

Attempt To Invade Ireland Will Be Hitler's Next Move, U. S. Experts Hold

By MAX BOYD
WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 (AP)—Belief spread among American military experts today that Adolf Hitler's next stroke would be an attempted invasion of Eire to secure Irish bases for a fiercer air and submarine war on Britain's vital shipping.

The current furious raids by the R. A. F. upon the so-called invasion bases on the European continent were interpreted in many quarters as a reflection of British apprehension that Nazi eyes are now fixed on Ireland.

The opinion was expressed widely here that German transports from the channel ports and from Norway probably would attempt to land troops and mechanized equipment under cover of darkness, while parachute troops and air-transported infantry descended simultaneously to seize strategic flying fields.

Calculations as to the timing of any invasion attempt were confused by conflicting factors. Winters' fog and long nights, for example, offer a shield to troop ships, but hinder aerial operations. In any event, the experts agree, the British navy would be on the alert for any troop movement by surface ships and would seek to blow the convoys out of the water—a task that might be of major proportions if the German high command decided to risk the Reich's remaining warships to improve chances for the stroke's success.

The aerial thrust at Ireland would be much more elusive to combat. Once any large body of German troops won a foothold on Irish soil, military authorities said, it would be a costly and difficult operation to dislodge them. American experts pointed out that Ireland could put up much less resistance to an invader than England, because of her lack of anti-aircraft and anti-tank guns, tanks, planes and other modern weapons—a general shortage officially acknowledged in Dublin earlier this month.

The actual strength of Eire's armed forces is not known. One of the last pre-war compilations placed the combined total of regular army, reserves and air forces at less than 30,000 men. Since Britain's situation became critical, however, this strength is believed to have been increased considerably.

Draft Power In Industry, Labor Urged

Builder Of Planes Airs Opinions On Production

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 (AP)—Glenn L. Martin, the airplane manufacturer, told a congressional committee today that the government should have the power to draft both labor and industry for defense production.

Testifying before the house naval committee, the Baltimore, Md., industrialist said efforts to speed up the rearmament drive should be undertaken in stages but with the possibility always in mind that the drafting of labor and industry might prove necessary.

Previously Martin had told the committee that a six-day week was "by all means necessary" in defense industries and could be achieved without loss of pay or health to the workers.

The witness said his company, concentrating on production for defense, already had organized work so that it could go on a six-day week as soon as it can obtain "a coordinated flow of material."

"We will do it under the present labor law," Martin testified, "by paying the men time and one-half for all time over five days. (Under the wage-hour law the basic work week is a five-day, 40-hour week. Overtime work must be compensated for at the rate of time and one-half.)"

The Martin company is in process of trebling its capacity for making army and navy planes, the witness related, adding that it would be April 1, 1942, before the plants would use a full working force of 42,000 men.

With 17,000 men now on the job, Martin said, the plant is making 311 patrol bombers for the navy, exclusive of its orders for army planes such as the new B-26 medium bomber.

Representative Vinson (D-Ga.) meanwhile asked Americans to sacrifice "peace-time luxuries" to accelerate production of planes for national defense.

The Georgian is chairman of the house naval committee.

If civilians would do without "a pot or pan or an automobile" occasionally, Vinson said, the machinery needed to produce them could be diverted to manufacture of defense products.

"We can't go along with the peacetime method of having luxuries and we've got to give them up if we are going to keep this program going," he declared.

Taft Demands Scrapping Of FDR Program

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 (AP)—Outright scrapping of President Roosevelt's lease-lend plan for aid to Britain was demanded today by Senator Taft (R-Ohio) in a counter-proposal calling for cash loans, if and when needed.

Taft, a member of the Foreign Relations committee, said that for congress "the important thing in this issue was to refuse the President's broad powers, proposed in the administration bill, and to keep British aid separate from 'our own defense,' instead of linking them in the legislation.

The Ohioan's announcement to newsmen that he would devote his efforts to getting the bill killed apparently put him on the side of Senator Wheeler (D-Mont) and those others who have indicated that, regardless of modifications, only the defeat of the administration plan would satisfy them.

The substitute loan program which Taft advanced would become operative when British assets were exhausted and would be limited in the first instance to $1,000,000,000 or $1,500,000,000. Taft said commerce department reports showed that Britain still had $4,000,000,000 of cash and marketable securities in the United States. If the first $1,500,000,000 loan proved insufficient for Britain, he added, congress could grant further sums.

The Taft counter-plan was the widest departure from the administration program yet offered by critics with positive suggestions. It ran contrary to President Roosevelt's recent assertion that the dollar sign should be eliminated from the whole question of American aid to Britain.

Suggestions for modification or limited revamping of the administration lease-lend bill continued to pile up, and there were indications that some of them might be taken into consideration.

3,500 More Workers Go On Strike

Employees At Eaton Plant Quit Jobs In Protest

DETROIT, Jan. 14 (AP)—James F. Dewey, federal labor conciliator, announced today that "a defense measure" he would insist that all plants of the Eaton Manufacturing company be reopened and all striking employees put back to work.

SAGINAW, Mich., Jan. 14 (AP)—United Automobile Workers (CIO) unionists spread a strike today to five units of the Eaton Manufacturing Co., affecting more than 3,500 workers, as state and federal officials sought settlement of the dispute.

No union pickets appeared this morning at the Wilcox-Rich division plant here where five policemen and the two unionists were injured in a clash yesterday. The management said approximately 500 workers escorted by state police entered for the morning shift. The plant is making airplane parts on sub-contracted national defense orders.

The UAW-CIO called the Saginaw strike yesterday morning, charging that the company violated a pledge to rehire 300 union members involved in a strike two months ago.

Strikes spread today to Eaton plants at Detroit, Battle Creek and Marshall, Mich., and at Cleveland, Ohio. Picket lines were formed at the Battle Creek plant, employing 1,100, shortly after the morning shift reported for work. At Marshall, where the company employs 525 workers, no picket line was formed but the plant was shut after the night shift entered the plant. The Detroit unit employing 600 closed yesterday and was picketed today.

At Cleveland, the company decided not to operate its 450-employee stamping plant after a picket line formed.

At yesterday's meeting the board approved a plan to go ahead with landscaping as a WPA project at a cost of only two per cent for preparing the plans.

The board approved current bills and also agreed to pay the architect, Townes and Funk of Amarillo, $2,000 on account.

Considerable time was spent in discussing ways and means of reducing expenditures and of equalizing taxes. Members agreed that oil and gas valuations in the district were not equal. They voted to ask members of the county commissioner's court to meet with them to discuss the equalization program.

It was explained to the board that wells shut in by order of the railroad commission were being assessed the same as producing wells, yet no one was getting any benefit from the property.

Fire Spotters Help Lessen New Disaster

Victims Buried In Debris; City 'A Sorry Sight'

(By The Associated Press)

Nazi fire raiders showered more than 10,000 incendiary bombs and "many tons" of high explosives on Plymouth, big English shipping port, leaving uncounted victims still buried in the debris today.

RAF bombers attacked the German U-boat base at Lorient and the Dunkerque area.

Civilian fire spotters were credited with saving Plymouth from "even greater disaster" as the Germans striking in waves, took advantage of a brilliant moon and spreading fires to give the city of 205,000 inhabitants one of its worst poundings.

The first wave of 30 bombers, it was said, dropped "thousands" of incendiaries, illuminating the city with a "grotesque light."

Two surface air-raid shelters were hit by bombs, and two hospitals and a church damaged. In one hospital, a single patient was reported killed with a direct hit on a women's ward. Ceilings and walls were blasted apart.

The raid was launched, one said, by a formation of approximately 30 German planes, which dropped "thousands" of incendiaries, immediately illuminating the city with "a grotesque light."

Civilians were reported to have quenched the fire bombs in all but one area within 10 minutes, but succeeding waves of heavy bombers used the light of flames in this area to guide them to the target.

Early reports said casualties were feared large, but officials declared the toll was remarkably light considering the intensity of the raid, which lasted about three hours.

Eye-witnesses said Plymouth at dawn was "a sorry sight."

More cheerful news for Britons came from the London admiralty with a report that only four merchant ships totalling 14,687 tons were sunk in the Fensid Jan. 5—one of the lightest week's losses since the war began.

Authoritative British quarters said the decrease was due to bad weather conditions, concerted RAF attacks on Nazi fleets, and casualties were "gradual" reinforcement of escorts for British shipping convoys.

Premier Mussolini's high command, meanwhile, pictured a joint Axis offensive against Britain's Mediterranean fleet, as well as the "gradual" reinforcement of escorts for British shipping convoys.

The British Press Association said an Italian defeat in east Africa seemed so probable the government was ready to grant not only safe conduct but "facilities" for removal of women and children from Italian colonies there.

In Ankara, Turkey, staff officers of the British middle east command were on hand for a two-day conference with Turkish military leaders.

Hearing On Street Car Strike Called

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 14 (AP)—The federal labor board fixed a hearing for today in the strike of 3,400 street car employees which tied up Mexico City's surface rail-ways transportation after a prolonged conference in the ministry of labor failed to effect a settlement.

