Smith Says He Was Advised To Flee State FIRST HEAT IN DERBY OPENS

Plea Filed In U. S. Court By LSU Educator

Says There Was No Ground For Criminal Charges

NEW ORLEANS, July 20 (AP)—The assertion of Dr. James Monroe Smith today that he was "advised to leave the state of Louisiana" when he resigned as president of Louisiana State University June 25 was called "nonsensical and untrue" by former Governor Richard W. Leche, who accepted Smith's resignation.

Reached at his home in Covington, La., by telephone Leche said Smith's statement was "absurd on the face of it." Smith did not say who advised him to leave.

"Anyone who was present at the mansion at the time any of those men, will say the same thing that it is nonsense and untrue," Leche said in reply to Smith's assertion he had been given to understand there was no foundation for institution of criminal prosecution against him.

"Just to show how foolish it is," Leche continued, "would anyone there advise him to leave after he had advised we were going to make an investigation at Baton Rouge."

Leche said he already had given the East Baton Rouge Parish grand jury complete details surrounding circumstances of Smith's resignation.

"Petitioner avers that Sunday, June 25, 1939, he resigned to leave the state of Louisiana," Smith said in a petition filed today in federal district court here.

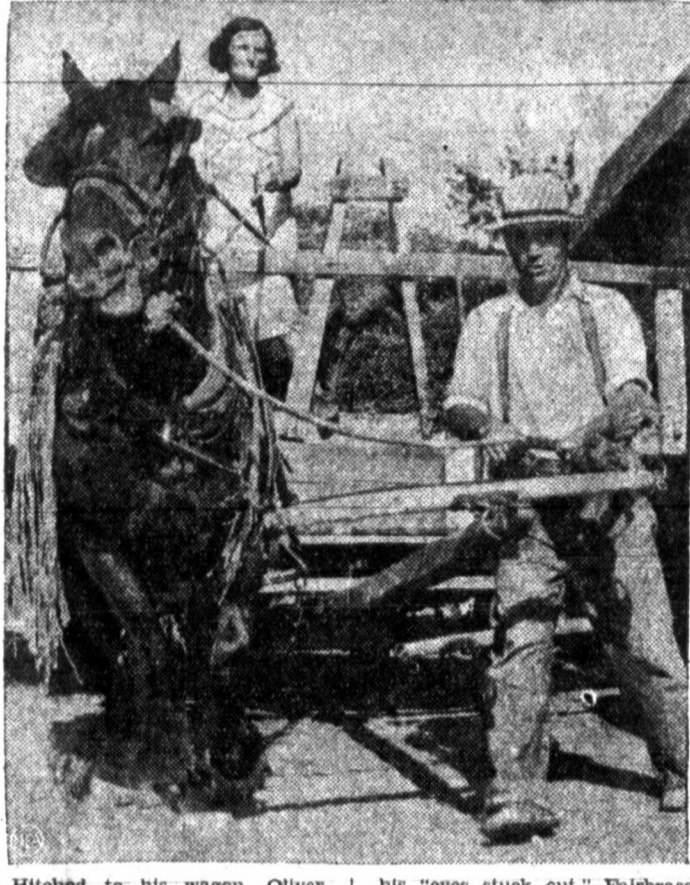

"I was given to understand and was of the honest belief," Smith said in his petition, "that there was no foundation for the institution of any criminal proceedings against me, but on the contrary, I was informed that the only action that might be taken against me was a civil action."

Smith's petition asserted he had been harassed by government agents here in an effort to gain confessions to crimes of which he is innocent and further said he was being deprived of his legal right to consult with counsel.

He asked that the writ of habeas corpus issued Monday by Federal Judge Wayne C. Borah when he was brought here from a Baton Rouge jail be modified to the extent that he may make $10,000 bond on a mail fraud charge here, and then be permitted to be taken back to the state.

Rainey Warns Texas May Select Students

Inman Sworn In As Constable

DALLAS, July 20. (AP)—The question of possible selection of students entering the University of Texas may be faced in the near future, indicated President Homer P. Rainey.

In his first public statement on Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel's veto of $102,000 in the university's biennial appropriation, Dr. Rainey said in an interview here last night.

"We at the university... realize the need for economy in educational expenditures; but unless the problem of teacher load is adjusted within the near future, the state's principal educational institution eventually will be forced to start selection of its students."

He was here to speak at a meeting of the Dallas Civic Federation. "Our greatest problem is to provide an adequate teaching staff to care for our constantly increasing enrollment," he explained.

"Some of the university classes now have an enrollment of more than 1,000 students. Any reasonable person knows under such conditions little genuine teaching can be done. I hate to preach such a doctrine, but a system of selectivity of students is bound to come unless the people of Texas stop pouring their students upon us and refusing their financial support."

Murphy Flays Criticism Of First Lady

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP)—Attorney General Murphy branded today "indefensible and absolutely unjust" remarks by Governor Luren D. Dickinson of Michigan in which Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's name was linked with drinking habits.

At his press conference, Murphy said: "Mrs. Roosevelt does not need to have anyone speak for her. She's the most interesting and useful of all first ladies in history. I believe her social responsibility and matchless industry for action and her sense of tolerance is an inspiration to all the young people of the country."

Murphy is a former governor of Michigan. Dickinson, speaking over the radio last night, said women he saw drinking liquor without becoming intoxicated at a party in New York have "learned the formula advised by a prominent member of our nation" before repeal. He told reporters he was referring to Mrs. Roosevelt.

