Food Handler Opposes Cost Of Blood Test

$3 Too Much Says Owner Of White Way Drive Inn

Pampa's food handlers ordinance, that requires a health certificate and a blood test once each six months of such workers, drew a protest yesterday from John Vantine of the White Way Drive Inn, 618 West Foster.

Appearing before the city commission at its regular weekly meeting, Vantine criticized the $3 charge semi-annually for the health certificate and test of each food handler, claiming that doctors other than the city health physician were willing to do the work for $2.

Members of the city commission answered his complaint by stating they had no reason to prepare the ordinance on the basis of tests by the city physician only, other than to keep a check on the enforcement of the law.

Commissioner Iann Boyd pointed out the difficulty of keeping any sort of record on the ordinance's enforcement if any doctor over the county or in other counties was permitted to give the test in compliance with the ordinance. He claimed it was necessary to make some one person responsible and that it would be impossible to affix the responsibility on all the doctors in the county.

The discussion further revealed the commission's claim that the fee charged was proper, inasmuch as $1 was charged for the certificate and $2 for the blood test. Vantine told the commission that his reason for appearing before them was to secure a lower fee if possible. He said in the course of a year he employed 87 persons, including extras, and though the workers paid the fee, what affected them was the cost as their employer.

Russia Continues To Roar Angriily At Little Finland

MOSCOW, Nov. 29 (AP)—Soviet Russia's smouldering dispute with Finland was fanned today by reports of fresh border clashes in which the Red army was said to have repulsed with machine-guns Finnish troops attempting to cross the frontier.

Finnish artillery was accused of sending shells screaming across the border and new Russian troops were reported dispatched to reinforce frontier garrisons already estimated by observers at almost 1,000,000 men.

Reports from Helsinki indicate Finland has approximately 400,000 men under arms—more than one-tenth of the nation's population.

The Communist party newspaper Pravda disclosed that naval reservists had been called up for training and service in the Baltic fleet. While the press made new attacks upon Finland, workers and soldiers adopted resolutions containing such phrases as "it is time to exterminate the puny bug which dares to threaten the Soviet" and "the Red army will exterminate the bandits and give a lesson to the scoundrels."

Three Finns were captured in one clash, the radio asserted, but there was no repetition of the casualties reported Sunday when the Russians said, 13 Red soldiers were killed or wounded by Finnish cannon.

3 Men And Woman Face Charges Of Highway Robbery

In a dramatic, story-book finish, a "hunch" of Sheriff Cal Rose, based on a slim clue, led to what officers believe is the solution of three robberies that have occurred in Gray, Donley, and Hansford counties in the past month and a half.

Held in county jail here today were Carlyle Shelton, 20, Skellytown, Hubert Cisco, 22, Skellytown, Frank Agee, 30, White Deer, each charged with robbery with firearms. A fourth man, Ray Reames, 29, of White Deer is being held in jail on a charge of highway robbery.

Reames has been charged in alleged connection with the robbery of four Oklahoma tourists on the Will Rogers highway east of Alameda on the night of November 16.

Woman Held In Case The three other men are charged in alleged connection with the Alameda robbery, and held here in the robbery of a filling station at Clarendon on the night of November 4, and the filling station at Spearman at 8:20 o'clock last Saturday night, according to County Attorney Joe Gordon.

Sheriff Rose left this morning for Oetesa, where a woman, Lois Oliver, is being held in jail. The woman has been charged here with robbery with firearms, the county attorney said.

The incidents that led to the arrests were as dramatic as any found in any detective story. Shortly after the robbery of the tourists near Alameda, Sheriff Rose in a conversation with two Texas Rangers concerning the description of one of the robbers given by the tourists found that the Rangers had observed a man answering that description.

The Rangers had noticed the man driving on the highway and had noted the license number of the car, 945-431. The automobile, a 1937 black Ford coach, was owned by Ace.

Prior to their conversation with the sheriff, the Rangers had no knowledge of the Alameda hijacking. They had learned the license number of the car and had taken note of the description of the driver, as the car was being driven peculiarly at the time," the Rangers reported.

From the description given by the Rangers and the description given by the tourists, Sheriff Rose put two and two together, and the sheriff's "hunch" led to the arrests.

Sooner Town Favors Idea Of Food Stamps

SHAWNEE, Okla., Nov. 29 (AP)—So far as Shawnee is concerned, Uncle Sam had a good idea when he hit upon a food stamp plan to divert surplus commodities to underfed members of his national family.

Increasing popularity of the plan here has been reflected by stamps sales which climbed from $19,581 the first month of the experiment to $28,620 the third month. Total sales during the 90-day period the plan has been in operation are $72,677 and the stamps now are as familiar as tax taken in any Pottawatomia county grocery store.

Participation in the plan, entirely voluntary, has increased from 59.3 per cent of the eligible families in the first month to 72.8 per cent in the third month.

Strike Ends As Chrysler Hikes Wages

Workers And Firm Lost $117,000,000 In Shutdown

DETROIT, Nov. 29 (AP)—The longest and costliest labor dispute in automotive history, a 54-day deadlock between Chrysler corporation and the CIO United Automobile Workers, ended today with agreement on terms of a new working contract.

Gain in production by union locals was needed to put the contract into effect and start 58,000 Chrysler hourly employes and an estimated 92,000 others in sales departments, and motive parts plants, rubber and glass industries affected by the long shutdown of Chrysler operations, back to work tomorrow.

