Woman survives wrong turn ordeal but husband dies

QUANAH, Texas (AP) — The West Texas woman who survived 10 days with no food and little water says she might not have made it through another day.

Authorities found Barbara Everage, 65, wandering across the spacious Triangle Ranch near Quanah on Thursday, suffering from exhaustion and dehydration and the loss of her 88-year-old husband, the Rev. Allie B. Everage.

"I felt like that was my last day," Mrs. Everage told the weekly Quanah Tribune-Chief. "I couldn't even stand up."

Mrs. Everage had been driving the Quanah couple's van on July 8 as they returned from a family visit to Clovis, N.M. Just 44 miles from home, she made a fateful wrong turn.

They had driven into the heart of a virtually abandoned part of the ranch in the sparsely populated cattle country of the Texas Rolling Plains, about 120 miles west of Wichita Falls.

"My husband woke up and said, 'You're on the wrong road,'" she said. He advised her to turn left on another lonely dirt road to eventually make it back to the highway.

Instead, the road led to a soft patch of sand where the van became trapped.

Their broken CB aerial left them without communication. A rare rainfall in this drought-stricken part of the state fixed their vehicle in mire.

Constant horn-blowing and headlight-flashing eventually drained the battery, leaving them with no food and only stagnant, stinking water from a nearby creek, she said.

Her husband, who founded Zion Star Baptist Church in Altadena, Calif., survived six days until last Sunday morning. The next day, Mrs. Everage abandoned a log she had been keeping of their travails and began hiking in a desperate attempt to find civilization.

"I slept out there on the stream, in the caves and on the rocks," she told the newspaper.

Meanwhile, Oregon State ranching intern Kent Clark happened across an empty wheelchair on a dirt road in a corner of the Triangle Ranch even manager Matt Swan considered remote.

Clark, who was looking for some stray bulls in a closed portion of the range, soon discovered the minister's badly decomposed body lying face-down in the road next to his walker. Mrs. Everage's diary was in the wheelchair.

"When we found the diary, we were kind of convinced she wasn't alive still, either," Clark said.

Clark alerted Swan to the scene he found near the intersection of Foard, Hardeman and Cottle counties line. Swan called authorities, who immediately began searching for the woman.

Clark and another rescuer began tracking Mrs. Everage. A Texas Department of Public Safety helicopter found her waving a white cloth just two hours before her 10th sunset on the hot Texas plains.

"I felt like kissing the ground," Mrs. Everage said of her medical helicopter trip to Quanah's town square, where she was transferred to a local hospital. She returned home Friday morning.

Mrs. Everage had worked at the Tribune-Chief until she resigned in May to travel more with her ailing husband, a diabetic who once preached at Macedonia Baptist Church in Quanah.

Her diary, which was in the custody of a justice of the peace in the small Foard County city of Crowell, will tell the whole story of the events that unfolded over the 1 1/2-week ordeal.

"(His six children) still have questions about what happened," she told the Tribune-Chief.

The Dallas County medical examiner's office is to perform an autopsy. In the meantime, funeral services are pending for the Rev. Everage.

Bike for Bibles team stops in Pampa on their way to Olympics in Atlanta

By TIFFANIE FRANKS
Staff Writer

A team of eight very tired bicyclists and support crew — all Atlanta bound — stopped in Pampa Friday night to shower and grab some sleep before pedaling off on the next leg of their Olympic journey.

The predominantly British Bike for Bibles team traveling from San Francisco to the historic event aims to raise $75,000 during their four-week cross country journey. Hosted by New Life Assembly of God, 1435 N. Sumner, they were treated to supper prepared by women of the church and then showered at Pampa Youth and Community Center.

One woman and seven men, are bicycling. One man and one woman are "roadies" following the team in a Ryder truck. The team has covered 2,700 miles in 31 days, 29 of which were cycling. The team left Dalhart early Friday morning.

Leader Mike Sheppard, who has been involved with Bike for Bibles for five years, believes that raising money by cycling is an ideal way of putting faith into action, while relying on God to provide.

"We really do look to the Lord for his provision this year and we must keep our costs down as we push ahead to raise this money," he said in his very British voice.

Bike for Bibles first began in Australia over 12 years ago, when three cyclists rode from Sydney to Melbourne to raise money for literacy programs in Indonesia.

Since then the event has grown, with hundreds of cyclists from all over the world taking part in the ever growing Australian rides.

The idea was transplanted to England by Philip Blackler, who was inspired by the success of the Australian program, according to information from the group.

From there it was just a short step to the Olympic games at Barcelona where Sheppard led a his team across France and the Pyrenees.

The team is excited about this year's ride from San Francisco to Atlanta.

"We were full steam ahead with planning process and now it is all in motion," Sheppard said.

Several hundred people have taken part in Bike for Bibles in England and Wales.

"It brings people together to overcome difficult situations, which motivates and encourages them. Many people have said their faith has increased as a result," Sheppard said.

He and the riders benefit from the adventure as well.

"The sheer nerve of Bike for Bibles riders has to be seen to be believed. Not content with knocking on the door of a house just to use the bathroom, the riders even return with some sponsorship money and a sense of accomplishment," he said.

Pampa city commissioners to consider bids for homes on tornado damage repairs

Pampa city commissioners are to meet at 4 p.m. for work session and 6 p.m. in regular session Tuesday to consider award of bids for repairs to homes damaged by the June 8, 1995, tornado.

Eligible repairs total $112,537.70 of the $183,000 disaster relief grant. Requests were made by 29 homeowners for 30 properties. The requests for assistance were evaluated on four criteria:

- Level of damages sustained
- Family income
- Age of head of household
- Disability limitations

Bids were received from Mesa Roofing and Casco/Lite-Form.

Remaining funds from the restoration funds will be reserved for the work not bid on the original proposal and will be bid informally over the next months, according to the city commission agenda packet.

Other items of business include:

- Four appointments to the Traffic Commission. Two appointments are to fill terms which expired in July 1995 and two appointment/reappointments are for the terms of Marilyn Powers and Marion Teel which are expiring this month.

- One appointment to the cable advisory board for an unexpired term ending in February 1997.

- An application for a grant to purchase a computer aided emergency dispatch system.

The grant requires a 10 percent city match of $5,102. The grant application asks for $45,922 from the Bureau of Justice Assistance Local Law Enforcement.

- An amendment to the Texas Department of Criminal Justice's 99-year lease of land south of Pampa to allow for temporary storage of scrap tires.

- A resolution allowing city employees to participate in a deferred compensation program.

The program, established by the U.S. Conference of Mayors, would allow city employees to voluntarily set aside and invest portions of their current income to meet future financial requirements and to supplement city retirement and Social Security benefits.

An executive session is planned to consider an appointment to the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority. The term of Dr. Bill Hallerberg is to expire this month.

Poll suggests tight fight for control of Congress

By JOHN KING
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gains among older voters have boosted Republican hopes for this fall's congressional races, according to an Associated Press poll that showed President Clinton's political standing little changed from the end of last year.

Asked how they would vote if elections for Congress were today, 41 percent of registered voters in the survey said Democratic and 40 percent said Republican. Fourteen percent said they were undecided and the rest said they would not vote or refused to answer.

The AP survey results represented the best Republican showing on this question in months; two other recent national surveys showed Democrats with a 3-percentage-point edge on the congressional ballot question.

Taken together, the data suggest "control of Congress remains up for grabs," said Democratic pollster Peter Hart. "The next 100 days will count a lot more than the previous 100 days."

In a December AP poll, Democrats enjoyed a 48 percent to 37 percent lead over Republicans when registered voters were asked their congressional preference. The survey was taken during a contentious period in which Republicans had forced temporary government shutdowns as part of their budget showdown with Clinton.

In that winter poll, 44 percent picked Democrats and 35 percent Republicans when asked which party they trusted most to lead the country for the next four years. In the new survey, voters were evenly split on the question, with each party getting 39 percent support. Eleven percent said they trusted neither party.

"The polarization that was hurting Republicans at the beginning of the year has leveled off somewhat," said Hart. "Some of the sharp edges have worn away."

Indeed, the biggest shift on this question was among voters over age 65. In December, Democrats had a 15-percentage-point edge when older voters were asked which party they trusted more to lead the country. In the new survey, Democrats had just a two-point advantage among these voters.

Likewise, the improved GOP standing against Democrats on the question of congressional preference was driven by older voters: Voters over 65 were evenly divided in the new poll when asked which party they would support for Congress; in December, Democrats had a 20-percentage-point advantage.

The AP survey of 822 registered voters was conducted July 12-16 by ICR Research Group of Media, Pa., a division of AUS Consultants. The margin of sampling error was plus or minus 4 percentage points.

As for the presidential race, the survey showed Clinton with a 12-percentage-point lead in a ballot test against Republican Bob Dole and Ross Perot, who is seeking the nomination of his infant Reform Party. Clinton received 45 percent to 33 percent for Dole and 11 percent for Perot.

Asked whether Clinton should be re-elected, 45 percent said yes and 42 percent said no. Ten percent were undecided and 3 percent refused to answer.

Given the giant television advertising edge Clinton has had over Dole in recent months, Dole campaign pollster Anthony Fabrizio said it was a sign of Clinton's weakness that "as many people say no to re-electing him as say yes."

Hart, however, said that 45 percent support for an incumbent's re-election was a "fairly good number."

Clinton's standing was statistically unchanged from December, when 43 percent said he should be re-elected and 42 percent said he should not.

There have been some regional shifts, however: Support for Clinton's re-election ticked up to 50 percent in the Midwest a critical electoral battleground, and fell slightly to 37 percent in the increasingly Republican South. The Northeast remained solid Clinton territory and the Mountain West heavily contested.

Girl Scout council seeking VISTA volunteers

The Texas Plains Girl Scout Council recently received an expansion on its AmeriCorps Volunteers in Service to America grant, providing funding for an AmeriCorps VISTA volunteer in the Pampa area.

The grant provides volunteers to recruit girls and adults from low income areas to form long-term Girl Scout groups.

"The program has been so successful, that we applied for an expansion to be able to recruit a VISTA volunteer from Pampa," said Marsha Christensen, director of membership development. "The VISTA outreach program has been very successful in reaching underserved populations in Amarillo and Hereford. We hope to continue that success in Pampa by reaching more girls."

In return for their service, the grant provides VISTA volunteers a monthly stipend of $271, a medical plan, mileage reimbursement and travel.

To be eligible as a VISTA volunteer, candidates must be at least 18 years of age, believe in the principles and ideals of the Girl Scout movement, and have a knowledge of or a desire to learn planning and management skills. She or he must serve at least 40 hours per week, have access to dependable transportation, live in the assigned community and be free to travel. Bilingual candidates are strongly urged to apply.

Upon selection, volunteers will be responsible for developing a membership plan to form Girl Scout troops in specific locations. She or he will recruit girls and leaders as well as set up a team of adults to support troop leaders.

The volunteer will also be accountable for developing a personal relationship with community leaders and ensuring the independence and continuity of each Girl Scout group established through training and follow up, Christensen explained.

Texas Plains Girl Scout Council has participated in the VISTA program for two years.

AmeriCorps VISTA is a national service program that places individuals in disadvantaged communities to help residents become more self-sufficient. Members of AmeriCorps VISTA live in the communities they serve, creating programs that can continue after they complete their service.

Since 1965, more than 100,000 committed individuals have joined forces with over 12,000 local public agencies and non-profit groups to strengthen communities across the nation.

Anyone in the Pampa area interested in applying as a AmeriCorps VISTA volunteer may pick up an application at the Texas Plains Girl Scout Council Girl Scout Office in Pampa at 836 W. Foster, or contact Marsha Christensen at 1-800-687-4475 or (806) 356-0096.

New drugs place doubts for firms that purchase AIDS victims' insurance

NEW YORK (AP) — They've been reviled as ghoulish dealers in death and praised as the financial saviors of people with AIDS.

Now, viatical brokers, which pay patients money in exchange for their life insurance policies, face a severe profit crunch if new AIDS drugs can keep people alive longer.

The companies may have to be more choosy about whose policies they buy, favoring sicker people likely to die sooner. They may also have to pay less for all policies. Such moves are aimed at sustaining the healthy 15 percent annual returns viatical now offer investors.

