Photograph of a TEXAS TAXPAYER... your Telephone

YOUR TELEPHONE carries quite a load as a taxpayer. Last year this company's tax bill in Texas was almost five million dollars—an average of $9.81 per telephone.

As a citizen of Texas, bearing its share of the cost of government, the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company is here to furnish fast, accurate, and dependable telephone service at low cost to you.

Taxes amounted to 20 cents of every dollar this company spent last year to furnish telephone service in Texas. Taxes totaled almost half as much as the wages paid to the 8,700 men and women who build and operate Texas' telephone system.

Long Distance is cheaper than ever... despite increasing costs of furnishing telephone service. Ask "Long Distance" for rates.

The result that U-boat sinkings will tend to decrease.

The government still was concealing its military program.

The Times of London called Goering's speech "chummy and uneasy."

It charged he aimed at gutting the Western powers into a discomfiting peace after the consummation of the crime against Poland.

In comparison with 1914, the Times said, British organization plans have "advanced our readiness for war by between one and two years."

The Telegraph estimated the nation was at a point of efficiency reached half way through the last war, and the Express declared "Goering knows Germany cannot stand a long war."

Drunk Driving Charge Filed

Bond of C. R. George of Pampa, charged with operating a motor vehicle upon a public road while intoxicated, was set at $1,500 in a hearing yesterday before Justice of the Peace Charles I. Hughes. At noon today, George was still being held in county jail, not having posted bond.

George was arrested at 2 o'clock Sunday morning by James F. Stewart, deputy sheriff, and Byron L. St. Clair and C. D. West, Texas Highway patrolmen, on Highway 18.

COMMISSION

Chairman Lon A. Smith of the commission declared the aim of that body was to promulgate a new proration order which would consider property rights, conservation, labor, the physical condition of fields, market demand, and the legal status.

Smith explained his proposals would apply to September and October.

Poster told the commission the group he represented believed the commission and operators should look toward establishing a permanent conservation policy which would be equitable and worthwhile in developing Texas oil fields.

"We should not make hasty decisions but should plan carefully," he declared.

No one at this time could say whether the war in Europe would increase or decrease the demand for oil in view of many variable factors, he said.

"We should keep production low until we have more information," he continued.

Edquarters said probably would define Turkey's attitude toward the European war as one of "watchful waiting."

The Turkish press said the attitude of this country, allied with Britain and France, would depend on whether Italy or Russia join Germany in the war.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11 (AP)—A wide upturn in the nation's steel production rate to 70.2 per cent of capacity, the highest since September, 1937, was announced today as steel stocks soared to new heights for the war boom in Wall Street.

Anticipating the boost in the steel rate, key war industry, traders bid steel shares up for gains ranging to more than $7.

United States steel cross $75 for further gain of around $5.

Many other war stocks were up $1 to more than $3 in one of the heaviest trading sessions of the upswing.

Chicago stock prices were higher today, with the Dow Jones industrial average up 1.12 points to 228.48.

PSYCHOLOGY

demand increase enough to send American farm prices above the 1914 level.

Furthermore, while retail prices are going up, the farmer is still far under parity.

Since July wheat prices have gone up, so that now they are around the 1910-1914 average—still a long way below parity.

Farm Commission May Act

Much the same thing is true of the other staples. And while retail food mark-ups are causing the department a good deal of concern, the department would hate to see any rise in farm prices checked unless and until parity is reached.

On Sept. 19, Secretary Wallace's Agricultural Advisory Council meets here to see what can be done about the retail price situation.

The secretary hopes to avoid any arbitrary price-fixing program.

What he is looking for is some co-operative plan reached by agreement with farmers, processors, and distributors, to keep prices within reasonable limits.

Gray county commissioners, meeting in regular session today, are to hear annual reports on the work of Gray county home demonstration clubs, given by representatives of each of the eight clubs in the county.

Mrs. Julia E. Kiley, county home demonstration agent, said this morning.

Firemen were called to the negro section of the city at 7:30 o'clock this morning where a small house had caught fire.

The blaze, which destroyed some paper in the kitchen, had been extinguished when the truck arrived.

Mainly About People

Mrs. James Saltzman was taken to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hallman Spuday from a local hospital where she underwent an operation for appendicitis.

Brotherhood of Central Baptist church will meet tonight at 8 o'clock with R. E. Gatlin as the main speaker.

James Taylor underwent an operation for appendicitis at the Pampa-Jarratt hospital last week.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Cook, 221 N. Gray street, are vacationing in California. They have visited Hollywood and the San Francisco fair.

J. W. Graham and Doyle Auld, Pampa high school graduates of last spring, left early this morning by automobile for Houston where they will enroll in Rice Institute.

They were accompanied by J. W. parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Graham. They plan to room together at Rice. Both were Harvester athletes.

County Clerk Charlie Thant yesterday issued a marriage license to Harry W. Gibbs and Miss Edna Lee Stephenson, both of Amarillo.

Harold Mason of Shamrock, charged with gaming following his arrest Saturday night by Sheriff Cal Rose at LeFors, was released from county jail on payment of a fine of $1 and costs in the court of Justice of the Peace Charles I. Hughes.

Justice of the Peace E. F. Young returned to his office in the court house Monday after having been absent since Friday on account of illness.

Gray county commissioners, meeting in regular session today, are to hear annual reports on the work of Gray county home demonstration clubs, given by representatives of each of the eight clubs in the county.

Mrs. Julia E. Kiley, county home demonstration agent, said this morning.

Firemen were called to the negro section of the city at 7:30 o'clock this morning where a small house had caught fire.

The blaze, which destroyed some paper in the kitchen, had been extinguished when the truck arrived.

Gray HD Clubs To Show Reading 'Center' At Fair

Spectators at the Amarillo Tri-state exposition in Amarillo, September 18-23, will see a demonstration of the appropriate reading "center" for a living room in the exhibit of the Gray county home demonstration clubs.

A comfortable chair, re-upholstered ottoman, a magazine rack made by club members, a reading lamp, with shade, a table, bookends, books and other publications will be shown in the exhibit.

Gray county's display is in accord of the annual theme of study for Gray county clubs "Living Rooms." As the booth space allotted is only 6x7 feet, it was impractical to show an entire living room, so a portion of a room was selected as the exhibit theme.

There will be 15 similar booths, in which home demonstration club members of other counties will exemplify their programs. No prizes are awarded for these displays, but for each exhibit judged worthy, the entrants receive $15. This sum has been paid to Gray county club women by the exposition for the past three years.

Last year Gray county club women had an exhibit of wild flowers of the Panhandle.

Mrs. Andrew Dunn of the Bluebonnet club, (Schaffer) is chairman of the county exhibit committee. The exhibit is expected to be assembled and to be in place at Amarillo by September 17, where it will remain throughout the exposition dates.

