the court are boys' and girls' dressing rooms, and athletic director's office. The gymnasium has equipment for most forms of indoor athletics. Seating capacity of the auditorium is 550. The stage has all modern conveniences.

Modern Kindergarten

The kindergarten room is up-to-date. It has a private exit, enabling the children to enter and leave without mingling with the older pupils. A separate toilet has been built as a part of the unit. Games may be played inside the kindergarten. The kindergarten department is free. Every child of kindergarten age in the district is welcome to its benefits.

Because of large vocal valuations for school purposes, no library or laboratory fees are charged students. Valuation of the district according to tax rolls is $9,383,000, and this with the state funds received on the 700 scholarships, eliminates any necessity for fees.

The faculty consists of 25 regular teachers; six in the high school division, 17 in the intermediate, primary, and kindergarten. More than half of the faculty have degrees, and 22 teachers are members of the State Teachers association.

A varied curriculum is offered Lefors school pupils. A student has opportunity to study cooking, sewing, commerce, physical training, and music, the latter including piano.

Feminine Fancies

By HOLLYCE SELLERS HINKLE

The cultural life of a city can be fairly well judged by its women's clubs, and the worth of the club personnel can be fairly well judged by the leaders.

Thus the qualifications of Mrs. C. T. Hunkapillar and Mrs. H. H. Hicks which made the seventh district, Texas Federation of Women's clubs elect them president and secretary, respectively, at last week's convention have reflected honor not only upon the two women, but upon the local clubs and upon the city of Pampa as well.

It is such women as Mrs. Hunkapillar and Mrs. Hicks who have put their cooperation in worthy community undertakings whenever they are called upon.

Women returning from the seventh district convention in Memphis are delighted with the proceedings there. They were particularly impressed with the president's dinner. The function represented weeks of hard work. There was an improvised canopy of blue, with twinkling stars, and hundreds of bright blossoms to make the guests forget they were in a banquet hall and feel they had discovered a garden spot which seemed more like a delightful fancy than something material.

School life in Pampa has long ceased to be a matter of routine, and scores of interesting projects are gaining real enthusiasm among the pupils.

In a New Zealand paper the following item was printed recently: "At the way from Pampa, Texas, came the following letter to the Wellington Chamber of Commerce last evening: 'How are you getting along? Just fine, I hope. I am in the fifth grade of Woodrow Wilson school at Pampa, Texas. I am very interested in New Zealand, and because I am studying it in my geography and history, I would like very much if you would send me a booklet of Wellington and New Zealand.'"

The letter, written by Edward Reddell of Mrs. M. E. Craft's high fifth grade class, was promptly answered and facts were received which made New Zealand seem a real, live place and much nearer than it was. It was indeed the information had been read in a geography book.

Similar information concerning Washington, New York, Chicago, and other cities has been asked and given Friday afternoon, when she was hostess to the members of the Queen of Clubs, and special guests, at her home, 1019 East Francis.

MRS. GLOVER HOSTESS FOR QUEEN OF CLUBS AT ORIENTAL PARTY

One of the most unusual and artistic affairs of the season was given by Mrs. John P. Glover, Friday afternoon, when she was hostess to the members of the Queen of Clubs, and special guests, at her home, 1019 East Francis.

An oriental scheme was carried out in the decorations and refreshments. The hostess was dressed in oriental costume, and to further emphasize the oriental atmosphere, incense was burned in the bridge rooms. Soft light shone from Japanese lanterns.

Mrs. L. N. McCullough received high club prize, Mrs. J. E. Murfee high guest. White elephants were given as special prizes as follows: first grand slam, Mrs. L. N. McCullough, first little slam, Mrs. Porter Malone, first Ninety honors, Mrs. W. T. Fraser, first hundred honors, Mrs. Neal Powers, Low table cuts were received by Mrs. J. H. Kelly, Mrs. O. H. Booth, Mrs. Carl Beiston, Mrs. J. E. Murfee, Mrs. Lawrence, and Mrs. George Walstead. Prizes were wrapped in Chinese newspapers.

At the tea hour, Chinese food was served, each plate carrying a lemon fruit, decorated with Chinese characters, as individual favors.

Those enjoying this most unusual affair were: Mrs. Raymond All Mrs. O. H. Booth, Mrs. Carl Boston, Mrs. E. M. Conley, Mrs. A. B. Goldston, Mrs. J. H. Kelly, Mrs. L. N. McCullough, Mrs. W. H. Nichols, Mrs. Hal Peck, Mrs. Neal Powers, Mrs. Will R. Saunders, Mrs. C. H. Wallace, Mrs. H. C. Wilson, Mrs. J. E. Murfee, Mrs. H. D. Kees, Mrs. Lawrence, Mrs. G. George Walstead, Mrs. W. T. Fraser, Mrs. Porter Malone, Mrs. J. W. McCormick, Mrs. F. M. Culberson, Mrs. R. L. Champion.

