VOL: 89 NO: 170

Pampa, Texas

50¢ DAILY/SUNDAY $1

Low tonight in upper 20s, high tomorrow in mid 50s. See Page 2 for weather details.

PAMPA - Pampa city commissioners will meet at 4 p.m. in work session and 6 p.m. in regular session Tuesday at City Hall.

Work session is held in the third floor conference room. The regular meeting is held in the third floor city commission chambers.

The commissioners are to consider:

- Fund balance on the 1992 bond issue and funding for additional projects.

- Lovett Library Internet policy.

- Disbursements to Four R Industrial and Pampa Concrete.

- A single proposal for the operation of the Pampa municipal landfill submitted by BFL.

- Acceptance of a van donated by Central Baptist Church. It would be used to transport Jordan Unit inmates to city-endorsed work projects.

- Rescheduling the next city commission meeting to Nov. 11 (from Nov. 12) due to conflict with Texas Municipal League meeting.

- Approval of the 1996 property tax roll.

In executive session, commissioners are to consider acquisition of land and personnel - city manager.

The meeting, except for the executive session, is open to the public.

PAMPA - If preliminary early voting numbers hold true, Gray County could be in for one of its largest voter turnouts in recent memory.

In only three days, 542 early ballots were cast. Also by Friday, 106 ballots had been mailed out.

County Clerk Wanda Carter said while she only keeps records of total early votes, she believes this preliminary count portends a good turnout Nov. 5.

"My feeling is that it's a real fast start for early voting," Carter said.

In the 1992 presidential election, 4,344 total early votes were cast, while 3,351 early votes were recorded in the 1994 general election.

Early voting continues on the second floor of the courthouse through Friday, Nov. 1. The general election is Nov. 5.

No tickets correctly matched all six numbers drawn Saturday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, state lottery officials said.

The numbers drawn Saturday night from a field of 50 were: 9, 13, 16, 21, 22 and 50.

Wednesday night's drawing will be worth an estimated $12 million.

Snow forecast in Panhandle region tonight

From AP and Staff Reports

A snow advisory was in effect today for northwest sections of the Texas Panhandle with forecasters predicting that as much as 1-2 inches of snow may fall during the afternoon and early evening.

The snow advisory was in effect today for Dallam, Sherman and Hartley counties in Texas and Cimarron and Texas counties in Oklahoma.

A tornado watch was issued early today for North Central and Northeast Texas. The watch area was along and 65 statute miles on either side of a line from Brownwood to 40 miles east northeast of Longview. It was to be in effect until 1 p.m.

Forecasters say a strong upper level disturbance approaching the Panhandle will cause widespread precipitation over the Panhandle. As cold air moves southward into the region, temperatures will become cold enough to produce snow.

The cold front accompanying the upper level disturbance was moving southward across the Panhandle before dawn today, dropping temperatures into the 40s across the area.

In Pampa, the official overnight low was recorded at 43 degrees, after a high Sunday of 76. But by mid morning, the temperature had dropped into the upper 30s with light rain falling. The high was forecast to only reach into the 40s, with the low tonight dipping into the upper 20s.

Pampa had received 0.01 inch of moisture early today before the additional rain began falling after dawn.

Tuesday, though, the front is expected to move out of the area, with the highs reaching back into the 50s and then becoming warmer for Wednesday.

The snow will be limited to 1-2 inches and will mainly stick on grassy areas. It probably won't stick on roads and highways, but may stick on some bridges and overpasses, making them slick and dangerous.

In addition to the snow in the northwest Panhandle, there is a chance of rain mixed with snow in the South Plains and low rolling plains tonight.

It will be mostly cloudy and much colder across all of West Texas tonight and Tuesday.

There is a chance of widespread showers and thunderstorms tonight across North Texas with forecasters warning that some could be severe in eastern sections.

There will be scattered rain with isolated thunderstorms in central and eastern sections on Tuesday. It will also be windy and much cooler on Tuesday.

Skies will be clearing and temperatures will drop into the 30s in North Texas by dawn Wednesday.

It will be cloudy with showers and thunderstorms expected tonight in South Texas. Forecasters say some of them may reach severe levels before dawn Tuesday. It will be much cooler on Tuesday.

Lows tonight will be in the 20s in the Panhandle and in the 30s and 40s across the rest of West Texas, the upper 30s in northwestern sections and in the 40s and 50s over the rest of North Texas, the 40s in the Hill Country and in the 50s across the rest of South Texas.

Highs Tuesday will be in the 50s and 60s except in South Texas where some readings along the immediate coast may be in the lower 70s.

Highland Park is adopted by Conoco Inc. employees. Doug Ray, chairman of the work crew, is shown filling a trash bag with the help of Ron Knipp. Saturday's coordinators for Conoco, headed by Joe Faltinek as sponsor representative, along with their crew consisting of Scott Urice, his daughter Elyce and Roger Reed, were pleased with their work completed in the park. The company adopted the park three years ago in cooperation with Clean Pampa Inc.

Clean Pampa, city sponsor Adopt-A-Park city-wide clean-up project for volunteers

By SHERRY CROMARTIE
Staff Writer

Pampa volunteers participated in a city wide Adopt-A-Park clean-up Saturday, Oct. 19, as a joint venture project developed between Clean Pampa Inc. and the city's Parks and Recreation Department.

"All of the city parks are 100 percent adopted by concerned groups, helping to keep them picked up and clean throughout the seasons," said Lora Baggerman, executive director of Clean Pampa.

"We are a volunteer organization trying to put life back into a program started several years ago ... By having this special work day to clean our parks, we give recognition to the volunteer groups giving their time and energy, and at the same time, we help our citizens remember how important it is to have these beautiful parks," said Vic Cavalli, president of Clean Pampa and an employee representative of Hoechst Celanese Group.

Out of 38 city parks, approximately 14 were cleaned and picked up of trash and debris. Over 65 individuals representing different companies or volunteer organizations in Pampa provided their time and labor in this effort.

Cavalli said he is a transplant Texan from California, moving here from Dallas about about six years ago.

"We have a wonderful resource here in Pampa, and we must take care of our city and its parks. No other city I've known of has 38 parks for its citizens to enjoy, like we have here," Cavalli said.

Baggerman said she is excited about the number of sponsors who are taking responsibility, and added there is a waiting list of persons eagerly wanting to adopt parks.

She said the program was started by the non-profit organization in 1984, and is just one of the many ecological and beautification projects that Clean Pampa supports annually.

Following the clean up, a brisket luncheon was provided for the volunteers by Clean Pampa Inc. and Texaco at the Hobart Street Park, starting at 1 p.m.

Canadian union agrees to continue GM talks

TORONTO (AP) - With an agreement seemingly in reach, the striking Canadian Auto Workers Union agreed today to continue talks with General Motors past a noon deadline.

The 20-day strike by 26,000 Canadian workers has shut down General Motors operations in Canada and idled more than 18,000 workers in the United States and Mexico because of disruption to the flow of parts.

The CAW had intended to halt the talks at noon if no deal was reached, but agreed to keep talking after both sides reported that differences on the toughest issues had been resolved. The deadline was extended to 3 p.m.

"We've made some significant progress," CAW President Buzz Hargrove said during a break in marathon negotiations that had lasted more than 40 hours.

Hargrove said GM agreed to follow the example Chrysler Canada set last month by agreeing to help protect union jobs by accepting limits on outsourcing - farming out work on auto parts to less costly independent suppliers.

"On the major issue of outsourcing and the closing of the plants, we're very close," he said.

A GM spokesman, Stew Low, agreed a deal was in reach.

"We're very very close - we feel good about that," Low said. "We're just about there on those two issues."

Hargrove said there were a number of other unresolved issues that still could derail the talks, "but we're working like hell to avoid that."

Issues affecting individual plants, such as mandatory overtime, still must be resolved, he said. The union also demands that GM set up a framework for resolving some 3,000 outstanding grievances by workers at a truck plant in Oshawa, Ontario.

Low said he was optimistic a deal could be reached by the deadline.

The union has said it would pull out of the talks, at least temporarily, if today's deadline was not met. That likely would mean additional plant slowdowns in the United States and Mexico within the week.

Supreme Court rejects military gays challenge

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court today turned down a challenge by a homosexual former Navy officer to the Clinton administration's "don't ask, don't tell" policy on gays in the military.

The court, without comment, rejected former Lt. Paul Thomasson's argument that the policy violates homosexual service members' free-speech rights and irrationally discriminates against them.

Thomasson was forced to leave the Navy last year after writing a letter to his commander that said, "I am gay."

Today's action was not a ruling on the merits of the issue and does not preclude the high court granting full review of the policy in some future case. The justices let stand a lower court's ruling that upheld the policy, adopted after months of controversy.

Gay rights advocates said they were not surprised by today's action because Thomasson challenged only part of the policy - allowing the discharge of people who say they are gay - but he did not challenge the policy on gays in the military as a whole.

Beatrice Dohm, legal director of the Lambda Legal Defense and Education Fund, said other lawsuits still in lower courts ask, "May you have two different sets of behavioral rules: one for gay people and one for everybody else?"

In other developments, the court:

- Refused to let Albuquerque, N.M., bar a film that seeks converts to Christianity from being shown at federally funded senior-citizen centers. City officials said showing the film at city-owned centers would violate the constitutionally required separation of church and state.

- Ordered a lower court to reconsider - in light of a new immigration law signed by President Clinton last month - whether U.S. officials in Hong Kong may refuse to issue immigrant visas to Vietnamese boat people.