Chrysler spokesmen said automobiles would be rolling off their assembly lines by Friday and that all plants would operate Monday.

Informed sources said the new contract, supplanting one which expired Sept. 30, provided:

A general wage increase of three cents an hour for all Chrysler workers and an added increase for employes in Chrysler's Marysville, Mich., and Newcastle, Ind., plants, the total increase estimated to be about $5,000,000 annually.

Establishment of a four-man reviewing board, two members from the UAW-CIO and two from the corporation, to settle any grievances incapable of adjustment through the routine procedure, with a provision that an impartial mediator mutually agreed on by the four members may be called in as a last resort.

Standard of production to be set by the management with the workers permitted to carry objections through the grievance procedure.

Agreement by the Congress of Industrial Organizations that its foremen's union will not renew a request for bargaining and will not organize Chrysler foremen during the one-year term of the contract.

No union shop in any form, but the UAW-CIO is recognized as sole bargaining agent in the eleven plants covered by the contract. (The union has demanded a provision which would require all Chrysler

Johnston Hurt As Machine Overturns

S. H. Johnston, an employe of the Standoil Oil and Gasoline company, was seriously injured this morning when the car he was driving hit a slick place in the road and turned over near the Skelly Gasoline plant, six miles west of the city.

Mr. Johnston was admitted to a local hospital for treatment of head injuries, a broken shoulder, and concussion of the brain. His condition is considered serious, an attending physician stated this afternoon.

He was taken to the hospital in a Clay Funeral Home ambulance.

Nazi Bomber Brought Down Near England

LONDON, Nov. 29 (AP)—An air battle between British combat planes and a lone German raider over the northeast coast of England today resulted in bringing down the Nazi plane at sea, a British announcement said.

British fighters rose to meet the raider when it was sighted approaching the Northumberland coast.

Coastal residents lining the shore watched the battle. After the invader fell a 12-man crew was unable to find a trace of the plane's occupants.

Another British steamer, the 1,023-ton Rubislaw, was added to the list of mine victims of the British coast. The Rubislaw sank yesterday two minutes after striking an explosive. Four injured survivors were rescued by a minesweeper and 13 others were reported killed.

Three Scottish areas were excited by aerial activity today although no raid alarms were sounded. Planes were seen over the Firth of Forth, an air battle was reported over the southwest Scottish town and a plane, seen over another town, was identified as German.

An air ministry announcement identified the Northumberland raider as a German Heinkel plane which "dived vertically into clouds toward the sea."

Another authoritative account said the Nazi plane dove into the sea "with clouds of smoke trailing behind and both guns silenced."

New Blockade Planned Cryptic radio instructions from the admiralty put British warships on the alert today for the scheduled start of the new total blockade against Germany Monday.

The air ministry, meanwhile, reiterated all its planes had returned safely after machine-gunning three mine-laying seaplanes yesterday at Borkum, an island base off the northwestern coast of Germany.

War Flashes

By WITT HANCOCK MOSCOW, Nov. 29. (AP)—Hopes of a peaceful settlement of the Russian-Finnish dispute increased today with receipt of reports that Finnish troops had been ordered withdrawn from the Russian border.

(Helsinki dispatches said Finnish patrols had been withdrawn at some points to avoid clashes with the Russians.)

It was hoped the issue could be settled by negotiation, one unofficial but well-informed Soviet source said, although Russia is already so far committed to acquisition of Finnish territory on the Isthmus of Karelia, opposite Leningrad, that she was expected to insist on getting it.

This informed source said that Russia, despite the violence of the Soviet propaganda campaign attacking Finland, does not want war but rather a resumption of negotiations through which she could win concessions from the Finns.

BELGRADE, Nov. 29. (AP)—Yugoslavia agreed today to ship goods to Germany as payment of interest on debts incurred before the World War by Serbia and Bosnia, which subsequently became part of the Yugoslav kingdom.

The agreement was reached after a 14-day discussion between the Yugoslav government and a German commission. There had been reports of German pressure.

LONDON, Nov. 29. (AP)—An informed British source said today that at least 23 raiding German planes had been shot down over or near British territory since the Nazi air force raided the Firth of Forth area Oct. 16.

No Scenery Will Be Used In 'Our Town'

The most unusual play ever produced on any stage, "Our Town," by Thornton Wilder is now in rehearsal each evening at Pampa high school auditorium and will be presented there Thursday, Dec. 7 and Friday, Dec. 8.

The astonishing characteristic of the play is that it will be staged on a barren stage which will be entirely bereft of scenery except for a trellis and a ladder. Extravagant use of pantomime is necessary by the actors.

For the first three acts the play gives a fascinating, lucid and enjoyable picture of life in a small New England town; births, deaths, marriages occur. You meet the town gossip and what they gossip about. In the last act, Author Wilder who once won a Pulitzer prize for his novel, "The Bridge of San Luis Rey," delves into metaphysics, and what happens to people after they die. However, it seems perfectly natural to hear "First Dead Woman," "Second Dead Woman," "First Dead Man," speaking about life and death in that last act.

We will close at noon Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 30th. Motor Inn Auto Supply.

5 to 8 minutes isn't "such a much" unless your cold engine is straining that long without prompt lubrication. And how much worse when you figure that less than a dozen cold starts a day threaten all of an hour's lubrication delay. In the course of the Winter that could exceed 90 hours of risky slow-motion oiling... that's what—90 hours!