Discussing Dickinson's remarks, the attorney general said, "Only a combination of reactionary politicians and bigots could spawn a thing of that kind and use him (Dickinson) to do it."

Murphy defended Dickinson as an "earnest and honest public official" and as one who "ought not to be misunderstood." He said: "Anyone who knows him and is responsible knows he is a man of integrity and in deadly earnest—his views ought to be respected. However, his statement last night over the radio I think is indefensible and unjust."

Questioned about a movement started last week to recall Dickinson, Murphy said: "I don't consider it very unfortunate. I don't believe any recall movement ought to be started against Dickinson. He is an earnest and honest public official."

Mrs. Roosevelt delivered a radio speech Dec. 9, 1932, in which she said that in her youth a girl was not branded as a prig or being unsocial if she did not join in what

Durango Wants Youth Held Here In Check Cases

Durango, Colo., officers called Pampa police last night seeking custody of Ralph Clemmons Smith, Jr., arrested here last week in connection with the passing of forged checks. The Durango officers learned that Smith was in jail here from a fingerprint report received from the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

District Attorney Clifford Braly today said he would take no action regarding the request of Durango officers until next Monday when Smith will appear before the grand jury. He telegraphed Durango officers today that Smith would be held for them, however.

After Smith had been arrested he was fingerprinted by Leo Wilson of the city police force and the

W. Lee Wants To Be Dictator, Says Derden

ATLANTA, July 20. (AP)—Rep. Albert Derden of Marlin, a member of the Legislature who fought the sales tax constitutional amendment, said today if Governor W. Lee O'Daniel is successful in his plans, his administration for another term would amount to running "this state alone."

Derden spoke here at the Cass county watermelon festival. Derden said Texas stands at the "cross-roads" of democracy and constitutional government.

"Too many people expect their representative to go to Austin and be a good 'yes man,' and do exactly what the governor would have them do, right or wrong."

The governor "does not understand the first principle" of representative government, he said, adding: "In the past term of the Legislature, those who have refused to be a 'yes man' on all occasions, even to the extent of committing an outrage against the people, have come under the fire and sting of his whip, and their political heads are threatened. He has made the threat that he will take the stump next year to defeat every

Fritz Kuhn Admits Drunkenness Charge

WEBSTER, Mass., July 20. (AP)—Fritz Kuhn, leader of the German-American Bund and sometimes called the "Little Fuehrer" by his followers, pleaded guilty in district court today to charges of drunkenness and profanity and was fined $5 on the latter count.

In a jammed court room, Kuhn shifted from one foot to the other as his lawyer stepped up to make the guilty plea, Judge Louis O. Riesterer placed the drunkenness charge on file, thereby suspending further action on this count.

Kuhn's trouble started in the early hours of Sunday morning here when Motorcycle Patrolman Henry Plasse stopped his party because he contended the driver of the automobile was not fit to drive. After a switch of drivers the party started off, but Plasse arrested Kuhn when he contended the bund leader swore at him.

Newspaper men asked the bundsman if he would have anything to say. "No comment," he replied. "Maybe I'll have a statement later."

'39 Summer Slump Fails To Materialize

It is now getting along toward the time of year when people would rather lie under an apple tree than call on that last customer whose place is way over at the end of town. Because, at this time of year, millions of people feel a little bit that way, there usually ensues a noticeable falling-off of business (and all other) activity. This has been christened "the summer slump."

But this summer there isn't any, which is a very heartening thing indeed. The Wall Street Journal, whose business it is to keep in touch with these matters, surveyed all the prominent fields of trade and industry recently, and came to the conclusion that most of the trades and industries which usually drift into the doldrums at about this time are stubbornly fighting their way upward.

Here are some of the conclusions reached: department store sales were better than the seasonal average, well above 1938; automobile sales holding up unusually well; gasoline consumption at a new high; replacement auto tire trade at a six-year high in June; sales of building material at the best level of recent years, with construction contracts up; expanding orders in the machine tool, electrical equipment and utility fields.

Not all industries showed so bright a tendency, with steel production still at a low level and railroad equipment lagging. But new seasonal traffic records are being set on the airlines, the machine tool and airplane industries are buzzing (with war orders, it is true).

All this activity, flying in the face of traditional seasonal dullness, is further proof of the tremendous, backed-up demand which lies beneath the surface of today's conditions.

It is now almost certain that 1939 is going to be a far better year than 1938 as regards business progress, and the first sign of sanity to return to the international situation should make the green light burn immediately brighter.

Sharing The Comforts Of Life

By R. C. Holles

WPA STRIKE TEST OF FORTITUDE

It is of the utmost importance that the public back up the Congress and government officials in their attempt to get more wealth produced by the WPA projects by having them work longer for the same amount of money. If the WPA protesters win out in this struggle, we are practically turning our government over to the dictatorship of the proletariat. They will, step by step, finally appropriate to themselves so much of the national production that private citizens will become so discouraged that production will continue to decline and we will sink down together.

