PAMPA — The Greater Pampa Area Chamber of Commerce will hold its monthly luncheon at 11:45 a.m. Tuesday, Oct. 15, in the M.K. Brown Room of the Pampa Community Building, 200 N. Ballard.

PAMPA — Discussion of whether or not to filter Internet access at Lovett Memorial Library is expected to continue at the library's advisory board meeting Monday at 4:30 p.m.

Local elementary school counselor Cheyl Robbins, state Representative Warren Chisum and attorney Ken Fields are listed as speakers on the agenda. A vote on the policy might also be taken, according to the agenda. Meetings are open to the public.

AUSTIN (AP) — The Christian Coalition said today that it made a mistake approving a sample of its voter guide that some pastors claim is racist.

The sample depicted a white candidate supportive of the group's conservative views and a black candidate supportive of issues such as abortion and allowing homosexuals to adopt children.

The material, featuring fictitious candidates, was distributed in Texas and possibly other states as part of a package to get churches to request the actual voter guide, according to Mike Russell, a spokesman for the Virginia-based coalition.

A number of pastors around Austin complained the sample was racist and demanded an apology.

FBI arrests five militiamen for bombing plot

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI has arrested five members of a West Virginia militia group on charges they plotted to blow up a the FBI's West Virginia-based national fingerprint records complex, law enforcement sources said today.

The five members of the West Virginia Mountaineer Militia were in FBI custody in Clarksburg. The bureau planned an afternoon news conference at a nearby field office, said the sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

In Huntington, W.Va., a local television report said Edward Moore was charged in federal court with conspiracy to manufacture explosive materials. FBI agents refused to say whether Moore had a connection with the alleged plot.

Among others charged was Ray Looker, commander of the Mountaineer Militia, who accused federal agents last year of staging the bombing of the Oklahoma City federal building to justify a crackdown on the militia movement, said one law enforcement source.

The five were arrested on charges they plotted to place explosives near the FBI facility in Clarksburg, which the bureau recently opened as its fingerprint records center.

In use for more than a year, the facility houses fingerprint records that the FBI has collected from police departments nationwide. The identification division provides information to state and local police departments about wanted criminals.

Looker, a Stonewood, W.Va., real estate developer, claims his militia has members in 37 of West Virginia's 55 counties. He will not say how many are in the group, which bars outside observers from its drills. "You don't divulge your strength or weakness to the enemy. Currently, it's Bill Clinton and the press," Looker has been quoted as saying.

An unsuccessful candidate for the state legislature in 1994, Looker contends the federal government is trying to take guns away from the American people.

In a pamphlet Looker wrote and distributes, he also asserts that 1 million troops of the United Nations are stationed at U.S. military bases and that the government has set up 130 concentration camps at abandoned military bases to house "law-abiding citizens."

Located 120 miles south of Pittsburgh, the $200 million Criminal Justice Information Services Division complex eventually will employ 2,600 people. It also will house the National Criminal Information Center and the Uniform Crime Reporting Center, FBI units now located in Washington.

The fingerprint identification facility will use computer programs to enable fingerprints to be converted into electronic images. This will enable the FBI to perform fingerprint identification in a matter of hours instead of weeks or months.

Grace McGrath, volunteer with the Commercial Division, signs in with United Way Executive Administrator Katrina Bigham for Thursday's check-in meeting for the Pampa United Way fund-raising campaign.

United Way hits 22 percent of goal

The Pampa United Way 1996 fund-raising drive reached 22 percent of its $315,000 goal, according to figures announced at Thursday's check-in meeting.

Pampa United Way Executive Administrator Katrina Bigham said totals of pledges and collections received through noon Thursday amounted to $69,495, including an additional $19,000 turned in from the Hoechst Celanese's Pampa Plant employee drive.

"We are doing really well," Bigham said, adding that some bigger firms and companies are still conducting their employee drives.

Campaign volunteers have been busy making presentations to these groups, with others still lined up for next week, she said.

"As those big firms come in, we'll see the figures really jump," Bigham said.

She encouraged volunteers to continue working the pledge cards. If they have worked all their cards, then they are welcome to help other volunteers work their cards, too, she said.

In other matters related to the drive, United Way board member Chuck White announced plans have been made to raffle off an autographed football from Pampa's Zach Thomas, player for the Miami Dolphins.

"We're going to give you a chance to take a 'priceless' chance" on winning the football, White said. A certificate from the Dolphins lists the football's value as "priceless," he noted.

Raffle tickets will be sold at $5 each, with all the money going to Pampa United Way, he said.

"The money is a donation to the United Way," White said of the price for the tickets.

The Pampa Rotary Club will be taking the lead on selling the tickets, White said, with Kiwanians and perhaps other civic groups also participating.

White said tickets will be ready to go on sale next week, adding, "We'll sell as many tickets as we can."

The drawing for the Zach Thomas football will be held at the final home game of the Pampa Harvesters football team at Harvester Stadium on Nov. 1.

Bigham encouraged volunteers and agency representatives to attend the weekly check-ins on Thursdays to turn in their collections and to meet for fellowship.

The next check-in will be at 11:45 a.m. Thursday, Oct. 16, at the Pampa Community Building.

Volunteers can turn in their collections throughout the week at the United Way office in the Pampa Community Building, Bigham said. She said she keeps a running total of the collections.

"As it comes in, I'm posting it and keeping it totaled," she said.

The 1996 campaign drive is collecting funds to help assist 17 agencies and services for the 1997 year.

Agencies receiving assistance from the Pampa United Way include Texas Panhandle Mental Health Authority, American Red Cross, Golden Spread Council of Boy Scouts of America, Texas Plains Council of Girl Scouts of America, Pampa Community Day Care Center, Big Brothers Big Sisters, Genesis House, Pampa Sheltered Workshop and Samaritan Pastoral Counseling Center.

Also receiving assistance are The Bridge, Pampa Meals on Wheels, Gray County Latch Key, High Plains Epilepsy Association, South Side Senior Citizens Center, Tralee Crisis Center, Gray County Child Protective Services and The Salvation Army.

People not being contacted by campaign volunteers but still wishing to donate to the Pampa United Way may drop their contributions by the office or mail them to: Pampa United Way Inc., P.O. Box 2076, Pampa, TX 79066-2076.

For more information, call the United Way office at 669-1001.

Jim Siegel of Odessa, with JRS Distinctive Accents, shows one of his decorated Heirloom Eggs as he arrives at M.K. Brown Memorial Auditorium this morning in preparation for exhibiting at the Pampa Fine Arts Association's Arts and Crafts Festival this weekend. His wife Peggy helps him in painting the figurines on the side of the eggs, while he does the carving on the hinges, decorations and finery. In keeping with the elaborate Faberge style of egg decorating, the Siegels handcraft their unique, award-winning creations from real eggs — ostrich, rhea, emu, goose, peacock and guinea. Their daughter and son-in-law, Becky and Bill Bullard, live in Pampa. The show will be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and from 12 noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Seven Pampa students named AP Scholars

Three 1996 Pampa High School graduates and four current PHS seniors have been named AP Scholars by the College Board in recognition of their achievement on the college-level Advanced Placement examinations.

Edith Osborne, a 1996 graduate, qualified for the AP Scholar with Distinction award by earning grades of 3 or above on five or more AP examinations with an average exam grade of at least 3.5. Garrett Craddock and Jennifer Fischer, both 1996 graduates, and current seniors Ann Carmichael, Heather Fernuik, Robert Venal and Thorban Weaver qualified for the AP Scholar award by completing three or more AP examinations with grades of 3 or higher.

Approximately 54 percent of America's graduating seniors have taken one or more AP examinations. Only about 12 percent of the more than 537,000 students who took the exams in May 1996 performed at award-winning levels.

AP examinations, which students take in May after completing college-level courses at their high school, are graded on a 5-point scale, 5 being the highest. Most of the nation's colleges and universities award credit and/or placement for grades of 3 or higher, and more than 1,300 institutions award a year of credit (sophomore standing) to students with a sufficient number of qualifying grades.

There are 29 AP exams offered in 16 disciplines, each consisting of multiple-choice and free-response questions.

McLean City Council renews Devil's Rope contract

McLEAN — City council members renewed the Devil's Rope Museum's contract unanimously, praising the museum as a boon to the town's economy during Thursday night's council meeting.

"It's the best thing that's happened to McLean in a long time," Mayor Sam Haynes said. The museum pays $50 per month to rent the city-owned building to display, among other things, a barbed wire collection and Route 66 memorabilia.

Curator Harold Hagemeyer told the council that producers from cable television's Discovery Channel were in town last week filming the barbed wire collection.

A museum spokesperson said today that the producers said a segment on the museum should air in the spring.

In other action, the council decided to pay one month's payment on a lease for a copy machine in the local branch of Lovett Memorial Library. The library has paid a year's worth of payments but say they cannot afford to pay any more. The city's attorney, Rick Harris, said he will look into the lease agreement.

'Witch' gets jail for sex with youth

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP) - A self-proclaimed witch was sentenced today to six years in prison for having sex with a 14-year-old boy who said she put him under a spell and sent him love letters signed in her blood.

Kerri Lynn Patavino, 28, also was ordered to serve five years' probation.

She could have been sentenced to 115 years in prison for her conviction in August of five counts of second-degree sexual assault, six counts of risk of injury to a minor, third-degree burglary and sixth-degree larceny.

Patavino, the boy's school-bus driver, also was accused of giving the boy drugs, and stealing a ring, skateboard, videotapes and other possessions from the boy's home.

Outside the courthouse, Patavino's friends denounced the sentence issued by Superior Court Judge Joseph Gormley Jr., saying it was reminiscent of the witch trials of colonial days.

Patavino is a follower of Wicca, an ancient, nature-based religion practiced by witches. Prosecutors have said the case had nothing to do with Patavino's religion, and was based entirely on the idea that it is wrong for an adult to use a child for sexual purposes.

During Patavino's trial, the youth, now 16, testified that he had a sexual relationship with Patavino from March through June 1995.

The teen said they had sex four times a week for the next four months, until Patavino began to do "weird things," including cutting herself with a razor during sex and forcing him to lick her blood.

Letters Patavino wrote to the boy were read to the jury.

"You say when I kiss your back, it tickles," she said in one letter. "What are you going to do when I kiss your baby belly button?"

The boy said when he tried to break off the relationship in June 1995, Patavino refused to let him go, casting a spell on him to make him stay.

The boy finally told his mother, who brought him to police.

Patavino, a mother of three, did not testify during her trial. Her lawyer claimed the boy made up the story because he had sexually abused her 9-year-old daughter. The defense did not explain the letters during the trial, but Patavino denied later that what she wrote in them was meant to be sexual.

Judge says Simpson defense can argue planted glove case

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) - O.J. Simpson's defense won permission today to argue in his civil trial that a police detective planted a bloody glove at Simpson's estate.

Superior Court Judge Hiroshi Fujisaki said that "the evidence is very slim to support a planting theory" argument but added he was swayed to admit the theory because of ex-Detective Mark Fuhrman's no-contest plea to perjury.

Fujisaki acknowledged that Fuhrman's plea was on "a collateral matter" and did not directly address the issue of how a glove could have been transported to Simpson's estate from the scene of two bloody murders at his ex-wife's condominium.

He said that the fact of a principal witness pleading to perjury is "sufficient for the court to allow reference to that matter."