MOOSEHEART LEGION WILL HOLD BENEFIT

At the last regular meeting of the year, the women of the Mooseheart Legion planned a public dance to be given Friday evening, May 1, at the Locust Grove club, West Francis street. A splendid orchestra will be provided.

The price of admission will be not less than fifty cents worth of groceries, which will be turned over to the welfare association for distribution among the needy. Any contributions will be gladly accepted from persons who are interested.

Pampa Baptists Attend Meeting

Members of the Pampa First Baptist church who attended the Sunday school convention at Ashola, April 14, 15, 16, are as follows: Mrs. W. B. Henry, Miss Ruth Henry, Miss Inez Barrett, Mrs. T. W. Jamison, Mrs. Robert Lee Banks, Mrs. Robert Williams, Mrs. Herman Whately, Mrs. Clyde H. Carver, Mrs. Adell Adams, Miss Geneva Groom, Miss Florence Bolan, Mrs. E. L. Grove, Mrs. G. C. Malone, Clifford Solomon, and the Rev. C. E. Lancaster.

Wrinkled Frock Is Smart in Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile, April 18. (AP)—Wearing wrinkled Paris frocks is the latest dress fad among Chilean society women.

Foreigners express amazement when they see a woman wearing a smartly designed but badly creased costume, but they are told it is all the rage.

Dresses from Paris—or any other style center—are so highly prized that they are worn just as they are taken out of the box, leaving the wrinkles in. That's how you can tell they are fresh from an incoming boat.

Budget Arranged By County Clubs

The 4-H club pantry demonstration budget for Gray county is 770 containers for families of five to seven members and 320 cans for families of two gardens, ranging from 22 to 31 varieties, according to Miss Myrtle Miller, home demonstration agent.

County Club Women Sell Many Products

Total value of dairy and poultry products during the last three months was $10,509.37, according to figures compiled by Miss Myrtle Miller, country home demonstration agent.

In January 45 members reported, and in March 78 members reported. Dairy and poultry products sold included 36,415 gallons of milk, 500 pounds of butter and 4,541 dozen eggs. Part of the home demonstration work lies in the keeping of household records.

MAD MARRIAGE

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN Author of 'HEART HUNGRY,' etc.

Gypsy McBride, 19-year-old typist in a New York office, meets Jim Wallace at the home of her wealthy cousin, Anne Trowbridge. Gypsy is miserable because she has learned Alan Crosby, back from a year and a half in Paris studying art, no longer cares for her. Wallace tells Gypsy that he has been fitted by his fiancée. To spite the girl he cares for he asks Gypsy to marry him. They are married next morning and depart for Forest City, his home town.

At Jim's home they are greeted by his aunt, Miss Ellen Wallace, who immediately becomes hostile to the girl. After a few days Miss Wallace moves to a cottage down the street. She arranges a family dinner party at which Gypsy meets the other relatives. Mrs. Sophronia Nicholson, who is Jim's aunt, and Lucia Wallace, his cousin, snub Gypsy while another cousin, Abbie Manley, is friendly. At the dinner table Gypsy admits she has worked for a living. Jim resents the admission to this news and jumps to his feet. "I've had enough of this!" he exclaims.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXII

Once before Gypsy had seen Jim Wallace angry but that day she had never seen him so angry. He was looking at her with a white-faced fury with which he turned on the group at the table.

"I'll tell you what I think of you!" he cried. "I think you're a bunch of snobs. Small-minded snobs. Do you hear that? Trying to stir up trouble, that's what you're doing! Well, it won't work and you might as well know it here and now. What right have you to look down on a person who works for a living? What right have you to think you're better than anybody else? I'm ashamed of you. Gypsy and I can get along without you all right. We'll do it too—"

"Now wait a minute!" Ben Wallace's tone was conciliatory. "You don't mean all you're saying, Jim."

"Ben, you keep out of this!" Lucia Wallace delivered the command to her husband sharply.

Before she could say more Jim had turned toward Gypsy. "Come on," he said. "We're going home."

Ellen Wallace's face had slowly contorted as he spoke. Now her cheeks were scarlet. "I never thought I'd live to see the day my own brother's son could talk to me this way!" she exclaimed. "I'd never have believed it possible!"

"And I wouldn't have believed you'd invite guests to your house to sneer and make fun of someone, Aunt Ellen," Jim shot back. "Well, go ahead. You can talk to your heart's content, only we won't be here to listen!"

Harriet, coming from the kitchen, heard the last words and dropped a tea cup. There was the sound of crashing china.

Jim put his hand on Gypsy's arm and led her from the room. There was a moment's delay in the hall for wraps and then they were out of the house.

The fresh air was comforting against Gypsy's smarting cheeks. It was a cool and invigorating breeze with a faint hint of spring in it. Twilight had turned into evening and pale stars glimmered in the cloudless sky. The street was very still.

