WHITE DEER — Hoping for a "speedy response," White Deer Independent School District school board members are expected tonight to declare a health emergency at Skellytown Elementary School to fix a decrepit heating system.

Superintendent Larry Johnston said the board must declare the health risk "so we can take some fast action."

The current boiler is operating at only 50-60 percent capacity and "on a wing and a prayer at best," Johnston

"If it's zero outside, we can get the building to maybe 50 (degrees) inside," he continued.

School officials cannot determine when the boiler was installed, but they have discovered the date "1947" marked on the boiler. Johnston guessed that might be the manufacturing date of the steam boiler.

The board meets today at :30 p.m. in the administration building in White Deer. Trustees will also consider approval of the donation of copy machines to the district.

Clinton faces changes in new administration

WASHINGTON (AP) - Preparing for a second term, President Clinton's administration is rapidly changing, beginning with the departure of two of its pillars: Secretary of State Warren Christopher and Defense Secretary William Perry.

One senior administration official said Christopher was expected to go to the White House today to announce he will leave the nation's top diplomatic post by Jan. 20, Inauguration Day.

Clinton's object is to pump new vigor into his administration as it begins a second and final four years.

And as the breadth of the possible changes became clear Wednesday, the rumor mill and the news leaks were operating full time.

Commerce Secretary Mickey Kantor, said to be bored with that job, was believed to be interested in becoming White House chief of staff or attorney general, but now is said to have dropped those ideas.

There have been reports that some White House aides would like Attorney General Janet Reno to step aside, regarding her as not enough of a team player.

At a weekly meeting with tion officials said. reporters today she appeared upbeat and confident about her future in the administration.

"Nobody has been critical to my face or critical as a source that I can trace," she said. "I've been supportive in trying to do what I think an attorney general should do, which is call the issues based on the evidence and the law and give the best legal advice that she or he can.'

She also said she is physically active and her doctors have said she is in good health despite suffering from a mild form of Parkinson's disease. "Last week, I was out at Habitat for Humanity sanding a ceiling for six hours and painting. I haven't noticed anything except my left hand shakes," she said.

Clinton returned in triumph from the campaign trail Wednesday afternoon, telling his assembled Cabinet, agency heads and hundreds of other political appointees that their efforts had made the difference between victory and defeat.

"You have accomplished a phenomenal amount in the last four years," Clinton told his loyalists, spreading out by the hundreds on the South Lawn.

Chief of Staff Leon Panetta told the president the crowd contained not only those who had made victory possible but "the designers, the engineers who will build your bridge to the future.'

Even Panetta is expected to leave soon, perhaps to run for governor of California, his native state.

Waldholtz gets more than three years in prison in fraud case

Waldholtz drew more than three years in prison today for fraud in his former wife, Rep. Edith Greene, R-Utah.

U.S. District Judge Norma Holloway Johnson said the 37month sentence was made stiffer because Waldholtz continued towrite bad checks and used heroin since pleading guilty last June.

The government had asked only for 33 months, the maximum under federal sentencing guidelines. "You continued on your illicit course," Johnson told Waldholtz, explaining the longer sentence.

His former wife sobbed and twisted a handkerchief in her hands during the proceeding. Greene, who has resumed using her maiden name following the couple's divorce last summer, did not run for reelection.

This is a very sad day for me," she said afterward. "It is the end of my marriage, the loss of a father to my daughter."

She said she felt the need to be there because it "closed a chapter in my life." Waldholtz sounded contrite as he stood before the judge. "This past year has been a nightmare," he said, expressing regret to his wife, his family and friends. "I am responsible for everything alone," Waldholtz said, aged Green adding that his conduct "is some campaign.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Joseph thing that will haunt me the rest of my life. Waldholtz had been freed withconnection with the campaign of out bail after pleading guilty to four felony counts in June. In September, he was accused by the government with violating terms of his release and was jailed.

> Judge Johnson rejected his public defender lawyer's plea that he be sent to a "boot camp" in Pennsylvania. But she said she would recommend that he serve his term in the federal institution in Allenwood, Pa., where whitecollar criminals often are sent.

