Dole, Kemp head out on campaign trail

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Bob Dole charges from the Republican convention into an 81-day scramble for votes, scorching President Clinton's administration as a corps of elitists. "who never grew up, never did anything real." Dole's first stops: four states carried by Clinton four years ago.

Stand-ins in the form of three prominent Republican governors today were tearing across the nation's most populous state, California, in hopes of putting a dent in Clinton's 20-point lead in the polls here.

Bob Dole and Jack Kemp raise their joined hands at the podium as they celebrate their presidential and vice presidential candidacies at the GOP convention in San Diego Thursday night.

As they set out on the one-day, eight-city barnstorming tour, California Gov. Pete Wilson belittled Clinton's more than 20 visits to the state since he became president as "tarmac stops and photo ops." Such visits, he said, "are no match for the power of Bob Dole's ideas." With Wilson on the trip are Michigan Gov. John Engler and South Carolina Gov. David Beasley.

Presidential adviser George Stephanopoulos sought to deflect Dole's "never grew up" accusation today saying, "We're determined not to make age an issue in this campaign."

"The real victors in this convention were Pat Robertson and Pat Buchanan," Stephanopoulos said this morning on NBC's Today. The two conservative leaders "controlled the platform, they control Republican policy, no matter what you heard from the podium," he added.

Dole's tax-cut proposals also drew a prompt rebuke from Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

"It's a remarkable turnaround. In 35 years, if you were a Democrat and tried to spend money without paying for it, you had to face Bob Dole; and if you were a Republican and tried to cut taxes without paying for it, you had to face Bob Dole. He would have been the first person to criticize the very plan he's now the champion of," Dodd said on ABC's Good Morning America.

After a send-off rally, the march across the electoral map begins in the traditionally Republican Rocky Mountain West with a rally for Dole and running mate Jack Kemp in Denver. Then, on to Springfield, Ill., and Kemp's hometown of Buffalo, N.Y., on Saturday, and Pittsburgh, Pa., on Sunday.

Dole's uphill quest was fueled by a taxpayer-financed infusion of $62 million for his cash-strapped campaign. Two thirds of that money — $41 million — is earmarked for fall television ads.

In a tumultuous close to the Republican convention, Dole portrayed Clinton as the leader of a tax-hungry administration that thinks government knows best and lacks the virtues of courage, sacrifice and honor.

"The Clinton administration just doesn't get it, and that's why they have got to go," Dole charged.

"We're the underdogs but I feel we have the momentum," exclaimed Vermont delegate Walter Freed. "We have the issues on our side."

Maryland GOP chairwoman Joyce Lyons Terhes said, "We have a good shot at it but it's not going to be easy." Rep. William Clinger, R-Pa., warned against a "false sense of euphoria coming out of the convention. The party base has to be energized."

Dole should emphasize his tax-cut proposals, many Republicans recommended. But some delegates expressed concern that Ross Perot's Reform Party could hurt Dole.

Claiming the nomination he has sought for 16 years, Dole told Thursday night's prime-time audience he is a man "tested by adversity, made sensitive by hardship, a fighter by principle, and the most optimistic man in America."

Low tonight in mid 60s, high tomorrow near 90. See Page 2 for weather details.

SAN DIEGO — Wrapping up the final full day of activities at the Republican national convention, Pampan Carolyn Stroud was excited about the Texas delegation breakfast on Thursday.

"They all say the same thing over and over. The American people will stand for faith and freedom and family values," Stroud said Thursday.

She was excited about hearing Sen. John Ashcroft, of Missouri, who spoke to the Texans.

"The substance of his message was what this country stands for — liberty, back to its roots, back to faith and God," Stroud said.

She said former presidential candidate Steve Forbes was "ecstatic."

Stroud said there was consensus among politicians promising dreams will be returned and fulfilled.

PAMPA — Randall Wayne Anderson, 20, 744 E. Scott, was arrested by city fire investigators Thursday and charged with arson.

Anderson, held in Gray County jail, stands charged with setting fire to a vacant house at 801 E. Malone on Aug. 2.

His bond has not been set.

Firefighters were called out at 3:45 a.m. to extinguish flames which completely destroyed a house used for storage. It was owned by Tommy Carver.

Arson is a second degree felony.