In 1930, a total of 288 man-hours were required to produce 100 bushels of wheat but in 1930, because of mechanization, only 49 man-hours were needed.

What War Means

It is rather appalling to see the thoughtlessness with which many people say, "Oh, yes, I suppose we'll be in it sooner or later."

Scarcely one of these persons has given so much as a thought to what war would really mean to every man, woman, and child in America, even to those not called to military service.

Already the British know, though few British soldiers have seen action, and London remains un-bombed as yet. Passage of the universal national service registration has brought it home to them. If any did not know what war was going to mean, they know now.

Every man, woman, and child in Britain is to be registered and given a card. That card will be an important and necessary document. For military service, for food allotments, for claims to benefits under any of the war enactments, insurance and the like, the card will be necessary. For reuniting families torn apart by war's terrors, it may be useful. It is the final degradation of human beings into serial numbers. It is to the civilian what the "dog tag" was to the World War soldier.

The Ministry of Labor has been given full power to control employment. Employers cannot hire or rehire employees without the ministry's consent. Not a single British labor leader would have voted for any such measure in peace times. It gives the government a control over the life of the ordinary man which must be the envy of Hitler and Stalin.

David Kirkwood, Laborite leader, protested that "the worker has suspicion that under the cloak of patriotism employers can take advantage of a lower standard for labor... the worker holds so much more than death the right to say whether he should work for this or another individual."

So he does, but no matter now. This is war. If men are to be ordered into machine gun fire, who shall say they shall not be ordered into the machine shop or the harvest field? If men are to give their lives, who shall say they shall not give their money?

In Germany, income taxes have already been upped 50 per cent, and it is death to listen to a radio program from abroad. In all the war-afflicted countries the cost of living is already restively beginning to scramble upward. But there are no wage increases in sight to compensate. Price-fixing is endeavoring, vainly as always, to close the gap.

What does it all mean? It means simply that millions of people in Europe have allowed themselves to be maneuvered into a position in which they have no alternative but to become for an indefinite period just numbers on a card.

Human beings ought not to be mere chessmen, pushed helplessly about the checkerboard of the world. Let no man say resignedly, "I suppose we shall," but rather say, fiercely, "Who says me must?" and "Why?"

The Nation's Press

IF WAR COMES

One inescapable consequence of the German "neutralization" of Russia, which the very sweeping terms of the non-aggression pact achieve, bears heavily on the minds of Americans as they follow the dark developments in Europe.

The terms of the German-Russian agreement go much farther than was expected. For the two Governments not only obligate themselves to refrain from any aggressive action against one another, but agree not to support any third power that attacks either and to remain in constant consultation. But by far the most important article of the treaty pledges Germany and Russia not to associate with "any other grouping of Powers which directly or indirectly is aimed at the other party." Does this mean that Russia cannot join the anti-aggression bloc and that Germany must withdraw from the anti-Comintern pact?

Whatever that agreement means, it is not peace; it serves only to aggravate the crisis. War is not inevitable until the armies get the signal to march, and even at this last moment it still seems unbelievable that any human being should be so lost to all sense of human responsibility as to give that fatal command. Even Hitler would hardly have torn down at a stroke the whole anti-Comintern front in favor of what his own followers now call the "Red Front" had he not conceived the deal with Moscow as the means of forcing the Poles to surrender without war. As early as May 6, the day after Colonel Beck, fortified by the British guarantee, flatly rejected the German demand for Danzig and a road through the Corridor, Mr. Tallichius in a dispatch from Berlin reported that the Nazis were making approaches to Moscow. On May 9 he forecast in detail what has now taken place.

Evidently Hitler planned this stroke to frighten Poland into submission. He did not expect war. The reasons why the Russians connived with him in a move against the Poles which, if successful, weakens one strong obstacle to a German thrust against Russia, remain obscure. Perhaps they did not expect war, either. Perhaps they are actuated by hidden motives that will appear before the end of this strange episode in a drama like the crash of planetary systems. Certainly the "masterstroke" has served to bring the showdown nearer. If Germany has offered to Poland the alternative reported—a virtual German protectorate or partition—it is an invitation to war. The Poles have no choice but to go down fighting, if need be, and their allies have no choice but to prepare to defend the Poles by the grave military measures they are now taking.

STATE CORN YIELD

Purdue statisticians say ample rains, warm nights, normal days and the increased use of hybrid seed are the chief factors in producing 196,840,000 bushels of corn in Indiana this year. The indicated average of 47.5 bushels to the acre is the highest since records were started in 1866. It is more than twenty bushels above the national average. The retirement of considerable submarginal lands from production accounts for some of the high yield. What to do with this crop puzzles the experts. Much of it will be fed to hogs. The distilleries will take some, as will the starch and cereal plants. The need for additional research to widen the market for corn by-products is plainly apparent. Contrary policies do not tend to simplify the plight of Indiana farmers who are anxious to use their corn advantageously. Experimental stations tell how to increase production, while federal agencies are somewhat appalled at the thought of larger yields.—Indianapolis News.

Sharing The Comforts Of Life

By R. C. Hoiles

HAVE YOU A PLAN?

Every person who is not smug and complacent and self-satisfied with our social relations or laws and the lot of mankind should have some plan to better the lot of mankind he is studying and believes in. Of course, the believer in this plan should defend it, or if he cannot defend it, he should alter it so that he can defend it. But if he is at all honest and not simply smug he will have a plan and not be content with finding fault with others who have a plan.

It is not enough, under our form of government, for a man to say he is sorry and pities the unfortunates and, yet, contends that he has no plan to improve the condition. It is these smug people who are constantly parading their self-satisfied virtues of telling how sorry they are for people who cannot find a job at decent wages and yet are not even willing to study the great thinkers of the ages, as to the best way of promoting peace and prosperity, that probably have done as much to bring about this poverty as any other cause. These people should have a public crying wall as they have in Jerusalem so that they can pray and present their great sympathy and love for their fellowman and put their great sympathy on parade.

When a man is constantly publicly asserting how sorry he is for the oppressed and will not even read the great thinkers of the ages on the social problems but has plenty of time to read escape novels, he might be called smug and satisfied with his own virtues. Invariably these people satisfy themselves by condemning others and by so doing make themselves feel more virtuous than they are. This is a kind of smugness that is most damaging and harmful to the sufferers who are largely the victims of these theorists who parade their great kindness in words only.

If one has no plan to improve the lot of mankind, it seems hypocritical to be finding fault and condemning others who are trying to bring about practical conditions that will improve the lot of mankind. It is extremely easy to find fault. It is extremely easy to pose as being greatly interested in the poor but it is quite another matter to devote your energy and time to trying to work out a plan that will improve these conditions and get people to understand it.

