July 4 Celebration Shapes UP

There's Master's Art to Muleskinning

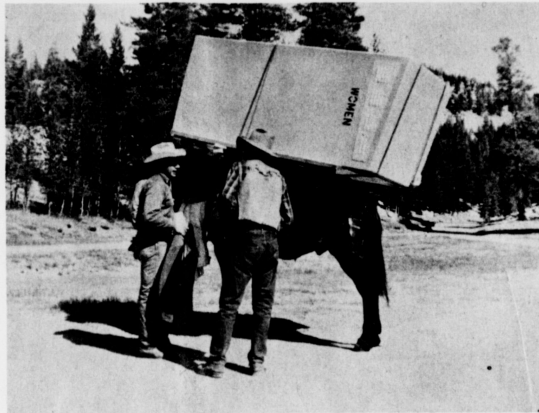

Man Must Outwit Mule, Else Cagey Animal Outwits Man

Texan Tells Colorful Story of Mule and Man

A muleskinner, the hallmark type, visited Muleshoe Thursday . . . and was pleased, Frank McWhorter, a product of generation after generation of muleskinner heritage, stopped in town to view the life-size statue of the mule, the only National Mule Monument. He liked what he saw . . . and appreciated the people who helped arrange and finance this monument to the animal who helped build early America. Asked if he thought the model was good, he said "Yes, it is a good one and I think it is good that someone took the time to remember this animal and I am glad I have seen this memorial. McWhorter told many details about the mule and muleskinning in Yosemite National Park where he is employed by the Department of Interior as a 'skinner and packer' and works only with mules, taking equipment and supplies high into the Sierras from the valley. It was evident that McWhorter has a tremendous amount of respect for the animal, his mind and ability. His description was colorful and sharp. "A mule is a mule where you find him," he said. "He is smart, in spite of some people not giving the mule this credit. He is smarter, in many ways than a horse, and if you don't watch him, he is smarter than the man who calls himself the mule's master. "To be a muleskinner or packer, you have to be just as stubborn as the mule. You have to live with them, know them . . . their habits, and yes, their tricks. There is just no books or schools that can teach you anything about a mule. "For instance," he continued, "a mule will pick stick and lie down. If you don't know him, he will get away with it and will continue to pick stick instead of work. "There are all talky animals. True to the stories told about them, but once they know you are their master, they are easy to handle. "There are ways to handle the balky mule and the most effective one is actually building a fire under them. "Once a mule balks and lays down, just build the fire near him and then keep moving the flames closer and he gets up and on his way, alright. "Unless they are overloaded, we who live with them and handle them seldom have this problem . . . it is sort of a mutual understanding . . . they know we like them . . . and are their masters, which don't by any means mean they like us.

"They do not have the loyalty that a dog or horse has . . . they never recall like a human or show loyalty in any method. The only time they will show any signs of this nature is when you have something they want . . . like food, they do until they are fed . . . then they are a mule again. "My admiration for the mule comes from his ability. My life has been in their hands more times than one." McWhorter said, "I remember one snow storm in the High Sierras. We were lost and could not find the trail. But the mules were not lost. They can find their way in a storm and will not take a chance of endangering his life, therefore he does not endanger yours. "But you can harness a horse

BLINDED---This is one way, Muleskinner Frank McWhorter explained, that man must outwit the mule. They cover the eyes while loading the items to be packed, else the mule would shy away as the men approach with the load to be placed on his back. This is a 180-pound fiberglass rest room for the park which is to be freighted nine miles up into the Yosemite Park mountains. McWhorter explained that each load must be evenly balanced and securely tied, then the blind comes off the mule and the trek starts. McWhorter is pictured at left and another skinner, Walt Cassel, is shown assisting him load the mule.

Open House Held For New Bula Firm

Approximately 40 persons attended open house in Bula for a new business firm, Bailey County Farmers Union Insurance office, held Wednesday, June 19. The business occupies the building formerly housing the Bula Post Office and is managed by John Hubbard with Faye Jones as secretary. A drawing was held at 5 p.m. for a door prize, Jimmy Cannon won the prize with four-year-old George W. Autry Jr., drawing the winning name.