- Agreed to use a former Idaho state employee's lawsuit to decide how quickly government officials sued in state courts may appeal a denial of immunity.

Earlier this year, the nation's highest court handed gay-rights advocates a major victory by ruling that Colorado voters could not ban state and local laws that protect homosexuals from discrimination.

That ruling did not address the legality of homosexual conduct. In 1986, the justices upheld a Georgia law that criminalized homosexual sex between consenting adults.

Clinton's "don't ask, don't tell" policy was a compromise that resulted from congressional repudiation of his pledge to lift the longstanding ban on gays in the military. The policy is intended to let gays serve as long as they keep their sexuality private.

Thomasson, who lives in the District of Columbia, worked for the admiral who administered the policy.

The Navy based Thomasson's discharge on his statement that he is gay, and there were no findings that he had engaged in homosexual conduct.

Inmates set record for making license plates

HUNTSVILLE - Inmates making license plates - the granddaddy of prison industries - set a 15-year record high in volume, sales and profits this year at the Texas Department of Criminal Justice's Wynne Unit at Huntsville.

The license tag plant turned out more than seven million plates for the Texas Department of Transportation at a cost of $1.21 at plate, plus another 30,000 plates for other customers for total sales of $8.5 million.

The tag plant's companion industry which produces vinyl stickers also set records with sales of $2.6 million from the more than 100 million stickers, ranging from windshield and license tag stickers to registration and inspection decals for boats and gasoline pumps.

"It's useful work for the inmates, and it actually produces a profit for the state," Texas Criminal Justice Board Chairman

Allan Polunsky said.

Gross profits were $2.3 million at the tag plant and $1.6 million at the sticker plant.

More than 300 inmates work without pay in the license and sticker plant.

There are 140 different license tag designs produced by the plant, not counting personalized ego plates. The designs range from those used routinely for passenger cars to such specialized plates as "fertilizer truck."

The two plants operate ten hour days four days a week and use the fifth workday for maintenance on the high speed, high technology equipment used in the tag sticker processes, a far cry from the old metal stamping shop used for many years after the prisons first began making the state's license tags in 1934.

The license tag plant moved to the Wynne Unit in 1975 from the historic Walls unit in downtown Huntsville. The sticker plant opened in 1975 when the state went to the multi-year license tag system instead of issuing new plates to every vehicle every year.

"We are not to capacity yet. We could add another 10 to 20 percent production," says Mike McDowell, TDCJ industry's graphic division manager who oversees the plants. "Consequently, we are always looking for new customers and new products for the equipment."

Besides the state transportation department, license plate customers include the state Parks and Wildlife Department, U.S. military forces and, from time to time, foreign governments.

Inmates working in the sticker plant can qualify for printing industry vocational education certificates under the prison's Windham School System vocational education program.

Police seek suspects in El Paso lounge killings

EL PASO (AP) - Occasional fights and drunken shouting matches were the worst events that most people living and working around El Kumbala bar ever noticed before a weekend shooting spree that left five dead.

Neighbors said Sunday they were stunned by the attacks. Many said there was never any reason to believe anything tragic would happen - at what they described as a busy but not unusually rowdy bar.

"It does kind of worry you," said Jeanette Badillo, who lives across the street. "You don't know what happened."

Police said three masked attackers rushed into the bar after 2 a.m. MST Saturday and opened fire with semiautomatic weapons, killing five men and critically wounding two others.

The bar had been closed about an hour when the attacks occurred. The doors were apparently unlocked, but police didn't know why.

Killed were bar owner Luis Armando Ibarra, 43, of El Paso; musician Jose Enriquez Garcia, 43, of El Paso; Oscar Zapata, 38, of Albuquerque, N.M.; Saul Zapata, 41, of Los Lunas, N.M.; and, Oscar Gutierrez, 35, of Albuquerque.

Police refused to release the names of the two survivors, citing concerns for their safety. They would only say the two men were listed in guarded condition at an unspecified El Paso hospital.

Police suggested robbery was at least a partial motive because unidentified property had been taken and the victims were forced to empty their pockets. But that likely wasn't the entire reason for the shootings, said police spokesman Sgt. Bill Pfeil.

"It's too vicious, too many dead, to be entirely a robbery," he said. Family members and friends said they could not understand why their loved ones were targeted.

"Many things cross my mind," Delores Garcia, Jose Garcia's wife, was quoted as saying in Monday's El Paso Times. "He was never one to stay out late. He was in the wrong place at the wrong time. Only the Lord knows why he was taken."

Veronica Barella, a cousin of the Zapata brothers, said the two had traveled to El Paso to visit their ailing mother across the border in Ciudad Juarez.

Getting ready for the Austin Elementary School chill supper, carnival and bake sale are Michaela Scroggins, Kenneth Nunn, Tabbitha Courter, Teryn Garner, Nakayla Courter, and Beverly Nunn. The events, sponsored by the Austin Booster Club, will be Thursday from 5 to 8 p.m. Tickets can be purchased at the school. For more information, call 665-4242.

Zapatistas hint at broader role in government

SAN CRISTOBAL DE LAS CASAS, Mexico (AP) — Zapatista rebels are hinting they could legally participate in politics as early as the congressional elections of 1997.

The Zapatista military leader, known as Subcomandante Marcos, made the comments in an interview with the U.S.-based Spanish-language television network Univision. Excerpts were reported Sunday in major Mexico City dailies, including La Jornada, Reforma and Excelsior.

"We have the offer (from the government) that, if the Zapatista Army comes out (of hiding), it could open up the way for a political arrangement that would permit its participation, not as a political party, but as a political association," Marcos said.

"Legally, we could have a candidate in the Federal District," he said, but added the government "doesn't seem very enthusiastic" about the idea.

The statement implies the rebels would participate, unarmed and unmasked, in national politics. Rebel leaders have tried to keep their true names secret and their faces masked since appearing on Jan. 1, 1994.

In press conference last week, Marcos had mentioned a possible rebel candidacy in Mexico City.

"And you know who that would be," Marcos said at that time, referring to himself in his characteristic half-joking, half-serious manner.

Although rebels in the past have insisted they would not participate as a political party, known Zapatistas ran as candidates in a few local elections here in the southernmost state of Chiapas in October 1995.

Nevertheless, the latest interview indicates the rebels' official position is changing.

Mexico faces a new and more violent guerrilla movement known as the People's Revolutionary Army and Marcos said he believes Mexico is falling deeper into political and economic instability on the eve of the 1997 elections. Open Zapatista participation in politics could provide a peaceful avenue for democratic change, he said.

Environmental Protection Agency sends its people to ritzy resorts for training seminars

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency has spent more than $1 million since 1993 on training seminars at ritzy resorts or on subjects unrelated to environment such as "defensive driving" or speed-reading courses, according to congressional investigators.

Posh inns in West Virginia, a beach-front hotel in Puerto Rico and a mountain resort in Colorado were among venues chosen for classes and conferences, Republican investigators with the House Government Reform and Oversight Committee reported.

Training sessions included: —Four-day seminars on improving managers' productivity, held at various resorts in West Virginia and Maryland. Cost: $20,000 per seminar.

—A $7,000, one-day session at a beach hotel in San Juan, Puerto Rico, to train EPA lawyers on preparing for administrative hearings.

—A two-day auditors' conference at a Breckenridge, Colo., lodge costing $4,400.

The committee said it identified $1.4 million in "questionable" EPA training expenses between 1993 and 1995. The agency was among the worst offenders in the committee's investigation of inappropriate spending on federal employee training programs, said committee chairman William Clinger, R-Pa.

"What is especially offensive about EPA's action is that the Clinton administration has repeatedly requested increases in EPA's budget while doing nothing to curb this wasteful spending," Clinger charged.

All the training was for employees who earned more than $50,000 a year, a committee aide said.

The EPA defended the seminars as training sessions necessary to boost worker performances, like those any company or agency sponsors.

Some classes must be held outside EPA offices to accommodate large groups, spokesman David Cohen said, but the agency keeps costs down by choosing hotels near employees' offices and paying less than commercial firms for outside trainers.

"The EPA takes a very conservative tack when it comes to training," Cohen said. "It doesn't cost a lot to reserve a room or stay somewhere close by."

The EPA spent $10.8 million on training for its 17,200 employees, about one percent of its overall budget. Private companies typically spend three percent to five percent of staff costs on training.

Texans favor immigration in current form, but worry about costs

HOUSTON (AP) — About half of Texans are satisfied with current immigration levels, and more than half support higher taxes to better enforce immigration law, according to a Houston Chronicle poll.

However, the newspaper poll also showed that most worry that newcomers to the United States increase costs for public services, undermine education and contribute to crime.

"There's nothing wrong with letting some people in," said retired lab technician Ervin Williams of Temple, a poll respondent. "I mean, this is the United States. Let some come in and get a taste of it."

The poll found that while Texans aren't completely convinced immigrants take jobs from the native-born, they think the state's Hispanic newcomers are increasingly likely to cost them money.

"If they come with their 14 kids and the American people have to pay, well, that's just not fair," said Vera Penn, a poll respondent and retired nurse from Whitney in Central Texas.

Those most likely to view Hispanics as a source of social and economic woes were often Texans earning less than $15,000.

The survey of 828 Texans between Aug. 5 and Aug. 21 has a margin of error of plus or minus 3.5 percentage points.