After hearing arguments of the Canadian-owned company and the union the labor board will rule whether or not the strike is legal.

Both sides remained adamant.

The workers insisted the corporation fulfill a labor board decision granting them a 1,000,000 peso annual wage increase. The company continued to plead economic inability.

While all street cars remained in their barns, the estimated 200,000 daily users of the street railways turned to buses and taxis.

100 Persons A Day Bring Songs To BMI

By W. W. HERCHER
CHICAGO, Jan. 14 (AP)—After lending ear for a week, Jimmie Cairns is convinced that among all these "Junes" underneath all those "moons," there's music.

"New music," he said, humming a bar or two allegro. "And pretty good music, too."

Cairns is the Chicago manager of Broadcast Music, the rival of the American Society of Composers, Authors, and Publishers in the battle of radio melodies.

A week ago yesterday he opened a pint-sized office on Randolph street and hung up the welcome sign for amateur song writers. The response, he said, has been terrific.

Men, women, and children have been crowding in at the rate of almost 100 a day, bringing anywhere from three to 12 manuscripts apiece. One ambitious song writer left a whole satchel full. But that doesn't mean Cairns' working hours are all moonlight and roses.

The telephone rings, for instance. Cairns picks up the receiver. "Before I know what happens this lady

Women Invited To Boy Scout Annual Banquet

The annual Adobe Walls Boy Scout banquet here Thursday night will not be a stag affair, Executive Fred Roberts announced today, but will be open to women because they play an important part in the Boy Scout movement.

Reservations should be made by Wednesday night at the Boy Scout office in the city hall here or with counters in each city in the council which comprises the 10 northeast counties in the Panhandle and three counties in the Oklahoma Panhandle.

The banquet will be at 7 o'clock in the Schneider hotel. Principal address will be by the Rev. R. Thomson of Amarillo. R. G. Hughes will be installed as the new president of the council at the banquet.

"We are extending a special invitation to the women to attend the banquet," Executive Roberts said today.

MONROE PRESENTED DISTINGUISHED SERVICE AWARD

Gym Will Be First Project Of Jaycees This Year, Says Dodge

Building of the community-gymnasium recreation building will be the Jaycees' first major project for this year, Jimmie Dodge, new president, declared last night at his installation banquet.

Plans for building the $12,000 gym with $6,000 to be furnished by the NYA and $6,000 to be lent by Pampa, were announced last week.

Mr. Dodge said he proposed to dedicate the organization this year to work for the gym project.

Mayor Gives Address
In his speech, "What Happened in 1940," Charlie Lamka, incoming vice-president, told how the Jaycees wiped out their deficit, and designated the annual Top O' Texas Feast as "the thing which does more to advertise Pampa" than anything else, "more than the ice storms do Amarillo."

That all frontiers have not been reached nor all progress made and that we should look to tomorrow was the theme of the principal speech, delivered by Fred Thompson, Pampa mayor.

Bert Levy of Amarillo was toastmaster. Introduction of visitors was by D. L. Parker, 1940 president of the Jaycees. Piano music throughout the banquet was by Ken Bennett. A dance was held following Mayor Thompson's address.

Frank Monroe, principal of Pampa Junior High school, was designated as Pampa's outstanding young man of 1940 and presented the distinguished service award at the inaugural banquet of the Pampa Junior Chamber of Commerce, held at the Schneider hotel.

The award was a golden key, annually awarded to the young man who has given outstanding community service during the past year.

Although the trophy is not limited to members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, it so happened this year that the award went to a Jaycee director and past president.

The presentation was made by Tex DeWeese, who in his speech, outlined the accomplishments on which the award was based.

Outstanding civic service in community affairs and personal character and ability are the essentials in choosing the outstanding young man, under the U. S. Junior Chamber of Commerce plan, Mr. DeWeese said.

Police Station To Be On Air

A new daily feature will be presented by radio station KPDM beginning at 11:55 a. m. tomorrow when news and warnings will be presented by remote control direct from the Pampa police department in the basement of the city hall.

The program will be directed by Police Chief J. B. Wilkinson and City Recorder C. E. (Dan) McGrew.

Included in the program will be police news including number of arrests and convictions, fines assessed and reports on lost and found articles. Warnings to motorists on condition of streets, types of traffic violations being noticed and other educational matters will be discussed on the program.

Emergency messages will be flashed from the station at all hours of the day.

War Flashes

(By The Associated Press)

The London admiralty acknowledged today that German and Italian bombers—joining in an intense aerial offensive against the British Mediterranean fleet—damaged three British Men O' War escorting a convoy en route to Greece. At least 12 of the Axis attackers were shot down, the admiralty reported.

The admiralty said the warships were guarding ships ferrying "important material assistance for Greece" when the Axis raiders fell upon them, hitting the 23,000-ton aircraft carrier Illustrious, the 9,100-ton cruiser Southampton, and the 1,325-ton destroyer Gallant.

Fire Loss For 1940 $7,118.40

Pampa's insured fire loss for 1940 was only $7,118.40, according to the annual report filed by Fire Chief Ben White with City Manager Steve Matthews. Total fire loss for the year was $8,298.40.

The fire department answered a total of 118 alarms during the year of which 104 were in the city and 14 out of the city. The department conducted 24 drills during the year.

Firemen made a total of 3,020 inspections during 1940, according to the report. A total of 164 fire hazards were corrected.

Value of buildings involved in fires last year was $371,950 of which insured value was $364,779.

Total fire loss in 1939 was $9,405.86 of which $8,795.86 was insured loss.

Loss in the Gretney Drug and Ronel's fire on December 27 of last year is not included in the 1940 report because payment of claims will not be made until 1941. Total loss has not yet been estimated.

The small fire loss last year will give Pampa an excellent rating, Chief White said. Insurance premiums will be subject to the maximum credit of 25 cents and the key rate will probably be as low as possible.

Clearing Weather Tomorrow Forecast

Fog continued to linger over Pampa today but a gradual clearing was forecast for tomorrow. A drizzling rain fell last night, but added nothing to the .03-inch precipitation recorded Monday.

Maximum temperature in Pampa Monday was 39, minimum 36. Near noon today the temperature was 35.

2 Birthday Dances To Be Held Here

Pampa will have two dances in celebration of the President's birthday, on January 30. One will be held at the Southern club, the other at the high school gymnasium or red brick school building.

L. N. Atchison, Gray county chairman, said he would meet with an old-timers group at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the BCD committee room to make further plans for the dances.

The dances are for the purpose of raising money to combat infantile paralysis.

B-PW Legislative Committee Will Present Program

Members of the legislative committee of Business and Professional Women's club will present a program at the regular monthly business meeting of the club this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the city club rooms.

Members of the committee are Letha Northup, chairman, Geneva Briscoe, Jewel Meek and Leora Kinard.

The program will be in the form of a mock session of the state session and an actual session held in Austin on March 13, 1939, will be enacted. Facsimile passes to a senate were mailed as invitations to the members. Guests are to be invited to the program.

Forty-three state legislatures out of forty-eight will meet in January, and the mills of the law-makers will begin to grind.

Miss Manning wrote: "Our Federation will be working for many laws on many fronts, according to reports sent in to me. Jury service for women is scheduled for intensive activity in Alabama, Arizona, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New Mexico, Tennessee, Texas, Vermont, West Virginia, and Wyoming—a total of two-thirds of the twenty-four states which will count women among the criminal and the insane as incompetent to exercise this important right of citizenship."

"Establishment, extension, or improvement of state merit systems is next on the action list of twenty-one states: Alabama, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, Tennessee, Texas, Vermont, and Wyoming. This, of course, is important to women, as a merit system that really functions is one way of guaranteeing the right to work for the state will be based on ability and experience rather than on sex and marital status."

The ratification of the Child Labor amendment will be on the support programs of Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, Tennessee, Texas, Vermont, and Wyoming. This, of course, is important to women, as a merit system that really functions is one way of guaranteeing the right to work for the state will be based on ability and experience rather than on sex and marital status."

"Adequate state food, drug and cosmetic laws similar to the new federal statute will be sponsored in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, Tennessee, Texas, Vermont, and Wyoming. This, of course, is important to women, as a merit system that really functions is one way of guaranteeing the right to work for the state will be based on ability and experience rather than on sex and marital status."

"Special wages and hours legislation affecting women, only, may come up in some states. When this occurs, state federations will doubtless work for laws that will include women as well as men and women."

"Other interesting legislative goals have been set in many states. Alabama, Tennessee and Virginia will work for elimination of the poll tax. Arkansas and South Carolina are hoping to improve marriage and divorce laws. Nevada is interested in a law improving the status of juveniles. Tennessee has included on its program support of a permanent registration law and sterilization of the hopelessly insane. Virginia and South Carolina are working on a long legislative program which includes support of birth control clinics."

A surprise party was given recently in the home of Miss Opelia Dunn, 1028 Fisher street, honoring Miss Norma Kennemer on her birthday. Games were played and gifts were opened by the honoree.

Is The 'Golden Door' Forever Closed?

Back 50 years or more ago, a colossal statue, a gift of the Republic of France, rose at New York's ocean gateway.