"The medical and scientific breakthroughs have complicated the issue in many cases where it just becomes a lot more difficult ... to assess the life expectancy of a person," said Kenneth Klein, president of National Capital Benefits Corp. in New York, a leading viatical broker.

Since the new drugs, called protease inhibitors, were introduced this winter, stock in National Capital's parent company has dropped 50 percent.

Shares of another company, Dignity Partners Inc. in San Francisco, have lost 77 percent. On Tuesday, Dignity announced it was suspending purchases of new policies of AIDS patients.

AIDS activists are worried, saying viatical settlements are still important because the long-term benefits of the drugs are unproven, the therapy costs $15,000 or more a year and the side effects are severe.

Ironically, if patients can't sell their policies because of a mistaken impression that AIDS has been cured, they will get sicker.

"Allowing people to have the financial resources they need to meet all their obligations — their rent, or their food, or their medicine — and keeping their dignity is an extremely important thing that, I think, affects the long-term outlook for the person," said A. Cornelius Baker, acting executive director of the National Association of People With AIDS in Washington.

Viatical companies get their name from the Latin word Viaticum, which in the Catholic faith is the sacrament of communion given to the dying. In ancient times, viaticum meant provisions given to those making a long journey.

Since the industry's start in the late 1980s, it has grown rapidly to at least 50 companies that bought roughly $400 million in policies last year.

Viaticals collect money from investors — including big banks and financial houses — and use it to pay terminally ill people a percentage of the value of their life insurance policies.

Typically, a patient with six months to live or less gets 80 percent to 90 percent. Those with a year get about 70 to 80 percent and those with two years get 60 percent to 70 percent.

Investors pay the premiums until the person dies, then collect on the whole policy.

Early on, disreputable viaticals took advantage of desperate patients, paying them less than 40 percent and sometimes forcing them to pick up a year's worth of premiums. Some disappeared without paying a dime.

It was just too much of a challenge

ARCHER CITY (AP) — The City Council spent more than $13,000 to repaint its water tower silver, and another $1,000 installing flat steel bars around its legs to make it less inviting to graffiti artists.

"Now, if any kids climb up there, we're going to give them a spanking," a councilman in this city 100 miles northwest of Fort Worth added jokingly.

It apparently was too great a challenge to pass up, city manager L.B. Boren said.

A message appeared on the 150-foot-tall water tower over the July 4 weekend: "You must give us a spanking."

13-year-old Garland girl's album debuts at No. 1

DALLAS (AP) — The youngest female artist to hit the country charts since Tanya Tucker and Marie Osmond is a 13-year-old Garland, Texas girl, whose first album is set to debut next week at No. 1 on the country chart.

Some have described LeAnn Rimes' vocal talents as incredible, her range mature. She says she still can't believe her success.

"It's really cool," she said. "I still can't believe it's happening."

Miss Rimes' album, Blue, a retro country song written for Patsy Cline by a Dallas-area disc jockey, also will debut on Billboard's pop chart at No. 4, having sold more than 124,000 copies in its first week in stores.

Opinion

Courts give feds more leeway

In recent years, the U.S. Supreme Court has somewhat curbed the government's powers in the "war" on drugs. Recently, however, it took a giant leap in the opposite direction.

In U.S. v. Usey, the court upheld a government operation in which a man was punished twice for the same offense.

Guy Jerome Usey was charged with growing 142 marijuana plants in Perry, Mich. The federal government pursued both criminal and civil actions against him, trying to convict him of a felony in the first case and to seize his house under civil asset-forfeiture laws in the second.

It settled the civil action by finding him guilty and fining him $13,250 (which he paid in lieu of the home seizure). The government then continued pursuing the criminal lawsuit, convicting him on the drug charge and giving him a 63-month prison sentence.

Usey contended that the double convictions violated his Fifth Amendment right that he not be "subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb." His appeal asked that the criminal conviction be overturned.

The 6th U.S. Circuit of Appeals agreed, voiding the criminal conviction of Usey.

But the Clinton administration appealed, and, in an 8-1 decision, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in favor of the government and against Usey. The court voted to restore the criminal conviction against Usey.

In his majority opinion, Chief Justice William Rehnquist relied on obscure 18th century maritime law involving smuggling ships and on a court decision from the 1920s backing the seizure of a distillery during Prohibition.

All modern asset-forfeiture laws, enacted to help law enforcement agencies wage the drug war, are based on the flimsy argument that taking property that is somehow related to the commission of a crime is not really a penalty against the owner of that property.

But Usey's home was his major item of personal property and losing it seems to us to be a direct punishment, which, depending on the person, could be as serious as serving time or paying a criminal fine. Thus, at very least, the spirit of the double-jeopardy protection of the Fifth Amendment seems to have been violated in pursuing the criminal conviction as well.

Only Justice John Paul Stevens dissented from the majority, noting, correctly, "This term, the court has begun dismantling the protections it so recently erected." And today, for the first time, it upholds the forfeiture of a person's home. He noted that, if Rehnquist's logic had been followed during Prohibition, the government could have "authorized the forfeiture of every home in which alcoholic beverages were consumed" — that is, most homes in America.

Even as many Americans are realizing that the "war" on drugs, like Prohibition, is antithetical to personal property, the Supreme Court has upheld government's powers to pursue that "war" to absurd lengths.

The annual battle over granting normal trade status to the People's Republic of China is over, with the House voting recently to go along with President Clinton's decision to maintain it. But the battle is never really finished. This year's decision is just the beginning of next year's fight.

Weighing in early is Human Rights Watch/Asia, an admirable organization with the best of intentions but a terrible lack of patience and perspective. In a news report on China, it says that democratic governments, "when forced to choose between principle and profit, are putting business first." It urges them to demand human rights improvements from Beijing as a condition of allowing trade.

But Clinton and his allies didn't argue that we should choose business over human rights. What supporters of continued Most Favored Nation status have said all along is that promoting commerce with China despite its human rights violations will strengthen human rights as well. By loosening state control over citizens' lives, enlarging the middle class and infecting China with Western ideas and practices, trade lays the groundwork for freedom and democracy.

Human Rights Watch/Asia says this theory has been exposed as wrong. The proof? President Clinton severed the link between human rights and MFN in May 1994. "Two years later, the market economy in China is booming, but there is little evidence of a freer society or greater respect for human rights," it says.

Two years! Apparently, the group thinks the only results that count are instant results. This is like concluding that because a pregnant woman is not showing at two months, she can't possibly be pregnant.

In some ways, as the report documents, things have indeed gotten worse since Clinton's decision. Political dissidents are treated harshly, Internet communications have been targeted for suppression and arbitrary arrests are increasingly common. But this is not a reflection of shrinking freedom — it is a symptom of expanding freedom. As the Communist regime finds its control over nearly everything else eroding, it tightens its grip on what it regards as absolutely vital — political expression.

Human Rights Watch/Asia goes out of its way to ignore the clear long-term trend. Thanks in large part to economic liberalization, modernization and foreign trade, China is a vastly freer place today than it was 20 years ago — and freer than it was before the 1989 massacre in Tianamen Square.

Americans tend to forget that it used to be one of the most suffocatingly regimented societies in history. Under Mao Zedong, the government told you where to work, where to live, whether you could travel from one city to another and in some cases whom you could marry. It went so far as to tell you what to wear — only clothing that was blue, gray or white. People who strayed an inch out of line found themselves publicly humiliated, exiled to distant collective farms or toiling in "re-education" camps.

Today, those all-encompassing totalitarian controls are as defunct as Mao. Chinese are free to change jobs, to start their own businesses as peddlers or merchants, to live where they choose, to interact with foreigners, to move from the countryside to the city, — and, wonder of wonders, to wear makeup and colorful clothes.

They are even free to criticize the government in everyday conversation at home or on the street, without fear of having to spend years shoveling manure as a reward. And millions of Chinese take full advantage of the opportunity. "You can do anything and write anything as long as you don't challenge the authority of the government," says Robert Ross, a China scholar affiliated with Boston College and Harvard. Only when individuals cross the line into publishing dissenting views or proclaiming them in an overtly public way do they invite suppression — which is swift, certain and often brutal.

Human rights observers have every reason to criticize the continuing political repression in China. But focusing entirely on the worst aspect of Chinese society misses the enormous progress made in recent years, which has not only improved the material living conditions of a billion people but greatly expanded their liberty to live their lives as they choose. The experience of other authoritarian countries is that a booming market economy will also create ever-increasing pressure for political freedom and democracy.

It's absurd to pronounce U.S. trade policy a failure in fostering human rights. MFN supporters never said that economic liberalization, of which trade is a key part, would change China overnight. All they said was that it would change China — fundamentally and forever.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Sunday, July 21, the 203rd day of 1996. There are 163 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On July 21, 1925, the so-called Monkey Trial ended in Dayton, Tenn., with John T. Scopes convicted of violating state law for teaching Darwin's theory of evolution. (The conviction was later overturned.)

On this date:
In 1816, Paul Julius Reuter, founder of the British news agency bearing his name, was born in Hesse, Germany.

In 1831, Belgium became independent as Leopold I was proclaimed King of the Belgians.

In 1861, the first Battle of Bull Run was fought at Manassas, Va., resulting in a Confederate victory.

In 1899, author Ernest Hemingway was born in Oak Park, Ill.

In 1944, American forces landed on Guam during World War II.

Three keys that safeguard liberty

Charley Reese

Thomas Jefferson advised his nephew, Peter Carr, that in matters of fashion, he should go with the flow, but in matters of principle, he should stand like a rock.

Unless Americans wish to find themselves in the not-too-distant future saluting some fuhrer or commissar, they had better begin to take a firm stand on the following principles.

The right to own and use property. This happens to be the foundation of all political rights or, as people call them today, human rights. To assert political independence, a person must be able to survive independently. Without property rights, this is not possible.

Elites in China and Cuba can control masses of people because they have no property rights, just as the elites in the Soviet Union once did. The tyrants own factories, homes and everything else. Hence, everyone is a tenant, and if tenants displeased the tyrants, they can be ousted instantly from job, university and home.

As anyone who was ever a tenant farmer hopelessly in debt to the landlord can tell you — in private and off the record — free speech doesn't mean much when another can easily make you homeless and foodless. Control of people's food and shelter is a far greater lever than a secret police agency is when you wish to strip people of their liberty and their rights.

The right to own and use property is under heavy attack in the United States. This keystone right now is being attacked in the name of environmentalism. Government encroachments on people's right to own and use their property grow daily. It is not necessary to sacrifice property rights in order to take care of the environment. People who sacrifice property rights for the sake of the environment will find out that the environment they preserve is a ruin.

The second principle people had better start standing firm on is limited government. The whole point of the American Revolution was to limit government. The whole point of the Constitution is to limit government, not expand it. The Constitution is much more about what government cannot do than what it can do.

Today, of course, the Constitution is a meaningless piece of parchment. The national government has broken the chains of the Constitution, and today the only limit on its powers is itself. That means, in effect, there are no limits.

Unless Americans make restoring constitutional government an issue, it will never become an issue, for no one who enjoys increased power from having discarded the Constitution's limits is going to admit that he did that. In fact, all of the usurpations of power have been done under the guise of "interpreting" the Constitution.

In fact, the Constitution was plainly written, plainly understood by those who ratified it and an enormous historical record that clarifies the intentions of the founders. The modern interpretations are deliberately false. They are not innocent mistakes. Lust for power never arises by accident.

The third principle is accountability. The only accountability possible for government is elections. More and more, people are being urged to give up their right to vote for this office or that one, usually in the name of efficiency.

Americans must resist this pressure with all their power. When the switch is made from election to appointment, politics are not eliminated; only the people are eliminated. Consolidation, in whatever form, people should likewise resist firmly. Consolidated government is not more efficient, but it is less accountable. Keep every office possible both separate and subject to elections.

Property rights, limited powers and separate offices held only by election are the keys to liberty.