It is an absurdity to think that WPA workers should be paid as much per hour as is paid by private enterprise. Invariably, they are not as large producers as those workers who have private jobs. It seems to me that it is unfair to pay more for one kind of made work than another even if the job is skilled. The only reason skilled workers receive more than unskilled workers is because of the scarcity of getting skilled workers. The pay is higher so that the people will learn to do more difficult jobs. If, however, the skill is not sufficient to furnish employment, there seems to be no just reason why skilled workers on WPA projects should receive more than common labor. If the WPA projects are for the purpose of protecting workers from destitution, there should be no classes among workers who are being furnished jobs from a humanitarian standpoint.

Congress and the President are to be congratulated for removing the prevailing wage racket. If WPA workers' hours are too short, they are inclined to stay on WPA work; if they really have to earn what they are getting, they will be more interested in getting a private job in which they will actually produce what they get and the load that is resting on the shoulders of the workers in private enterprise thus will be greatly reduced. If the private workers really understood how the WPA workers lower their wages, they would insist on a reduction in made work.

GOVERNMENT OPERATES ON OLD PRINCIPLES

Few people realize how the actions of the government and public opinion lag many years behind their original advocacy. On this subject, Walter Lippmann, in his book, "The Good Society," points out that Mr. Keynes has said the active men of an epoch are generally applying the theories of men who are long since dead.

Lippmann points out that Adam Smith published his "Wealth of Nations" (which advocated the greatest possible liberty for all people), in 1776, and before his death in 1790 two English Prime Ministers, Lord Shelburne and William Pitt, had been converted to his ideas. Yet, it was not until 1846 or 70 years later that the tariff laws or the Corn Laws were repealed, and the free-trade system was not established until Gladstone brought in his budgets in 1853 and 1860.

Lippmann goes on to say that in 1850, John Stuart Mill was advocating more or less socialistic authoritarian states; that about the middle of the last century people's ideas of what Democracy actually was, began to change; people began to believe that Democracy was the dictatorship of the majority instead of the greatest possible liberty for each individual as set forth in the bill of rights.

Lippmann says we are now reaping the harvest of this collectivism advocated some 76 years ago; that we are now beginning to see the effects of collectivism, or the totalitarian state in Russia, Germany, Italy and even in the United States; that now a few people are beginning to see that this government, that assumes to regulate the lives of men, interferes with the development of character of liberalism. That there is now beginning to be a reaction by observing people against so much coercion by the government. It is now becoming evident to more and more people who have not particularly studied history of liberty of the past, that the authoritarian state is not what the people want. And few people are even beginning to realize that the greatest liberty for the individual is what Jesus was advocating; that great liberty usually comes in cycles and is the result of evolving experiments; that as the men of foresight are able to teach the mass, liberty becomes possible.

Behind The News Of The Day

Pampa News Washington Correspondent WASHINGTON, July 19.—The name of Paul V. McNutt as head of the new Federal Security Agency was two kinds of politics in one.

SUGGESTIONS FOR THAT LIBRARY AT HYDE PARK

Around Hollywood

By PAUL HARRISON

NEA Service Staff Correspondent HOLLYWOOD, July 20.—Short takes. A producer of cheap westerns has been obliged to pay local Indians $5.50 to work a character before his camera. But he got a bright idea for a new flicker—he'd pay them only $4.25 a day and make 'em a band of half-breeds.

And then there was the enthusiastic agent who was trying to sell a budding glamorist to a big studio. "She's got the eyes of Hedy Lamarr, the mouth of Alice Faye, the figure of Ann Sheridan," he told the executive. "She acts like Garbo, has the voice of Myrna Loy, dances like Ginger Rogers."

"I couldn't use her," squealed the movie-maker. "If all those things are true, the girl's got no individuality!" Central Casting, the agency through which all atmosphere and most bit players are hired, is a constant target for disgruntled charges of neglect and favoritism from some of the thousands of actors who don't get enough work.

And sometimes actual threats are made over the telephone: "Some of us guys will come down there and clean out the joint," or "I'll kill myself—or somebody—if I don't get a job today." So now the top-jobs, the operative agency, which already has several marvelous electrical contraptions to increase its efficiency, has installed a recording machine which can be switched on to preserve such threats. The records are being filed for possible future evidence.

Delayed Honey-moon Clark and Carole Gable finally got away on that delayed honeymoon, and headed for Del Monte. But they'll swing right back to their valley ranch, clip the telephone wires, and resume their cherished chores of painting and remodeling.

It may not mean anything more than business talk about community property, but Lew Ayres and Ginger Rogers are being dining together lately.

People You Know

Joe Roche has been having some exciting times on the Leticia ranch since he started drilling the wildcat oil test out there. His latest adventure occurred this week when all his keys dropped into the hole which is over 4,000 feet deep. The next day Joe was going around dutifully displaying a hole in his pocket. He had to get somebody to bring him into town for an extra key before he could drive his car. A small knife that was in his pocket hit the casing and bounced on the ground. Joe said the knife wasn't any good. Two or three days before he lost his keys Joe, gun in hand, started chasing a coyote and pretty soon found himself in a canyon plum patch which was laden with plums, and naturally he didn't leave the patch for some time.

In addition to vitamins A, B, C, and D already described, other vitamins have been called E, F, G and K. What used to be called G is now specifically designated as riboflavin, which was described in an earlier article in this series.

Vitamin E is called anti-sterility vitamin and has been from time to time considered as useful in cases in which women were having difficulty in carrying children to maturity at the time of birth. However, all of this is experimental and apparently there is very little deficiency of vitamin E among human beings.