Neither spoke. The sound of their footsteps was exaggerated by the silence. Gypsy cast a quick, sidelong glance at Jim. He was walking with his head up, lips in a straight, drawn line, his eyes directed ahead. Jim seemed entirely unaware of her presence.

It was less than a block to the Wallace home. They turned when they came to the brick sidewalk and walked up to the porch. With his hand on the door Jim hesitated.

"Want to go in?" he said. "Or would you rather drive?"

She was sure he was eager to get the car out. "I'd rather drive," she front door, went inside and switched on the lights. When Jim returned from putting the roadster away for the night she was waiting in the living room.

"Think I'll read a while," Jim announced, picking up a newspaper from the table.

"Then I'll say goodnight," Gypsy told him. She went through to the kitchen to be sure Matilda had boiled the rear doors. As she passed through the living room again Jim was slumped behind his newspaper.

Upstairs in her own room Gypsy reverently laid aside her new coat. She had forgotten about the expensive costume until the reflection in the full-length mirror reminded her. The money might as well have been spared, Gypsy thought bitterly. Still, it was a lovely gown. She turned, noting the trim, graceful lines of the skirt with satisfaction. Well, the high and mighty Wallaces could say what they wanted to about her lowly past. She had a better figure than any of them.

It was a long while after she had put out the light and crept into bed before Gypsy fell asleep. When she awoke next morning the room was flooded with sunlight. Gypsy sat up, rubbing her eyes. The hands of the clock on the bedside table pointed to 10 minutes of nine.

She was out of bed instantly, pulling on her clothes. It was the first morning since Aunt Ellen's departure that she had failed to breakfast with Jim. She hurried out into the hall. The door of Jim's room was open, revealing covers thrown back on a tumbled bed.

Matilda was clearing the table when Gypsy reached the dining room.

"Has Mr. Wallace gone?" the girl asked.

"Yes, Ma'am."

"You can bring me my breakfast," Gypsy said. "All I want is fruit and toast and coffee."

There was a full day ahead. Miss Christopher was coming that morning. Gypsy reflected, to bring samples of material for draperies and to talk about the furniture for the living room. She had forgotten to notify the electrician about the trouble with the kitchen light. She must manager to get the marketing done and be home again by 11 o'clock.

Matilda returned with the tray. As she set the dishes before Gypsy she said: "Cora can't come to-row. She sent word by Sam." Saturday was the usual cleaning day. "Why can't Cora be here?" Gypsy asked.

"Sam says her mother's awful sick, Cora's gone over to take care of her."

"Remind me to telephone the agency," Gypsy answered. "Will you bring me my notebook from the desk, please?"

The coffee had been boiled too long. Gypsy hoped Jim's had been better. As she ate the toast the girl looked at the newspaper.

"Remind me to telephone the agency," Gypsy answered. "Will you bring me my notebook from the desk, please?"

The coffee had been boiled too long. Gypsy hoped Jim's had been better. As she ate the toast the girl looked at the newspaper.

"Listen!" Jim Wallace snapped the words out. "Lucia was to blame for that mess. She started the others. Oh, I know Lucia all right! It's time she heard a lot of things and I'm glad I had a chance to say what I did. I've had about as much of this business of relatives mixing into my affairs as I can stand! Maybe they'll begin to realize it!"

The blue eyes snapped angrily. It was almost as though she were looking at a stranger. Gypsy thought. This was not the kindly, considerate Jim she had become accustomed to. She had meant to show that she was grateful and all that she had succeeded in doing was to infuriate him.

They left the restaurant soon afterward. The drive home was shorter than Gypsy expected even though Jim kept the car at lower speed. It was necessary because they were on a main highway with an almost constant stream of traffic.

Gypsy kept to her side of the seat. The night's events had set her to thinking how little she really knew of Jim Wallace. Instead of bringing them closer in sympathy as one might have expected the breach between them had widened. Jim had his troubles and she had hers. Was he thinking of Marcia Loring, the girl he should have married, Gypsy wondered. For the thousandth time she tried to guess what would be the outcome of this mad adventure.

The roadster turned into the avenue on which the Wallace home stood. Gypsy glanced at Aunt Ellen's cottage as they passed. There were no lights at the windows.

Jim stopped the car for her and Gypsy got out. She unlatched the (AP)—A spring ensemble of black chiffon with white-spangled trimming is worn by Mrs. Samuel Herrick, newly elected president of the Woman's Democratic club of the District of Columbia. The wide sleeves of the black jacket are trimmed with wide bands of the white spangled material. A contrasting band of black chiffon edged with brilliant black beads the white chiffon blouse.

They met few travelers. The roadster lunged powerfully against the ribbon of pavement. Above the roar the engine and throbbing engine Gypsy would have had to shout to make Jim hear her. Each time she looked at him his eyes were on the road ahead.