News these days is too distressing

R. Emmett Tyrrell Jr.

I am swearing off the morning newspapers. I agree with Bill and Hillary; the news is too distressing. They pick up the newspapers and discover that their staff is composed of creeps, ex-fascists in critical security positions and dumb whites who call the black Rep. Floyd Flake a "dumb-a--- nigger." FBI files have been requisitioned by such handsoodles. Another rude book has come out. That makes five books on the Clintons in recent months, not one of which is even favorable or even neutral. Then there have been the news reports of about Mrs. Clinton's ethereal conversations with Eleanor Roosevelt and Gandhi, both under taken under the trained eye of la Houston, a spiritual masseuse. And there are reports that Mrs. Clinton is responsible for hiring the aforementioned galoots. No wonder the Clintons wince when the morning newspapers arrive.

Well, I join them in wincing. The other day, The New York Times reported that Steve Tesich, the playwright, novelist and Academy Award-winning screenwriter, died suddenly of a heart attack. In college, we were roommates for a while, and we have remained friends for over three decades. He was a notable figure in my circle of college friends, composed, rather remarkably, of equal parts literary types, world class swimmers and bohemians. He was a refugee from Europe, from the carnage of World War II. Always the eternal boy, he arrived in America in joyous awe, thrilled by literacy and athletic heroes, wowed by all the wild phenomena America heaves up — much of which left him persive.

His most popular creation was the movie Breaking Away, for which he earned an Oscar. It was a charming and amusing portrayal of youth. Tesich always had a fine sense, in fact a sympathy, for youth. Perhaps that was because his own youth must have been so brilliantly transforming. One minute, he was stumbling around post-war Europe with the remnants of his family — the rest had either been casualties of the Nazis and the Communists or were locked away behind the Iron Curtain in Yugoslavia, where he had been born in 1942 as Stoyan Tesich. Then, at 14, Stoyan arrived in America. He lived in the hurly-burly of the Chicago area and went to Indiana University on a wrestling scholarship.

Breaking Away is remembered by most Americans as the Times described it a movie "about a group of teen-agers, post-high school 'townies' in Bloomington, Ind., and their rivalry with the more privileged college students at nearby Indiana University. The climactic scene is a team bicycle race pitting the groups against each other, and the victory by the townies is sentimental and uplifting." Well, let's hear it for anything here in the Clintonian Era that is "uplifting," even if skeptics such as myself have to endure the "sentimental." The Times goes on to say that Breaking Away conveys the "sense of a dream being achieved ... very much the product of a grateful writer who felt himself to be a welcomed outsider."

Much of that is true. Stoyan mixed Slavic melancholy with a vast gratitude for such big things as American freedom and such little things as a good cup of coffee with his morning cigarette. Of course, Hollywood had to turt up Breaking Away's story to conform with its legends and bugaboos. The struggle of the down-trodden townies against the lordly college students never took place. Though the bicycle race did take place, Stoyan's townies were actually members of our circle of friends, an eccentric bicycle rider of immense talent named Dave Blaze and several national champion swimmers, one quite rich. In the movie, the putative townies from hillbilly families listened to opera and wore Italian paraphernalia such as ascots. That was the style, of course, of off-beat college students, not poor country boys. Only Hollywood would believe in hillbillies singing arias and insist that rich and privileged (actually quite middle class) students lose races to wretches of Dickensian pathos.

But this is a quibble. Stoyan's work was about gratitude and the marvels of America. He had an eye for the country's many characters and the swirl of movements that have whipped through the country during the past three decades. Along with his emotions rode a sensible skepticism. He had a sound eye for burlesque. Yet, in the end, even Stoyan suffered the same affliction that creeps up on so many fine American writers. When America does not fully conform to its stated ideals, their disappointment goes a bit over the top. During the 1980s, his friend and agent Sam Cohn tells us, Stoyan's "ideas became more abstract." Actually, he simply became overwhelmed by the pessimism of modern writers who seem to expect heaven on earth. Now Stoyan, I hope, is experiencing the real thing in the real place.

Lefors shows warmth

To the editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to say my thanks, to the following, for everything that was done in the recent escape of an ISF inmate.

The residents of Lefors showed warmth towards TDCJ-ID employees by offering food, drinks and their cooperation and hospitality. All TDCJ-ID and law enforcement employees expressed how the residents of Lefors welcomed them in a very stressful situation and how much they appreciated the warmth shown them. This is very commendable to the residents of Lefors. I am very proud to be a resident and employee of such an outstanding community.

I would like to thank the following law enforcement; with the assistance of these agencies, residences and businesses were secure in a very short time: TDCJ-ID, Jordan Unit, Gray County Sheriff's Department, Pampa Police Department, Constable Precinct 1 & 3, Texas Department of Public Safety, Texas Rangers and any other law enforcement involved. These different agencies worked as one agency in this situation and showed how professional and helpful each are to one another and to the community and everyone's safety.

Thank you to the Taylor Mart staff in Lefors; they remained open to assist everyone involved. The staff at this store were very helpful, and everyone concerned appreciated everything they assisted us in.

The Lefors Volunteer Department, to include family members, provided a hot meal for everyone, to include delivering cold and hot drinks to those who could not leave assigned posts. The Fire Department was also used as the staging area for the news media; through the assistance of the Fire Department, Culligan Water, Pampa, donated 100 gallons of drinking water. Curley's Station, Lefors, was on standby for gas and any other assistance needed. The City offered the use of vehicles and office equipment and other assistance as needed, Lefors Credit Union also made office equipment available.

Many TDCJ-ID officers and deputies assigned to posts throughout the community did not go without cold drinks, food and other needs such as notifying families that these officers' welfare was OK, thanks to the dedication of a Texas Tech, Jordan Unit infirmary employee.

Thanks goes out to the American Red Cross; they provided sandwiches, chips, hot and cold drinks to all. Lefors I.S.D., thanks to you for the use of the school and your staff. In closing, hopefully not forgetting anyone, and if so, thank you again.

Thanks for the games

To the editor:

We would like to thank Mr. Turley and his employees for their sponsorship of the Fourth of July games at Recreation Park.

This was our second year to attend and it seems to be better and better every year. It gives us kids a chance to see our parents act like kids and to spend time with them. The games also gives us something fun and safe to do on the Fourth of July.

We are looking forward to next year.

Thanks again,

West Virginia sues Texas firm over misleading 'sweepstakes'

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — West Virginia and at least 16 other states are investigating a Texas-based marketing company that West Virginia officials contend is using misleading "sweepstakes" pitches to sell merchandise.

The West Virginia attorney general's office is suing Sweepstakes Clearinghouse, alleging it has misled consumers by producing mailings that appear to be official government documents.

A hearing Friday before state Circuit Judge Herman Canady will resume Sept. 10 to hear the company's defense, said state Deputy Attorney General Jill Miles.

"Not only does the envelope look like a W-2 tax form, but the reader is further misled by the self-aggrandizing warnings printed on the envelope," one court filing said.

The envelopes contain a warning threatening "any person who knowingly interferes with delivery of this notification" with a $2,000 fine or five years in prison.

More than 17 other states have investigated or sued Sweepstakes Clearinghouse since 1992.

Iowa and California are the latest, filing lawsuits Thursday.

The sweepstakes is incorporated under the name Allied Marketing Group of Dallas. The Dallas Business Journal estimated in 1993 that businesses that are part of the group churn out about 15 million mailings a year, at one time bringing in as much as $129,000 a day.

A spokesman for Allied Marketing, Jeffrey Loch, did not immediately return a telephone call seeking comment.

The company's mailings promise customers a "free" 35mm camera, but state officials allege it is anything but.

The camera comes with a lifetime supply of film. But it fails to mention the "winner" must pay Sweepstakes Clearinghouse to develop each roll before receiving the next "free" roll, the attorney general's office said.

Those who ask for the camera receive a "credit voucher." It resembles a check but is good only for Sweepstakes Clearinghouse merchandise, stereo equipment, luggage and other items. In its lawsuit, the state contends the check violates state law and argues the merchandise is overpriced.

SPC profs win country book award

LEVELLAND — Two South Plains College professors who teach in one of the most unusual music programs in the nation have won the Country Music Book of the Year Award on their first try.

Joe Carr and Alan Munde, assistant professors in SPC's commercial music program, were awarded first prize and a $1,000 honorarium from Belmont University at Nashville for their tome, Prairie Nights to Neon Lights: The Story of Country Music in West Texas.

"We were not even aware at first that we were being considered for this award," said Carr, who, when he is not working on books on country music, specializes in teaching private lessons in guitar and mandolin and conducts bluegrass and western swing ensembles at SPC. "It was real exciting to be notified about the award."

He joined SPC's faculty in 1984. Carr began his musical career in 1975 with the regional band, Roanoke, and joined the internationally known bluegrass group, Country Gazette, in 1978 before coming to SPC.

Munde, one of the world's best known banjo players who joined SPC's faculty in 1986, gives private lessons on banjo and conducts several student bluegrass ensembles at the two-year college.

Munde founded Country Gazette in 1972, and he and Carr teamed up several years traveling with the group. They currently have a CD out called Windy Days and Dusty Skies, and have been interviewed together on National Public Radio.

"Joe and I were thrilled to receive the award," Munde said. "We have enjoyed working on the book together and this is the icing on the cake. It was an honor to be considered."

Investigators search ocean for jet explosion evidence

EAST MORICHES, N.Y. (AP) — Investigators treated the ocean like a crime scene Saturday as they mapped the sea floor and the scattered wreckage of TWA Flight 800, and hunted for evidence to nail down the cause of the disaster.

Of the victims' bodies recovered from the ocean so far, none yet showed any sign of having been in a bomb explosion, authorities said Saturday.

Navy investigators went out to sea during the morning to hunt for the Boeing 747's two recorders for cockpit conversations and flight data, the so-called black boxes, along with the plane's engines and other parts.

They sailed on the 110-foot private ship Pirouette, equipped with an underwater microphone to pick up the sounds of the recorders' automatic locator beacons, said Lt. Cmdr. Gordon Hume.

"The primary immediate mission is to locate and retrieve the black boxes," Hume said.

The microphone picked up a "ping" Saturday afternoon which may have been emitted by a black box, said FBI Assistant Director James Kallstrom.

The ship also carried sonar to map the ocean floor, and a remotely piloted underwater vehicle carrying a video camera to record the scene on the bottom, he said.

At the same time, the Coast Guard, which is in charge of surface recovery, searched for debris Saturday with three planes, a helicopter and seven cutters.

Visibility was good, but the sea was too choppy for smaller vessels, said Petty Officer Don Wagner.

The Paris-bound airliner, carrying 230 people, exploded shortly after takeoff Wednesday evening, showering flaming debris on the ocean off the southern coast of Long Island. It was the second-worst aviation disaster in U.S. history.

Investigators still could not say whether a bomb was involved, although that was the prime theory.

until we know it's true," Kallstrom had said late Friday.

By late Friday, when rough seas stalled the recovery effort, less than 1 percent of the wreckage had been found, said National Transportation Safety Board Vice Chairman Robert Francis.

Of the 100 bodies recovered so far, nine had been positively identified and 17 tentatively identified by midday Saturday, said Suffolk County Medical Examiner Dr. Charles Wetli.

Robert Bonatemi, spokesman for the Suffolk County medical examiner, said the bodies had not yet provided any major clues.

"The body acts as a trap for projectiles when a bomb explodes and to this point we have not seen any bodies that would indicate that there was a type of bomb," said Bonatemi. "There were no metal fragments in any of the folks that we examined to this point."

He also said there were no heat burns that might suggest a bomb exploded on the plane.

"There have been some chemical burns from the petrol but it appears to be post mortem ... chemical burns from the gasoline floating around," said Bonatemi.

The cause was the last thing on the minds of many of the Flight 800 families sheltered at an airport hotel.

"It doesn't make any difference; my daughter is gone," said Ron Dwyer, 42, of Phoenix, the father of 11-year-old Larkyn Lynn Dwyer.

Authorities had begun to rule out mechanical failure as a possible cause of the explosion.

"The possibility of a criminal act is a distinct one," said Francis, noting that the crew sent no distress call.

Still, the FBI was not prepared to call the crash an act of terrorism.

"HE WENT AWAY SORROWFUL"

"And Jesus looking on him loved him, and said unto him, One thing thou lackest: go, sell whatsoever thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven: and come, follow me. But his countenance fell at the saying, and he went away sorrowful: for he was one that had great possessions." (Mk. 10:21-22.) The young man's questions was, "What shall I do that I may inherit eternal life?" (Mk. 10:17.) The answer Jesus gave him was: evidently not the answer the young man wanted to hear.