Let's be sensible and not just hope blindly that 90 hours or even half that won't hurt. The way to avoid the worst chance of harm is to change today to OIL-PLATING. Automatically your engine becomes OIL-PLATED as you drive from Your Mileage Merchant's Conoco station with a fill of his Conoco Germ Processed oil—patented. The basic patents cover the use of a rare man-made substance that goes into this Germ Processed oil to effect the close union or bond between the oil and the engine parts. Like chrome-plating on the bumpers, OIL-PLATING in the engine can't drain down every time the car stands, and therefore OIL-PLATING isn't waiting to be restored "from scratch" every time you start up again. How different from oils that can only flow fast! Surely OIL-PLATING must beat them to it. In advance of any flow, it's there! This drain-proof slippy

WAGNER REGIMENTATION AND HITLERISM

Liberty—By Bernard Macfadden Labor leaders have been warned on this page on various occasions that the time would come when they would heap curses on the Wagner Act.

President Green has criticized this act a number of times, and now President Lewis, former enthusiastic supporter of this legislation, is caustic in his comments.

Labor wanted certain privileges, and if they were not secured, legal compulsion was demanded. The workers wanted laws to control business and labor to carry out their desires, but you cannot keep your cake and eat it too.

Now the Wagner Act is Fascism pure and simple. It represents a control of business and labor closely allied to that which is now in vogue in Italy and Germany. It is just another name for Hitlerism.

Under the restrictions of the present law the employers' rights are ignored, and the employees are given many privileges that are surely unconstitutional.

Favoritism is a dangerous two-edged weapon. It is all right as long as your group is receiving the favors, but when the situation changes, it is irritating beyond description.

And laws should be made not for the use of one particular group of officials representing one party, but they should demand justice for the citizens regardless of which party is in power.

The present administration has favored labor beyond the wildest dreams of the most fanatical labor leader. But how about the officials of the next administration? Are they likely to be just as liberal toward the workers?

Every intelligent worker knows the situation may be reversed. The favoritism pendulum of the political clock may swing one way, allowing unusual privileges, and then it is likely to swing in the opposite direction.

If we give capital too much power, it takes selfish advantage of labor. When we give labor too much power, similar mistakes are made.

The commission which has been enforcing the restrictions of the Wagner Act has in some cases been prosecutor, judge, and jury, and many of their decisions have been biased to a scandalous degree.

It is the desire of some of our government officials to place all workers in one union. They want to control business and industrial activities of all kinds, and naturally they want the C. I. O. and the A. F. of L. to join forces.

Through the American system, our workers have earned wages and maintained a standard of living unequalled in any other country in the world, and the Wagner Act is entirely foreign to our system, and it will closely ally us, both employer and employee, to the "boose step" of Europe.

There is nothing new in any of Mr. Magill's comparisons. The trouble is merely that the Administration and a large section of public opinion still completely fail to recognize their implications.

This week the National Economy League made a similar set of comparisons. The rate of spending in the World War, it pointed out in addition, was $15,000,000,000 a year. Today the cost of war has perhaps doubled, which means that if we became involved in war today we should have to spend $30,000,000,000 a year, without counting any loans to foreign governments.

avoid accidental entanglement in a new war. But the other is to put ourselves in a state of financial preparedness instead of financial chaos if war should be threatened in spite of all our safeguards.

Sharing The Comforts Of Life

THE LEAST UNDERSTOOD PART OF COLLECTIVE BARGAINING

The principle on which all collective bargaining contracts are based is what the public least understands.

That principle is based on preventing, by one means or another, part of the supply of workers from having the right to learn and/or work at the kind of work they believe is to their advantage.

Practically every advocate of collective bargaining will repeatedly deny this. They will camouflage, misrepresent this statement because they know that this principle is unDemocratic, un-Christian and unAmerican.

As evidence of the corrections of the above restrictions I proposed to an advocate of collective bargaining to leave it to any three professors of logic at any college in California, that if my statements were not sustained I would forfeit one hundred dollars, if they were he would forfeit one dollar.

Invariably collective bargaining groups prevent other workers from participating in collective bargaining groups in some camouflaged way.

The printers union, for instance, will repeatedly contend they want all efficient printers to join the union. And they do, because if they do not get them into the union, they cannot get an arbitrary price for their labor.

And to limit the source of supply is equivalent to limiting the supply. Of course, if the supply is limited, they can admit all that are capable, but things that are equal to the same thing are equal to each other.

This is the only possible way that they can temporarily improve the lot of their own workers. There is no other way.

The columns of this newspaper are open to any collective bargaining advocate to explain any other possible way that they can improve the lot of their workers.

And yet, in face of this indictment that classifies every collective bargaining contract as un-American and unChristian and unDemocratic, we now have men in Federal offices, in State offices in California, who are passing laws to encourage collective bargaining contracts.

GERMANY AND THE REPEAL OF THE ARMS EMBARGO If war planes can be flown across the ocean, then why is Germany not on just as good a basis as far as air warfare under the letting down of the bars of selling war instruments, as England is?

Behind The News Of The Day

WASHINGTON—Correspondence from far behind the front: Any farmers who get war frenzy over the prospect that the war may bring higher prices can't blame the Department of Agriculture.

Scarcely a piece of farm mail goes out for general distribution that doesn't warn farmers that war holds nothing but misery and deception for them. The last war brought riches for many who plowed up the plains for grain. The grains, say the department, have been lost a thousandfold in dust storms, ruined farms and foreclosed mortgages.

Secretary Wallace is himself a one-man peace movement. He rarely passes a press conference without trying to get out a message to farmers that there is nothing for them in the war business.