The poll, published in the newspaper's Sunday editions, found nearly two out of three of the Texans responding consider immigration a "very or extremely important" issue.

The perception of Hispanic immigrants is generally more negative than that of Asians.

Nearly half of all Texans surveyed said Hispanics are "very or extremely likely" to cause higher taxes, for example, while one in four said the same about Asians.

Approximately one-quarter say Hispanic immigrants are "very or extremely likely" to contribute to lower-performing schools and higher crime. But about one in six say the same about Asian immigrants on the education issue, and one in five say Asian immigrants contribute to higher crime rates.

Blacks and those earning less than $15,000 are more likely than Hispanics, Anglos and the affluent to see immigrants as an economic threat. More than one in three blacks say immigrants take jobs, as do more than one in three people making less than $15,000.

But the poll found that people who have the most contact with immigrants tend to view them more positively. Four out of five Texans believe immigrants take jobs, jobs Americans don't want, the poll found.

Apartment blaze kills three, forces residents to evacuate via balconies

GARLAND, Texas (AP) — As residents leapt from second-floor balconies to escape a pre-dawn fire in their suburban apartment building, Dorothy Chism dashed back into the flames to rescue two children, one of them her own. She died in her effort, as did the children.

The Sunday morning fire gutted the two-story building in the Village of Eastgate, an apartment complex in the northeast Dallas suburb.

Many residents, their front doors blocked by fire, escaped by jumping from their balconies, said Steve Strepke, a spokesman for the Garland Fire Department.

Chism, 42, and a man were trying to lead her daughter, Danyell Powell, nine, and the girl's friend, Creola Thompson, eleven, to a balcony and safety when the children became disoriented by smoke.

The girls tried to double back and exit through the front door, fire officials said. Their bodies were found in a bedroom, and autopsies determined they died of smoke inhalation.

Kenneth Myers jumped from the balcony before realizing the children were no longer following, Strepke said.

Chism may have gone back into the apartment to look for the girls, Strepke said. She suffered extensive burns before returning to the balcony and jumping, he said. She died about eight hours later at a nearby hospital.

Sixteen people were left homeless by the fire, which officials say destroyed eight units in the complex. Investigators were still trying to determine a cause for the blaze, which was reported by a resident as a fire in a sofa in the main hallway of a building in the complex.

Some residents were quick to fault apartment management because of what they said were problems with smoke detectors.

Bertha House, 40, was awakened by the smell of smoke and said no smoke alarm alerted her to the fire.

Election day already over for many voters

WASHINGTON (AP) — There are still two weeks left before Election Day, but the show's over for Patricia Lee of Franklin, Tenn. She's already made up her mind and cast her vote for president.

Lee, who voted on Friday, is one of the hundreds of thousands of people expected to take advantage of laws that allow citizens in some states to go to the polls before Nov. 5.

"I work two jobs and have a hard time fitting it in my schedule," said Lee, a 34-year-old elementary school cook.

Lee said she voted for President Clinton and wasn't about to change her mind and switch her vote to Republican Bob Dole, Reform Party nominee Ross Perot or one of the other third-party candidates. The last weeks of the campaign are unnecessary, she said, because the candidates "just batter against each other and don't tell us anything we don't already know."

Early voting differs from absentee voting in several ways. Instead of applying for a ballot, voters can just go to a polling place and vote. They don't need to tell officials why they are voting early, and their ballots are cast just like on Election Day, not sealed or separated from others.

A number of states, including Texas, New Mexico, Tennessee, Nevada and Arizona, have some variation of early voting.

In Clark County, Nev., which encompasses Las Vegas, early voting started on Saturday, including at Meadows Mall. Convenience was cited by several people, including those who hadn't planned to vote before Nov. 5.

"I was coming over here to eat anyway, so — since it was here — I thought I'd vote," said Ernie Campbell, a 60-year-old retiree who didn't want to identify his political affiliation or his favorite candidate. "I want to make sure I get it done. I felt like this was a good way to avoid lines."

Texan Diane Sheridan, of the National League of Women Voters, has relied on early voting in several recent elections. Sheridan, who lives outside Houston, said that with her schedule she is often not sure if she'll be in town on Election Day.

"What I like about it is you don't have to remember to make an application for a ballot and don't have to go through a process. I'm an example of somebody who finds it more convenient to vote early," she said.

This year, however, she's pretty sure she'll be home in Texas so she'll head to the polls on Nov. 5.

Texas election officials say that between one-fifth and one-third of total ballots have been cast early in recent elections. Texas began early voting in 1988.

Tennessee election officials are expecting more than 300,000 people to cast their ballots early. The state first allowed early voting in 1994. That year, 250,503 people took part.

New Mexico also adopted an early voting law in 1994. Thirteen percent of the total vote that year was cast before Election Day.

Trial date set for mother accused of fatally stabbing her two sons

KERRVILLE, Texas (AP) — More than 100 potential jurors were expected to appear at a Kerrville courtroom today for the trial of a Dallas-area woman accused of fatally stabbing two of her sons.

Darlie Routier, who is charged with capital murder, has steadfastly maintained that an intruder broke into the family's stately Rowlett home June 6 and killed her five- and six-year-old sons while they slept in the living room.

She claims the attacker slashed her neck and shoulder before fleeing through the garage.

Routier's husband, Darin, told police he was sleeping upstairs with the couple's infant son, Drake, at the time.

Jury selection in the case, which could result in the death penalty, is expected to last several weeks, with potential panelists showing up today to fill out questionnaires. Direct questioning is tentatively set for next week. Testimony isn't expected until early January.

That timeline could change, as Routier's family has reportedly hired a new attorney, Doug Mulder, to handle the case instead of a team of court-appointed attorneys. Mulder wants the trial moved back to Dallas.

"It can be tried here, and it should be tried here," Mulder told The Dallas Morning News.

"The defendant wants to be tried here," added Mulder, who successfully defended Walker Railey, former pastor of the First United Methodist Church of Dallas, from charges that he tried to kill his wife.

State District Judge Mark Tolle, who moved the trial to Kerrville at Routier's previous attorneys' request because of pretrial publicity, said Sunday that Mulder has not taken over the case and that he was proceeding as scheduled.

"Mr. Mulder is not the lead attorney as of now. If he's going to do this, he must appear here (this) morning and file a motion to substitute counsel," Tolle said. "There will be a hearing on it, and I will either grant it or deny it."

Mulder would have to file another motion for change of venue if he takes over the case, the judge said.

Mulder did not immediately return telephone calls from The Associated Press on Sunday.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Opinion

Alternative ideas bear considering

Voting for President Clinton or Bob Dole "isn't just a wasted vote, it's a destructive vote." So insisted John Hagelin, presidential candidate of the Natural Law Party, during the second series of presidential debates.

Most Americans watching the debates missed his comments. First came the "official" debate between the major party candidates, Clinton and Dole, on the major networks, lasting 90 minutes.

Then on CNN — for people with cable and the stamina to endure three hours of politics in one sitting — Larry King continued with two additions. For 45 minutes, Ross Perot gave his usual spiel.

Then for another 45 minutes, King hosted a hearty debate among four third party candidates, Hagelin, Ralph Nader of the Green Party, Howard Phillips of the U.S. Taxpayers Party (called the American Independent Party in California) and Libertarian Harry Browne.

Browne pointed out that the "official" debate amounted to Clinton saying government should grow four percent per year and Dole insisting on three percent growth — a minor disagreement.

By contrast, the third party debate presented real differences. Nader gave his usual shtick for more government, attacking international corporations and their control of U.S. politics.

True enough, corporations do contribute heavily to political campaigns and, in return, often get projects funded by the taxpayers. But the solution is less government, not the enlarged government Nader called for. To "reform" campaigns, he wants a $100 checkoff on tax forms — that is, even greater taxpayer funding of campaigns.

At least, he's clear about wanting more government, insisting that he's the kind of activist Democrat that Bill Clinton ought to be.

The other third party candidates offered compelling ideas on sharply reducing government. Hagelin called for a 10 percent flat tax and sharp cuts in government spending, pointing out the economic growth remains sluggish because government places far too many burdens on people.

Browne improved on that, calling for eliminating the income tax entirely. He offered an exchange: In return for giving up their favorite federal programs, taxpayers would never have to fill out the dreaded IRS 1040 form again.

Phillips also called for eliminating the income tax. And he was the only candidate of the night — including the major candidates and Perot — who brought up abortion, calling for its abolition. Whatever one's position on the issue, shouldn't all the candidates be discussing it?

Although none of the alternative candidates has a chance of winning this year, in America it is from third parties that new ideas percolate upward.

Driving nails in Lear's thesis

This past summer, in his speech at the Humanitas Prize awards ceremony, Norman Lear, television producer and liberal activist extraordinaire, lauded the human quality that "for want of a better term, we can call ... the spiritual. Whatever we call it, we have long recognized its presence and accepted that it sets us apart (from lesser animals). And yet ... at no time in my life can I remember our culture being so estranged from this essential part of itself."

Are we really less spiritually oriented today than at any time in, say, the past 50 years — a period roughly coinciding with the 74-year-old Lear's adulthood? The answer depends on how you define "spiritual." For me, the term is synonymous with "religious." Using that definition, Lear is wrong. National surveys show a vast majority of the American public — 90 percent — takes its belief in God seriously.