PAMPA — Hoechst Celanese will be sponsoring the monthly luncheon for the Greater Pampa Area Chamber of Commerce on Tuesday, Aug. 20.

Servings will begin at 11:45 a.m. in the M.K. Brown Room of the Pampa Community Building, 200 N. Ballard, with catering by Peggy's Place.

Reservations should be made by calling the chamber office at 669-3241 by 9:30 a.m. Tuesday.

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The San Antonio area already has the 512 and 210 area codes, but at least one more is on its way in the near future.

State officials came to the Alamo City Thursday to announce that by 1998, the region around San Antonio will get new area codes.

San Antonio's area code will remain 210, but surrounding areas will get one or more new codes. Officials say it hasn't been determined what those new area codes will be.

State officials say increases in the number of cellular phones and second phone lines for computer modems have used up the available prefixes in the 210 area.

PISD trustees adopt budget for 1996-97

By CHIP CHANDLER
Staff Writer

Pampa school trustees Thursday adopted a revenue-heavy budget expected to leave $184,583 in fund balance coffers.

Business Manager Mark McVay presented a proposed $18,753,371 in revenues and $18,573,788 in expenditures to a board only five members strong. Board President James Fruge and Secretary Pat Kennedy were not present.

As presented, the budget appears to be about $3 million less in both expenses and revenues than the 1995-96 budget, but McVay said those numbers were misleading.

The one-time expenditure of new heating and air conditioning systems for middle school and high school "skewed the numbers," McVay said. The contract with Johnson Controls had to be reported as both a revenue and expenditure because of the nature of the lease-financing plan.

This year's revenues and expenses are actually up by around $500,000.

The budget, though, will be supported with a tax rate of $1.43 per $100 valuation, maintaining this year's rate.

The 1996-97 budget provides for additional bilingual education teachers; funding for Saxon Math materials at Austin, Lamar and Pampa Middle School; Citizenship Education funding; Internet links at Pampa High School, PMS and Lamar; computer-assisted instruction for PHS special education, PMS academic recovery program and Pampa Learning Center students; and funding for heating and cooling systems at PHS and PMS.

The board dispensed with other action items in fairly short order, voting:

- To award a bid for $60,000 specific group health insurance to LaFayette Life.
- To approve almost $1.4 million in funding for health insurance premiums.
- To set a $2,791 tuition rate for out-of-district transfer students.
- To approve lists of campus fund raisers and extracurricular activities.
- To approve a Title 1 waiver to allow flexibility in fund allocation based on campus needs.
- To adopt a local policy requiring students who take honors or advanced courses to maintain a 70 or above average to participate in extracurricular activities. Senate Bill 1 exempted those students from "no-pass, no-play" requirements but allowed local districts to adopt stricter rules.
- To approve a Texas Association of School Boards policy update.
- And to award bids to Little Caesar's, Pizza Hut and Mr. Gatti's for commercially prepared pizza; Borden's for milk products and Rainbow for bread products.

County to implement new personnel manual Sept. 1

By SHERRY CROMARTIE
Staff Writer

Gray County commissioners have agreed to implement its recently approved personnel manual on Sept. 1 for all county employees.

During the commissioners court's regular meeting Thursday, copies of the manual were delivered to all offices for review by employees and officeholders.

Precinct 2 Commissioner Jim Greene requested the court allow the employees an opportunity to express any ideas or questions or address any suggested changes to the manual before the commissioners give approval of final revisions.

County Judge Richard Peet reminded commissioners the manual has been adopted and the date of implementation is effective whether or not changes or additions are made. He asked any alterations be submitted in writing and discussed during commissioners court.

Peet recommended employee meetings be scheduled for each precinct and county offices prior to the Aug. 30 meeting.

Budget review workshops are set for 9 a.m. Monday, Aug. 19, and 9 a.m. Monday, Aug. 26, on the 1997 county budget.

Peet said discussions will target budget needs and changes only, and expects each officeholder to discuss budget recommendations and proposals. He said officeholders should be motivated to save taxpayers money.

Pilgrims gather to pay respects at Elvis Presley's grave

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Katima Khan hadn't forgotten her fellow admirers halfway around the world as she walked past Elvis Presley's grave with other pilgrims on the 19th anniversary of his death.