Look magazine says 21 out of 50 Washington correspondents interviewed think the United States is an even bet to get in the war and 12 more figured it is an odds-on bet that we will.

Look didn't ask us, but except on blue Monday, we say devil take the war, a pox on both their houses and let them pull their own chestnuts out of the fire.

Spectators still get a kick out of the daily life told in the Supreme Court. At 12 o'clock noon a muffled buzzer is heard from behind the mile-high red velvet draperies back of the nine empty black-upholstered chairs. In a majestic ballet the justices file out through the curtains, three through the center led by Chief Justice Hughes and three from either end.

When the President is away from the White House, as he is during Thanksgiving, the secret service and police guard continues only slightly abated. We have into the executive office while the President was at Hyde Park and were confronted by two White House cops in uniform and two of the Secret Service in business suits.

Around Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD—Apologies for offering an essay with whiskers, but it does seem that beards have cropped up too much of late.

Beards have always been a movie problem. Even before Orson Welles tempted the razor wits of sundry beard-belters, they were with us as a bristling question.

The recent Goldwyn-Metro tiff over Walter Brennan's chinshield was merely another chapter in the controversy, crux of which is to beard or not to beard.

Mr. Metro wanted Brennan (smooth) you see around the sets. This year, particularly, has been so good for westerns that many a razor has been put away until parlor drama makes a comeback.

Stars never have to bother about earning capacity, but their whiskers are thorns from time to time. Remember the upheaval about a bearded Gable for "Parnell"—when Gable wanted whiskers and the studio, abetted by a horror-stricken army of women idolaters, said no?

Horror of beards dates back to silent films when a hero could live in the jungle for years and remain clean-shaven, just as a heroine after an ocean dunking could come up smiling, each golden curl in place.

Continuance of the shut-down in drilling wells of the Marland-Finley Pool and in the LF's area for another 60 days was indicated.

Five years ago today Thanksgiving day brought success to the annual Red Cross roll call, it was announced by Jim Collins, roll call chairman.

Two women patients in an asylum were walking through the grounds, discussing the difficulties of such confinement and one said the thing to which she objected most was that there were no men about the place.

The lanky sharp-nosed mountaineer dragged his gangling youngster down the hills to the district school in the heart of the worst feud county in Kentucky.

These congenital malformations, incidentally, include also cases in which infants were born with hearts already attacked by disease. These cases are not listed under heart disease.

The list of abnormal and defective conditions which result in human beings because of something wrong with the egg cells is exceedingly long. There are all sorts of abnormalities like failure of the parts to grow together as occurs in harelip, and failure even of the tissues of the heart to develop before birth as they should so that this organ may function.

Children are sometimes born with some of the vital organs actually outside the body. Then again, babies are born with the brain filled with fluid or with the brain insufficiently developed so that it becomes impossible for the child to live.

Included in the list of causes of death are all sorts of injuries at birth, infections that take place almost at the time of birth, inability of the child to use his food and in many instances unsuitable conditions of the body of the mother so that the child does not develop. All of these conditions are included under the heading of congenital malformations and abnormalities.

Here, again, there is little that modern science can do to prevent these causes or to lower the mortality rate.

Yet, unquestionably, as we learn more about heredity and genetics, we attempt to control scientifically the marriages of those who are almost certain to produce defective children, as we control diseases which act on the child before birth, and as we establish widespread prenatal care for mothers, there will be a declining incidence of deaths due to congenital abnormalities and defects.

So They Say Lack of system and consistency has been a great advantage to the Nazis with their extreme opportunism. They can neglect, discard, emphasize and add as the occasion demands.

PRIME MINISTER NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN Right now, the best thing I can do is to do the best job I can in the job I'm in.

THERE are rumors in Washington that no tax increases are planned for the coming session of Congress. Will you pass the smelling salts, please? As an economy measure, taxes hurriedly turned instead of hastily increasing popular war games. Maybe a little thrift among belligerent would simplify things.

The U. S. birth rate has been declining for more than a century, but the actual number of births started to decline in 1921. There were 2,300,000 in 1934, as compared to 3,000,000 in 1921.

Texas, due to its position, size and shape, has a great variety of climatic conditions. It has mountains, plains, forests and seacoasts, embracing an area of 265,596 square miles, which is 8 per cent of the whole country.

There are two sets of statistical data, recently released by Washington, that are extremely revealing. One has to do with unemployment trends, the other with the steadily increasing number of Federal employees.

The data on unemployment show that the number of people unemployed—10,285,000 on September 15, 1939—is practically the same as in 1932 at which time the index of production was at its lowest point.

Perhaps a good way to make clear some of the implications in these figures is to quote some of the statements made by Mr. Roosevelt in the campaign of 1932:

"It is in the field of Federal Government that the office of President can, of course, make itself most directly and definitely felt. Every dollar of the steady rise in the number of Federal employees—may be even more ominous. In September, a new record in the number of Federal employees was reached—939,876. This is above the high mark of 918,000 of the World War (Nov. 11, 1918), a figure that was passed by this government last June. The present figure is more than double that of 1913.

To those who have believed that the unemployment situation is as bad as it was in 1932. To those of us who believe that there is no adequate substitute for a good job, these figures on the persistence of a phenomenally high rate of unemployment constitute a devastating indictment of many of the major features of New Dealism.

During these seven years we have been deluged with professions of unusual concern for the underdog and the unemployed and with all sorts of short-cut nostrums alleged to be of aid to them. And what are the results? The unemployment situation is equal to that of 1932, and nearly four times as bad as that of 1929 and 1930.