But that's not what Lear is talking about. For him and many others in the entertainment business, the spiritual is a comfortable substitute for the religious. Spirituality offers them a feel-good refuge from BMW materialism while allowing them to avoid the structure and disciplines of organized religion, which in its traditional form is dogmatic and (perhaps the gravest sin in Hollywood) judgmental. The spiritual is defined by the individual, what he determines to be "spiritual" — is.

Lear's concept of spirituality tilts in the direction of the New Age, rather than the Judeo-Christian phenomenon. His disdain for the latter is so pronounced that he founded one national organization, People for the American Way, and supports heavily another, the American Civil Liberties Union, which are dedicated to undermining organized religion.

With that agenda in mind, Lear caused a hefty public debate in 1991 when he produced the TV series Sunday Dinner, featuring the then-obscure Teri Hatcher, and announced it would deal seriously with the spiritual issues of the day. How so? Hatcher's character referred to the Supreme Being as "He or She," addressed Him (or Her) as "Chief" and chattered about "the natural world that is our sacred community" — words more indicative of how the tree-huggers have co-opted religious rhetoric than of any genuine religious belief.

Some were disgusted by the silliness of it all. Others (this writer included) pointed to the lack of anything of a spiritual/religious nature on network television and suggested this was better than nothing at all, and that perhaps with time Lear would become more serious in his presentation of religious themes. We were wrong on that one: He didn't, and the show bombed.

Lear's hostility toward the traditional also is clear from his remark in the Humanitas speech that our waning spirituality is evident "in (our) loss of faith in leaders, in institutions, the cynicism, the selfishness, and the erosion of civility." Not a word about faith or the afterlife, not even a mention of God. I don't endorse selfishness or incivility, but if by "loss of faith in leaders (and institutions)" Lear means the federal government, I shout "Hallelujah!"

Lear hasn't had a successful series in a decade and a half. Besides Sunday Dinner, he's flopped with AKA Pablo, The Powers That Be and 704 Hauser. If he wants a hit, why not try a show grounded in true faith, a show on which God is called not "Chief," but "God"? Since Lear last produced a series, CBS's superb Touched By an Angel has proved that an unambiguously religious program can be a ratings winner.

Oh, some would surely counter that Lear's natural idiom is not drama but rather situation comedy, but faith can be presented effectively in that format as well, as evidenced earlier this year by an episode of The Naked Truth. (This series, formerly of ABC, will air on NBC later this season.) Nora is a young woman who runs into Katie, an old friend who has become a nun. Nora marvels: "You know, you've changed, Katie. You've got ... this sense of calm (and) inner peace."

Nora later confides to another friend that she'd feel "a little silly" praying, not having done it in so long. The response is poignant, "When did you become too cool for God?" Nora's search for faith leads her to tell Katie that she, too, wants to be a nun: "I don't want to feel so empty and disconnected. Tired, poor of spirit, disgusted with my fellow man. I want what you've got."

"Your spirit's thirsty," Katie replies. "You want to drink the whole ocean. Maybe what you need is to start with the first glass." Nora doesn't become a nun, but she does return to prayer. The episode is funny and witty, and understands what Lear doesn't: Traditional religion touches the soul in a way that New Age ga-ga never will. Or can.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, Oct. 21, the 295th day of 1996. There are 71 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Oct. 21, 1805, a British fleet commanded by Admiral Horatio Nelson defeated a French-Spanish fleet in the Battle of Trafalgar. Nelson, however, was killed.

On this date:

In 1797, the U.S. Navy frigate Constitution, also known as "Old Ironsides," was launched in Boston's harbor.

In 1879, Thomas Edison invented a workable electric light at his laboratory in Menlo Park, N.J.

In 1944, during World War II, U.S. troops captured the German city of Aachen.

In 1959, the Guggenheim Museum opened to the public in New York.

In 1960, Democrat John F. Kennedy and Republican Richard M. Nixon clashed in their fourth and final presidential debate.

In 1966, more than 140 people, mostly children, were killed when a coal waste landslide engulfed a school and several houses in south Wales.

In 1967, tens of thousands of Vietnam War protesters marched in Washington, D.C.

In 1971, President Nixon nominated Lewis F. Powell and William H. Rehnquist to the Supreme Court.

In 1976, Saul Bellow won the Nobel Prize for literature, the first American honored since John Steinbeck in 1962.

Ten years ago: Pro-Iranian kidnappers in Lebanon claimed to have abducted American Edward Tracy (he was released in August 1991). The United States retaliated for the Soviet Union's expulsion of five American diplomats by ordering 55 Soviet diplomats to leave. The New York Mets won Game 3 of the World Series, 7-1, but still trailed the Boston Red Sox two games to one.

Five years ago: American hostage Jesse Turner was freed by his kidnappers in Lebanon after nearly five years in captivity. Former California Gov. Jerry Brown announced his presidential candidacy.

One year ago: Rioting inmates surrendered control of a prison dormitory in Greenville, Ill., ending a one-day uprising that began after the government ordered federal prisons locked down nationwide. The Atlanta Braves won Game 1 of the World Series, defeating the visiting Cleveland Indians 3-2. Maxene Andrews of the Andrews Sisters died in Hyannis, Mass., at age 79.

Today's Birthdays: Conductor Sir Georg Solti is 84. Baseball Hall-of-Famer Whitey Ford is 68. Rock singer Manfred Mann is 56. Musician Steve Cropper of Booker T. & the MGs is 55. Singer Elvin Bishop is 54. Musician Lee Loughnane of the group Chicago is 50. Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu is 47. Actress-author Carrie Fisher is 40. Actor Jeremy Miller (Growing Pains) is 20. Actor Will Estes ("Kirk") is 19.

The debate: Battle of the signals

Naturally, you've heard of the "$550 billion tax cut scheme"? Our Leader mentioned it often enough during the presidential debate. Why, this guy Dole actually wants to let workers keep more of the money the federal government regularly extracts from their wallets!

Solemnly, as if everyone in creation knew and acknowledged the silliness of such a proposal, Bill Clinton brushed aside the Dole-Kemp tax cut. Let you keep more of your money? Just because you labored long to earn it? Just because you might need it more than the government needs it? Why, that would "blow a hole in the deficit!"

Clinton, courting our votes and seeming ever likelier to get them, seeks to have it both ways. He wants — so he claimed in the first few seconds of the debate — our government to become "smaller and less bureaucratic." However, he plainly deems it sufficient just to talk about such an objective: pious, damped words taking the place of actions that might bring ideal and reality closer together. Clinton's notion of returning power to people, assuming one takes seriously the "ideas" he touts, is the "v-chip" for television sets and the two night hospital stay for brand new mothers.

Dole taxed — so to speak — Our Leader with having proposed a takeover of American medicine, via the Hillary Health Care Plan. Our Leader ducked that curve ball. Well, er, perhaps the White House had in fact "bitten off more than we could chew." This was putting it mildly, given that the Clinton health care scheme — to borrow a beguiling word — was the biggest plan in 60 years for centralizing power in Washington, D.C.

Dole forewent the chance truly to drape this albatross around his opponent's neck. Too bad. By doing so, he might have emphasized how much daylight exists between Clintonian words and deeds.

Some tender odes to tax-cutting would have been equally nice: some suggestions that the deficit is the consequence of too much government, not of too many wage earners failing to pay enough taxes. Our Leader has it all exactly backward. He doesn't start by asking how much the taxpayers can afford; he starts by telling us what he wants to spend.

From Dole, certainly, the debate audience heard warm words about giving money "back to the working people," but such terrain belongs more naturally to Jack Kemp than to Dole. Clinton — the pot calling the kettle black pointed out his opponent's association with recent tax increases.

Given the competition — the Sharon Stone of the Podium — Dole's dignified Rotary Club manner, spiced with witty jabs at his opponent, served him well. But can it be said that in any sense he won? Ah. Does anyone ever "win" these contests in subliminal-signal-sending? You can lower them, as Dick proved for all time. However, "winning" consists chiefly in maintaining an edge of — what to call it? — credibility.

Because Clinton is the incumbent, and because he didn't on this narrow occasion look absolutely incredible in the role, his subliminal signals went out powerfully: I'm fine; I'm cool; I won't, if re-elected, cost you an hour's sleep.

Post-debate polls accord Clinton the edge, meaning that his signals fell on receptive ears. What Dole needed to do was say, "Wait a minute, what's this guy done? What's he got to brag on?" He didn't. Therefore, we never got a clear image of Clinton, the big-government guy, entranced with the power he wields in our name, reluctant for all his fine words to lay that power aside or flick it more lightly over our bowed backs.

Say this of Dole — if he skimmed on political and economic analysis, at least he stayed in there with Sharon Stone all the way. The mashed-potatoes, football-on-Friday, word's-your-bond integrity of the man from Russell, Kan., went forth from the auditorium in Hartford — a subliminal signal of no mean importance. Can it blot out, in four weeks time, all those competing signals? My own guess is no. What's the choice, however, but to try?

GOP a.k.a. the gutless ooze party?

On balance, it was a good debate. These things normally degenerate into a ping-pong of volleyed factoids. But this one had some drama to it due, principally, to Sen. Dole's quick wit, sometimes plain funny, sometimes sharp. That kept viewers waiting for what was to come next, the mark of any good story.

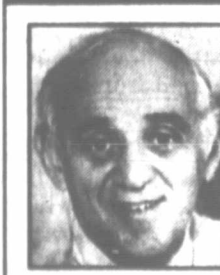

Dole helped himself. At the least, he put himself in the same league as President Clinton, which, in the public perception, is not where he was before the debate. American voters should now understand that there are two serious men running for president — not one, not three — that the two have somewhat different philosophies, and that time is getting short.