Only last week, U.S. Attorney Eric Holder announced that the government would not file any criminal charges against Greene, whose term ends in January when the new Congress is sworn Greene previously said she would not rule out another run and today said she did not know what she will do now.

Waldholtz will be on five years: probation after he finishes his term and must pay the Internal Revenue Service $10,920. He also was fined $175.

Greene had pleaded guilty in June to bank fraud, making false statements, failure to report campaign contributions and assisting in filing a fraudulent tax return. Some of the charges stemmed from a $3 million check-writing scheme when Waldholtz managed Greene's 1994 congressional.

Customs employees face charges

ELPASO (AP) – Two former U.S. Customs Service employees have been arrested on charges of pocketing fine money paid to the agency.

The arrests this week of Maria L. Cervantes, 37, and Magdalena Castanon, 27, followed a threemonth investigation by the Customs Office of Internal Affairs and the U.S. Attorney's Office.

Both women appeared in a federal court Tuesday and each one was charged with embezzlement of government funds, officials said.

Cervantes is accused of writing a receipt for a $410 cash fine paid to the Customs Service in 1993, and then taking the money and dividing it with Castanon. Cervantes, a paralegal assistant in Customs' fines and penalties office, resigned Oct. 31. Castanon, also a paralegal assistant in the same office, resigned

ALPOCA, W.Va. (AP) - An explosion rocked an ammunition recycling plant and leaked 150 to 200 gallons of a chemical that injured at least 14 people.

'Central Park psycho' at large in New York City

NEW YORK (AP) — No one is safe in Central Park. Even the trees are sometimes attacked.

Two majestic trees were knocked down Wednesday morning by a vandal dubbed "the Central Park psycho," Parks Commissioner Henry Stern said.

"This is the most anti-civilized act you can imagine," he said, calling the crime "a grave act of arborcide."

Police believe that the vandal crawled over a 8-foot fence and hot-wired a bucket loader sometime before dawn. The vandal used the machine to ruin a 35-yearold red oak and a 40-year-old linden in the center of the park.

Rewards of up to $3,000 have been posted by the city and philanthropic groups for information leading to the culprit.

Arborcide carries a maximum penalty of a year in jail and a $15,000 fine.

Political tricks pols like to play

Citizens Against Government Waste, that invaluable government watchdog organization, has come up with a list of "treats' the politicians have delivered to voters in this election year.

The list reinforces the invaluable and difficult-to-digest lesson that when politicians offer voters a treat, they always have a trick or two up their sleeves – but the tricks don't become evident until later.

For example, administration spokesmen are touting the great treat of reducing the federal deficit by 60%. CAGW responds: "True, but it's not exactly rocket science if you: 1. sharply increase taxes; 2. benefit from a healthier economy than your predecessor; 3. have Republicans doing a Lizzie Borden on discretionary spending; and 4. happen to come along at a point in the S&L bailout when government is selling off its assets.

Bottom line? Without structural changes that result in permanent reductions in spending, the present lower deficits amount to a blip in the longer-range pattern of higher spending and mounting deficits. Neither the administration nor the Republican Congress has made those changes. So the trick will come – but after the election.

How about the great treat of cutting the federal work force to the lowest levels in 30 years? To begin with, it wasn't all that tiny 30 years ago. But, in fact, the Base Closing Commission, the end of the Cold War and military downsizing account for 75% of the reductions. The remainder consists of people laid off as the S&L bailout came to a conclusion and bureaucrats who had been eligible for retirement but stayed on because doing so gave them access to a $25,000 buyout.

Bottom line? The non-defense federal work force is 40% larger today than it was in 1965. Some treat!

Both Republicans and Democrats are touting the treat of a massive reform of wasteful federal farm programs. The trick is that most of the corporate farmers will actually get higher subsidies in the next few years, and they'll be guaranteed fixed annual payments with no relationship whatever to any crops planted. The promised phase-out of price supports is several years down the road - and if Congress fails to pass a new program in 2002 reinforcing that determination (ha!), the program reverts to the shape it had in 1949. Voters are advised to check any government goodies for fiscal razor blades and toxic additives.

