Thousands Jam Capital To Eat O'Daniel's Monster Barbecue

18 DROWN AS SCHOONER SPLITS IN COLLISION

Texans Asked To Bring Only 'Hoss Feed'

Multitudes Eat Feast On Lawn Of Governor's Mansion.

AUSTIN, Jan. 21 (AP)—Before thousands massed in front of the capitol, Governor W. Lee O'Daniel today was inaugurated for a second term.

With his hand on an ancient Bible, O'Daniel repeated the official oath after James P. Alexander, chief justice of the state supreme court.

A 19-gun salute by a battery of national guardsmen boomed and nine planes of the same military organization roared overhead.

The Texas Aggie 100-piece band played the governor's own famous composition, "Beautiful Texas," while a huge party of state officials stood on the bunting-draped platform.

A short time previously Coke Stevenson of Junction was also inaugurated for a second term as Lieutenant Governor.

The governor spoke the words of the oath in firm tone, with head erect, and eyes straight ahead, looking over a broad vista of green capitol grounds, studded with historical statues.

The crowd numbered possibly 10,000, compared with the 50,000 which witnessed his first inauguration in the football stadium of the University of Texas two years ago.

The crowd could not compare in size with many which gathered to hear the governor during his campaign tours, and it seemed very quiet and undemonstrative.

Shouts of "louder" from time to time indicated the spectators might have had difficulty hearing.

AUSTIN, Jan. 21 (AP)—Folks came from miles around today to get a close-up view of four salesmen for a second term as governor.

The formal induction ceremonies in front of the capitol, a monster free barbecue on the lawn of the governor's mansion, a downtown parade, street dancing, and a glittering night reception and ball were the main attractions.

The swearing-in ceremonies were scheduled, as usual, for noon. The barbecue handlers promised to have the meat and trimmings ready for all comers immediately on conclusion of the formal exercises. They were confident they could serve 800 persons a minute.

When radio philosopher O'Daniel came to the capitol two years ago to take oath of office, the unusual feature was that the ceremonies were held in the University of Texas stadium. This time, it was the biggest barbecue, in a state accustomed to big barbecues.

Beef, mutton, pork, chickens, turkeys, and even buffalo, a rarity, had been assembled for the occasion. The governor himself shot the buffalo Saturday on a ranch near Kerrville.

The tremendous collection of meat dressed down to 24,000 pounds, and experts calculated it would bone and slice down to 15,000 pounds. In addition barbecue authorities had 4,000 pounds of bread, 1,300 pounds of onions, 1,300 pounds of pickles, coffee for 32,000 cups, 1,000 pounds of potato chips, 1,000 pounds of sugar for coffee and lemonade, 500 dozen lemons and 25,000 grapefruit.

War Flashes

ATHENS, Jan. 21 (AP)—Italian forces have launched a strong counter-attack in the Tepeleni sector of the Albanian front in a desperate effort to break up the Greek advance in the central Albanian sector. Greek reports from the front said today. The attack was described as the largest and most carefully planned of any attempted by the Italians in this sector, where the Greeks have made only slow progress recently in their advance toward Berat.

Winant May Be Ambassador To Great Britain

By W. B. ARDERY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 (AP)—John G. Winant, one-time Republican governor of New Hampshire and former chairman of the social security board, was reported authoritatively today to be President Roosevelt's choice to succeed Joseph P. Kennedy as ambassador to Great Britain.

Informants close to the White House said that he was acceptable to Prime Minister Churchill and other British officials.

Mr. Roosevelt, it was said, decided that Winant had the respect of all classes of people and that he would make an ideal diplomat under the trying conditions of war and post-war rehabilitation.

Kennedy, who tendered his resignation some time ago, was reported to have been informed of Winant's selection and to have expressed no objection.

Authoritative reports said the President probably would send the nomination to the senate in the next few days, and well-informed leaders on Capitol Hill said there was little doubt that he would be confirmed promptly.

Tall and touse-haired, Winant, who is now 51, was named as first chairman of the social security board in 1935. He resigned during the 1936 campaign to defend the social security act against the criticism of Alf M. Landon, then the Republican presidential nominee.

Long regarded as a friend by labor, Winant was mentioned prominently among the list of possible Republican presidential nominees in 1944.

Dinner To Honor Judge Marvin Jones

An appreciation dinner will be given at the Amarillo Hotel Friday night at 7 o'clock honoring Judge Marvin Jones, former congressman from this district. The dinner will be $125 per plate.

This will be a Panhandle-wide affair, and both men and women are invited. It is expected that many business and professional men and women will be present, as well as farmers and their wives, as Judge Jones was for several years chairman of the important agricultural committee and handled the administration's farm measure in the House.

A large delegation is expected from this county. Reservations should be made in advance with the chamber of commerce, F. M. Culbertson, president of the board of city development, or Postmaster C. H. Walker. It is not necessary that payment be made in advance for the banquet, but the hotel management would like to know a few days ahead how many to expect.

U. S. Halts Strike In Ryan Factory

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Jan. 21 (AP)—Federal intervention halted for at least 12 hours a strike of CIO workers set for 7 a. m. (PST) today at the Ryan Aeronautical company, builder of military training planes.

Richard Frankenstein, chief negotiator for the United Automobile Workers, said he had agreed to extend the union's strike deadline until 7 p. m. at the request of Dr. John Steelman, national director of conciliation and John Owen of the national defense commission office.

The postponement was effected in a four-way telephone conversation between Frankenstein, Owen, Steelman and Harry Malcom, federal conciliator here.

The truce was announced by Malcom 15 minutes before expiration of the deadline, and came after an all-night session of company and union negotiators.

The extension indicated the groups were not far apart on the issue of wages, chief obstacle to a settlement. Malcom had stated earlier that "Washington might intervene" if there was a definite indication that additional time might bring peace.

Joe Kennedy Says Britain Split On U. S.

Opinion Differs As To America's Entrance In War

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 (AP)—Joseph P. Kennedy, retiring ambassador to Great Britain, declared today that Britain's leadership was divided over the question of the advisability of the United States becoming an active participant in the war.

Testifying before the house foreign affairs committee, Kennedy said, in response to questions, that some members of the British government felt that if the United States entered the war it would "find a way to carry it through."

Others, he said, believed that United States entrance into the war would be a great detriment to Britain's war effort because it would slow down the flow of material aid from America.

"There was no unanimity on the question," he said.

The carefully dressed diplomat, who reported he went through more than 280 air raids during his service in England, told the committee that many people in the British government felt they were not getting all the aid they might normally have expected from the United States.

After Clark was asked to testify on the administration's proposal for lease-lend aid to the British, in a radio address last week he expressed favor for the principal of giving the aid but it was not wholly in accord with the methods put forward by President Roosevelt.

Fish Predicts Answers
Rep. Fish (R-N.Y.), ranking minority member of the house foreign affairs committee who is marshaling the opposition, said that the arguments presented in behalf of the measure last week by high administration officials were both "silly and absurd."

He predicted that Kennedy, who has resigned as ambassador to Great Britain, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, General Hugh S. Johnson, and the other witnesses he has asked to appear before the committee would "definitely answer the absurd charge by the administration that we are in immediate danger of attack and that this has something to do with a crisis in England in 60 to 90 days."

Questioned as to whether he believed a "crisis" would develop in the next 60 to 90 days, as administrative spokesmen told the committee last week, Kennedy said he did not know exactly what was meant by the question which he did not understand.

"I have never understood, for instance, why the German army predominated."

This was interpreted in foreign circles as meaning, possibly, that Hitler has decided to act over the head of the Vichy government to bring conquered France into line with the totalitarian program for Europe.

Political circles assumed also that the two chiefs had agreed on a joint attitude toward developments in United States aid to Britain, which the Fascists say are leading toward an anti-totalitarian war.

Here again, observers say, occupation of Dakar would be a highly practical move.

"New events on the eve of imminent spring will blossom from the meeting," Il Piccolo commented.

"After a period of rest and uncertainty, which the English have used as if Italy was already at the end of her forces and resources," it said, "we now are facing an energetic revival. The initiative still is in the hands of the Fuehrer and Il Duce."

