Lefors council rejects proposed tax rate increase

By CHIP CHANDLER
Staff Writer

Lefors City Council members rejected a proposed three-cent tax rate increase and approved a final contract with land giveaway winners in regular action Monday evening.

Mayor Bob Jones suggested an increase from 39 cents to 42 cents per $100 valuation after citing declining revenues. That increase, Jones said, would mean an $8 tax increase on a $20,000 home and an additional $1,800 in city coffers.

"With our drop in revenue, I think we need this," Jones said.

Council members disagreed,
citing complaints with city services and the land giveaway.

"I have a problem with raising taxes any because of the fact we haven't been giving city services like we should," said Velda Chadwick.

"I'd rather get more of a base through the giveaway than raising taxes. I'd rather wait one more year and see how this helps us," said Benny Watson.

Watson made a motion which passed unanimously to maintain the current tax rate.

The council also unanimously approved the final draft of a contract with entrants who win lots in the upcoming giveaway of tax-delinquent land.

A total of 12 lots are currently offered in the giveaway, but two more could be added to that list with school board permission.
Entries will be accepted through the end of the month; the drawing for lots is scheduled for Oct. 14.

In other action, the council:

- Appointed Ken Purvis to fill the unexpired term of retired council member J.C. Callaway.

- Approved a clean audit report from Grantham, Cory and Heare.

- Voted to allow Homer Caston of Higgins to program a city office computer to handle bookkeeping.

- Voted to begin a petition for expanded local telephone service.

- Appointed Russell Bockmon as city judge after accepting the resignation of Linda Daniels and approving an ordinance for appointing city judges.

- Decided to seek bids to repair the city's water tower.

- Discussed ways to rid the town of stray dogs.

Tried to call Lefors lately?

LEFORS — Tried to call the Lefors City Hall lately? Chances are, you won't get through.

Phones have been ringing literally non-stop since a story aired on a national NBC news broadcast Saturday about the town's give-away of tax-delinquent land.

City Secretary Virginia Maples estimated that 125 calls had been received in about two days.

"You'd hang up, and it'd ring again almost immediately," said
city council member Velda Chadwick, who sat in the office for a few hours Monday.

Calls have come from Hawaii,

Pennsylvania, Colorado, California and everywhere in between,
Chadwick said.

Maples said she, Mayor Bob Jones and City Utility Superintendent Mark Kimbley have all received calls at home from anxious land seekers.

Even Maples' in-laws have been getting calls.

"They'll just call information and take their best guess," Maples said.

The city will take entries through the end of the month. The drawing for about 12 lots will take place Oct. 14.

U.S. Democratic Senate candidate attends downtown rally in Pampa

By CHIP CHANDLER
Staff Writer

Victor Morales, Democratic candidate for a U.S. Senate seat, stopped in Pampa Monday for a two-hour rally as part of a near month-long campaign swing of West Texas and the Panhandle.

"I want to bring respect back to the United States Senate," Morales promised, telling a crowd of about 30 local and area Democrats that should he win, he hoped they would still call him a "man of respect" after his term.

Morales, a high school civics teacher from Mesquite, came into the general election as a Cinderella candidate, defeating three established Democrats in a contentious primary and a runoff election.

"I'll let you make the decision whether or not my lack of experience in Washington" is a detriment, Morales said, saying he has learned "the important things" like being honest, loving his family and working hard

"during life's experiences."

He urged the crowd gathered near the county Democrats headquarters at 116 W. Foster to "plant the seed" for his campaign. "Talk to strangers ... ask them, 'Are you registered to vote?,' 'Are you voting?'" he encouraged his audience.

"There's no question I can beat Phil Gramm, the question is by how much," he said to the crowd's applause.

At the end of his speech,
Morales argued against conceptions that he hasn't declared stands on issues.

On abortion, he declared himself to be pro-choice but still concerned about the number of abortions performed in the county.

Morales said he would have voted for the Brady Bill and the assault weapons ban, explaining that the Second Amendment
"doesn't say you can have any gun any time." He added, though, that he is a gun owner himself and believed in the rights of sportsmen and gun collectors.

He also emphasized prevention as a solution to both health issues and crime.

"It bothers me that so many people who work don't have health insurance. ... It's extremely important to encourage prevention and early testing," Morales said.

Crime prevention should begin in elementary schools, he said. "A majority of police chiefs say locking up is not the answer
... you'd better start early," he argued.

"I think he showed his true colors. He's just a common, good man," said Bret Begert, one of nine audience members from the Hemphill County Democratic party.

"He does have a message. I think he's probably going to win," Begert continued.

Republic of Texas notifies U.N. of flag

AUSTIN (AP) — The Republic of Texas, a group that maintains Texas is an independent nation, has notified the United Nations of its official flag and military insignia.

In a letter addressed to "All Nations of the World" and to the U.N. General Assembly, the group said it was following "the law of nations regarding the articles and customs of war" by certifying official symbols of its defense forces.

Members of the Republic of Texas movement contend that the 1845 annexation of Texas by the United States was illegal and that Texas remains an independent nation.

The group's letter, a copy of which was mailed to The Associated Press, was signed by Thomas Ralph Turner, its secretary of defense.

Turner said in a telephone interview Monday that the action was "one of the things that needed to be done in order to gain recognition" from other countries.

Copies were sent to the chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, the secretary of the Navy and commanders of all U.S. military bases "on the soil of Texas,"

the letter said.

Attached to the letter were reproductions of the flag and emblems.
The flag is a solid blue rectangle with a single gold star in the middle. The insignia says "Republic of Texas Defense Forces" and includes a star and laurels.

The letter says the flag and military emblems of "the defense forces of the nation of Texas would be displayed in the event that defense is required on,
over, or under the soil of Texas,
along its waterways, or within its boundaries..."

Turner described the Republic's defense forces as "pretty formidable," although he declined to say how many people are participating. "We just did a practice alert. Even I was amazed. It was surprising how many folks faxed back into me and said, 'We've got X number ready to go.'"

In other activities, leaders of the Republic of Texas movement, in a classified advertisement published Tuesday, announced that they are ready to transfer state assets into their bank accounts.

The accounts, said Rick McLaren, the movement's ambassador, will belong to all the citizens of Texas.

"We have not had time to notify them but everyone who is in Texas now is a citizen of the Republic," McLaren said.

McLaren said the notice, which wasn't published statewide, was run in the Austin American-Statesman because that newspaper is distributed in the capital.

The notice also was mailed to 750 county officials and state Comptroller John Sharp and Attorney General Dan Morales.

"We want to make everyone aware that we are ready to absorb the government. We are in the final stages of our paperwork," McLaren said.

Followers of the Republic contend that Texas was illegally annexed by the United States in 1845 and should be an independent nation. State government leaders have flatly rejected their arguments.

District courts approve employee cost of living increase

A public hearing held Monday morning in the third floor district courtroom to set salaries for court reporters of the district courts, Gray County auditor and assistant auditor resulted in a 3 percent cost of living increases for each individual.

District Judge Leland Waters of the 223rd Judicial District Court said the court passed the cost of living increase for the four county employees. This amounts to monthly increases of $89.62 for A. C. Malone, Gray

County auditor; $46.73 for Gray
County assistant auditor Carla
Davis; $29.18 for 31st District Court reporter Larry Parten; and $112.08 for 223rd District Court reporter Richard Mackie.

"This morning's hearing was brief, and there were no public comments brought before the court," Waters said.

Waters explained that although he is a state employee, his employees are county employees, and under the legal statute, he is authorized to set salaries for those particular employees who serve the district and the county.

Clinton signs minimum wage hike bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Less than a week before the Democratic National Convention, President Clinton was putting the spotlight on a rare legislative victory for his party by signing a 90-cent minimum-wage increase.

An estimated 10 million Americans will see wage increases in their paychecks just before voters choose between Clinton and Republican Bob Dole in the November election.

The bill, passed by Congress on Aug. 2, raises the federal minimum wage from $4.25 an hour to $4.75, effective Oct. 1, and to $5.15 an hour on Sept. 1, 1997. It will be the first increase in five years in the minimum wage, which is near an inflation-adjusted 40-year low.

Today's signing is just one of three high-profile ceremonies planned for the days before Clinton travels to Chicago to claim the Democratic presidential nomination.

Later this week, Clinton is expected to sign bills expanding working Americans' access to health insurance and ending the six-decade federal guarantee of welfare benefits to the poor.

Congress passed all three bills in a frenzied week-long marathon before recessing for the August political conventions. During the 19 preceding months, little legislation of consequence to average voters had made it into law. The Republican-majority Congress declined to move on administration priorities, and Clinton vetoed such major GOP initiatives as a $500-per-child tax credit and an overhaul wringing billions of dollars in savings from Medicare and Medicaid.

GOP leaders adamantly opposed increasing the minimum wage, arguing it would destroy entry-level jobs needed by millions graduating from high school or leaving welfare.

Jury convicts man in death of his fourth wife

MERIDIAN, Texas (AP) — Two juries have deliberated this year on whether Jack Reeves murdered his wife — in each case, a different woman.

Now, the 56-year-old retired Army sergeant has been convicted and sentenced to lengthy prison terms in both cases.

Reeves was convicted and sentenced to 99 years in prison Monday in the murder of the last of his four wives, a Filipino mail-order bride he picked from a catalog within a year after his third wife drowned in 3 feet of water.

A Bosque County jury needed less than two hours to reach its verdict.

Reeves, who already is serving a 35-year sentence for murdering his second wife, a death he said was a suicide, dropped his head and shook it when the verdict was read in court.