Dole pays the press a compliment

When Bob Dole announced his resignation from the Senate, the news media gave him sympathetic coverage. When he named Jack Kemp his running mate, he got more positive clips. When he delivered his acceptance speech at the Republican convention, he won high marks from political reporters covering the presidential campaign. But Dole, who ran way behind Bill Clinton, did what comes naturally to Republican presidential candidates: blamed the newspapers.

You may think this annoys me. Actually, my reaction upon learning of it was exactly the same as when the Unabomber demanded that The Washington Post and The New York Times print his manifesto: Thank heaven someone still believes in the power of the printed word! In an age of talk radio, CNN and the Internet, it's easy for us newspaper folks to feel obsolete, irrelevant and totally lacking in influence. Dole, however, paid us the supreme compliment of thinking we're wholly responsible for his huge deficit at the polls.

Dole can sound surreal even at his most restrained, but when he gives vent to his darker impulses, the listener is immediately transported into the Twilight Zone. While addressing an audience in Visalia, Calif., he took the opportunity to attack The New York Times, which is a little like denouncing the Boston zoning commission on a swing through South Dakota. I suspect the Times has about as much electoral clout in Visalia as the South China Morning Post

Dole had started running against Punch Sulzberger the previous day in Dallas, where he announced, "The country belongs to the people, not to The New York Times," and, warming to his theme, exhorted his listeners, "Don't read that mind! Don't let them make up your mind for you!"

Why Dole blames reporters and editorial writers for his troubles is not clear. True, the Times endorsed Clinton, but if it were all that powerful, President Dukakis would now be completing his second term. Few politicians have ever been treated less sympathetically by the news media than Ronald Reagan, who nevertheless managed to limp to consecutive landslide victories.

Reagan, the most popular Republican politician since Eisenhower, was unusual in that he didn't waste his breath upbraiding his critics in the news media, preferring to get back at them by winning elections. He understood that bickering with journalists was like wrestling with a pig: You both get dirty, and the pig likes it.

But candidates who find themselves unable to charm the voters generally feel the fault must lie with journalists. Richard Nixon despised the press, which he publicly blamed for his loss in the 1962 California governor's race. George Bush, trailing Clinton in 1992, griped that he was "getting clobbered by the national news media over and over again." Ross Perot shunned contact with reporters in 1992 - his press secretary bragged about how stuff! Don't watch television! You make up your many phone calls from journalists he refused to against him. Now, there is no doubt that most reporters are liberals, and there is no doubt that their ideological preconceptions sometimes color their coverage. The question is whether it makes any difference. Republicans have won five of the last seven presidential elections despite the tilt. They won control of Congress in 1994. Clinton has survived by adopting one Republican theme after another, which suggests that the liberal media has failed in its efforts to warp the thinking of the American people. Clinton himself thinks the press has treated him badly.

Besides, much of the news media is not liberal. N. Bo

The largest-circulation newspaper in America, The Wall Street Journal, is more Republican than Barry Goldwater and fells entire forests just to publicize the alleged sins and shortcomings of President Clinton and her husband. Such major organs as the Chicago Tribune, the Dallas Morning News, the New York Post and the Rocky Mountain News endorsed Dole despite the embarrassment of being associated with such an incompetent candidate.

If he were paying attention, Dole might have noticed that opinion columnists are disproportionately conservative - a huge change from a generation ago, when William F. Buckley Jr. was an exotic curiosity. TV talk shows provide a host of commentators who lean to the right. Talk radio spans the spectrum from Rush Limbaugh to G. Gordon Liddy. So if voters are influenced by what they read, see and hear, Dole is just as likely to benefit as to suffer.