At present, the Ford Motor co. and Chrysler corp. have cooperative agreements with aviation firms for the production of thousands of huge bomber planes to cost millions of dollars.

He added that, at the peak of the program, the corporation will have 40,000 men employed in the manufacture of airplane parts alone.

Hitler, Il Duce Agree On U. S. Attitude

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK

ROME, Jan. 21—Virginia Gayda indicated today that United States activity—"the sharpening of warlike trends across the ocean"—figured prominently in the meeting between Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini.

The authoritative editor of Il Giornale D'Italia, outlined these five "well-defined phases" of the war situation which he said called for the meeting.

1. Intensification of German air attacks on Britain;

2. Intensification of the Axis counter-blockade in the Atlantic;

3. Critical developments in the Mediterranean;

4. "The sharpening of warlike trends across the ocean, which do not pass without reactions from the whole political and military system of the war;"

5. "Vast international accords of the Axis."

Gayda emphasized the Axis nations "identity of views . . . not only for political ends, but also for conduct of the war."

Foreign observers expressed belief that Hitler and Mussolini may have agreed on a plan to obtain France's cooperation in the war against Britain, by direct action if necessary.

With the German military establishment in Sicily figuring largely in the Axis plans for the Mediterranean war, the observers look for a Nazi attempt to gain further bases on the French island of Corsica and Tunisia, in French North Africa.

The British island base of Malta, which thus far has been the chief Mediterranean objective of the Axis air fleets, would be another effective base, if it could be wrested from its defenders, it was said.

The objective of such extensions of the present campaign would be to make the Mediterranean too hot for the British fleet, thereby closing the sea to convoys and reducing Britain's strength in the war against the Italians in Libya and also cutting off British aid to Greece.

A supplementary move, these observers say, might be a German effort to obtain Dakar, chief port of French West Africa, as a base for operations against British or eventual American operations in the Atlantic.

Land forces would have to be moved across the Mediterranean for any German occupation of North African bases, but it was pointed out that the Germans demonstrated their ability to ferry guns, tanks and men when they moved into Norway.

The newspaper Il Piccolo described the war council between Hitler and Il Duce as a "technical meeting of the first order," an indication that military problems predominated.

This was interpreted in foreign circles as meaning, possibly, that Hitler has decided to act over the head of the Vichy government to bring conquered France into line with the totalitarian program for Europe.

Political circles assumed also that the two chiefs had agreed on a joint attitude toward developments in United States aid to Britain, which the Fascists say are leading toward an anti-totalitarian war.

Crew Falls In Water As Hands Freeze

Five Half-Frozen Survivors Pulled From Main Mast

BOSTON, Jan. 21 (AP)—Eighteen men drowned today, almost within sight of their homes, as the Boston schooner May E. O'Hara, homeward bound from a week on the fishing banks, was split open in a collision as it approached Boston harbor, and sank.

Five half-frozen survivors who were dragged to safety from the protruding mainmast of the sunken schooner by the crew of the trawler North Star told their rescuers that O'Hara apparently had struck a large and that the remainder of the crew of 23 had fallen from the rigging, one by one, as their hands froze.

Brought ashore with their hands and feet frozen, half dead from drenching and exposure, the men said their schooner had sunk so fast that there was no time even to launch a dory, and that they had fled into the upper portions of the rigging to cling there for three hours, in the early morning darkness, from 3 a. m. until 6.

The faint cries of the survivors were heard by members of the crew of the North Star as they passed Finn's Ledge, on the outer fringe of Boston harbor, a dozen miles from the city.

Three times earlier, during those tragic hours, other craft approached the men clinging to the ice-sheeted rigging—and the men cried for help—only to see the vessels pass and their lights fade in the gloom.

Captain Lars Lunde of the North Star said the five told him that they were able to attract the attention of one of these other craft, many more of the crew might have been saved.

The survivors said that the O'Hara, laden with its fare of fish and still further borne down with a heavy sheathing of ice in the 12-degree temperature, sank within five minutes as the crew—unable to launch the heavily lced dories—struggled desperately to run their vessel aground.

Captain Lunde found five feet of the foremast and 12 feet of the mainmast of the O'Hara above the water near Finn's Ledge and guided the bow of his beam trawler so that it was able to remove four of those clinging to the rigging.

The fifth, Cecil Crowell of Shelburne county, Nova Scotia, was helpless and unable to move from his perch, so a dory was put outside and three members of the North Star's crew rescued him.

The other survivors were Cecil Larkin, 38, Stanley Conrad, 54, Frank Silva, 59, and Gabriel Welch, all of Boston.

Last of those to fall from the rigging into the sea, the rescued men said, was their skipper, Captain Fred Wilson of Boston.

Crowell was so seriously affected that he had to be carried from the North Star in a stretcher into a waiting city hospital ambulance. But the other four, given first aid and stimulants by the crew of the North Star, had sufficiently recovered to climb up the ladder to the wharf, unassisted.

The disaster was the worst in the history of the New England fishing fleet since the Gloucester schooner Columbia, once queen of the North Atlantic fisheries, went down with 24 men in a furious storm on the Grand Banks in 1927.

Britain Prepares To Draft Labor

LONDON, Jan. 21 (AP)—Labor Minister Ernest Bevin informed the house of commons today that the government has decided to register Britain's working men and women for drafting into war factories.

Bevin reported steadily increasing production, despite air raids, but added that the country had "now reached a stage when it will be necessary to take industrial registration by age groups."

He said the registration was to "make a list of those who should be called upon to serve the state in the national industry."

The government risked a political storm from the left wing by its decision to draft labor, but observers

Activities Of HD Clubs Of County For 1940 Reviewed

Another in the series of articles taken from the narrative report of the Gray County Home Demonstration council appears today as a general summary for 1940.

Home demonstration work in Gray county throughout 1940 was steady in membership than in the previous three years. A total of 17 organizations with a membership of 227 including 10 women's home demonstration clubs, the home demonstration council, and six 4-H clubs have been at work. However, during the month of September, which is the beginning of all schools, a change was made in membership whereby two 4-H clubs were combined. The addition of new membership will be completed before the end of January.

The Gray County Council of women's clubs which is composed of the president and one selected member from each club with chairman of council consisting of the chief organization through which all extension work is planned and executed. The program of work is designed by Council and on this occasion the subjects are discussed, eliminations made, and the most needed and desired subjects for program of work are selected by this year's local committee. The council of 1941 club presidents, council representatives and chairmen of education or program committees of clubs. These persons are messengers, promoters and executors of the subject matter because they helped plan the program and are found to be able to interpret the meaning of the subjects to the members who serve on programs and as a listener at club meetings. The county home demonstration agent and district agent approve the program. The County Home Demonstration council meets last Saturday in each month. The group hears reports in part of past work and makes plans for the month ahead.

The clubs met twice each month back in their community—one meeting with the agent and one meeting with the members only to conduct meetings along in order to receive training in leadership work. The members served over 400 times on programs not including parties taken on recreation programs.

The 4-H clubs met twice each month. Once with the agent and once with the members only to receive training in leadership work. The girls conduct business sessions of the club, give reports of their work, conduct recreation and have on discussion programs. Each member is given the chance to participate in each club meeting.

All meetings of clubs are open to the public and special invitations were given to adult visitors in November to view the living room work of the club demonstrating the home reports of the members' work in living room and poultry in the women's home demonstration organizations.

The six 4-H girls clubs invited guests to their homes in August to view bedroom work and poultry work of the club's demonstration and heard the individual work accomplished in the 4-H homes on bedroom work improvement and poultry raising.

The attendance of the total 216 meetings held with agent present in 16 communities and 27 training schools held for leaders in her office amounted to 3,346 persons. The agent held and attended meetings of extension nature with an attendance of 9,414 present.

The 16 4-H and home demonstration clubs held about 288 meetings, carrying out county extension programs work on extension and recreation work which included an attendance of 7,200 persons in local communities.

This makes an attendance of all meetings held in county with and without the agent to be 21,958. The recreational night meetings of the community interest have been the reason for increased attendance over 1939.