The Republic of France is no more, having recently officially become The French State. The statue still stands. Liberty, they called her, "Liberty Enlightening the World" with a brave torch raised against darkness.

For that dedication a poem was read. Its words had been inscribed on the monument. They were by Emma Lazarus, and the last lines read:

"Send these, the homeless, tempest-tossed, to me: 'I lift my lamp beside the golden door.'"

They came freely, for many years, those men and women disillusioned and disheartened with the Old World, to seek new homes and a better life in the New. They were for decades new blood that freshened and invigorated the life of the growing Republic. Times changed. The stream was regulated, reduced. Then came evil times even to the New World, and the stream dropped to a trickle.

War convulsed Europe, and certain minorities of race and politics have now become homeless wanderers in Europe, wanted only as fodder for revengeful rifles, unwanted and burdensome in temporary haven abroad. Their state becomes progressively more desperate as country after country falls before the invaders. Many earnest efforts have been made to bring them to the New World. Mexico has taken many, especially those closely tied to her speech and culture. The Dominican Republic, Cuba, and other western countries have humanely helped. The United States has not done what its great resources, population and traditions might suggest.

One of the reasons may be that most of the efforts to bring in refugees have been privately backed by political, social or racial groups whose interest is presumed by many to be special rather than general. Naturally, the United States does not want immigrants selected by groups or sub-groups with special interests in mind. It wants immigrants selected by its own government with national interests in mind. But only the special groups seem active in the matter; people generally remain indifferent, or hostile, thinking of unemployment and their own jobs.

The government has just rejected a plea from France that thousands of refugees there from Luxembourg, Belgium and Germany be received here. The government, probably quite properly, suggested that France first release 3,500 refugees who already have American visas, but who in the tangle between France and Germany, cannot get exit permits. Between indifference and red tape, people are perishing.

For one reason or another, Liberty may still lift her lamp beside the golden door, but the door is almost closed.

Behind the News

By BRUCE CATTON

Pampa News' Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—The so-called "liberal" bloc of the House of Representatives, which hasn't been heard of much since Maury Maverick disappeared from the capital scene, is trying to stage a comeback in this new Congress under the leadership of stocky, combative Representative John Coffee of Washington state.

It isn't organized as a formidable bloc yet. It's merely an informal, almost impromptu grouping of somewhere between 25 and 50 House members. It has just enough of an organization to have a chairman, who is Coffee. Its members meet once a week during sessions, usually in the Dodge hotel. There's generally a speaker—sometimes a congressman, sometimes a New Deal functionary, sometimes an outsider—whose talk is followed by a chat on pending legislation and a discussion of current issues.

This group had more importance earlier in the New Deal than it has had since Maverick unintentionally brought it low in his final term. He was chairman, and was forever being referred to in print under that title. The average congressman, liberal or otherwise, is pretty jealous, so a lot of bloc members began to figure they weren't doing anything much besides getting Maverick a lot of publicity, and attendance at the meetings dropped. Coffee is keeping pretty much in the background, nursing the bloc back to vigor with due regard for everyone's sensitivity.

LIBERAL TRADITION

IN COFFEE FAMILY

Coffee himself is an unusual sort. Son of a well-to-do Tacoma business man who was once president of the Tacoma Chamber of Commerce, he was reared in better-than-average comfort and given an expensive education at the University of Washington and at Yale.

There was a strong liberal tradition in the family, however—William Jennings Bryan used to visit the home when Coffee was a child, and the elder Coffee was a great admirer of the elder Bob La Follette—and as soon as John Coffee got to Washington in 1936 he began to establish a reputation as a two-fisted left-winger.

But as chairman of the new House liberal bloc, Coffee isn't just another congressman spouting off. He speaks for a group which sometimes holds the balance of power in the House when the Democrats get more than usually split and which often runs interference for the administration on measures and ideas the administration can't go to the front for.

This group, says Coffee, is going to be unusually vigilant this winter to "protect domestic reforms and see that monopoly doesn't get further entrenched

Common Ground

By H. C. HOLLES

This column contends there can be no satisfactory program until we measure the virtues of each man by the common yardstick of the God-given right to create and enjoy activities anyone else has a right to create and enjoy.

ROOSEVELT AND FREEDOM

President Roosevelt, in his speech, plays very loosely with the word "freedom." To him, freedom seems to mean that a bribed majority should be the judge of the amount of freedom that each individual has, not only in this country but in the world.

To Roosevelt, freedom means the Augustinian philosophy of Christianity that man must have his wants satisfied in order to be free. He discards the idea of freedom proclaimed by Jesus and the Constitution—that man is free when he has an equal right to create and enjoy anything any other person is free to create and enjoy.

Roosevelt says that at no previous time has American security been so seriously threatened from without as it is today.

Threatened From Within
It would be better to say that no time in American history was the security so seriously threatened from within as it is today. Never in the history of this country has any president so divided the people as Roosevelt has done. He sets class against class. His contention of our threat from abroad diverts our attention from the danger within. It is a red herring.

He uses such demagogic statements as the voters putting "patriotism ahead of pocketbooks." He would leave the impression that there is some way of prosecuting a war that the consumer does not have to pay.

Roosevelt calls for personal sacrifices. Every citizen in America should be willing to sacrifice time and energy in order to get people to understand the real dangers threatening Americans from within.

But what sacrifices has Roosevelt made? All he asks for is more power, more appropriations, so that he may have more power to direct the lives of all men in America to make America more like Russia or Germany. He even has gone so far as to infer that those who oppose his theories are slackers or trouble makers. He says the best way of dealing with the slackers, or trouble-makers in our midst is to shame them by patriotic example; and if that fails, to use the sovereignty of the government to save government.

Save Freedom By Force of Government

And now he proposes to use the sovereignty of the government to save government. He entirely discards the law of equal freedom, and wants the power to determine the degree of inequality that should exist between American people and the peoples of all the rest of the world.

It seems strange that we should be so perturbed about tyranny in foreign lands when we are so rapidly losing our freedom and our inherent rights in our own land. Our worst menace is not from foreign lands, but from the leadership we have in our own land.

He says he does not recommend that we make any loans of dollars with which to pay for these weapons; a loan to be repaid in dollars.

In the third paragraph following this statement, he says we will be repaid for the materials and goods we send abroad.

Words seem to mean nothing to Roosevelt. He says we will not loan them dollars, but we will loan them things and be paid for them.

England has no desire to borrow dollars; they want to borrow credit to trade for things, which is the same thing as borrowing things.

Roosevelt Judge of Acts of War
He says that loaning war equipment is not an act of war. Roosevelt himself wants to be the judge of what is an act of war. International law is only a scrap of paper to Roosevelt.

If Roosevelt's program is carried out, it will mean that we will have from five to seven million soldiers in Europe before the war is over.

And what good did our sending soldiers to Europe do in the last war? Even Churchill has said that if it had not been for our sending Europe aid in the last war, they would have settled the war and they would not have had Communism in Russia and Nazism in Germany.

Truly, Roosevelt's leadership into war, after he had so definitely promised to keep us out of war before election, is one of the worst betrayals of public trust that any American officeholder has ever been guilty of.

LIDDELL HART TAKES A NEW TACK, TOO

(Des Moines Register)

For a long time after the fall of France little was heard from Capt. B. H. Liddell Hart, British writer of so many books and articles on military affairs. For a while he was a great believer in the strategic counteroffensive and the surprise attack, he had counseled, in 1939, when the world was so different, that Britain could defend itself without sending an army to the continent.

Now word comes from London that a new book by him is out, a slim 64 page booklet entitled "Dynamic Defense." It harps on his old theme that the British army should be mechanized further and faster, both for offensive and defensive purposes.

His suggestion that there was "urgent need for the appointment of a single directing head for the armored forces as a whole" was answered, while the type was still hot, by the appointment of Maj. Gen. Giffard Martel to the newly created post of commander of the royal armored corps.

And his designation of Italy's African empire as the weakest point of the axis was obviously written long before the tide of war changed in North Africa.

He makes it clear that he shares the common British hope for an offensive on the continent of Europe some time, when Britain commands the air again. Thus the military expert of the "quiet war" makes his bid for a comeback, now that the noise is erupting.

under cover of the defense program."

GUNNING FOR DEFENSE ACT AMENDMENTS

Congressman Howard Smith of Virginia has re-introduced his Wagner Act amendments, which failed of passage in the last session, and stands ready to bring in a bill restricting labor's right to strike in defense industries. It's such measures that the House liberals are gunning for.

"The reactionaries are going to take strikes in defense industries as examples of hampering our patriotic effort," says Coffee, "but they say nothing about the way some industrialists are demanding their pound of flesh. If they put any such laws through you can bet labor will start howling to have the government do some commanding of factories."

"Of course, what's happening is that a few extremists on both sides are guilty. They've all got to see that the public interest comes first in this emergency."

SIGNS OF LIFE?

Around Hollywood

By PAUL HARRISON

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 14.—A few weeks ago, the last period for which I have been able to get any accurate check, 18 motion pictures were preparing, shooting or editing in England. Hollywood had only twice that many actually before its cameras.