"We have a fan club at home and we will take pictures back for the others to see," said Khan, who came from Hong Kong.

She and five other members of the Hong Kong club were among several thousand Elvis pilgrims taking part in an annual procession past Presley's grave Thursday night.

The march crowns a weeklong tribute to the king of rock 'n' roll. He died of heart disease on Aug. 16, 1977 — 19 years ago today.

Study finds increasing estrogen levels may help decrease Alzheimer's risk for women

LONDON (AP) — Women who take estrogen long after menopause appear to be at least one-third less likely than others to develop Alzheimer's disease, the most common form of dementia, according to a study published today.

"This is one more piece of evidence that this disease is not going to be an undefeatable enemy, that we will bow it down," said Dr. Steven DeKosky, a vice-chairman of America's Alzheimer's Association and director of Alzheimer's research at the University of Pittsburgh.

Some four million Americans suffer from Alzheimer's disease, which has no known cause or cure. It afflicts mainly the elderly, robbing them of their memories and ability to care for themselves, and eventually kills them.

The Columbia University study, described in this week's edition of The Lancet, a British medical journal, was the first to involve roughly equal numbers of elderly white, black and Hispanic women.

Hormone replacement therapy has been most commonly used by white women who are better educated and more affluent, factors believed to put them at less risk for Alzheimer's than poorer minority women anyway. But the effects of taking estrogen proved to be the same in each ethnic group.

"That was when we knew we had something," Dr. Richard Mayeux, the main author of the report, said in a telephone interview from his office at Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center.

"What is exciting is that we now have the most convincing evidence to date that estrogen may have this effect, and it warrants clinical trials."

Estrogen replacement carries risk as well as benefits. It has been shown to prevent heart disease and bone deterioration, and it may guard against colon cancer — and now Alzheimer's. But some evidence indicates it may cause a 50 percent increase in breast cancer.

The new estrogen results come a day after an encouraging report from Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston, which said post-menopausal women may ward off heart disease as effectively with a commonly prescribed combination of estrogen and progesterin as with straight estrogen.

Because estrogen used alone was known to carry an increased risk of uterine cancer, doctors commonly prescribed the hormone combination. They knew it eliminated the cancer risk but were uncertain whether it offered heart benefits. The Boston study, based on 16 years' research with 59,337 nurses, showed that estrogen-progesterin pills protected the heart as well as estrogen alone.

The five-year Columbia study monitored 1,124 women with an average age of 74 in the Upper Manhattan neighborhoods of New York City. It found that those who had used estrogen for a decade or more were 30 percent to 40 percent less likely to develop the mind-destroying Alzheimer's disease.

Other scientists hailed the Columbia findings as an important step in growing evidence that the female hormone, production of which drops sharply after menopause, is a key weapon against Alzheimer's.

Scientists say they were originally alerted to the possible link between hormone and disease by the fact that men, who are ten percent to 15 percent less likely to develop Alzheimer's than women, convert testosterone into estrogen into later life.

Lions Club sponsors Pampa youth

KERRVILLE — Eleven-year-old Cliff Spencer, son of Julie and Joel Morgan of Pampa, recently attended the Texas Lions Camp at Kerrville.

Sponsored by the Pampa Lions Club, this youngster participated in classes designed to teach insulin dependent children to manage and to understand diabetes. He also took part in summer camp activities such as horseback riding, swimming, field sports and a challenge course program.

Doctors, nurses and dietitians supervised by Dr. Steve Ponder of Scott and White Hospital instructed campers on dietary exchanges, testing blood sugar levels and the effects of exercise on blood sugar levels. In addition, campers learned to give their own insulin injections.

A well trained staff supervised each camp activity with a ratio of one counselor to two campers. Located on 500 acres of Texas Hill Country, the camp serves diabetic children ages 7 to 17.

The Texas Lions Camp is a non-profit organization funded by the Texas Lions and private donations. All children attend camp at no cost to their parents.

Casino manager suspended amid financial probe

EL PASO (AP) — A Denver-based company contracted to operate the Tigua Indians' casino is standing by its pick for general manager, who was suspended amid an investigation into casino finances.

Seven Circle Resorts is confident there was no wrongdoing on the part of Speaking Rock casino general manager Roger Shuttleworth, said company senior Vice President John Tipton.