Reporters of each club give something definite of each meeting held in an attempt to inform the public of work accomplished. Over 400 items were published by cooperating newspapers throughout the year.

The radio program monthly over KPDM, Pampa, give a chance for the public to know more about Gray county home demonstration work and seem to substitute for news items in papers. Each of the home demonstration clubs have had a chance to serve twice over radio—one time alone and once with all clubs in a consolidated report on the year's work at the close of the year.

Recreation has stimulated the men's interest in community social life. Neighbors who never knew each other are now close friends by meeting in community suppers, parties, table games, meals, barbecues, sing-songs, etc. About 101 such events have been held through 1940 with attendance increased over 100 per cent from the past year.

The main subjects which this year's work was based included continued improvement of the living room, and the growing of poultry with the home demonstration clubs; and bedroom improvement and poultry growing with the 4-H members.

Major improvements were accomplished in 63 living rooms but every living room—181 in number—received attention to make it more attractive in color harmonies, better arrangement of furniture and wall decorations and a more livable atmosphere.

A total of 6,539 chickens were grown and eaten in the family meat supply and over 6,000 left as breeding stock and family supply to begin the new year.

The 4-H members improved 54 bedrooms and grew about 3,306 chickens for family food supply and home flock. Personality and bed-stature improvement were stressed along with the sewing lessons. A total of 54 uniforms were completed and worn on achievement events including county parties in Pampa.

CHARMING IDEA FOR PRINTS

PATTERN 8842

Slim, gay and youthful, this is just the pattern (No. 8842) to delight slender young things who are planning a pretty print frock as the mainstay of their spring wardrobe. It is perfectly designed to bring out the beauty of the printed silk you choose, and to flatter your figure. The gathered bodice, high-cut front panels, and heart-shaped neckline are very, very complementary, you'll find. Of course it's lovely in dark felt crepe, thin wool or taffeta, as well as print, with narrow frills of lace, organdy, and chiffon to enhance its flattery.

Use this design to make yourself some cotton home frocks too, using ricrac instead of more formal trimming, and adding a saucy sash bow in the back. You won't mind repeating such an easy frock.

Pattern No. 8842 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 14 requires, with short sleeves, 4 1/2 yards of 39-inch material without nap; three-quarter sleeves, 4 1/2 yards; 1 1/2 yards trimming. Detailed sewing chart included.

For a PATTERN of this attractive, modern design, IN COIN, YOUR NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE to THE Pampa News Today's Pattern Service, 211 W. Wacker Drive, Chicago, Ill.

Miami Writers' Club Has Special Guest Day Session

Special To THE NEWS

MIAMI, Jan. 21—Miami Writers' club met in the home of Mrs. W. F. Locke Saturday afternoon for a special guest session. With the president, Mrs. Sam Isaac, Canadian, presiding, each member and guest was asked to outline some of her resolutions, both literary and otherwise, for the new year.

Mrs. John B. Harvey told the club what inspiration she had to write the book which has just been published by the Naylor Co. of San Antonio, and also related some of her experiences. Mrs. Harvey's book, entitled "Generation Upon Generation," is written under her pen name Faith Stone.

It is the story of a family, beginning in the hill country of Missouri and flowering in the Texas Panhandle. It will be interesting to people of this section as it is historically built upon fact. The inspiration for her pen name, stated Mrs. Harvey, was the faith sown in her life under the influence of her mother and grandmother.

At the conclusion of the program, Mrs. Locke, assisted by Mrs. E. K. McKenzie, served sandwiches, olives, cake, and hot spiced tea to Mmes. John B. Harvey of Shamrock; E. J. The Lease-Lend Battle

It would be presumption, no doubt, for us out in the Panhandle to call the score on the Lease-Lend debate now raging in Congress.

The Battle of Bill 1776 has burst with blazing fury. At times, the furious clashes between backers of President Roosevelt's "all aid to Britain" program and his non-intervention foes seem to be attended by more heat than light. And, we average Americans can do little except watch, read, listen—and pray that what is right and best for America will prevail.

Britain has our utmost sympathy. We despise and loathe Hitler and all he stands for. Most of us are convinced that America's interests are best served by doing all possible to ensure a British victory.

But, we believe the average citizen, consciously or unconsciously, shies away a bit from statements that we are dependent upon survival of the British navy; that the British are fighting our fight.

We would prefer to believe that we are aiding a friend, helping a brave and courageous people—not paying a just and pressing obligation.

Few of us expect the British will ever be able to pay what they owe, but it would be better to have their gratitude than to have them, in post-war days, use our own words to accuse us of merely helping them in order to save our own necks.

No citizen likes to think of his country as being dependent upon another. Many of us may not have read these words of Winston Churchill, Britain's great leader, but they express our sentiments: "All history has proven the peril of being dependent upon a foreign state for home defense instead of upon one's right arm."

When A Profit's A Profit

There's nothing like a little touch of candor to make the whole world kin.

A friend of ours is a stamp collector. Stamp collectors are a sort of race apart from other men, so perhaps that explains something. Anyway, he had a prospectus from an Ecuadorian stamp dealer asking him to buy some Ecuadorian stamps. Postscripted the dealer, "For every U. S. dollar's worth of Ecuadorian stamps you order from us add 10 cents, this extra 10 cents may be in coin. It is a profit to us."

No baloney about 10 cents to cover cost of this or that. Just 10 cents: "It is a profit to us."

Nothing could be fairer than that. Nobody begrudges a fair profit on any deal in proportion to service rendered. Simple candor like that warms the heart. There should be more of it.

Ridicule And Lese Majeste

The proposal to bar from the congressional press galleries newspaper writers who hold up members of Congress to ridicule has made certain members more ridiculous than anything the newsmen could write about them.

Generally speaking, we believe a member of Congress deserves respect. It is a position of honor, and should be so regarded. Indiscriminate ridicule of congressmen in general or as such plays directly into the hands of dictator-minded people.

But the honor of the position must not be expected to protect individual congressmen from ridicule when honest reporters and political critics believe they merit it. Only the stuffed shirt is really vulnerable to pin pricks.

Behind The News

By BRUCE CATTON

The Pampa News Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Some day soon it is going to occur to Congress or the administration that the railway labor act offers a fine blueprint for keeping strikes from interrupting the defense program.

Under this act, as amended in 1934, the National Mediation Board has been quietly but effectively helping railroad management and railroad labor compose all of their differences around the conference table. Since 1934 there have been but two railroad strikes—neither on a major trunk line—and two minor work stoppages involving comparatively few people. More than 400 labor agreements have been filed with the board and upward of 300 disputes have been mediated.

In this one field, at least, there has been evolved a system for keeping the industrial peace which is fair to both sides, does not rest upon coercion or restriction and enables the industry to keep on working while its labor problems are being ironed out.

The whole set-up is fairly simple. The railroad labor act directs the board to dispose of labor disputes by acting on these four principles:

Avoiding any interruption to commerce; forbidding any limitation on the workers' right to join or form a labor union; providing for complete independence of both workers and carriers in the matter of self-organization to carry out the purposes of the act; and providing for prompt settlement of all disputes.

DISPUTES MAY GO TO PRESIDENT

The board may intervene where there is disagreement over the union which is to represent the employees. Usual course is to hold an election and let the majority decide.

When a union and a railroad are negotiating a contract and can't agree, the board may intervene and offer its services as a mediator. In most cases, this eventually brings about an agreement. If mediation fails, the board may then offer its services as arbitrator.

Neither side is compelled to accept arbitration, and

MISINFORMATION

It is little wonder that many preachers are so confused on religious, social and economical problems. Here are three books recommended to me by a confused preacher: "Christian Faith and Economic Change" by Ludbeck; "Protestant Churches and Industrial Crisis" by Chaffee; "Christianity and the Social Crisis" by Rauschenbusch. If there were ever books that contradicted themselves and set up impractical, air-castles and dreams, they are the books above mentioned.