That said, Dole didn't do nearly as well as he could have. I sense at least three major problems, probably rectifiable.

The first concerns pussy-footing. Dole is in danger of standing as the candidate of a renamed GOP — the Gutless Ooze Party.

For example: Early in Clinton's term, the Army's most highly decorated active duty general, a Vietnam hero who almost died from his wounds, was in the White House on business. As he left, he nodded to a woman and said "Good day." The woman in the White House turned to the general and said "I don't speak to the military." (The general, by the way, was Barry McCaffrey, the very same "four-star general" that Clinton regularly brags on because, three years later, he appointed him drug czar.)

During the debate, Jim Lehrer asked Sen. Dole what he had in mind when he stated at the Republican convention that "... within the Clinton administration (there is) a corps of the elite who never grew up, never did anything real, never sacrificed, never suffered..." Dole lamely said he meant that a lot of people came to Washington without experience and were very liberal.

Why is Dole afraid to get tough? He has a reputation of being a meanie, based largely on two statements. In 1976, Dole was questioned about President Gerald Ford's pardon of Richard Nixon. Dole responded: "It's not a very good issue, any more than the war in Vietnam would be, or World War II or the war in Korea would be. All Democrat wars." Dole's remark has passed into history as a charge against "Democrat wars." That is not what that quote says. In 1988, after George Bush beat Dole in New Hampshire, Dole was asked if he had a message for Bush. Dole said, "Tell him to stop lying about my record," which is just what Bush had been doing.

Politics is a contact sport, and if Dole is spooked by that silliness, he's in the wrong business. It's a problem that afflicts the whole Republican Party. Maligned at their 1992 Houston convention as right-wing zealots on the issue of family values — the GOP has backed off from using the social issues. And so, for one example, we hear nothing about gays in the military, a clear issue of substance facing the commander-in-chief.

That links to Dole's second failure. Yes, he attacked Clinton and the Democrats as "liberals." But alas, he harped exclusively on the idea that the problem with liberalism is high taxes. Too many Republicans think everything has to do with money and taxes. But that's not the biggest problem with modern liberalism. It's not a disaster if freely elected people choose to buy certain services collectively, like pensions or health care for the elderly. It is a very serious problem when modern liberalism has been apologizing for out-of-wedlock birth, criminality, dumbed-down politically correct education and quotas by race, gender and ethnicity.

Finally, Dole has a problem common to some very smart men. He assumes that the listener is as well-informed as he is. Hence, a number of his remarks were later characterized as "cryptic," and "disjointed" with "unexplained references." He apparently felt that everyone knows that Clinton has demagogued the Medicare issue, but Dole never explained how. Dole never quite explained that Clinton's plan for educational "choice" did not include private or parochial schools. He never did quite tell us who the twice-mentioned Landel Shakespeare was, and he assumed that we all knew that Rene Preval is the president of Haiti. And so forth.

Dole gets an eight. He'll have to do better and be tougher.

Pampa High School students Ruben Leal and Jamie Kochick enter data gathered through the Pampa Parks and Recreation Department assessment survey. The survey was mailed out and personally delivered to residents to gauge their opinions on the department. The students were two of a number in Sherrel Wheeler's classes volunteering to input the data to work toward a Business Professionals of America community service award. The results of the survey, parks board members say, will be published at a later date.

Painkillers more effective before surgery than afterward, according to recent study

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Painkillers, usually given only after surgery, may do their best work before the pain begins, a new study suggests.

The study, to be presented today to the American Society of Anesthesiologists convention in New Orleans, looked at the theory that feeling pain "winds up" nerves, making them more sensitive.

Doctors believe they may be able to minimize pain by stopping it before it starts, noting that aggravated nerves can make the pain worse.

"If you stub your toe, portions of the foot might hurt for days because the blow sensitizes that part of the nervous system," said Dr. Allan Gottschalk of the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine. "The same thing happens when you have surgery."

To test whether giving painkillers before an operation could prevent pain afterwards, Gottschalk studied 90 men, most in their 50s, whose prostate glands were being removed because of cancer.

They were divided into three groups: Two experimental groups got different painkillers both before and after surgery, while a control group received the pain medicine only afterward.

The men were asked to gauge their pain each day on a 100-millimeter slide rule with a smiling face at zero and a frowning face at 100. Those in the control group reported significantly more pain than those in the two experimental groups.

Different groups got different narcotics, although all were of similar strength. They were injected into the spine from a catheter.

"This is important," said Dr. Daniel I. Sessler, an anesthesiologist at the University of California at San Francisco.

The "windup" theory that pain activates nerves and spinal pathways that regulate pain, and thus make them more sensitive, is only a few years old, he said.

"If that's true, preventing pain should be more useful than treating pain before you have it," Sessler said.

He noted that some studies have found no differences between groups given pre-emptive painkillers and those who only took drugs afterward, but said, "they may not have found true differences because they didn't study enough patients."

Gottschalk also looked at whether taking painkillers early had any long-term effects by calling the men 3 1/2, 5 1/2 and 9 1/2 weeks after they left the hospital.

The men from the three groups reported no significant difference at the two earlier time periods, he said.

But 9 1/2 weeks later, 81 percent of the experimental group was feeling no pain and had returned completely to work and other normal activities. Only 44 percent of the control group were pain-free.

Dr. Alan W. Grogono, chairman of Tulane Medical School's anesthesiology department, cautioned against a wholesale change in how doctors medicate patients before surgery.

Gottschalk's study "would suggest we should study more to confirm what he's saying, because it would appear to be a very important benefit," Grogono said.

Panhandle Information Network to meet Tuesday

CANYON — The Panhandle Information Network (PIN) will hold its first membership meeting at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 22, at Region XVI Education Service Center, 1601 S. Cleveland Street, in Amarillo.

PIN is a consortium composed of area school districts, community colleges, public libraries, city and county governments, West Texas A&M University, the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center in Amarillo, the Harrington Library Consortium, Panhandle Regional Planning Commission and Region XVI Education Service Center.

PIN was created to plan, coordinate and facilitate the cooperative development and operation of a regional integrated telecommunications network to enable members to serve the Panhandle and to contribute to improved student learning and the overall educational and economic development of the region.

Arnold Viramontes, executive director of the Telecommunications Infrastructure Fund (TIF) board, will deliver the keynote address at the Oct. 22 meeting. The TIF board awards grants and loans to public entities to enhance distance learning, information sharing of libraries and telemedicine services. The Texas Legislature created the fund in 1995 and mandated that the state place $150 million a year for the next 10 years into the fund.

PIN has not yet applied for monies from the fund, although individual PIN members have. Linda Pitner, interim executive director for PIN and director of the Office of Grants and Special Projects at WTAMU, said she expects the fund will provide future opportunities for PIN to apply as a consortium.

Charles Greenawalt, superintendent of Hereford ISD, chairs PIN's board. Dr. Roger Lanier, regional dean of the School of Allied Health at Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center in Amarillo, serves as vice chair. Dr. Scott Elliott, president of Clarendon College, is the board's secretary/treasurer.

Other members of the PIN board of directors include Jim Allison, president and executive director of Amarillo Area Foundation; Phil Barefield, superintendent of Clarendon ISD; Pat Blankenship, superintendent of Adrian ISD; Darla Bracken, librarian at Friona Public Library; Ned Burns, superintendent of Dalhart ISD; and Paul Coleman, chairman of Harrington Library Consortium and university librarian at WTAMU.

Other members include Dr. J.R. Collins, superintendent of Wellington ISD; Dr. Darrell Garrison, executive director of Region XVI Education Service Center; Bob Gober, Hemphill County judge; Dr. W.A. Griffin Jr., president of Frank Phillips College; Barry Haenisch, superintendent of Gruver ISD; Ben Ingham, superintendent of Groom ISD; and Robert D. Jøsserand, chairman/CEO of AZTX Cattle Co. Ltd.

Others include Dr. Luther Bud Joyner, president of Amarillo College; Dr. Russell C. Long, president of WTAMU; Bob Moore, superintendent of Amarillo ISD; Dr. Dawson Orr, superintendent of Pampa ISD; Gary Pitner, executive director of Panhandle Regional Planning Commission; Pete Smith, president/CEO of Utility Engineering; Mike Vinyard, superintendent of Tulia ISD; and Phil Warren, superintendent of Lazbuddie ISD.

ATF agent charged with intoxication manslaughter

DALLAS (AP) — An agent of the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms has been charged with intoxication manslaughter after a traffic accident that killed a motorcyclist.

Ronald Vegovich, 49, of Dallas, was arrested shortly before midnight Friday after the car he was driving struck a motorcycle driven by Traylor Niblack, 21, also of Dallas.

Niblack died shortly afterward of head, neck and internal injuries, officials said.

Police said Vegovich was driving along a residential street near his home, northeast of downtown, when he ran a stop sign at busy Skillman Avenue, slamming into Niblack.

A police report said Vegovich smelled strongly of alcohol and that his walk "was unsteady and staggered."

He spent the rest of the night at Dallas County's Lew Sterrett Justice Center before he was released Saturday morning on a $25,000 bond posted by a fellow agent. He declined to discuss the matter with a reporter Saturday.

The ATF is conducting an internal investigation of Vegovich, said Steve Steele, spokesman for the bureau's Dallas office.

The agent probably will be placed on paid leave pending the outcome of the investigation, with unpaid suspension or dismissal possible if improper conduct is found, Steele said.