It was good to be out in the night like this. It gave Gypsy a chance to think. The chill wind beating against her face seemed to wipe away some of the feverish humiliation of the dinner party. Lucia Wallace's hateful voice still rang in the girl's ears. She knew she should forget that nightmare of accusing faint but the vision persisted. Gypsy's anger had melted long ago. Wounded pride was slower to heal. She was grateful to Jim for defending her but now his gloomy silence was frightening.

They must have driven for an hour and a half before he slackened speed. Then he glanced toward her and asked, "Cold?"

"Just a little," Gypsy admitted.

"Time to be turning back," he said. When they reached the next cross-roads, Jim swung the roadster to the right. Gypsy had no idea of their whereabouts. She was surprised when soon after she saw a brilliantly lighted thoroughfare ahead.

"Where are we?" the girl asked.

"Hampton," Jim answered. "It's not much of a place but they have a fair restaurant. Thought we'd better stop and give you a chance to get warm."

The restaurant looked quite ordinary from the sidewalk but inside Gypsy found tables covered with spotless linen. Everything about the long room had an air of cleanliness. The proprietor came to meet them.

"Hello, Joe," Jim greeted him.

"How's the coffee?"

"You can't get better. You know that," the man said, smiling, and offering the menu.

"We'll give it a try," Jim ordered coffee for two with cheese sandwiches and crullers. After the man had gone Jim went on, "Joe's German. His wife does the cooking and you should see her! I'll bet she weighs 200 pounds."

"Do you come here often?" Gypsy asked.

"Oh, only when I happen to be in this neighborhood. Haven't been here for a long while."

Across the room Gypsy caught sight of herself in a mirror. She drew out her vanity case and busied herself with the tiny powder puff. Before she had finished, steaming cups of coffee were set before them.

"Smells good," Jim said, sniffing the fragrant aroma. "Didn't know I was hungry but I guess I am."

Over the coffee and sandwiches Gypsy told him what she had been trying to say ever since they had left his aunt's home. "I want you

Synopsis: The influential Chicago underworld character known as "Uncle" unwittingly discloses to John Wayne that "Limy Doc" Simon, his son, "Gumman" Gryde, with "Spider" Schiltz and Chink Dorson, "pulled" the St. Clair diamond job. Thus Wayne gains a real clue for his return upon the kidnappers who returned his daughter to him, insane and dying, after receiving as ransom the St. Clair family gems. Wayne, whose family name of St. Clair has been dropped to further his cause of vengeance, is aided by the clever detective, Mr. and Mrs. Williams, who sail Simon to England and become patients in a nursing home run by Simon, Gryde and Dr. Machado. Schiltz, unfriendly now with Simon, lives near by. Athirst for revenge, Wayne goes to England.

Chapter 39 CROSSED BROADS Entering the inn one evening to buy a drink and hear more of the local gossip, ere going up to my room, I came suddenly face to face with a very broad, tall, strong man whose hard face, cruel mouth, and broken, flattened nose were vaguely familiar.

I had never seen him before, but I had most certainly seen either his photograph or a newspaper reproduction thereof, obtained for me by William, and enclosed in one of the many letters that had awaited my arrival at Uncle's. I was, moreover, world-perfect, from William's detailed description of this man, as I whom I hoped and intended to bring to justice—my justice.

Luckily, he was glancing at the evening paper, and I had plenty of time in which to pull myself together, decide upon my course of action, and remember the invaluable historic teachings of Mr. and Mrs. Williams. He was played as thrilling a little scene—with a thread of comedy in its grimness—as any in the tragic drama of my quest. For, ere long, Chink Dorson was warily and cunningly questioning me as to the character, reputation, habits, way of life, comings and goings, of Squire Theophilus Webb of Witherby End, his old acquaintance, Spider Schiltz.

Yes, I was actually being cross-examined by Chink Dorson, prize-fighter, burglar and gunman, whose cunning subtle brain and cold determined courage had brought him to the top of his profession as the right hand man of the notorious Englishman, "Doc" Ghin.

And then was played as thrilling a little scene—with a thread of comedy in its grimness—as any in the tragic drama of my quest. For, ere long, Chink Dorson was warily and cunningly questioning me as to the character, reputation, habits, way of life, comings and goings, of Squire Theophilus Webb of Witherby End, his old acquaintance, Spider Schiltz.

I gave the fellow all the information I could, and every possible help, spicing of seeming to know too much. For a magnificent new scheme, or rather enlargement of my original scheme, was forming in my mind. It, as Williams H. William had written to me, Simon had probably been released from prison before the others, and had then gone to Uncle, collected the Unsetting Sun and other loot that was the common property of the gang, and bolted with it to England—it was more than likely that Spider Schiltz had followed him in the hope of getting his share, and that Chink Dorson, having served his term and been released, was now in hot pursuit of both of them.