I want to give you a sample from one of these books of what some preachers call Christianity. When I came to the climax of absurdities on page 114, in "Protestant Churches and the Industrial Crisis" by Chaffee, I jumped to the last two chapters. Here seems to be what a so-called liberal preacher thinks is Christianity. I quote:

"Human happiness depends not on what men actually have, but what they have in comparison with others."

The whole book is talking about the Kingdoms of Heaven being within and then it turns around and says it depends on what somebody else has whether a man can be happy. How any man can imagine that this is anything akin to what Jesus was advocating is more than any rational man can comprehend.

Here is another example of un-Christian statements from this same book:

"Men want to control others for their own ends. This is why they pile up riches long after their personal needs are satisfied. They desire riches for the power that they give over the lives of others."

It might be true that some rich men keep on working with the idea of controlling others for their own ends, but certainly rich men are not absolute dummies. They well know that adding to the wealth of the world benefits every consumer in the world. They know that they are performing a service to their fellowman. It is undoubtedly this belief and this knowledge that causes rich men to continue to work and strive to add to the wealth of the world; and, for a man who claims to be writing a Christian book, to indict the motives of wealthy men is the most un-Christian form of human action.

And how any Christian can contend that a book like this is Christian, certainly is more than any rational man can comprehend. It seems that contradictions, dilemmas, inconsistencies and untruthful statements create no disturbance in the mind of such men.

COMPARING SOCIAL GAINS WITH WHAT?

The Administration and those people who believe that the welfare of mankind can be raised by wish or by law or by collective bargaining are constantly proclaiming that we have made "social gains."

But none of these individuals who talk about "social gains" will write an eternal, impersonal rule or principle by which to determine whether we have, in reality, had social gains. If we would start with the belief that whatever promoted the greatest equality of human rights to create and enjoy anything that anyone else had a right to create and enjoy, then it would seem that instead of having social gains, we have had great social losses. Because, instead of more nearly approaching equal freedom, we have been making laws that made less equality of freedom.

If we determine social gains by the degree to which we take away the rights of an individual and give the majority the right to do anything they want to with the individual, then we have made social gains.

But, if the tap roots of Christianity—the equal rights of an individual, the personality of an individual—is the yard stick or test of social gains, then no time in our history have we lost as much in social gains as we have in the last decade.

I challenge any man who claims we have made "social gains" in the present administration to write a neutral, impersonal rule of conduct by which to compare and determine whether or not we have made social gains.

BARBS

The goal of some college boys vanished at the end of the football season.

Draftees are having the novel experience of learning to take orders before they get married.

A Los Angeles doctor says we all are half lazy. We say he hasn't said the half of it.

Report of an alling movie actor getting better reminds us that there's always room for better actors.

Italian authorities insist the situation behind their lines in Albania is satisfactory. It's okay with the Greeks in front of their lines, too.

If arbitration is turned down the board steps out of the case and the workers are free to strike—after a delay of 30 days. If a strike is voted, and the board feels it would substantially interrupt interstate commerce, the board may then notify the President to that effect. The President can then appoint an emergency board to study the whole affair and make a report.

AN IDEA FOR DEFENSE PROGRAM

Here again, there is no coercion—except the proviso that there can be no strike or lockout for another 30-day period. The emergency board can't force anything on anyone. Its sole power is to make a report on the facts. But the theory is that such a report, setting forth the facts and indicating which side was more to blame for the trouble, given full publicity by the White House, would sway public opinion so effectively that there would be a peaceful settlement. So far, it has worked that way.

That, in brief, is the way labor peace is kept in the transportation industry. The employees keep their right to strike; the employers keep the corresponding right, which is the right to stand a strike rather than accept a settlement they don't want. But things are handled so that a railroad labor strike is an extremely rare thing. And through it all the trains keep running.

Somewhere in there there may be an idea or two for the defense program.

BEGINNING TO GET INTERESTED

Around Hollywood

BY PAUL HARRISON

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 21.—Miss Shirley Temple, back at work after nine months' idleness following the somewhat premature announcement of her retirement at the age of 11, has only the fondest recollections of her brief venture into private life.

She found time to do a lot of things she never got to do while she was the film colony's biggest box office attraction. Miss Temple earned a sizable collection of Campfire Girl merit badges, lost her tonsils, went to a lot of parties, learned to type, started sketching, acquired a candid camera, and took part in several amateur theatricals.

Most important, she went to school—regular day school.

But all that round of pleasure doesn't fit into the scheme of a Harvester three who is determined to become an actress, as Miss Temple is. She has a one-year contract to work for Metro, which is confident it can bring her back to the top.

Metro believes public interest in the actress, who was still in fifth place in the box office ratings when she retired, hasn't slumped much; officials believe her skid is attributable to 20th-Fox's inability to find proper vehicles for her.

A BOW TIE

Visiting the set of "Footsteps in the Dark," I found consternation practically rampant. Almost everybody except Errol Flynn was sitting around worrying about a bow tie.

This mystery flicker is Flynn's first modern-dress role in three years. He is providing his own wardrobe. Somebody in the front office saw the rushes and sent a horrified communication to the set. Flynn, it pointed out, is wearing a bow tie. Jack Warner doesn't like bow ties. Hal Wallis, studio production chief, has an almost violent aversion to bow ties.

One of the shirts was fancy with a two-tone stiff front. "Feavine" looked good in them, too. . . . Billy and his twin sister, Betty, are not "orphans" any longer. Their mother, who spent five weeks with her aged, pneumonia-stricken father down at Sunset, Tex., in Montague county, has returned. Her father, the Rev. Nichols who had visited here was showing improvement when she left. . . . Speaking of basketball games, there'll be four here this week, but one you will not want to miss will be between the Pampa Independents and the Skellytown college all-stars.

On the Pampa team will be Albert Ayer who, when he was a Harvester three one from center in the last second of a game at Amarillo to beat the Sandies by one point. The whistle blew while the ball was in the air. . . . Another player on the team is Claude Heisekel, who fired the winning shot that beat Catfish Smith's famous, cocky team several years ago.

So They Say

The softest place in England today is the British army. The civilians are getting the worst of it.

Undergraduates of today are seemingly tougher in their thinking and certainly less sentimental than were their older brothers. . . .

One of the surest facts of the social science is that the power to tax is the power to destroy, but half of our citizens think that this is false.

How proud we are of America, where we are in the citadel of freedom and still enjoy liberty of speech, press and religion.

It would be impossible for the heart of an empire to be placed where its beating could be interfered with. The Empire would never move to Canada. It would disappear first.

WHERE IT GOT ITS NAME

Our word "tulip" comes from a Turkish word, "tulband," meaning "turban," because of the flower's resemblance to the Turkish headdress. There are approximately 556,000 grains in a bushel of wheat.

OUT OF THE NIGHT IS EXTRAORDINARY RECORD OF SPYING

"Out of the Night" by Jan Valtan (Alliance: $3.50), is the amazing record of 20 years service as a secret agent of the Communist International around the world. As such, it may well be 1941's most extraordinary book, certainly none will be more exciting. Sabotage, smuggling, abduction, mutiny, murder were Valtan's daily fare. At one time, on orders from Moscow, Valtan entered the Nazi Gestapo. He broke finally with the Communists, became then a fugitive from both Gestapo and the relentless OGPU. Following is a typical dramatic excerpt, showing how even while he was held a prisoner by the Gestapo a fellow Communist—himself an OGPU man with the eye of a Nazi guard delivered orders:

The trooper looked the door behind Heitman—the G. P. U. man in the Gestapo. An instant later I saw that the guard had raised the small metal shield from the spy-hole in the door and was peering through. Under such circumstances, I could not greet Heitman, I stood at attention.

Heitman pushed me rudely against the side of the photograph. "Are you going to tell me the truth?" he belted.

"Yes, sir."

Heitman produced a photograph. Holding it in the palm of his hand he brought it closer to my eyes. It was a passport photo of a blond young man.

"Do you know this fellow?" Heitman demanded.

"Instantly his left fist hit my nose. It began to bleed.

Again Heitman brought the hand with the photograph close to my eyes. Slowly, with an almost imperceptible motion of his thumb, he turned the picture around in the palm of his hand. A short message had been printed on the reverse side of the photograph.