"I didn't do it, your honor," he told state District Judge James Morgan.

Arlington police Detective Tom LeNoir investigated the death of 26-year-old Emelita Reeves, who disappeared from the couple's Arlington home in October 1994.

A hunter found her partially buried remains a year later near Lake Whitney, about 60 miles south of their Dallas-Fort Worth area home, but investigators were unable to determine how she died.

"Justice has been done," LeNoir said.

Sources predict Montford will accept Texas Tech University chancellorship this week

LUBBOCK (AP) — Texas Tech University regents were expected to put an end to the worst-kept secret in West Texas today and formally hire state Sen. John Montford as the system's first chancellor.

A variety of sources from around the state have said during the past month that the job belonged to the Lubbock Democrat as long as he and the regents could agree on compensation.

El Paso attorney Travis Johnson, a friend of the 14-year political veteran, told the El Paso Times the appointment is "a done deal." Another source told The Associated Press the same Monday, although no one would guess the salary.

"It'll finally be over tomorrow," the source said. Montford, who interviewed for the post in July, said Monday that he had not yet been offered the job. But, he added, "I intend to be at the regents meeting."

"If they extend an offer, I intend to accept it," Montford said.

After school President Robert Lawless quit in February, the regents decided to change the school hierarchy and create the chancellor's post. The regents also must hire presidents for the university and the Health Sciences Center as well as an athletic director.

The chancellor's pay is expected to fall in line with those in the University of Texas and Texas A&M University systems, which pay in the low to mid-$200,000s. Tech officials also declined to reveal any details about the hiring Monday, only to say regents would make the announcement today after a brief executive session.

A 53-year-old former Lubbock County district attorney, Montford earned his undergraduate and law degrees from the University of Texas at Austin.

Montford, who would leave two years remaining on his fourth, four-year term, is chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee. Capitol sources have said Sens. Bill Ratliff, R-Mount Pleasant, and Rodney Ellis, D-Houston, are contenders for his chair.

Rocky road ahead for some Texas travelers

DALLAS (AP) — If you're planning a Labor Day weekend car trip, check with the Texas Department of Transportation before plotting your route.

A recent study by the agency shows that more than 14 percent of state roads are in "very poor to fair" condition and 29 percent of all Texas bridges are "structurally or functionally deficient."

"We are in terrible shape," former Federal Highway Administration head Ray Barnhart told The Dallas Morning News. "I can hardly discuss the subject without using vulgar words."

The best place to drive, on average, is Southwest Texas. The worst? Beware East Texas and the Panhandle, although weather and soil conditions — as well as traffic — also play a role.

Stopping drug use among kids is drug fighter's aim

IRVING (AP) — The last time there were as many kids in the United States age ten and under as there are now, the 1960s drug culture was in full bloom. If Americans aren't careful, another generation could grow up believing narcotics use is OK, the nation's top drug fighter told law enforcement officials Monday.

Barry McCaffrey, the national drug control policy director, said educating the 39 million Americans under ten — and another 29 million between 11 and 18 — about the dangers of drugs is his top priority.

McCaffrey said he fears that the increased drug awareness of the 1970s and '80s has worn off on the latest generation of school-age children.

Business poll favors sales tax expansion

AUSTIN (AP) — When it comes to replacing local school property taxes, Texas business executives prefer expanding the sales tax on consumer goods and services instead of levying two new business taxes, according to a survey.

The poll, released Monday by the Texas Association of Business & Chambers of Commerce, found 57 percent of business owners and managers favored the wider sales tax.

That is one of three options suggested earlier this year in response to Gov. George W. Bush's interest in finding a way to replace about $10 billion a year in local school property taxes.

A group of administration and legislative experts analyzed the current tax system earlier this year and suggested alternatives for replacing school property tax money:

— Create a new business activity tax. Also called a value-added tax, the levy would be based on the extent to which a company's sales exceed the cost of its purchases.

Fiery rhetoric, exciting battles hallmark of conventions past

SAN DIEGO (AP) — In 1924, fractious delegates locked in a 103-roll call battle over the Democratic presidential nominee booed down the famously silver-tongued William Jennings Bryan.

In 1860, Democrats convening in Charleston, S.C., got so riled up they decided to take a six-week cooling-off period.

Such excitement! Those conventions were a far cry from the just-ended Republican National Convention where no news was bad news for those who like a little pandemonium with their politics. Ditto expected at the Democratic bash next week.

"The conventions used to be the Olympics of American politics. They've now become synchronized swimming," said Tony Quinn, Republican analyst and historian of California politics.

Going into this year's Republican convention there were a few loose ends: the running mate for predestined nominee Bob Dole, the abortion statement and what, if any, role failed presidential candidate Pat Buchanan would play.

But all that was settled off-camera. On the convention floor, dissent was about as scarce as a "Clinton-Gore" button.

Highlights from the days of smoke-filled rooms and fiery rhetoric are detailed in a history of participatory politics put together by Congressional Quarterly.

The publication notes that even at the dawn of American democracy, party politics got a bad rap.

"If I could not go to heaven but with a party, I would not go there at all," Thomas Jefferson said in 1789.

Democrats put on their first convention in 1832 and Republicans inaugurated theirs in 1856, two years after the party formed.

In modern times, presidential primaries have taken the suspense out of the nomination, ushering in the era of the convention as talk-show, said Dan Hallin, chairman of the communications department at the University of California at San Diego.

Not so in 1852, when the Whigs took 53 ballots before nominating Winfield Scott after a two-day battle among Scott, President Fillmore and Daniel Webster of New England.

In 1860, Democrats convened in Charleston and then became embroiled in a fierce debate over a platform plank declaring that the Supreme Court should decide whether slavery would be allowed in the territories.

Angry delegates bolted, leaving front-runner Sen. Stephen A. Douglas of Illinois without the necessary two-thirds majority. After ten days, delegates voted to recess and reconvene in Baltimore. There, they eventually nominated Douglas, with Sen. Benjamin Fitzpatrick of Alabama as his running mate.

Shortly after the convention, the already mortified Democrats got one more helping of chagrin when Fitzpatrick declined the nomination. Republicans have had their troubles, too.

In 1912, a fight between political titans President Taft and his predecessor as president, Theodore Roosevelt, resulted in the Roosevelt faction bringing 72 delegate challenges to the floor.

Taft won the convention but lost the election to Woodrow Wilson.

In 1920, the names of eleven men were in nomination when the party met in Chicago. After a day of balloting, the delegates adjourned with Ohio Sen. Warren G. Harding in fifth place.

According to legend, Harding was pulled into a smoky room for a 2 a.m. interview with party leaders.

He won the next day.

Pampa seventh grader attends summer Talented and Gifted Program at SMU

By TIFFANIE FRANKS
Staff Writer

Katy McEwen, a seventh grader at Pampa Middle School, was selected from over 200 students from 15 states and two foreign countries this summer to participate in Southern Methodist University's Talented and Gifted Program.

The TAG program is an intensive three-week learning session for students with strong academic potential who have just completed the seventh, eighth or ninth grade.

The participants are selected on the basis of school grades, high SAT or ACT scores, and teacher recommendations.

"Katy was chosen because of her grades and her high TAG admission scores. She has not taken the SAT yet, but many of the kids in this program have," said McEwen's mother, Diana McEwen.

Katy McEwen

McEwen participated in the engineering class and the leadership class.

"I liked the leadership class the best because the president of the university, the dean and some of the organization leaders came and talked to us," she said.

The class required her to read several chapters of the book Seven Habits of Highly Effective People and give a presentation on what she had read.

The engineering class she took was more tedious work for McEwen, but she said she learned a lot from it.

"I chose the class because my dad [Tim McEwen] is an engineer and I thought it would be neat to learn about what they do," McEwen said.

McEwen will be in the eighth grade this fall and plans on continuing honors and advanced placement classes in high school.

"I think it is great that Katy has had the opportunity to participate in this program and I wish more students could because every student can benefit from accelerated programs," Mrs. McEwen said.

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the covenant commandment.

Opinion

Tax-cut neigh-sayers go around in circles

Response to presumptive Republican candidate Bob Dole's proposal for a 15 percent tax reduction, spread out over three years, has been fascinating - and virtually schizophrenic.

On the one hand, the news media and administration spokesmen assure us that nobody really wants to keep more of the money they earn, that Americans are quite content to let the government have it because they think tax cuts will hurt or destabilize the economy and send the deficit into the stratosphere.

They cite responses to artfully worded poll questions (followed by dire hypotheticals for those who stubbornly make the wrong response) to prove that people don't really want tax cuts and that Dole is digging himself a hole.

On the other hand, administration spokesmen have been in full war room spin mode and managed to lead the news with attacks on Dole's proposal before the proposal had been publicly unveiled! This looked like a campaign in panic mode, desperately fearful that promising to let Americans keep more of what they earn could jump start Dole's becalmed campaign.

"The surface appeal of tax cuts is always attractive," acknowledged White House economic advisor Gene Sperling. But once we explain to them that Dole's ideas are "reckless tax cuts that will blow a hole in the deficit," the placid and obedient people will curb their individual "greed" and "just say no" to tax cuts.

(The White House thus also advances the counter-intuitive notion that putting more money into the unproductive government sector and keeping it away from the productive private sector is the key to economic prosperity - and black is white and war is peace and slavery is freedom.) Well, which is it? If the American people don't want their taxes reduced, Dole is just spinning his wheels, and all the frenetic spinning to counteract his proposal has been a wasted and foolish motion - hardly a first in government circles, but a bit strange for a White House so skilled at the campaigning mode.