Those who have resented the re-employment of 1929-1932, would do well to look at the unemployment that has persisted since 1932. These figures should have sobering effects. They might even lead the ardent and presumably unintentional perpetrators of unemployment to consider the accuracy of those observations made by the European economist, Wilhelm Ropke, as to what a government's policy should be if it is to aid an expansion in business.

A policy of aiding business expansion, said Ropke, "must be combined with a general economic policy which, marked by circumspection and sober consideration for continuity, is susceptible of inspiring confidence and optimism. A riotous political atmosphere, legislation, economic rigidity, uncertainty, instability, chaotic boasting of orthodoxy in economics and politics, legal insecurity, and lack of respect for contractual obligations—all these are fatal for a policy of expansion."

When Ropke said that in 1936, he had his eye on the New Deal policies, but the reader is left to decide as to just how far the governmental policies which Ropke says are "fatal for a policy of expansion" have been characteristic of New Dealism.

The other set of figures—the post the steady rise in the number of Federal employees—may be even more ominous. In September, a new record in the number of Federal employees was reached—939,876. This is above the high mark of 918,000 of the World War (Nov. 11, 1918), a figure that was passed by this government last June. The present figure is more than double that of 1913.

WAR STORIES IN STAMPS

Red Cross Answers Plea To Relieve War Suffering THE firing of the first gun on the German-Polish war front was the signal for the International Red Cross to go into action.

Already the American Red Cross has answered Poland's appeal for help with a $50,000 shipment of hospital tents, drugs and blankets.

Devoted to a single cause—to press forward, in a human and truly civilized spirit, the attempt to prevent, or at least alleviate, the horrors of war—this vast organization of 20 million members works on both sides of the battle lines, in prison camps and refugee centers.

Sixty-two nations have signed the treaty which guarantees protection of Red Cross workers. Other international pacts are crapped and forgotten, but this one remains inviolate. Swift, world-wide condemnation follows any real or alleged violation.

The Red Cross was organized 75 years ago by a Swiss, Henri Dunant, and its development was rapidly advanced through the efforts of Florence Nightingale, a British nurse, and an American, Clara Barton, the Civil War "Angel of the Battlefields." Nurse Barton waged a long fight for America's participation in the Red Cross.

The 75th anniversary of the founding of the Red Cross was commemorated by the recent French semi-postal, above, showing Florence Nightingale.

To those of us who believe that there is no adequate substitute for a good job, these figures on the persistence of a phenomenally high rate of unemployment constitute a devastating indictment of many of the major features of New Dealism.

During these seven years we have been deluged with professions of unusual concern for the underdog and the unemployed and with all sorts of short-cut nostrums alleged to be of aid to them. And what are the results? The unemployment situation is equal to that of 1932, and nearly four times as bad as that of 1929 and 1930.

Those who have resented the re-employment of 1929-1932, would do well to look at the unemployment that has persisted since 1932. These figures should have sobering effects. They might even lead the ardent and presumably unintentional perpetrators of unemployment to consider the accuracy of those observations made by the European economist, Wilhelm Ropke, as to what a government's policy should be if it is to aid an expansion in business.

A policy of aiding business expansion, said Ropke, "must be combined with a general economic policy which, marked by circumspection and sober consideration for continuity, is susceptible of inspiring confidence and optimism. A riotous political atmosphere, legislation, economic rigidity, uncertainty, instability, chaotic boasting of orthodoxy in economics and politics, legal insecurity, and lack of respect for contractual obligations—all these are fatal for a policy of expansion."

When Ropke said that in 1936, he had his eye on the New Deal policies, but the reader is left to decide as to just how far the governmental policies which Ropke says are "fatal for a policy of expansion" have been characteristic of New Dealism.

McLean Boxing Team To Begin Training

Special To The NEWS McLEAN, Nov. 29—After the Thanksgiving holidays work for the McLean High school boxing team will begin in earnest, according to Orville Cunningham, boxing coach. Local interest in boxing has been increasing the last few years, and an embryonic movement is on foot to form a regular boxing conference, with schedules and district title-holders similar to those of football and basketball.

- 1. Crain, Texas—86 carries for 667 yards and 6.94 average. 2. Conatser, Aggies—47 carries for 225 yards and 4.72 average. 3. Thomason, Aggies—14 carries for 66 yards and 4.71 average. 4. Moser, Aggies—74 carries for 380 yards and 4.64 average. 5. Kimbrough, Aggies—125 carries for 461 yards and 3.68 average.

In putting on a remarkable display of talent against Notre Dame, Southern California convinced the athletic director, saw the big show in Notre Dame Stadium. Southern California should hurdle Washington and UCLA. Tennessee figures to come through its games with Kentucky and Auburn with its perfect record intact. Thus the stage would be set for what appears to be the greatest of all Tournament of Roses games.

Director J. Curtis Sanford calmly announced that plans were going right ahead for a game and said "we might have our teams definitely picked within a week or ten days." Down at College Station, where the unbeaten Texas Aggies tomorrow meet University of Texas, Coach Homer Norton had nothing to say regarding any bowl bid.

It was believed certain that the Aggies had received strong feelers from both the Rose and Sugar Bowls. The Aggies previously had announced they would not play in Dallas' Cotton Bowl game, but Sanford hasn't given up hope.