Dole may not really believe that news coverage hurt his chances, but he doubtless thinks he can't go wrong by attacking the press, since most people dislike it. We journalists must endure the pain of not being beloved by the multitudes, but we take some consolation in knowing that the only people they dislike more than us are politicians.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, Nov. 7, the 312th day of 1996. There are 54 days left in the year. Today's Highlight in History:

On Nov. 7, 1917, Russia's Bolshevik Revolution took place as forces led by Vladimir Ilyich Lenin overthrew the provisional government of Alexander Kerensky.

On this date: In 1874, the Republican Party was symbolized as an elephant in a cartoon drawn by Thomas Nast in Harper's Weekly.

Dole takes up the anti-media lament

Do you realize that if the presidential campaign of 1996 had ended a couple of weeks before it actually did, the press in this country would be in a stupefying funk at this very moment?

Nay, I go further: We would be wallowing in a professional crisis. Week after week went by, and nobody accused us of screwing things up. Ch, there were some boos and hisses here and there, but they were muted things, almost insignificant a few ideologues and some think tanks that are paid to say bad things.

Then Bob Dole got desperate. He had bashed Hollywood. He had tried tax cuts. He had gotten nasty. Nothing worked. So then he got down to the final refuge of a foundering pol.

In Pensacola, Fla., he blasted the media, specifically the New York Times, for ignoring the sins of the Clinton crowd. Dole said: "Now we know the liberal media is (sic) not going to report all these things. They want him re-elected. They like it the way it is. But this country does not belong to the liberal media." And so forth and so on.

Then, in Houston, he did it again. "We're not going to let the media steal this election. We are going to win this election. The country belongs to the people.

Of course, much of what he said was not true, and I'll return to the matter of veracity in a moment. But who the heck cares? The point is, in this Internet, on-line, talk-show, cable-TV world, somebody finally noticed us. The point is, the tradition of scapegoating the press for political failures may not be thriving, but it is surviving.

Joseph Spear

I mean, this custom goes all the way back to the 189th century. President Washington "was much inflamed" and, wrote Secretary of State Thomas Jefferson, "got into one of those passions when he cannot command himself, ran on much on the personal abuse which had been bestowed on him."

It continued into the 19th century. "I don't think there ever was a time when newspaper lying was so general and so mean as at present," fumed Grover Cleveland.

It flourished in the 20th century. "I have never heard or seen such outrageous, vicious, distorted reporting in 27 years in public life," thundered Richard Nixon.

What Dole said, of course, is complete nonsense of a type that gets people inflamed but seldom results in votes. The bulk of the press is not "liberal." It may indeed be Democratic, but even so, it is moderate – occupying the approximate spot on the spectrum where conservatives used to be before Newt & Co. moved the market a few hundred yards to the right.

Was the press trying to "steal" the election for Bill Clinton? Heavens, no. Many of them can't stand Clinton. Oh, I know about that famous study earlier this year which disclosed that 89 percent of the Washington press voted for Clinton. My guess is, that's a misinterpretation of data. A full third of those pro-Clinton votes were actually anti-Bush votes. Has the press been ignoring Clinton's trespass-

Hardly. The New York Times, to use Dole's favorite whipping boy, broke the Whitewater story and has run numerous others that reflect negatively on Clinton. This is not to say, however, that the press hasn't ignored some meaty scan-

When Dole started raising the "character" question, the New York Daily News ran a story about a lengthy affair he had been involved in during his first marriage. You might not have heard about it. It didn't get the Gennifer Flowers treatment.

When the former vice chairman of Dole's campaign finance committee paid a million dollar fine for illegal contributions, the Washington Post ran it at the bottom of page 16.

Even Bob Dole knows his "liberal media" tactic was bull. Just a few days before he launched his attack, he said he had gotten a "fair shake" from

But, again, that's all beside the point. We appreciate the attention, and I'm sure I speak for more

Revved up version of 'Romeo and Juliet' No

By LYNN ELBER AP Entertainment Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - A high-voltage, rewired ver-sion of William Shakespeare's Romeo & Juliet debuted as the box-office leader over the weekend, earning $11.1

The classic love story, starring Claire Danes and Leonardo DiCaprio, earned more money than any other bard-based film in recent vears. Unlike the others, however, the fast-paced, modernized Shakespearean tragedy - with guns for swords and a hip MTV-like style - was widely released.