The man who has no plan to improve the poverty of the poor and yet criticizes others who have and contends he is so sorry and sympathetic for the poor, is only kidding himself. He is not kidding many people. They sooner or later see through this kind of smugness.

ANENT BEING BORN AGAIN

A contributor advises another who is studying the philosophy of Christianity that it is necessary to be born again in order to enter into the Kingdom of God. But this contributor fails to explain what is meant by being born again.

He enshrines a great deal of mysticism about this being born again so that there is not much light thrown on the subject.

One would get the impression from what the contributor advocates that rebirth need not include obeying God's commandments or nature's laws. This counselor seems to think, judging from what he advocates, a man to be reborn needs never have respect for other people's equal rights, let alone love them.

He seems to have no idea that rebirth certainly should include obeying the commandment, "Thou shalt not covet." He is constantly advocating taking by artificial force the fruits of the labor of others without their consent.

It seems hard to understand a rebirth that does not have respect for the equal rights of others and wants to reserve to the majority the right to prevent others from even having the right to what they have good reason to believe is the fruits of their labors. He does not seem to realize that Jesus was constantly advocating meekness, and love for others. He does not explain how force can be "reborn" into love.

This kind of a rebirth that does not include obeying God's or Nature's laws does not seem to throw much light on our duty to our fellowman. It seems impossible for rational beings to understand the Philosophy of Christianity from this kind of a rebirth.

WILL CHRISTMAS DAY BE CHANGED?

One of the cleverest pieces of satire that has come to my attention was the wire sent by J. Hay Brown, jr., Lancaster attorney, to President Roosevelt asking him "why don't you change Christmas to your birthday?"

It would be the natural thing for a man to do who believes as much in his own wisdom and ability to run the lives of people as Roosevelt does.

Behind The News Of The Day

BY PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—Commerce department officials cannot see where Germany can draw heavily on abundant Russia for war materials.

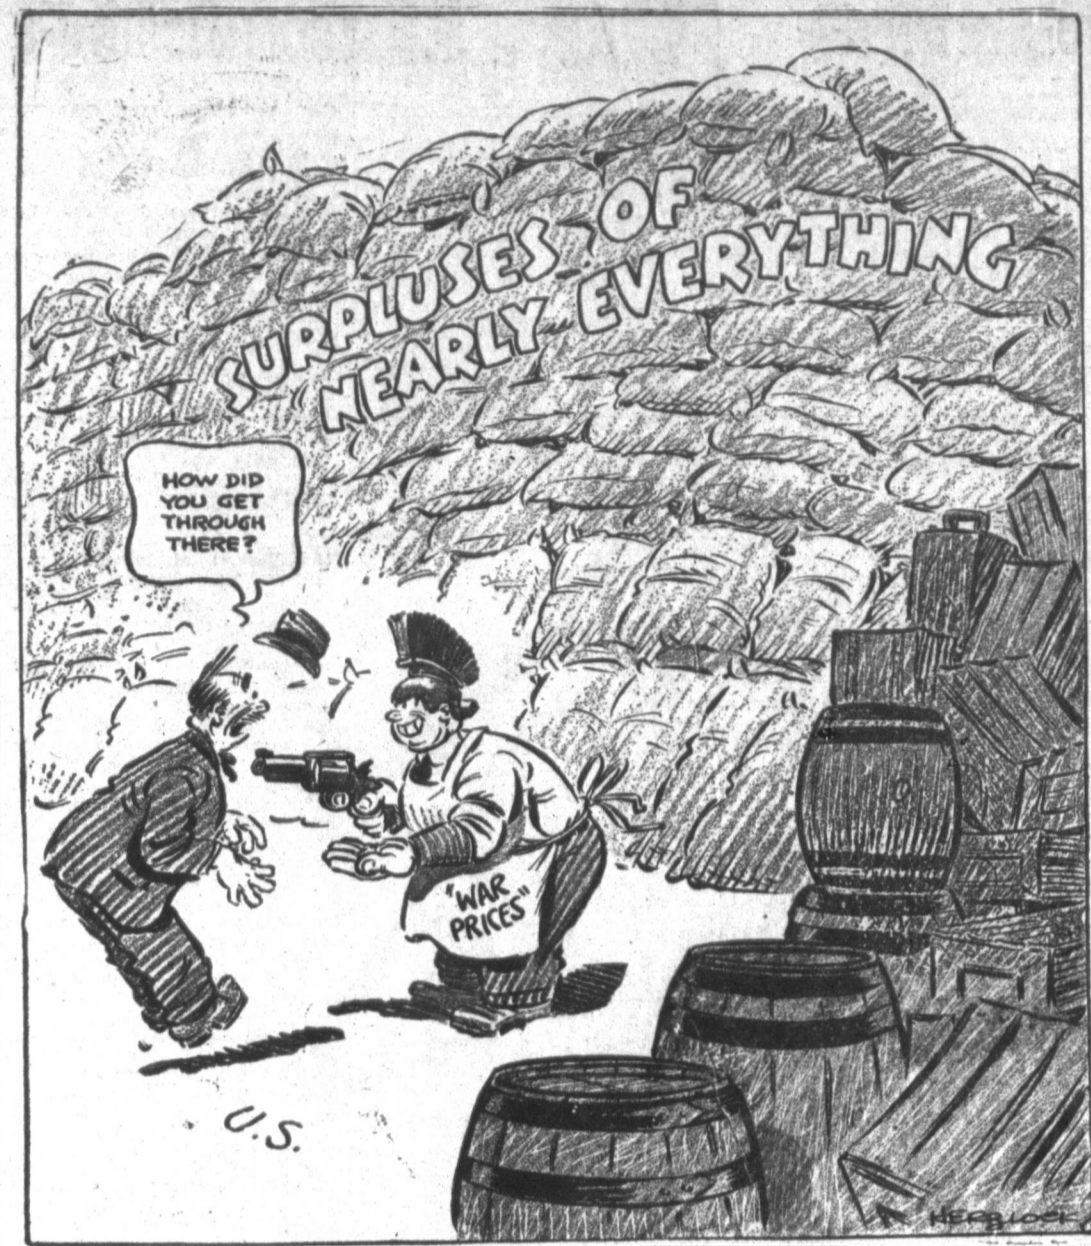

Reasons given are: 1. Germany hasn't the money to pay for them. 2. Russia does not have much surplus to export. 3. Germany, even in peace times, could not make machinery deliveries, Russia's main need, on time.

Shrouded in mystery is the question whether Russia, for political reasons, will do without important goods herself in order to create a surplus to ship to Germany on credit. Her non-aggression alliance does not call for that sort of treatment. Further, it is doubtful, as viewed here, whether it would be a smart thing for Russia to deprive her own economy of necessities in order to help Germany.

