SERIAL STORY GHOST DETOUR

BY OREN ARNOLD

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday Bancroft awoke in the old bank, waiting for the return of the money...

CHAPTER IX

When Dick Bancroft had told his friend Franklin that he meant to sleep on guard near the bank vault, Franklin's objections had been overruled...

Wherefore, when the routine seemed firmly established, Franklin found a reason for going in to the county seat...

He arrived in town at night and went directly to the sheriff's office but the sheriff was not present.

"Why, he won't be down till tomorrow, less'n there's trouble," the night deputy said.

"No, sir, no hurry. I'll drop in tomorrow morning."

Franklin had an hour before bedtime then, and so he wandered up the small street of the town...

Just because he was young and lonesome and hungry he ordered a soda. While he drank it he gazed at the "drug" store's window in trade; apparently this consisted of almost everything but drugs...

He remembered he had $22 in his pocket. He had begun paying salaries now. He eyed the case now far from his sofa counter stool.

"Indian made, eh?" he spoke to the clerk.

"Yes, sir, best bead work in the west. Look at some!"

The clerk took out a beautifully ornamented purse, a lady's purse of soft white calfskin with bead designs.

Franklin felt like splurging. He bought it.

For $4 more he bought a silver ring set with a stone of petrified wood that looked like a blazing forest fire...

At 8 next morning he sat with the sheriff and held a set of small photographs out for that officer to inspect.

"Them's fingerprints," the older man said.

"Where'd you get 'em?"

"Franklin smiled disarmingly. 'Do you mind if I don't tell that yet, sir? I wouldn't want to go off half-cooked about it.'"

"Now, not a fall. But did you take 'em yourself? You an officer, son?"

"No, sir. I mean, I'm not an officer. I'm a Texan who just came to Arizona a while back. Out of school at El Paso. But I know a little about photography, and have a small camera. Fingerprints aren't hard to photograph, once you know how. Camera work is sort of a hobby with me, you see."

The sheriff was already thumbing a big album. In the book were pasted dozens, perhaps hundreds, of pictures of wanted men, or of descriptions of wanted men.

"I can match 'em if I see any like you got, but you just study these along with me and let's see what we find."

But the office telephone rang then, and the sheriff had a call to an accident scene across town. He stood up, donning his huge sombrero.

"You just make yourself at home, son. Study this book till I get back and see what you can find."

"Thank you, sir. I will."

For nearly an hour Franklin searched. It wasn't hard to compare his photographed fingerprints—he had taken them from both the door and the inside of the bank vault in Goldcrest, without letting the others there know it—with those of wanted men and women in the sheriff's big book.

But the search availed nothing for a wearisome while. Then he turned a page and all at once knew he had scored!

One look at the printed bulletin on it was enough. He had already virtually memorized the enlarged prints he carried, and at once he recognized their duplicate. A thumb and three fingers loomed unmistakably there above type notice and under a man's portrait. Above it all was a large heading:

"REWARD! $1000 will be paid for the capture, dead or alive, of Carl Quait, pictured here, wanted for payroll robbery in Los Angeles in December, 1938, and for subsequent murder while escaping prison. The reward will be doubled if any major portion of the stolen money is recovered also, or for information leading to its recovery, regardless of capture of the outlaw. Quait is a man of fair complexion, 5 feet 8 inches tall."

The description was detailed, and the bulletin showed a clear front and side view of the man's face, sharp prison photos. Franklin's pulse quickened with excitement. He studied the two sets of fingerprints with minute care, over and over. Unmistakably they matched. Every other detail fit in, too. The missing money, the first flight in an automobile toward the east, and subsequent capture of the man in Salt Lake City. Quait's past history of trouble in western mining camps, everything.

"And now, by George, he's running loose!" Franklin whispered to himself there at the sheriff's desk. "With all the publicity Goldcrest has been getting, he's sure to try for that money. He's just bound to, any moment! He'll think he had the vault safely locked, but he'll be afraid the new owners will try to have it forced open. He probably picked the lock himself—no, maybe he knew the combination. It says here he worked once for the Western M. and M. Good jumping grief!"

He sat there five minutes more, thinking, gazing at Quait's pictured face. He'd have to hurry back and warn Roselee and Christine and Dick. Some inner sense of duty and convention told him he ought to wait and lay the whole matter before the sheriff; but another urge—perhaps it was adventure lust and youthful self-confidence—told Franklin to keep his knowledge secret for a while longer at least.

He left the sheriff's office and started back to Goldcrest in a hurry.

Newspaper Employes Arrested In Drive

PARIS, July 15 (AP)—Premier Daladier's counterspionage drive which already has led to arrest of two employes of two of the most conservative and important newspapers of Paris, appeared today to be aimed at a complete clean-up of prominent pro-Nazi in the capital.

Although the war ministry remained silent almost every Paris newspaper carried the names of Lays Aubin, chief news editor of the conservative Le Temps, and J. Polrier, an employe of the advertising department of the equally conservative morning newspaper Le Figaro, as the two under arrest.

They were held on secret indictments issued under new decrees laws covering espionage.

Newspapers agreed that "more arrests are imminent."

Le Figaro carried a statement concerning Polrier, but Le Temps, whose offices were closed over the Bastille day holiday, reserved any comment for its own editions appearing tomorrow. Le Figaro acknowledged Polrier's arrest, but said he had no connection with its editorial operation or policy.

The independent afternoon newspaper Paris Soir said the chief contact between Berlin and the Frenchmen under suspicion was an Austrian countess whose title and connections enabled her to circulate freely in Paris salons.

This countess, cited by a number of other newspapers as well, was reported to have gone to Germany before she could be arrested by French agents.

