PAMPA — A Pampa man was released on bond Friday evening after a Thursday morning arrest on a narcotics charge.

Justice of the Peace Bob Muns set $15,000 bond on Jorge Luis Cordero, 24, 315 S. Ballard, (a/k/a Juan Manuel Aldaba) Friday afternoon. Cordero stands charged with possession of a controlled substance with intent to deliver.

Cordero was arrested after Pampa police officers and representatives of the Panhandle Regional Narcotics Trafficking Task Force executed a search warrant at the apartment and discovered more than four grams of suspected white powder cocaine and more than $1,000 cash, a department spokesman said.

The estimated value of the cocaine is $400. The suspected cocaine will be transferred to the Department of Public Safety lab for analysis.

The arrest came as the result of information from a confidential informant, the spokesman said.

PAMPA — A woman was uninjured following a Thursday domestic dispute which led police to arrest her husband on a charge of aggravated assault and later possession of a controlled substance under one gram.

William Roudet Britton, 43, was released from Gray County jail in lieu of bonds totaling $45,000 on the two charges.

It is alleged he injured his 35-year-old wife during an altercation about 7 a.m. Thursday morning at 113 S. Dwight, according to police department records.

She later contacted the district attorney with information which led Pampa police and members of the Panhandle Regional Narcotics Trafficking Task Force to conduct a consent search in which they discovered 0.1 gram of suspected heroine and drug paraphernalia, according to police.

Clinton proposes license loss to curb teen drinking

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a pre-election bid to polish his anti-drug credentials Saturday, President Clinton proposed using the loss of teenagers' coveted driver's licenses as a tool to curb youthful drug use and drinking.

Clinton also suggested testing for drug usage every teenage applicant for a driver's license, with licenses denied to those who fail. He said he would hope "the 90 percent who are drug-free" would participate willingly in such a program to enable identification of teens who use drugs.

Clinton declared a new "zero tolerance" regulation for teen drinking and said states that fail to bar young people from drinking and driving will lose a percentage of their federal highway aid.

In his weekly radio address, the president said he has a double-barreled message:

— "If you're under 21 and you drink, you can't drive — period."

— "No drugs — or no driver's license."

Clinton has been hammered repeatedly by Republican presidential candidate Bob Dole for presiding over a sharp increase in drug use by young people.

Commenting for the Dole-Kemp campaign, spokeswoman Christina Martin said: "It's a shame Bill Clinton has been asleep at the wheel of leadership for three years while drug use among 12- to 17-year-olds skyrocketed 105 percent. Today's proposal is simply too little, too late."

In his address, Clinton said he is directing the White House drug policy chief, retired Army Gen. Barry McCaffrey, and Transportation Secretary Federico Pena to develop within 90 days a plan requiring that young people be tested for drugs as a condition of obtaining driver's licenses. He said that might require new legislation.

And he said he would seek the help of the vast majority of American youth who don't use illegal drugs to help identify and change the habits of those who do.

"Let me make one thing clear," Clinton said. "Even though teen drug use is up, all the evidence is that 90 percent of our children are drug-free. They are doing the right thing. They are not experimenting."

"So we're asking them, the 90 percent who are drug-free, to be responsible enough to participate in this drug-testing program to help us identify the 10 percent who are on the brink of getting in trouble and get them away from drugs before it's too late," he said.

In a memo to McCaffrey and Pena, Clinton said he believes the lure of a driver's license is so compelling for most young people that it can be used to effect their behavior.

Red Ribbon Week rally

Pampa High School student Andy Fernuik speaks in favor of the drug-free lifestyle at the Saturday morning rally to kick off Red Ribbon Week. Other PHS students, law enforcement officers and government officials, including Gray County Judge Richard Peet, exhorted youth to avoid illegal drugs and their destructive effects. The rally was held to promote community efforts to support the Red Ribbon campaign and Texas War on Drugs. Activities at Pampa Middle School will continue through this week, ending Friday with students reciting a drug-free pledge. Cars will be decorated with red ribbons, and posters will be displayed in various stores.

Country Fair event set for Saturday

People have the opportunity for a full evening of fun, games, dancing and a chance to bid on auction items at next Saturday's 12th annual Country Fair at M.K. Brown Memorial Auditorium and Civic Center.

Doors open at 5 p.m. to the annual fund-raiser for the Greater Pampa Area Chamber of Commerce, with the action continuing until 1 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 26.

General admission tickets for the Country Fair, at $15 per person, are on sale at the Chamber office, 200 N. Ballard, as well as at Malcolm Hinkle Inc. and Wayne's Western Wear. Tickets may also be purchased from Chamber board of director members or at the door Saturday.

Chamber Executive Vice President Nanette Moore suggested that those wanting to attend the Country Fair buy their tickets early to help the food preparers have an idea of how much food to provide. However, tickets will be available at the door Saturday evening.

Tickets can be charged on MasterCard, Visa, Discover or American Express cards at the Chamber office only, Moore noted.

"It's a fine evening, a fun time" for those who attend, Moore said, adding that the Country Fair provides "a great chance for people new to the community to come meet people and have a good time."

The evening begins with dinner, served from 5-7:15 p.m., featuring a selection of food items provided by Chicken Express, Dyer's Bar-B-Que, Hoagie's Deli, Mr. Gatti's Pizza and Pampa Country Club.

Before or after eating, participants can stroll through the tables of items available for the silent auction portion in the Heritage Room and the foyer, with more than 460 items available for bidding.

All items are donated by area merchants, businesses and individuals, including gift certificates, services, merchandise, art works, dinners and other selections.

"This is a great time to take advantage of a fun shopping experience," Moore said, with the proceeds helping to fund the Pampa Chamber of Commerce in its continuing efforts to promote economic vitality and improve the quality of life in the Pampa area.

The live auction portion begins at 8 p.m. in the auditorium, with Dale West serving as auctioneer. Items for the live bidding include trips, collector's items, quality merchandise and a special surprise item to be announced.

(For more on the auction items and other Country Fair information, see Pages 19-21 in today's edition.)

But there's still more to the full evening.

During the live auction, a drawing will be held to determine the winners of cash prizes of $5,000, $1,500, $1,000 or $500. The drawing tickets are $100 each and can be purchased individually or by a group pooling their money, Moore said. A limited number of tickets are available; depending on the number sold, drawing tickets may or may not be available at the door Saturday.

Bingo will be played in the foyer from 9-11 p.m., with a chance to win a number of items donated by local merchants and businesses.

And for those wanting to dance, the Tiny Lynn Band will be playing in the Heritage Room from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

"This annual event is the result of countless hours of teamwork by many volunteers and your Chamber staff," said Dr. Joe L. Lowry, president-elect and 1996 Country Fair chairman.

For more information, contact the Chamber office at 669-3241 or any Chamber board member.

Kathy Gist holds a quilted wall hanging she made from pieces of her father's shirts, the subject of a recently published short story, which also won her a trip to New York. "I chose the log cabin pattern which symbolizes the importance of home and family, and the center represents the hearth, or heart of the home," Gist said.

Pampa woman wins trip to New York to workshop for writers

By SHERRY CROMARTIE Staff Writer

A local author recently returned from the state of New York, where she attended a writer's workshop.

Kathy Gist, a novice short-story writer, won an all-expenses paid trip to New York to participate in a writer's program sponsored by Guideposts, a devotional magazine.

The magazine advertisement said, "Would you like to tell a story?" ... and wheels started turning. "Yes, I have a story to tell," said Gist, who has some professional experience in writing, but still considers herself a beginner.

In early spring her short story about making a memory quilt out of her deceased father's shirts was published in Country Magazine, a crafter's magazine sold in local stores. She decided to enter this same story in the contest.

Her story of making the memory quilt reflected thoughts of her father's love while working with the pieces of shirts. Although she had never made a quilt before, the project helped ease her pain of sorrow, which gave reason for writing the story.

According to Gist, the writer's contest article must focus on the craft of writing, and it must be based on true personal experiences, expressing narratives of faith in action that Guideposts is known for over its 50 years of publishing. She felt confident her story would be accepted.

Gist had to mail in her entry before the June 29 deadline, along with a personal resume. The contest advertisement offered nothing more than the opportunity to attend the sponsors' writers workshops.

"I was excited about the possibilities of being one of those winners, and even marked those days for the workshops on my calendar, just in case," Gist said.

In August Gist received the letter notifying her she was one of only 15 author-winners out of 5,100 entries. The letter requested more personal information, and instructed her to complete the legal forms acknowledging her acceptance of the "winner's gift — an all expenses paid trip to Rye, New York, to participate in the Guideposts Writers Workshop," she said.

"When I got that letter, I just jumped up and down. It was so exciting!" said Gist, who is still giddy over her recent trip.

"I purchased a brand new suitcase, and before the day came to leave for New York, I had packed, unpacked and packed again at least four or five times," she said.

On Sept. 29, she arrived in White Plains, N.Y., to drive to Rye alone, to experience a new adventure and learn about writing and editing magazine stories.

Gist said the publishing company took care of everything, including travel arrangements and trip expenses, except for a side trip she decided to take after the workshop was finished.

"They even furnished me with all the pens and pencils and tablets I needed, plus print-outs of lesson materials and texts," said Gist.

During the four and half day workshop training, the class was to read and critique all stories submitted by each writer.

There are three specific parts of a story to be identified, including the topic, the purpose of the story and why, and how personally involved the writer is in the story.

"All of the stories [submitted] were very different from the other. Each story was reviewed and given professional criticism by all the authors in our groups, as well as the staff editors. I felt the underlying spiritual aspect of it all, giving encouragement to want to go beyond the beginning point," Gist said.

Plea bargain for two in rape case outrages victim's parents, others

BRENNHAM, Texas (AP) - Two of four Brenham High School boys charged with raping a 14-year-old girl have received probation in a plea bargain to a lesser charge.

The deal outraged the parents of the girl, a Brenham High freshman. They said they would seek state and federal intervention.

Matthew Kenjura and Matthew McIntyre, both 17-year-old seniors, made their pleas on Friday. They will serve 5 years' probation after pleading no contest to reduced felony charges of third-degree injury to a child. They each also must pay $1,000 fines and perform 100 hours of community service.

Each also signed a court-approved letter of apology to the victim, whom prosecutors had alleged was raped June 28 after a party where all were drinking.

The defendants and their lawyers declined to comment after the hearing before state District Judge Harold Towslee.

"You said you would take care of this, and now you do this," the girl's grandfather shouted at Washington County District Attorney Charles Sebesta. "You lied to me from the get-go." The outburst included similar accusations from the victim's parents and left the girl sobbing in disbelief. "But they raped me."

The parents also said Sebesta had deceived them by accepting a more lenient plea bargain than he earlier had outlined to them.

The girl's mother said she thought the agreement would call for McIntyre and Kenjura to plead guilty to second-degree sexual assault and receive 5 years' probation.

Instead, the deal led to the no-contest plea to the third-degree felony. The punishment is the same, and a no-contest plea often leads to judicial findings of guilt. However, the plea sometimes helps in subsequent lawsuits.

The girl's father said he had never agreed to any plea bargain but sought a trial. "I wanted jail time," he said.

Sebesta said new evidence - letters written by the victim before the incident occurred - persuaded him that a criminal trial would end in a hung jury and no punishment.

The letters, entered as evidence Friday, suggested the girl had plans to seduce the defendants at some point last summer before the incident occurred.

The girl's father said the letters to unidentified school friends were a "crutch" for Sebesta's "cop-out" on the case. He said the notes were just the banter of 13-year-olds.

One of Kenjura's lawyers, Dick DeGuerin of Houston, was absent Friday and replaced by another lawyer. However, he had told the Houston Chronicle previously that he would have argued in trial that the incident was consensual sex.

Reached by The Associated Press Friday in Sherman, where he was in court, DeGuerin said he would have advised against the plea.

"I think it's a tragedy because I don't believe he's done anything wrong criminally," DeGuerin said.

The case against third defendant Bryce Pflughaupt, also a 17-year-old senior charged with rape, is still to be heard and also could end in a plea bargain, Sebesta said.

The case against a fourth youth, a 16-year-old junior whose name is being withheld because of his age, is pending as a juvenile matter.

Writer

She said the work was intense, combing through stories over and over, rewriting them. At the same time, other writing assignments had to be finished. James McDermott, Guideposts senior staff editor, moderator of the workshops, and Dick Schneider, 74-year-old author and senior editor of the publishing company, worked with Gists' group.

Schneider is her correspondent editor who will edit Gist's story when she resubmits it for future publication. Gist and her husband, Scott Harralson, have lived in Pampa three and a half years. Prior to moving to the Panhandle to be near her parents in Canyon, Gist was a county Extension agent for El Paso County.

"My husband expressed a little concern about my going alone, but he is supportive of my writing and other interests, and agreed I should go," she said.

Since living in Pampa, she has become involved in volunteer work. She works closely with American Cancer Society, as a patient services coordinator for Pampa, and with Pampa Area Cancer Support Group as a moderator of the organization's steering committee.

Her other volunteer interests include the Pampa Art Club, Pampa Area Foundation for Outdoor Art, Creative Artisans Network, Panhandle Piecemak-ers Quilters Guild and Panhandle Educational Organization chapter.

Before leaving the east coast to return to the flat lands of the Texas Panhandle, Gist traveled around the countryside near the small towns of Rye and Pepsico, N.Y., where she viewed beautiful landscapes and sculptured artwork, and then into areas of Massachusetts and Connecticut.

Her desire to see the Atlantic Ocean took her to the Ralph Waldo Emerson Inn, an historic hotel in Pigeon Cove, at Rockport, where she could walk through garden paths out to the beaches.

Winners of the recent fire prevention contest at St. Vincent de Paul Catholic School are, front from right, Sara Albracht, Eddie Palma and Matthew Kirkpatrick. School board members concerned with error in total appraised values

By CHIP CHANDLER
Staff Writer

An $11.7 million calculation error in the total appraised value for the Pampa Independent School District raised concern with school board members Thursday night.

Gray County Appraisal District Chief Appraiser Pat Bagley presented the board with the 1996 tax roll and apologized for the error contained in a July 25 letter to the board.

The total appraised value of the district was listed then as $869,939,699, but an Oct. 11 letter corrected that value to $881,104,630. Bagley attributed the error to an oversight and the misreading of the report. It was discovered in a routine property value report, he said.

Bagley said the error wasn't enough to trigger a recalculation of the tax rate.

Board members said they were concerned "that if it had been the other way around, we'd have been $150,000 in the hole."

"Because we discovered this, we'll be more careful in the future. I don't anticipate this to be a problem," Bagley replied.

Had the problem resulted in less money for the school, Bagley said, the district would have been allowed to change their tax rate because they had "acted in good faith" when adopting the rate.

In other action, trustees adopted a resolution to sell 84 tax delinquent lots of which they are joint owners with other taxing entities in town. The lots, mainly in south Pampa, are mostly vacant. The resolution calls for the taxing entities to accept sealed bids and award them on the first working day of each month.

The board also adopted an Internet and electronic communications use policy recommended by district technology coordinator Lee Carter.

Carter said the policy included a filter program installed at a district level, rather than on individual computers. The program has the capability of being customized to allow for pages containing, for example, information on "breast cancer" that otherwise might be blocked because of the keyword "breast." Filter programs target such keywords to block minors' access to materials some consider harmful or objectionable.

In further business, board President James Frugé showed reluctance to pass a waiver allowing the district to use up to 25 percent of an Eisenhower math and science teacher training grant for other core subjects.

The board decided to postpone action on the waiver.

In other action, the board voted:

- To allow the boys' basketball team to stay in Dallas overnight for a basketball game Nov. 12.
- To accept the textbook committee members.
- To allow students to participate in "Take Our Daughter to Work Day" regardless of gender.

Emergency personnel treat accident victim Colin Bowers after his truck veered off a road 11 miles south of Pampa Friday evening.

Tank truck driver injured in accident

Truck driver Colin Bowles was treated and released Friday evening at Columbia Medical Center after his salt tank truck veered off Farm Road 749 about 11 miles south of Pampa.

The truck, owned by Triangle Well Servicing Co. of Pampa, was traveling west on the farm road near the Highway 70 intersection when the trailer dipped into the bar ditch, according to Trooper Lupe Deluna.

Deluna said the trailer then rolled, causing the entire vehicle to leave the road and travel at least 60 yards. The truck rolled completely over at least once, leaving the cab battered and windshields smashed out.

The driver said he had pulled to the side of the road to let other cars pass, Deluna reported.

The driver crawled out of the truck on his own and waited for help for about a half hour, a witness said.

Rural/Metro medics, Pampa firefighters, Gray County sheriff's deputies and Department of Public Safety troopers responded.