"Attempt entry into PP-Apparat. Situation favorable. Talk with caution."

"PP-Apparat" was the Communist designation for undercover work inside an enemy police force. . . . I understood the significance of the message. The Western Secretariat had appointed me to maneuver myself into the Gestapo. . . . the most deadly assignment of my career.

PERCY Rowe, of The Portland Gasoline Co., who lives at 525 S. Nelson in Pampa, recently received an unique calendar from England. . . . It's the Westcountry Calendar for 1941, and it really is a miniature collection of art, being filled with scenic pictures of England—one for each week of the year. . . . The calendar scene changes every week instead of every month as do our American calendars. . . . Mr. Rowe prizes the calendar highly because it was sent to him by his grandmother shortly before her death at Mevagissey, England, on last Dec. 28. . . . Much of the scenery on the calendar is of the old home place of Mr. Rowe's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rowe, of Wheeler county, Texas. . . . They came to Texas from England in 1900 and located first at Dallas.

The young daughter of Mrs. La Dillion Ingram, with a thought of others in her mind, brings in a verse with the hope it will inspire others to do their bit in the March of Dimes for the war against infantile paralysis. . . . It was composed by her mother:

"CRIPPLE TIM" I ain't got nothin' 't worry about, I got my eyes and ears An' I got two the best o' legs 'T walk me through the years, I ain't listed as a beauty, But my heart is filled with joy That I ain't got infantile, Like the neighbors' little boy, We should all pitch in an' help, Cause the way the neighbors talk, If the fortunate would spend, Cripple Tim could learn 't walk. Can you watch the wheel chair pass With a gladness in your heart, When cripple Tim could have been playin' If you had only done your part? I ain't never took in dances, Guess I never had my time, But Franklin's birthday ball will get Your dollar and my dime. —La Dillion Ingram

A correspondent wants to know: "What is this game called 'honeymoon bridge'?" Am I to understand people nowadays play bridge on their honeymoons? If so, what is the word and love coming to?" Well, we might explain that "honeymoon bridge" is a game for only two persons, but we have never heard of it being played until long, long after the honeymoon was over. . . . A rancher, we hear, repeats that if you feed a cow orange marmalade it will increase the milk yield. . . . We're going to remember that when we acquire a cow out at the "ranch."

RESEARCH shows that: Records of certain divorce cases indicate that when a woman is psychoanalyzed she almost invariably falls madly in love with the psychoanalyst. . . . So, if you're wife thinks she should be psychoanalyzed, protest vigorously. Of course, it works both ways and when a man is psychoanalyzed by a feminine expert he falls for her in a big way. . . . So, lady, if you want to keep your husband, let your theme song be: "Psychoanalysts stay away from my door."

Why not put some of the tax burden on ice cream sodas, potato chips, shoe-stirring potatoes or lettuce and tomato sandwiches—for a change?

Troop School Will Be Held Tomorrow

Army reserve officers of Borger have been invited to join Pampa officers at the regular meeting of the reserve officers troop school to be held at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night in the district court room.

Lieutenant Colonel James L. Garza of Fort Worth, infantry instructor of the Fort Worth military district, will be in Pampa to meet the officers at the school.

Not only Pampa and Borger officers, but all other reserve officers in towns near to Pampa are invited to attend the school Wednesday night.

Mexican Strike Settled

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 21.—Settlement of a nine-day strike of street car workers in Mexico City was announced early today by Minister of Labor Ignacio Garcia Telles.

The workers were granted part of their demands through an agreement boosting wages approximately 1,240,000 pesos ($248,000) annually for the 3,400 employees.

Sea Situation Improving, Says British Admiral

LONDON, Jan. 21.—(AP)—Lord Chatfield, admiral of the fleet, told the Royal Empire society today Britain is building more than 100 ships for naval and air force purposes and "the sea situation is showing continual improvement."

Construction of the new vessels, which will include 64 patrol ships and 26 mine sweepers, shows Britain firmly believes that ships and not planes command the seas, Lord Chatfield said.

"If that had not been true the empire would have ceased to exist, and we would have been enslaved and his majesty's dominions and colonies parcelled out to other envious races," he declared.

"We need not be concerned by the recent air attack in the Mediterranean," he said. "It was no more severe than the home fleet suffered in the North Sea years ago. If you fight hard, you must expect losses."

"We take confidence that if we lost a cruiser (the Southampton), it was the first large ship sunk as a consequence of air attack in 18 months of war.

The empire is a sound affair, and we need not fear it is going to perish from air attack. . . . Declaring "not one battleship has so far been sunk by enemy air action," Lord Chatfield said the "battlefleet truly controls the seas and the war. It is the queen on the chessboard, the fullback of the British navy."

Largest Italian Drive Beaten Back

(By The Associated Press) ATHENS, Jan. 21.—The Greeks reported today their forces had repulsed what they described as the largest and most carefully planned Italian counter-attack yet attempted in the Tzani sector of the Albanian front.

As a result of this desperate attempt to halt the Greek advance, the Italians were declared to have lost their original positions along with great numbers of their attacking force.

On the front north of Kilsura the Greeks reported they also scored important gains in attacks launched in blinding snowstorms.

"Our troops advanced their lines to positions from where it will be easier to reach their objectives," said one dispatch.

This report said the Greeks seized a height from the Fascists, captured more than 100 Italian prisoners, including three officers, three mounted guns, four machine-guns, mortars and several cases of cartridges.

This Patriot Does Deserve A Medal

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—(AP)—Memorandum for congress: If you have an extra medal of honor lying around, have it polished up for John Shea, a 23-year-old patriot, who yesterday all but made the supreme sacrifice for his country.

Rejected by the army because of defective teeth, he sat from 10 a. m. until 8:30 p. m. in a dentist's chair and suffered proddings and pullings, drillings and fillings, until at last his molars were in order.

In that ordeal, with only local anesthesia and fortified by only one cup of coffee, the hardy youth had: Three teeth pulled. Four filled. Five crowns repaired. Two removable bridges inserted. Today he awaits another army examination.

MITCHELL WARNS BOYS NOT TO MAKE RED HEADS MAD

Famed Girls Team To Play Wednesday

There'll be fireworks in the high school gymnasium here tomorrow night when a bunch of redheads get hold of the Pampa Harvesters basketball team. The carrot tops will be the famous All American Red Heads girls' basketball team which will stop over in Pampa for a single engagement at 8 o'clock.

Action at the gymnasium will begin one hour earlier when the Gorillas and Reapers are scheduled to clash for the first time.

The Junior High Reapers and the Gorillas who have been at each other's throats, verbally, for weeks, will get a chance to decide which has the better team in a preliminary game that will start at 7 o'clock. The undefeated Reapers claim they can beat the Gorillas who have been beaten but who claim there may be better teams than the Gorillas but the Reapers quieted not one of them.

The feud between the Gorillas and Reapers may become as heated as the one last year between the Sophomores and Glamour Franks.

The Red Heads, composed of girls from All American high school teams, play only men's teams and use men's rules. They haven't lost a game to a high school team this season and only two college quintets have been able to beat the girls.

Coach Odo Mitchell has been working his Harvesters overtime on how to keep away from the redheads. "Don't get rough and don't get 'em mad," Coach Mitchell warned his boys.

Here's a thumbnail sketch of the famous Red Heads:

GENEVIEVE LOVE, center. Home address, Olla, La. Genevieve stands 6 ft. 3 inches tall, weighs 120 pounds, and is one of the tallest, if not the tallest woman basketball player in America. Coming from the champion Summit, Miss., Junior college where she was selected on the All State mythical team two years straight. Aggressive with a genial personality, she palms a basketball in either of her huge hands ala Robert Ripley of Believe It or Not fame. Destined to be one of the greatest pivot ball handlers in basketball.

LILA BLUE, guard or forward. Home address, Slaughter, Ky. Lila is playing her fourth straight season with the Red Heads and is known as the "Bombing Beauty" of the New England states, weighs 150 pounds. She is the beauty queen of all basketball with her charming beauty. Hazel is playing her third season with the Red Heads and is known to all fans as the "perfect" goal shot. Like Osburn and Blue, she was one of the standout stars in the Philippines and was quoted in the Manila, Philippines Graphic magazine as being the prettiest athlete in the world. Movie directors of Hollywood have their eyes on Hazel. She is going "up."