West Texas Union Army Veteran Dies

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn., July 15 (AP)—Jacob J. Short, 80-year-old veteran of the Union army in the war between the States, died today in Soldiers' home after a brief illness.

A former Indian fighter and deputy U. S. marshal in West Texas, Short remained active until recently.

Only last week he was awarded a "certificate of progress" by a WPA adult education school in which he enrolled "to show up some of my friends from 40 to 50 years of age who think they are too old to learn anything."

Publicity given his enrollment in the school resulted in receipt of a letter from Judge D. B. Jay of Mentone, Texas, who claimed to be Short's grandson.

Civilization At Stake In China, Says Senator King

By SENATOR ELBERT D. THOMAS
 Democrat, Utah
 "Pinch-Hitting for Preston Grover, on vacation).

WASHINGTON, July 15—In 1854 Japan was opened to world trade. Persons of the west therefore assume that her strength and her progress should be measured from that date to the present.

Japan became a significant world power during the World War. But Japan had been a very powerful state, maintaining an advanced civilization and culture for hundreds of years. When Japan closed her doors to the foreigners it was deliberate. Christian missionaries and foreign traders had access to Japan during the 16th century when the people of Europe were spreading over the globe.

Japan did not like the foreign contact and its probable political significance. So she turned her back on the west and adopted a foreign policy copied from China whose theory was represented by the Chinese wall—the world's greatest monument to a foreign policy.

When Japan decided to make herself a national state on a western model, she accepted western theory of conquest and control which was so popular among the imperialistic states of Europe during the last half of the 19th century. Japan now is conspicuous in the continued application of this theory and in her attempts to be imperialistic according to western fashion as it was revealed to her.

NEW LAW OF WAR
 Her actions seemed crude to us for two reasons: First, her imitation is two generations behind our times. Second, the west evolved along with her conquests a semblance of respect for a doctrine of the Law of War which recognized certain rights and certain protections for women and children and other non-combatants.

Japan, too, accepted that theory and had respect for it during her wars with China and Russia and in the World War. But since her attack on Chapel she has not respected that law. Japan justifies her acts today on a theory which evolved as a result of the World War: That as nations no longer fight with armies alone, but use every available instrument of destruction, therefore the victims of war are not just to be soldiers but potential soldiers and all who contribute directly or indirectly to the success of the military.

The curse to civilization as a result of the war in the Far East will be heavy indeed for the world to bear if the Chinese, when they start fighting back, accept this doctrine of promiscuous destruction. The military state of China in formation today is being built from the ground up. One of the most complete military nationalisms the world has ever known is being founded.

That nationalism may be built upon hate of the Japanese, because in Japan are centered all of the grievances that China during the last three or four generations has had against foreigners. Japan's attempt to dominate may thus result in a crushing loss to her own prestige and power. This should be avoided not only for Japan's sake, but for the world's sake.

THEORIES OF PEACE
 Fundamental theories and institutions of both Japan's and China's culture are built upon theories of peace, economic democracy within the nations and restraint. If Asia's bulk of populations is to be turned into a mass of hate the world has indeed a concern of the most gigantic magnitude to cope with.

China's great generalissimo has so far kept his people and his armies under restraint. That the adjustment in the Far East shall come before there is a change in this policy should be the endeavor of all friends of world peace and welfare.

The war in China today is one of the saddest and in many respects one of the most useless, but its direful consequences may be even more terrible. If Japan should get control of all that the ordinary man calls China, Japan will govern territory one and two-thirds the size of our own country with a population

Last Week Of Court Will Begin Monday

Summer term of Gray county 31st judicial district court will go into its eighth and next to final week tomorrow morning, designated as civil jury week subject to criminal actions.

District Judge W. R. Ewing said Saturday there were no criminal cases left on the docket to be tried in the present term and that this week would be taken up with civil jury and non-jury matters and that the final week, beginning a week from tomorrow, would be devoted entirely to non-jury matters.

The Gray county grand jury will convene a week from tomorrow for its final session of the current court term, Judge Ewing stated.

Chief business on the court calendar for tomorrow will be the habeas corpus proceedings in the case of Dixie Lee Chambers versus J. B. Barrett, et al. The case is one to be heard before a jury in an effort to establish custody of a 17-month-old child.

The following persons have been summoned to report for jury service in district court tomorrow morning:

E. G. Frasier, Pampa; George F. Moore, LeFors; S. L. Humphreys, McLean; O. P. Blackwell, Groom; C. H. Lively, Pampa; Jack Campbell, LeFors; Charles Cousins, McLean; E. J. Ayer, Pampa; E. P. Eason, LeFors.

about four times the number of ours.

If such a mass of people is exploited and crushed, world economics will be retarded for a generation. If they are organized for military conquest, world peace will be impossible.

hiccupper Gets Many 'Cures' For Disease

OAKLAND, Calif., July 15 (AP)—Patrolman Ed O'Connor of Butte, Mont., hiccupping for nine weeks, now knows most of the "cures" ever thought of for his plight—but he still hiccupps.

Patently trying a California doctor's diet treatment on his vacation here, O'Connor was advised in a flood of telegrams and letters from all over the nation to try such sure-fire remedies as:

Swallowing a spoonful of sugar soaked with chiniform, sipping whiskey, a mustard plaster on the stomach, a full glass of champagne, eating a big lemon on an empty stomach.

"I'd be dead (hic) if I tried (hic) them all," groaned O'Connor.

He said he was still following closely the special diet regimen prescribed by a Berkeley physician, but he can't "see much improvement."

The doctor insists, however, he believes the diet will cure him.

As high as $50 each is paid for frogs for breeding purposes.