Because of the interest in vitamins, not long ago an attempt was made to exploit some acids derived from linseed oil known as linolenic and linoleic acids under the name of vitamin F.

So serious did this exploitation become that finally some of the leading scientific societies in the United States, including the American Society of Biological Chemists, the American Institute of Nutrition, and the Council on Pharmacy and Chemistry of the American Medical Association, issued a statement in which they pointed out that the term vitamin F as applied to these acids was unwarranted.

Furthermore, it was pointed out in the Journal of the American Medical Association that there was not the slightest reason to believe that the claims made for this vitamin to the effect that it would rejuvenate the skin or produce similar effects were in any way unwarranted.

The vitamin known as vitamin K is derived from alfalfa and other substances and is specifically limited in its usefulness, at least for the present, to cases of obstructive jaundice in which apparently there is excessive bleeding because of a lack of this vitamin.

THE OLD crack about everybody talking about the weather and nobody doing anything about it is pretty well whiskered by now. But like many another jest, there is a kernel of truth in it.

THE OTHER day the editor of a big-city paper received a letter from a reader, telling a story. It was a little story of a big hole in the pavement.

All the people of the neighborhood complained and shook their heads as trucks bounced through the hole, shaking neighboring houses. It was pretty terrible, they all agreed, shaking their heads sadly at the inefficiency of their city government.

THEN ONE of them sat down and wrote a letter to the street department about it. Within three days it had been fixed.

Gov. Dickinson Accuses First Lady In Speech

LANSING, Mich., July 20 (AP)—Gov. Lauren D. Dickinson suggested in a radio address last night that temperate use of liquor by women at a "high life" party in New York might have been the result of a formula proclaimed just before the end of prohibition by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt.

The governor did not mention Mrs. Roosevelt in his radio address, merely referring to "a prominent lady of our nation," but he told newspapermen as he handed them texts of his address that "the prominent lady" was the wife of the President.

Discussing his previous attack on a party which he attended at the national conference of governors, Dickinson, a long-time prohibition advocate, declared "these ladies and men that I saw drinking were not intoxicated, as might be inferred.

"Why? I do not know unless it might be the formula advised by a prominent lady of our nation before liquor came back after prohibition when she made a statement to young girls who would avoid being called pigs.

She said: "The average girl of today faces the problem of learning very young how much she can get away with such things as whiskey, gin and so forth and sticking to the proper quantity."

"These women," the governor added, "evidently knew how to do this."

Arrangements had been made for the 60-year-old republican to speak over nine stations of the Michigan radio network, but only the Lansing station in whose studio he read his speech sent it through the ether.

None of the other stations received advance copies of the address, and network executives at Detroit explained it was a rule of the chain that the manuscript of any talk had to be approved before it could be broadcast.

"He does not want one man in the Legislature who has the integrity or ability as well as the nerve to think for himself. I suggest to the governor that he just ask the people of Texas to leave all the representatives and senators at home another term, and save the expense of any additional legislative sessions, and let him run this state alone.

That is what his administration another term will amount to if he is successful in his plans.

Discusses Sales Tax Darden reviewed the history of Senate Joint Resolution 12, the constitutional amendment proposition for financing old age pensions which failed to pass at the last Legislature, and added:

tually needed. According to the tax experts it was estimated that there would be collected from the sales tax and other tax provisions about fifty million dollars. A limitation was to be put on the amount of money that could be spent on the entire social security program, not to exceed twenty million dollars for the old age pension, two and one-half million for the teachers retirement program, one and one-half million for the dependent and orphaned children, and one-half million for the blind. You can readily see that there would be collected just about twice as much money as would be needed, and then the only thing the Legislature could do would be to reduce the rate of taxes just half in two, which would mean that eight-tenths of one per cent per barrel on oil, one-half of one per cent on natural gas and one per cent sales tax.

"Putting this into dollars and cents, it would mean that the people of Texas would pay in the form of the sales tax about twenty-two to twenty-three million dollars, and the oil companies of Texas combined would pay about one and a half million dollars, while the gas companies would pay all combined about seventy-five thousand dollars each year. Think of the unbalanced burden of taxation that was offered to you under this proposed S. J. R. 12 that you have heard so much about."

Darden suggested Governor O'Daniel should not have proposed any tax plan to the Legislature, but should have "left it to the Legislature to choose its own methods of raising the money."

He asserted the governor introduced his original transactions tax proposal to make "a sales tax look like a good compromise."

Darden said he had suggested to the governor last September that he study past legislative records to determine whom he could depend upon "as the true friends of the social security program," but that the executive later selected his "true friends" who were against all taxes other than a sales tax.

While profit taking on the recent upsurge prevailed, however, buyers stepped into the market in the majority of lines and the drift, in most cases, was downward at the close.

Notwithstanding the cooling of speculative fever, a handful of favorites managed to edge into new high ground for the year in the morning. Among these were Transcontinental & Western Air, American Airlines, Loft and Colgate.

End To Minneapolis Strike In Sight

MINNEAPOLIS, July 20 (AP)—An end to Minneapolis, 15-day-old WPA strike was in sight today as workers struck a final one-day protest against the new WPA regulations.

The settlement offered to the workers was formulated by Gov. Harold Stassen, State WPA Administrator Linus Colthatch, and a committee of five labor leaders.

Under its terms, dismissals for failure to report for work will stand, and workers seeking reinstatement must swear they did not break the law during the strike.

