Clinton, Dole back on trail after debates

TOMS RIVER, N.J. (AP) — President Clinton and Republican challenger Bob Dole returned immediately to the campaign trail today, hoping to reinforce the points they made Sunday night in an inconclusive first debate that highlighted differences on schools, taxes and Whitewater.

While Clinton remained in New England to campaign, Dole began a bus tour of New Jersey. "When people think of Bob Dole, I want them to think of the word 'trust.' Trust. Trust. And when they think of the word 'Bill Clinton,' I want them to think of the word 'fear,'" Dole said at a rally in a high school football field here.

Clinton accepted the endorsement of 2,500 chief executives and business leaders at a rally in Stamford, Conn., and said it showed that corporate America can support Democrats as well as Republicans.

Appearing on a day the Dow Jones stock average passed 6000 for the first time, Clinton heard Xerox executive Paul Allair tell an audience of 300 chief executives: "We share the common view that the president is good for America and good for American business."

"I have wondered for years why the Democratic party shouldn't have at least as much support in the business community as the other party," Clinton said.

In New Jersey, Dole implored his mostly young audience to ignore polls showing him still trailing Clinton. "Don't believe the pundits. Don't believe the polls. We're going to win this election," he said.

In one of his few references to the debate itself in Hartford, Conn., Dole joked: "I felt good last night when an impartial observer told me I won the debate. And Elizabeth generally knows what she's talking about."

Instant polling found neither man scored much of an advantage in the debate and Dole, who asserted Sunday night he won the boost he needs to cut

Clinton's big lead, was less certain this morning. "I don't know," he said, when asked if he thought his performance would help turn the race around. "I enjoyed it. ... I'm going to go to work today. We are going to work hard."

Spokesmen for both campaigns said the debate left the race where it was at the beginning of the weekend, with Clinton ahead.

Dole "really needed to redefine this race ... because we've only got four weeks left. I don't really think he did it; I think the race is about the same as it was starting this weekend, and we're really looking forward to moving forward," Clinton campaign press secretary Joe Lockhart told ABC news this morning.

Dole spokesman Nelson Warfield agreed, with a twist. "I think the race is still where it was a couple days ago — that is, moving in Bob Dole's direction. The momentum is clearly on our side and last night did a lot to move that forward," he said.

Clinton, in Stamford, recited the steps he said his administration has taken to expand and support business and called on business executives to help welfare reform succeed "by putting people back to work without hurting the business."

"This is a manageable thing, we can do this," Clinton said. "The government cannot hire all these people; we still have a debt. ... This has basically got to be a private-sector show. I am very gratified that all of these business executives have promised to do what they can."

Clinton planned to campaign in two other New England states where he is ahead, but where Republicans often dominate — New Hampshire and Maine. He campaigns later in the week in Tennessee, Ohio and Kentucky.

After his two-day bus tour of New Jersey, Dole will spend the rest of the week in the Midwest, including a bus trip through Ohio.

Records show DA candidate was arrested on DWI charge

By CHIP CHANDLER Staff Writer

The Republican candidate for 31st District attorney was arrested in 1975 on a charge of drinking while intoxicated, a fact that contradicts statements he made during an interview with The Pampa News last month.

Richard J. Roach was placed under arrest in the early morning hours of May 24, 1975, in Lubbock. He was released on a $400 personal bond, and charges were later dismissed Aug. 26, 1976.

But Roach denied he had been arrested prior to 1988 as noted in a file obtained by The Pampa News.

"That is an absolute lie," Roach had said earlier.

Roach was asked directly during a taped Sept. 19 interview if he had ever been arrested before an arrest Sept. 2, 1988, on a charge of oilfield theft. He flatly denied a notation in files from the Stephens County Sheriff's Office that indicated he had in fact been arrested before then.

"That's an utter misstatement of the facts. ... Since you're asking the question, I'm assuming that it came from the Stephens County Sheriff's Office that I had assumed that the record had been doctored by supporters of my opponent to reflect that, but no, that is absolutely untrue," he said.

"So you'd never been arrested before this?" Roach was asked.

"No, I'm certain that was the impression that was intended to be conveyed but that's not the truth," he said.

The Stephens County arrest report does not list a charge. The file was obtained through an open records request by The Pampa News.

An offense report confirming the DWI arrest was received from the Lubbock Police Department, also through an open records request.

Roach has not returned repeated calls for comment since Sept. 30.

Roach was arrested and indicted on a charge of oilfield theft in 1988 in Breckenridge. The indictment was dismissed three years later following what Roach calls a settlement payment but court records refer to as a restitution payment of $2,415.46.

Roach — who maintains his innocence — is pursuing an expunction, or destruction, of records pertaining to the indictment.

Roach currently serves as Roberts County Attorney. His opponent is incumbent John Mann, a Democrat. They are vying for the district attorney for the 31st Judicial District.

Pampa woman dies in skydiving accident

From Staff and Wire Reports

SPEARMAN - Authorities say a man parachuting into a high school football stadium during pregame ceremonies spun out of control into two people on the ground, killing a Pampa woman and injuring her husband.

The freak accident occurred before Friday night's game between Spearman and Childress as two parachutists were drifting to the field with the game ball.

Police said the wind apparently caught one of the chutes and sent the jumper, Rich Yanke of Dumas, spinning wildly.

Yanke noticed he was headed toward spectators in the grandstand and corrected his spin, but he crashed into two members of the ground crew from his parachuting company, Star Light Sky Sport.

Sangchan "Sang" Pillon, 51, died about 15 minutes after the accident. She was taken to Hansford County Hospital, which listed her cause of death as head trauma.

Her husband, Pierce Pillon, 44, suffered a fractured elbow and Yanke a fractured pelvis.

"It happened so quick," said Spearman Police Chief Lawrence Kenealy, who witnessed the accident from the opposite side of the stadium. "I don't know that there was much of a reaction. It was obvious there was something wrong."

Spearman schools Superintendent Willard Murrey said the ground crew appeared to be watching the second parachutist and might not have seen Yanke coming.

The parachuting company had performed the stunt for three years with no previous incidents, Murrey said.

The small community, 77 miles northeast of Amarillo in the Texas

Panhandle, was somber Saturday after learning of Mrs. Pillon's death, Kenealy said. Spectators were not told during the game that she had died.

"It's kind of chaos right now. We're still trying to figure out exactly what happened," he said.

The game, Spearman's homecoming, proceeded as scheduled with Spearman beating Childress 24-14.

Mrs. Pillon moved to Pampa 14 years ago from Orange, Texas. Born in Thailand, she had been a United States resident for the past 21 years.

Pillon is survived by her husband, two sisters, a brother, a sister-in-law and a niece.

Memorial services will be 4 p.m. Tuesday at Carmichael-Whitley Funeral Directors Colonial Chapel with Pastor Lonny Robbins of Trinity Fellowship Church officiating.

Debates

"When the story is written about this campaign, the record will show that we turned it around in Hartford, Connecticut," Dole told supporters.

An instant CBS poll indicated nine of 10 viewers did not change their support as a result of the first debate. Clinton was called the debate's winner by six of seven high school and college debate coaches who judged it for The Associated Press. The seventh called it a tie.

Entering the debate, Clinton was ahead by a dozen points or more in most national polls and in surveys from the major battleground states. The two will meet again in 10 days, in another one-on-one encounter because of the controversial decision to exclude Ross Perot.

Clinton told a post-debate rally: "I believe the American people tonight got an accurate picture of the differences in this election and the stakes of this election."

Dole brought up the subject of possible Whitewater pardons, referred indirectly to Clinton's experimentation with marijuana as a student and even took a crack at the president's weight.

He portrayed the race as a "question between trust and fear," telling the president: "I think, Mr. President, about all you've got going in this campaign is fear."