A Trifle

Even in peace times the above factors steadily choked off trade between Germany and Russia. Germany lately made an effort to revive it by offering Russia a 200,000,000 mark credit. Russia agreed to take

IT LOOKS LIKE AN INSIDE JOB

By PAUL HARRISON

NEA Service Staff Correspondent HOLLYWOOD—"The war has provided the best possible break for Metro's 'Thunder Afloat,' a submarine-chasing story, and for Charles Chaplin's 'The Dictator'—if he can manage to shoot it here before the shooting stops over there. In what he has considered his final script, Chaplin—as a Jewish tailor who doubles for Hitler—was to have averted a war by double-crossing Der Adolf in an international pow-wow. Now he'll probably turn the picture into a tragedy and cheat the tailor of his triumph. And if Italy remains on its good behavior, the representation of Mussolini also will be toned down. Loudest snicker echoing from the Russo-German pact was England's approval given a Soviet-made picture called 'Professor Mamlock.' The film originally had been withheld from exhibition because it was so bitterly anti-Nazi.

A changed Marlene Dietrich is at work at Universal. Hasn't complained about her costumes, she drew or the script. Mae West, though, isn't so amenable. She scanned the script of her forthcoming flicker and said she'd have to rewrite it. Her co-star, W. C. Fields, hasn't seen it yet, but he always changes his lines. The studio, meanwhile, says it likes the script the way it is, and that nobody's going to alter it so much as a comma. I'm offering 10-1 on Fields; since he can't remember his lines, or even read them from a blackboard in the John Barrymore tradition, it's a cinch that he'll say 'em his own way.

NO OOMPH FILM FOR ANN SHERIDAN

The Brothers Warner have decided not to try to star Ann Sheridan in anything called "Oomph Girl." She would have turned waitress or manicurist before accepting such a role... The Ritz Brothers have taken a contract release—instead of a picture for $60,000—and are heading back to vaudeville... Paulette Goddard (Mrs. Charlie Chaplin) is supposed to be the object of a kidnap plot; she has been going about with bodyguards.

Few of the British and French actors mentioned in press agent dispatches are likely ever to bear arms in Europe. But British Equity Association has checked them for calls to entertain the training camps. Lon Chaney, jr., well above six feet in his socks, is wearing built-up shoes to increase his height as Lenzie in "Of Mice and Men"... And Bobby Breen, who will be made into a manly youngster if it kills him, has a fight with a 200-pound heavy in his next picture.

Two agents were discussing the new executive in a casting department. "That guy's so dumb," said one, "that I'll bet you can sell him two leading men for the same part." "That's a bet," snapped the other agent. "I've already done it."

But by 1938, trade had fallen to $16,249,000 of German purchases in Russia and $9,512,000 Russia purchases in Germany.

Hard Up For Iron Germany now will be even more hard pressed to make machinery deliveries. Experts here believe she won't even attempt it, as her iron shortage will be terrific. Almost half of her normal iron ore supplies have been cut off.

She still has access to Sweden, her principal supplier. In 1937 she bought $22,000,000 worth of iron ore from Sweden out of her $22,000,000 worth of foreign iron ore purchases. In that year France sold her 36,000,000 marks worth of ore. Spain and Spanish Morocco ordinarily supply an additional 30,000,000 marks. That can't get through any more because of the British blockade.

There is a strong suspicion that a long war will have Germany scraping the bottom of the ore bins.

Both made straight A's in high school, and by rooming together they'll have the benefit of each other's intelligence... Mrs. Emma Butsche (pronounced "Beechy") says that most of the people who come into her bakery on West Foster look at the panoramic picture made of Pampa in 1918 from the coal chute, torn down a year or so ago. Snow was on the ground when the picture was made. The only thing that looks natural is the high school and the red brick, and that gives you an idea of how the high school building has not kept pace with the town... What more effective and practical

The Family Doctor

Dr. Morris Fishbein

Football players expect to have bruises, but they may also have strains of the ligaments, fractures of the bones, and dislocation of the joints.

If a player is injured on the football field, he should have immediate attention by someone competent to judge the extent and character of the injury. A man whose legs are injured should never be permitted to walk off the field. A stretcher should always be available to carry the injured player to medical attention. Use of a stretcher may excite the audience, but it may make the difference between success in treatment of the injury and a long delay in healing.

Football players generally eat at a special table and are provided with training diets. Steak and potatoes are not the best diet for a player because he needs vitamins and mineral salts just as much as anyone else. If the player eats a variety of foods and gets plenty of calories to replace those used up during exercise, his diet will be satisfactory.

Football makes tremendous demands on the muscles of the body. For this reason the weight of the football player should be watched carefully. If he loses weight his diet should be supplemented with extra milk, malted milk and other foods that are rich in calories.

Players lose a great deal of water from the body both at practice and during the game. Salt is lost from the body by perspiration. Football players should be instructed to take extra milk, malted milk and other fluids to replace the salt lost. This will prevent cramping of the legs and other muscles caused by a lack of salt in the body. Football players may suffer from the same kind of heat exhaustion and heat cramps that affect workers in industry.

Most coaches forbid drinking and smoking during the training period. Chief reason for the forbidding of alcohol is that it interferes with the timing that is necessary for good coordination.

Tex's Topics

By Tex DeWeese

HAVE YOU ever stopped to wonder what kind of international machine is clicking behind the scenes to bring you the war news that you read in your Pampa News? ... The European War maestro is carrying newspapers, correspondents and U. S. foreign desks into their swiftest pace of coverage.

The Associated Press, whose full leased wire service The Pampa News every minute of the day, now has concentrated on the story of the war a news and picture staff four times the size of that which covered the World War at its height... NEA, Inc., which also furnishes a service of news-pictures to The Pampa News, likewise has a huge staff on the war fronts facing danger that you may see the pictures of what actually happens.

AT THE moment the Associated Press has a staff of more than 150 American-trained foreign correspondents in Europe, directed from London by Milo Thompson, AP executive for Europe... Assisting these writers are about 2,500 "stringers" which AP has scattered over the continent... The entire staff has been geared to war tempo by the unprecedented news pace of the past two weeks... The "stringers" include native reporters of important newspapers and supplementary staffs varying from a score to 100 in the provinces of each country.

The Associated Press, which has abandoned use of cables to expedite copy from abroad, has a direct cable from London to its central headquarters in New York City... Dispatches from the continent are cleared to the U. S. in many cases on this cable, although Western Union and McKay cables also are used... News is routed by devious routes to avoid delay. Paris sometimes being forced to communicate with London via New York, for instance.

IT'S RISKY business—this business of getting war news hot from the scene of action... In London the AP bureau is barricaded with sandbags and air raid shelters are nearby for an emergency... Gas masks have been issued to the newsmen by most of the governments... Wives and families of most of the staffmen have left either for the U. S. or for safe refuge in the country.