"THE FACTS"

Hello

I'm John Mann, and I'm running for re-election as your district attorney. My opponent and one of his vocal supporters have made some rather misleading statements pertaining to how I have managed the day to day workload of my office. More specifically, they have stated I was too lenient on one child molester in particular. What they are falling to tell you is that I was prepared to take that perverted individual to trial and prosecute him to the maximum when the father and grandparents of the eight year old female victim contacted my office. They told me to do everything under the law to punish the perpetrator, but under no circumstances did they want this poor, innocent child exposed to the publicity and mental trauma a public trial would have subjected her to. I concurred with their decision, not only as a prosecuting attorney, but also as the father of a daughter. This same family has contacted me during this campaign season and assured me they will be doing everything within their power to assist me in my campaign short of exposing the now teenage girl to public humiliation. I truly appreciate their support, and once again, I concur with their decision to protect their loved one. I can only conclude from the statements coming from my opponent and his ardent supporter, Tom Mechler, that they would have subjected this innocent child to the ruthless cross examination of an ACLU attorney that even many adults could not withstand. As the prosecuting attorney in this particular case, I can say without hesitation, I sleep very well at night in the knowledge that justice is best served when the victim is considered first. As a father, I can look at myself in the mirror each morning and know in my heart this innocent little girl was protected and her life was not scarred by publicizing her personal tragedy that, in truth, was best laid to rest. Is there one parent reading about this case who would have done less? I'm John Mann, and I would appreciate your vote of confidence on Nov. 5. Thank you.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coving commandment.

Court usurping right to liberty

In modern America, the U.S. Supreme Court has become a combination star chamber, religious council and super-legislature. It now decides matters once left to Americans or to their elected representatives. Every year brings new court decisions reducing liberty and increasing the court's own power.

- The Constitution didn't intend matters this way. The court was designed primarily to check the power of the federal government. It was supposed to be an impartial judge, using the Bill of Rights to protect the individual rights of the people and the rights of the states. But for more than 60 years now the court almost always has acted to reduce personal liberties by ratifying the central government over state and local governments.
- The court has handed down a series of decisions indicating a continuation of its itch to meddle. One decision upheld the Freedom of Access to Clinics Entrances Act, a federal law limiting the right of pro-life protesters peacefully to walk and pray in front of abortion clinics. What section of the Constitution grants Congress the power, effectively, to repeal the First Amendment right to freedom of assembly?
- Decisions expected within the next year are just as disturbing:
 - Assisted suicide. This is a divisive moral issue. The court could meddle and set up yet another confusing set of quasi-regulations. But the court might do the right thing and let the states decide what to do with Jack Kevorkian and others like him. Unfortunately, previous court opinions have made it difficult for Michigan and other states to convict Dr. Death.
 - English-only laws. Why is the court even deciding this? If states want to pass laws requiring all official government business be done in English, that is their constitutional right.
 - The Brady law - which mandates a five day waiting period for the purchase of handguns. Although the law arguably violates the Second Amendment right to keep and bear arms, the court probably will uphold it.
 - Environmental lawsuits. As summarized by the Associated Press, the case asks, "Does the Endangered Species Act ... permit suits that claim the government is overprotecting endangered species?" Actually, the real problem is that for 25 years the court has upheld the Endangered Species Act itself. The constitution grants no environmental powers to the federal government (except over federal lands).

Both ancient Athens and Rome collapsed in large part under the burden of excessive numbers of laws and judicial rulings. By upholding unconstitutional laws and by "making" law itself, the Supreme Court has entangled America in litigious agony. Restoring the court to its rightful place as a check on federal power is an essential step in reforming the Republic.

Berry's World

"Nice hairpiece!"

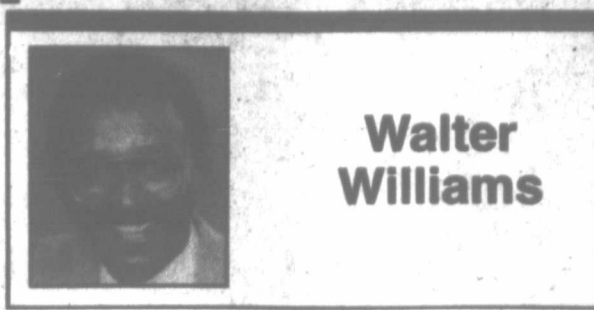

Land for promises of peace

Recent violence between armed Palestinian police and Israeli soldiers in Rammallah points up serious questions about the Oslo Accords, the so-called peace process between Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

This time, the violence was precipitated by Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's decision to open a tunnel near holy places of both Jews and Muslims. The actual agreement to open the tunnel was reached earlier this year between Arafat and then-in-power Prime Minister Shimon Peres and Israel's Labor Party. Since Netanyahu and the Likud Party came to power, Arafat has been losing face with his followers. To bolster his tough guy image, he has to now protest the tunnel's opening.

World leaders criticized Israel for provoking the crisis. French President Jacques Chirac counseled Israel to avoid provocation and telephoned Arafat to express his "solidarity and support" with the Palestinians. This response demonstrates the West's double standards. During the 1987 to 1993 Palestinian uprisings (intifada), Israel came under western criticism for its harsh response to stonethrowing and fire-setting Palestinians. When Israel responds in kind to Arab terrorism, it also encounters criticism. But the West is relatively silent in its criticisms of the Palestinians who started the recent violence.

I am not an expert in Middle East affairs. But the way I see it is the only way there can be peace, using Arafat's 1980 words, "Peace for us means the destruction of Israel." "Williams," you say, "Arafat has changed; he's repudiated the Palestinian Covenant calling for the destruction of Israel!" Not so. In January, speaking to Arab diplomats in Stockholm's Grand Hotel, Arafat said, "We plan to eliminate Israel and establish a Palestinian state ... We will make life unbearable for Jews by psychological warfare and population explosion." Arafat wants to work on "splitting Israel psychologically into two camps." A few months ago, Marwan Barguti, a top official in the Palestinian Authority in Gaza, said, "Our forces will fight the Israelis. Orders have already been given. We already have in Gaza 20,000 armed security personnel."

Like Hitler's strategy, the "peace process" is simply a part of an overall Palestinian design for the ultimate destruction of Israel. British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, just one year before World War II began, spoke of the "desire of the German people for peace," despite evidence to the contrary and Winston Churchill's earlier 1932 warning of the "inexhaustible gullibility" of Western pacifists.

During the late 1920s and early 1930s, Hitler knew outright war was a hopeless cause. France alone could have defeated him mightily. Through talk of peace, he managed to extract concession after concession and rearm. The rest of the story is written with the blood of millions.

Similarly, the Arab states know war with Israel is their worst nightmare. Therefore, they are using the "peace process" to get Israel to give up land for nothing more than promises of peace. Again, they might heed Winston Churchill's warning to his fellow countrymen, "Every concession that has been made was followed immediately by fresh demands."

Should there be a Palestinian state, it would, like any sovereign state, have the right to have a military. Regardless of any written agreement, a Palestinian state would establish a military force that would be used, with assistance from its Arab neighbors, against Israel.

Israelis should recognize a fundamental fact of world history: Peace agreements aren't worth the paper they're written on, and one concession leads to demands for another. Considerable evidence demonstrates that what holds adversaries at bay is their knowledge of a completely unacceptable cost should they attack.

Today in history

- By The Associated Press
Today is Sunday, Oct. 20, the 294th day of 1996. There are 72 days left in the year.
Today's Highlight in History:
On Oct. 20, 1944, during World War II, Gen. Douglas MacArthur stepped ashore at Leyte in the Philippines, 2 1/2 years after he'd said, "I shall return."
On this date:
In 1740, Maria Theresa became ruler of Austria, Hungary and Bohemia upon the death of her father, Holy Roman Emperor Charles VI.
In 1803, the U.S. Senate ratified the Louisiana Purchase.
In 1892, the city of Chicago dedicated the World's Columbian Exposition.
In 1903, a joint commission ruled in favor of the United States in a boundary dispute between the District of Alaska and Canada.
In 1944, the Yugoslav cities of Belgrade and Dubrovnik were liberated during World War II.
In 1964, the 31st president of the United States, Herbert Hoover, died in New York at age 90.
In 1967, seven men were convicted in Meridian, Miss., of violating the civil rights of three murdered civil rights workers.

Palestinians are the real victims

Charley Reese

The people having the crisis in the Middle East are the Palestinians, not the Israelis.

That may not be immediately obvious given the fact that both the Israeli government and its American fifth column are astoundingly skilled in the art of blaming the victim.

But to put current events into perspective, consider this: It is Israel that occupies Palestinian land, not Palestinians who occupy Israeli territory. Fifty-eight Palestinians have been killed and nearly 1,200 wounded, as opposed to 15 Israelis killed in the recent trouble, according to the latest wire story as of this writing.

It is Israel, not the Palestinians, who have one of the world's best equipped armies. The Palestinians have no army at all.

It is the Palestinians who are being strangled economically by the Israelis, with 70% unemployment and malnutrition in Gaza. Yet I saw an entire news story devoted to the Israeli government's complaints that the recent trouble has caused a slight drop in its tourist business.

To quote New York Times foreign affairs columnist Tom Friedman, "Israel today is a rich country. Its per capita income is $16,000 a year, just below that of Britain, well ahead of Spain's. Its economy is growing at 6.8 percent a year in a league with the Asian 'tigers' like Taiwan."

It is the Israelis, not the Palestinians, who have blocked the peace process.

Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu refuses to even consider a Palestinian state or any claim by Palestinians to East Jerusalem, though the Arab claim is more valid than Israel's. The United Nations long ago condemned Israeli annexation of Jerusalem and declared it unacceptable under international law.

The Israeli government is systematically forcing Palestinians out of Jerusalem while moving Jewish Jews in. Palestinians are denied building permits to build on their own property or even to expand their own house. Recently Israelis destroyed a Palestinian youth center in East Jerusalem.

Netanyahu has begun to expand the settlements and to confiscate more Palestinian land. He insulted Yasir Arafat by refusing to meet with him for a long time and by inflicting other personal humiliations. Netanyahu has refused to discuss a date for withdrawing from Hebron, already months overdue. He has not withdrawn from other areas the previous government had agreed to pull out of. He has refused to allow Palestinians to use an office in East Jerusalem. He has maintained the terrible economic restrictions on Palestinians.

Common sense tells you that it is the Palestinians who are desperate for the peace process to work, because it is they, not the Israelis, who are suffering under Israel's occupation and who will suffer even more if there is no peace. It is Israel that is a threat to them, not the other way around.

Yet to hear what has been called Israel's "amen corner" tell it, it is the poor Israelis who are terrified of the Palestinians. The only thing about Palestinians that scares Israelis is that their mere existence pricks the Israeli conscience because Israelis know very well how much they have wronged these people from the beginning.

And if you doubt the power of Israel's lobby on the American government and much of the American press, read these words by an Israeli lamenting the shelling of a United Nations compound in Lebanon. Columnist Ari Shavit wrote of the killing of 170 civilians:

"We (the Israelis) killed them out of a certain naive hubris. Believing with absolute certitude that now, with the White House, the Senate and much of the American media in our hands, the lives of others do no count as much as our own."

We should have listened to George Washington, who warned that foreign influence is the bane of republican government.

It is a shame on American honor that American politicians are so frightened of crossing the Israeli lobby that when American leadership could make peace, it is turning its back.

Cleaning up pre-election rhetoric

R. Emmett Tyrrell Jr.

OK, OK - let us all join the goody-goodyies now shaping Official Washington's current wisdom. Let us eschew all negative commentary. Triumphant reigns the frigid counsel of that long forgotten schoolmarm who said, "If you can't say something nice about someone, say nothing at all." At least until Nov. 5, no one will say anything negative about the presidential candidates - though the Clinton campaign may continue to run those negative television advertisements that declare Bob Dole a threat to medical assistance to the sick and to those who may someday become sick. And forget not those other Clinton ads that denounce Dole as a negative campaigner. Incidentally, Clinton does not approve of those ads. We have his word on that.

All right, from now on, we shall say positive things about the candidates we disapprove of. (And remember, we disapprove of them because of their flaws, but we cannot talk about those flaws. Etiquette demands it.) So, how about this? Bill Clinton has scored more firsts than any president in American history (that is why I disapprove of him). He is the first president ever to be charged with sexual harassment. He is the first draft dodger ever to become president. He is the first president to see the White House Travel Office as a source of boodle for his cronies. He is the first president to see the FBI as a plainclothes unit of the Arkansas State Police, which is to say as an organized unit of Clinton family gofers.

Yet, as we behold Boy Clinton's double digit lead over former Senate Majority Leader Dole, we see an even more edifying first. Our President may well become the first failed president ever to be re-elected as an admitted failure. He failed to deliver on any of his campaign promises. He did not make good on his promise of a middle class tax cut and, in fact, apologized for raising taxes too much. He failed to balance the budget or reform welfare "as we know it" and even had to accept the Republican versions. He failed to bring down his behemoth health-care reform on us. Finally, as a consequence of the above failures, he presided over the worst Democratic midterm defeat in 40 years. Then he became a Republican, possibly to espouse Republican policies and possibly to distance himself from so many of his Democratic cronies who were being exposed, indicted and convicted. Though, let us remember that his most recently exposed aide, political adviser Dick Morris, only broke a local District of Columbia law regarding prostitution. And besides, Morris obviously had fallen in love with the prostitute. That is what passes for romance in Washington.

Clinton is also the only president ever to be linked to a cocaine trafficking operation (in sworn testimony from Arkansas State Police), and last week, four Arkansans stepped forward and linked him to cocaine use in the 1980s. They have declared that they had either witnessed him en flagrante or actually used cocaine with him. Now, this president is much admired for his ability to deflect criticism, but that is an exaggeration. Usually, the criticism never is presented to him. At this writing, the national press has yet to report that the aforementioned witnesses have come forward with their charges. They comprise not one faithless "Deep Throat" but four. And they are not anonymous. Still, the press ignores them. They have names and family histories, and they are on the record. One has been threatened with her life. The press remains inert. If this woman is murdered (as her husband was in September 1993, by the roadside in Little Rock), her blood will be on the hands of those who failed in their duty to report the news.

Why is Boy Clinton likely to be re-elected president? Obviously, it is not because of his record of failure. He is likely to be re-elected because he is a celebrity. In fact, he is the perfect celebrity. He is our Princess Di. He has all the qualifications. He smiles very nicely and can even go into a snit in public. He has sex appeal. He is friends with many other celebrities. He has never burdened us with long, thoughtful statements, or even short, thoughtful statements, or even witty statements. He is simply another very public blank, like Di. And he has the same checkered past. Our celebrities nowadays need a little scandal and tragedy in their backgrounds.

Among celebrities, only O.J. Simpson and Claus von Bulow have worse scandals in their pasts. Has our pre-ident ever had them to the White House? Has he ever golfed with them? Well, he did golf with Simpson, but let us not indulge in guilt by association. That is too, too negative.

Help save Worley building

To the editor:
A few days ago I heard on the local news that there may be plans working to fix up the Worley Hospital building and put it to use and then place it on the landmark and history lists. It deserves both.

I was in the hospital a few months back. I walked down the halls, reliving the memories of the patients getting ready to be dismissed, we got a hug and we love you, we were sent beautiful cards and gifts just to thank us for the care they got, and holiday goodies was something else. And I have had people tell me they remember being a patient there and the care they got, and they have said they would love to see it put back in use and save the memories of those that are still here and the ones we tried so hard to save.

We have some of the doctors still here that remember, too. One will tell you about the fried chicken, good you bet.

I spent a lot of hours on those halls and there are others here that did, too. And I don't regret a minute of it; nursing was my life.

Pampa, help me hope that the plans work out.

A football mom's prayer

To the editor:
I received a copy of the following poem, printed in the newspaper at Antlers, Okla., and as a football mom myself, I thought it might be of interest to other football parents here, particularly the moms.

A Football Mother's Prayer

In the fall, it is time for the football season.
Mothers go to the game, but for one reason.
What is the reason? Let there be no denial,
It's to see if her son gets up from the pile!

Oh, she may have lots of pep, and do all the cheers,
And she hasn't missed a game in many a year.
But she doesn't do it just to keep in style,
It's to see if her son gets up from the pile!

She keeps track of the score and acts very alert,
Wondering how to get the bloodstains out of his shirt.
She always sits on her seat right on the aisle,
Just in case he doesn't get up from the pile!

When the whistle blows, she strains her eyes,
For the jersey number she's memorized.
She'll sit quite still, heart stopped all the while,
Til she sees that number come up from the pile!