When it came down to it, the man's possessions meant more to him than eternal life. Or, in other words, in order to inherit eternal life, he would have to part with his earthly wealth. This was not the answer he desired to hear so he went away disappointed and sorrowful.

Jesus does not tell people today to do what he told the rich young man to do, that is, sell what they have, give to the poor, and follow Him. But He does teach that one must be willing to give up the ones who are nearest and dearest, and even one's life in order to be His disciple (Lk. 14:25-27; Matt. 16:24.) Many today turn away because they feel the price of eternal life is too high.

Jesus was not telling the man that he was to give up his earthly wealth with nothing in return. He told him that in return for selling all his possessions, giving to the poor, and following Him he would have treasure in heaven (Mk. 10:21.)

God has never required man to do something without promising him something greater in return. In the garden, in return for keeping the garden and refraining from the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, the man was to have everything he needed and could prolong his days upon this earth (Gen. 2:16-17; 3:22-24.) Abraham was promised greater wealth and prosperity for his descendants for leaving his home and going where God told him to go (Gen. 12:1-3.) Jesus promises us that if we will believe in Him and obey His gospel we will be saved, thus receiving treasures in heaven (Mk. 16:15-16.)

High cost of turnover

The problem of employee turnover is a serious and costly situation in many industries today. Some companies experience turnover rates of 300 percent and more. A company that normally employs 10 people would have 30 employees come and go in one year to experience a 300 percent turnover rate.

The problem consumes huge amounts of management time better spent on other activities. In addition, the costs of recruiting, hiring and training may be the largest hidden cost in many companies. Some business owners report that the cost of training entry level workers now exceeds $1,200.

According to many human resource experts, there are several causes of employee turnover. The first is the practice of hiring employees whose skills or personality traits are not compatible with the critical factors and functions of the job. Hiring an introverted, detail-oriented engineer for an outside sales position is an example of such a mismatch.

Another cause is the way other members of the company treat new employees. Unfriendly co-workers, supervisors who lack real leadership skills and managers with unrealistic expectations contribute to high employee turnover rates.

An additional turnover element is inadequate or unclear communication. All members of the business team must be able to understand what the others are saying. High-turnover companies always have deficiencies in the communication process.

Another reason for "revolving-door personnel" is inadequate training. If an employee doesn't understand what to do and how to do it, the frustration level will increase and the employee will often leave at the earliest opportunity.

Adverse working conditions can also cause turnover. An unsafe environment, difficult hours, unsanitary working conditions or uncomfortable work spaces are all potential causes of dissatisfied employees.

Another common cause is a pay scale below the prevailing wage rate. If you are the lowest paying company in an area, you become the employer of last resort.

Turning the tide

The best ways to lower turnover rates actually begin before you hire anyone. You should carefully analyze every job to determine the critical factors related to it. For example, a retail sales clerk needs strong communication skills, knowledge of selling and the ability to initiate contact with strangers. On the other hand, key factors for success in a machinist's job might include the ability to work in one place and persistence to perform steadily at repetitive work.

After you identify key success factors, you should create a job description that clearly defines them. The more clearly you detail the job requirements, the more likely you are to find candidates that match.

Several companies sell test instruments that you can use to evaluate potential employees' personality traits and behavioral characteristics. Contact the nearest Human Resources Association to learn which tests might be most appropriate for you. You will find these profiling tools useful in evaluating current employees, too.

The next step in reducing turnover is using good interviewing techniques. Many good articles and several books are available with advice on interviewing and selecting good potential employees. Check with the reference desk at your local library.

Once you've found the right candidate, training should begin as soon as possible. Most small-business owners who are reducing their turnover rates tell me their training process never stops.

Another important factor is to reward those employees who perform their jobs well and motivate those who need a little encouragement. Remember, people require difference motivation. A pat on the back may help one, a kick in the pants another. (Figuratively speaking of course.)

A final thought on turnover. To improve anything you must be able to measure it. Once you begin to measure turnover you can begin to develop your plan to improve it.

U.S.-Japanese business marriages promote good will TOKYO (AP) — Japan's giant NTT Corp. was in search of a technologically savvy partner to help create its experimental digital video-on-demand project.

But it didn't look to any of its local counterparts for assistance. Instead, it headed across the Pacific to Mountain View, Calif.-based Silicon Graphics, the company that brought dinosaurs to life in the movie hit "Jurassic Park."

Now, 300 homes can access the system, which includes a graphically advanced video-game channel, cable TV and on-line information.

Such U.S.-Japanese cooperative projects may be an indication that a new era of peace — or at least a solid cease-fire — in bilateral relations may be here and worries of an imminent trade war can be put aside for the time being.

U.S. and Japanese trade negotiators clashed last year over opening the Japanese auto market. And tensions still linger over boosting sales of foreign computer chips and film in Japan.

But there is some indication that Japan is starting to show a friendlier side to U.S. businesses.

"Alliances are definitely increasing," says George Mu, a U.S. Embassy official in Tokyo overseeing business. "It's just the way the world economy is evolving."

Especially in high-tech areas, the costs and risks of doing business are so great that strategic alliances are almost a necessity, Mu said.

Other examples of some recent alliances: —Ford Motor Co. increased its stake in Mazda to 33.4 percent from 24.5 percent, taking virtual control of Mazda.

—Packard Bell Electronics Inc. acquired the personal computer operations of NEC Corp. outside of Japan.

—Japan Airlines and American Airlines have agreed to share computer-reserved information on flight bookings, rental cars and hotels.

Reform Party faithful get dual look at candidates

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) - Richard Lamm asked the Reform Party faithful Saturday to "pass the torch" to him, but members of the political movement saved their most fiery support for party founder Ross Perot.
 Perot, taking the state party convention stage after Lamm in their first shared public appearance, promised to "do better" than Republican and Democratic leaders if he were president of the United States.
 "If you make me your candidate I will dedicate myself as a servant to the American people - bought, paid for and owned by the American people," Perot promised in seeking the Reform Party presidential nomination.
 Perot, who has said for months he no longer coveted the presidency, almost casually announced his candidacy on July 10 - one day after Lamm, a lifelong Democrat and former Colorado governor, said he would run.
 On Saturday, Lamm often sounded like a slicker, younger version of Perot as he addressed about 200 convention delegates - and the simply curious - who turned out to hear them both speak. Lamm, who earned polite applause, turned out to be only a warm up for the more popular Perot.
 "I am asking you to pass the torch," Lamm said, after crediting Perot for founding the party and leading it thus far.
 Perot, whose third-party bid for the presidency in 1992 galvanized a powerful group of disaffected voters, didn't even mention Lamm.
 Instead, the billionaire Texan delivered an hour-plus speech peppered with his trademark folksy phraseology and full-color charts. He likened last fall's White House-congressional stalemate over the federal budget to a fight between doctors while a heart attack patient waits on a gurney.

 "I think we can do better than that. Can we agree on that?" Perot said to loud and enthusiastic applause.
 Lamm pressed some of the same themes of fiscal accountability and wholesale renovation of the American political machinery.
 "We stand on the shoulders of giants, yet my generation can't even pay its own way," Lamm said. "We put it on our children's credit card."
 Party members, who say it's clear Perot leads Lamm for the nomination, said their joint appearance - without a divisive debate - demonstrates a civility lacking in the two major political parties.
 Perot even gave Lamm a ride in his jet so the pair could easily make both appearances together in Virginia and at Augusta, Maine, where they delivered the same separate speeches at another state party convention.
 "We will not attack our opponents," Perot pledged, talking as if he were already looking toward November. "We have work to do."
 Lamm, speaking for 15 minutes following Perot and after about half the 300 listeners streamed out of the hall, urged people not to judge him harshly for coming to the independent party revolution late. "I wasn't there four years ago, but I have all the passion of a convert," he said.
 Despite the friendly contest,

Lamm said he wants three debates before November, including one on Perot's favorite Larry King Live venue.
 At Charlottesville, Perot supporters were everywhere and only a few people wore Lamm stickers in the meeting hall that lacked balloons, confetti and other typical convention decorations.
 "I think there is a national consensus among a lot of us that it's time to elevate Perot to emeritus status, to founding status in this party," said Lamm supporter Betsy McBride, of Chesapeake, Va.
 Convention delegate Al Picardi of Belle Haven, Va, called Lamm "a nice fellow." "But," he added, "frankly, if Lamm ran I can see it shake up the parties slightly. If Perot runs, I think there's a good chance of getting into the White House."
 "I think Ross is the only guy who can do it."
 Under still evolving rules for picking a nominee, the Reform Party plans to keep secret the results of a preference survey now being conducted by mail. The party, which has qualified for the ballot in 25 states so far, will say which candidates have enough support - around 10 percent or more - to make it on the final nominating ballot.

Party members vote to pick the nominee at two separate conventions - Aug. 11 at Long Beach, Calif. and Aug. 18 at Valley Forge, Pa., where the winner will be announced.
 The deadline for survey responses was extended to July 25, the same day the finalists for the nomination are to be announced.
 Hundreds of party members in several states have groused that they had not received ballots and would not be able to meet even the later deadline, and Lamm has expressed concern about the balloting process. But party organizers have attributed delays to fixable computer list problems.
 The Texas billionaire who bankrolled the Reform Party is headed toward his own group's presidential nomination, even though many voters are still fence-sitters, according to The Dallas Morning News.
 The newspaper's interviews with party leaders in 37 states shows Perot leads rival Lamm, a Democrat and former Colorado governor, for the Reform Party's nod.
 Party officials in 14 states told the newspaper that they personally preferred the Dallas businessman or believed most members in their regions would choose him as the candidate.

Gas well blowout extinguished

DIME BOX, Texas (AP) - Firefighters extinguished a 40-foot fireball on Friday that had burned for nearly a week following a natural gas well explosion that killed two men.
 "They flooded it with lots of water," said Lee County Sheriff Joe Goodson. "It took awhile, but they got it out."
 Goodson said the fire was snuffed around noon.
 "They just submerged the whole well with water," Goodson said. "They had three big water jet canons. They put so much water on it that they just smothered the fire."

 Members of Joe Bowden's Wild Well Control, Inc., of Spring, expected to repair the well so it could begin pumping gas by Saturday, Goodson said.
 J.E. Trawack Jr., 39, of Caldwell, Texas, and Steve Patridge of Lafayette, La., were killed when the rig, owned by WCS Oil & Gas Inc. of Dallas, erupted in a series of three explosions on July 13, creating a massive fireball.
 WCS and state officials say they still don't know what caused the blast.

OLYMPICS

ATLANTA (AP) — Fred Deburghraeve of Belgium set a world record this morning during the preliminaries of the Olympic 100-meter breaststroke.

His time of 1 minute, 00.60 seconds broke the mark of 1:00.95 set by Karoly Guttler of Hungary in August 1993. Guttler had the fourth-fastest time during today's heats, 1:01.80.

Deburghraeve, 23, had swum the second-fastest time ever of 1:01.12 before today's race. He had only the 34th-best time in the event during the 1992 Olympics.

Jeremy Linn of Harrisburg, Pa., nearly set an Olympic record two heats before Deburghraeve swam. Linn's time of 1:01.53 was just three-hundredths of a second slower than Nelson Diebel's time when he won the gold medal at Barcelona.

American Kurt Grote also qualified for tonight's finals.

ATLANTA (AP) — Marcia Pankratz of Wakefield, Mass., deflected a penalty corner shot into the goal with 1:57 left to give the U.S. women a 1-1 tie with the Netherlands in the opening of the Olympic field hockey round-robin today.

The 70-minute game was tied for nearly 63 minutes until the Netherlands scored on a breakaway by Ellen Kuipers with 7:21 left in the game.

But the United States got just its second penalty corner shot of the game with two minutes left, and Pankratz deflected in the initial shot by Barb Marois of Auburn, Mass.

The Netherlands missed numerous opportunities in the first half, when it had six penalty corners to none for the Americans. The final count on penalty shots was 9-2.