While that ruling was a key victory for the defense in claiming a frame-up, the judge barred the defense from arguing that blood taken from Simpson's Ford Bronco the day after the killings might have been planted. He also would not allow the defense to suggest a pair of bloody socks was planted.

The judge said the defense could contend that blood belatedly gathered from a back gate at Nicole Brown Simpson's condominium could have been part of a frame-up.

"What I don't want is grandiose theories placed before a jury," the judge said, "where what's placed before the court would not (support) those theories."

Public input sought for TEKS policy draft

AMARILLO - The public is invited to provide recommendations and give input regarding the second draft of the Texas Essential Knowledge and Skills (TEKS) on Tuesday, Oct. 22, at Region XVI Education Service Center in Amarillo.

The public hearing will be held from 7-9 p.m. in the Panhandle Conference Room.

Legislature passed Senate Bill 1, which calls for the State Board of Education to adopt "essential knowledge and skills" for kindergarten through twelfth grade to serve as a framework for what students need to learn for the 21st century.

Those new essential knowledge and skills should emphasize real-world applications as well as acquisition of information, and should focus on what the student learns rather than on how the teacher teaches.

Copies of the second TEKS draft will be available for a 72-hour checkout period. Also, a set may be purchased from the Educational Service Center.

The draft is also available on the Internet at the following address: <http://www.tea.state.tx.us:70/0/teks/index.htm>

German POW returns to Texas to celebrate seventieth birthday

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Erwin Rother's recollections of Texas are cotton fields around Orange, rice farms west of Beaumont, the pine trees of Woodville and a camp just outside Huntsville.

That was more than 50 years ago. The United States was at war and Rother was an enemy soldier — a private from the German army — in an American prisoner of war camp.

Rother, who turned 70 on Monday, returns from Germany to Texas this weekend for the first time since he celebrated his 20th birthday here.

The trip, a birthday gift from his children, is to allow him to get a look at what remains of the wood and tarpaper structures that served as his Texas home during World War II.

"I am a little bit nervous," he said earlier this week, shortly after arriving from Germany at his daughter's home in Marlborough, Mass. "I'd like to see all the area and maybe I'll remember several things. I'd like to see the Huntsville camp."

The prison was known officially as the Huntsville Alien Internment Camp, one of 33 such camp around the state and home to an estimated 3,000 to 5,000 POWs.

Construction of the $3 million camp began in May 1942 and it was opened four months later — 405 buildings that included gymnasium, mess halls, barracks, and hospital and dental units.

Rother was an 18-year-old when captured in the south of France with a half-dozen of his buddies. They were hustled to the United States by ship to New York and then by train to Texas.

"Three days and four nights on a train," he laughed.

It was September 1944. He wouldn't leave until 1946.

"As long as I was an American prisoner, they treated me fairly," he said. "I never had any problems."

Besides picking cotton and cutting trees — "It was not easy," he says — Rother also learned English during the time he was locked up.

"He has a really warm feeling for the entire stay," Rother's daughter, Erny Isabelle, said. "That's why he wants to go back."

Rother, accompanied by his daughter and some Huntsville historians, is to examine documents and old photos from the camp at a library at nearby Sam Houston State University. Then they'll all head northeast of town to the site, now home to a golf course and a ranch. Rother also hopes to travel to the little town of China, west of Beaumont, to see if anything remains of another camp where he spent some time.

At the Huntsville camp, only three structures remain, including the remnants of the camp hospital. One of the structures now serves as a house for ranch hands who work cattle there.

The hospital is overgrown with weeds that climb up the outside walls and through windows. The exterior white paint is peeling and some of the boards are missing. Inside, the wooden floor creaks and the walls and floors are covered with insect and bird droppings. Old light fixtures remain in the ceiling of what apparently was an operating room.

"It's going to be interesting to see what he'll be able to tell us," Donna Coffin, who serves on the Walker County Historical Commission and will accompany Rother, said.

Whistleblower lawsuit ends in multi-million dollar settlement after three year saga

BOSTON (AP) — After getting laid off as a sales rep for a medical laboratory, Jeanne Byrne found another job far more profitable: government whistle-blower in a Medicare fraud case.

Byrne, who had to take odd jobs cleaning houses and baby-sitting while she waited three years for a resolution, hit a $9 million jackpot under a statute that rewards citizens for helping the government.

"It's still not real," the divorced mother of three said Thursday from her Bloomfield Hills, Mich., home.

Hours before, a federal judge in Boston accepted a deal in which her former employer, Damon Clinical Laboratories, agreed to plead guilty and pay $119 million in fines for submitting fraudulent Medicare claims for unnecessary blood tests.

The lab was the latest Corning Inc. subsidiary to reach a multimillion settlement in the government's four-year Medicare fraud investigation, and the fines are among the largest recovered in any health-care fraud case. The crimes happened in the years before Damon was bought by Corning in 1993.

Byrne's $9 million will be taken out of the fines, along with $1.5 million that will be split between two other whistle-blowers who worked at one of Damon's competitors.

"I didn't start off trying to be Joan of Arc or anything like that," Byrne said. "I loved my job,"

As a representative for Damon's Detroit lab in 1993 selling testing services to doctors and hospitals, Byrne was in line to make $150,000 to go with her company car and expense account. Then the government called.

Byrne was subpoenaed by the Justice Department to testify before a grand jury about the billing practices of National Health Laboratories, her previous employer.

National Health Laboratories had been inducing doctors to order unnecessary blood tests billed to Medicare. Byrne, who had no medical background, said she didn't know then that certain tests she had been selling were unnecessary. National Health Laboratories reached a $100 million settlement in 1992.

While that settlement was still making news, Byrne said, Damon began billing for the unnecessary tests to swell profits.

"My reaction was disbelief that they would be doing this knowing one of their biggest competitors was caught," Byrne said.

Damon, in response to fee reductions Medicare adopted in 1988 and 1989, began grouping certain blood tests so that doctors would order more than were necessary. The suburban Boston company, which operated 13 labs nationwide, then billed Medicare for all of the tests, together called a "LabScan."

State briefs

Morales continue fight against money laundering

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Can Texas and Mexico cooperate in a fight against money laundering?

Attorney General Dan Morales said Thursday he'll seek a crime-fighting agreement with Mexico next week.

Morales said he's to meet on Monday and Tuesday in Mexico City with Mexico's attorney general, Antonio Lozano Gracia, and Mexico's commissioner of the National Drug Enforcement Institute, Francisco J. Molina Ruiz.

For too long, drug traffickers have been able to use the border as protection from law enforcement officials in both countries, Morales said.

"The drug dealers and the cartels are using that barrier against us. They are using it to their advantage and our disadvantage," he said.

Both Texas and Mexico would benefit if officials share information with each other on money laundering and prosecutions, he said.

Twins at El Paso school elected homecoming king, queen

EL PASO (AP) — The student body at Franklin High School in El Paso has elected a homecoming king and queen, but they're not likely to kiss.

The student body elected a twin brother-sister combination as homecoming king and queen — Henry and Christina Mata.

He is a starting safety for the football team, and she starts on the girls' volleyball and basketball teams.

It'll be kind of a break from tradition, but they'll each take a date to the homecoming festivities. The group will go to a dinner and the homecoming dance as a foursome.

Battle over church razing may go to Supreme Court

BOERNE (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court could decide as early as today whether to get involved in the proposed razing of a historic Roman Catholic church to make room for a bigger structure.

The Archdiocese of San Antonio sued the city of Boerne after town officials refused to issue a permit to raze most of St. Peter's Church to make room for a larger structure. The case has potentially nationwide implications for government regulation of religion. The city refused to grant the permit on grounds that a portion of the existing church lies within the city's historical district. Church officials planned to replace the 73-year-old stone church, which holds 250 people, with a modern sanctuary that would seat 700.

Pampa United Way agency profile

This article is one in a series of profiles on the agencies and organizations supported by Pampa United Way. This information is being provided by Pampa United Way as part of its 1996 "Paint A Brighter Tomorrow" fund-raising campaign.

One of the many Meals on Wheels volunteers delivers a meal to one of approximately 200 clients served by the agency.

Pampa's Meals on Wheels helped provide meals for 205 people in 1995, with volunteers serving 44,689 meals to the agency's clients.

But Meals on Wheels is more than just the number of meals served. The service provided by the agency through its volunteers helps to keep senior citizens independent.

Home is where the heart is, and Meals on Wheels keeps that dream alive by providing nutritional support. The delivery of meals to homebound citizens, or to those who are not able to get out as much as they would like to do, helps these citizens to be healthier, enhancing their quality of life. In addition to bringing meals to the clients' homes, volunteers also check upon the well-being of the clients, perhaps seeing if they might need other assistance.

For as long as possible, this service aids the assisted clients, most elderly or disabled, to remain out of the hospital and out of the nursing home. And while doing so, ultimately the agency helps save much tax money that might otherwise be spent.

But the story of the agency is not in just the numbers of clients assisted or the number of meals served. It is also a story of individuals, such as the tale of one of the women aided by the agency's service.

Her story begins August 9,

1917 with the birth of a baby girl, one of 10 children. She grew up on a farm, chopping cotton, picking cotton and taking care of little sisters and brothers, among them three sets of twins.

In 1932, at the tender age of 15, she married and would bear a son in 1934, then a daughter two years later. She and her husband moved to Pampa in 1953 and a year later bought the home where she still lives. Her husband worked all over this part of the country laying pipeline while she stayed home "keeping things going." He retired in 1973 and died in 1981, leaving her alone in Pampa except for one niece. She has four grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

As you can see, she lived a fairly normal life — marrying, raising a family, saying goodbye to family and loved ones. She lived through two world wars, the Great Depression, the Korean War and Vietnam. She learned at an early age to work hard and save for a rainy day, which came in 1983 when she fell victim to a painful and degenerative eye disease.

At that time she had to give up driving and many other activities that had been a regular part of everyday life. In 1985, Meals on Wheels became an important part of her struggle to continue living independently in her own home.

"Meals on Wheels has helped me to stay at home from 1985 until now," she says. "I really appreciate all the wonderful workers. They are all precious to me. I want to stand on my own two feet as long as I can."

Meals on Wheels is one of 17 agencies and organizations supported by Pampa United Way and it relies heavily on those crucial funds to continue its services. Without your help, these agencies cannot continue to help these deserving members of our community.

AARP to have program on voting issues

The Pampa Chapter of American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) will meet at 1 p.m. Monday, Oct. 14, at the Pampa Senior Citizens Center for a program on voting issues.

Robert W. Goodrich of Amarillo, AARP volunteer and member of the Texas State Legislative Committee for AARP, will be the guest speaker for AARP/VOTE, a non-partisan voter education program designed to educate and involve voters on issues of concern for older Americans and the community at large.

AARP/VOTE is strictly non-partisan, focusing on issues rather than candidates or their political affiliations. In addition to voter education, AARP/VOTE's goal is to inform candidates and elected officials of the organization's positions on key policy issues.

Goodrich will discuss recent reorganization activity in AARP nationally and in Texas. Other topics planned for discussion include current legislative priorities of AARP in Texas in preparation for the upcoming 1997 Texas legislative session.

During the program, Goodrich also is scheduled to offer AARP members the use of short survey forms which will invite members to offer their opinions about the strengths and weaknesses of AARP and also to offer recommendations for member services.

Goodrich also will report briefly on other current issues of interest to AARP members nationally. He also will take questions from the audience.

AARP/VOTE accomplishes its educational goals through voter registration drives, candidate forums, questionnaires and personal interviews, information distribution, and communication with state and federal legislators.