If this were not the situation, why should Chink Dorson be here at Witherby End, cunningly collecting the sort of information that any burglar gathers before "cracking a crib"?

If Chink Dorson's intentions were any but the worst possible, why didn't he drive straight up to his old friend's front door, and, being shown into his presence, extend the glad right hand of friendship, and gather his in brotherly love to his broad and palpitating bosom?

No. Adding together the sound deductions that William had made, in my own education base and Chink Dorson's present conduct, I felt pretty confident, my certain, that he was at Witherby End neither for his own health nor that of Spider Schiltz, but for his own enrichment and the punishment of one of the two men who had double crossed him.

How utterly splendid! what a wonderful and beautiful example of poetic justice it would be—if these two wolves destroyed each other, leaving me free to deal with the remaining pair!

For the weak spot in my scheme, the weak link in my chain of vengeance—and the one that kept me anxiously awake at night—was the danger that I might be arrested and tried as the slayer of the first or second of my victims, before I had time to deal with the third and fourth.

After that, it would not matter. Nothing would matter. But I scarcely dared to contemplate the horror of failure and my being hanged before my work was finished; or at best, sentenced to life-long imprisonment in England, as I had been in America.

I had to bear in mind that my life-sentence still awaited me in America, and that I might easily receive the same in England if I escaped hanging. So what a grin and lovely jest if I could a little help Chink Dorson to kill Spider Schiltz, and then greatly help the English law to kill Chink Dorson for the murder!

Both would be punished without endangering my freedom to pursue the other two.

Both would, in the measure, be punished by, and through, me. And they would wholly and entirely be punished on account of me—through their killing of my daughter and their stealing of my diamond, the bone of their contention and the cause of their mutual destruction.

Could I recommend decent accommodation to my newly arrived acquaintance?

He would only need it for a few days. He just wanted to have a look at Witherby End and its environment. He was thinking of settling down in the country and having a bit of sport, and this place had been recommended to him.

I could. What was wrong with this inn? I had found it very comfortable.

Could one get in without a lot of fuss, at night, if one happened to be a bit late? and Mr. Chink Dorson

Both would, in the measure, be punished by, and through, me. And they would wholly and entirely be punished on account of me—through their killing of my daughter and their stealing of my diamond, the bone of their contention and the cause of their mutual destruction.

LEFORS CITIZEN

Why certainly... I myself often went night-fishing, and all one had to do was to walk in at the back door. Very confiding people, these country folk. Honest and simple. Crime absolutely unheard-of hereabouts.

To cut a long story short, I chaperoned Chink Dorson with a skill and tenacity born of my burning lust for vengeance. I watched him from afar, by day, and from near-by at night; and in the end, at long last, as I sat in the dark shadow of a great Cedar of Lebanon, I saw Chink Dorson, whom I had followed—and by a short cut over the park wall, forestalled—creep quietly from tree to tree, up the moon-lit drive that led to Squire Webb's big house.

Whether Chink Dorson, with the burglarious skill that had made him eminent and famous, himself opened the door by which he entered the house, or whether it had been left open for him by a servant whom he had bribed or whom he had planted there, I do not know.

What I do know is that in a state of exultant evaluation, I followed him and, guided by the sound of voices, came straight to the door of the room which proved to be Mr. Webb's library.

Hearing the sound of a struggle, which were followed by a dead silence, I could not forbear to open this door, to see with my own eyes the consummation of the first part of my dream of revenge.

On the floor, obviously dead, lay Spider Schiltz.

The first of my enemies had paid the penalty. He had received the punishment directly due for stealing my diamond, the act which led to the death of my daughter.

And now for the punishment of the second one. Softly closing the door, I tiptoed away to where the shadows of the landing were darkest, and crouched down beside, and partly behind, the pedestal of a ghostly looking statue. A minute later, the door of the library opened, softly closed again, and the figure of Chink Dorson passed between me and the moonlit window on the other side of the broad landing.

A snake on the floor! No wonder that tomorrow Wayne kicks it, as eagerly he plans a strange fate for another.

(By Rodney Dutcher, NEA Service Writer)

WASHINGTON.—There is no reason to suppose that the veterans of the World War will cease their demands on the treasury until the last one has passed to his final reward.

Or that succeeding congresses will fail to heed their pleas.

History already has begun to repeat itself and the assurance that the veterans hope to accelerate that time-honored process has been indicated by the national commander of the American Legion.

Resting not on a noble record of accomplishment, including soldier bonus loans, the beginnings of a pension system, the bonus itself and other federal veteran expenditures excluding loans which will cost about $900,000,000 next year, Commander O'Neil has outlined proposals for further measures which will be presented to the next and subsequent sessions of congress.