BASEBALL

CLEVELAND (AP) — Albert Belle tied the Cleveland career record with his 226th home run, and the Indians beat the Minnesota Twins 6-5 Saturday on Alvaro Espinoza's homer in the 11th inning.

Kenny Lofton, who had five hits for the first time in the majors, singled and scored the tying run in the ninth for the Indians on a bases-loaded walk to Eddie Murray.

Espinoza connected with one out off Dave Stevens (1-2) for his fourth homer. He entered as a replacement at first base for Mark Carreon in the eighth inning, and grounded out in the ninth with a chance to tie the game.

Tri-State Tournament tees off this week

PAMPA — The championship trophy should be up for grabs when the 62nd annual Tri-State Senior Association Golf Tournament begins later this week at Pampa Country Club course. That's the way PCC pro Mickey Piersall sees the 28-man championship flight field, which tees off at 12 noon Wednesday.

"There's really not a clear-cut favorite," Piersall said. "We've got a pretty good group this year."

Local talent has surged to the forefront in recent years with Elmer Wilson, Merle Terrell, Eddie Duenkel and Carroll Langley all capable of keeping the first-place trophy at home.

"Carroll has been playing well, Elmer has won the tournament, Merle and Eddie have come close," Piersall added. "Bob Sanders of Amarillo has placed as high as second."

Terrell, Wilson, Duenkel and Lubbock's Earl Roark will be in the first foursome to start off the championship flight. Langley will be the 12:22 p.m. foursome which includes Ed Dudley of Plainview, Donald Riffe of Stratford and Frank Stovall of Houston. Sanders is in the 12:07 group along with John Pettit of Hominy, Okla. Doug Barron of Amarillo and Bill Clemmons of Fritch.

Terrell won medalist honors and was runnerup in last year's tournament. Wilson won the 1994 title, becoming the first Pampa golfer to capture the championship. Duenkel finished third a year ago.

Langley placed third in the 1994 tournament. He lost in a playoff for first in the president's flight last year.

Sanders was second in 1993 and fourth in 1994. He didn't play last year.

Tom Miller of Wichita Falls and last year's winner, had to cancel out of the 1996 tournament due to a prior commitment.

Golfers could find the PCC course compatible with good scores if they keep out of the rough.

"The course is in really good shape with all the rain we've had," Piersall said. "It has made the rough a little higher."

Pampa claims 9-10 WT state tourney

LOCKNEY — Pampa slipped by Tulia, 10-9, in the championship game of the West Texas State 9-10 year-old State Tournament on Friday night.

Pampa dominated the game through the first four innings, scoring nine runs.

Eddie Palma pitched four solid innings for Pampa, allowing no runs on two hits and one walk while striking out four. Then in the top of the fifth, Pampa committed three errors while giving up five walks and four hits which led to nine Tulia runs.

Pampa used three pitchers in the fifth inning. Zach Hucks came in with the score tied 9-9 and shut down the Tulia rally, striking out one batter. Then Hucks fielded a hard grounder and threw to first for the final out.

In the bottom of the fifth, Cody Jenkins got on base with a walk. He then stole second and third. Ryan Barnes batted him in with a single.

In the top of the sixth, Tulia's first batter reached on a walk. The next batter hit a shot to right and Collin Bowers fielded the ball and fired to second to the force for the first out. The next batter reached on a single to center. With runners on first and second, the next batter grounded to second baseman Ryan Barnes, who threw to first for the second out. With runners on second and third, Hucks ended the game, throwing a perfect change-up to strike out the last Tulia batter.

Leading hitters for the game were Ryan Barnes, who had three singles; Hunter Craig, Eddie Palma, Clarke Hale, Collin Bowers, Aaron Simon and Andy Rogers, all with one single each.

Pampa travels to Plaquemine, La. on July 25 for the Babe Ruth Southwest Regional Tournament.

Lehman takes 6-stroke lead in British Open

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England (AP) — Tom Lehman only needed to look back as far as the Masters to know that his six-stroke lead over Nick Faldo after three rounds at the British Open was anything but safe.

Lehman's course-record 64 on Saturday and his 54-hole British Open record 198 was a masterful domination of Royal Lytham & St. Annes Golf Club. Now he will find out if he can dominate Faldo.

"To play head-to-head with Nick Faldo will be something to tell my grandchildren about," Lehman said. "He is one of the best, if not the best player in the world."

No one in the world is a more relentless match-play player than Faldo. No one can put more pressure on an opponent. Faldo proved that in April at Augusta when he went head-to-head with Greg Norman on Sunday trailing by six strokes and won by five.

"Obviously it's a similar scenario. In that sense it is quite similar. But it's a different period of time, a different golf course," Faldo said, sounding like he wanted to add that it also was a different opponent. "But the objective is still the same," he said. "To shoot a great score and see what happens. I've got to aim for 63 tomorrow."

There was an eerie sense of familiarity to Lehman's position.

Here he was once again leading a major championship going to the final round, the fourth time in three years he has been in the last group on Sunday in a major, most recently at the U.S. Open last month when he finished second to Steve Jones.

Yet Lehman has never won a major.

And here was Faldo once again making a birdie on the 17th hole — just like he did at Augusta — to force a final-round pairing with the man he has to catch, as he tries for his seventh major and fourth British Open.

"Being in the last group again may help," Faldo said after his 68 put him at 9-under-par 204. "If anything is going to happen, it is the best place to be."

Mark Brooks and Vijay Singh were seven strokes back at 205, with Ernie Els and Fred Couples at 206.

Jack Nicklaus, who started one stroke behind midway leaders Lehman and Paul McGinley, shot a 77, the 11th time since the 1986 Masters he's shot 76 or higher in the third round of a major championship. McGinley fell back with a 74.

Nearly everyone fell back on another sunny, relatively calm day at Lytham, mostly because Lehman was putting up numbers that were impossible to match.

Local girls advance in softball

GRAHAM — Pampa's 11-12 year-old All-Stars have advanced to the winner's bracket finals of the Sectional Girls' Softball Tournament.

Pampa downed Big Bend of Alpine, 24-15, Friday to advance to meet White Settlement on Saturday night.

Danielle Martinez gave up just four hits against Big Bend and was the winning pitcher. Cali Covalt was the starting pitcher and Samantha Ford came in with two outs in the final inning to retire the last Big Bend batter.

"We scored 17 runs in the first inning and they came back with something like 12 runs in the bottom of the first. Our pitchers struggled, but we were finally able to outpound them," said Pampa manager Terry Garner.

Micki Petty, Sabrina Johnson and Danielle Martinez were Pampa's leading hitters.

On Thursday, Pampa outlasted Post, Tex., 44-20.

Stefani Goldsmith was the winning pitcher while Micki Petty had six hits for Pampa. Sabrina Johnson was another top hitter for Pampa.

Kim Conner in left field played outstanding defense for Pampa.

The Pampa All-Stars advanced to Sectionals by winning the District One Softball Tournament in Canadian earlier last week.

FOOTBALL

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Notes from the second day of Cowboys training camp:
NO MAS: Shane Hannah, the Dallas Cowboys second-round draft pick two years ago, told coach Barry Switzer he was retiring and left training camp. Hannah, a 329-pounder from Michigan State, has never played a down in the NFL. He sat out last season with an injury.
 "He told me the game wasn't fun anymore," Switzer said. "He told me his heart and mind weren't in it. I respect his decision."
 Losing Hannah hurts the Cowboys' depth, and they'll be looking around for offensive line help. However, they won't go after Derek Kennard again. Kennard filled in as starting center last year when Ray Donaldson got hurt but wasn't offered a contract by the Cowboys.
 "We are not pursuing him," Switzer said. The Cowboys are pleased with third-round pick Clay Shiver of Florida State as Donaldson's backup this season.
MONKEY BUSINESS: Wide receiver Orlando Gadsden gets lonely at camp, so he brought a friend: a pet monkey named Malik.
 However, Gadsden has been ordered by officials at St. Edward's University, where the Cowboys live and train during camp, to send Malik back to Dallas.
 Even for the Super Bowl champs, it seems the policy is no pets in St. Edward's dorm rooms.
PRESS NOT PASSING: The Cowboys are popular with the press. Over 200 media credentials have been issued for camp, even during an Olympic summer when thousands of journalists are busy in Atlanta. The crowds at St. Edward's are good, too, averaging over 2,000 fans per day. The 20-day Cowboy camp pumps about $3 million into the Austin economy, according to Mayor Bruce Todd.
EMMITT DOWN, NOT OUT: New middle linebacker Fred Strickland delivered a blow that knocked running back Emmitt Smith to the ground during a no-tackle drill. Smith laughed about it, saying, "That's football. Sometimes you get blasted."
 One member of the media joked that "Emmitt was just happy the Cowboys finally found a middle linebacker who would make a tackle."
 Robert Jones, who had a subpar season in 1995, left via the free agency route, and Strickland was picked up when he left Green Bay.

BRIEFS

FOOTBALL
 KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Kansas City Chiefs matched a contract offer from the Minnesota Vikings to retain cornerback Dale Carter.
 Minnesota's offer was believed to be for three years, with base salaries escalating from $400,000 to $2 million to $3.5 million, and a signing bonus of $1.8 million.
PHOENIX (AP) — Former NFL lineman Luis Sharpe was sentenced to a year in prison for violating probation by using cocaine and methamphetamine.
MANCOPA COUNTY SUPERIOR COURT Judge Michael D. Ryan also ordered Sharpe to spend 36 months under house arrest when he is released from prison. Sharpe, 36, played 13 seasons for the St. Louis and Phoenix Cardinals.
BASKETBALL
INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Elden Campbell, a free agent forward-center, re-signed with Los Angeles, a day after the Lakers landed Shaquille O'Neal.
 Lakers executive Jerry West said Campbell signed a multiyear contract, but specifics were not announced. Campbell averaged 13.9 points last season.
 The Lakers also signed Derek Fisher, a former Arkansas-Little Rock guard selected 24th overall in the draft.
DENVER (AP) — Dick Motta, third among NBA coaches with 918 victories before being fired by the Dallas Mavericks last season, joined the Dallas Mavericks as an assistant coach.
CYCLING
BORDEAUX, France (AP) — France's Frederic Moncassin won the 19th stage of the Tour de France, while Denmark's Bjarne Riis retained the overall lead with only two stages remaining. Riis, 31 minutes, 59 seconds in front of teammate Jan Ullrich of Germany, was 46th in the 140-mile stage from Hendaye in the same time as Moncassin.

Cowboys' corner Smith coming back from devastating injury

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — He walks well again. He runs fine. He backpedals OK. So why isn't Kevin Smith on the field at the Dallas Cowboys training camp?

"Don't worry," Smith said. "If I had to play a game tomorrow, I could. I'll be there when it counts on Sept. 2."

Smith is recovering from one of the most devastating injuries a cornerback could suffer. He tore his right Achilles' tendon in the Cowboys' 1995 season-opener and earned his Super Bowl ring during rehabilitation.

It happened 24 hours after he signed a long-term contract that will make him a Cowboy for life.

"It was frustrating not being on the field," Smith said. "But I'll take Super Bowl ring No. 3. This year, I want to be out there when we win another one."

Smith, a first-round draft pick from Texas A&M in 1992, had a reputation as one of the best corner corners in the NFL. He thwarted San Francisco's Jerry Rice on several occasions and was on the verge of being a Pro Bowl regular.

Now, Smith tries to overcome what some had called a career-ending injury.

"I'm not as fast as I used to be, but I have football speed and that's all you need," Smith said. "There will be a question whether I can cover until I go out and do it. I think I can do it. My torn tendon has healed to the point where it is stronger than the other one. I'm not worried about blowing it again."

Smith is one of the keys to the Dallas defense that lost five starters to free agency and will lose cornerback Deion Sanders part of the time to offense. Aside from last season, Smith has averaged 80 tackles, 15 passes defensed and 4 interceptions per year.

"There's no doubt that one of the keys to our season is getting Kevin back on the field playing like he did when he was one of our best defensive players," said coach Barry Switzer.

Smith is trying to pace himself so he'll peak for the Sept. 2 opener in Chicago. So far he has attended practice in street clothes.