Volunteer Congressional District Team (CDTM) members serve as part of a team within a congressional district that carries out these activities.

Stranger to congressional district runs for office anyway

ABILENE (AP) — Richard Caro doesn't know much about the 17th Congressional District. He has trouble naming the incumbent and his main rival. And he admits he's not all that familiar with the issues here.

But none of that is going to stop the Austin resident from trying to represent West Texas in the U.S. House.

"This was one of the only districts open, and I really wanted to run," Caro told the Abilene Reporter-News. "Even though I didn't have a connection there I wanted to be on the ballot."

Caro is among a number of Natural Law Party members who have made ballots across the country. The party, founded by Harvard professor and presidential candidate John Hagelin, believes the road to conflict-free, problem solving government lies in science and transcendental meditation.

Caro, 27, is a senior office assistant in the student and alumni office of the LBJ School of Public Affairs in Austin, his home. He is a graduate of the Maharishi International University in Fairfield, Iowa.

His practice of transcendental meditation "enlivens creativity," something Caro believes gives him an edge over incumbent Democrat Charles Stenholm and Republican challenger Rudy Izzard.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Texas Editorials

Austin American-Statesman on keeping government open:
The fight to keep government at every level open and accessible in Texas is one that never ends.

From local school boards to congressional committees, those governing us inevitably reach the point of wanting to make their decisions in secret. It is the rare elected official, board or governing body that is willing to have those who elected them and pay them actually be privy to all their deliberations.

Open government in Texas is ever a journey, never a destination. The fight to give citizens, voters and taxpayers access to government deliberations, decisions and records will never end.

In Texas, one small, nonprofit group dedicated to open government. The Freedom of Information Foundation of Texas comprises newspaper, television and radio journalists, college professors and lawyers who donate their time to the cause of access and openness in Texas government.

From the tiniest town council and most remote school board to the University of Texas System Board of Regents, government is always in a struggle with the public's right to know. At every level, those in power prefer to operate privately rather than work through difficult issues in public.

Shutting out the public doesn't make for better government, only an ill-informed citizenry. As the Freedom of Information Foundation of Texas knows from its long and deep experience, what you don't know can hurt you.

Houston Chronicle on Bush's jury duty:

Our hats are off to Gov. George W. Bush for reporting for jury duty in Austin last week, just like any average citizen.

Good publicity, sure.

But it was also a sign of good citizenship. The fact that the sitting governor of the great state of Texas shows up for jury duty should be an example to the rest of us, who may think we are too busy, too important or too inconvenienced to serve on juries.

Bush is to report to a Travis County Court at Law this week, when it will be determined by the lawyers whether he will serve as a juror. Bush says that most likely he will not be picked because of potential conflicts of interests, such as the fact that all requests for pardons in criminal cases cross his desk and also his well-known support of tort reform.

That he is willing to serve is what is important.

The jury system, the constitutional right to be tried before one's peers, is the backbone of freedom and justice in this country.

That system has to be supported, even when it is inconvenient for those called to serve. That's the duty of a responsible citizen.

El Paso Herald-Post on illegal immigration:

In Texas, some populist politicians are fond of saying the only thing in the middle of the road are yellow stripes and dead armadillos, and in fact, the middle way can sometimes be the muddling way. But not always.

In figuring out what do about illegal immigration, one extreme would be to say, "Come one, come all," only there would then be millions of takers from all the continents and a few islands in between, and the United States would be sunk.

The other extreme would be to insist that the country be ridged forever of all illegal aliens, only that would require the equivalent of a Berlin Wall stretched across our southern border.

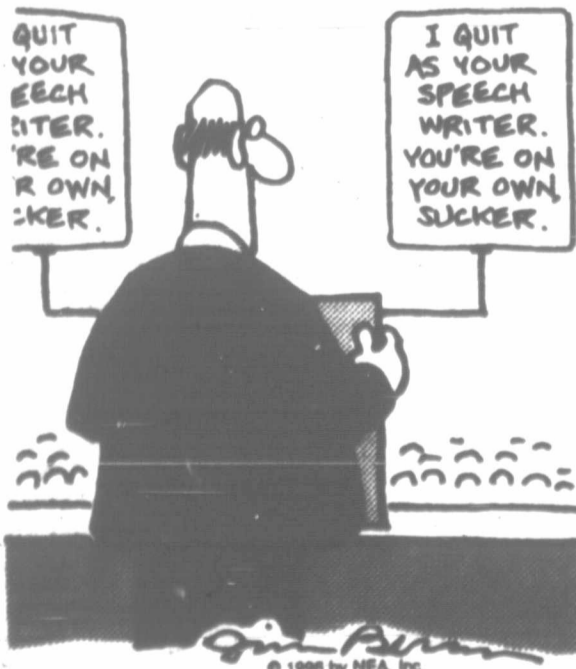

There is, however, a path that avoids either empty-headedness or intolerable harshness, and that's what Congress took when it passed a new illegal immigration bill.

Congress, after negotiations that rid the bill of some of its worst elements, took the middle course, which in this instance also happened to be the course of rationality.

Thought for Today

"Seventy-five percent of the public get their information from TV. That means 75 percent of Americans are under-informed. You must read newspapers, you must read magazines, you must read books."

Berry's World

What's Clinton covering up?

R. Emmett Tyrrell Jr.

The only recent precedent available to Bill Clinton for not releasing the details (raw data and all) of his medical record is that set by President John F. Kennedy. Today, we know that Kennedy was hiding Addison's disease and other ailments that left him in frequent pain and subject to bouts of fatigue. Given the suffering that he braved, his reticence was gallant. What suffering might Bill Clinton be quietly braving?

His refusal to open his medical records has provoked vigorous and occasionally intemperate speculation. Some insist that the president is hiding cosmetic surgery. One artist who has sketched his face frequently believes that he has spotted the traces of a face lift. Others insist that Clinton's records would reveal treatment for sexually transmitted diseases. Kennedy biographer, Richard Reeves, chronicles "persistent venereal disease" among JFK's secret health problems. I have no knowledge of Clinton suffering either condition, but investigations conducted by me and two colleagues over the past few weeks suggest that Clinton has used drugs heavily and may have been treated for an overdose in the early 1980s.

Jane Parks is a middle-aged Arkansan hired in the middle 1980s as resident manager at an upscale Little Rock apartment complex, Vantage Point. Vantage Point was owned by Sidney Weniger, a New York developer who, with much money from friend Gov. Bill Clinton's brainchild, the Arkansas Development Finance Authority, did a lucrative development business in Arkansas in the 1980s. This particular apartment complex consisted of three buildings. Parks' office was in the middle building. It was apartment B107. The apartment had been subdivided by a flimsy interim wall, and on one side, Parks worked with her assistant. On the other side was a temporary apartment referred to rather splendidly as Vantage Point's "corporate suite." In the summer of 1984, Bill Clinton's half-brother, Roger, stayed in this room as a non-paying guest.

Parks observed cocaine being brought into the apartment. She also had to relay complaints to Roger about noise from his parties. In a recent interview at Little Rock's Regas Bar and Grill, she stated, "Once, when I opened the door, Bill Clinton was sitting on the couch. He was staring straight ahead, looking stoned." She mimics the governor sifting with arms stiff, looking straight ahead, glassy eyed. "There were lines of cocaine on the table in front of him." Parks, a dark-haired, fine-featured woman who appears surprisingly fit though she has, for years, been afflicted by multiple sclerosis, is now overcoming years of apprehension. She had seen Clinton at the apartment and, along with her assistant, had heard him enthuse over the high quality cocaine that he was apparently using on the other side of the partition. Her son, Gary, testifies to having been ordered by management to "buy groceries. Leave the door open with the key. (Roger) had a lot of visitors. Lasater was there at least once."

Dan Lasater was a major financial supporter of the governor. Two Arkansas state troopers under oath have testified to hustling Gov. Clinton out of Lasater's famous drug parties. Neither ever saw Clinton using drugs, but one recognized that Clinton was under the influence of drugs at a Lasater party. Lasater eventually employed Roger, and both were in time convicted on drug offenses. The governor pardoned Lasater. Another witness to the Vantage Point revels who wishes anonymity has told reporters that she saw Bill Clinton at the apartment at least three times.

Roger Clinton finally left Vantage Point. "When we went to clean out the apartment, we found marijuana," Parks asserts. "We found barbiturates, sleeping pills. On the side of the table top, where a ridge went around, white powder was wedged in the crack." In the kitchen, she and her assistant found drug paraphernalia. Parks' husband was an independent investigator. Alarmed by the drugs and licentious raillery she noted at Vantage Point, Parks had her husband, Jerry, monitor the place. "We had a video camera ... We didn't get all of it." Her husband was shot dead in his car on an Arkansas road in September 1993. The murder is described as a "professional hit." The files he kept on these affairs were either hidden or stolen. Since Parks granted this interview, she has been threatened. This will make the third threat against her in recent weeks. This time, a man telephoned her to say, "You will be dead before the election."

Others have admitted to using drugs with Clinton. An alleged lover from the mid-1980s, Sally Perdue, is one. In Roger Morris' recent book, Partners in Power, Morris quotes Roger Clinton on a 1983-84 surveillance film stating, "Got to get some (cocaine) for my brother. He's got a nose like a vacuum cleaner." Now, another woman has admitted to my associate that she took cocaine with Bill Clinton "no less than 20 times" during a period when she dated Roger. She is Ashariene Wilson, an Arkansas drug informant. Recently, the United States Supreme Court overturned half of her sentence on a drug charge, though she remains sentenced to 31 years for her conviction on three counts of possession. A former Arkansas prosecutor, Jean Duffey, who used Wilson while Duffey headed an Arkansas drug task force, has vouched for Wilson's veracity. In 1990, Wilson also testified to a federal grand jury that she sold Roger Clinton drugs in 1979 and saw both Clintons "snort" cocaine.

Obviously, from the above evidence (and more witnesses are now being asked to speak out), we can conclude that Bill Clinton's medical records might well include information about drug use. As for the stories that Clinton suffered from overdose, no firsthand account is available. The most frequently heard story is that in 1980, the defeated governor was admitted to the University of Arkansas Medical Center emergency room for a cocaine overdose. It is well reported that in the aftermath of his defeat, Clinton suffered serious emotional problems. Possible witnesses to the alleged scene in the emergency room whom we have approached are not very forthcoming. Yet, their responses have been more interesting than a flat-out no. Rather than denying knowledge, one nurse told us, "I can't talk about that." Another stated that she feared for her life if she were to discuss the matter. When can all these rumors be put to rest by Clinton simply opening his medical records?

Debates have familiar ring ...

Walter Mears
AP Special Correspondent

After a predictable presidential debate, the understudies took their turn Wednesday night - supporting players primed to echo the themes President Clinton and Bob Dole set, to the same inconclusive outcome.

That's to the advantage of the Democratic ticket, given Clinton's wide lead in the national and state-by-state polls. In surveys after the Hartford debate, the edge was Clinton's, although Dole was deemed to have exceeded expectations with his performance.

Vice President Al Gore said he expects some overlap between debate issues when he and Republican Jack Kemp meet for 90 nationally-televised minutes in St. Petersburg, Fla.

There will be a lot. It is the role of running mates to reflect and promote the ideas and issues of the presidential contenders.

Vice presidential debates - this will be the fifth - have produced memorable lines and putdowns, but with little, if any, real impact on the campaigns.