We suspect the spinners are right to be concerned. Despite all the stern lectures from people like the Concord Coalition, White House spokesmen, and selected media economic gurus, most Americans feel far from undertaxed.

Faced with the real alternatives - let the government have that $800, $1,300 or $2,000 out of your earnings next year or decide for yourself how to spend it - they will take the tax cut.

Indeed, increasing numbers of Americans view Dole's proposal - are 1 percent spending reductions in "other programs" really draconian? - as small potatoes, and are ready to flirt with Libertarian president candidate Harry Browne's idea of trading the income tax - all of it, with no offsetting increases elsewhere - for big cuts in middle class spending programs.

Clinton, with his panicky response to Dole's penny ante reduction, has locked himself into a status quo posture of opposing almost all tax reductions that don't amount to targeted social engineering schemes to manipulate behavior.

Is that where the party of Harry Truman and John F. Kennedy - both of whom cut taxes to promote economic growth - really wants to be?

Changing our birthright policy

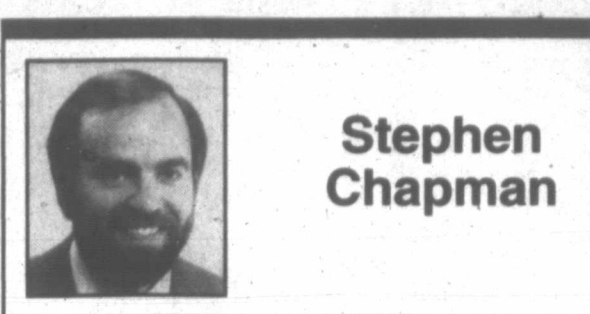

Opponents of immigration have long forecast that foreigners would become a distinct and alien community that cannot be absorbed into American society. The result could be our own Quebec. But in a testament to the blinding properties of excessive zeal, anti-immigration forces seem determined to make their own dire prophecy come true.

Since the Civil War, the United States government has had a term for anyone born on American soil: citizen. Now, a faction in the Republican Party wants to revoke the policy when it comes to newborns who are so negligent as to have illegal immigrants for parents. These children might be born here and live their entire blameless lives here, but under this proposal, they would be nothing more than lawbreaking interlopers.

A task force appointed by House Speaker Newt Gingrich endorsed the idea in June 1995. And earlier this month, in a gesture ingeniously designed to drive Hispanics, immigrants and any number of other rational people straight into the arms of the Democrats, the Republican Platform Committee has called for an end to automatic birthright citizenship.

Bob Dole has yet to make his views known, but if he wants to be president, he will have to find a way to win in California - whose governor, Pete Wilson, strongly favors the change. Having reversed himself to propose evicting illegal immigrants from kindergarten classes in public schools across the country, Dole may have no objections to expanding the battle to the maternity ward.

Supporters of the proposal insist that pregnant Mexican women (though, you will be relieved to know, very few Canadians) make a practice of sneaking across the border as soon as they feel their first contractions, purely so the little one will be an American. Two-thirds of the births in Los Angeles County's public hospitals, they note grimly, are to illegal immigrants.

But probably two-thirds of the broken arms treated in those hospitals also belong to illegal immigrants. Why? Because Southern California has lots of undocumented foreigners. Mexicans don't come to America to break their arms, and they don't come here to have babies.

You don't have to look very far to find proof that this supposedly powerful magnet is no more than a trivial lure. Anti-immigration forces cite a study which found that 15 percent of Hispanic mothers in California border hospitals said they crossed over just to give birth. One out of four of these did so to assure U.S. citizenship for the child.

Those may sound like devastating numbers. But they indicate that for every Mexican mother who came here to exploit our naive policy of birthright citizenship, there are 16 who came for a different reason. And that's without considering all the illegal immigrants who aren't even mothers. Blaming birthright citizenship for illegal immigration is like blaming ambulances for traffic congestion. Even the late Barbara Jordan, who headed a federal commission that did not shrink from urging strict new measures to reduce both legal and illegal immigration, scoffed at the idea that foreigners come here for that reason.

And why would they? It's often claimed that once a newborn has citizenship, his mother is entitled to stay in the U.S. permanently - and to bring in her husband and other children. Wrong. If the Immigration and Naturalization Service catches an illegal immigrant, she can fully expect to get the heave-ho, even if she has a slew of kids who are American citizens. Having a child with citizenship is an advantage only because, along with $1.35, it will get her a ride on an L.A. bus.

Given that birthright citizenship is not a big draw, it's hard to imagine what we'd gain by repealing it. All we would accomplish is to sentence a class of guiltless people to permanent exile in the country of their birth - barred from becoming full Americans, doomed to second-class status, hindered from becoming productive members of society and, sooner or later, simmering with resentment.

One thing the United States has been very good at is assimilating newcomers from all corners of the globe, turning people from Pakistan and Nigeria and El Salvador into full-fledged Americans. This change would block that process for a group of people from such alien locales as Phoenix, Chicago and Dallas.

Babies don't choose their birthplaces, and the United States long ago decided that all children born in this country are created equal. Those who want to revoke birthright citizenship in the name of fighting illegal immigration, by contrast, take the position that since they can't catch the guilty, they'll settle for punishing the innocent.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Tuesday, August 20, the 233rd day of 1996. There are 133 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On August 20, 1968, the Soviet Union and other Warsaw Pact nations began invading Czechoslovakia to crush the "Prague Spring" liberalization drive of Alexander Dubcek's regime.

On this date:

In 1833, Benjamin Harrison, the 23rd president of the United States, was born in North Bend, Ohio.

In 1866, President Andrew Johnson formally declared the Civil War over, even though the fighting had stopped months earlier.

In 1914, German forces occupied

Brussels, Belgium, during World War I.

In 1918, Britain opened its offensive on the Western front during World War I.

In 1920, pioneering American radio station 8MK in Detroit (later WWJ) began daily broadcasting.

In 1940, British Prime Minister Winston Churchill paid tribute to the Royal Air Force, saying, "Never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few."

In 1953, the Soviet Union publicly acknowledged it had tested a hydrogen bomb.

In 1955, hundreds of people were killed in anti-French rioting in Morocco and Algeria.

In 1964, President Johnson signed a nearly $1 billion anti-poverty measure.

In 1977, the United States launched Voyager 2, an unmanned spacecraft carrying a 12-inch copper phonograph record containing greetings in dozens of languages, samples of music and sounds of nature.

In 1994, Benjamin Chavis Jr. was fired as head of the NAACP after a turbulent 16-month tenure.

Ten years ago: Postal employee Patrick Henry Sherrill went on a deadly rampage at a post office in Edmond, Okla., shooting 14 fellow workers to death before killing himself.

Five years ago: More than 100,000 people rallied outside the Russian Parliament building as protests against the Soviet coup increased. President Bush said he would never deal with the coup leaders.

One year ago: In northern India, 348 people were killed when a passenger train rammed another that had stopped on the tracks after hitting a cow. The remnants of an American peace delegation headed home from Bosnia-Herzegovina with the bodies of three diplomats killed in an accident.

Media's role in politics minimal

Charley Reese

Inevitably, when I write about the poor condition of Bob Dole's presidential campaign (and actually it's flattering to call it a campaign), I get a very serious letter from someone admonishing me to help Dole wallop Bill Clinton in November for the sake of the country.

That's not my job, but it has made me think that it might be useful to describe what opinion columnists do.

We are not players. We are just fans sitting in the bleachers. We watch the game and, like raucous baseball fans, carry on a more or less running commentary on the game and the players. But we don't play, we don't manage and, truth to tell, we don't have any effect on the outcome of the game.

Conservatives in particular like to talk about how the media influence elections, but in my opinion, based on experience and observation, the media have quite limited effect on elections. Most members of the press no doubt preferred Gov. Mike Dukakis to George Bush, but they couldn't save Dukakis from himself. I doubt if very many of the national press voted for Ronald Reagan, but, as we all saw, he needed neither their votes nor their approval to win.

As rabid a Pat Buchanan fan as I am, I don't think it was the news media that short-circuited his campaign for presidency. It was lack of money and time. Bunching up the primaries as Republicans have done makes it virtually impossible for an outsider candidate to raise enough money between New Hampshire and Super Tuesday to survive. A lot of money can't guarantee you'll win, but little to no money will guarantee you will lose.

Because Buchanan's message was unconventional, he needed time to explain it to voters. In the early primaries, when he had that time, he did well, but he would have needed millions of dollars of paid advertising to do that by Super Tuesday. He didn't have the millions, and he didn't have time to raise them.

His populist message did not appeal to the kinds of people who can raise millions of dollars for politicians. No populist message ever will. Super-rich folks, with some exceptions you can count without taking off your shoes, are neither populist nor conservative.

It's not that the press and TV guys aren't unfair. We are unfair a lot. In one of my extremely rare cranky moments long ago during a question and answer period, I listened to a long complaint about the press and said, "Go read the First Amendment. You'll find it doesn't say a blanket-blank word about the press being fair. It just says it should be free." And so it does.

Opinion columnists, like political cartoonists, are actually paid to be unfair. I'm not going to use up my column space rebutting my own arguments. If you don't agree with me, think up your own rebuttals. I've noticed that people are not shy about doing that.

People are not shy about salting their rebuttals with plenty of personal insults. That's OK. Feel free. Columnists don't shoot critics anymore. The last columnist I know of who shot a critic was a fellow by the name of Brand out in Waco, Texas, in 1905. But these days marketing people and salespeople take a dim view of such behavior.