West Texas Will Play Texas A. And I. For Title (By The Associated Press) West Texas State and Texas A. and I. clash at Kingsville tomorrow for the Alamo Conference championship in the feature game of the final week of play for Texas colleges.

There are 33 games on the schedule for this week, 29 of them counting in conference standings. All but four will be played Thanksgiving day. These are: Wednesday—Clemson at Bryan, Harlandale (San Antonio) at Laredo, Austin (Houston) vs. Sam Houston (Houston); Friday—Kerrville at Austin.

McLean, however, will play Shamrock on Tuesday, December 2, at Shamrock, for its conference opener. While it is yet too early to make accurate predictions, Coach Dunlap is enthusiastic over the chances of the Tigers this season. Most of last year's regulars will be back, and the weak spots reinforced by new men in their first year of competition. This optimism, however, must be necessarily contingent upon the results of actual play.

Oil Industry Astonished At Crude Demand

By EDWARD CURTIS TULSA, Okla., Nov. 29 (AP)—The oil industry was confronted today with this paradox—a weak gasoline market and a strong crude demand.

The crude buyers also noted a growing demand for special classifications of oil. The gallonage of Midwestern gasoline sales continued well above the previous year, due partly to fine motoring weather—a weak gasoline market, however, was reported drab and unsettled with jobbers moving cautiously.

The continued activity in Mississippi and Illinois held the spotlight in field work. In Illinois, the fifth producing horizon, the St. Louis, apparently was definitely proved in the Salem field.

The Lyons gas field of Rice county, (Kas.) got its first oil producer, flowing about nine barrels an hour from Simpson along with about a million cubic feet of gas.

SERIAL STORY

5 WOULD KILL

BY TOM HORNER

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY Dawson studied the papers. He came to the one that said Benthorpe had been killed. He had a feeling that she was Benthorpe's carter in the evening. She came to kill him, but Mrs. Benthorpe interrupted her meeting. Dawson asks why she wanted to kill Benthorpe. Slowly she answers: "He was my father!"

CHAPTER XIII

FOR a moment there was silence as Ara's words seemed to echo throughout the room.

The girl did bear a resemblance to Benthorpe. Dawson realized now, wondering how it had escaped him. The expression of hate death had frozen on Benthorpe's face was reflected, however softened, in her features. There was the same downward slant to the corners of the mouth, the same determined set of the jaw. And Ara's almost unbreakable control, her ruthlessness of purpose—these were Benthorpe's heritage to his daughter.

"You have proof, of course?" Dawson asked, explaining, "You may share in the estate."

Ara shook her head. "I don't want his money—ever—" she said bitterly. "He offered me that... a hundred thousand to go away and never let Mrs. Benthorpe know. I laughed at him... I wanted to make him suffer as I had suffered—mother and I..."

"You must have some proof," the detective persisted, gently.

"I've plenty of proof, right here in this room," Ara answered. "Pictures, letters, a marriage certificate. They were on the desk when Mrs. Benthorpe came in. He stuffed them into a book, and put it on the shelf quickly, hoping she hadn't seen them... But I told her."

"Suppose you start at the beginning and tell me all about it. We'll get to the proofs later, if necessary." Dawson guided her to a chair, then stood over her, waiting for this unbelievable, fantastic story.

THERE was nothing sordid in Ara's account of her mother's marriage to the man the world was to know as Arnold Benthorpe. It was merely the old, old story of an impetuous daughter, and an attractive young man, and an elopement to escape parental objection.

"Mother—her name was Ara Johnson, too—" the girl began, "was the daughter of a wealthy

Montana cattleman. She was a beautiful girl, and she had a dozen proposals before she was 18. But John Douglas—Dawson glanced questioning at the young man, at the mention of the name—"really won her love."

"He was handsome, wealthy, apparently an adventurer when he came to Montana. No one could find out much about him, or where he had made his money—but that didn't bother folks out there much... He did no work, received no mail, and apparently had no interest in life until he met Ara Johnson..."

The old cowboy, Boss Johnson, had little liking for the stranger, the girl related, and less when he discovered his daughter was seeing Douglas. At last the couple eloped to Salt Lake City.

The marriage lasted three months. Then Douglas disappeared, leaving his wife penniless and alone. She was too proud to go back to her father, too independent to ask for help. She found work, first as a waitress, then in a laundry, but the hours were long and the pay small.

Ara was born in a charity ward. But the months of work, the agony of loneliness, climaxed by the death of the child, had taken too great a toll of her mother's strength.

"Before Mother died, she wrote all of this in detail. Then she put it with all her pictures of herself and her husband, her marriage certificate and some letters John Douglas had written her before their elopement. On one of them—his finger must have been smudged with ink—was an almost perfect fingerprint. She also wrote a letter to her father, in Montana."

"She left instructions that her father should be notified in case of her death and that the packet of letters should be kept for me. But something went wrong, no one ever told her father. And the packet was forgotten."

"I was raised in an orphanage. Apparently no one ever wanted to adopt me. When I was 15 I went to work as a housemaid. The family I worked for were kind and helped me all they could. It was through their efforts that I was able to trace my birth record and discover my mother."

"One of the nurses who had cared for Mother remembered her, and told me about her. She remembered the packet of letters, too, and when she learned I did not have them, she began a search that finally uncovered them in an old file cabinet, in the vault."

BUT finding her father was no simple task. Ara learned after long years of vain searching. She might have gone home to her grandfather, but finding her father became an obsession. She had been alone all of her life, a few more years could not matter.