Newsmen in Europe no longer have days off, and their meals are sent to the offices where they stay... In Paris taxis and buses are non-existent and most of the staff there are billeted in a small hotel within walking distance of the office... The news bureau office windows are covered with black paper and blue lights are used as air raid precautions... The Berlin AP bureau has an air raid shelter in its building and gas masks are ready.

DUE TO confusion attendant upon imposition of censorship and restrictions in most countries, life for the news photographers has become a series of arrests and confiscation of photograph plates... Wire transmission of photographs—never so speedy in Europe as over the wire-photo network—is still slower now and unlikely to continue much longer, the AP has been informed.

Romance, thrills, danger suffering and even death are all to be found in the lives of the newspapermen who now are in Europe to cover the big story for American newspaper readers, who little realize what this small army of men goes through in order to get the news back to us that we may read it in the comfort of American homes where the horrors of war have not YET penetrated.

Pettengill EIGHT YEARS Democratic Congressman FROM INDIANA

NEUTRALITY GOES TO THE COUNTRY

As a result of the White House Conference with leading Senators of both parties neutrality legislation has been abandoned for the present session. It now goes to the country. Mr. Roosevelt and the opposing Senators, like Borah, Nye, Clark of Missouri, may take the stump. The subject is certain to be widely discussed.

What is the issue which the public must now decide? The House of Representatives has passed one bill. The President wants another bill, the Bloom bill. Wherein do they differ?

The main point at issue is the sale of arms, ammunition and munitions to nations at war. The Administration wants to remove the existing statutory embargo against such sale. What it really wants is to make America a French and British arsenal.

As the bill finally passed the House the prohibition against the sale of "munitions" was removed. Munitions include such things as automobile trucks, iron ore, probably unarmed airplanes, as well as cotton, wheat, gasoline, etc. Under the bill these may be sold to warring nations. But guns, shells, poison gas, bombs, battleships, cruisers, torpedoes, mines, armed tanks, armed planes, etc., may not. In short, the Administration lost in its effort to permit the sale of the actual instruments of death.

The House action is a victory for the point of view of the National Committee to Keep America out of Foreign Wars, of which Congressman Hamilton Fish is chairman. As a member of that Committee, Fish summarizes the argument. At Chautauque, N. Y., in August 1936, Mr. Roosevelt welcomed existing legislation as a "safeguard of American neutrality." In that speech he correctly pointed to the pressure to get rich quick on war profits and warned against "the small decisions of each day" which lead to war.

But now he wants to be free to make the nation an arsenal for foreign supply of lethal weapons. How would the "small decisions of each day" work out? We do not need to speculate. We have the World War as witness.

England and France are at war, let us say. Huge orders come for bombs, shells, guns, gas. Our munitions shops go into 24-hour production. Transportation facilities are geared to move the arms to seaboard. At first cash would be paid for the guns. Soon the cash would run out. What then? Permitted to do business here, and Germany and Italy unable to do so, through enemy control of the seas, propaganda would get to work. Millions would be spent to cover press reports, editorials and the radio; the latter especially. It would be directed to escape the obligation to pay cash. We would again be asked to loan England, and France our own money to buy our own goods. The Johnson law gains loans to nations in default would be bombarded by foreign propaganda agents as well as American munitions makers at home, investors, and workers alike.

When the cash is gone we would be told, and correctly, that to refuse credit would be to let our war boom collapse into another major depression. Witness what President Wilson in 1916 called "the horrors of war" which have not YET penetrated.

THAT'S-WHAT-YOU-THINK department: When we occupy Warsaw, Germany's victory will be complete—Adolf Hitler.

So under the fever of war orders, vast propaganda, and a skyrocketing stock market in "war babies" we would again sell on credit—which is the same thing as saying we would give them our goods for nothing. For who is now so foolish as to think nations which repudiated after the last World War would not repudiate after the next World War? Of course they would do so. In fact they would have to. Again we would be left holding the bag, and a new national debt saddled onto our children, which when it gets big enough, will be repudiated at home.

But this is not all. Having gone into the arsenal business, and having made the war our war, we would be asked if we were pickers. If we fought only with metal and not with men. We would again be called Shylocks and vampires living safely behind the Atlantic barrier while sucking the blood of European civilization.

Conscription of our youth would be the next "small decision of each day." The next would be their bodies rotting on foreign soil. Such is the argument of the majority of the House, and Senators Borah, Nye, Hiram Johnson, Bennett Clark, George Gillette, etc., in the Senate. The Bloom bill is the road to war.

On the other hand Mr. Roosevelt contends that he makes war in Europe less likely by making our participation in it more certain. But that is the argument of the millions of American mothers wish to take with the bodies of their sons.

Neutrality Of Italy Due To Be Permanent

The following analysis of the positions of Italy and Japan toward the European war was written by Joseph E. Sharkey, who in thirty years of Associated Press service established unexcelled contracts with statesmen of many nations. Sharkey, in retirement since 1937, has returned to active newspaper work because of the war.

By JOSEPH E. SHARKEY GENEVA, Sept. 11 (AP)—Despite Italy's policy of virtual neutrality in the new European war, authoritative international sources here say that the Rome-Berlin axis is still functioning.

Reichsuehrer Hitler and Premier Mussolini, these sources insist, will regularly exchange views on the world situation under terms of their consultative pact.

These circles, which include delegations from numerous neutral countries, as well as belligerents, hear that Germany for the moment chooses to consider herself at war only with Poland.

When German armies attain their objectives in Poland, when and if the Warsaw area falls, Hitler is expected to propose a peace arrangement.

If this is rejected and Germany then believes herself irrevocably at war with Britain and France, it is believed here that Hitler again will consult Mussolini to determine if he needs Italian military aid.

But generally well informed sources expect France and Great Britain will seek and obtain at least the permanent neutrality of Italy.

From a larger world standpoint, Geneva sources see that the future Italian attitude toward the allied cause may be considerably influenced by the Japanese decision to follow a policy of "noninvolvement" in the European war.

This correspondent was informed the new Japanese government plans to seek peace in China through a Chinese so-called "legitimist" government in Shanghai.

Japanese, chagrined and fearful following announcement of the Russo-German pact, were declared determined to bring a quick end to the Chinese war by trying to get China to accept a plan they stated would give a face-saving appearance of neither a victorious nor a vanquished nation.

By this policy Japanese hope to satisfy China's pride and remove the cause of a later conflict such as many Japanese believe was created in Europe by the Versailles treaty.

It is believed that both Japan and Italy are fearful of economic ruin which may flow out of any general war.