But the point is that editorials and columns are not going to influence elections. The American people are not dumb. Polls show the press's trustworthiness is down there in the basement with that of lawyers, used car salesmen, politicians and undertakers.

Just as the press needs to improve, so do readers. Readers should learn to distinguish between facts, reports and opinions. They should read with their minds in gear and stay alert for fallacious thinking. Above all, readers should recognize that publication (or broadcast) is not a guarantee of truth. Fairy tales are published. Mistakes are published. Lies are published. Propaganda is published.

I hope Clinton is not re-elected, but nothing I or any other journalist writes is going to determine that. Voters are the players, not journalists.

Coming soon: Close, critical contest

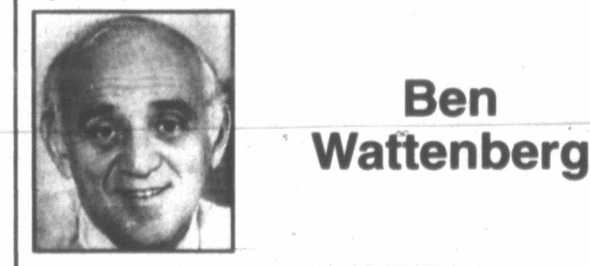

It is said that this presidential race is boring. Not to me. It will probably be close. It will probably be more important than any in the last generation, certainly since 1980.

The poll released recently by the highly reputable Pew Research Center showed that voters were not very interested in the campaign. That will change with the conventions in August and the campaigns in the fall.

The survey also showed Clinton leading Dole by ten percentage points. This is in stark contrast to the regnant judgment that Dole is trailing by "15 to 20 points" (also based on reputable polling). If the ten point number is in the ballpark, and Dole gets a normal "bounce" from the GOP convention (a ten point average for a non-incumbent since 1976), we could have a horse race by mid-August. If Clinton then gets the average incumbent bounce (six points), we'll have a single-digit race by Labor Day, when serious campaigning and Republican spending begins in earnest.

It is said that by signing the welfare-reform bill Clinton acted for political reasons and "took welfare off the table," hurting Dole's chances. Perhaps so, but I give Clinton great credit for what he did. There is a little secret about presidents: They usually do what they think is best for America. Welfare as we know it had become a catastrophe. It was Clinton's six little words in 1992 - "end welfare as we know it" - that opened up the debate. His own plan didn't appear until 1994 and was limited. The Republicans added fiber to the bill, and on their third attempt, Clinton signed up. All hail speechwriters: Rhetoric yields reality.

Will it hurt Dole? Well, it takes something off the table for Clinton too. How can he base a campaign on the idea that Republicans in Congress are "extremists," and then sign their bills on an issue like welfare, which ends a major federal entitlement that has been in the deck for 60 years? (The same Pew poll shows an even - 47% to 46% - Democrat-Republican split on a generic ballot for Congress.)

Moreover, the high profile results of the political struggle over welfare opens up another constellation of issues, clearly described in the three-part series in USA Today entitled "The Values Vote."

Consider these two sets of results from the USA Today/CNN/Gallup survey:

- Q: Which concerns you more, the nation's moral problems or the nation's economic problems?
- 53 percent said moral.
- 38 percent said economic.
- Q: Have government policies generally strengthened or generally weakened Americans' moral values in the last 25 years?
- 48 percent said weakened.
- 7 percent said strengthened.
- 39 percent said they had no effect.

Now, the values issues, particularly the ones that are directly related to government policies, have been Republican strong suits over the years: welfare, crime, education and affirmative action.

Clinton has been masterful in his attempt to neutralize these issues. Suppose welfare is indeed off the table. Both parties claim they are super tough on crime. But they are split on preferential affirmative action: Clinton says mend it; Dole says end it. And they differ deeply on educational policy, which may be this year's sleeper issue.

Dole's economic plan was much more than that, although the emphasis has been on his ideas for a tax cut and faster economic growth. It included a ringing call for "opportunity scholarships" the new phrase for "school vouchers." Dole says this will allow parents "to choose the best school for their child... the low-income parent has just as much right to have the best education for his child as anyone in this room..." This may well be Dole's signature issue, involving a demonstration project in about 15 states, with $12-to-$15 billion in federal funds. This is big money from the party that is preaching less federal government. With a Republican Congress, it could become law.

That's a big reason why the election is so important. If the Republicans win, they will control government pretty much from top to bottom - White House, Congress, State Houses, probably state legislatures, a sympathetic Supreme Court - for the first time in 70 years. We could find out if big conservative ideas can usefully help shape the destiny of global democracy in the 21st century.

It's also important if Clinton wins. The serious conservative challenge has led him to declare that "the era of big government is over" and to go further on his quest to "reinvent government." They're talking big stuff out there. It's not boring.

Pampan attends annual Mary Kay business seminar

DALLAS — Sherry Diggs of Pampa attended the Mary Kay annual business building seminar July 18-31 at the Dallas Convention Center.

More than 45,000 independent Mary Kay beauty consultants attended the event where about $8 million worth of incentive rewards were distributed.

Mary Kay representatives attended more than 180 business enhancement classes that teach business management, sales techniques, marketing strategies and fashion trends.

The business seminar includes general assemblies with motivational speeches from top sales leaders and company executives, and information on new product and program launches.

Airlines begin raising fares

HOUSTON (AP) — The cost of flying is on the rise as many of the major airlines hike up fares ten percent to offset the return of a federal airline tax.

Confident that strong fall bookings will hold up, Continental Airlines started the increase and the rest of the industry quickly went along. The higher fares are for unrestricted coach tickets bought 21 days in advance.

Continental spokesman Ned Walker said the fare increase was prompted by the return of the federal tax, as well as the cost of heightened airport security and a new FAA rule requiring greater distances between smaller aircraft and jets during landing, which is expected to increase delays at airports.

"And there's a classic case of supply and demand based on fall bookings," he said.

A sample fare change for Continental will mean a $488 round-trip ticket from New York to Los Angeles will now cost $537.

The airline industry has enjoyed a break from the ticket tax after it expired Dec. 31. But the reinstatement of the excise tariff is included in the minimum wage package expected to be signed by President Clinton today.

Child recovering after zoo accident

CHICAGO (AP) — The 3-year-old boy who fell 18 feet into a zoo's primate exhibit and was carried to safety by a motherly gorilla should make a full recovery, doctors said.

The boy, who was upgraded from critical condition to fair, had minor head injuries, broken bones in one hand and a number of scrapes and cuts, some that needed stitches, Dr. Wendy Marshall of Loyola Medical Center said Monday.

The boy, whose parents don't want his name released, was unconscious for up to 14 hours, but Marshall said she doubted he'd suffer any long-term effects from the fall.

"He's acting quite normal," she said. "He does not remember anything about the events on Friday and we haven't asked him anything about that."

The boy fell onto concrete in the primate exhibit at the Brookfield Zoo after climbing over a 3 1/2-foot railing. With her own baby clinging to her back, the gorilla, Binti Jua, cradled the boy in her arms and carried him to a gate where zoo keepers could retrieve him.

Six other gorillas were in the exhibit, and witnesses said Binti Jua protected the boy when one of the animals walked toward him. Zoo keepers also sprayed water on the other gorillas to help keep them away from the boy.

Amateur video of Binti Jua's action was shown on television over the weekend, prompting phone calls from people all over the world.

"This morning I've talked to Belfast, Ireland. I made a call back to people in Argentina that we couldn't get through to," zoo keeper Craig Demitros said. "We've been literally all over the world with this."

People also are flocking to catch a glimpse of the hairy heroine. Zoo attendance topped 18,500 on Sunday — considered exceptional given the overcast weather. Visitors waited in line up to an hour outside Tropic World, where Binti Jua lives.

plans to tear a portion of its mall for limited car traffic next spring.

Why the change? Advocates say most downtown malls are losing luster because of new buying habits, the popularity of huge suburban malls and the perception that city hubs are unsafe at night.

"Sure, the lunch crowds are great, especially in summer. But after 2 p.m. there often are more birds than people, and a casual squatter isn't always practical in Michigan winters."

"The economics have not worked. ... Sandwich shops are not enough to make a downtown survive," says Cy Paumier of LBR International in Columbia, Md., an urban planner hired for the Kalamazoo project.

"There is not a national retailer — a really good retailer — that will go in where there is no vehicular access."

When Kalamazoo cut the ribbon in '59, The Associated Press said the city was "leading a return of the village green to the American scene." Indeed, much of that green remains today.

the club as employers, speakers and outstanding members.

Other special guests will include International Association of Desk and Derrick Clubs 1996 President Doris Odom, Glo-Valve Service & Testing of Elk City, Okla., and Sheryl Minear, LeClair Operating of Abilene, Texas, 1997 ADDC Region V director-elect.

ture's hoping to prevent car traffic unless voters approve.

"The mall needs upgrading, but I feel it works," says Patricia Hirsch, one of the merchants leading the opposition. "Do you know another place that has as much activity at lunch time?"

John Lugaver, who walks to the mall from First of America Bank, said: "The people who work downtown are the people who make the economy run. You put a street down here, you'll discourage them."

So where are pedestrian malls thriving? Paumier, the urban planner, says cities where colleges are virtually on top of downtown, such as Boulder, Colo., Charlottesville, Va., and Burlington, Vt.