Clinton countered: "It is not midnight in America, senator. We are better off than we were four years ago."

That was a twist on Ronald Reagan's now famous question to Americans in a 1980 debate with then-president Carter: Are you better off than you were four years ago?

Clinton trumpeted his achievements and praised the current economic recovery.

Dole was the aggressor throughout, accusing Clinton of "election-year conversions" on many subjects.

And, though the format ruled out asking questions of each other, Dole managed to get one in to Clinton: what was his view on pardons? It was a reference to potential pardons of those convicted of Whitewater crimes.

"There is no consideration of it," Clinton said. "I will not give anyone special treatment and I will adhere to the law."

Dole countered that a "no comment" might have been more appropriate.

Celebration of Lights seeks display donations

Celebration of Lights is soliciting donations for their expansive Christmas light display at Recreation Park.

The light show is designed by Midwest Display from Marion, Ind., a nationally known design company that has developed lighting extravaganzas for cities across the United States, from Branson, Mo., to Beverly Hills, Calif.

The show runs from Dec. 2-31.

The Celebration of Lights President Kathleen Chaney said the group is seeking business participation through sponsorship of displays or donations. Individual displays range in price from $10 to $2,500. Donations from individuals will be accepted as well, she said.

Contributors and sponsors will be listed in a map of the area that will be given to those who tour the display.

The Celebration of Lights board is currently seeking a tax-deductible donation classification (501C6) but in the meantime, deductible donations can be made directly to the city of Pampa and designated for Celebration of Lights use.

For more information on specific displays, contact Chaney at 665-2454.

Baby dies in accident on Roberts County ranch

Roberts County officials have ruled as accidental the death of a 19-month-old girl visiting employees of the 2B Ranch on Sunday.

Jessica Alanis, Quitaque, died after being struck by the 1989 Ford mini van her mother was moving to park under a tree, said Justice of the Peace Fannie Greenhouse.

The accident occurred about 11 a.m. Sunday after Maria Lus Alanis told other children playing in the area to move and apparently thought Jessica was in the house, Greenhouse said.

Alanis carried Jessica into the house and 2B Ranch range manager Keith Boone attempted to give the toddler cardio pulmonary resuscitation, Greenhouse said.

Deputy Dana Miller of the Roberts County Sheriff's Office did most of the investigation, she said. "(An accident) was all it could be," said Greenhouse.

Pampa's Rural/Metro Ambulance, Roberts County Volunteer Emergency Medical Service and Medivac responded to the call, she said.

Spokane joins cities bucking trend of support for DARE

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — It is the nation's most popular drug-education program, offered in at least 60 percent of school districts nationwide, reaching 25 million youngsters here and in 41 other countries.

It is a program that has drawn praise for its efforts to bring uniformed police officers into the classroom to promote self-esteem and clean living. Even Chelsea Clinton is a graduate.

But you don't DARE in Spokane. Last year, spurred by a budget crunch and concerns that the program does not work, Spokane joined a handful of cities that are just saying no to Drug Abuse Resistance Education.

Oakland, Calif., ended its $750,000-a-year DARE commitment two years ago, said City Councilwoman Sheila Jordan. "I felt like it was a very expensive program with very poor results," she said.

Seattle may soon follow suit. Police Chief Norm Stamper wants to remove the four-officer, $250,000-a-year program from next year's budget.

"We're now beginning to recognize that this enormously popular and enormously expensive program has been from a statistical point of view an enormous failure," he said.

The cut won't go unnoticed, he said. "The problem is that DARE is identified with everything that is good and important and desirable. It is in many ways a symbol, like the American flag," Stamper said.

DARE started in Los Angeles in 1983, a brainchild of then-Police Chief Daryl Gates. "It's grass roots, it's truly a local program," said Bill Alden, deputy director of DARE America, the program's Los Angeles-based, nonprofit parent corporation.

"Parents feel good about it ... because (DARE officers) create these sound, positive relationships with kids at a very early age."

But this comes at a cost. The cost to Spokane was $557,000 a year.

Most of the DARE budget went to cover the salaries of six full-time officers and staff, said Sgt. Mike Prim, who is coordinating the homegrown anti-drug effort Spokane will offer instead.

A $20,000 chunk went for what Prim calls "DARE-phernalia" — T-shirts, pencils, stickers and bracelets bearing the program's red-on-black logo.

With the national program, you "acquire the logo and the look," Mayor Jack Geraghty said, and there "may be other approaches we can use."

"We're not taking on DARE, we're just trying to develop a program that is more compatible with our community," he said, noting DARE's copyright curriculum doesn't allow local tinkering without approval.

Spokane's replacement program is expected to cost about $150,000 a year less, Prim said. It will involve 30 patrol officers on a part-time basis, visiting classrooms from kindergarten to eighth grade.

DARE's core lessons are taught weekly for 17 weeks to fifth or sixth graders. Follow-up sessions are available, but schools don't always offer them.

About $200 million a year is spent on DARE nationwide, DARE America spokeswoman Patricia Johnson said. That includes locally paid salaries for DARE officers, federal grants for five regional training centers and corporate support.

DARE plans to ask Congress for $50 million to expand its curriculum into more middle schools, Alden noted. That would be matched by $50 million in private donations.

About 400 law-enforcement agencies signed up for DARE last year, Johnson said, and only a few dumped the program.

Among the recent converts is New York City, where 100 officers and some supervisors will be trained this month to teach DARE's curriculum full time in 1,100 schools. The cost: $8.8 million a year.

"It's a proven program which I believe has been well-received nationwide," Police Commissioner Howard Safir said. "The way they train their officers they become real role models for kids."

That's important, he said, though "it's much harder to measure whether DARE, or any drug-education program, actually reduces drug use."

But some recent studies have tried to do just that, and have found DARE wanting. A University of Kentucky study released in June said that DARE lessons taught in elementary schools stay with children into the seventh grade, but fade after that.

And a review of eight previous studies by scientists at Research Triangle Institute in North Carolina concluded that DARE imparts a large amount of information, but has little or no impact on students' drug use.

DARE officials dispute these findings. They print to a 1993 Gallup poll of students eleven to 18 who completed the DARE program; more than 90 percent said they believed DARE helped them avoid drugs and alcohol and handle peer pressure. And 93 percent of those surveyed said they had never used drugs.

Australian, Swiss win Nobel in physiology

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Peter C. Doherty, an Australian working in the United States, and Rolf M. Zinkernagel of Switzerland won the Nobel Prize for physiology or medicine today for showing an important way that the body targets invading germs.

The Karolinska Institute, in awarding the prize, said the work laid the groundwork for design of improved vaccines and new therapies against cancer, multiple sclerosis and diabetes.

The two will share the $1.12-million award; this year's prizes are the richest ever.

The scientists discovered how the disease-fighting immune system recognizes virus-infected cells. That opened the door to understanding how it recognizes germs and distinguishes them from the body's own cells, the institute's Nobel Assembly said.

The winners used mice to study how the immune system could protect animals against infection from a meningitis virus.

The two laureates carried out their Nobel-winning research in the early 1970s at the John Curtin School of Medical Research in Canberra, Australia.

Doherty, 55, is now at the St. Jude's Research Hospital in Memphis, Tennessee. Zinkernagel, 52, heads the Institute of Experimental Immunology in Zurich, Switzerland.

"A Nobel Prize is always a surprise," Zinkernagel told The Associated Press. He said he had not expected to win because a Nobel Prize was given about 25 years ago for similar work. "I thought then that the subject had been covered," he said.

In mice, Zinkernagel and Doherty discovered how T cells of the immune system recognize virus-infected cells for elimination. The infected cell must show signs of the virus, plus a chemical label that identifies the cell as belonging to the mouse.

The work "fundamentally changed our understanding of the development and normal function of the immune system," the Karolinska Institute said.