Leach's promise to maintain order was made a condition to reopening of the projects by the federal WPA officials.

Court Rules On Contested Votes

AUSTIN, July 20 (AP)—State employees can maintain legal residence in counties in which they resided at the time of employment regardless of whether they are later transferred in line of duty to other counties, the Third Court of Civil Appeals said in an opinion today. It ruled further there is no statute prohibiting casting of absentee ballots on Sunday.

The rulings were given in an election contest appealed from Blanco county. The Appellate Court affirmed judgment of a Blanco county trial court which declared Ben Jack Stubbs the legally elected county judge. In the general election of November, 1938, James H. Clark received 733 votes for the office. Stubbs filed suit in trial without jury a principal issue was casting of illegal votes by alleged non-residents, including state and federal employees. The judge declared Stubbs received 736 legal ballots against 773 for Clark.

Halliburton's Swanky Yacht Fined $13,000

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP)—high commerce department official verified today reports that penalties aggregating approximately $13,000 had been imposed as a result of navigation law violations of Erle P. Halliburton's palatial yacht, Vida, along the Gulf of Mexico.

He said so far as he knew the fines had not been paid, and added that even should they be paid, a petition showing there were no intentional violations probably would result in a remittance of the amount.

The Vida files the Honduran flag. The department official said she was granted "temporary registry" by the Honduran government in New York shortly before her arrival in Galveston, Texas.

An application for a cruising permit to allow legal stops of the vessel in other American ports was sought before the yacht left New York, he added, but rejected because Honduras does not grant reciprocal cruising permits.

Fines were imposed against the master of the Vida, he continued, adding the department here was not aware whether the master was Halliburton or someone else. The department directed Fred C. Pabst, collector of customs at Galveston, to impose the fines.

Three Courses Open.
The master may pay the penalties, file a petition with the secretary of commerce contesting Pabst's action, or ignore the assessments. If the last described course is followed the secretary of commerce would ask the federal district attorney to file suit for collection of the amount. This would entail the serving of court summons on the master, who might be out of the United States.

Regardless of whether President Roosevelt goes campaigning for his brand of neutrality, or whether Senators Borah, republican, Idaho, and Johnson, republican, Calif., go on arguing against it, most politicians say the determining factor will be soundings of political sentiment taken during the recess of congress.

CHAPTER XIII

A MAN can grow a very good beard in three to five months. Mr. John Sawyer, formerly known as Carl Quait, No. 32283, spent almost four months growing his after he got a job with the Imperial Feldspar Corporation near Kingman, Ariz. The Imperial was handling 600 tons of feldspar and silica per month, and John, or Carl, worked with 20 other men in an isolated canyon with scarcely no chance to come to town.

Sawyer's top hair grew too; it had been cut very short in January, but by summer it was scraggly again. Both his long hair and his beard combined to make him a very different man from what he had appeared at, say, Christmas time.

On a day, early in the summer the town boss rode out with a few "comforts" for the men up in the canyon. Included was a batch of newspapers. Sawyer was keen to read them. When bedtime came he was suddenly excited. In one of the Sunday papers more than a week old was a full-page feature article, with five good photographs and a most interesting text. Oddly Mr. Sawyer went right then and there to his boss and told him he'd have to quit.

"Um, hit you all at once, didn't it, Sawyer?" the boss asked, curiously. "Yep. But I got to go for a spell. I might come back later, if you need me."

"Well, you done all right here. I'll have to put on another man now, but I could write you if you want me so, when there's another openin'. Where you from? Your address? You never did give me a place, when you come here?"

"Reckon I'll be around Tucson," Sawyer suggested. "Home country for me, there. Never been out of Arizona, matter of fact."

Mr. Sawyer had to walk in to Kingman that night, so impatient was he. The old newspaper had disturbed him.

NEXT day at Kingman he bought papers from Phoenix, Albuquerque and Los Angeles. One of them was a Sunday paper again, later than the first he had read.

And by George if it didn't have some more news that excited him! One picture this time, of a lot of college students in New York City, and a short article underneath. Mr. Sawyer promptly rented a car in Kingman and drove out on Highway 66. He was considerably worried and he wasn't sure what to do. Riding along, it occurred to him that he had best begin with being extremely careful. True, six months changes a man, makes people forget a lot of things and even makes officers of the law become negligent about an old man-hunt; but then a man who had robbed a payroll and killed a man would have to be cautious all his life.

He pulled up after an hour or so at a small roadside stand in the Joshua forest country. Back of the stand was a large signboard saying:

Turn here to GOLDCREST

ARIZONA'S PICTURESQUE GHOST TOWN

He read that and the smaller lettering under it, and pulled up for good morning to the old man who was in charge of the stand. "Got any cold drinks?" he asked. "Soft drinks. Goin' in to Goldcrest?"

"Plain lemon. No, can't spare the time. What's going on there?" Mr. Sawyer eyed the old timer shrewdly. "Why plenty, friend! Four young people've opened it up for showing. Cost you a dollar, and with it, 'This is a genu-wine—"

"I know about it. I've seen it years ago. They opened up everything, eh? The old hotel, stores, jail, bank and everything, no doubt?"

"None, not yet. They ain't opened the jail yet. It has to be repaired some to be safe. Likewise the mine shaft itself!"

"Opened the business houses? All of 'em?"