At the Gaumont-British studio in Shepherd's Bush, London, only two hours of working time had been lost in two weeks because of bombing raids. It seems that most things get awfully hot, with bombs practically tumbling through the skylights of the buildings, actors just go right on acting. In Hollywood, instead of letting them think and act for themselves? Well, as far as I know, those 700-odd students, away from school, are so far in the lead, it's hard to keep up with them.

That gym the Jaycees and the NYA are promoting is going to be a good thing for the youth of Pampa, and it will be a better thing for the boys who don't get to college when they get out of high school. There will be recreation aplenty in that gym.

Young men hang around pool halls because there is nothing else to do. Well, they will have something else to do in winter time when the gym is completed. There will be all kinds of sports and games. Youth likes exercise and it will get it in the gym. Everybody has confidence that if it doesn't the Jaycees will pay it out. They know that the Jaycees pay their debts. They know that money lent to the Jaycees will be repaid.

BETTER U. S. FILMS GOING ABROAD

I couldn't have been much further wrong. It turns out the Hollywood studios actually are making better pictures in England than before the war. Kane explained that the original quota ruling required the manufacture in England of one film for every four sent over from Hollywood. Most of the cheap "quota pictures" weren't even worth exhibiting.

The British finally grew tired of that obvious dodge and last spring whipped up a new ruling. Thereafter, for every 100,000 feet of film sent into England, a U. S. concern was obliged to produce in England one picture costing at least 50,000 pounds. Kane said 20th-Fox sends over about 350,000 feet of its best Hollywood product, and so has to make four features at Shepherd's Bush. By special arrangement, the same outfit also turns out M-G-M's quota. Other Hollywood companies, especially Paramount and Warners, maintain regular production staffs and expect to keep right on making four films a year each.

Kane handed me a letter from his former secretary, who said everything was going along fine. She mentioned her own apartment had been damaged by a bomb and water, but that it needed redecorating anyway. She also said Kane's successor, her new boss, had gone out with Lord Somebody-or-Other that afternoon to play golf.

PROPAGANDA FILMS OUT

There was a list of all the pictures being made in England, and I remarked that none of them sounded like an out-and-out propaganda film, such as Korda's "The Lion Has Wings." The producer said no, that the British still wanted entertainment, and a majority of the features being made there have nothing at all to do with the war.

When the history of England's swastika-shadowed movie industry is written, I'll bet there'll be stories of gallantry to equal anything in the scripts. Thus far, only one bomb seems to have caused any casualties on a sound stage, but the staggering thing is the way the few available actors and actresses over there must be working.

A glance at the cast lists proves the players are rushing steadily from one studio to another, changing costumes, switching roles, struggling with fatigue and work to keep unwanted reality from their make-believe world. They're giving new meaning to the old dramatic tradition that the show must go on.

People You Know

by Archer Fullingim

To that group of teachers who were complaining the other day that there is not a single student in high school who could be called a "leader," we wish to pose these questions: If you have no "leader" isn't it because you have failed to develop a leader? Is it because you have not cultivated the student enough to trust him with responsibility? Is it because the students refuse to be stooges who pass for leaders in the minds of some people? Is it because you really want to think and act for the students instead of letting them think and act for themselves? Well, as far as I know, those 700-odd students, away from school, are so far in the lead, it's hard to keep up with them.

That gym the Jaycees and the NYA are promoting is going to be a good thing for the youth of Pampa, and it will be a better thing for the boys who don't get to college when they get out of high school. #### WHAT HAPPENED WHEN MAHARAJAH SHOT SACRED COW

Few white men have entered Nepal, the mountain-island kingdom lying between India and Tibet. But Explorer Hassold Davis entered it by the Maharajah's permission with the Armand Denis and Lella Roosevelt motion picture expedition a year ago. He writes a fast-moving No. one travel book as a result, superbly illustrated "Land of the Eye." (Henry Holt: $3.) Mr. Davis found Nepal both beautiful and horrifying, in some of its customs. And he found humor. "Take the following typical story he was told about no less a person than the Maharajah himself and his unfortunate hunting expedition: "It was evening and His Highness thought he saw rhino getting ready to charge. So he shot at it, and it turned out to be a cow, a bovine cow. He had killed it, a cow, mind you, the holiest thing in the Hindu world. If Mount Everest had fallen it could have caused no more horror among the people. There were riots in the streets, and when the troops were called they rioted, too.

"But the high priest quieted them with a gesture. Then he announced that the Maharajah, in reparation to the gods, would give to the temple of Pashupatinath a life-sized cow whose body should be made of copper-gilt, its horns and tail of solid gold, its hoofs and udders of silver, its eyes studded with rubies, and the tip of its tail with pearls. A thousand people sighed with relief and awe.

TEX'S TOPICS

By Tex DeWeese

THE boys who signed that petition (in TUN) asking the arrangements committee to bar Dick Hughes, national Jaycee director, from last night's JCC installation banquet program were feeling a bit sheepish today. The reason they felt that way was because they feared Mr. Hughes might think they were serious about the petition. They could well feel that way, too, after the marvelous way he came through at the last minute, pitch-bitting for the man who was unable to be present to install the 1941 Jaycee officers. . . . As late as 9 o'clock the arrangers found themselves in the position of having no installing officer. . . . And, even though some of them had signed the petition, they had to go to Mr. Hughes and ask him to help them out. . . . And he did just as he always does. . . . And he turned in a grand job of it, too—just as he always does.

INCIDENTALLY, last night's Jaycee party was a whiz from banquet beginning to end of the inaugural ball. . . . There's more about it elsewhere for the day's print. What radio man is engaged to an Oklahoma City girl? We'll let the society editor "break" the story. . . . Directors of the Panhandle Press Association will meet at luncheon Saturday in Amarillo to map the program for the 32nd annual convention of the newspaper group to be held there April 18-19. . . . We know a young lady who has a weakness for collecting those cute little bars of soap from hotels. . . . She has 'em all the way from Alaska to the gulf tip and from East to West.

There has been a great deal of squawking lately about Pampa's goosy streets. We're not exactly sure what it is, but they need something to do to them. . . . Sir Walter Raleigh would be kept busy if he could step into modern-day Pampa. That reminds me of what was that lady he put down his coat for? The secret committee of the Pampa Jaycees did a mighty fine job in making their selection for an all-around useful citizen when they picked Frank Monroe. . . . El Tracey, who leaves The News soon to become advertising director of The Clovis News-Journal (Clovis, N. M.), will be parried tonight by his associates at a dinner in the Schneider Hotel. The management of Radio Station KPDN has something in the wind which we hope develops. . . . Which also reminds us to wonder if ASCAP had any idea when it barred its agents from radio the listening public would forget them so quickly.

We always get a laugh when we note occasionally a reference to a "dynamic executive." . . . You take the "dynamic executives" and we'll take vanilla. For our business we prefer a soft-spoken, easy-going, quick-deciding, iron-hand-in-the-velvet-glove type of executive. . . . "Dynamic executives" get on the nerves of the help; and what's more they get on the nerves of the customers. . . . They are in the same category, so far as we're concerned, as the salesman with the toothy smile. . . . He doesn't mean it.

SOME favorite quotations: . . . Joy is not in things nor places, it is people you like.—Wagner. . . . Every man's life is a fairy-tale written by God's fingers.—Anderson. . . . I envy the beasts two things: their ignorance of evil to come, and their ignorance of what is said about them.—Voltaire. . . . There are two worlds: one that we can measure with line and rule, and the world that we feel with our hearts.—Hunt. . . . Originality is simply a pair of fresh eyes.—Higgenson. . . . I don't think much of a man who is not wiser today than he was yesterday.—Lincoln. . . . The tallest and the smallest among us are so alike diminutive and pitifully base, it is a meanness to calculate the difference.—(And we don't mean anyone.—DeW.)

As of October, 1940, American aircraft engine industries employed 137,000 persons. That figure is an increase of 43 per cent over the 95,000 persons employed in April, 1940.

DEFICIENT SUPPLY OF VITAMIN B MAY BRING GRAY HAIR

(Mr. duBois, a former food chemist for the government, is a nationally recognized authority on diet.)

By WILBUR L. DUBOIS, M. A.
Gray hair may be a sign that one's diet is lacking in vitamin B. Some of the characteristics of old age also are due to a deficiency of this vitamin which is needed in increasing amounts as our years grow longer.

A doctor in charge of a prison hospital in the Dutch East Indies observed that chickens in the yard, feeding on scraps of prison fare, showed stiffness and weakness in the feet and legs. This looked like the prison disease beriberi. The prison fare was polished rice.

The doctor put some pigeons in a cage and fed them polished rice. They all developed symptoms of beriberi. He then added rice hulls to the fare and the birds recovered.

Evidently something in the hulls prevented the disease. This substance has come to be known as vitamin B, and is recognized as essential to health.

This is another demonstration that disease can be caused by nutritional deficiency. We can't blame germs for everything.

Vitamin B is essential to growth and has an important relation to appetite and health throughout life. Loss of appetite may be a serious warning. Children are often afflicted with it.