She'll stand and shout, "My son stopped the play!"
"Sit down, dear, he clipped," is all Dad can say.
She may not know a punt from a telephone dial,
But she knows when her son gets up from the pile!

Good ol' Mom, she's a dear, and your very best fan,
But you'll be her little boy even when you're a man.
She makes all your games, you think with a smile,
Just to see if "her baby" gets up from the pile!

Didn't want sign in yard

To the editor:
I am not a very strong or vocal person when it comes to politics, but I feel that I need to address this situation.

One day last week I went home from work and drove into the block where my residence is located. As I drove into the block, I noticed that there was a political sign in every yard on the block to vote for Roach for district attorney. I pulled into my driveway and noticed that there was a Roach sign in my yard. I contacted my wife and asked her if she had given permission for this sign to be placed in the yard, and she told me that no one had contacted her (she was home all day).

I feel that Roach should get permission before he places these signs in people's yards. It appeared to me as though he was trying to say that was who I favored in the election. This is not true.

I have worked with John Mann and I have had no problems with him. Granted, he and I do not always see eye to eye, but if we did then he wouldn't be doing his job. I have been in law enforcement for 27 years and have worked with a number of district attorneys, and I can truthfully say that John Mann is the best that I have ever worked with.

I would also like to say that I was asked by a representative of John Mann to put a sign in my yard and I refused. At least Mann did not go behind my back and put a sign in my yard. If Roach will do something this petty, WHAT ELSE WILL HE DO?

Battle over lottery funds

To the editor:
Government as we know it is continually being subjected to a battle between various special interest groups, with each vying to get a brief advantage over the other for a bit more of the pie. Have you noticed the recent news items about this or that group wanting some of the "Texas lottery money"?

Each of the many new requests for a tiny bit (just a few million) of the "lottery money" is nothing more than a camouflaged assault on the state budget by another special interest group. Our first reaction to a new funds request is, "where will the money come from?" The mention of lottery money makes some folks think this is newly discovered money, as no mention is made of the fact that the lotto money is merely an undivided portion of the money in the general fund. This use of the term "lottery money" is a convenient political lie, and the merit of the special interest request cannot justify the use of the lie.

There is no Texas lottery money. The money generated by the lottery pays the lotto management company, the winners, and the remaining money becomes general operating fund money the instant it is paid to Texas. Any change in this procedure will precipitate a financial disaster for the state of Texas by opening the funds to attack by any and all "good" causes.

These folks are trying to pull a fast one by ignoring the basis question, "should we reapportion the budget of the Texas general fund to include this proposed expense?"

Policemen deserve honor

To the editor:
As the Bible says, Give honor to whom honor is due. Some who really deserve this honor are our policemen in Pampa. They take their lives into their hands every time they go out. We are lucky to have such fine policemen in Pampa, Texas, who are so willing to protect us. They may not be perfect, and they may make a few small mistakes, but overall, we can thank our lucky stars that our police are willing to risk their lives to protect us, not only us but also our homes and property.

As individuals in Pampa, many of us have wonderful, convenient homes in which to live, good air to breathe, good water to drink, wonderful beds in which to lie down at night to rest. We can thank our police for their willingness to protect such a life for us.

The Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ members have been giving prayers that God will lead and direct us to find a better life, to live as we should to make better lives for all. Let's hope God will help us to make those decisions that will make Pampa and this world a better place for all.

A lot of time people are afraid to speak their thoughts. As long as we're speaking for God and His ideas, we should be willing to speak up, to support what's right and to thank those who serve to protect us and our lives here in Pampa.

How well we are to be fortunate enough to live here in Pampa, Texas!

They also helped at lake

To the editor:
It's a shame that the people that donated their time at Lake McClellan on October 5 to put on a show and helped draw the crowd didn't receive any recognition - the man taking the pictures of people on the longhorn steers - the lady with the miniature ponies giving the children rides - the people making the hamburgers and donating the money to the lake fund - also the three bands and the group of dancers giving performances.

Bowers re-elected to GCSWCD board

Gray County farmer David Bowers was re-elected to the Gray County Soil and Water Conservation District board of directors. Bowers will serve on the board for four years.

Following balloting at the Oct. 10 district meeting, new officers, serving the board through October 1997 include Troy Ritter, chairman, representing Zone 1; Jim Shaw, vice chairman, representing Zone 2; L. H. Webb, secretary, representing Zone 3; Bowers, director representing Zone 4; and Terry O'Neal, director representing Zone 5.

According to SWCD District Conservationist Lee McDonald, of the Pampa Field Office, the purpose of the Gray County SWCD is to promote sound soil and water conservation programs on agricultural lands within the district. In addition, the district represents its farmers, ranchers and local community entities on conservation matters.

Also, the board of directors coordinates the conservation efforts of local, state and federal agencies and other organizations.

"The SWCD Board of Directors has authority to enter into working agreements with these governmental agencies and private concerns to carry out its purposes," McDonald said.

He said board members are responsible for district policies and procedures within the framework of the Texas soil conservation district law. All conservation programs managed by the local district are of a voluntary nature to the landowner and other users of SWCD programs.

There are 214 soil and water conservation districts in the state, according to McDonald, and each is a legal subdivision of state government organized by local agricultural landowners with the assistance of the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board. The SWCDs do not have powers of taxation or eminent domain.

Barry Brauchi, left, is congratulated by Dr. Nelson Jacob, 4-H Youth Development Specialist with Texas Agriculture Extension Service, after being named state 4-H record-book winner in consumer education.

Barry Brauchi receives honor at state 4-H Awards Program

Barry Brauchi, 15-year-old son of Ronnie and Donna Brauchi of Pampa, was honored at the 1996 Texas 4-H Awards Program Recognition Luncheon Sept. 28 in Dallas.

Brauchi was state 4-H record-book winner in consumer education. The event was held in conjunction with the State Fair of Texas and received sponsorship from various donors from around the state.

Brauchi is a seven-year 4-H member and president of the E.T. 4-H Club. He has been involved in a variety of learning activities in his consumer education project including Dollars and Sense For Kids, consumer decision making events, illustrated talks and independent study.

As a state 4-H recordbook winner from the Panhandle and South Plains area, Brauchi will participate in a partial-expense paid recognition trip to Washington, D.C., in November. The 4-H Experiences, Citizenship, Examples for Lifetime Leadership program this year will provide education and cultural development for fourteen young people from the upper 41 counties of West Texas.

Recordkeeping is an integral part of the 4-H program. The 4-H awards program recordbook is one opportunity that a 4-H member can take advantage of for personal growth. The 4-H Recordbook is a compilation of all project work, leadership, community service and recognition received.

More information about the 4-H and Youth Development program can be obtained from the Gray County office of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

WT plans Halloween activities

CANYON - West Texas A&M University student organizations plan to offer safe Halloween activities, and upcoming activities, including trick-or-treating in the residence halls, have begun on campus. Some action includes a Halloween carnival, a haunted house and a "Smashing Pumpkins" contest.

The "Smashing Pumpkins" contest, sponsored by KWTS-FM campus radio station, is at 12:15 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 31, on the north side of Old Main. Participants are invited to smash a pumpkin with a baseball bat, and winners will receive various prizes.

The Halloween carnival, from 7 to 9 p.m., Thursday, Oct. 31, will be in the Virgil Henson Activities Center. The activities are for children 12 years and younger, and include dart games, beanbag tosses, ring tosses, face painting and craft booths. Admission and games are free.

Skip Chisum, director of WTAMU Student Activities, invites trick-or-treaters to pick up treats at the front desk of the residence halls starting at 6:30 through 9 p.m. that night.

"The carnival is set up so that everyone is a winner, and also there will be a costume contest for prizes for those attending," Chisum said.

For students 10 years and older, the Residence Hall Association's Haunted House will be open from 7 p.m. to midnight Thursday, Oct. 31, and Friday, Nov. 1, in Terrill Hall. A $3 admission charge per person is payable at the doors.

WTAMU students have distributed 1,500 Halloween bags decorated with safety messages to elementary-age students. Debby Reiling, a senior elementary education major from Abilene, and Kaulene Tompkins, a senior elementary education major from Vega, dressed in costumes, delivered the bags to children in the Canyon schools.

Angela King, KWTS general manager, said all of the Halloween events are open to the public. For information about smashing pumpkins, call her at 806/656-2797.

For information about the carnival, call Chisum at 806/656-2313, and call Max Seymour at 806/656-3000 for information about the Haunted House.

Fifty three friends and relatives celebrated Geneva Tucker's 75th birthday with her on Oct. 12 at Southside Senior Citizens Center. At a party hosted by Ruby Morgan, a friend; Bea Wortham, her daughter, and Betty Smith, her niece, the celebrants enjoyed a barbecue dinner with cake and punch. Mrs. Tucker's cake read "Happy 75th Birthday, Me-Me."

Cindy Gindorf and her daughter, Rebecca, prepare to get a piece of the cake donated by Boy Scout District Executive Doug Cooper for Thursday's Pampa United Way check-in luncheon meeting for volunteers and agency representatives. The Golden Spread Council of the Boy Scouts of America was one of the sponsors for the luncheon. Totals recorded through last week were $133,873.48, or 42.5 percent of the $315,000 goal.

Two Republic of Texas members arrested

COLLEGE STATION (AP) - Two members of the Republic of Texas organization were released from jail Saturday.

Archie Huel Lowe, 55, of Rice, and Richard Lee Ray Jr., 30, of Corsicana, were arrested Friday during a routine traffic stop.

Lowe posted a $390 bond and Ray posted a $500 bond.

Lowe, who identified himself as the president of the Republic of Texas, was arrested for having an expired inspection sticker and no proof of insurance.

Usually a driver receives a citation, which is a promise to appear later in court. But Lowe told the arresting officer that he did not recognize Texas laws and was arrested as a high risk not to appear, said police Lt. Scott McCollum. Conviction on each count is punishable by a $500 fine.

Ray Jr., a passenger in the 1978 Cadillac, was arrested on a misdemeanor firearms charge that is punishable upon conviction by up to one year in jail and a $4,000 fine.

A police officer had asked Ray to get out of the car after spotting a stun gun on the front seat. Ray admitted to having a handgun in his waistband, but he lacked a concealed weapons permit, police said.

Ray identified himself as a Texas Ranger for the Republic of Texas.

The two are to arrange court dates with the municipal court for their cases. If they don't, arrest warrants will be issued for them, officials said.

Members of the Republic of Texas contend that the 1845 annexation of Texas was illegal and that it remains an independent republic. Republic members often choose to ignore existing state and federal laws, insisting that Texas is governed by an illegitimate "de facto" government. In a prepared statement released Saturday by the organization, the two men were referred to as "political prisoners."

Retired Teachers Association to meet

Dr. Kenneth Laycock, president of District XVI Texas Retired Teachers Association and TRTA state vice president, will give a retired teachers update at the monthly meeting of the Retired Teachers Association at 2 p.m. Monday, Oct. 21, at Lovett Library.

Laycock, of Canyon, taught at West Texas A&M and was former director of Regional XVI in Amarillo.

Esther Colville will present the meditation and the Stella Kiser is hostess chairman. Officers of the Pampa RTA include Nancy Coffee, president; JoAnn Shackelford, first vice president; Willie Mae Mangold, second vice president; Myra Nell McLaughlin, secretary; Lynn Hardwood, treasurer; Essie Mae Walters, legislative, and Darlene Birkes, parliamentarian.

The local organization was chartered in 1970 and McHenry Lane served as the first president.

Oil, gas rig count jumps by 18

HOUSTON (AP) — The number of oil and gas rigs operating nationwide jumped by 18 this week to 845, Baker Hughes Inc. said Friday.
 There were 765 rigs operating in the United States during the same week last year.
 Of the rigs running this week, 514 were exploring for natural gas and 319 for oil. Twelve rigs were listed as miscellaneous.
 Houston-based Baker Hughes has kept track of the count since 1940. The tally peaked at 4,500 in December of 1981 during the oil boom. It dropped to a record low of 596 in the summer of 1993, exceeding the previous low of 663 in 1986. The rig count represents the number of rigs actively exploring for oil and natural gas.
 Of the major oil- and gas-producing states, Texas gained the most with 12 rigs. Oklahoma followed with eight more and Louisiana added three.
 Wyoming, Pennsylvania and California each had one more rig. New Mexico had five fewer rigs, Kansas had three less and North Dakota two.
 Michigan, Ohio and Colorado remained unchanged.

Mexico devises 1997 monetary policy

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico will design its 1997 monetary policy to further bring down inflation, Bank of Mexico Assistant Governor Jesus Marcos Yacamán says.
 "Given that the Bank of Mexico can't control all the variables that cause prices to rise, the magnitude of the reduction in inflation also depends on the other components of the economic plan drawn up for next year," Yacamán told a meeting of the Mexican Finance Executives Institute late Thursday.
 Yacamán noted Mexico's central bank hasn't dipped into its dollar reserves to bolster the peso this year, although it has taken action three times in the market to restrict liquidity.

Minding your own Business

Going first-class

No, this is not a column about folks who fly in the first-class cabin on airliners. It is an attempt to look at the habits of folks who are first-class everyday in every way all of their lives.

I believe that first-class folks are made, not born. Being a first-class person is not dependent on having money, living on the right side of the tracks or being born with a fine, old-family name. It is not a matter of being politically correct, being well-connected politically or looking like a movie star. It doesn't have anything to do with skin color, educational level or age.

Perhaps an example or two will help illustrate my view. Recently, I visited my favorite doctor's office and after signing in took the last empty seat. An elderly woman came in a moment later and signed in. As she turned to look for a seat, a young man leaped to his feet and insisted that she take his. A first-class fellow.

A few days later, I was working my way to the front of a long line at an airline ticket counter when a rather pushy man crowded in ahead. The woman in front of me - who had finally reached the head of the line - turned to me with a surprised, quizzical look on her face. However, instead of making a scene she simply shrugged and said softly, "I guess he's in a hurry." I nodded in agreement and thought to myself, "first-class lady."

First-class qualities

First-class folks are courteous. They temper their actions with respect and consideration for the rights of others. They find it less to be nice rather than nasty.

The Bible tells us that the meek shall inherit the earth. First-class women and men will be among the largest land owners.

First-class folks have positive, optimistic attitudes. They go to work fully expecting to have a great day. They believe that every problem has a solution and that the best is yet to come.

There is a good deal of evidence that we eventually become what we think about and focus on. Therefore, dwell on the positive and move up to first class.

First-class folks are well educated. No, I do not mean to imply that you must have a college degree or be a PhD to be a first-class citizen. (Some highly-educated folks develop an inflated sense of self-worth and are neither first class nor enjoyable to be around.)

First-class folks may have very little formal education. However, they never quit learning just because they stopped going to school.

First-class folks are aware of what is going on around them. You won't catch them cruising at 55 mph in the left-hand lane of the Interstate or stopping in the middle of airport walkways to check their tickets. They don't leave their shopping carts in the middle of the aisle at the grocery store.

They keep their head in the game. They understand that all actions have consequences, so they stay alert to ensure that the consequences are positive.

There are many other identifying characteristics. First-class folks are slow to anger, limit their excesses and work hard to improve every aspect of their lives. They appreciate good humor, make the best of bad situations and are quick to help others.

I hope I have not misled you to believe that first-class folks are perfect. They aren't. They are human, make mistakes and have bad days.

Despite their faults, they are pleasant folks to be around. I hope you'll join me in aspiring to move up to first-class.

AT&T reports eleven-point drop

NEW YORK (AP) — AT&T Corp., stung by harsh competition for long-distance phone customers as well as credit-card losses, reported an eleven percent drop in third-quarter profits.

Investors' reaction to the results was muted, since AT&T warned a month ago to expect the weaker profits.

AT&T said in the three months ended Sept. 30 it earned $1.36 billion, or 84 cents a share, from continuing operations, down from profits of $1.53 billion, or 96 cents a share in the third quarter of 1995.

Study: Men dominate job market

NEW YORK (AP) — Men still get the lion's share of top jobs and fatter paychecks at big U.S. companies, and often women executives aren't in posts that lead to the top, a research group announced.

There has been some progress, but women's rate of advancement at the very highest echelons of U.S. business remains slow, according to the study unveiled by Catalyst, which works to advance women in business.

Women make up 46 percent of the work force. But the survey found that ten percent or 1,303 out of 12,885 corporate officers at the 500 largest U.S. companies were women, up from 8.7 percent in 1994. About 100 of the Fortune 500 companies have no women corporate officers at all.

Archer Daniels chairman makes formal apology

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — Archer Daniels Midland Co. chairman Dwayne Andreas apologized to shareholders, but directors rejected his offer to resign over a price-fixing scandal that has cost the company a $100 million fine and a damaged reputation.