"Mentally I'm ready but I have to build my stamina," said Smith. "I should be ready to hit the field in about a week and a half. That should be about right. I want my body to feel strong before I go out there

Search is on for UT baseball coach

AUSTIN (AP) — Several top coaches from across the country are expected to be considered by a University of Texas screening committee charged with finding a new baseball coach for the first time in 29 years.

Cliff Gustafson, the winningest coach in NCAA Division I history, retired after 29 seasons at UT amid questions about the finances of his summer baseball camp.

School officials said Gustafson maintained an account for camp revenues outside of school regulations and then used the fund to pay himself and his son, a former voluntary coach at Texas.

Smith said he hopes the defense doesn't lose Deion Sanders entirely. Sanders is working on his receiving skills and might even play both ways this year.

"I would have to do a lot of flip-flopping around if we lost Deion to offense," Smith said. "I would do it but it would be tough. We have to have Deion back there some."

Smith said the Cowboys will be a more-aggressive defensive team in 1996.

"We plan to have a more attacking defense this year," he said. "You will see more upfield stuff from the Cowboys."

Can the Cowboys pull off back-to-back Super Bowl wins?
 "Everybody will be ready for us to mess up," Smith said. "I guess we have more visibility than any other team except maybe the Chicago Bulls. I think we can do it."

Particularly if Smith can return to form.

Hernandez speaks out in Irvin plot

DALLAS (AP) — As his trial date approaches, an ex-convicted accused of trying to put out a contract on Dallas Cowboys star Michael Irvin says he wants to tell his side of the story.

"I'm looking forward for the truth to come out," Johnnie Hernandez, 28, said Friday. "I believe in the justice system, and I'm prepared to take whatever happens."

However, Hernandez, who holds a bachelor's degree in criminal justice and criminology, refused to talk about his case because he's under a gag order imposed by the judge in his case.

Hernandez resigned from the Dallas police force June 27, the day of his arrest on a solicitation of capital murder charge and an unrelated bribery charge. He was indicted Thursday on the solicitation and the bribery count.

He and his girlfriend, ex-topless dancer Rachelle Smith, held a series of carefully controlled media interviews Friday about his legal problems and their future together.

Smith, 24, said as she perched near her boyfriend on a couch in her lawyer's office.

Smith, who said Friday that she quit dancing topless four months ago, was a friend of two topless dancers who were found with Irvin in an Irving motel room March 4 along with marijuana and cocaine.

Irvin was indicted April 1, days after Smith testified before a Dallas County grand jury. He pleaded no contest Monday — several days into his trial — to felony cocaine possession and was sentenced to four years' deferred adjudication, a form of probation.

But his plea came only after Smith testified outside the presence of the jury that she herself had been with Irvin during at least three all-night sex parties where Irvin brought marijuana and cocaine. She also testified that he threatened to harm her and Hernandez if she didn't change her grand jury testimony or if she cooperated with prosecutors.

Hernandez reportedly wanted Irvin killed because Smith said the football star threatened her.

Oiler camp opens on a positive note

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Owner Bud Adams and Heisman Trophy winner Eddie George have gotten the Houston Oilers' training camp off on a positive note.

George met with Adams on the first day of training camp Friday, then left the room $1.195 million richer.

Adams caught up with George in the lobby of the player's dorm on the Trinity University campus.

"You might want this," Adams joked, playing to the cameras as he handed George his signing bonus.

"That's nice," said the Oilers' No. 1 draft pick, examining the down payment on his five-year, $6.09 million contract. "It's going in the bank."

Court documents attribute 17th blast to Unabomber

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Unabomber suspect Theodore Kaczynski has been linked to a bombing that occurred near his remote Montana cabin four days after his arrest.

No one was injured in the April 7 blast, but at the time, agents were searching Kaczynski's cabin for evidence.

Although Kaczynski had been arrested four days earlier, he was linked to the bombing in court documents filed Friday.

It was not clear whether the device was triggered deliberately or accidentally, or might have been on a timer.

The bombing marked the 17th explosion attributed to the Unabomber, according to court documents. The previous 16 killed three people and injured 23 during the shadowy bomber's 18-year campaign against the evils of a technological society.

Officials at the U.S. attorney's offices in Sacramento — where Kaczynski awaits trial — and in San Francisco declined to comment on the matter Friday. FBI officials in Sacramento could not be reached.

Details of the 17th explosion were not included in the court documents, which were filed in connection with the postponement of a scheduled hearing for Kaczynski from Friday to Sept. 20.

Kaczynski's defense team sought the delay to examine a huge quantity of evidence that includes 22,000 documents and hundreds of photographs.

U.S. Attorney Charles Stevens said in a separate filing that additional evidence, including "numerous laboratory reports," are expected to be made available to the defense within the next few days.

Stevens also said that he hopes to obtain a computer system to store and retrieve the large amount of evidence and use it during the trial, including a CD-ROM, television monitors and a sophisticated imaging system.

Kaczynski, 54, was accused last month in a 10-count indictment of four bombings that killed a computer store owner in 1985, a timber industry lobbyist in 1995 and maimed a University of California geneticist and a Yale University computer expert in 1993.

Stevens said the trial will likely start early next year in Sacramento.

Senate rejects GOP welfare overhaul amendments

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Dianne Feinstein, D-Calif., is asking the Senate to spare some legal immigrants from budget cuts Republicans are planning as part of an overhaul of the welfare system.

She faces opposition from Republicans who say it's time to get runaway costs under control.

Feinstein offered an amendment Friday that would allow immigrants who receive Supplemental Security Income cash payments to continue getting them. Under the Senate bill, non-citizens would be ineligible for SSI except in limited circumstances.

Fifty-two percent of all immigrants on SSI — many of them blind, elderly or disabled — live in California. It's not fair to suddenly change the rules on them, Feinstein said.

"Do you throw people off into the streets with no source of support?" she said during debate on the Senate floor.

But Sen. Rick Santorum, R-Pa., argued against the amendment, saying most immigrants entered the country under sponsorship of U.S. residents who promised to back them financially. Those agreements are not legally binding, but "a lot of people who sponsored people into this country are going to have to start footing the bill," he said.

The Senate is scheduled to begin voting Tuesday on Feinstein's proposal and other changes proposed by Democrats who say Republican welfare plans are too harsh.

On Friday, the Senate rejected an amendment that would have allowed children to continue receiving some federal help after their parents are cut off.

Fifty-one of the 100 senators voted for the provision, offered by Sen. John Breaux, D-La. — nine short of the 60 needed to pass an amendment that exceeds preset spending limits.

The House voted 256-170 on Thursday to approve its welfare overhaul plan.

Republicans want to end the federal guarantee of aid to the poor that has been in place for six decades. Under the House and Senate plans, welfare recipients would be required to find jobs within two years of joining the program, and most participants would be cut off after time limits are reached.

States could deny federal money to mothers who have more children while on welfare.

Republicans said their plans would free the needy from a cycle of dependence, restore their dignity and save taxpayers nearly $60 billion over six years.

During debate Thursday and Friday, Democrats generally were unsuccessful in attracting enough votes for amendments that they said would soften what they see as mean-spirited legislation that would force more children into poverty. They plan to persevere, however, said Democratic Leader Sen. Tom Daschle, D-S.D.

"If we fail on those amendments, my expectation is a large percentage, perhaps all Democrats, will vote against" the welfare bill, he said. "Welfare reform is very important to us, but not just any welfare reform bill. ... (We're) not willing to settle for a bill that punishes kids."

Texas National Guard Ready to go, ready to stay

Roll call formation - Pampa's National Guard Unit, 2nd BN, 142 INF DIV Co.-D.

By SHERRY CROMARTIE
Staff Writer

"Training in the Texas National Guard is not recreational," said Pampa's Joe Martinez, sergeant first class, non-commissioned officer in charge of recruiting for Pampa's armory guard unit.

"It is intense and stressful, using actual warfare and being in an austere, primal atmosphere, to be able to perform in battlefield urgencies," Martinez said.

Texas Army National Guard members took to the road in June traveling to Fort Hood, near Killeen, for a two week war simulation training.

There are more than 500 members of the guard's 2d Battalion, 142d Infantry Division, Company-D and several of those are members from Pampa's armory. Others that complete the battalion are from Wellington, Midland, Odessa and Lubbock.

Area headquarters for Texas Panhandle guard units is the 2d BN(M) 142 INF Armory at Wellington, under Sgt. First Class (SFC) Epifanio Castillo, Jr., NCO of Det. 1, Co.-D. Castillo is the recruiter retention officer for Pampa and Wellington National Guard units.

"Most all my training has been at Fort Hood," said Martinez, who in civilian life, is the assistant vice president at Boatmen's First Pampa Banking Center.

"In Pampa I am considered the local NCO (non-commissioned officer) in charge of recruiting. I am willing to share with anyone what I know of the Texas National Guard, and encourage young people to inquire about the benefits and opportunities available to them once they have joined the guard service," Martinez said.

During the weekend of the Top O'Texas 50th anniversary, Martinez and other guard members were on duty at the armory and in local community affairs. Weekend work involves various public relations assignments, working to promote the guard in recruiting efforts.

The guard unit participates in the annual parade each year, and are available for other community events throughout the year, Martinez explained.

Local weekend duties also included maintenance of all weapons and recording complete inventory of all tactical equipment, other than weapons at the armory.

Martinez stressed the importance of the guard members contributing their time for weekend training sessions and going to the two weeks training every summer.

He explained some of the training procedures his unit experienced while at Fort Hood, the largest infantry military facility in the state providing realistic training for the regular army and for Texas National Guard units throughout the calendar year.

"At Fort Hood, the main exercises are based on defense against an opposing force. Whole battalions, including five companies of men and women, took turns in certain training procedures during the two weeks," Martinez said.

He said the three major training exercises include weapons ranges, live firing and field training using "MILES", a laser-tone device.

"There are a series of ranges used for marksmanship, and weapon ranges are designated for the 50-caliber machine guns and M-60 machine guns. These same weapons are used in the regular infantry," Martinez said.

The men are engaged in live-fire exercise, for a real-life experience relative to establishing realism, (in war games)" explained Martinez.

"The field training exercises simulate actual combat situations. Using 'MILES' markers is a way of marking a target hit by use of a laser beacon, which are fitted on to the soldiers. A registered hit is recognized by a sound tone. At that moment, the soldier is considered out of the games if he is the target," he said.

Martinez continued: "Once a man is out, he is marked with a card, indicating his particular injury or to mark him as a 'dead soldier.' If an injury is identified, then it requires the services of the medics unit. The card indicator helps in the training of medics learning their jobs at a war scene. And the vehicles are also equipped with the same "MILES" device, which tells the drivers and the mechanics whether it can be fixed, or whether it is out of the games."

Martinez said the national guard will train on the Bradley Fighting Vehicle, a high tech machine which will fire a 20MM cannon and co-axillary machine gun.

"This type of infantry mode of warfare was used during the Desert Storm era. The guard is reaching a point, in comparison to earlier years, the training is geared toward realistic, ready-for-mission action," he said.

He anticipates newer equipment will be provided for local training soon.

"Company D will soon be getting first generation vehicles, (Desert Storm machinery and vehicles) designed to run with tanks. Changing our weapon system will affect the skills level of our soldiers. This transition will not be immediate, but will be evident in 1997," he said.

Martinez often speaks at career day program about scholarship programs available through the Guard. The local unit is currently rebuilding and reorganizing. Openings are available and he is hopeful there will be more interest in the national guard from students considering the military as a financial source for higher education.

A recent article published in the TNG newsletter implied "changes to the world's military-political situation and subsequent reductions in U.S. defense spending have contributed to a reduction in the size of the nation's total military force. The peak was 1989 when the numerical strength of the Army National Guard was 457,000 and the active Army was 780,000. At the fiscal year ending September 30, 1995, the strength numbers of both components have a Congressional ceiling of 373,000 and 495,000, respectively."

With the National Guard's plan to upgrade training methods and equipment, it will make up for the shortfall by converting many of its combat units to support organizations. By 1999 the force structure is expected at 405,000.

An ongoing recruiting effort is encouraged in the local area to contribute toward the goals of the Army National Guard, according to Martinez.

"If a unit can maintain its man strength, it will be able to keep its armory. Our authorized strength is 62 members, and we could use 30 more people, even though that would carry us over," he said.