Ironically, one possible exception was the first debate between vice presidential candidates, 20 years ago, when Dole as the Republican nominee came away with the harsh, tough-guy image that dogged him through that contest and into the ones that followed.

That long-ago lesson was evident in his tactics against Clinton Sunday night. His aggressive lines were tempered with needling humor. He was polite, cautious, saying at one point that he personally likes Clinton and respects the presidency. He went indirectly at the trust and character questions some Republicans had wanted him to hammer.

"I'm not discussing Whitewater now," Dole said as he edged into the subject, saying that Clinton made a mistake by responding to an interview question about possible pardons for people convicted on charges related to that Arkansas land deal, in which the president and his wife once were investors.

It is an awkward topic for the president, given his past ties to figures accused or convicted of wrongdoing. Clinton said, as he has before, that there has been no consideration of pardons and that he will strictly adhere to the law.

Even that might be sending a signal, Dole said. He said Clinton's answer from the start should have been "No comment. Period."

Another debate echo. Dole was ducking a question about President Ford's pardon of Richard Nixon when he said in his 1976 vice presidential debate that the American conflicts of the 20th Century were "all Democrat wars." Hatchet man, his Democratic rival retorted, and the label stuck.

In their leadoff debate, Clinton and Dole both used practiced lines from the past, now part of their standard campaign speeches.

"We are better off than we were four years ago," Clinton said, as he does regularly. Ronald Reagan put that as a question, and answered "Yes," in his re-election campaign debate.

Dole repeatedly called Clinton a liberal, recalling George Bush's campaign and debate tactic against Democrat Michael Dukakis in 1988. Clinton said the Republicans always drag that out, "sort of their golden oldie, you know." He said it won't work this time because it doesn't fit his record.

In the 1992 vice presidential debate, the last line came from Ross Perot's running mate. "Who am I? Why am I here?" James Stockdale asked. He said it was because he knew how government works and what it takes to lead, but the rhetorical question got all the attention.

It won't be asked this time. Perot and his ticket were excluded from these debates, consigning him to postscript complaints about two party dominance.

And between the two, Clinton's lead is holding. Dole said after the debate that he'd begun turning that around in Hartford. His campaign manager called it a stepping stone.

"It's not one night that decides it," another advisor, Charles Black, said. "It's a three act play."

But presidential campaign debates seldom deliver surprise endings. In virtually every series, the leader in the polls going in has held the lead afterward, and has won the election.

The debates serve as summations on the issues. When there have been surprise moments, they have stemmed from missteps or misworded comments. Both Clinton and Dole avoided any such problems in Hartford.

The president said the debate gave voters a picture of the differences and the stakes in the Nov. 5 election.

Summing it up works nicely for him.

Dole was, and is, the candidate who needs to dramatically alter the race. The vice presidential debate isn't going to do that. The Republican nominee has a last debate chance himself, in San Diego on Oct. 16.

Homeland continues to assist schools through its 'Apples for Students' project

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. — For the ninth consecutive school year, the popular, "Apples for the Students" program goes back to school this fall, continuing to build Homeland's more than $7 million donation of educational tools to schools, Homeland Stores Chairman James Demme announced recently.

Since 1988, Apples for the Students program has provided educational equipment to about 1,700 schools in Oklahoma, Kansas and the Texas Panhandle. In the classroom, that adds up to 2,591 computers; 14,191 software programs; 2,107 printers, scanners, CD-ROM players, and modems; 12,000 calculators; and 3,800 audio visual, scientific and encyclopedias.

Demme commented, "Homeland is proud to be a major educational partner with the schools in the communities we serve throughout Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas. We believe Apples for the Students program is an investment in our future that helps prepare students for the increasingly technological global workplace."

The 1996-97, Apples for the Students program features several new incentives and products. "This year's program incorporates many ideas from superintendents and principals that will help schools reach their goals and select from a broader product line offered for free by Homeland," said Bill Sammons, marketing director for Homeland.

Schools can gain extra credit toward their Apple program when the Homeland Savings Card is used and classrooms tour local museums and cultural centers. Instructional CDs that are both Mac and DOS compatible are exclusively available through the Apple program, and for the first time E13M-compatible hardware and software are available to schools.

"Students, parents and teachers are now collecting receipt tapes which can be sent to school with the children or dropped off at the school office," said Sammons. "Volunteers then tally the receipts and when the school's goal is reached, the receipt tapes are redeemed for educational equipment that the school needs the most."

The Apple program runs through March 28, 1997.

Product manufacturers have joined the Apples for the Students program through a promotion called "Apple Bonus Bucks." Participating products are designated with a special shelf tag in Homeland stores and can be readily found throughout the stores. When a qualifying product is purchased, the customer's school of choice receives extra bonus for their Apple program.

"Homeland's generosity continues to provide learning opportunities on the latest computer technology that helps schools maximize their budgets," said Texas Commissioner of Education Dr. Mike Moses. "The significant contribution that Homeland has made to our schools for the last eight years marks a unique public-private partnership that elevates the standard of corporate responsibility to education. I hope the success of Apples for the Students program continues so upcoming students will be afforded the same opportunities."

Apple computers are the most widely used educational computers.

"It would be ideal if every student in Homeland's communities could have hands-on access to a classroom computer," stated Sammons.

For more information or to sign up a local school, call Homeland Apples for the Students at (405) 879-8600.

Internet site helps planning for college

Students and parents preparing for the future can get help choosing a career, selecting a school and paying for higher education through "Mapping Your Future" — a new Internet World Wide Web site.

The Web site is a cooperative public service project of the California Student Aid Commission, the Great Lakes Higher Education Corporation, the New York Higher Education Services Corporation, Northstar Guarantee Inc., the Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency and the Texas Guaranteed Student Loan Corporation.

Located on the Internet World Wide Web at <http://mapping-your-future.org>, Mapping Your Future features information on careers, colleges and financial aid. Visitors may click on any of the topics — "Planning a Career," "Selecting a School" and "Paying for School" — to retrieve more information about the topic, including a "guided tour" that walks them through the steps to choosing a career, selecting a school and planning to pay for an education.

The Web site can be used by anyone with access to the WWW on the Internet through their school or an online service provider.

The "Planning a Career" section of the Web site includes information on career goals and planning, occupations, job hunting tips, interview techniques and resume writing. "Selecting A School" provides visitors with information on academic preparation for college, types of schools to consider, characteristics of schools, the admissions process and standardized tests.

"Paying for School" describes options for paying for an education, types of financial aid (including scholarships, grants and loans), applying for financial aid and different steps that occur in the financial aid process.

Visitors to the site can search for a topic at any point. Information is also organized by audience so that a middle or high school student, college student, parent or student loan borrower can easily find information that would be most relevant to them. Student loan borrowers who need to postpone their loan payments may also download deferment forms at the site.

High school counselors, financial aid officers and lenders also can find helpful information at the site.

The guaranty agencies that sponsor this site are administrators of the Federal Family Education Loan Program. They created Mapping Your Future to provide help and information to students and families throughout the United States. The FFELP is a federally-sponsored program that provides low-interest loans to students and parents to help pay for education beyond high school.

Paralyzed Texas man most recent Kevorkian 'patient'

HORIZON CITY, Texas (AP) — Wallace J. Spolar, confined to a wheelchair and suffering pain, was a realist about his condition and even joked that one day he would be gone. But friends and neighbors never suspected how he would meet his eventual fate.

Dr. Jack Kevorkian dropped off Spolar's body at a Detroit hospital Thursday, an event that sent shockwaves through Horizon City, the small town outside of El Paso where Spolar had lived.

"He had a lot of pain, but I'm sorry that he had to end up with Dr. Kevorkian," said Bruce Truesdale, who had known Spolar about 14 years.

Spolar, 70, had been left paralyzed by multiple sclerosis and had sought Kevorkian's help because he was afraid of ending up in a "rat-infested nursing home," according to Kevorkian's lawyer, Geoffrey Fieger.

Kevorkian has acknowledged assisting in 42 suicides since 1990. Before Thursday, the most recent was the Sept. 29 death of cancer patient Richard Faw, 71, a North Carolina psychiatrist.

Truesdale said Spolar, a retired school administrator, had been in a wheelchair since they had met. But it had never seemed to affect his demeanor, he said.

"Wally had a strange sense of humor ... He made light of his disability," said Truesdale. "He used to joke about it."

Recently, however, he hadn't been seen much outside home, he said.

Once proud farmers face bitter harvest

KIEV, Ukraine (AP) — Ukraine farmers who once led an empire are facing their worst grain harvest in decades, as bad weather compounds the problems of aging machinery and inefficient farming practices left over from the Soviet era.

Predictions Thursday of a drastic decline in the harvest brought bitter disappointment across the Ukraine, a land of rolling, fertile fields where rural life still centers around the harvest, as it has for centuries.

This year's production is forecast at 25.5 million metric tons, down from last year's record low of 33.9 million metric tons, Agriculture Minister Anatoly Khorishko said.

"Agriculture used to be our pride. Now it's becoming our shame," said Mykola Levich, a foreman at the Kiev-Mlin grain elevator. Behind him, a ragged conveyor belt whizzed past carrying golden grain to a sorting machine.

So far this season, farmers have reaped just 21.3 million metric tons, down 26.9 percent from the same period last year, the Statistics Ministry said.

Khorishko blamed the poor yield in what was once the breadbasket of the Soviet Union on the unusually long, harsh winter and dry, hot spring. But others say the roots of this year's dismal harvest go much deeper.

"It's partly a weather phenomenon. But indirectly, it's a result of the collapse of the Soviet Union, the lack of an alternative infrastructure," said Harry Walters, an agriculture industry adviser with USAID in Kiev.

Post-Soviet economic reforms in Ukraine have been slow in every sector, but agriculture reforms have been the slowest.

Collective farms — overstuffed and equipped with aging, second-rate machinery — still dominate, and their influential old-guard managers have stymied virtually every attempt at reform, including privatization. Just two percent of Ukraine's farmland belongs to private farmers.

Thousands of harvest combines break down every year, and Ukraine can no longer count on inexpensive replacements from neighboring Belarus.

Mikhail Zubets, a top agriculture official, has said 60 percent of this year's grain was not planted in time because machines had no fuel, or was not planted deeply enough because workers were rushing to meet deadlines.

And waste remains rampant, a legacy of decades of mismanagement.

At the Kiev-Mlin elevator, tons of old wheat sit in a warehouse because of a bureaucratic delay. Levich said tens of thousands of tons of grain rot that way every year.

Local delegates attend national scout meeting

AMARILLO — Local delegates chosen to represent the Texas Plains Girl Scout Council (TPGSC) are traveling to Fort Worth this weekend to attend the 47th Girl Scout National Council Meeting.

Delegates chosen to represent TPGSC are Melonee York of Dumas, Denise Hill of Amarillo and Nancy Huntington of Canyon.

"The delegates have met with members all over the council to gather opinions. They are ready to represent the TPGSC," said Linda Wright, executive director.

York is the Dumas Service Unit director, as well as troop leader for Junior Girl Scout Troop 315. Hill is a member of the Caprock Service Team and troop leader for Senior Girl Scout Troop 95.

Huntington is a member of the Canyon Service Team and troop leader of Senior Girl Scout Troop 209.

The National Council of the Girl Scouts of the United States of America (GSUSA) meets every three years to make decisions about the future of Girl Scouting.

Delegates from all over the United States will be present at the national meeting held Oct. 10-14 at Fort Worth. It is the first time the meeting has been held in Texas in more than 20 years.