Apart from vaccines, the work has guided attempts to use the immune system to hunt down and destroy microscopic cancers that have escaped from tumors. It has also helped scientists as they design ways to suppress harmful immune system attacks on the body's own tissue, as seen in multiple sclerosis and diabetes, the institute said.

The Nobel Prizes are given to those whose work is thought to have benefited mankind most, in accordance with the will of Alfred Nobel, the Swedish industrialist who endowed the awards.

Last year's winners — Edward Lewis and Eric F. Wieschaus of the United States and Christiane Nusslein-Volhard of Germany — were cited for work that began on fruit flies but developed into breakthroughs that improved the understanding of how birth defects occur.

The 1994 winners — Americans Alfred G. Gilman and Martin Rodbell — did extensive work with little-known but important substances called G-proteins. Disturbances in G-proteins can explain symptoms in hereditary metabolic problems, tumor diseases, alcoholism and even whooping cough.

Honky-tonk songwriter dies at 84

HOUSTON (AP) — Honky-tonk great Ted Daffan, whose early 1940s song Born to Lose addressed the struggles of the World War II years, has died of cancer at his home in Houston. He was 84.

The country-western songwriter, steel guitarist and band leader of the 1930s, 40s and 50s had been ill for two years.

Daffan died Sunday. Services were scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Tuesday at Pat H. Foley Funeral Directors in Houston.

His songs have been recorded by such artists as Willie Nelson, Ella Fitzgerald, George Jones and Ringo Starr.

An original member of the Blue Ridge Playboys, an influential 1930s swing band, Daffan helped develop honky-tonk, an offshoot of western swing that is closely associated with Texas.

His first hit, Cliff Bruner's 1939 recording of Truck Driver's Blues, appealed to listeners of the then-new jukebox, which was placed in truck stops and taverns around the country.

In 1942, the band Ted Daffan and His Texans cut No Letter Today and Born to Lose, which became a country-music landmark. The song has been recorded by more than 120 artists, including Ray Charles, whose 1962 version brought Daffan a platinum record. Daffan also wrote the postwar hits I've Got Five Dollars and It's Saturday Night, Tangled Mind and I'm a Fool to Care.

Born Theron Eugene Daffan in Beauregard Parish, La., on Sept. 21, 1912, Daffan grew up in Louisiana, Lufkin and Houston.

He wanted to go to college to become a math teacher and was offered a scholarship from Rice University, said his daughter, Dorothy Daffan Yannuzzi. But "it was Depression, so they didn't have money for books and things like that," she said.

Besides Yannuzzi, Daffan is survived by his wife, Bobbie Martin Daffan of Houston, and three grandchildren.

Teen headed to adult prison system

HOUSTON (AP) — A teen sent to a youth facility for his involvement in the brutal 1993 rape-murders of two teenage girls will be transferred to the adult prison system.

Five gang members were sentenced to death in the slayings of 14-year-old Jennifer Ertman and 16-year-old Elizabeth Pena.

Venancio Medellin Jr. was sentenced to 40 years. He was not accused of complicity in the abduction or the killings, but had been convicted of aggravated sexual assault.

Medellin returned to Houston late last month for a mandatory hearing pegged to his soon turning 18. At issue was whether to move him from the Giddings State School for serious offenders to the adult prison system.

Having been given what is called a determinate sentence, he could have been paroled at that time, held by the Texas Youth Commission until he is 21 and then released, or sent to prison to serve the remainder of his term.

Three of powerful oil companies set to merge

NEW YORK (AP) — Three of the world's biggest oil companies — Texaco, Shell and Saudi Aramco — may merge into a company with collective assets of more than $10 billion, the Wall Street Journal reported today.

The merger would combine Texaco Inc., a scion of John D. Rockefeller's Standard Oil Co., with Shell Oil Co., the U.S. unit of Royal Dutch/Shell Group, one of the world's largest publicly traded oil companies, and Star Enterprise, a joint venture between Texaco and Saudi Aramco, the state oil company of Saudi Arabia.

The companies are discussing merging refinery and marketing operations, which could save the companies money through layoffs of administrative workers and sharing environmental research, the newspaper reported.

The deal would create two companies and retain the Texaco and Shell names at service stations. The combined companies would become the largest marketers of petroleum products in the country.

A letter of intent is expected to be signed within the next few months.

Jury selection to begin in talk show slaying trial

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Gay activists say they plan to keep a close watch on the trial of a man charged with shooting a gay neighbor after the homosexual professed his love for him on the Jenny Jones Show.

Nation briefs

Defense lawyers argue Jonathan Schmitz was not mentally aware of what he was doing when he shot Scott Amedure after the taping of the March show. Jury selection in Schmitz's trial was scheduled to begin today.

Detroit-area activists contend Amedure's death is a gay hate crime and they want to make sure that view is not lost in trial coverage.

Schmitz, 26, appeared for the show believing his secret admirer was a woman. He was not told the segment was on same-sex crushes.

Amedure, 32, told the audience he was sexually attracted to Schmitz and described fantasies involving him. Three days later Schmitz went to Amedure's mobile home and shot him to death, telling a 911 operator the man had embarrassed him.

The segment was never broadcast.

Mormon conference: Moms shouldn't choose careers

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Mothers should give up work and stay home with their families if they want to be "the real builders of the nation," the president of the Mormon Church said on the last day of the church's semiannual conference.

"It is well-nigh impossible to be a full-time homemaker and a full-time employee," Gordon B. Hinckley said. "I hope that if you are employed full-time you are doing it to ensure that basic needs are met and not simply to indulge a taste for an elaborate home, fancy cars and other luxuries."

Hinckley's comments came Sunday as the 166th Semiannual General Conference of the 9.6 million-member Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints ended.

In an afternoon address, Elder Richard G. Scott of the Quorum of the Twelve Apostles told husbands not to urge their wives into the workplace at the expense of their children.

"One of Satan's most effective approaches is to demean the role of wife and mother in the home," Scott said.

Hinckley, 86, who became president and prophet of the church last year, said he often is asked by reporters about the role of women in a church where only males can hold offices in the lay priesthood.

"They do so in an almost accusatory tone, as if we denigrate and demean women," he said.

"I invariably reply that I know of no other organization in all the world which affords women so many opportunities for development, for sociality, for the accomplishment of great good, for holding positions of leadership and responsibility."

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Opinion

Our government's deceit in action

Is it any wonder that Americans increasingly don't trust government? The government recently admitted it knew that more than 500 prisoners of war were left behind in North Korea in 1953 when the Korean War ended.

According to a statement to the House National Security subcommittee on military personnel by Col. Philip Corso, President Eisenhower's former military aide, "In the past I have tried to tell Congress the fact that in 1953, 500 sick and wounded American prisoners were within ten miles of the prisoner exchange point at Panmunjom but were never exchanged."

According to an intelligence source quoted by The New York Times, recent reports indicate that as many as 15 U.S. POWs might have been sighted recently in North Korea. It's possible: A 19-year-old G.I. in 1953 would be 62-years-old today.

The information supposedly was withheld from the American people to avoid a confrontation with the Soviet Union and Communist China. However, the United States has had detente with Russia and China since 1972 - 24 years. The Soviet Union collapsed in 1991. China today has closer relations with South Korea than with North Korea. And President Clinton has been shipping grain and nuclear power plants to North Korea.

Government apparently thinks the American people are so childish they can't be told the facts, then allowed to decide for themselves what to do by instructing their representatives in Congress.

In reality, this is an unconscionable withholding of vital information from the people of this country - the people whose sons, fathers, brothers and friends still could be languishing in hell-hole prisons in North Korea.

Moreover, if the government has been lying and withholding the facts on the Korean POWs left behind, as the government itself now admits, what about the estimated 2,000 POWs some people claim were left behind in North Vietnam after the Vietnam War ended in 1973? With the Cold War over, why isn't the Clinton administration declassifying and releasing all the documents on POWs from both wars?