"It was a process American cities had to go through," he says. "We had to try it because it was fashionable. But when businesses don't want to be there, and property owners can't survive, people who like pedestrian malls shouldn't stand in the way."

Epic downtown pedestrian Michigan mall may surrender blocks to cars

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — The Jimmy Dorsey Orchestra was there. So were 50,000 people. The event was so big, they even crowned a Miss Downtown Kalamazoo.

All this in 90-degree heat. For four days in August 1959, the city celebrated the opening of the nation's first downtown pedestrian mall, blocks of grass and walkways bordered by some of retailing's major names.

Now, 37 years later, the trumpet's blare is just a memory. And by next year a stroll past the fountains could also be history: The city plans to open two of the mall's four blocks to cars.

"The lady spending a leisurely day shopping and having lunch downtown — that type of person isn't around anymore," says George Hebben, owner of Athena Book Shop on the mall. "People want quicker access, and I think this will help."

Kalamazoo would be the latest city to follow the trend. Michigan's second-largest city, Grand Rapids, also plans to tear a portion of its mall for limited car traffic next spring.

Why the change? Advocates say most downtown malls are losing luster because of new buying habits, the popularity of huge suburban malls and the perception that city hubs are unsafe at night.

"Sure, the lunch crowds are great, especially in summer. But after 2 p.m. there often are more birds than people, and a casual squatter isn't always practical in Michigan winters."

When Kalamazoo cut the ribbon in '59, The Associated Press said the city was "leading a return of the village green to the American scene." Indeed, much of that green remains today.

The pedestrian mall is a walker's oasis, a comfortable place to eat, read or admire the birds. Sunflowers grow under trees. There are swings and a slide for children.

Light jazz is heard from the speakers overhead, and lamp posts give the mall a traditional, small-town look.

It is anchored by two large retailers, Gilmore's and Jacobson's. In between, there are several shops for coffee, sweets, Chinese food, music, shoes, cards and sports apparel. But there are vacant windows — and gripes, too.

"We do 80 percent of our business in three hours of the day and we're open for nine," says Tom Morin, standing outside near tables of discounted shoes at V & A Bootery.

In May, the City Commission approved a broad downtown revitalization plan that includes overhauling the mall and removing its fountains.

The strategy, however, has opponents. Supporters of pedestrian-only blocks have turned in petition signatures hoping to prevent car traffic unless voters approve.

"The mall needs upgrading, but I feel it works," says Patricia Hirsch, one of the merchants leading the opposition. "Do you know another place that has as much activity at lunch time?"

John Lugaver, who walks to the mall from First of America Bank, said: "The people who work downtown are the people who make the economy run. You put a street down here, you'll discourage them."

Experts: Chronic fatigue wouldn't show up on autopsy

BOSTON (AP) — If the latest person to die with Dr. Jack Kevorkian's help had chronic fatigue syndrome, an autopsy would show no signs of the disorder, experts said.

"In a million years, I wouldn't have expected an autopsy to show one of these conditions," Dr. Don Goldenberg, of Boston's Newton-Wellesley Hospital, told the Boston Herald.

Nelson Gantz, an infectious disease specialist, said he was surprised Kevorkian agreed to help Judith Curren die. Chronic fatigue is never fatal, and has generally treatable symptoms, he said.

"I think he made a mistake," Gantz said.

Oakland County Medical Examiner Dr. L.J. Dragovic concluded Mrs. Curren, a 42-year-old registered nurse, died Thursday of a lethal injection. She was the 35th person to die in Kevorkian's presence.

Kevorkian has been prosecuted in five deaths but has never been convicted.

Missing steering part caused Sea World crash

AURORA, Ohio (AP) — The power boat that careened into a crowded grandstand at Sea World of Ohio and injured 23 people was missing a key steering control part, investigators concluded.

The Ohio Division of Watercraft said Monday that the mission part steers the boat like a rudder by diverting a high-speed water stream. The boat does not have a propeller.

The jet-drive boat lost the part sometime after the water-skiing performance began Saturday, the agency said. It was not immediately clear how.

Instead of turning, the 18-foot boat went straight, hit a guardrail and flew through the air before crashing five rows deep in the grandstand along Geauga Lake.

Four people remained hospitalized today. Others injured were treated at hospitals and released.

Ski shows will remain closed at all four Sea World parks — in Aurora, San Diego, San Antonio and Orlando, Fla. — until "we can review all safety aspects of the shows," said Stephen D. LeResche, spokesman for Sea World operator Anheuser-Busch Cos. of St. Louis.

Pain may be eliminated for millions

(SPECIAL) — A drug that is exciting researchers in the treatment of pain has been formulated into a new product known as "Arthur Itis," and is being called a "Medical Miracle" by some, in the treatment of debilitating conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, painful muscle aches, joint aches, simple backache, bruises, and more. Although the mechanism of action is unclear, experiments indicate that Arthur Itis, relieves pain by first selectively attracting, and then destroying the messenger chemical which carries pain sensations to the brain, thus eliminating pain in the affected area. Arthur Itis, is an odorless, greaseless, non-staining cream and is available immediately without a prescription and is guaranteed to work. Use only as directed. © 1996, Seltzer Health Products, Inc.

Bosnia: Voters discouraged about upcoming election

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Ever since her son Armin disappeared in a Bosnian Serb concentration camp, Amira Tihic has been searching for consolation in the arrival of peace in Bosnia.

But the more she looks, the fewer signs she sees that the promise of democracy set forth in last year's Dayton peace accord is bearing fruit.

Bosnia remains divided between rival Muslim-led, Serb and Croat authorities, and elections Sept. 14 seems certain to cast that division in stone. Fear is driving people to vote along ethnic lines.

"Nothing has changed," said Tihic, 56, a retired government clerk. "The system is set up in a way that you don't actually have any other option than to vote for the SDA" — the ruling Muslim Party of Democratic Action, headed by President Alija Izetbegovic.

The Dayton agreement foresees a three-member presidency including a Muslim, a Croat and a Serb. The candidate who wins the most votes will be chairman of the troika.

In parts of the country controlled by the Croats and the Serbs, nationalist parties have propagated fear and insecurity among voters from the beginning.

Ads from the Croat Democratic Party warn Croat voters that the "survival of their nation" is at stake in this election.

Republika Srpska television, the most influential medium in the 49 percent of Bosnia under Serb rule, says a vote against the Serb Democratic Party constitutes a vote "against the Republika Srpska and the Serb people."

A report last week by the International Crisis Group, an independent monitoring group, said both Bosnian Serb and Bosnian Croat authorities were manipulating electoral rules to "consolidate with the ballot that which they won with the bullet."

Seeing how Serbs and Croats are uniting, Muslims now say they have no choice but to circle the wagons around their ethnic group.

Tihic likened democracy in Bosnia to a convoy. So far, she asserted, the Muslim-led area is "far ahead on the road to democracy. It has to stop and wait for the other two to catch up; it'll get nowhere on its own."

However, reports of harassment and intimidation of candidates, as well as violent attacks against them, have been mounting in the territory dominated by Izetbegovic's Muslim-led party as well as in Serb-held lands.

Although none of the democratic conditions for free and fair elections have been met, the international community is still pressing Bosnians to vote anyway. And vote they will — most of them casting ballots for the same parties they did in 1990.

"If the Muslims go for democracy and split their votes among the various opposition parties, they will end up with (Bosnian Serb) Momcilo Krajisnik as chairman of the presidency," Tihic said.

Gov. Tucker sentenced to probation, detention

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Sending former Gov. Jim Guy Tucker to prison with chronic liver disease "would be as cruel as a grave," said a judge who sentenced him to four years' probation on two Whitewater convictions.

Also Monday, the sentencing of President Clinton's former Whitewater business partner James McDougal was postponed until after the election amid word McDougal is cooperating with prosecutors.

McDougal, convicted of 18 fraud and conspiracy counts, faces 84 years in prison and $4.5 million in fines when he is sentenced Nov. 18.

His ex-wife, Susan McDougal, was to be sentenced today for four felony counts. She faces up to 17 years in prison and $1 million in fines.

The McDougals and Tucker were convicted in a Whitewater-related case May 28 of fraudulently obtaining and using federally backed loans.

Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr wouldn't say whether McDougal was cooperating, only that the investigation is "aggressively ongoing." Sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, have said McDougal has been cooperating for about three weeks.

McDougal, 55, has declined to say if he has given up his pledge not to cooperate, or why. But since his conviction he has said he would like to do something to try to spare his ex-wife.