"Couldn't open the bank vault. I heard 'em say. Locked. Rusted. Two, three old cellars, too. Mostly dirt."

"Um," said Mr. Sawyer. "Interesting place. Hope they make money out of it."

"Them kids is smart, mister, lemme tell you. They'll do well." "Kids, eh? They live up there? All the time?"

"Yep. Mrs. Maude Hogan, she cooks for 'em, sees to 'em. They sick to business. It's a lot of tourists comes in. Hundred-odd at oncep due here day after tomorrow. Here comes a car in now, too."

Mr. Sawyer paid the old fellow, but loitered a half an hour longer chinning. Then he got in his car and drove on. Down the road two miles he halted and waited an hour. Then he turned back, driving fast. He didn't think the roadside vendor would recognize his car if he just sped on by, returning to Kingman. Mr. Sawyer had done a deal of thinking. He had evolved a definite plan and he regretted having to wait two days to put it into operation.

When he got back to Kingman he turned in his rented car, took a quiet hotel room, then went to a barber shop.

"I'm getting too gray," he mentioned, in the chair. "Can't you just—uh—?"

"I can touch it up and take 15 years off," the barber said. "What about the whiskers? They got some white ones?"

"Touch them up, too. Make it good."

The barber wasn't rushed. He did a good job. Mr. Sawyer, or Mr. Quait, looked even reasonably handsome when the job was done. He bought a new suit of clothes and other articles to dress himself inconspicuously. Then he set out to buy a few books. But in a town the size of Kingman there are no bookstores. He did manage, however, to acquire plain spectacles and an umbrella and a suitcase. He went back to his hotel and sat down to be patient.

When opportunity offered he inquired the clerk and other guests that he welcomed the chance to get back to civilization, since he had been out in the fields doing some special mineralogical studies for several months. In a day or two, he said, he would be ready to head back east again.

Then he wished he hadn't talked so much. Somebody would likely remember that he had posed and worked as a mine laborer at the Imperial Feldspar. Why, he was almost a fool! It wouldn't do to get careless now.

The thought worried him all that night and into next day when he kept to his room pretending to be reading. So the second afternoon he set out abruptly to go buy himself a pistol and some shells.

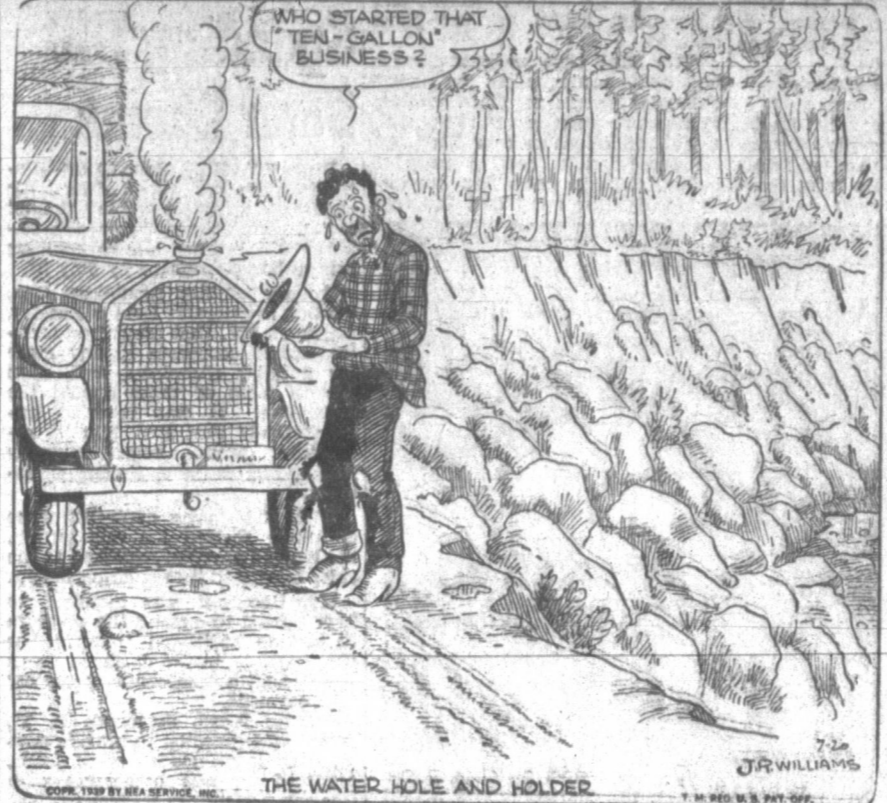

He was already in the hardware store before he remembered that, in his present pose, he would look conspicuous buying a gun. He lied diplomatically and excused himself. He had seen a heavy .44 calibre pistol under the hotel clerk's counter anyway.

The second night he slipped downstairs at 2 a. m. and got the clerk's pistol, being careful to see that it was fully loaded. The clerk hadn't even discovered his loss when Mr. Sawyer departed on the regular bus at 8 the next morning.

FDR Silent On Third Term At Conference

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP)—President Roosevelt touched on a variety of subjects at his press conference yesterday, as follows:

Turned aside a question as to whether he ever had told anyone he would run for a third term and wanted Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator, for the vice presidential nominee; asked whether it would be fair to label that story (by Walter Winchell) a newspaper story.

Said federal agencies were being asked to put some of their new funds in a reserve in the hope of saving money; the same plan was used in the last fiscal year.