Finally, why isn't this being debated by the presidential candidates? Do you feel the pain of the POWs and their families, Bill Clinton? Bob Dole?

Media's partisan push polls

It is no secret that polls conducted by candidates or political causes are often plagued by biased questions ("Republicans want to destroy Medicare. Do you?") or push questions ("Do you support higher taxes? Do you support more government regulation? Sen. Jones wants higher taxes and more government regulation. Do you support him now?") The results are not credible. But a look at the polling practices of the news organizations reveals that partisanship isn't just left to the party professionals.

For example: Have you noticed that whenever Bob Dole proposes something with the potential to damage Clinton, the media criticizes or outright dismisses the idea, issuing polls showing how it won't resonate with voters? After an initial burst of reporting suggesting Dole's "massive" tax cut (so said ABC) was fiscally unsustainable and a betrayal of Dole's "responsible" (read: when he supported tax-hiking) record, the polls came behind to verify the media's propagandistic success. A Sept. 24 Washington Post story by Clay Chandler underlined the media's method. The ABC News/Washington Post pollsters asked two questions: (a) "If federal income tax rates are reduced by 15 percent, do you believe the amount of taxes your household pays will go down much?" and (b) "Do you think Dole would be able to reduce the budget deficit and cut income tax rates 15 percent at the same time or not?"

The Post and ABC were happy to report - repeatedly - that voters believed the bizarre contradiction that a Dole tax cut wouldn't affect American incomes when enacted and would pump up the deficit. In reality, however, the polls were proof that the media's negative spin made an impact on the public.

Now consider this: How many reports - on television, in newspapers and news magazines - have you seen that suggest Clinton had no credibility when he promised his puny tax credits for education, given his record of broken promises on tax cuts? How many reports have been filed exposing his vacuous commitment to deficit reduction when he allows Medicare to grow out of control at 12 percent a year? Did they point out in 1992 that Bill Clinton could not insure 37 million uninsured Americans without a tax increase - contrary to his promise - and that therefore his promised middle-class tax cut was a fraud? And when they were finished, how many polls were taken by ABC and the Post to show how public opinion confirmed these views?

The same tactic was employed against Dole's focus on Clinton's obvious lack of interest on drug abuse, including the massive downsizing of drug control offices and interdiction efforts. On Sept. 18, CBS Evening News reporter Phil Jones concluded his story on Bob Dole by noting "only 11% blame the Clinton administration for the drug problem." Once again, the manipulation of poll data used to undercut the resonance of Dole attacks.

Now reverse it. After Clinton and Vice President Al Gore spent weeks hammering Dole on the cigarette-smoking issue, did CBS commission a poll asking the public how many "blame Bob Dole for teen smoking"? Had they done so, the results would have demonstrated beyond the shadow of a doubt just how outrageous these attacks were.

The same pattern happened in the spring, when network exit pollsters asked some loaded questions of Republican primary voters, such as: "Is Pat Buchanan too extreme?" They also asked if the Republican platform should include a ban on abortion (without mentioning that a Human Life Amendment plank has been in the platform for 16 years.) Reporters then trotted out these polls to insist that Republicans were out of the mainstream and out of touch. In 1992, no media polls were taken asking voters how they felt about the Democratic platform calling for federally funded abortion on demand. In fact, they didn't have to, as non-media surveys had been taken showing 76 percent (now 81 percent) opposed this position. And still, no media reports on Democratic extremism.

Poll manipulation isn't just limited to the presidential race. The Republican Congress has been repeatedly victimized by media polling. Newt Gingrich became the first Speaker of the House ever to be judged by a national approval rating, which became a leading indicator of the success of media attacks on the Republicans. In October of 1995, The New York Times asked the poll question: "If you had to choose, would you prefer balancing the budget or preventing Medicare from being significantly cut?" The implication that the Republicans were proposing "significant cuts" in Medicare was a falsehood carried from news reports into polling questions and then back into news reports on the poll results.

As part of their stated desire for clean campaigning, network analysts have disparaged partisan push polls, arguing that party activists are unfairly shoving voters with cheap-shot attacks and statistically questionable claims. Perhaps they would be credible if they could stop doing it themselves.

with more than 400 people aboard.

Ten years ago: President Reagan met at the White House with recently freed Soviet dissident Yuri Orlov, and said afterward that a substantive improvement in Soviet human rights was crucial for a superpower summit in the United States.

Five years ago: University of Oklahoma law professor Anita Hill publicly accused Supreme Court nominee Clarence Thomas of making sexually inappropriate comments in her presence when she worked for him, and urged the U.S. Senate to investigate her claims. Thomas denied Hill's allegations.

Propaganda of the extreme left

Richard Cohen, columnist for The Washington Post, has done something unusual. Not only did he reverse himself on an important issue within the space of a few months, but he acknowledged that the data he had relied upon to reach (rationalize?) his original conclusion were wrong.

The subject was partial-birth abortion. And while Cohen is gentle on the usual "pro-choice groups" who supplied the data, he admitted that the disinformation they peddled was precise. "Just four one-hundredths of 1 percent of abortions are performed after 24 weeks," Cohen wrote last June. He now knows that was wrong.

Since that column was written, Cohen's own newspaper carried a story on who has late-term abortions and why. David Brown, himself a physician, interviewed four doctors who perform the procedure and found that while some of the patients seeking late-term abortions did so because of severe fetal defects or due to maternal health complications like diabetes, many more, in fact the majority, did not. Most of the women who have partial-birth abortions are actually young and healthy, as are their babies.

It is fashionable to observe that there is little difference between right and left, Democrat and Republican in today's politics. That's wrong. There's a left all right - and you can recognize it by following the lies.

The debate over partial-birth abortion is an excellent example of the way debates are now conducted. First, the pro-life side publicized partial-birth abortion as a way to shift the focus of abortion debate away from the question of women's rights and to the victim, the unborn child. It worked extremely well. Leading Democrats like Richard Gephardt (once pro-life before ambition dictated a change of conscience) even voted to overturn the president's veto of the partial-birth abortion ban. Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan also voted against the president, saying the procedure was just too close to "infanticide."

The pro-choice side counterattacked with disinformation. First, it claimed that the babies died not from scissors inserted into their skulls but by the anesthesia administered to the mother. This, like every other falsehood put out by pro-choice groups, was repeated as fact in many major news stories about the controversy.

But the American Society of Anesthesiologists vigorously denied this and protested that pro-choice groups were creating confusion and misery among pregnant women needing surgery. In fact, expectant mothers undergo surgery all the time at little or no risk to their babies.

The pro-choice side next circulated the line that only a minuscule number of "intact dilation and evacuation" abortions were actually performed each year, and that these were done only to save the life of the mother or in cases of severe fetal abnormality. That is the lie Richard Cohen bought.

There are roughly 17,000 mid- and late-term abortions performed in the United States annually. No one knows exactly how many of those are partial-birth, but according to the Record newspaper in Bergen County, N.J., one clinic in Englewood performed 1,500 partial-birth abortions just last year. So much for the notion that these are extremely rare.

Nor is it correct to say that these procedures are only performed to save the life of the mother. Even the late James T. McMahon, the Los Angeles doctor who performed all of the abortions on the women who posed with President Clinton at his veto ceremony, admitted in congressional testimony that one-third of the partial-birth abortions he performed were purely "elective." As for medical indications, the most common was maternal depression. Moreover, as several obstetrician/gynecologists have pointed out, though it may very rarely be necessary to cut short a pregnancy to save the mother's life, it is never necessary to kill the fetus. The baby takes its chances in the nursery.

The reality that pro-choice groups seek to obscure is that even fully formed, potentially viable babies are being killed in large numbers every day because a few fanatics refuse to draw any lines of decency at all in these matters.