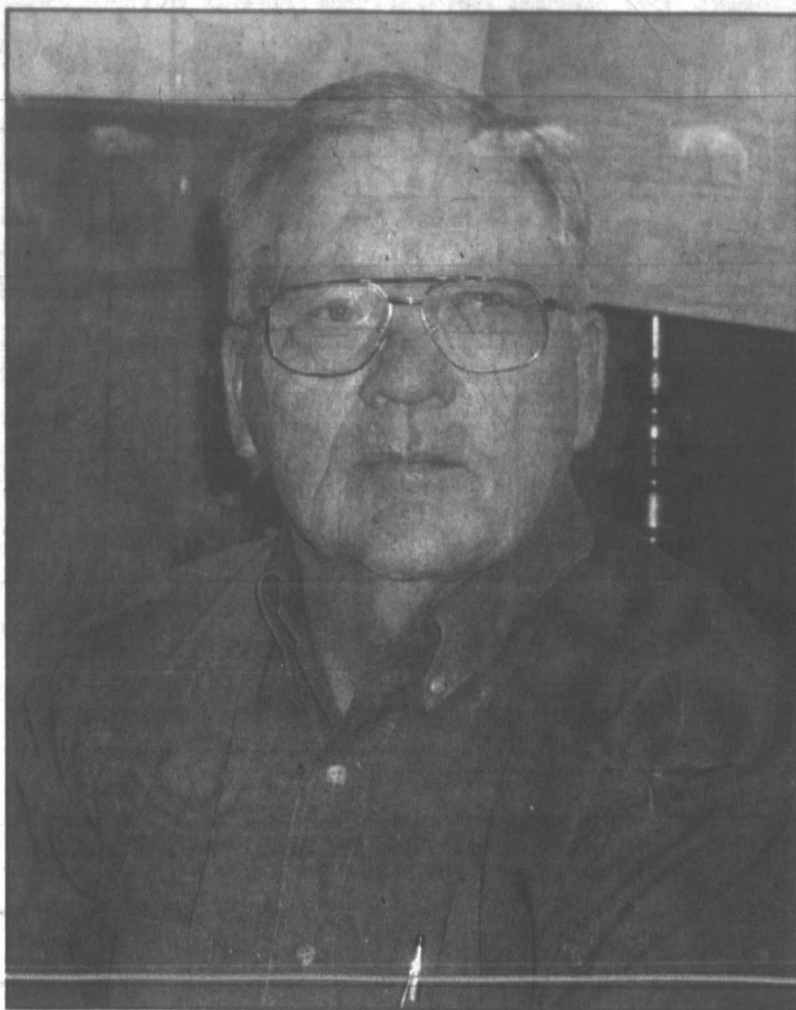

As for Tucker, U.S. District Judge George Howard Jr. ordered him to begin his four years' probation with 1 1/2 years of home detention — which means Tucker would be allowed to leave home only for work, church or medical treatment.

Tucker, 53, was ordered to pay a $25,000 fine and $150,000 in restitution, plus $120,000 in interest, to the Small Business Administration. He must also address 13 junior- and senior-high assemblies across the state, lecturing on values, responsibility and respect for authority.

The former governor, who resigned in disgrace following his May 28 convictions — one count each of fraud and conspiracy — had faced up to 10 years in prison and $500,000 in fines.

"I won't criticize the judge," Starr said. "He felt this was a contribution that Tucker could make."

Bill Jones, the Project Rio assessment specialist at the Jordan Unit, is employee of the month for August. Jones oversees the program that helps prepare inmates to find employment upon their release. Jobs are important to staying out of prison, which is what Jones stresses to the 425 inmates he counsels. Jones is a retired principal of Pampa's Austin Elementary School, after 16 years, and was a teacher in the Texas school system for 36 years. He says this retirement project is different, but he feels the interest in learning is strong for many in the Jordan Unit, adding that those involved in the voluntary Rio Project are looking farther down the road to better prepare themselves.

'Deep Space Nine' receives Emmy nomination

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Young Indiana Jones and Star Trek: Deep Space Nine were among five shows nominated for an Emmy award for outstanding special visual effects.

Star Trek: Deep Space Nine was nominated for an episode called "The Way of the Warrior," and Young Indiana Jones for its "And the Attack of the Hawkmen," the Academy of Television Arts & Sciences said Monday.

Others nominated were Family Matters, for its "Send in the Clone" episode along with the NBC special Gulliver's Travels and an HBO special, Tuskegee Airmen.

The nominees were chosen by a panel of visual effects professionals, and the award will be presented at the non-televised Creative Arts Primetime Emmy Awards on Sept. 7 in Pasadena, the day before the televised Emmy Awards.

Cook Fishes For Compliments But Husband Eats All The Bait

DEAR READERS: I'll be on vacation between Aug. 18 and Aug. 31. Don't panic — I've selected some of my favorite letters from past years to fill the gap. I hope you enjoy them.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for six years to a wonderful man. Although I have hinted broadly on many occasions that I would dearly love some acknowledgment of my cooking, I have yet to receive one word of appreciation for anything I have prepared since our marriage.

I know he enjoys good food because he has mentioned from time to time that his first wife was a great cook. I have baked cakes and pies from scratch, made gourmet dishes, casseroles, stews, pot roasts and turkey dinners with all the trimmings, with nary one "That was good, dear."

I am considering serving him dog food, scooped out of the can and garnished with a few steamed onions and a sprig of parsley, just to see if I get a reaction.

I know a man could have far worse faults than being totally indifferent to a wife who knocks herself out nightly in the kitchen, but one gets tired of buying groceries, planning menus and preparing fine meals for someone who never utters a word of appreciation. Sign me.

UNAPPRECIATED IN LONG BEACH
DEAR UNAPPRECIATED: A

Abigail Van Buren
SYNDICATED COLUMNIST

friend of mine had the same problem. In desperation, she wrote the following message and presented it to her husband with his coffee after dinner:

"The chef respectfully requests that you comment on the dinner you have just consumed. Would you rate it: Excellent? Good? Fair? Poor?"

"Failure to comply with this request could cause the dining room to discontinue its service."

Needless to say, she received a generous outpouring of compliments — and still does. Try it.

DEAR ABBY: My husband's former wife, Velma, with whom we have remained on fairly good terms, invited us to her home for a party. She is now married to a very well-to-do man.

Velma told me it was going to be a costume party, so my husband and I dressed up like a couple of rabbits.

Imagine our surprise when the butler opened the door and ushered us into a room filled with men in tuxedos and women in stunning gowns! We felt like a couple of fools. Velma laughed and said she thought it was funny. I was very upset to have been made the butt of her joke, so I got myself a glass of punch and spilled it on her gown. Then I laughed and told her I thought it was funny. However, she didn't see anything funny about it.

My husband isn't speaking to me, and he thinks I owe Velma an apology. What should I do?

A WIFE IN NEED
DEAR WIFE: Send Velma a bunch of carrots, and tell her you're sorry.

DEAR ABBY: "Ohio Photographer" should handle the situation with his friends this way: Draw up an official-looking bill. List his cost for materials (the rolls of film), the standard fee for labor and the cost of subcontracted work (namely the processing fee). Then subtract the cost of subcontracted work as costs assumed by customer. Subtotal the bill, add local sales tax, then total it. Then at the bottom, write "Amount due ... $0.00. My gift to the two of you and my blessings for a long and fruitful marriage."

If that doesn't stop them from looking this gift horse in the mouth, nothing will. Friends who expect more from you than you are willing to give are not friends — they are liabilities.

Horoscope

Wednesday, Aug. 21, 1996

In the year ahead, do not let your impatience tempt you to abandon endeavors before they have matured fully. In areas where you are consistent, the rewards could be impressive.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) People will respond to the way you treat them today. If you're gruff or discourteous, they will treat you the same way. Leo, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Make sure to state your zodiac sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you take time off that you shouldn't today, the responsibilities you leave unattended to may weigh on your mind and spoil what could have been a happy day.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Participating in frivolous activities today could cost you more than you intended to spend. Have a good time, but do it as inexpensively as possible.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) There will be a fine line between assertiveness and aggressiveness in career situations today. If you step over this line, you could create problems.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Guard against the inclination to make mountains out of molehills today. Trivial mistakes should be kept in perspective.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Proceed cautiously with any new business contacts you make at this time. Take care not to get too closely tied in with someone who might not be all that you hoped.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Too many overlapping interests could complicate your life today. Make sure the assignments you undertake can be concluded satisfactorily.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Prepare to cope with your own problems today, especially at work. People you can usually count on for help might be tied up with their own involvements.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) An interesting endeavor that has a degree of risk shouldn't be entered into hastily. Take time to investigate it in greater detail.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In a current situation, you may not have as much power as your opponent today. Strive to move in the same direction as authority figures.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Instead of trying to accommodate others today, you might deny a request for assistance because the person will make a demand instead of a polite request.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A desire for instant gratification might compel you to waste your resources today. Try to think beyond the present.

PREP FOOTBALL

PAMPA — Pampa and Borger will hold a scrimmage Saturday at Bulldog Stadium in Borger.

The junior varsity and freshmen scrimmage at 10 a.m., followed by the varsity about 11:30 a.m.

The two teams meet in District 1-4A play Oct. 18 in Borger.

TENNIS

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — One day after winning his first ATP Tour singles title, Alex O'Brien of Amarillo has received a wild card entry into the 1996 U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

O'Brien, the 1992 NCAA singles and doubles champion while at Stanford University, defeated eighth-seeded Jan Siemerink of the Netherlands on Sunday to capture the Pilot Pen International in New Haven, Conn. He earlier in the week had upset top-seeded Yevgeny Kafelnikov, No. 8 Arnaud Boetsch and No. 14 Mark Philippoussis.

O'Brien had received a wild card entry into Pilot Pen.

Other men receiving wild card entries into the U.S. Open are NCAA singles champion Cecil Mamiit of Los Angeles and the University of Southern California; USTA national boys' 18 champion Kevin Kim of Fullerton, Calif.; Doug Flach of Atlanta; Jim Grabb of Tucson, Ariz.; Scott Humphries of Tampa, Fla.; Jared Palmer of Tampa; and David Wheaton of Lake Minnetonka, Minn.

The U.S. Open will be played Aug. 26-Sept. 8.

BASKETBALL

HOUSTON (AP) — No one ever will accuse Charles Barkley of being subtle. That's not changing now that he's on the Houston Rockets.

"I don't guarantee anything," the star forward said Monday after he was traded by the Phoenix Suns for four players, including guard Sam Cassell and forward Robert Horry. "But I have no problem saying this: If we don't win a championship, I'll be crushed."