"I am the one in charge, and as Harry Truman said, the buck stops with me," Andreas told more than 700 people gathered at company headquarters for ADM's annual meeting, two days after ADM pleaded guilty to federal price-fixing charges.

Pipeline Group announces awareness program

The Pipeline Group's annual "Public Education - Contractor Awareness Program" will be at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 29, in the Heritage Room at M.K. Brown Auditorium in Pampa.

The program will be sponsored by a group of companies with a common goal of preventing accidents and damages to underground pipelines and utilities.

A free dinner will be catered by Dyer's Bar-B-Que for all persons involved in excavation-related activities in Armstrong, Carson, Donley, Gray, Hemphill, Hutchinson, Roberts and Wheeler counties.

Following the dinner, a brief safety program will be presented which stresses the importance of accident prevention by identifying pipeline and utility rights of way, use of One-Call systems, and the importance of working with pipeline and utility companies to safely excavate in the vicinity of underground facilities.

Sponsors provide promotional materials that include notification information for their companies, safety related brochures and other safety reminders.

Each year many lives are injured or lost, plus millions of dollars in repairs and lost products are incurred due to "third party" incidents - someone digging into a pipeline.

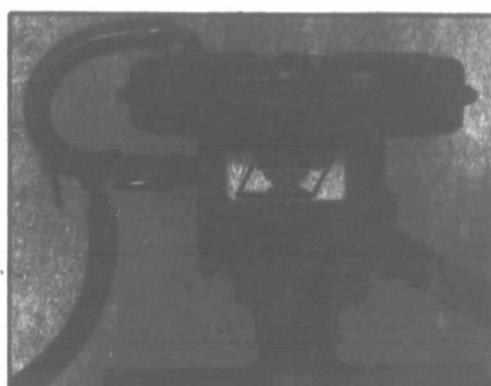

Thousands of communications, some life-threatening, may be disrupted when expensive fiber-optics cables are damaged or severed. These types of excavations can be financially devastating to the responsible party. This safety program is an attempt to help those who do excavation work to avoid such situations.

Sponsors for the program include: American Pipeline Co., Anadarko Petroleum Corp., Colorado Interstate Gas Co., Diamond Shamrock Refining and Marketing, El Paso Natural Gas Co., El Paso Natural Gas Co./Field Services Division, Hoechst Celanese Chemical Group, Koch Pipeline Co. LP, Mid-America Pipeline Co., Natural Gas Pipeline Co. of America, Northern Natural Gas Co., Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Co., Phillips Pipe Line Co., Pride Texas Plains LP and Transok Inc.

Checking out the corn

Arturo Villareal, grain superintendent with Attebury Grain Elevators in Pampa, tests the moisture and temperature readings of corn during the drying process. "Normal readings should indicate 15.5 to 16.5 moisture content, and about 40 to 45 degrees temperature before the corn can be placed in storage," Villareal said. According to Friday's report, 45 million pounds of corn has been taken in for storage at the elevators located in Pampa, White Deer and Hoover since Sept. 9, and area farmers are still cutting corn. White Deer's manager, Tommy West, said the farmers need warm sunshine for at least two more weeks, and an additional two weeks of good weather to finish cutting the corn. West said Friday morning's first freeze of the season did not harm the crops. Harvest of the grain sorghum is just starting, and about 3 million pounds have been delivered into the three locations this past week, he said.

FOOTBALL

PAMPA — Borger blanked Pampa, 16-0, Thursday night in a junior varsity football game.

Borger was able to get off to a fast start, scoring early in the first quarter and again in the second to gain an early 16-0 lead that was enough to put Pampa away.

Pampa played hard into the second half of the game where they were able to hold Borger from scoring.

Pampa was shut down by a dominating Borger defense and was unable to mount any offensive drives.

Pampa JV's play Caprock Thursday in Amarillo.

CANYON — Kicker Todd Finney was using an inch tee just a year ago at Pampa High School. As a freshman at West Texas A&M University in 1996, the plan was to redshirt Finney to allow him to work out his mechanics without the tee, which is not permitted in the NCAA.

Finney, however, was forced into the spotlight in game three after an injury to junior starter Shane Marsicano. The freshman has shown he can handle the chore. Finney kicked three solid point-after-touchdown attempts in his first game on Sept. 21, then knocked in a 42-yard field goal and extra point against Angelo State on Oct. 5. Last Saturday at Tarleton State, he connected on a 45-yard field goal to start the fourth quarter. Finney would later miss his first kicking attempt of the season during the fourth quarter on a 42-yard attempt, which had plenty of leg, but was inches to the right.

So far, Finney has made all six extra-point attempts and is two of three on field goal attempts, all from beyond 42 yards.

FOLLETT — The Fort Elliott Cougars were stunned by Follett Friday night when the Panthers started the game off by scoring 24 points in the first quarter to take the Cougars out early in this 1-1A District clash Friday night, 52-19.

Olin Gibson returned a fumble for a 26-yard touchdown to start off Follett's high scoring first quarter and was followed by Kenton Laubhan with a 20-yard TD run and a 35-yard interception return by Courtney Frazier. Matthew Cates also scored on an interception return, this time from 71-yards out. Frazier rounded out Follett's first quarter scoring with a 1-yard touchdown to help the Panthers attain a strong lead.

Also scoring for the Panthers during the game was Tony Madera, who scored on a 75-yard punt into the endzone. Gibson also scored two more touchdowns for Follett, both rushing from 5 and 26 yards respectively.

Fort Elliot wasn't able to reach paydirt until the second quarter when quarterback Curt Smith found Clay Zyback from 6 yards out for the touchdown. Fort Elliot's remaining touchdowns were scored by Donny Barr, who rushed for touchdowns of 26 and 69 yards out respectively.

Emmitt Smith hopes to re-establish himself

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Emmitt Smith is a man of immense pride. A slippage in performance takes some of the bounce out of his step. He doesn't smile as much. Some of his sense of humor fades.

For the four-time NFL rushing champion, who holds league and Super Bowl MVP awards, the first six games of this season have been as difficult as any he has faced in seven years in the league.

"A struggle," is the way he phrases it.

He's had injuries from the top of his head down to his always banged-up ankles. Try doing anything with an injured rib. Like Smith says, "It only hurts when you breathe."

But Smith may have turned the corner. The NFL's blessed bye week provided time for his banged-up body to heal. And he responded with a 112-yard rushing day and two touchdowns in a 17-3 win over the Cardinals.

Dallas coach Barry Switzer told him after the game, "You reminded me of a guy I remember watching last year."

During the 1995 season, Smith had 11 games of 100 or more yards rushing. This year he has two.

Smith hopes he's on the run again with the winless Atlanta Falcons (0-6) challenging the Dallas Cowboys (3-3) on Sunday at Texas Stadium. Smith is 211 yards behind league leader Robert Smith of Minnesota, as Dallas faces the 23rd-ranked team in the NFL against the rush.

Emmitt watches the statistics. He can't help himself.

"I'd be lying to you if I said winning a rushing title was not important," Smith said. "It's still important to me, because when you don't win the rushing title, people say, 'Oh, he didn't have a good season.' People expect me to win the title. I expect to win it. There are some guys having some really good seasons. I just had my injury bug early."

Smith currently stands 10th in the league in rushing.

"I feel like I can catch Robert Smith. You've got to keep chipping, chipping away. Who knows? I may have one big game that may put me up there with the leaders. I still have some big runs left in me. I've still got some big games left in me."

What better game to start than Sunday against the lowly 15-point underdog Falcons?

Smith said the Cowboys still have to take the Falcons seriously.

"Every team plays its best game when it comes to Texas Stadium to play the Cowboys," Smith said.

"I still don't think Emmitt is 100 percent," Switzer said. "But two of the last three times he ran the football against Arizona, he ricocheted off tackles like he has in the past."

Dallas holds a 12-6 series edge over Atlanta, winning three of the last four games, including a 28-13 win at the Georgia Dome last year.

Atlanta's last win was 27-14 in 1993, when Deion Sanders caught a 70-yard touchdown pass against Dallas.

Now Sanders plays offense and defense for the Cowboys. Yet another edge for Dallas.

BORGER — With the seconds ticking away, the annual Pampa-Borger showdown looked like it would become the first District 1-4A game to go into overtime.

However, with three seconds to go, Jamie Nix spoiled that scenario with a 47-yard field goal to give Borger a 17-14 win Friday night.

Pampa, now 5-2 overall and 3-1 in District 1-4A, still maintains its hold on first place, a half-game ahead of Borger, 4-2 overall and 2-1 in district.

With the score tied at 14-all, Borger had a pair of scoring threats halted late in the fourth quarter on two interceptions by cornerback Justin Roark deep in Pampa territory. However, Pampa was forced to punt into a 20 mph wind from its own 20 with 58 seconds to go. Borger took over on the Harvester 44 and moved to the 30 on quarterback T.J. Watson's 14-yard pass to Wes Mitchell. On the next play, Nix sent his kick spiraling through the uprights to break the deadlock.

Harvester cagers plan 'Midnight Madness'

PAMPA — The defending Class 4A State Champion Pampa Harvester basketball squad will hold its third annual Midnight Madness Friday, Oct. 25th in McNeely Fieldhouse at 7:30 p.m.

Midnight Madness is an intra-team scrimmage that kicks off the preseason for the Harvesters and helps the community get involved in Pampa basketball, according to Pampa assistant coach John Darnell.

"We're very excited about the upcoming season and we'd like our community to get to see first hand the 1996-97 defending State Champion Hustlin Harvesters," said Darnell.

Top-ranked Florida trounces Purdue

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Florida's defense made Auburn quarterback Dameyune Craig eat his words. Danny Wuerffel and the Fun 'N' Gun offense took care of the rest.

Wuerffel threw for 346 yards and three touchdowns Saturday, and Fred Taylor and Elijah rest of the way untouched. Borger knotted the score at 14-all in the third quarter after the Bulldogs recovered a fumble at the 50. Four plays later, Borger running back Craig Alexander broke a pair of tackles enroute to a 23-yard touchdown run.

Penalties hurt both teams, but the Harvesters suffered the most, drawing 14 flags for 139 yards. Borger was penalized six times for 65 yards.

Borger, led by Alexander and quarterback T.J. Watson, had 287 yards in total offense. Alexander rushed for 188 yards on 22 carries and scored twice. Watson completed 7 of 15 pass attempts for 115 yards, but had three passes picked off, two by Roark and one by Tollerson. He was sacked three times as Devin Lemons, Jared White and Brian Gwin led Pampa's defensive unit.

Long led Pampa in rushing with 96 yards on 32 carries and one touchdown.

Borger 7 0 7 3-17
Pampa 0 14 0 0-14
Borger - Craig Alexander 2 run (Jamie Nix kick)
Pampa - Marques Long 10 run (kick failed)
Pampa - Ray Tollerson 63 pass from Josh Blackmon (Long run)
Borger - Alexander 23 run (Nix kick)
Borger - Nix 47 field goal

Midnight Madness is designed for the community to see their team first hand before the Harvesters begin the 1996-97 season.

Admission to the game is free and many prizes are to be given away, including airfare and tickets to the upcoming game against Denison Nov. 12 at Reunion Arena in Dallas.

Chartered buses will be taking Harvester fans to the season opener in Dallas. For more information on getting a set on the bus, contact the PHS basketball office at 669-4832 or Duane Harp at 669-1848.

Other prizes that will be given away at Midnight Madness include Harvester t-shirts, season tickets, State Champion basketballs, and a gift certificate from Dorman Tires. Everyone who shows up for the game will be entered in the drawing for all prizes.

Said coach Darnell: "We're very thankful for the big crowds the last two years and with the fact that football has an open date we hope to pack the place out."

Wheeler holds off Claude comeback for 35-20 win

CLAUDE — The Wheeler Mustangs were able to overcome a rally late in the game to defeat Claude by 15-points in District 1-1A action Friday night by a final score of 35-20.

Both quarterbacks combined for a total of 5 touchdown passes, 3 of those TD tosses produced by Wheeler's Travis Stevens. Stevens was able to connect with Jeremy Porton twice for touchdowns of 67 yards and 21 yards and also hook up with Jeremy Davis for a touchdown reception from 18 yards out. Davis also scored off of a 1-yard reach into the endzone and Judd was able to do the same to round out Wheelers offense.

Claude started off its offense with a 90-yard kickoff return by Thomas Justiss that was followed by two touchdown passes by Brian Haggard, one received by B.J. Campbell from 12 yards out and the second reception by Hill for a 20 yard touchdown reception.

Wheeler moves to 3-3 overall and remains undefeated in district at 2-0, while Claude falls to 2-4 overall and remains without a win in district at 0-2.

Miami overpowers Higgins

HIGGINS — Marshall Flowers led the Miami Warriors with three touchdowns as they defeated the Higgins Coyotes Friday night in a six-man District 1-1A match-up Friday night 66-16.

Flowers started the game off with a touchdown for the Warriors from 20-yards out for his first touchdown of the game. Flowers also scored the next two touchdowns from 21 and 11-yards out respectively to jump on Higgins early.

Other Warriors to reach paydirt were Jammy Murray, who scored twice off runs of 30 and 26 yards, Blake Hurst, who scored on a 28 yard run and caught a 26 yard pass from Dustin Howard, and Bradley Hale, who scored off of a 14-yard scramble into the endzone.

Higgins was able to score only twice in the contest, one in the first quarter off of Nathan Neal's 4-yard rush into the endzone and in the third quarter off of Dusty Baker's 20-yard reception from Billy Cummings.

Miami's defense allowed the Coyotes only 68 total yards, all of which came through the air.

Miami gained 343 yards of total offense and Marshall Flowers was able to run for 114 yards on 14 carries to lead the Warriors in rushing.

The Warriors are now 5-2 overall and 1-1 in district. Miami's next opponent is Follett next Friday night while the Coyotes meet the Lefors Pirates.

Red Raiders lose

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — In a contest of turnovers and tough defense, Damon Benning showed the way to victory for fifth-ranked Nebraska with a pair of big fourth-quarter runs.

Benning returned a punt 51 yards and two plays later scored on a 5-yard run on which he fumbled the ball but recovered in stride to cap the Huskers' 24-10 victory.

The score was tied 10-10 at the half, with the Red Raiders (4-3, 3-2 Big 12) capitalizing on a fumble by Benning and a 7-yard touchdown return of an interception by rover back Robert Johnson off a pass from the end zone by Husker quarterback Scott Frost.

Groom rolls to 54-6 victory

GROOM — Justin Ritter scored five touchdowns to help the Groom Tigers maul the Lefors Pirates in a six-man District 1-1A clash by 48 points, 54-6. The game was stopped at halftime due to the 45-point mercy rule.

The Tigers pounced on the Pirates early, scoring five touchdowns in the first quarter while a tight Groom defense held Lefors scoreless. Justin Ritter started off the high-scoring quarter with a 67-yard run that was followed by a 9-yard scramble into the end zone by Toby Burgin. Ritter followed Burgin's touchdowns with his second touchdown of the game, this time a 38-yard jaunt into the end zone. Burgin scored his final touchdown off a 58-yard rush into the end zone before Ritter took over, scoring the rest of Groom's remaining touchdowns. Ritter scored his remaining points on an interception return from 20 yards out and two receptions from quarterback Brad Sustaire, for touchdowns of 50 and 20 yards respectively.

Lefors scored its only touchdown of the game when Justin Howard was able to break free for a long 60-yard gallop into the end zone to put the Pirates on the scoreboard in the second quarter.

Statistically Groom led throughout, ending the game with 364 total yards with 84 of those yards by way of passing, compared to Lefors 205 total yards, 40 of which came through the air.

Groom, who is undefeated in district, ups their record to 2-0 in district and 5-2 overall, while the Pirates drop to 1-1 in district and 2-5 overall. Groom faces a strong Fort Elliott team next Friday while Lefors matches up against Higgins at home.

Oilers, Steelers resume rivalry

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers and Pittsburgh Steelers say they're not going to try to out-talk or outfight each other this time. Some of them can't afford it.

The anticipated rematch takes place in the Astrodome on Sunday, when the Steelers and Oilers resume their AFC Central rivalry that ended the last time they played with 35 players being fined a combined $53,500.

"With all the fines we got before, I don't think there will be any trouble," said Oilers safety Marcus Robertson, who was ejected in the first game and drew the stiffest fine at $7,500.

Additional fines would be levied if players get into more fistfights this season. Oilers coach Jeff Fisher and Pittsburgh's Bill Cowher have lectured this week on playing emotional but legal football.