FOR MURDER FOR KIDNAPPING FOR THEFT AND FOR ARSON

Screams Of Dying In Warsaw Add To Horror Of Exploding Shells, Bursting Bombs, Roaring Planes

BUDAPEST, Sept. 11 (AP)—German planes, tanks and big guns were reported massing for a concerted drive on Lwow (Lemberg) today in an effort to cut Poland's line of communications with Rumania, its sole avenue for supplies, by capturing the capital of the Polish Ukraine.

The rapid turn of events left the location of the Polish government in doubt. One report here said headquarters had been moved to Kremeniec, 200 miles south-east of Warsaw and almost on the border of Soviet Russia. Other reports said the government had gone from Lublin to Lwow, and was moving eastward from there.

As Warsaw dug in for its fourth day of siege by a German force that launched more than 40 air raids and countless tank attacks yesterday, the radio station at Lwow, 210 miles to the southeast, instructed the city's defenders to dig trenches and erect barricades.

There were indications the German drive already had started. Throughout the broadcast from Lwow, sirens could be heard sounding air raid alarms.

Lwow Expected Bombing It appeared Lwow, one of the chief industrial centers in southeastern Poland, was to be subjected to the same sort of battering that has taken place at the gates of Warsaw since the German forces reached there last Friday.

The Polish general staff's communique No. 10, broadcast from Warsaw last night, reported German air bombing continued relentlessly all around the capital, especially along the line of the Big river north of the city. Fighting continued without change, the communique said, in the vicinity of Ostrow Mazowiecki, 50 miles northeast of Warsaw.

The communique also reported severe fighting along the San river, which flows from the Carpathian foothills in southern Poland, chiefly at Sanok, south of Przemysl, 50 miles west of Lwow.

Civilians Helping In a broadcast from Lwow, the Polish army's general headquarters insisted "Warsaw is ready for a long defense" and stressed that action on the French-German front "has now really started." But the Warsaw station also issued a warning of the impending attack on Lwow.

To the accompaniment of air raid sirens and motors of diving planes, the Warsaw announcer said civilians in both cities were helping in defense.

Early this morning, Polish Staff Captain Wladyslaw Lipinski, in a broadcast from the capital, said Polish anti-aircraft batteries had brought down during the day 15 German bombers over the city and its suburbs.

"After sunset," he said, "German tanks in droves attacked Warsaw from the suburbs, but were driven back. Two of them were destroyed, and their crews taken prisoner." Lipinski said the German air raids and tank movements had been supported by a heavy artillery barrage that lasted from dawn to dusk.

Like the German guns, the German bombers had been active since the first light of dawn. They launched their first raid at 5 a. m. and their biggest of the day some four hours later, then 70 planes were reported over the city.

Lipinski said only "There is considerable noise." But the announcer who preceded him described the city, its population swelled to 2,000,000 by the arrival of refugees from other sectors, as an inferno, with screams of wounded and dying adding to the horror of roaring planes, bursting bombs and exploding shells.

Hunger was beginning to hit the population, said a speaker identified as Mayor Starzinski of Warsaw.

British 'Crude Lies' Says German Denial BEHLIN, Sept. 11 (AP)—The army high command tonight issued a denial of a British charge that Germany had ordered "unlimited submarine warfare of commercial ships."

The statement said: "The official British report is nothing but another brilliant instance of crude lying and agitation practiced by the British information ministry against Germany."

Sheet looks white because it contains air spaces.

SERIAL STORY

WORKING WIVES

BY LOUISE HOLMES

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday, Marian recalls her happiness in meeting Dan, their brief courtship, sudden marriage, the new home, the new life, and Amy Ellen. Her own marriage might have been different if she had not gone to the Sando house.

CHAPTER VI

AMY ELLEN had been one of the stenographers in Grant Fellows' office. A little more than a year earlier she had given up her job to marry Bill Sands. They lived in a cheap little apartment on the West Side.

Going to see them on that Sunday afternoon had put fear into Marian's heart, the fear that was to drive her out. The dark little flat became the symbol of what it meant to face a precarious future, even with the man you loved.

The place was cluttered with baby things, Bill's eyes were worried even when he laughed. Amy Ellen was thin and haggard, her prettiness gone. In the bedroom, pitiful in his cheap attempts at beauty, she cried and told Marian that Bill had lost his job, that she was frightened for the tiny baby who needed so many things, expensive things like orange juice and cod liver oil and special milk.

On the homeward drive, Marian had been thoughtful. At last she had said, "Dan, I think I'd better keep my job for a while—until we get a little saved." "Not on your life," Dan had burst out. "I'll do the doing at our house. When I look at you I want to know that I bought your pretty dress and your cute shoes, that I buy your food and pay for the roof that covers the two of us."

"I know how you feel, but—look at Bill and Amy Ellen. They can't be happy, they're wasting the years when they should be happy, being frightened. It got me, Dan. Amy Ellen was so pretty, they were in love like we are."

Dan gravely stopped the car and took her in his arms. "They are still in love, Glad. Bill loves Amy Ellen a thousand times more than he did when everything was rosy. He's got something to fight for, Amy Ellen and the baby, he's the head of a family. He'll come through, take my word for it. If she hangs on and believes in him, he'll come out sailing."

BUT Marian hadn't been able to see it, she could see only the poverty and fear. She had said, "Please, Dan, be reasonable. If we both work—if we both earn—"

He broke in. "It sounds all right, but it isn't. There's a fundamental law about marriage. The man provides the home and the woman keeps it for him. Trying to make things easier and pleasanter for his wife, trying to give her lovely things, is the incentive a man must have to succeed. When he's at work he wants to know that his wife is at home, expecting him to make good. Can't you see it, Glad?"

"Yes, but—" He put his hand over hers. "And babies, Glad—babies don't come to a couple who are both working. There isn't time—the right time."

She pulled her hand away. "A baby wouldn't have a chance—not on $35 a week. Babies need things—like little beds and carriages and—"

"A baby needs her mother, Glad. It's up to her father to provide the bed and things." Marian said, half laughing, "We're certainly looking ahead, Dan."

"But you want a baby—a little girl?" "Why a girl? I thought men always wanted sons." "I don't know—girls are so cunning—I think I should love my little girl best."

The conversation terrified Marian. You fell in love with a man, you promised to marry him. Then, all of a sudden, you were considering other lives. She could not get past the drab picture of Bill and Amy Ellen. She went back to the first point of the argument. "We're young, Dan. We can wait a year or so. I'll keep my job."

"No." "Just a year!" "No." "You're stubborn and horrid." "Why about yourself?" "You're not the only one getting married. I have a right to say something about it."

"It has to be settled one time or another. In a year you'll be a little more accustomed to having money, you'll find an excuse to work another year. I've seen too many marriages wrecked that way." "If you really loved me you'd let me do as I want to do." "And if you loved me, you wouldn't measure our life with a dollar sign." Their two voices had become high-pitched and hard. Marian said, "We're quarreling, Dan."