This may be due to a shortage of vitamin B in the diet. Possibly they are having too much cereal from which the vitamin coat has been removed, or too much bread made from over-processed flour. The white flour, so dear to the eye and taste of modern folk, lacks much of the essential vitamin nature put in the wheat grain.

The diet is not likely to be short of this vitamin because it is widely distributed among plant tissues of all kinds. Our common vegetables contain it.

Milk and eggs offer vitamin B in goodly amounts, and you will find it in the whole grains and dark forms of cereals, in yeast and wheat germ. Apparently it cannot be stored in the body for future use so we must get our supply daily.

Jack's appetite might come back if he had plenty of vitamin B dancing around in him. Maybe Jill won't push away her plate so often if she is well stocked with this vitamin. Follow this simple rhyme: Vitamin B for appetite, When Jack's not hungry And Jill's too tight.

NEXT: Vitamin C.

Famous Player and Coach

Many players get confused with switching on defense. They switch too soon, or they hesitate too long, or they run into each other. There is no good reason why this should happen. Switching is easy enough, although it takes cooperation between players which comes only through long practice.

Suppose two offensive players are attempting to advance along their left sideline. One of the players, in the front line, passes to a mate playing deeper along the sideline. Then he starts to cut between the player to whom he has passed and the sideline.

Unless the two guards co-operate in a smooth switch, the one playing the front man will be lost attempting to follow.

The two guards should switch men automatically, without having to resort to signals. They often hesitate long enough to see definitely whether the first offensive man intends to clear through. This is unnecessary.

After offensive player (B) passes to (A), chances are he will cut along sideline toward basket. Guards (1) and (2) should switch automatically, without signal.

If they see he stops and goes back, it is simple to switch back again to their original assignments. When the play is that far from the basket, there is no reason why a guard should crowd his man. If he plays back a short distance, he will be able to see what is happening on all sides, and will be better prepared to go in any direction to meet a new threat.

NEXT: Don't switch too soon.

Central Of Amarillo Will Play Here At 4 Wednesday

The Pampa Junior High Reapers basketball team will play its first home conference game of the season at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the high school gymnasium when they meet Central of Amarillo, considered one of the strongest teams in the conference. No admission will be charged to the game.

Coach C. P. McWright of the Reapers will start the same team that won a sensational 40 to 38 game from Horace Mann in Amarillo last Friday. Forwards will be Bowerman and Robbins, center, Dunham, and guards, Berry and Rook.

Central, coached by veteran Bill McCasland, lost a two-point decision to Sam Houston in Amarillo last Friday and Sam Houston is the team being watched most closely in the conference.

The Reapers are undefeated in six games this season.

Gorillas Cancel Game With Price

Because of mid-term examinations, Coach Oscar Hinger of the Pampa High school Gorillas has called off his game with Price Memorial in Amarillo tonight. The game will be played at a later date.

Next appearance of the Gorillas will be in the Shamrock Invitation tournament Friday and Saturday where they will compete against some of the strongest teams in the Panhandle and Oklahoma.

Coach Hinger is working his Gorillas hard trying to reorganize the team following the loss of Day, sensational forward, who has moved to Altamere to make his home.

Empty Saddles New Bucking Sensation

DENVER, Jan. 14 (AP)—Empty Saddles, a comparative newcomer in the National Western livestock show rodeo arena, gave the veteran five-minute-to-midnight lesson in bucking last night and gained an edge on the title of the show's meanest bronc.

Empty Saddles, considered "O'Five's chief competition, spilled Nick Knight, Cody, Wyo., veteran, on the sixth jump.

Shortly afterward, Happy Sankay, Lusk, Wyo., cowboy, rode the 18-year-old five-minute-to-midnight to a roaring finish—one of only a few times the buckler has failed to throw his rider.

Other winners yesterday included Hoyt Hetner, Wichita Falls, Texas.

ONE OF TALL RED HEADS

The capable looking miss above is named Smith and she's one of the stars of the All-American Red Heads basketball team which will play the Pampa Harvesters here on the night of January 22. She is one of the tallest members of the team which averages more than six feet. Only one of the Red Heads is less than six feet tall, and she lacks only one inch of reaching that height. The team played in the Orient last year, often drawing as many as 15,000 fans. The game will be called at 8 o'clock and will follow a game between the Harvesters reserves and an unnamed team at 7 p. m. Admission will be 50 cents for everyone and student tickets and passes will not be accepted for admission because the team is coming on a guarantee. Coach Odus Mitchell said today.

It'll Take Two Days For O'Daniel To Read Message To Legislature

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Jan. 14.—A new legislature, the forty-seventh in Texas history, took life today.

Ceremonies as old as the legislature itself were revived to set in motion at noon the regular biennial session which will continue at least 120 days.

Preliminary organization necessary to the efficient functioning of the body, including the election of a speaker of the house and a president pro tempore of the senate, highlighted the opening schedule.

Other set events were the administration of the oaths of office to the 179 men and two women composing the legislative membership and the selection of certain employees.

Home Leonard of McAllen, entering his sixth term as a representative, was unopposed for the speakership, highest honor in the power of the house to confer.

Until Leonard had been officially elected, the duty of presiding over the house rested with Secretary of State M. C. Flowers.

The function of Lieut.-Gov. Coke Stevenson of Junction, as president of the senate, to rap that branch of the legislature to order. The distinction of the speakership fell to Leonard on his forty-second birthday.

Much interest centered on the committee assignments for both house and senate because of the great part those "workshops" play in making laws.

Because the house committee were more numerous and the house membership was so much larger—there are 150 representatives and 31 senators—the house assignments were not expected for several days.

With organization out of the way, the message of Governor Lee O'Daniel, containing his recommendations for new laws or alterations of present ones, loomed as the object for sharpest attention.

It was so official said the message would be delivered serially, half Thursday morning and half Friday morning, the reading of each to require an hour or more.

The procedure was without precedent, as the legislature is going to do something about it this time.

Rep. Howard Hartzog of Fort Lavaca—"Social security financing is the main business before the legislature. I think the legislature is going to do something about it this time."

Senator Houghton Brownlee of Austin—"The two outstanding issues will be social security financing and the truck load limit law. These are the two issues that all subjects will be small in comparison."

Rep. Newton W. McCann of Texarkana—"The big job is to satisfy the mandates of the people regarding social security. Another is to bring about economy in the administration of government affairs."

U. S. Assured About Progress In Aviation

By STEPHEN J. McDONOUGH
Associated Press Service Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—The national advisory committee for aeronautics assured the government today that American aviation is more than keeping up with plane development in the warring nations, and that dependent children and assistance to adult needy blind was the major task of the session, among many questioned denied.

Scores of bills and resolutions had been drafted for introduction in both houses, and although most could not reach the floors for some time except in instances of emergency, there was plenty of work in sight.

A large number of recess appointments by Governor O'Daniel faced senate confirmation or rejection, and action on all of them was expected at no far distant date.

Most recent additions were Dan J. Harrison of Houston and Orville Bullington of Wichita Falls, appointed to the board of regents of the University of Texas in succession to J. R. Parton of Houston and George D. Morgan of San Angelo. The governor also re-appointed Fred C. Branson of Galveston.

"One of the essential requisites for retaining leadership in the technical development of aircraft is more and more research," he said.

"Technical progress is so rapid and the advantages of new improvements are so great that research in time of emergency is of even greater relative importance than in time of peace."

"The committee is conducting studies designed to add to the speed, maneuverability, load-carrying capacity, range, safety and economy of American planes."

"Several of these investigations already definitely promise large advances," it said in its annual report.

Delivery Of Naval Planes Delayed 4 Months, Wright Says

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Burtett Wright, an official of the Curtiss-Wright corporation, told the House Naval committee today that delivery of the first planes being made by his company under a navy contract would be delayed four months.

Testing operations, he said, frequently disclosed the necessity for refinements and alterations to provide maximum efficiency, and time was required to work them out. The industry also was faced, he added, with a shortage of skilled tool designers and engineers which, he said, added to delays.

"It is embarrassing to me to have to tell you that we have to set these contracts back," he testified at a committee investigation of defense production problems, "but we are working on that with the navy."

He added that despite a four-month delay in the first orders the entire contract probably would be held up more than ten months.

Wright told the committee that his company had delivered more combat planes to Great Britain than to the United States. United States army officials, he said, "chose to delay delivery" in order to incorporate in their planes changes which, on the basis of experience abroad, proved desirable. Since the British have already incorporated these changes in their newer designs, he said, "we went ahead" with the British orders.

Wright said he did not believe a seven-day week for the industry would be advisable, as it would leave inadequate time for machine maintenance and the pace would "burn out" executive, administrative and supervisory personnel.

Labor generally, he told the com-

Crude Production In U. S. Declines

TULSA, Okla., Jan. 14. (AP)—Daily crude oil production in the United States declined 13,318 barrels to 3,372,280 for the week ended Jan. 11, the Oil and Gas Journal said today.