And as those years passed any affection she might have had for her father turned to hate. Her long hours of work were blamed on him. The pleasures she was forced to forego and the hardships she endured were charged up to his neglect. Hers was a long fight, for an education, for a job, even for a living.

Detesting her father, she refused his name, adopted that of her grandfather. And all the time she waited for the clew that might lead her to her father.

It came unexpectedly.

SHE was working as cashier in a coffee shop when she first noticed him—an open-faced, red-haired, smiling youth, who paused to talk about the weather and the baseball games as he paid his check.

"Build-up for an invitation to show and supper," she warned herself. There were many such requests and invariably all met with the same smiling refusal. But this time, Ara wondered if she really wanted to class this genial young man with all the others.

For a week she watched for him each day, waited for the inevitable "How about seeing a show tonight?" But it did not come. Then late one evening, just before she was ready to quit, she looked up from counting her change into these laughing blue eyes, and that disarming grin.

"Have you lived in Salt Lake long?" he asked pleasantly.

"I was born here."

"You must know a lot of people."

"Not many, and only a few of those who really count."

"I'm looking for a man," he continued. "I don't know much about the city. I've searched for a week and I'm no farther now than when I started. You've been friendly—more so than any other person I've met—I wonder if you'd help me?"

There was no denying his straightforward appeal. "Wait outside until I'm through here. We can stop at the library, check into the directories."

Fifteen minutes later they hurried toward the library. Suddenly Ara paused. "This isn't a habit of mine, you know," she said. "But you do look honest, and I may be able to help."

"I know you can," the young man insisted. "May I introduce myself? I am John Douglas."

Texas Girl Gets Top Billing In Hollywood Debut

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 29 (AP)—A Minneapolis miss who won't be 15 until next month and a Texas girl who, spurned by studios, went to New York and sang "My Heart Belongs To Daddy" until they heard her "way out here," have achieved something of a sensation.

They made their film debuts last night in "The Great Victor Herbert," and made themselves recognized picture personalities.

Susanna Foster, 14 and blonde, achieved B flat above high C in her climactic song. In musical circles, Foster's considered quite an accomplishment. Susanna's real name, incidentally, is Suzanne Larson. Mary Martin, who comes from Weatherford, in the heart of Texas' watermelon country, finally achieved the acclaim she sought unsuccessfully a year and more ago. She proved she could sing and act. When first she came here, Hollywood showed complete disinterest.

But Mary didn't give up. She went East, found her way into a Broadway show and with her "daddy" song captured New York. The studios, characteristically, stumbled over each other trying to sign her. She shared top billing with Allan Jones, her romantic interest, and Walter Connolly, as Victor Herbert.

Chicago Livestock Show Under Way

CHICAGO, Nov. 29 (AP)—The hoofbeats of heavy horses and the bellowing of many cattle at 42nd and Halsted streets today announced that another international live stock exposition was at hand.

When the doors of the International Amphitheater are opened at 8 a. m. Saturday for the eight day show, more than 13,000 head of cattle, horses and swine will be groomed for the 40th annual exhibition.

Purebred animals were arriving by truck and train today. More will come tomorrow—enough to fill the Amphitheater's 20 acres of floor space and hundreds of pens outside.

The war in Europe, and two years of bumper crops in the United States, Manager B. H. Heide said, have combined to make this year's show the greatest in the history of the exposition.

An art-lending library from which students may rent pictures to hang on the walls of dormitory rooms, has been established at Texas Tech college. Original cost of the pictures ranges from $1.50 to $15 and will be rented for 25 to 50 cents a semester.

Pan-Europa Visualized By Chamberlain

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

The biggest news to come out of Europe in maybe a generation—bigger even than the declaration of the Hitlerian war—was contained on thumb-nail in British Premier Chamberlain's empire broadcast, if this famous allied leader meant what he seemed to mean in outlining peace terms.

A good many observers, including the writer, considered that in his brief discussion of "how we may build a new and better Europe"—a "utopian Europe," he called it—he was announcing a tentative project to make the age-old dream of a "United States of Europe" a reality in some form or other.

Such a regime would be calculated to ensure peace, security and economic stability. There would be neither war nor disputes like that between Finland and Russia under such a setup—if it met the hopes of its exponents.

The premier spoke of a Europe in which "fears of aggression would have ceased," in which "it would be recognized that there can be no lasting peace unless there is full flow of trade between the nations concerned," and in which "armaments would gradually be dropped as a useless expense, except in so far as they were needed for the preservation of internal law and order."

Forecast of some sort of federation of the various states of Europe, however, seemed to lie in this sentence:

"In such a Europe each country would have the unfettered right to choose its own form of internal government so long as that government did not pursue an external policy injurious to its neighbors."

Nazism was quick to hop on this declaration, asserting that Chamberlain's "idle prattle about a new Pan-European order of things is utopian and has no connection with realities."

The prime minister is getting old, it is true. But from my first-hand investigation in Europe within the year I believe he voices the yearning of all the peoples when he talks of peace. Let's make it stronger and say this:

The average citizens of every one of the belligerent countries in thinking of victory—as they must—were thinking of it only in terms of peace.

The idea of a Pan-Europa, or a United States of Europe, experienced something of a revival after the World War.

The scheme in general is based on the theory that economic solidarity is essential for stability and peace.

The theory is that a federation would provide security from inter-European war, would neutralize the continent in event of outside conflict, would give prospect of disarmament, and would insure the ability of member states industrially in the world's markets.