The number of delegates a council is entitled to register to attend the National Council session is based on girl membership as of Sept. 30, 1995.

Delegate responsibilities include studying the issues and gathering opinions from the TPGSC membership regarding national proposals. The Texas Plains Council delegates will participate in the National Council Meeting and report to the membership the decisions made at the meeting and on their impact on TPGSC.

Any adult or girl (14-17 years of age) registered for the 1996 membership year may attend as an official, fulltime visitor. Five Girl Scouts and nine adults from the Texas Plains Council will be traveling to Fort Worth with the three delegates this weekend.

For more information about Girl Scouting or the national convention, contact Stephanie Cross, communications manager, at (806) 356-0096 or 1-800-687-4475.

Lumber company appeals same-sex harassment case to state high court

By ROBIN ESTRIN
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) - The boys-will-be-boys theory of play may have reached its outer limit at a Massachusetts lumber yard.

There, according to a sexual harassment case before the state's highest court, three men say two male supervisors constantly subjected them to raunchy comments and gestures. The company argues the case isn't sexual harassment because all the men involved are heterosexual.

Same-sex sexual harassment is an issue courts around the country have been forced to address, and they have reached conflicting conclusions that ultimately may have to be resolved by the U.S. Supreme Court.

This is the first time the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court has taken up the issue.

In 1989 and 1990, Leonid Melnychenko, James Quill and Stephen LaRochelle, all now in their early 30s, worked at a West Springfield branch of the national chain 84 Lumber Co. All three eventually quit.

The men they accused, Richard Raab and Eliasel Roque, were fired after the allegations were raised.

The employees sued the company, and a state judge awarded each $75,000 in 1993 on the grounds of sexual harassment.

Judge Daniel Ford ruled that the men's sexual orientation was irrelevant and that the real issue was the "intimidating, hostile, humiliating and sexually offensive work environment."

Among other things, the employees said Raab grabbed their genitals, fondled their buttocks, exposed himself to them and asked for sexual favors. Raab announced over the lumber yard's loudspeaker that Quill had given him sexual favors, and he taunted Quill's girlfriend, according to court documents.

Two of the employees claimed to be so psychologically damaged they ended up in therapy.

The lumber company, which is based near Pittsburgh, said that it doesn't condone such behavior but that 84 Lumber would be liable for same-gender sexual harassment only if gay men had harassed heterosexual men, or vice-versa.

"It's locker room conduct" and the victims have a case under workers' compensation law, but it's not sexual harassment, said Jay Presser, one of the company's lawyers.

He said sexual discrimination laws should be "aimed at enhancing the opportunities for people who have traditionally not been in the workplace."

Lawyers for the three employees said the case is clearly sexual harassment, no matter what the sexual orientation or gender of those involved.

The lumber company "would want you to believe that this is the kind of stuff guys do," said the employees' lawyer Timothy Ryan, who argued the case before the high court Wednesday.

Massachusetts law defines sexual harassment as any unwelcome sexual advances or requests for sexual favors, and makes no distinction for gender.

Federal law also makes no gender distinctions, but federal judges have arrived at differing decisions as to whether someone can be sexually harassed by a person of the same sex, said

Elizabeth Bartholet, who teaches employment discrimination at Harvard Law School.

Mary Bonauto, a lawyer with Gay & Lesbian Advocates & Defenders, said she fears same-sex harassment cases will turn into witch hunts if they are permitted to hinge on the sexual preference of those involved.

"When it comes to how men treat women for the most part now, people get it that men aren't supposed to be asking women for sex to keep their jobs," said Bonauto, who filed a friend-of-the-court brief in favor of the employees. "We think the same rules should apply when it's a man against a man."

Last week in Chicago, a federal judge ruled a former convenience store worker who says his male boss kissed and grabbed him while making degrading sexual remarks could not collect damages under civil rights law.

U.S. District Judge Charles R. Norgle said same-gender sexual harassment is not a basis for court action under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

Both Clinton, Dole make American family, children key campaign issue

By MAGGIE JACKSON
AP Business Writer

Politicians love to cuddle babies. But President Clinton and Republican Bob Dole are giving more than a passing campaign kiss to kids.

It's more like a bear hug for the entire family.

In speech after speech, stop after stop, both Dole and Clinton and their running mates and wives are placing family concerns center stage - from time off work for doctors appointments to $500 per child tax credits.

It's no coincidence that key voter groups - women and aging baby boomers - worry deeply about such bread-and-butter issues. And despite a rosy economy, national anxiety about families and their futures is burgeoning.

It really is extraordinary, how the combination of families and children have come to be the conceptual touchstone for so much of the rhetoric and so many of the proposals in this campaign," says Charles O. Jones, a political science professor at the University of Wisconsin.

"But it's logical. So many of the crucial problems we're facing involve kids."

Like many Americans, Clinton and Dole have had their share of family troubles. Clinton, while successfully sheltering daughter Chelsea from politics, has admitted to past marriage difficulties.

Dole is close to his only daughter Robin and his wife Elizabeth is a political asset. Yet he recalls that in his first marriage, which ended in divorce, he ate only Christmas and Easter dinners with his family one year.

Even now, Dole isn't seen as much of a father figure by the public. A majority of Americans would rather leave their children with Clinton than with the 73-year-old former Kansas senator, according to a poll.

Another poll, by the Gallup organization, found that the issues of crime and schooling were higher priorities in swaying voters than the economy or the availability of jobs.

And a survey by the independent Pew Research Center showed Clinton led Dole 50 percent to 36 percent among 1,500 adults who were asked which candidate would protect and strengthen families best.

For Clinton, the topic is familiar territory.

The first bill he signed was the Family and Medical Leave Act, which gives parents unpaid time off from work to care for a relative. Now he wants to expand the act to include short-term visits to the doctor or dentist.

In four years, Clinton also expanded the earned income tax credit - a rebate for low-income working families; offered proposals to keep children from smoking; signed bills that ensure two-day hospital stays for new mothers; and raised the minimum wage. In his campaign, he is proposing $110 billion in tax cuts aimed at helping working families, including up to $10,000 in annual tax deductions for college expenses.

"Our first challenge is to cherish our children and to strengthen our families," Clinton said in his 1996 State of the Union speech. "If we have stronger families, we will have a stronger America."

Ailing Zapatista commander heads for capital

SAN CRISTOBAL DE LAS CASAS, Mexico (AP) - A mortally ill rebel commander moved today to fulfill her dying wish, making the Zapatista guerrilla movement's first open trip to the capital to speak to the Indians of all Mexico.

Chants of "Viva!" rose from several hundred flag-waving supporters Thursday as federal legislators escorted Commandante Ramona - visibly frail and said to be dying of cancer - into church offices beside this city's Roman Catholic cathedral.

Signs reading "Ramona, Sweet Rebel" decorated the walls.

Government officials who had earlier said such visits violate a federal amnesty law for the rebels of the southern state of Chiapas agreed to allow Ramona to address a national indigenous peoples' conference in Mexico City.

The mostly Indian Zapatista rebels took up arms on Jan. 1, 1994, demanding greater democracy and Indian rights. At least 145 people died in brief fighting before a cease-fire was called.

The group has spent the past 2 1/2 years attempting to build a political base from a remote corner of southern Mexico with no phone lines, hemmed in by army troops.

Ramona's trip gives the Zapatista National Liberation

Army a forum in Mexico's capital for the first time - but the agreement prevented a larger group of rebels from coming to Mexico City.

"There were no victors nor vanquished ... there was a compromise," said congressman Jose Narro Cespedes, chairman of the legislative commission that brokered the deal.

He said it would "strengthen the process of dialogue" between the rebels and government, which has broken down in recent weeks.

Rebel leader Subcommandante Marcos praised the government's decision to allow the visit, saying it boded well for attempts to revive peace talks.

Former defense minister acquitted in murder trial

DURBAN, South Africa (AP) - Former Defense Minister Magnus Malan and all his co-defendants were acquitted today of murder and conspiracy charges in South Africa's biggest post-apartheid political trial.

Malan, the highest ranking apartheid official to face charges for combating opponents of white rule, stood and smiled when Justice Jan Hugo announced the verdict in the Durban Supreme Court.

"All accused are not guilty," Hugo said, completing a verdict that took two days to read after a seven-month trial.

Malan praised President Nelson Mandela for refusing to intervene in the case when former white leaders asked him to grant Malan amnesty.

"Due to him, we were able to defend ourselves in a court of law," he said. "All those who believe in democracy can begin to have hope in the future. Truth has prevailed."

Travel agent convicted of promoting child-sex tours

OLONGAPO, Philippines (AP) - A British travel agent was sentenced to 16 years in prison today for promoting child sex tours in the Philippines.

The evidence presented against Michael Clarke included a brochure he allegedly distributed in London for an adult tour package to "Sin City" and the "OK Corral," where "dozens of headstrong young fillies are tethered."

A spokesman for a London-based church group testified Clarke had personally offered him sex with a child prostitute. Clarke, 50, of Eastbourne, Sussex said he will appeal the verdict. It was the third conviction of a foreigner in a 14-month government campaign against child abuse.

Catholic bishop, exiled activist awarded Nobel Peace Prize for easing conflict in East Timor

OSLO, Norway (AP) — A Roman Catholic bishop and an exiled activist won the Nobel Peace Prize today for their work to peacefully end conflict in East Timor, their island homeland which was annexed by Indonesia in 1975.

Indonesia expressed "regret" at the decision to honor Bishop Carlos Filipe Ximenes Belo and Jose Ramos-Horta.

The committee accused Indonesia of persecuting the people of East Timor and said it hoped the prize would increase pressure for change.

It said the prize was given to the two men in hopes it would "spur efforts to find a diplomatic solution to the conflict in East Timor based on the people's right to self-determination."

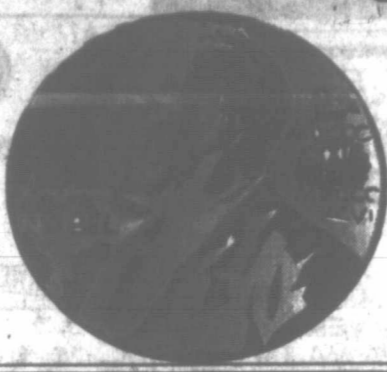

The committee called the residents of East Timor "a small but oppressed people." Indonesia invaded predominantly Roman Catholic East Timor in 1975.

"I hope that this award is not only a personal gain for me, that it will help the struggle of the people of East Timor," exiled resistance leader Ramos-Horta told the Australia Broadcasting Corp. "I was already very confident that the next two or three years are going to be a turning point in our struggle."

Belo reportedly was celebrating Mass in the East Timor city of Dili at the time of the announcement.

The committee said, "In 1975, Indonesia took control of East Timor and began systematically oppressing the people. In the years that followed it has been estimated that one-third of the population of East Timor lost their lives to starvation, epidemics, war and terror."

A former Portuguese colony, East Timor is located midway between the Indonesia island of Java and the northwestern tip of Australia. Indonesia troops took control during a raging civil war, but the United Nations still recognizes Portugal as the territory's administrator.

Ramos-Horta was foreign minister of the government that briefly ruled between Portugal's withdrawal from the island and the occupation by Indonesian troops. He has lived in exile since Indonesia took over the territory.

"This was about to become a forgotten conflict, and we wanted to contribute to maintaining momentum (towards a peaceful solution)," said Francis Sejersted at a news conference following the announcement.