It's very hard to overturn a presidential veto. It's easier to turn out a president.

What's ahead for faculty diversity?

Some time this fall the Supreme Court will decide whether to review an affirmative action decision by the Third Circuit Court of Appeals that has far-reaching consequences for faculty diversity in public schools.

In 1989, the Board of Education in Piscataway, N.J., decided that one of the business teachers had to be let go for budgetary reasons. The choice was between two teachers - Sharon Taxman and Debra Williams. They had been hired on the same day nine years before, and both were equally qualified. Sharon Taxman, white, was dismissed. Debra Williams, black, kept her job.

The chairman of the School Board, Theodore Kruse, said that "by retaining Mrs. Williams, the board was sending a very clear message that our staff should be culturally diverse."

A federal district court essentially agreed with Sharon Taxman that the board had discriminated against her when it fired her for being white.

Moreover, there had been no showing of past discrimination against blacks in the school. Indeed, as Taxman's lawyer, Stephen Kjausner pointed out, "The percentage of black teachers employed by the Piscataway Board of Education is approximately twice that of the applicable labor pool."

The Clinton Justice Department was involved for a time in the case - eventually supporting the Piscataway Board of Education - but there were strong disagreements in the Justice Department as to whether the board actually had a credible case. Nonetheless, the Assistant Attorney General for Civil Rights, Deval Patrick - backed by President Clinton - vigorously claimed that nothing in Title VII of the 1964 Civil Rights Act "prevented the Piscataway board members from making the choice they did."

Nat Hentoff

Last month, the Third Circuit Court of Appeals thumpingly disagreed - eight to four - with Patrick and with the president in Sharon Taxman v. Board of Education of the township of Piscataway.

Judge Carol L. Mansmann, speaking for the majority of the court, made clear that the desire for diversity, although admirable, could not, all by itself, justify the firing of a teacher because she is of the wrong race.

The decision is based on statutory, not constitutional grounds. But because it further clarifies the boundaries of Title VII's anti-discrimination provisions in this area, the decision if affirmed by the Supreme Court could affect many more people than judicial decisions concerning law school admissions.

Judge Mansmann pointed out that the Board of Education admitted it did not insist on diversity in this case "to remedy the effects of prior employment discrimination ... or underrepresentation of blacks within the Piscataway School District's teacher workforce as a whole."

Accordingly, Title VII of the Civil Rights Act, said the court, has indeed been violated. As Marcia Coyle noted in the National Law Journal, this Third Circuit decision holds that "employers' affirmative action plans do not run afoul of Title VII's anti-discrimination mandate when they respond to a history of racial discrimination or a manifest racial imbalance in the workforce. But lacking these two purposes, even a plan 'with a laudable purpose,' such as to promote racial diversity, will violate the statute."

One of the dissenters, Judge Theodore McKee, spoke of the importance to students of a culturally diverse faculty because it makes students "more understanding of people of all backgrounds."

But when the students see a teacher being removed from the faculty solely because of his or her race, what lesson does that teach the students?

Sharon Taxman, as it turned out, was later rehired because a business teacher resigned, but if Title VII is expanded to allow racial preference even when there is no past or present discrimination, students may become less - rather than more - "understanding of people of all backgrounds."

Because of the compelling references to Supreme Court case law in the Third Circuit majority opinion, I did not think the Piscataway Board of Education would appeal the decision. Yet, by a 9-to-0 vote, it has voted to do just that.

If the Supreme Court grants review, this may intensify the national debate on the definition of affirmative action. Particularly, the difference between hiring for diversity and, for the same "laudable purpose," firing people who have established jobs - because of their skin color.

The latter action, as the Supreme Court has said in a previous case, "imposes the entire burden of racial equality on particular individuals, often resulting in serious disruption of their lives. That burden is too intrusive."

Hundreds turn out for Lake McClellan Heritage Fest

The first annual Lake McClellan Fest, held Saturday, Oct. 5, honoring the lake's namesake, George B. McClellan, is considered a successful event. An estimated 650 persons attended the historical marker dedication and afternoon of entertainment.

Directors of Lake McClellan Improvement Committee Inc. planned and coordinated the day's events, and provided a free hamburger picnic feast for the crowd.

Bagley said it was the intent of the board to get folks out to refamiliarize themselves with the lake and the recreational area.

"We served over 400 hamburgers and had plenty for everyone who wanted to eat," said James Lewis, a director.

Mike Shannon, Pat Bagley, Sid Mauldin and Lewis were cooking, and their wives were helping serve the food and man the cold drink concession.

The preparations and food was provided by directors and their wives, including Joe and Sarah Wheeley, James and Sarah Lewis, Pat and Rae Bagley, Venita and Bobby Roland, Sid and Dawna Mauldin, and the McLean Feed Yard. Mauldin is president of the organization.

Venita Roland, concessionaire at Lake McClellan; the Lewis, Gerald Wright, and the Mauldins planned the festivities and entertainment for this year's first annual festival.

This will be a special celebration planned for the public every year, as stated by several directors.

Special recognition was given to the directors and cooperative organizations who support the upkeep of Lake McClellan's recreational facilities by representatives of the U.S. Forestry Service during the commemorative ceremony for the historic site.

John Pierson, wildlife biologist of USFS, presented framed artists' wildlife prints to members of Gray County commissioners court, and to Criminal Justice Department-Jordan Unit officers, Senior Warden Bob White and Corrections Officer Butch Noble. Pierson complimented the men and organizations each represented for their cooperation and efforts put forth in working toward the improvements and betterment of the park and forest areas.

Entertainment provided for those attending the McClellan historical memorial dedication, with Bob Izzard of Amarillo serving as master of ceremonies, included a variety of individuals and groups.

Troop members of the Department of Texas, 4th U.S. Cavalry Regiment (Memorial) of Canyon, led by Cpl. Jim Northcutt conducted the military sword salute and return.

Swing music by western bands could be heard through the park, the Route 66 Cloggers of Amarillo brought rhythm to everyone's feet, and Sara Gill delivered poetic messages. There were reenactments of the Mountain Men campsites exhibiting authentic hunting equipment and clothing. The men were actually molding the hot silver shapes of 1800s ammunition.

Smokey the Bear of the U.S. Forestry Service made an appearance, and individuals were on hand with "the California 49ers" travel van, Kathy Taylor and her tiny chuck wagon being pulled by miniature horses, and T-Bone and Ribeye, the longhorn cattle from the Williams Ranch at Canadian making an appearance for the children to ride after they finished their kiddy-train trip provided by the Top O' Texas Kiwanians.

"The first annual Lake McClellan Festival turn out was great, and the weather was perfect and everyone had a good time, I think. Next year's festival should be even better," Bagley said.

Cpl. Jim Northcutt leads troopers of the 4th U.S. Cavalry Regiment (Memorial) from Canyon during ceremonies for the dedication of the George B. McClellan marker.

An estimated crowd of 300 persons gather under the George B. McClellan shelter at Lake McClellan recreational park to observe the unveiling of the historic marker dedicated to the lake's namesake.

Members of Lake McClellan Improvements committee help prepare the food and serve more than 400 hamburger eaters at Saturday's First Annual Lake McClellan Festival. Servers are Ann Hatch, Rae Bagley, Mat Hatch and Marilyn Lewis.

Musicians to picket concert

FORT WORTH (AP) — Musicians in their third month without a contract say they'll picket Tuesday evening at a concert of the Fort Worth Chamber Orchestra. Picketing and leafleting will become more aggressive unless substantial progress is made toward settlement during the week, said Ray Hair, president of the local chapter of the American Federation of Musicians. "The cost of living over the past three years has risen 8.3 percent. The musicians have received only a 6.7 percent raise. We want cost of living plus a raise," Hair said. Hair said members of the Fort Worth Symphony and Fort Worth Chamber Orchestra voted unanimously Sunday night to begin "informational picketing."