Congress Is "Pension-Minded"

After each war it has required a shorter period to persuade congress to grant service pensions and subsequently to liberalize their provisions. Spanish war veterans of 1898 struggled until 1920 for their first service pensions, but less than 300,000 men were engaged in that war, whereas World war veterans number more than 4,000,000 and consequently are able to bring all the more pressure. So the latter had to wait but 12 years before congress granted him allowance for disabilities whether the disabilities were connected with war service or not.

Commander O'Neil's demands have caused considerable stir but no great surprise because everyone has expected that veterans, already benefiting from legislation which has created the largest single burden on the treasury, would insist upon and receive more and more until further post-war veteran payments run up to or beyond the $35,000,000,000 which the war already has cost.

Widows Benefit

Pensions for widows and orphans of veterans was one item on the program outlined by O'Neil. These pensions made plenty of progress in the last congress and are sure to be passed by the next. They are expected to boost the pension bill another $150,000,000.

There are those who already predict that the loans made to veterans on adjust compensation certificates will eventually be forgiven the borrowers. No such demand has yet come from the veterans themselves and it would be presumptuous to assert here that it will ever be made, but it can be said with some assurance that if the veterans ever do get behind such a movement they will find plenty of eager support in congress and perhaps enough to jam it through.

Relief for wives and children of veterans now in hospitals and increase in hospital facilities for veterans who will need treatment in the future, also expected by Commander O'Neil, presumably will come right along.

Proposes Increase

Then there's the commander's proposal for increasing the disability compensation for World war veterans to the level allowed to veterans of other wars, on the theory that the veteran of one war is entitled to as much money as the veteran of another. Spanish war veterans' monthly service pensions now run up to $60 a month on a scale which took them 32 years to achieve and when the World war veterans achieve a similar scale, disability payments will increase tremendously in cost.

Eventually there will be an ultimate general pension bill for every veteran and congress will pass it unless it reverses all previous performances. That, presumably, will represent the high watermark of America's post-war expenses.

Since this column must be written in advance because the writer is to be in Plainview at the Panhandle Press association during the latter part of this week, the Pampan will philosophize a bit.

The subject is harmony. This quality in music is what makes notes pleasurable when blended. In life it is what leads to success, to happiness, to contentment. Perfect harmony is impossible but human beings are happy to the extent to which they achieve it.

Basic harmony is in the body, and nature does her best to provide it. A sound mind in a sound body is the goal. Harmony in the body means that each organ is perfectly adjusted to the whole and to the environment. Mental harmony concerns both the health of the mind and of the thought processes. Imperfect functioning of the mind disturbs body harmony because brain impulses control the reflexes and the organs of internal secretion.

Right living is conducive to physical and mental harmony. Mental hygiene is a stimulant to bodily vigor. Normal living merely to give nature the opportunity of carrying out its inherent system. Nature is a magical architect. She strives according to her strict laws to achieve harmony even when environment is distracting.

The polar bear changes his color as the snow melts and the mosses appear. The birds change their hues with the season. The animals, such as seals, adapt themselves to both water and land. A swamp plant is a nut eater, with trick jaws that close instantly when beetles light in the flower. Nature is full of marvelous arrangements—systems which defy man to equal. There is compensation—for instance, if the mortality rate of an animal is high, the number of offspring is large. One calf is born, but many quail, and eggs.

The familiar I-construction in steel work is used in the roots of trees. Arches are automatically made in the roofs of caves. The safety of entering Carlsbad caverns is due largely to the fact that the arched ceilings have stood the test of time. Radio did not invent any new laws. But simply placed equipment in harmony with laws established since the dawn of time. Chemistry is based on similar unchanging and unchangeable laws.

Human achievement does nothing except discover laws and harmonize them with the subject studied. Theologists carry this analysis further and tell you that there is a harmony with the infinite. Certainly Christianity is a fundamentally a system of harmonizing man's conduct with its principles. And those principles are in harmony with nature, or with the laws which surround the earth and control all upon and within it.

Space does not permit continuation of this analogy into mental and social and moral phases, but it should be obvious that contentment, health and prosperity are all determined by the harmony involved, or lack of it.

Pampa civic clubs have admirable goals along this line. Here is the Rotary code of ethics:

- My business standards shall have in them a note of sympathy for our common humanity. My business dealings, ambitions, and relations shall always cause me to take into consideration my highest duties as a member of society. In every position in business life, in every responsibility that comes before me, my chief thought shall be to fill that responsibility and discharge that duty so when I have ended each of them, I shall have lifted the level of human higher than I found it. In view of this, it is my duty as a Rotarian: 1. To consider my vocation worthy, and as affording me distinct opportunity to serve society. 2. To improve myself, increase my efficiency and enlarge my service, and by so doing attest my faith in the fundamental principle of Rotary, that he profits most who serves best. 3. To realize that I am a business man and ambitious to succeed; but that I am first an ethical man and wish no excess that is not founded on the justice and morality. 4. To hold that the exchange of my goods, my service, and my ideas for profit is legitimate and ethical, provided that all parties in the exchange are benefited thereby. 5. To use my best endeavors to elevate the standards of the vocation in which I am engaged, and so to conduct my affairs that others in my vocation may find it wise, provided that all parties in the exchange to emulate my example. 6. To conduct my business in such a manner that I may give a perfect service equal or even better than my competitor, and when in doubt, to give added service beyond the strict measure of debt or obligation. 7. To understand that one of the greatest assets of a professional or of a business man is his friends and that any advantage gained by reason of friendship is eminently ethical and proper. 8. To hold that true friends demand nothing of one another and that any abuse of the confidence of friendship for profit is foreign to the spirit of Rotary, and in violation of its code of ethics. 9. To consider no personal success

SHE'S CATCHING UP!

ABOUT NEW YORK

(By Richard Massock)

NEW YORK—These are trying times for the police. Ugly accusations of graft and "framing" have been hurled against some of them in the vice investigation. The rank and file were even stirred to the point of running full-page advertisements defending their good name.

But this story has nothing whatever to do with that. It's about a cop who hangs out in the early mornings in a certain hotel lobby.

One night a guest remarked: "You must like hotels a lot to hang around this dump." "I do," the cop replied. "I hopped bells in some of the best hotels in town for 12 years. And I made more money than I do now."

"Well, what did you quit it for?" the guest asked. "Who wants to be on his feet all day?" the cop retorted.

For Sweet Charity

Then there's a story a Mrs. L. tells. Mrs. L. is quite a figure socially. Yet she admits she admires public heroes, including movie idols.

Some one dared her to ask one of her Hollywood favorites for his autographed photograph. She accepted the dare. She thought surely a nice letter would bring a prompt response.

But all she got was a form letter advising her that if she wished the photograph it would be sent on receipt of $1. The dollar, she was informed, would be sent to an old ladies' home in California.

P. S.—She didn't remit.

Trekkers in the Bronx wonder where on earth Featherbed Lane got its name. Well, sir, it's an old legend.

It seems that during the revolution General Washington was alarmed, not only because his men had worn their shoes thin, but also because the cannon wheels made a terrible noise, within earshot of the British. So he had the farmers who lived along the lane throw out their featherbeds for the army to march on.

Which made him father of the noise abatement movement.

Imogene Stanley, that girl who danced with the Prince of Wales, has been signed by a film company as a talkie writer. It pays to dance and tell.

Items like that are easy. They come in the mail. And there's an Oswego, N. Y., lady who writes:

"I'm planning to come to New York. . . . This is a thrilling adventure for me, as I haven't seen N. Y. since 1914. . . . I want to meet Belle Livingstone. . . . Could you arrange it with her?"

"I'm sorry, but I never was a good master of ceremonies. And besides, I don't know where Belle Livingstone's living since she left Harlem jail.

NEW BOOKS

By RICHARD MASSOCK

NEW YORK—Lincoln Steffens, traveling journalist, has been called the original muckraker.

He denies that, pointing out that the Old Testament prophets were the first muckrakers in history. But Steffens did begin the muckraking of the present century, which brought out so much about political corruption. He tells about it in his autobiography—how his life led up to it, how it came about and what followed.

Muckraker's Career

It is a rich, genial, straightforward, apparently hunkles narrative of an American's quest for the Truth.

Born in San Francisco 65 years ago, he was reared in the ranch country of California. After leisurely education in Germany and France and England he returned to New York to be a Wall Street reporter.

Impulsive by nature, Steffens dared to approach the fearsome J. P. Morgan, "cover" hostile police headquarters for his paper at the time of Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst's reform campaign against vice and graft and "talk turkey" with Theodore Roosevelt.

He left a newspaper to edit McClure's magazine. He was not a good editor, even on a magazine, so S. S. McClure, his boss, sent him out into the United States to learn to edit. Circumstances were to make him otherwise famous.

His job was to call upon and draw out writers, editors and leading citizens material for his magazine. In Chicago he heard of Joseph W. Fols who was raising a row in St. Louis about bribery in the board of aldermen there. A plain write-up of the situation for the rest of the country was suggested.

Steffens went to St. Louis, interviewed Fols, and thus obtained his first "muckraking" article.

Country Wine Out

Steffens was always concerned with ethics. He began his reportorial investigations with the idea of finding out what was right and how he could fix a situation to make it so. Eventually he was convinced that morals were a matter of trade or profession and what was ethical for one man could be unethical to another.

Out of his European reporting during and after the war grew a detached viewpoint. He found it was best to report facts only. He returned convinced that the United States was going along better, of its own momentum, than it had gone the way he thought it should.

Scientists, he found, now are dominating industry, as lawyers and d.d. in?Cnol?dng?ly race etacts did. They are not concerned with what's right or wrong, but with what will work out according to their laboratory tests. Washington has been married to Wall street and "it makes Washington a decent woman."