He said the committee was aware of the risk that the prize could trigger a crackdown by the Indonesian government, "but we can also see the possibility of encouraging a peaceful settlement."

Rory Mungoven, program director for Asia at Amnesty International in London, welcomed the award, but also worried about possible consequences.

"We're concerned about what happens next," Mungoven said. "There will be an outpouring, a celebration, on the ground. Our worry is that it will be met with repression."

The Vatican welcomed the news with "deepest satisfaction."

"It is my wish that this may contribute ... to concrete results that respect the rights of peoples," said Vatican spokesman Joaquin Navarro-Valls. He said the prize was recognition of Bishop Belo's work as a "man of the Church characterized by an untiring search for dialogue always directed at peaceful solutions."

In Jakarta, foreign office spokesman Ghaffar Fadyil said the people of East Timor authorized the integration with Indonesia through their legislature in 1976.

"We are quite surprised and regret that such a reputable institution could award a person like Ramos-Horta, who had been clearly involved in inciting and manipulating the people of East Timor to separate from the unitary republic of Indonesia," Fadyil said.

Ramos-Horta and Belo will share a peace prize award of $1.12 million.

This year's Nobel Peace Prize had led to greater-than-usual speculation before today's announcement.

U.S. peace envoy for Bosnia Richard Holbrooke, former President Jimmy Carter and Chinese dissident Wei Jingsheng were thought to be among the top contenders for the award, along with Belo.

Carter has been a seven-time nominee for the prize but never a winner. Holbrooke, the U.S. peace envoy, was considered a favorite by some for brokering the Dayton peace accord that stopped nearly four years of warfare in Bosnia-Herzegovina.

The five-member peace prize committee often angers governments by using the prize to push for human rights, democracy and the resolution of conflicts.

The Nobel prizes are always awarded on the Dec. 10 anniversary of the death of Alfred Nobel, the Swede who invented dynamite and endowed the prizes in his 1895 will. The peace prize, first awarded in 1901, is presented in Oslo, and the other Nobel prizes in Stockholm, Sweden.

Blind man kills robber with martial arts training

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Courtney Beswick couldn't see his assailant, but the blind man used his martial arts training to flip the attacker over his shoulder and place him in a wrestling hold until police arrived.

The would-be robber was declared dead at the hospital, but police say charges probably won't be filed because Beswick acted in self defense Wednesday. Neighbors say the dead man had bullied Beswick, 28 — blind since birth.

"Courtney said he asked the guy to leave him alone more than once," Barbara Harper said. "He told the guy that he wasn't giving him his money, but the man kept bothering him."

The dead man, Anthony Ervin, had been arrested eight times in the last nine years on assorted robbery, weapons and assault charges, police said.

Reached at home, Beswick said he was not injured, but would not otherwise discuss what happened. In 1987, he was named Most Valuable Wrestler for the Eastern Atlantic Association for Schools for the Blind.

"He's a good guy," neighbor Kareem White said. "Nobody ever picks on him or anything. But this guy did, and he got what he deserved."

Suburb's police force indicted on corruption charges

CHICAGO (AP) — The latest crime sweep in the impoverished Chicago suburb of Ford Heights resulted in the arrests of most of the town's police officers, who were accused of taking bribes from drug dealers.

Four officers and two former officers were charged Thursday with accepting tens of thousands of dollars from the dealers.

"What they were providing was a classic protection racket," U.S. Attorney Jim Burns said.

A third former officer was accused of setting fire to his private car and then filing false police reports to collect insurance money. All seven suspects were in custody.

Ford Heights is one of the nation's poorest areas, with rampant crime and an average household income of about $14,000 in 1990. Police pay starts at about $6 an hour and tops out at $20,000 annually.

Bosnia: Cave yields ghastly human remains

KLJUC, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Fifty feet straight down, it is dark and wet and the cave floor is full of bodies. Some were dumped in a sitting position, some kneeling. All are thought to be Muslims killed by Serbs.

A few miles away, a cold school gym smells of death. Other bodies, lifeless for more than four years, are lined up on the floor. Relatives seeking to end the anguish of uncertainty look for a bit of clothing or paper, watches or even pencils that they recognize.

Since last week, Bosnian officials have been excavating some of the most gruesome mass graves anyone has found so far in Bosnia.

They are located in parts of western Bosnia captured from Serbs just before fighting stopped a year ago. Survivors say the victims were rounded up by local Serbs on June 1, 1992, and shot. They say the cave at Laniste and a nearby meadow hold some of the biggest mass graves in the area.

So far, 70 bodies have been pulled from the cave and laid out on the muddy grass nearby. None have been identified.

Workers also have found two plastic bags neatly tied — each containing a human head pierced with nails. It's not certain whose heads they were, or how many more bodies are there.

Seventy-nine bodies — those taken to the school gym — were unearthed from the meadow. Last week, dozens of bodies were taken from a third site, including those of women and children. A baby bottle and pacifier were found on the site.

Workers, dressed just in sweaters and trousers, are soaking wet when they come out of the cave, a natural depression 109-feet deep and about 15 feet across. They seemed on the verge of collapsing.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

ONE OF KING DAVID'S ENEMIES!

HADADEZER, KING OF ZOBAB IN SYRIA, (II SAM. 8:3) WAS A SWORN ENEMY OF KING DAVID OF ISRAEL! WHEN GOING, WITH HIS ARMY, TO RECOVER HIS BORDER AT THE RIVER EUPHRATES, HE WAS MET AND DEFEATED BY KING DAVID. THIS DEFEAT WAS A MAJOR ONE, FOR KING DAVID CAPTURED A THOUSAND CHARIOTS, AND 700 HORSEMEN, AND 20,000 FOOTMEN! (II SAM. 8:4) NOT ONLY THAT BUT, WHEN A FORCE OF SYRIANS FROM DAMASCUS ARRIVED TOO LATE TO HELP KING HADADEZER, KING DAVID'S ARMY SLEW 22,000 OF THEM! DAVID TOOK MANY GOLD SHIELDS AS TROPHIES OF WAR AND SENT THEM TO JERUSALEM, AND ALSO FROM THE CITIES OF HADADEZER, MUCH BRASS AND COPPER! AT A LATER DATE, KING HADADEZER CONSPIRED WITH THE AMMONITES TO RENEW HIS WAR WITH DAVID! HE GATHERED SOME LESSER KINGS TO HELP HIM--BUT DAVID STILL PREVAILED AND DEFEATED THE COMBINED FORCES TO THE TUNE OF SOME 40,000 SOLDIERS SLAIN, INCLUDING THE COMMANDING GENERAL, SHOBACH! AFTER THIS THE DEPENDENT KINGS, WHO HAD SERVED HADADEZER, ALL MADE PEACE WITH DAVID AND THIS WAS THE LAST HEARD ABOUT KING HADADEZER! (II SAM. 10:6-19)

FROM THE BACK PEW

By CHERYL BERZANSKIS
Religion Editor

A peek in the prayer closet of The Average Christian:
"Dear God,"
I wonder if So-and-So called today.
"Thank you for the blessings of the day."
I wonder if Number One Husband picked up the dry cleaning.
"Thank you for my friends."
If he didn't, I'm gonna be really mad.
"Thank you for good health."
I need that dress at the cleaners.
"Help me focus on you, God, while I pray."
I wonder if I remembered to tell The Boss I was leaving early tomorrow.
"God, bless my children."
Hey, reckon why Number One Son hasn't called in a week.
"Please help him in school."
Oh, yeah, I'm supposed to mail him his insurance receipt. Better write that down before I forget.
"And help Number Two Son to make friends at school."
I need to check to see when his finals are over at Christmas so we can get him an airline ticket.
"Thank you Number One Daughter has so many good friends."
Except the lot of them are more interested in their social lives than school work.
"Help me be a good wife."
Ha! If Number One Husband only realized what a good deal he has now.
"And a good Christian."
That's a joke. I'm not even sure what that means.
"Amen."

Does this sound familiar?
A wandering mind, near total absence of worship and thanksgiving, and shallow supplication on the order of "God bless Mommy, God bless Daddy," are nearly too close to the truth for comfort.

Settling down to pray, to commune with God, listen to His voice and share His heart are nearly impossible for man - at least for those less disciplined and devoted than the saints. When I go before the throne sounding like the grown up version of "God is great, God is good," I feel frustrated guilty and a little cheated.

I mean well; I'm trying. Why can't I just settle down and concentrate on God without thinking about everything else? What a waste of time.

For more than a month I've been luxuriating through Gordon MacDonald's Ordering Your Private World and cherishing nearly every word. This week's jewel is about prayer - this guy has been listening to my "God is great" prayer life.

MacDonald says, "Men and women were originally created to desire communion with God. But the effects of sin have dulled most of that original human desire. Sin turned a natural activity into an unnatural function. ... My suspicion is that when sin affected man so deeply, it touched his spiritual dimensions most severely of all, while leaving the original physical appetites and desires virtually undiminished."

MacDonald has hit the mark. Sin drives a wedge between God and man. Isn't it reasonable the spiritual nature would be effected first?

To commune with God in one's deepest soul requires one's heart to be most in line with God's. That communion requires humility to bow and worship, patience to listen for God's voice and a desire to see the world through spiritual eyes.

No wonder it is easier to limit one's devotional efforts to "God bless Mommy" talk.

Program brings church volunteers into public schools

By MATT KELLEY
Associated Press Writer

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — The second day of school was hectic enough for Washington Elementary School Principal Toni Nale before the sad-faced 12-year-old in the Chicago Bulls T-shirt showed up in her office.

On the verge of tears, he begged Nale to let him return to her school, not the one he transferred to after his mother moved across town this summer. At Washington, he had begun turning away from the lure of the streets, and the prospect of going to a new school was earthshaking.

The Rev. Eugene Green arrived just after Nale had called the boy's probation officer to take the child back to the school he had skipped.

It was the first day of the One Church, One School project in Decatur, a plan to have local churches "adopt" a public school and provide volunteers to help children. Green was there to work as a mentor and role model for students like the boy in the Bulls shirt.

"How would you like to know that you have someone in your corner?" Green asked in a quiet voice as Nale held the boy's quivering arm. "How would you like to have someone who cares about you, to talk about your problems? Would you let me be that person?"

The boy was skeptical. "I dunno," he said in a barely audible quaver as he stared at his hands.

"You don't know. That's understandable, because you don't know me. You don't know where I'm coming from," Green said. "So let me tell you a little bit about myself."

Green talked about growing up in foster care, about getting help from others and dedicating himself to giving that help back.

The minister heard about the boy's problems with fighting, stealing and running the streets. About his indifferent mother, who didn't fill out the forms to have him remain at Washington despite the move. About his violent brother, recently returned from a stint in Stateville Correctional Center.

Eventually, the boy accepted Green's offer. They shook hands before the boy and his probation officer left for the new school.

"There's no way I'm going to let a young person end up on a slab in the morgue because of a lack of education," Green had said earlier, while explaining his plans.

Green, pastor of the Trinity Christian Methodist Episcopal Church, a block from Washington Elementary, organized the One Church, One School program in Decatur. The project is modeled after similar programs in Chicago and Gary, Ind., started by the Rev. Henry Williamson, former director of the civil rights group Operation PUSH.

Green's church has adopted Washington Elementary and the nearby Johns Hill Magnet School, which offers enhanced education, including French, music and computer science instruction for students through eighth grade. Volunteers will provide classroom help for teachers and tutoring services for students, such as helping non-English-speaking students with language skills.