MINE WASHED ASHORE

This newly received picture shows a German mine washed up on the Danish coast during recent storms. The Nazis have contended that British mines, similarly torn from their moorings by rough seas, are responsible for the "unrestricted mine warfare" which has resulted in the sinking of belligerent and neutral merchant vessels alike off the English coast.

Some Facts About Social Security Account Numbers

Editor's Note: The following is the last of a series of four articles on the importance of social security account numbers. The information contained in the series was furnished by Dewey Reed, manager of the Amarillo field office of the Social Security Board, located at 324 New Postoffice Building. Any additional information desired by our readers concerning the social security program may be secured by calling or addressing an inquiry to the Amarillo office.

Metal Plates

Appearance on the market of metal plates and other devices carrying the nine-digit number used to identify each wage earner's old-age insurance account has been followed by a fairly widespread but erroneous belief that the Social Security Board has these devices for sale. Such is not the case. The metal plates are manufactured by private firms and the Social Security Board has nothing to do with them. In some instances purchasers of these plates have lost them and sent the amount of the purchase price to the Board, requesting that another be issued. The money has been returned in each instance.

There are also other devices to take the place of a social security account number on the market. None of them is official. A metal tag may be one practical means of keeping a permanent duplicate record of one's account number, but the Government does not require any participant in its old-age insurance system to record his number in this manner.

The Board does insist that everyone should record his social security account number in some secure place. By doing so, he will be able to find it if he should lose his account card. Each employer for whom an individual works must know the account number of each employee.

Workers may be of much assistance to employers by cooperating and assisting them in securing the account numbers of all employees. The employer must have the account numbers in order to report the wages paid to each employee and the amount of taxes deducted for old-age insurance. It will save confusion and annoyance in the future and may play an important part when the time comes to file a claim.

Magna Charta Deposited In U. S. Library

By EDDY GILMORE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29 (AP)—The eleventh Marquess of Lothian today tucked England's Magna Charta under a well-tailored arm and headed for the Library of Congress to deposit the priceless paper for safekeeping during the European war.

Archibald MacLellan, the librarian, announced the document would have the same 24-hour armed guard as that given the Constitution and the Declaration of Independence.

Historians noted the ceremonies and pointed out that time happily changes all things.

Two of the other Magna Chartas are in the British Museum and the third is in Salisbury (England) cathedral. The one which the Library of Congress is getting came from Lincoln cathedral via the New York World's fair.

Livestock Sales Market Will Be Opened At Park

A livestock sales market, operated under a one-year lease, will be established at Recreation park, under the terms of a plan tentatively agreed to by the commission at its regular weekly meeting Tuesday afternoon.

The contract and other papers in the deal were being prepared today. Final approval of the plan is expected to be made at the commission's next meeting.

Drake Funeral Held At Shamrock Friday

Special To The NEWS

SHAMROCK, Nov. 29—Funeral services were held Friday afternoon for Mrs. Francis Richardson Drake, mother of Mrs. E. A. Koger, who passed away shortly after noon Thursday at the Koger home.

Rev. Vernie Pipes, pastor of the Baptist church, conducted the rites assisted by Rev. Lance Webb and Rev. J. P. Matthews. Burial occurred in the Shamrock cemetery. Mrs. Drake had made her home with Mrs. Koger for the past six years and had many friends who were grieved to hear of her passing.

Mrs. Drake was born Feb. 23, 1859, in Macon, Ga. In 1876 she was married to Charles Drake, who preceded her in death 25 years ago. She lived at Ben Franklin, Texas, for a time and then moved to Pilot Point, where she made her home until six years ago when she moved to the home of her daughter here.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Koger, and Mrs. Bab Neal of Pilot Point, four sons, Thornton Drake of Reno, Nev., Charlie Drake of Prescott, Ariz., Breth Drake of Pawhuska, Okla., and John Drake of Jersey City, N. J.; two sisters, Mrs. Kate Simpson of Raton, N. M., and Mrs. Lundy of Gultport, Miss.

Funeral services were held at the home of Mrs. Drake on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial was in the Shamrock cemetery.

Vitamin B-1 Used To Treat Disease That Struck Gehrig

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE Associated Press Science Editor

NEW YORK, Nov. 29—Use of Vitamin B-1 to improve a case of amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, the deadly, muscle-wasting disease that struck Lou Gehrig of the New York Yankees, is announced in the medical record.

Not only has it been considered an incurable disease, but in medical literature every case always got progressively worse and worse.

The patient in the new treatment is a Canadian World War veteran. His arm, hand and leg muscles had been wasting since 1933. He had the typical dragging ankle of this malady. Speech was difficult because he could hardly move his tongue.

In March of this year the vitamin treatment was started, both by hypodermic and by mouth, and with a diet rich in Vitamin B-1.

At the end of 10 weeks, the veteran could use his tongue again and talk with ease. His ankle dragged less, and muscles in arms, legs and hands were distinctly stronger.

The report is by W. J. McCormick, M. D., of Toronto. It is the presentation of a new medical idea that Vitamin B-1 is a remedy for several kinds of paralysis, including the dreaded infantile variety, and for sleeping sickness.

He says the vitamin treatment was tried in six cases of infantile paralysis, all of which recovered. In two cases, paralysis already had started, but disappeared with recovery.

He reported six other types of muscular-nerve disease which included shaking palsy, the muscular weakness known as myasthenia gravis and two types of muscles shrivelling. In most of these, there was serious paralysis.

Vitamin B-1 treatment improved them all and enabled some who had been unable to walk to go about unaided again on their own feet.