ATTACK ON AMERICA

BY GENERAL ARD WHITE
W. N. U. Release

THE STORY SO FAR: In an effort to substantiate rumors that 200,000 foreign troops were in Mexico preparatory for an attack upon the United States, Intelligence Officer Benning went to Mexico City. Here he joined the staff of the unsuspecting Van Haskel, leader of the foreign forces, and gained the confidence of two other officers, Fincke and Bravot. Discovering that foreign troops were poised for an invasion of the U. S., Benning returned to Washington to report to Colonel Flagwill, acting chief of Military Intelligence. Flagwill stated that forces were also reported massed in the Mediterranean and the Far East.

The wooden hangars at Kelly Field were in flames. Randolph Field was being hammered. San Antonio was in a mad panic which had got out of all police control. People were flooding the streets, rushing about in a mad frenzy in their efforts to escape the city. Roads were choked with passenger vehicles.

But the Van Haskel bombers were confining their major fury to Fort Sam Houston and the flying fields, rushing about in a mad frenzy in their efforts to escape the city. Roads were choked with passenger vehicles.

Benning talked casually up to the Fincke table and sat down beside the Van Haskel spy.

"Hello, Fincke," he said.

"You started, pocket there, he relaxed with a nervous laugh as he recognized his unexpected visitor from the Palacio Nacional.

"My, Brombitz, you startled me!" he gasped. "I didn't know you were within a thousand miles of Washington."

Benning said in a matter-of-fact way: "Flew up yesterday, Fincke. Hoped I might be lucky enough to run into you tonight. How are things here?"

Fincke leaned across the table and with excitement.

"Did Colonel Bravot send you to work with us tonight?" he whispered.

Benning pretended annoyance and warned, "Not quite so free with names, Fincke." He added with a warning, "I understood that you college promised that you were to go back to your artillery when the show started?"

"Himmel, but there's bigger game here than a battery of field artillery!" Fincke retorted with a snap of his fingers. "Already am a major, Brombitz. If I succeed tonight it will be because of my knowledge of ballistics, my training in the artillery, and there'll be another promotion for me."

"Then what?" Benning mocked.

"Then, in a week or so, the big crustacean will be real history. Brombitz, when we cut this little old country right in half, and it will make me a full colonel! Are you in on that one, Brombitz?"

"I'm not saying anything," Benning answered, with a quizzical smile on his face. "I understand the logic of the Austrian's cryptic words. Benning's eyes had been wandering about the room and he thought there was something vaguely familiar in the thin man with the shiny bald head who sat nearby.

"You know of course," Benning said casually to Fincke, "that the old hawk, Colonel Fincke, is here in Washington?"

Fincke shook a vague finger and accused, "I thought you warned me we mustn't be so free in mentioning names."

"You wait, please note that I lowered my voice. Of course, if we're going to be so technical as all that, Fincke, perhaps we'd better identify ourselves to each other officially. Go ahead."

CHAPTER VI—Continued

An hour later the Second Division's trucks, filled with men, were whirring out of the fort; rubber-tired artillery was shifting its light and medium cannon out of the zone of possible danger.

An aide, whom General Brill had sent out to the garrison to observe, burst into headquarters, breathless, his face stripped of color.

"Sir, airplanes!" he panted. "Flying high—but you can hear them coming!"

General Brill left his staff at their allotted jobs and went outside with his aide. The garrison was dark, headquarters worked behind drawn shades.

The roar of motors filled the air as trucks and artillery continued to roll out of the garrison. But above that he caught the sharp whine of higher-powered engines far overhead.

The 69th Anti-Aircraft Artillery had got its guns in position, but was withholding its searchlights pending development. Suddenly a small plane zoomed down over the garrison and dropped a flare that turned night into day.

Brill stood calmly observing. He knew that flare was the first violence of an invasion of the United States. He knew that in a few minutes the bombers would circle over their target of Fort Sam Houston and let drive. He knew, too, that there was nothing he could do to prevent what was to follow.

A hissing shriek caught his ears. Involuntarily he raised himself on his toes and placed his finger-tips at his ears. A savage flash of yellow flame leaped from the earth into the heavens. The ground under him shook with volcanic intensity from the savage wrath of a heavy bomb.

Long fingers of light leaped into the sky from the 69th's searchlights. A heavy demolition bomb detonated in the field from which the trucks were whirring. Brill caught in the momentary flash of light, the grim tragedy of shattered men and material. Above the din he heard the cries of wounded men. Another bomb crashed and another. His anti-aircraft regiment began crackling, but his handful of guns were almost lost in the din of titanic thunder that crashed from the sky.

Incendiary bombs rained down, bringing an irresistible heat that ate its way into all combustible parts of barracks. General Brill turned back into his headquarters, sat down at his desk stricken by his utter helplessness, but maintaining his self-control.

His staff, their bloodless faces drawn and lined, worked coolly, under-oblivious to the danger. Information kept coming in, reports that had to be grasped until the whole picture of attack and disaster had been assembled and appraised as the basis for whatever later action was to be taken.

CHAPTER VII

In the War Department at Washington the evening had passed on in feverish staff preparation for future trouble, but with small belief that the first thunderbolt of Van Haskel's attack would fall before midnight. Even Flagwill, gifted Chief of Military Intelligence, had mulled the fact, interpreting the evening rumors from Fort Sam Houston as symptoms of a slowly brewing mischief that might not fester into violence for days or weeks.

On getting clear of the staff sessions in General Hague's office shortly after eight o'clock, Flagwill put his shoulder to the wheel of what now had become a major responsibility of his own section. He assembled his sub-chiefs and announced his decision.

"Gentlemen, the President has authorized a spy round-up with the gloves off. I needn't tell you that in past months we haven't even searched the surface. You all know your leads, now get into action. With gloves off, and nobody to be spared who looks to us like a foreign agent. Any questions?"

In grave silence the small group of officers rose. They knew that not even an order of battle had greater significance nor more vital importance. A secret army of termites, entrenched by years of organized stealth in arsenals and factories, was more dangerous than a dozen attacking divisions. By means of an organization that reached into every agency of investigation and law enforcement throughout the United States, our G-2 would launch attack on organized espionage at once.

"Very well, gentlemen, that's all," Flagwill said when he read from their faces that his section chiefs had no questions to ask. He added, swiveling his level eyes to Benning, "You know, Captain, for special instructions."

Benning stood in front of the Flag will desk until the swinging doors closed behind the others. The curtain spoke at once.

SERIAL STORY

CONSCRIPT'S WIFE

BY BETTY WALLACE

Copyright 1941, NEA Service, Inc.

YESTERDAY, Suzanne begs for a chance to visit Paul back, asks Marsha to let her see the wreckage of her friendship with Paul, realizes the terrible he has undergone, but she is determined to stop seeing him, and she has understood their friendship is ended.

8-O-3 TO BILL MARSHALL

CHAPTER VIII

AT 5 o'clock that day, Martha Marshall was still enmeshed in the coils of her inner problem. How could she indicate to Paul Elliott, without hurting him, and yet without letting him know the real reason, that she preferred not to go out with him any more?

The next morning she avoided his eyes, was thankful when he had to go down to the production department to straighten out a tangle. It might take all day. But at quitting time, he was back in the office.

There wasn't. While she fried the meat for Butch, even while she walked behind him, later, she remembered Paul's surprised eyes, his set mouth.

Mrs. Kelly, the cleaning woman, was waiting for her in the hall when she and Butch returned. "Could you let me have a dollar on what you owe me?" she asked. "I know tomorrow's Saturday, but I can't wait for this."

"Oh, yes there is!" cut in the old woman argumentatively. "That friend of your husband's, he still comes, I can tell by the newspapers on the floor, and pipe ashes all around and didn't he cook up a mess of something sticky in that skillet like he always does?"

LONG after Mrs. Kelly had gone, Marsha stood there in the fog of a "m" confusion. "Everybody" everybody had the same idea. How stupid she had been! How blind! But as long as it wasn't true—as long as she wouldn't go out alone with Paul again—it didn't matter.

He knew them both more intimately and with more understanding than anyone else on earth. She seemed to hear again his voice as he said at the station, "Take care of her, Paul."

Suddenly she wanted to hear his voice again. She went to the phone. "Operator, I'd like to speak to Mr. William Marshall at Camp McAllister, please. No, no one else will do."

HOW dear his voice was! "No, stupid! I just wanted to talk to you. How are you?" "I'm fine, sweet. How are you?" "Why didn't you call me when I asked you to?"

She said, carefully, "Suzanne and Paul were with me almost every night, the first two weeks. I wrote you, remember? But I'm not seeing much of either of them, any more. You know how it is, everybody has their own lives. Anyway, Butch and I are doing swell."

"Goodbye, Bill. See you Sunday!" "Goodby, honey." (To Be Continued)

Disclosure that Hitler is building a defensive line of fortifications along the English channel is a further indication that he is getting set to try to hold the war to a stalemate if he fails to defeat Britain.

Hitler apparently figures that if he can at least achieve a stalemate, this will have him in control of the whole continent, clear through to the Russian border—and maybe beyond. He expects to organize the entire territory politically, economically, and industrially, and so build up the Reich that it will be in an impregnable position.

NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTIONS

This editorial will mark the closed season on New Year's resolutions, a national pastime indulged in by six-sixths of the American public. By this time 99 and 44-100 per cent of those made New Year's Eve have already been broken, and the others are probably in a dangerous position.

But those seniors who highly resolved to study harder during 1941 will do well to keep that one resolution. For apparently the trend toward compulsory military training is growing stronger, and the high school graduate has a better chance at desirable positions in the army than the boy who did not complete his high school work.

Prin. D. F. Osborne speaking in assembly last Wednesday stressed the necessity for speed in the completion of work because of unsettled world conditions.

PAMPA BOY AIRS VIEWS

Woman: A woman is something a man runs after until she gets him just where she wants him. She has two hands, two feet, one overly sharp and active tongue, and one head of hair of doubtful and unpredictable color.

A woman may be put in only one class—man-hunters. If her boyfriend walks to see her and sits and listens to her radio, he is light. If he drives over in his father's eight-cylinder gas-gobbler and takes her out and shows her the town, he is a spendthrift and squanders his parents' money.

The wonder of the 20th century: Why does it take a woman so long to put on so little?

If the boy-friend is a marvel of muscle and football ability, she longs for an intelligent conversation lift. If he is an intellectual, she sighs because he hasn't the brawn to carry her across the muddy place in the street.

If a man tells her he loves her, he is a silly sentimentalist. If he doesn't, he is bashful.

A woman is as ruthless as the Canadian Mounted Police. The difference is that she always gets some one else's man.

A man wants to be the first one in a woman's life. The woman wants to be the last one in a man's life.

A woman's moods are two: (1) irritable, which breaks a man's heart; (2) angelic, which breaks a man's pocket book.

If a little knowledge is a dangerous thing, most women are comparatively safe.

A woman is but an ocean wave: she buoys a man up until they reach the shallows of his financial sea, and then dashes him brutally on the rocks of a divorce court.

Sagebrush

Room 202, the all-girl home room, had a visitor last Wednesday in assembly. It was Flini Berlin.

Have you noticed how many girls are wearing snow shoes? White seems to be the favorite color, while several are wearing tan.

Many girls received diamond rings for Christmas. Most of them came from the outside. What's that matter with the P. H. S. boys?

The comics have come to life. If you listen you will hear Andy Smith called "Superman" and Belton Bearden "Red Ryder."

Many students are spending their extra time learning chemistry with Mrs. Alexander as instructor. They are preparing for these finals.

Two senior girls who were married recently seem to enjoy married life very much. Congrats, Delphia and Jeanette.

The new elastic bracelets are all the thing now. Mickey Rafferty had an armful of them on the other day. He was wearing four at once.

It Happened in Senior High
Teacher: Most names beginning with O are Irish. O'Daniel's is an Irish name. O'Halloran, O'Brien, and O'Reilly are all Irish.
Pupil: What about Oh! Susannah?
Bartender to Ghost: Rum, boogie?
Harriet Price—collecting absentee slips—a fugitive from The Lost Chord.
Wayne Fade, rough and tumble guard of the Harvesters, who has been sunbathing through opposing lines for years without the loss of a cutting tooth, had one yanked during the holidays.
He lost it the hard way—playing pass football.
Incidentally, Fade received honorable mention on the all-state squad in football.
When Maxine Sullivan, dark brown songstress, stepped up in front of a microphone and crooned "In the Gloaming" in a brand new style about three years ago, it didn't sound bad at all.
But since New Year's eve when the bands have been taking apart everything from Bach's Fugue to Ades to Fiddlers—grand opera has charms, and folks are beginning to regret that Jeanie wasn't a blond.

BREADLINES
Prof. Robert Mickel, economist at Hunter college, New York, says: "Taking my economic theory course must keep you off the breadlines, but at least you'll know why you're there."

January was named by the Romans for Janus, a man with two faces, one looking backward and the other forward, because he stood between the old and the new year. In the Catholic churches of the middle ages, January is represented by the figure of a man clad in white, as snow is usually on the ground at that time. In England it is believed that the weather grows colder as the days lengthen. Twenty-nine pupils in high school are another year older this first two weeks of January.

Missouri College Paper Discusses Bonnie Lee Rose

The Student, weekly publication of William Jewell college, of Liberty, Mo., recently carried the following comment on Bonnie Lee Rose, of Pampa, now a student in that school.

Have you been wondering why Bonnie Lee Rose (from the great open spaces of Texas) is seen wearing her western outfit? It is complete from boots and chaps to ten-gallon hat and checkered shirt. The answer for the western apparel is found in the fact that Bonnie Lee is striving valiantly to "break" a wild mustang (Dr. Herget's horse). Every afternoon William Jewell's Western gal goes over to the corral and throws a saddle on that "crazy critter and gallops across the local plains. Bonnie Lee says that the big trouble is that everytime she goes to saddle the horse she gets out at the corral. The result is that she spends more time rounding up the pigs than she does the horse—ride 'em cowgirl!

Salesmanship Course Offered Next Term, New Typing Class

Miss Zenobia McParlin, commercial teacher, is offering a new course this semester called salesmanship. It is scheduled for the fifth hour. Personality, how to write letters of application, as well as make personal applications, how to make window displays, business etiquette, and how to make sales are some of the phases which the subject includes.

Also, for the first time, there will be a beginner's class in typing taught the third hour by Miss Ruby Foster.

Harvesters To Play 3 Games This Week

New Senior High Building Attracts Many Visitors

More Than 60 Men Work On Structure, Progressing Nicely

Residents of "senior high" will have the privilege, if they wish it, of seeing more than 60 men working on the new building under construction. The work is progressing so well that the structure is now about halfway through.

This is especially noticeable on Sunday when the evening spectator traffic is usually heavy. Most of those who go to see the progress being made are adults, for boys and girls are apparently not very excited. By any name it is still just a school building.

But it is coming along nicely after temporary troubles due to bad weather and a steel supply conflict with the national defense program.

New Gadgets Added

It will have many little gadgets and time-savers working here and there in the rooms and corridors which will make the little red schoolhouse as outmoded as Sir Bedivere in a blitzkrieg.

One feature will be the new type, individual lockers. Approximately 1000 will be installed. The lockers, one foot wide and one foot deep, will be three feet high. To save space they will be built in the wall. This will eliminate, in a large measure, the hall traffic jams now noticeable in the present building.

Into the building will go more than 400 tons of reinforcement and steel.

60 Men Employed

O. L. Boyington, contractor, stated that he has 60 men on the present payroll. With this number he expects the building to be ready in the early part of the summer. It was originally announced it would be ready by Feb. 1.

At the close of last week, $155,000 had been spent on materials. The estimated cost of the structure, furniture and all, is $310,000.

J. W. Galloway, 82, Father Of Pampa D. O. Teacher Dies

Mr. W. H. Galloway, teacher of diversified occupations, returned late Friday night from Carter, Okla., where he had been called earlier in the week to the bedside of his father, J. W. Galloway, who died Wednesday morning after a long illness.

Singers From Amarillo Music Department To Visit Pampa Soon

Representatives of the Amarillo High school will appear on an assembly program here in January. According to Miss Helen Martin, our A Cappella choir will return this engagement and present a program in Amarillo in February.

Students who are interested in being in the A Cappella choir should see Miss Martin about filling the vacancies left in the alto and bass sections. This should be done immediately since the choir has started working on music for the Amarillo contest which is to be held in April.

Miss Martin is also anxious to have new members in the glee club. This invitation includes both boys and girls.

Basketball Squads Can Now Take Out Low Rate Insurance

AUSTIN, Jan. 14—High school basketball squads can now take out accident insurance for only 60 cents per man, University of Texas Intercollegiate league officials have announced.

Details of the blanket insurance plan—which may include all members of a squad under 20, or a minimum of 20 players for teams over that number—are similar to those set up for the football insurance offered for the first time this year to league gridsters.

Borger Beats Groom 28-21

BORGER, Jan. 13—Borger's high-flying basketball squads continued to roll up an unprecedented victory over the Groom Tigers at Groom, and the "B" team swamped the Groom "B's" 23-12.

The record sheet now shows local quietness have won 22 games and lost only three in the 25 start this season. Borger has amassed a total of 888 points to 481 for combined opposition.

All three of the local teams—Bulldogs, Redbirds and "B's"—have lost one game apiece. The Redbirds lead with a game average of 42.1. Bulldogs follow with 34.4, and the "B" team 27.1.

Delores Vann of the Redbirds leads Borger game averages with 14.7. Russell of the "B's" team second with 14.3 and Taylor third with 14.1.

The Bulldogs' schedule up to Feb. 14, announced this morning by Coach "Catfish" Smith, follows:

Jan. 14—Panhandle at Borger; 17—Panhandle at Plainview; 18—Lubbock at Lubbock; 20—Panhandle at Panhandle; 24—Lubbock at Borger; 25—Plainview at Borger; 28—Amarillo at Borger; 30—Phillips at Borger.

Feb. 4—Pampa at Borger; 7—Phillips at Phillips; 11—Pampa at Pampa; 14—Amarillo at Amarillo; week of 17th—district tournament at Pampa.