That's exactly what the Rockets brass, who won the NBA title in 1994 and 1995 before falling short last season, wanted to hear.

"He's really a coach on the floor and has a lunch-pail attitude," Rockets owner Les Alexander said.

"We have to make tough decisions in this business," coach Rudy Tomjanovich said. "This was an opportunity we couldn't pass up. There are elite players, those you can say do it all. And Charles Barkley is one of them."

Also moved to the Suns in the blockbuster deal were forward-center Mark Bryant, who backed up Hakeem Olajuwon, and forward Chuckie Brown, the only Rockets player to appear in all 82 regular-season games last season.

PRO FOOTBALL

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Former Dallas wide receiver and kick returner Kelvin Martin has signed to return to the Cowboys, who need help while Michael Irvin sits out his five-game NFL suspension.

Martin played for the Cowboys from 1987 to 1992 and caught 212 passes for 2,703 yards and 8 touchdowns. He's the leading punt returner in the club's history.

"It feels like coming back home," he said.

Martin of Boston College left the Cowboys to play for Seattle in 1993 and 1994. He played for Philadelphia last year and became a free agent.

Terms of the agreement were not immediately announced. However, The Dallas Morning News reported that Martin signed a one-year deal for the $275,000 NFL minimum, plus incentives.

Dallas already has two former players, Herschel Walker and Tony Casillas, playing for the NFL minimum of $275,000 per year.

Rangers beat Indians, set AL fielding record

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Texas Rangers broke a record, beat the defending AL champs and made Jack McDowell look like he left his fastball on the disabled list.

In beating the defending AL champs for the fifth time in seven games with a 10-3 victory on Monday night, Texas showcased a much-improved defense that has not made an error in 15 games — an AL record.

The Rangers, fourth in the league in fielding last season, have handled 558 chances during the streak without a miscue. "Now we catch the ball as well as we hit it," said Juan Gonzalez, who drove in four runs and made the final putout with a diving catch in right field.

Gonzalez is right. The Rangers lead the league in batting and fielding.

Their pitching wasn't bad on Monday night, either. Roger Pavlik (14-6) pitched a four-hitter and his seventh complete game of the year, tying him with Pat Hentgen for the major league lead. It was his second straight complete-game victory over the Indians.

"I have no explanation for my success against Cleveland," Pavlik said. "I do nothing different against them."

McDowell, meanwhile, struggled badly. He left after facing three batters in the fourth with way too many big numbers on the scoreboard — eight hits and eight runs.

Even when McDowell made a good pitch, the result was bad. In the second, Gonzalez reached across the plate into the opposite batter's box and hit a split-fingered pitch up the middle for a two-run single that made it 4-0. The ball grazed McDowell's shoulder on the way to the outfield, but he wasn't hurt.

McDowell was pulled after Gonzalez laced a two-run double to right, making it 8-0.

McDowell is 1-2 in three starts since coming off the disabled list, allowing 13 earned runs on 16 hits in 5 1-3 innings in his last two outings.

"When the juices start flowing, I start to overthrow a little bit, and my pitches start flattening out," McDowell said.

Sandy Alomar — the guy who was catching the pitches that made it past the Texas batters — sounded a little more concerned. "Unfortunately, I think he's still battling the (forearm) injury," Alomar said. "He's not throwing the way he can throw."

So Cleveland has McDowell struggling and Dennis Martinez unable to pitch because of an injured elbow. On the contrary, nothing is going wrong for Texas, which has won nine of 10.

"I think our team is enjoying the game right now; just trying to increase our lead," Pavlik said.

Pavlik allowed a leadoff single to Omar Vizquel, who was hitting in that spot because Kenny Lofton has a sore foot. The right-hander didn't allow another hit until Albert Belle hit his 40th home run in the fourth, with the Rangers already leading 9-0.

Pavlik had stretches of eight and seven straight retired batters.

"If I could write a script for this team, it couldn't be better than real life over the last nine or 10 games," Texas manager Johnny Oates said. "We have had outstanding starting pitching, the relievers have done the job when needed, the defense has been great and we're still getting a lot of hitting."

Texas got its first two runs on an RBI groundout by Rusty Greer and a sacrifice fly by Dean Palmer, who added his 29th homer in the fourth off Greg Swindell. Mark McLemore had an RBI single in the third and Darryl Hamilton a sacrifice fly in the seventh.

Notes: Texas is one of only two visiting teams with a winning record at Jacobs Field with a 7-6 mark. The New York Yankees (12-2) are the other. ... The Rangers are 70-for-89 in stolen base attempts (79 percent), the best percentage in the majors. ... Belle became the second player in Indians history with back-to-back 40-homer seasons. Rocky Colavito did it in 1958-59. ... Jeremy Burnitz started in center field in place of Lofton, who is expected back in the lineup tonight.

Lady Harvesters open volleyball season tonight

AMARILLO — Pampa starts off the volleyball season tonight with a triangular match against Palo Duro and River Road, starting at 6 at Palo Duro. The match had originally been scheduled to be played at River Road.

Pampa junior varsity and freshmen host Fort Elliott tonight at 6 in McNeely Fieldhouse.

The Lady Harvesters' first home match is a triangular against Fort Elliott and Trinity on Aug. 27. The District 1-4A opener is Sept. 10 at McNeely Fieldhouse against Borger. The Lady Bulldogs play their first match tonight at Sanford-Fritch.

Returning starters for Pampa include senior Nicole Meason, junior Dieder Crawford and sophomore Lisa Dwight. Lisa Kirkpatrick, a sophomore, returns to the team after being out with an injury. Katy Cavalier, a junior, is still sidelined with a shoulder injury.

Others on the Pampa varsity roster are Carri East, senior; Keili Earl, junior; Tiffany McCullough, junior; Marisol Resendiz, senior; Nichole Cagle, senior and April Lopez, junior.

"Everything starts tonight. We'll be right in the thick of things. We'll go to the Lubbock Tournament next weekend," said Pampa head coach Sandra Thornton.

Defending District 1-4A champion Hereford begins the season tonight in a triangular match with Brownfield and Lubbock Coronado in Brownfield. Dumas, the district runnerup a year ago, hosts Amarillo Tascosa tonight.

Astros nip Pirates in 13 innings

HOUSTON (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates are in last place in the NL Central division. That isn't stopping them from having some spirited battles with some of the league's best teams.

"Atlanta yesterday, Houston today and Colorado next," Pittsburgh first baseman Mark Johnson said. "We're not going to roll over and play dead for the contenders. Just because we're in last doesn't mean we don't have any pride."

After battling first-place Atlanta for 14 innings before losing on Sunday, the Pirates played Houston even for 12 innings Tuesday night before losing 2-1 in the 13th on Sean Berry's bases-loaded walk.

"We had plenty of chances,"

Bills could be back for another Super Bowl attempt

By BARRY WILNER
AP Football Writer

Here's a scary thought for AFC fans hoping that 12-year Super Bowl drought might end next January: the Buffalo Bills are the best team in the conference.

The Bills, who contributed so mightily to that losing streak with four straight super flops, are likely to be back for another try. Just as likely, it will be a final try with the present group.

That group includes three players — Bruce Smith, Jim Kelly and Thurman Thomas — almost certainly headed to the Hall of Fame. It also includes veterans Andre Reed and Kent Hull, mainstays of the 1990-93 AFC champs.

What sets these Bills apart from the rest of a jumbled conference are recent additions. Bryce Paup brought pop to the pass rush, getting 17 1/2 sacks to earn Defensive Player of the Year honors in 1995. Phil Hansen has developed into a terrific complement to Smith at defensive end. Henry Jones is one of the league's best safeties, and partner Karl Schulz is getting there. The cornerbacks are young but aggressive and talented.

The linebacking is fine. Mark Maddox is healthy, and Chris Spielman was a terror with the Lions and a better all-around player than the departed Cornelius Bennett. Unlike in their Super Bowl seasons, the Bills have a reliable defense that can turn around games.

"This is a strong, winning defense," Smith said. "We can win games the same way our offense can, and that's the combination you want."

The offense might be too reliant on Thomas, who goes for a record eighth straight 1,000-yard rushing season and is capable of 1,000 as a receiver. Darick Holmes is a good backup, and the blockers, led by tackle John Pina and guard Ruben Brown on the left, plus the superb Hull at center, are just fine.

Kelly says his arm is stronger after shoulder surgery, but his 36-year-old body is battered. He must stay healthy for Buffalo to go anywhere.

Operating without key weapons for much of last year, Kelly threw for 22 TDs and 13 interceptions and had an 81.1 rating. And the Bills won the AFC East again.

Now, he has free agent Quinn Early, promising rookie Eric Moulds, a healthy Reed and the versatile Steve Tasker as targets.

"Our goal is to go out and win it this year, and if we don't, I'll come back and hopefully do it the following year," Thomas said. "But if we do, I'm outta here."

Coach Marv Levy, who also deserves a spot in Canton, has a strong staff. Everyone is primed for another run at the prize, and newcomers such as Paup, Spielman, Early and Brown give Buffalo some freshness.

The Bills will be pushed in the division by Indianapolis, which fell inches short of the Super Bowl last January. The other three teams are rebuilding.

The Colts might suffer from management's moves in the off-season. Ted Marchibroda's reward for the astounding playoff run was being set free when his contract ran out. He's now head coach in Baltimore.