"The one thing we can't afford is to lose somebody. We have to use good judgment," Cowher said. "We've got 50 percent of our team on probation going into this game."

Pittsburgh beat the Oilers 30-16 on Sept. 29 in a game spiced by two fights, trash-talking and accusations of dirty play.

Oilers cornerback Cris Dishman called Steelers linebackers Chad Brown and Jerry Olsavsky "bums" who could only make the Oilers' practice squad. Dishman has taken a milder approach to Sunday's game.

"I'm not worried about Brown and Olsavsky," he said. "I'm more worried about Jerome Bettis."

The Oilers should worry about Bettis, who has five straight 100-yard rushing games and could tie Franco Harris' club record six against the Oilers. Quarterback Mike Tomczak is having an outstanding season directing traffic.

Tomczak scuffled with Robertson in the first game. He just wants to complete passes over him this time.

"That stuff was kind of embarrassing, to be honest, and I think both teams are focused on the importance of this game," Tomczak said. "For Houston and Pittsburgh it's going to be a wonderful matchup. I think the NFL likes these matchups. They create a lot of interest."

Fisher emphasized the need to concentrate on football.

"We don't need to be distracted by things that are said or misinterpreted, things that are fabricated or things that are dug up from 2-3 weeks ago," Fisher said. "Let's pay attention to what we have to do in the classroom and on the practice field and play 60 minutes of solid football."

There is plenty of incentive for this game without bringing up the last meeting of the teams.

The Steelers (5-1) have won five in a row and they've beaten the Oilers (4-2) the last five times they've played, but the Oilers could gain a tie for the division lead if they win.

The Oilers fell behind quickly in their first game. Tempers flared in the first half and it took the Oilers until the second half to settle down.

"You don't go anywhere until you beat the big dog, and in this division that's the Pittsburgh Steelers," Oilers lineman Irv Eatman said. "We don't go anywhere until we handle them, no matter how you look at it."

The Steelers rank fifth in the NFL in total defense and second in rushing offense.

"There is no mystery about the Pittsburgh defense," Fisher said. "Their defense is one of the top, if not the top defense in the NFL, and they turn the ball over for their offense. They run the ball on offense and play solid aggressive defense."

Panhandle hands White Deer 31-7 loss

WHITE DEER — After beginning the season with four straight victories, the White Deer Bucks have gone on a three game losing streak, most recently losing to Panhandle Panthers Friday night by 24 points, 31-7.

The game's scoring started when Panhandle's Corby Shaded returned a punt for a 70-yard touchdown for Panhandle's only touchdown of the quarter. In the second quarter Kevin Brinkley was able to score the Panther's second touchdown off a 5-yard scramble into the end zone to give Panhandle a 14-7 lead. Other scoring for the Panthers came from Trent McKiernan and Zach Robinson, who both scored off one yard pushes into the end zone.

White Deer was able to score their only touchdown of the game when Craig Urbanczyk rushed into the end zone from 7 yards out to put the Bucks on the board in the second quarter.

Urbanczyk rushed for 84 yards on 13 carries for the Bucks, McKiernan was the leading rusher for the Panthers, running the ball for a total of 146 yards on 36 carries.

Panhandle gained a total of 322 total yards compared to White Deer's 207 total yards.

With the victory Panhandle improves to 3-4 overall and 3-0 in District 2-2A while the Bucks fall to 4-3 overall and maintain a losing record in district, 0-2.

Els routs Brooks to reach match play final

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP) — While Ernie Els got most of the afternoon off, Fiji's Vijay Singh worked overtime to join the South African star in the final of the World Match Play Championship.

Els, undefeated in three appearances in the tournament, routed PGA champion Paul Brooks 10 and 8 Saturday. Two hours later, Singh finished off British Open winner Tom Lehman on the 37th hole.

"I have another 36 holes to play tomorrow, and I know I've got to play really well," said Els, who rallied from 6-down Friday to beat Steve Stricker. "But I'm happy I can take the rest of this afternoon off."

Els, who closed out Brooks with a 25-foot birdie putt on the 28th hole, took the lead on No. 4 and steadily built his edge as the American landed in bunkers at five of the first nine holes and twice drove right into the trees on Wentworth's West Course.

"It was a long day. I didn't play well," Brooks said. "It was a struggle from the beginning. It was probably the poorest I've played off the tee for quite some time. Overall, it was a pretty frustrating day."

Brooks, a three-time winner this year on the PGA Tour, bogeyed Nos. 7, 8 and 9 as Els took a 3-up lead at the turn. There was another disaster for Brooks at the 441-yard 13th, where he drove into the trees, hit a tree with his second shot and then splashed into a bunker with a 3-wood shot.

Els birdied three of the last four holes to stretch his lead to six. At the 17th, the longest hole on the course at 571 yards, he landed his third shot only a foot from the hole. His approach to No. 18, another par 5, stopped 5 feet from the hole to set up another birdie.

U.S. trade deficit hits $10.8 billion, second worst showing in five years

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. trade deficit narrowed only modestly to $10.8 billion in August, the second-worst showing in five years, as the deficit with China climbed to an all-time high.

The Commerce Department report Friday showed that the August deficit was down only 6.6 percent from a July shortfall of $11.6 billion, the worst showing since the government began tracking trade in goods and services on a monthly basis in 1992.

The huge deficits in July and August left the trade imbalance for the year running at an annual rate of $112 billion, meaning that the trade deficit, which has widened every year of the Clinton administration, will increase this year as well. Last year's deficit in goods and services was $105.1 billion.

Both GOP challenger Bob Dole and Reform Party candidate Ross Perot have sought to make trade an issue in this year's campaign, contending that the rising deficits have cost millions of American jobs.

But Commerce Secretary Mickey Kantor, a key strategist in the president's re-election effort, blamed the overall deficits on a mismatch between strong economic growth in the United States and weakness overseas. He said despite this, U.S. exports are growing faster than imports.

"The trade deficit is on a long-term path to improvement even though the United States is growing faster than its trading partners," Kantor said.

But private analysts were not as optimistic, with many worried about entrenched barriers to exports in countries such as China and a rise in the dollar over the past 12 months which was making U.S. goods more expensive on overseas markets.

"People who had been optimistic that we were finally going to see a turnaround in trade this year are going to be disappointed," said Lawrence Chimerine, chief economist at the Washington-based Economic Strategy Institute. "It's very hard to put a positive spin on these numbers."

Some economists said the worse-than-expected August deficit would act as a further drag on economic growth in the third quarter.

Cheryl Katz, senior economist at Merrill Lynch in New York, said she believed the overall economy, as measured by the gross domestic product, grew at an annual rate of just 1.7 percent from July through September.

This would be far below the 4.7 percent second quarter pace, making it more likely the Federal Reserve will continue to delay raising interest rates since the economy is slowing so much on its own.

August marked the second time this year that the deficit with China has surpassed that with Japan, the long-time champion in terms of a trade gap with the United States.

Computer Pap tests run into problems with some insurers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ads proclaim it "the safety net for your Pap smear" — a way to rescreen test results to check whether a lab technician may have overlooked any hard-to-spot cervical cancer.

Many insurance companies are refusing to pay for the Papnet computer test, calling it and unnecessary and costly duplication despite its approval late last year by the Food and Drug Administration.

Manufacturer Neuromedical Systems Inc. has signed up only one managed care company to cover it, and has started a massive advertising campaign telling women they may have to pay the $40 tab on their own.

As a result, 7,000 women have called Neuromedical in the last month seeking help in getting the rescreening or in persuading their insurers to pay for it, said company scientist Dr. Laurie Mango.

"It's another check to make sure that you're totally normal," said Amy Osterhout-Anderson, a medical receptionist in New York who paid for her own Papnet test when her insurer refused. But, she adds, "I can't afford to pay every year."

Some women aren't covered while their insurance companies debate whether the rescreening is worth the cost. The federal government early next year will seek recommendations from its medical advisers on possible Medicaid and Medicare coverage.

Other companies have decided against paying. "The Pap smear has already been done and this just duplicates the efforts of a human being," said Cigna HealthCare spokesman Mark Di Giorgio.

A year is not abnormally long for insurers to decide on a new technology, as they weigh the benefits versus the costs, Mango conceded.

Neuromedical is making an all-out effort to persuade insurers, with both the ad campaign and funding for a cost-effectiveness study by the University of Florida that will give 100,000 indigent women nationwide the test for free.

Double-checking lab workers is the idea behind Papnet and rival NeoPath Inc.'s Autopap computer systems.

American women undergo 50 million Pap smears a year, the standard test for catching cervical cancer early enough to cure it. Labs simply examine cells scraped off the cervix for cancer as well as precancerous changes.

Although Pap smears are credited with saving millions of lives, the government says labs miss problems up to 30 percent of the time.

No one knows how often those mistakes prove deadly, although two Wisconsin cancer patients 1993 settled multimillion lawsuits against a lab that repeatedly misread their Pap smears. Both women have since died.

With the computer systems, Pap smears that labs designate as cancer-free are enhanced to help pinpoint tiny cells that appear abnormal so pathologists can take a second look. In FDA-required testing of 228 cancer patients, Papnet helped uncover 72 Pap smears that had been initially misdiagnosed.

The two computers are slightly different. Papnet is marketed to women and doctors, while the FDA approved AutoPap to be sold directly to labs to check their quality.

Archers: In the company of William Tell

A feathered arrow slices through the air. The buffalo falls and a tribal Native American warrior leaps into the air, his bow and arrow flying through the air. The bow and arrow, which made him the most efficient hunter on earth.

From primitive days, the archer has been celebrated in folk lore and history. William the Conqueror and Genghis Khan used the bow to a great deal of success. The bow was used by the American Indians, William Tell and Robin Hood were celebrated as great archers. What began as a tool of war, it has become a sport.

Archery is a sport to enjoy, a challenge, a physical and mental workout. The ancient weapon has been used to hunt, but their eyes and hands are used to the bow.

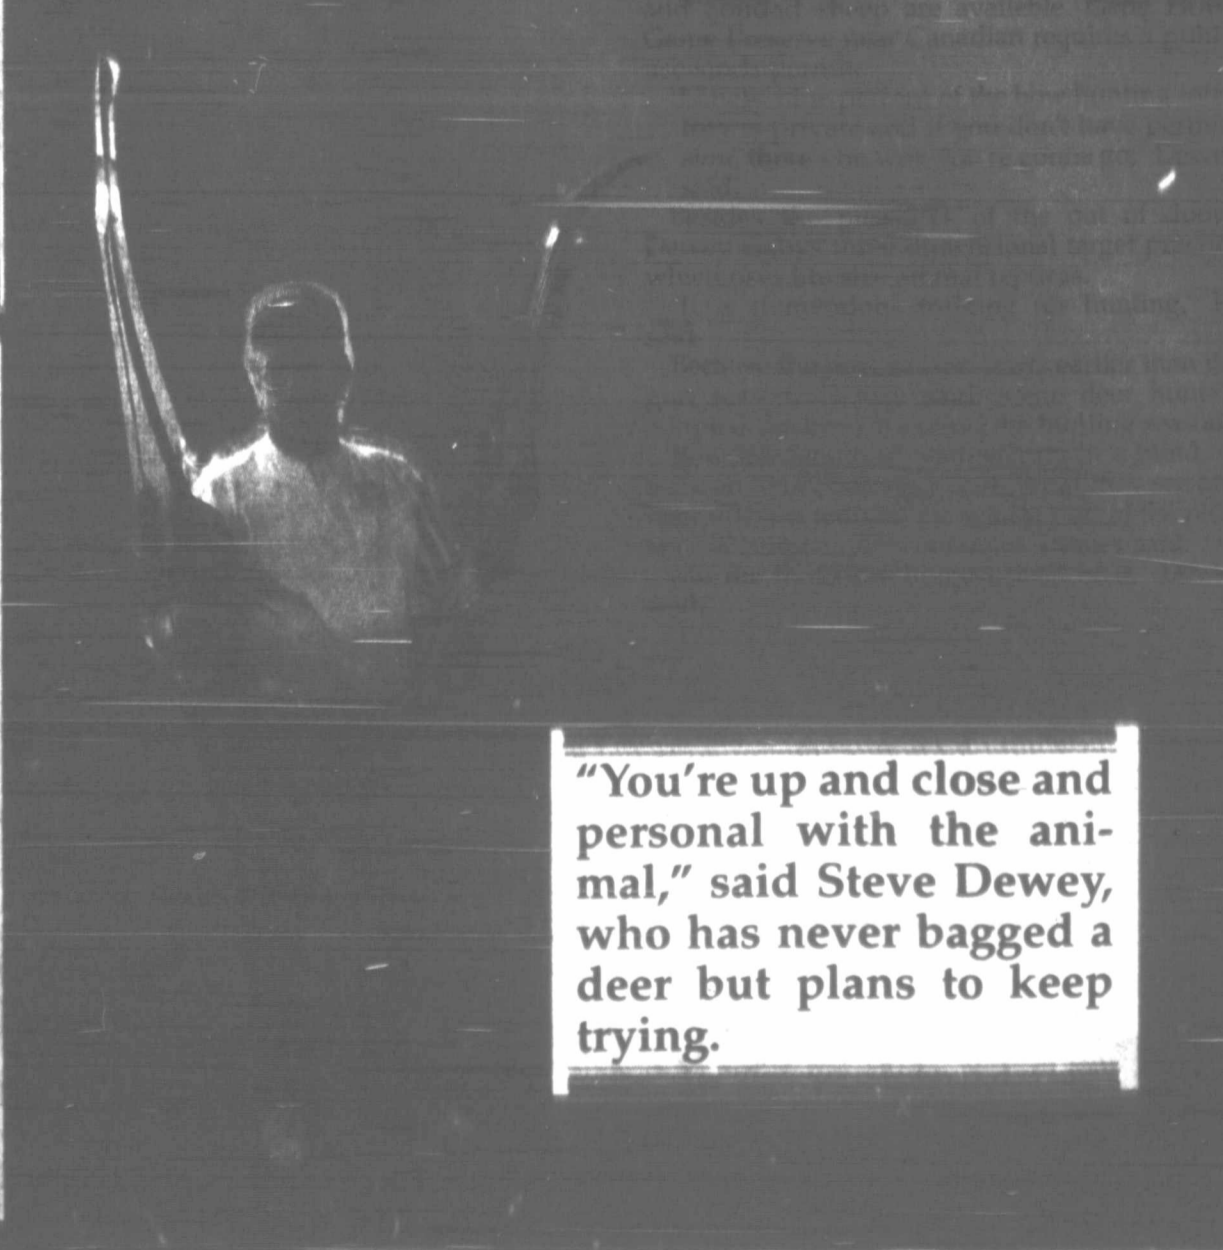

Steve Dewey has been an avid archer since he was a child. He was part of the Pampa Archery Club in the 1970s. He has been a member of the club ever since. He has been a member of the club ever since.

WORTHY OF THE GOSPEL
"Only let your manner of life be worthy of the gospel of Christ; that, whether I come and see you or be absent, I may hear of your state, that ye stand fast in one spirit, with one should striving for the faith of the gospel;" (Phil. 1:27.) From this scripture, as well as many others, it is quite evident that the gospel of Christ is a very demanding standard. It requires worthiness of the disciple of Christ. Paul's letter to the Philippians is addressed to "all the saints in Christ Jesus that are at Philippi, with the bishops and deacons." (Phil. 1:1.) A "saint" is one who has been sanctified. Sanctification and purification are realized through obedience to the truth (Jn. 17:17; I Pet. 1:22-23.) Obedience to the truth is simply believing in Jesus Christ (Jn. 8:24), repenting of one's sins (Acts 17:30), and confessing Jesus Christ (Acts 8:37), and being baptized for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38.) These acts realize sanctification thus making one a saint. The bishops or elders, and deacons are to be duly appointed in every congregation of God's people (I Tim. 3:1-14; Titus 1:5-8; Acts 14:23.) And so, we recognize that Paul was writing to the Christians at Philippi, those who were members of the Lord's church there. Their conduct of life was to measure up to the standard of holiness and righteousness which the gospel of Christ requires (I Pet. 1:15; Rom. 1:16-17.) James wrote: "Wherefore putting away all filthiness and overflowing of wickedness, receive with meekness the implanted word, which is able to save your souls." (Jas. 1:21.) The gospel demands that one, after becoming a Christian in realizing the forgiveness of sins, is to live a life of holiness, godliness and righteousness. Paul wrote to Titus: "For the grace of God hath appeared, bringing salvation to all men, instructing us, to the intent that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly and righteously and godly in the present world;" (Titus 2:11-12.) It is as much required that a person live a godly life after baptism as it is required to initially obey the gospel in becoming a Christian. -Billy T. Jones

Pumpkins - vegetable of the season

For many people, hearing the word "pumpkin" brings three things to mind: Halloween, harvest and Thanksgiving dinner. Pumpkin is among the most celebrated of farm grown foods. This fruit-of-the-vine - often marketed as a vegetable - is rich with legend and lore. There are mythical mentions of pumpkin in fairy tales, short stories and rhymes. Pumpkins have also been held in high esteem by many cultures. In ancient China, for example, the pumpkin was a symbol of success and wealth.
 The Halloween practice of carving Jack-O-Lanterns is actually an old English custom. It was said that the eerie light cast off by these hollowed, lighted pumpkins would ward off evil spirits.
 Pumpkin has been described as "the fruit which the Lord fed his people with till corn and cattle increased." When the first settlers came to America, they found the fields full of the strange, huge, orange vegetable the Indians had been growing. For the early colonists, pumpkins meant the difference between survival and starvation.
 Pioneer women adapted some of their own recipes and concocted pumpkin pies, puddings, breads and cakes. The first New England pumpkin "pie" was made by cutting the top from the pumpkin, removing the seeds and filling the cavity with milk, spices and maple syrup. Baked until tender, this was a harvest time favorite.