Thus ends the education of a muckraker.

The Tarrant County Traction Co., which April 30 discontinues the interurban line between the two cities is asking for the bus franchise and the Interurban Express Co. seeks the truck line.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS THINK

EAT PLENTY OF BREAD

So much has been said about the value of whole wheat bread, some of it correct and some exaggerated, that it has been overdone by the extremists and the pendulum is swinging back again to a wiser variety in bread, according to Doctor R. E. Lee, research director of Standard Brands Incorporated, in a talk before Canadian bakers.

"Periodically," says Doctor Lee, "the agitation for whole wheat bread breaks out like an epidemic, runs its course and dies out. No one can justly attack bread, be it white or brown. Both have a place in the diet. Flour is one of the most completely digestible foods we have. All varieties of bread are good, but one would not think so after reading the articles of those who advocate the use of only whole wheat bread.

"A diet including too much coarse bread so stimulates the intestinal muscles that food materials are not as completely absorbed as when they pass through the alimentary tract at a normal rate. This is why whole wheat bread is always included in reducing diets.

"Much that is written about white flour is carelessly applied to white bread, forgetting that white bread as made today is a highly supplemented food, containing salt, fat, milk, yeast and usually malt extract.

"White bread should have as prominent a place in the diet as any other, but no single variety of bread should be exclusively eaten. The value of variety of breads is unquestioned. Variety of breads not only supplies a variety of ingredients so helpful in supporting maintenance in normal growth, but it stimulates the appetite. A tired appetite will often result from an unbalanced diet. Refresh it with variety and see it respond!

"Everyone should eat plenty of bread, for it is a splendid aid to the body, but we should be careful not to dull our appetite with sameness. We should discover new delicacies in the variety of breads in the bake shop just around the corner."—Tulsa Herald.

FREEDOM OF THE COLLEGE PRESS

It has been brought to our attention that in one of his recent articles Arthur Brisbane has given it as his opinion that the college newspaper offers the most opportune means in modern education for presenting new and vital ideas to people, while they are yet of an age to receive and develop them. We wonder if Mr. Brisbane really knew what he was talking about.

When writing his article was Mr. Brisbane considering the college newspaper which is written and edited by students themselves, who are paid to do the job right. Or was he not, perhaps, thinking theoretically of a college paper operated by administrators who have the best interests of the world and civilization (not MERELY the college) at heart, and who recognizes the efficacy of the college paper in accomplishing their ideal ideas? There is a vast and definite difference.

The average college newspaper is run on the first plan, and is therefore greatly handicapped if it has as its major purpose the presentation of new or unusual ideas, beliefs, viewpoints, or opinions to the young and open-minded college student. In the first place, operated on this basis, the paper most probably has an editor from whom all such things have been carefully kept by loving, fearful parents, teachers, and associates.

In the second place, speaking always of the average newspaper of the average American college, even if the editor of that paper should have by any chance acquired a knowledge of and a liking for the progressively new things of education and life, he is forced by collegiate conventions and standards to repress his tendencies in that direction, and must systematically use the space in his four-page paper to publish in the most stereotyped form he can manage the week-old, idea-less, and non-inspirational "news" events of the campus, and off all happenings closely connected with either the administration or the administrative officers. In the third place, that is what it takes to be a newspaper man, in the first place. And there are some people who become addicted to being "newspaper men."

Nevertheless, Mrs. Brisbane, in thinking that college papers are for the advancement of individual and creative thinking may not have been entirely mistaken. Who can say that when students themselves realize the possibilities of a student weekly they will not revolt against such conditions as are prevalent today, and come out tomorrow with a "freedom of the college press" as well as the accepted (?) freedom of speech slogan in their list of reforms? They can realize, perhaps better than anyone else, that the psychological time for progress is while on campus, mind is in the plastic "learning" stage of development. Will they forever refuse to recognize, and exercise that which is theirs by "divine right"—The Prairie, Canyon Teachers College.

WHY NOT FARMERS IN A C. OF C.

Ridiculous! Of course, somebody would say that when the question is asked, "What not farmers in a chamber of commerce?" Why do so many chambers of commerce feel that a farmer is as foreign to a chamber of commerce as a Hebrew is to the Isle of Erin?

The chamber of commerce works for the development of city and agricultural territory in which the farmer makes a living. It boosts the country and incidentally the value of the property of the farmer, thus enhancing his prosperity, and yet many take it for granted that farmers, if not antagonistic to chambers of commerce, are apt to be indifferent.

Farmers could be and should be one of the mainstays in a successful chamber of commerce. It is their country that is being helped and aided. They form the foundation for the town or city in which the chamber of commerce is operating. There should be a mutual effort on the part of the farmer and the chamber of commerce to have the farmer a working unit in the organization. —Dalhart Texan.