"Scholarships are given to student guardsmen after they have completed certain aspects of military training while still in high school," said Martinez, who has served since 1979. He also earned a TNG scholarship as a young man.

"A split training program is recommended: one summer at a basic military installation, during the middle of the junior and senior year, and complete the training, as previously experienced, after high school graduation. He or she can then qualify for a scholarship, and can fulfill a role in an assigned battalion," Martinez said.

Others training at Fort Hood from Pampa's Company D include PV2 Johnny Blackwood, Sgt. Bobby Holmes, Sgt. Brian Butters, SP4 Stony Douglas, SSgt. Jeffrey Stout, Sgt. Tye Ward, PFC John Allen, 1/LT Steven Dortch, Sgt. Jerral Alan James, SSgt. James Taylor and SP4 Steven Bodine.

Also receiving the training, Sgt. Tim Darling, SP4 Richard Hefner, Sgt. Alan Olson, Sgt. Billy Corley, SP4 David Cummings, SP4 Douglas Fulton, SSgt. Gregorio Garza, Sgt. Kenneth Hefner, PV2 Rodney Holmes, SSgt. Randy Ledbetter, SSgt. Michael Smith and Sgt. Stacy Smith.

This Discussion Isn't Over Till Fat Lady's Explained

DEAR ABBY: I presume that you, and most of your readers who are more than 40 years old, have heard the expression, "It's not over until the fat lady sings."
Was the fat lady they were referring to Kate Smith?

OLD-TIMER

DEAR OLD-TIMER: No, it wasn't Kate Smith. A reader asked me that question in 1987. The research was quite interesting.

One resource attributed that expression to Dick Motta, coach of the Washington Bullets basketball team, and later coach of the Dallas Mavericks. He was reported to have said it during the 1977-78 basketball playoffs, and he meant, "We may be behind, but we haven't lost the series until all the games have been played." Another source credits Dan Cook, a San Antonio sportscaster, who said it was a takeoff on Yogi Berra's line, "The game isn't over 'til it's over." Mr. Cook said this story is recorded in the Library of Congress.

After I published that information, a reader offered another source of this popular expression. Retired Capt. Charlie E. Milton, U.S. Army, informed me that the expression originated in connection with opera, and the lady it referred to was a heavy-set soprano who performed in

SYNDICATED COLUMNIST

Richard Wagner's opera "Götterdämmerung."

Still another reader wrote to me about it, and his letter is so interesting I'm printing it again in its entirety:

DEAR ABBY: I'm sure you would mean no offense when you used that expression, "It's not over until the fat lady sings."

It originated during the reign of that great opera star Zinka Milanov, the gargantuan singer with a glorious voice who towered over most of her tenors. When they make fun of Wagnerian Brunhildes, they are really doing a parody of Zinka.

I still remember going with my sixth-grade class to the "Met" to see a matinee of "La Bohème" with Jan Peerce as Rudolfo and Zinka as Mimì. She towered over Jan, and when he sang the aria "Che Gelida Manina" ("What a frozen little hand") to Zinka, who had hands like the boxer Primo Carnera, it was too funny for words.

Jan, by the way, was my neighbor. When his father was alive, Jan did not want his father to walk the seven miles to the synagogue on Saturday, so he had a room of his house made into a chapel. He would invite some of the neighbors and his friends from the Met for services. I was in my teens at the time. You can imagine what it was like hearing the hymns sung with Jan, Roberta Peters, Robert Merrill and others in the little congregation. The house practically shook.

IRA D. SHPRINTZEN, NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding your advice to "Hair Splitting": You advised her that a true friend would discreetly tell John that he desperately needs a new hairpiece. Also, since the friend admitted wishing he'd never started wearing a hairpiece, a true friend should suggest that John again consider appearing without the hairpiece.

For many years, in the world of entertainment, we had Yul Brynner and Telly Savalas showing us that "bald is beautiful." Today, there are athletes by the score making the same statement.

John might find that this is the way to go. You may use my name.
DEREK VAN DEREN, SOUTH BEND, WASH.

NBC leads Emmy race with 88 nominations; 'ER' gains 17

LOS ANGELES (AP) — NBC and its explosive hospital drama ER loomed as big in last week's Emmy nominations as they do in the ratings. But good things come in small packages, too: A&E found that out.

Specialized cable channels like A&E received bids in top categories, including best mini-series.

ER drew a leading 17 nominations, including best drama series and nods for its stars George Clooney, Anthony Edwards, Sherry Stringfield and Noah Wyle.

The Emmys also were good medicine for CBS' Chicago Hope, in second place with 15 bids, and a breakthrough for the acclaimed Andre Braugher of Homicide, finally a best-actor nominee after three years with the series.

Nominations for ER included the new President's Award for programs of social value, the only network show so honored in an era of increasing concern about sex and violence on TV.

The President's Award, a new category that recognizes the program that best explores social, educational or medical issues, drew the majority of its nominees from cable TV. They included A&E Biography, Blacklist: Hollywood On Trial, The Celluloid Closet and Survivors of the Holocaust.

NBC, the most-watched network last season, drew a leading 38 bids for the 48th Annual Primetime Emmy Awards.

Cable's HBO nearly rammed its way into a second-place finish with 66 total nominations, just one behind CBS' 67 bids and the second consecutive year it surpassed a major network, ABC.

ABC took fourth place with 55 nominations, followed by Fox Broadcasting's 17 and PBS with 12.

"Believe me, you never get weary of these nominations," said Steven Bochco, the Emmy-winning producer whose series NYPD

Blue and Murder One combined for 18 bids.

Specialized cable channels like A&E received bids in top categories, too, including best miniseries.

The news was not as good for the cast of NBC's Friends. In the middle of a joint campaign for higher salaries, the stars failed to garner a single nomination, although the show was nominated as best comedy series.

Also conspicuously absent from the nominations were Home Improvement star Tim Allen and Roseanne. Two prominent actors were missing by choice: Candice Bergen, a five-time winner for Murphy Brown, and John Goodman, a previous nominee for Roseanne, declined to be considered this year for honors. Bergen wanted to give others a chance; Goodman felt his volume of work on the show didn't warrant recognition.

Reiser of Mad About You has been named host of this year's ceremony, with Oprah Winfrey and Michael J. Fox helping introduce various segments.

Dick Clark is producing the ceremony, which will salute the 50th anniversary of television.

Award winners will be determined by peer panels meeting in August.

The Emmy Awards will be broadcast Sept. 8 on ABC from the Pasadena Civic Auditorium, with Paul Reiser as host. A ceremony will be held the day before to present awards in technical categories.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN ZEHTI

TRADITIONAL ETIQUETTE IN THE BIBLE!
MANY OF THE CUSTOMS PREVALENT IN BIBLE TIMES DIFFER FROM MODERN WAYS OF DOING THINGS! FOR INSTANCE, MEN AND WOMEN DID NOT, AS A RULE, ATTEND THE SAME PARTIES OR BANQUETS--IT JUST WASN'T DONE! IN FOR SOME REASON, IT DID OCCUR, AND A WOMAN FOUND HERSELF BANQUETING WITH MEN, ETIQUETTE DEMANDED THAT SHE SIT UPRIGHT ON HER BANQUET COUCH, RATHER THAN SPRAWL COMFORTABLY AS THE MEN DID! THIS WAS TO SHOW HER DEFERENCE TO THE OTHER GUESTS AS A SIGN THAT SHE REALIZED SHE WAS OUT OF PLACE--USUALLY THE ONLY WOMEN AT A BANQUET WERE THE SERVANTS WHO WERE THERE TO ADMINISTER TO THE GUESTS' COMFORTS IN DRINKING AND EATING! IT IS RECORDED IN THE BOOK OF ESTHER, THAT THE QUEEN GAVE A BANQUET FOR THE KING AND HAMAN, (ESTHER 7:1) BUT, ALTHOUGH HISTORY DOESN'T STATE, IT IS ALMOST CERTAIN THAT ESTHER SAT UPRIGHT WHILE HER TWO GUESTS WERE MORE COMFORTABLY SPRAWLING ON THEIR RESPECTIVE COUCHES! THE ONLY AFFAIRS WHERE MEN AND WOMEN WERE "CALLED TO" WERE WEDDINGS, AND THERE, TOO, THEY WERE SEPARATE--THE MEN ON ONE SIDE, AND THE WOMEN IN A CIRCLE, ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE BANQUET ROOM WHERE (SHADES OF WOMEN'S LIB!) THEY WERE EXCLUDED FROM ALL WINE DRINKING AND DANCING!

Undaunted by drought, water supply plentiful for mid-west Texans

By MARK BABINECK
Associated Press Writer

BIG SPRING (AP) — The main water supplier in this region has faced challenges ranging from state politics to the endangered Concho River snake to the current drought.

And through it all, the taps keep on flowing.

While residents in nearly 300 other Texas communities have faced shortages or rationing this year, tap water is plentiful in this historically dry region.

"People out here live in a perpetual drought," said John Grant, manager of the Big Spring-based district that never has forced rationing upon its customers in 43 years of pumping water.

Cities in the midwestern part of Texas contended for water individually until businessman J.B. Thomas made a simple proposal to five cities in 1946: Band together and spend a historic amount of money on a reservoir.

He told the Fort Worth engineering firm of Freese and Nichols Inc. to "go crazy," according to a brief chronicle written by district historian Joe Pickle.

Midland and Colorado City deemed the $10 million proposal a little too crazy and opted out. Big Spring, Odessa and Snyder carried the torch.

The eventual $12 million tab funded a new remote lake bisected by the Borden and Scurry county line southwest of Snyder. The reservoir began serving all three cities in 1953 and eventually was named for Thomas, longtime president of Texas Electric Service.

"It was absolutely essential to the survival of the municipalities the district serves," said O.H. Ivie, a former Freese &

Nichols engineer who joined the district that first year of service. "Since 1953, none of the three has ever curtailed services."

Lake Thomas was followed by Lake E.V. Spence, about 40 miles southeast of Big Spring. The Lower Colorado River Authority, which has jurisdiction along the river from San Saba County to the coast, tried and failed to its construction.

The drought of the early 1970s quickly dried up Spence and nearly emptied Thomas as well. The recognized the need for a third reservoir, sparking a battle royal with the LCRA.

"It was more political than anything else," said Ivie, who ended his 31-year term as CRMWD general manager on Jan. 1. "I think when you look back at history and see the problems that existed, you understand why those folks were in opposition. They were doing what they thought was in their best interest."

"Of course, we didn't agree with them." The addition of Abilene, Midland and San Angelo to the third lake effort bolstered the district's political clout. West Texas legislators promised Gov. Mark White in 1985 that the only way his statewide water legislation would see the light of day was with the Ballinger reservoir.

The pressure forced a deal. The lake won approval with the proviso that the LCRA, which supplies water to 750,000 people in Austin and surrounding areas, had rights to all of the new lake's water over 1,543 feet under dry conditions.

One such release occurred this year to bolster the LCRA's Lakes Travis and Buchanan.

"The relationship has improved considerably," said LCRA spokesman Bill McCann.

"We're starting to work together more, and I think both sides are learning the real value of cooperation."

There were other bouts to fight. The district has spent about $3.7 million to protect the endangered Concho River snake, which makes a home in the reservoir and area rivers.

"We're still trapping it, identifying it and making sure the little hummer lives," said former San Angelo city manager Stephen Brown, who associated his city with the district.

A freak 1986 flood caused salt-laden Natural Dam Lake near Big Spring to overflow downstream into Spence, producing a salinity problem that exists today and accelerating the need for a third water depository.

Lake O.H. Ivie went into service in 1995. A complex pipeline system pumps water uphill for about 180 miles to a collection station near Midland's airport. From there, it's on to the taps.

There's no more room for another lake on the upper Colorado, meaning current manager Grant and others must keep searching for future sources.

"We're looking for what to do in the next drought," said Grant, who estimates that the status quo will be adequate until about 2030. "We're looking to 2060 and beyond."

Demineralization of the region's vast saltwater resources is among the most promising possibilities for finding potable water in the next century, Ivie said, particularly for small towns.

Other ideas might take some getting used to.