Green already has lined up support from public officials, including Decatur school Superintendent Kenneth Arndt and Mayor Terry Howley. Teachers and principals also are enthusiastic.

"We don't get the parental involvement that we desperately need," said Nale, whose inner-city school has 541 students, about 85 percent of them poor enough to qualify for free lunches. "We need people who can give to kids, and that's what I see One Church, One School doing."

While acknowledging the partnership between church and state could make some civil libertarians nervous, Green said the program has strict controls to avoid religious influences on students. Volunteers in the program are warned not to lead prayers, discuss the Bible, have children read religious tracts or otherwise use their time for proselytizing, he said.

"We're not going in there to religiousize anybody. We're a tool for the school to use as they see fit," Green said.

Johns Hill Magnet School Principal Sue Henseler said she's comfortable with the church-school partnership.

"We accept in this country a Judeo-Christian belief as far as how we treat people," she said. "I think we have lost some of that loving, caring feeling. ... These people will be showing how to treat others with respect. Not in a preaching way, but in a showing and doing way."

Back at Washington, teacher Sandy Henry is grateful for the help from volunteer LaVerta Dobbins. Henry, normally a substitute, was drafted to take a class of first- and second-graders when their original teacher was abruptly transferred to another school.

"I would take as many volunteers as I could," Henry said.

Dobbins, a retired teacher, said returning to the classroom is a natural way to share her talents.

"Kids need to learn that they must follow rules," she said. "I think this will rub off on the community."

Family Is Hot About Son Who Rekindles Old Flame

DEAR ABBY: A year ago, my son learned that a girl he had dated in high school 30 years ago was living about an hour's drive from where he lived. He hadn't seen or heard from "Susan" since he joined the Air Force in 1986. When he heard that she was in the hospital recovering from heart surgery, he went to see her. Well, that was the end of his marriage to "Jan," a kind, loving wife and mother.

He left a wonderful wife for a selfish, conniving divorced woman. I still consider Jan my daughter-in-law. Never will I accept the home-wrecker he married. He has alienated himself from his brothers and parents.

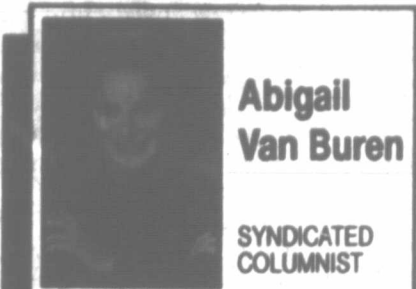

Abby, please tell people who feel nostalgic never to rekindle an old flame. The fire my son started has burned his entire family. Now, we have only ashes for memories.

Jan still is considered a member of our family. She always is included in family gatherings. He is not even invited.

BITTER IN OHIO

DEAR BITTER: Although your relationship with your former daughter-in-law was a good one, all could not have been rosy between your son and Jan. Had his marriage been solid, he would not have been tempted by his old flame.

Please talk to your son. Perhaps he had good reason to leave Jan for Susan. If so, be more supportive of his choice and more accepting of Susan. You can remain friends with Jan and include her occasionally, but in the interest of family harmony, make time for your son and his present wife.

DEAR ABBY: I am 60 years old. Somewhere in the past, I acquired the habit of pushing my plate toward the center of the table when I finished eating.

My ladyfriend, who was born and educated in England, says this really gets on her nerves.

I never noticed it before because I have always thought it was proper — that it signals to the server that you are finished with that course. Please advise.

SERIOUS IN BOSTON

DEAR SERIOUS: Pushing one's plate toward the center of the table is not proper. To signal the server that you have finished eating and are ready to have your plate removed, place your knife and fork together diagonally across the upper right corner of the rim of your plate. The knife blade should face inward and the fork should be on the inside.

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column, Mrs. Mamie Geraci of Metairie, La., explained how her late husband, an embalmer, removed rings from the deceased. She said the technique also would work on the living.

When I was 14, my mother gave me an amethyst for Christmas. I have worn it for almost half a century. As the decades passed, my fingers grew fatter and the ring became more and more difficult to remove. Several years ago, it would no longer come off. It was becoming painful, but I didn't want to destroy it by cutting it off.

My wife and I tried Mrs. Geraci's solution, which worked in less than a minute. I am so happy to have the ring off, with both it and my finger still intact.

Thank you for a practical but little-known tip.

VOLLEYBALL

BRISCOE — Fort Elliott beat Trinity Fellowship, 15-10, 14-6, 15-8, in area volleyball action earlier this week.

Susie Luttrell and April Purcell paced the Lady Cougars in service points.

"We had several players hit the ball well," said Fort Elliott coach Dave Johnson. "It was a pretty good team effort. We looked better than we have been."

The Lady Cougars are now 11-10 on the season. They open the district season this week-end in Lefors.

The Pampa Lady Harvesters have an open date this Saturday. Their next match is Tuesday night against Dumas at Dumas.

Pampa, 15-8 overall, holds down third place in the District 1-3A standings with a 5-3 record.

FOOTBALL

PORTALES, N.M. — Although the Eastern New Mexico University team is struggling with a 1-4 record, Pampa brothers Andy and Tony Cavalier have played some impressive football for the Greyhounds.

Andy, who is 16 months older than Tony, plays quarterback and leads ENMU in total offense with 432 yards rushing and passing. In a 25-6 loss to Abilene Christian last week, Cavalier led in total offense with 98 yards passing and 32 on the ground.

Tony, at cornerback, has 17 tackles and one interception this season.

Both brothers played for their father, Dennis Cavalier, head football coach and athletic director at Pampa High School.

Andy is starting his third season as the Greyhounds' quarterback. Tony is in his first season on the team after playing at Pittsburg State in Kansas the past two years. Tony was a member of the Pittsburg State team which advanced to the NCAA Division Two championship game last season.

Freshman linebacker Floyd White, also of Pampa, is on the Greyhounds' roster.

ENMU plays at Angelo State University Saturday.

GOLF

NEW YORK (AP) — Make it official. Tiger Woods is even richer.

Woods, the 20-year-old sensation who won in just his fifth start as a professional, finalized an equipment deal with Acushnet on Thursday said to be worth $20 million over five years.

The agreement to play Titleist balls, Titleist and Cobra clubs, and carry a Titleist bag was in addition to the endorsement deal Woods has with Nike believed to be worth $40 million over five years.

Woods agreed to play Acushnet products when he turned professional in August, but the deal was not completed until Thursday.

Responding to speculation that both deals contained performance clauses common in such deals, Hughes Norton, a senior official for Woods' agency, International Management Group, said last month: "The first three years of both agreements are 100 percent payable to Tiger, regardless of how he plays golf."

Norton did not comment on what variables were contained in the last two years of each deal.

Acushnet, a division of American Brands, Inc., did not disclose terms of what it referred to only as "a multi-year deal." But a source familiar with the situation said the Acushnet deal was worth "20 over five," referring to the $20 million, five-year deal.

A second source also familiar with the deal confirmed that number. Neither source would say if it was fully guaranteed.

Acushnet CEO Wally Uihlein called Woods, "a man of the next millennium" and said the company would work with Woods to "develop golf balls and golf clubs built to his specifications that allow him to be the best player that he can be."

Harvesters face improved Eagles in district contest

By L.D. STRATE
Sports Editor

PAMPA — Will the third time be the winning charm for Canyon?

Since joining District 1-4A in 1994, the Eagles have lost to Pampa by scores of 28-7 and 63-14. This season may be Canyon's best opportunity yet to break into the win column when the two teams meet at 7:30 tonight in Harvester Stadium.

"Canyon has a good football team this year and they're very well-coached. What a lot of people don't realize is this year's senior class has been Canyon's team the last three years," said Pampa head coach Dennis Cavalier. "This team has made a lot of progress. Coach (Bill) Patterson has come in and really put things together."

The Eagles opened some eyes by defeating Borger, 14-12, last Friday night in their district opener. Canyon and Randall, both 1-0, and Pampa, 2-0, are the district's three unbeaten teams.

Jason Rahifs (165-pound senior) quarterbacks Canyon's multiple offense and has thrown for 316 yards and two touchdowns while averaging 6.3 yards per carry.

"Rahifs is a lefty who runs and throws the ball well," Cavalier said. "They have an excellent offensive line. They're not big, but they execute very well."

Canyon running backs Cory Stone (160-pound senior) and Brian Hughes (180-pound senior) have combined for 457 yards rushing and four touchdowns.

"Stone is the fastest of the two while Hughes is their power guy," Cavalier said. "They mix it up (pass-rush) pretty good."

Canyon's defense, which utilizes a multiple front (4 linemen, 4 linebackers), is led by 170-pound senior linebacker John Ayers and 175-pound senior cornerback Joe Cuellas. Ayers has 56 tackles and Cuellas 52.

"Their defense does a lot of stunting and they move around quite a bit," Cavalier said. "Most of them are one-way players."

This week Cavalier has gone about the business of replacing versatile senior J.J. Mathis, who sustained a broken leg last week against Hereford.

"J.J. played a variety of different roles for us and we believe we've got everyone set to take his place in the lineup," Cavalier said.

Mathis, who started at flanker and free safety, was operating in the alternate running back position when he was injured. He also returned punts and kickoffs. Aaron Wiseman (185-pound senior) will alternate at running back with Marques Long (180-pound senior).

Devin Lemons (215-pound senior) will take Mathis' place on kickoff returns while Ray Tollerson (160-pound senior) will be the punt return man. Cavalier will go with 160-pound sophomore Justin Roark (160-pound sophomore) at the starting flanker spot. Tollerson and Ryan Schumacher (165-pound senior) will alternate at flanker.

Despite the loss of Mathis, Cavalier said the Harvesters' spirits are high going into tonight's game.

"It's past the midpoint of the season and there's some wear and tear on the team, but the spirits are high," Cavalier said. "We're missing some guys we were counting on like Clint Curtis and J.J., but they're prepared to keep on going."

Harvester notes: Through the first five games of the season, Pampa's most productive quarter has been the second with 47 points scored. The least points allowed has been the third quarter with 7. The Harvesters are scoring 22.6 points per game while giving up 11.8. In first downs, Pampa has produced 80 compared to 61 for the opponents. Senior linebacker Ryan Bruce was the leading tackler against Hereford with 4 solos and 9 assisted tackles. Junior quarterback Josh Blackmon has completed 40.4 percent (23 of 57) of his passes this season. As a kicker, he's been successful on 6 of 8 field goal attempts and 11 of 13 extra point attempts. In penalties, Pampa has been flagged 49 times for 381 yards. It's 35 for 273 yards for opponents.

Cardinals pound Braves

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — One big swing by Gary Gaetti and all of a sudden the NL championship series has a whole new look.

The St. Louis Cardinals showed they belonged in this thing, too, becoming the first team to beat the Atlanta Braves this October with an 8-3 win Thursday night that tied the best-of-7 series at 1-1.

Gaetti hit a grand slam off Greg Maddux in the seventh inning, capping a five-run burst that sent many fans in the sellout crowd of 52,067 heading to the exits.

"It's tough to come in here and beat the Braves," Gaetti said. "I'd heard they hadn't lost a game here in... Whatever it is, it's sweet."

The defending World Series champions had won eight straight postseason games in Atlanta. Now, the Braves head to Busch Stadium, where they were 6-0 this season, for Game 3.

Donovan Osborne will start for St. Louis against Tom Glavine on Saturday.

"It's a five-game series now," he said. "I don't think anybody expected to win them all."