You Can Run, But You Can't Hide From The IRS

DEAR ABBY: Will you please answer this question: What happens to someone who does not file an income tax return?

I say the consequences are serious, but my friend Katie doesn't think so. A dinner rests on your answer.

DOROTHY MACKENZIE, MONTEREY, CALIF.

DEAR DOROTHY: Katie owes you a dinner. I called Mary E. McGuire, EA, president of the National Association of Enrolled Agents (tax experts), who explained:

"When the IRS determines that someone has failed to file a tax return, that person is sent a reminder to file one. If the request is ignored, the IRS will take the information they have and prepare a Substitute for Return (SFR).

"The taxpayer is then billed for the amount shown on the SFR, plus interest and penalties dating from the time the return should have been filed. These penalties and interest accumulate until the tax debt is paid.

"If the bill is ignored, the delinquent taxpayer's salary will be garnished and a lien will be placed on his or her property.

"If it's proven that the individual is unable to pay the tax, the IRS may mark the case 'uncollectible.' However, should the IRS learn that the taxpayer has become able to pay the delinquent taxes, they'll be back on your doorstep again.

Abigail Van Buren

"Although a few people have been sent to jail for failure to pay, the IRS usually tries to work with taxpayers to resolve the problem."

My advice to people who may be tempted to ignore their tax returns: Resist the temptation and pay the tax when it is due. If you can't pay it all in one lump sum, in most cases the IRS will set up a schedule of payments to help you.

DEAR ABBY: Hey! This is a little sister in Virginia Beach. I am 13 years old and I totally agree with the teen driving contract you printed.

I know how my sister drives when our mom is not in the car, so I'm glad Mom read the contract and made my sister sign it.

I just wanted to say thanks.
LITTLE SISTER

DEAR LITTLE SISTER: How nice of you to let me know. It is gratifying that people of all ages appreciate the importance of the teen driving contract.

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column, a reader objected to the perfume ads in magazines. I sympathize with her, especially in view of her allergies. Abby, I am sure she is a nice lady with high ethical standards. However, she was out of line to assume that anything that was performed came from (or belonged to) a "house of ill repute."

This reminds me of the two gentlemen in adjacent chairs in a barbershop. As the barber started to sprinkle something on the hair of one of the men, he stopped the barber, saying, "Don't put any of that stuff on me — my wife will think I've been in a parlor of horizontal entertainment!"

The man in the chair next to him said to the barber, "Well, you can sprinkle some on me. My wife has never been in one of those places."

Colts finally lose; Saints beat Jaguars for first win

By The Associated Press

Indianapolis finally lost, and New Orleans finally won.

The Colts lost their status as the NFL's only unbeaten team Sunday, falling to Buffalo 16-13 in overtime on Steve Christie's 39-yard field goal.

"Obviously, you get pumped up because you have a chance to win the game," said Christie, whose 37-yarder with 15 seconds left in regulation forced overtime. "As a kicker, you have to keep a level head."

The Saints won their first game of the season, beating Jacksonville 17-13 on Jim Everett's 6-yard TD pass to Torrance Small with 1:45 left.

"It's a relief, it's a joy," said Saints defensive lineman Wayne Martin. "I just hope it's something we can build on now. I just hope they come quicker from now on."

The victory by New Orleans (1-5) left only three winless teams in the NFL — the New York Jets (0-6), Atlanta (0-5) and Tampa Bay (0-5).

The Colts, now tied with the Bills for the AFC East lead at 4-1, fell just short in their bid to remain unbeaten. Buffalo drove 26 yards to the Indianapolis 22 before Christie won it with his third field goal of the game.

"We've been in a lot of games like this, and a lot of them have gone in our favor," said Colts running back Marshall Faulk, who gained 55 yards on 20 carries after returning from a foot injury. "This was just one that didn't. The ball bounced in their favor."

Buffalo's Todd Collins, starting in place of injured Jim Kelly, completed 23 of 44 passes for 309 yards and one touchdown. Thurman Thomas had eight catches for 111 yards, and also became the 11th player to rush for more than 10,000 yards in a career.

In other games, it was Seattle 22, Miami 15; New England 46, Baltimore 38; Detroit 28, Atlanta 24; Green Bay 37, Chicago 6; Minnesota 14, Carolina 12; Oakland 34, the New York Jets 13;

Denver 28, San Diego 17; San Francisco 28, St. Louis 11; and Houston 30, Cincinnati 27 in overtime.

Pittsburgh plays at Kansas City tonight.

Seahawks 22, Dolphins 15

At Miami, John Friesz threw for three touchdowns in his first start of the season, and Seahawks coach Dennis Erickson had a victorious return to the city where he won two national championships in college. Friesz, replacing the benched Rick Mirer, threw TD passes of 65 and 51 yards to Joey Galloway as Seattle built a 14-3 lead, then connected on an 80-yarder with Brian Blades for the winning score with 2:03 left.

Patriots 46, Ravens 38

At Baltimore, Drew Bledsoe threw for 310 yards and four touchdowns against a mistake-prone Ravens' secondary. Bledsoe was 7-for-7 for 104 yards and two touchdowns on New England's first two possessions of the second half as the Pats blew the game open. Two late Baltimore touchdowns got the Ravens close.

Packers 37, Bears 6

At Chicago, Brett Favre threw for four TDs, giving him 20 in six games, as Green Bay gained its most lopsided victory ever at Soldier Field. Favre completed 18 of 27 passes for 246 yards, and Antonio Freeman had seven catches for 146 yards. Don Beebe returned a kickoff 90 yards for another touchdown as the Packers beat the Bears for the fifth straight time.

Lions 28, Falcons 24

At Pontiac, Scott Mitchell threw for three scores and ran for another as Detroit held off winless Atlanta after building a 28-0 halftime lead. Jamal Anderson led the Falcons' comeback with three TD runs, but they came up short and fell to 0-5. The Lions have won 10 straight and 15 of 16 at the Silverdome.

Vikings 14, Panthers 12

At Minneapolis, Cris Carter caught two short TD passes, Robert Smith ran for 102 yards and the Vikings forced six Carolina turnovers. Minnesota built a 14-0 lead before holding off Carolina's late rally. The Vikings are 5-1 for the first time since 1992, Dennis Green's first season as coach.

Raiders 34, Jets 13

At East Rutherford, Jeff Hostetter threw three TD passes as Oakland beat the hapless Jets. The Raiders won for just the second time in 12 games, while the Jets fell to 0-6 for the first time in franchise history. New York also lost quarterback Neil O'Donnell for four to six weeks with a separated right shoulder.

Broncos 28, Chargers 17

At Denver, John Elway led the Broncos to another comeback victory. He threw four TD passes — three to Shannon Sharpe — as the Broncos overcame a 17-0 first-half deficit. Elway completed 32 of 41 passes for 323 yards, while Sharpe had a career-high 13 catches for 153 yards.

49ers 28, Rams 11

At St. Louis, backup quarterback Elvis Grbac threw three TD passes, two to reserve tight end Ted Popson, as San Francisco beat the Rams for the 13th straight time. Since Rich Brooks took over as Rams coach last season, the 49ers have outscored St. Louis 147-34 in four games. Grbac replaced Steve Young, who took a week off to heal a nagging groin sprain.

Saints 17, Jaguars 13

At New Orleans, Jacksonville took a 13-10 lead with 5:15 remaining when Mike Hollis kicked a 19-yard field goal. But the Saints came back with the winning drive, which was aided by a pass interference call against Jacksonville's Dave Thomas.