Shuttleworth, who has headed the casino since it opened three years ago, was suspended Aug. 2 and an audit was begun.

No money appears to be missing from the casino, but the Tigua government is concerned about the facility's bookkeeping, said tribal attorney Tom Diamond. He would not elaborate.

Shuttleworth said he is contesting the suspension. The Tigua Tribal Court has scheduled a Sept. 13 hearing on the appeal.

"My only comment is I've done absolutely nothing wrong other than make it a very successful operation," Shuttleworth said.

The tribe's El Paso casino draws up to 10,000 players a week for high-stakes bingo, poker and blackjack. It earned $5 million last year, said tribal gaming commissioner Virce Munoz.

At issue, said Tipton, is a regulation put into place the day before Shuttleworth's suspension that sets up controls on the cashing in of chips from blackjack games.

"They came in the next day and said, 'Roger, you haven't been following this for the last four months,'" Tipton said.

Tribal officials would not comment on the accusation.

The new rule was based on a revision this summer of the federal Bank Secrecy Act to clamp down on money laundering, Tipton said.

Dozens electrocuted in fireworks accident

AREQUIPA, Peru (AP) — As festival-goers packed a bridge for a riverside fireworks show, a stray rocket sent a high-tension line crashing into the crowd, unleashing 10,000 volts that electrocuted 35 people and sent many of their bodies bursting into flames.

The dead at the Wednesday night festival in southern Peru included a policeman electrocuted trying to pull a victim away from the electric current. In the chaos, sobbing survivors collapsed on the cobblestone bridge or ran in panic, crushing others beneath them.

"It was as if I were being shaken from head to foot. Everyone was shaking. The whole street had electricity," said Silvia Condori, who was trapped by the current when the fleeing crowd knocked her down among the burning corpses, breaking her leg.

A friend tried to pull the 22-year-old woman to her feet, but the voltage knocked him away. She made it up on her own, electricity still coursing through her legs. "I thought I was going to lose consciousness," she said. "But I began to scream and when I heard myself screaming, I knew I was still alive."

The accident, which sent 42 people to the hospital with burns, occurred just before midnight as residents of Arequipa were celebrating the 456th anniversary of the founding of the city.

All of the victims were Peruvian, police said, although the annual festival attracts thousands of tourists, some of them foreign.

Festival-goers were crammed together on the cobblestone Grau Bridge to watch the fireworks and a folk music show along the banks of Chili River when the rocket went astray.

Vatican: Pope well enough to maintain travel schedule

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Despite a bout of abdominal illness, Pope John Paul II plans to keep up his foreign travel schedule, which includes trips to Hungary and France next month, the Vatican said today.

John Paul was "feeling fine" and took a walk in the gardens of his vacation palace in Castel Gandolfo after breakfast, said a Vatican spokesman, the Rev. Ciro Benedettini.

The 76-year-old pontiff, who has been weakened by a series of ailments in recent years, skipped a public Mass on Thursday because of an abdominal problem that had raised concerns about his general state of health.

Doctors were worried that the illness might have been connected to a tumor removed in 1992, but the Vatican said a CT scan "turned up nothing noteworthy."

The pope is scheduled to be in Hungary Sept. 6-7 and France Sept. 19-22.

Minister accepts challenge to reach out to Pampa's youth

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Guest writer

The Rev. Jim Hodson

Jim Hodson didn't accept a position when he agreed to be associate minister for First Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) of Pampa. He accepted a challenge—a challenge to reach out to the young people of this community.

He doesn't like titles, he claims, but for those who ask, he'll hand you a business card that shows he is associate minister of youth and Christian education. He's a minister licensed by the Disciples of Christ and preparing for ordination. He earned a master's degree in religious education from Southwestern Baptist Seminary in Fort Worth, but turned to Disciples of Christ when he accepted a job opening at a Disciples of Christ Church in Athens.

"What I saw, I liked," Hodson explains, "I found that like any denomination, there are differences in different churches, but at Athens I liked the way the people were genuinely interested in sharing Christ with their community."

"It's important for a church to be reaching out, because if you're not, you're not going anywhere, and you're going to die."

Hodson worked with the Athens church for more than three years before coming to Pampa in February this year. He moved here with his wife Susan and his daughter Sarah, age two. The day

Hodson knows what Pampa's youth are facing today.