VINIA HOBBS, Home address, Byng, Okla. Height 5 ft. 9 inches, weight 145 pounds. Vinia was selected as all state guard in the Byng High school when they won the state tournament. She has for two years been a star with the Hill Billies, pretty, husky and clever. A marvelous goal shot and ball handler who is rated as the equal of any woman basketball player in the world. Vinia is well known from coast to coast, she can play plenty of "rough" ball if the men prefer such tactics. Vinia is good, "she can take care of herself."

BETH LIVELY, Home address, Howe, Okla., height 5 ft. 11 inches, weight 150 pounds. A star with the Howe High school for several years. Beth was coached by Hazel Vickers, coach of Howe High school, and who for three years was a world known star with the Red Heads. Beth is especially pretty and well proportioned and is a crack shot and ball handler. She is tall and handsome with a wonderful personality, known as the girl with the "everlasting smile."

MARJORIE BROWN, Home address, Howe, Okla., height 5 ft. 11 inches, weight 150 pounds. She made the all state team from Howe High school and was coached by Hazel Vickers. Pretty—you said it, boys.

Last Great Turf Plunger Died Like Others--Broke

By MAX RIDDLE
NEA Service
Special Correspondent

RAVENNA, O., Jan. 18—During the closing days of 1940 the last of the fabulous and romantic group of plungers which had peopled the turf at the beginning of our century slipped quietly off to John Sysonby and Pan Zareta, and all the other turf immortals which had carried his money in the old days.

He was John Richardson of Ravenna, O., and he died as all good horse players must—broke. Symbolically enough, he died in the same year which saw the death of oral wagering in New York and the final victory of the pari-mutuels. It was the mutuels, for one thing, that throttled the life out of the best of the big horse players.

You do not read the name of John Richardson beside those of "the plunger," Pittsburgh Phil, and "Bet-a-million" Gates. Yet in his way he was a more fabulous character than they.

There was, for example, the time he raked over the gambling joints of Reno. That was back in the plush days when the cow country looked upon greenbacks with suspicion, and when gold and silver coins or American Express checks were about the only legal tender.

Richardson stopped off in Reno only between trains, his object being to lay $3,000 on a 20-to-1 shot he knew about. The horse paid off at that price and Richardson, who was charmed by the sight of real gold, demanded to be paid off in gold and silver.

He bought a couple of satchels and these actually were filled with coins. A couple of guards were supplied to escort him to the train. But as a final gesture, Richardson hired

Good shot—can't be beat. Tall, handsome, and with a host of personality plus. She has what it takes to draw customers at the gate. She is one of the flashiest women players in the game and can take care of herself in men's opposition. Marjorie is a "pip-pip."

LORENE DANIELS, Home address, Byng, Okla. Lorene stands a trifle over 5 ft. 8 inches, weighs 145 pounds. Selected on the all Oklahoma state team from the Byng champions. Lorene is playing her third season and is the team captain. A crack goal shot and ball handler and smart. Her job is to direct the team on the court and she does it expertly. Lorene is well known all over the nation as one of the best in all basketball.

a negro porter who wheeled the money to the train in a wheelbarrow.

Or there was the time he hired a special train, club car, champagne, and all, to take the Ravenna Elks lodge to the races at the old Maple Heights track.

FOLLOWED THE HORSES WESTWARD

Richardson was an Englishman. A master dyer by trade, he came to America to work in Ohio worsted mills plants. He got interested in racing because his nephew was the famous jockey Redfern. The mills at Ravenna still are called the "Redfern Mills" in his honor.

Back around 1912 the great drought in American racing began when Charles Evans Hughes outlawed any form of wagering in New York state. Some of the big stables went to England, but most of the horses went westward. So did the gamblers. Jueves, just across the border from El Paso, and Tia Juana, south of San Diego, flourished.

One night in Jueves a race incident developed into a major brawl trimmed with shooting. Richardson fled for his life, hiding in a stable. There was a cot in the stall and he bedded down beside the horse.

He was awakened in the morning by the horse's owner, H. C. Applegate, who told him that the horse, an untried two-year-old, was the fastest horse in the world. John thought he'd better head for home, but he made the owner promise to wire him when he started the horse.

The horse was Old Rosebud, 1914 Kentucky Derby winner, and one of the greatest geldings in American history. Old Rosebud held the derby record until Twenty Grand came along in 1931, and he made and lost fortunes for Richardson.

Once, for instance, Redfern and Applegate told Richardson Old Rosebud was a cinch to win unless he broke a leg or something. "He'll win by a city block," they said. Richardson, in common with most plungers, never bet odds on choices and Old Rosebud was held at 1-to-4. So he would have to bet four dollars for every one he won.

Against his better judgment he bet $20,000 on the nose, expecting to clear five grand for the race. That was the day Old Rosebud came down the stretch, lengths ahead, and broke down a hundred yards from home.

BEAT BOOKIES

On another day at Saratoga, Richardson ran $1,000 into $70,000 on four races. He was on his way to bet the entire 70 grand on a 10-to-1 shot when friends convinced him the "ice box" was indicated. So instead of betting he went back to the Grand Union hotel to buy champagne.

John Richardson... he died as all good horse players must—broke.

plungers. You could never guess the final odds. One big wager would knock the price down, and the gamblers felt they were ruining their odds by betting. But, if they stayed away from the tracks to wager with hand books, they began to lose touch with the horses themselves.

That's what happened to Richardson. He began to lose his judgment of form; began to listen to gossip; even began to pay for information. When that happened the end was in sight. Bookies began to see he was given false tips.

The last act was long drawn out. Once he won $2,200 on a single race at a Youngstown bookie joint and left it there as a reserve. Again he won $4,500 but lost it and more at the crap tables. Gradually he went broke.

His last years were spent on the fringe of a negro settlement. He was crippled by rheumatism, but though he was nearing 70 his eyes kept their intense blue and his flowing corn-colored mustache never turned white.

A negro family, which had been in his service in the halcyon days when he gave champagne parties each Saturday night, took care of him.

Davies Picked As Successor To Luisetti

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
SOUTH ORANGE, N. J., Jan. 21—Soot once in two or three basketball generations there appears a real hero of the hardwood—a fellow like Stanford's Hank Luisetti or Pittsburgh's Chuck Hyatt, whose fame spreads outside his own territory.

Fans in this district offer as one of this select group Bob Davies, a speedy and tricky forward from Seton Hall college.

Davies admittedly has plenty of competition throughout the country. There are such players as Dartmouth's Gus Broberg, "Sutz" Modzelewski of Rhode Island State, the "perfect shot" of a team that does little else and the best bet to beat Luisetti's all-time scoring record; Hoard (Boo) Engleman of Kansas, so nicknamed because he handles the ball as if there were a string tied to it; George Glanack of North Carolina, who led the Southern Conference scorers last season although he has to shoot by "feel" because he can't see the basket without his glasses; Bob Gerber of Toledo, "Bat 'Em" Kinney of Rice and plenty of others.

But Honey Russell, the old-time pro court star who coaches Seton Hall, and the fans hereabouts can't see anyone except Davies. He's not exceptionally big, only 6 feet 1 1/2 inches tall and weighing 170, but he's speedy and agile.

Al Marnaux, the baseball coach, is the only one who can outdo Russell in praising the 21-year-old athlete.

"He's a great basketball player," says Marnaux. "But he's a greater baseball player, and right now I predict he'll be a big-time second baseman in a few years. What a fielder!"

Frnka Leading Candidate For Tulsa Coach

By EDWARD CURTIS
TULSA, Okla., Jan. 21 (AP)—Henry Frnka, the Texan now at Temple, was considered the leading candidate today for head football coach at Tulsa, university, which won the job and ousted a mentor last season.

While some reports went so far as to assert that the university and Frnka had come to terms, officials of the school's athletic committee declared "no contract has been signed."