 October is the best month for pumpkins. If you are selecting a pumpkin to make a pie or fresh bread, choose one that is five to eight pounds, very deep orange in color, firm and heavy. Some brown flocking on the skin is also a sign of good quality.
 To prepare the pumpkin for cooking, start by washing it and cutting it in half crosswise with a stout knife. Remove seeds and strings. Pumpkin can then be baked, boiled or cooked in a microwave oven.
 • TO BAKE: Place in a greased, shallow pan, shell side up, and bake at 375°F until the flesh is tender or about 30 to 45 minutes.

When cool enough to handle, scrape flesh from rind and press through a sieve. A pumpkin that has served as Jack-O-Lantern can be prepared in this way after all traces of wax and soot have been removed.
 • TO BOIL: Cut pumpkin in squares and cook in a small amount of boiling, salted water, covered, for 20 minutes or until tender. Drain, scrape from shell and mash. Boiled pumpkin is much more moist than baked pumpkin, thus it may be more desirable to heat the strained pulp over low heat with frequent stirring to evaporate some of the moisture before using in a pie.
 • TO MICROWAVE: Cut in half vertically. Scoop out seeds and place one half, cut side down, in a glass baking dish. Microwave on high uncovered 10-15 minutes or until tender, rotating the dish once or twice. Repeat cooking the other half. Cool until easy to handle. Scoop out the pulp and process in blender or food processor until smooth. Don't throw away those pumpkin seeds. Toast them and serve your family and friends a great taste treat.

 • TO TOAST: Rinse seeds to clean fibers from seeds. Spread seeds in a jelly-roll pan. Bake 15 minutes at 350° or until lightly browned. Stir occasionally. To microwave seeds simply arrange an even layer of seeds in a Glads pie plate. If desired, sprinkle lightly with salt. Cook 5-7 minutes or until seeds are crisp, stirring every minute.
 Both canned and fresh pumpkin are high in Vitamin A and low in calories with only 50 calories per cup of cooked pumpkin. Remember that extra ingredients such as sugar and fat in those pumpkin recipes add extra calories.
 Pumpkin is a palate pleaser during October or anytime of the year. Enjoy the subtle, delicious flavor of pumpkin throughout the year in everything from salad dressing to soup, from pancakes to pasta, from chili to cheesecake, from muffins to mousse. Pumpkin - the versatile vegetable choice for great taste and great nutrition.

PBS series features Julia Child, other chefs

Land O'Lakes is a sponsor of the new PBS series, Baking With Julia, hosted by Julia Child and featuring the country's premier professional bakers and pastry chefs. In each episode a guest chef will visit Julia and demonstrate how to make his or her signature breads, cakes (including Norman Love's Lemon Loaf Cake), pies and cookies and share time-honored tips and indispensable techniques.
 Land O'Lakes Holiday Bakeline - 1-800-782-9606 from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. (CST) beginning thru Dec. 24 - receives thousands of calls each holiday season from bakers "kneading" a helping hand in the kitchen and many callers have questions about baking with butter.
 Here, Child and master bakers share their butter basics for better baking:

When a recipe calls for softened butter, place the butter between two sheets of waxed paper and hit it a few times with a rolling pin. It will be the right consistency in a flash.
 When making pastry dough, cut the cold butter into the flour until the pieces of butter range in size from bread crumbs to oatmeal to tiny peas. The small pieces will make the dough tender, the large pieces will make it flaky.

 For a great butter cake with a soft and tender crumb, make sure to beat the butter and sugar together until they're light and satiny. The mixture should feel smooth with no grains of sugar.
 Open-faced fruit tarts, especially apple tarts, brown beautifully if brushed with melted butter and sprinkled with a little sugar before baking.

ASCENDING ACTRESS

This Fall Claire Is Everywhere

By EILEEN GLANTON
Associated Press Writer

Mention the name Claire Danes and you might think of the angst-ridden but slyly smart and wise-beyond-her-years teen from the short-lived television series "My So-Called Life."

That's about to change. The 17-year-old actress is taking a major leap into the Big Time with the plum role of Juliet in Baz Luhrmann's sizzingly updated "William Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet."

She also anchors the film "To Gillian on Her 37th Birthday," a melodrama about a man grieving over the death of his wife. Danes plays daughter Rachel, a wise teen at the emotional center of the dysfunctional family.

"I'm starting to feel like my wings are spreading," Danes says. "I feel like an idiot for saying that, but it's true. I look back a year ago and I'm like, 'God, I was such a baby.' But I know it'll be like that in another year, too."

No doubt she'll look back at playing Juliet as a major turning point. Juliet is her deepest and darkest role, expected to give her a long shot at an Oscar and solid footing on Hollywood's A list.

To play Juliet, Danes tapped into her considerable intellect, then, unexpectedly, into her heart. "When I started 'Romeo and Juliet,' I was just starting to break up with my boyfriend, and I would cry periodically during rehearsals," she said about ending her relationship with musician Andrew Dorff, brother of actor Stephen Dorff. "It's just so hard to be talking about love when you're supposed to be falling out of it."

Strong stuff for one so young. But while her speech is still laced with "like" and "you know" and she still wears a uniform to school - Le Lycee de Francais in Los Angeles - Danes is most definitely not the girl next door. To begin with, Danes grew up in a loft in New York's arty Soho district. At 10, she decided she wanted to act, and her artist parents enrolled her in the prestigious Lee Strasberg Theatre Institute.

She was only 14 when she won the role of Angela in "My So-Called Life." Critics and a loyal core of viewers adored it, but the show lasted only one season although it was later rebroadcast on MTV. Small-but-sweet roles in "Little Women" and "Home for the Holidays" followed, giving Danes a reputation as a major talent with a maturity beyond her years.

That maturity serves her well in "To Gillian on Her 37th Birthday." As Rachel, Danes plays a sad but enlightened teen-ager, far more solid than the muddled adults around her.

In fact, Danes was particularly drawn to Rachel's normalcy. "She's actually the most normal person I've played, ever," Danes says. "Basically, she's just a teen-ager living in 1996, she goes to the mall and goes to see movies and she's just starting to see boys."

That could also describe Danes herself. Although she may pack her schedule with exotic appointments on movie sets and posh hotels, her hobbies are extraordinarily ordinary.

She loves (LOVES!) going to the movies. ("Fargo" and "Trainspotting" are her current favorite films.) She also likes to draw and sketch, although she frets that her skills may not be as good as they once were. And like most of us, she likes to read but laments about her lack of time to crack a book.

One thing she did find time to read was Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet," deconstructing the play with a tutor while the rest of her English class read Richard Wright's "Native Son."

Danes had scored the part on a recommendation from Jodie Foster and an emphatic nod from leading man Leonardo DiCaprio, who was cast first.

Months after production, Danes looks back on the film and DiCaprio with a mix of awe, admiration and shock. "It was so surreal, the whole experience," she said. "For four months, we were in Mexico City, which is really kind of a magical place, very passionate and vibrant. There are so many colors surrounding you when you're there."

There's also a fair amount of bacteria, and virtually the whole cast and crew spent time nursing Montezuma's revenge. The illness, the isolation and the intensity of the work seemed to fuel some fires, Danes said.

"I was really the only girl there," she said, not unhappily. "And by the end, when we were shooting the gang stuff, there were aaaaalllll these boys in this Wild West kind of place and it got a little out of control."

Invariably, DiCaprio led the pack. He came to "Romeo and Juliet" widely acclaimed, but with a bad-boy reputation so different from Danes', many wondered whether they'd click.

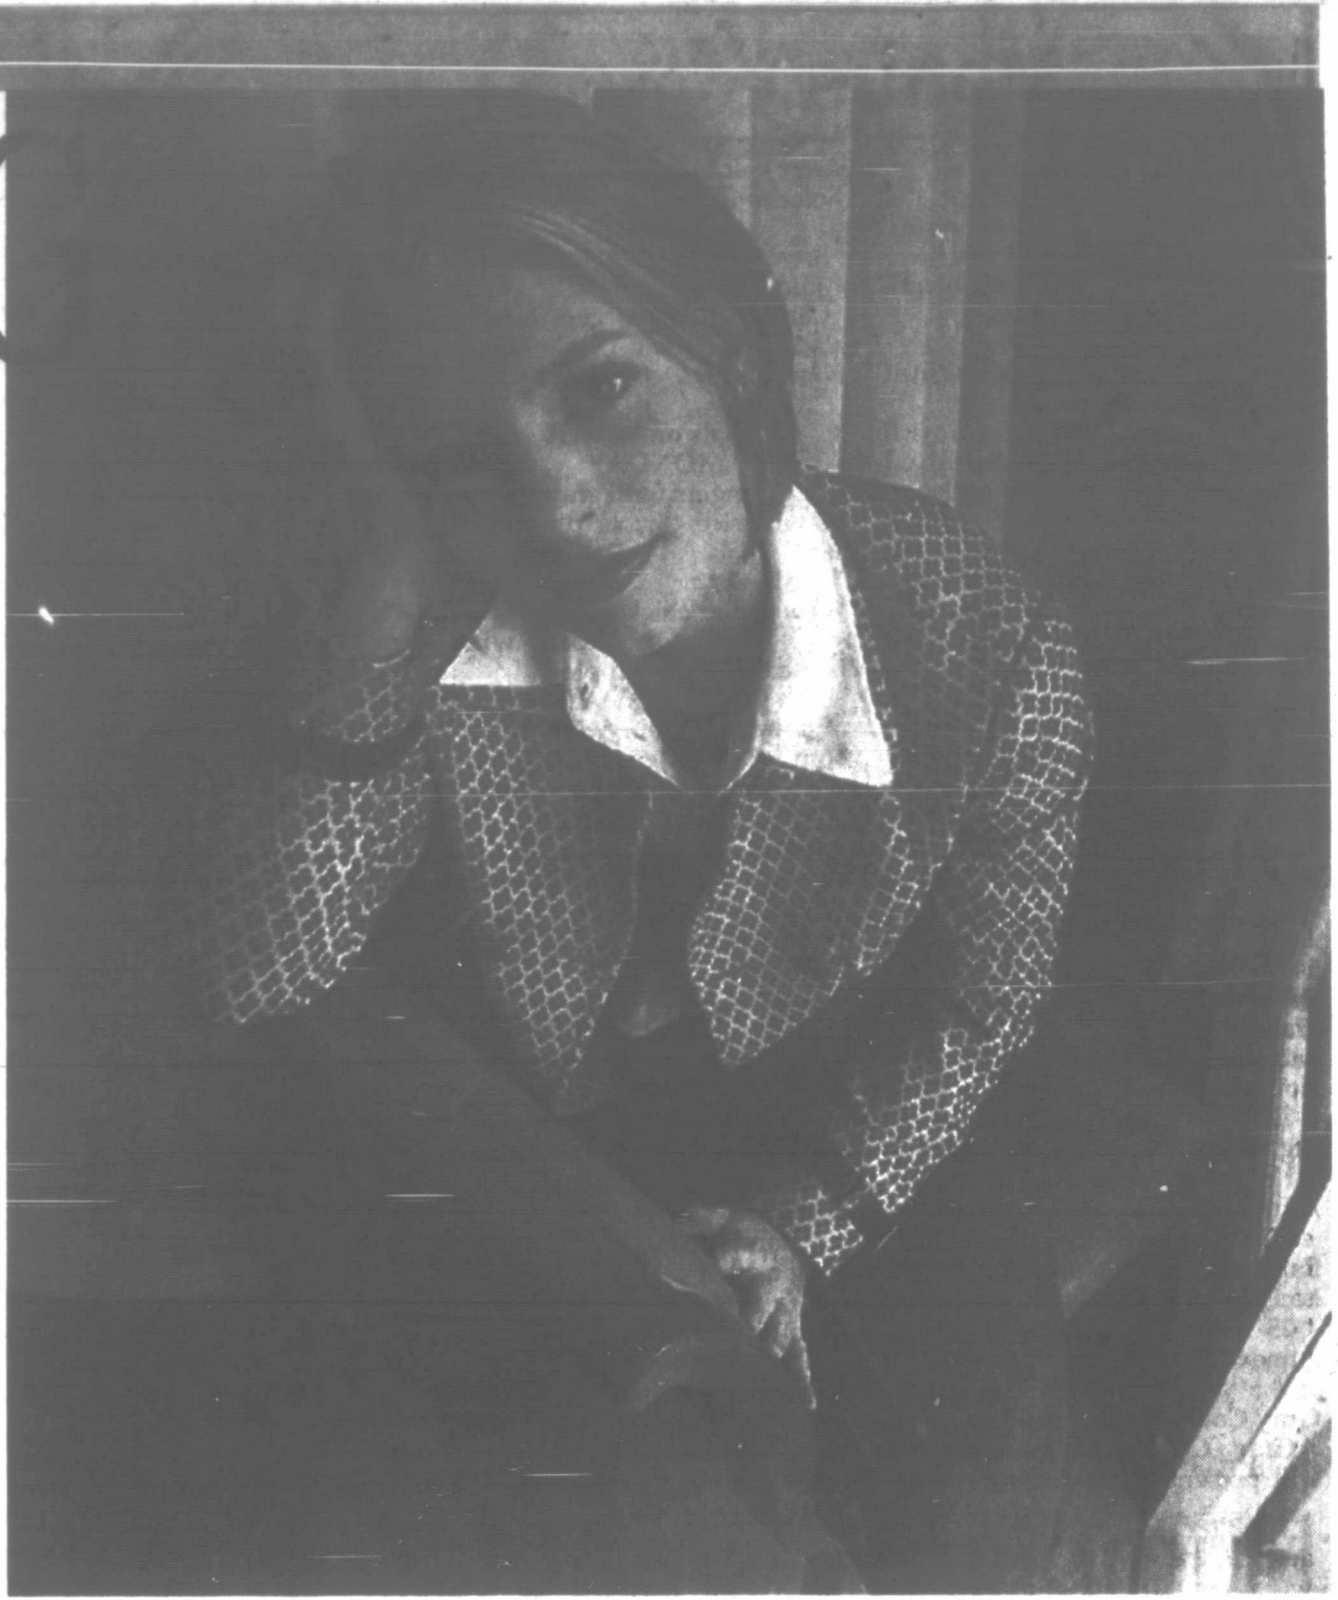

They do, their scenes together are the best in the brash, bold film. "I think we understand each other," Danes said. "I mean, we're two different chemicals, and when you put us together in the same container, things start happening. Good and bad things."

For the record, off-screen romance wasn't one of those things. But with theater's most romantic role on her resume and her first major love under her belt, what does Danes, who can quicken the hearts of men a decade older, have to say about love?

"Oh," she breathes. "God did good when he created boys."

The answer reveals Danes' delicate place in the world: somewhere between girl and woman, young enough to balance a dozen crushes and old enough to suffer heartbreak.

This is Claire Danes' life. And there's nothing so-called about it.

Morales still hopes white pickup will carry him to victory over Gramm

By PEGGY FIKAC
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — His white pickup has already taken him further than political pundits thought it could.

But Democratic U.S. Senate candidate Victor Morales, who drove across Texas to win his party's nomination, faces more than an uphill climb against GOP incumbent Phil Gramm as the November election nears.

Gramm has a double-digit lead in several polls and a war chest that allows him to buy radio and television advertising that Morales hasn't had the money to match.

The ads criticized Morales for his opposition to a balanced budget amendment, lack of opposition to same-sex marriages and belief that affirmative action still is necessary.