"I'm still in that generation, just barely, but I'm still there," he says.

He, too, grew up in a small town with little to offer for recreation other than going out into a field on the weekend and drinking beer.

"I want to start reaching out to the youth and give them an alternative to what the world is offering," he says.

Hodson cited the statistic he used in a recent sermon: Fifty percent of today's young people are attending church at least once a week.

"There are kids coming to church to find some kind of moral ground. They've come to the right place. Jesus is the right place," he says.

That also means that half of America's young people are not going to church at all.

"That scares me," he says. "I want to reinforce what parents are doing at home," Hodson adds.

"If parents and the Bible, which is what I am presenting, agree then that provides stability (for young people.) Kids don't want parents who don't care. They want parents and people in the church who love them, and who will give them guidelines and boundaries to go by," he said.

Initially, Hodson spent his time getting to know the church and the young people. He says he is now ready to implement some changes that he feels will better First Christian's youth program. High school and middle school youth programs will move to Sunday evenings this fall, so they won't compete with the Fellowship of Christian Athletes (FCA) meetings on Wednesday nights.

"There's no need to reinvent what is already working," he says of the FCA.

"This will allow me some extra time on Sunday night to be with the kids and maybe it will open (the meetings) up so the kids can bring some of their friends," he explains.

Groups for elementary school age and younger will continue to meet on Wednesday nights, so that Hodson can work more closely with the children of the church.

"I need to spend time with the younger groups so they can get to know me and get comfortable with me. I'm genuinely interested in living a life that they'll see and say 'I want to live that way,'" Hodson says.

Hodson and youth ministers from different denominations in Pampa are meeting weekly for breakfast and prayer and to plan community-wide events for the city's young people. They hope to host an event at least once a quarter, he says.

"Right now I'm trying to get our week-to-week program strong, but I'll also be looking at more mission programs. Our kids want to help people. It's okay to talk about helping others, but they want to do it," he says.

Earlier this month, Hodson escorted a band of young people on a mission trip to an Indian reservation in the state of Washington.

"They really liked that and they want to do more things like that," he says.

While the young people are the focus of Hodson's ministering, he also emphasizes the importance of "Christian education" in his title.

"I'm talking about studying the Bible," he explains. "This kind of education has to be done in Sunday School and Bible classes. It can't be done in the worship service."

His excitement shows when he talks about the new Sunday School class he is leading.

"I'm not teaching it, I'm a facilitator," he explains. "This is a discussion format that starts with the basics, learning how to read the Bible, learning how to pray, and why you're doing it."

Class members are 18-years-old to over 50 and every age in between.

"It's fun to see the interaction between them," he says.

after the move was completed, a storm enveloped the city and Sarah experienced snow for the first time.

"She loved it," Hodson laughs. "What brought the Hodsons to Pampa?"

"The challenge," he says.

"I felt like I had done all I could do at Athens, and I had become a crutch for them. I had helped them get everything in place and they had the ability to make it work. And I was right. They've done just fine."

"It looked like the youth program here had a lot of potential resources. It's just a matter of putting them together and making it attractive to the young people of the community."

Overeater Conquers Compulsion By Taking One Step At A Time

DEAR ABBY When I first heard in an Overeaters Anonymous meeting that compulsive overeating is a "disease," I said, "Yeah, really!" not believing a word of it. But after years of fad diets and 50 pounds of yo-yo weight losses and gains, it didn't take a rocket scientist to conclude that I am different from my noncompulsive (and usually thinner) friends. Unlike average people who get hungry, eat a meal and are then satisfied, I remain hungry most of the time.

Abigail Van Buren
SYNDICATED COLUMNIST

My problem isn't lack of willpower. What I lack is a reflex, a signal that says, "Full! Enough!" I didn't choose to have this condition. Who in her right mind would choose to be hungry all the time?

Words cannot describe my relief when I understood that I had a physical problem. I wasted years feeling guilty and ashamed because of my compulsive eating. For me, the solution has three parts because what began 40 years ago as a physical condition has created emotional and spiritual baggage that I carry with me today.

Almost everyone has heard of the Twelve Steps of the "Anonymous" programs, including: Admit your problem; believe you can be helped; ask for help; clean up your act; make amends; connect to a power greater than yourself; and help others. These steps form a decent life plan for me. They are helping me turn my life around and reconnect with myself, my spouse, my work and my body.