Frnka, whose work with the Greenville (Texas) High school brought him into coaching prominence and to the attention of Ray Murrin, head coach at Temple university, was in town but he dismissed questions with a smiling "nothing to say."

Members of the athletic committee said Frnka, who was head coach at Temple university, was in town but he dismissed questions with a smiling "nothing to say."

University officials have conferred with Frnka and coach at Alabama; Dixie Howell of Arizona State Teachers college, and Pete Cawthon of Lubbock, who recently resigned as head coach at Texas Tech.

Frnka had lunch with some school officials yesterday and will meet more of them today, said an athletic committee member said. "It could be that he won't even be given the job."

It was strongly indicated, however, that a new coach would be named officially by Saturday.

Frnka, who played at Austin college of Texas under Cawthon, has been an assistant at Morrison for the past five seasons and the first four of them at Vanderbilt.

Borger Beats Panhandle Cagers In 42-10 Upset

TREETOP OF RED HEADS

Few men can handle a couple of basketball's like baseballs, but only one woman can do it, and she's Genevieve Love, above, center for the All-American Red Heads basketball team which will play the Pampa Harvesters here Wednesday night. She is the tallest girl in basketball, standing 6 feet 3 inches tall, and can handle a basketball and shoot with any man. The starting team averages a fraction of an inch over six feet, which will top the Harvesters. A preliminary game will be played at 7 o'clock with the Red Heads-Harvester clash at 8 o'clock. Admission will be 50 cents to all.

PANHANDLE, Jan. 21—Borger never looked any better and Panhandle never looked any worse than last night when the Bulldogs crushed the Panthers 42 to 10 at Panhandle.

The situation was the exact opposition of what it was last week when the Panthers whipped the Bulldogs on their own courts 27 to 15.

The Panthers couldn't do anything right and to illustrate how everything they did was wrong, Merle and Earl Pruitt, twins on the Panhandle team, got the Bulldogs' defense to miss their star goal-shooter, Trotter, who did not start the game on account of a bad ankle. He played most of the game however, but limped rather and yon. The Bulldogs are all and had a distinct height advantage. Coach Catfish Smith played almost his entire squad, and all of them looked potent.

Both Borger and Panhandle, despite the Panthers' loss which should not be taken too seriously, loom as potential county champions. Of course Borger has got to get rid of Phillips which defeated Panhandle 40 to 20, and Panhandle must put the chill on White Deer and Groom.

Borger's Trotter led the shooting with 11 points, Gaddis was second with 10, with Briggs and Geter goaling 6 points each.

Price Cagers Split Games With Gorillas And Reapers

Pampa and Price Memorial of Amarillo basketball teams divided games here last night when the Pampa Junior High Reapers defeated the Price Memorial "B" team 26 to 15 and the Price Memorial "A" team scored out of the Pampa High school gymnasium.

Bob Sheehan, a reserve forward until last night, got the starting call for the Reapers and he flashed for six field goals to lead the attack. Bob Dunham, center, followed in the scoring department with three field goals and a charity shot.

Price Memorial threw several first stringers into the game but the Reapers wouldn't be defied. They are undefeated this season.

The Gorillas of Coach Oscar Hinger looked better than in recent games as they passed better and made shots count. Abernathy, a guard, paced the scoring attack with five field goals. Bridges and Thompson were next with three field goals each.

Hyburn, also a guard, led the Price Memorial Cardinals with five field goals while Murphy and Mewhorth followed with five points each.

The Reapers will battle Horace Mann of Amarillo here Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock in a conference game.

Health Broken; Now He Praises Hoyt's Compound

Nervousness, Acid Indigestion, and Night Risings Are Things of the Past, Says Ponca City Man.

Mr. W. M. Klaus, 703 North Union St., Ponca City, Okla., states:

"I recommend Hoyt's Compound. I spent considerable time in the Panama Canal Zone, and was broken down in health when I returned to the United States. Malaria fever had undermined my health, but since taking Hoyt's, I feel a great deal better. I was nervous, suffered from acid indigestion, and couldn't sleep. Now I sleep better. There's no more belching from indigestion, and I don't have to get up nights. "My nerves are much better. To anyone who is suffering as I did, and who is in a nervous, run-down condition, I recommend Hoyt's Compound. It is a wonderful medicine!"

Hoyt's Compound is sold by the Gretnay Drug Store, and by all leading druggists in this area.

Bridges Elected To Head Humble Union

E. B. Bridges, Jr., is the new president of the Humble Panhandle Employees Federal Credit Union. Other officers are P. A. Jewell, vice-president; A. B. Watson, treasurer; and J. M. Reed and W. S. Brake, members of the board of directors.

Members of the credit committee are V. B. LaSalle, chairman, M. K. Griffith and S. C. Hanks. Members of the supervisory committee are A. J. Muller, chairman, J. B. Stephens and D. A. Caldwell.

The union has 98 members who hold a total of $782.30 in shares. Assets of the union are $8,610.65. Since organizing a total of $48,161.88 has been loaned, of which $13,453.88 was loaned last year. Only four loans, amounting to $92.53, were charged off according to the annual report.

BARBECUE

The latter donated by Rio Grande Valley residents. Twenty thousand pounds of beef on the hoof were bought by a citizens committee, and generous friends of the governor contributed numerous steers and sheep. The barbequing was started early Sunday, and pits in widely scattered parts of the city were pressed into operation.

O'Daniel frequently has told those who listen to his hillbilly music radio programs to bring a bit of food and some "hoss feed" and come to see him at the Texas White House. Today, he pointed out, they needed to bring only the "hoss feed."

There was a distinct military flavor to the inauguration. Texas National Guard planes flew from Brownwood to dip in salute shortly before the oath of office was administered to the governor. A national guard battery composed of Cleburne youths came from Camp Bowie, Brownwood, to fire the traditional salute to the incoming chief executive.

Adjutant General J. Watt Page said that Lieut. Gen. Herbert J. Brees, commander of the third army, would be among the high-ranking military officers in attendance.

Neither O'Daniel nor Lieut. Gov. Coke Stevenson of Junction, who was to be inaugurated for a second term just ahead of the governor, had a great deal of difficulty in winning re-election. O'Daniel has yet to be forced into a runoff race for a Democratic nomination.

The inauguration was before a joint session of the house and senate. James P. Alexander, chief justice of the supreme court, was invited to administer the oath to O'Daniel, and the veteran Judge F. L. Hawkins, presiding judge of the Court of Criminal Appeals, to give the oath to Stevenson.

Congress avenue was roped off from the Capitol to 19th street for dancing. The big ball tonight will be at the University of Texas Gregory gymnasium, with other dances at downtown hotels.

O'Daniel faces a variety of tough problems as he enters a second term. Last week, he sent a message to the new legislature urging additional taxes to yield $50,000,000 a year. The state's general fund deficit is large and programs of state contributions to a teachers' retirement fund, aid to the needy blind, and aid to dependent children have not yet been started.

the power to draft capital, but Bevin made no mention of this in his announcement to parliament.

In the coming months, the labor minister said, there "will be heavy demands for manpower and womanpower for services, for munitions work and for civil defense."

He said he expected arrangements soon for lowering the draft age for the army from 20 years to 19 and for raising it above the present top limit of 36. He gave no new upper figure.

Employers no longer will be allowed to discharge men except for misconduct in vital industries, Bevin announced, and employees will be forbidden to leave vital work without the government's permission.

The object for such a rule and for the drafting of labor," he said, is to create a "permanent mobile labor force."

Besides men, Bevin said, the nation will have to call into munitions and aircraft factories "many women who, in normal circumstances, would not take employment."

"As more men are called up for the forces," he said, "industry will have to absorb women far more than it is doing."

"The state will have to take much greater responsibility for the care of children whose mothers are rendering national service."

Bevin gave point by point a recital of increased British production in the past few months, despite German attempts to bomb factories, furnaces and aircraft plants out of existence.

1. An increase by more than one-third of merchant shipping construction in the last half of 1940 over the first half;

2. An increased production of airplanes "since the beginning of September, week by week";

3. Maintenance of the high arms production rate of last summer thru the air siege months of autumn and "in many cases increases" in the rate.