Expressed the offhand opinion WPA Commissioner Harrington has no authority to change the new 130-hour month for skilled relief workers.

Said he would be afraid to comment on business conditions, such as the stock market's rise of the last few days.

Criticized proposed wage-hour amendments by Rep. Barden, democrat, N. C., claiming they would in effect exempt the 2,000,000 poorest paid industrial employees.

Lubbock's postal receipts for the first half of 1939 showed an increase of $5,822.61 over the same months last year and a net gain of $19,001.77 for the 1938-39 fiscal year over the previous corresponding period.

Englishman Flew Franco To Morocco - To Start Revolt

Why did Spanish Rebel Generalissimo Franco award the Order of Red Arrows to Major Pollard, a retired British officer, to Major Pollard's daughter and a woman friend? Why did Major Pollard occupy a seat of honor at the victory parade in Madrid? Because to Major Pollard, the Spanish general owed his leadership of the revolt, and perhaps his very life. In the exclusive behind-the-scenes article below, Milton Bronner, NEA Service and Pampa News correspondent, gives the details of this amazing exploit.

By MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, July 19.—If it had not been for a "pleasure cruise by air" taken three years ago by Major Hugh B. C. Pollard, a quiet, middle-aged Englishman, there might not have been a successful revolution in Spain.

Certainly General Francisco Franco might not have led it. In fact, he might not have survived the enemies who were after him.

For it was Major Pollard who put within Franco's means a chance to escape from the Canary Islands to Spanish Morocco, where the warlike native troops were ready to follow his flag.

Disliked Spain's Government
Three years ago in June Major Pollard would have been the last man in England to talk about further adventure. He already had had a colorful life—as a war correspondent for a London newspaper, a major at the front during the World War, and a trouble-shooter for the British government in Ireland during the sanguinary conflict with the Sinn Feiners. And now he had got himself a home in the country and settled down to the pleasant task of being sports editor of the magazine, "Country Life" and a writer of books.

There appeared on the scene an old friend of Pollard's, a magazine editor who belonged, like Pollard, to an ancient Catholic family. The friend knew Pollard, like himself, disliked the Spanish republican government because of its attitude toward their church.

Said the friend: "How would you like to undertake a dangerous task whose purpose is to change things in Spain?"

Pollard: "What's the game?"
Friend: "We want somebody who, under the guise of a pleasure cruise in an airplane, will get that machine down in the Canary Islands so Francisco Franco can fly to Spanish Morocco. The trip will have to be kept very secret.

And to emphasize its innocence of any political purpose, you should have some woman in the party."

The novel-like plot appealed to Pollard and he at once said he would undertake it. Pollard chartered a D. H. Rapids airplane which formerly belonged to the Duke of Windsor, and engaged Captain Cecil Bebb to pilot it. The machine could take, besides mechanic and wireless operator, four passengers. In guarded terms Pollard told his daughter Diana of his mysterious and dangerous errand.

Would she like to come? Her reply was prompt.
"I am 19. I know my own mind. If you go, I am certainly going along."

She at once suggested another possible passenger, her friend, Dorothy Watson. And at the last minute the Marquis Pepe del Merito, one of Spain's richest men, also came along on the peril-fraught flight.

France in "Exile"
Franco at the time was in bad with the republican government of Spain. Although one of the ablest officers in the army, the cabinet distrusted him. Accordingly, in 1936 he was sent to the Canary Islands ostensibly to have command of the troops there. Really, it was exile.

The junta, which was making ready to start a rebellion against the republican government, badly wanted Franco out of the Canary Islands. They wanted the revolution to start in Spanish Morocco and Franco was the idol of the native troops there.

Pollard's plane took off from Croydon airport, near London, on July 11, 1936. The revolution was timed to start on July 17.

Plane Seized And Released
Major Pollard told me:

"We dared not land in Spain. Flying by way of Biarritz, Oppor, Lisbon and Casablanca, we finally landed in one of the most God-forsaken places on earth — Cape plane. But there was a snag. The plane had been seized by the authorities there. A vigorous complaint to the British Consul, and his prompt action, got the plane released.

"The first time we saw Franco he was accompanied by some Falangist guards in plain clothes. Franco was wearing a raincoat with a hat pulled down over his eyes. He succeeded in getting away to Palma. Captain Bebb had our order to fly him away and the first

July on the edge of Africa in the Spanish colony of Rio de Oro. Nothing there but sea on one side and Sahara sand on the other. But it was but a short hop to the Canary Islands.

"Here we learned of a difficulty. Franco was on the island of Tenerife, but there is no landing place there. So we flew to Palma, another of the Canaries. The girls and I took a ferry boat from Palma to Tenerife."

"I went directly to the house of a professional man who was supposed to be in the know. But when I gave him the password, he seemed scared to death. However, he finally sent a message to Franco and the latter's aide-de-camp came to see us. We convinced him we were Franco's friends.

"It was arranged Franco should go to Palma and take off in our

Governor Boed As Juarez Goes Dry

JUAREZ, Chih., Mex., July 20 (AP)—Governor Talamantes of Chihuahua was boed today as Juarez staged an angry protest against taking away his hard liquor.

By order of the governor, all Juarez bars were closed last night in conformity with a decree of President Cardenas to curb the sale of liquor in industrial centers.

This Rio Grande city, border gay spot for years and prohibition oasis for thirty Americans, was in a turmoil. Thousands lined up for a mass protest parade.