Jurors to resume deliberations in fetus case

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — A case that tests whether a person may be prosecuted for harming a fetus faces the possibility of a mistrial after jurors deadlocked on the punishment for a drunken driver.

The jury was scheduled to resume deliberations this morning after recessing for the week-end without deciding a sentence for Frank Flores Cuellar.

The same seven woman, five man jury took just one hour to convict Cuellar last week of intoxication manslaughter. But after deliberating 4 1/2 hours Friday on punishment, the panel said it couldn't reach a decision and was sent home.

Cuellar, 50, faces anywhere from probation to 20 years in prison for the death of Krystal Zuniga, who was delivered shortly after a June 15 car accident.

Drug lord reigns freely over empire he once shared

MALLEN (AP) — While Juan Garcia Abrego awaits sentencing for his conviction on drug and money-laundering charges, his burgeoning drug empire continues under the control of his past partner, federal officials say.

Amado Carrillo Fuentes, who now controls much of Mexico's cocaine pipeline, confounds law enforcement officials on both sides of the Rio Grande now that Garcia Abrego sits alone in a Houston jail cell.

"Carrillo Fuentes is clearly No. 1 in Mexico now," said Donald Ferrarone, special agent in charge of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency in Houston. "He's smarter than Garcia Abrego and has better business techniques."

Authorities say Carrillo Fuentes appears to be adding the Matamoros and Reynosa vicinities to the empire, extending from Guadalajara to the northernmost tip of Mexico.

Flu Shots Make Good Sense For Both The Young And Old

DEAR ABBY: Influenza, which can be prevented by a simple vaccination, kills as many as 40,000 people each year in the United States. Won't you remind your readers that October to mid-November is the ideal time to receive a "flu" (influenza) shot?

Although flu shots are recommended for all seniors (65 and over), many younger readers should roll up their sleeves, too. Flu shots are also recommended for any person with a chronic illness (such as heart disease, asthma or other lung disease, diabetes and kidney disease), as well as for adults who live or work with people who are at risk for influenza. Flu shots can be given to anyone, including healthy adults who want to reduce the likelihood of becoming ill with influenza this season.

While your readers are requesting their flu shots, they should also ask their physicians if they need a "pneumonia shot." Pneumococcal disease kills about 40,000 people each year in the United States. A one-time "pneumonia shot" is recommended for all adults 65 and over — yet less than one-third of these adults have been vaccinated against this disease.

If your readers would like to receive brochures about additional vaccinations that are recommended for adults, they should send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to: The Immunization Action Coalition, P.O. Box 4627, St. Paul, Minn. 55104.

Abigail Van Buren
SYNDICATED COLUMNIST

Flu season is rapidly approaching. It doesn't matter how old you are. Getting immunized is a life-long, life-protecting job. Don't leave your clinic without making sure you've received all the shots you need. If you don't have a doctor, call your public health department to find out where you can go for shots.

DEBORAH WEXLER, M.D., EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR, IMMUNIZATION ACTION COALITION, ST. PAUL

DEAR DR. WEXLER: Thank you for an important reminder to my readers. According to a recent statement by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the strain of flu virus expected this year is more dangerous than last year's and can lead to deadly complications in elderly people. The current vaccine being offered is effective against this virus and several other strains that are also expected.

Readers, I had my flu shot last week, and my pneumonia shot last December. Both were quick and virtually painless, not to mention cheap and effective health insurance. Don't put it off.

DEAR ABBY: A year ago I agreed to be in the wedding of a former college roommate. Our relationship is not as close today as it was when she asked me. We've had some disagreements and seldom talk to each other now.

Please tell me how I can gracefully get out of being in her wedding. I know that she has several friends who are now closer to her than I am.

Please hurry your answer.
PERPLEXED

DEAR PERPLEXED: Call her immediately and tell her exactly what you have told me. Considering the circumstances, I think she will appreciate your candor.

For an excellent guide to becoming a better conversationalist and a more attractive person, order "How to Be Popular." Send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby Popularity Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. ### AUTO RACING

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — With time running out to extend his streak, Ricky Rudd gambled and won.

He remained on the track while the other leaders made a final pit stop, and the decision gave him a victory Sunday in the AC-Delco 400 at North Carolina Motor Speedway.

The win, his first since Oct. 29, 1995 at Phoenix, extended Rudd's string of consecutive seasons with at least one victory to 14 — second among active drivers to Dale Earnhardt's 15 straight years.

The victory last year at Phoenix came in Rudd's next-to-last chance to extend his streak. This time, he drove his Ford to victory in the 29th of 31 Winston Cup races.

Rudd led 81 laps, including the final 74, and beat the Ford of Dale Jarrett to the finish line by 3.39-seconds — nearly a full straightaway on the 1.017-mile oval.

SOFTBALL

PAMPA — Tryouts and signups for the Optimist Girls Basketball League will be held Tuesday through Thursday. Times are from 6 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. in the Optimist Club gym. Player's fee is $35 (scholarships are available) and must be paid at the signup.

The basketball program is for girls in the third and fourth grades and the fifth and sixth grades.

FOOTBALL

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — It might be hard to tell if the grimace on Nebraska coach Tom Osborne is from his team's seven fumbles or from biting his tongue afterwards when talking about them.

"I am disappointed in our offensive execution," said Osborne, who may have something stronger to say today when his team gets back to practice.

No. 5 Nebraska lost four fumbles and gave up an interception, but still came out of Texas Tech with a 24-10 victory on Saturday.

In other games involving the Big 12 North, Kansas State came out of Texas A&M with a 23-20 win and moved up in the poll from 21 to 16. Colorado threw into the wind at Kansas to win 20-7 to hand the Jayhawks their second straight home loss and move up to No. 8.

Iowa State twice blew 17-point leads to lose 28-27 to Oklahoma State in Stillwater. Missouri did not play. Nebraska fumbled seven times in all.

The Huskers (5-1 overall, 3-0 Big 12) stopped Division I rushing leader Byron Hanspard, and turned both of his fumbles into touchdowns.

"I will try to get my head back on and get to that level of great back," Hanspard said. "Right now, I am not on that level."

Damon Benning, who returned a punt 51 yards midway in the fourth quarter, scored two plays later on a 3-yard run when he fumbled, but picked up the ball in full stride to get into the end zone.

Hanspard finished with 107 yards on 31 carries, off his average of 217 yards a game for Tech (4-3, 3-2). Hanspard still was the first rusher to go over 100 yards this season against the Nebraska defense.

Colorado's Koy Detmer threw both of his touchdown passes into the wind, hitting Desmond Dennis with a 3-yarder in the first quarter and Rae Carruth with a 21-yarder in the third quarter to finish off an 80-yard scoring drive that put away the Jayhawks.

"It was a wild kind of a game," Detmer said. "Today we got them (scores) into the wind. It's on your mind. Sometimes it's just a mental thing."

Braves bomb Yankees in series opener

By RONALD BLUM
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — In Game 1 of the World Series, the Atlanta Braves were the Bronx Bombers.

By the third inning, the game was, for all practical purposes, over, the crowd quiet, the mood somber.

Andrew Jones, just 4 years old when the last World Series game was played at Yankee Stadium, homered twice, drove in five runs and broke one of Mickey Mantle's records in leading the Braves over New York 12-1 Sunday night.

"We were just overwhelmed," Yankees manager Joe Torre said.

Fred McGriff also homered for the Braves, who have outscored opponents 44-2 since falling behind St. Louis 3-1 in the NL championship series.

"The ball looks like the moon right now," said Chipper Jones, who made it 4-0 with a two-run single in the third.

Following the first rainout of a Series opener since 1979, the Braves didn't have to worry about the field conditions. Their big hits didn't even land on the field.

Jones, a 19-year-old who started the season in A-ball, hit a two-run homer in the second off Andy Pettitte following Javy Lopez' single. Atlanta finished off New York with a six-run third, going on to send the Yankees to their worst loss in 34 World Series.

"It's beyond me what happened out there," said Pettitte, who lasted just 2 1-3 innings. "I had good stuff, I had a good first inning, I felt like I was going to shut them down, and then I blew it."

Jeff Blauser and Marquis Grissom singled leading off the third, Mark Lemke bunted and Chipper Jones' single through the drawn-in infield made it 4-0. McGriff singled, Lopez walked and Jones became the second player to homer in his first two Series at-bats, matching the feat of Gene Tenace in 1972.

"I think it's really something special for me," said Jones, who was in the Instructional League at this time last year. "I think I never thought to get so far."

At 19 years, five months, Jones became the youngest player to homer in a Series game, beating Mantle's old mark by 18 months.

"He learns things very quickly," Braves manager Bobby Cox said. "The pitchers aren't exactly setting him up, he's setting them up."

And speaking of set up, the Braves' pitching is in perfect order. Greg Maddux is to pitch tonight against Jimmy Key, and Tom Glavine follows Tuesday night in Game 3 at Atlanta.

"Nobody can lay awake tonight figuring out how they could have turned the tide," Torre said. "We're here representing the American League because we earned the right to be here. We're sure not going to roll over and die."

New York, which had never lost by more than eight runs in 186 previous Series games, managed just four hits, the Yankees' fewest in a Series game since Don Drysdale pitched a three-hitter against them in 1963.

"We just ran into a buzz saw tonight," said Wade Boggs, who had half of New York's hits.

John Smoltz was the buzz saw. He walked two batters each in the first and second innings, but stranded all four.