Morales says the ads contain lies and half-truths. On budget issues, for example, he supports balancing the budget but not a constitutional amendment requiring it; on affirmative action, he opposes quotas.

Gramm says he has tried to stick with the issues.

"Once the campaign started to focus on issues and people started to not only look at my record but look at what my opponent is saying, I think that's when the tide started to shift dramatically in our direction," Gramm said.

"I think people decided that not only was I on their side, but that Mr. Morales was not on their side."

Morales, a high school government teacher who took a leave of absence to campaign, dismissed Gramm's criticism as "standard dialogue."

"If you listen to him ramble, he doesn't say anything, except, 'Less government. Less taxes. Less regulation. My momma,'" said Morales, mimicking Gramm's Georgian-turned-Texan accent.

For his part, Morales made what a most observers considered a tactical error by turning down a chance to debate Gramm.

Morales didn't like the forum's timing or format.

"That's probably not very smart campaign politics," said Jerry Polinard, a political science professor at the University of Texas-Pan American.

And a recent gaffe also didn't help: Morales called Hispanic Republican U.S. Rep. Henry Bonilla of San Antonio a "coconut" and a "wannabe white."

Morales apologized for the Bonilla remarks but said he was disappointed that they got so much more attention than his proposal for campaign finance reform made the same day.

"I think it's much more important to talk about campaign reform, don't you?" he asked.

Morales said it's frustrating not to be able to spread his message more widely. But even if he can't raise the cash to buy much television time, Morales said he believes he can win.

"I may not be able to get my message (out), but their (voters') dislike of Phil Gramm and their dislike of the (Gramm) ads might backfire on him," he said.

"If the large Hispanic vote comes out that we're hoping, along with my strong Anglo American (and) African American support, then we could still pull this off," Morales said. "I feel that we will pull this off."

Gramm, who has aired ads even in the heavily Hispanic and traditionally Democratic Rio Grande Valley, said, "I don't buy for a minute that Mr. Morales is going to dominate the Hispanic vote because he speaks Spanish."

"The point is, what he says in Spanish, people don't agree with," Gramm said. "The things I fight for are the things that most working Texans believe in."

An aggressive campaigner, Gramm is running for re-election after stepping out of the presidential race.

"I hope and believe we're going to win," he said. "I'd like to win convincingly."

Morales said he'll wage a good fight.

"If I go down, I go down swinging," Morales said. "No camera makes me back off. No reporter makes me back off. Nobody makes me back off."

"The only ones that are going to make me back off are the public on Nov. 5, if they choose to do so," he said. "And if they do so, so be it."

Morales has astounded election watchers before, besting two congressmen to win the Democratic Senate nomination.

"I'm surprised he made it this far, but dadgummit, he sure did," said Polinard, who noted that he and others also doubted Morales could win the primary election and runoff.

"Now, we're all saying he can't win (in November)," Polinard said. "He may have the last laugh."

Mexican automakers seek extension of tax incentive

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexican auto assemblers are negotiating with several state governments to extend tax incentives currently offered on the purchase of new cars, says the head of the industry.

"As of now we have held preliminary talks with 12 states, but still haven't reach a concrete agreement because our positions remain widely divergent," the president of the Mexican Automobile Industry Association, Fausto Cuevas, said.

This year, to stimulate sagging sales, the Treasury Department suspended collection of a tax on the purchase of new automobiles and offered tax deductions to companies that renew car fleets.

In 1997, responsibility for collecting the tax will shift from the federal government to state administrations, prompting assemblers to open talks with states over extending the suspension.

Cuevas said Mexico's automotive industry contributes 3 percent of the country's total gross domestic product, and nearly 10 percent of industrial GDP. Each job at an automaker leads to the indirect creation of seven additional positions, he added.

At present, Mexico's auto industry employs an estimated 450,000 workers.

"We are talking with state governments, but independent of these efforts we have asked the Treasury Department to maintain tax incentives for new-car purchases in 1997," said Cuevas.

In the first half of 1996 the Federal District led the country in sales, with 44 percent of all units sold.

The neighboring State of Mexico saw an additional 14.7 percent of sales during the period, followed by the states of Jalisco (10 percent), Nuevo Leon (8.2 percent), Guanajuato (4.9 percent), Veracruz (4.3 percent), Tamaulipas (4.1 percent), and others less than 4 percent.

Republicans taking aim at gaining control of Texas Legislature

By MICHAEL HOLMES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — They've got targets, they've got candidates, they've got a slogan.

What remains to be seen is whether Texas Republicans have the votes to do something they've never done in the 20th century: take control of a chamber in the Texas Legislature.

Last spring, Republicans looked at the 150-member House and talked about "76 in '96" — the target number of seats needed to control that chamber.

They looked at the 31-member Senate, where they already hold 14 seats, and talked about the two victories needed to take charge there.

They recruited candidates to challenge Democratic incumbents and run in open districts. They attacked Democratic legislative leaders over issues including school funding, taxes, spending and, well, longtime Democratic control.

But with President Clinton and Bob Dole running a close race, the volume has softened a little this fall.

"I've been saying I hope we get a majority. But I think a gain of five to six would be terrific in the House for us. In the state Senate, I would hope we would win at least one," said state GOP Chairman Tom Pauken.

"In light of the closeness of the presidential race, we have got to be realistic about our prospects. I think Sen. (Phil) Gramm's strong showing will help our down-ballot candidates. But a lot of it's going to depend on turnout — that's the critical ingredient," Pauken said.

State Democratic leaders voice confidence.

"I'm thinking about a program called '98 in '98,'" said Bill White, Democratic Party chairman, as he eyed the Texas House lineup. "Things are going our way."

White said Texas voters are turned off to the socially conservative agenda pushed by some Twenty-five years ago, Republicans held only 10 of the 150 House seats. Today, they hold 63 and Democrats 84 (three are vacant). The GOP must retain all its seats and notch a net gain of 13 to take over.

Republican candidates, and he said Clinton won't be a drag on local Democrats as some of the party's presidential candidates were in the past.

"Most Texans don't want to see our Legislature taken over by strident partisan Republicans like Congress was," White said. "We have targeted Republican House and Senate members. We intend to pick up seats from Republicans that Democrats have not done before."

For the GOP, this battle was uphill from the start, particularly in the Texas House.

Twenty-five years ago, Republicans held only 10 of the 150 House seats. Today, they hold 63 and Democrats 84 (three are vacant). The GOP must retain all its seats and notch a net gain of 13 to take over.

They took aim, starting at the top with Speaker Pete Laney.

Republicans criticized Laney, a 12-term lawmaker, for breaking a promise to serve only two terms in the top House job. He's expected to seek a third term as speaker if he wins in November.

In his district, GOP opponent Hollis Cain hit Laney over taking campaign contributions from lobbyists, supporting the "Robin Hood" school finance plan that transfers money from some property-rich districts, and accusing him of losing touch with folks back home.

Laney, a Hale Center farmer, says Cain is way off base. He campaigns as a conservative Democrat who has worked closely with Gov. George W. Bush and other Republicans. He's appointed Republicans as House committee chairmen.

But the GOP, Laney argues, wants Austin to look like Washington.

"A small group wants the Texas House to adopt the worst partisan aspects of Congress. Texas government is not like Congress. We should be proud of that. Let's not follow their lead into gridlock," Laney said.

Such reasoning rings hollow, says state Rep. Kent Grusendorf, R-Arlington, who chairs the Campaign for Republican Leadership.

"It is amazing to me that although the Democrats have controlled the Texas Legislature for the past 100 years, they view themselves as being 'bipartisan,'" the lawmaker wrote in a newspaper essay.

"They have always elected a Democratic speaker. However, Democrats like Laney cry, 'Partisan gridlock!' at the thought of a Republican majority desiring a Republican speaker. To them, 'nonpartisan' actually means maintaining Democratic control."

Grusendorf's group sees 27 House races as those where they have an average or better chance of winning.

On the Senate side of the Rotunda, things are a little different.

The GOP holds a record 14 of the 31 seats. Democrats still hold a majority of 16 (one is vacant). The presiding officer, Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, is a Democrat not up for election until 1998.

Many senators say that even if Republicans win control, it's unlikely Bullock would be stripped of the appointment and agenda-controlling power he now enjoys — although much of that authority is granted by senators under rules they adopt.

Bullock has sided with Republicans on some issues and like Laney has appointed Republicans to chair some key committees.

"I have no illusions about Mr.

Bullock's enormous power," GOP chairman Pauken says. "He remains the most powerful political figure in our state, as he's been for years. Even if we get a technical majority, I suspect he will maintain most of his power temporarily."

Although 16 Senate seats are up for election, several incumbents face no opponents. Most analysts say GOP chances to win that technical majority ride on the outcome in four districts:

— The 2nd: This district covers part of Dallas and northeast Texas. Sen. David Cain, D-Dallas, is seeking re-election against Republican Bob Reese of Canton.

— The 3rd: Sen. Drew Nixon, R-Carriage, faces a determined challenge in East Texas from state Rep. Jerry Johnson, D-Nacogdoches.

— The 24th: Sen. Bill Sims, D-Paint Rock, is retiring. A spirited race pits Democrat Rick Rhodes, a former mayor of Sweetwater, against Republican Troy Fraser of Marble Falls, a former House member.

— The 28th: This West Texas district unexpectedly opened up when veteran Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, resigned to become Texas Tech University chancellor. A special election is being held Nov. 5 and drew seven candidates. A December runoff will be held if no one gets a majority.

Balloons Make Good Decorations But Shouldn't Be Used As Toys

DEAR ABBY: I have read with interest your columns about balloons being hazardous to animals. Balloons can be an even greater hazard to small children. Please address this issue in your column. It may save a life and a lot of heartache.

I have been an emergency room nurse for 27 years. In the last three months, I have seen two children die from ingesting latex balloons. They chew, play with and put deflated (or partially deflated) balloons in their mouths. They accidentally swallow them, choke, aspirate and die.

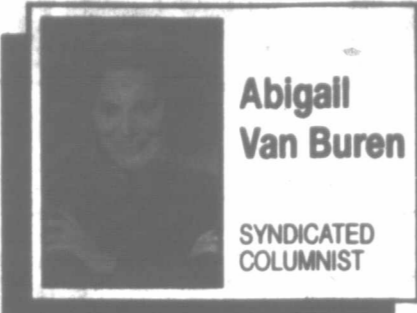

The balloon gets stuck in the child's throat. Parents are usually unable to resuscitate these children because it's too late by the time they realize what has happened and call for help. How sad for a child to die from something that was once so cheerful.

Parents, beware. Although they are festive decorations, balloons should not be kept after a party because they make very dangerous toys. The results can be lethal.

NANCY CORTE, R.N., CLINTON TOWNSHIP, MICH.

DEAR NANCY: Thank you for an important letter, one that may save many young lives. The day after it arrived, I received a second warning concerning balloons from a medical professional. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for

Abigail Van Buren

standing your ground in your reply to the balloon industry regarding the dangers that balloons pose to wildlife. Latex balloons also pose a very real risk of aspiration and sudden death to children.

Consider these scenarios: The curious 1-year-old finds a latex balloon, puts it in her mouth (as she does everything else she finds) and "POP!"; she gasps and some or all of the latex shreds enter her airway. Or the active 7-year-old at a birthday party doing four things at once — running, jumping, talking, blowing up a latex balloon. He trips, balloon in mouth, and suddenly the balloon is in his windpipe.

The nature of the material — very light, flexible and sticky when wet — causes it to adhere to the inside of the airway. If it happens to completely obstruct the passage of air, the child is dead within minutes.

We, and many other hospitals, have banned the use of latex balloons — only Mylar balloons are allowed.

Now, if we can only convince people to stop using latex gloves as balloons to distract children while they're sitting in the waiting room.

ROBERT DIXON, M.D., EGGLESTON CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL, ATLANTA

DEAR ABBY: About 40 years ago, I wrote you a letter in fun saying, "My boyfriend, Bill, bought me an electric blanket with dual controls for Christmas ... what do you think he had in mind?"

You returned my letter on which you had written in red ink: "Marriage, I hope!"

Well, Bill and I were married that March and had 37 happy years together before I lost him in 1995 on St. Valentine's Day. I thought it would please you to know that he carried that letter in his billfold all those years.

Thanks for the memories. MARIE WILLIAMS, LEBANON, MO.

DEAR MARIE: And thank you for sharing them.

More companies doing their walking into Texas Yellow Pages market

By CALEB SOLOMON
The Wall Street Journal's
Texas Journal

The outlook for Yellow Pages is a lot like the one for fashion models: They may get skinnier, but you'll also see a lot more of them.

Companies big and small are entering the Yellow Pages business in Texas. For consumers, that increases the likelihood that more than one Yellow Pages directory will land on their doorstep. And for advertisers, it means lower rates — as much as 50 percent for the first year as newcomers try to grab a foothold.

"New competition is coming into the marketplace," says Deborah Patrick, director of marketing for National Yellow Pages Monitor, a San Francisco market-research company that is measuring Yellow Pages usage in Houston, Dallas and Fort Worth.

Currently, 38 companies publish Yellow Pages in Texas, second in the U.S. behind California, according to Simba Information Inc., a Stamford, Conn., research and industry newsletter publisher. And while the different Yellow Pages may look the same, they aren't.

For instance, Southwestern Bell, Texas' dominant phone company and Yellow Pages publisher, is shrinking the type in its books, which reduces the number of pages — not to mention the weight.

The two million copies of the Southwestern Bell Yellow Pages being distributed in Houston contain 317 fewer pages than previously. The company now runs five columns of listings per page instead of four, shrank the type for some listings and reduced filler ads for its services.

"The overall goal is to save paper," says Don Fisher, marketing specialist with Southwestern Bell, a unit of SBC Communications Inc. of San Antonio.

Smaller type is an industry trend that's drawing mixed reviews. "The environmentalists love it," says Harvey Winn, director of communications for the Yellow Pages Publishers Association, a Troy, Mich., trade group. "The old people like me who have to wear glasses can't stand it."

GTE Corp. of Dallas, the state's other large phone-book publisher, doesn't plan on reducing the type size, but its book is 8 by 10 inches instead of the more typical 9 by 11 inches. The book includes shopping-mall maps, an auto-mall guide and a restaurant section with menus.

"Ours is much easier to work with," says Jody Bilney, vice president of marketing at GTE Directories, the company's phone-book subsidiary. With the bigger book, she says, "there's this flop factor when you flip the book over."

GTE also makes it easy for small businesses to advertise on its Internet Yellow Pages, called SuperPages. The same sales representative who sells print ads walks a customer through the Internet ad process.

Meanwhile, Great Western Directories Inc. of Amarillo, a closely held publisher, promotes a printing process called "pizzazz color" in its roughly two dozen Texas markets. "The ads look so natural it's unbelievable," a company vice president says.

Yellow Pages have a respectable slice of the U.S. advertising pie. According to industry estimates, five cents of every dollar spent on ads nationally are spent on Yellow Pages, putting them fifth behind TV, newspaper, magazine and radio. Many businesses advertise solely in the Yellow Pages.

Yellow Pages are generally a high-profit-margin business. One reason: Unlike phone service, it isn't regulated. Southwestern Bell and others won't break out their Texas profits, however.

The biggest launch in Texas this year was by GTE, which began publishing a Dallas Yellow Pages that directly competes with Southwestern Bell's book. GTE Directories published 28 new Texas directories this year, many bought from other publishers, bringing its state total to 102, says Ms. Bilney. "We're constantly looking for opportunities to expand our business," she says.

So are smaller publishers, which are called independents because they don't offer phone service. Richard O'Neal, president of Great Western Directories, says the company plans to announce by year's end that it will distribute Yellow Pages in two new Texas markets. (He won't say where.)

Great Western looks for small or midsize markets where the local phone company's Yellow Pages is the only game in town. "If there is a monopoly, you can be assured of one thing: Prices to the advertiser will be higher," O'Neal says. Great Western usually sweeps in with rate cuts of 40 percent to 50 percent, he says.

What's more, the emergence of local phone competition will spur more Yellow Pages rivalries, says Natalie Schwartz, senior managing editor at Simba.

"It's a turning point for the industry," she says. "Everything from listings to distribution will be affected."

Does that mean you will get five different Yellow Pages if there are five phone companies vying for your local service? "That's the question everybody is asking, and I don't believe so," Ms. Schwartz says.

Instead, new entrants will form agreements with existing publishers to print their customers' numbers. "The industry will look a lot different for years to come," she says.

Agriculture

The Market Forecaster

By George Kleinman

WHEAT — (BULL)

Outlook: It's time to put a cautious bull in the box — not a roaring bull like earlier in the year, but a cautious one.