Raw Country Enticed Pioneer Spirited Man

A raw new country with wide open bright skies and an atmosphere of opportunity lured people who were naturally pioneer-spirited to a land which became and is now Bailey County. Among them came the Hi Bearden family and some of the venturesome experiences in so doing is recalled by daughter, Helen Bearden Cox. "Momma ran the old hotel in Old Hurley and dad freighted for the ranchers and settlers when they came to Texas after we arrived in Old Hurley in the month of March, 1908. "I was born May 10, 1910 and was the fourth child born in what is now Bailey County. The first was Mary Snyder Wood then came Francis Gaede and Donald Bahman preceding me by a few months. "Old Hurley had a hotel, store, post office, livery barn, blacksmith shop and was the favorite stopping place for cowboys from far and near. "They seemed to hunger for homelife and momma promptly learned of Ben Richardson's death . . . the exciting days when we held the Liberty Bond drives. The bit of sugar we were allowed was used to bake cakes to be sold to raise money for Liberty Bonds. "Corn bread and feterita bread was eaten to save the precious white flour. "Another story . . . flu hit in 1918 and we saw little of momma. No near doctors, so momma went and went. Days on days, she would be gone, helping nurse, comforting and healing. Then came the time our family was stricken, but momma never once took the flu. She was here, there and everywhere . . . helping a bereaved family find comfort and solace or bringing new babies into the world. It was nothing uncommon to hear buggy wheels at night and a voice saying "Mrs. Bearden, can you come?" She always went. She was a remarkable and always capable woman. Then the war was over and

"We remember the first glass-enclosed cars to come in the Y community. School was dismissed so we could watch Albert Gaede drive his car home from Plainview, and once we were attending Old Hurley school, and we were dismissed and ran a mile to see an airplane that also landed in a pasture at the Howard Douglas place."

Double Ring Vows Unite Pamela Kerr, Joe Fowler

Mrs. Joe Dean Fowler... the former Pamela Kerr

Double ring wedding vows were exchanged Saturday, June 22, in the First Methodist Church of Muleshoe between Miss Pamela Ruth Kerr and Joe Dean Fowler.

The Rev. J. Frank Peery, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Canyon officiated. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Calvin Kerr of Muleshoe and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Baker. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arch T. Fowler of Lubbock, formerly of Muleshoe, and the grandson of Mrs. Doll Fowler of Brownfield.

The bride, presented in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white organza and Brussels lace. The moulded Empire bodice was designed with portrait neckline and long tapered sleeves with jeweled applique. The waistline was defined with a jeweled applique inset and the slim A-line skirt was complemented with a flared chapel length train repeating the same jeweled lace motif. The bouffant veil of illusion fell from a matching Brussels lace coronet highlighted in jeweling. She carried a bouquet of white daisies in the center of which was a large orchid. The daisies were surrounded by ivy.

Miss Lindy Kerr, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a formal length gown of pale yellow peau de sole. Her flowers were a bouquet of yellow daisies surrounded by ivy.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Wanda Lee of Stephenville, Tex., Miss Linda Fowler of Lubbock, sister of the groom and Miss Debbie Kerr, sister of the bride. They wore gowns the same as that of the maid of honor.

Kim Allen, cousin of the groom, was the flowergirl and Benton Glaze was the ringbearer. Jerry Lee of Stephenville served as the best man and the groomsmen were David Cave of Lubbock, Larry Hastings of Lubbock and James Durham of Brownfield.

The head usher was Terry Fowler of Midland, cousin of the groom. Miss Sonja Bass provided wedding selections and Mrs. Alva Lee Peeler was the soloist. She sang "The Wedding Prayer" and "Because."

The reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the First Methodist Church. The serving table was covered with a yellow organdy cloth trimmed with lace. A centerpiece of yellow daisies atop a silver candelabra was accented by the bride's bouquet. Service at the table were Mrs. Ronnie Johnson and Mrs. Mike Miller. Registering the guests was Miss Carolina Bass.

The bride is a graduate of Muleshoe High School in 1966 and is now attending Texas Tech where she is a junior secondary education major. The groom is a 1964 graduate of Muleshoe High School and is presently a senior at Texas Tech, majoring in agricultural engineering.

A rehearsal dinner was given in the Fellowship Hall on Friday, June 21. The dinner was hosted by the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arch Fowler. It was attended by approximately 25 guests.

DECORATIVE SEWING BOARD---Mrs. Bill Harmon is shown holding the sewing board she has completed.

Mrs. Bill Harmon Shares Recipe of Orange Sherbet

Mrs. Bill Harmon, a working farm wife, shares her favorite recipe and ideas with the women of Muleshoe and surrounding area.