It does not matter that I did not choose to be this way. I am this way. And what I do about it is entirely up to me. After one month, following a generous plan of eating and working my program with plenty of support from other OA members, I'm one clothing size smaller. Better yet, I'm not taking pills or herbs, using a fad diet, or doing anything bizarre that might cause short-term weight loss. I'm doing nothing that I can't continue for the rest of my life!

I am profoundly grateful that I found OA, and I'm indebted to the countless OA members who have given me the benefit of their strength and experience.

DEAR ANONYMOUS: Your eloquent letter is sure to inspire others who suffer from compulsive eating and are unaware that help is available. Overeaters Anonymous has more than 10,000 groups in 50 countries. Local chapters can be found in the telephone directory.

There are no dues or fees, and no membership lists are kept. There are no requirements for membership except the desire to stop eating compulsively. You will be welcomed with open arms by women and men who are fighting the same battle as you. There is no shaming, no weighing and no embarrassment, only a fellowship of compassionate people with a common problem.

There are chapters in almost every city, but if you have difficulty finding one near you, send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Overeaters Anonymous World Service Office, P.O. Box 44020, Rio Rancho, N.M. 87174-4020.

DEAR READERS: The art of conversation lies in listening. Any fool can talk; it takes a superior person to listen. Bottom line: Talk less and listen more.

DEAR READERS: If you would like your letter published, please include your name, area code and telephone number.

Horoscope

SUNDAY, AUG. 18, 1996

In the year ahead you might be inclined to be more enterprising and fearless. Your new attitude can produce favorable results if you don't let your boldness get in the way of good judgment.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Do not suffer in silence today if an arrogant acquaintance makes a deprecatory comment about you. Let him or her know immediately that put-downs are not acceptable. Leo, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Make sure to state your zodiac sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today you and a close friend might take opposing positions regarding an issue about which you both feel strongly. Do not let your intensity get out of hand.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If your way of doing things conflicts with your mate's today, prepare to make a concession. You will be asking for trouble if you don't.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It will be better to keep your opinions to yourself today in regard to something that does not directly involve you but will affect a sensitive confidant.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Someone who doesn't operate completely in the open might try to place obstacles in your path today. Do not let this individual bother you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You might ignore your better judgment today and yield to the bidding of a clever manipulator. Try to keep your guard up.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Do not take something you want repaired or serviced back to an individual who did a poor job previously. Find someone who is consistently reliable.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your chart shows that you might be too possessive today with someone you love. This could create complications in the alliance.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Try to appreciate your mate's opinions and views today pertaining to a vital family issue. If you ignore them, you might instigate a battle.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you don't have anything nice to say today, don't say anything. People who hear your comments will reveal them to the object of your criticism.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Avoid risky ventures today, especially those of a financial nature. Your enthusiasm might override your objectivity and lead you to make a poor choice.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Both courtesy and common sense will be required today in your social involvements. Do not treat friends in ways you would resent if the roles were reversed.

Best business strategy? Be known and trusted

Unaided recall is a prime indicator of business success. Newly released TOMA survey measures this for hundreds of businesses in the Pampa area.

By Ken Bronte
 Special Features Writer

We all do it. We spend our dollars with people we know and trust the most. But how well do people know you? And more important for your survival, how well do they know your competitors?

You need to know, and the answers are yours free. Hundreds of businesses are listed in The Pampa News Advertising Department's Top of Mind Awareness (TOMA) survey. All you have to do is call and ask to see it!

You'll find out where you stand, where your competitors stand, whether or not your business is in a growing or a mature category of business, and what opportunities exist to push your competitors out of other people's minds. In short, it can be the crucial information you need to climb the competitive ladder - and survive once you get to the top.

You'll also glean general market information for niche advertising, see for yourself what percentage of people couldn't name any business in your category and find out what is the best anyone in the nation has done in a business like yours.

It would cost you thousands to get this information yourself, but whether you advertise with the Pampa news or not, it's now free for the asking. Call today and ask to see how you compare versus your competition.

Find out about your business:

Call the Pampa News Advertising Department at 669-2525. A TOMA review is free to businesses in the Pampa area.