It feels like the wheat market has bottomed seasonally. We should now have a modest upward bias into spring. U.S. supplies remain tight, and exports relatively good. However, the rest of the world appears awash in wheat and will be offering stiff export competition in the coming months.

The European community is slated for a record harvest, and the Australian crop is a big one as well. The Canadian crop is large, but perhaps not as big as previously thought. Tough winter weather a few weeks back hurt their crop perhaps to the tune of 150 million bushels; that's what we hear although the news media has said little about this. Also, much of their wheat crop, previously thought to be milling quality, will be no better than feed wheat.

This should help the Minneapolis futures, which I look to eventually go back to a premium to the Chicago & Kansas City.

Strategy: Hedgers: I still recommend you sell all stored wheat and simultaneously buy at the money March call options. They are currently running less than 20¢/bushel. This will be your maximum additional downside risk (the risk is undetermined when holding cash wheat). Plus you eliminate storage costs, and you free the hidden value in the cash stored in your wheat. It works much better in your pocket than sitting idle in the bin or elevator.

Traders: Traders still own December Chicago from $4.29. Risk to $4.09 for a $4.50 objective. New spread recommendation: Buy March Minneapolis and sell March Chicago, with the Chicago at 5 cents or better premium to the Mpls. Risk 7 cents for a 20 cents objective.

CORN — (BEAR)

Outlook: As we go to press, I do not yet have access to the important October USDA crop report.

If the USDA estimates a corn crop in the neighborhood of nine million bushels, I do not see any need for corn prices to go much higher now. They could continue to fade into the thick of harvest. If the number comes out less than 8.8 billion, one could make a more bullish case, and corn will most likely have bottomed, at least for this go around.

The world seems to have an adequate feed grain supply. Note the additional feed wheat from Canada (discussed above). Barley and sorghum stocks have rebounded as well. China is turning from a corn importer back to a modest exporter. Corn prices have come down a long way, and additional downside may be limited. However, without a supply shock from the report, I see no reason to turn bullish just yet.

Strategy: Hedgers: We remain 75 percent hedged in December with an average price above $3.36. Cash in on these very profitable short futures as you sell harvested corn. Feed users can buy at the money calls to protect against higher prices (not futures; the calls will allow you to benefit from lower cash prices should they occur). I still like the May at the money call options now.

Traders: We remain on the sideline until the new production data is absorbed by the marketplace.

CATTLE — (BULL/BEAR)

Outlook: Despite generally firm cash cattle prices, the futures market has not been acting well lately. The reason has to do with beliefs. There is a growing belief that the tightest supplies, and therefore the best prices, are behind us.

I do not dispute this. The cattle on feed numbers are growing. They are still less than a year ago at this time, but higher than in the summer. However, what I'm not sure the futures are looking at is demand. It remains very good. Lower prices will do nothing to discourage this.

I also question if the deep discounts in the futures (December is trading about $6 to $7 per hundredweight under cash, and February even more) are too deep. After all, all the futures are an expectation of where prices will be tomorrow, today. Expectations change daily.

I do not advocate fighting the trend, but will be looking for a bottom in the futures and soon rather than later.

Strategy: Feeders: Hedgers own the 67 put options (purchased just over $1), and the 68s (for less than $2). Prices have now fallen under these levels, and the puts are registering profits. This is reasonably priced price insurance for uncertain times.

Put options effectively place a price floor under your market. The main advantage over selling futures or forward contracting is that they never limit your upside potential. This makes sound business sense.

Cow/calf operators: Cow/calf operators, based on a prior recommendation, own at the money put options for the October through January time period. I have not liked the way the feeders have acted with lower corn prices. They should be stronger, and this is a danger signal. If corn prices rise a bit, feeder prices could fall more. While puts give price protection in down markets, they never limit upside potential.

Traders: Last week, you were able to buy December at our recommended price (under 6650.) Since the technical tone has changed, I would now look to sell out for a modest loss; at approximately 6600 and reevaluate. Leave the stop at 6500. Now look to buy sharp breaks under 6375, risking to 6225.

The information and recommendations presented herein are believed to be reliable; however, changing market variables can change price outlooks. Neither Pampa News nor George Kleinman assume liability for their use. Use this section as a guide only. Futures and options trading can involve risk of loss. Kansas may set record in grain sorghum

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Kansas is expected to set a record for sorghum production this fall.

In its October estimate, Kansas Agricultural Statistics increased the estimated yield from this year's grain sorghum crop to 349.8 million bushels on 4.6 million harvested acres, up from 331.2 million bushels forecast last month.

The record for Kansas, which leads the nation in sorghum production, is 311.3 million bushels in 1986.

A late frost can be credited for the increase, said KAS statistician Eldon Thiessen.

"We haven't had a freeze to halt the maturing process," he said. "So more sorghum is maturing and can be harvested," he said.

Kansas farmers also are expected to reap a record corn harvest, 340.8 million bushels expected to be harvested, with an average yield of 145 bushels from 2.35 million acres.

The soybean crop is estimated at 68 million bushels, based on an average yield of 34 bushels on 2 million acres.

Idaho farmer tries sunflower crop

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP) — Mark Mickelsen considers himself a pioneer, which is why — among the thousands of acres of potatoes he grows — he set aside 270 acres this year for sunflowers.

"I'll try anything once," Mickelsen said. If yields are good from the hybrid seed he planted west of Idaho Falls, there may be a future in the crop for him and other farmers working with Intermountain Canola and its parent company, Cargill Inc.

"They've worked with me, seeing if this is a viable place for raising seed," Mickelsen said.

Sunflowers are grown commercially mainly in the Midwest. About 3.3 million acres were harvested last year — 2.8 million for oil and 540,000 for confectionery seeds.

Because it is a hybrid plant, farmers have to plant new seed every year.

"You can't just pull it out and plant it," said Larry Kleingartner, executive director of the National Sunflower Association in Bismarck, N.D.

Most of the seed is produced in northern California and Texas. It must be grown in a consistent climate, free from hail, insects and weeds.

To be certified, seed sunflowers also must be grown at least three miles from any wild or garden sunflowers to prevent cross-pollination, said Jerry Cass, production manager for Intermountain Canola in Idaho Falls.

Mickelsen said planting seed sunflowers is a complicated process. A grower has to put in four rows of male plants first, then 14 rows of female plants a week later, then more alternating rows. After bees are released for pollination, the male plants get chopped out at the end of August.

Mickelsen's bread-and-butter crop is potatoes. He is harvesting about 2,000 acres this year. He also grows wheat.

Once he decides whether seed sunflowers are a viable crop in Idaho's climate, Mickelsen will determine whether he wants to grow them commercially.

Cass estimated that prices for seed sunflowers make it at least as profitable as malting barley, a popular eastern Idaho crop. A spokeswoman for Cargill said seed is selling for 30 to 75 cents per hundred-pound sack, depending on the quality of the hybrid.

"There's a real high demand for certified seed," Mickelsen said. "It's intense."

Program seeks trainees for adult vision screening

A new certification program is available from Prevent Blindness Texas which trains individuals to conduct adult vision screening. The adult vision screening process includes visual acuity tests and visual field tests which are designed to help detect persons with possible vision disorders.

Since 1980, Prevent Blindness Texas, a statewide non-profit organization, has conducted free screenings for nearly one million adults. These screenings are designed to pick up glaucoma, one of the leading causes of adult blindness.

Hundreds of screeners have been trained to conduct screening using non-contact tonometers, which measure intra-ocular pressure. High intra-ocular pressure can sometimes be an indicator of glaucoma. Pressure alone, however, is not the sole criteria to pinpoint this disease. Changes to the optic nerve and gaps of vision in the visual field are also indicators of glaucoma.

Recently, a new portable test called the Damato Campimeter became available to check visual fields in a screening program. As a result, Prevent Blindness Texas is conducting visual field tests for adults alongside a test for visual acuity and a test for intra-ocular pressure. These new testing methods have expanded the Prevent Blindness Texas screening protocol and are now taught in the certification program.

The certification training is conducted by certified instructor of Prevent Blindness Texas. The cost for the training is $50 which gives the trainee certification under the auspices of Prevent Blindness America and offers six hours of continuing education credit for professionals.

As a result of this training, the screener will be able to:

- Conduct an adult vision/glaucoma screening using a distance visual acuity test, a near visual acuity test and a visual field test using a Damato Campimeter.

- Explain the registration and high risk assessment procedures of a screening.

- Interpret test results and conduct an exit interview providing education to the person who was just screened and determine whether or not a person should be referred for professional eye care.

- Describe the information which is provided by Prevent Blindness Texas for patient education about adult eye disorders.

Prevent Blindness Texas hopes, with every new screener trained, to reach an additional 1,000 people a year. For more information on receiving the certification or other sight-saving programs, call 1-713-526-2559 or 1-888-98 SIGHT.

TPMHA offering class for parents of adolescents

AMARILLO — Texas Panhandle Mental Health Authority Child and Adolescent Services is offering a parenting class for parents of adolescents from 8:15 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Oct. 26 at their offices at 7201 I-40 West (IBM Building behind Hoffbrau Steak House).

The instructors will be Brian Otterness, MEd, and Brenda Meeks, PhD. The class, titled "Back in Control," is written by former probation officer Gregory Bodenhamer. Bodenhamer is nationally renowned as an expert on parenting difficult children.

"Back in Control" is for anyone — not just parents — who works, teaches or lives with an adolescent, class organizers said.

The seven-hour class offers instructions on ways to get "back in control" of the household or classroom. It covers a variety of problems from teenage lying and drug abuse to unsafe sexual activities. It shows parents how to combat verbal challenges, even physical violence, without resorting to harsh disciplinary measures, expensive counseling or hospital based programs.

Cost of the class is $5 plus $10 for the book. There is no child care available. Preregistration is required — call (806) 354-2191 to register. All classes are open to the public.

The mission of the TPMHA Child and Adolescent Services is to provide an accessible array of quality psychosocial services to children and families with an emphasis on family preservation. This non-profit agency serves children and adolescents ages 2-17 who have some form of behavioral, emotional or mental disorder.

Services are provided based upon referrals from parents or legal guardians, juvenile probation departments, school districts, community agencies, physicians and other social service agencies. A large array of programs are provided.

The TPMHA Child and Adolescent Services began in February, 1992. The offices in Amarillo serve Amarillo and Canyon.

Regional offices are in Borger, Hereford and Pampa.

For additional information, call Gene Ann Grant, Family and Community Education Director at (806) 354-2191.

Shepard's Crook staff members have diabetes education seminar

The Texas Commission on the Blind, represented by Linda G. Brown, diabetic program specialist, and Sandra H. Gaskin, R.N., MSN, diabetic educator consultant, were at Shepard's Crook Nursing Agency on Sept. 25 and 26.

The nursing staff completed a one-day seminar on the "Practice of Adaptive Diabetes Education for the Visually Impaired Persons." Participants received nursing continuing education units.

The seminar covered both background material and tools which a professional needs to teach diabetes self care to people with low or no vision.

The workshop is designed for diabetes education for health care professionals who regularly work with people living with diabetes and visual impairment.

Plains Museum receives Palo Duro Canyon painting

CANYON — Bill and Mary Cheek of Dallas have given a painting of Palo Duro Canyon by Dallas artist Reveau Mott Bassett (1897-1981) to the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum at Canyon.

Bassett's pastel The Wagon, depicting a chuckwagon and cowboys in Palo Duro Canyon, twelve miles east of the Museum, joins eight other Bassett works in the PPHM collection. The Cattleman magazine reproduced a larger version of The Wagon on the cover of its April 1950 issue.

Bassett exhibited at the Museum during a 1961 solo show, a Reveau Bassett Art Association exhibition in 1965 and exhibitions of the Dallas Chapter of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society in 1966 and 1967. Bassett also was a close friend of former PPHM director C. Boone McClure and former PPHM curator of art and artist Harold D. Bugbee.

Born in Dallas, Bassett studied with Frank Reaugh, W.R. Leigh, Joseph Pennell at the Art Students League and George Pearce Ennis at the Grand Central Art School, and took criticisms from Charles C. Curran at the National Academy of Design. Bassett often accompanied Reaugh on sketching trips in the West, including West Texas and New Mexico. Bassett also painted at Taos, where he became friends with W. Herbert Dunton.

In Texas, Bassett exhibited at the State Fair of Texas, the annual Texas artists show at Fort Worth and in the Dallas Allied Arts exhibitions. He also exhibited at the National Academy of Design and the in the Grand National Exhibition of the American Artists Professional League.

A longtime friend of Reaugh, Bassett continued Reaugh's teaching legacy using Reaugh's patented pastels for private classes, and he taught at the Dallas Art Institute. He also painted natural history dioramas for the Dallas and Houston natural history museums.

He was a member of the Southern States Art League, the Dallas Art Association, the Lone Star Printmakers and the Frank Reaugh Art Club. In addition to the PPHM, his work can be found in the Dallas Museum of Art and the Hall of State at Fair Park, Dallas.

The new Bassett painting, The Wagon, fills an important gap in the Museum's Bassett collection according to Museum curator of art, Michael R. Grauer.

"We had several Bassett oils and lithographs, but only a minor pastel before this acquisition. Consequently, we are thrilled to add a major Bassett pastel to the collection and the fact that it depicts Palo Duro Canyon is simply icing on the cake," Grauer said. "I greatly admire the Texas Collection [at PPHM] and wanted to add to it and felt the Palo Duro Canyon painting was appropriate," said Bill Cheek.

The Wagon will be featured in either the Texas Gallery or in the exhibition "The Panhandle's Gallery: 75 Years of Collecting Art" in November.

Player loses court battle over home plate collision

AUSTIN (AP) — Softball baserunner Martin Davis was tagged out at the plate and struck out at the Texas Supreme Court. But one justice on Friday said court standards should be rewritten to favor Davis.

The Supreme Court, without comment, rejected Davis' appeal of a lower court's decision to allow him to be sued for a collision with the catcher of the opposing team.

The catcher, Kenneth Greer, said he suffered injuries in the 1990 collision at home plate during a softball game in Corpus Christi.

The game, between two church teams, was won by Davis' team, according to Davis. He could not recall the score.

Greer asked for $750,000 in damages, claiming that Davis intentionally and recklessly ran into him while he was blocking the plate. The trial court dismissed the claim, but the 13th Court of Appeals in Corpus Christi reinstated it.

Davis appealed to the Supreme Court, which on Friday denied his appeal, sending the case back to the trial court level.

Greer argued that under softball rules and court standards, Davis owed him a duty to protect him from injuries caused by reckless or intentional actions.

The umpire in the game testified that the collision was an accident.

The court did not indicate Greer's exact injuries, but said he did suffer physical injuries to his upper body.

Even so, Supreme Court Justice Raul Gonzalez, writing an independent opinion, said anyone who voluntarily plays in a competitive sport assumes the risks of getting injured in contact that is inherent to the game.

He said the "reckless or intentional" court standard is too broad and should be rewritten.

"The potential for lawsuit abuse in the context of sports injuries calls for a better standard," he wrote.

"Fear of litigation will alter the nature of the game if participants in athletic contests are forced to endure the costly ordeal of trial every time an injury occurs on the playing field and the injured player makes an accusation of reckless or intentional conduct," Gonzalez wrote.

Ag disaster loan applications being taken at Clarendon FSA

CLARENDON — Applications for emergency farm loans for losses caused by drought, freeze, sleet and snow which occurred from Jan. 1 through May 31 are now being taken from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday at the Farm Service Agency office in Clarendon.

Armstrong, Donley, Carson and Gray counties were recently named by Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman as eligible for loans to cover part of production losses resulting from adverse weather conditions, according to information from the FSA office.

According to Larry Goetz, ag lending manager, farmers may be eligible for loans of up to 80 percent of their actual losses or the operating loan needed to continue in business or $500,000 whichever is less. For farmers unable to obtain credit from private lenders, the interest rate is 3.75 percent.

"As a general rule, a farmer must have suffered at least a 30 percent loss of production to be eligible for an FSA emergency loan. Farmers participating in the the PIK or Federal Crop Insurance program will have to figure in proceeds from those programs in determining their loss," Goetz said.

Applications for loans under the emergency designation will be accepted until May 11, 1997.

We work with outside experts who help us evaluate our facilities and performance. And we regularly ask for feedback from our patients.

This information helps us to identify our strengths, build on them and focus on ways to bring you even better care. And it's working. Thirty of our hospitals have been named to HCIA/Mercer's top 100 hospitals in the country.

So, whether you're looking at provider options on your health plan, dealing with an emergency or looking for a physician, choose Columbia.