At last, one night in early October, they had reached the end. "There's no justice," Marian had cried angrily after a futile argument. "You are ambitious and so am I. You plan to go on, giving up nothing, getting everything. I'm supposed to do all the sacrificing." She had stopped, miserably unhappy.

"If that's the way you feel about it—" Marian would never forget how she had flung back her head, "I intend to work for a year at least. If you care to marry me under those conditions—" It had been her last card, she had held it back, certain that it was the high trump.

Dan had looked at her, his eyes like cold steel. He had done with coaxing and persuasion. "You've made the rules," he had said.

FOLLOWED a few hours of scornful pride, then days of waiting, finally numb anguish. Marian could never remember those days when Dan neither called nor waited for her at the building entrance, without a spasm of pain. The agony had been so real as to carry across the years.

Ten days passed. Marian's flag of independence fell on a Saturday morning and she called Dan. He waited for her at noon. Without a word, she slipped her hand into his and they walked along LaSalle street, unmindful of the hurrying crowds, unaware that another living soul existed. They walked straight to the courthouse.

On the way, Marian said, "You win, Dan. I can't stand it." He said, "Thank you, dear. Trust me for a little while. I'll make it up to you."

Marian found glory in defeat, pride in Dan's strength of will. After the short ceremony which made her Dan's wife, she had called Grant Fellows. She would not be back to the office any more, she had been married.

They had spent a beautiful week-end at Michigan City, returning to a tiny furnished apartment. There had been an interval of such complete happiness that Marian, sitting in the cheap little car beside a strangely remote Dan, could not remember the time without a quivering ache in her heart.

"Want anything for dinner?" Dan asked as they approached a market. Marian came back to the present with a thud. When before had she allowed herself the uncertain luxury of day dreaming? Memories shattered the defensive wall she had built around herself. She would never look back again—never.

Busy Program Planned For Buffalo Band

Special To The NEWS CANYON, Sept. 11—Big things are ahead for the Buffalo band of West Texas State college next term. Banquets, more trips, more awards, more instruments, more public appearances at fairs and other public gatherings, more solo and novelty arrangements, better seating at football games, and a final dinner-dance at Buffalo Lake next spring—these are some of the plans announced for the band by Dr. J. A. Hill, president of the institution.

Selection of drum majors and the band-sweetheart will be made soon after the fall term opens September 18. Director C. E. Strain will be in charge of the awards and contests, and will be assisted by faculty committee. Members of the band, to be eligible for the benefits of the expanded program, will have to be thoroughly cooperative, must attend 90 per cent of all meetings and appearances, must maintain a "C" average in college work, and must live up to other standards of the band.

Many members of the group attended the highly successful summer band school conducted at The Village last month. Graduate members of the band are always in keen demand for positions in school systems on the plains, and for personnel work in private business and industry.

What's Contraband?

Ah, Britain Knows

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11 (AP)—The question of contraband, what it is and what it isn't, which raised so many controversies for the American government during the World War, seems likely to cause little trouble in the present European conflict.

Contraband means a product useful in war which a belligerent—say Britain—could take from a ship—say, American—if destined to another belligerent—say, Germany. The British government already has presented this government with a list of what—for the moment—it will regard as contraband. It embraces everything likely to prove useful to the German army, navy and airforce. It has been received here without a murmur. Why? Because it is, almost word for word, the very list the United States issued when it became a belligerent in 1917.

Phillips Pens Dam Protest To President

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 11 (AP)—Gov. Leon C. Phillips urged President Roosevelt in a letter, the text of which was released today, to stop construction of the $50,000,000 Denison dam across the Red river.

If the protest is disregarded, Attorney General Mac Q. Williamson will ask the United States Supreme Court to enjoin further work on the project.

"It is grossly unfair," Phillips wrote, "to expect the state of Oklahoma to sit idly by and permit construction of the project and sustain the injury which will result therefrom, and then at some later time become a bargainer at the expense of the national government in the hope that . . . at the pleasure of Congress some compensation might be forthcoming to the state."

"I most respectfully urge you . . . to exert the influence of your office to stop construction of the Denison reservoir until such time as . . . to reimburse the state for losses which she will sustain."

Observers foresaw little chance Phillips' final protest would win. War Secretary Harry Woodring announced yesterday in Washington he felt it his duty to go ahead with construction of the dam. Woodring's statement was in reply to a previous protest from Phillips.

Phillips wrote the President Woodring "gave me no satisfactory assurances that Oklahoma and her subdivisions of government are to be reimbursed for losses of tax revenue."

"In short," Phillips said, "the letter was vague and uncertain. I am reliably informed that construction on the Denison reservoir is going forward; that land in Oklahoma is being condemned and taken; that rights of way are being cleared in Oklahoma for the reservoir, and that construction . . . if proceeding as if the State of Oklahoma had not objected at all, and had no right to object."

The governor outlined these objections to the project:

Most of the reservoir will rest on Oklahoma soil and will flood about 100,000 acres of rich farm land.

The waters of the Red and Washita rivers are to be diverted into Texas for "uses unconnected with any benefits" to this state.

School districts and other subdivisions of government "will be practically annihilated."

Many bridges, highways and other improvements will be destroyed.

State-owned lands will be flooded, and the state will lose revenue from the loss of oil development.

About 50 miles of the Oklahoma boundary line will be obliterated.

Annual Carson Flower Show To Open Tomorrow

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS

PANHANDLE, Sept. 11.—Carson County Home Demonstration club women, 4-H club girls and vocational agriculture boys will hold their annual flower show and demonstration day tomorrow and Wednesday in the old Herald building.

Neutrality Act Bars Munitions From Canada

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11 (AP)—This country's arms and airplane factories were closed as a source of supply for Canada today by a presidential proclamation invoking the arms embargo provision of the neutrality act, which President Roosevelt hopes Congress will soon repeal.

Within little more than an hour after the British Dominion had declared war on Germany yesterday, the State Department made public the proclamation banning shipments of arms, ammunition and implements of war to her.

A few hours later a high authority reported at Hyde Park, N. Y., where Mr. Roosevelt spent the weekend, that the President had decided to issue a call this week for a special session of Congress.

It was agreed generally in the capital that the arms embargo's operation in the case of Canada would be a factor in congressional controversy over the president's program. Critics of the embargo contend it handicaps Britain, France and their allies.

Supporters of the embargo argue to repeal it would be to take sides in the European conflict and to lead this country eventually into full participation.

Senator Borah (R-Idaho), a leader of the congressional group which prevented Senate action last session on the President's proposal to repeal the statute, stated a veto in Maine last night and started back to the capital. Beyond a terse, "I'll be there," he declined comment on the forthcoming special session. Previously, he had declared repeal of the arms embargo would lead the country to war.