Twelfth Night and other Shakespeare movies, by comparison, tend to be treated like art films and open on far fewer screens. But Romeo & Juliet did earn an impressively high perscreen gross of $8,718

Former No. 1 Sleepers, the revenge story starring Brad Pitt and Kevin Bacon, slipped to second but remained impressive in its third week with $8 million.

Youth also was served with High School High, the spoof starring Jon Lovitz, which earned $5 million in its second week to rank third.

In fourth place was another comedy, Larger Than Life, which pairs Bill Murray

Japanese prime minister re-elected by parliament TOKYO (AP) — Japan's popu-lar prime minister won re-election today, retaining the helm of a minority government that could be too fragile to surmount the Ryutaro Hashimoto easily outdistanced his rivals in votes in the lower and upper chambers of Parliament, capping the major the word "guilty" and had to be gains his Liberal Democrats hushed by his lawyer. made in the Oct. 20 election.

But the party's lack of a legislative majority means the man who earned a reputation as a hard-driving negotiator with the United States may now face his biggest challenge - taking decisive action to spur Japan's sluggish economy.

Hashimoto gained popularity with a brash, outspoken style displayed during tough auto-trade talks with the United States in 1995, when he demonstrated his skill in standing up to the Americans.

With the country struggling to emerge from a five-year recession and government scandals, demands are getting louder to deregulate the economy and slash the tremendous power enjoyed by career bureaucrats.

But Hashimoto could be hamstrung with a minority government.

Thousands of marchers mark Revolution Day in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — Thousands of communists marched through downtown Moscow today, marking the 79th anniversary of the Russian Revolution with calls for Boris Yeltsin's resignation.

Communist leader Gennady Zyuganov, who led the Revolution Day march, attacked the president and his government as "unable to govern." It was the strongest opposition attack on Yeltsin since he underwent heart surgery Tuesday.

"We have all sorts of things in our history, but when we got a president for a day, that was a comedy before the whole world," Zyuganov told the rally, referring to Yeltsin's oneday transfer of power to his prime minister during the surgery.
About 15,000 people marched

Yeltsin, for his part, also tried to lay claim to the day, once the most important date on the Soviet calendar. He declared the holiday a "Day of National Dropping his previous plea of Accord and Reconciliation" to

Teen Gives Mom Ammunition For Their Battleground At Home

DEAR ABBY: My youngest daughter, "Martha," is 18 and has moved back home after two months on her own. I never knew how much I valued my privacy until my husband and I had a chance to spend time alone. Now my life has been turned upside down.

Don't misunderstand me. I love Martha with all my heart and would be devastated if any harm came to her. But she uses my perfume every day because she doesn't want to buy her own and "borrows" my clothes at will. Every night I have to retrieve my belongings from her room.

If I talk to my husband about our daughter, he defends her. If I confront Martha, she runs to Daddy. The tension around here is causing friction between my husband and me.

The other night, Martha came home at 1:30 a.m. and proceeded to fix herself a snack in the kitchen, waking me up. The next morning at 5:30 a.m., I turned on the stereo, turned on the lights and made so much noise that nobody in the house could sleep. My husband thinks I have lost my mind, but I'm determined that my daughter is going to have a dose of her own medicine.

This girl pays no rent and brings home $200 a week. The only thing we ask of her in the way of housework is that she keep her bathroom clean. We insist that she contribute $25 per week for food and purchase all of her personal items. So far, she has paid on time, but she is starting to run out of supplies in her bath-

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (AP) - When the Detroit Pistons lost Allan Houston to free agency during the summer and then struggled offensively, people started asking if they had anyone who could pick up the load in the backcourt.

Doug Collins wasn't asking. He knows who could do

"I believe in Lindsey Hunter and soon, so will everyone else," Collins said after Wednesday night's 103-84 rout of Dallas. "Lindsey's already doing a lot of the things that Allan did for us last year."