Winterton warned that the British people had "got into a most dangerous state of mind of thinking that if we only waited long enough the United States was going to give us everything we wanted and we only had to hang on a few weeks or months."

The real situation, he said, is that "not until the very end of this year should we get such an accretion of strength from the United States that it would make an appreciable difference to the war effort. Not until the middle of next year or later would it mean superiority."

In the labor draft, Bevin said, "there will be an exception of rank or anything else."

Bevin, a hard-handed union boss, risked disapproval of his main political backers—5,000,000 members of the trades union congress—in announcing the conscription policy.

Bevin pledged that the government soon would present a bill providing for restriction of union and individual rights at the end of the war.

The number of munitions workers is greater than in 1918, when World War production was at its peak, he said, and he assured commons that "if I were at liberty to reveal the rate at which we now are able to equip a division with guns and machine-guns it would give the house a great measurement of encouragement."

As one means of speeding production, he said, workmen's hostels will be built near factories.

Besides the general arms speed-up, Bevin said export production also was increased. Last month, exports totaled £24,000,000 ($96,000,000), £3,000,000 ($12,000,000) above November.

The speed-up has been especially big in the aircraft industry, the labor minister reported.

"Many of the airplanes from the other side have been successfully flown across the Atlantic in bad weather," he added. "This is a tribute to the design and workmanship of the machines and the efficiency and endurance of the pilots."

Youth Killed In Running Gun Fight

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 21 (AP)—A 15-year-old Massachusetts youth, Oscar Decola of Lawrence, was shot and fatally wounded shortly before midnight last night in a running gun battle with two detectives in the downtown district.

The detectives and another Lawrence youth, Herbert Oliver, 17, (17 Exchange St.), were seriously wounded. Oliver first told police his name was Joe Andrews.

Det.-Lieut. C. H. Tucker said the youths had been identified as the robbers who held up P. J. Comerford, manager of a nearby cigar store, a few minutes before the shooting, and fled through after-theater crowds.

Detective A. W. Powers was hit in both legs and the face and Officer C. H. Hart in the side. Oliver and Decola were struck in the abdomen. Decola died in a police hospital a few minutes later.

Bangles Will Be Sold In Schools

Preliminary to the opening of the sale of bangles in Gray county schools next week by the Gray County Tuberculosis association, six schools were visited today by W. B. Weathered, L. L. Sone, and W. E. James.

The schools visited were Hopkins 1 and 2, Grandview, Alanreed, McLean, LeFors.

Purpose of the visits was to plan for the drive. The bangles, scuffed double-barred celluloid crosses, will sell from one cent to a dime each.

Money goes into the TB association fund, along with proceeds from the sale of Christmas seals. Most of the P-TA's in the county have already made donations.

The men making the trips to the schools today are all officials of the county association. Mr. Weathered, county superintendent, is treasurer; Mr. James, county treasurer, is president; and L. L. Sone, superintendent of the Pampa Independent School district, has served as one of the directors.

Testimony Begins In Hodges Trial

Testimony in the trial of the case of State of Texas vs. Jim Hodges, who was indicted here October 3, 1938, on a charge of receiving and concealing stolen property was started in 31st district court today.

More state witnesses were to be heard this afternoon, following the three put on the stand this morning. They were Roy Showers, J. E. Petty, and Ellis Bonham.

Showers is superintendent of Southern Petroleum Exploration company, and J. E. Fetter is office manager. Bonham is one of the two men who allegedly sold sundry office equipment to Hodges.

Jurors in the case are J. W. Patton, Neal Byrd, John L. Barnard, E. C. Woods, W. R. Ketter, Walter E. Powers, J. A. Patterson, O. K. Lee, Tom Cook, Rex Barrett, A. H. Gay, and O. G. Killingsworth.

Selection of the jury was not completed until this morning, after special calls for additional talesmen brought in 13 out of 15 in one group, three out of six on another. There were 17 of the original panel of 40 reporting when court opened Monday morning.

Jurors not taken, or excused, were instructed to report Friday morning. E. T. (Dusty) Miller of Amarillo and Newton P. Willis of Pampa represent the defense, while District Attorney Bud Martin and John F. and Aaron Sturgeon represent the state.

The Sturgeons were retained as special prosecutors because they had served in a similar capacity when the case was first heard here over two years ago.

Three Boys Seek Star Scout Rank

Dale Thut, James Boston and Warren Fatheree, all members of Boy Scout Troop 14, made application at the monthly board of review of district 1 here last night for advancement to Star rank. They will appear at the next District Court of Honor on January 27.

Six Scouts and scouters appeared before the board and made application for a total of 14 merit badges. They, with boys who attended the December board, will be eligible to attend the Court of Honor.

Members of the review board were Vaughn Darnell, chairman, Bert Arney, H. A. Yoder and J. D. Sackett.

mitted a British army of 300,000 to escape from Dunkerque," he said.

If the German air force was as strong as they claimed, he continued, he thought they had a perfect chance to annihilate that British force.

The diplomat said also he could not understand why the Germans had not wrought greater destruction in Britain's industrial centers.

"If they have the strength to capture the air," he said, "the crisis might come any day. So far, they haven't indicated they have that strength."

Doesn't Know War Aims When Fish asked whether Kennedy thought something ought to be done to let this country know the nature of those war aims before proceeding with further aid to Britain, Kennedy said he did not understand the question and suggested it was one for the state department.

Britain's situation would become "serious and vital," Kennedy said, if British shipping losses continued at anything like the rate of losses prevalent previous to last month.

Long before the hearing began the room was crowded and dozens of persons stood against walls.

Kennedy said that "some people at the top of Britain felt that they were not getting the kind of help they expect from the United States."

Fish asked whether it was fair to the British people "for us to intimate" that the United States would help in a possible continental invasion.

"I don't believe we've ever done that officially," Kennedy replied.

Fish asked what Kennedy thought of Winston Churchill's statement that, as Fish put, "England needed no help from us in 1941." Kennedy said it was "rather strange."

Prime Minister Churchill said in a speech Friday night that England's need in 1941 was not for men but guns, ships, and planes.

Fish then wanted to know whether there was "any truth" in reports that "England is going socialist."

Kennedy said that the labor and socialist parties were becoming more important and added that "nobody has the right to assume that conditions will ever go back to where they were."

Of the lease-lend bill, the ambassador said he could not believe that "anybody in the United States" would "give away the American navy," and he told Fish he would not object to a prohibition against sending convoys to Britain without the consent of congress.

Representative Luther A. Johnson (D-Tex.) asked whether it was not necessary that the United States arm as soon as possible.

Kennedy replied in the affirmative, asserting that "every day is a day too late." Of British morale

'Invading Enemy' Bombers Shot Down

By SCOTT HERSHEY NEW YORK, Jan. 21. (AP)—Two "invading enemy" bombers roared in from the sea today off Belloport, Long Island, where they were spotted by volunteer observers of the air defense command, and were intercepted a few minutes later by fighter planes over Port Jefferson.

In making the interception about 17 miles from Belloport, the fighter planes, which took off from Suffolk flying field near the center of Long Island, successfully completed their mission in the first test of the four-day experimental exercises of the air defense command.

A second initial "victory" for the defending forces came simultaneously a few miles from Providence, R. I., where two more bombers were intercepted by three pursuit ships from New London, Conn., as the "invaders" flew in from Narragansett bay.

Almost at the same time, spotters reported a flight of bombers flying high in the vicinity of the Massachusetts shoe manufacturing city of Brockton.

He said, "I can't imagine anything better." He added that there was "a great deal less tension here than among the people I've met in the United States."

"It's just a question of plain guts," he observed.

Questioned at length on conditions in Britain, Kennedy said that when war came and Parliament passed a bill in two hours without debate—presumably the emergency powers bill—"Democracy went out the window." But, he added, it did not necessarily follow that democracy "can't come back."

At another point that it was "quite unlikely" that England might land troops on the European continent and defeat Germany. He reiterated his expressed view that the United States should keep out of the war.