No, but with the way the Braves were pitching in the playoffs, it seemed like this series might be over soon.

Instead, the Cardinals became the latest team to cause trouble for Maddux in the postseason, tagging him for a career high-tying eight runs — albeit all five in the seventh were unearned because of third baseman Chipper Jones' throwing error.

Maddux is a four-time Cy Young winner, yet is just 5-4 with a 4.14 ERA in 11 postseason starts. And of the five slams hit in the NL playoffs, two have come off Maddux, odd because he's allowed only one in 2,365 2-3 innings in regular season games.

"You don't really have that many innings in the postseason, so maybe the numbers look inflated," Maddux said.

Maddux had been 6-0 with an 0.79 ERA in his last eight starts against the Cardinals. But this time St. Louis came in with a plan that worked.

The Cardinals, starting their runners often and trying to take Maddux to the opposite field, scratched out an early 3-0 lead. After Atlanta came back to tie it, helped by Marquis Grissom's fourth homer this year off winner Todd Stottlemyre, Gaetti broke it open with the Cardinals' first home run of the series.

"A lot of people have seen Atlanta play in the postseason. Not as many people have seen us play," Cardinals manager Tony La Russa said. "A lot of people don't know we're legitimate competitors."

The fans at Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium found out. The seats were almost all full, compared to the 3,000 empty ones for the opener.

Stottlemyre gave up an RBI single in the sixth to Ryan Klesko that made it 3-1, but escaped further trouble when he retired Jermaine Dye on a pop up with the bases loaded and struck out pinch-hitter Terry Pendleton with his last pitch of the evening.

"When Todd limited all that potential damage to just one, it was one of the biggest lifts of the ballgame," La Russa said.

With the score 3-1, Mike Gallego led off the seventh with a single that nearly hit Maddux in the head, the ball deflecting off the glove of the seven-time Gold Glove winner for a single.

La Russa, criticized for not ordering a bunt in the seventh inning of a tie game Wednesday night, asked pinch-hitter Mark Sweeney to sacrifice.

Sweeney popped up his bunt, which Jones trapped with a dive. Jones threw over little second baseman Mark Lemke covering first, putting runners at second and third and setting up the big inning.

In Game 1, the Cardinals botched a bunt by Jones, costing them a 4-2 loss. Jones, by the way, later left Game 2 with a bruised left ankle, hurt when he fouled a ball off his foot.

Ray Lankford put St. Louis ahead 4-3 with a sacrifice fly. With two outs, Maddux intentionally walked Brian Jordan to load the bases.

Gaetti wasted no time, lining the first pitch over the left-field fence. Maddux shouted, La Russa put his hand over his heart and the Cardinals celebrated.

"I needed to make one more pitch to Gaetti," Maddux said. "First pitch slider. Real good, huh? Must have hung a lot."

Gaetti, confirming the scouting report on him, was ready to swing right away, especially against Maddux.

"I just know you take a lot of pitches off that guy," he said. "You can't get too deep in the count or he'll make you look silly."

Stars skate past Rangers, 2-1

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Rangers could use a kick-start the way they've been playing these days, and they almost got one from Adam Graves' skate.

As it was, an apparent goal for the Rangers was ruled illegal by officials Thursday night, and the Dallas Stars walked off with a 2-1 victory over the struggling Rangers.

"We have to find ways to score," Rangers coach Colin Campbell said. "So far, scoring has been a problem."

At least the Rangers have an excuse for the last two games when they have totaled but two goals. Captain Mark Messier, their leading scorer last season, was serving the second game of a suspension for a hitting-rough-behind penalty on Mike Hough in last Sunday's game against Florida.

Wayne Gretzky, Messier's old pal from their Edmonton days, did manage to score his first goal for the Rangers on Thursday night.

Orioles, Yanks tied at one game each

NEW YORK (AP) — This time, no little kids stole the game. This time, the record-setting power was enough. This time, the New York Yankees didn't manage a movie-script comeback.

"We should be going home 2-0," Rafael Palmeiro said after his two-run homer in the seventh led David Wells and the Orioles to a 5-3 victory Thursday that tied the AL championship series 1-1.

"We'll take a split," he said, echoing the thoughts of many relieved Orioles. "That was the goal coming in. We're going home for three days."

When the series resumes tonight at Camden Yards, Mike Mussina will pitch for Baltimore against Jimmy Key, Roberto Alomar will finally get some cheers and the Yankees won't be able to count on a glove in the stands.

Just in case the Orioles tried to forget, Jeff Maier sat in a first-row seat behind the Yankees dugout, courtesy of the New York Daily News. The 12-year-old created the game-tying homer in Game 1 when he reached out of the stands to grab Derek Jeter's fly ball to right fielder Tony Tarasco and umpire Rich Garcia failed to call fan interference.

The Yankees won in extra innings, and the kid was given just about every honor New York has to offer short of a ticker-tape parade down Broadway.

On Thursday, Maier was among a crowd of 56,432 in Yankee Stadium that again chanted profanities at Roberto Alomar, who doubled ahead of Palmeiro's go-ahead homer off Jeff Nelson.

"This is the toughest place to play," Palmeiro said. "I believe their crowd really does a great job in getting excited, getting their team excited. I just hope our fans watching can do the same things to them."

Orioles manager Davey Johnson, still burnt by Wednesday's loss, had the same thoughts.

"I'm sure there'll be a lot of kids hanging over the fence with their gloves when we return to Camden Yards," he said.

Huston, Heinen tie for lead in Texas Open

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — What a difference a tee time makes.

John Huston and Mike Heinen played early and shot 6-under-par 66s to tie for the first-round lead of the Texas Open, then predicted golfers later in the day would have more difficulty as the greens at La Cantera Golf Club got drier and firmer.

They were right. "The greens were a little tricky," said Tiger Woods, who teed off in the afternoon and finished with a 69.

David Frost and Hugh Royer III were one stroke behind the leaders, while John Morse, Mark Calcavecchia, Kelly Gibson, Mike Hulbert and Woody Austin were at 68 following Thursday's round.

Tray Tyner, J.L. Lewis, Brian Claar and Donnie Hammond — the 1989 Texas Open winner — were at 69 along with Woods.

Play was suspended because of darkness before four golfers could finish for the day. None was among the leaders.

Huston, 35th on the PGA Tour money list with $463,717, is battling to reach the top 30 and qualify for the season-ending Tour Championship. He got off to a quick start with eagles on the par-4 second hole and the par-5 fifth. He had two birdies the rest of the way.

"Keeping it in the fairway will be the key to the week," said Huston, who originally hadn't planned to play in the Texas Open.

"I decided to come here because I needed to," he said. "I still have a chance to finish in the top 30."

Heinen, meanwhile, needs to win a tournament to get another two-year tour exemption. After staying even on the first four holes, Heinen made a 12-foot putt for an eagle on the fifth, then made four birdies on the back nine. He capped off his round with a 12-foot birdie putt on 18.

"I feel like it's coming around, and I'm hoping this will be the week," Heinen said.

Douglas has rushed for 317 yards on 60 carries this season. Both teams have 3-1 records. Nebraska is 1-0 in conference play and Baylor is 0-1.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

SOONER NOTEBOOK

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — When it comes to recruiting against Texas, Oklahoma football coach John Blake isn't sure the outcome of the annual game against the Longhorns means that much.

For example, he said this week, if the heavily favored Longhorns were to win by just a field goal on Saturday, "it might help this football team in recruiting."

So a loss could help. How about a win? "If we go out there and win that game and Texas loses, and they have more talent, a team that's put together in more years, we might help our recruiting," he said.

So winning this game can help? Not necessarily. "The game means a whole lot, but I remember several years when we won that game and recruiting was tough against Texas," Blake said. "I remember years when we won the national championship and recruiting was still tough."

TEXAS JITTERS: Blake has seen his young players make numerous mistakes during Oklahoma's 0-4 start, so he's a bit uneasy about how they will handle the special atmosphere inside the Cotton Bowl.

"There's no question it concerns me, and we're planning on playing some (more) younger kids," he said. "We as coaches are instilling as much confidence in these young kids as we can, and we're practicing as many types of situations as we can, pressure situations."

"There's nothing like being out there on the field playing in front of that crowd, but hopefully we can get out there and they can settle down a little bit and get in sequence and play our kind of football."

Blake is nervous about his first walk down the Cotton Bowl ramp as a head coach? "I don't know if I ever get real nervous," he said. "I'm just kind of anxious to get out there and get the game started and see if my players can go out there and execute and get after it."

ON THEIR OWN: Oklahoma tight end Stephen Alexander believes there's only one way to eliminate the mistakes that have hurt the Sooners this year. And practice isn't it. "I don't think you can try to find a way to eliminate penalties," he said. "It's not something you can go out in practice and say, 'All right, today we're going to try to work on not holding.'"

"I think that's just an instinct with players that they've got to correct. I don't know if you can really prepare to do something like that. I think the player has just got to take it upon himself to get things corrected."

ANOTHER CHANCE: Placekicker Jeremy Alexander wouldn't mind if Saturday's game came down to a field goal try, just as it did last year. "As far as I'm concerned, missing's not in my vocabulary," he said. "I'm going to go in with the same outlook that I do on every field goal that I'm going to make it."

Alexander had a chance to win the game for Oklahoma last year, but his 42-yard field goal in the final minute sailed wide to the left. The game ended in a 24-24 tie.

Alexander, an all-conference kicker last season, is off to a fairly slow start this year. He is just 3-of-6 on field goals, and last week Kansas blocked one and returned it for a touchdown.

"That's not going to get my confidence down in any way because they just blew right through the line," he said. "I'm going to have the same confidence I had last year. I'm not going to go out there with missing in my mind."

OLD TIMERS: Oklahoma quarterback Justin Fuente had not seen much film of the Texas secondary as of early this week, although he knew its reputation. "I know they're excellent," he said. "They're old, they're fast, and some of them are pretty big and will come up and hit you."

Old Fuente meant experienced — the Longhorns' four defensive backs are all seniors, and they have combined to start 109 games during their careers.

49ers-Packers winner could be in Super Bowl

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

It was a game that remains imprinted on the consciousness of the San Francisco 49ers — Green Bay 27, San Francisco 17 last Jan. 6 in what was supposed to be the last step toward yet another San Francisco-Dallas NFC title game.

The result: the Packers entered the season as a bona fide championship contender. They might, in fact, be THE contender as they prepare to play host to the 49ers on Monday night.

"We've been thinking about this game all season," says Jerry Rice, who had eight catches for 117 yards against the Packers last year, but was unable to make the big play that could get the Niners back in the game.

"I've been thinking about it. I played badly."

The Packers are a legitimate 4 1/2-point favorite — a point-and-a-half beyond the home-field advantage figure. The reason: they've been far more impressive going 5-1 than the Niners, whose 4-1 record has been within the NFC West against teams that are a combined 2-14.

San Francisco is likely to be without Steve Young, who seems resigned to resting his injured groin rather than reinjuring it. That means Elvis Grbac, who's becoming Young's equal — Grbac, Young and Detroit's Scott Mitchell are in a tight knot in the NFC quarterback ratings behind Green Bay's Brett Favre, who's out of sight at 116.4.

Green Bay is the better team right now and it's at home, where the only thing going against it is the possibility that one of its key players might get hurt jumping into the stands after scoring.

Don't discount the 49ers — they want the win badly and they have a habit of coming up big in big road games, as they did in Dallas last sea-