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — It wasn't the point-shaving scandal that Boston College had known once and feared again. But it was bad enough.

The school suspended 13 football players Wednesday for gambling, including two who bet against their school last month. Middlesex County district attorney Thomas Reilly said the two players did not influence the outcome of the game Syracuse won 45-17.

They realize that there are rules. They realize that they made a mistake," Reilly said. "And they realize that there are consequences for their mistakes and they will be held accountable."

Gambling on professional or college sporting events is against NCAA rules.

Reilly did not plan to pursue illegal betting charges, but said he would not have been so understanding had the players been shaving points or throwing games.

"We have found absolutely no evidence, no indication, of any game, the outcome of any game, the score of any game, being compromised ... in any way by players at Boston College," he said.

This incident, however, implicates more students from one team than any previously reported gambling scandal.

The suspended players include tight end Scott Dragos, a starter, and linebacker Brian Maye, who had been a starter before he dislocated his elbow against Syracuse.

Other suspended players were identified as running back Jamall Anderson, offensive lineman Marcus Bembry, defensive back Paul Cary, defensive linemen Coleman and Dan Collins, wide receivers Chris Cosenza, Steve Everson and Brandon King, center Kyle Geiselman, linebacker Jermaine Monk, and tight end Rob Tardio.

Pampa gymnast wins district title

ODESSA - Abby Cavalier of Pampa edged out teammate Erin Coffey to win her second straight District Championship All-Around title in Level 6 competi-

Abby took the lead on the last event, the uneven bars, where she scored a Level 6 high meet score of 9.55. She placed first on the bars, second on vault 9.1, second on floor exercise 9.05 and fifth on balance beam, 8.8. Her outstanding all-around score of 36.50 captured the gold medal. The score was the highest for the entire meet and qualifies her for the North State semifinals, which includes gymnasts from the north half of Texas.

Erin took the silver medal in the all around with an excellent 36.25. She had very solid performances on all four appartus' and placed second on balance beam 9.15, second on bars 9.05, third on floor exercise 9.05 and fifth on vault 9.0. Erin also advances to the semifinals along with eight other gymnasts in her Level from the West Texas District.

"I was very pleased with the performances," Kristi Fatheree.

"Abby had several mistakes that could have cost her the meet, but she never gave up and competed even harder. Erin had her best performances ever on vault and bars. We are looking forward to having two gymnasts in contention at the semifinals."

Also representing Gymnastics of Pampa was Amanda McKendree, who is in her first year of competition. She took ninth place on Level 5 floor exercise 8.55 and 14th in all-around 30.80. Amanda qualified for the North State meet, but will not be making the trip.

Level 6 gymnasts will take two weeks to train for North State, which will be held Nov. 16-17 in Arlington.

BYU's Edwards gives a hoot about Owls

PROVO, Utah (AP) — All season long, LaVell Edwards and his 12th-ranked Cougars expected their Nov. 23 date with archrival Utah to be the Western Athletic Conference's marquee

Then came Rice (5-3), shaking off a 1-3 start to win three in a row, including a 51-10 shocker over the then 20th-ranked Utes. Suddenly, it's the Owls — 4-1 in their first WAC season - who could topple BYU from its Mountain Division perch this Saturday.

A loss also could derail plans for a Dec. 7 conference championship date with the Pacific Division's winner, Cougars coach LaVell Edwards knows.

'Rice looks like they're on a BYU's 25th-year coach said. 'I'm glad we're playing them here.'

While the Cougars dismantled Texas-El Paso 40-18 last weekend, the Owls used a 28-0 second half to end both Utah's seven-game winning streak and the then-20th-ranked Utes sojourn in The Associated Press Top 25.

Rice gained an incredible 496 of its 524 offensive yards on the ground, led by Spencer George's 108 yards on just six carries — one of them a 76-yard touchdown gallop.

"It will be different because of their wishbone attack," Edwards said. "They are pretty clever in blocking schemes, formations and have monstrous splits.