Texas Learns All About Air Raids

AUSTIN, Sept. 11 (AP)—In case anyone's interested, H. T. (Wick) Fowler, statistician for the state department of public safety, can serve up all sorts of authoritative information on bomb proof shelters and air raid precautions.

Some weeks ago, Fowler wrote the British government asking how one would go about protecting one's self from an air raid.

Soon he received a stack of pamphlets from the Air Raid Precautions committee of Britain. "After he got another big package and still later, another."

With each was a letter from E. P. Pales of London, committee official, stating that the "lord privy seal" had instructed him to forward the information and he would be happy to send Fowler any and all additional facts he desired.

From the big pamphlet, issued by "his majesty's stationery office at London" and carrying prices of shillings and pence, Fowler learned there were any number of bomb proof shelters, from "Type A" on. Among detailed specifications for each was the information:

"There is no complete safety from

SMUTS KEEPS SOUTH AFRICA IN LINE

Anti-German riots broke out in Johannesburg following the proposal of Premier J. B. M. Hertzog (right) that the Union of South Africa remain neutral in the European war. On demand by former Premier General Jan Smuts (left), for cooperation with the rest of the British Empire, the Parliament voted 83 to 67 to sever diplomatic relations with Germany.

Enrollments In Texas Colleges Will Be Higher

(By The Associated Press)

Texas colleges, expecting increased enrollments at their openings this week and next, anticipated the sound of guns in Europe would have few reverberations on their campuses.

Officials of most major schools believed the war was still too far away to have direct effect on their institutions this fall.

President Pat M. Neff of Baylor University at Waco and Dallas said there was no indication whatever that war would affect student enrollment. Baylor opens the new year Sept. 18 with the "best physical equipment" in the school's history.

The University of Texas, begins registration Sept. 18. The registrar's office anticipated a possible first term enrollment of 10,500 or a six to eight per cent increase. Officials saw little possibility of war influence. Most foreign students are from Latin America.

Rice Institute at Houston opens Sept. 18. An enrollment of 1,370—about the same as last year—was seen. Officials expected the trouble in Europe would not be felt.

President T. O. Walton of Texas A. and M. said it was "too early" to predict what effect the European situation would have on enrollment at College Station. Exclusive of West Point and Annapolis, A. and M. had the largest participation in the World War of any educational institution in the United States. Classes begin this year Sept. 22. A. and M. has 12 new dormitories, and enrollment was expected to approximate last year's record.

Officials at Southern Methodist University, Dallas, predicted an increased enrollment for the forthcoming session.

President Clifford B. Jones of Texas Technological college at Lubbock said indications were for a "substantial increase" in students.

Hardin-Simmons University at Abilene begins its thirty-first year under the administration of Dr. J. D. Sandefer.

Profiteering Protested By Housewives

NEW YORK, Sept. 11 (AP)—Will we have "profiteering" again in this war?

No question is so much in the minds of business and financial leaders, but they don't put it that way. "Profiteering" is an ugly word, and emotional word, a word without no precise meaning. They put it, instead, conversely:

"Will the government fix maximum prices for goods and services?"

Housewives put it this way:

"Will the cost of sugar, bread, meat, shoes, clothes, rent rise faster than John's salary?"

The executives of most every important business in the country were scurrying around this week to see that they were protected against increases or shortages of their ingredients, increases in basic costs.

Landlords wondered whether to jack up rents to meet possible jumps in the price of help, coal, oil, electricity.

Labor wondered whether to ask for higher wages in anticipation of increase in living costs.

Economists here generally said they consider no single-war-time question so important.

Politicians consider it potentially the most inflammable wartime subject.

It is reputedly a principal unsolved problem facing the war resources board, which, under the chairmanship of Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., is rushing through this country's plans to mobilize industry for national defense.

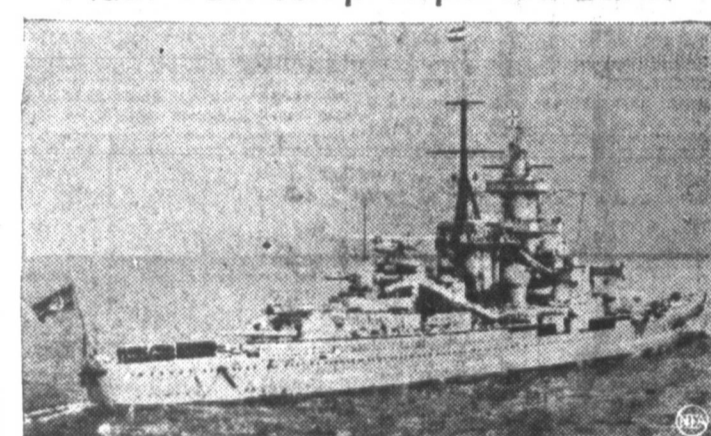

Some leaders here said they thought the problem might not for some time become critical. The rise in wholesale sugar prices which some said they believed touched off the wave of "housewife" buying and consequent temporary shortage of grocery staples last week, may be swiftly cured by federal action in freeing as much sugar from marketing and import quotas as necessary to provide for the demand.

Farmers receive $180 from livestock for every $100 from crops in the 15 poorest agricultural states and only $90 from livestock for every $100 from crops in the 15 poorest states.

About 45,000 blind persons have been provided with radio sets and relay installations by the British "Wireless for the Blind" fund.

62 Marines To Be Recruited From Texas, Oklahoma

A quota of sixty-two enlistments has been assigned to the United States Marine Corps recruiting district of Dallas, headquarters for Texas and Oklahoma, Postmaster C. H. Walker said yesterday, according to information received from Captain J. D. O'Leary, officer in charge.

The new recruits will be selected from applications now on file and on passing their final examination will be enlisted and immediately transferred to the Marine Corps base, San Diego, California, for training, the postmaster said.

Young men of good moral character who have had high school training and are between the ages of 18 and 30 are eligible to make application. Applicants applying for enlistment now will be placed on a waiting list to be called for final examination and enlistment during the early part of October, he said.

Loyalists Yearn For King's Return

PERPIGNAN, France, Sept. 11 (AP)—Thousands of Spanish Republicans behind barbed wire who once fumed against Alfonso and cheered when he was driven from the throne, today yearned for his return.

No great love for the former sovereign motivates them, but they prefer him as the lesser of what they consider two evils. The other alternative is Franco.

The Republicans do not believe a restoration of the monarchy would mean Franco's ouster.

But they believe it would leave the Franco regime, curtail executions and would be accompanied by a wide amnesty in favor of the hundreds of thousands in Spanish concentration camps and the quarter-million Spanish refugees abroad.

A survey indicated the use of machinery displaced 20,000 families from farms in Texas during 1937.