"Another thing we're looking at is wastewater reuse," Grant added, admitting that public perception might make it a tough sell. "At least we can start with indirect reuse, such as industrial and manufacturing uses."

Ivie said he's most proud of the district's self-sufficient nature — it's never used any state or federal funding — and a board of directors appointed by the three cities that consistently has put civic rivalries aside.

"We just accept the fact that it doesn't rain much in West Texas," said Ivie, now retired in Granbury, southwest of Fort Worth. "So we just do the best we can with what we have. West Texans will always be in a fight for water, and we'll always win."

END UNWANTED HAIR —

The Market Forecaster

By George Kleinman

WHEAT - (BULL)

Outlook: The wheat market appears to be stabilizing. Soon we should start to see more signs of a post harvest rally. Eight years out of ten this happens and just about this time of year.

This year could be one of those exceptions, of course; however, I do see some signs of strength now. For one, wheat is the preferred feed ration in wheat country. It just pencils out better than corn. Old crop corn could always come down to wheat, but due to scarce supplies I don't see that happening.

Also, the export lineup is expanding. Egypt recently purchased more wheat than expected, and history shows once a major customer steps up to the box, others soon follow. Ultimately, as we get closer to spring harvest, prices could be under pressure once again. For now, however, the path of least resistance looks to be up.

Strategy: Hedgers: Wheat farmers should consider selling their crop right out of the field, and simultaneously purchasing at the money call options. This will allow you to benefit from a post-harvest rally with limited risk. Holding cash wheat will not limit your risk to a predetermined cost.

Other advantages include better cash management. You have use of the cash from your wheat immediately and avoid storage plus interest costs.

The December $5 calls look particularly attractive right now. Spring wheat farmers who are partially hedged using the September $6 puts should continue to hold them, but no new hedge protection is recommended at this time.

Traders: We own December Chicago futures purchased at just under $5. The stop remains $4.71 for an eventual objective close to $6.

CORN - (BULL/BEAR)

Outlook: Soon the July contract will expire at the Board of Trade and what a ride it's been! It is very possible this contract will set a high price for corn which will not be exceeded for many years to come. If weather conditions remain good for the new crop this is almost a certainty.

Now, we turn to the September. This contract is trading over a dollar a bushel under the July, but 50 cents higher than the December. Some people think it is an old crop month, and when July goes off the board it will surge. This is possible, and the September may be somewhat supported in late July; however, my guess is this month will act more like a new crop animal over time.

The reason has to do with Southern corn which will be available to the marketplace prior to the September futures expiration. There is an economic incentive for corn producers who are able to capture this 50 cents premium prior to availability of the bulk of the Midwest corn. Look for the September premium to eventually disappear.

Strategy: Hedgers: We remain about 75 percent hedged in the December with an average price above $3.36. We also own December 360 call options for protection against higher prices. We plan to hold the options on a temporary basis until a reasonable crop size is more assured.

CATTLE - (BULL)

Outlook: Cash prices have surged about $5 per hundred over the past month. Readers of this column are not surprised, as we've been talking about the coming bull cattle market for months now. After all, supplies of cattle are down 11 percent versus a year ago. The placements of young cattle into feedlots was down a whopping 22 percent last month.

As a result, supplies of market ready animals is declining and should continue this way into late summer and year end. Plus, cold storage supplies of beef are only 302 million pounds. This is 16 percent lower than a year ago and the lowest in ten years. We remain bullish.

Strategy: Feeders: The trend of prices remains up and therefore we are still not recommending price insurance [in the form of short futures or put options] at this time.

Cow/calf operators: Some of you still may own at the money put options, and/or short futures at 60 or above basis the August through October. This is insurance against lower prices brought about by higher feed costs. Selective hedgers are out looking for higher prices to re-hedge.

Traders: We've attempted to buy the back months over the past few weeks, but the market never accommodated us with a sufficient dip to get the job done. All previous recommendations are now canceled and we will re-evaluate next week.

Thornberry praises CRC plan for Texas

WASHINGTON - U.S. Rep. Mac Thornberry (TX-13) applauded the decision by the Secretary of Agriculture to include Texas in a pilot program that would provide a new form of insurance, called Crop Revenue Coverage, to wheat farmers in the state.

The decision by the agricultural secretary comes nearly two months after Thornberry wrote the Farm Service Agency requesting that Texas be included in the CRC pilot program. Thornberry had written the letter after receiving several calls from farmers in the 13th District expressing interest in participating in the program.

U.S. Rep. Larry Combest (TX-19) also signed onto the letter, which was mailed May 13.

Under the CRC pilot program, wheat producers will be provided with coverage based on the amount of revenue, unlike the Multiple-Peril Insurance Program which provides coverage based on the amount of production. Coverage will be provided to protect against lost revenue caused by low price, low yield or any combination of the two.

"This is a good move that will provide farmers with an additional option," Thornberry said. "While I do have some concerns about the higher premiums that come with this kind of coverage, I'm also looking forward to test market it to see how it works. If it proves successful, it may be a good idea to consider it for other crops, as well."

Sorghum increase raises U.S. feed-grain projections

WASHINGTON (AP) - A sharp increase in sorghum acreage has raised projections of U.S. feed-grain production this year to almost 262 million metric tons.

The Agriculture Department says 1996 sorghum production is expected to total 760 million bushels, up 300 bushels from 1995. Acres planted in sorghum were estimated at 12.6 million, an increase of 1.5 million. USDA attributes the increase to strong feed-grain prices and a substantial replanting in sorghum of acres on which the wheat crop failed because of bad weather.

The department forecasts barley production of 394 million bushels, up 10 percent. Much of the crop was planted late but growing conditions are now favorable, USDA says.

The oats harvest was projected at 155 million bushels, a drop of 4 percent. Harvested acres are likely to be the lowest on record.

Perry names marketing, ag business director.

AUSTIN — Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry, has named Matt Brockman Texas Department of Agriculture assistant commissioner for Marketing and Agribusiness Development.

Brockman, a Graham native, is a former director of Legislative Affairs for the National Grain and Feed Association in Washington, D.C., where he was the industry's spokesperson to Congress, the White House and federal agencies.

The 1984 graduate of Tarleton State University also served as a legislative assistant to U.S. Rep.

Charles Stenholm (D-Stamford) from 1984-86, advising on agricultural and trade issues.

In 1991, Perry appointed Brockman deputy assistant commissioner for Marketing and Agribusiness Development. He has rejoined TDA after a two year stint with PaineWebber in Dallas. Brockman and his brother run a mother cow operation in Throckmorton County.

"Matt's extensive experience in Washington and his personal knowledge of agriculture, business and international trade make him an invaluable asset and the obvious choice to lead our Marketing and Agribusiness Development Division," Perry said.

Brockman succeeds Diane Smith, who was recently appointed TDA assistant commissioner for Administrative Services.

"Commissioner Perry has initiated excellent programs staffed by dedicated, enthusiastic professionals," Brockman said. "Working together, we're going to produce some tremendous results for Texas producers and taxpayers."

Thornberry wants repeal of federal rule on interstate meat shipments

WASHINGTON — U.S. Rep. Mac Thornberry (TX-13) has said he would like to see proposed reforms in the nation's meat inspection program taken one step further by repealing a 25-year-old provision prohibiting the interstate shipment of meat and poultry products.

"I think the recent proposal to reform the nation's meat inspection system is a wise one," Thornberry said. "But it's also incomplete. The industry is currently governed by two 25-year-old laws. Both of these laws contain a provision which prohibits state inspected beef from being sold in other states unless it's subject to inspection by the federal government."

"The problem with this provision," he continued, "is that state inspected beef is already required to meet minimum federal standards. But there's another problem, as well. Because imported beef is subject to the same standards but not the same federal inspection requirements, foreign countries have a competitive advantage over states in getting their beef sold in America."

"What this means is that Texas beef cannot be sold in Oklahoma unless it's inspected by someone from Washington — but beef from Mexico, Canada or any other country can."

"This is both unjust and unfair," Thornberry stated. "If beef from Mexico is safe to eat in Lawton without federal inspection, you can bet your bottom dollar that beef from Texas will be safe to eat there, as well."

The laws to which Thornberry was referring are the Federal Meat Inspection Act and the Poultry Products Inspection Act. Passed in 1967 and 1968, respectively, the laws established state meat and poultry inspection and required these programs be "at least equal to" inspection standards of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Food Safety Inspection Service.

The laws also prohibit the interstate shipment of meat and poultry which are inspected by state instead of federal inspectors — a requirement foreign processors are not required to meet.

To address this problem, Thornberry introduced legislation on June 27 that would reverse this restriction through the following steps:

— Texas and other states would be allowed to petition the Secretary of Agriculture for an exemption to the current prohibition on the interstate shipment of meat and poultry.

— These petitions would be reviewed on a state-by-state basis by procedure established by regulation.

— In exchange for granting an exemption, the secretary would impose more direct federal oversight on state inspection activities. Specifically, this could include a review of each state inspected plant on a random and periodic basis to ensure state inspection is "at least equal to" federal inspection.

— The intensity of the periodic and random review of individual plants would be based on an assessment of risk associated with that plant and the particular state system.

— The additional costs of the "circuit riders" providing federal oversight would be paid by the individual states which had been granted interstate shipment.

Thornberry noted that Texas Agricultural Commissioner Rick Perry testified on June 26 before the House Agriculture Subcommittee on Livestock, Dairy and Poultry in support of repealing this provision.

In his testimony, Perry stated: "We have 364 state-inspected plants in Texas that would benefit from interstate shipments. These plants employ about 6,000 people and project adding another 1,800 employees if allowed to sell to other states. Currently, these plants gross about $1.5 billion annually. If you allow interstate shipments, the Texas Association of Meat Processors tell me that an additional $450 million in gross sales could be generated."

Thornberry's legislation is currently under consideration in the House Agriculture Committee.

Ag commissioner delaying fee increases

AUSTIN — Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry says he is delaying previously scheduled Sept. 1 increases in three categories of agricultural-regulatory fees to avoid placing further economic hardship on the state's farmers and ranchers.

"The 74th Texas Legislature directed the Texas Department of Agriculture to achieve 100 percent cost recovery by Sept. 1 in most of our regulatory programs, when feasible," Perry said.

"Due to the severe drought conditions we are experiencing and the projected $2.4 billion loss in agricultural income, I have determined that it is not feasible to implement these fee increases at this time."

Perry notified Gov. George W. Bush, Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock and Speaker of the House Pete Laney about his decision to delay the fee increases.

The scheduled increases will be delayed for grain warehouse inspection and license fees; produce dealer license fees; and seed certification label and inspection fees. A fee increase will be implemented by Sept. 1 as scheduled for pesticide product registration fees, which are paid by companies that manufacture and distribute pesticides in Texas.

Perry said he will continue to monitor and review when the fee increases can be implemented without causing significant harm to Texas' second largest industry, agriculture.

"In times of crisis such as this, state and federal government officials must use common sense and be flexible," Perry said. "Clearly, now is not the time to raise regulatory costs on our producers."

Perry also has asked the U.S. Department of Agriculture to rescind its June 6 fee increase that is as high as 400 percent on several veterinary health export fees that certify cattle and other livestock as healthy for export.

New Mexico has brand new guide for outdoor recreation

SANTA FE, N.M. - The New Mexico Department of Tourism has published a brand new outdoor recreation guide titled Outdoors New Mexico (ONM).

The Santa Fe-based state agency's New Mexico Magazine Division produced the 61-page publication so that outdoors enthusiasts could plan 24 different kinds of vacations this year to New Mexico.

ONM showcases such aerobic activities as bicycling; boating and water sports; camping and hiking; fishing; hunting; running and racing; skating and skiing; whitewater and rafting.

It also spotlights other outdoors activities like ballooning, caving, climbing, hang gliding, horseback riding, land sailing and sand surfing, snowmobiling, snowshoeing and dogsledding, and soaring.

ONM also includes a 1996 calendar of almost 250 outdoors activities and events.

For a complimentary copy of ONM, contact the New Mexico Department of Tourism in Room 751 of the Lamy Bldg., 491 Old Santa Fe Trail, Santa Fe NM 87503 (toll-free 800/545-2040 extension 751).