Lindy Infante moves up and still will control the offensive strings, but defensive coordinator Vince Tobin got the head job in Arizona. A strong, innovative staff was torn apart, and several Colts players were disturbed by the changes.

The defense didn't lose much and has perhaps the AFC's best group of linebackers.

The departure of tackle Will Wolford, the team's best blocker, as a free agent will hurt. The three linemen signed — Doug Widell, Troy Auzenne and Jay Leeuwenburg — are serviceable, but not in Wolford's class.

The Colts finally have the weapons in the skill positions to be a winner. Jim Harbaugh's breakout year saw him lead the league in passing, and he was nicknamed "Captain Comeback" for continually leading Indy from behind. His reward: a four-year, $13 million deal.

Aiding him are Marshall Faulk, the star runner of a deep backfield, emerging tight end Ken Dilger and receivers Sean Dawkins and rookie Marvin Harrison, a steal with the 19th overall pick.

"I know what my job is. I don't feel like I have to go out there and win every game," Harbaugh said. "I just need to fit in with the game plan and do my job. That takes a lot of pressure off you when you have other players that are good."

Jimmy Johnson is used to having such players. He simply doesn't have enough of them this time around.

So JJ's return to the NFL, while it will draw headlines no matter what the Dolphins do, won't be a triumphant one. If Miami matches its 9-7 mark of 1995, it will be doing well. Championships are down the road, and Johnson understands that, even if he isn't quite letting on.

"Everyone's job is up for grabs," he said. "They've got to prove they want to be a starter."

One guy who definitely will start is Dan Marino, who holds all those spiffy passing records, but no titles. Now, he has the coach of the '90s on his side.

"I'm excited about the possibilities of playing for coach Johnson," Marino said. "It's my 14th season. I seem to get more excited each year. In this game, you never know when it's going to end."

Defensively, Miami's chances might end quickly. Gone are the best lineman (Marco Coleman), linebacker (Bryan Cox) and back (Troy Vincent), all to free agency.

The coaching situation in New England is tenuous. Bill Parcells seems to have tired of the grind once again, and he's annoyed the team insisted on drafting Terry Glenn with the seventh overall pick, when he wanted a defender.

So Parcells renegotiated his contract to eliminate the fifth year, ending the pact after this season. He created a lame-duck situation that can't help.

The guys who need the most help in New England are the ball-handlers and the secondary. Parcells figures to turn to second-year CB Ty Law and free-agent safety Willie Clay in the backfield and expects more from pass-rushers Willie McGinest and Chris Slade.

If Drew Bledsoe can return to his 1994 form and Curtis Martin, the '95 Offensive Rookie of the Year, comes close to gaining 1,487 yards and scores 15 times again, the offense will be OK. Glenn could turn into a godsend for Bledsoe.

The Jets were, for the first time in their 25 NFL seasons, at the very bottom. They rebuilt nicely, particularly on offense, with $25 million QB Neil O'Donnell; wide-outs Jeff Graham and Webster Slaughter through free agency, Keyshawn Johnson and Alex Van Dyke in the draft; and tackles David Williams and Jumbo Elliott. They certainly should score more than 22 touchdowns, and Adrian Murrell, the top runner, could get 1,000 yards.

The defense is decent, sparked by linebackers Mo Lewis, Marvin Jones and Bobby Houston, and cornerback Aaron Glenn.

So why will the Jets finish last again, albeit with twice as many victories as a year ago? One word: coaching.

LAST YEAR'S FINISH: 1, Buffalo (10-6); 2, Indianapolis (9-7); 3, Miami (9-7); 4, New England (6-10); 5, New York Jets (3-13).

PREDICTIONS: 1, Buffalo (11-5); 2, Indianapolis (9-7); 3, Miami (8-8); 4, New England (7-9); 5, New York Jets (6-10).

Sanders civil trial opens

CINCINNATI (AP) — After two false starts in the personal injury lawsuit against Dallas Cowboys star Deion Sanders, the civil trial opened Monday with jury selection and opening statements.

Sanders is being sued for $1 million by Riverfront Stadium security guard Herbert Kohus over a dispute following a Cincinnati Reds game two years ago.

Judge Robert Kraft of Hamilton County Common Pleas Court delayed the trial twice last week after Sanders didn't show and then "had urgent family matters" that prevented him coming.

Kohus' attorney, John Rockel, said his client was out of work for six weeks because of injuries he received when Sanders, who was playing with the Reds at the time, allegedly dragged Kohus with his motor scooter as he tried to leave through a pedestrian gate.

Rockel said Kohus injured his wrists, neck, back and shoulder trying to hold on to Sanders. He has lost thousands of dollars because he can't wear the protective vest or gun belt required for security work, Rockel said.

"The issue is if a uniform police officer is hanging on to you, you don't have any right to resist arrest," Kohus said following opening statements.

Sanders' attorney, Kenneth Lawson, said Kohus grabbed Sanders in anger.

"Mr. Kohus could have let go of Deion at any point," Lawson said. Lawson said Kohus didn't seek medical attention until after he found out the man on the scooter was Sanders.

Sanders was charged with not having a driver's license and resisting arrest. Charges of leaving the scene of an accident and complying with a police officer's order were added later.

World briefs

America's Cup winner imprisoned for three years

PERTH, Australia (AP) — A judge sentenced former America's Cup winner and ex-tycoon Alan Bond to three years in prison today for defrauding stockholders in the purchase and resale of a French impressionist painting.

Prosecutors contended he misled the board of Bond Corp. about the market value of Edouard Manet's La Promenade before his family company bought the piece in 1988 for $1.89 million and then sold it at an auction a few months later for $13 million.

Bond Corp. had been leasing the 19th-century masterpiece, but on Bond's advice — he was the corporation's executive chairman and a keen art collector — the company did not exercise an option to buy.

That enabled his family company to reap a multimillion-dollar profit that should have gone to Bond Corp.'s stockholders, prosecutors said.

Bond used the profits from the sale to help pay for Van Gogh's Irises, which he bought in 1987 for $53.9 million.

A jury last week convicted him on four fraud charges.

Coroner: Young Briton died of mad cow related disease

LONDON (AP) — A young Briton died of a brain disorder linked to mad cow disease, most likely caught from burgers he ate as a child before converting to vegetarianism, according to testimony at an inquest Monday.

Peter Hall, 20, is the 11th person in the country to die of the newly discovered form of Creutzfeldt-Jakob disease.

Britain's government announced in March that the new strain appeared linked to mad cow disease, which eats holes in the brains of cattle.

European countries responded to the announcement with a global ban on British beef sales, although the link between the human brain disorder and the cattle disease remains unproven.

Although Hall had become a vegetarian at 16, North Durham County coroner Geoffrey Burt said the young man could have contracted the disease during his beef-eating days.

The victim's father, Derek, testified that his son often ate burgers on the way home from school as a child, and that the family often enjoyed beef brisket for Sunday meals.

Virgin Islanders flex their car's stereo muscle

CHARLOTTE AMALIE, U.S. Virgin Islands (AP) — The car pulled up slowly, a rolling assault on the senses. The day-glo paint job was eye-catching, but nothing compared to thundering sound system.

Boom de boom de BOOM de BOOOOM!

Mix America's love affair with the automobile and the Caribbean's thumping reggae and soca rhythms and what do you get? The "Pump Up the Volume" battle of the car stereos, held Sunday on St. Thomas.

"Yah mon, the competition's going to be tough," said Nathaniel "Ricky" Francis as he polished the electric fuchsia paint job on his Mazda RX-7.

Among the competitors was a purple and pink dune buggy "Animaniac," a gray Volkswagen Beetle named "De Undertaker" with a tombstone painted on the passenger door, and Francis' own "OneOvDeBig Boiz."

With St. Thomas' Jam Band thundering from the stadium speakers, the men made last-minute adjustments, hoping to win the grand prize of $500 — for the car with the best stereo sound.

The best, however, is not necessarily the loudest.

Documents: FBI agent, Fort Worth police officer arrange conjugal visit for drug suspect

FORT WORTH (AP) — An FBI agent and a Fort Worth police officer took an acknowledged drug dealer from a detention center to the suspect's girlfriend for a conjugal visit, prosecutors said.

John "Cold-Blooded" Clay faces a possible sentence of life in prison for running a $2.5 million-a-year cocaine ring.

According to court documents filed by prosecutors, an FBI agent and a Fort Worth police officer checked him out of the Mansfield Law Enforcement Center and took him to the woman's southwest Fort Worth house in April for sex.

The episode became public last week during testimony in a related drug conspiracy trial, when a Mansfield inmate testified that prosecution witnesses bragged about such "fringe benefits."

Defense lawyers and prosecutors interviewed Clay's girlfriend, who they said confirmed the account.

Defense attorneys argued that federal officials arranged the encounter to reward Clay for cooperating in a number of cases, including the June trial of Bruce Webster in the 1994 slaying of Lisa Rene.

"I'm shocked as to what the government will do to get a conviction, shocked at the methods," said Assistant Federal Public Defender Doug Greene, who had a client convicted in last week's drug trial.

Assistant U.S. Attorney St. Clair Theodore said that FBI agent Garrett Floyd took Clay to the house, along with Clay's defense lawyer, a defense investigator and Officer Loritha Johnson, Theodore said. Floyd and the investigator were in another room while Clay had sex, and Johnson and the lawyer remained in the car.

In the court document, prosecutors said they were tricked into arranging the rendezvous.

They asserted that the agent, officer and two members of Clay's defense team never realized that the sex took place during a "10-minute" visit to the house, where two search warrants had previously been served.