Jo is the mother of two children, Bennett, age six and Beth, age two and one-half years. Living on a farm and being the wife of a farmer, Jo has many chores to do besides working in the tax office. Although she does take time to do the hobbies she likes best. Among some of them, she makes sewing boards that are time saving and decorative, too.

Most sewing machine drawers become tangled with thread and it makes it more difficult to find the color thread you are looking for. With a sewing board, a busy housewife can have it in place and find it at a glance.

Jo met her husband, Bill, in September, 1958, in the business office of Lubbock Christian College while registering for the fall semester. They were married in August of 1959 in El Paso where Jo was born. Her husband is a native of Muleshoe.

They have been residents of Muleshoe since December, 1962.

She and her family attend the Church of Christ where she works with the nursery group and Bill works with the junior high age group.

Other things Jo enjoys doing when she finds the time, are decorating her home and working with antiques. Along with the recipe for Orange Sherbet, Jo tells how to make a sewing board.

SEWING BOARD Any size of board is covered with wall paper or contact paper, spray milk to gold, or any color desired, then space nails as desired, or nail them in the board and spray the board and nails all the same color.

The board may be trimmed with lace, fringe, or just use your imagination to decorate the board according to the room where it will hang. "This is such a useful item," Jo said, and added she didn't know what she did before she made hers.

No more digging? ORANGE SHERBET Here is an easy recipe to fix as well as to remember. 6 bottles of Orange Crush 1 can Eagle Brand Sweetened Milk 1 can crushed pineapple (if desired)

Put in freezer can and finish with enough milk to fill the freezer can. Freeze in the same manner as ice cream.

TOPS Club

The Jeany TOPS Club met in the Bailey County Electric community room, Thursday night, June 20. The meeting opened with saying the pledge and singing the TOPS song with June Vinson in charge.

Twenty-six members weighed in with Aurora Mata as queen for the week, Lucille Harp was first runner-up and Eulene Harris as second runner-up.

In the business session, a plan was discussed for a banner-sash to be made and worn by each member, details to be decided later.

Gritte Kirk was in charge of the activities for the night with several games played and group exercise taken.

In their meeting of June 13, Mrs. Elizabeth Watson was guest speaker and her subject was "New Views in Education." The new look at math, reading and language. The club reported that it was very enlightening to members present.

Sadie Bass Home Scene of Progress HD Club

The Progress Home Demonstration club met in the home of Sadie Bass Tuesday, June 18.

Roll call was answered with "A Jam or Jelly I Would Like to Make." The program, "Making Jams and Jellies" was presented by Elzada Gulley. A test was made to see if certain fruit juices will make jelly. If anyone wanting to learn how to make jelly of certain juices, will contact any member of the HD club. These unusual jellies and preserves were served with hot biscuits and butter for refreshments. They were: Cokerberry jelly from Montana, Cornocob jelly from Arkansas, Elderberry, mint and watermelon kind.

The Progress club elected Kay Mardis as nominee for THDA chairman for Bailey County and as a delegate to the state meeting in McAllen in September. Judy Roming was elected as alternate delegate. They are to be elected as County delegates at Council, July 10, Muleshoe club is also to elect a THDA nominee and State delegate and alternate.

This year, the County Agent at McAllen is planning a tour in the Valley for husbands, who may wish to attend the State meeting with their wives.

The next meeting will be July 16, in the home of Phoebe Gray. The July 2 meeting will be held in August with a family night cook-out.

Logical! The little old lady pulled the string on the right leg and the parrot said, "Happy birthday." Then she pulled the string on the left leg and the parrot said "Pleased to meet you."

"I wonder what would happen if I pulled both strings at once," she thought. "If I fall off my perch, you stupid bird," said the parrot.

Belts of self material, leather, suede or metal are all in the picture this season but some of the newest dresses have their belts around the hips.

Laney, Amarillo, second vice president, presided during the President's dinner. The procession of presidents was a feature of this dinner meeting and Mrs. E. W. Johnson, retiring president, represented the Epsilon Delta Chapter in this ceremony. Miss Catherine Rathman, international executive secretary, gave the address, "Bursting With Moments."

Dr. Dorothy L. Johnson, nominee for International President, challenged the women educators through her address, "Holders of Today for Tomorrow," at the Founders' Dinner. and mule together and should they run away or become entangled, the horse will damage himself and the mule will balk and will not.