At a mass meeting, Governor Talamantes was greeted with hisses and boos, which drew his reprimand as an "insult" to authority and the assertion the order would remain effective unless the president modified it himself.

Talamantes promised Juarez business men, however, he would telephone President Cardenas and request some modification.

A protest committee, composed of Juarez interests, told the governor the closing order put 2,000 persons out of work and shut up 200 bars.

'Strikes' Of Gold Threaten Battle

BRONSON, Mich., July 20 (AP)—A second "strike" of gold within a week on a farm near here threatened today to precipitate a legal battle for possession.

Frank Belote, whose three young sons unearthed $1,800 in gold coins from a buried tin Sunday, pulled $1,120 more from an old metal cylinder beneath his front orch yesterday.

Belote turned the money over to Sheriff Homer Burns, who deposited it in a bank.

Laddie Kregger, owner of the farm which Belote rents, refused to confirm or deny reports he had made a find of his own. Both Kregger and Belote retained attorneys to defend their respective claims to the money.

Cuba Bestows Medal On Lions President

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 20 (AP)—Cuba for the third time has bestowed its highest decoration upon an officer of Lions International in acknowledgment of medical service and other assistance given the republic's needy.

President Walter F. Dexter of Sacramento, Calif., is the latest to receive the national merit Order of Carlos Manuel de Cespedes. The presentation was made yesterday at the opening of the service organization's twenty-third annual convention.

Rain forced postponement of the convention parade until today but it failed to dampen spirits of the more than 10,000 delegates. They moved indoors for welcoming addresses and a solemn flag ceremony in which banners of eight nations represented in Lions International were carried to the huge convention stage.

Showdown On Spending Bill Soon Looms

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP)—Republican leaders joined democratic chiefs today in seeking prompt action on President Roosevelt's $2,800,000,000 lending bill so congress can go home—perhaps by July 29.

Senator McNary, republican, Ore., advised Democratic Leader Barkley, democrat, Ky., that republican senators would cooperate in any move for a quick showdown vote, even though most of them oppose the legislation. It was reported authoritatively that Rep. Martin, republican, Mass., house minority leader, had made a similar agreement.

With the thorny neutrality issue definitely shelved for this session, the lending program remained as the chief barrier to speedy adjournment.

Mr. Roosevelt was expected to have agreed to expand the program to include additional authority for the RFC to insure business loans which would hold a "reasonable prospect."

Senator Mead, democrat, N. Y., author of legislation to provide government insurance of small loans, disclosed he was conferring with Chairman Marriner S. Ecos of the Federal Reserve Board on a proposal authorizing the board to lend up to $270,000,000 to small business.

Mead talked yesterday with the President, Administrator Jesse Jones of the federal lending agency, and Chairman Emil Schram of the RFC. They said afterward Mr. Roosevelt proposed an educational campaign to show banks and business men what the RFC can do in insuring loans.

Senator Barkley, author of the lending bill, made one concession to opponents by agreeing to eliminate a provision calling for a permanent revolving fund. Under his proposal, money repaid on loans would be turned over to the treasury instead of being put aside for future lending.

New Session Likely
Although both Barkley and Senator Minton, democratic whip, said they were "shooting at" adjournment by the end of next week, cloakroom conversations were dominated by talk of a special session to settle the neutrality question. Most well-informed senators held the belief Mr. Roosevelt would call congress back at once if a new crisis developed in Europe.

The President and Secretary Hull had pleaded for immediate repeal of the arms embargo against warring nations, but agreed at a White House conference Tuesday night to postpone action until the next session.

Authors of proposals to restrict commerce with Japan, however, were hopeful of a vote before adjournment. Senator Pittman, democrat, Nevada, has introduced a bill to authorize embargoes against Japanese goods, while Senator Vandenberg, republican, Mich., has called for abrogation of the 1911 treaty of amity and commerce with Japan, after the specified six months notice.

Pittman said he expected a state department report on his bill before the end of the week.

Vandenberg told reporters his resolution was "an orderly, legal way" of putting Japan on notice that this country might take commercial steps against her.

Cities To Progress With Airports, Says Aeronautics Head

DALLAS, July 20 (AP)—Clinton Hester, Administrator of the Civil Aeronautics Authority, told a luncheon audience today America's aviation industry was on the threshold of its greatest development.

It now seems certain aviation will do for America what the automobile industry did in the 1920's—bring a tremendous expansion in industry and business," he said. "The city that profits most will be the one which provides adequate airports and other aviation facilities."

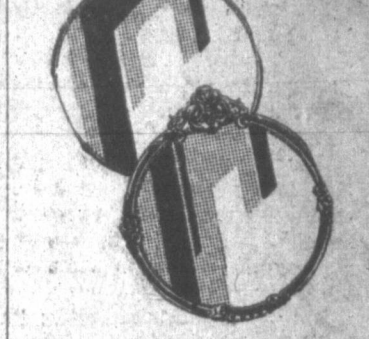

Hester said he was a passenger on the first trans-Atlantic commercial flight of the Yankee Clipper, and that he was certain the new service would be a success.

Of the domestic picture, he asserted, "airline business is showing tremendous gains. It has increased so much during the last three months that America's airlines will show a $500,000 net profit for the first half of 1939, an entirely different story from that for the first half of 1938."

Hester will go to Corpus Christi from here.