Smoltz didn't allow a hit until two outs in the fifth, when Boggs hit an RBI double to the center-field fence. He allowed just two hits in six innings, improving to 4-0 in the postseason this year and 9-1 overall.

"This club has a lot of pride," Smoltz said. "The last week has been something of a fired-up bench, a fired-up team that knows we're close to defending. We were almost close to bowing out."

Now it's the Yankees who are under pressure. A loss tonight would send the Braves home needing to win just two of five.

"We wanted a split here, so we feel like we're in a good situation," Chipper Jones said. "We can come out and relax (tonight). Even if we lose, we've already achieved our goal."

If the Braves continue to play like they have the last four games, the Yankees won't stop them from defending their World Series title.

"We're taking advantage," Cox said. "If we get a bloop hit, we'll follow it with a line drive."

"Knock on wood, that it will continue for three more wins."

McLean routs V. Northside

McLEAN — McLean rolled by Vernon Northside, 69-26, in a District 2-1A six-man football game Friday night.

The win gave the Tigers a 2-0 record in district play and 4-3 for the season.

Derek Glass scored four times and Chris Flores three times for the Tigers, who led 33-12 at halftime.

Flores, who rushed for 231 yards on 13 carries, scored on runs of four, 56 and 26 yards. Glass had TD runs of five and 10 yards and returned a blocked punt 16 yards for another score.

McLean also scored through the air as Ike Hanes connected with Jason Hooper on a 24-yard TD pass. The Tigers also had a safety.

McLean had 381 yards total offense and Northside had 261.

Northside is 0-2 in district and 3-4 for the season.

McLean plays at Harrold this Friday night with the game starting at 7:30.

STINNETT — Canadian lost a 13-12 squeaker to West Texas High in a District 1-2A football game Friday night.

Canadian was leading 12-7 when WT's Todd Hopkins scored on a 3-yard run for the winning touchdown in the third quarter.

Trailing 7-0, Canadian scored in the second quarter on Kevin Zenor's 18-yard pass to Richard Blanco. The Wildcats missed the extra point try to trail 7-6 at halftime.

Canadian took the lead in the third quarter on Taylor Tubbs' three-yard run. Canadian missed the two-point conversion.

Prep basketball season tips off

PAMPA — The defending Class 4A State Champion Pampa Harvester basketball squad will hold its third annual Midnight Madness Friday night in McNeely Fieldhouse at 7:30.

Midnight Madness is an intra-team scrimmage that kicks off the preseason for the Harvesters. It's designed for the community to see their team first hand before the Harvesters begin the 1996-97 season.

Admission to the scrimmage is free and many prizes are to be given away, including airfare and tickets to Pampa's upcoming game against Denison Nov. 12 at Reunion Arena in Dallas. Fans will be able to see the 7 p.m. NBA contest against the Dallas Mavericks and Indiana Pacers.

Chartered buses will be taking Harvester fans to the season opener in Dallas. Round trip cost is $35 per person. For more information on getting a set on the bus, contact the PHS basketball office at 669-4832 or Duane Harp at 669-1848.

Other prizes that will be given away at Midnight Madness include Harvester t-shirts, season tickets, State Champion basketballs, and a gift certificate from Dorman Tires. Everyone who shows up for the game will be entered in the drawing for all prizes.

High school basketball practice opened today across the state. Nov. 4 is the first day that teams are allowed to scrimmage. Nov. 11 is the first day that teams are allowed to play regular-season games.

Volleyball action

Pampa's Katy Cavalier goes up for a kill attempt in Saturday's District 1-4A volleyball match with Hereford. Hereford won, 15-4, 15-0. The Lady Harvesters travel to Canyon on Tuesday for more district action.

When John Elway first saw the Baltimore Ravens in their purple, black and white, they looked like strangers.

It didn't take him long to recognize that they remain the descendants of the old Cleveland Browns, a team Elway loved to torment.

Elway, who a decade ago beat the Browns in two AFC title games, did it again Sunday to the Ravens, leading the Denver Broncos to a 45-34 victory with two fourth-quarter touchdowns, one his third TD pass to Ed McCaffrey, the second a 9-yard run.

That came after Vinny Testaverde had thrown three touchdown passes for the team that moved after last season from Cleveland to Baltimore, turning a 28-13 halftime deficit into a 34-31 lead.

"It didn't feel like Baltimore," Elway said. "They didn't look like Baltimore. I guess it felt more like the Browns of old in different uniforms."

Elway wasn't the only veteran quarterback to showcase his comeback skills on Sunday.

San Francisco's Steve Young threw a 45-yard touchdown pass to tie Cincinnati at 21-all with 2:08 left, then, despite his injured groin muscle, bootlegged in from 15 yards out for the winning score exactly a minute later. That gave the 49ers, down 21-0 in the first half, a 28-21 victory over Cincinnati.

And Jim Kelly drove Buffalo down the field in the final 1:43 to set up Steve Christie's 47-yard field goal, his sixth of the game. That gave Buffalo a 25-22 win over the New York Jets, who reached the midway mark at 0-8.

In other games Sunday, a 60-yard pass from Troy Aikman to Kelvin Martin for Dallas beat winless Atlanta 32-28 at Texas Stadium. And Jimmy Johnson and Miami were beaten 35-28 in Philadelphia as Johnson reject Irving Fryar caught four touchdowns passes for the Eagles.

Oakland is at San Diego tonight. Kansas City beat Seattle 34-16 Thursday night.

Chicago, Detroit, Green Bay and Minnesota were idle.

The Broncos (6-1) had more trouble with the Ravens (2-5) than recognizing the uniforms they wore into Mile High Stadium.

Baltimore came out in the second half with a no-huddle offense, and that seemed to energize them. Testaverde threw three TD passes in the period, an 11-yarder to Floyd Turner and 25 and 9 yarders to Michael Jackson.

"The Ravens really had the momentum in the second half and kept us off-balance with the no-huddle," Broncos coach Mike Shanahan said. "But I was pleased with the way we responded in the fourth quarter."

The way they responded was with a 28-yard pass from Elway to Shannon Sharpe that set up a 6-yard TD pass from Elway to McCaffrey. Then Tyrone Braxton intercepted a Testaverde pass and three plays later Elway went in for the clinching score.

Terrell Davis ran for a team-record 194 yards for Denver.

But it was Elway who pulled off the magic.

"You can't fault our team," said Baltimore coach Ted Marchibroda. "They gave it everything they had. John Elway is a great athlete. He can win by himself."

49ers 28, Bengals 21

Young, who hadn't played since reinjuring his groin Sept. 22 at Carolina, started. But he was lifted early as the Bengals (1-6) jumped ahead 21-0 on three touchdown passes by Jeff Blake.

Then Elvis Grbac injured a shoulder after throwing a pass to Ted Popson for San Francisco's first touchdown and Young returned.

"You could not ask for a more gutsy performance than what he did out there, especially when you know what Steve's been going through," said San Francisco coach George Seifert, who picked up his 100th career win faster than anyone else in NFL history.

Young, who was 19 of 30 for 274 yards, hit Popson in the third quarter to cut the deficit to a touchdown. But he saved the best for last.

First, he directed an 88-yard drive, capping it with a 45-yard touchdown pass to rookie Terrell Owens that tied the game with 2:08 left.

Then, after Dedrick Dodge intercepted Blake, Young ran in on a 15-yard bootleg, limping into the end zone as he was mobbed by his teammates.

Cowboys 32, Falcons 28

At Texas Stadium, Morten Andersen kicked five field goals, including a 37-yarder with 7:09 left that put the Falcons (0-7) ahead 28-25.

But Aikman brought the Cowboys back, hitting Deion Sanders with a 19-yard pass and finding Martin in stride for the game-winner. Martin, reacquired by Dallas early this season, broke free up the middle for his first score as a Cowboy since 1992.

"I'm proud of the way we rallied. This was the reason I wanted us to go after K-Mart after Michael Irvin got suspended," Aikman said as the Cowboys went over .500 for the first time this season.

Bills 25, Jets 22

Darick Holmes gave Buffalo (5-2) a 19-15 lead, and then Christie hit from 33 yards to make it 22-15.

Frank Reich engineered an 80-yard drive in nine plays with no timeouts left to tie it on Wayne Chrebet's diving 21-yard TD catch

A&M-Kingsville clears biggest hurdle to fifth consecutive LSC title

By The Associated Press

Texas A&M-Kingsville's biggest obstacle to a fifth straight Lone Star Conference title was supposed to be Central Oklahoma. If so, call the championship trophy engravers and order the usual.

A & M - Kingsville pounded Central Oklahoma 35-7 Saturday, keeping the Javelinas the only undefeated team in league play at 3-0. They are 4-2 overall, while Central Oklahoma (5-1, 2-1 LSC) suffered its first loss.

Elsewhere, Abilene Christian beat Angelo State 17-14 on a 23-yard field goal into the wind by Brandon Baker with two seconds left, Texas A&M-Commerce ended a two-game losing streak by blanking West Texas A&M 31-0, and Eastern New Mexico won its first league game 24-17 over Tarleton State.

In the showcase game, the Javelinas got three touchdowns passes from quarterback Oktay Basci and Reggie Durden ran for two scores. Central Oklahoma's only score — a 1-yard run by Ryan Logan — came with 8:54 left.

Baker's last-minute heroics gave Abilene Christian (4-2, 2-1) its first victory over Angelo State (4-2, 2-1) since 1986.