Oilers 30, Bengals 27, OT

At Cincinnati, Al Del Greco won it with a 49-yard field goal 7:07 into overtime. The Bengals had a chance to win in regulation, but Doug Pelfrey missed a 40-yard field goal attempt as time expired. Rookie Eddie George rushed for a career-high 152 yards and a touchdown that started Houston's second-half comeback.

Rangers have taste for more postseason play

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The Texas Rangers went farther than they've ever been before, and it left them with a taste for more.

"I told my guys that I thanked them for the journey and to start making a commitment for a bit longer trip next year," Texas manager Johnny Oates said after Saturday's season-ending loss to the New York Yankees. "I'm excited about the performance we had this year, and we really look forward to next year."

The West Division champions advanced to the postseason for the first time in the team's 25-year history. After winning the opener 6-2, the Rangers blew a 4-1 lead in Game 2, a 2-1 ninth-inning lead in Game 3 and a 4-0 lead in Game 4.

"We did everything we could to stay ahead because we didn't want to go into the seventh or eighth innings behind against their bullpen," Oates said. "Most teams can automatically go to a relief pitcher in the ninth inning, but we didn't have that luxury this year."

Mike Henneman, signed as a free agent, didn't turn into the stopper the Rangers needed.

Getting better relief pitching will be one of the Rangers' big objectives in the offseason. Texas has 12 players potentially eligible for free agency, including center fielder Darryl Hamilton, shortstop Kevin Elster and pitchers Bobby Witt and Jeff Russell.

"We had the lead in every one of the games, but we couldn't put 'em away," first baseman Will Clark said.

General manager Doug Melvin proclaimed 1996 a successful season for Texas.

"We got one big monkey off our back by getting into the postseason," he said. "It was not like we were manhandled."

Texas finished 90-72, 4 1/2 games against the Seattle Mariners, who won the division in 1995.

"We broke the ice by getting there," third baseman Dean Palmer said. "It would have been nice to go farther."

Texas was only out of first place for four days and led Seattle by nine games with 17 to play. But the Rangers lost a four-game series at the Kingdome and Seattle closed within a game on Sept. 20.

John Burkett threw a seven-hitter the next day, and the Rangers beat California 7-1 to get back on track. Burkett, acquired from Florida in an August trade, went 5-2.

"That's one thing that was impressive about this team this year," designated hitter Mickey Tettleton said. "The toughest losses didn't carry over, and there was never any panic. We came out of spring training with a quiet confidence and we kept it."

Texas saved its best for the toughest teams, going 7-5 against the New York Yankees, 8-4 against Cleveland and 10-3 against Baltimore.

The Rangers had five pitchers with 10 or more wins and led the AL in fielding, setting a league record with 15 errorless games.

"It's exciting to lead the league in defense because prior to us coming here, the Rangers weren't known too much for their defense," Oates said. "These guys have taken a great deal of pride in their defense. It's gratifying to see the results."

The Rangers had three players with 100 RBIs or more for the first time: Juan Gonzalez, Rusty Greer and Palmer.

Rodriguez set a major league record for doubles for a catcher with 47. On defense, he threw out nearly half of the runners attempting to steal against him.

Elster hit 23 homers, a Rangers record for shortstop, and Hamilton didn't make an error in center.

"We had a breakthrough year this season," Hamilton said. "It's something that will happen again soon. We'll be back."

Gonzalez set team records with 47 homers and 144 RBIs, then homered five times against the Yankees to tie the record for a single playoffs series.

"We had a lot of guys who were in the playoffs for the first time," Gonzalez said. "Maybe we were trying too much. I know I learned a lot in this series. We played great baseball, but the offense just struggled in this series. That's part of baseball."

Central Oklahoma remains unbeaten

By The Associated Press

Central Oklahoma hasn't shown that it knows how to lose yet, though Texas A&M-Commerce gave its best shot at trying to teach the lesson.

UCO (4-0, 1-0) squandered an early 21-point lead, then recharged and knocked off A&M-Commerce 38-21 Saturday in the first weekend of Lone Star Conference play.

Jubarko Gaines ran for 149 yards on 31 carries for UCO, the league's only team with an undefeated overall record.

Joining UCO among the four teams that started conference play 1-0 Saturday was Texas A&M-Kingsville, which clobbered Tarleton State 40-10. A&M-Kingsville fullback Jeremy Burnell scored two touchdowns while the defense held Chad Cole, the Lone Star's top passer, to 8-of-26 for 114 yards and one touchdown.

There was no stopping Angelo State quarterback Erik Hartman, who passed for 234 yards and three touchdowns to pace a 28-10 victory over West Texas A&M. ASU held WT to just 55 yards on the ground.

HIGGINS — Billy Cummings was able to throw for four touchdowns to lead the Higgins Coyotes over the Lefors Pirates in six-man action Friday night by 16 points 36-20.

Higgins started out with a huge 20-point first quarter starting out with a 2-yard touchdown by Garrett Barton. After Barton's touchdown Cummings took over, passing to Barton for a 55-yard jaunt into the end zone and passing to Dusty Baker for a 16 yard touchdown reception.

Lefors turned it around in the second quarter by mounting a 14-point attack of their own while holding Higgins. Justin Howard scrambled into the end zone from two yards out to help get Lefors back into the game along with a pass from Howard to Brent Ward for a 15-yard touchdown reception.

Lefors was able to tie the game up in the third quarter after Chris McKean was able to reach the end zone off of a one-yard run.

In the fourth, Higgins came back strong, with Cummings passing for two more touchdowns, one to Nip Page from 14 yards out and another pass to Terry Floyd for a 20 yard TD. Higgins completed scoring by forcing Lefors into their own end zone for a safety late in the game.

Lefors record falls to 1-4 on the season while Higgins improves to 3-2 on the season. Lefors next opponent is Fort Elliot, who they play in Fort Elliott Oct. 11.

Special teams tackle

Pampa special teams player Vincente Martinez (81) tackles a Hereford ballcarrier during a second-half kickoff last week. The Harvesters, who shut out Hereford, 41-0, hosts Canyon at 7:30 Friday night in Harvester Stadium.

Mathis may miss rest of season

PAMPA — Pampa senior J.J. Mathis suffered a broken leg in the Harvesters' 41-0 win over Hereford last Friday night and will probably miss the remainder of the season, according to head football coach Dennis Cavalier.

Mathis, who was alternating at tailback with Marques Long, was injured in the second quarter when he was tackled by Hereford's free safety.

"I was just talking to J.J. about being more north-south oriented on his runs, which was what he was doing," Cavalier said. "He's always been good about listening and doing what he was told."

Mathis, who went out of the game with 41 yards rushing on 8 carries, was injured with less than five minutes remaining in the first half.

"J.J. took a tremendous hit and his ankle got twisted underneath when he went down," Cavalier said.

Mathis, who was in his fourth season on the varsity, was leading District 1-4A in kickoff returns through the first four games. He was starter at both flanker and free safety.

For the season, Mathis has caught seven passes for 91 yards and one touchdown while averaging 3.4 per carry on 25 rushing attempts and one touchdown. On defense, Mathis has recorded 31 tackles, one interception and two blocked passes.

Mathis was first team on defense and second team on offense on Pampa's District 1-4A championship team last season. He made 78 tackles and three interceptions from his free safety position. At split end, he caught 15 passes for 257 yards and three touchdowns. He rushed 18 times for 160 yards and a touchdown.

Pampa hosts Canyon at 7:30 Friday night in Harvester Stadium. While Pampa was romping past Hereford last week, Canyon was enroute to a 14-12 win over Borger.

"I saw Canyon on film (against Borger) and I was very impressed with them. They're on a roll now and they're going to come into town Friday night looking to knock off the Harvesters," Cavalier said.

Canyon's win left Pampa in sole possession of first place in the district standings, a game ahead of Canyon and Randall.

South Division is showing true colors

By MARK BABINECK
Associated Press Writer

Even though half of the Big 12 South Division has played just one conference game, the field of six looks awfully like a cast of three contenders and three pretenders.