"Another quality is his ability to find water on the desert and food wherever he is and will not starve to death if not in captivity.

"He also learned the lesson of self-preservation by instinct. A mountain lion or bear never kills a mule like they do horses and other animals. They protect themselves with their feet and mouth and are very efficient at the job.

"They stand more heat, do more work, pull a heavier load and eat less than any other work animal . . . and in case you haven't noticed, a clown at rodeos and places of entertainment rides a mule. This is because they are smart and can be trained. Where there is danger inside the arenas, they can protect themselves, too, but again, do not depend on them as a friend.

"An example of this is that a good muleskinner speaks to a mule when he approaches him. If not, you may, and usually do, get kicked. Once this lesson is learned by man, it is something worthwhile to remember if you plan to work with them.

"Not everyone who tries becomes a muleskinner because they are not as tough as the mules and therefore, the mule quickly becomes the boss, therefore the man is lost for good in this field of work. "There is nothing a good muleskinner will fight over quicker than his mules. They are not to be abused and are to be cared for and fed. They are a lonesome animal and somehow look more to the horse for the nearest thing to friendship they ever have.

"Their braying changes and has a more lonesome, plaintive sound at times than others. There are seven skimmers where McWhorter is stationed at Yosemite and approximately 2,700 mules being used to freight equipment and supplies into the mountains.

"Man will have to come up with something in the science field that can be as efficient in mountain country. They have tried helicopters and returned to the use of the mule. "This is going to be a problem soon, before too many years this animal will be as extinct as the buffalo," he said.

The average mule used at Yosemite is between 1,200 to 1,600 pounds and can carry about 200 pounds of weight up the mountains and they travel about two miles in an hour.

McWhorter is from Paducah, Tex., and has been a muleskinner since he was old enough to learn the art and in addition to working at Yosemite, has been a Canadian packer and has worked in many of the mountain areas of the state.

Before leaving the Journal office on his visit here, the muleskinner said this land was not made with machinery, nor early wars fought without the aid of the mule.

Textbooks Ordered Before Deadline: Cuts Down Expense

Promptness pays off when you're ordering textbooks, says J. B. Golden, who directs the mammoth textbooks operation for the Texas Education Agency.

Golden reports that 89 percent of the state's school superintendents filed their textbook requisitions for the coming school year before the June 1 deadline.

Muleshoe's requisitions were filed before deadline date. Superintendent Neal Dillman said. As a result of their promptness, Johnnie and most of the 2.5 million students in Texas public schools will find their textbooks waiting for them when they begin the school year in September. In short, Johnnie won't be able to say he can't read because he hasn't got a textbook.

Golden says he has already advise the alert superintendents their orders will be available at one of the state's four depositories in Dallas two weeks in advance of the shipping date to the schools.

What happens to those textbooks that are backordered as of September 1?

Golden says the state law is that if a publisher has an order for a textbook that is not in stock in Dallas by September 1, he subjects himself to a fine of $100 a day for each book not filled in an order.

"And each day is a separate offense," he says. Golden readily points out that the publishers too are prompt in filling orders.

"Last year, we didn't have a single penalty," he says. Textbooks are big business in Texas. The current inventory of new books in the four depositories in Dallas and the used books in the state depository at Austin is around 10 million textbooks.

Cubs 5 - Longhorns 13
Colts 12 - Lions 11
Mustangs 7 - Cardinals 6

And their value? About $22 million, which averages out to about $2.21 per book.

Computers play an important role in the state's textbooks operation. These marvels of electronics write the orders -- based first on the available inventory of used copies.

If the state depository at Austin does not have enough used copies of a particular title to fill an order, the computer writes the order on one of the four depositories in Dallas for the number of new copies needed to complete the order.

Golden says two of the Dallas depositories act as a service agency for the publishers, who contract for this space so they can keep a stock of their books there to fill orders. The two other depositories are maintained by individual publishers with whom the State of Texas does its textbook business.

"By law, every publisher who has a contract to supply textbooks to the Texas public schools must maintain a depository in Texas," Golden explains.

MEN AND MONEY:
 Both must be employed if our community is to prosper. If you plan to buy any thing, purchase it from a local merchant. If you want your job to be secure and your investment protected, then trade at home.
 If you want a good thriving community, with good churches and good schools, one that you would be proud to be a part of, then support your local business men who are largely responsible for making all this possible.