Shamrock Tourney: 10 Players On Squad

Coach Oscar Hinger says he is going to enter his ten Gorillas in the Shamrock tournament this weekend. The Gorillas will not have any more games until after the semester exams are over. The tournament starts on Saturday night after the exams. Mr. Hinger said.

The Gorillas have played only four games this season in which they lost two and won two. They split games with Miami by a 24-10 victory in the first game, and lost the second 19-14. They nosed out the Canadian cagers 28-27, and the Sunnet Raiders nipped the Pampa team 24-10.

Bill Arthur strutted his stuff by leading the Gorillas in two games. In the first game with Miami he scored 14 points, and in the second he scored six. Glenn Day led the scoring in the game with Canadian by 14 points, and Kenneth Lard stepped out to receive the glory in the Sunnet game with four points.

Boys who are still on the team after the big cut are Bill Abernathy, guard; Bill Arthur, forward; Frank Shewey, center; Edward Bayley, Bobby, Edson, and Bill Grossman.

Coach Oscar Hinger has cut his basketball squad down to 10 boys. This is so he can help the boys more individually and prepare them to play on the Harvesters next year or year after next.

Why Don't They

MAKE: All door knobs so they can be pushed either up or down to open and shut the door when your hands are wet?
COMBINE: The mechanism of the typewriter and dictaphone, so that the typewriter automatically types the dictated letter?
BUILD: A hole in one end of all combs so that they can be hung up?
MANUFACTURE: A tandem umbrella, so two people can walk together in comfort in the rain?
TREAT: Dishes in babies' high chairs to avoid breakage and spilling of food?
TREAT: Footballs so they will not become slippery in wet weather?
CULTIVATE: A square pea for ease in eating?
INSIST: That all clerks, as well as floorwalkers, in stores, wear distinguishing badges in their lapels to avoid embarrassment for hatless customers?
PLACE: Decorative, diminutive ice bags that could be tucked around the wrist in hot weather to keep the body temperature down?
PLACE: Electric sockets in the tops of dining tables so that electric candles can be screwed into them?
CARVE: On all buildings, both public and private, the numerals of the year in which they were built. This would aid in appraising the properties or in establishing their historic value.—The American Magazine.

Boxing Outlook Good

The outlook for the boxing team is bright this year and Coach Oscar Hinger says he hopes to bring home several awards. Training will not begin in earnest, however, until after the basketball season is over.

Come of the regulars who are already working out are Richard Stevens, Billy Gise, and Murray McPherson.

The boxing team had several tournament champions last year and the Pampa squad has the reputation of being one of the roughest in the Panhandle.

"Frogs walk, the middle class rides bicycles, and only the rich can afford automobiles." Jack Davis, physical education teacher and coach of the Peewees, said.

Meat markets are in the open. Stores close from noon until 2 o'clock for the mid-day siesta.

Telephone poles were often made of cut railroad rails. Communication seemed to be poor, with only one railroad in the vicinity traveled, according to a story in the Junior High Reaper.

Bill fights occur on holidays and special occasions. Boxing and wrestling are growing in favor as spectator sports.

Monterrey has a tropical climate, but farming implements and methods are almost primitive. In the city, one-way streets and dead-end alleys are common.

Orchids grow wild along the highways.

Cold Weather Forces Girls' Gym Classes To Play Inside

Miss Evelyn Gregory's physical education classes have been playing recreational games this week. Dances, Chinese checkers, ping pong and darts lead the list.

For the next three weeks the classes will play volleyball. Twenty girls will be selected to play on the squad.

Mid-Term Exam Schedule Given, No School Friday

Mid-term examinations will begin at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning when all classes in history report to rooms already assigned.

Following is the complete schedule:

Wednesday, January 15
9:00-10:30 History
10:30-12:00 English
1:00-2:30 Math
2:30-4:00 Science

Thursday, January 16
9:00-10:30 Language, bookkeeping, commercial geography.
10:30-12:00—Home ec, Agriculture, commercial law.
1:00-2:30 Speech, drama, sociology stenography.
2:30-4:00 Journalism, civics, mechanical drawing.

No school Friday, January 17.

"In order to avoid disturbing pupils taking examinations, students must remain in the room the entire scheduled time," Mr. Osborne requested.

"Do not rush through examinations. One and one-half hours is not a great deal of time to spend in taking an examination over one-half year's work, and your grade will be affected by the work done at this time," Mr. Osborne continued.

"After completing your paper, check it thoroughly for misspelled words, or other mistakes in content that you can recognize.

"Do not take your examination seriously enough to be nervous or upset at the time you take the test. It is just another part of your work and is something to be done just as you do any other day's work," Mr. Osborne said.

Sections Run At Same Time

All sections of any subject will be run at the same time. For example, the first period will begin and conclude all classes in history. Teachers from other departments will assist regular teachers in giving the exams.

Pupils are advised to take their textbooks to the examination period unless otherwise directed by a teacher in that particular subject. Most teachers will not let tests be given until texts have been checked in.

'Buy An Annual' Is War Cry Of Harvester Staff

"Buy your annual!" The cry has started again this year! Already 101 annuals have been sold through the sale of activity tickets.

The first deposit can be made January 13. The deadline for making the first payment will be January 31.

The lowest amount one can deposit is $1.50. Payments may be made to any staff member or Miss Margaret Jones.

Miss Jones asks the students to bring more snapshots. She said that she would like to have every student represented and as yet this representation is far from complete.

"Some students have good snapshots but they won't turn them in," Miss Jones stated.

All of the junior, sophomore, and freshmen home room pictures will be made Tuesday, January 21.

Nine people make up the annual staff. They are Helen Dudley, Komo Jo Johnson, and Tolene Davis, seniors; Gretchen Bruton and Francis Shier, juniors; Jane Crouch and Nadine Smoot, sophomores; and Morita Kennedy and Marjorie Gillis, freshmen.

The annual staff editor will be elected before the annual comes out.

Why Don't They

MAKE: All door knobs so they can be pushed either up or down to open and shut the door when your hands are wet?
COMBINE: The mechanism of the typewriter and dictaphone, so that the typewriter automatically types the dictated letter?
BUILD: A hole in one end of all combs so that they can be hung up?
MANUFACTURE: A tandem umbrella, so two people can walk together in comfort in the rain?
TREAT: Dishes in babies' high chairs to avoid breakage and spilling of food?
TREAT: Footballs so they will not become slippery in wet weather?
CULTIVATE: A square pea for ease in eating?
INSIST: That all clerks, as well as floorwalkers, in stores, wear distinguishing badges in their lapels to avoid embarrassment for hatless customers?
PLACE: Decorative, diminutive ice bags that could be tucked around the wrist in hot weather to keep the body temperature down?
PLACE: Electric sockets in the tops of dining tables so that electric candles can be screwed into them?
CARVE: On all buildings, both public and private, the numerals of the year in which they were built. This would aid in appraising the properties or in establishing their historic value.—The American Magazine.

Boxing Outlook Good

The outlook for the boxing team is bright this year and Coach Oscar Hinger says he hopes to bring home several awards. Training will not begin in earnest, however, until after the basketball season is over.

Come of the regulars who are already working out are Richard Stevens, Billy Gise, and Murray McPherson.

The boxing team had several tournament champions last year and the Pampa squad has the reputation of being one of the roughest in the Panhandle.

"Frogs walk, the middle class rides bicycles, and only the rich can afford automobiles." Jack Davis, physical education teacher and coach of the Peewees, said.

Meat markets are in the open. Stores close from noon until 2 o'clock for the mid-day siesta.

Telephone poles were often made of cut railroad rails. Communication seemed to be poor, with only one railroad in the vicinity traveled, according to a story in the Junior High Reaper.

Bill fights occur on holidays and special occasions. Boxing and wrestling are growing in favor as spectator sports.

Monterrey has a tropical climate, but farming implements and methods are almost primitive. In the city, one-way streets and dead-end alleys are common.

Orchids grow wild along the highways.

Jack And Terrell Davis Spend Their Vacation In Monterrey, Mexico

Jack and Terrell Davis, junior high school teachers, have their own private "Sanagrig-La" now. It's Monterrey, Mexico, where they spent their Christmas vacation.

It's pleasantly warm there; on one is in a hurry, clothes are dirty but colorful; and, best of all, one American dollar is worth almost five dollars in Mexican money.

Occupations Course, New Subject, To Be Taught Next Term

A half-unit course in occupations will be offered next semester.

"This course should have an interest and a definite value for every student since all of us must work in some occupation sooner or later," Mr. Galloway said.

The course is intended for second semester sophomores who can arrange their schedule to take it but others may take it by special arrangement. The half unit may be used as an elective for graduation or for college admission.

All students planning to take D. O. next year are advised to take the course in occupations (occupational information) since all of us must work in a general way, the different occupational fields and the number of workers in each, the changing occupations—new and old—some of the important qualifications and types of training considered necessary for each, opportunities, for future promotions, etc.

Information to be gathered in the proposed local occupational survey will also be used.