Preseason favorites Texas and Texas A&M didn't disappoint. The Longhorns made mincemeat of division rival Oklahoma State 71-14, and the much-maligned Aggies did what they were supposed to do in a 63-13 non-conference beating of Louisiana Tech Saturday night.

Oklahoma continued its freefall with a 52-24 loss to former Big Eight rival Kansas.

The most telling game of the day, however, took place in Lubbock, where an old Southwest Conference matchup between Texas Tech and Baylor was thought to be fairly even.

Then Byron Hanspard got the ball.

Hanspard's school-record 287 rushing yards against the Bears in Tech's 45-24 victory broke a mark he set just a month ago. No one had rushed for more against Baylor in team history.

"I thought it would be a closer game," said Hanspard, whose Raiders visit Kansas next Saturday. "It gives us great momentum for next week. We can run and pass, and we have too many weapons to stop. I still have a lot of work to do. I am still not a great back."

In other Big 12 games Saturday, Nebraska upended unbeaten Kansas State 39-3 and Missouri ripped Southern Methodist 27-26.

Texas Tech's victory may have been a must. Like A&M, the Red Raiders have one conference loss and couldn't afford another one with teams like Kansas, Nebraska and Texas waiting.

It won't get any easier for the Red Raiders, though. While the Longhorns and Aggies face North Division weak sisters Oklahoma and Iowa State, Tech must hit the road against a mirror-image Jayhawk team.

Texas faced a task similar to that of Tech: Discover the true mettle of a visiting team with three victories against weak opponents. The answer came in a hurry as the Longhorns took out the frustrations caused by two straight losses against ranked teams.

Ricky Williams ran for 256 yards and three touchdowns for Texas.

"This win was important because we got our morale back up," receiver Mike Adams said. "A win like that brings the team back together. It's the start of something big."

Texas A&M improved to 2-3 overall as D'Andre Hardeman rushed for three touchdowns and big-play receiver Albert Connell added two more against outmanned Louisiana Tech.

Oklahoma held Heisman Trophy candidate June Henley, who averaged 201 rushing yards going in, to 63 yards on 27 carries. Meanwhile, the Sooners broke out for a season-high 538 yards against Kansas, normally two ingredients in a winning recipe.

Nothing's normal in Norman these days, though. Penalties, turnovers and other mistakes gave Kansas its second straight victory over Oklahoma. The Jayhawks scored the most points by a visitor in Memorial Stadium history.

The Sooners hadn't opened a season with four straight losses since starting 1961 at 0-5.

Woods wins Las Vegas Invitational

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Well, that didn't take long, did it?

Just six weeks after turning pro, Tiger Woods won the Las Vegas Invitational for his first PGA Tour title. Woods played the 90 holes in 27-under par, then beat Davis Love III on the first playoff hole.

The victory tripled Woods' earnings, gave him a shot at finishing in the top 30 on the money list, earned him a two-year exemption on the tour and got him back the Masters invitation he gave up by turning professional.

"It's been an unbelievable experience," the three-time U.S. Amateur champion said. "It's just like winning the Amateur, though. I really can't say what it means until I think about it more."

Woods earned $297,000, bringing his earnings to $437,194. Undecided previously about playing in the final two full-field tournaments of the year, Woods indicated he might play in the hopes of getting in the top 30 and a spot in the Tour Championship.

Incredibly, after only five tournaments, Woods is 40th on the money list and could make the top 30 with about another $170,000.

The 20-year-old was clearly the favorite of fans who jammed the fairways and crowded the greens.

Bangbroeke? Skollies? It's South African English

LONDON (AP) — It could easily be a conversation between two rogues in downtown Johannesburg: "Jislaaik marne, don't be a bunch of bangbroeke. Let's go for a jol. Strue's Bob, we'll have a lekker dop and some dagga."
 Sure you know "apartheid" and "trek," but this is English, too — South African style. Translation: "Come on guys, don't be scared. Let's party. I promise we'll have a nice drink and some cannabis."
 As this fictional exchange between "skollies" shows, many South African English words are unknown — and largely unpronounceable — outside their native land.
 Oxford University Press has set out to change that with its 825-page Dictionary of South African English on Historical Principles, published in Britain in August and also available in the United States.
 Twenty-five years in the making, the dictionary documents the growth of South African English since the Dutchman Jan van Riebeeck founded Cape Town in 1652.

Grenade attack at Hells Angels headquarters kills two

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — An anti-tank grenade slammed into the fortress-like headquarters of a Hells Angels gang on Sunday, killing two people and injuring 15 others attending a party.
 Police believe the attack is the bloodiest stage of a two-year feud between rival biker gangs in Denmark, Norway, Sweden and Finland. It brought the toll from the feud to nine dead and 45 injured.
 A 29-year-old woman who died in the explosion, Janne Krohn, apparently attended the party out of curiosity. She was the first person who was not a biker to die in the feud.
 Also killed was 39-year-old Louis Linde Nielsen, whom police said was being considered for membership in the gang.
 The injured included Hells Angels' Danish president, Christian Middelboe. Police did not identify the other victims.

Woman who lost eight babies wants more children

LONDON (AP) — Sitting beside the corpses of eight babies wrapped in blue and pink shawls, the woman who insisted on trying to carry them to term said she wants more children, a tabloid reported Sunday.
 Mandy Allwood, who sold her story to News of the World for an undisclosed sum, wept continuously as she described her loss, the tabloid said.
 Allwood picked up each of the babies during the interview.
 The interview was held in Allwood's hospital room soon after she lost the last of her fetuses Wednesday. She sat on her bed, and all eight corpses lay on a cot next to her.
 Allwood, 32, became pregnant after taking fertility drugs and disregarded doctors' advice to abort some of the fetuses to give the others a better chance.
 She gave birth prematurely to the first three babies, all boys, on Monday, in the 19th week of pregnancy. She lost the remaining five, including two girls, two days later.

FFA legislation benefits rural airports

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Communicating for Agriculture President Wayne Nelson praised the passage of the Federal Aviation Administration reauthorization legislation last week by Congress because of a special provision that will benefit regional airports in non-metropolitan areas.
 The bill provides a new funding mechanism for the Essential Air Service program which provides funding assistance to maintain passenger air service to more than 100 rural, regional airports in 25 states and Puerto Rico.
 Under the new FAA legislation, annual congressional appropriations for EAS would be replaced by a fee placed on foreign air flights that pass over United States airspace, but do not land in the country. It is a form of tax other countries employ, and American international air carriers must pay, even though the U.S. has not charged such a fee in the past.
 The surcharge will raise an estimated $50 million for the program. EAS funds have been cut in recent years, and the program was threatened with elimination. Appropriations for fiscal year 1997 were recently set at $25.9 million.

 "This is a positive development," said Nelson, who worked for a permanent source of funding for EAS in Washington over the past year. "Essential Air Service funds had been cut by 85 since the early 1980s. Airline deregulation triggered a drastic decline in air service for rural, less populated states and regions, and EAS has been the one link that kept some level of passenger service going to many of these local rural communities."
 "This bill not only provides for continuous funding of EAS, it will save U.S. taxpayers money. It also opens up the possibility of assisting additional communities in the future," said Nelson.
 He praised North Dakota Sen.

Byron Dorgan for developing the new EAS measure.
 "This is a modest cost program in light of the job it does. CA believes it is in the interest of all Americans that our nation maintains reasonable, affordable passenger air service beyond major metropolitan areas to regional communities. It is also important for rural economic development, particularly now when statistics show manufacturing industries and population are growing in rural counties throughout the country," he said.
 States with regional airports that have received support from the EAS program include Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.
 Others include Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New York, North Dakota, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Utah, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, Wyoming and Puerto Rico.