He had missed two earlier kicks because of the wind, which gusted up to 30 mph.

A&M-Commerce (4-3, 1-2) spread out its offense, using 10 runners to gain 214 yards and three touchdowns. Cornerback Kevin Mathis returned a punt 51 yards for another touchdown, sending West Texas A&M to 1-5 and 0-3 in league play.

Eastern New Mexico (2-5, 1-2) got three interceptions from Danny Cummings, including one with 22 seconds left to seal its victory over Tarleton State (4-2, 1-2).

By any color, Ravens look the same to Elway

But the Bills surged back for their ninth victory in the last 10 road games against the Jets (0-8). Passes of 17 and 14 yards by Kelly to rookie Eric Moulds set up Christie's winning kick and gave him a career high for one game.

Oilers 23, Steelers 13

With by far the largest crowd of the season (50,122) cheering its approval, Chris Chandler completed a 34-yard touchdown pass to Willie Davis with 5:01 left to put the Oilers ahead. Eddie George clinched it with a 2-yard run with 3:05 remaining.

Houston's comeback ended the Steelers' five-game winning streak and tied the Oilers and Steelers atop the AFC Central Division at 5-2.

The Steelers led for most of the fiercely played game, and Norm Johnson's 29-yard field goal gave them a 13-9 lead with 11:39 to go.

Eagles 35, Dolphins 28

Fryar, told to seek work elsewhere by Johnson in Miami, caught TD passes of 38, 2, 36 and 12 yards from Ty Detmer, who was making his second start in place of the injured Rodney Peete.

"They probably still don't want me back — now more so than ever," Fryar said.

Ricky Watters chipped in with 173 yards on 25 carries, including a 49-yard touchdown run with 2:28 left in the game that gave the Eagles (5-2) a 35-21 lead in the game at Veterans Stadium.

Panthers 19, Saints 7

Anthony Johnson, replacing the injured Tshimanga Biakabutuka, had his third consecutive 100-yard rushing game. It was the fourth win without a loss at Ericsson Stadium for Carolina (5-2), which has allowed just three touchdowns and 33 points in their new $187 million facility.

John Kasay kicked four field goals for the Panthers.

GOLF

SEUL, South Korea (AP) — Sweden's Annika Sorenstam shot a 2-under-par 70, ## beating competitor Helen Alfredsson by a shot to win the World Championship of Women's Golf for the second straight year.

Sorenstam, who won last week's Betsy King Classic, started the round with eight pars, then made three birdies before her lone bogey at the 13th hole. She finished at 14-under 274 and collected $125,000 to increase her LPGA earnings for this year to $702,311, third-best on the circuit.

Starting the day five back, Alfredsson eagled No. 12, and with four birdies posted a bogeyless 95 — best score of the final round.

South Korea's Se-r Park, beginning the day a shot behind Sorenstam, closed with a 72 to finish at 277.

Kris Tincher and Jane Geddes shared fourth at 279 after both closed with 68s. Australian Karrie Webb (72), Val Skinner (72) and Sweden's Liselotte Neumann (68) were next at 282.

BASKETBALL

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Xavier McDaniel, a former NBA All-Star who played in Greece last season, signed with the New Jersey Nets on Saturday, reportedly for the NBA minimum salary of $247,500.

McDaniel, 33, averaged 16.5 points and 6.3 rebounds in 10 NBA seasons with Seattle, Phoenix, New York and Boston.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Free agent point guard Tony Smith, who played for Phoenix and Miami last season, signed a contract Sunday with the Charlotte Hornets.

The 6-foot-4 guard, a six-year veteran, played in 50 games last season and averaged 5.1 points and 2.6 assists.

Smith spent the previous five seasons with the Los Angeles Lakers and has career averages of 5.7 points and 1.9 assists.

BOXING

UPPER MERLBORO, Md. (AP) — WBA middleweight champion William Joppy retained his title with a sixth-round technical knockout of Ray McElroy Saturday night at the Showplace Arena.

Joppy improved to 23-0-1 with 19 knockouts, while McElroy fell to 21-5.

Keith Holmes stopped Britain's Richie Woodhall at 2:32 of the 12th round to retain his WBC middleweight title.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — South Africa's Phillip Holiday easily outpointed Mexico's Joel Diaz on Saturday night to retain the IBF lightweight title. Holiday improved to 29-0 with his fourth title defense.

TENNIS

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — Fourth-seeded Jana Novotna defeated Swiss teenager Martina Hingis 6-2, 6-2 in the $926,000 European Indoors final to collect $150,000.

OSTRAVA, Czech Republic (AP) — German David Prinsal routed Czech Petr Korda 6-1, 6-2 to win the $475,000 Czech Indoor, his first ATP tour victory this year, worth $64,000.

Toulouse, France (AP) — Australian Mark Philippoussis won his first ATP Tour title by beating Sweden's Magnus Larsson 6-1, 6-7, 6-4 in the final of the $400,000 Toulouse Grand Prix.

RAMAT HASHARON, Israel (AP) — Fourth-seeded Javier Sanchez of Spain beat South Africa's Marcos Ondruska 6-4, 7-5 to win the $303,000 Israel Open. Sanchez's first ATP tour title this year and the fourth of his career was worth $43,000.

'Soft' money flows amid cries for reform

WASHINGTON (AP) — The big-money corporate and union donations that Republican presidential challenger Bob Dole says should be abolished are pouring into both political parties in record amounts this year.

They call it "soft money," but it's hard cash to the Democrats and Republicans. The parties rely on these donations, which are exempt from the legal contribution limits, to pay for TV advertising and other efforts.

Soft money accounted for $87 million of the $239 million brought in by the Republican National Committee since January 1995, a financial report filed Sunday shows. The receipts include any loans or transfers from other party committees but are primarily from contributions.

In September, as in every month, the GOP received soft money from businesses: $215,000 from Seagram & Sons distillery, $100,000 from Independent Life & Accident Insurance Co., and so on.

The Democratic National Committee relied on soft money for $84 million of its $177 million in receipts over the same 21-month period, according to its report to the Federal Election Commission.

In addition to corporate dollars, the Democrats get lots of labor union money, such as a $400,000 check from the Communications Workers of America in July.

Even before their October fund raising is counted, both parties have doubled the record amount of soft money they raised for the 1994 elections. The Republican National Committee took in $46 million in soft money that year; the Democrats, $41 million.

Dole has sought to make campaign financing reform a prominent issue in the presidential campaign, capitalizing on reports that people connected to an Indonesian conglomerate donated hundreds of thousands of dollars to the Democratic Party. Foreign companies are banned from contributing directly to U.S. campaigns.

On Sunday, Dole proposed several measures to strengthen the reform laws written after Watergate, including eliminating soft money.

"I believe we can restore faith in the system by taking the special interests out of it," he said.

President Clinton also has called for campaign finance reform, and his aides on Sunday accused Dole of coming late to the issue after opposing reform in the past.

Despite years of talk about restricting or ending soft money, it keeps rolling in and the parties keep finding new ways to use it.

Corporations and unions are prohibited from making campaign contributions to candidates, and individuals are limited to giving each party $20,000 per year. But those rules do not apply to soft money.

Soft money donations must be used for party-building activities, such as get-out-the-vote drives, and cannot legally be spent to directly influence a federal election.

World briefs

Prosecutors: Evidence implicates Libya in disco attack

BERLIN (AP) — A message intercepted from the Libyan embassy boasted of the success of a 1986 attack on a West Berlin disco frequented by American soldiers, a justice official says.

Germany's intelligence agency has provided prosecutors with message traffic that they say implicates Libya in the disco bombing, justice spokesman Ruediger Reiff said Sunday. Details of the messages were first made public in an advance copy of today's Der Spiegel news magazine.

The attack on the La Belle discotheque in the early hours of April 5, 1986, killed two American soldiers and a Turkish woman and wounded 230 people. The United States blamed Libya and retaliated with air raids on two Libyan cities.

Wallace, Gromit go missing in New York cab

LONDON (AP) — Missing in New York: two Oscar-winning film stars. But this pair won't be phoning home.

Wallace and Gromit, the toothy plasticine man and his streetwise pooch from the animated British film The Wrong Trousers were last seen in a cab speeding down Manhattan's 54th Street on Saturday night.

Creator Nick Park, who is in New York on a promotional visit, stashed the 9-inch models, along with their red motorcycle and sidecar, in a box in the trunk of the cab that took him to his hotel. But he forgot to remove them, and the cab left with the pair inside.

In The Wrong Trousers, which won an Academy Award for Best Animated Short Film of 1993, the clumsy Wallace and his technologically savvy canine sidekick bring a sinister penguin to justice in a dizzy chase scene aboard a toy train.

families of four girls allegedly slain by a child-sex ring pledged to maintain pressure on authorities to get to the bottom of the case.

Sunday's peaceful march through downtown Brussels was the culmination of a week of spontaneous demonstrations against authorities' mishandling of the child-sex case.

Convicted child-rapist Marc Dutroux and a dozen accomplices are accused of kidnapping six girls ages 8 to 19 and holding them prisoner in small cells in the basement of his home.

Four died, while two were rescued by police after Dutroux's arrest in August. The youngest victims — Melissa Russo and her school friend Julie Lejeune, both eight — were kept alive for nine months before Dutroux starved them to death, prosecutors say.

Most of the demonstrators wore white, or carried white flowers and balloons, as a symbol of childhood innocence chosen by the parents.
